

Benedict Rogers

Benedict Rogers is the East Asia Team Leader at the international human rights organisation Christian Solidarity Worldwide (CSW), where he specialises in Burma, Indonesia and North Korea. He is the author of five books, including Burma: A Nation at the Crossroads (2012, Random House) and Than Shwe: Unmasking Burma's Tyrant (2010, Silkworm Books), and several major reports, including Carrying the Cross: The military regime's campaign of restriction, discrimination and persecution against Christians in Burma, published by CSW in 2007, and Indonesia: Pluralism in Peril – The rise of religious intolerance across the archipelago, published by CSW in February 2014.

Ben travels widely in the region, including making more than 40 visits to Burma and its borderlands and several visits to Indonesia. In 2010, he travelled to North Korea with Lord Alton of Liverpool and Baroness Cox of Queensbury, members of the House of Lords,, and in 2011 he co-founded the International Coalition to Stop Crimes against Humanity in North Korea (ICNK). Ben has also lived in and travelled to East Timor and China, and previously worked on Pakistan and Sri Lanka.

Ben regularly briefs senior Government ministers and officials, UK Members of Parliament, the European Union, United Nations officials, US Congressional offices and the State Department on human rights and freedom of religion or belief in Asia, and has testified in hearings at the European Parliament, the House of Commons, the Japanese Diet and the US Congress. He has also organised several fact-finding visits to Burma's borders for British and European Parliamentarians.

He is a regular contributor to international media, including The Wall Street Journal, The International Herald Tribune and The Huffington Post, and has appeared on BBC, CNN, Sky and al-Jazeera. He is also a co-founder and Deputy Chairman of the Conservative Party Human Rights Commission.

Ben has an MA in China Studies from the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS), and a BA in Modern History and Politics from Royal Holloway College, University of London.