

Aubrey Wilson Biography

Aubrey Wilson is Director of Government Innovation and Global Initiatives at POPVOX Foundation, a nonpartisan nonprofit based in the United States. In this role, Aubrey translates the functionality of emerging technologies to legislative settings by creating resources and training for Congress and other parliaments around the world. As former Deputy Staff Director for the Committee on House Administration (CHA) in the 118th Congress, she played a lead role in making the House work more effectively. In this role, Aubrey also served as the Staff Director of the Joint Committee on Printing and oversaw the inaugural session of CHA's bipartisan Subcommittee on Modernization. Prior, Aubrey served as Director of Oversight and Modernization for CHA during the 117th Congress following a year-long appointment as a Congressional Fellow in 2020. She is the ongoing host of POPVOX Foundation's Gavel In podcast for freshmen Members and the director of the Digital Parliaments Project which fosters the adoption of custom-built AI technologies within international legislatures. She has testified in front of the CHA Subcommittee on Modernization and Innovation regarding the future of constituent engagement and AI adoption within the House, and her work has been featured in Roll Call. She is a former House legislative assistant and member of the R Street Institute Governance Policy and federal affairs team.