

Gabriel Noronha is a Fellow at the Jewish Institute for National Security of America (JINSA) and the Executive Director of POLARIS National Security.

He is a leading advisor to Congress on Iran policy, and his research on Iran, Russia, and China has been cited by the Senate and House of Representatives in dozens of letters, statements, testimonies, and pieces of bipartisan legislation.

Gabriel previously testified to the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission on ensuring the efficacy of sanctions policy while promoting humanitarian outcomes, and to the House Financial Services Committee on strengthening financial pressure on the Iranian regime and its terror proxies. He exposed a major $10 billion nuclear deal between Russia and Iran and worked with Congress to impose sanctions on the program.

From 2019 to 2021, Gabriel served as Special Advisor for the Iran Action Group at the U.S. Department of State, where he directed the Department's communications, human rights policy, and congressional affairs for Iran, and helped coordinate the Maximum Pressure sanctions policy that deprived the Iranian regime of as much as $200 billion.

From 2017-2019, he worked as the Special Assistant for the Senate Armed Services Committee under Chairmen John McCain and Jim Inhofe, helping write, negotiate, and pass the annual national security legislation, the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA).

Gabriel also served as Executive Director of the Forum for American Leadership from 2021-2022 and worked for U.S. Senator Kelly Ayotte from 2015-2016. Gabriel speaks and conducts research in Russian, Mandarin, and Spanish.
