

BIOGRAPHY OF FARAR ELLIOTT

Curator, U.S. House of Representatives

Farar Elliott has served as the Curator of the House of Representative since 2002. In addition, she is Chief of the Clerk's Office of Art and Archives, responsible for both the House Collection of Fine Art and Artifacts and the archived records of the House.

Before becoming the House Curator, Ms. Elliott worked in museums ranging in size from small historic sites to the Smithsonian Institution, and in scope from local to American art. She serves regional and national cultural organizations as a grant reviewer, accreditation evaluator, and board member.

Ms. Elliott earned her bachelor's degree from Bryn Mawr College and her master's degree from The George Washington University. Born in Alexandria, Virginia, she lives with her wife and daughter in Washington, DC.
