Helping California Stakeholders Weigh the Benefits of Patient Data Aggregation versus the Risks to Patient Privacy, Investigator

Researchers from UCSF and UC Hastings collaborate to discover the appropriate balance between the use of aggregated patient data for research and policymaking and patient privacy protection. We will explore the privacy and use restrictions from five states that have all payer claims data bases, meet with a wide range of stakeholders, and draft model legislation based on our findings. (2017).

The Source on Healthcare Price and Competition, Principle Investigator, Co-Founder, and Executive Editor

The Source provides up-to-date and easily accessible information about healthcare price and competition in the United States by posting news articles, policy papers, academic articles, litigation documents, and legislative/regulatory materials, as well as both legal and policy-based analysis of those materials and other relevant events. The Source aims not only to bridge the gaps between health policy, health services research, and legal experts working on issues surrounding healthcare costs and competition, but also seeks to serve as a resource for journalists, state attorneys general, potential litigants, and others seeking to understand and/or promote cost control and competition in healthcare. We launched the website June 5, 2014. The Source now also has an advisory committee of national experts and a presence on Twitter and Facebook. (2013-2020).

Sequencing Newborn Blood Spot DNA to Improve and Expand Newborn Screening, Investigator

Direct legal research on the constitutional, statutory, and regulatory constraints on expanding existing newborn screening programs to include pharmacogenomics variants, and assist in the development of new policy recommendations. Collaborate with researchers from UCSF and the Hastings Center in New York to create a framework for determining the legal and ethical boundaries for mandatory and voluntary newborn genetic testing. The goal is for this framework to serve as a model for California and then expand into other states. (2013-2017).

Legal Barriers to Transparency in Healthcare Prices, Principal Investigator

Collaborated with researchers from UCSF and UC Hastings to examine the implications of improving price transparency on the overall cost of healthcare. Supervised two legal fellows in conducting research on the legal, economic, and systemic barriers to price transparency. Drafted a significant white paper outlining a range of legal and non-legal solutions to implementing price transparency initiatives in a manner that will reduce overall healthcare prices. (2012-2013).

Recording Medical Visits of People with Breast Cancer, Legal Consultant

Named as a Key Partner/Legal Consultant on a grant run by researchers at UCSF. The grant focused on community-based improvements on patient education for breast cancer patients. Analyzed the legal issues associated with patient privacy and use of these recordings for a variety of purposes (2011-2013).
