

Patrick Wrona Server, RPM Italian

Biography

Patrick Wrona is a long-time server currently working at RPM Italian, an upscale restaurant in Las Vegas, Nevada. Patrick began his career in 1998 while he was living in Chicago, Illinois, working at an Outback Steakhouse. A graduate of the University of Illinois, Patrick started a position as a white-collar sales associate, a role he found deeply unsatisfying. His career trajectory changed during a fateful visit to a friend working as a bartender at the famous Venetian resort. Observing his friend's job satisfaction prompted Patrick's return to the hospitality industry.

Following his visit, Patrick returned home to Chicago, newly invigorated to develop his skills and expertise in the food service industry. While in Chicago, Patrick gained an intimate knowledge of wine menus, food sourcing, presentation, and operational management skills, all of which he applies daily in his current role.

Patrick left Chicago in early 2020, selling his prior ownership interests in restaurant ventures and starting a new journey in Las Vegas. Since 2020, Patrick has been employed at RPM Italian. He lives with his wife, a union culinary chef at the Wynn Las Vegas.