

Catherine Glenn Foster is President & CEO of Americans United for Life; founded in 1971 – two years before Roe v. Wade – AUL is America’s original national pro-life organization, the nation’s premier pro-life legal team, and the pioneer of both the state-based model legislative strategy that saves lives today while undermining the Supreme Court’s false notion that women cannot succeed in American society without legalized abortion, and our mother-child strategy that looks at the interests and vulnerabilities of both, protecting both from abortion industry abuses. Previously, Foster spent seven years with Alliance Defending Freedom advocating for the dignity of all human life in federal and state trial and appellate courts, founded and managed a law practice focused on respect for human life, and served as Executive Director of Euthanasia Prevention Coalition USA. Foster has litigated precedent-setting § 1983 and other constitutional questions, abortion and maternal health, health and safety regulations, False Claims Act healthcare and Medicaid fraud, euthanasia and assisted suicide, denial of medical care, First Amendment rights, genetic engineering issues, Freedom of Information Act and open records issues, and healthcare and corporate conscience protections, and has testified before and advised the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, the U.S. Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on the Constitution, the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Energy and Commerce Select Investigative Panel and Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, and other international, federal, and state bodies and representatives. Foster is admitted to the bars of the District of Columbia, Virginia, the U.S. Supreme Court, and numerous other federal courts, and serves on the boards of And Then There Were None, Christian Legal Society D.C. Metro Chapter, and Rockville Women’s Center, and on the advisory board of the Center for Bioethics and Human Dignity. Foster earned her J.D. at Georgetown University Law Center, and also holds an M.A. in French from the University of South Florida, with a thesis on the effects of the interwar French mandate in Syria and Lebanon on the modern Middle East, and a B.A. in History and French from Berry College.
