You know, I watched you last night. You seem to really love what you did last night. Explain – you know, why is this important to you? And why – there is a phenomenon that people show up at your rallies. We don't see the same thing at the Democratic rallies. Why is that in your view?

There was tremendous energy in that room last night. And there was – and we've had a lot of energy in virtually every rally. But there was just a special energy. I announced we are going forward with the second term as you know. But the level – it was like being at a world championship college football game where the score was tied going into the last minute.

It was the entire rally. It was an incredible scene. And outside, there was thousands of people. And, I mean, we were asking people not to show up, we were saying, please don't come, letting the word – because we had 121,000 people who I guess it holds 20,000 or 25,000 people inside if you include the basketball court which was loaded up with great, loving patriots.

You know, I want to ask you, I don't know if you saw the show on Monday. But Monday, we had our friend Lawrence Jones down there or I guess it was Tuesday night – no, it was Monday. And it looked like a tailgating party and people there, 40, 45 hours in the pouring rain before the event. I actually kind of regretted not going because I wanted to hang out with the people outside because they were having a blast.

They are people that love our country and they love seeing what's happening. And it was in a way a tailgate party for the country. Not for a team – although it's a team when you think about it. But it's a tailgate party for our country. And it was just – the feeling was – it was like love. But it's love for what we are all about, for the things we stand for.

I said it almost every day on radio and TV for a year, 13 million more Americans on food stamps, 8 million more in poverty, worst recovery since the '40s, lowest homeownership rate in 51 years, lowest labor participation rate since the '70s, more debt than 43 presidents before them combined, and they never hit one year 3 GDP growth, for a year.

Gregg Jarrett said it very well when he named his book "The Russian Hoax." And it's disgraceful that they are allowed, and they are very upset now because it didn't turn out like they thought because we did. We were headed that way. The rules and regulations – we've cut more regulations than any president, and unmeaningful regulation. We want regulation, but it's got to be meaningful. It stymied our country, Sean. We weren't able to do anything. Jobs numbers would've been a disaster. Instead, we have more people working today, almost 160 million people than have ever worked in the history of our country.

In October 2016, Hillary's dossier, bought and paid for Russian dossier, paid for by her and the money she controlled at the DNC that was funneled through a law firm that hired – op research group that hired a foreign national – we now know that Bruce Ohr testified behind closed doors that everybody was warned that Christopher Steele hated you, that Hillary paid for it, and that it was not verified.

Sir, there have been four separate investigations, let remind you. The nine-month FBI investigation, the one that Peter Strzok said there's no "there" there. Lisa Page said we had nothing after nine months as it relates to collusion. And there was a House Intel Committee investigation, no collusion. Then, a bipartisan Senate committee, no collusion.

All right. The Democrat debates begin next week. They're supporting this New Green Deal. In 10 years, they want to get rid of the lifeblood of our economy, oil and gas. Everything is going to be free. They are talking about a 70 percent top marginal tax rate for individuals, and 90 percent top marginal rate for businesses, and a wealth tax on top of that.

So, a lot of good things are happening. But if the Democrats would meet for 20 minutes, 15 minutes, I would say, it used to be 45 – it's a very short meeting. We could solve the border problem but they don't want to do that because they think it's bad politically. I think what's bad, Sean, what is really bad as what they are doing, I think it's terrible politically.
