

Alexandria Walden

Alexandria Walden is Google's global policy lead for global human rights and free expression. With colleagues in more than 40 countries, Alexandria builds partnerships to promote free speech and expression and to combat internet censorship and filtering around the globe. Based in Washington, DC, Alexandria coordinates policy and strategy around these issues for the company. She also represents Google at the Global Network Initiative (GNI) -- a multi-stakeholder coalition of companies, human rights groups, investors, and academics that develops best practices for respecting human rights on the Internet and in the communications sector. Prior to joining Google, Alexandria worked at The Raben Group; Center for American Progress; and NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund.

She has also served as a law clerk for the U.S. Senate, Committee on the Judiciary and for the U.S. House of Representatives in the Committee on the Judiciary, Subcommittee on the Constitution, Civil Rights & Liberties; and worked with the U.S. EEOC; U.S. Department of Labor; and Bay Area Legal Aid during law school.

Alex holds a B.A. in political science from American University and a J.D. from the University of San Francisco School of Law.