

Paul Ronan is a co-founder of The Resolve LRA Crisis Initiative, and currently serves as the Project Director. He also co-manages the LRA Crisis Tracker, a project that provides analysis of trends in LRA violence and activity to policymakers, humanitarians, and affected communities. Paul travels frequently to Uganda and LRA-affected areas of the CAR, Congo, and South Sudan. He is also a frequent contributor to media outlets, Congressional briefings, and think tank forums. Prior to co-founding The Resolve, he worked in the Caritas International and Franciscans International UN advocacy offices in New York.