To support a local arts agency field census and related outreach activities. A national survey of local arts agencies (LAAs) will build on the information gathered through Americans for the Arts' 2015 local arts agency census and track field development on a variety of topics such as arts education, public art, and local funding models. Related outreach efforts will include an interactive online tool for interpreting the census data, training for LAA professionals, and the creation and public dissemination of reports based on census findings. The survey data will be made accessible to as many as 4,500 local arts agencies across the country. The findings will inform their local work while also providing opportunities to share collective stories that demonstrate the integral role of LAAs within the country's cultural infrastructure.

To support a collective impact project, the State Policy Pilot Initiative. A report of findings from a three-year study that began in 2014 will be published to inform state and local-level decision making and coalition building along with online videos, sample policy briefs, and guidelines for evaluation. These tools and resources also will be presented at conferences and symposiums across the country. The coalition of partners will include the Arts Education Partnership (AEP), the Education Commission of the States (ECS), the Kennedy Center Alliance for Arts Education Network (KCAEEN), and the National Assembly of State Arts Agencies (NASAA). Additional collaborators will include the National Association of State Boards of Education (NASBE), the State Education Agencies Directors of Arts Education (SEADAE), the State Arts Action Network (SAAN), the United States Urban Arts Federation (USUAF), as well as state chapters of each of the discipline-specific national associations and other state-level organizations.

To support the Public Art Resource Center (PARC). PARC will be designed to meet the needs of public art practitioners - including artists, public art administrators, and community and urban planners - who are seeking to develop new public art or manage existing public art programs. PARC will centralize widely dispersed information and expert knowledge into a single, searchable online resource. The resource will include national directories; a public art opportunities bulletin board; how-to guides specific to current, core issues in public art administration; and a set of best-practice case studies detailing key topics such as collections management, conservation, evaluation, financing, and community engagement.
