

Dr. Aaron Kesselheim, M.D., J.D.
Professor of Medicine, Harvard Medical School

Dr. Kesselheim created and leads Harvard's Program On Regulation, Therapeutics, And Law (PORTAL), an interdisciplinary research group focusing on intersections among prescription drugs and medical devices, patient health outcomes, and regulatory practices and law. Dr. Kesselheim previously served on an FDA advisory committee before loudly resigning in protest over the FDA's decision to approve the Alzheimer's drug Aduhelm. (Note: Dr. Kesselheim testified before W&M last Congress at our 5/10/23 hearing on "Inhibiting Innovation.")
