

Adam Cohen is Google's director of economic policy, based in London. Prior to joining Google, he was an economics correspondent for Dow Jones and the Wall Street Journal, based in London and Brussels. Cohen received his AB from Harvard University and his MSc from the London School of Economics.