

Brandon Buskey

Brandon Buskey is the ACLU's Deputy Director for Smart Justice Litigation. He leads a team dedicated to ending mass incarceration through impact litigation on three central issues: bail, prosecutorial misconduct, and parole and probation. The team coordinates closely with the Campaign for Smart Justice and ACLU affiliates, in order to achieve the Campaign's co-equal goals of reducing prisons and jails by 50% and challenging racism within the system. Brandon has been with the ACLU's Criminal Law Reform Project since 2012. His other work focuses on public defense reform, juvenile sentencing, and collateral consequences. Prior to the ACLU, Brandon worked at the Equal Justice Initiative and the Civil Rights Bureau of the New York State Attorney General's Office. He is a 2006 graduate of New York University Law School, where he was a Root-Tilden-Kern Public Interest Scholar and an AnBryce Scholar. Following law school he clerked for the Honorable Janet C. Hall of the United States District Court for the District of Connecticut. He is a 2002 graduate of North Carolina State University, where he was a Park Scholar.
