

Dr. Jane Waldfogel, Professor, Columbia School of Social Work,
New York, NY

Jane Waldfogel is the Compton Foundation Centennial Professor for the Prevention of Children's and Youth Problems at the Columbia University School of Social Work and co-Director of the Columbia Population Research Center. She is also Visiting Professor at the London School of Economics. Waldfogel received her Ph.D. in public policy from the Harvard Kennedy School in 1994 and has written extensively on the impact of public policies on poverty, inequality, and child and family well-being. Her books include: Too Many Children Left Behind: The U.S. Achievement Gap in Comparative Perspective; Britain's War on Poverty; Steady Gains and Stalled Progress: Inequality and the Black-White Test Score Gap; What Children Need; Securing the Future: Investing in Children from Birth to College; and The Future of Child Protection. She is also the author of 200 articles and book chapters, including in leading academic journals such as the American Economic Review, American Educational Research Journal, American Sociological Review, Child Development, Demography, Journal of Economic Perspectives, Journal of Policy Analysis and Management, Monthly Labor Review, and Pediatrics. Waldfogel's current research includes studies of poverty and social policy, work-family policies including paid family and medical leave and child care, and inequality in child development and achievement.