

Andrew Zengilowski
(Zeng-gil-ow-ski)
CEO, and Co-Founder, CoachCare

Mr. Zengilowski is the Chief Executive Officer and a co-founder of CoachCare, a leading provider of Remote Patient Monitoring technology and services. CoachCare serves approximately 200 medical practices and has helped nearly 500,000 patients manage a range of chronic conditions and avoid unnecessary hospitalizations. Mr. Zengilowski also serves as a Director of Life Tech, Inc., a provider of hospital-at-home, hospice and medical transportation services to patients in New Jersey.

Prior to co-founding CoachCare, Andrew led mergers and acquisitions and strategic partnership development for HelloWorld, a leading digital marketing agency and was on the investment team at Catterton Partners and Catalyst Health Ventures. He began his career at J.P. Morgan in the investment banking division.

Additionally, Mr. Zengilowski serves as a founding member of the Remote Monitoring Leadership Council. The Council is a collaborative of seven innovative companies operating across all 50 states and collectively offering the majority of remote patient monitoring (RPM) services being delivered to Americans. The Council commits to a shared set of principles to ensure the delivery of high-quality, patient-centered care and to shape the future of our industry.
