

Fevzi Bilgin is founding president of Rethink Institute, a not-for-profit research organization based in Washington, DC. His areas of expertise are constitutional politics, Islam and politics, and Turkish politics. He received BA from Ankara University and PhD in political science from University of Pittsburgh. He previously taught political science in Turkey and the United States. His publications include recent books, Understanding Turkey's Kurdish Question and Political Liberalism in Muslim Societies.