

Frank Albergo
National President
Postal Police Officers Association

Frank Albergo is the National President of the Postal Police Officers Association (PPOA). Elected in September of 2020, Frank has been a member-focused and outspoken union leader. He has over twenty years of experience representing bargaining-unit employees. Through his persistent advocacy for Postal Police Officers and the public trust in the mail, he has brought awareness of the mail theft epidemic to a national level.

Frank began his postal career as a letter carrier immediately following his graduation from college. In 2000, he entered the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) in Glynco, Georgia to become a Postal Police Officer. Albergo served as shop steward for the PPOA and in 2014 he was elected as the 1st Vice President of the Union. During his second term as Vice President, Frank served as the Union's partisan arbitrator on the 2020 Postal Service Interest Arbitration Board (PPOA v. USPS). Frank lives in New York with his wife and son.
