

Matthew Larosiere - Bio

Matthew Larosiere is an attorney focused on the right to keep and bear arms. He has written many scholarly articles, legal briefs, and otherwise on the history and tradition of arms. He is a senior partner at Zermay-Larosiere and an adjunct scholar of law and policy at the Second Amendment Foundation. He writes on the subject of the 2nd Amendment, gun law, taxation and gun violence. His work has been featured in The Wall Street Journal, National Review, Fox Nation, Forbes, and more. Matt hosts the gun law myth-busting YouTube channel Fudd Busters.

Matthew graduated cum laude from the University of Alabama with a J.D. and Master of Laws in Taxation. During law school, he served as the president of the Federalist Society and the ethics opinion editor of the Journal of the Legal Profession. He holds a B.S. in Business Management from the University of Central Florida.
