

President Zippy Duvall
President
American Farm Bureau Federation

Zippy Duvall is president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the nation's largest agricultural organization. He was first elected in January 2016 and re-elected to his third term in January 2020. Zippy is a third-generation farmer from Georgia. In addition to a 400-head beef cattle herd for which he grows his own hay, Duvall and his son, Zeb, also grow more than 1.5 million broilers per year.

Recently, Duvall was appointed by President Donald Trump to the Economic Revival Industry Group. In December 2017, Duvall was appointed to the White House Advisory Committee for Trade Policy and Negotiations. Also in 2017, he was honored by the National 4-H Council as a founding luminary. He currently serves on the boards of the Supporters of Agricultural Research Foundation and Connected Nation, a technology organization working to bring affordable high-speed Internet to all Americans.

Prior to being elected AFBF president, Duvall served for nine years as president of the Georgia Farm Bureau. As GFB president, Duvall's service on the AFBF board of directors included roles on the AFBF Trade Advisory Committee, including several international trade missions, and on the AFBF Finance Committee. He also was recognized with several state appointments, including then-Gov. Sonny Perdue's Agricultural Advisory Committee and the Georgia Development Authority. His many state honors include Georgia Dairy Family of the Year.

Duvall's long leadership history includes service as a county commissioner and chairman, on the Georgia Farm Bureau Young Farmers Committee and on the Georgia Farm Bureau board of directors. He spent 18 years of service on the board of directors of Rayle Electric Membership Corp. He also served on the AFBF board of directors as chair of the national Young Farmers & Ranchers Committee in 1987.

Zippy and his late wife Bonnie were married for more than 40 years and raised four children and welcomed five grandchildren. Zippy is a member of New Hope Baptist Church in Greshamville, Georgia, where he is a deacon.
