

Stephen Hoge, M.D.
President

As the President of Moderna, Stephen Hoge leads our platform R&D, therapeutic area research, and pre-clinical development efforts. He joined Moderna in late 2012 from McKinsey & Company where he was a partner in the healthcare practice. Prior to McKinsey, Dr. Hoge was a resident physician in New York City.

He holds an M.D. with thesis from the University of California, San Francisco and a B.S. in neuroscience from Amherst College.

Currently, Dr. Hoge also serves on the Board of Directors of Axcella Health, Inc., a private biotechnology company.