

President of Energy Bureau and Public Service Regulatory Board of Puerto Rico Edison Avilés Deliz

Edison Avilés-Deliz obtained his Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering with specialties in Power and Control Systems (BSEE) from the University of Puerto Rico, Mayagüez Campus in 1991 and a Juris Doctor from the University of Puerto Rico School of Law in 1997. He also earned a Master of Arts in Diplomacy / International Relations / Business from Norwich University in Vermont and a Master of Laws in Energy from Vermont University of Law (LLM).

Avilés-Deliz is a licensed engineer and member of the College of Engineers and Surveyors of Puerto Rico (CIAPR); Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers (IEEE). Likewise, he was Professor of Design of Electrical Distribution Systems at the School of Architecture of the Polytechnic University of Puerto Rico and former president of the Disciplinary and Professional Ethics Tribunal of the College of Engineers and Surveyors of Puerto Rico. Avilés-Deliz is a senior member of the IEEE, was president of the Institute of Electrical Engineers of CIAPR and president of the Society of Electrical Engineers of Puerto Rico. He is admitted to practice as a lawyer and notary public in Puerto Rico and as a lawyer, both in the District Court of Puerto Rico and the Court of Appeals for the First Federal Circuit.