

Lolly Lesher and her husband William own and operate Way-Har Farms located in SE Pennsylvania. The Lesher family has milked cows for 7 generations and in the past 50 years added a retail farm market to sell their milk and ice cream directly to consumers. Way-Har Farms consists of 240 milking cows and 400 acres of corn, hay, triticale and rye. The farm market operation has a retail store and a wholesale business with distribution to over 70 different outlets. William and Lolly are joined in the family business by 3 of their 4 children. Lolly and her family volunteer in their local community by serving on their local food bank, county Holstein group, the dairy promotion committee and the PA Center for Dairy Excellence Foundation. Lolly serves on her local school board and is a member of the Northeast Council of DFA Resolutions Committee.
