

Bio:

Jessica Berg is a graduate of the University of Virginia with a Bachelors in English, later she went on to attend George Mason University, receiving her master's degree in Education. She is a teacher in Loudoun County, Virginia, currently in her eleventh year. Jessica is the creator and writer of the Women and Gender Studies Course for high school in Virginia. She also created the Ms. Phoenix organization to empower students to use their voice, and she started her own scholarship fund where she teaches to help aspiring young women achieve their academic goals after high school. Jessica is the Executive Director of the annual "Rise To" summit, and she currently serves as Vice President of Education and Outreach for Loudoun County's Chapter of NOW.