

Biography

Faysal Itani is a senior fellow at the Atlantic Council, where he focuses his research on the Syrian conflict and its regional impact. He is also an adjunct professor of Middle East politics at George Washington University.

Itani is a native of Beirut, Lebanon and has lived and worked in several Middle East countries. Before joining the Atlantic Council, he was a risk analyst advising governments, corporations, and international organizations operating in the Middle East. Itani has repeatedly briefed the United States government and its partners on the conflict in Syria. He has been widely published and quoted in prominent media including The New York Times, TIME, Politico, The Washington Post, CNN, US News, Huffington Post, and The Wall Street Journal. He is the coauthor of Rebuilding Syria: A Localized Revitalization Strategy.

Itani holds an MA in strategic studies and international economics from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies, a certificate in public policy from Georgetown University, and a BA in business from the American University of Beirut.