

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

PROTECTING MINORITY VOTERS

..... 2014

OUR WORK IS NOT DONE

A REPORT BY THE
NATIONAL COMMISSION
ON VOTING RIGHTS

Disclaimer

The opinions expressed in this report are those of the National Commission on Voting Rights and do not necessarily reflect those of NCVR sponsors or supporters.

© 2014 by Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law
All rights reserved.

Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

1401 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 400
Washington, D.C. 20005
202-662-8600

<http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/>

Report Design by SW Creatives, LLC

.....

PROTECTING MINORITY VOTERS

..... 2014

OUR WORK IS NOT DONE

.....

A REPORT BY THE
NATIONAL COMMISSION
ON VOTING RIGHTS

CONTENTS

III	Acknowledgements
1	National Commissioners of the National Commission on Voting Rights
6	Executive Summary
22	Chapter 1: Background: The Voting Rights Act of 1965
40	Chapter 2: National Overview of Voting Discrimination, 1995-2014
54	Chapter 3: What Has Been Lost as a Result of Shelby County v. Holder
68	Chapter 4: Impact of Discrimination on Protected Groups <ul style="list-style-type: none"> I. African Americans II. Latinos III. Native Americans IV. Asian Americans
102	Chapter 5: Voting Discrimination, 1995-2014: Minority Vote Dilution <ul style="list-style-type: none"> I. Introduction II. Racially Polarized Voting and Its Ongoing Prevalence III. At-Large and Multi-member Methods of Election and Related Practices Dilute Minorities' Voting Strength IV. Redistricting Plans
134	Chapter 6: Voting Discrimination, 1995-2014: Access to the Ballot <ul style="list-style-type: none"> I. Introduction II. Community Voter Registration Drives III. Voter Registration at Public Assistance Agencies Expands Access for Minority Voters IV. Proof of Citizenship V. Voter Purges VI. Felony Disenfranchisement VII. Voter ID VIII. Early In-Person Voting IX. Problems at Polling Places X. Voter Intimidation and Voter Challenges
190	Chapter 7: Language Assistance for Limited English-Speaking Citizens
208	Conclusion
210	Endnotes
236	Appendix A: Abbreviations
238	Appendix B: Maps
250	Appendix C: Tables and Line Graphs

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The National Commission on Voting Rights and its staff and the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law are grateful to the many people without whom the Commission's work would not have been accomplished.

NCVR SPECIAL NATIONAL PARTNER:

THE NCVR extends particular thanks to the NAACP, an exceptional partner, which participated in all of its 25 hearings.

NCVR NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS STEERING COMMITTEE:

American Civil Liberties Union	League of Women Voters
Asian Americans Advancing Justice AAJC	League of Young Voters
Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund	National Action Network
Brennan Center for Justice	National Association of Latino Elected Officials
Campaign Legal Center	National Coalition on Black Civic Participation
Common Cause	National Congress of American Indians
Democracy Initiative	National Disability Rights Network
NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc.	National Urban League
Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights	Rainbow Push

OTHER SUPPORTING NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS:

AFL-CIO	National Council on Independent Living
Demos	Rock the Vote
Mi Familia Vota	State Voices
National Council of La Raza

NCVR HEARINGS: STATE AND LOCAL SPONSORS

Alabama

Alabama State Conference of the NAACP	Arizona Students Association
National Congress of Black Women	Inter Tribal Council of Arizona, Inc.
YLK Birmingham-Metro Chapter National Congress of Black Women	League of Women Voters
	Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund

Arizona

American Civil Liberties Union Arizona	National Action Network
Arizona Advocacy Network	National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
Arizona State College of Law Indian Legal Clinic	One Arizona

California

American Civil Liberties Union of California
 Asian Americans Advancing Justice – Los Angeles
 California Common Cause
 California Rural Legal Assistance Foundation
 California-Hawaii State Conference NAACP
 Disability Rights California
 Dolores Huerta Foundation
 Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund
 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area
 National Action Network
 National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
 National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials Educational Fund
 The Greenlining Institute
 UC Hasting College of Law, Center for State and Local Government Law

Denver Regional (Colorado and New Mexico)

Colorado Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law
 Colorado Common Cause
 Common Cause New Mexico
 The Legal Center for People with Disabilities and Older People
 Elections Task Force of the Colorado Lawyers Committee
 Sturm College of Law, University of Denver
 The Legal Center for People with Disabilities and Older People.

Florida

Advancement Project
 American Civil Liberties Union of Florida
 American Civil Liberties Union of Florida, University of Miami Student Chapter

Center for Independent Living of South Florida
 Common Cause
 Disability Rights Florida
 Florida New Majority
 Florida State Conference of the NAACP
 LatinoJustice PRLDEF
 League of Women Voters of Florida
 National Council of Jewish Women
 National Lawyers Guild, University of Miami Student Chapter
 SEIU Florida
 Voting Rights Coalition of Palm Beach County
 Voting Rights Coalition of South Florida

Georgia

American Civil Liberties Union
 American Civil Liberties Union of Georgia
 African American Ministers in Action
 Asian American Legal Advocacy Center, Inc. of Georgia
 Georgia Advocacy Office, Inc.
 Georgia Association of Latino Elected Officials
 Georgia Coalition for the Peoples' Agenda
 Georgia State Conference of the NAACP
 League of Women Voters of Georgia
 National Action Network
 ProGeorgia
 Sarah Shalf, Professor, Emory University School of Law

Illinois

Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Kansas City Regional (Kansas, Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska)

American Civil Liberties Union of Iowa
 American Civil Liberties Union of Kansas
 American Civil Liberties Union of Missouri
 American Civil Liberties Union of Nebraska

Common Cause Nebraska
Disability Rights Center of Kansas
Disability Rights Iowa
Disability Rights Nebraska
Iowa Citizen Action Network
Latino American Commission
Latinos Unidos of Iowa
League of Women Voters of Iowa
League of Women Voters of Kansas
LULAC of Iowa
National Association for the Advancement of Colored People
NAACP Kansas State Conference
NAACP Iowa-Nebraska State Conference
National Action Network
National Lawyers Guild of Kansas City
Nebraska Appleseed
Nebraskans for Civic Reform
Sunflower Community Action
University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law

Louisiana

ACLU of Louisiana
Advocacy Center
Delgado Community College
Foundation for Louisiana
Gulf Coast Center for Law & Policy
Louisiana Justice Institute
Louisiana State Conference NAACP
One Voice Louisiana
Puentes New Orleans, Inc.
Urban League of Greater New Orleans
Kim M. Boyle, Partner, Phelps Dunbar LLP; Board of Directors, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law
Jennifer Coco
Jacques Morial
John Pierre of Southern University Law Center
Bill Quigley of Loyola Law School

Hon. Gene Thibodeaux, Chief Judge, Louisiana
Third Circuit Court of Appeal; Honorary Lifetime
Trustee, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights
Under Law

Michigan

APAI Vote- Michigan
Common Cause Michigan
D. Augustus Straker Bar Association
Detroit Branch of the NAACP
League of Women Voters of Michigan
Michigan Department of Civil Rights
Michigan Election Reform Alliance
Michigan State Conference of the NAACP
National Action Network
Sierra Club Michigan

Minneapolis Regional (Minnesota and Wisconsin)

American Civil Liberties Union of Wisconsin
Foundation
Board for People with Development Disabilities
Citizens for Election Integrity Minnesota
Common Cause Minnesota
Disability Rights Wisconsin
FairVote Minnesota
League of Women Voters Minnesota
League of Women Voters Wisconsin
Mid-Minnesota Legal Aid/Minnesota Disability Law Center
Milwaukee NAACP
Minnesota Public Interest Research Group
Minnesota State Voice
One Wisconsin Institute
One Wisconsin Now
St. Paul NAACP
Take Action Minnesota
Voces de la Frontera

Baltimore Regional (Delaware, D.C., and Maryland)

University of Baltimore School of Law

Mississippi

Mississippi State Conference of the NAACP
 American Civil Liberties Union of Mississippi
 Common Cause Mississippi
 League of Women Voters of Mississippi
 League of Women Voters of Jackson Area
 Mississippi Center for Justice
 Southern Echo
 Tunica Teens upGrade Mississippi

Nashville Regional (Arkansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and West Virginia)

American Civil Liberties Union of Tennessee
 Black Women’s Roundtable
 Kentuckians for the Commonwealth
 League of Women Voters of Tennessee
 League of Women Voters of Nashville
 Nashville Bar Association
 Nashville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority Inc.
 Tennessee Citizen Action
 Tennessee State Conference NAACP
 Urban League of Middle Tennessee
 West Virginia Citizen Action

Las Vegas Regional (Nevada and Utah)

American Civil Liberties Union of Utah
 Las Vegas Urban League
 League of Women Voters of Nevada
 Mi Familia Vota
 NAACP
 NAACP National Voter Fund
 Utah League of Women Voters

Boston Regional (Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont)

American Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts
 Common Cause Massachusetts
 Demos
 Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights and Economic Justice League of Women Voters of Massachusetts
 MassVote
 MIRA Coalition
 New England Area Conference of the NAACP
 Progressive Massachusetts
 Springfield Institute
 Suffolk University Government Department
 Suffolk University Law School
 Urban League of Eastern Massachusetts

New York City Regional (Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York)

American Civil Liberties Union of New Jersey
 Asian American Community Coalition on Redistricting and Democracy
 Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund
 Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law
 Center for Law and Social Justice at Medgar Evers College, CUNY
 Common Cause New York
 Connecticut State Conference of the NAACP
 Demos
 Fordham Advocates for Voter Rights
 Hispanic Federation
 Latino Justice PRLDEF
 MinKwon Center for Community Action
 NAACP
 NAACP Legal Defense Fund
 NALEO Educational Fund
 New Jersey State Conference of the NAACP
 New York State Conference of the NAACP

OCA-NY Asian Pacific American Advocates
Public Interest Resource Center at Fordham Law School
YWCA of Queens

North Carolina

American Civil Liberties Union of North Carolina
Advancement Project
Democracy North Carolina
Forward Together Moral Movement
HKonJ People's Assembly
North Carolina NAACP
Southern Coalition for Social Justice
UNC Center for Civil Rights

Columbus Regional (Ohio and Indiana)

Ohio State Conference of the NAACP
Indiana State Conference of the NAACP
Advocates for Basic Legal Equality
Citizens Alliance for Secure Elections (CASE-OH)
Common Cause Ohio
League of Women Voters of Ohio
NAACP National Voter Fund
Northeast Ohio Voter Advocates
Ohio AFL-CIO
Ohio Unity Coalition
Ohio Voice

Seattle Regional (Idaho, Montana, Oregon, and Washington)

American Civil Liberties Union of Montana
Foundation
American Civil Liberties Union of Washington
Foundation
APACE
Bus Federation
Common Cause Oregon
Disability Rights Oregon

Disability Rights Washington
Forward Montana
Idaho Voices/Idaho Votes
League of Women Voters of Idaho
League of Women Voters of Oregon
League of Women Voters of Washington
Montana Conservation Voters
Montana Voices
NAACP
OneAmerica
Oregon Bus Project
Oregon Voice
University of Washington
University of Washington School of Law
Urban League of Metropolitan Seattle
The Washington Bus
Western States Center
Win/Win Network

Pennsylvania

American Civil Liberties Union on Pennsylvania
Advancement Project
Committee of Seventy
Common Cause PA
Disability Rights Network of Pennsylvania
League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania
National Action Network
Pennsylvania State Chapter of National Action Network
Pennsylvania State Conference of the NAACP
Pennsylvania Voice
PennPIRG
Public Interest Law Center of Philadelphia
SeniorLAW Center
Urban League of Philadelphia
United Steelworkers

Rapid City Regional (Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming)

American Civil Liberties Union of Montana
 American Civil Liberties Union of North Dakota
 American Civil Liberties Union of South Dakota
 American Civil Liberties Union of Wyoming
 Four Directions, Inc.
 Montana Voice
 North Dakota Protection & Advocacy Project
 North Dakota Women’s Network
 Western Native Voice
 South Dakota Coalition of Citizens with Disabilities
 Disability Rights North Dakota
 Heather Dawn Thompson

South Carolina

American Civil Liberties Union of South Carolina
 The Columbia Urban League
 The Family Unit
 League of Women Voters of South Carolina
 NAACP Legal Defense & Education Fund
 National Action Network
 Protection and Advocacy for People with Disabilities, Inc.
 South Carolina Progressive Network
 South Carolina State Conference of the NAACP

Texas

100 Black Men of America, Houston Metropolitan Chapter, Inc.

Austin Black Lawyers Association
 Earl Carl Institute for Legal and Social Policy, Inc.
 Houston Area Urban League, Inc.
 J.L. Turner Legal Association
 NAACP Houston Branch
 NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Inc.
 NAACP Region VI
 National Bar Association
 OCA Greater Houston Chapter
 Texas Southern University - Thurgood Marshall School of Law
 Texas State Conference of the NAACP

Virginia

American Civil Liberties Union of Virginia
 Campus Election Engagement Project
 The disAbility Law Center of Virginia
 Fair Elections Legal Network
 Hollaback and Restore Project
 Progress VA Education Fund
 Project Vote
 One Virginia 2021
 Resources for Independent Living, Inc.
 Sierra Club-Virginia Chapter
 The Urban League of Hampton Roads, Inc.
 Virginia New Majority
 Virginia State Conference of the NAACP
 Virginia AFL-CIO
 Virginia Organizing

NCVR HEARING GUEST COMMISSIONERS

Alabama

Scott Douglas, Executive Director, Greater Birmingham Ministries
 Jerome Gray, retired Field Director, Alabama Democratic Conference
 Lee W. Loder, Founder, Gift Corps; Attorney
 Bernard Simelton, President, Alabama NAACP

Arizona

National Commissioner Patty Ferguson-Bohnee, Director, Arizona State University College of Law Indian Legal Clinic
 Charles Fanniel, Arizona State Conference NAACP
 Hon. Penny Ladell-Willrich, Associate Dean of Academic Affairs and Professor of Law Arizona Summit Law School

John R. Lewis, Inter Tribal Council of Arizona, Inc.
Doris Marie Provine, Professor Emeritus, Arizona
State University

Baltimore Regional (Delaware, D.C., and Maryland)

Gilda Daniels, Professor, University of Baltimore
School of Law

J. Howard Henderson, The Urban League

Marcia Johnson-Blanco, Voting Rights Project
Co-Director, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Kim Keenan, General Counsel and Secretary,
NAACP

Rev. Todd Yeary, Political Action Chair, Maryland
State NAACP

Boston Regional (Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont)

National Commissioner John Dunne, former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights under President George H. W. Bush

Rachael Cobb, Associate Professor and Chair,
Suffolk University Government Department

Rahsaan Hall, Deputy Director, Lawyers'
Committee for Civil Rights and Economic Justice

Darnell Williams, President and CEO, Urban League of Eastern Massachusetts

Brenda Wright, Vice President of Legal Strategies,
Demos

California

National Commissioner Dolores Huerta, President of the Dolores Huerta Foundation

Kathay Feng, Executive Director, California
Common Cause

Alice A. Huffman, President, California NAACP

Cruz Reynoso, Justice of California Supreme Court (Ret.); Professor of Law Emeritus, U.C.
Davis School of Law

Denver Regional (Colorado and New Mexico)

Dr. Lonna Atkeson, University of New Mexico

Dede Feldman, former State Senator, New Mexico

Rosemary Harris Lytle, President, NAACP

Colorado Montana Wyoming State Area
Conference

John Zakhem, President, Zakhem Law Firm

Florida State

National Commissioner Leon W. Russell, Vice Chair of the National Board of Directors,
NAACP

Hon. Dan Gelber, founding partner, Gelber, Schachter & Greenberg; former State Senator and Representative

Lisa Rodriguez-Taseff, partner, Duane Morris LLP

Dr. Daniel A. Smith, Professor, University of Florida
Research Foundation

Georgia

Helen Butler, Executive Director, Georgia Coalition for the Peoples' Agenda

Dr. Francys Johnson, President, Georgia NAACP

Laughlin McDonald, Special Counsel and Director
Emeritus, ACLU Voting Rights Project

Ruby Moore, Executive Director, Georgia
Advocacy Office

Illinois

Ben Blustein, Partner, Miner, Barnhill & Galland,
P.C.

Jon Greenbaum, Chief Counsel, Lawyers'
Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Marissa Liebling, Staff Attorney, Chicago Lawyers'
Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Mary Schaafsma, Executive Director, League of Women Voters, Illinois

Kansas City Regional (Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, and Nebraska)

Wendy Noran, Clerk, Boone County Missouri

Marty Ramirez, (ret.) Counseling Psychologist, University of Nebraska

Mary Ratliff, President, Missouri NAACP State Conference

Bill Rich, Professor of Law, Washburn University

Marsha Ternus, (ret.) Chief Justice of the Iowa Supreme Court and Attorney at Law

Louisiana

Marcia Johnson-Blanco, Co-Director, Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Dr. Raphael Cassimere, Jr., Seraphia D. Leyda Professor-Emeritus of History, University of New Orleans

Erika McConduit, President & CEO, Urban League of Greater New Orleans

Rev. Chipps Taylor, Louisiana State Conference NAACP

Tracie L. Washington, President & CEO, Louisiana Justice Institute

Michigan

Jocelyn Benson, Dean, Wayne State University School of Law

Harold Hood, retired Judge, Michigan Court of Appeals

Ellen Katz, Professor, University of Michigan Law School

Marilyn Kelly, retired Justice, Michigan Supreme Court

Minneapolis Regional (Minnesota and Wisconsin)

National Commissioner Biko Baker, Executive Director, League of Young Voters

Lawrence R. Jacobs, Professor, University of Minnesota

Mark Ritchie, Minnesota Secretary of State

Warren Spannaus, former Attorney General of Minnesota; former Partner, Dorsey and Whitney LLP

Wenda Weekes Moore, Regent Emeritus, University of Minnesota

Mississippi

National Commissioner Leon W. Russell, Vice Chair of the National Board of Directors, NAACP

Derrick Johnson, President, Mississippi State Conference of the NAACP

Carroll Rhodes, Attorney, the Law Office of Carroll Rhodes

Deborah McDonald, Attorney, the Law Office of Deborah McDonald

Reilly Morse, President, Mississippi Center for Justice

Nashville Regional (Arkansas, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and West Virginia)

Raoul Cunningham, President, Kentucky State Conference of the NAACP

Austin Porter, Attorney

Lottie Shackelford, Black Women's Roundtable, National Coalition of Black Civic Participation

Patricia Stokes, President, Urban League of Middle Tennessee

Monroe Woods, Bolivar-Hardeman County Branch NAACP

Las Vegas Regional (Nevada and Utah)

Jeanetta Williams, President, ID-NV-UT NAACP State Conference
Carmen Berkley, Director, AFL-CIO Civil Rights Division
Gregory Cendana, Executive Director, Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance
Hon. Karen Bennett-Haron, Chief Judge, Las Vegas Township Justice Court

North Carolina

Barbara Arnwine, President and Executive Director, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law
Eva Clayton, former Congresswoman
David Harris, attorney, formerly of the U.S. Department of Justice
Ellie Kinnaird, former state Senator
Raymond Pierce, Partner, Nelson Mullins Riley and Scarborough, LLP and former Dean, North Carolina Central University School of Law

New York City Regional (Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York)

National Commissioner John Dunne, former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights under President George H. W. Bush
Juan Cartagena, President & General Counsel, LatinoJustice PRLDEF
Ron Chen, Acting Dean, Rutgers Law School-Newark, former New Jersey Public Advocate
Dr. Hazel Dukes, President, NAACP New York State Conference
John Feerick, Former Dean, Fordham Law School
Margaret Fung, Executive Director, AALDEF

Columbus Regional (Ohio and Indiana)

Wade C. Henderson, President and CEO, Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights and the Leadership Conference Education Fund
Hon. Nathaniel Jones, attorney; ret. Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit
Bob Kengle, Voting Rights Project Co-Director, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law
Elizabeth MacNamara, President, League of Women Voters; Chair, League of Women Voters Education Fund
Sybil McNabb, President, Ohio NAACP

Pennsylvania

Hon. Pedro A. Cortes, former Pennsylvania Secretary of State
Hon. Nelson A. Diaz, former Judge, Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas
J. "Jerry" Whyatt Mondesire, President, Pennsylvania NAACP
Regine Matellus, Senior Vice President and Chief Operations Officer, Urban League of Philadelphia

Seattle Regional (Idaho, Montana, Oregon, and Washington)

National Commissioner Dolores Huerta, President of the Dolores Huerta Foundation
Rex Burkholder, Principal, Burkholder Consulting
Dean Foster, Commissioner, Washington State Redistricting Commission
Hon. Charles Johnson (ret.), NAACP

Rapid City Regional (Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming)

National Commissioner Patty Ferguson-Bohnee, Director, Arizona State University College of Law Indian Legal Clinic

XII

Richard Braunstein, Professor, University of South Dakota College of Arts & Sciences
 Michaelynn Hawk, Director, Indian People’s Action
 A. Gay Kingman, Executive Director, Great Plains Tribal Chairman’s Association

South Carolina

Nancy Bloodgood, Partner, Foster Law Firm
 Duncan Buell, Chair of the Department of Computer Science and Engineering, University of South Carolina
 Hon. Ernest A. Finney, Jr., retired Justice, South Carolina Supreme Court
 James T. McLawhorn, Jr., President and CEO, Columbia Urban League
 Dr. Lonnie Randolph, Jr., President, South Carolina NAACP

Texas

Deborah Chen, National Treasurer & Board Member, OCA-Asian Pacific American Advocates
 Craig Jackson, Professor, Thurgood Marshall School of Law
 Howard Jefferson, National Board Member, NAACP, Political Action Director, NAACP Texas State Conference
 J. Goodwille Pierre, Vice President, National Bar Association

Virginia

Thursa Crittenden, Urban League of Hampton Roads
 Claire Guthrie Gastanaga, Executive Director, ACLU of Virginia
 Jean Jensen, former Deputy and Secretary, Virginia State Board of Elections
 Carmen Taylor, President, Virginia NAACP

NCVR HEARING HOSTS AND VENUES:

Alabama: St. Paul United Methodist Church, Birmingham, AL	Louisiana: Delgado Community College, New Orleans, LA
Arizona: Arizona State University College of Law, Tempe, AZ	Michigan: Wayne State University Law School, Detroit, MI
California: University of California Hastings College of Law, San Francisco, CA	Baltimore Regional: University of Baltimore Law School, Baltimore, MD
Denver Regional: University of Denver, Sturm College of Law, Denver, CO	Minneapolis Regional: University of Minnesota Law School, Minneapolis, MN
Florida: University of Miami School of Business Administration, Coral Gables, FL	Mississippi: Mississippi College School of Law, Jackson, MS
Georgia: The Martin Luther King, Jr. Center for Nonviolent Social Change, Atlanta, GA	Nashville Regional: Greater Bethel AME Church, Nashville, TN
Illinois: DePaul University College of Law, Chicago, IL	Las Vegas Regional: Clark County Government Center, Las Vegas, NV
Kansas City Regional: University of Missouri-Kansas City School of Law, Kansas City, MO	Boston Regional: Suffolk University Law School, Boston, MA

New York City Regional: Fordham University
School of Law, New York, NY

North Carolina: Opportunities Industrialization
Center, Rocky Mountain, NC

Columbus Regional: Riffe Center, Columbus, OH

Seattle Regional: University of Washington Law School, Seattle, WA

Pennsylvania: National Constitution Center,
Philadelphia, PA

Rapid City Regional: Journey Museum, Rapid City, SD

South Carolina: Richland County Council
Chambers, Columbia, SC

Texas: Thurgood Marshall School of Law,
Houston, TX

Virginia: Virginia Commonwealth University,
Richmond, VA

FOUNDATION & OTHER SUPPORTERS

Ford Foundation	Arizona Student Association (AZ)
Open Society Foundations	Bay Area Communication Access (CA)
John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation	Center for State and Local Government Law (CA)
Lisa and Douglas Goldman Fund	Dolores Street Community Services (CA)
Public Interest Projects	Paul Eckstein (AZ)
Rockefeller Brothers Fund*	James Irvine Foundation (CA)
Agua Fund	Hon. Bernette J. Johnson (LA)
Silicon Valley Community Foundation (CA)	Morrison and Forester (CA)
Access Strategies Fund (New England)	Hon. Ulysses G. Thibodeaux (LA)
Arizona Center for Disability Law (AZ)	Transperfect (CA)

LAW FIRM SUPPORT

Arizona

Perkins Coie LLP
Sacks Tierney P.A.

California

Altshuler Berzon LLP
Boies, Schiller & Flexner LLP
Goldstein, Borgen, Dardarian & Ho
Mannatt, Phelps & Phillips, LLP
Morrison & Foerster LLP
O'Melveny & Myers LLP

Denver Regional (Colorado and New Mexico)

Ballard Spahr LLP
The Sweetser Law Firm, P.C.

Georgia

King & Spalding
Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP

Illinois

Kirkland & Ellis LLP
Minner Barnhill & Galland, P.C.

Michigan

Clark Hill PLC
Jaffe Raitt Heur & Weiss, P.C.

Minneapolis Regional (Minnesota and Wisconsin)

Dorsey & Whitney LLP
Ogletree Deakins Nash Smoak & Stewart, P.C.
Perkins Coie LLP

This report was made possible with support from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund. The opinions and views of the authors do not necessarily state or reflect those of the Fund.*

New York City Regional (Connecticut, New Jersey, and New York)

Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP
Kirkland & Ellis LLP

Fox Rothschild LLP
McKeever & Mitchell
Schnader Harrison Segal & Lewis LLP

Pennsylvania

Ballard Spahr LLP

Rapid City Regional (Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Wyoming)

Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP

LAW FIRM RESEARCH SUPPORT:

Ballard Spahr LLP; Carlton Fields Jordan Burt; Crowell & Moring LLP; Dechert LLP; Dorsey & Whitney LLP; Kirkland & Ellis LLP; Kilpatrick & Buchalter; Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP; Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C.; Proskauer Rose LLP; Simpson Thatcher & Bartlett LLP

LAWYERS' COMMITTEE STAFF:

Barbara Arnwine, Executive Director; Jon Greenbaum, Chief Counsel/ Senior Deputy Director; Bob Kengle, Co-Director, Voting Rights Project (VRP); Marcia Johnson-Blanco, Co-Director, VRP; Nancy Anderson, Director Legal Mobilization Project and Pro Bono Project;

Rebecca Arnold, Associate Counsel
Rosemarie Clouston, National Coordinator
Aunna Dennis, National Coordinator
Miles Fernandez, Assistant Coordinator
Chris Fields Figueredo, Manager Legal Mobilization
Maddy Finucane, Legal Assistant
Megan Gall, Social Science Analyst
Sonia Gill, Voting Rights Project Counsel
Meredith Horton, Counsel

Alan Martinson, Counsel
Lindsey Needham, Legal Assistant
Eileen O'Connor, Senior Counsel
Maria Peralta, National Coordinator, National Commission on Voting Rights
Mark Posner, Senior Special Counsel
Alejandro Reyes, Counsel
Dorian Spence, Associate Counsel
Erandi Zamora, Associate Counsel

LAWYERS' COMMITTEE INTERNS

Roseann Romano, Tharuni Jayaraman, Anne Swift, Bradley Silverman, Chike Croslin, Colleen Roberts, Trinity Brown, Laura Hunt, Tyler Cole

REPORT WRITER:

Tova Wang

NATIONAL COMMISSIONERS OF THE NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

The National Commission on Voting Rights is proud to have the following distinguished leaders serving as National Commissioners: Social justice leader, Dolores Huerta; Law Professor and Director of the Indian Law Clinic at the Sandra Day O' Connor School of Law, ASU, Patty Ferguson-Bohnee; Civil Rights Leader and NAACP Vice Chair, Leon Russell; Youth Engagement Leader, Biko Baker; and former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights, John Dunne.

Biko Baker

Executive Director of League of Young Voters and National Leader in Youth Civil Engagement Programs

Rob "Biko" Baker is the Executive Director of the League of Young Voters, and a nationally-recognized youth leader. Based in Milwaukee, Mr. Baker is a pioneer in running city-level, data-driven voter turnout campaigns that dramatically increase the voter participation of young urban citizens. A leading voice on field campaigns targeting young African American voters, Baker serves on CIRCLE's research advisory board and is a board member of the New Organizing Institute. He is also a well known communicator around elections, as well as cultural and political issues including gun violence and voting rights. In addition to being a former contributor to The Source, he has appeared on C-SPAN, Fox News and CNN. A popular and powerful speaker at conferences and events, Mr. Baker has interviewed luminaries Cornel West, Russell Simmons, and Howard Dean, and has been on panels with many of the nation's strongest progressive voices. Baker holds a Ph.D. in History from UCLA.

John Dunne

Former Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights under President George H. W. Bush

Prior to joining Whiteman Osterman & Hanna as counsel to the Firm, John Dunne had served in a variety of federal, state and local government positions for thirty years. From 1990 to 1993 he was the Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights at the U.S. Department of Justice. From 1966 to 1989 he was a member of the New York State Senate. Throughout his local and state service, he actively practiced law on Long Island, as a partner in the national law firm of Rivkin, Radler, Dunne & Bayh.

From 1990 until 1993 Dunne, as Assistant Attorney General, headed up the enforcement of all federal civil rights laws. As part of his duties, he argued cases in federal appeals courts and in the U.S. Supreme Court. He was awarded both the Edmund Randolph and the John Marshal awards for distinguished service.

During 24 years as a state senator, Dunne served at various times as Deputy Majority Leader and chair of the judiciary, environmental protection, insurance and prisons committees.

John Dunne has authored a number of articles for various law school journals including Hofstra, Fordham and St. Louis, the op-ed pages of The New York Times, The Washington Post, U.S.A. Today and the New York Law Journal, Business Insurance and New York Bar Journal.

Patty Ferguson-Bohnee

Faculty Director, Indian Legal Program Director, Indian Legal Clinic Clinical Professor of Law Sandra Day O'Connor School of Law, Arizona State University

Patty Ferguson-Bohnee has substantial experience in Indian law, election law and policy matters, voting rights, and status clarification of tribes. She has testified before the United States Senate Committee on Indian Affairs and the Louisiana State Legislature regarding tribal recognition, and has successfully assisted four Louisiana tribes in obtaining state recognition. Professor Ferguson-Bohnee has represented tribal clients in administrative, state, federal, and tribal courts, as well as before state and local governing bodies and proposed revisions to the Real Estate Disclosure Reports to include tribal provisions. She has assisted in complex voting rights litigation on behalf of tribes, and she has drafted state legislative and congressional testimony on behalf of tribes with respect to voting rights' issues.

Professor Ferguson-Bohnee clerked for Judge Betty Binns Fletcher of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and was an associate in the Indian Law and Tribal Relations Practice Group at Sacks Tierney P.A. in Phoenix. As a Fulbright Scholar to France, she researched French colonial relations with Louisiana Indians in the 17th and 18th centuries. Professor Ferguson-Bohnee, a member of the Pointe-au-Chien Indian tribe, serves as the Native Vote Election Protection Coordinator for the State of Arizona.

Dolores Huerta

Founder and President of the Dolores Huerta Foundation and Social Justice Activist

As founder and president of the Dolores Huerta Foundation, Dolores Huerta travels across the country engaging in campaigns and influencing legislation that supports equality and defends civil rights. She often speaks to students and organizations about issues of social justice and public policy. The Dolores Huerta Foundation is a not-for-profit community organization that organizes at the grassroots level, engaging and developing natural leaders. The Dolores Huerta Foundation creates leadership opportunities for community organizing, leadership development, civic engagement, and policy advocacy in the following priority areas: health and environment, education and youth development, and economic development.

Ms. Huerta is a life-long labor leader and civil rights activist who co-founded the National Farmworkers Association, which later became the United Farmworkers. She has received numerous awards for her community service and advocacy for workers', immigrants', and women's rights, including the Eugene V. Debs Foundation Outstanding American Award, the United States Presidential Eleanor Roosevelt Award for Human Rights, and the Presidential Medal of Freedom presented to her by President Obama in 2012.

Leon Russell

NAACP Vice Chair of the National Board of Directors

Leon W. Russell retired in January of 2012, after serving as the Director of the Office of Human Rights for Pinellas County Government, Clearwater, Florida. He had held this post since January of 1977. In this position Mr. Russell was responsible for implementing the county's Affirmative Action and Human Rights Ordinances. In September of 2007, Mr. Russell was elected President of the International Association of Official Human Rights Agencies during its annual meeting in Atlanta, Georgia. The IAOHRA Membership is agency based and consists of statutory human and civil rights agencies from throughout the United States and Canada as well as representation from several other nations.

Mr. Russell served as the President of the Florida State Conference of Branches of the NAACP from January 1996 until January 2000, after serving for fifteen years as the First Vice President. He has served as a member of the National Board of Directors of the NAACP since 1990. He has served that board as the assistant secretary and currently serves as Vice Chairman of the National Board. He is a member of the International City Management Association; a member of the National Forum for Black Public Administrators; member of the Board of Directors of the Children's Campaign of Florida; past Board Member of the Pinellas Opportunity Council, past President and Board Member of the National Association of Human Rights Workers; member of the Blueprint Commission on Juvenile Justice with responsibility for recommending reforms to improve the juvenile justice system in the state of Florida.

Mr. Russell also served as the Chairman of Floridians Representing Equity and Equality. FREE was established as a statewide coalition to oppose the Florida Civil Rights Initiative, an anti-Affirmative Action proposal authored by Ward Connerly. Ultimately, the initiative failed to get on the Florida Ballot, because of the strong legal challenge spearheaded by FREE.

Letter from the National Commissioners

We accepted the invitation to serve as National Commissioners on the National Commission on Voting Rights because of our long-standing commitment to the preservation of equal access and rights for all Americans, regardless of race or ethnic background. And we believe that one of the most fundamental of these rights is voting. The National Commission on Voting Rights was convened last year in the aftermath of the Supreme Court's decision to gut a vital protection of the Voting Rights Act, concluding that such protections were no longer needed. Those of us who had been working for years defending voting rights in minority communities strongly disagreed. Soon afterward, the Commission set out with two charges: first, to compile a comprehensive record of voting laws, practices and cases impacting minority voting rights and election administration issues; and second, to issue two reports based on our findings.

With the support of a broad-based coalition of national, state and community-based organizations, the Commission conducted twenty-five state and regional hearings across the country, where we heard from hundreds of voters, grassroots activists, state and local advocates, and experts on the wide range of issues impacting voters today. The Commission also examined state voting laws as well as recent legal cases brought on behalf of minority voters. The amassed record is clear—although we have made significant strides in expanding voting opportunities for all voters, voting discrimination is not a relic of the past but a very real problem that continues to persist in America.

Far too many of our constituencies are kept from the franchise. Far too many localities lack district elections that make it easier for minorities to elect their candidate of choice or disenfranchise incarcerated or formerly incarcerated individuals. Restrictive voter ID laws that make it harder for students and the elderly to vote, demands for proof of citizenship before allowing voters to cast a ballot, and continued instances of scare tactics and intimidation are just some additional examples of the practices that continue to plague our nation.

Protecting Minority Rights: Our Work is not Done, is the first of our national reports. We hope that this report will provide valuable information to voters in communities across the country. We also hope that it will give further evidence for why our nation should continue to provide the necessary protections to all voters—including African American, Latino, Asian American, American Indian and Alaskan Natives—so that we may all cast our ballots as freely as we believe was intended in our democracy.

Signed,

Dolores Huerta, John Dunne, Patty Ferguson Bohnee, Leon Russell, Biko Baker

“The right to vote is precious, almost sacred.”

U.S. Representative John Lewis
Georgia's 5th Congressional District

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

There are many reasons to celebrate the 49th anniversary of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 (VRA). We have made enormous progress since the turbulent and momentous years that preceded the enactment of the VRA. The VRA ended the virtual total exclusion of minority voter participation in areas of the country with the worst voting discrimination. It has also removed from use, or blocked implementation, of thousands of discriminatory voting practices. This law and others, as well as social and cultural advances, have resulted in increased minority registration and turnout and the election of thousands of minority elected officials at the federal, state, and local levels, including an African-American President.

But to congratulate ourselves for ending racial voting discrimination would be both premature and unwise. Most minority elected officials come from majority-minority single-member districts in which minority citizens have a fair opportunity to elect candidates of their choice despite lack of support from white voters; minority candidates elected from outside such districts remain the rare exception. Courts are hearing new legal challenges and are continuing to make findings of voting discrimination. A number of states have enacted laws that seem intended only to restrict access to the franchise, especially in ways that impact minority voters more than white. Participation for most minority groups still lags far behind that of white voters (for purposes of this report “white” means “white, non-Hispanic”).

Shortcomings in election administration and burdensome voting procedures also remain widespread. The symptoms of these problems took the national stage in the 2000 election, and prompted the enactment of Help America Vote Act and the creation of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC). But the 2012 election—with embarrassing election administration failures in some jurisdictions, hours-long lines of voters, protracted litigation and the EAC sidelined by partisan infighting—showed that the cure continues to elude us.

Given this landscape, many Americans were shocked and perplexed in June 2013 when the U.S. Supreme Court held, in Shelby County v. Holder, that the 2006 reauthorization of key provisions of the Voting Rights Act was unconstitutional. This decision effectively killed Section 5 of the VRA—surely one of the most effective antidiscrimination laws ever enacted. Section 5 provided for federal screening of all new voting practices in nine states and in parts of six others, where there had been a history of discrimination. After going into effect, Section 5 blocked thousands of racially discriminatory voting changes from being implemented, and deterred countless others. It had been reauthorized by a unanimous vote in the Senate and by a virtually unanimous vote in the House in 2006. Why did the Supreme Court do this?

In Shelby County, Chief Justice Roberts wrote that “voting discrimination still exists; no one doubts that.” However, that important concession was lost in the Court’s focus on progress since 1965 in minority participation and election to public office and in the Court’s use of a legal analysis that avoided the extensive record that Congress compiled of voting discrimination in the Section 5 covered jurisdictions between 1982 and 2005.

Whether you agree with the Court or not, the Shelby County v. Holder decision demands a nationwide assessment of recent racial voting discrimination. We need to know how much voting discrimination is still occurring, who it is affecting and where it is occurring.

This report—issued by the National Commission on Voting Rights—is intended to help answer those questions. We conclude that:

- Voting discrimination is a frequent and ongoing problem in the United States. There were 332 successful voting rights lawsuits and denials of Section 5 preclearance from 1995 through 2013 and another ten non-litigation settlements.
- Some areas of the country have far worse records of voting discrimination than others. Texas stands out as having a remarkably high level of documented voting discrimination, including multiple state-level violations. Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina each had far higher levels of problems than average. Overall, the Section 4(b) jurisdictions with approximately 25 percent of the nation's population had more than 70 percent of the successful Section 2 cases.
- Voting discrimination takes a variety of forms. Discriminatory redistricting plans and at-large elections continue to prompt the most successful lawsuits. However, there were also 48 successful lawsuits and ten non-litigation settlements relating to language translation and assistance.
- Voting discrimination has significantly affected African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans. Each of these minority groups suffered extensive official voting discrimination in the past. Since 1995, successful lawsuits have been brought on behalf of each group to remedy voting discrimination and to provide equal electoral opportunities.
- New problems with voting discrimination are arising even as the old ones persist. Courts continue to find that at-large election systems and gerrymandered redistricting plans dilute minority voting strength. At the same time, new laws have been enacted, making it more difficult to register and cast a ballot, which is especially problematic for minority citizens.

THE NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

The Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law along with more than a dozen partners organized the nonpartisan National Commission on Voting Rights (NCVR), which conducted 25 regional and state-based hearings between June 2013 and May 2014. The Commission is a successor to the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act, which released an extensive report in 2006 on the record of voting discrimination after 1982.

The NCVR was overseen by a distinguished panel of national commissioners and additional panels of guest commissioners at the state and regional hearings covering 48 states. Testimony and research from Hawaii and Alaska were submitted separately. 494 witnesses testified at the hearings.

The NCVR set out to learn about both racial voting discrimination and election administration issues in its hearings. A report devoted to election administration barriers and reform efforts will be issued at a later date.

This Report, Protecting Minority Voters: Our Work Is Not Done, documents the national record of voting discrimination since 1995. The Report examines the nationwide incidence of successful litigation under Section 2 of the VRA, objections under Section 5, and successful language minority litigation, together with testimony, demographic analysis, and in-depth discussions of important issues. The commission testimony was especially helpful in illuminating those areas where litigation is ongoing and highlighting those areas where litigation under current laws has been unable to resolve grave problems.

OVERVIEW OF CHAPTERS

This Report provides a look in the mirror as our country nears the half-century mark after passage of the Voting Rights Act. There is no doubt that the VRA, including the Section 5 preclearance provision, has been extraordinarily effective in combating voting discrimination. Nor is there any doubt that certain state and local jurisdictions continue to enact discriminatory voting laws.

Thus, the loss of federal review of voting changes in certain states makes it essential to closely examine the record of recent voting discrimination. The voting rights of minority citizens are too fundamental, and have been denied too often in the past, to accept the assumption that the Supreme Court merely did away with an unnecessary vestige of a bygone era. Section 5 in fact was targeting the states with the worst records of recent, repeated voting discrimination when it was neutralized by the Shelby County decision.

Chapter 1 provides the background on the VRA; a discussion relevant to the debate of whether some of its provisions are still necessary.

The VRA was Congress' response to persistent voting discrimination. Congress acted under its powers to enforce the constitutional protections under the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments for citizens to vote free from racial discrimination. When the VRA was originally enacted, the predominant focus was on eliminating discrimination against African Americans, but beginning in 1975 and based on extensive testimony, Congress added voting protections for language minorities—Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans.

There are two primary forms of discrimination—limitations on ballot access and vote dilution—and the Act addresses both at least in part. The category of limitations on ballot access consists of laws and practices that disproportionately prevent or make it more difficult for minorities to cast a ballot, such as literacy tests. Minority vote dilution consists of electoral systems—such as a redistricting plan that divides a minority community or the use at-large (jurisdiction-wide) elections—that, combined with white voters voting as a bloc and other factors, prevents a sizable minority community from electing its candidates of choice.

The Act, prior to its major modification in Shelby County, consisted of a system of permanent and temporary provisions. Chief among the permanent provisions is Section 2, which enables the federal government and private parties to sue to stop a voting practice or procedure that was enacted or has been maintained with a racially discriminatory intent or result. Section 2 cases are notably complex and resource-intensive.

The primary other types of provisions—minority language, preclearance, and observer provisions—have all been temporary in nature because they place affirmative burdens on jurisdictions where voters need the particular protections. Congress most recently reauthorized these temporary provisions in 2006. Section 203 is the primary minority language provision. Jurisdictions are covered where five percent or (in the case of a political subdivision), ten thousand of their voting age citizens have limited English proficiency and are members of a single language minority group and where the English illiteracy rate of those citizens is greater than the national illiteracy rate. Where a Native American reservation meets this five percent threshold and the illiteracy standard is also satisfied, any jurisdiction containing part or all of that reservation is also covered by Section 203. Covered political subdivision must provide citizens who need it with language assistance in all stages of the electoral process.

Section 5 preclearance required covered jurisdictions to demonstrate to the Department of Justice (DOJ) or a federal district court in Washington D.C. that a proposed change in voting did not have a discriminatory purpose or effect before the jurisdiction could implement the change. The observer provision under Section 8 enabled the U.S. Attorney General to send federal observers to monitor polling places and the vote-counting process in a covered jurisdiction when DOJ believed it was necessary to prevent discrimination. The determination of which jurisdictions were subject to Section 5 and Section 8 was based on the formula contained in Section 4(b) of the Act. The formula—which was based on a jurisdiction’s low voter participation in the 1964, 1968, or 1972 Presidential elections and the use of a discriminatory test or device in the same election—had not changed since 1975 because Congress had found in subsequent reauthorizations in 1982 and 2006 that these jurisdictions continued to have significant records of discrimination. The covered states under the Section 4(b) formula were primarily in the South and Southwest, as well as Alaska.

In the challenge before the Supreme Court, Shelby County argued that Congress acted beyond its constitutional powers when it reauthorized Section 5 and did not update the formula determining which states and jurisdictions were subject to Section 5. The Supreme Court ruled that the existing formula was unconstitutional. Without a formula, Section 5 cannot be used. Unless and until Congress acts in response to Shelby County, Section 5 is essentially dead.

Chapter 2 presents a national analysis from 1995 to the present of successful enforcement of the Voting Rights Act (Section 2 litigation, Section 5 litigation and preclearance denials, and litigation against English-only elections.)

The findings include:

- Racial voting discrimination remains an ongoing problem, with about 332 successful Voting Rights Act lawsuits or denials of Section 5 preclearance since 1995.
- This includes at least 171 successful Section 2 lawsuits (not including minority language cases), 113 Section 5 preclearance denials, and 48 successful lawsuits raising language assistance claims. There were also ten pre-litigation settlements regarding minority language cases.
- The voting discrimination documented in Section 2 lawsuits is not evenly dispersed around the country. It is geographically concentrated, most heavily in Texas, but also in Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and South Dakota. Each of these states was fully or partially covered under Section 4(b) of the VRA when the Supreme Court decided in Shelby County v. Holder that Section 4(b) was too outdated to target present-day discrimination.
- Louisiana led the way in Section 5 preclearance denials with Texas, South Carolina, Mississippi, and Georgia not far behind. These numbers, combined with the Section 2 data, made these five states are the worst performers when it comes to discrimination cases outside of those involving language assistance.

- New York, Texas, and California were the states with the most successful minority language assistance cases or pre-litigation settlements. Each had at least ten.

Chapter 3 describes what has been lost as a result of the Shelby County decision.

First, Section 5 prevented discriminatory voting changes from being put into use before they underwent federal review. More than 3,000 voting changes in over 1,000 separate objection letters and court judgments were denied Section 5 preclearance between 1965 and 2013.

Second, Section 5 deterred the enactment of discriminatory laws. For example, it was not until after the Shelby County decision that the North Carolina legislature amended a photo ID bill to add numerous other voting restrictions; that law is the subject of three pending federal lawsuits.

Third, the Section 5 process promoted transparency because DOJ and minority citizens or organizations (after DOJ contacted them) would know about voting changes before they would be implemented.

Fourth, jurisdictions are now implementing voting changes that had been blocked by DOJ or federal courts under Section 5.

Fifth, Section 2 is not an adequate substitute for Section 5 for several reasons. Under Section 5 the review of a voting change occurred before the change was implemented, whereas under Section 2, the change gets implemented and is in effect while litigation is ongoing unless and until a court stops it—and this takes years except in the simplest cases. In addition, under Section 2, the minority plaintiffs or DOJ have the burden of proof; under Section 5, the jurisdiction had the burden of proof. Moreover, Section 2 cases tend to be complex, time-consuming, and expensive as compared to the 60-day administrative review process under Section 5.

Sixth, DOJ appears to have interpreted Shelby County to also prevent it from sending observers to the jurisdictions covered previously for federal review.

Chapter 4 discusses the different historical contexts and geographic areas in which African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans have been affected by voting discrimination.

African-American Citizens

African Americans were subjected to pervasive and longstanding voting discrimination preventing them from voting until Congress passed the VRA in 1965. After the passage of the VRA, there have been repeated efforts to undo gains in minority voter registration and turnout, particularly in the form of election methods that systematically diluted and negated African American voting strength.

Today African Americans comprise approximately 14 percent of the United States' population with 55 percent of the country's African-American population living in the South. This has particular meaning in light of the Shelby County decision. National registration and turnout rates for whites and African Americans have been similar in the last two presidential elections (when an African-American candidate was running for President from a major party for the first time) but African-American participation remains lower for midterm elections. Though there are a significant number of African-American elected officials, this is largely a function of the number of majority-minority districts that exist because of both VRA protections and residential segregation.

African Americans are particularly hard-hit by the Shelby County decision. The overwhelming majority of voting changes stopped by Section 5 between 1995 and 2014 (101 of 113, or approximately 90 percent) involved a discriminatory purpose or effect with respect to African-American voters.

In addition, African-American plaintiffs and DOJ on behalf of African Americans brought approximately 36 percent of the successful Section 2 cases nationwide between 1995 and 2014, and more than 60 percent of those cases were brought in the jurisdictions formerly covered by Section 5.

Latino Citizens

Latinos have faced a long history of electoral exclusion and discrimination in the United States that included the use of literacy tests, intimidation, and English-only elections. When the VRA was amended in 1975 and 1982, Congress recognized not only that English-only elections led to pervasive discrimination against Latino citizens, but also that many of the methods being used to dilute the voting strength of African-American citizens were also being used against Latino citizens.

Latinos have grown to be the largest minority group in the United States (17 percent) and though about three quarters of the Latino population resides in eight states, the population lives throughout the country so that 23 states have at least one jurisdiction that is covered for Spanish-language voting assistance under Section 203 of the VRA.

Voter participation rates for Latino citizens lag behind the participation rates for white citizens. For example, in the 2012 presidential election among voting age citizens, white registration was 14 percentage points higher than Latino registration, and the turnout disparity was 18 percentage points. The number of Latino elected officials has increased markedly in recent years but this success is closely tied to majority-minority election districts and the opportunities that they provide for Latinos to elect the candidates of their choice.

Approximately 56 percent of the successful Section 2 cases (96 of 172) brought between 1995 and 2014 involved Latino plaintiffs or were brought by DOJ on behalf of Latino citizens; most of these involved the use of at-large election systems or racially gerrymandered election districts. Between 1995 and 2013, 29 of the Section 5 preclearance denials involved voting changes that had a discriminatory purpose or effect with respect to Latino voters.

Compliance with the language assistance provisions of the VRA is critically important for Latino citizens to fully engage in the electoral process, but noncompliance is widespread. Of the 58 successful language assistance cases or pre-litigation settlements between 1995 and 2014, 46 (79 percent) involved claims on behalf of Latinos.

Native American citizens (American Indians and Alaska Natives)

Native Americans have been subjected to blatant discrimination for centuries that, among other things, affected their right to vote. They were granted citizenship in 1924 but it was not until their designation by Congress as a language minority group subject to protection under the VRA in 1975 that many Native American citizens were able to exercise their right to vote.

Native Americans comprise less than one percent of the total U.S. population, but because they are concentrated primarily in portions of Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico, North and South Dakota, Montana, and Alaska, Native Americans in certain counties comprise a significant portion—if not a majority—of the population. Voter turnout by Native American voting age citizens continues to lag far behind that of white voting age citizens (an estimated 17-18 percentage point disparity in the November 2012 election). There are only 64 Native American state legislators across the entire country and 2 federal legislators.

Between 1995 and 2014 there were at least 18 successful challenges to discriminatory voting practices brought on behalf of Native American citizens under Section 2 of the VRA (not including bilingual assistance claims). Most of these involved vote dilution challenges to at-large election systems. There were five successful language assistance lawsuits and pre-litigation settlements. Because relatively few jurisdictions with concentrated Native American populations were covered under Section 5, there was only one Section 5 objection regarding discrimination against Native Americans, as well as one objection involving a jurisdiction covered under Section 3(c).

Asian American Citizens

Asian Americans historically were denied U.S. citizenship under discriminatory immigration laws, leaving them unable to vote, and both Asian immigrants and native-born Asian Americans have been targeted by other discriminatory laws and practices. A 1965 change to the immigration laws led to a dramatic increase in Asian immigration. In 1975 Congress recognized the history of exclusion and voting discrimination against Asian American citizens in the form of English-only elections when it reauthorized and amended the VRA to include new language minority provisions, and specified Asian Americans as a language minority group.

Asian Americans comprise approximately five percent of the total population of the United States. The Asian American population grew by 46 percent between 2000 and 2010, and much of that increase was due to immigration. Asian American voting age citizens participate in elections at rates significantly lower than white voting age citizens; in the 2012 election, there was a 17 percentage point disparity in registration and a 19 percentage point disparity in turnout. Studies have found that at least some part of those disparities is due to language accessibility issues and other forms of voting discrimination. The Asian American population resides primarily in heavily populated urban areas and so there are relatively few electoral districts with Asian American voting majorities. There are currently 11 Asian American members of Congress, 98 Asian American members of state legislatures, and two Asian American governors.

Asian American citizens benefit greatly from bilingual election assistance in areas covered by the language minority provisions of the VRA. From 1995 to 2014, ten successful language assistance lawsuits and non-litigation settlements involved Asian languages. Because the jurisdictions covered under Section 4(b) of the VRA at the time of the Shelby County decision had relatively low concentrations of Asian American citizens, only three preclearance denials between 1995 and 2013 have involved the effect of the proposed voting changes on Asian American citizens. In large part because of the dearth of jurisdictions where Asian Americans are large enough to comprise a majority in a single-member district, there were no successful vote dilution cases brought on behalf of Asians.

Chapter 5 discusses the problem of minority vote dilution since 1995.

Minority vote dilution involves electoral systems that devalue, negate or diminish the voting strength of racial minority groups by unnecessarily putting them in majority-white jurisdictions where they usually cannot elect their preferred candidates because most voters vote along racial lines. The two principal forms of minority vote dilution are the use of at-large elections and racially gerrymandered election districts. The majority of successful Section 2 cases between 1995 and 2014 were minority vote dilution claims, and the majority of Section 5 objections since 1995 were based upon minority vote dilution.

Racially Polarized Voting

The presence of racially polarized voting is a necessary element of minority vote dilution claims. Racially polarized voting is defined as “a pattern of voting along racial lines where voters of the same race support the same candidate who is different from the candidate supported by voters of a different race.” Racially polarized voting is not assumed to exist; its presence must be proven as a matter of fact. Racially polarized voting typically is proven by a statistical analysis that estimates group voting preferences based upon precinct-level vote totals and demographic data.

Racially polarized voting continues to be widespread. Since 1995 federal courts made findings of racially polarized voting in challenges to statewide redistricting plans in Colorado, Massachusetts, Montana, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Wisconsin. Experts retained for purposes of statewide redistricting also reported racially polarized voting patterns in Alaska, Arizona, California and Kansas. DOJ noted racially polarized voting as a factor in denying Section 5 preclearance to statewide redistricting plans in Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Texas. More generally, any judicial finding of a Section 2 vote dilution violation, and any Section 5 preclearance denial based upon vote dilution, reflects a determination that racially polarized voting is present.

Studies have shown more severe racially polarized voting in the states that were covered under Section 4(b) of the VRA. For example, a Supreme Court brief submitted by prominent academic experts in the Northwest Austin v. Holder lawsuit showed that, according to exit polls taken during the 2008 Presidential election, Barack Obama was supported by 26 percent of white voters in the states covered by Section 4(b) versus 48 percent in the non-covered states. The six states with the lowest rates of white support for Obama were all fully covered under Section 4(b): Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia, South Carolina, and Texas.

Racially Discriminatory Methods of Election

Over 70 percent of successful cases brought under Section 2 between 1995 and 2014 raised claims against methods of election. These cases were brought in 21 states, of which 18 had between one and four cases; Texas had 78 cases, Mississippi had seven and Georgia had six.

Changes to methods of election accounted for 19 Section 5 preclearance denials in nine different states between 1995 and 2013. These included one state-level objection in Mississippi, with a total of five in Texas and four in South Carolina.

Racially Discriminatory Redistricting Plans

Racially discriminatory redistricting plans accounted for the second principal category of successful Section 2 vote dilution cases and Section 5 preclearance denials. Redistricting plans that dilute minority voting strength typically submerge minority voters in overpopulated districts, divide minority population concentrations to prevent them from comprising the majority of a fairly-drawn district (“fragmentation” or “cracking”), or unnecessarily overconcentrate them in a minimal number of districts (“packing”).

Redistricting changes accounted for more than half (58 of 113) of the Section 5 preclearance denials between 1995 and 2013. These included denials of statewide redistricting plans in Arizona, Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Texas (four statewide preclearance denials).

Between 1995 and 2013, there were successful Section 2 challenges to 30 redistricting plans, including statewide plans in Colorado, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, and Wisconsin.

Chapter 6 discusses a variety of state laws and practices that can restrict or interfere with access to the ballot for minority citizens to a greater extent than white voters.

Far too many states and jurisdictions have enacted laws or adopted practices that have created unnecessary barriers to the ballot. These include restrictions on community voter registration drives, proof-of-citizenship requirements, the failure to provide voter registration at public assistance agencies, felony disenfranchisement laws, dual voter registration systems, flawed voter purging, voter identification requirements, cutbacks on early in-person voting, problems with access to polling places, special barriers affecting Native Americans, and voter intimidation. These problems were the subject of extensive testimony at NCVR hearings, and some of them are the subject of heated public debate and current litigation.

Community Voter Registration Drives

Community-based registration drives are effective and especially benefit minority citizens. According to 2010 Census Bureau data, African Americans (7.2 percent) and Latinos (8.9 percent) report having registered to vote at voter registration drives at significantly higher rates than white voters (4.4 percent). Therefore, restrictions on voter registration drives raise serious concerns about limiting minority voter participation. There have been repeated efforts in Florida to restrict community voter registration drives. Florida historically did not permit voter registration drives before passage of the NVRA and has attempted to limit their availability on repeated occasions despite the National Voter Registration Act of 1993 (NVRA). Two recent federal court judgments based on non-racial theories found that the State was imposing unconstitutional restrictions on voter registration drives.

Proof of Citizenship

Several states in recent years have adopted voter registration procedures that require providing documentary proof of U.S. citizenship in order to register to vote or in response to voter challenges brought by election officials. For example, the State of Georgia in 2008 attempted to use administrative record-matching between driver's license data and voter registration files to purge registered voters, unless the voters provided proof of U.S. citizenship to election officials. After a three-judge court issued a preliminary injunction against Georgia, which required the State to submit its procedure for administrative preclearance under Section 5 of the VRA, DOJ denied preclearance to the program, noting its unreliability and impact on minority voters. After filing a Section 5 declaratory judgment action seeking judicial preclearance, Georgia modified its procedure, which DOJ administratively precleared.

Proof of citizenship for voter registration has been a highly contentious issue. Arizona and Kansas have put these requirements into effect, while Alabama and Georgia have enacted these requirements but not yet implemented them. In 2013 the U.S. Supreme Court held in Arizona v. ITCA that Arizona must accept and use "federal forms" for voter registration under the NVRA, even if the applicants do not provide the proof of citizenship required by Arizona state law. The federal form establishes proof of U.S. citizenship via an attestation under oath, as do the vast majority of state forms. After the Arizona v. ITCA decision, Kansas and Arizona filed a lawsuit in Kansas seeking to compel the U.S. Election Assistance Commission to modify the federal form instructions for those states. This case remains in litigation.

Voter Registration at Public Assistance Agencies

Section 7 of the NVRA requires public assistance agencies to offer voter registration in conjunction with applications for benefits, renewals of benefits, and changes of address. Because minorities are a relatively larger share of the client population for the two largest public assistance programs, the failure to provide voter registration opportunities during covered agency transactions has a disproportionately negative impact on minority citizens. Since 2006, a concerted effort by voting rights organizations to remedy widespread noncompliance with Section 7 has involved extensive outreach to state officials and a series of successful lawsuits. This has resulted in the submission of more than two million voter registration applications above the preexisting levels.

Felony Disenfranchisement

Nearly 6 million Americans are banned from voting because, at some point, they were convicted of a felony offense. These laws affect minority citizens at a substantially higher rates than white citizens overall. In three states (Florida, Kentucky, and Virginia) at least one in five

African-American adults is disenfranchised. This is a major issue without a litigation solution because federal courts will only accept a challenge to a felony disenfranchisement law if the plaintiffs can prove that the law was enacted with a racially discriminatory purpose. Federal courts have uniformly rejected challenges to felony disenfranchisement laws based upon other constitutional theories or the Section 2 results test.

Voter Identification

The increased enactment by states of laws requiring registered voters to provide government-issued photo identification (ID) before their votes are counted may be the most contentious voting-related issue of the last decade. Several of these laws have been subject to legal challenge. Georgia and Indiana passed the first two of these laws in 2005, and the ensuing federal legal challenges have provided proponents and opponents of these laws with a number of lessons, including the following:

- A state with a photo ID requirement must provide an effective method for citizens to obtain a free ID. The first Georgia law did not and was found to be an unconstitutional poll tax. Georgia revised its law to enable a registered voter to obtain a free qualifying ID at the county registrar's office. The second law was upheld against a challenge that included a variety of legal theories.
- After the Supreme Court upheld Indiana's law against a right-to-vote challenge, certain state legislators and proponents interpreted the decision as providing legal immunity to any kind of voter identification law.
- Conversely, opponents of the photo ID laws who are bringing legal challenges read the Indiana decision as requiring them to show more definitively the number of people negatively affected by the law, demonstrate implementation problems, and provide compelling testimony from individuals burdened by the law.

The end result has been that new restrictive laws have passed and there have been additional legal challenges. The more recent cases, such as the federal cases involving laws in Wisconsin, South Carolina, and Texas and the state case involving the Pennsylvania law, have shown the following trends, though it is important to note that the jurisprudence is still evolving.

- There is now a wealth of statistical data allowing opponents of the laws to show the real impact of these laws on voters, and in the cases in Wisconsin, South Carolina, and Texas, the disproportionate impact on minority voters. The cases have also provided compelling testimony from witnesses and other evidence demonstrating implementation issues that affected voters. This was particularly true in Pennsylvania.

- The courts in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania were skeptical about the stated rationale for these laws because of a dearth of proof that the primary rationale—the prevention of voter fraud—is advanced by the law.
- Courts have been hesitant to accept a law that does not enable any, or virtually any, voter to easily obtain a free ID or provide another alternative, such as signing an affidavit at the polling place, for any voter to vote without an ID.

Early In-Person Voting

Early in-person voting has proven to be increasingly popular over the last several years, as currently 33 states and the District of Columbia provide for some form of early voting. African Americans in particular favor early in-person voting; a 2008 statistical analysis of election data in Cuyahoga County in 2008 showed that African Americans voted early at a rate of 26 to 1 as compared to whites and studies from other jurisdictions, while not showing that degree of disparity, consistently show that African Americans employ early voting much more often. In spite, or perhaps because, of the popularity of early voting amongst African Americans, states such as Florida, North Carolina, Ohio, and Wisconsin have recently scaled back the availability of early voting.

Problems at Polling Places

There have been several instances where the closing or consolidation of polling places has been blocked by a court or DOJ because of concerns about its discriminatory impact on minority voters, including in Benson County, North Dakota; Bexar County, Texas; Monterey County, California; and Alaska. In addition, the refusal of certain officials in jurisdictions containing Native American reservations to provide satellite registration offices or voting sites on reservations has only been overcome where litigation was filed or threatened.

Voter Intimidation and Voter Challenges

DOJ has been reluctant to bring voter intimidation cases because, according to DOJ's Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses manual, intimidation is "subjective" and often there is not concrete evidence or witnesses. DOJ's previous means of preventing voter intimidation was through the use of federal observers. It remains to be seen whether DOJ's decision to terminate its observer coverage in the formerly covered jurisdictions after the Shelby County decision will result in a substantial increase in voter intimidation.

Voter intimidation-type tactics may be employed by election officials or by private parties. A particularly egregious recent example from the 2012 election was the placement of billboards in predominantly minority communities in Ohio and Wisconsin "notifying" voters that voter fraud was a felony subject to prison terms or fines. Only after significant pressure and media attention did Clear Channel, the owner of the billboards, take them down because its client would not divulge its identity. Concerns about voter challenges and voter deception and challenges before the November 2012 election led the North Carolina State Board of Elections to issue a directive to the county boards of elections on how to deal with these issues.

Chapter 7 reviews the record of violations and enforcement of the language minority provisions of the VRA.

As discussed above, Section 203, the chief language assistance provision, was enacted in 1975 to address the exclusionary and discriminatory effect of English-only elections on Latino, Native American, and Asian voting age citizens with limited English proficiency in jurisdictions where they comprise more than five percent of the citizen voting age population or number more than 10,000 people. Other provisions specifically address the right of Puerto Rican voters to vote free from discrimination based on their limited English proficiency and the right of a voter who cannot read the ballot to have an assistor of his or her choice. In addition, minority language cases have occasionally been brought under the general Section 2 non-discrimination provision.

Voter participation has improved for all three sets of language minorities in recent years but continues to lag significantly behind whites, making non-compliance with these provisions a particular reason for concern. From 1995 to 2014, there have been 48 successful cases and ten non-litigation settlements involving the minority language protections. These cases demonstrate several trends, including the long-standing refusal of certain jurisdictions to provide assistance prior to litigation, that effective language assistance leads to electoral success for the language minority group, and the interconnection between the lack of minority language assistance and racial hostility.

Chapter 8 includes some brief concluding thoughts. This is followed by an Appendix that contains maps and details with some of the key metrics discussed in the report.

In addition to this report, the NCVR's website, votingrightstoday.org, includes additional information, including state-level analyses and photos, quotes, and pictures from the 25 Commission hearings.

The foregoing briefly summarizes the NCVR's first report. This report and its Appendices provide detailed discussions of the preceding summary.

CHAPTER 1

Background: The Voting Rights Act of 1965

This Report's assessment of recent voting discrimination in the United States begins with an overview of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 (VRA), including the statute's origins, provisions, and impact on minority electoral opportunity up until the time period examined in this report (the years 1995 to the present). This chapter also provides an overview of the Supreme Court's momentous decision in *Shelby County v. Holder*¹ in June 2013, and that decision's negation of the VRA's preclearance requirement and possibly other VRA requirements as well.

As Chief Justice Warren observed in his seminal opinion in South Carolina v. Katzenbach upholding the VRA's constitutionality a few months after it was enacted,

[t]he Voting Rights Act of 1965 reflects Congress' firm intention to rid the country of racial discrimination in voting. The heart of the Act is a complex scheme of stringent remedies aimed at areas where voting discrimination has been most flagrant... [Other] remedial portions of the Act are aimed at voting discrimination in any area of the country where it may occur.^{1a}

For over three decades, Congress, the Executive Branch, and the federal courts joined together in a historic effort to vigorously enforce the VRA and give life to the 15th Amendment's guarantee that the right to vote shall not be denied or abridged on account of race or color. This consensus began to erode, however, in the time period under review in this Report. Then, in Shelby County, the Supreme Court essentially stopped the use of the Section 5 preclearance requirement (and also perhaps the federal observer program) by ruling unconstitutional the VRA provisions which identified the parts of the country where Section 5 (and the observer program) applied. Other VRA remedies remain in effect and continue to be enforced.

I. THE PRELUDE TO THE 1965 ACT: ALMOST A CENTURY OF AFRICAN-AMERICAN DISENFRANCHISEMENT

The VRA was enacted against the backdrop of this country's shameful and almost century-long disenfranchisement of millions of its African-American citizens. That history of pervasive discrimination was not the inevitable result of the social and economic conditions that preceded the Civil War and the end of slavery but, instead, represented a substantial backsliding from the initial progress in voting rights that followed after the Civil War.

In 1868 and 1870, the country ratified the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution guaranteeing to all citizens equal protection of the law, and prohibiting any denial or abridgment of the right to vote on account of race or color. Both Amendments included enforcement clauses giving Congress specific power to implement these guarantees through appropriate legislation. While the Amendments did not promise voting rights for all citizens—women were not enfranchised until the ratification of the 19th Amendment in 1920, and the status of Native Americans living on reservations was not addressed—the 14th and 15th Amendments appeared to herald the end of racial discrimination in voting.

Indeed, during the Reconstruction era former slaves registered, voted, and were elected to political office in significant numbers. These gains in black political empowerment were the direct result of the federal government's enforcement of the 14th and 15th Amendments through legislation and the presence of federal troops in the former Confederate States. But in 1876 the Supreme Court narrowly interpreted these Amendments to invalidate congressional civil rights legislation,² and that was immediately followed by the Hayes-Tilden Compromise of 1877, which ended Reconstruction. This ushered in a long era during which all three branches of the federal government took a “hands-off” approach to racial discrimination generally and racial discrimination in voting in particular. By 1900, nearly all of the Reconstruction-era gains in voting rights had been reversed, and the resulting Jim Crow era persisted until the second half of the 20th Century. The concerted to effectively nullify the 15th Amendment was carried out in a variety of ways, including racially-inspired and racially-enforced restrictions on voter registration and voting, election methods that sought to dilute any residual voting power of African Americans, and fraud and violence directed against African-American voters.³

After World War II, the Jim Crow regime began to crumble in the face of civil rights protests, a Supreme Court and lower federal courts that rejected racial discrimination, tentative action by the federal Executive Branch, and a national consciousness that at least raised questions about Jim Crow.⁴ Congress enacted its first voting rights laws since the 19th Century in 1957, 1960, and 1964, and lawsuits were filed against numerous voting registrars in the South by the newly created Civil Rights Division of the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ).⁵ Still, these efforts were only able to dent the structure of oppression. As of March 1965, less than one-third of all African Americans living in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia were registered to vote, whereas about three-fourths of the white population of those States was registered.⁶

Marchers walk toward the Edmund Pettus Bridge during the Selma to Montgomery March for Voting Rights of 1965.

Finally, after the 1964 Freedom Summer in Mississippi saw both valiant efforts to register African Americans to vote and retaliatory violence including the murders of three civil rights workers, and after the brutal March 7, 1965 attack on protesters peacefully marching across the Edmund Pettus Bridge in Selma, Alabama, President Johnson stood before Congress on March 15, 1965 to urge the adoption of a new voting rights bill. Johnson declared that “There is no issue of States rights or national rights. There is only the struggle for human rights,” and “we shall overcome.”⁷ Congress responded, and less than five months later, President Johnson signed the Voting Rights Act of 1965 into law on August 6.⁸

II. THE 1965 VOTING RIGHTS ACT

The VRA’s first order of business was to knock down the registration laws and stop the actions by local registrars that were preventing African Americans from registering and voting. The VRA sought to do this in several ways. First, Section 4 of the Act laid out a formula for identifying areas where voting discrimination was most prevalent and temporarily prohibited the use of voting “tests or devices” in those areas.⁹ These “tests or devices” included any requirement that voters “(1) demonstrate the ability to read, write, understand, or interpret any matter; (2) demonstrate any educational achievement or his knowledge of any particular subject; (3) possess good moral character; or (4) prove his qualifications by the voucher of registered voters or members of any other class.”¹⁰ Second, Section 6 of the Act gave the U.S. Attorney General the authority to bypass local election officials by dispatching federal registrars (known as “examiners”) to register qualified voters in these same areas designated by Section 4.¹¹ Third, Section 8 gave the Attorney General the authority to send federal observers into polling places in the Section 4 areas to monitor and document the conduct of elections and to deter misconduct by election officials and intimidation by private citizens.¹²

Congress understood, however, that once minority voters became able to vote, the risk was substantial that states and localities where discrimination had been most prevalent would enact or seek to administer new techniques for minimizing or canceling out minority electoral participation. Thus, Congress included Section 5 in the VRA. Section 5 requires that all new voting practices and procedures in areas identified by Section 4 undergo federal review before implementation. This review—called “preclearance”—was designed to ensure that new practices and procedures did not have the purpose and would not have the effect of denying or abridging the right to vote on account of race or color.¹³

The VRA also included, in Section 2, a nationwide general prohibition on voting discrimination.¹⁴ In Section 4(e), Congress took a first step toward addressing potential discrimination in English-only elections, establishing a remedy for Puerto Rican citizens educated in schools where the predominant language was not English.¹⁵ And in Section 11, Congress prohibited voter intimidation.¹⁶

The constitutionality of the VRA was immediately challenged by several of the states covered by Section 4 and thus subject to the Act’s special remedies regarding voter registration, election monitoring, and preclearance. Their lawsuit was filed directly in the Supreme Court, and on March 7, 1966, exactly one year after the events of Bloody Sunday on the Edmund Pettus Bridge, the Court decisively upheld all the challenged provisions in South Carolina v. Katzenbach.¹⁷ Discussing the VRA’s specially targeted provisions, the Court captured the essence of the new legal framework Congress had established for addressing racial discrimination in voting:

Congress... found that case-by-case litigation was inadequate to combat widespread and persistent discrimination in voting, because of the inordinate amount of time and energy required to overcome the obstructionist tactics invariably encountered in these lawsuits. After enduring nearly a century of systematic resistance to the Fifteenth Amendment, Congress might well decide to shift the advantage of time and inertia from the perpetrators of the evil to its victims.¹⁸

III. REAUTHORIZATION AND EXPANSION OF THE VRA'S REMEDIES AFTER 1965

Part of Congress' original structuring of the targeted "test or device," preclearance, examiner, and observer remedies was the inclusion of a sunset provision which would have effectively terminated these remedies in 1970 by allowing the Section 4 coverage to expire.¹⁹ In that year, however, Congress reauthorized Section 4 coverage for another five years, and then reauthorized coverage for an additional seven years in 1975, 25 years in 1982, and 25 years again in 2006 (terminated then in 2013 by the Shelby County decision).²⁰

The congressional debates in 1970, 1975, 1982, and 2006 over reauthorizing the Section 4 coverage formula focused mostly on whether to continue requiring Section 5 preclearance for voting changes. This is because the other most significant remedy applied to the Section 4 areas – the prohibition on voting "tests or devices" – was expanded by Congress into a nationwide five-year suspension in 1970²¹ and a permanent, nationwide ban in 1975.²²

As part of the debate over each post-1965 reauthorization of Section 4 coverage and thus Section 5, Congress examined the recent record of voting discrimination in the covered areas to assess whether there was a current need for the preclearance requirement. As a result of each review, Congress found that there was a significant and ongoing pattern of voting discrimination in these areas, and that, accordingly, there continued to be a significant risk that the electoral gains that had been achieved in these areas would be rolled back without federal oversight.²³

In 1975, Congress also received extensive information indicating that in certain parts of the country, the use of English-only elections was having a substantial and discriminatory impact on language minority citizens – Hispanic Americans, Asian Americans, American Indians, and Alaska Natives.²⁴ Congress also received information indicating that in a subset of these areas, the impact of English-only elections and other discriminatory practices was comparable to the voting "tests or devices" that had prevented African Americans from effectively participating in the electoral process.²⁵ Accordingly, as part of the 1975 reauthorization legislation, Congress extended Section 4 coverage – and thus the Section 5 preclearance requirement – to particular states and localities that were conducting English-only elections. Congress also prohibited English-only elections in these newly-designated Section 4 areas for as long as Section 4 coverage continued.²⁶ In addition, the 1975 legislation added Section 203 to the VRA, which requires bilingual election assistance in other areas around the country. These areas are identified by a separate coverage formula laid out in Section 203.²⁷ Finally, the 1975 legislation amended Section 2 and Section 5 of the VRA to include a prohibition on discrimination against language minority citizens.²⁸

The 1982 reauthorization legislation also included an expansion of the VRA, in the form of an amendment to Section 2 adding a results test to that section's general prohibition on racial and language minority discrimination in voting. The amendment was adopted to respond to a 1980 Supreme Court decision, Mobile v. Bolden, in which the Court made it significantly more difficult for minority plaintiffs to successfully challenge at-large and multi-member election plans under the 14th Amendment.²⁹ Congress based the new results test on the standard that courts had relied upon prior to Mobile for resolving claims against at-large and multi-member elections.³⁰

After the Supreme Court's initial decision in March 1966 upholding the constitutionality of the VRA, the Supreme Court continued to reject constitutional challenges to the Act. Later in 1966, the Court upheld the constitutionality of the bilingual provisions of Section 4(e),³¹ and following the 1970 reauthorization, the Court summarily rejected a renewed challenge to Section 5.³² Following the 1975 reauthorization, the Supreme Court issued a third decision in favor of Section 5 in 1980, rejecting claims that Section 5 violated principles of federalism, that Congress lacked the authority to reauthorize Section 5, and that Congress could not include in Section 5 a prohibition on voting changes that have a discriminatory effect.³³ The Supreme Court's last decision upholding the constitutionality of Section 5 was in 1999, following the 1982 reauthorization. In that case, the Court again rejected the assertion that Section 5 violated federalism principles.³⁴

Most recently, in 2005 and 2006, Congress conducted a series of 20 hearings and heard testimony from 90 witnesses in deciding whether to reauthorize Sections 5 and 203.³⁵ The evidence received included the 2006 Report of the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act, which summarized and detailed numerous findings of voting discrimination within the jurisdictions covered by Section 4 between 1982 and 2005.³⁶ By margins of 390-33 in the House of Representatives and 98-0 in the Senate, Congress voted to extend Section 4 coverage, and thus Section 5, for an additional 25 years, and to extend Section 203 for an additional 25 years as well. President George W. Bush signed the 2006 reauthorization into law on July 27, 2006.³⁷

As in 1982, the 2006 legislation included amendments to respond to recent Supreme Court decisions that Congress believed had undermined voting rights enforcement. Those decisions, in 2000 in *Reno v. Bossier Parish School Board*³⁸ and in 2003 in Georgia v. Ashcroft,³⁹ had significantly restricted the scope of Section 5's prohibition on voting changes with either a discriminatory purpose or a discriminatory effect.⁴⁰

The 1970, 1975, and 1982 reauthorizations also extended the application of the federal examiner and observer provisions in areas covered by Section 4. In 2006, Congress again extended the observer authority, but repealed the examiner provisions since they had not been used for several years and were no longer needed.⁴¹

IV. THE VRA'S MAJOR PROVISIONS

Section 2

Section 2 of the VRA is a permanent nationwide prohibition against voting practices and procedures that discriminate on the basis of race, color, or membership in a language minority group. Section 2 is violated both by practices and procedures that have a discriminatory purpose and those that have a discriminatory result.⁴² Section 2 is enforced through lawsuits filed in local federal courts (i.e., the court where the defendant jurisdiction is located).

The Section 2 results standard provides that a violation exists

if, based on the totality of the circumstances, it is shown that the political processes leading to nomination or election... are not equally open to participation by... citizens protected by [Section 2] in that [they] have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to participate in the political process and to elect representatives of their choice.⁴³

A detailed explanation of this broad standard was set forth in the 1982 Senate Judiciary Committee report for the legislation. The Senate Report identified a variety of factors that may be considered in undertaking a “totality of the circumstances” analysis,⁴⁴ and in practice courts have relied upon these factors in applying Section 2.⁴⁵

While Section 2 applies to all voting practices and procedures, it has most frequently been applied in “vote dilution” challenges to at-large election systems and redistricting plans. There have been numerous court decisions finding that at-large systems and redistricting plans violate Section 2, and there have been hundreds of Section 2 settlements requiring counties, cities, and school districts to abandon at-large voting and adopt district-based methods of election.⁴⁶ Successful Section 2 vote dilution claims like these must meet three “preconditions” first identified by the Supreme Court in Thornburg v. Gingles: (1) the minority population must be sufficiently numerous to comprise a majority of the eligible population in a reasonably-drawn single member district, (2) the minority voting population must be politically cohesive, and (3) minority voters’ candidates of choice must generally be defeated as the result of white bloc voting.^{46a} Once these preconditions are satisfied, plaintiffs must then establish a violation under the full “totality of the circumstances” analysis.⁴⁷

Section 5

Section 5 required certain states and political subdivisions of other states to obtain federal preclearance whenever they would “enact or seek to administer any [new] voting...qualification or prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice, or procedure with respect to voting.”⁴⁸

Section 5 applied broadly to any change affecting voting, even one that might seem minor or unobjectionable on its face.⁴⁹ Voting changes subject to Section 5 were not permitted to be implemented unless and until preclearance was obtained.⁵⁰

Jurisdictions were required to seek preclearance either by filing suit in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia (requesting a declaratory judgment) or by making an administrative submission to the U.S. Attorney General.⁵¹ Whichever forum was chosen, it was the jurisdiction that had the burden of proof, not minority citizens or the Justice Department.⁵² The jurisdiction was required to demonstrate that each voting change “neither ha[d] the purpose nor will have the effect of denying or abridging the right to vote on account of race or color, or [language minority status]....”⁵³

The Section 5 “effect” standard, distinct from the Section 2 “results” standard discussed above, prohibited backsliding. More specifically, Section 5 barred the implementation of any voting change “that would lead to a retrogression in the position of racial minorities with respect to their effective exercise of the electoral franchise.”⁵⁴ Thus, effect was evaluated by comparing minority electoral opportunity under the new practice to minority electoral opportunity under the pre-existing practice. A discriminatory effect existed if the new practice would make that opportunity worse.

As noted earlier, the states and localities subject to Section 5 were identified by a series of provisions contained in Section 4 of the Act. The Section 4 coverage formula, first enacted in 1965 and then amended in 1970 and 1975, operated as follows: jurisdictions were covered if (1) they employed a “test or device” for registration or voting at the time of the 1964, 1968, or 1972 presidential election, and (2) less than 50 percent of the jurisdiction’s eligible voters registered or voted in the same election.⁵⁵ For the coverage determinations based upon the 1964 and 1968 elections, the VRA defined the term “test or device” as those practices (such as literacy tests) which, as described above, the VRA temporarily and then later permanently banned. For coverage determinations based upon the 1972 election, the meaning of “test or device” was expanded to also include the use of English-only election procedures where a language-minority citizen group constituted more than five percent of the citizen voting age population of the jurisdiction.⁵⁶

As also discussed earlier, Section 4 coverage – and thus Section 5 – was further subject to recurring sunset provisions. Congress reauthorized and extended coverage in 1970, 1975, 1982, and 2006 after finding on each occasion that a high level of voting discrimination had continued in the Section 4 areas.

Thus, Section 5 remained in effect until Shelby County based upon a combination of evaluations by Congress. First, Congress relied upon the evaluations built into the coverage formula, which looked at electoral conditions existing in 1964, 1968, and 1972 to identify those areas of the country that had a history of persistent voting discrimination.⁵⁷ Second, Congress relied upon four separate evaluations that updated Congress' assessments of whether a pattern of voting discrimination was continuing in the jurisdictions with a history of voting discrimination.

From the outset, Section 4 permitted individual jurisdictions to sue to remove themselves from coverage (to "bail out" of coverage).⁵⁸ Over the years, a number of jurisdictions took advantage of this exit ramp.⁵⁹

As a result, at the time Shelby County was decided, there were nine States subject to Section 5 in their entirety – Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas, and Virginia. In addition, portions of six other States were covered – California (three counties), Florida (five counties), Michigan (two townships), New York (three counties in New York City), North Carolina (40 of the State's 100 counties), and South Dakota (two counties).⁶⁰

Language assistance requirements

In 1975, Congress enacted two complementary provisions, Section 4(f)(4)⁶¹ and Section 203,⁶² requiring certain jurisdictions around the country to provide voting materials in one or more languages in addition to English. These sections incorporated identical substantive requirements for language assistance.⁶³ They differed in terms of the processes used to identify the covered jurisdictions. These provisions, like Section 2, are enforced through litigation filed by the Justice Department or minority individuals.

Section 4(f)(4) applied to those jurisdictions covered by the 1975 amendment to the Section 4 coverage formula. Given that the Supreme Court found the coverage formula unconstitutional in the Shelby County case, it is unclear whether there continue to be jurisdictions to which Section 4(f)(4) applies. The Supreme Court did not discuss Section 4(f)(4) in the Shelby County decision and thus did not specifically rule upon that section's continuing viability.

Section 203 relies on a different coverage formula, which takes into account the number or percentage of voting age citizens in a state or political subdivision who are members of a single language minority group and who have limited proficiency in English, and whether the illiteracy rate of the jurisdiction's language minority group is higher than the national illiteracy rate. Section 203 also includes a sunset proviso; it was reauthorized in 1982, 1992, and once again in 2006. The relevant coverage data are drawn from data collected by the U.S. Census Bureau, and thus the jurisdictions subject to Section 203 change somewhat over time. New determinations were originally made at ten-year intervals; since 2006 they are to be made at five-year intervals. Each Section 203 coverage determination is accompanied by a specification of the specific language or languages for which the jurisdiction is required to provide language assistance in the voting process.

According to the most recent determinations issued in 2011, the States of California, Florida, and Texas are fully covered under Section 203 (for Spanish), and individual counties are also separately covered in those States. Individual counties and townships are covered in 22 other States. Local jurisdictions are predominantly covered for Spanish, but many are covered for other languages including a variety of Asian, Native American, and Alaska Native languages.⁶⁴

Sections 4(f)(4) and 203 apply to all stages of the election process, i.e., to “registration or voting notices, forms, instructions, assistance, or other materials or information relating to the electoral process, including ballots.”⁶⁵ The sections require that both written election materials and oral assistance be provided in the language of the covered language minority group.

The substantive requirements of Sections 4(f) and 203 are further described in the Attorney General’s Guidelines on Implementation of the Provisions of the Voting Rights Act Regarding Language Minority Groups.⁶⁶ The Guidelines specify that covered jurisdictions “should take all reasonable steps” to provide language assistance “in a way designed to allow members of applicable language minority groups to be effectively informed of and participate effectively in voting-connected activities....”⁶⁷ The Guidelines further explain that “[c]ompliance... is best measured by results[,]” and that the requisite results are most likely to be achieved by covered areas working in close cooperation with local community organizations.⁶⁸ The Guidelines also endorse the targeting of language assistance to those language minority citizens in need, so that language assistance is not necessarily required to be provided to all eligible voters in the jurisdiction.⁶⁹

Section 4(e) of the VRA, enacted in 1965, requires jurisdictions to provide language assistance to United States citizens who were “educated in American-flag schools in which the predominant classroom language was other than English.”⁷⁰ This section primarily affects citizens who attended primary school in Puerto Rico. There is no particular geographic coverage provision attached to this section. Section 4(e) also is enforced through litigation.

Federal observers

Since 1965, the Attorney General has been authorized by Section 8 of the VRA to send federal observers into polling places located in jurisdictions covered under Section 4, provided that the Attorney General certifies a particular county or parish for observers. As with Section 4(f)(4), the Shelby County ruling against the Section 4 coverage formula raises the question of whether there continue to be jurisdictions that are subject to the Section 8 authority, even though Shelby County did not discuss Section 8. DOJ apparently has concluded that the Section 8 observer authority no longer is enforceable after Shelby County.

Coverage of additional areas for preclearance and federal observers

The 1965 Act also includes provisions allowing courts to designate a jurisdiction not covered by Section 4 for similar coverage for a specified time period. Under Section 3(a), a court may designate a jurisdiction for federal observers (and, before the 2006 amendments, for federal examiners as well).⁷¹ Under Section 3(c), a court may designate a jurisdiction for preclearance of all or a subset of its voting changes.⁷² These “bail in” provisions continue in effect after Shelby County.

Permanent prohibition of certain tests and devices for voting

Section 201 of the VRA is a permanent nationwide ban on the use of specified “tests or devices” as prerequisites to registration or voting.⁷³

Other VRA provisions

Section 208 of the VRA, enacted in 1982, provides that any voter who requires assistance to vote by reason of blindness, disability, or inability to read or write may be assisted by a person of the voter’s choice, other than the voter’s employer or agent of the employer or officer or agent of the voter’s union.⁷⁴

Section 11(a) of the VRA prevents election officials from refusing to count legitimate votes.⁷⁵

Section 11(b) of the VRA prohibits intimidation, threats, or coercion in the voting process and applies to private persons as well as persons acting under color of law (that is, governmental officials).⁷⁶

V. THE TWO FORMS OF VOTING DISCRIMINATION: LIMITATIONS ON BALLOT ACCESS AND VOTE DILUTION

Voting discrimination generally may be characterized as occurring in one of two forms, restrictions on ballot access and election methods or structures that dilute minority voting strength.⁷⁷

Ballot access restrictions

Voting practices that limit or restrict access to registration or voting may discriminate on the basis of race or language minority status (depending upon the particular practice involved and/or the circumstances in which the practice is being implemented). Practices that may be of concern include: registration limitations or the improper purging of registration rolls; a lack of bilingual assistance or ineffective bilingual assistance; limitations on early in-person voting or absentee voting; a photo ID requirement for in-person voting; the elimination of polling places or polling place changes; voter intimidation; and restrictions on candidate qualifications or on candidate qualification procedures.

Minority vote dilution

Voting practices that may dilute minority voting strength are those election methods or structures which, in the context of racially polarized voting, tend to minimize or cancel out the ability of minority voters to elect their preferred candidates to office. Such practices may include: at-large election systems; multi-member election districts; redistricting plans that unnecessarily fragment minority areas or pack minority voters into a limited number of districts; and annexations of white residential areas that either fence out minority residential areas or reduce a city's minority population percentage in the context of at-large voting.

Discriminatory ballot-access restrictions are sometimes referred to as “first generation” discrimination and vote dilution as “second generation” discrimination. This reflects the fact that, historically, restrictions on ballot access were often the initial method chosen to deny or abridge the right to vote, and vote dilution was undertaken only after minority voters gained access to the ballot at least to some extent.⁷⁸ However, in reality, both types of discrimination may occur concurrently, and instances of “first generation” discrimination may follow after “second generation” discrimination. Nor is it accurate to view “second generation” discrimination as something that occurred only after the VRA was adopted, or to view “first generation” discrimination as something that existed only in the past.

For example, there is a long history of “second generation” voting discrimination in Alabama that predates the VRA. In 1911, although the State had almost completely disenfranchised its African-American citizens, the City of Mobile, Alabama changed to an at-large method of electing its city government “to reinforce the 1901 [State] Constitution as a buttress against the possibility of black office holding.”⁷⁹ Later in the 1950s, although African-American registration remained depressed, the Alabama Legislature redrew the boundaries of the City of Tuskegee to remove 99 percent of the city’s African-American population.⁸⁰ The author of that legislation also sponsored legislation that banned the technique of single-shot voting in at-large elections for county commissioners across Alabama, out of a concern that those African Americans who were registered to vote might use this technique to elect individuals to office.⁸¹

On the other hand, “first generation” discrimination clearly remains a present-day concern. For example, as discussed in detail in Chapter 6, several States recently have enacted photo ID laws that, because of their particular provisions, discriminate against minority voters.

VI. IMPACT OF THE VRA ON MINORITY ELECTORAL OPPORTUNITY, 1965 TO 1995

The impact of the VRA on our Nation’s political processes has been profound. The opportunity of minority citizens to register, vote, and elect candidates of choice dramatically improved from 1965 to 1995, most notably in the South and Southwest, but throughout the country as well.⁸²

The initial focus of the VRA in 1965 on removing barriers to voter registration by African Americans had the desired result to a substantial degree. Within about six years of the enactment of the VRA, the combined African-American registration rate in the States of Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia climbed to about 57 percent, almost 30 points higher than that rate had been in March 1965. Still, the African-American registration rate in 1971-72 remained a substantial eleven points below the white registration rate in those States.⁸³ Through continued enforcement efforts, the African-American registration rates further improved thereafter, such that by the time of the 2006 reauthorization the African-American rates were comparable to the white registration rates in most of the South, with a few exceptions.⁸⁴

However, the efforts that began in the mid-1970s to address discrimination against language minority citizens have not yielded the same results. As shown on the graph on the following page, substantial disparities between registration rates for language minority citizens and whites are continuing.⁸⁵

Voter Registration for Presidential Elections

As Congress anticipated in 1965, the enactment of the VRA was followed by a series of new discriminatory measures in the specially covered areas. For example, in 1965 Mississippi repealed provisions allowing illiterate voters to receive assistance in voting, and in 1966 adopted a state law to enable county boards of supervisors to switch from district to at-large elections. DOJ interposed Section 5 objections to both changes.⁸⁶ Other examples included Georgia's adoption of restrictions on assistance to illiterate voters, to which the DOJ objected in 1968,⁸⁷ and South Carolina's adoption of a discriminatory redistricting plan for its state senate, to which the DOJ objected in 1972.⁸⁸

By 1975, a pattern of conduct by Section 4 jurisdictions was apparent. As the House Judiciary Committee observed in its 1975 report supporting Section 5's reauthorization,

[t]he recent objections entered by the Attorney General... to Section 5 submissions clearly bespeak the continuing need for [the Section 5] preclearance mechanism. As registration and voting of minority citizens increases, other measures may be resorted to which would dilute increasing minority voting strength. Such other measures may include switching to at-large elections, annexations of predominantly white areas, or the adoption of discriminatory redistricting plans.”⁸⁹

This did not mean, however, that ballot access discrimination had ended, as Section 5 objections were also interposed to many such changes.⁹⁰

In the years after 1975, this pattern continued. During the remainder of the 1970s, and then in the 1980s, 1990s, and into the 2000s, a majority of the objected-to voting changes involved discriminatory election methods, redistrictings, and annexations.⁹¹ Objections to changes affecting ballot access were also interposed. Congress reiterated its particular concern about “second generation” discrimination that would undo the “first generation” progress when it reauthorized Section 5 in 1982⁹² and again in 2006.⁹³

A positive pattern also emerged in the 1970s and continued with increasing force in the 1980s and 1990s: a substantial number of cities, counties, and school districts – particularly in the areas subject to Section 5 – changed from at-large to district election systems. The initial impetus was a Supreme Court decision in 1973, White v. Regester, overturning multi-member districts for the Texas Legislature on the ground that they diluted African-American and Latino voting strength in violation of the 14th Amendment.⁹⁴ Other successful dilution suits based on the 14th Amendment followed. In 1980, however, the Supreme Court did a sharp U-turn in its Mobile v. Bolden decision, substantially re-interpreting the constitutional cause of action and making it much more difficult for plaintiffs to prevail.⁹⁵ As explained above, Congress then amended Section 2 in 1982 to revive the pre-Mobile standard by creating the new Section 2 results test. Thereafter, hundreds of Section 2 suits were filed leading to decisions and settlements in which at-large systems were abandoned, and many other localities abandoned at-large systems in anticipation that they might be sued. Section 5 objections to dilutive annexations also led to the adoption of district election methods.⁹⁶

Finally, lawsuits also were brought under Section 2 challenging discriminatory redistricting plans, particularly (although not exclusively) in the areas not subject to Section 5. For example, in 1990 the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a district court ruling invalidating the redistricting plan for the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors because it discriminated against Latino voters.⁹⁷ This led to the election of the first Latino to the Board in over a century.⁹⁸

VII. SUPREME COURT'S LIMITS ON SECTION 5, CONGRESS' RESPONSE, AND THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION IN SHELBY COUNTY V. HOLDER

After 1995, the Supreme Court issued three decisions substantially curtailing the scope of the Section 5's nondiscrimination requirements. Then, in 2013, the Court issued its decision in Shelby County v. Holder, which effectively nullified the preclearance requirement.

- In 1997, the Supreme Court ruled in Reno v. Bossier Parish School Board that, a finding that a voting change had a discriminatory result under Section 2 of the VRA could not be used to object to a voting change under Section 5 of the VRA.⁹⁹

- In 2000, the case returned to the Supreme Court, and the Court held in Bossier Parish II that Section 5 is generally not violated where a jurisdiction adopts a voting change with a discriminatory intent if the change would not make minority voters worse off compared to what existed before.¹⁰⁰ The Bossier Parish school district intentionally drew its post-1990 redistricting plan to avoid creating even one majority African American single-member district, but this discriminatory intent did not violate Section 5, according to the Court, because the old plan did not include any majority African American districts either and thus the new plan was not retrogressive or intended to be retrogressive.¹⁰¹ The Court's ruling was particularly troublesome because it meant that DOJ and the federal court in Washington D.C. would now be required to preclear intentionally discriminatory practices, contrary to their prior practice¹⁰² and inconsistent with prior decisions by the Supreme Court.¹⁰³
- In 2003, in Georgia v. Ashcroft, the Supreme Court substantially re-interpreted the Section 5 retrogression standard as applied to redistricting plans. The Court held that redistricting reviews were required to take into account minority "influence districts" in addition to considering those districts where minority voters would have the opportunity to elect their preferred candidates.¹⁰⁴ This was highly problematic since it is unclear what constitutes a minority "influence district" and, whatever the term means, it is questionable whether such districts, in the context of racially polarized voting, in fact offer much if any real opportunity to minority voters to influence elections.¹⁰⁵

As noted, as part of the 2006 reauthorization of Section 5, Congress amended Section 5 in response to Bossier Parish II and Ashcroft. The amendments essentially returned the statute to the discrimination standards that pre-dated the Supreme Court decisions.¹⁰⁶

Shelby County v. Holder was filed in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia by Shelby County, Alabama on April 27, 2010. The federal judge hearing the case conducted a thorough review of the record before Congress and concluded that the 2006 reauthorization was constitutional.¹⁰⁷ On appeal, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit conducted its own review of the record and agreed with district court ruling, with one judge dissenting.¹⁰⁸

The Supreme Court then took the case and, on June 25, 2013, reversed the judgment of the district court and held that the Section 4 formula that determined which states or jurisdictions had to seek federal review for their voting changes is unconstitutional.¹⁰⁹ The Court did not address the constitutionality of the preclearance remedy. As a result, today, no jurisdiction is subject to the Section 5 preclearance requirement. As noted above, the Section 4(f)(4) prohibition on English-only elections and the Section 8 authority for federal observers also apply only to Section 4 jurisdictions, and although neither provision was at issue in or mentioned in Shelby County, DOJ does not appear to be enforcing either provision.

In the 5 - 4 decision, Chief Justice Roberts concluded that the Section 4 coverage provisions were not properly based on “current needs” because the Section 4 coverage formula was based on electoral conditions in 1964, 1968, and 1972.¹¹⁰ The Chief Justice thereby ignored the fact that Section 5’s reauthorization in 2006, like the reauthorizations that preceded it, was premised on Congress’ evaluation of current needs, and that Congress had concluded in 2006 that a pattern of voting discrimination was continuing in the areas identified by the Section 4 coverage formula. Chief Justice Roberts conceded that “voting discrimination still exists; no one doubts that[,]”¹¹¹ but did not conduct any detailed review of the massive record Congress had gathered in 2005 and 2006, based on which Congress made a direct and specific legislative finding of the current need for Section 5.

Justice Ginsburg authored the dissenting opinion for herself and for Justices Breyer, Sotomayor, and Kagan.¹¹² Justice Ginsburg began her opinion with the following overview of the 2006 reauthorization and its constitutional validity:

Recognizing that large progress has been made, Congress determined, based on a voluminous record, that the scourge of discrimination was not yet extirpated. The question this case presents is who decides whether, as currently operative, §5 remains justifiable, this Court, or a Congress charged with the obligation to enforce the post-Civil War Amendments “by appropriate legislation.” With overwhelming support in both Houses, Congress concluded that, for two prime reasons, §5 should continue in force, unabated. First, continuance would facilitate completion of the impressive gains thus far made; and second, continuance would guard against backsliding. Those assessments were well within Congress’ province to make and should elicit this Court’s unstinting approbation.¹¹³

And, as Justice Ginsburg stated later in her opinion, “[t]hrowing out preclearance when it has worked as and is continuing to work to stop discriminatory changes is like throwing away your umbrella in a rainstorm because you are not getting wet.”¹¹⁴

The consequence of Shelby County is that all the previously covered states and localities are now able to implement voting changes without advance federal review to determine whether the new practices are discriminatory. As was true before 1965, the burden is now back on the DOJ and minority citizens to identify and obtain court judgments against discriminatory voting practices in the jurisdictions with the worst histories of voting discrimination.

“The suppression is geared toward the minority vote, the African American vote, and the Hispanic vote. Because if you can suppress that vote, then you don’t have to worry about losing the power that you have gained as a result of what we put in some time ago.”

–State Rep. Mickey Michaux (NCVR North Carolina Hearing)

CHAPTER 2

National Overview Of Voting Discrimination, 1995–2014

Racial voting discrimination remains a serious problem in the United States. Several states, especially Texas, have shown a pattern of repeated and varied violations since 1995. Texas and other states with the worst records each: (1) have significantly more documented indicators of voting discrimination than average; and (2) were covered under Section 4(b) of the Voting Rights Act (VRA) prior to the Shelby County decision. This pattern is clearly seen in the post-1995 record of at least 171 successful lawsuits under Section 2 of the VRA, 113 Section 5 preclearance denials and 48 successful lawsuits and ten non-litigation settlements enforcing the language assistance provisions of the VRA.¹

The voting rights record reviewed in this chapter focuses upon three types of compliance issues arising under the Voting Rights Act since 1995:

- Affirmative litigation brought in federal court under Section 2 of the VRA, including challenges to redistricting plans and methods of election (including at-large elections) that minimize or cancel out the ability of minority voters to elect their preferred candidates to office (i.e., vote dilution challenges), and vote denial challenges to other voting practices involving access to the ballot (bilingual procedures are treated separately);
- Section 5 preclearance denials, either in the form of administrative objections interposed by the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) or in litigation before a three-judge panel in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, along with denials of preclearance for jurisdictions covered under Section 3(c) of the VRA; and
- Cases concerning bilingual election assistance for language minority voters, brought under Sections 203, 4(f)(4), and 4(e) of the VRA, as well as related claims brought on occasion under Section 2 and Section 208 of the VRA.

Separate listings identifying each individual matter in the three categories are included in the Supplemental Online Appendix (<http://votingrightstoday.org/ncvr/resources/discrimination-report>). While these categories are not the only relevant indicators of voting discrimination, each one sheds light on the critical questions of how frequently voting discrimination occurs today and whether it is geographically concentrated.²

As shown in Table 1, between January 1995 and June 2014 over 300 lawsuits or administrative determinations under the VRA led to the prohibition, abandonment, or alteration of a variety of voting practices at both the state and local levels. While one or more of these matters occurred in 31 different states, the activity was heavily concentrated in the jurisdictions that were specially covered under Section 4(b) at the time of Shelby County. In fact, approximately three-fourths of these matters involved Section 4(b) jurisdictions.

Table 1: VRA Enforcement: January 1995 to June 2014

Type of Enforcement Matter	Number of Matters	Number of Matters Involving a State-Level Practice	Number of Matters Involving Jurisdictions That Were Covered Under Section 4	Number of Matters, By Type of Voting Practice at Issue
Preclearance Denials	113	21	113	58 Redistricting 20 Methods of election/selection 7 Jurisdictions' annexations/de-annexations 20 Ballot access (not bilingual) 4 Bilingual
Section 2 (non-bilingual) Cases	171	16	123	30 Redistricting 123 Methods of election/selection 21 Ballot access
Bilingual Cases	58	2	15	58 Bilingual

As shown in Tables 2, 3, and 4, Texas, a state fully covered by Section 4(b), had, by far, the greatest overall number of enforcement matters—over 110. Four states—Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and New York—had between 20 and 28 enforcement matters each; three of these states were wholly covered under Section 4(b) and New York was partially covered (i.e., some local jurisdictions were covered and therefore subject to the Section 5 preclearance requirement though the state as a whole was not). Three states had between 13 and 19 enforcement matters each—California, Florida, and South Carolina; South Carolina was fully covered by Section 4(b) and California and Florida were partially covered.

Minority vote dilution was the problem in most of the Section 2 litigation and Section 5 preclearance denials, in the form of discriminatory redistricting plans or methods of election. However, discriminatory access to the ballot comprised a sizable minority of the Section 2 cases and Section 5 preclearance denials as well. The numerous lawsuits under the language assistance provisions of the VRA showed widespread failure by local jurisdictions to comply with those provisions.

Rogene Gee Calvert, director of the Texas Asian American Redistricting Initiative testified about the need for additional bilingual poll workers in Harris County, which now mandates Vietnamese and Chinese language assistance; she also discussed the difficulty Asian seniors have in obtaining proper documents to get a photo ID. (NCVR Texas Hearing) PHOTO CREDIT: SAMUEL WASHINGTON

About 10 percent of these enforcement matters (identified in Table 1) dealt with state-level voting practices. That is, about 10 percent dealt with practices adopted by or being administered by a state; in some instances, the discriminatory effect of these practices was state-wide or nearly so, while in other instances the discrimination was more localized.

In its Shelby County decision, the Supreme Court admonished Congress to consider current conditions when it acts to address voting discrimination through a preclearance requirement. As discussed in detail below, the current conditions show that voting discrimination is a serious present-day problem and occurs most frequently in specific states.

I. LITIGATION UNDER SECTION 2 OF THE VRA

Section 2 of the VRA has applied nationwide since it was enacted in 1965. The record of successful lawsuits brought under Section 2 is not, on its own, sufficient to show the full extent of voting discrimination, but it is the logical point at which to begin that assessment. If voting discrimination is no longer a serious problem in the United States, then the overall number of successful Section 2 cases should be small, and the cases should either be evenly distributed among the states, or there should be fewer Section 2 cases in the states formerly covered under Section 4(b) (since their voting changes had been federally screened for decades).³

In fact, there were at least 171 successful Section 2 cases since 1995, an average of nearly nine per year.⁴ These included 16 state-level cases where a state law or practice, rather than a local one, was in question. Nearly 90 percent of the practices that were successfully challenged under Section 2 involved vote dilution claims, principally redistricting plans or at-large voting rules. These cases are summarized in Table 2 and are listed individually in the Supplemental Online Appendix.

Table 2: Successful Section 2 Cases: January 1995 to June 2014

State	Number of Cases	Coverage Under Section 4	State-Level Cases	Successfully Challenged Practices ^{ab}
TOTAL (27 States)	171	123 cases dealt with jurisdictions covered under Section 4	16 cases	Ballot access (21); Method of election (123); Redistricting (30)
Alabama	2	State	--	Method of election (1); Redistricting (1)
Arizona	1	State	1	Voter identification for in-person voting (Native American tribal members)
Arkansas	2	None	--	Election schedule (1); Method of election (1)
California	4	Partial (1 case)	1 (voting method)	Method of election (2); Redistricting (1); Voting method (1)
Colorado	2	None	1 (redistricting)	Method of election (1); Redistricting (1)
Florida	6	Partial (2 cases)	2 (poll worker training, provisional ballots, voting method, voter purges)	Method of election (4); Poll worker training (1); Provisional ballots (1); Voter purge (2); Voting method (1)
Georgia	9	State	--	Method of election (6); Redistricting (2); Voter challenges (1)
Hawaii	1	None	1	Candidate qualification
Illinois	5	None	1 (voting method)	Candidate qualification (1); Method of election (1); Redistricting (2); Voting method (1)
Louisiana	6	State	--	Method of election (2); Redistricting (5)
Massachusetts	2	None	1 (legis. redistricting)	Method of election (1); Redistricting (2)
Michigan	1	None	--	Race-based polling place challenges

State	Number of Cases	Coverage Under Section 4	State-Level Cases	Successfully Challenged Practices ^{ab}
Mississippi	13	State	--	Method of election (7); Redistricting (5); Voter intimidation (1)
Montana	5	None	--	Method of election (4); Registration and early voting sites (1)
Nebraska	1	None	--	Method of election
New York	5	Partial (1 case)	1 (voting method)	Method of election (2); Redistricting (2); Voting method (1)
North Carolina	2	Partial (both cases)	--	Method of election (2)
North Dakota	2	None	--	Method of election (1); Polling place (1)
Ohio	2	None	--	Method of election (2)
Pennsylvania	1	None	--	Polling place
Rhode Island	1	None	1 (legis. redistricting)	Redistricting
South Carolina	3	State	--	Method of election (3)
South Dakota	7	Partial (1 case)	2 (legis. redistricting & method of election)	Early voting (1); Method of election (2); Redistricting (3); Voting qualifications (1)
Tennessee	3	None	1 (legis. redistricting)	Method of election (1); Redistricting (2)
Texas	82	State	1 (cong. redistricting)	Method of election (78); Redistricting (2); Unknown (2)
Wisconsin	2	None	2 (photo ID; legis. redistricting)	Photo ID requirement (1); Redistricting (1)
Wyoming	1	None	--	Method of election

a Bilingual Section 2 claims are included together with other claims under the VRA language assistance provisions (see Table 4).

b A few lawsuits involved more than one voting practice.

These cases were—by an overwhelming margin—disproportionately concentrated in the states that were covered by Section 4(b) of the VRA at the time of Shelby County v. Holder. Specifically, nearly three-quarters (123 of 171) of the successfully resolved Section 2 lawsuits were brought in jurisdictions that were covered under Section 4(b).⁵ By contrast, the 2000 census data showed that more than three-fourths of the nation's total population lived in non-covered areas, as did substantial majorities of the African-American (61 percent), Hispanic (68 percent), and Native American (75 percent) populations.⁶

Thus, one quarter of the nation's population resided in states or counties that prompted three-quarters of all successful Section 2 claims.

Approximately two-thirds (110) of the successful Section 2 suits were brought against jurisdictions in just four states: Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas. These included three state-level cases.

The Section 2 record in Texas is indisputably the worst of any state, both qualitatively and quantitatively. Texas alone accounted for about half of the successful Section 2 litigation since 1995.

The Supreme Court's 2006 decision in LULAC v. Perry,⁷ which found that Texas' congressional redistricting plan violated Section 2 of the VRA and bore the "mark of intentional discrimination that could give rise to an equal protection violation,"⁸ was but one instance where federal courts have found racial discrimination in a Texas statewide redistricting plan.⁹ As discussed in more detail in Chapter 5, after having lost the LULAC case before the Supreme Court, based upon the racial gerrymandering of Congressional District 23 in West Texas, the Texas legislature used its next opportunity for redistricting to do precisely the same thing in the State's 2011 congressional redistricting plan, which a three-judge court found to be intentionally discriminatory and retrogressive under Section 5.¹⁰

California provides an informative contrast to Texas. California has had relatively few successful Section 2 cases since 1995. However, California did have extensive litigation under the language assistance provisions of the VRA, which coincided with a rapidly growing minority population and no shortage of racial tensions. The relatively small number of Section 2 cases in California might be seen as an anomaly given these other factors, but that can be largely explained because California has a state law, the California Voting Rights Act (CVRA),¹¹ that has been used to change the method of electing city councils and school boards from at-large to single-member districts. The legal showing that plaintiffs must make under the CVRA is somewhat less demanding than under Section 2 of the VRA, but there is little doubt that California would have seen a much greater number of Section 2 cases without the CVRA.¹² Unfortunately, California is the only state that provides a statutory remedy for vote dilution in local governmental election systems.

II. PRECLEARANCE DENIALS UNDER SECTION 5 OF THE VRA

Preclearance was denied on 113 occasions since 1995. DOJ issued 109 objection letters including 108 objections to voting changes covered under Section 5 and one objection concerning a jurisdiction covered under Section 3(c).¹³ The U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia (DDC) denied preclearance on four occasions.¹⁴ These 113 preclearance denials are summarized in Table 3 and listed individually in the Supplemental Online Appendix.¹⁵

Table 3: Administrative and Judicial Preclearance Denials: January 1995 to June 2014^a

State	Coverage Under Section 4	Objection Letters ^b	DDC Denials ^{cd}	State-Level Denials	Types of Voting Changes Denied Preclearance ^e
TOTAL		109	4	21	20 Ballot access (non-bilingual) (10 state-level); 4 Bilingual (1 state-level); 7 Jurisdictions' annexations and de-annexations; 20 Methods of election/selection (1 state-level); 58 Redistricting (8 state-level)
Alabama	State	3	0	0	Annexation (2 cities); Redistricting (2)
Alaska	State	0	0	N/A
Arizona	State	2	0	1	Method of election (1); Redistricting (1 state-level)
California	Partial	1	0	0	Method of election
Florida	Partial	2	1	3	Absentee voting procedure (1 state-level); Redistricting (1 state-level); Reduction in early voting hours (1 state-level)
Georgia	State	14	0	2	Election date (1 state-level); Method of election (2); Polling place (1); Redistricting (8); Voter registration/candidate qualification (1); Voter registration procedure (1 state-level)
Louisiana	State	21	0	3	Annexation (5 objections for a city court); Precinct change procedure (2 state-level); Redistricting (13 with 1 state-level); Reduction in size of elected body (1)
Michigan	Partial	1	0	0	Voter registration location
Mississippi	State	15	0	3	Annexation (1 city); Candidate qualification (1 state-level); Election cancellation (2); Method of election (1 state-level); NVRA implementation plan (1 state-level); Polling place (1); Redistricting (9); Special election (1)
New York	Partial	2	0	0	Changing an elected position to appointed (1); Method of election (1)
North Carolina	Partial	6	0	1	Method of election (3); Redistricting criteria (1 state-level); Redistricting (2)
South Carolina	State	15	1	2	Annexation (1 city); Defunding of school district (1); Method of election (4); Photo ID requirement (1 state-level); Redistricting (8 with 1 state-level); Reduction in size of elected body (1)

State	Coverage Under Section 4	Objection Letters ^b	DDC Denials ^{cd}	State-Level Denials	Types of Voting Changes Denied Preclearance ^e
South Dakota	Partial and Section 3(c)	1	0	0	Redistricting (Section 3(c))
Texas	State	20	2	6	Redistricting (8 with 4 state-level); Redistricting criteria (1); Method of election (5); Annexation, de-annexation (2 cities); Registration procedure (1 state-level); Photo ID req't (1 state-level); Bilingual procedure (4 with 1 state-level); Candidate qualification (1 state-level); General election procedure (1); Polling place & early voting location (1); Voting method (1)
Virginia	State	6	0	0	Method of election (1); Polling place (1); Redistricting (5)

a Shelby County v. Holder did not affect the ability of the Attorney General to interpose objections to changes affecting voting in jurisdictions covered by federal court preclearance orders under Section 3(c) of the VRA, but no such objections have been issued since June 2013.

b Administrative objections in this table are counted by objection letter, as opposed to the total number of voting changes objected to. Judicial preclearance denials are similarly counted in this table by lawsuit, as opposed to the total number of voting changes denied preclearance. On multiple occasions, a single objection letter blocked multiple voting changes, and in one judicial preclearance action the D.D.C. denied preclearance to three Texas statewide redistricting plans. The counts of administrative objections and D.D.C. denials are therefore conservative. The objection figures also exclude six objections withdrawn by the Attorney General based upon changes in fact or law, and exclude one other objection after which the United States consented to judicial preclearance.

c DDC refers to the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

d Two administrative objections were followed by judicial preclearance denials in South Carolina and Texas (these two are included in this table in the counts of DDC denials, and not in the objection letters counts); two other judicial preclearance denials from Texas and Florida concerned voting changes for which no administrative preclearance decision was made.

e The counts in this column refer to specific voting changes denied preclearance, and thus will sum to a greater number than the counts of administrative objection letters and D.D.C. judgments that denied preclearance, per note b.

Texas and Louisiana vie for the worst Section 5 record. Texas had 22 total preclearance denials (20 administrative objections from the DOJ and two judicial preclearance denials), six of which were state-level in scope. Louisiana, a far smaller state, had a total of 21 preclearance denials, three of which were state-level in scope. Texas and Louisiana are followed closely by South Carolina (16 denials, two at the state level), Mississippi (15 denials, three at the state level), and Georgia (14 denials, two at the state level). These five states together accounted for four-fifths of the preclearance denials since 1995.

About a fifth (21) of the 113 total preclearance denials concerned voting changes at the state level—either statewide redistricting plans or state laws of general applicability. In the case of statewide redistricting plans, the concerns often focused upon a limited number of districts or geographic areas, but a preclearance denial for a statewide redistricting plan represented a determination that the plan would reduce or deliberately restrict minority representation across the state as a whole. The other state-level laws for which preclearance was denied restricted minority voters’ access to the ballot, and applied generally across an entire state and had the potential to affect the electoral opportunities of hundreds of thousands—or even millions—of minority citizens in the affected state.

These 113 preclearance denials blocked the implementation of 58 redistricting plans (eight of which were at the state level); 20 changes to jurisdictions’ methods of election/selection (one of which was at the state level); annexations or de-annexations involving seven jurisdictions; 20 restrictions on ballot access (10 at the state level); and four changes affecting bilingual procedures (one at the state-level).

Vote dilution was the issue in most preclearance denials (redistricting plans and method of election changes). At the same time, nearly one-quarter of all preclearance denials concerned discrimination in restricting ballot access. A number of these denials were at the state level, and included some of the most controversial recent voting law changes, such as photo identification requirements in Texas and South Carolina and cutbacks to early voting in Florida. It remains to be seen whether Section 2 will prove to be as effective as Section 5 in dealing with such problems. At a minimum, the loss of Section 5 has required private citizens and civil rights groups (joined by the DOJ) to assume the considerable burden of litigating Section 2 ballot access challenges in Texas and North Carolina.

Section 5 preclearance denials do not represent a nationwide sample of jurisdictions, but they are highly relevant to the national picture for a number of important reasons.

“As the redistricting process unfolded, we saw there would be no transparency. Changes in House districts [...] seemed motivated by partisan and racial gerrymandering,” testified Dierdre Payne of the League of Women Voters of Mississippi at the NCVR Mississippi state hearing.

First, Section 5 preclearance denials were documented determinations by either the Department of Justice or a three-judge federal court. Any administrative determination could be reviewed de novo by a three-judge court, meaning that, unlike typical litigation challenging federal agency decisions, the court began with a fresh record and was not required to defer to the DOJ’s fact findings or interpretation of the law. The DOJ therefore had to hew closely to how the D.C. Court would construe the law and the facts—assuming the role of a surrogate for the D.C. Court—when making administrative determinations.¹⁶

Second, vote dilution objections to redistricting plans and method of election changes rested in significant part upon findings that voting was racially polarized in the relevant areas. Racially polarized voting is a fact-based determination that does not rely upon generalized assumptions, and it is a key factor in Section 2 vote dilution litigation. These findings of racially polarized voting reflected considerable quantitative analysis by the Department of Justice, even if they were expressed in a summary form in objection letters. This “screening” for racially polarized voting provides an important reason to believe that many of the voting changes blocked by Section 5 preclearance denials would otherwise have been found to violate Section 2.

Third, the 113 preclearance denials in the covered jurisdictions since 1995 show that the Section 2 record in the covered jurisdictions—representing about three-fourths of all successful Section 2 cases—is a very conservative measure of the concentration of voting discrimination. Not every voting change that was blocked by a preclearance denial would have resulted in a successful Section 2 case, but there can be no doubt that Section 5 significantly reduced the need for Section 2 suits in the covered jurisdictions. This is true based solely upon the record of preclearance denials, and it is even more so the case if the deterrent effect Section 5 had on state and local decision-makers is properly credited, as discussed in Chapter 3.

III. LITIGATION UNDER THE LANGUAGE ASSISTANCE PROVISIONS OF THE VRA

Since 1995, there have been 48 cases involving successful claims relating to oral and/or written language assistance under the VRA. Additionally, there have been ten non-litigation settlements involving enforcement of the VRA’s language assistance provisions. Most of these matters were brought under Section 203, but some were brought under Section 4(f)(4), Section 4(e), Section 2, and Section 208. The vast majority of these cases were resolved by consent decrees or other settlements. These cases are summarized in Table 4 and are listed individually in the Supplemental Online Appendix.

Table 4: Successful Bilingual Election Cases: January 1995 to June 2014

State	(Count for the State) Subjurisdictions Involved	Covered Under Section 4	Affected Language Minority Group/ Language ^a & Case Count
TOTAL (16 States)	48 cases (2 state-level); 10 non-litigation settlements	13 cases and 2 non-litigation settlements dealt with jurisdictions covered under Section 4	1 Bengali 7 Chinese 1 Creole 1 Ilocano 1 Japanese 2 Keresan 2 Korean 1 Lakota 3 Navajo 46 Spanish 1 Tagalog 4 Vietnamese 1 Yup'ik
Alaska	(1) State	Yes	Yup'ik
Arizona	(1) Cochise County	Yes	Spanish
California	(10) Alameda County (two cases); Riverside County; San Benito County; San Diego County; Ventura County; and the Cities of Azusa, Paramount, Rosemead, and Walnut (all cities in Los Angeles County)	No	4 Chinese; 1 Korean; 8 Spanish; 1 Tagalog; 2 Vietnamese
Florida	(4) Miami-Dade County; Orange County; Osceola County; Volusia County	No	1 Creole; 3 Spanish
Hawaii	(1) State	No	1 Chinese; 1 Ilocano; 1 Japanese
Illinois	(1) Kane County	No	Spanish
Massachusetts	(4) City of Boston; City of Lawrence; City of Springfield; City of Worcester (non-litigation)	No	1 Chinese; 4 Spanish; 1 Vietnamese
Nebraska	(1) Colfax County	No	Spanish
New Jersey	(2) Passaic County and City of Passaic; Salem County and Penns Grove	No	2 Spanish
New Mexico	(3) Bernalillo County; Cibola County; Sandoval County	No	1 Keresan; 3 Navajo
New York	(13) Orange County; Suffolk County; Westchester County; New York City (Kings, New York, & Queens Counties); New York City (Queens County); Dutchess, Montgomery, Putnam, Rockland, Schenectady, Sullivan, & Ulster Counties (separate non-litigation agreements with State AG); Brentwood Union Free School District	One case involved a covered jurisdiction	1 Bengali; 1 Chinese; 1 Korean; 11 Spanish

State	(Count for the State) Subjurisdictions Involved	Covered Under Section 4	Affected Language Minority Group/ Language ^a & Case Count
Ohio	(2) Cuyahoga County; Lorain County	No	2 Spanish
Pennsylvania	(2) Berks County; Philadelphia County	No	2 Spanish
South Dakota	(1) Shannon County (non-litigation settlement)	Yes	Lakota
Texas	(11) Brazos County; Ector County; Fort Bend County; Galveston County; Hale County; Harris County; City of Earth (Lamb County); Littlefield Independent School District (ISD); Post ISD; Seagraves ISD; Smyer ISD	Yes	10 Spanish; 1 Vietnamese
Washington	(1) Yakima County	No	Spanish

a Some cases involved more than one language for which voting assistance was required in addition to English.

Sections 203, 4(f)(4) and 4(e) of the VRA place specific responsibilities upon election administrators to provide the effective written and oral assistance that is required for a segment of the language minority population.¹⁷ These responsibilities are widely understood by the affected jurisdictions. The DOJ individually notifies each political subdivision that comes under Section 203 coverage of its responsibilities and also provides guidance and offers DOJ's assistance.¹⁸ Thus, there is little reason to provide the "benefit of the doubt" to election administrators in Section 203 covered areas who fail to provide bilingual assistance that is specifically required by federal law. Instead, such noncompliance is better understood as involving a choice to evade those responsibilities for as long as possible, and it is fair to count such cases as evidence of voting discrimination.

Most of the 48 cases and ten non-litigation settlements identified in Table 4 involving minority language assistance issues did not arise in jurisdictions covered under Section 4(b) of the VRA. However, 15 did involve Section 4(b) jurisdictions: 11 in Texas and one each in Alaska, Arizona, New York, and South Dakota. On this measure Texas once again stands out as having the worst record among the Section 4(b) covered states.

Apart from the states covered by Section 4(b), the most successful cases, a total of 13, were in New York. These included two cases involving New York City, 10 concerning counties (including seven non-litigation settlements initiated by the New York Attorney General), and one against a school district. California had 10, including six cases against counties (Alameda being sued twice by DOJ) and four cases against municipalities within Los Angeles County.

Spanish was the language most often involved in these cases (46 of the 58). Asian languages were involved in 10 cases; Native American languages in four cases; an Alaskan Native language in one case; and Creole in one case.

These cases typically involved two basic issues: the translation of written materials and the availability of oral assistance to language minority voters. Some cases also involved claims that language minority voters were subjected to hostile treatment by poll workers and election officials.

In some of these cases no written materials were translated, while in other cases there were significant gaps in the types of documents that were translated, or problems with quality of the translations. Fortunately, this is a relatively straightforward form of noncompliance to remedy, once there is an enforceable commitment to do so.

The failure to provide adequate oral assistance was most typically the more challenging issue in these cases. The Department of Justice's policy is that targeting oral assistance to precincts with a demonstrated need is the most effective means of complying with the language minority requirements.¹⁹ However, many jurisdictions that were sued lacked any program to identify the need for bilingual assistance in the first place, or to deploy competent bilingual poll workers in appropriate numbers to appropriate locations. The remedies for these problems typically included the designation of a bilingual program manager, who is made responsible for conducting outreach to the community to identify those areas where assistance is needed, recruiting bilingual poll workers, and supervising their deployment.

In a number of these cases brought outside the Section 4(b) covered jurisdictions, the Department of Justice and the defendant jurisdiction agreed to the court-ordered certification of the jurisdiction for federal observer coverage pursuant to Section 3(a) of the VRA. Federal observers were critically important to monitor the quality of translations being provided at the polling places and to identify occasions upon which minority voters were treated in a hostile or discriminatory manner.

One additional area of VRA noncompliance that came to light in some of these cases was poll workers' refusal to allow language minority voters to their assistance of choice in the polling place, including friends or family members. Under Section 208 of the VRA, voters are generally entitled to receive assistance from the person of their choice.²⁰ Compliance with Section 208 is particularly important in those jurisdictions that are not required to provide translated written materials. It is also important to voters who speak a language for which Section 203 does not require their jurisdiction to provide language assistance.

“I am a registered voter. I have a valid state ID. I speak reasonably well. I present myself reasonably well, and I got challenged for early voting. [...] my address was correct. It matched my ID. And the woman said to me, ‘Well, are you sure this is all correct?’”

–Testimony from Cynthia Spooner, former sworn deputy voter registrar and election precinct judge, about her experience voting in Harris County, Texas. (Texas NCVR hearing)

CHAPTER 3

What Has Been Lost as a Result of Shelby County v. Holder

This chapter provides an overview of the remarkable and enormous impact Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act (VRA) has had on the opportunity of minority citizens to participate in our Nation's political processes. Thus, this chapter provides insight into what has been lost as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in Shelby County v. Holder. This chapter also discusses Shelby County's effect on the Department of Justice (DOJ)'s federal observer authority under Section 8 of the VRA.

I. SHELBY COUNTY AND SECTION 5'S IMPACT ON MINORITY ELECTORAL OPPORTUNITY

The termination of Section 5 preclearance is having and will continue to have an immense impact on minority voting rights. As discussed in Chapter 1, Section 5 was focused on those states and localities with two defining characteristics: first, these jurisdictions had a long and pervasive history of voting discrimination; and second, these jurisdictions evidenced an ongoing pattern of voting discrimination after they became covered under Section 5. In other words, Section 5 was focused on the areas of the country where voting discrimination had been and continues to be most prevalent.

From 1965 until June 25, 2013 when Shelby County was handed down, Section 5 objections by DOJ and preclearance denials by the federal district court in Washington, D.C. prevented thousands of discriminatory voting changes from being implemented. Moreover, covered jurisdictions left other potentially discriminatory practices on the drawing board as a result of Section 5's deterrent effect. And the flow of Section 5 submissions to DOJ enabled DOJ, minority voters, and civil rights advocates to monitor in real time the status of voting practices in the areas where voting discrimination has most often occurred.

After Shelby County, Section 2 of the VRA remains as a nationwide prohibition on voting discrimination. While Section 2 provides important and considerable safeguards against discrimination, it does not provide the same level of protection that Section 5 afforded minority voters.

Section 5 Preclearance Denials

By any measure, Section 5 was responsible for preventing a very large amount of voting discrimination. From 1965 to 2013, DOJ issued approximately 1,000 determination letters denying preclearance for over 3,000 voting changes.¹ This included objections to over 500 redistricting plans and nearly 800 election method changes (such as the adoption of at-large election systems and the addition of majority-vote and numbered-post requirements to existing at-large systems).² Much of this activity occurred between 1982 (when Congress enacted the penultimate reauthorization of Section 5) and 2006 (when the last reauthorization occurred); in that time period approximately 700 separate objections were interposed involving over 2,000 voting changes, including objections to approximately 400 redistricting plans and another 400 election method changes.³

Each objection, by itself, typically benefited thousands of minority voters, and many objections affected tens of thousands, hundreds of thousands, or even (for objections to statewide changes) millions of minority voters. It would have required an immense investment of public and private resources to have accomplished this through the filing of individual lawsuits.

The application of Section 5 to Texas is illustrative. When Section 5 coverage began in 1975, the Attorney General interposed objections (in December 1975 and January 1976) to several state laws, including one that would have required all registered voters in the State to re-register in order to continue to be eligible to vote and another that sought to redraw the districts for the State House of Representatives.⁴ When Section 5 coverage was nearing its end, the federal court in Washington, D.C. issued decisions in August 2012 denying preclearance to Texas' photo identification (ID) requirement for in-person voting,⁵ and the State's redistricting plans for Congress, the State House of Representatives, and the State Senate (finding that two of the plans were intentionally discriminatory and that the third showed signs of discriminatory intent).⁶ In the years in between, DOJ interposed scores of objections to voting changes adopted by Texas and by its counties, cities, school districts, and special districts, particularly to discriminatory methods of election and redistricting plans.⁷

Section 5's Deterrent Effect: South Carolina's Photo ID Law and North Carolina's Voting Restrictions

Section 5's impact on minority electoral opportunity was not limited to the hundreds of preclearance denials: Section 5 also deterred the enactment of many other potentially discriminatory changes. South Carolina's adoption of a photo ID law in 2011, and the State's subsequent development of administrative rules for implementing that law, provides a good illustration of this preventative power.

Prior to 2011, South Carolina had a voter ID requirement for in-person voting but not a photo ID requirement. Voters were required to present either their voter registration card (automatically distributed to all registered voters) or a South Carolina driver's license or state ID card. The 2011 law (known as R54) deleted reference to the registration card as a polling place ID, and specified a limited set of photo IDs instead (a South Carolina driver's license or state ID card, passport, military ID, or a new photo registration card that could be obtained only by visiting a county office). The 2011 law also exempted voters from having to present photo ID if the voter had encountered a "reasonable impediment" to obtaining that ID.⁸

South Carolina sought preclearance from DOJ, and in December 2011 the Department objected.⁹ DOJ explained in its determination letter that the data presented by the State indicated that African-American voters were significantly less likely than white voters to have the photo ID specified by the 2011 law, and that the law's "reasonable impediment" exemption did not mitigate the negative effects of changing to a photo ID requirement because it was unclear what the exemption covered.

South Carolina then sought preclearance from the federal court in Washington, D.C. After trial, the district court agreed that African-American voters were less likely to possess photo ID than white voters, and that voters would encounter significant burdens in attempting to obtain a photo ID.¹⁰ However, South Carolina clarified and significantly expanded the scope of the "reasonable impediment" exemption while the litigation was ongoing. As a result, the district court found that the exemption would "permit voting by registered voters who have the non-photo voter registration card [used for voting under the pre-2011 law], so long as the voter states the reason for not having obtained a photo ID,"¹¹ which could be "any reason" that was not untrue.¹² Thus, the court concluded that "Act R54 will deny no voters the ability to vote and have their votes counted if they have the non-photo voter registration card..."¹³

Nikkey Finney, an award-winning American poet and South Carolina resident urged attendees to "Please get involved, don't be silent."

Based principally upon the State's inclusion of the "reasonable impediment" provision in the 2011 law and the State's subsequent interpretation of what it would allow, the district court precleared the 2011 law for elections held after 2012.¹⁴ However, the court denied the State's request to preclear the law for use in the November 2012 election because the State did not have sufficient time to properly implement the "reasonable impediment" provision before the election, and thus mitigate the otherwise retrogressive effect of the law.¹⁵

U.S. District Judge Bates, joined by District Judge Kollar-Kotelly, wrote separately to underscore the central role Section 5 played in the process that led to the State seeking to implement a nondiscriminatory, rather than a discriminatory, photo ID law:

[O]ne cannot doubt the vital function that Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act has played here. Without the review process under the Voting Rights Act, South Carolina’s voter photo ID law certainly would have been more restrictive. Several legislators have commented that they were seeking to structure a law that could be precleared... The key ameliorative provisions were added during that legislative process and were shaped by the need for pre-clearance. And the evolving interpretations of these key provisions of Act R54, particularly the reasonable impediment provision, subsequently presented to this Court were driven by South Carolina officials’ efforts to satisfy the requirements of the Voting Rights Act...

The Section 5 process here did not force South Carolina to jump through unnecessary hoops. Rather, the history of Act R54 demonstrates the continuing utility of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act in deterring problematic, and hence encouraging nondiscriminatory, changes in state and local voting laws.¹⁶

In contrast, the situation in North Carolina, discussed in more detail later in this chapter, illustrates what could occur now that Section 5 deterrence does not play a role in decision making. In 2013, as Shelby County was pending before the Supreme Court, the North Carolina General Assembly was considering a photo ID bill whose future was uncertain. After the Shelby County decision, the General Assembly immediately moved to enact not only a photo ID requirement but a host of other voting restrictions, including a reduction in early voting, a prohibition on same-day voter registration as part of early voting, a prohibition on pre-registration of 16 and 17 year olds, and a prohibition on counting ballots cast in the correct county but the wrong precinct.

Section 5 and Transparency

An important but less obvious aspect of Section 5 was that it provided a comprehensive, up-to-date inventory of voting changes in the covered jurisdictions. Each week, DOJ published a notice (available on its website) that listed all new Section 5 submissions, identifying the affected jurisdiction and the types of voting changes being submitted.

Accordingly, DOJ, citizens residing in the covered jurisdictions, and civil rights advocates could track the current status of election practices in these areas, make informed evaluations of what was happening, and then respond as appropriate. There is no other source for this information since no other federal law requires states or localities to identify or report voting changes, and it does not appear that any state requires this either.

With the Shelby County decision and the loss of this information, it is now less likely that minority voters will learn of discriminatory voting changes before implementation is imminent or even underway. For example, if a polling place is moved or closed in a discriminatory manner, minority voters might not find this out until it is too late before an election to protest to election officials or challenge the change in court.

In testimony to the NCVR, Alabama State Senator Hank Sanders called Alabama's new photo ID law "the literacy test of the 21st century." Sanders noted that the law was enacted in 2011, but the state avoided seeking Section 5 preclearance because it expected DOJ would object. After Shelby County, photo ID is now being implemented in the State.

Changes Blocked by Section 5 that Now Are Being Implemented

Augusta-Richmond, Georgia

The consolidated city and county of Augusta-Richmond, Georgia is one location where a voting change blocked by Section 5 is now being implemented in the aftermath of Shelby County. In 2012, the Georgia General Assembly amended a statewide law so as to move the election date for Augusta-Richmond from November of even-numbered years to the date in even-numbered years when county primary elections are conducted. On December 21, 2012, DOJ interposed a Section 5 objection.¹⁷

DOJ determined that the change in the election date would have a retrogressive effect on minority voters and that the State had not carried its burden of showing the absence of a discriminatory purpose. With regard to effect, the Department reviewed turnout data for Augusta-Richmond for county primary elections and November elections, and found that while both African Americans and whites turned out at a lower rate on the primary date, the drop-off for African-American voters had been substantially larger. With regard to purpose, the Department found that the reasons offered for the change were pretextual and that Augusta-Richmond's governing board had actually opposed the change. DOJ further noted that it had previously interposed a Section 5 objection to a similar election-date change for Augusta-Richmond.^{17a} DOJ also found it particularly significant that African Americans constitute a slight majority of the jurisdiction's voting age population and thus, in the context of racially polarized voting, "electoral outcomes are particularly dependent on voter turnout."¹⁸

In 2014, with Section 5 no longer in effect, the Augusta-Richmond government prepared to hold its election on the county primary date. African-American residents sued claiming that Shelby County only applied prospectively, and that Section 5 therefore continued to prevent the date change from being implemented.^{18a} A federal district court disagreed,¹⁹ and the election was held on the county primary date.²⁰ African-American candidates did quite well in the first election, allaying immediate concerns about the effect of this change. However, time will tell whether future elections are more in line with the historical voter turnout patterns. More generally, the federal court's decision appears to have removed any lingering doubt about the retroactive applicability of the Shelby County decision to post-2006 preclearance denials.

Beaumont Independent School District, Texas

Another such example involves the Beaumont Independent School District (ISD) in Texas. The events involving the ISD also illustrate how advances made in recent years may now be reversed after Shelby County.

In 1985, a federal court in a school district desegregation case ordered the ISD to change from a system of five districts and two at-large seats ("5-2") to a system of seven single-member districts. In 2011, however, the ISD held an initiative election in which voters authorized the ISD to return to the 5-2 system. The change back to 5-2 was submitted for preclearance and, on December 21, 2012, DOJ interposed a Section 5 objection to the change.²¹

In its objection letter, the Department explained that a 5-2 system would lead to a retrogression in African-American electoral opportunity. Under the pre-existing system of seven districts, African Americans had the opportunity (in the context of racially polarized voting in ISD elections) to elect a majority of the board members; under the 5-2 system, DOJ's analysis showed that minority voters would have the opportunity to elect only three of the seven board members (African Americans would likely have an electoral opportunity in three of the new five districts but not in elections for the at-large seats).^{21a} DOJ also found "overwhelming evidence that both the campaign leading to the [2011 initiative] election as well as the issue itself carried racial overtones with the genesis of the change and virtually all of its support coming from white residents."²²

With the demise of Section 5, the ISD is once again planning to implement the 5-2 system. The 5-2 system is being challenged in a Section 2 lawsuit.²³

Texas photo ID requirement

Litigation regarding Texas' photo ID law is discussed in detail in Chapter 6. This requirement was enacted in 2011, but because Section 5 preclearance was denied (first by DOJ and then by the court in Washington, D.C.) it was not implemented in the 2012 elections. After Shelby County, Texas has begun implementation while Section 2 lawsuits challenging the law are moving forward.

Why Section 2 Does Not Adequately Compensate for Section 5's loss

After Shelby County, case-by-case litigation is now the only tool for challenging discriminatory voting changes. Section 2 is the principal federal law that may be used for this purpose, although litigation also may be brought under Sections 4(e) and 203 of the VRA to challenge language-assistance restrictions.

As discussed in Chapter 1, Congress determined in 1965 that case-by-case litigation is inadequate to address ongoing voting discrimination in the areas of the country where this discrimination has been most prevalent, i.e., the areas identified by the Section 4 coverage formula. In 2006, Congress again considered this question and, in deciding that Section 5 is still needed, reaffirmed that case-by-case litigation is “ineffective to protect the rights of minority voters” in the specially covered areas.²⁴

While Section 2 does offer a potentially powerful remedy, there are a number of significant difficulties inherent to it, and Section 2 clearly does not afford the same level of protection to minority voters that Section 5 did. To paraphrase Chief Justice Warren’s observation in South Carolina v. Katzenbach (quoted in Chapter 1), the Shelby County decision has essentially shifted the advantage of time and inertia back to the perpetrators of voting discrimination.

Voting Rights Attorney Robert Rubin testified about the impact of the loss of Section 5 at the California NCVR hearing. “Without Section 5,” stated Rubin, “it would be extremely difficult to challenge discriminatory voting changes before these go into effect.” PHOTO CREDIT: ANDRIA LO

A key distinction between the Section 2 and Section 5 remedies is the nature of the review process. Preclearance reviews were essentially automatic (since jurisdictions were required to submit all voting changes, and generally had become accustomed to doing so by the time Shelby County was decided). In addition, preclearance was largely handled by DOJ through an administrative process that did not involve litigation. In order to bring a Section 2 challenge, on the other hand, the minority community or DOJ must first become aware of the voting practice in question. The purpose and effect of the change must then be investigated and analyzed, and minority plaintiffs or DOJ must have the resources needed to pursue litigation.

Section 2 litigation is often complex and can be slow, time-consuming, and expensive. For example, as noted by the D.C. Circuit when it decided Shelby County, the legislative history for the 2006 reauthorization included “a Federal Judicial Center study finding that voting rights cases require nearly four times more work than an average district court case and rank as the fifth most work-intensive of the sixty-three types of cases analyzed.”²⁵ That court also noted that Congress heard testimony “from witnesses who explained that ‘it is incredibly difficult for minority voters to pull together the resources needed’ to pursue a section 2 lawsuit, particularly at the local level and in rural communities.”²⁶

A second important distinction between Sections 2 and 5 is that the covered jurisdictions had the burden of proof in Section 5 preclearance reviews whereas minority plaintiffs and DOJ have the burden of proof in Section 2 cases. It is generally understood that the party bearing the burden of proof faces a higher level of difficulty in prevailing.

Third, Section 5 required pre-implementation review of voting changes but, when a Section 2 case is filed, the jurisdiction is free to implement the disputed voting change while the litigation is ongoing, unless plaintiffs are able to obtain a preliminary injunction. Thus (as noted above), Texas has enforced its photo ID requirement in several elections in 2013 and 2014 although the requirement is being litigated under Section 2. Texas did not implement the requirement before Shelby County because preclearance had not been granted.

Obtaining a preliminary injunction in a Section 2 case is burdensome, challenging, and uncertain, even in the most meritorious cases. Moving for such relief requires plaintiffs to bear the expense of litigation, and to delay requesting relief until the evidence is sufficiently developed. In addition, in order to obtain a preliminary injunction, plaintiffs often must demonstrate that they have a substantial likelihood of prevailing at trial, and even with that, they must also satisfy several other conditions in order for an injunction to be granted.²⁷ Furthermore, obtaining preliminary relief may require plaintiffs to overcome a judge’s disinclination to grant an injunction before the court has been able to evaluate all the relevant information at trial.²⁸ The reluctance of federal courts to delay a scheduled election or order an interim remedy into place via a preliminary injunction is particularly impactful as that is the only realistic way to stop some changes (such as redistricting) where the pre-existing practice can no longer be used.

The Section 2 suit that was litigated against Charleston County, South Carolina's at-large election system illustrates the difficulty of obtaining preliminary relief in a voting case. After filing suit in January 2001, DOJ moved for a preliminary injunction in advance of the June 2002 primary for the County Council, and the district court denied the request.²⁹ DOJ then moved for partial summary judgment, and in July 2002 the court found that the Department had proven all three of the Gingles preconditions for demonstrating a Section 2 violation;³⁰ the court thus concluded that the central elements of a Section 2 violation were present, and this indicated that it was highly likely the Department would prevail at trial. Yet, when DOJ moved again for a preliminary injunction in advance of the November 2002 general election, the court again refused to grant relief.³¹ In 2003, the district court ruled in favor of DOJ after trial,³² and in 2004 the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed that ruling.³³

This Charleston County example also highlights how Section 2 and Section 5 differ. In 2003, after the district court's ruling that the County Council's at-large system violated Section 2, the county school district adopted the same at-large method. DOJ initially responded by requesting additional information, and then interposed a Section 5 objection less than nine months after the initial submission. Thus, this change was blocked by Section 5 before it could be implemented and without years of costly litigation.³⁴

Lastly, the Section 5 "effect" standard was specifically aimed at preventing backsliding (retrogression), whereas the results standard employed by Section 2 focuses on equal electoral opportunity. The Section 2 standard is broader in one sense, in that it allows plaintiffs to challenge practices that are discriminatory but not retrogressive. On the other hand, the results standard may require a more complex analysis to stop retrogressive changes than did the relatively straightforward Section 5 standard.

II. SHELBY COUNTY AND THE FEDERAL OBSERVER PROGRAM

Since 1965, federal observers have played a key role in voting rights enforcement. As discussed in Chapter 6, the presence of federal observers may deter misconduct by election officials and others at the polls. Furthermore, if problems do arise on Election Day when observers are present, the observers are required to promptly inform DOJ of what is happening so that DOJ can immediately contact the responsible election officials to attempt to remedy the situation. In addition, if problems identified by observers are not resolved and are significant and ongoing, the post-election written reports provided by the observers can provide the basis for DOJ litigation.

As discussed in Chapter 1, DOJ's principal authority for sending observers was provided by Section 8, which authorizes observers in areas covered under Section 4, but DOJ's continuing ability to rely upon that section is in doubt because of Shelby County. The Department has not sent observers to any of the Section 4 areas since the Supreme Court's decision and DOJ apparently has concluded that the decision effectively has terminated the Section 8 observer program.

After Shelby County, DOJ still has the authority to send observers to jurisdictions designated by federal courts that made use of the Section 3(a) remedy in voting rights litigation (where those remedies have not expired). The Section 3(a) designations have been ordered in lawsuits brought by DOJ to enforce the VRA's language assistance requirements.

Case Spotlight

North Carolina 2013: The Post-Shelby World in a Microcosm

2000 - 2010, North Carolina is a Leader in Increasing Voter Participation: Reforms enacted in North Carolina led to increasing voter participation rates in North Carolina, making the state a model for the country in creating a voting system that brought new voters into the process. For example, in 2001 the state implemented early voting³⁵ followed by the implementation of same-day voter registration in 2007.³⁶ In 2009, the legislature passed a bill that allowed for pre-registration of 16 and 17 year-olds with overwhelming bi-partisan support.³⁷

During this time, the voter participation percentage in North Carolina increased steadily from 54.2 percent in the 2000 presidential election to 60.4 percent in the 2004 presidential election.³⁸ The state witnessed another increase in voter participation in the 2008 presidential election when the rate increased to 69.6 percent. Although the voter participation decreased slightly during the 2012 presidential election (68.3 percent) the voter participation rate of African Americans in North Carolina was the highest of any state at 70.2 percent.³⁹

And Then Shelby County Came Down...: The decision in Shelby County v. Holder in 2013 opened the door for a new legislature to completely reverse course, passing a bill that eliminated much of the voting rights progress made over the prior decade.⁴⁰ The process behind the turnaround and the passage of the most comprehensively restrictive law in the country makes North Carolina the perfect case study for what the Shelby decision means.

Before Shelby County, only a voter identification bill was being contemplated in North Carolina, and, Speaker Thom Tillis assured voters that the process of drafting would be a “deliberative, responsible and interactive approach” and “slow walk...through the House.”⁴¹ Additionally, House Elections Committee Chairman David Lewis called for open negotiations in the legislative process for a stand-alone voter ID bill. The original H.B. 589 was indeed filed as a stand-alone voter ID bill that allowed for a wide range of acceptable identification, including student and employee IDs.⁴² It was introduced on April 4, 2013 and passed the House on April 24, 2013. At that point, the 16 page bill was moved from the North Carolina State House to the North Carolina Senate.

However, no action would be taken for months—in fact, until one month after the decision in Shelby County. The reason for the delay was no secret: according to Senator Tom Apodaca, Chair of the Senate Elections Committee, the Senate did not want “the legal headaches of having to go through pre-clearance [under the Voting Rights Act] if it wasn’t necessary and having to determine which portions of the proposal would be subject to federal scrutiny.”⁴³

Accordingly, on July 23, 2013, two days before the end of the legislative session, the Senate revealed a new, heavily amended H.B. 589. The bill had evolved from a stand-alone voter ID

bill to an omnibus bill, packed with multiple voting restrictions. The Senate version, now 56 pages long, reduced early voting by one week, eliminated Sunday voting, eliminated same day registration, prohibited the counting of out-of-precinct provisional ballots and eliminated pre-registration for 16-17 year olds.⁴⁴ Additionally, the new bill limited the forms of acceptable photo ID to (1) a North Carolina driver's license; (2) a special (non-operator's) ID issued by the North Carolina DMV; (3) a U.S. passport; (4) military ID; (5) veteran's ID; (6) a tribal ID (from a federally or state-recognized tribe); and (7) a driver's license or non-operator ID issued by another state but only if the voter had registered within 90 days of the election.⁴⁵

During hastily held hearings in the Senate, opponents of the bill both testified and produced evidence that the restrictive changes would have a damaging effect on African American voters. Despite the concerns raised by legislators opposed to the new omnibus bill, the new H.B. 589 passed the Senate and the House without a single supporting vote from an African American legislator.⁴⁶ It was signed into law by Governor McCrory on August 12, 2013.⁴⁷

The Upshot: Without Section 5 in its way, the North Carolina legislature was able to pass measures that clearly threatened, and indeed were likely designed, to reverse a historic rise in voter engagement in one fell swoop, without having to provide any justification for the measures or any meaningful review. The new law is now being challenged in Section 2 litigation, and may not be fully addressed until after the 2014 election.

PHOTO CREDIT: ERIC PRESTON

“As elections administrator for Guilford County for 25 years, I never found a compelling public interest that justified the voter ID requirements of House Bill 589 nor any of the other rollbacks of voting opportunities that had been granted voters during the past 20 years...”

–Testimony from George Gilbert, economist and former director of elections for Guilford County, NC at the NCVR North Carolina hearing

Without Section 5 in its way, the North Carolina legislature was able to pass measures that clearly threatened, and indeed were likely designed, to reverse a historic rise in voter engagement in one fell swoop, without having to provide any justification for the measures or any meaningful review. The new law is now being challenged in Section 2 litigation, and may not be fully addressed until after the 2014 election.

Kari Stellanberger
Executive Director, American Union

CHAPTER 4

Impact of Discrimination on Protected Groups

African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans are the four groups that Congress primarily (though not exclusively) has sought to protect in the Voting Rights Act (VRA).¹ In 1965, Congress made extensive findings regarding how tests and devices, such as literacy tests and other laws and procedures, had been used to discriminate against African Americans. In 1975, Congress expanded the Voting Rights Act to cover language minorities, in particular Latino, Native-American, and Asian-American voting age citizens because of discrimination they had faced.² Included was the determination that the use of English-only elections in jurisdictions where more than 5 percent of the voting age citizens were of a single language minority constituted a test or device because it effectively excluded those citizens from participating in the electoral process.

As detailed below, voting discrimination affecting African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans is long-standing and persistent, has taken many forms, and continues today. There is a serious concern that the remaining legal remedies after the Shelby County v. Holder decision will not be adequate to deter new discriminatory voting laws and practices from being enacted and implemented.

I. AFRICAN AMERICANS

Since the Civil War, African Americans have been targeted through discriminatory laws and practices that have resulted in exclusion from the democratic process. Particularly in Southern states, the response to African-American political participation has often been the implementation of new mechanisms for disenfranchisement. This legacy of voting discrimination, like discrimination against African Americans in social and economic arenas, poses an ongoing threat to African-American inclusion in the political process. Though protection under the Voting Rights Act has produced significant gains, African Americans are continually subjected to new threats to their full enfranchisement. The ongoing protection of the Voting Rights Act is vital to the inclusion of this community.

LEFT: Aida Macedo, former Field Manager for the Election Protection Legal Committee, testified at the NCVR hearing in San Francisco about voter intimidation of Latino voters at the polls in Orange Cove, CA in 2012.

PHOTO CREDIT: ANDRIA LO

History and Background

The passage of the VRA is often referred to as the Second Reconstruction. The first Reconstruction, as referenced in Chapter 1, followed the Civil War; in the second, the civil rights movement confronted and fought a system of Jim Crow laws that permeated the country, particularly in the South.

As noted in the 2006 National Commission on the Voting Rights Act report,³

Following the Civil War, passage of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments gave to black males a constitutional right to vote and take part in the civic life of the nation, and they took full advantage of that right during the Reconstruction period. Large numbers of African Americans were elected in the early years of the First Reconstruction, when they composed 15 percent of all southern officeholders. However, following the Compromise of 1877, the Republicans agreed to refrain from using federal troops to protect black voting rights in the South, and white Democrats in that region embarked on a generation-long effort both to disfranchise blacks and remove them from office ... In addition to violence and fraud, all manner of legal devices were used to keep blacks, as well as various other minorities, from casting a ballot, including the poll tax, the literacy test, the grandfather clause, the good-character test, the understanding test, and the white primary.⁴

For nearly 100 years, Southern states used the law and force to continually and systematically exclude African-American citizens from registering and voting on a massive scale.⁵ In 1890, Mississippi held the first constitutional convention for the purpose of altering the state's suffrage laws to remove blacks from political life. These new provisions included a sharp increase in the duration of residency requirements, the adoption of a poll tax, and the imposition of a literacy test.⁶ Other Southern states followed suit and began a series of state constitutional or statutory changes that instituted, in varying forms and combinations, poll taxes, literacy tests, secret ballot laws, lengthy residency requirements, complex voter registration systems, multiple voting-box arrangements, and white-only primaries. These practices systematically intimidated and precluded African Americans in the South from voting and registering to vote. During this period, literacy tests continued to be used in six of the 11 ex-Confederate states. Louisiana blocked African-American voters arbitrarily deemed to have "bad character" from voting, and African-American voters in Alabama were barred from voting unless a white citizen would "vouch" for them.⁷

The mass exclusionary tactics employed in the South during the post-Reconstruction era were successful in blocking African Americans from registering and voting. In Mississippi, African-American voter turnout, which had exceeded 70 percent in the 1870s, dropped to 15 percent by the early 20th century. While more than 130,000 African Americans were registered to vote in Louisiana in 1896, that number dropped to 1,342 by 1904.⁸ State actors devised obstacle after obstacle aimed at preventing political participation by African Americans. Legal victories eliminated one practice, and another would pop up in its place to achieve the same result of exclusion.⁹ For example, in 1927, 1944, and 1953, the Supreme Court struck down three different versions of the “white primary” in Texas “because it kept reappearing in slightly modified form after each ruling.”¹⁰ Unable to keep up with the pace of tactics used by Southern states to curb registration and turnout, federal intervention and private litigation proved ineffective. The VRA was enacted to confront this long-standing, persistent, and all-encompassing voting discrimination against African Americans.

Following the passage of the VRA, African-American voter registration and turnout increased significantly. It is estimated that more than one million new African-American voters were registered between 1964 and 1972.¹¹ In the seven covered or partially covered Southern states, African-American registration increased from 29.3 percent to 56.6 percent between the enactment of the VRA in August 1965 and January 1972.¹² In Mississippi alone, African-American voter registration rates rose from 6.7 percent to 59.8 percent.¹³ In fact, this increase was relatively immediate, a testament both to the much-needed protections provided by the VRA and the devastating effects of prior disenfranchisement. The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights found that, by 1968, African-American voter registration was over 50 percent in several Southern states; prior to the passage of the Act, only Florida, Tennessee, and Texas recorded African-American registration at those levels.¹⁴

Wade Henderson, Executive Director of the Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights and guest commissioner, received testimony at the NCVR Ohio regional hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: JIMMY MCEACHERN

Yet, the large successes of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 in protecting the right to register and vote prompted officials to continue targeting African American voting strength through dilutive tactics. At-large elections were seen as an especially effective way to prevent African-American candidates from getting elected, as were municipal annexations of predominantly white suburbs, and reapportionment and redistricting statutes.¹⁵ A landmark decision by the Supreme Court in Allen v. State Board of Elections held that these and other electoral modifications were subject to preclearance under Section 5 of the Act.¹⁶

Still, Section 5 alone was not sufficient to eliminate certain discriminatory voting mechanisms in the South during the 1970s. Some jurisdictions implementing these tactics remained uncovered, and even in covered jurisdictions citizens were unable to challenge long-standing dilutive practices unless and until changes were proposed.¹⁷ In addition, jurisdictions that passed laws diluting the African-American vote often were noncompliant and did not submit these changes to the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) or the district court for preclearance, as required by the VRA.¹⁸ Many such discriminatory practices were thus implemented and left unchallenged in the Southern states.

As jurisdictions adopted a range of ingenious dilutive tactics, Congress recognized that the VRA needed to be extended and strengthened. As a result of the 1982 adoption of the results standard under Section 2, voting rights litigation changed dramatically nationwide. Section 2 has since been widely used as a means to combat racial vote dilution and has been critically important for the success of minority candidates at the local level.¹⁹ The 1980s saw an explosion in the number of these cases.²⁰ “The number of Section 2 cases filed between 1982 and 1989 dwarfed the number of constitutional challenges brought during the 1970s,” with one study finding “over 150 Section 2 challenges to municipal elections in the eight states that were covered by Section 5 during this time period alone.²¹ Moreover, municipal data from these states” show that “[n]early 65 percent of all changes from at-large elections were attributable to litigation or settlements resulting from litigation.”²²

In some instances, officials made little effort to disguise their efforts to adopt racially discriminatory districting schemes despite the existence of Section 2. Governor Dave Treen of Louisiana proposed three districting schemes that would have left Orleans Parish, which was 55 percent African American by 1980, without a single majority African-American congressional district.²³

It was not until after a federal court rejected Treen’s proposal and a new redistricting plan was adopted that Louisiana was able to elect its first African-American congressional representative since Reconstruction.²⁴

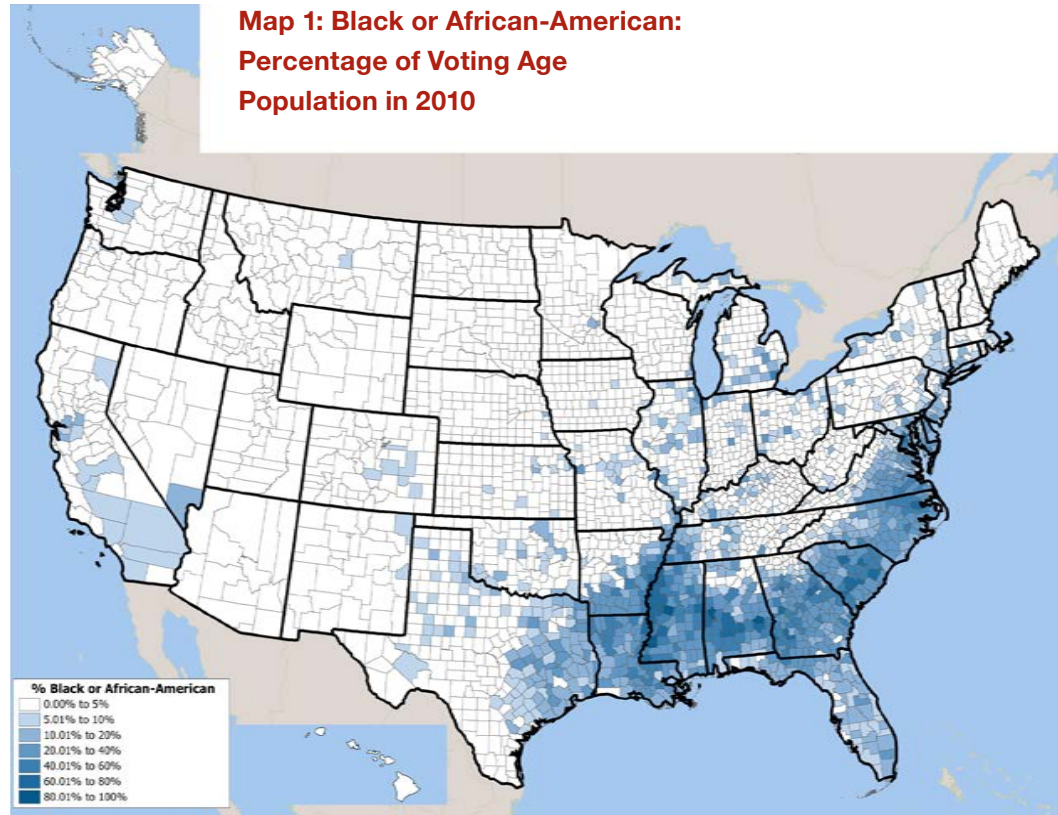

Still, the adoption of the Section 2 results standard did not stop states from creating and attempting to create racially discriminatory election structures.²⁵ In fact, the number of Section 5 objections increased after 1982 in spite of improved registration and turnout numbers and successful litigation.²⁶ In Mississippi alone, the DOJ lodged 37 objections just to county redistricting plans following the 1980 census.²⁷ In particular, jurisdictions in some circumstances attempted to re-implement discriminatory tactics previously used to dilute the African-American vote, even where those tactics had been previously successfully challenged.²⁸ For example, in Lancaster County, South Carolina, the General Assembly adopted staggered terms for at-large seats on the local area school boards in 1972 and again in 1976 and 1984 following the DOJ's initial objection.²⁹ Based on the evidence it received, the 2006 U.S. House Judiciary Committee report concluded that "[t]he changes sought by covered jurisdictions were calculated decisions to keep minority voters from fully participating in the political process."³⁰

Alabama, a state historically and continually at the center of the battle for racial equality in voting rights, is an example of how litigation dismantled policies that intentionally discriminated against African-American voters. A series of cases brought in the 1980s aided in breaking apart some of Alabama's most overt racially discriminatory electoral schemes. In a seminal 1986 case, African-American plaintiffs challenged the use of at-large elections for commissioners in nine counties in Dillard v. Crenshaw County.³¹ The court relied on evidence that 1951 and 1961 statewide electoral changes, both of which utilized vote dilution tactics, were adopted by the Alabama legislature with a discriminatory intent.³² Among other probative evidence, expert testimony was presented "that a third of the state's counties shifted from district to at-large elections between 1947 and 1971, after blacks began to register and vote in large numbers."³³ Based on the court's finding of a statewide policy of intentional discrimination, the federal district court enjoined the use of at-large elections in these counties.³⁴ This ruling propelled subsequent litigation challenging dilutive practices that resulted in more than 100 Alabama jurisdictions changing their method of election.³⁵ African-American plaintiffs in Alabama also challenged the discriminatory appointment of poll workers under Section 2 of the VRA. The district court first granted preliminary relief against almost every county, prohibiting further enforcement or implementation of the widespread practice of appointing "disproportionately too few"³⁶ African-American poll workers. The court later found that the dearth of African-American poll workers was the product of intentional discrimination by the state.³⁷

Despite these successful challenges to discriminatory voting laws over the past 50 years, recently there has been a resurgence in barriers to African-American voter participation through such measures as voter identification laws as well continued vote dilution. Discrimination against African Americans did not end with the passage of the VRA, and as has been and as will be detailed throughout this Report, continues to plague the American voting system today.

Geography

As shown in Map 1, the African-American population is still heavily concentrated in the South, as well as big cities in other parts of the country. The most recent census found that 14 percent of all people in the United States identified as black, with 55 percent of the black population living in the South. One-hundred five Southern counties had a black population of 50 percent or higher.³⁸

Participation

As can be seen in the graphs in Appendix C, registration and turnout among African Americans has been improving in recent years, according to the U.S. Census Bureau. In the last two presidential elections that brought President Barack Obama into office, African-American voter registration and turnout rates increased. In 2012 and 2008, African-American turnout levels among citizens of voting age were at approximately 66 and 65 percent, respectively, which represents a steady increase in turnout from previous years (compared with 60, 57, and 53 percent in 2004, 2000, and 1996, respectively).³⁹ However, this has not been the case in other types of elections. In the last two midterm elections, for example, African-American participation rates continued to fall below that of whites. In 2010 and 2006, the negative differentials between African-American and white participation rates were 5 and 11 percentage points, respectively.⁴⁰

Elected Officials

Section 2 and Section 5 of the VRA were highly effective working in tandem to reduce minority vote dilution, including through the districting process.⁴¹ As a result, in jurisdictions where the African-American population is sufficiently concentrated, African-American candidates can regularly gain elected office. Between 1970 and 2000, the nation saw a 600 percent gain in the number of African-American elected officials nationally and a 1,000 percent gain in those states that were formerly entirely covered by Section 5.⁴² Nonetheless, getting elected in areas without a majority of minority voters continues to be a challenge for African-American candidates. As several voting rights experts recently concluded, “Although there is evidence to suggest that minority candidates are beginning to win elections in some non-minority districts, the overwhelming number of minority legislators continue to represent majority-minority districts.”⁴³

Current Types of Discrimination

Several types of election procedures have been used to discriminate against African-American citizens, including vote dilution, barriers to voting, and even attempts at intimidation, and these procedures continue to be used to disempower African Americans. As is demonstrated by the tables outlining the cases litigated under the Voting Rights Act since 1995 (see Supplemental Online Appendix), there have been numerous cases striking down redistricting plans, at-large elections, and other election practices that were found to discriminate against African Americans. Over 1/3 of the successful Section 2 cases⁴⁴ brought from January 1995 to June 2014 involved African-American voters.⁴⁵ These cases continue to be largely concentrated in the Southern United States. About 2/3 of the cases involving African Americans occurred in jurisdictions in the former Section 5-covered jurisdictions, with Mississippi, Louisiana, and Georgia alone accounting for 42 percent of these cases.⁴⁶ Additionally, the overwhelming majority of Section 5 and Section 3(c) preclearance denials, where the Justice Department or federal court refused to preclear election changes, issued between January 1995 and June 2014 were for changes impacting African Americans. Of the 113 Section 5 preclearance denials issued during this period, 101—or nearly 90 percent of the denials—involved circumstances where the submitting jurisdictions failed to prove the proposed change would not discriminate against African Americans.⁴⁷

Dr. Brenda Williams of The Family Unit testified at the NCVR South Carolina state hearing, stating “[T]he South Carolina Election Commission now has a dress code for people wanting and needing photo IDs in the State. [...] You have to wear a certain kind of attire. No hats are allowed, no scarves. African-American women oftentimes adorn ourselves in scarves and turbans. It’s a part of our culture. [...] [T]he voter registration office people have the authority to stop and not take your picture if you don’t fit their attire guidelines.”

At-large elections and discriminatory redistricting plans have been the primary tactics most recently employed to dilute African-American voting strength. Of the 62 successful Section 2 cases involving African Americans, almost 1/2 involved at-large methods of election and 1/3 involved redistricting plans.⁴⁸ Additionally, as is discussed in Chapter 6, evidence indicates that increasingly stringent voter identification requirements, restrictions on voter registration drives, and reductions in early voting opportunities disproportionately affect African Americans compared to whites.⁴⁹ The cases and research discussed in depth in the following chapters will demonstrate the panoply of ways African Americans are denied their full and equal voting rights in the 21st century.

II. LATINOS

Latinos comprise approximately 17 percent of the U.S. population⁵⁰ and are the nation’s largest minority group.⁵¹ As explained below, however, voter participation rates for Latinos—despite recent increases—continue to lag behind those of other groups. A leading Latino organization points out that “[m]ore than 100 years of virtually unchecked discrimination at the polls against Latino U.S. citizens gave birth to this situation, and a number of factors have sustained it.”⁵²

As detailed below, Latinos have historically faced discrimination in voting. This discrimination has come through formal and informal methods such as state-sanctioned violence and intimidation, racially targeted voter challenges, and English-only elections. Other persistent forms of discrimination include discrimination in the redistricting process, the use of at-large elections to dilute the Latino vote, and the failure to comply with the VRA's language assistance requirements to ensure equal access for Spanish-speaking voters, among others.

History and Background

The history of Latinos in the United States, like the group itself, is quite diverse.⁵³ It is not an overgeneralization, however, to say that Latinos, as a whole, have faced a history of discrimination and exclusion in the United States, some of which continues to the present day and has contributed to the existing disparities in electoral participation and opportunity.

Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans are the two largest Latino heritage⁵⁴ groups and those with the longest history in the United States. Mexican Americans were present in what is now the Southwest of the United States even prior to the U.S. border expansion to include this territory in the 1840s. With the 1845 annexation of Texas and the 1848 Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, a great part of Northern Mexico became part of the United States, and the Mexican citizens living in that territory became U.S. citizens.⁵⁵ Similarly, the United States acquired control of Puerto Rico in 1898,⁵⁶ and Puerto Ricans were granted U.S. citizenship in 1917, after which hundreds of thousands of Puerto Ricans migrated to the continental United States.⁵⁷ Despite these formal grants of citizenship, however, both Puerto Ricans and Mexican Americans experienced acts of discrimination and obstacles to their full integration as equal citizens of the United States. Other Latino heritage groups with a more recent history in the United States have similarly faced barriers to equality under the law.

Mexican Americans throughout the Southwest have been the target of discrimination including unlawful deportations,⁵⁸ state-sanctioned violence,⁵⁹ segregation in schooling,⁶⁰ and exclusion from juries.⁶¹ In the watershed case of Hernandez v. Texas in 1954, the first in which the Supreme Court recognized that Mexican Americans were entitled to equal protection under the Fourteenth Amendment,⁶² Hernandez challenged a Jim Crow practice in Texas that denied Mexican Americans the opportunity to serve on trial or grand juries.⁶³ The Supreme Court recognized that Hernandez proved that persons of Mexican descent constituted a separate class, stating:

The participation of persons of Mexican descent in business and community groups was shown to be slight. Until very recent times, children of Mexican descent were required to attend a segregated school for the first four grades. At least one restaurant in town prominently displayed a sign announcing ‘No Mexicans Served.’ On the courthouse grounds at the time of the hearing, there were two men’s toilets, one unmarked, and the other marked ‘Colored Men’ and ‘Hombres Aqui’ (‘Men Here’).⁶⁴

Early Discrimination in Voting

This widespread discrimination against Mexican Americans also manifested itself in the electoral process. The Texas Rangers, for example, who utilized their position as law enforcement agents to terrorize the Mexican American community through “lynchings, burning houses, executions in front of family members and murder,” also specifically discouraged Mexican Americans from voting.⁶⁵ Texas further excluded Mexican Americans through its white primaries, lauded for “eliminat[ing] the Mexican voter as a factor in nominating county candidates,” and the imposition of a poll tax.⁶⁶

Literacy tests were another tool used throughout the Southwest and in New York to block the Latino vote.⁶⁷ New York, for example, instituted its English literacy test in 1922,⁶⁸ just five years after Puerto Ricans were granted citizenship and New York City experienced an influx of Puerto Ricans.⁶⁹ Later, in the 1920s, 1930s, and 1940s as Latino populations rose in the Southwest, Latino voters were the target of further intimidation efforts to keep them away from the polls.⁷⁰ Operation Eagle Eye, for example, deployed volunteers in Arizona to “question[] would-be Latino voters about their residence and ability to read and understand English.”⁷¹

Continued Discrimination into the Second Half of the 20th Century

Although, as mentioned, the VRA was originally designed with African Americans’ voting rights in mind, the 1965 Act included an important provision for some Latinos: Section 4(e). Section 4(e) provides that the right to vote cannot be denied to U.S. citizens who completed the sixth grade in an American public school where instruction was conducted primarily in a language other than English.⁷² The provision was instrumental to the protection of Puerto Rican voting rights in that it invalidated the English literacy tests that had been implemented to block Puerto Ricans’ access to the polls.⁷³ This protection, however, was resisted by New York State, which challenged it all the way to the Supreme Court. In Katzenbach v. Morgan,⁷⁴ the Supreme Court rejected the challenge, holding that Section 4(e) was constitutional. Eventually, Section 4(e) was to pave the way for more expansive provisions protecting language minority voters.

In the hearings leading up to the reauthorization of the Voting Rights Act in 1975 and 1982, witnesses testified that the discrimination methods used against African Americans in the South were similarly being used against Latinos in the Southwest.⁷⁵ Some of these methods included “intimidation, capricious changes in voting rules, English-language registration and voting requirements, lengthy residential requirements, and the manipulation of the Mexican American vote by non-Mexican American political leaders.”⁷⁶ After finding that voting discrimination against citizens with limited English proficiency was “pervasive and national in scope,” Congress in 1975 expanded the protections of the VRA to specific language minorities, including those with Spanish heritage.⁷⁷ In doing so, it sought to address a “racialized inequity that was purposefully directed at [Mexican-American voters] that turned on their racial/ethnic characteristics and not only on their language minority status.”⁷⁸ Importantly, Congress found that English-only elections in jurisdictions where more than 5 percent of the voting age citizens were a minority language group constituted a “test or device” under the Voting Rights Act, and hence were prohibited.⁷⁹

In recent decades, Latinos have also experienced discrimination in the redistricting process. In White v. Regester, for example, the Supreme Court struck down a redistricting plan for the Texas State House of Representatives.^{79a} In invalidating the plan, the district court noted that in Bexar County, “cultural incompatibility... conjoined with the poll tax and the most restrictive voter registration procedures in the nation ha[d] operated to effectively deny Mexican-Americans access to the political processes in Texas even longer than the Blacks were formally denied access by the white primary.”⁸⁰

George Korbel, Attorney with the League of United Latin American Citizens, holding up two models of Texas gerrymandered House districts while testifying about what he called “the vast arc of exclusion” in the State.

PHOTO CREDIT: SAMUEL WASHINGTON

Similarly, in a 1990 decision in the case of Garza v. County of Los Angeles, a federal judge declared that, when drawing the district lines after the 1980 census, the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors had intentionally violated the rights of Latino citizens, in violation of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act and the Fourteenth Amendment, by intentionally dividing a geographically compact area of Latinos for several rounds of redistricting after a Latino candidate almost won election in 1958.⁸¹ To remedy this violation, the court ordered the district to redraw its district lines,⁸² resulting in the creation of a majority-Latino district that resulted in the election of Gloria Molina, the first Latino Los Angeles county supervisor in modern history.

Geography

As can be seen from Map 2, there continue to be significant concentrations of Latinos in the Southwest, but the population has grown tremendously including in major cities and smaller industrial cities. Arizona, California, Florida, Illinois, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, and Texas contain three-quarters (74 percent) of the nation's Latino population. This is down from 79 percent in 2000 and 84 percent in 1990.⁸³ As a reflection of the increasing dispersal of the Latino population, 23 states have at least one jurisdiction that meets the minimum population thresholds and are hence covered under Section 203 of the VRA for the Spanish language, which requires them to provide election materials in Spanish and Spanish-language assistance at polling places.

Participation

Large turnout disparities exist between white and Latino populations, including Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans.⁸⁴ Among citizens, the Hispanic voter turnout rate in the 2012 presidential election was 48.0 percent, while the turnout rate for white voters was 64.1 percent.⁸⁵ The socioeconomic differences between Latinos and other groups help to explain this disparity. A study seeking to understand why turnout differs between Latinos and other groups analyzed the factors impacting voter participation.⁸⁶ Using data contained in the U.S. Census Bureau's Current Population Survey, the researchers ran two statistical models.⁸⁷ The first used only racial-ethnic and national-origin factors, while the second tested the impact of socioeconomic variables including age, education, family income, and residential stability.⁸⁸ The researchers found that “virtually all of the overall Latino group differences disappear when socioeconomic variables are taken into account.”⁸⁹ Education, age, and income are the demographic factors most strongly related to voter turnout⁹⁰ and Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans are at a disadvantage compared with Anglos on each of those indicators.⁹¹

Courts have repeatedly noted the relationship between discrimination and social inequality.⁹² A U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee report accompanying the 1982 amendments to Section 2 of the VRA identified several factors for courts to use when assessing whether a violation exists.⁹³ One of these factors is “the extent to which members of the minority group ... bear the effects of discrimination in such areas as education, employment and health, which hinder their ability to participate effectively in the political process.”⁹⁴ As the Supreme Court explained in Thornburg v. Gingles, “political participation...tends to be depressed where minority group members suffer effects of prior discrimination such as inferior education, poor employment opportunities, and low incomes.”⁹⁵ Between 1982 and 2005, in 13 reported successful Section 2 cases involving Latinos, courts found that discrimination in these other areas did inhibit Latinos' ability to effectively participate in the political process.⁹⁶

The ongoing discriminatory efforts discussed below—including voter intimidation, discriminatory redistricting, attempts to dilute the Latino vote, and the denial of language assistance—combine with this history of prior discrimination to further suppress Latino participation.

Elected Officials

The last 15-20 years have seen some improvement in Latino electoral opportunity. Data from the National Association of Latino Elected Officials shows that in 1996, 180 Latinos held elected office at the state or federal level.⁹⁷ By 2009, that number had increased to 277, and it climbed to 320 by 2013.⁹⁸ Though this trajectory is impressive, its significance should not be exaggerated. A separate statistical analysis shows that it continues to be difficult for a Latino candidate to get elected in a jurisdiction without a Latino majority:

Hispanic voters are now more likely to elect Latino candidates in the majority-minority districts that have been created [for them] than they were in 1992 (at least with regard to state senate and congressional districts) ... [but] like African American representatives, the vast majority of Latino representatives are elected from majority-minority districts. The percentage of districts with non-Hispanic majorities represented by Latino legislators has risen since 1992, but, like the increase in the number of African American representatives elected from majority-nonblack districts, this increase has been small. Moreover, a number of the Latino representatives elected from districts with non-Latino majorities won in districts where blacks and Latinos together formed a majority—although the share of Latino victories in districts characterized by black-and-Hispanic majorities is lower than the share of African American victories in such districts.⁹⁹

Types of Discrimination

Voting barriers for Latino voters have continued to the present day, not only in jurisdictions where they have historically had a strong presence,¹⁰⁰ but also in places where the community has just recently started to grow.¹⁰¹ Historical—and ongoing—types of discrimination include voter intimidation, discriminatory redistricting, the use of at-large elections to dilute the Latino vote, and the denial of language assistance. Additionally, Latino voters have encountered other modern-day voting restrictions that present significant challenges in exercising their right to vote.

Between January 1995 and June 2014, 29 of the denials of preclearance under Section 5 of the VRA have concerned Latino voting rights. Additionally, over half of the successful cases filed during this time period under Section 2 of the VRA have involved Latino voters (96 out of 171).¹⁰² Out of these cases affecting Latino voters, 82 involved a successful challenge to the use of at-large methods of election and seven successfully challenged a redistricting plan.

Sanchez v. Colorado,¹⁰³ which was decided in 1996 by the Tenth Circuit, was a classic case of Latino vote dilution. The Latino plaintiffs in the case challenged a state legislative redistricting plan that did not provide for a majority Latino district (House District 60) in the San Luis Valley. A consulting firm hired by the Colorado Reapportionment Commission found that there was racially polarized voting and it was “necessary to create districts that are more heavily Hispanic in the San Luis Valley than elsewhere in the state because of the degree of racially polarized voting found in this area of the state.”¹⁰⁴ Nonetheless, the commission’s apportionment of District 60 resulted in a district where Latinos comprised only 42.4 percent of the voting age population.¹⁰⁵ Other factors also painted a picture of the hostility faced by the Latino community in the area. For example, the Anglo incumbent for the District 60 House seat had referred to Latinos as “wetbacks,” and plaintiffs testified about problems such as: the placing of voter registration branches “in Anglo homes, where Hispanics would feel uncomfortable entering... the appointment of all Anglo election judges,” and missing Latino voters from the registration rolls.¹⁰⁶ Importantly, since the District 60 house seat was drawn in 1940, it had only been held by Anglos.¹⁰⁷ The court ultimately held that the configuration of District 60 diluted the Latino vote and remanded the case back to the district court, with directions that the court order the State of Colorado to implement a remedial plan that would include a Latino-majority district centered in the San Luis Valley.¹⁰⁸

Additional Section 2 cases have included claims such as discriminatory challenges to individuals’ voting rights. A recent example is United States v. Long County, Georgia,¹⁰⁹ a 2006 lawsuit filed against the County for unlawfully targeting Latino voters. Long County had experienced a dramatic increase (460 percent) in its Latino population between 1990 and 2000, and in 2000, the community made up 8.4 percent of the County’s population. In the 2004 election, the right to vote of 45 Latino residents was challenged on the grounds that they were not U.S. citizens. Even though none of these challenges were actually supported, the County required all 45 Latino residents to attend a hearing and prove their U.S. citizenship. Other non-Latino residents whose right to vote had been challenged on other grounds, however, were not required to attend such a hearing. In 2006, the federal court entered a consent decree requiring the County to (1) notify the 45 Latino voters that the challenges to their right to vote were unsubstantiated, (2) implement uniform voter challenge procedures, and (3) properly train their election officials and poll workers.¹¹⁰

At the NCVR regional hearing in New York City, Juan Cartagena, President & General Counsel of Latino Justice PRLDEF, (far right) said “[W]e consistently treat citizens in this country as if they have to earn and re-earn their right to vote. We don’t treat it as a right. [...] [That] explains why so many of us who are eligible to vote and have registered to vote have to re-approve that we are eligible to vote again, and again. [...] It is time that we treat the vote as a right in a democracy.” PHOTO CREDIT: CHRIS FIELDS

Another example of targeted challenges against Latinos took place in Atkinson County, Georgia. In 2004, 95 Latino registered voters—78 percent of all Latino voters in the county—had their right to vote challenged on the basis of their citizenship. Like in Long County, the challenged voters were forced to appear at the county courthouse to defend their voting rights.¹¹¹ However, “after county attorney Russ Gillis began the hearing, it didn’t take him long to get to his point. The challenges were dismissed because they were ‘legally insufficient because they’re based solely on race,’ he said to the courtroom.”¹¹²

Jurisdictions’ failure to provide the necessary and often required language assistance is also a persistent problem for Latino voters. Out of the 58 successful language assistance cases and pre-litigation settlements filed between January 1995 and June 2014, 46 of them (79 percent) were brought on behalf of Spanish-speaking voters. As discussed above, English-only elections were historically utilized to keep Spanish-speaking voters from the polls. Today, as some jurisdictions throughout the United States fail to adequately comply with federal requirements for language assistance, Spanish-speaking voters continue to be denied full, meaningful, and equal access to the polls. As discussed in more detail in Chapter 7, the provision of language assistance at the polls has been shown to positively impact voter participation in Latino communities.

According to the Pew Hispanic Center, Latinos “will account for 40% of the growth in the eligible electorate in the U.S. between now and 2030, at which time 40 million Hispanics will be eligible to vote, up from 23.7 million now.”¹¹³ Whether these new eligible voters become actual voters will depend, in large part, on the legal protections in place to ensure that access to all aspects of voting is free of discrimination and unnecessary barriers. As the Latino electorate continues to grow, it is more imperative than ever that access to the ballot is not encumbered by racial discrimination.

III. NATIVE AMERICANS

Although they inhabited what is now the United States long before white settlers arrived, Native Americans have only relatively recently been given the right to vote under the laws of the United States and still struggle to achieve full participation in the political process. While the Voting Rights Act applies to Native Americans, relatively little voting rights litigation was brought on behalf of Native Americans until fairly recently.¹¹⁴ But when such litigation has been brought, “courts have invariably found patterns of widespread discrimination against Indians in the political process.”¹¹⁵

History and Background

As President Richard Nixon said in 1970,

The First Americans—the Indians—are the most deprived and most isolated minority group in our nation. On virtually every scale of measurement—employment, income, education, health—the condition of the Indian people ranks at the bottom. This condition is the heritage of centuries of injustice. From the time of their first contact with European settlers, the American Indians have been oppressed and brutalized, deprived of their ancestral lands and denied the opportunity to control their own destiny.¹¹⁶

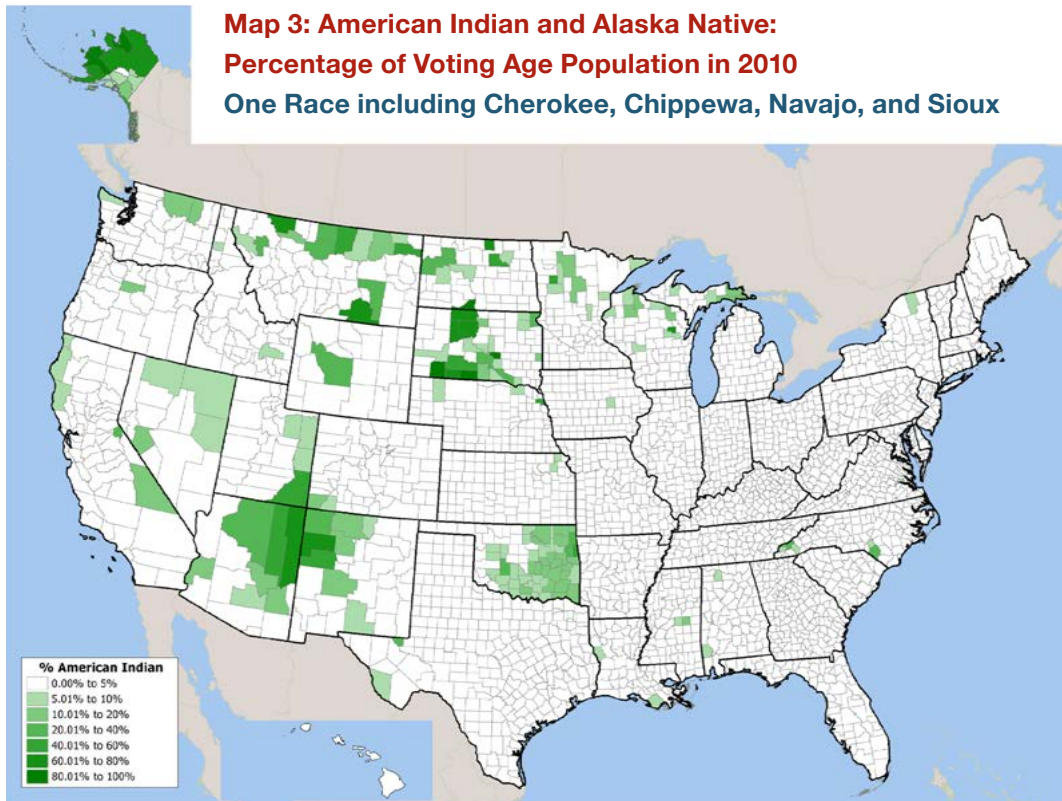

Discrimination against Native Americans in voting can be traced back to at least 150 years ago—to a time when Native Americans were deemed not to be citizens of the United States and the policy of the federal government was the “eventual assimilation of the Indian population” and the “gradual extinction of Indian reservations and Indian tribes.”¹¹⁷ Throughout the 1800s, Native-American tribes were forcibly removed from their lands to reservations, where they were to end their nomadic way of life and, as President Andrew Jackson put it, “cast off their savage habits and become an interesting, civilized, and Christian community.”¹¹⁸ The intentional extermination of the buffalo that Native Americans needed to survive—an estimated 15 million buffalo were killed between 1872 and 1883—forced Native Americans into dependency upon the United States and kept them confined to the reservations.¹¹⁹ Sacred Native-American rituals and practices were outlawed, and the government attempted to “detritalize” young Native Americans by sending them to federally supervised schools in which students were forbidden to speak their native languages or practice Native-American traditions.¹²⁰ The adoption of a land allotment system proved another “efficient device for separating Indians from their land and pauperizing them.”¹²¹ While some treaties provided that Native Americans could become citizens of the United States, the naturalization process was often so demanding that few Native Americans could undertake it.¹²² And those Native Americans who were not citizens had no federally protected right to vote and thus had no power to influence the laws passed by Congress to control their affairs.¹²³

Congress extended citizenship—including the federally protected equal right to vote—to all Native Americans in 1924, yet a systemic denial of the right to vote continued.¹²⁴ For example:

- In 1925, the Alaska Territorial Legislature enacted a literacy law that required “voters in territorial elections be able to read and write the English language.” When Alaska’s constitution became operative in 1959, it included an English literacy requirement as a qualification for voting; the requirement was not repealed until 1970.¹²⁵
- Into the 1940s Idaho, Maine, Mississippi, New Mexico, and Washington prohibited “Indians not taxed” from voting, even though they allowed whites who did not pay taxes the right to vote.¹²⁶
- Arizona denied Native Americans living on reservations the right to vote because they were “under guardianship” of the federal government. This policy remained in place until 1948.¹²⁷
- Utah denied Native Americans living on reservations the right to vote because, under state law, they were considered non-residents. The Utah Supreme Court upheld this law, and only after the United States Supreme Court agreed to review the case did the state legislature repeal it in 1957.¹²⁸
- In Colorado, Native Americans residing on reservations were not permitted to vote until 1970.¹²⁹

These abuses were a major impetus for Congress’s extension of the Voting Rights Act to language minorities, including Native Americans, in 1975.¹³⁰

Geography

As can be seen in Map 3, the American Indian and Alaska Native population is concentrated in states such as Alaska, Arizona, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, and South Dakota.¹³¹ They are a small share of the population, but in certain counties they make up a significant portion—if not a majority—of the population. In a handful of states Native Americans have sufficient numbers and potential voting power to affect election outcomes, for example in recent races for U.S. Senate in Alaska and Montana.¹³²

Participation

Although the U.S. Census does not publish as much data on voting by Native Americans as it publishes regarding voting by whites and other groups, analyses show Native-American voting rates are among the lowest of all racial and ethnic groups in the United States. Courts have consistently found participation differentials, and census data from the 2008 and 2012 presidential elections show a differential on a national basis. In the 2008 election, 47.5 percent of American Indian and Alaska Native citizens of voting age voted, while 66.1 percent of non-Hispanic white citizens of voting age voted.¹³³ Similarly, in the 2012 election, 46.6

percent of American Indian and Alaska Native citizens of voting age reported voting, compared to 64. percent of non-Hispanic white citizens of voting age.¹³⁴

Courts charged with addressing voting discrimination against Native Americans have acknowledged that low political participation is one of the effects of past discrimination.¹³⁵ One of the legacies of the discrimination faced by Native Americans is a severely depressed socioeconomic status—in every socioeconomic factor reported in the census, Native Americans today lag far behind their white counterparts.¹³⁶ Disparities in socioeconomic status are causally connected to Native Americans’ depressed level of political participation.¹³⁷ These disparities combine with “the pervasive myth that Indians care only about politics on the reservation, and the lack of VRA enforcement” to create an environment in which many Native-American communities still, de facto, lack the right to vote.¹³⁸ Harassment, intimidation, and misinformation further thwart Native Americans’ efforts to register and vote, despite the protections of the VRA.¹³⁹

Elected Officials

Though the numbers are slowly increasing, it has proven very difficult for Native Americans to get elected to high office. They have been most successful in state legislatures: there are currently 75 American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian state legislators in 17 states.¹⁴⁰ In 2012 there were no Native-American members of the U.S. Senate and two Native-American members of the U.S. House of Representatives.¹⁴¹

Types of Discrimination

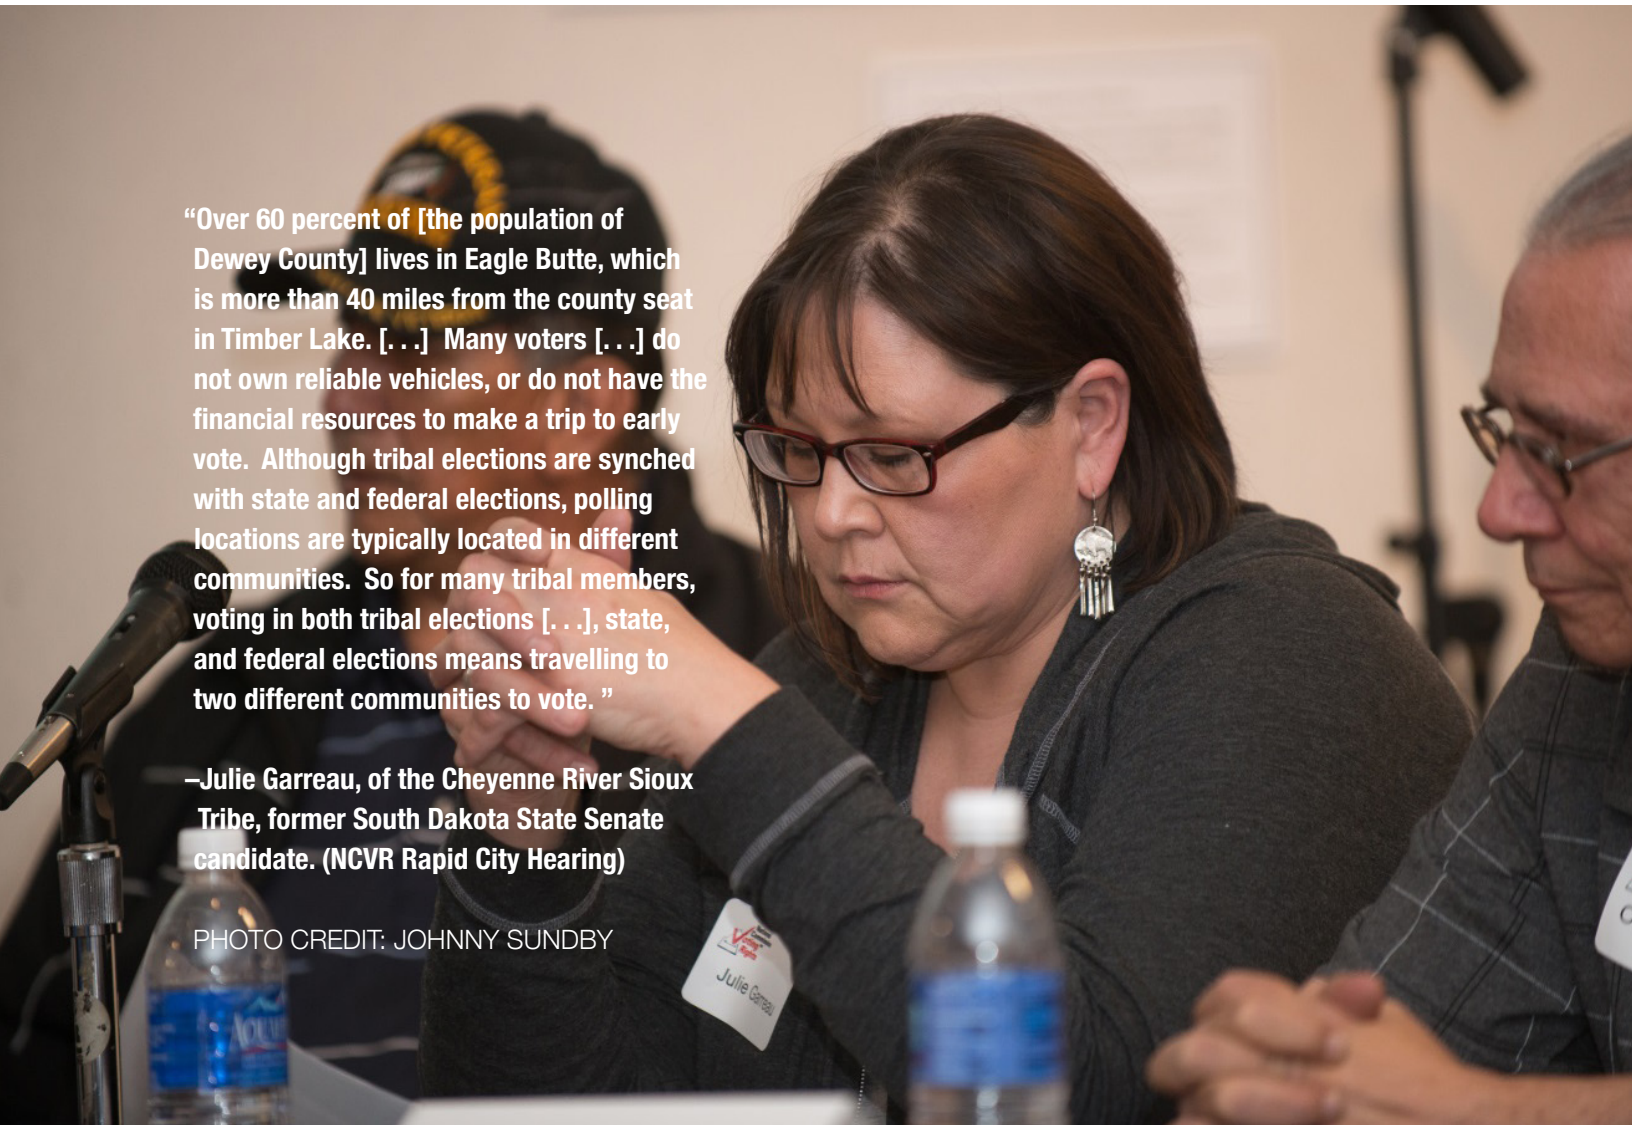

Since 1973, there have been more than 30 successful challenges to redistricting schemes and methods of election that dilute Native-American voting power.^{141a} Between January 1995 and June 2014 there were 18 successful cases brought by or on behalf of Native-American plaintiffs under Section 2 of the VRA (not including language assistance cases). Over half of those cases involved at-large methods of election; three of the cases involved redistricting plans.

Also between January 1995 and June 2014, there were five successful cases brought by Native Americans or on behalf of Native Americans by DOJ under the VRA’s language assistance provisions concerning bilingual election assistance; the languages involved were Keresan, Lakota, Navajo, and Yup’ik.¹⁴² A recent case from Alaska is illustrative. Prior to the 2008 election, plaintiffs sued Alaska for failure to provide translated election materials and language assistance at polling places to thousands of Yup’ik-speaking voters in the Bethel Census Area. The court in Nick v. Bethel granted the plaintiffs a preliminary injunction requiring the state to provide language assistance to Yup’ik voters, including translators, sample ballots in Yup’ik, pre-election publicity in Yup’ik, and a Yup’ik glossary of election terms for the 2008 primary and general election.¹⁴³ In 2010, the parties entered into a settlement requiring the state to provide bilingual election materials, outreach workers, and notices of election in all subsequent elections as long as the Bethel Census Area remains subject to the language provisions of the VRA.¹⁴⁴

There also have been several cases involving blatant interference with Native Americans registering and voting. Incidents have included:

- Refusal by election registrars to provide registration forms to groups involved in registering American Indians and Alaska Natives;
- Purging Native Americans from voter registration lists;
- Baseless charges of voter fraud against American Indians and Alaska Natives; and
- Failure to provide sufficient polling places in Native-American communities.¹⁴⁵

“Over 60 percent of [the population of Dewey County] lives in Eagle Butte, which is more than 40 miles from the county seat in Timber Lake. [. . .] Many voters [. . .] do not own reliable vehicles, or do not have the financial resources to make a trip to early vote. Although tribal elections are synched with state and federal elections, polling locations are typically located in different communities. So for many tribal members, voting in both tribal elections [. . .], state, and federal elections means travelling to two different communities to vote.”

—Julie Garreau, of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, former South Dakota State Senate candidate. (NCVR Rapid City Hearing)

PHOTO CREDIT: JOHNNY SUNDBY

Case Study

South Dakota

South Dakota, which has a Native-American population that is 8.9 percent of the state's total population and had two counties that were covered jurisdictions under Section 5 of the VRA, provides examples of many of the types of discrimination that Native Americans have faced in voting. Even after the VRA was expanded in 1975 to incorporate language minorities, including Native Americans, South Dakota persistently engaged in discriminatory conduct—using a broad range of tactics—that limited the voting rights of Native Americans. Whether simply denying counties with large Native-American populations the ability to form a government, or redistricting after a Native-American candidate won a primary, or diluting the Native vote through malapportionment or packing, the actions of officials in South Dakota exemplify the various forms of voting discrimination faced by Native Americans across the country.

VOTE DENIAL BASED ON RESIDENCE IN AN “UNORGANIZED” COUNTY

In 1975, a federal court of appeals in Little Thunder v. South Dakota found that the State's prohibition on residents of “unorganized” Counties voting for county government officials violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.¹⁴⁶ “Organized” counties all had a full complement of elected county officials who administered the affairs of the county (i.e., county commissioners, judges, auditor, sheriff, etc.).¹⁴⁷ The “unorganized” counties did not elect their own county officials but, rather, were attached to an adjoining county for purposes of government and administration. The residents of unorganized counties, however, could not vote for the county officials in the county to which theirs was attached.¹⁴⁸ Those residents, therefore, were not able to vote for most of the elected county officials who governed them.¹⁴⁹ The residents of the “unorganized” counties—Todd, Shannon, and Washabaugh—were overwhelmingly Native American.¹⁵⁰

Even after the residents of Todd, Shannon, and Washabaugh counties were granted the right to vote for the elected officials who conducted the affairs of their counties, they were still denied the right to run for those offices. The United States challenged the denial of the right of residents of Shannon County to run for the county offices of Fall River County that governed Shannon County in United States v. South Dakota.¹⁵¹ The justification offered for this restriction was that “the great majority of Shannon County voters reside on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation and hence have little, if any, interest in the county government of either Shannon or Fall River County,” and “a personal stake in the government insufficient to insure responsible exercise of their duties.”¹⁵² The United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit found this justification insufficient and held that the practice violated the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment and required that residents of Shannon County be allowed to run for the offices in question in Fall River County.¹⁵³

DISTRICT BOUNDARIES DRAWN TO INCLUDE ONLY LAND OWNED BY NON-NATIVE AMERICANS

In 1999, the United States sued Day County, South Dakota, for denying Indians the right to vote in a sanitary district.¹⁵⁴ In 1993, officials in Day County created a sanitary district near Enemy Swim Lake, but the district boundaries included only 13 percent of the land around the lake, all of which was owned by non-Native Americans.¹⁵⁵ The County intentionally excluded the remaining land around the lake, which was owned by the Sisseton-Wahpeton Sioux Tribe and about 200 of the tribe's members.¹⁵⁶ Thus, "all of the voters in the district were white."¹⁵⁷ The case settled, and both the County and the district admitted that the boundaries unlawfully denied Native-American citizens the right to vote and agreed to a new plan that included the Native-owned land.¹⁵⁸

MID-DECADE REDISTRICTING TO ELIMINATE A MAJORITY-MINORITY DISTRICT

In 2000, in Emery v. Hunt, voters in South Dakota successfully challenged the state legislature's attempt to abolish a majority Native-American single-member state house district. A 1991 apportionment provided that each of the State's 35 districts would be entitled to one senate member and two house members elected on an at-large basis, with the exception of two single-member house districts—District 28A and District 28B—that were explicitly drawn to protect minority voting rights.¹⁵⁹ Native Americans comprised 60 percent of the voting age population (VAP) of District 28A, which included the Cheyenne River Sioux Reservation and portions of the Standing Rock Sioux Reservation, but less than 4 percent of the VAP of District 28B.¹⁶⁰ After a Native American won a Democratic primary in District 28A, the legislature adopted a mid-census plan that replaced District 28A and District 28B with a single majority-white multi-member house district.¹⁶¹

Members of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe sought relief under both the South Dakota Constitution and Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.¹⁶² The U.S. District Court for the District of South Dakota certified the state law question to the South Dakota Supreme Court, which held that the state legislature had "acted beyond its constitutional limits."¹⁶³ The South Dakota Constitution mandated apportionment in 1991 and every 10 years thereafter,¹⁶⁴ and a 1995 memorandum by the South Dakota Legislative Research Council confirmed that, in the absence of a successful legal challenge, no redistricting could take place before 2001.¹⁶⁵ The 1991 plan was reinstated, and Tom Van Norman became the first Native American from the Cheyenne River Sioux Indian Reservation to be elected to the South Dakota state legislature.¹⁶⁶

REFUSAL TO COMPLY WITH PRECLEARANCE REQUIREMENT OF SECTION 5 OF THE VRA

Shannon County and Todd County, South Dakota, home to the Pine Ridge and Rosebud Indian Reservations respectively, were covered by Section 5 of the VRA as a result of the 1975 amendments to the Act.¹⁶⁷ Thus, any voting changes affecting those counties—including statewide changes—should have been submitted to the DOJ or the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia for preclearance.¹⁶⁸ From 1976 to 2002, South Dakota enacted over 600 statutes and regulations that affected elections or voting in Shannon and Todd counties, yet fewer than 10 were submitted for preclearance.¹⁶⁹ Some of the changes that were enacted without being submitted for preclearance that had the potential to dilute Native-American voting strength were authorization for municipalities to enact numbered place systems, which prevent single-shot voting, and a majority-vote requirement for primary races for the U.S. Senate, the U.S. House of Representatives, and governor (see Chapter 5 for more detail about these tactics).¹⁷⁰

In August 2002, members of the Oglala and Rosebud Sioux Tribes in Shannon and Todd counties filed suit against South Dakota seeking to force it to submit the more-than 600 voting changes for preclearance.¹⁷¹ The court entered a consent order in December 2002 in which the State admitted that it had failed to obtain preclearance for all of the voting changes it was required to preclear under Section 5.¹⁷² The State was immediately enjoined from implementing the statutes discussed above regarding a numbered seat requirement and majority-vote requirement, and required to develop a plan to submit all un-precleared voting changes in order to “promptly bring the State into full compliance with its obligations under Section 5.”¹⁷³ The State made its first submission under the consent order in April 2003; it took approximately three years to complete the process of submitting the un-precleared voting changes.¹⁷⁴

“PACKING” MINORITIES INTO A DISTRICT

As discussed in Chapter 5, one method of diluting a minority group's voting power is to “pack” the minorities into as few districts as possible. In 2006, a federal appeals court found in Bone Shirt v. Hazeltine that South Dakota's 2001 legislative redistricting plan violated Section 2 of the VRA by packing one district with Native Americans at the expense of allowing Native Americans the opportunity to elect a candidate of their choice in two separate districts.¹⁷⁵ As discussed above, South Dakota's legislative plan has 35 districts, with each district electing two members of the State House of Representatives at-large and one member of the state Senate. The exception was District 28, which was divided into two single-member districts (28A and 28B). In the plan at issue, there were only two Native American-majority districts: Districts 27 and 28A. District 27 had a 90 percent Native-American population.¹⁷⁶ District 26 was adjacent to District 27 and had only a 30 percent Native-American population. Under the plaintiffs' proposed plan, District 26 would be split into 26A and 26B for the State House of Representatives, and Native Americans would comprise over 65 percent of the voting age population in District 27 and over 74 percent of the voting age population in District 26A.¹⁷⁷ When the district court found that the State's plan violated Section 2, it ordered the State to submit a remedial plan, but the State refused to do so. The district court adopted the plaintiffs' remedial plan, and the appeals court affirmed.¹⁷⁸

TWO FORMS OF VOTE DILUTION: MALAPPORTIONMENT AND THE CREATION OF NEW DISTRICTS

As discussed in Chapter 5, when districts are malapportioned it can impermissibly dilute the voting strength of a minority group. In 2005, the U.S. District Court for the District of South Dakota ruled that county commissioner districts in Charles Mix County “[we]re malapportioned in violation of the one-person-one-vote standard of the Equal Protection Clause.”¹⁷⁹ Native Americans made up 29.5 percent of the population of Charles Mix County, which was governed by a three-member County Commission elected from three single-member districts.¹⁸⁰ While the ideal district size—one where all districts have the same population—was 3,117, district populations ranged from 2,850 persons to 3,443 persons (a deviation of 19 percent from equally apportioned districts).¹⁸¹ “[N]o Native Americans had ever been elected from the districts.”¹⁸² In response to a lawsuit brought by four members of the Yankton Sioux Tribe, the county justified the malapportionment by pointing to its policy against splitting townships, towns, or cities when creating voting precincts.¹⁸³ When evidence demonstrated that it would be possible to draw districts with a total deviation of less than 10 persons without splitting a single township, town, or city,¹⁸⁴ the court ruled the apportionment unconstitutional and ordered that the districts be redrawn.¹⁸⁵ The county then adopted a plan that created one majority-Native American district out of three, and in 2006 that district elected a tribal member to represent it on the Commission.¹⁸⁶ Although the court had ruled on the malapportionment claim, the plaintiffs’ other claims were pending, and the parties entered into a consent decree in December 2007 under which the County became subject to preclearance until 2024 under the provisions of Section 3(c) of the VRA.¹⁸⁷

Shortly after the court ruled in the plaintiffs’ favor on the malapportionment claim, however, voters circulated a petition to increase the number of commissioners from three to five—a change that would have again diluted Native-American representation.¹⁸⁸ They obtained enough signatures to get the proposal on the ballot, and county voters approved the measure in November 2006.¹⁸⁹ “The county . . . redrew its districts in early 2007, creating [only] one majority-[Native American] district out of five, thus diluting [Native-American] voting strength.”¹⁹⁰ But pursuant to the consent decree, the County submitted the plan to DOJ for preclearance.¹⁹¹ DOJ interposed an objection to the five-member plan, noting that Charles Mix County and the State of South Dakota have a history of voting discrimination against Native Americans and that support for the effort to change the number of county commissioners increased dramatically following a Native-American candidate’s success in the June 2006 Democratic primary election.¹⁹² As a result of that denial of preclearance, the three-member plan remains in effect today.

UNEQUAL ACCESS TO EARLY VOTING SITES AND LATE REGISTRATION

South Dakota also provides an example of how expanding access to the ballot often does not benefit all groups equally. As discussed in detail in Chapter 6, in Brooks v. Gant, Native Americans in Shannon County, South Dakota, sought equal access to early voting and late registration sites.¹⁹³ The site for early voting and late registration was a great distance from where most Native Americans in Shannon County lived; that distance, combined with limited access to vehicles and high rates of poverty, essentially meant that most Native Americans could vote only on Election Day and most non-Native Americans could vote—and register late—for 46 days before Election Day. The plaintiffs in Brooks sought to have a satellite office for early voting established on the reservation. The case settled when South Dakota officials and county defendants agreed to provide early voting at the satellite locations proposed by the plaintiffs through the year 2018.

IV. ASIAN AMERICANS

Asian Americans have long been denied the right to vote through restrictive naturalization laws and social and economic discrimination. Although they are currently the fastest-growing minority group in the United States,¹⁹⁴ “Asian Americans are underrepresented in almost every measure of political participation, from ballot boxes to the hallowed halls of government.”¹⁹⁵ Ongoing discrimination, low rates of political participation and representation, and unmet language assistance needs continue to impede Asian-American enfranchisement and justify the need for continued protection under the Voting Rights Act.

History and Background

Throughout U.S. history, Asians have been the target of discriminatory laws aimed at political and economic disenfranchisement. Foreign-born Asians had long been excluded from American political life due to citizenship restrictions based on race and national origin.¹⁹⁶ One of the most powerful barriers to citizenship was the U.S. Naturalization Act of 1790, which specified that only “free white person[s]” were eligible to become naturalized citizens.¹⁹⁷ While the 1870 Naturalization Act extended citizenship rights to individuals “of African descent,”¹⁹⁸ courts continued to deny immigrants of Asian descent naturalization privileges. In 1878, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit interpreted the Act to bar Chinese naturalization because Chinese immigrants, as “Mongolians,” were not “white person[s]” within the meaning of the term in the statute, and thus not eligible for U.S. citizenship.¹⁹⁹ In 1923, the Supreme Court reached a similar holding in United States v. Bhagat Singh Thind,²⁰⁰ when it determined that Thind, an Indian national, was “Caucasian” but not “white” within the meaning of the Act; he was therefore ineligible to become a naturalized citizen.

Asians were often victims of violence and scapegoating as nativist movements gained popularity, leading to widespread denial of social, political, and economic rights. Immigrant communities were targeted by discriminatory laws and regulations that placed restrictions on property and business ownership. One scholar noted,

For example, a “miner’s tax” had to be paid by any foreigner (miner or not) who lived in a mining district, targeting the Chinese in effect if not by name. Similarly, commutation taxes required ship owners to post a $500 bond (or a payment of $5 to $50 per passenger) on each Chinese immigrant coming into the country, and more for mentally ill or disabled passengers. The 1862 Chinese police tax, designed to discourage Chinese immigration, forced all Chinese laborers to pay $2.50 per month.²⁰¹

In Yick Wo v. Hopkins, the Supreme Court heard an appeal from Yick Wo, a Chinese immigrant who was imprisoned in 1885 for violating a San Francisco ordinance that prohibited the ownership of laundries constructed from certain building materials without the approval of the Board of Supervisors.²⁰² At that time, many laundries were owned by residents of Chinese origin²⁰³ and requests for approval from Chinese business owners were uniformly denied.²⁰⁴ The Court held that the discriminatory enforcement of the law violated the Equal Protection Clause.²⁰⁵ In its decision the Court asserted that, “[Voting] is regarded as a fundamental political right, because [it is] preservative of all other rights.”²⁰⁶

Despite this victory, the decision inflamed opposition to the rights of Asian immigrants, leading many Americans to support exclusion.²⁰⁷ In the 1944 case of Korematsu v. United States, the Supreme Court found that the federal government did not violate equal protection or due process when it excluded U.S. citizens who were of Japanese origin from certain designated military areas within the United States during World War II, which included large regions of the West Coast.²⁰⁸ Executive Order 9066,²⁰⁹ which was at issue in the Korematsu case, also authorized the internment of approximately 120,000 Japanese Americans who had been residing in these areas.²¹⁰

It was only relatively recently that Asian immigrants were finally granted the ability to naturalize and attain the rights of American citizenship. Prior to 1965, U.S. immigration policy heavily restricted immigration from Asia; the majority of people of Asian descent in the United States during this time were native-born Americans.²¹¹ It was not until 1943 that Chinese-born residents were first permitted to become citizens.²¹² Asian Indians and Filipinos were permitted to naturalize in 1946.²¹³ For Japanese and other Asian ethnic groups, that right came in 1952.²¹⁴

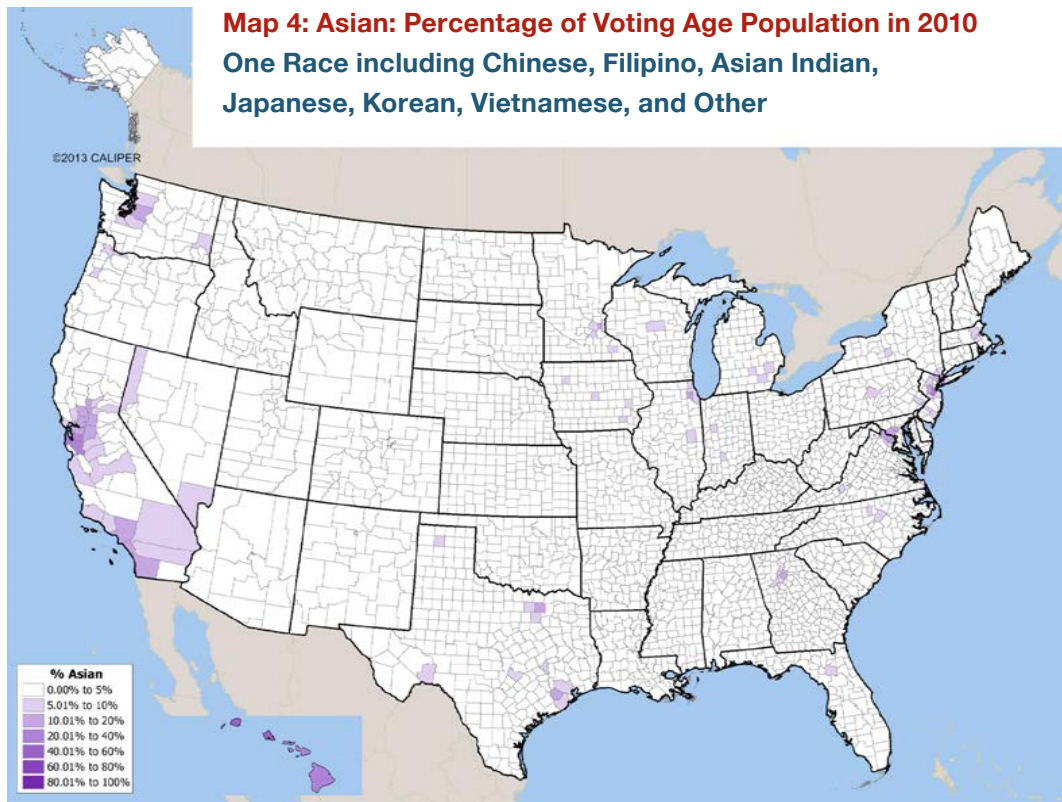

As immigration from Asia increased, Asian Americans still faced substantial barriers to full enfranchisement. In 1965, the Hart-Celler Act removed immigration restrictions on the basis of national origin.²¹⁵ This led to “unprecedented” immigration to the United States from Asia.²¹⁶ Between 1976 and 1988 the Asian and Pacific Islander population in the United States grew by 107.8 percent.²¹⁷

The Asian-American communities that emerged often suffered discrimination due to their language minority status. Thus, Asian Americans who were eligible to vote were often prevented from exercising their rights by English literacy and language requirements.²¹⁸ As Representative Edward R. Roybal noted in 1975, Asian Americans “bor[e] the brunt of this exclusionary practice not only at the voting booth but in the classroom as well[,]” where Asian-American students faced profound discrimination.²¹⁹

When Congress enacted Section 203 of the Voting Rights Act in 1975, jurisdictions were required to provide bilingual voting materials for designated language minorities. Yet areas with significant Asian-American populations with limited English proficiency were only covered under the bilingual assistance provisions in a few jurisdictions because there were few places where limited English proficient voting age citizens from a particular Asian language comprised at least 5 percent of the citizen voting age population, which was the required threshold.²²⁰ To help address the problem of excluding large numbers of language-minority voters who did not meet the 5 percent coverage formula originally enacted in 1975, the 1992 Voting Rights Language Assistance Act expanded the coverage formula to include an alternative where a jurisdiction would also be covered if 10,000 voting age citizens from a minority language group were limited English proficient and the other criteria for coverage were satisfied.²²¹ This amendment expanded Section 203 coverage to areas such as New York County for Chinese languages and Los Angeles County, where Chinese, Filipino, Japanese, and Korean communities benefitted from the newly offered language assistance.²²² Though bilingual assistance under Section 203 certainly removed some barriers to Asian-American enfranchisement, Asian Americans have historically had limited success in invoking other protections under the Voting Rights Act.²²³ These difficulties are discussed at greater length below.

Geography

In 1960, there were fewer than 1 million Asian Americans in the United States, less than 0.5 percent of the country's population.²²⁴ Asians were 5 percent of the population in 2005 and will be at least 9 percent in 2050.²²⁵ The Asian population grew by 46 percent from 2000 to

2010, a rate higher than any other group.²²⁶ This high growth rate is owed mostly to immigration, with 2012 statistics suggesting that 74 percent of Asian adults in the United States are foreign-born.²²⁷

As can be seen from Map 4, Asians are concentrated in urban areas, and continue to live mostly on the coasts. New destination cities include Houston, Minneapolis, and Washington, D.C.²²⁸ Notably, although Asian-American populations are relatively concentrated in urban centers, this population distribution allows Asian Americans to exert relatively little electoral power, even in California, Hawaii, and New York.²²⁹ For example, while one-third of the Asian-American population resides in California, this population accounts for only 12 percent of California's total electorate.²³⁰

Even at lower levels of jurisdictional granularity, there are only eleven congressional districts in which Asian Americans make up 20% or more of the district's electorate. Of the eleven congressional districts, all but one are in California or Hawaii. Among municipalities, Asian Americans make up 25% or more of the electorate in seventy-five districts.²³¹

The demographic distribution of Asian Americans has thus limited the group's electoral impact.²³²

Participation

Compared to other racial minority groups protected by the VRA, Asian Americans have low voter registration and turnout rates, despite being higher up on the education and income scales, indicators usually associated with higher levels of political participation.²³³ In 2008 and 2012, Asian Americans and Latinos voted at roughly the same rate even though other socioeconomic factors would normally suggest that their turnout rate would be higher.²³⁴ The voting gaps are not uniform across Asian groups—for example, participation rates are fairly high among Japanese Americans and quite low among Chinese Americans.²³⁵ The ethnic diversity among Asian Americans generally and the range in lengths of residence in the United States make it difficult to pinpoint explanations for Asian American turnout rates.²³⁶ “[L]imited political power and sustained disadvantages,” minimal availability of aid through “mobilization networks and organizational support,” and “institutional constraints such as haphazard naturalization requirements or tricky registration and voting rules” likely all contribute to low turnout rates.²³⁷

Asian-American participation rates are likely also attributable to past and ongoing language discrimination. Asian Americans have long been discriminated against in the form of English-only voting mechanisms, in much the same way that African Americans were at one time effectively prevented from voting by literacy tests and other devices.²³⁸ Research indicates that language assistance materials are of substantial importance to Asian-American voters. According to a 2013 report by Asian Americans Advancing Justice, “30 percent of Chinese Americans, 33 percent of Filipino Americans, 50 percent of Vietnamese Americans and 60 percent of Korean Americans in Los Angeles County used some form of language assistance in the 2008 presidential election.”²³⁹ Additionally, according to a 2012 report by Asian & Pacific Islander American (APIA) Vote, more than 1/5 of Asian-American voters surveyed indicated they would be more likely to vote if language assistance was provided.²⁴⁰

Elected Officials

There are currently 11 Asian-American members of the U.S. House of Representatives, 98 members of state legislatures, and two Asian American governors.²⁴¹ Of these officials, most represent jurisdictions in California, Hawaii, and New York, all of which are Asian-American population centers. Although data are scarce, research shows that that it becomes increasingly difficult for an Asian-American candidate to get elected the higher the office, indicating that many elected officials may only get elected in those places where there is a high voting concentration of Asian Americans.²⁴² Data from the 2008 National Asian American Survey shows that 22 percent of Asian Americans are represented by an Asian member of the city council, 17 percent have an Asian state representative and 8 percent have an Asian-American member of Congress.²⁴³ If one excludes California and Hawaii from the data pool, those numbers drop to 10 percent, 5 percent, and 1 percent, respectively.²⁴⁴

“[W]e settled a case with San Mateo County [...] to change the at-large system there to the district-based system. San Mateo County is over 40 percent Asian and Latino, yet their board of supervisors have been predominantly white for as long as people can remember. Through the settlement process in the California Voting Rights Act, communities will be able to engage in a community-based redistricting process and be able to ensure that Asian-American voters, as one district, [are] able to have meaningful opportunities to vote,” Joanna Cuevas Ingram, an attorney with the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area, testified at the NCVR California state hearing.

Types of Discrimination

Some of the gap in Asian-American registration and voting may be explained by the fact that a majority of Asian Americans are foreign born and thus are not native English speakers, and may not speak English proficiently.²⁴⁵ Indeed, the 2006-2008 American Community Survey reported that 75 percent of Asian-American adults speak a language other than English at home. The “rate is 89 percent among foreign-born adults and...31 percent among native-born Asian Americans.”²⁴⁶

As is documented in every election cycle by the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund (AALDEF), discrimination against Asian Americans persists at the polls. This is particularly true with regard to the failure to provide required language assistance and poll workers who are poorly trained on how to assist predominantly Asian and Asian-language-speaking voters at the polls.

In 2008, AALDEF observers monitored 229 poll sites in 11 targeted states and surveyed 16,665 voters.²⁴⁷ The organization reported that, “Language assistance, such as interpreters or translated voting materials, if any, was far from adequate. Notwithstanding federal mandates, poll workers were cavalier in providing language assistance to voters. In our survey, 254 Asian American voters complained that there were no interpreters or translated materials available to help them vote.”²⁴⁸ In one example from that year, AALDEF observers found that in New York City, where language assistance is required by law, a quarter of the Chinese and Korean interpreters needed were absent from the polls.²⁴⁹ In Boston, the United States DOJ had sued the city under Section 2 of the VRA for discrimination against Chinese interpreters and more than a quarter of Vietnamese voters, and a settlement was reached, applicable through the end of 2008, in which language assistance was mandated.²⁵⁰ None the less, in the 2008 election the AALDEF survey found 38 percent of respondents in Boston “wished to receive oral language assistance [but] could not find interpreters who spoke their language or dialect.”²⁵¹

According to AALDEF observers, problems continued in 2012, especially with regard to localities newly covered by Section 203 a result of the 2011 coverage determinations. As discussed in Chapter 7, Bengali ballots were not provided to voters in Queens, New York; interpreters were lacking throughout New York City; and in Hamtramck, Michigan, there were insufficient numbers of Bengali interpreters.²⁵² In both the 2008 and 2012 elections AALDEF found instances of hostility and rudeness, and occasional outright racist attitudes among poll workers.

From 1995 to 2014, 17 percent of successful challenges to a jurisdiction’s failure to provide adequate bilingual voting assistance involved one or more Asian language.²⁵³ Of these, Chinese was the language most often involved; the other languages involved in at least one case were Bengali, Ilocano, Japanese, Korean, Tagalog, and Vietnamese.²⁵⁴

Of those jurisdictions formerly covered under Section 4 of the VRA, relatively few are home to a concentrated Asian-American population. Accordingly, a proportionally small number of Section 5 objections concerned Asian-American voters.

Of the 113 Section 5 preclearance denials during this time period, only three dealt with discrimination against these minority voters.²⁵⁵ Two of the three objections addressed procedures adopted by Georgia and Texas for verifying the citizenship status of voter registration applicants.²⁵⁶ This suggests that Asian Americans continue to face additional burdens associated with demonstrating their eligibility to participate in the political process.

As referenced above, Asian Americans also face particular difficulties in bringing successful challenges under Section 2 due to patterns of population distribution.²⁵⁷ Because the population of Asian Americans in most jurisdictions is proportionally small, there are not many jurisdictions where Asian Americans could satisfy the first Gingles precondition of being able to constitute a voting majority in a geographically compact single-member district, which is necessary for a successful vote dilution challenge under Section 2 of the VRA.²⁵⁸

V. CONCLUSION

As discussed above, voting discrimination affecting African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and Asian Americans remains a significant issue. In the next two chapters, this report will explore in greater depth the various ways in which voting laws and practices impact the right to vote of these racial and ethnic minorities.

Hearing witnesses listen to testimony at the NCVR Nashville hearing held at the Greater Bethel AME Church.
PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

“In the June 2010 Democratic primary for the Attorney General race, looking within the boundaries of Assembly District 53 [...], the candidate supported by an estimated 83% of Asian American voters received support from only an estimated 4% of non-Asian American voters.”

–Eugene Lee of Asian Americans Advancing Justice, Los Angeles at the NCVR California state hearing

CHAPTER 5

Voting Discrimination, 1995–2014: Minority Vote Dilution

I. INTRODUCTION

As discussed in various places in this Report, most forms of voting discrimination fall into one of two categories. The first form consists of practices that have the intent or result of making it more difficult for citizens to vote, commonly called “vote denial,” or ballot access restrictions. These issues are discussed in Chapters 6 and 7. The second form consists of circumstances where minority voters are not prevented from voting but where their votes are devalued. This form of discrimination is called “vote dilution” and is the subject of the present chapter.

The Supreme Court first recognized the concept of vote dilution in the 1964 case Reynolds v. Sims.¹ In Reynolds, Alabama voters challenged the constitutionality of Alabama’s legislative districts, which had not been redrawn in decades. The existing plan allotted, for example, over 600,000 people to one Alabama Senate district and fewer than 20,000 to two others.² The Supreme Court found that this violated the equal protection rights of voters in the most populated districts. In doing so, the Court stated that “[t]he right of suffrage can be denied by a debasement or dilution of the weight of a citizen’s vote just as effectively as by wholly prohibiting the free exercise of the franchise.”³

Since the late 1960s, the predominant form of discrimination suffered by minority voters has been vote dilution. Because the VRA’s ban on tests and devices made it more difficult for jurisdictions to prevent voters from voting, jurisdictions moved to dilute the minority vote instead.⁴ As discussed in Chapter 1, Sections 2 and 5 of the VRA prevent minority vote dilution, but what constitutes vote dilution is usually not as clear-cut as what constitutes a test or device. Indeed, cases based on the Section 2 results standard are notoriously complex⁵ because plaintiffs must first satisfy three preconditions (regarding district size and geographical compactness, minority political cohesion, and the defeat of minority-preferred candidates because of white bloc voting) and then prevail on the multi-factor and all-inclusive “totality of the circumstances” balancing test.⁶

Nonetheless, courts have repeatedly found Section 2 vote dilution violations and the Department of Justice (DOJ) has interposed hundreds of Section 5 objections to practices because they weakened the voting strength of minority voters. Vote dilution violations are most common in the context of redistricting and in the use of at-large elections or multi-member districts. These two phenomena are discussed below, after a discussion of racial polarized voting, which is a necessary component of vote dilution.

II. RACIALLY POLARIZED VOTING AND ITS ONGOING PREVALENCE

How Analyses of Racial Bloc Voting are Performed

Racially polarized voting occurs when whites and minorities consistently support different political candidates. By definition, racially polarized voting is “a pattern of voting along racial lines where voters of the same race support the same candidate who is different from the candidate supported by voters of a different race.”⁷ In areas where racially polarized voting exists, there is an increased need for vigilance against attempts to dilute minority power. As the district court explained in Northwest Austin Municipal Utility District No. One v. Mukasey, racially polarized voting “enables the use of devices such as multi-member districts and at-large elections that dilute the voting strength of minority communities.”⁸ Conversely, where voters do not typically vote along racial lines, racial vote dilution cannot occur because voter preferences are not correlated to the race of those voters.

In the process of proving minority vote dilution, plaintiffs typically establish the presence of racially polarized voting by conducting a statistical analysis of voting patterns. The two most frequently used analyses are Bivariate Ecological Regression Analysis and Ecological Inference Analysis. Both of these analyses use two variables, the racial composition of each precinct and the number of votes each candidate received in the precinct, to estimate the amount of white and minority support each candidate received. The accuracy of the analysis depends on the quality of the demographic data for each precinct, the number of precincts, and the variation of the racial demographics among the precincts.⁹ Analysts examine a series of elections to determine whether a pattern of racially polarized voting exists.¹⁰

Findings of Racially Polarized Voting Regarding State Redistricting Plans

Fifty years after the passage of the VRA, racially polarized voting remains a prevalent and persistent phenomenon. The many successful vote dilution claims under Section 2 of the VRA constitute proof of its persistence because one must prove the existence of racially polarized voting to be successful. However, the proof does not stop there. Experts and scholars, both independent and state-hired, have made findings of racially polarized voting. These findings have recognized the existence of racially polarized voting on both national and state levels. Additionally, DOJ has cited racially polarized voting in interposing hundreds of Section 5 objections against proposed voting changes. Thus, racially polarized voting continues to be widespread. Examples of the aforementioned findings are discussed below.

Judicial Findings of Racially Polarized Voting in Challenges to Statewide Redistricting Plans

Over the last three decades, courts across the country have consistently acknowledged the continued presence of racially polarized voting while applying the factors outlined in the Supreme Court's Thornbug v. Gingles ruling.¹¹ The following are cases since 1995 regarding statewide redistricting plans where courts have found racially polarized voting:

Colorado

In Sanchez v. Colorado,¹² Hispanic voters challenged the post-1990 State House redistricting plan, alleging that the plan failed to draw a majority Hispanic district, thus violating Section 2 of the VRA. The Tenth Circuit of Appeals found that the plaintiffs “established under the totality of circumstances [that] racial polarization drive the voting community in HD 60 despite limited local success in being elected or appointed to political office.”¹³ The Tenth Circuit directed the district court to impose a remedy that drew a majority Hispanic district in Southern Colorado.

Montana

Native American voters in Montana challenged the constitutionality of the state legislature redistricting plan adopted after the 1990 census. In Old Person v. Cooney, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals “conclude[d] that the white majority in the four districts ‘votes sufficiently as a bloc to enable it...usually to defeat the [American Indians]’ preferred candidate.”¹⁴ The plaintiffs ultimately lost the case on other grounds.¹⁵

South Carolina

African-American and white voters in *Smith v. Beasley*¹⁶ challenged the constitutionality of the 1995 State House and Senate redistricting plans in South Carolina. The challenge was raised on the grounds that race was the predominant factor considered in redrawing election districts. The district court noted, “[i]n South Carolina, voting has been, and still is, polarized by race. This voting pattern is general throughout the state and is present in all of the challenged House and Senate districts in this litigation.”¹⁷

Voters in *Colleton County Council v. McConnell*¹⁸ challenged the 2000 state and congressional redistricting plans of South Carolina. In its opinion, the district court directly addressed the presence of severe and persistent racially polarized voting, stating that “[v]oting in South Carolina continues to be racially polarized to a very high degree, in all regions of the state and in both primary elections and general elections. Statewide, black citizens generally are a highly politically cohesive group and whites engage in significant white-bloc voting.”¹⁹ Moreover,

[I]n order to give minority voters an equal opportunity to elect a minority candidate of choice as well as an equal opportunity to elect a white candidate of choice in a primary election in South Carolina, a majority-minority or very near majority-minority black voting age population in each district remains a minimum requirement.²⁰

Massachusetts

In Black Political Task Force v. Galvin,²¹ voters challenged the 2001 Massachusetts State House redistricting plan. The lawsuit alleged that the redistricting plan eliminated two majority-minority districts, reduced the minority population into one district and “super-packed” another district so that minorities made up 98 percent of the district’s voting age population.²² The district court found racially polarized voting, noting “the presence of both cohesive African-American voting and a white bloc voting staunch enough to defeat a black-preferred candidate.”²³ The district court struck down the redistricting plan and ordered the State to prepare and submit a new plan consistent with Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act.²⁴

Tennessee

In West Tennessee African-American Affairs Council v. Sunquist,^{24a} African-American voters successfully challenged a 1994 redistricting plan for the Tennessee House of Representatives under Section 2 based upon a dilution of minority voting strength in the western portion of the State. Tennessee agreed in the litigation that African Americans vote in a cohesive manner but claimed that white voters do not usually vote as a bloc to defeat candidates supported by African-American voters. On appeal from the district court’s ruling in favor of plaintiffs, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit affirmed. The court undertook a detailed review of the evidence, and concluded that the district court had not erred in finding that white voters typically cast their ballots against minority-supported legislative candidates.

Wisconsin

In response to a lawsuit filed by Latino voters in Wisconsin, a three-judge district court in Baldus v. Members of Wisconsin Government Accountability Board,^{24b} found that the post-2010 plan for the State Assembly violated Section 2. The court agreed with expert testimony that voting is polarized between Latino and white voters.

South Dakota

Native American voters in Bone Shirt v. Hazeltine challenged a 2001 South Dakota legislative districting plan.²⁵ The district court concluded that “substantial evidence, both statistical and lay, demonstrates that voting in South Dakota is racially polarized among whites and Indians.” In addition, “the white majority in District 26 ‘votes sufficiently as a bloc to enable it... to usually defeat the [Indian] preferred candidate.’”²⁶ The district court ruled that the redistricting plan violated the VRA and the State was ordered to redraw district lines in compliance with Section 2.

Texas

As discussed later in this chapter, federal courts found that racially polarized voting exists throughout Texas in finding that Texas's 2003 congressional redistricting plan and 2011 congressional, State House, and State Senate plans violated the VRA.

State-Hired Expert Findings of Continuing Racial Polarization

It is not only courts that acknowledge the existence of racially polarized voting; state-hired experts have conducted analyses of racial bloc voting and also found that racially polarized voting persists in other states.

Arizona

In 2011, Harvard University Professor of Government Gary King and mapping consultant Ken Strasma were hired by the Arizona Independent Redistricting Commission to conduct an analysis of racially polarized voting in Arizona. King and Strasma found that racially polarized voting continues to exist in multiple legislative districts in the State.^{26a}

Alaska

At the request of the Alaska Redistricting Board, voting rights and redistricting expert Dr. Lisa Handley conducted an analysis of voting patterns by race in recent Alaska elections. Dr. Handley found that racially polarized voting is increasing in Alaska. According to Dr. Handley, “voting was more polarized in Alaska this past decade than in the previous decade.”^{26b}

California

University of Washington Professor of Political Science Matt Barreto and counsel for the California Citizens Redistricting Commission, the official redistricting body in California, found that racially polarized voting continues to exist in California. Specifically, Dr. Barreto stated that “there was strong evidence of racially polarized voting with respect to Latinos and non-Latinos in Fresno, Orange, San Diego, Riverside, and San Bernardino Counties.”^{26c} Dr. Barreto also found racially polarized voting with regard to Latinos, African Americans, and Asians in Los Angeles County.

Kansas

In 2012, Dr. Handley was hired by the Kansas Legislative Research Department to conduct an analysis of racial bloc voting in elections during 2008 and 2010. Her research revealed that Kansas continues to wrestle with the issue of racially polarized voting.²⁷ During her study, Dr. Handley examined 14 statewide and legislative elections in Kansas that included a minority candidate. Of the 14 elections that Dr. Handley examined, she found that the majority of the contests (9 of 14) showed trends of racially/ethnically polarized voting: “minority and white voters clearly supported different candidates.”²⁸

Other Expert Findings of Increasing Racial Polarization in Voting in a State or Region

The phenomenon of racially polarized voting not only continues to exist; many experts have recognized a trend of increased polarization. During the most recent VRA reauthorization proceedings, Congress heard testimony about increasing polarization in Southern jurisdictions. The House Report documenting those proceedings notes that “Testimony presented indicated that ‘the degree of racially polarized voting in the South is increasing, not decreasing... [and is] in certain ways re-creating the segregated system of the Old South.’”²⁹

Similarly, David Bositis of the Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies stated that

[F]ollowing the election of President Barack Obama, many political observers—especially conservative ones—suggested that the United States is now a post-racial society. Three years later, in the region of the country where most African Americans live, the South, there is strong statistical evidence that politics is re-segregating, with African Americans once again excluded from power and representation.³⁰

At the National Commission for Voting Rights hearing held in Nashville, Tennessee, Professor Sekou Franklin of Middle Tennessee State University testified about increasing racially polarized voting in the State. He testified that African-American and white voters became 25 percent more polarized between the 2000 and 2012 presidential elections and further noted that in the 2007 Nashville mayoral race, the African-American candidate received 80 percent of African-American votes while only receiving 11 percent of white votes.³¹

Sekou Franklin, Ph.D., Professor of Political Science at Middle Tennessee State University, testified about racially polarized voting at the NCVR Nashville regional hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

DOJ Findings of Racially Polarized Voting in Statewide Redistricting Plans

In addition to federal court findings of racially polarized voting and expert reports on the presence of racially polarized voting, there have been numerous DOJ objections that note the presence of racially polarized voting as a reason for denying preclearance for a statewide redistricting plan in a formerly covered jurisdiction, including the following:

Arizona

DOJ objected to the 2001 legislative redistricting plan. In the objection letter, DOJ noted that Arizona provided insufficient evidence to show that voting was not racially polarized. As such, Arizona failed to prove that a decrease in the number of majority-minority districts would not be retrogressive.³²

Florida

In 2002, DOJ objected to a redistricting plan for the State House of Representatives insofar as it affected the State's covered counties. DOJ found that Hispanic voters support Hispanic candidates but Anglo voters do not.³³

Louisiana

DOJ objected to a 1996 congressional redistricting plan in Louisiana. The objection letter noted that "in... interracial contests, black voters overwhelmingly supported the black candidate and white cross-over was minimal." DOJ concluded: "In light of the pattern of racially polarized voting that appears to prevail in elections in the State, Act No. 96 [the redistricting plan] would appear to provide no realistic opportunity for black voters to elect a candidate of their choice outside the New Orleans area."³⁴

South Carolina

South Carolina submitted a State Senate redistricting plan in 1997 for preclearance, and the DOJ objected. According to the objection letter, there were clear findings of racially polarized voting. The letter noted, "In the context of the racially polarized voting patterns that the court found to exist, see Smith, 946 F. Supp. at 1202, these reductions [in black voting age population] will significantly hinder black voters' electoral opportunities in these districts."³⁵

Texas

In 2001, DOJ objected to the proposed State House redistricting plan. The objection letter found racially polarized voting in those elections.³⁶

Greater Racially Polarized Voting in the Formerly Covered Jurisdictions than in Non-Covered Jurisdictions

In Northwest Austin Municipal Utility District No. One v. Holder,³⁷ several prominent academics authored an amicus brief that included, among other things, an analysis comparing the degree of support Barack Obama received from white voters in covered and non-covered jurisdictions in the 2008 general election. According to an exit poll, 26 percent of white voters supported Barack Obama in covered states compared to 48 percent white voters in non-covered states.³⁸ Moreover, the six states with the lowest percentage of whites voting for Obama were fully covered by Section 5 at the time: Alabama (10 percent), Mississippi (11 percent), Louisiana (14 percent), Georgia (23 percent), South Carolina (26 percent), and Texas (26 percent).³⁹ The five states where Obama received the lowest levels of white support are among the six states where African Americans make up the greatest percentage of the population.⁴⁰ The county-level regression analysis showed similar results: Obama received the estimated support of 24 percent of white voters in counties formerly covered by Section 5 compared to 46 percent of white voters in non-covered counties.⁴¹

Similarly, in 2005, the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act received testimony from Dr. Richard Engstrom, a noted expert on the issue of racially polarized voting, who has testified on behalf of the federal government, state, and local governments, and private parties. Dr. Engstrom stated that based on recent analyses he had done, voting was racially polarized throughout Louisiana, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, and Texas.⁴²

The presence of racially polarized voting is the “evidentiary linchpin” of a successful vote dilution claim. Federal courts, DOJ (in its administrative review function), and several analysts have demonstrated that voting remains polarized in many areas of the country, and particularly in the states that were covered by Section 5. Given this persistent trend, minorities are likely to continue finding themselves subject to election schemes and redistricting plans that limit their ability to fully participate in the electoral process.

III. AT-LARGE AND MULTI-MEMBER METHODS OF ELECTION AND RELATED PRACTICES DILUTE MINORITIES' VOTING STRENGTH

Introduction

As was detailed at the beginning of this Report, vote dilution schemes have taken many forms over the years. The use of at-large elections and multi-member districts remains one of the common vote dilution schemes. The Supreme Court has explained that

At-large voting schemes and multimember districts tend to minimize the voting strength of minority groups by permitting the political majority to elect all representatives of the district. A distinct minority, whether it be a racial, ethnic, economic, or political group, may be unable to elect any representatives in an at-large election, yet may be able to elect several representatives if the political unit is divided into single-member districts. The minority's voting power in a multimember district is particularly diluted when bloc voting occurs and ballots are cast along strict majority-minority lines.⁴³

In an at-large or multi-member district system, all voters in the jurisdiction vote for all of the seats on a governmental body for that jurisdiction; if there are five seats on the county council, for instance, each voter is able to cast a vote for all five seats. At-large elections and multi-member districts are not per se a violation of the Constitution or of Section 2 of the VRA.⁴⁴ Rather, it is only when at-large elections and multi-member districts are used and voting is also racially polarized that these methods of election can dilute minority voting strength and violate Section 2. When voting is racially polarized in at-large and multi-member systems, the majority will be able to elect all of its candidates of choice and the minority will not be able to elect any.⁴⁵ Even if the polarization is “less than absolute,” at-large and multi-member systems can still severely inhibit the ability of minorities to elect their candidates of choice.⁴⁶

There are several other election practices that can dilute minority votes when used where voting is racially polarized. One such practice is a majority vote requirement in the context of at-large or multi-member elections, which requires that a candidate garner a majority—not simply a plurality—of the votes in order to win. If the white majority splits its votes among many candidates, it is possible that a minority-preferred candidate may win a plurality. If there is a majority vote requirement and a runoff is necessary, however, the minority candidate will not win in a racially polarized context.

Another practice that can dilute minority voting strength if voting is racially polarized is the prevention of “single-shot” or “bullet” voting in at-large or multi-member elections. Single-shot voting is only possible in contests where multiple seats are open and top vote-getters fill the available seats. When a voter “single-shoots” he has the opportunity to vote for multiple candidates but chooses to cast only one vote in order to concentrate support for his preferred candidate. “Single-shot voting enables a minority group to win some at-large seats if it concentrates its vote behind a limited number of candidates and if the vote of the majority is divided among a number of candidates.”⁴⁷ Single-shot voting has often led to the election of a minority-preferred candidate where voting is racially polarized, though it does require that minority voters forgo their say over the other candidates for the office in question.⁴⁸

One anti-single-shot device is the “full-slate rule,” wherein voters are required to cast all of their available votes for an office (or their ballots will be invalidated). A second is a numbered place system, wherein each candidate must run for a specific place (1, 2, 3, etc.) rather than against all of the candidates.⁴⁹ Much like numbered place systems, residency districts prevent single-shot voting by restricting candidacy for a position to individuals who live in a certain district, even though voters from all districts will choose among the candidates for that district. Both numbered place systems and residency districts also tend to reduce the number of candidates in a contest, which makes it less likely that majority support will be divided and that a minority candidate will be able to win with a plurality of votes. In a racially polarized setting, any of these devices may prevent election of a minority-preferred candidate.⁵⁰

Many current attempts to dilute the voting power of minorities are reactions to changes in the location and size of minority populations. What follows are several examples that provide an overview of the types of vote dilution cases from the very recent past.

Overview of successful Section 2 challenges and Section 5 objections to at-large and multi-member methods of election, 1995 to present⁵¹

Of the cases brought between 1995 and June 2014 under Section 2 of the VRA in which plaintiffs have been successful (excluding cases regarding bilingual requirements), the vast majority—over 70 percent—related to methods of election. These cases were brought in 21 different states, including six of the states formerly covered in whole by Section 5. Most of these 21 states had between one and three successful cases related to methods of election, but Georgia had six, Mississippi had seven, and Texas had 78.

In the same time period, 20 voting changes related to methods of election were denied preclearance under Section 5 of the VRA by the Attorney General. These denials represent a much smaller share of Section 5 denials than the percent of successful Section 2 cases that relate to election methods. The difference in these percentages is illustrative of the different types of problems that Section 2 and Section 5 are able to address most effectively. The 20 preclearance denials were spread out among jurisdictions in nine different states, though there were four denials for jurisdictions in South Carolina and five denials for jurisdictions in Texas. There was only one preclearance denial for a state-level method of election: in 2010, the Attorney General denied preclearance to Mississippi for a majority vote requirement for certain county boards of trustees and boards of education.⁵²

Changing to At-Large Elections as Minority Groups Grow

In certain areas of the country, the minority population has markedly increased its share of the overall population over the last several decades. In some places, as the minority population grew, jurisdictions changed their method of election from single-member districts—through which the minority group may have been able to elect a candidate of choice—to at-large elections where the minority group's votes would be diluted. In each of the following examples, a Section 2 challenge resulted in the restoration of single-member districts several years after a jurisdiction changed to at-large elections.

United States v. Benson County, North Dakota

In March 2000, the United States and Benson County, North Dakota ended litigation by entering into a consent decree in which the County admitted that its at-large method of electing its five County Commissioners violated Section 2 of the VRA. Prior to 1992, the members of the Benson County, North Dakota Board of Commissioners had been elected from single-member districts.⁵³ Between the 1980 census and the 1990 census, the Native American population in Benson County grew as a share of the County's total population. In 1980, Native Americans constituted 29.2 percent of the County's total population;⁵⁴ by 1990 they had grown to be 38.3 percent of the County's total population and 29.3 percent of the voting age population.⁵⁵ As of the 1990 census, two of the districts for the County Commission were majority Native American.⁵⁶ In 1992, the county changed its method of electing the County Commissioners from single-member districts to at-large.⁵⁷ No Native American was elected to the County Commission under the at-large method of election.⁵⁸

In March 2000, the United States filed suit against Benson County, alleging that the at-large method of electing county commissioners, adopted after the Native American share of population increased, violated Section 2 of the VRA.⁵⁹ The district court entered a consent decree four days later in which Benson County admitted that the at-large method of elections for the County's Commissioners violated Section 2 of the VRA.⁶⁰ The consent decree provided that Benson County would devise a new single-member district voting plan including two majority-Native American districts if they could be constitutionally drawn.⁶¹

United States v. Osceola County, Florida

In 2006, a U.S. district court in Florida held that Osceola County's method of electing its five-member County Commission caused a dilution of Hispanic votes in violation of Section 2 of the VRA.⁶² The total population of Osceola County had increased dramatically over the previous decades, and the percentage of the population that is Hispanic had also increased dramatically. In 1980, Hispanics represented only two percent of the County's population; by 2000, Hispanics made up almost 30 percent of the County's population.⁶³ Additionally, the Hispanic population, as a portion of all registered voters in the County, grew from about 20 percent in 2000 to almost 31 percent in 2006. As the Hispanic population grew, leaders in the Latino community began to express an interest in political representation at the county level, but Latino candidates had not been successful in getting elected. In 1991, the Osceola County Hispanic American Association requested that the County Commission change the election system from at-large to single-member districts.⁶⁴ A public referendum to change to single-member districts passed in the 1992 election, with 57 percent of voters in favor. Less than two weeks later, efforts began to return the system to at-large. The 1996 election was conducted under a single-member district system, but included a referendum for a return to at-large elections.⁶⁵ A Hispanic candidate was elected from a single-member district in the 1996 election, but the referendum to return to at-large elections also passed.⁶⁶ Members of the Hispanic community continued to advocate for single-member districts, but the County Commission was not responsive to their requests. Hispanic candidates also continued to run unsuccessfully for County Commission.⁶⁷

In 2005, the United States sued Osceola County alleging that the at-large method of electing the County Commissioners violated Section 2 of the VRA. The defendants did not dispute that the second and third Gingles preconditions were satisfied (i.e., that Hispanics in the county were politically cohesive and that white voters generally voted in a bloc to defeat minority candidates).⁶⁸ After a trial, the district court found that the first Gingles precondition was also satisfied, and that, under the totality of the circumstances, the County's at-large method diluted the voting strength of Hispanics in violation of Section 2. In its analysis of the totality of the circumstances, the court relied on the extent of racially polarized voting; the history of a lack of success by Hispanic candidates at the polls (other than when the County employed a single-member plan); the socioeconomic disparities between Hispanics and non-Hispanics in the County; and a history of discrimination against Hispanics in the County, including discrimination at the polls in the 2000 election when Hispanics "were turned away without being allowed to vote, refused assistance, forbidden to use their own interpreters, asked for multiple forms of identification (unlike non-Hispanic voters), and treated in a hostile manner by poll workers."⁶⁹

The court also noted that several of Osceola County's election practices—including the requirement of a runoff in primary elections and Commissioners' residency districts—further enhanced opportunities for discrimination and contributed to the lack of success of Hispanic candidates.⁷⁰

Jeff Wice, Fellow at the Jaeckle Center at the SUNY Buffalo Law School; Susan Lerner, Executive Director of Common Cause New York; Aunna Dennis, National Coordinator for the Legal Mobilization Project at the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law; DeNora Getachew, Campaign Manager and Legislative Counsel at the Brennan Center for Justice; and Dan Kolb, Co-Chair of the New York State Bar Association's Special Committee on Voter Participation and Lawyers' Committee board member, answered questions at the NCVR New York City regional hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: CHRIS FIELDS

Refusal to Change to Single-Member Districts as a Minority Population Increases

In some areas of the country where the minority population has grown as a share of the total population, minority groups have advocated for a change from an at-large system in order to increase the chances of electing a candidate of choice. Jurisdictions have staunchly refused to change to a more racially-fair alternative and have needed to be compelled by court order to do so.

United States v. Village of Port Chester, New York

In January 2008, a U.S. district court found that the at-large method of election for the six-member Board of Trustees of the Village of Port Chester, New York violated Section 2 of the VRA by impermissibly diluting the voting strength of Latinos.⁷¹ From 1990 to 2000, the Latino population of Port Chester had grown 73 percent, and, as of the 2000 census, Latinos constituted 46.2 percent of the village's population, while 42.8 percent of the population was white and 6.6 percent was non-Hispanic black.⁷² The citizen voting age population was 65.5 percent white, 21.9 percent Hispanic, and 8.9 percent non-Hispanic black.⁷³ Despite the increase in and substantial size of the Latino population of Port Chester, no Latino had ever been elected to the Board of Trustees (or, as of the time of the trial in the case, to any elected office in Port Chester).⁷⁴

In finding a violation of Section 2, the court’s discussion included the history of official discrimination in Port Chester Village and Westchester County against Latinos, including disparate treatment of Spanish-speaking voters and failure to provide sufficient Spanish language assistance at the polls; the nominating process for getting on the ballot, which favored those with political ties or institutional support, which most Latinos lacked; the lower average levels of income and formal education for Latinos in Port Chester; and racial appeals in campaigns in Port Chester, including a flyer stating, “The Hispanics are running the show already.”⁷⁵

The Village of Port Chester proposed cumulative voting—a system where every voter is allotted as many votes as there are candidates and may give all to one candidate or varying numbers to several candidates—as a remedy, and the court accepted a plan of at-large elections with cumulative voting. In 2010 the Village of Port Chester elected its first Latino member of the Board of Trustees.⁷⁶

United States v. Blaine County, Montana

“Official discrimination against American Indians, racially polarized voting, voting procedures that enhanced the opportunities for discrimination against American Indians, depressed socioeconomic conditions for American Indians, a tenuous justification for [the] at-large voting system. While Blaine County argued that none of this existed in their voting system, the record was clear to the contrary.”

William ‘Snuffy’ Main at the NCVR Rapid City regional hearing

In 2002, a U.S. district court found that Blaine County, Montana’s at-large system for electing its three-member County Commission violated Section 2 of the VRA.⁷⁷ From 1980 to 2000, the share of the population of Blaine County that was Native American had increased dramatically. In 1980, Native Americans made up 31.7 percent of the population of Blaine County;⁷⁸ as of the 1990 census, that number had increased to 39.6 percent.⁷⁹ By the time of the 2000 census, Native Americans comprised 45.2 percent of the total population and 38.8 percent of the voting age population of Blaine County (with 80 percent of the Native population concentrated on the Fort Belknap Reservation), yet no Native American had ever been elected to the County Commission.⁸⁰ In 1999, the United States sued Blaine County, alleging that the at-large voting system for electing County Commissioners violated Section 2 of the VRA. In concluding that the at-large system violated Section 2, the court found that there was a history of official discrimination against Native Americans, racially polarized voting, voting procedures that enhanced the opportunities for discrimination against Native Americans, and a tenuous justification for the at-large voting system.⁸¹ Blaine County proposed a remedial plan with three single-member districts, which the district court approved. In 2002, a tribal member, Delores Plumage, was elected to the County Commission.⁸²

United States v. City of Euclid

Until the late 1970s, the city of Euclid was a predominantly white suburb of Cleveland. In the 1970s, African Americans represented only half of one percent of the city's total population. The African-American population grew in the 1980s and 1990s, while the white population decreased. As of the 2000 census, Euclid's African-American voting age population was 27.8 percent of the total population, yet none of Euclid's four wards had a majority of African Americans of voting age.⁸³ The nine-member City Council was elected as follows: four members were elected from single-member districts, four were elected at-large from numbered posts, and one was elected at-large to serve as president of the council.⁸⁴ African-American candidates had run for city council ten times since 1981, but lost each time. No African-American had ever been elected to the City Council, School Board or as Mayor of Euclid.⁸⁵

In 2008, the United States filed a suit alleging that Euclid's method of electing its City Council resulted in the dilution of African-American voting strength in violation of Section 2. The court agreed that Euclid's method of electing its City Council violated Section 2 based on racially polarized voting, a history of discrimination in several areas including housing and education, and a persistent lack of responsiveness to the needs of the African-American community by elected officials.

In response, the city divided Euclid into eight single-member districts, while retaining the at-large Council President position. After implementation of the plan, an African American was elected to the Euclid City Council from one of the majority-minority districts established by the remedial plan.⁸⁶ Since then, a second African American has been elected to the Euclid City Council.

Entrenched Opposition to Minority Representation

Other cases of minority vote dilution, whether or not they follow an increase in the minority group's share of the population, demonstrate entrenched opposition to minority representation. From refusing to submit a single-member plan as ordered by a court, to attempting to return to an at-large system after having changed to a single-member system, to refusing to settle cases where the Section 2 violation is so clear that it had been decided on summary judgment, there are several examples of this entrenched opposition, including the following.

Large v. Fremont County, Wyoming

In Wyoming, a U.S. district court found in 2010 that Fremont County's at-large system for the election of County Commissioners violated Section 2 of the VRA by impermissibly diluting the voting strength of Native American voters.⁸⁷ Fremont County is home to the Wind River Indian Reservation, which includes Eastern Shoshone and Northern Arapaho Tribes.⁸⁸ As of the 2000 census, the population of the County was about 20 percent Native American.⁸⁹ Yet prior to the filing of Large, no Native American had ever been elected to the five-seat County

Commission. The district court found that discrimination against Indians in Fremont County was “ongoing, and that the effects of historical discrimination remain[ed] palpable[,]” and the court rejected “any attempt to characterize this discrimination as being politically, rather than racially, motivated.”⁹⁰ The evidence of ongoing discrimination included the use of racial slurs against Native Americans, including signs on stores that said “No Dogs or Indians Allowed”; Native Americans being followed around in stores, ignored by sales people, or served only after whites had been served; disparate treatment in the criminal justice system; and even a comment by a County Commissioner (before he was in office) that, “I hate the [expletive] Indians.”⁹¹ Additionally, when Native Americans had run for office in Fremont County, the campaigns against them included racial appeals such as ads reminding voters that a candidate was “an enrolled member and that he would be voting on water issues,” and a warning not to vote for one Native American candidate because if elected he “was going to give [a town in Fremont County] back to the Indians.”⁹² After Large was filed (but before the case concluded), one Native American was elected to the County Commission. During her campaign, she voiced support for at-large elections, which is a position that the white majority would likely favor.⁹³

“The issue is, we weren’t being represented and our population is 20 percent of the county... [and] our population is growing.”

Gary Collins, Northern Arapaho Tribal Liaison, at the NCVR Rapid City regional hearing

After finding that the at-large plan violated Section 2, the district court ordered the County to propose a plan to elect Commissioners by district rather than at-large.⁹⁴ Despite this order, the County proposed another plan that negated the voting power of Native Americans. This hybrid plan consisted of two districts: one single-seat majority-Native American district, with 19.2 percent of the county’s population, and one four-seat majority white district covering the rest of the county.⁹⁵ Candidates from the majority-Native American district would be required to live in the district and would be elected only by voters in that district; the four remaining seats would be elected by the remaining population using an at-large scheme.⁹⁶ Essentially, members of the white majority would be allowed to vote for four commissioners while Native Americans would be allowed to vote for only one. The district court found that the plan “perpetuat[ed] the separation, isolation, and racial polarization in the County, guaranteeing that the non-Indian majority continues to cancel out the voting strength of the minority.”⁹⁷ The district court rejected the county’s proposed plan and ordered a single-member district plan be implemented.⁹⁸

Cuthair v. Montezuma-Cortez School District

In 1998, a district court in Colorado found that the at-large elections of the six-member Board of Education for the Montezuma-Cortez School District diluted Native American voting strength in violation of Section 2 of the VRA.⁹⁹ The plaintiffs, members of the Ute Mountain Ute Tribe and Southern Ute Tribe, had originally brought suit in 1989 challenging the at-large method.¹⁰⁰ In 1990, the district court entered a consent decree establishing a majority Native American district (“District D”) for the 1991 and 1993 school board elections; the remaining five positions on the School Board were still elected at-large. The consent decree also included the unusual provision that if no Native American candidate (or candidate endorsed by the Tribal Council) was elected for District D in 1991 or 1993, the defendants would have a year in which they could request that the court allow them to restore at-large elections for all school board positions.¹⁰¹ When no Native American was elected to District D in 1991 or 1993, the defendants sought permission to resume at-large elections.

A different district court judge determined that the consent decree was unenforceable, and held that the at-large elections violated Section 2 of the VRA. The court reviewed an extensive history of “pervasive discrimination and abuse at the hands of the government” suffered by Native Americans in the United States and specifically in Colorado. That history, which includes government seizure of Ute land, a massacre of Indians in eastern Colorado, and decades of official policies of coercive assimilation, led to dire social and economic situations for Native Americans.¹⁰² The court also found that voting in the county was racially polarized, that the historical use of at-large elections presented the opportunity for discrimination against minority groups in Colorado and the County, that Native Americans in the County bore the effects of discrimination, and that no Native American had been elected to a non-tribal office in the County. The district court ordered the parties to submit appropriate districting plans for future elections.

Georgia State Conference of the NAACP v. Fayette County, Georgia

In 2013, the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia found that Fayette County, Georgia’s at-large method of electing members of the Board of Commissioners and Board of Education diluted the voting strength of African-American voters in violation of Section 2 of the VRA.¹⁰³ The court made this finding on a motion for summary judgment—meaning there was not even a trial because the court found that the key facts were undisputed. Indeed, some of the Board of Education defendants had already conceded that the at-large election of its members violated Section 2. This case is an example of both a refusal to change methods of election when a minority population increases and entrenched opposition to minority representation.

The percentage of the population of Fayette County that is African-American had almost doubled between 2000 and 2010. As of the 2000 census, African Americans comprised 11.5 percent of the County’s population.¹⁰⁴ By the time of the 2010 census, African Americans comprised 20.1 percent of the population and 19.5 percent of the voting age population, yet no African-American candidate had ever been elected to the five-member Board of Commissioners or five-member Board of Education.¹⁰⁵ Five African-American candidates had run for the Board of Education and seven had unsuccessfully run for the Board of Commissioners.

“Elections in Fayette County show a clear pattern of racially polarized voting. Although, Black voters are politically cohesive, bloc voting by other members of the electorate consistently defeats black-preferred candidates.”

Stated Rep. Virgil Fludd at the NCVR Georgia hearing.

The members of the County’s Board of Commissioners and Board of Education served staggered four-year terms and had to reside in the district from which they were elected, though the elections were at-large.¹⁰⁶ No African American had ever been elected to either the Board of Commissioners or Board of Education, and only one African American had ever been elected to a county-wide office.¹⁰⁷

In arguing against the plaintiffs’ motion for summary judgment, Fayette County did not even dispute the second and third Gingles preconditions.¹⁰⁸ The court found that the first precondition was satisfied and that the totality of the circumstances demonstrated vote dilution. In addition to finding a history of racial discrimination and racially polarized voting, the court also noted that election practices enhanced opportunities for discrimination. First, the County split its Commissioners into five individual contests and used numbered posts, eliminating the opportunity for single-shot voting. Second, the County had a majority-vote requirement, which can also dilute the voting strength of minority voters.¹⁰⁹

Case Spotlight

Charleston County, South Carolina

In 2003, a district court found that the at-large method of election of the members of the County Council of Charleston County, South Carolina, impermissibly diluted minority voting strength in violation of Section 2 of the VRA. As of the 2000 census, African Americans comprised 34.3 percent of Charleston County's total population and 30.6 percent of its voting age population.¹¹⁰ Only one of the nine members of the County Council was African-American, and he was not a minority-preferred candidate. At the time, Charleston County was one of only three counties in South Carolina that elected its entire County Council at-large, and was the only county in South Carolina to do so where whites were a majority of the population.¹¹¹ In July 2002, the court granted summary judgment to the plaintiffs on the three Gingles preconditions, meaning that the facts upon which the court relied to determine if the preconditions had been met were undisputed. The trial that followed thus focused on the totality of the circumstances, and the plaintiffs prevailed.

In the court's discussion of the totality of the circumstances in its 2003 opinion, it noted the "egregious" racial polarization in voting in Charleston County; that only one African-American candidate had ever won a county-wide election for any of the seven single-seat offices (including probate judge, sheriff, and auditor); and the vast socioeconomic disparity between African Americans and whites, with 34.2 percent of African Americans in the County living below the poverty level, compared with 7.9 percent of whites.¹¹² The court found that the depressed socioeconomic status of African Americans was "a direct legacy of Charleston County's history of official discrimination" and "makes it more difficult presently for Charleston County's African-American citizens to participate in the political process and elect candidates of choice."¹¹³ Additionally, the residency districts, staggering of terms, and primary nominating system meant that there was essentially a majority vote requirement, as all contests were either single-seat or two-seat contests with only two viable candidates per seat (one Democrat, one Republican). Such a situation also denied minority voters the opportunity to exert influence through single-shot voting.¹¹⁴

The court also found "significant evidence of intimidation and harassment" of African-American voters at predominantly African-American polling places; the Charleston County Circuit Court had even issued a restraining order against the Election Commission to cease the ongoing interference with the ability of African Americans to vote.¹¹⁵ There was also evidence that the right of African-American voters to receive assistance had been violated, with white poll managers asking questions such as, "Why do you need assistance? . . . [C]an't you read and write?" and "[Y]ou know how to spell your name, why can't you just vote by yourself?"¹¹⁶

After finding a violation of Section 2, the district court ordered single-member districts to replace the at-large system. In the first election by districts, in 2004, African-American voters elected three African-American council members, all of whom were minority-preferred candidates.¹¹⁷ The County appealed the case first to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals and then to the U.S. Supreme Court. The appeals court affirmed the district court, and the Supreme Court did not hear the case.¹¹⁸ As a result, Charleston County spent more than $2 million defending its discriminatory election system.¹¹⁹ The County was ordered to pay several hundred thousand dollars in attorneys' fees to the private plaintiffs.

This case also provides an illustration of the differences between Section 2 and Section 5. Like the County Council, the Charleston County School Board has nine members. At the time of the trial regarding the County Council's method of election, a majority of the School Board, which was elected by a different method, was African American.¹²⁰ In 2003, while the case regarding the County Council was on appeal, the South Carolina General Assembly, led by legislators from Charleston County, enacted a law changing School Board elections from nonpartisan to partisan. DOJ objected to the change on the ground that it would decrease minority voting strength, noting, among other things, that it eliminated the opportunity for single-shot voting.¹²¹ The Section 5 process thus prevented the implementation of a discriminatory voting change that could have taken several years and millions of dollars to invalidate in a Section 2 lawsuit.

IV. REDISTRICTING PLANS

There are three ways that redistricting plans can dilute minority voting strength. The first is through malapportionment, which the Supreme Court recognized in Reynolds v. Sims to be an unconstitutional form of vote dilution,¹²² as discussed above. When minority voters are in an overpopulated district, their votes are being diluted. The other two methods are fragmenting (or “cracking”) the minority population into different districts or packing it into a single district. The Supreme Court described these principles in Voinovich v. Quilter:

In the context of single-member districts, the usual device for diluting minority voting power is the manipulation of district lines. A politically cohesive minority group that is large enough to constitute the majority in a single-member district has a good chance of electing its candidate of choice, if the group is placed in a district where it constitutes a majority. Dividing the minority group among various districts so that it is a majority in none may prevent the group from electing its candidate of choice: If the majority in each district votes as a bloc against the minority candidate, the fragmented minority group will be unable to muster sufficient votes in any district to carry its candidate to victory.

This case focuses not on the fragmentation of a minority group among various districts but on the concentration of minority voters within a district. How such concentration or “packing” may dilute minority voting strength is not difficult to conceptualize. A minority group, for example, might have sufficient numbers to constitute a majority in three districts. So apportioned, the group inevitably will elect three candidates of its choice, assuming the group is sufficiently cohesive. But if the group is packed into two districts in which it constitutes a supermajority, it will be assured only two candidates. As a result, we have recognized that “[d]ilution of racial minority group voting strength may be caused” either “by the dispersal of blacks into districts in which they constitute an ineffective minority of voters or from the concentration of blacks into districts where they constitute an excessive majority.”¹²³

The following discussion sets forth examples of all three and how malapportionment, cracking, and packing have been used to dilute minority voting strength.

Malapportionment

The example of a recent case in Montana involving Native American voters demonstrates how malapportionment is used to dilute minority voting strength.

In August 2013, the American Civil Liberties Union filed a federal lawsuit against the Board of Trustees of Wolf Point, School District 45A, for creating a multimember districting plan that gave residents in a predominantly white voting district vastly more voting power than those in a majority Native American voting district.¹²⁴ The Wolf Point School District, located in north-eastern Montana, resides entirely in the Fort Peck Indian Reservation.¹²⁵ Wolf Point School District 45A was created with the merger of High School District 45 and Elementary School District 3.¹²⁶ When the merger took place, Wolf Point assigned five electable trustee positions to District 45 and three to District 3.¹²⁷ District 45 is a majority Native American district.¹²⁸ In April of 2014 the Court approved a consent decree finding that the Wolf Point School Board districts were malapportioned in violation of the 14th Amendment.¹²⁹ The consent decree recognized that, with respect to District 45, the ideal population for a district electing five of the eight Board members should be 2,897, as opposed to the 4,205 found under the existing plan.¹³⁰ The consent decree also recognized that, with respect to District 3, the ideal population for a district electing three members of the Board should be 1,738, rather than the 430 that it actually had.¹³¹ Through the consent decree the School District agreed to redraw voting areas for board elections and to eliminate two seats from District 3 for the 2014 election.¹³² The School District also agreed to create five single-member districts with an approximately equal number of residents and one at large position.¹³³ Each of the new single-member districts will have populations that vary no more than 1.54 percent.¹³⁴

Cracking

The following examples demonstrate how jurisdictions have sought to dilute the minority voting strength by cracking cohesive effective minority districts.

Arizona: Southwest Phoenix and Central and Southwest Tucson, 2002

In May 2002 in Arizona, the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) objected under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act (VRA) to the proposed 2001 legislative redistricting plan for the state, finding that southwest Phoenix voters from the existing House District 22 would “lose their present ability to elect their candidate of choice.” In its proposal, Arizona sought to split the existing District 22 between two districts, Districts 13 and 14. The resulting proposed districts would have Latino voting age populations of 51.2 and 50.6 percent, respectively, a significant reduction from the 65 percent found under the old District 22. DOJ noted that Arizona districts with Latino voting age population percentages in the low 50s had not historically permitted Latino voters “to elect a candidate of their choice.” In central and southwest Tucson, the DOJ also objected to proposed District 29. Proposed District 29 was created by cracking the previous Districts 9, 10, 11, and 14, and would have had “a Hispanic voting age population of 45.1 percent.” In particular the DOJ noted that the majority of proposed District 29’s population came from the previous “District 10, which had a Hispanic voting age population of 55.3 percent,” and that Arizona did not present credible evidence allowing DOJ to conclude that the drop of eight percentage points in the Hispanic voting age population would result in the “continued ability of voters in Proposed District 29 to elect candidates of their choice.” More generally, the DOJ determined that the proposed plan would result in a net loss of three districts in which minority voters could elect candidates of choice.¹³⁵

Virginia: Northampton County, 2001-03

Prior to its 2001 redistricting, the board of supervisors for Northampton County, Virginia had two majority black supervisor districts where African Americans had elected their candidates of choice for the last decade.¹³⁶ During the next several years, the county repeatedly submitted retrogressive redistricting plans and associated voting changes to DOJ for preclearance.

First, in September 2001, DOJ objected to the redistricting plan for the board of supervisors, as well as changes to the method of election for the board of supervisors in Northampton County.¹³⁷ Under the existing method of election, which included six single-member districts, two African-American supervisors, both from majority-black districts (and a third majority-minority district had previously elected minority candidates), were in office.¹³⁸ However, the proposed redistricting plan and change to three two-member districts contained no districts in which minorities constituted a majority of the voting age population. The DOJ cited that one district in the proposed plan would have “a minority voting age population of 48.8 percent.”¹³⁹ Others would have voting age populations of 39.3 percent and 43.5 percent.¹⁴⁰ The DOJ was not persuaded by the county’s argument that these changes were required to include “incorporated towns within single election districts” and to make access to polling places more convenient to voters.¹⁴¹ In fact the DOJ provided an illustrative six-district plan that addressed these concerns. The illustrative plan was very similar to the benchmark plan already in place. In all, the DOJ concluded that after examining the populations in question the proposed plan would have made it unlikely for the minority community to “elect two, much less, three candidates of choice.”¹⁴²

The next year Northampton County submitted a new redistricting plan and DOJ objected to it in May 2003.¹⁴³ DOJ again noted that under the existing plan there were three majority-minority (two of them majority African-American) districts.¹⁴⁴ However, “[t]he proposed plan has no district in which black persons constitute a majority of the [voting age population].”¹⁴⁵ Moreover, under the proposed plan, none of the districts had a combined minority voting age population above 52.1 percent, whereas the lowest combined minority voting age population among the three existing majority-minority districts was 52.8 percent.¹⁴⁶ The county defended its proposed redistricting plan by arguing that Northampton voters no longer voted on “purely racial grounds.”¹⁴⁷ The DOJ disagreed with this view. It cited evidence to the contrary, namely that “[i]n the last ten years, no black preferred candidate has won in a district in which whites were a majority of the [voting age population] and in the district in which neither blacks nor whites constitute a majority of the total [voting age population], a black-preferred candidate has only won once in the past three elections.”¹⁴⁸ Based on this evidence the DOJ determined that even a slight reduction in the voting age population would make it less likely for African Americans to elect candidates of choice.

In October 2003, DOJ objected to the proposed redistricting plan for board of supervisors in Northampton County for a third time. Under the proposed redistricting plan one of the two majority African-American districts would be cracked by reducing its African-American voting age population “from 53.3% to 48.2%, thereby eliminating the ability of black voters to elect their candidates of choice.”¹⁴⁹

Wisconsin: 2012

In 2012, a federal court held that the state of Wisconsin’s legislative redistricting act, known as Act 43, violated Section 2 of the VRA, by “improperly diluting the citizen voting age population of Latinos across New Assembly Districts 8 and 9.”¹⁵⁰ The defendants sought to rely on voting age population as opposed to citizen voting age population. The defendants had argued that in drawing the districts they had given Latinos 60.5 percent of the voting age population in “New Assembly District 8 and 54.03 percent of the voting age population in New Assembly District 9.”¹⁵¹ However, as the trial unfolded the state conceded that “the relevant measure is citizen voting age population, at least for an ethnic group with as high a proportion of lawful non-citizen residents as Latinos.”¹⁵² The defendants also argued that two Latino influence districts would be superior to one majority-minority district.¹⁵³ The court was not convinced by either argument. Relying on Bartlett v. Strickland,¹⁵⁴ it held that “the creation of influence districts in lieu of a majority-minority district is not on the menu of options for relief.”¹⁵⁵ It also held that sacrificing influence in one district for the benefit of another “flies in the face of Section 2’s protection against cracking minority populations.”¹⁵⁶

The court noted that “Latinos in Milwaukee are politically cohesive in their voting behavior... [and] voting is racially polarized, such that the majority group can block the Latino candidate from winning.”¹⁵⁷ For instance, during trial an expert testified that, in surveying 36 elections since 1989, Latino candidates only had an 11.1% success rate when they “ran against one or more Caucasian, non-Latino candidates...”¹⁵⁸ The court also noted that neither party disputed that “Milwaukee’s Latino community bears the socioeconomic effects of historic discrimination in employment, education, health, and other areas, and that its depressed socioeconomic status hinders its ability to participate in the electoral process on an equal basis with other members of the electorate.”¹⁵⁹ The court concluded that the plaintiffs are entitled to relief because “Act 43 fails to create a majority-minority district for Milwaukee’s Latino population.”¹⁶⁰

Kendra Glover, a paralegal in the office of the General Counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People who is from Suffolk, Virginia, testified about the redistricting process in her hometown after the 2010 census. On the right is Jean Jensen, former Secretary of the Virginia State Board of Elections and Guest Commissioner at the NCVR Virginia state hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: ROSE CLOUSTON

Packing

The following examples demonstrate how jurisdictions have sought to dilute the minority vote by over-concentrating such voters into one or as few as possible jurisdictions. This is typically done at the expense of minority-influence districts or districts with small or border-line majorities.

Louisiana: City of Plaquemine, Iberville Parish, 2003

In Louisiana, in December 2003, the DOJ objected to a redistricting plan for the City of Plaquemine, in Iberville Parish. In its proposed plan, the City of Plaquemine sought to create two packed districts, by reassigning and therefore reducing the African-American voting age population in a third district. Under the benchmark plan the city had three districts where African-Americans constituted a majority of the voting age population and were able to elect candidates of their choice to office.¹⁶¹ The proposed packed districts, Districts 2 and 6, would have African-American voting age population percentages of 80.4 and 86.9, respectively, while District 3 would see its African-American voting age population drop to 48.5 percent from the benchmark 51.1 percent.¹⁶² The DOJ determined that the voting age population reduction found in proposed District 3, while small, called into question the ability of African-American voters to elect their candidate of choice. The DOJ also determined that the “reduction in the black voting age population percentage in District 3 was neither inevitable nor required by any constitutional or legal imperative.”¹⁶³

Louisiana: City of Ville Platte, Evangeline Parish, 2004

In June 2004, the DOJ objected to a redistricting plan for the City of Ville Platte in Evangeline Parish in Louisiana. In its proposed plan the city sought to pack District B – which was almost 80 percent African-American – with African Americans from District F, and thereby eliminate that district's African-American voting majority by reducing the African-American voting age population to 38.1 percent.¹⁶⁴ The DOJ determined that reassigning voters from District F would have produced a “precipitous drop in black voting strength,” which “was not driven by any constitutional or statistical necessity.”¹⁶⁵ In fact, the DOJ made clear that the city “provided no evidence to rebut the conclusion” that its efforts were intentionally designed to “retrogress minority voting strength by eliminating the electoral ability of black voters in District F.”¹⁶⁶ In its analysis the DOJ found that the African-American population in District F had steadily increased since it was created in 1997 and that census data suggested that African-Americans constituted a majority 55.1 percent of District F's voting age population.¹⁶⁷

Nebraska: Thurston County, 1997 (Cracking and Packing)

In Stabler v. County of Thurston, Native American citizens and organizations filed suit against Thurston County, Nebraska. The plaintiffs claimed that the County's seven member district plan for the County Board diluted Native American voting strength by packing most of the County's Native American population into two voting districts and fragmenting the remaining Native American population into three other districts.¹⁶⁸ The district court found that the plan violated Section 2 and ordered the county to draw a plan with three majority Native American districts,¹⁶⁹ and the Eighth Circuit affirmed.¹⁷⁰ The judgment was left undisturbed on appeal to the Supreme Court.¹⁷¹

A Category of its Own: Randolph County, Georgia

Another example of discriminatory conduct that deprived a minority group from electing its candidates of choice, but which defies the categories set forth above, occurred in Randolph County, Georgia.

In September 2006, DOJ objected to the Randolph County Board of Education's proposed reassignment of sitting Board Chair Henry L. Cook from District 5 to District 4.¹⁷² Randolph County is located in the Southwest corner of Georgia. Cook, an African-American, had served on the Randolph County Board of Education since 1993, representing a District that was over 70 percent African-American.¹⁷³ The Board of Registrars sought to remove Cook as an Education Board member by simply redrawing the district line around his home and placing him in a new district—one that was over 70 percent Anglo.¹⁷⁴ In so doing, the Board of Registrars was effectively seeking to deprive the district of the ability to elect its longstanding candidate of choice.

Because Cook's property had straddled the line between the two districts, the issue of his residency had been raised previously in 2002. At that time, Superior Court Judge Gary McCorvey, serving as an acting election superintendent, had held a hearing regarding Cook's eligibility status, after it was challenged by an opponent. Judge McCorvey found that "the residence of Henry L. Cook is within the boundaries of such 'new' district five as contemplated by the Laws and Constitutions of both the State of Georgia and the United States of America."¹⁷⁵ Despite this 2002 decision, the three-member Randolph County Board had proceeded to hold a special meeting three years later "for the sole propose of determining anew the proper voter registration location of Mr. Cook and his family members living at his address."¹⁷⁶ The DOJ found it unusual that the Board would revisit an issue "without any intervening change in fact or law, and without notifying Mr. Cook that it was doing so."¹⁷⁷ The DOJ also noted that it was "particularly unusual for officials with no legal training to overturn, in effect, a decision by a judge in order to disturb an incumbent officeholder."¹⁷⁸ In support of its objection the DOJ further cited a "history of discrimination in voting in the County" and that the Board failed to carry its burden in demonstrating that Cook's proposed reassignment to District 4 lacked a "discriminatory purpose."¹⁷⁹

Case Spotlight

Texas Redistricting Post-2000

Federal courts have found that Texas violated the Voting Rights Act with respect to its 2003 congressional redistricting plan and its 2011 congressional, State Senate, and State House plans. The reviewing courts found that the State repeatedly manipulated district lines to the detriment of minority voters.

In League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) v. Perry, the Supreme Court held in 2006 that changes to District 23, a Latino-majority district in west Texas, in Texas's 2003 congressional redistricting plan violated Section 2 of the VRA.¹⁸⁰ District 23 was redrawn by the Legislature to protect incumbent Republican Henry Bonilla, who had decreasing Latino support.¹⁸¹ After his election in 1992, Bonilla's share of Latino support decreased with each election cycle, bottoming out in 2002 when he "captured only 8% of the Latino vote and 51.5% of the overall vote."¹⁸² Bonilla likely prevailed in that election because "88% of non-Latinos voted for him."¹⁸³ To protect Bonilla's seat the Texas Legislature divided District 23 by removing half of Webb County and the city of Laredo. At the time, Webb County was 94% Latino.¹⁸⁴ This change alone reassigned 100,000 individuals from Bonilla's district to "another district in which Latinos already controlled election outcomes."¹⁸⁵ The Legislature then added largely Anglo—and Republican—voters from neighboring central Texas.¹⁸⁶ Consequently, the Latino share of the citizen voting age population in District 23 dropped from 57.5 percent before redistricting to 46 percent.¹⁸⁷ The Supreme Court noted Texas's well-documented history of discrimination, and that the diminishing support for Congressman Bonilla indicated a belief among the Latino voters that Bonilla was unresponsive to their needs.¹⁸⁸ The Court also noted that even if the changes were largely motivated by political rather than racial goals, redrawing a district along racial lines to protect an incumbent is not a valid policy justification.¹⁸⁹ The Court observed that Latino voters in District 23 were poised to elect their candidate of choice as "[t]hey were becoming more politically active, with a marked and continuous rise in Spanish-surnamed voter registration."¹⁹⁰ Accordingly, the Court held that the 2003 congressional redistricting plan bore "the mark of intentional discrimination," and the districts in south and west Texas would have to be redrawn to remedy the Section 2 violation.¹⁹¹

Undeterred by the Supreme Court's decision, the Texas Legislature went to even greater lengths in its post-2010 redistricting. Deciding to bypass the DOJ preclearance process, Texas filed suit in July 2011 for judicial preclearance of new redistricting plans for the Texas House of Representatives, the Texas Senate, and Congress.¹⁹² All three redistricting plans were denied preclearance by a three-judge panel of the federal district court in Washington D.C.¹⁹³ The panel concluded that the State of Texas engaged in intentional discrimination against minority voters in enacting the 2011 State Senate and congressional redistricting plans, that the State House and congressional plans were retrogressive, and that the State House plan also showed signs of purposeful discrimination.¹⁹⁴

The case regarding the Senate plan focused on Senate District 10. The existing Senate District 10 (SD 10) was located in Tarrant County, which includes Fort Worth.¹⁹⁵ Evidence from the trial cited by the Court included testimony by the defendant's own expert, Dr. John Alford, who agreed that "the enacted plan 'diminishes the voting strengths of Blacks and Latinos in [SD 10].'"¹⁹⁶ The court also cited testimony by Texas State Senator Rodney Ellis, who explained that:

The demolition of District 10 was achieved by cracking the African American and Hispanic voters into three other districts that share few, if any, common interests with the existing District's minority coalition. The African American community in Fort Worth is "exported" into rural District 22—an Anglo-controlled District that stretches over 120 miles south to Falls [County]. The Hispanic Ft. Worth North Side community is placed in Anglo suburban District 12, based in Denton County, while the growing South side Hispanic population remains in the reconfigured majority Anglo District 10.¹⁹⁷

This testimony was further supported by a report provided by expert witness Dr. Allan J. Lichtman, who wrote:

The state legislature, in dismantling benchmark SD 10 cracked the politically cohesive and geographically concentrated Latino and African American communities and placed members of those communities in districts in which they have no opportunity to elect candidates of their choice or participate effectively in the political process.¹⁹⁸

Ultimately, the court denied preclearance "because Texas failed to carry its burden to show that it acted without discriminatory purpose in the face of largely un rebutted defense evidence and clear on-the-ground evidence of cracking minority communities of interest in SD 10."¹⁹⁹

The court's findings of fact detailed other actions taken by the State of Texas to intentionally discriminate against voters on the basis of race.²⁰⁰ For example, as to the congressional plan, the court made the following findings: (1) Texas grew by 4.3 million people between 2000 and 2010 of which Latinos accounted for 65 percent of the increase, African Americans 13.4 percent and Asian-Americans 10.1 percent;²⁰¹ (2) as a result of the growth in population, the state gained four congressional seats;²⁰² and (3) nonetheless, the number of seats to which minority voters could elect a candidate did not increase (two of the three judges concluded that this number had decreased by one).²⁰³ In addition, the court noted that the legislature had removed the “economic guts” from the African-American districts, but “[n]o such surgery was performed on the districts of Anglo incumbents.”²⁰⁴

With regard to the State House redistricting plan, the court did not make formal findings of intentional discrimination, but did conclude that the plan would have a retrogressive effect on minority voters.²⁰⁵ The court did note, however, that it had been presented with substantial evidence that the State House plan was also motivated by discriminatory intent.²⁰⁶ For instance, the court noted that “the process for drawing the House Plan showed little attention to, training on, or concern for the VRA.”²⁰⁷ In terms of the process used to create House District 117, the court noted that map-drawers altered it “so that it would elect the Anglo-preferred candidate yet would look like a Hispanic ability district on paper.”²⁰⁸ This was accomplished by using “voting and population data” to distinguish “between minorities who turn out heavily to vote and those who do not ...”²⁰⁹ In this way, districts with large minority populations could be created that would feature “a much smaller number of minority voters.”²¹⁰ The court found this evidence “concerning because it shows a deliberate, race conscious method to manipulate not simply Democratic vote but, more specifically, the Hispanic vote.”²¹¹ The court cited the testimony provided by the lead house map-drawer, Gerardo Interiano, which it found “reinforces evidence suggesting map-drawers cracked [voter tabulation districts] along racial lines to dilute minority voting power.”²¹²

The panel’s decision was vacated after the Shelby County decision, and after the Texas Legislature enacted new plans. The new congressional and State House plans are being challenged in consolidated Section 2 lawsuits with trial to occur in summer 2014.²¹³

Deciding to bypass the DOJ preclearance process, Texas filed suit in July 2011 for judicial preclearance of new redistricting plans for the Texas House of Representatives, the Texas Senate, and Congress. All three redistricting plans were denied by a three-judge panel of the federal district court in Washington D.C. The panel concluded that the State of Texas engaged in intentional discrimination against minority voters in enacting the 2011 State Senate and congressional redistricting plans, that the State House and congressional plans were retrogressive, and that the State House plan also showed signs of purposeful discrimination.

“The intimidation I faced as a lead plaintiff I wouldn’t want to wish it on anybody.”

—Mark Wandering Medicine on the hardships he and his daughter faced as a result of his participation in a voting rights case seeking satellite offices for in-person absentee voting on Indian reservations in Montana.

CHAPTER 6

Access to the Ballot

I. INTRODUCTION

As discussed in Chapter 1, states and their political subdivisions have historically used a variety of tests and devices to prevent minority voters from registering to vote. Since the mid-1990s, a new generation of tactics for limiting minority voters' access to the ballot has emerged. Though these have replaced poll taxes, literacy tests, and other overt mechanisms of the pre-Voting Rights Act (VRA) era, the practices covered in this chapter demonstrate that minority voters, in numerous respects, still confront barriers when trying to register and cast a ballot throughout the country.

Since the mid-1990s, states have curtailed voter registration opportunities by limiting the registration methods that are most accessible to and popular among minority voters, such as community voter registration drives and registration through public assistance agencies. Other states have focused a great deal of energy on burdensome procedures they claim are needed to prevent noncitizens from registering and voting. Despite scant evidence that this is a problem, these states have adopted heightened requirements for proving citizenship in order to register to vote that can pose obstacles for minority voters in particular.

An additional discriminatory device discussed in this chapter is the disenfranchisement of citizens because at some point in time they were convicted of a felony. While felony disenfranchisement laws date back to the 19th century, their impact has grown substantially in recent decades. As discussed below, these laws now deny the right to vote to 2.2 million African Americans nationwide.

Unfortunately, the post-VRA methods of restricting minority voters' access to the ballot go beyond the qualification and registration processes. Voters who have successfully registered are now facing an array of practices that may impede their ability to actually cast a ballot and have that ballot counted. Many of these practices have been shown to disproportionately impact minority voters by preventing or simply deterring their participation in elections. Some of the most concerning include new state laws that limit the acceptable types of voter identification (ID) to those types that racial minorities are least likely to possess, substantial cutbacks to the days and hours of early voting periods popular with minority voters, and polling place relocations and closures in heavily-minority communities. Finally, reports of voter intimidation and discriminatory voter challenge efforts indicate that both tactics continue to undermine minority voters' full and unencumbered access to the ballot.

As demonstrated throughout this chapter, racial discrimination in laws and practices around voting remain a significant concern. Through non-compliance with federal laws, such as the National Voter Registration Act (NVRA), and through troubling legislative and regulatory action, states and local jurisdictions have shown that the threat to minority voters' access to the ballot continues unabated.

II. COMMUNITY VOTER REGISTRATION DRIVES

Community-based voter registration drives play an essential role in expanding opportunities for participation in the political process. By reaching would-be voters at common community gathering places, such as churches, campuses, festivals, or senior centers, community drives can make it easier for individuals with time, mobility, or language challenges to register and receive assistance with the registration process. Community-based registration has proven effective, with participating groups having registered tens of millions of voters from 2000 to 2008.¹

The available data from surveys conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau in 2010 indicates that minorities rely more heavily on community drives than whites. Latinos reported registering through drives at nearly twice the rate of whites (8.9 percent compared to 4.4 percent), and African Americans also reported registering at a higher rate (7.2 percent).² Given their popularity, limitations on the ability of citizens and grassroots organizations to conduct voter registration drives can significantly impact registration opportunities for minority voters.

Florida has been one of the epicenters of recent efforts to curtail community registration drives. Historically, Florida did not allow private citizens to conduct such drives; it was not until the State began compliance with the NVRA in 1995 that private organizations and individuals were permitted to transmit completed voter registration applications to election officials.³ Ten years later, in 2005, the State enacted a series of restrictions on citizen registration efforts, including imposing large fines on organizations and citizens who failed to submit—or timely return—the applications they collected to election officials. The League of Women Voters and other groups sued, and a federal court enjoined the law, finding that the severity of the fines “chill[ed] Plaintiffs’ First Amendment speech and association rights...”⁴

In 2011, the Florida Legislature again sought to restrict community registration drives, enacting an even more onerous and complex set of requirements. In addition to pre-existing provisions imposing fines for late delivery of completed applications, requiring those conducting drives to pre-register with the State, and requiring them to submit quarterly reports of voter registration activities, the new law added some additional requirements. The new law required voter registration groups to account monthly for all registration forms used and not used in voter registration drives, return completed forms to election officials within 48 hours of receipt from the voter, and file the names of every officer, employee, or volunteer who solicited or collected voter registration applications.⁵ The League of Women Voters and other groups again sued and, once again, a federal court in Florida issued an injunction based upon the First Amendment. That court found that the new law, and its accompanying administrative rule, severely restrict an organization’s ability to [conduct registration drives]. The[y] [...] impose a harsh and impractical 48-hour deadline for an organization to deliver applications to a voter-registration office and effectively prohibit an organization from mailing applications in. And the[y] [...] impose burdensome record-keeping and reporting requirements that serve little if any purpose...⁶

Before the 2011 law was enjoined (in significant part) by the court in Florida, the State of Florida filed suit in federal court in Washington D.C. seeking Section 5 preclearance for the new restrictions (necessary because five Florida counties were covered under Section 5 of the VRA). Although there was no finding of discrimination in that case concerning registration drives, the evidence developed in that lawsuit demonstrated the potential impact of community registration drive restrictions on minority voters. In 2008 and 2010, Florida’s African-American and Hispanic voters registered through community drives at higher rates than whites.⁷ Results from a U.S. Census Bureau survey indicated that, in 2008, 10.9 percent of African Americans and 10.4 percent of Hispanics in Florida registered through community drives. In 2010, the rates were similar at 10.0 percent and 12.0 percent, respectively.⁸ By comparison, whites reported registering through drives at notably lower rates—5.2 percent in 2008 and 5.3 percent in 2010.⁹

Civic groups submitted testimony in the case on the burdens the restrictions placed on their ability to register their constituents. The law was described as having a “devastating impact” on the Florida NAACP’s ability to recruit branch units and members to participate in voter registration drives and as “crippling” the organization’s registration efforts in the State.¹⁰ National Council of La Raza (NCLR) and the League of Women Voters of Florida imposed moratoriums on their community registration drives. The Supervisor of Elections for Hillsborough County sympathized, adding that some individuals in minority communities “are less prone to view government as being friendly” and may prefer registering with someone of their own race or ethnicity or who speaks their same language.¹¹ Several election supervisors testified that the limitations on community registration drives in formerly covered counties would reduce voter registration opportunities—and registration rates—for minority voters.¹²

III. FAILURE TO PROVIDE VOTER REGISTRATION AT PUBLIC ASSISTANCE AGENCIES DIMINISHES ACCESS FOR MINORITY VOTERS

Section 7 of the NVRA requires that state public assistance agencies, as well as certain other agencies, offer a comprehensive set of voter registration services to their clients. Public assistance agencies administering benefit programs that fall within the scope of Section 7 are generally required to distribute registration applications with each public assistance application, recertification, renewal, or change of address; provide assistance completing voter registration forms to their clients; and submit completed applications directly to elections officials on a voter's behalf.¹³ There has been significant, widespread noncompliance with Section 7 across the country, which can have serious consequences for minority voters' access to registration opportunities.

Nationally, African Americans disproportionately receive benefits from two of the larger public assistance programs covered under Section 7 of the NVRA—Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) and Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP). Recent data from each program indicates that African Americans accounted for 31.9 percent of TANF families and 23.6 percent of households on SNAP.¹⁴ Hispanics comprised 30.0 percent of TANF families and 9.1 percent of SNAP households.¹⁵ By comparison, 37.6 percent of SNAP households and 31.8 percent of TANF families are white, a small share relative to their share of the overall population.¹⁶ Census data further shows that minorities tend to register to vote at public assistance agencies more than whites. Latinos register through agencies at four times the rate of whites (2.8 percent versus 0.7 percent), and African Americans at three times the rate (2.5 percent).¹⁷

The NVRA was designed to expand access to registration opportunities for low-income individuals, and these data demonstrate that states' full compliance with Section 7 will create significant benefits to minority voters, in particular. The marked increase in new registration following successful enforcement actions or negotiations by public interest groups reinforces this. Since 2008, settlements in private lawsuits and outside of court have been reached with Georgia, Indiana, Missouri, New Mexico, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Alabama,¹⁸ and since 2002, the Department of Justice (DOJ) settled suits against Rhode Island and Tennessee, and entered into out-of-court settlements with Arizona and Illinois.¹⁹ Efforts of private organizations, such as the Lawyers' Committee, Demos, and Project Vote, have resulted in nearly 2 million additional low-income citizens who have applied to register to vote at public assistance offices, most of which occurred in the last six years.²⁰ This surge in registration is also indicative of how significant non-compliance with Section 7 of the NVRA had become; after the first two years of NVRA implementation (1995-1996), when 2.6 million individuals registered at public assistance offices, registration plummeted by almost 80 percent over the next decade, to just 540,000 during 2005-2006.²¹ This steep decline is particularly striking because it occurred during a period when participation in SNAP was increasing substantially.²²

Continuing noncompliance by state public assistance agencies threatens to foreclose one of the more convenient and accessible avenues for voter registration available to minority voters.

Case Spotlight

What is Old is New Again: Dual Voter Registration Systems

One method of restricting voting opportunities for minorities has been the implementation of dual voter registration systems, wherein voters who register using certain means of registration are registered for some, but not all, purposes. Alongside poll taxes, literacy tests, and other tactics, such systems were enacted in many Southern states following the Reconstruction era. Once thought to be a thing of the past, the practice has unfortunately enjoyed somewhat of a renaissance in recent years.

Mississippi has one of the worst histories with dual voter registration. The State's dual registration system was enacted in 1892, along with a number of other provisions designed to exclude African-American citizens from the electoral process. Under the 1892 law, prospective voters were required to register separately for municipal elections, and this posed a particular burden on disproportionately poor African-American voters, for whom the necessity of registering multiple times often prevented participation in municipal elections.²³ For much of the next century, Mississippi maintained its dual registration system, becoming the last state to have such a law, and refining it as recently as 1984. Finally, in 1987, a federal court overturned the dual registration system, holding that it was a violation of Section 2 of the VRA.²⁴

“Arizona has recently implemented this dual voter registration system, and I believe it is one of the most complex, confusing, and burdensome voter registration systems in the country. It’s confusing to the county recorders who handle and process the voter registrations. It’s confusing to the organizations conducting voter registration guides, and it’s confusing to our voters who monitor it.” –Patty Hansen, Coconino County Recorder, at the NCVR Arizona state hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: MIKE ELLER (HMA PUBLIC RELATIONS)

In 1995, Mississippi implemented a new dual registration system in response to the NVRA. Pursuant to the NVRA, Mississippi was required to permit voter registration for federal elections through a federal mail-in form, at driver's license offices, and at public assistance offices.²⁵ Mississippi's implementation of the law allowed voters who registered under the NVRA-mandated options to vote in federal elections only. If those voters wanted to vote in state elections, they were required to re-register using state forms. By contrast, every other state implementing the NVRA's requirements made NVRA registrations effective for all purposes. After DOJ raised concerns, Mississippi refused to submit this system for Section 5 preclearance, and private plaintiffs commenced a Section 5 enforcement action, with the Supreme Court ultimately holding that the State was required to obtain preclearance.²⁶ When the State did so, DOJ objected, and the State abandoned the dual registration system.²⁷

Several years later, dual voter registration has been revived by two states following the Supreme Court's 2013 decision in Arizona v. ITCA. That ruling held that states are required to "accept and use" the NVRA's federal mail-in registration forms, even when they are not accompanied by the specific documentary proof of citizenship that state law requires.²⁸ Adopting a tack similar to Mississippi's, Arizona and Kansas are in the process of adopting dual voter registration systems. These systems would limit citizens who register to vote using the federal form but who do not satisfy the states' documentary proof-of-citizenship requirements to voting for federal offices only.²⁹ The resurrection of dual registration, with its sordid history of suppressing poor and minority voters, is a matter of continuing concern.

IV. PROOF OF CITIZENSHIP

In recent years, a number of states have adopted additional procedures related to confirming the citizenship of registered voters and voter registration applicants. In particular, states have adopted new procedures ostensibly intended to purge noncitizens from registration rolls—which have often led to the improper purge of eligible citizen voters—or have imposed heightened proof-of-citizenship requirements for voter registration. Both types of activity raise concerns about their impact on the ability of eligible citizens, particularly minorities, to participate in the political process.

Citizenship Verification for List Maintenance

Numerous states have adopted citizenship verification procedures to facilitate purges of ineligible voters from their registration lists. As discussed later in this chapter, when conducted properly, purges are an important part of effective election administration. However, problems arise when purge procedures seemingly target minority voters, or impose unreasonable citizenship verification burdens on such voters.

A significant portion of voter purges are aimed at identifying noncitizens. Many states use a computerized matching process—which typically involves cross-checking the statewide voter registration list with citizenship information in the statewide driver's license database—to identify noncitizen registrants. While there is little dispute that this matching is a useful aid in identifying potentially ineligible voters, high rates of false positives and the potential for discrimination raise serious concerns. The high error rates are usually the result of predictable shortcomings, such as matching errors (i.e., a registrant is matched with the wrong person on the license list) or because the citizenship information in the driver's license database may not reflect subsequent naturalization (and thus voting eligibility). Because a substantial majority of recently naturalized citizens immigrated from Latin America, sub-Saharan Africa, or Asia, this latter problem particularly impacts minority communities.³⁰ Accordingly, state officials should be careful not to presume that those identified in the matching are noncitizens.

An example from Georgia is particularly instructive. In 2007, Georgia instituted a computerized citizenship matching procedure to identify and remove noncitizens from its voter rolls. Its procedure involved cross-checking the statewide voter registration list with citizenship information in the state's driver's license database. The matching procedure in Georgia had a high rate of error, which disproportionately impacted minority voters, in part because of its systematic failure to update driver's license records after an individual's naturalization.³¹ After Georgia performed this matching, it provided a computer printout of the potential noncitizens to local election officials with instructions that they use the printout as a means of reviewing voter eligibility, without providing uniform procedures about how to use that information.³² Local election officials informed thousands of voters by letter that they would be removed from the voter registration lists unless they appeared and presented proof of their U.S. citizenship,³³ in at least some cases providing a very short time period—as little as a few days—to do so. One voter, Jose Morales, who had obtained his driver’s license in April 2006 and became a citizen in November 2007, received multiple such letters from Cherokee County election officials over the course of several weeks after his registration in September 2008. Mr. Morales was forced to travel 30 minutes to prove his citizenship.³⁴ Mr. Morales brought a Section 5 enforcement action because the State had failed to submit this procedure for preclearance. Shortly before the November 2008 general election, a federal court in Georgia enjoined the State from using the challenged voter verification process until it obtained preclearance and ordered the State to take steps to remedy its previous unauthorized use of the process.³⁵

In May 2009, DOJ interposed a Section 5 objection to the procedure, noting that “[t]his flawed system frequently subjects a disproportionate number of African-American, Asian, and/or Hispanic voters to additional and, more importantly, erroneous burdens on the right to register to vote.”³⁶ DOJ confirmed the disproportionate impact after conducting its own analysis of new voter registrants during the period May 2008 through March 2009. Over that period, African Americans and whites comprised approximately equal shares of new registrants, yet over 60 percent more African Americans were flagged as potential noncitizens than whites. Similarly, Latino and Asian registrants were more than twice as likely as whites to be flagged as noncitizens.³⁷ Over one half of the new registrants initially flagged as noncitizens were, in fact, citizens and were forced to take additional steps to prove as much by presenting birth certificates, proof of naturalization, or other documentation.³⁸

Georgia filed a lawsuit seeking preclearance from the federal court in Washington D.C. After it filed suit, and at DOJ’s urging, Georgia revised its verification procedure, making it more accurate and less discriminatory. DOJ precleared the amended version, rendering the lawsuit moot.³⁹

In 2012, Florida sought to institute a database matching procedure through which it cross-referenced state driver’s license records with its voter registration lists. The Florida Secretary of State identified over 180,000 registrants as potential noncitizens, and ultimately sent a smaller list of approximately 2,700 individuals to local election officials for action. Local officials notified those on the lists that they would be removed from the rolls unless they provided proof of citizenship by the deadline indicated.⁴⁰ There were widespread complaints about the list’s inaccuracy and its reliance on outdated immigration status information. The program also had a disparate effect on minority voters: 82 percent of voters on the list sent to local officials were minorities, and the majority were Latino.⁴¹ The Secretary of State temporarily suspended the program.⁴²

Shortly before the November 2012 election, the State sought to implement a different list maintenance procedure that relied on a Department of Homeland Security database known as the Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements Program (SAVE). SAVE provides information related to an individual's eligibility for public benefits, but may not be an accurate indicator of the person's current citizenship status or voting eligibility.⁴³ The implementation of this cross-check was challenged as a violation of the NVRA's requirement that such systematic purges be completed at least 90 days before any federal election, and, in 2014, a federal court of appeals held that Florida had violated the requirement.⁴⁴ A second lawsuit was filed challenging Florida's failure to submit both purge programs for Section 5 preclearance.⁴⁵ The case was stayed pending the Supreme Court's decision in Shelby County v. Holder, and after that decision, plaintiffs voluntarily dismissed the lawsuit.⁴⁶ Florida has continued its voter purge efforts, but additional problems with the information used for matching have forced further delays.⁴⁷

Iowa also sought to implement a similar program in 2012, through a regulation that would have permitted the Secretary of State to cross-reference Iowa's voter rolls with state and federal databases to identify suspected noncitizens and remove them from the voter rolls if they failed to provide proof of citizenship within 14 days.⁴⁸ The American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) of Iowa and the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) sued in state court. The two groups provided evidence of inaccuracy in the citizenship information being relied upon, and the effect on voter registration among naturalized citizens. The Director of LULAC of Iowa testified that his members were concerned that the State's program would result in the removal of registered Latino voters from rolls and that many new, eligible U.S. citizens with Latino names would be deterred from even registering to vote in Iowa.⁴⁹ Due to the plaintiffs' efforts, this purge program (as well as a rule expanding the grounds for voter challenges) has yet to be implemented: plaintiffs obtained a temporary injunction against implementation of these rules just before the 2012 election, and the Secretary of State voluntarily rescinded the voter challenge rule.⁵⁰ Litigation over the purge process, however, is continuing. The case remains on appeal to the Iowa Supreme Court after a lower court ruled in March 2014 in favor of the plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment.⁵¹

Proof of Citizenship for Voter Registration

During the last decade, laws subjecting individuals registering to vote to heightened requirements for proving U.S. citizenship have been passed in several states. A challenge to one such law was recently decided by the U.S. Supreme Court. Since 2004, four states—Arizona, Georgia, Kansas, and Alabama—have passed proof-of-citizenship laws (though only Arizona and Kansas have actually implemented their laws to date).⁵²

Under federal law, states must allow individuals to register using the federal mail-in registration form (commonly called the "federal form"), provided for by the NVRA.⁵³ On the federal form, a registrant proves his U.S. citizenship by an affirmation made under penalty of perjury.⁵⁴ A primary purpose of the NVRA is to increase citizen participation by making voter registration practices for federal elections simple and uniform.⁵⁵ The uniform federal mail-in form—which Congress intended to be easily used for community registration drives—supports that goal.

In addition to the federal form, which states must accept and use, states may develop and use their own mail-in registration forms. Those with proof-of-citizenship laws typically require applicants to submit additional documentation beyond the simple affirmation of citizenship. Required documentation may include naturalization certificates, copies of passports, or certified birth certificates, all of which can be difficult for registrants—including those from minority groups—to obtain, copy, and submit with their applications. Like the limitations on community registration drives discussed above, laws heightening requirements for voter registration confront potential voters at their entry point into the political process. Requiring documentary proof of citizenship for voter registration can pose particularly troubling barriers to minority voter participation.

Proponents of such laws contend that requiring additional layers of proof from applicants will help prevent noncitizens from registering to vote and casting ballots. But, as discussed below, available information shows that it is rare for noncitizens to attempt to register to vote, either mistakenly or knowingly.

The Supreme Court Rules on Proof of Citizenship in Arizona v. ITCA

John R. Lewis, Executive Director of the Inter Tribal Council of Arizona, Inc., and guest commissioner, received testimony at the NCVR Arizona state hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: MIKE ELLER (HMA PUBLIC RELATIONS)

The week before the 2013 Shelby County decision, the Supreme Court weighed in on Arizona's proof-of-citizenship law.⁵⁶ The Court considered whether Arizona could reject voter registration applications submitted on the federal form that were not accompanied by the additional evidence of citizenship required by the State for its own form. Plaintiffs in Arizona v. Inter Tribal Council of Arizona successfully argued that the NVRA preempted Arizona's law, and the Court ruled that the State was in violation of the NVRA for attempting to add its additional documentary proof-of-citizenship requirements to applications submitted on the federal form without the approval of the Election Assistance Commission (EAC), the agency designated to monitor NVRA compliance and maintain the federal form.⁵⁷ The result is that, for purposes of federal elections, Arizona is required to accept otherwise-complete applications submitted using the federal form that contain the simple attestation of citizenship—without additional proof.

The Aftermath of Arizona v. ITCA

Following the Supreme Court's ruling, Arizona and Kansas petitioned the EAC to amend the federal form, as used in those states, to incorporate each state's proof-of-citizenship law. Their requests were denied in January 2014, and the two states sued the EAC in federal court in Kansas seeking to force it to permit their heightened proof requirements to apply to the federal form.⁵⁸ Civil rights groups intervened in the case, Kobach v. EAC, joining the EAC as defendants. In March 2014, the district court in Kansas ruled for the two states, requiring the EAC to permit their heightened proof requirements to apply for federal form registration.⁵⁹ The decision has been stayed pending an appeal to the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, from which a decision is expected in the fall of 2014.⁶⁰

Within days of the district court's ruling in favor of Arizona and Kansas, Alabama officials announced plans to move forward with implementation of its proof-of-citizenship law. Alabama Secretary of State Jim Bennett stated that the Kobach decision "has given us the confidence that Alabama has strong footing for implementation of the rules regarding proof of citizenship..."⁶¹

As states with proof-of-citizenship laws on their books anxiously await the Tenth Circuit's decision in Kobach, it is important to consider the limited benefits and high costs of such laws.

The existing safeguards against noncitizen registration are highly effective. In its decision denying the Arizona and Kansas requests to add their documentary proof-of-citizenship requirements to the federal form, the EAC determined that the federal form already includes ample safeguards against noncitizens registering, and the EAC also determined that registrations by noncitizens are a rare event, representing an "exceedingly small" percentage of all registration applicants (less than one-hundredth of one percent).⁶² Elections officials' experiences from other states have been in line with EAC's findings. In Georgia, where the proof-of-citizenship law has been inactive since its passage in 2008, respondents to a 2009 Brennan Center survey of elections officials reported that noncitizen registration is rare and, to the extent that it does occur, results from mistake, not fraud: "Of the elections officials who were interviewed, representing counties that comprised 40 percent of Georgia's population, none believed that noncitizens had fraudulently registered to vote or voted.⁶³ Further, a Supreme Court amicus curiae brief submitted by current and former state and local elections administrators in Arizona v. ITCA echoed the survey findings:

[I]n the more than 150 years that they have collectively spent administering elections, amici have experienced almost no cases of noncitizens registering to vote, let alone actually casting a ballot. In light of this, amici's view is that the danger of noncitizen registration and voting does not justify the imposition of significant new barriers to registration by eligible individuals.⁶⁴

In addition to being an unnecessary response to an exceedingly rare problem, documentary proof-of-citizenship laws risk closing new voters out of the political process. These additional registration requirements have the potential to have the same effect on minority voters as strict photo ID laws, discussed later in this chapter. Minorities may be less likely to possess the required documentation, such as birth certificates, or to have the resources to obtain missing documents.⁶⁵ Further, a proof-of-citizenship requirement may decrease participation in community registration drives—which, as discussed earlier, minorities rely upon to a greater extent than whites—because potential voters may not carry on their person the documentation needed to register.⁶⁶

While Alabama and Georgia have not implemented their laws yet, the evidence discussed herein, as well as the evidence revealed during litigation about the Arizona and Kansas laws, suggests that their heightened requirements for registration are similarly unnecessary and overly burdensome for minority voters.

“There is not an epidemic of non-citizens yearning to stand in long lines to cast votes in Florida. Take it from an organization that dedicates all of its resources trying to get eligible Latinos to the polls. Voter fraud from non-citizens is a nonissue.”

Ana Della Rosa, Mi Familia Vota Educational Fund, at the NCVR Florida state hearing

Case Spotlight

Section 5 at Work: Safeguarding Voter Registration at Public Assistance Agencies

A separate proof-of-citizenship issue arose in Texas in 1996. DOJ interposed a Section 5 objection to a Texas law that barred employees of public assistance agencies from offering voter registration to clients, as required by Section 7 of the NVRA, until they first determined the client's citizenship.⁶⁷ Agency employees were to rely solely upon citizenship information contained in agency files, which DOJ determined were unlikely to remain up-to-date, given the rising numbers of new citizens in Texas during the relevant period. 1990 census figures indicated that minorities were 34 percent of the State's population and 30 percent of its voting age population, and that two-thirds of new citizens in 1993 and 1994 were Hispanic or Asian.⁶⁸

DOJ found that Texas' procedure lacked safeguards to ensure that agency information was current and accurate. Under the procedures at issue, clients would not be informed that the reason they were not offered voter registration was their alleged noncitizen status, leaving them with no opportunity to update or correct citizenship information in their files. DOJ determined that this flaw was likely to disproportionately affect minorities.⁶⁹ Without the Section 5 review process, Texas' procedures could have foreclosed the opportunity for voter registration for large numbers of minority public assistance clients. As seen in Texas and more recently in Arizona, the potential of voting practices focused on citizenship verification to most heavily burden minority voters remains a serious concern.

PHOTO CREDIT: Wikimedia Commons/Public Domain

V. VOTER PURGES

The maintenance (or purging) of voter registration lists involves removing registrants who are not eligible to vote in the relevant jurisdiction, and is an important part of maintaining the effectiveness and integrity of election administration. In conformity with federal law, voters may be deemed ineligible due to relocation, death, conviction for a disfranchising crime, ineligibility at the time of registration (such as noncitizenship), or other reasons.

If done incorrectly, however, purges can also result in the improper removal and disenfranchisement of eligible voters. Thus, Congress, through the NVRA, enacted a variety of safeguards for purging registration lists, including: (1) requiring list maintenance procedures to be “uniform, nondiscriminatory, and in compliance with the Voting Rights Act of 1965”; (2) prohibiting a voter from being removed from the rolls solely for failure to vote; (3) mandating that any systematic program to remove registrants (i.e., one that is not based on particularized information about specific voters) be completed at least 90 days before a federal election; and (4) directing that notice be provided to registrants removed based on a change of address to ensure that the change-of-address information received by the registrar is accurate.⁷⁰ The NVRA also requires that certain registered voters who have moved, but who have not updated their registration, still be allowed to vote.⁷¹ Despite these safeguards, however, numerous disputes have arisen surrounding voter purges in recent years.

In addition to citizenship-matching (discussed above), other systematic methods are used to execute voter purges, and these have also sometimes affected minority voters disproportionately. Two examples have been seen recently in Florida.

In 2000, Florida improperly purged thousands of voters, a disproportionate number of whom were African Americans, based on a flawed comparison of voter registration files to lists of felony convictions. A vice president of the company that generated the list later testified that the Florida Division of Elections had deliberately chosen a matching technique that would overstate the number of matches between the registration list and lists of convicted individuals.⁷² The State also included as disenfranchised felons, for instance, individuals convicted in another state who had regained their right to vote before moving to Florida, where they were not disenfranchised under Florida law.⁷³ Given the razor-thin margins of the 2000 presidential contest in Florida, these improper purges and the confusion they caused may have had a monumental national impact.

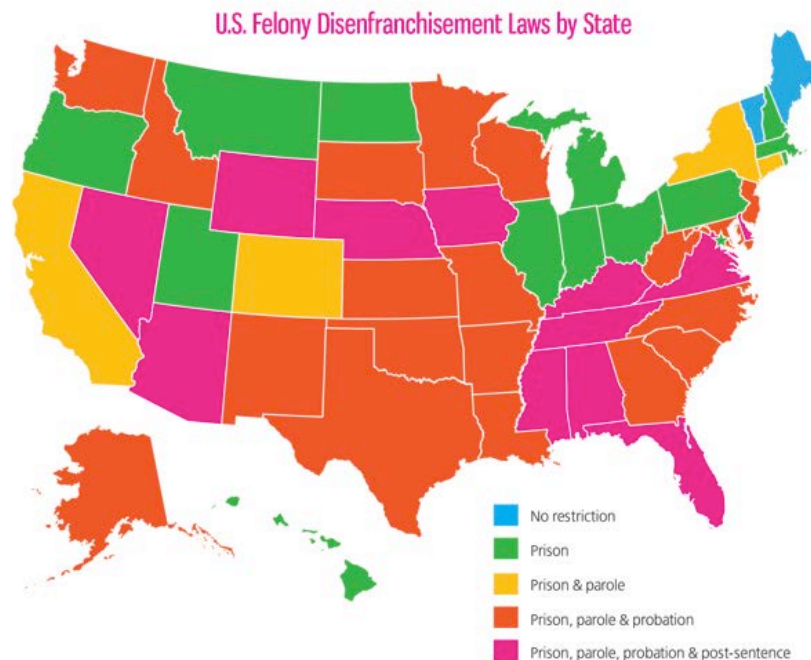

In 2004, Florida planned to remove 48,000 suspected felons from its voter rolls based on a list from the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. One indicator of the list’s inaccuracy was that it employed race as an identifying attribute but relied on one database that included Hispanic as a racial category and one that did not. Nearly half of the people on the flawed list were African American, and thousands of those listed had already had their voting rights restored under state law. Though the State abandoned this purge under pressure from voting rights groups, county election officials in Florida retain the ability to purge voters based on locally generated lists.⁷⁴

VI. FELONY DISENFRANCHISEMENT

Over 5 million Americans are banned from voting because they have at some point been convicted of a felony.⁷⁵ Laws barring citizens with prior felony convictions from voting, sometimes for a lifetime, impact minority voters at a far higher rate than whites. Yet courts have rejected finding such laws unconstitutional or in violation of the VRA.

The rules around felony disenfranchisement vary widely by state. Two states—Maine and Vermont—allow persons in prison to vote. Most other states deny voting rights to persons with felony convictions through the end of their terms of probation and/or parole. A few states make it extremely difficult for a person with certain kinds of prior felony convictions to vote again, leaving the restoration of such rights up to the discretion of the executive. Finally, four states—Florida, Iowa, Kentucky, and Virginia—permanently disenfranchise all persons with a felony conviction absent executive action.

The difficulty in bringing successful legal challenges to felony disenfranchisement laws is largely due to the Supreme Court's interpretation of Section 2 of the 14th Amendment. In Richardson v. Ramirez,⁷⁶ three men from California who had already completed their sentences sued for the right to vote, arguing the State's felony disenfranchisement law violated the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment by denying their fundamental right to vote. The Court rejected this argument, and looked to Section 2 of the 14th Amendment, which allows the denial of voting rights "for participation in rebellion, or other crime." Using that clause, the Court determined that the exclusion of felons from the vote has an affirmative sanction in § 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment, a sanction which was not present in the case of the other restrictions on the franchise... We hold that the understanding of those who adopted the Fourteenth Amendment, as reflected in the express language of § 2 and in the historical and judicial interpretation of the Amendment's applicability to state laws disenfranchising felons, is of controlling significance in distinguishing such laws from those other state limitations on the franchise which have been held invalid under the Equal Protection Clause by this Court.⁷⁷

Largely as a result of this decision, courts have rejected challenges to felony disenfranchisement laws under the discriminatory results standard of Section 2 of the VRA, as discussed below. Evidence of discriminatory intent, on the other hand, may allow for a successful challenge to a felony disenfranchisement law; however, even that has not always been sufficient. The only case that was successful in this regard was Hunter v. Underwood, in which the Supreme Court held unconstitutional a provision in the State of Alabama's 1901 constitution disenfranchising individuals convicted of a crime of "moral turpitude."⁷⁸

The Racially Disproportionate Effect of Felony Disenfranchisement

Felony disenfranchisement laws, and courts' reluctance to strike them down, have led to millions of Americans without voting rights. Moreover, those laws have had particularly dramatic effects on minority citizens' ability to participate in elections.

The statistics show the dramatic effect of felony disenfranchisement laws on racial minorities:

There is clear evidence that state felony disenfranchisement laws have a disparate impact on African Americans and other minority groups. At present, 7.7% of the adult African-American population, or one out of every thirteen, is disenfranchised. This rate is four times greater than the non-African-American population rate of 1.8%. In three states, at least one out of every five African-American adults is disenfranchised: Florida (23%), Kentucky (22%), and Virginia (20%). Nationwide, 2.2 million African-Americans are disenfranchised on the basis of involvement with the criminal justice system, more than 40% of whom have completed the terms of their sentences. Information on the disenfranchisement rates of other groups is extremely limited, but the available data suggests felony disenfranchisement laws may also disproportionately impact individuals of Hispanic origin and others. Hispanics are incarcerated in state and federal prisons at higher rates than non-Hispanics: about 2.4 times greater for Hispanic men and 1.5 times for Hispanic women. If current incarceration trends hold, 17% of Hispanic men will be incarcerated during their lifetimes, in contrast to less than 6% of non-Hispanic white men. Given these disparities, it is reasonable to assume that individuals of Hispanic origin are likely to be barred from voting under felony disenfranchisement laws at disproportionate rates.⁷⁹

This means that, as a result of felony disenfranchisement, there is a structurally imposed subclass of Americans, mostly minority, who are deprived of the most fundamental right, the right to vote. Moreover, scholarly research indicates that in the post-Civil War years, several felony disenfranchisement laws were enacted with the aim of limiting the voting rights of the newly enfranchised African-American population.⁸⁰

The Lack of Judicial Receptivity to Challenges to Felony Disenfranchisement Claims

As noted above, there have been a number of different legal efforts to challenge the felony disenfranchisement laws of various states.

Johnson v. Governor of Florida, ultimately decided in 2005, provides an example of a case in which evidence was presented that the law had originally been enacted in 1868 with a discriminatory purpose, and yet was nonetheless upheld. This case was a class action of 525,000 disenfranchised Florida citizens, in which the plaintiffs claimed that Florida's law, which permanently bans persons currently or formerly incarcerated for felonies, violates the 14th and 15th Amendments of the Constitution and Section 2 of the VRA.⁸¹

The plaintiffs showed that the historical record demonstrated the racial origins of the felony disenfranchisement law in the State. Florida's first constitution of 1838 authorized felony disenfranchisement laws, and in 1845 Florida's legislature enacted such a law.

Tanya Fogle, a member of Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, testified about the lengthy process and difficulty she experienced regaining her right to vote following a felony conviction. (NCVR Nashville regional hearing)

PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

It was just after the Civil War, in 1868, when all states were required to amend their constitutions to comply with the new suffrage requirements, that Florida held a constitutional convention and included mandatory disenfranchisement of all persons with felony convictions in the state constitution. It also added the specific crime of larceny to the list of disenfranchising crimes, which would greatly increase the number of affected citizens. As the plaintiffs explained:

The broad disenfranchisement of every convicted felon in Florida’s 1868 Constitution and the addition of larceny as a disenfranchising crime were enacted with the intention of restricting the voting rights of Florida’s newly freed black population. White Floridians were strongly opposed to black suffrage after the Civil War. Blacks were finally given the right to vote in the 1868 Constitution so that Florida could gain readmission to the Union. However, the 1868 Constitution contained several measures in addition to the felon and specific crime disenfranchisement provisions that were adopted to limit the power of black votes. Further measures to restrict black suffrage were adopted as part of the 1885 Constitution. The discriminatory intent behind the disenfranchisement provisions is demonstrated by the history of the 1865, 1868, and 1885 Constitutions as well as Florida’s use of criminal laws to control former slaves and create a low-wage labor force to replace that lost by the abolishment of slavery.⁸²

When the 1968 Florida Constitution was drafted, the larceny provision was removed, but the provision requiring disenfranchisement of all convicted felons was left intact.⁸³ When challenged in 2000, the district court found, even in awarding summary judgment to the defendants, that “Plaintiffs have presented to this Court an abundance of expert testimony about the historical background of Florida’s felon disenfranchisement scheme as historical evidence that the policy was enacted originally in 1868 with the particular discriminatory purpose of keeping blacks from voting.”⁸⁴ Nevertheless, in a ruling of the entire Eleventh Circuit en banc, overturning the decision of a three-judge panel of the same court (which had reversed the district court’s summary judgment ruling on the Section 2 claim⁸⁵) the felony disenfranchisement provision was upheld and ruled not to run afoul of the Equal Protection Clause or Section 2. The en banc court found that, even if there was racial animus behind the provision in 1868, there was no evidence of racial motivation in the drafting of the 1968 version, so the historical evidence of the original discriminatory intent was insufficient to prove a constitutional violation. While acknowledging that typically Section 2 cases are subject to a discriminatory results test, the court cited the Supreme Court’s decision in Richardson in stating that felony disenfranchisement laws are distinct because they “are deeply rooted in this Nation’s history and are a punitive device stemming from criminal law.... Florida’s discretion to deny the vote to convicted felons is fixed by the text of § 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment.”⁸⁶ The Supreme Court denied certiorari.

As a result, to this day Florida permanently disenfranchises all individuals with a felony conviction, unless they receive discretionary executive clemency. As of 2010, Florida had disenfranchised 1,541,602 citizens due to a felony conviction. This amounts to the disenfranchisement of 10.4 percent of the State’s voting age population and 23.3 percent of Florida’s African-American voting age population.⁸⁷

In Farrakhan v. Gregoire, several minorities with felony convictions challenged the State of Washington’s felony disenfranchisement law under the VRA’s Section 2 results test.⁸⁸ Plaintiffs argued that the discriminatory impact of the felony disenfranchisement law was a result of racial bias throughout the criminal justice system, using extensive data to demonstrate discrimination in all stages of the criminal process. The federal district court granted summary judgment for the State, and several rounds of appeals followed.⁸⁹ Ultimately, the case was argued before an en banc panel of eleven judges in the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. The en banc court subsequently upheld the felony disenfranchisement law. It stated that only intent claims could be made against felony disenfranchisement laws, holding that “plaintiffs bringing a section 2 VRA challenge to a felon disenfranchisement law based on the operation of a state’s criminal justice system must at least show that the criminal justice system is infected by intentional discrimination or that the felon disenfranchisement law was enacted with such intent.”⁹⁰

Following the decision in Farrakhan, and given the difficulty plaintiffs face in bringing intentional discrimination claims, advocates have abandoned federal challenges to felony disenfranchisement laws for now.

The Effect of Felony Disenfranchisement Laws in Particular States

As discussed above, the rules around restoration of voting rights for persons with prior felony convictions vary widely by state. In the states that make it the most difficult—or nearly impossible—to regain voting rights, a great number of individuals have been disenfranchised. The numbers of African Americans banned from voting in these states is remarkable. The following are a few examples:

Virginia permanently disenfranchises all persons with felony convictions unless they receive clemency. In 2000, the Fourth Circuit rejected a challenge under the VRA to Virginia's felony disenfranchisement law, holding that the plaintiff had failed to demonstrate that the law was the result of racially discriminatory intent or that there was "any nexus" between the disenfranchisement of felons and race.⁹¹ At least 20 percent of adult African Americans in Virginia are disenfranchised.⁹² A July 2013 executive order from Governor Bob McDonnell now allows individuals convicted of certain non-violent felonies to apply to restore their voting rights.⁹³ According to testimony the National Commission on Voting Rights (NCVR) heard at its Virginia hearing, an estimated 350,000 Virginians are disenfranchised because of the State's law.⁹⁴

Similarly, Kentucky permanently disenfranchises formerly incarcerated citizens, even after they have completed their sentences. The authority for Kentucky's lifetime voting ban for persons convicted of a felony is established under the state constitution, and rights may only be restored through an executive pardon by the Governor.⁹⁵ The Kentucky Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights (USCCR) notes, however, that the pardoning process varies depending on Administration and is not subject to any established law, statute, or regulation.⁹⁶ Thus, it is estimated that 243,842 residents in the State of Kentucky were barred from voting in 2010, including approximately 181,000 who had completed their full sentences.⁹⁷ The Kentucky Advisory Committee reports that those disenfranchised are disproportionately minorities⁹⁸—at 22 percent, Kentucky has the second highest rate of voter disenfranchisement among African Americans in the country.⁹⁹

According to testimony submitted by the ACLU of Iowa at the NCVR's Kansas City hearing, in 2005 one of four voting age African Americans were disenfranchised under Iowa's lifetime voting ban for individuals with felony convictions. That year, the governor issued an executive order automatically restoring the rights of formerly incarcerated persons. In 2011, however, a new governor rescinded the policy and reinstated the process of individual review, under which formerly incarcerated persons must apply to the governor's office for restoration of rights. One requirement for restoration is that the individual be up to date on paying fines, fees, and restitution. As a result, in the last year only 40 people applied to have their voting rights restored.¹⁰⁰

Thomas Castelli, Legal Director of the ACLU of Tennessee, testified at the NCVR hearing in Nashville about Tennessee's felony disenfranchisement law. To be eligible for restoration of rights in Tennessee, one with a prior felony conviction must complete his term, and all fines, fees, and restitution must also be paid in full. In addition, as of recently, a citizen must also be current on child support payments. As a result, according to Mr. Castelli, "only 2% of disenfranchised citizens who have completed their sentences, probation and parole have successfully restored their voting rights."¹⁰¹ He further reported that in Tennessee, 341,815 people are disenfranchised and that one out of every 5.25 African-American adults is disenfranchised.¹⁰²

Betty C. Andrews, President of the Iowa-Nebraska State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, testified at the NCVR Kansas City regional hearing about the detrimental effect of the permanent disenfranchisement of individuals with criminal convictions in Iowa. PHOTO CREDIT: BRUCE MATHEWS (MATHEWS COMMUNICATION)

Confusion Regarding When and How Rights are Restored Results in Further Disenfranchisement

Another problem arises with respect to notifying persons with prior felony convictions that they have reacquired their voting rights and informing them about the process for re-registering once they become eligible. In many instances these citizens are provided with no such information, or are misinformed by election officials who are unfamiliar with these laws. NCVR heard testimony to this effect, for example, in South Carolina and California,¹⁰³ and with respect to Minnesota, where one witness cited the governor's task force finding that "[n]o database exists that can accurately identify when a felon regains the eligibility to vote, and that the question of disenfranchisement creates significant confusion among the public election judges, election administrators and the individual convicted of a felony. There are currently no notification procedures consistently followed" in Minnesota.¹⁰⁴

Once individuals are aware of the restoration process, there are the procedural obstacles many persons with former felony convictions must address to regain their rights, which they may or may not know how to navigate. The obstacles can include financial costs and be extremely time consuming to overcome.

At the NCVR Nashville regional hearing, 74-year-old Teddy Smith Roglar stated that she could have been arrested for voting with a felony record in the state of Kentucky. PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

The NCVR heard a number of poignant stories related to felony disenfranchisement throughout its proceedings. To provide just one example, at the Commission's Florida hearing, Desmond Meade, president of the Florida Rights Restoration Coalition, told the NCVR the following:

Not too long ago, August of 2005, I remember standing in front of the railroad tracks in Miami waiting on a train to come so I could jump in front of it to commit suicide because at that time I was recently released from prison, I was addicted to drugs and alcohol, I was homeless and I saw no hope, no future. But by the grace of God the train never came and I crossed those tracks and I entered into the substance abuse treatment facility and after graduating there I went to Miami-Dade College while I was living in a homeless shelter. I enrolled in Miami-Dade College and I was able to complete the paralegal program there. One thing led to another and today I am happy to announce that I am a month away from graduating law school at Florida International University.

While I appreciate the applause, my story does not have a happy ending because I am among the over 1.54 million Floridians who cannot vote as a result of Florida's policy on felony disenfranchisement. As it stands today an individual will have to wait five to seven years after completion of their sentence before being able to apply to have their rights restored. After they apply, there's an application process in time of approximately six years.

We recently heard of a story of a gentleman who had been waiting ten years to find out the status of his application. And, therefore, we have a system or policy that would dictate that a person wait anywhere between 11 to 13 years before they see if they have a chance.¹⁰⁵

VII. VOTER ID

Introduction

During the last decade, legislators, courts, and the public have grappled with questions of whether, and if so what types of, ID should be required in order for a voter's vote to be counted. The more restrictive laws—which require voters to produce one of a limited set of government-issued photo IDs—impact minority voters disproportionately, and two federal courts have enjoined these laws because of their racial impact.

Prior to the 2000 election, states generally had ID requirements that most, if not all, voters could satisfy. In most states, voters simply attested to their identity. Most states did not require a form of ID, and even amongst those that did, a document provided by the election authority sufficed (as was the case in South Carolina and Texas).¹⁰⁶ Alternatively, in lieu of providing a document, an individual would be able to vote after signing an affidavit attesting to his or her identity (as was the case in Louisiana).¹⁰⁷

Justin Jones, Chair of the Nashville Student Organizing Committee, holding up his student ID and voter registration card. Jones testified about the barriers to student voting, pointing out that Tennessee allows voters to use their gun registration card, but not student IDs as an acceptable form of ID. PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

After the 2000 election, Congress passed the Help America Vote Act, which included a voter ID requirement that applies only to first-time voters who register by mail and allows for a wide range of acceptable identifying documents.¹⁰⁸

In 2005, Georgia and Indiana became the first states to require voters to produce one of a short list of government-issued photo IDs before their votes would be counted. As discussed more fully below, these laws were challenged in both states, and the federal court decisions that resulted have framed the parameters of subsequent voter ID laws and litigation. A combination of the Supreme Court's decision upholding Indiana's law and political changes arising from the 2010 election resulted in seven states enacting photo ID bills during the 2011-2012 legislative sessions.

The Shelby County decision had an immediate impact on voter ID laws in states that were formerly covered by Section 5 of the VRA. On the day of the Shelby County decision, Texas announced that it would immediately begin to implement its voter ID bill that had been blocked under Section 5 (first by DOJ and then the federal district court). Alabama also announced on the same day that it would begin implementing its government-issued photo ID requirement for voting.¹⁰⁹ Within a few days, Mississippi made the same announcement with respect to a similar requirement.¹¹⁰ Shortly thereafter, as discussed below, North Carolina passed legislation including stringent new voter ID requirements.¹¹¹

Justifications for ID Laws and Statistics Regarding ID

The primary justification given by proponents of ID laws is that they are necessary to prevent fraud. However, as has been demonstrated in repeated academic studies and government investigations, the only form of fraud that would be addressed by voter identification laws—commission of fraud by impersonating a voter—is practically nonexistent.¹¹² Of the few election fraud cases brought by DOJ between 2002 and 2005, none appears to be of the type that would have been addressed by a voter ID requirement.¹¹³ This is particularly striking as we now know that U.S. attorneys were under enormous pressure to pursue these types of cases in the 2000s.¹¹⁴ It is also quite telling that in virtually every lawsuit where states have identified prevention of voter fraud as a justification for their voter ID laws, they have been unable to identify any actual examples of voter impersonation in their state.¹¹⁵ Indeed, in Crawford v. Marion County Election Board, the Supreme Court decision upholding Indiana's voter identification law, Indiana admitted that it had not identified any examples of such voter fraud and Justice Stevens, in his plurality opinion, could only cite two allegations of voter impersonation fraud from other states: the Boss Tweed regime in New York in the nineteenth century and a single case of possible impersonation in the Washington State gubernatorial election of 2004.¹¹⁶ Most recently, a federal judge pointed out in a Wisconsin ID case that the defendants had been unable to provide one instance of fraudulent impersonation in the State.¹¹⁷

Given the lack of evidence of voter impersonation, proponents of ID laws have sought to defend their legitimacy by other means. They claim that voter impersonation is a reality, even though it cannot be proven.¹¹⁸ They also contend that voter ID laws increase voter confidence in the electoral process because with ID laws in place, voters perceive that there will be less fraud.¹¹⁹ This unproven assertion ignores the likelihood that voter ID laws may cause some voters—particularly those that lack the required ID—to have less confidence in the electoral process.

While claims that ID laws increase voter confidence remain unverified, it is well-documented that racial minorities are less likely than whites to have the most common forms of government-issued photo ID. While about 11 percent of Americans do not have a driver's license or non-driver's government ID, African Americans, Latinos, immigrants, Native Americans, and the poor disproportionately lack the required documentation. Academic study after academic study has shown that these groups are much less likely than whites to have government-issued photo ID, such as a driver's license.¹²⁰ A national survey by the Brennan Center found that Americans earning less than $35,000 are twice as likely to lack ID as Americans who earn more than $35,000, and that African Americans are more than three times as likely as whites to not have ID. Indeed, the survey found that one-fourth of African Americans do not have a government-issued photo ID.¹²¹

The legal cases discussed below present a multiplicity of state-specific data confirming the fact that minority voters are overrepresented among those who lack ID. To many civil and voting rights advocates, these new voter ID laws are just a more subtle reincarnation of the poll tax.

The Georgia and Indiana Laws: Setting the Stage

In 2005, Georgia and Indiana became the first states to significantly restrict the types of government-issued photo ID that would be required from voters. Both laws have been challenged in court, and the outcomes have informed subsequent legislation and litigation around voter ID.

In 2005, the Georgia General Assembly passed its first voter ID law over protests and walkouts by its Black Legislative Caucus.¹²² The law required that a voter provide one of six forms of government-issued ID: a Georgia driver's license; a valid ID card issued by the State of Georgia, by another state, or by the United States; a valid U.S. passport; a valid employee photo ID card issued by the State of Georgia, by one of its subdivisions, or by the United States; a valid U.S. military photo ID card; or a valid tribal photo ID card.¹²³ The law did not provide for a free means of obtaining ID. In Common Cause of Georgia v. Billups,¹²⁴ the district court issued a preliminary injunction enjoining the law and finding that the plaintiffs were likely to prevail on multiple claims, including the claim that failure to provide for free ID constituted a poll tax.

The next year the General Assembly amended the law, and part of the amendment and implementing regulations enabled any voter to obtain a voter ID for free from the county registrar.¹²⁵ The registrar could use the signature on the voter's registration application as a means of verifying the voter's identity. Plaintiffs challenged the amended law but were unsuccessful: federal courts found that the availability of free IDs that are relatively easy to obtain solved the problem with the earlier law.¹²⁶

The significance of the Georgia case is that subsequent state legislatures have had to be careful to ensure that they make free IDs available when adopting new, restrictive voter ID laws. Not all have made it as easy for voters to obtain the free ID, however, and some states' procedures for obtaining ID can significantly burden voters.

In Crawford v. Marion County Election Board,¹²⁷ the U.S. Supreme Court voted 6-3 to uphold Indiana's voter ID law against a facial challenge that it violated the fundamental right to vote under the 14th Amendment.¹²⁸ The law required that voters present a form of ID that was issued by the State of Indiana or by the United States and displayed the voter's photo, name (which had to conform, but not necessarily be identical, to the name listed on their voter registration card), and an expiration date indicating that the ID was currently valid or had expired after the date of the last General Election.¹²⁹

The plurality opinion balanced the State's justifications for the law against the burden that the law imposed on voters. Drawing from the district court's determinations, the Supreme Court found that the burden on voters was "limited"¹³⁰ because the evidence in the record was lacking: the record did "not provide us with the number of registered voters without identification[.]"¹³¹ did "not provide any concrete evidence of the burden imposed on voters who currently lack photo identification[.]"¹³² and said "virtually nothing about the difficulties faced by either indigent voters or voters with religious objections to being photographed."¹³³ Accordingly, the Supreme Court upheld the law.¹³⁴

Proponents and opponents of restrictive voter ID laws have interpreted the Crawford decision differently. After Crawford, some proponents have erroneously interpreted the ruling as a blanket imprimatur of legality to any voter ID law. This is distinctly not the case. For example, Texas has repeatedly made that argument in litigation surrounding its law (see sidebar later in this chapter for details involving the Texas ID law and the litigation). In the initial Section 5 litigation, Texas argued that Crawford required the court to uphold its ID requirement, saying that it "controls this case[.]"¹³⁵ In the subsequent post-Shelby County Section 2 litigation concerning the Texas law, Texas moved to dismiss the challenge to its ID law, in part on the grounds that "[v]oter-identification laws are constitutional. The Supreme Court so held in Crawford v. Marion County Election Board. . . .”¹³⁶ In denying the motion to dismiss, the Texas district court explicitly rejected this argument: “Defendants overstate the Supreme Court’s approval of voter identification laws. . . . While a photo identification law was squarely at issue in Crawford, the terms of that law, the nature of the claims, and the specific holding fail to produce any Supreme Court preclusion of the claims made here.” The judge specifically pointed to the fact that in Crawford there was a necessary balancing test under the 14th Amendment, under which the defendants narrowly succeeded; Crawford said nothing about claims brought under Section 2 of the VRA or the First, Fifteenth, and Twenty-fourth Amendments against a photo ID law.¹³⁷

The opponents of voter ID have drawn their own lessons from the Crawford decision. In order to craft stronger legal challenges, they have placed more emphasis on developing a record that: (1) shows more definitively how many people are affected by the law, (2) demonstrates implementation problems, and (3) includes compelling testimony from individuals affected by the law.

The VRA at Work: Wisconsin, South Carolina, and Texas

There are three states where the VRA has affected an enacted voter ID law in recent years: Wisconsin, where the federal district court enjoined the law as a violation of Section 2 of the VRA; South Carolina, where the State significantly modified the law during a Section 5 preclearance lawsuit; and Texas, where the federal district court found that the law violated Section 5, a decision that was vacated after the Shelby County case, and is now the subject of multiple Section 2 lawsuits. Wisconsin is discussed below, South Carolina in Chapter 3, and Texas in the sidebar later in this chapter.

In a decision issued on April 29, 2014, a federal district court judge found that Wisconsin’s voter ID law has a racially discriminatory result in violation of Section 2 of the VRA, and that the law violates the fundamental right to vote under the 14th Amendment.¹³⁸ The court found that approximately 300,000 registered voters lacked one of the nine required forms of photo ID.¹³⁹ Drawing from expert and fact witness testimony, the court then found that those without ID, especially those in poverty, faced significant financial, transportation-related, and administrative hurdles in obtaining identification.¹⁴⁰ In addition, the court found that the evidence presented at trial showed that African-American and Latino voters in Wisconsin are far less likely to have an acceptable ID because of socioeconomic disparities traceable to the effects of discrimination.¹⁴¹ In contrast, the court found that the justifications for the law were tenuous at best. It rejected Wisconsin’s voter fraud justification by finding that “there is virtually no voter-impersonation fraud in Wisconsin.”¹⁴² The court also found Wisconsin’s argument that voter ID laws promote public confidence in the electoral process to be unsupported by the social science research and that such laws may tend to undermine confidence in the electoral process as much as they promote it.¹⁴³

At the NCVR hearing in Minneapolis, Karyn Rotker, Senior Staff Attorney at the Wisconsin ACLU, which represented plaintiffs, submitted testimony citing expert statements provided to the court in the case showing that in “Milwaukee County alone—where the vast majority of the State’s entire African-American population and a substantial plurality of its Latino population resides—13.2% of eligible African-American voters and 14.9% of eligible Latino voters lacked accepted ID, compared to 7.3% of eligible white voters.”¹⁴⁴ Moreover, she cited statements demonstrating that “15.3% of registered African-American voters and 11.3% of registered Latino voters lack accepted forms of ID, compared to 6.0% of registered white voters. An analysis of statewide data shows similar disparities.”¹⁴⁵

Using State Law to Block Voter Identification Provisions: Missouri, Arkansas, and Pennsylvania

Most states have a provision guaranteeing the fundamental right to vote in their state constitutions,¹⁴⁶ and in Missouri, this provision was used successfully to challenge the state’s government-issued photo ID requirement in Weinschenk v. State.¹⁴⁷ In May 2014, a state court found that Arkansas’ 2003 photo ID law violated the state constitution because it impermissibly added a qualification for voting.¹⁴⁸ The Arkansas case remains in litigation.

The most intensively litigated case applying state law to block an ID provision was brought in Pennsylvania. On March 14, 2012, Pennsylvania passed a law requiring voters to show a valid photo ID in order to vote. The ID law was challenged in May 2012 as a violation of Pennsylvania’s fundamental right to vote in Applewhite v. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.¹⁴⁹ After the trial court denied the plaintiffs’ motion for preliminary relief, plaintiffs successfully appealed to Pennsylvania Supreme Court. The Pennsylvania Supreme Court found the availability of the State’s free voter ID problematic. The ID law had a “liberal access” provision, which allowed voters to obtain a free ID through the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) by completing an application stating that they did not have an ID that could be used for voting. However, state officials had made it difficult for voters to actually obtain a free ID.¹⁵⁰ The Pennsylvania Supreme Court noted that although the free ID provisions affected “a minority of the population,” those most affected are “members of some of the most vulnerable segments of the society.”¹⁵¹ The State Supreme Court instructed the trial court to enjoin the voter ID law for the November 2012 election, unless the trial court was “convinced in its predictive judgment that there will be no voter disenfranchisement arising out of the Commonwealth’s implementation of a voter identification requirement for purposes of the upcoming election.”¹⁵² The trial court subsequently enjoined the law for that election.

The parties tried the case in 2013, and on January 17, 2014, a judge issued an injunction permanently blocking the enforcement of Pennsylvania’s voter ID law on the grounds that it violated the fundamental right to vote.¹⁵³ According to the court opinion, the State’s own database comparison showed that 759,000 registered voters did not have a Pennsylvania

ID and another 575,000 did not have an ID that would be valid for the 2012 election. In total, 1.3 million registered voters lacked the ID needed to vote. Moreover, the judge found that “[i]n contrast to the hundreds of thousands who lack compliant photo ID, only 17,000 photo IDs for voting purposes (DOS [Department of State] IDs + PennDOT Voting IDs) have been issued.... This includes issuance of less than four thousand DOS IDs.”¹⁵⁴ The court found that there were a number of impediments to getting a voter ID, including that in many counties the state offices were only open two days a week, state employees had received inadequate training, and inaccurate messages were sent to voters.¹⁵⁵ In addition to finding that the law burdened voters, the court found that the State had failed to provide any evidence supporting the two justifications it offered for the law—preventing voter fraud and promoting public confidence in the electoral system. Thus, the court found the law unconstitutional. On May 8, 2014 the Governor of Pennsylvania announced that he would not appeal the case to the State Supreme Court.

Pending Litigation over North Carolina’s Photo ID Requirement

Less than two months after the Shelby County decision, North Carolina passed a wide-ranging voting law, H.B. 589, that includes a new government-issued photo ID requirement. DOJ and two sets of private plaintiffs have challenged H.B. 589 on a number of grounds. These three different cases challenge the North Carolina law under the VRA and have been consolidated.¹⁵⁶ DOJ’s complaint included the following allegations regarding the disproportionate impact of the new ID requirements on African Americans. The complaint draws largely from an April 2013 study where North Carolina’s State Board of Elections matched the registered voter list to Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) records:¹⁵⁷

Barbara Arnwine, Executive Director of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law and a guest commissioner at the NCVR hearing in North Carolina.

PHOTO CREDIT: ALLISON MEDER

Voters who need a special identification card to meet HB 589’s voter photo identification requirement will have to travel to a DMV office to obtain the card. In 10 North Carolina counties, the only DMV office is open only once per month. Four of these counties are among the 10 North Carolina counties that have the highest percentage of African-American voting-age populations in the State, including Bertie County, which has the highest at 60.7 percent. [...] Although African-American voters comprised 22.5 percent of total registered voters in the State at the time of the analysis, 33.8 percent (107,681) of the registered voters on the no-match list [of those citizens with DMV issued ID] were African-American. In contrast, white voters constituted 71.0 percent of the total registered voter population in the State, but were only 54.2 percent (172,613) of the registered voters on the no-match list. Further, of the 4,562,097 white registered voters in the State, 3.8 percent appeared to not have DMV-issued identification, whereas of the 1,445,799 African-American registered voters, 7.4 percent appeared not to have DMV-issued identification.¹⁵⁸

Examples of Poll Workers Improperly Requiring Identification from Minority Voters

“At certain poll sites, poll workers would only ask Asian-American voters for their ID and make it a requirement. We’ve seen that across the country, whether there is a voter ID law or not, poll workers use that as an opportunity to selectively disfranchise certain voters.” Jerry Vattamala (seated far right), Attorney for the Asian American Defense and Educational Fund, at the NCVR Pennsylvania state hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: BEN BOWENS

Another notable problem is poll workers requiring identification from minority voters when it is not legally required. This has not only been documented anecdotally, it has been found to be the case in two major academic studies, one focused on New Mexico and the other on Boston, Massachusetts.¹⁵⁹ The studies found that Latinos and African Americans were consistently asked for identification at higher rates, regardless of whether voter ID was actually required by law.¹⁶⁰

The NCVR also heard testimony to this effect with respect to Asian Americans. In Pennsylvania, Rahat Babar, the president of the Asian Pacific American Bar Association of Pennsylvania testified that,

Even when the law was subject to a partial preliminary injunction during the 2012 elections [when poll workers were supposed to request ID, but still allow those without ID to vote], we discovered that poll workers applied the voter ID law in a discriminatory way against Asian Americans and other persons of color. Some Asian-American voters were subject to excessive requests to present identification and, in other instances, required to prove citizenship.¹⁶¹

Case Spotlight Voter ID in Texas

Texas' voter ID requirement perhaps best illustrates the questionable necessity of these laws and their relationship to the VRA.

Prior to 2011, Texas law required that an in-person voter present his or her voter registration certificate in order to vote.¹⁶² Any voter without a certificate had to complete an affidavit stating that he or she did not have a certificate, and the voter would be required to present another form of ID.¹⁶³

Nonetheless, in 2011, Texas enacted what the court in Texas v. Holder would later call the "most stringent" voter ID law in the country.¹⁶⁴ Texas submitted its law, S.B. 14, to DOJ for Section 5 preclearance. DOJ denied preclearance on the grounds that Texas failed to show that the law would not have a retrogressive effect. This was partially based on data from Texas state databases submitted to the DOJ, which revealed that a Latino registered voter was at least 46.5 percent, and potentially 120.0 percent, more likely than a non-Latino registered voter to lack the requisite ID.¹⁶⁵

Undeterred, Texas next sought preclearance in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. Like DOJ, the federal court denied preclearance on the grounds that Texas failed to show that the law did not have a discriminatory effect.¹⁶⁶ The court noted that not all voter ID laws are alike and laws "might well be precleared if they ensure (1) that all prospective voters can easily obtain free photo ID and (2) that any underlying documents required to obtain that ID were truly free of charge."¹⁶⁷ The court concluded that:

record evidence suggests that SB 14, if implemented, would in fact have a retrogressive effect on Hispanic and African-American voters. This conclusion flows from three basic facts: (1) a substantial subgroup of Texas voters, many of whom are African-American or Hispanic, lack photo ID; (2) the burdens associated with obtaining ID will weigh most heavily on the poor; and (3) racial minorities in Texas are disproportionately likely to live in poverty.¹⁶⁸

Part of this determination was based on evidence that some voters would have to travel more than 200 miles roundtrip to obtain an accepted ID and that they would have to pay at least $22 to obtain a birth certificate that would enable them to obtain an ID.¹⁶⁹ In addition, the court found it significant that the legislature rejected a number of proposed amendments that would have made identification more accessible for certain groups, stating:

[C]rucially, the Texas legislature defeated several amendments that could have made this a far closer case. Ignoring warnings that SB 14, as written, would disenfranchise minorities and the poor, the legislature tabled or defeated amendments that would have:

- waived all fees for indigent persons who needed the underlying documents to obtain an EIC [Election Identification Certificate];
- reimbursed impoverished Texans for EIC-related travel costs;
- expanded the range of identifications acceptable under SB 14 by allowing voters to present student or Medicare ID cards at the polls;
- required DPS [Department of Public Safety] offices to remain open in the evening and on weekends; and
- allowed indigent persons to cast provisional ballots without photo ID.

“Put another way, if counsel [defending the Texas law] faced an ‘impossible burden,’ it was because of the law Texas enacted—nothing more, nothing less.”¹⁷⁰

Texas appealed the district court’s ruling. During the course of the appeal, the Supreme Court decided Shelby County, which effectively ended the case because Texas was no longer covered by Section 5.¹⁷¹ On the day of the Shelby County decision, Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott announced that Texas would begin implementing its voter ID law.¹⁷² As discussed above, the United States and multiple sets of private plaintiffs have brought challenges to the Texas ID law under Section 2 of the VRA, and the case is pending in federal court.¹⁷³

VIII. EARLY IN-PERSON VOTING

In recent decades, the option of voting in person on days prior to Election Day has become enormously popular with voters and election administrators. Today, 33 states and the District of Columbia offer some form of early voting.¹⁷⁴ Early voting makes it easier to vote, especially for working people who have multiple commitments and responsibilities. As a federal district court in D.C. noted, African Americans in several Florida counties took advantage of early voting opportunities at a rate nearly double that of white voters in the 2008 election.¹⁷⁵ Inflexible work schedules, limited access to reliable transportation (including lower car-ownership rates), and the focus on early voting by get-out-the-vote efforts in minority communities were cited as factors accounting for African Americans' higher early voting rate in the State.¹⁷⁶

Unfortunately, in recent years, several states have significantly cut back on the number of days and hours of early voting. Critically, these reductions have often eliminated voting in the evening and on Saturdays and Sundays, including the Sunday before Election Day. This change has hit African Americans particularly hard because it had become a popular practice in African American churches in some states, including Florida, for congregants to go vote together after Sunday church services.

Florida is one state that has sought to restrict early voting. In advance of the 2012 election, Florida enacted H.B. 1355 which, among other things, reduced the number of days that counties were permitted to offer early voting from 14 to eight, cut in half the number of total hours that counties were required to offer for early voting from 96 to 48, and eliminated in-person voting on the Sunday before Election Day.¹⁷⁷ As a result, early voting turnout dropped by over 225,000 voters from 2008 to 2012.¹⁷⁸ Long lines were prevalent during both the early voting period and on Election Day. Election Day lines were so long that some people only managed to vote after midnight.¹⁷⁹ One study indicated that more than 201,000 voters likely did not vote because of long lines.¹⁸⁰

Data from previous elections in Florida foreshadowed the disproportionate effect early voting cuts would have on African Americans and other minorities. An analysis of voting data from 2008 found that "not only did African Americans cast more [early in-person] ballots than they cast on Election Day, but also that African Americans accounted for a much greater proportion of the early voting electorate than they did on Election Day, Tuesday, November 4, 2008. Perhaps due to the early voting mobilization efforts by the Obama campaign and their allies which encouraged early voting by African Americans, black voters ended up casting 22 percent of the total EIP [early in-person] votes in the 2008 General Election even though they comprised approximately 13 percent of the State's total registered electorate."¹⁸¹ With respect to the Sunday before Election Day, the findings were especially telling, with African Americans constituting 31 percent of early voters on the final Sunday of voting before Election Day.¹⁸² White voters, relatively speaking, had the lowest participation rates for Sunday early in-person voting. By comparison, African Americans had the highest rate on the first Sunday of early voting, while Latinos participated at the highest rate on the last Sunday of early voting (followed by African American voters).¹⁸³ The differential rates of early voting were part of the basis for the U.S. District Court for D.C.'s denial of preclearance to the five Florida counties that were covered under Section 5 when they attempted to implement the aforementioned statewide changes to early voting. The court recognized the potential for a racially discriminatory effect.¹⁸⁴

One study conducted after the 2012 election concluded that the “effect of early voting changes reflected in H.B. 1355 was to inconvenience African Americans specifically.”¹⁸⁵ The research found that the cutbacks led to more crowded polling places and that “voters who faced greater congestion, and presumably longer lines... were disproportionately African American.”¹⁸⁶ Notably, beyond Florida, the report highlighted the increasing popularity of early voting among African Americans nationally. In the 2012 general election, the number of African Americans voting early in-person reportedly tripled compared to 2008. Similarly, this same figure doubled in the 2014 midterm election compared to the 2010 midterm.¹⁸⁷

Notably, African Americans in Southern states continued to vote early in-person at higher rates than other groups: 41 percent of African Americans in the South voted early in-person, compared to 34.8 percent of white voters. Moreover, African-American early in-person voters in the South also outpaced this same group of African-American voters in all other regions of the U.S.¹⁸⁸

In 2013, North Carolina enacted a law, H.B. 589, that, among other measures, eliminated the first seven days of early voting, reducing the number of days to vote early in person from 17 to 10. In addition, the law eliminated the first Sunday of early voting. A number of civil rights groups, as well as the DOJ, have brought lawsuits challenging H.B. 589.

The data in North Carolina mirrors the findings in Florida regarding early voting:

- In the 2008 general election, African-American voters made up 22 percent of registered voters, but cast about 29 percent of early votes and about 32 percent of votes during the first week of early voting. About 71 percent of African American voters cast their ballot during early voting in the 2008 general election, compared to 51 percent of white voters.¹⁸⁹
- In the 2012 general election, African-American voters made up an estimated 22 percent of registered voters, but were approximately 29 percent of early voters and 33 percent of voters in first week of early voting. About 71 percent of African American voters cast their ballot during early voting in the 2012 general election, as compared with 52 percent of white voters.¹⁹⁰ Over 36 percent of all North Carolinians who voted during the first week of early voting in 2012 were African-American. Additionally, there was a notable peak in African-American participation during weekend voting, while weekend early voting for whites declined. African Americans cast 43 percent of all Sunday ballots.¹⁹¹ The disproportionate use of early voting by African Americans in North Carolina has been confirmed by academic research.¹⁹²

Cutbacks to early voting have also disproportionately affected African American voters in Ohio. A Lawyers' Committee analysis of voting patterns in 2008 in Cuyahoga County, which includes Cleveland, found that African-American voters used early in-person voting at a rate approximately 26.6 times greater than that of whites. Put another way, "African Americans accounted for nearly 78% of all early in person voters, compared to less than 7% for whites."¹⁹³ Similarly, in 2012, African American voters in Cuyahoga County utilized early voting at a rate more than 20 times greater than white voters. About 77.6 percent of early voters in Cuyahoga in 2012 are estimated to have been African American.¹⁹⁴

Petee Talley, Secretary-Treasurer of the Ohio State AFL-CIO and co-chair of the Ohio Voter Protection Coalition, testified about the need for ongoing community voter education and outreach, at NCVR Columbus regional hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: JIMMEY MCEACHERN

In Franklin County, Ohio (which includes Columbus), African Americans represented 21 percent of all ballots cast in 2008, but cast 31 percent of early in-person ballots, while whites made up 74 percent of the electorate but cast only 65 percent of early in-person ballots. Overall, 13.3 percent of all African-American ballots cast in 2008 in Franklin County were done early in-person, as opposed to only 8 percent of white ballots.¹⁹⁵

In 2011 and 2012, Ohio enacted legislation that, among other things, changed the last permissible day for early in-person voting by non-uniformed and overseas voters from the Monday before the election to the Friday before the election, thereby eliminating three early vote days. A federal court blocked implementation of the law and ordered the restoration of the three early vote days, however, because the law violated the 14th Amendment's Equal Protection Clause by treating uniformed and overseas citizens, and other voters, differently.¹⁹⁶ The judge noted:

On balance, the right of Ohio voters to vote in person during the last three days prior to Election Day—a right previously conferred to all voters by the State—outweighs the State's interest in setting the 6 p.m. Friday deadline. The burden on Ohio voters' right to participate in the national and statewide election is great, as evidenced by the statistical analysis offered by Plaintiffs and not disputed by Defendants[, and] the State's interests are insufficiently weighty to justify the injury to Plaintiffs.¹⁹⁷

Also in 2012, Ohio Secretary of State Husted issued Directive 2012-35, which required all counties in Ohio, regardless of size and other differences, to conduct early voting at a single site following a specific schedule set by the State. Directive 2012-35 eliminated early voting opportunities that African Americans had traditionally taken advantage of, including all week-end hours and certain evening hours.¹⁹⁸

Subsequently, in late 2013 and early 2014, the Ohio legislature hastily passed S.B. 238, which eliminated the first week of early voting and, because that was the only week during which one could both register and vote, S.B. 238 eliminated the only opportunity for same-day voter registration. Several days later, Secretary of State Husted issued Directive 2014-06, forcing all counties to eliminate all evening early voting hours, all Sunday voting, and early voting on the Monday before Election Day.¹⁹⁹ On May 1, 2014, a coalition of civil rights organizations and churches filed a lawsuit challenging these changes.²⁰⁰ According to the complaint, 157,000 Ohio citizens voted in 2012 during the periods that S.B. 238 and Directive 2014-06 eliminate for the 2014 election.²⁰¹ The plaintiffs' motion for a preliminary injunction was filed June 30, 2014 and remains pending.

The recent actions that Ohio's legislators and Secretary of State have taken to restrict early voting were taken in the face of well-publicized data demonstrating that cuts in early voting would disproportionately burden African-Americans.²⁰² In fact, statements and actions by public officials make clear that the effects of the cutbacks were well understood. For example, in the words of a local newspaper, a member of the Franklin County Board of Elections explained his support for the 2012 cutback like this: "I guess I really actually feel we shouldn't contort the voting process to accommodate the urban—read African-American—voter turnout machine."²⁰³

Finally, in Wisconsin, another state that has seen a number of voting controversies in recent years, Governor Scott Walker has signed a bill that eliminates weekend early voting altogether. Many in the State have expressed concern that the cutback will bear particularly heavily on Milwaukee voters, where a significant proportion of the State's minority population resides.²⁰⁴

“Even with extended hours, we still saw long lines on election days [in 2008 and 2012]... Assembly Bill 54 and Senate Bill 324 in our current legislative session would eliminate any weekend hours for in-person absentee voting and would not allow municipal clerks to offer hours later than 6:00 p.m. during the week. We believe the passage of this bill would absolutely devastate the ability of many voters marginalized in other ways to access their right to vote...” –Analiise Eicher, One Wisconsin Now, at the NCVR Minneapolis regional hearing.

PHOTO CREDIT: TIM RUMMELHOFF

IX. PROBLEMS AT POLLING PLACES

An accessible, fully-equipped, and functioning polling place is, of course, critical to the voting process. The recent history of voting discrimination and restricted ballot access for minority voters, however, contains reports of polling place closures in minority areas and jurisdictions' refusals to expand voting locations into more remote communities where minority voters reside. The record documented in the 2006 NCVR report also contains numerous examples of how such activities disadvantage minority voters. As is detailed in Chapter 7, implementation of language assistance requirements at the polls continues to be a problem; accessibility of polling places for people with disabilities, a major problem in American elections, will be addressed at length in the forthcoming report on election administration.

One common and well-publicized problem at the polls in recent elections has been long lines. Whether a reflection of inadequate staffing, too few voting locations, or problems with poll books, long lines on Election Day may be more than just an inconvenience; for some, long lines prevent or deter voting. Research on recent elections has shown that African-American and Hispanic voters are likely to experience longer wait times than white voters. One study using 2008 and 2012 post-election survey data concluded that minority voters waited longer than white voters at the polls. The average wait time for African Americans was highest at 24 minutes, followed by an average wait time of 19 minutes for Hispanic voters. By comparison, white voters waited an average of 12 minutes to vote. Notably, the authors point out that these disparities in wait time by race largely remained in place after controlling for state residence and voting mode (Election Day versus early voting).²⁰⁵ Further, voters in urban areas waited longer to vote than their counterparts in suburban and rural areas.²⁰⁶

The experiences with long lines in particular states help illustrate these national findings. A study of precinct-level data, including closing times, in Florida from the November 2012 election found that “precincts with greater proportions of Hispanics—and in several counties, with high proportions of Blacks, as well as younger voters—had later closing times on Election Day relative to precincts with higher concentrations of White and elderly voters.”²⁰⁷ Long lines in minority communities were also a pressing issue during the 2004 election, as seen in Ohio. An investigation found that the “misallocation of voting machines led to unprecedented long lines[,]” which disenfranchised minority voters disproportionately.²⁰⁸

“In 2004, Election Day was a fiasco in many places around Ohio. Local, state, and national media covered the multitude of problems stemming from excessively long lines of voters waiting, many of them for hours on end. These lines led an estimated 130,000 voters to leave their polling locations without casting a ballot. African-American voters waited in line an average of three times longer than their white counterparts.”

Gary Daniels, Associate Director of the Ohio American Civil Liberties Union at the NCVR Columbus regional hearing

Closing and Consolidating Polling Places

Closure of polling places serving minority voters continues to raise concerns about equal access to the ballot. For example, on October 8, 2010, plaintiffs in Spirit Lake Tribe v. Benson County secured a preliminary injunction under Section 2 of the VRA, which curtailed the North Dakota county’s plans to close all but one of the eight voting locations in the county (citing financial reasons) and implement a mail-in ballot program.²⁰⁹ The tribe was successful in keeping open the two polling places located on its reservation.²¹⁰ The federal court in Spirit

Lake Tribe agreed with plaintiffs that the severe reduction in voting locations would risk effectively disenfranchising a portion of the tribe's voters; noting the well-documented "historic pattern of discrimination suffered by members of [the tribe]," the court considered evidence that closing the voting locations on and near the reservation would likely have a disproportionate impact on tribal members, which supported the decision to require the county to keep open the two on-reservation polling places.²¹¹ Tribal members testified that they would not be able to vote at the one proposed voting location because they lacked access to reliable public or private transportation, could not afford to pay for transportation costs, or were concerned about the distance from remote parts of the reservation to the one location.²¹² In addition, members testified that a mail-in ballot process would be ineffective and undesirable.²¹³ The tribal members and the court were skeptical that the county could ensure that the tribe's sizable transient population would receive their ballots by mail.²¹⁴

In reaching its decision, the court recognized that Spirit Lake's population was "more economically and educationally challenged" than the rest of the county, and had "staggering problems in areas including economics, education, housing, and employment."²¹⁵ The court further observed:

[T]here are burdens that fall on the voting process on the Spirit Lake Reservation that simply do not exist elsewhere in Benson County. Thus, a system that might be entirely appropriate for the County as a whole, could well create a significant burden on voting within the confines of the Spirit Lake Reservation.²¹⁶

In 2003, Bexar County, Texas announced plans to reduce the number of early voting polling places from 20 to 11, in the process eliminating the five such polling places serving the predominantly-Latino west side of San Antonio.²¹⁷ Bexar County moved forward with these plans, even though DOJ had yet to make a decision on the County's request for Section 5 preclearance. This led the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund (MALDEF) to file a Section 5 enforcement action in federal court, which alleged that the county's changes would infringe on west side residents' right to vote by forcing them to go far from their homes to cast their ballots. Plaintiffs sought an injunction to prevent the closures.²¹⁸ The closures were enjoined shortly after MALDEF filed its action.²¹⁹

In 2003, Monterey County, California announced plans to, inter alia, consolidate precincts and change the locations of polling places in predominantly Latino areas as part of the preparations for a then-upcoming special gubernatorial recall election.²²⁰ According to testimony at the NCVR California state hearing from an attorney for the plaintiffs in a case challenging the changes, one consolidation would have moved a polling place nearly five miles away from its previous location in a predominantly Latino community into an area without easy access to public transportation.²²¹ Another would have forced voters residing in predominantly Latino communities to cast their ballots at the Sheriff's Posse Club House, a hunting club in a predominantly Anglo neighborhood.²²² Plaintiffs brought suit, seeking to enjoin the recall election on the basis that, inter alia, Monterey County's plan to consolidate precincts and reduce the number of polling places was legally unenforceable due to the county's failure to secure preclearance of the proposed changes from the DOJ under Section 5 of the VRA.²²³ After the federal trial court entered a limited temporary restraining order and ordered the county to show cause why a preliminary injunction halting any further election preparations should not issue,²²⁴ Monterey County informed the district court that the proposed changes would not occur and withdrew the problematic polling place changes from DOJ's review.²²⁵ While DOJ ultimately approved the voting precinct changes (minus the proposals at issue), it was action taken under Section 5 that led to the withdrawal of the problematic polling place consolidations.²²⁶

As set forth in testimony submitted at the NCVR hearing in Denver, in 2008 Alaska submitted for Section 5 preclearance a proposal to close polling places in several Native villages. DOJ responded with a More Information Request, at which point the State abruptly withdrew the proposal. The same witness testified that DOJ also blocked efforts to close polling places in Navajo Nation in Arizona.²²⁷

In 2006, DOJ objected to the reduction in the number of polling places and early voting locations for the North Harris Montgomery Community College District in Texas. Under the proposal, the site with the smallest proportion of minority voters was meant to serve 6,500 voters, while the most heavily minority site (79.2 percent African-American and Latino) would serve over 67,000 voters.²²⁸

Inadequate Polling Places

At the Pennsylvania state hearing, NCVR received testimony about the Lower Oxford East precinct in Pennsylvania, where 61.8 percent of the voting age population was African-American in 2008. According to a complaint filed against Chester County officials under Section 2 of the VRA, the polling place for that jurisdiction could only fit six voting booths and one optical scanner, had only one bathroom, and had no shelter for waiting voters.²²⁹ During the 2008 primary election, it had to remain open until 10:30 p.m. to process all of the waiting voters.²³⁰

Local election officials, fearing even worse conditions for the general election, requested that the County Board of Elections move the polling place to Lincoln University, a historically black university that was the former, more spacious, site of the precinct's polling place.²³¹ The Board refused. According to the lawsuit, so many voters waiting in line needed restroom facilities that a campaign volunteer arranged for the delivery of six portable toilets at his own expense.²³² Further, plaintiffs alleged that a Republican poll watcher challenged the identities of young African-American voters exclusively, even those with valid registration cards and photo ID, and that an election official dismissed voters' concerns about this.²³³ As a result,

[t]he combination of an inadequately-sized polling place, unlawful challenges, failure of Voter Services to provide an up-to-date poll book and lack of other polling place resources created a perfect storm of long lines and disenfranchised voters of color.²³⁴

One voter reportedly attempted to vote at three times throughout the day, but was unable to do so each time due to the long lines.²³⁵ Others reportedly waited six hours or longer, with many leaving without having the chance to vote; one student was given an estimated wait time of eight hours.²³⁶ In 2009, after receiving complaints about long lines during the 2008 election, the township relocated the polling place to a building that is “even farther away from campus, even less-accessible to African-American voters, and equally small.”²³⁷ The parties later settled the lawsuit, and the Board of Elections agreed to move the polling place back to Lincoln University’s campus.²³⁸

On the right, Marian Schneider, Senior Attorney at the Advancement Project, testified at the NCVR Pennsylvania state hearing about the failure of a local board of elections to move a polling place in a predominantly African-American community to a larger, central location, resulting in excessively long lines and depressed turnout.

PHOTO CREDIT: BEN BOWENS

Barriers to Exercising Voting Rights for Native Americans

At NCVR's Denver regional and Arizona state hearings, Native American voting advocates spoke of Native American voters living in very rural areas without cell service, Internet, even roads, electricity, or running water, who had to drive an hour and a half each way to the nearest polling place.²³⁹

Witnesses at NCVR's Rapid City, South Dakota hearing testified that advocates in the State have been working for some time to get election officials to provide satellite offices for registration and in-person absentee voting—South Dakota's version of early voting—on Indian reservations. Currently, the only place to take advantage of the more than five weeks of early voting in most counties in South Dakota is at the county seat, typically a great distance away from reservation lands. The lack of early voting sites on reservations essentially means that most Native Americans in the county get no early voting and can only vote on Election Day.²⁴⁰ For example, in Dewey County, South Dakota, which has a population that is 74 percent Native American, "over 60 percent of [the] population lives in Eagle Butte, which is 40 miles from the county seat in Timber Lake."²⁴¹ As Julie Garreau, an enrolled member of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, testified, more than 30 percent of the population lives below the poverty line, and "many voters do not own reliable vehicles, or do not have the financial resources to make a trip to early vote."²⁴² Native Americans were able to work with county officials to set up a satellite office on the reservation.

In Shannon County, however, Native Americans were forced to file suit in 2012 under Sections 2 and 5 of the VRA, among other federal and state laws.²⁴³ As the Brooks v. Gant lawsuit progressed, South Dakota officials and the county defendants changed their position, agreeing to provide the early voting at the satellite locations proposed by the plaintiffs through the year 2018. On August 6, 2013, given the resolution of the issue for the time being, the court concluded the plaintiffs could no longer show the required "immediate injury" and dismissed the lawsuit as unripe for consideration; the dismissal was "without prejudice," so the plaintiffs may file a new lawsuit in the future should the State fail to extend the satellite early voting on the reservation beyond 2018.²⁴⁴

The problems Native Americans in Montana face in using in-person absentee voting are similar. Mark Wandering Medicine, a member of the Northern Cheyenne Tribe, testified at the NCVR Rapid City hearing that poverty and traveling great distances to the county seat create barriers for Native Americans in his tribe to take advantage of in-person absentee voting; it is a two-hour drive one way from his home on the Northern Cheyenne Reservation to Forsyth, the county seat of Rosebud County, Montana.²⁴⁵

On October 10, 2012, Native Americans from Montana's Fort Belknap, Crow, and Northern Cheyenne Reservations brought suit seeking to open satellite county offices with in-person absentee voting and late voter registration in Blaine, Rosebud, and Big Horn Counties. After a federal district judge in Missoula refused to dismiss the lawsuit,²⁴⁶ the case settled out of court on June 10, 2014. Under the terms of the settlement, election officials agreed to open voting sites on reservations for two days a week during the month-long period during which Montana allows in-person absentee voting and late registration.²⁴⁷

Native American plaintiffs also achieved a measure of success in challenging Arizona's 2004 voter ID law. Among other claims in the case, the Navajo Nation challenged the voter ID law based upon evidence that the law had a disproportionate effect on Native American voters.^{247a} The claim was settled, with the State agreeing to change the types of ID permitted,^{247b} and the amended list of acceptable IDs was precleared by the DOJ.

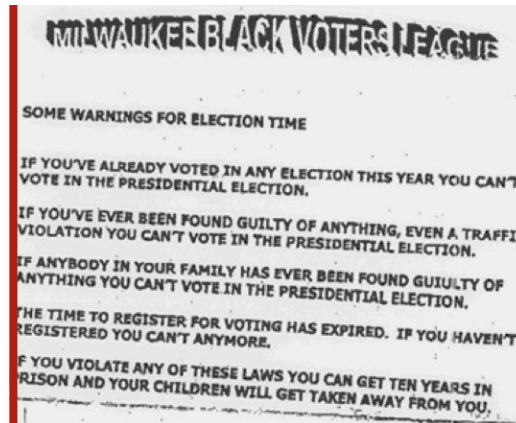

From Left, OJ Seamans Sr., Executive Director of Four Directions, and Bret Healy, consultant at Four Directions, testified at the NCVR Rapid City hearing. Healy testified about the hardships and intimidation plaintiffs have faced in voting rights cases in Montana. PHOTO CREDIT: JOHNNY SUNDBY

X. VOTER INTIMIDATION AND VOTER CHALLENGES

Outright voter intimidation is sadly not a complete vestige of the past.

Although for the most part schemes designed to restrict voting that rely on physical violence have become rare, more sophisticated tactics, relying on the use of intimidating misinformation campaigns, most commonly in the form of flyers and mailings, are still frequent. For example, in 2004 in Milwaukee, a flier purportedly from the “Milwaukee Black Voters League” was distributed in African-American neighborhoods to discourage people from voting.

During the 2012 election, billboards were placed in predominantly minority areas in Cleveland and Cincinnati and later Milwaukee, with menacing warnings about voter fraud and the penalties for violations. The Lawyers’ Committee used census tract population data to demonstrate that the signs were targeted at African-American communities. For example, one billboard was mounted in an area in Cleveland that was 96 percent black. The Lawyers’ Committee sent a letter to Clear Channel, the owner of the billboard spaces, and that organization, along with several others, undertook a campaign to get the signs taken down. In its letter to Clear Channel, the Lawyers’ Committee said the signs, “stigmatize the African-American community by implying that voter fraud is a more significant problem in African American neighborhoods than elsewhere,” and the billboards “attach an implicit threat of criminal prosecution to the civic act of voting.”²⁴⁸ The company ultimately took down the signs after the client who paid for the billboards would not identify itself publicly.

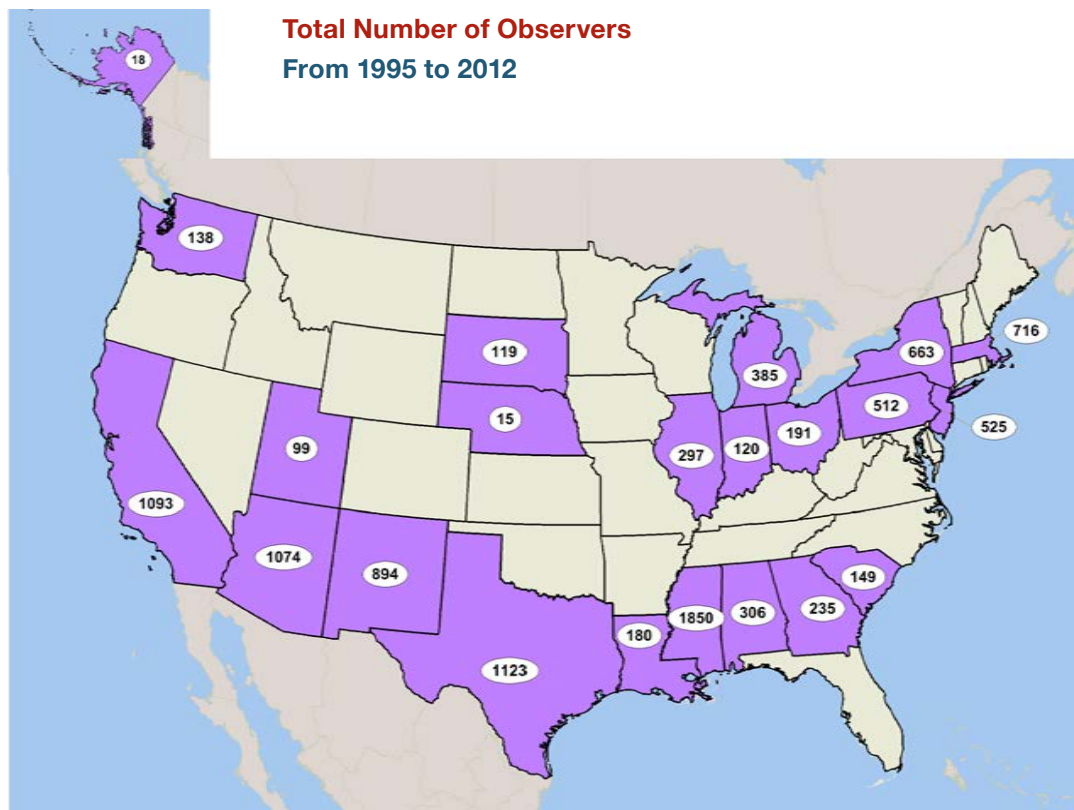

Section 11(b) of the VRA states that “no person... shall intimidate, threaten, or coerce, or attempt to intimidate, threaten, or coerce any person for voting or attempting to vote.”

However, since the Act’s initial passage in 1965, DOJ has filed suit for intimidation or deceptive practices under the VRA in only four instances, and only twice in recent years.²⁴⁹ Though many have argued that 11(b) could be utilized more vigorously and that DOJ has interpreted it too narrowly,²⁵⁰ the fact that it has not been used more often is mostly the result of the challenges in bringing an intimidation claim.²⁵¹ The Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses manual itself describes intimidation as being subjective and often without concrete evidence or witnesses.²⁵² The perpetrators, particularly of deceptive practices, are often difficult to find. This makes prosecutors reluctant to devote resources to pursuing such cases.

Federal Observers Deter Voter Intimidation

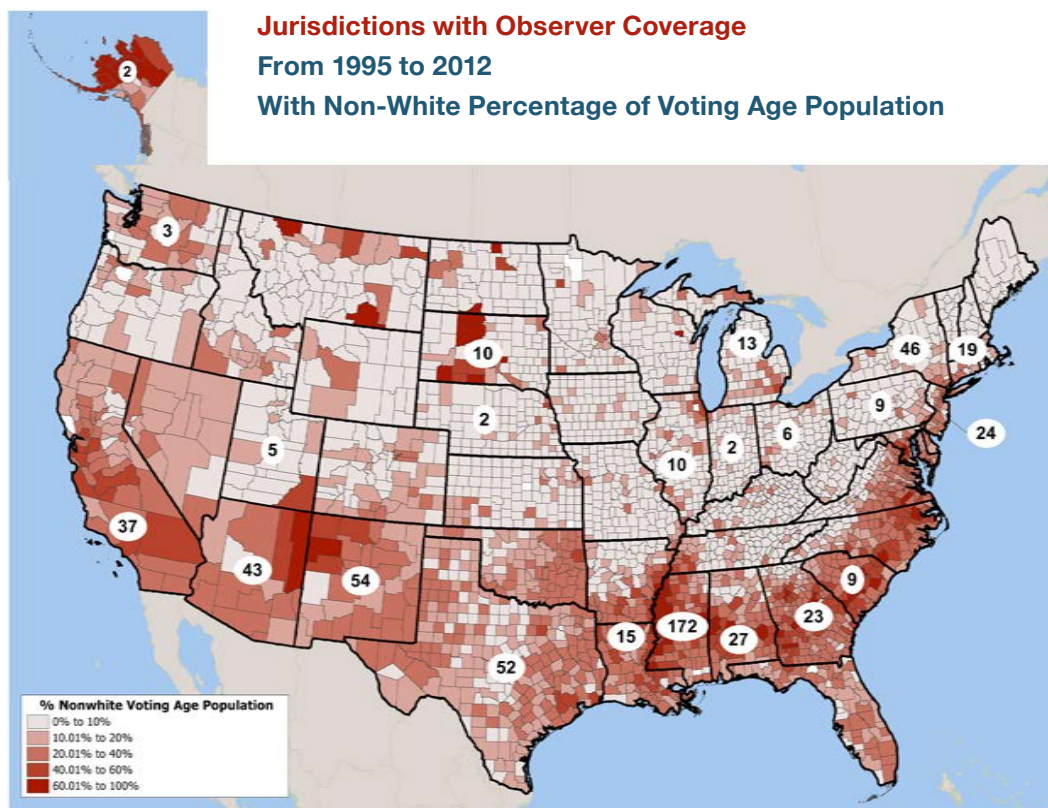

Another reason that DOJ has brought few intimidation cases has been because of its ability to send federal observers to the polls where such activities might take place. Where DOJ was concerned about potential problems on Election Day it frequently sent observers or attorneys, who deterred and at times could address intimidating or discriminatory acts at the time they were occurring. An enforcement lawsuit could also ensue from an observed incident.

Under Section 3(a) of the VRA, a federal court may authorize observers where the court finds it is necessary to enforce the voting guarantees of the 14th and 15th Amendments during the course of a case or after a finding of intentional racial voting discrimination.²⁵³ Prior to Shelby County, the Attorney General could send observers to political subdivisions covered under Section 4(b) of the VRA, if the Attorney General believed it was necessary to prevent constitutional violations regarding racial or ethnic voting discrimination.²⁵⁴ In order to determine where observers were to be sent, the DOJ Voting Section looked at where it was likely that minority voters would confront barriers or intimidation. Federal observers wrote reports of what they saw, and submitted them to DOJ. The Voting Section reviewed these reports to determine whether further enforcement action should be taken.²⁵⁵ A total of 153 counties and parishes in 11 states covered by Section 4(b) have been certified by the Attorney General for appointment of federal observers: Alabama (22 counties), Alaska (1 county), Arizona (4 counties), Georgia (29 counties), Louisiana (12 parishes), Mississippi (51 counties), New York (3 counties), North Carolina (1 county), South Carolina (11 counties), South Dakota (1 county) and Texas (18 counties).²⁵⁶ Thousands of observers have been deployed in the years since 1995.

Observers deterred election officials and others present at the polls from conducting discriminatory acts or engaging in harassment. Their presence also allowed for problems to be addressed immediately. As testimony given during the 2006 VRA reauthorization hearings by a long-time attorney with the Voting Section indicated, the existence of Federal observers is crucial, and it's irreplaceable in the Voting Rights Act. After all, there's no other way for the law enforcement function of the Justice Department to be able to be performed with regard to harassment and intimidation and disenfranchisement of racial and language minority group members in the polling place on Election Day.²⁵⁷

Observers report problems to a Civil Rights Division attorney at DOJ who can immediately discuss the problem with local officials, or if that is not sufficient, the Civil Rights Division may intervene with local officials directly. Reports can also be used for future litigation if necessary.²⁵⁸

As Congressman John Conyers described at a hearing regarding the reauthorization of this section of the VRA, “discrimination at the polls remains a problem. Where jurisdictions have a record of discrimination or current threats exist to ballot access, minority voters should not have to wait for federal assistance to come after the fact. Monitors play the important role of addressing concerns about racial discrimination and ensuring compliance, so that voters can rely on a fair process now, rather than waiting for litigation later.”²⁵⁹

Unfortunately, at the time of this Report’s publication, it appears that DOJ has suspended sending federal observers into polling stations in Section 4(b) jurisdictions, believing that it no longer has that legal authority under the Supreme Court’s Shelby County ruling. However, the jurisdictions covered by Section 3(a) court orders are unaffected.²⁶⁰

Voter Challenges

One of most frequently-used methods of voter intimidation in contemporary times is actually one that has been used quite often throughout the darker side of our voting history: vote challengers at heavily minority polling places. This is a technique by which a group will use voter lists and send volunteers to challenge the eligibility of voters at pre-selected polling places, in numerous instances those that are predominantly African-American, and increasingly, Latino- or student-heavy.

A joint report by Demos and Common Cause reports the following:

[In 2010] an organized and well-funded Texas-based organization with defined partisan interests, the King Street Patriots, through its project True the Vote, was observed intimidating voters at multiple polling locations serving communities of color during early voting in Harris County [Texas.] [...] In a 2011 special election in Massachusetts, a Tea Party group was reported to have harassed Latino voters and others at the polls in Southbridge, Massachusetts.²⁶¹

A witness at the Texas NCVR hearing noted that True the Vote activists were challenging voters on the basis, for example, that six or more people were living at the same address. Minority citizens are much more likely to live in multiple family and multi-generational homes.²⁶² Pew studies have found that indeed Hispanics (22 percent), blacks (23 percent) and Asians (25 percent) are all significantly more likely than whites (13 percent) to live in a multi-generational family household.²⁶³

In 2012, True the Vote announced that it would ramp up its activities, claiming it would recruit one million monitors to man the polls on Election Day. The group’s national recruiter declared at its national summit that “his recruits’ job is chiefly to make voters feel like they’re ‘driving and seeing the police following you.’” Tom Fritton of Judicial Watch has been a featured guest at True the Vote events, telling recruits prior to the 2012 election that “[w]e are concerned that Obama’s people want to be able to steal the election in 2012” with the “illegal alien vote” and a “food stamp army.”²⁶⁴

At the NCVR Texas state hearing, Maureen Haver, a Common Cause Texas Board Director, testified about voter suppression tactics deployed in Harris County during the 2010 election cycle. PHOTO CREDIT: SAMUEL WASHINGTON

In Massachusetts, NCVR heard testimony that local “voter integrity” groups in 2012 had observers challenging the ballots of those who brought someone to the polls to help them vote, anyone who was speaking Spanish, and people with Spanish sounding last names. In addition, according to testimony, “observers were directly confronting and engaging with voters in an intimidating manner, they were photographing their identification when it was presented to poll workers, and they were videotaping people.”²⁶⁵

In North Carolina in 2012, the State Board of Elections itself reported a number of complaints about voter challenges and intimidation and issued a directive to county boards on how such activities should be stopped. The Board was compelled to clarify the illegal nature of such acts. The Board reported that campaign and party supporters were breaching the buffer zones of polling places and approaching voters, using aggressive and profane language in some instances. It further reported on a series of deceptive practices, including voters being told that they can vote by phone or online; that if they affiliated with a certain political party that they must vote on Wednesday, November 7, instead of Tuesday, November 6; that if they have an outstanding ticket they cannot vote; and that they are required to re-register in order to vote.²⁶⁶

The new all-encompassing election law passed in North Carolina may facilitate large-scale voter challenge efforts because challengers are no longer required to live in the precinct where they issue challenges. At the March 28, 2014 NCVR hearing in North Carolina, the Legal Director of the ACLU of North Carolina related that,

[j]ust last night in Buncombe County Voter Integrity Project challenged over 180 voters on the voter rolls in Buncombe County. [T]here are 80 precincts in Buncombe County. [...] All of those challenges were to voters living in 11 precincts in the city center of Asheville, which is the only place in Buncombe County that has a sizable African-American population.²⁶⁷

As described in Chapter 7, in Hamtramck, Michigan, DOJ filed a complaint after the November 2, 1999 general election, leading to a consent order.²⁶⁸ On Election Day, more than 40 voters who were dark skinned or appeared to be of Arab background had been challenged by a group calling itself “Citizens for a Better Hamtramck” on the basis of citizenship, either before or after they had signed their applications to vote. As a result, election inspectors required those voters to take a citizenship oath as prerequisite to voting.²⁶⁹

Other Recent Forms of Intimidation

While private individuals at the polling place are often a problem, sometimes it is poll workers and other people officially associated with elections operations who engage in intimidating behavior. The district court in Shelby County v. Holder noted that Congress, prior to reauthorizing the VRA, heard testimony that “[i]n Shelby County’s home state of Alabama, there were reports of voting officials closing the doors on African-American voters before the... voting hours were over,” as well as “of white voting officials using racial epithets to describe African-American voters in the presence of federal observers.”²⁷⁰ The district court further related that a DOJ official “described the harassment of black voters by white poll officials in Alabama, including one instance in which a local poll official remarked while remarking in the presence of a federal observer,” using a derogatory slur, that African-Americans, “don’t have principle enough to vote and they shouldn’t be allowed.”²⁷¹

In Iowa, the activities of the Secretary of State appear to have created an intimidating climate. According to testimony from the ACLU of Iowa provided to the NCVR, the Iowa Secretary of State’s long-running and costly investigation into the alleged presence of noncitizens on the voter registration list has had an intimidating effect. The organization recounted having heard from two people that armed investigation agents showed up at their homes—after having questioned their friends, family, and neighbors—and demanded papers proving citizenship. So far only a handful of charges have been brought as a result of this investigation, and according to the ACLU, none of them indicate any intent by the individual to commit fraud.²⁷² Secretary of State Matt Schultz ordered a two-year investigation that culminated in a report issued in May, 2014 in which he announced finding a total of 117 possible cases of election misconduct over two election cycles, most of which were unrelated to noncitizens. Only 27 people have been charged with a crime—half of whom were persons with prior felony convictions who had voted but had not applied to the governor to get their voting rights restored—with six convictions, four dismissals, and one trial acquittal at the time of the release of the report.²⁷³ Schultz had used federal grant money to hire an investigator to conduct the investigation.²⁷⁴

In Tennessee, the NCVR learned of ways in which election officials were actually training poll workers to act in ways that could be intimidating and deter voters. At the Commission's hearing in Nashville, Eben Cathey from the Tennessee Immigrant and Refugee Rights Coalition testified about the poll worker training that had taken place in Davidson County, Tennessee in 2012. He showed NCVR a slide (shown below) from the training that reminded poll workers that only citizens are allowed to vote, incorrectly implying that to be eligible to vote people must be able to read, write, and speak basic English. The slide also noted that the proper procedure when a voter's citizenship is questioned is to challenge that voter's right to vote.²⁷⁵

Citizenship and Voting

- Only US Citizens who are TN residents may vote
- Naturalized citizenship requires reading, writing, speaking basic English [8CFR312]
 - There are some exceptions for those over 50 or those impaired in some way
- Challenge the Right To Vote (T.C.A. § 2-7-123) is the proper procedure if citizenship is questioned

APPLICATION CLERK PROCEDURES "Gatekeeper"

Slide from the Davidson County Election Commission's training for poll workers

In 2012, DCEC poll workers were trained to challenge a voter's eligibility based on their language ability. This is a clear violation of Tenn. Code Ann. 2-7-124, which provides the only grounds on which a voter may be challenged – not being registered, not being a resident of the precinct where s/he seeks to vote, not being registered under the correct name, already having voted, and having become ineligible to vote since the person registered. Language ability is not one of the five criteria. Nor, for that matter, is citizenship, which is established at the time of registration.

Slide image submitted by Eben Cathey with the Tennessee Immigrant Rights Coalition at the NCVR Nashville regional hearing. The slide was used in a poll worker training in Davidson County.

In other cases, state legislatures have passed laws that would require poll workers to act in ways that could be suppressive. In Boustani v. Blackwell, a 2006 case, a federal district court found unconstitutional an Ohio statute allowing any election judge to challenge any voter's citizenship and requiring any naturalized citizen to produce their naturalization certificate in order to be eligible to cast a regular ballot.²⁷⁶ The law had also stipulated that those naturalized citizens whose eligibility was challenged but who were unable to provide a naturalization certificate would be required to cast a provisional ballot, which would only be counted if the citizen were to submit additional information to the Board of Elections within ten days.²⁷⁷

Noting that the law facially discriminated against naturalized citizens with regard to their right to vote, thereby casting them as second-class citizens, the court in Boustani made clear that for the statute to be valid the State would need to demonstrate a compelling governmental interest requiring the measure. The court found no compelling justification for the distinction drawn by the State between naturalized and native-born citizens.²⁷⁸ The court further found that because replacing a lost or otherwise unavailable certificate of naturalization costs two hundred and twenty dollars, and the ability to pay this price bore “no relation to voting qualifications and burden[ed] a fundamental right of the citizenry,” the requirement to produce a certificate of naturalization could not stand.²⁷⁹ The court concluded by expressing “grave” concern about the effects of implementing the statute as it gave wide latitude to election judges or poll workers to profile voters—using their unbridled discretion to challenge based on “appearance, name, looks, accent or manner”—and found it “offensive to single out a voter in the public polling place, thereby subjecting him to embarrassment or ridicule while attempting to exercise a citizenship privilege.”²⁸⁰

PHOTO CREDIT: ALLISON MEDER

“The truth is that here in North Carolina we are the canaries in the coal mine of a rollback of voting rights. This is the testing ground. This is today’s Selma. This is what people would like, if they pass and get away [with] here, what some would like to see around the country...”

—Dr. Reverend William Barber, President of the NC NAACP State Conference and leader of the State’s Moral Mondays movement.

Case Spotlight

The Long Struggle for Voting Rights at Prairie View A&M University

The longstanding struggle of students at historically-black Prairie View A&M University in Waller County, Texas for full and equal voting opportunities is illustrative of the evolution of tactics aimed at making voting more difficult. Prairie View A&M is located in Waller County, a small rural county outside of Houston. Over the past four decades, county officials have repeatedly taken actions that interfered with the voting rights of students at Prairie View A&M.

In the 1970s, the County required college students wishing to register to vote to complete a “Questionnaire Pertaining to Residence,” which asked students various additional questions not required of other registrants. The questionnaire effectively precluded most students from registering to vote. Several lawsuits were brought challenging the practice. The U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Texas court invalidated the practice as a violation of the 26th Amendment,²⁸¹ and the Supreme Court summarily affirmed.²⁸²

Around the same time, DOJ, relying on Section 5 of the VRA, blocked a 1975 redistricting plan by the Commissioners’ Court of Waller County. The DOJ’s objection was based on the redistricting plan’s failure to include many of the Prairie View A&M students in the population base for the reapportionment of Waller County, resulting in a malapportionment.²⁸³

In 1992, the local district attorney, Buddy McCraig, indicted 19 Prairie View A&M students for allegedly voting twice, once in their hometown and once at the school. After groups asserted that the indictments were an act of voter intimidation and the district attorney’s actions were scrutinized, all 19 indictments were thrown out due to the lack of evidence. One of the indictments had involved an instance where a father and son with the same name had voted in the different locations.²⁸⁴

In 2003, a subsequent district attorney, Oliver Kitzman, also challenged the eligibility of Prairie View A&M students to vote, drafting a letter to the editor of the local paper publicly questioning the eligibility of students and threatening to prosecute students if they registered and voted in Waller County.²⁸⁵ Civil rights groups sued Kitzman for voter intimidation under Section 11(b) of the VRA, and Kitzman agreed to a consent decree affirming students’ right to vote.²⁸⁶

Shortly after the Section 11(b) lawsuit was filed in 2004, and a month before primary elections, the Waller County Commissioners’ Court voted to reduce the availability of early voting at the polling place closest to campus, from 17 hours over two days to six hours in one day. This was particularly significant because the primary was scheduled during the students' spring break, so students would have to vote early if they planned on leaving town for the break. Civil rights groups filed a Section 5 enforcement action seeking to prevent implementation of the change without preclearance, and the County restored the early voting hours. Those restored voting hours appear to have been critical to the outcome of the election, as approximately 300 Prairie View A&M students exercised the early voting option (compared to only 60 on primary day), and a Prairie View A&M student who ran for a seat on the Commissioners' Court narrowly prevailed.²⁸⁷

In 2006, after more than 700 votes cast at the city of Prairie View polling station were challenged as having been cast without proper voter registration verification, numerous unprocessed voter registration applications were uncovered in the Election Office.²⁸⁸

In 2008, the County initially decided to offer only one early voting site, which was seven miles from campus, for the November general election. Following pressure from activists who sought an on-campus voting location, the County agreed to move the early voting site to a different location one mile from campus, but declined to create an on-campus voting option.²⁸⁹ Even as late as summer 2013, there was still no polling site on the Prairie View A&M campus. In July 2013, students drafted a letter to the Texas Secretary of State complaining of the lack of an on-campus voting option. The letter successfully pressured the Commissioners' Court, which finally agreed to install a polling site at the campus student center in September 2013.²⁹⁰

Without Section 5's protections, it may be difficult to respond as effectively to new threats to the voting rights of Prairie View A&M students.

“In 2012 [...] less than one-third of eligible youth went out to the polls in Texas. [...] And 36 public institutions of higher education [...] and dozens of quality private universities are available here in Texas, yet the voices of young people are still not being heard...”

Crystal Sowemimo, an intern for the Texas Public Interest Research Group, speaking on youth voter turnout in Texas. (NCVR Texas Hearing)

“I became a U.S. citizen on November 20th, 2013. I registered to vote right away. But I’m always afraid when I go to vote. No one will be able to speak Mandarin and help me if I have questions. Also at the Registrar Office, they should have staff who speak in Asian language[s] to help us understand the proposition that we are voting for. Many seniors like me want to vote. But we don’t want to make mistakes when we vote. We also don’t want to be treated with disrespect at voting place[s] because we do not speak English well.”

—Su Fang Gao, an 80-year-old public witness, testified in Cantonese about the need for staffing polling sites with workers who speak Chinese languages. (NCVR California state hearing)

CHAPTER 7

Language Assistance for Limited English-Speaking Citizens

One of the primary ways that minority language voters have suffered discrimination is through the use of English-only elections. It is difficult for a voter who cannot understand the ballot or a voter registration form to effectively participate in the electoral process. Recognizing this problem, beginning in 1975, Congress found that the use of English-only elections in jurisdictions with a significant number of limited-English proficient (LEP) voting age citizens discriminated against those voters. Congress imposed affirmative obligations on those jurisdictions to provide materials and language assistance in the language of the particular minority group. As discussed below, these language minority provisions have resulted in substantial progress; however, lack of compliance with these legal protections is not uncommon. The denial or insufficiency of language assistance in certain jurisdictions where it is legally required continues to deny language minority groups equal access to the polls.

Today, there are over 25 million people in the United States who do not speak English proficiently. Over 57 million adults speak a language other than English at home.¹ This is a 148 percent increase since 1980. Moreover, the trends indicate that these numbers will only continue to grow over the next decade and beyond. Experts predict that by 2020 there will be somewhere between 64 and 68 million people in the United States who do not primarily speak English at home.² As language minority communities continue to grow in the coming decades, it will be crucial to ensure that they are equal participants in the democratic process.

I. FEDERAL VOTING PROTECTIONS FOR LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT CITIZENS

There are several federal voting protections for minority language citizens contained within the Voting Rights Act (VRA), including the following:

- Section 203 places an affirmative obligation on covered jurisdictions to provide all voting information such as registration and voting notices, forms, instructions, polling site assistance, and ballots in the applicable minority group language.³ The covered minority groups under these provisions are voters who are of Spanish heritage, or are Asian Americans, American Indians, or Alaska Natives.

Drost Kokoye, a member of the public, spoke about the lack of minority language assistance at the Paragon Hills polling place in Nashville, Tennessee, at the NCVR Nashville regional hearing.
PHOTO CREDIT: JOSEPH GRANT

Every five years, the Census Bureau applies a formula to determine which jurisdictions are covered under Section 203 and for which language groups. For a jurisdiction to be covered under Section 203, the number of LEP, voting age citizens from the group must be either:

- » More than five percent of all voting age citizens within a state or locality,
- » More than 10,000 in number within a political subdivision, or
- » In the case of a political subdivision that contains all or any part of an Indian reservation, more than 5 percent of the American-Indian or Alaska-Native voting age citizens within the Indian reservation.⁴

Additionally, the illiteracy rate of such language minority citizens in the jurisdiction must be higher than the national illiteracy rate.⁵ Currently 25 states are either fully or partially covered by Section 203.

- Section 4(e) protects the right to vote of United States citizens educated in a language other than English in American-flag schools in any state, territory, the District of Columbia, or Puerto Rico. The provision provides that these citizens' voting rights cannot be denied because of their inability to read, write, understand, or interpret English.⁶
- Section 208 provides that "Any voter who requires assistance to vote by reason of blindness, disability, or inability to read or write may be given assistance by a person of the voter's choice, other than the voter's employer or agent of that employer or officer or agent of the voter's union."⁷

- The applicability of one other provision, Section 4(f)(4), is uncertain in light of the Shelby County v. Holder decision. Jurisdictions covered under the Section 4(b) formula—i.e., jurisdictions that held English-only elections and had a registration rate lower than 50 percent or a turnout rate lower than 50 percent for the November 1972 elections and where more than five percent of the voting age citizens were from a minority language group—were subject to Section 5 preclearance and were required to provide the same types of language assistance as specified by Section 203. The Shelby County decision eliminated Section 5 preclearance for these jurisdictions but did not address the law’s constitutionality as it applies to the affirmative obligation to provide language assistance under Section 4(f)(4). Regardless, most of the Section 4(f)(4) jurisdictions are still obligated to provide language assistance under Section 203.

The scope of the minority language provisions has changed over the course of the VRA’s history based on the conditions found by Congress at the time.

1965: Limited Protections for Language Minorities

The original Voting Rights Act included a limited, yet important, provision for some language minority citizens: Section 4(e). This provision provides that an eligible voter who was educated up to the sixth grade in an American public school where the instruction was conducted in a language other than English cannot be denied the right to vote because of his or her inability to read or write English.⁸ The primary focus of this provision is on citizens who received their education in Puerto Rico. A challenge under Section 4(e) ended New York’s English literacy test, which had been utilized to disenfranchise Puerto Rican voters in New York.⁹

1975: Significant Expansion of the VRA to Protect Limited English Proficient Citizens

In 1975, Congress expanded the Voting Rights Act to provide significant legal protections for language minority citizens. Congress found that these protections were necessary because voting discrimination against citizens of language minorities is pervasive and national in scope. Such minority citizens are from environments in which the dominant language is other than English. In addition they have been denied equal educational opportunities by State and local governments, resulting in severe disabilities and continuing illiteracy in the English language.¹⁰

Since “states and local jurisdictions have been disturbingly unresponsive to the problems of these minorities,”¹¹ Congress found it imperative to institute legal protections to ensure that language minority citizens are afforded equal access to voting, as required by the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution. Among other things, Congress added Section 203, which places affirmative language access obligations on jurisdictions¹² to provide “registration or voting notices, forms, instructions, assistance, or other materials or information relating to the electoral process, including ballots... in the language of the applicable minority group as well as in the English language.”¹³

Notably, the 1975 amendments also established that in some jurisdictions English-only elections constituted a “test or device” for purposes of coverage under Section 4(b) of the Voting Rights Act.¹⁴ Preclearance and federal observer protections were therefore extended to any jurisdiction in which more than 5 percent of voting age citizens were of a single language minority, election materials had been prepared only in English in the 1972 presidential election, and less than 50 percent of voting-age citizens had registered for or voted in the 1972 presidential elections.¹⁵

Although the additions to the VRA were intended primarily to assist Spanish-speaking citizens, Congress also found “evidence that although other language groups do not suffer from the same pervasive voting discrimination which has been demonstrated for persons of Spanish origin, they do register and vote in fewer numbers than their English-speaking neighbors.”¹⁶ As a result, Native Americans and Asian Americans were also covered under the VRA’s language assistance provisions.

1982: Reauthorization of Language Provisions for Ten Years

Originally enacted for a seven-year period, the language assistance provisions were reauthorized in 1982. During the debates surrounding reauthorization, Congress learned that in Texas the language assistance provisions contributed to a 64 percent increase in Mexican-American voter registration and a 30 percent increase in Hispanic elected officials in Texas over the prior four years.¹⁷

However, hostility and insufficient compliance with the language provisions continued. For example, U.S. Representative Robert Garcia testified in 1982 about the continuing unavailability of language assistance for language-minority voters, such as “election officials who did not permit bilingual poll workers to speak Spanish when that was what they were hired to do.”¹⁸ Finding that “[u]nless they have access to materials in a language they can understand, minority Americans clearly cannot exercise their right to vote”¹⁹ and acknowledging its “obligation to erase discrimination against Hispanic Americans and other minorities,”²⁰ Congress reauthorized the language assistance provisions for another 10 years.

Guest Commissioner Kathay Feng, Executive Director of California Common Cause, received testimony at the NCVR California state hearing. PHOTO CREDIT: ANDRIA LO

1992: Extension of the Coverage Formula for Section 203

In 1992, Congress not only reauthorized the existing language assistance provisions but extended them to “provide coverage for jurisdictions with significant populations which currently do not provide language assistance under Federal mandate.”²¹ It did this by extending the language assistance coverage formula to provide two additional criteria for coverage.

First, the 1992 amendments added the provision that a political subdivision is covered if “more than 10,000 of the citizens of voting age... are members of a single language minority and are limited-English proficient,”²² and if the illiteracy standard is also met. The House report explained that “[d]uring the period from 1982 until the present, the need for a numerical benchmark became clear, so that jurisdictions with large language minority populations that do not meet the 5 percent trigger” could otherwise attain coverage.²³ The House report found that—under the old formula—Latino, Asian-American and Native-American communities were insufficiently protected.²⁴ As such, the change was intended to address the fact that some language minority communities, though sizeable, are located in such populous areas that they do not constitute more than five percent of the population.²⁵ This 10,000 citizen benchmark has been particularly crucial for Asian-American citizens. “After the 1982 reauthorization, no Asian-American community outside of Hawaii qualified for assistance. Under the 1990 census, only Chinese Americans in San Francisco County would qualify on the mainland... [A] 10,000-citizen benchmark [resulted in] coverage for three additional Asian languages and five additional counties, including three large counties in the State of New York.”²⁶

Secondly, Congress also provided that “in the case of a political subdivision that contains all or any part of an Indian reservation,” a jurisdiction is covered if “more than 5 percent of the American Indian or Alaska Native citizens of voting age within the Indian reservation are members of a single language minority and are limited-English proficient,”²⁷ and the illiteracy standard is met. Experience had shown, the House report stated, that “the American Indian and Alaska Native populations were not receiving the type of assistance they needed.”²⁸ Reservations, which have relatively small populations, often have boundaries that do not coincide with county or state lines, as many reservations were established before the states or counties came into existence.²⁹ The division of Native American communities across multiple states or political subdivisions allowed even areas with a relatively strong Native American presence to avoid coverage.³⁰ Thus, the House report found, “the 5 percent trigger has proven to be ineffectual in the Native American context.”³¹

Beyond expanding the reach of the language assistance provisions, Congress also reauthorized them for an additional 15 years. It found that “the four language minority groups covered by section 203—Hispanics, Asian Americans, American Indians and Alaska Natives—continue to experience educational inequities, high illiteracy rates and low voting participation.”³² Congress recounted numerous examples of the barriers to literacy and participation faced by non-English speakers, such as the fact that in 1991, Latinos age 25 and older had a high school graduation rate of only 51.3 percent, compared to 80.5 percent for non-Latinos.³³ While the language assistance provisions had produced a “closing of the gap between Hispanic and Anglo voter registration in areas where language assistance is provided”³⁴ and had not proved to be burdensomely costly,³⁵ Congress found that persistent disparities in access to the electoral process between English and non-English speakers justified the language assistance provisions’ further extension.

2006: Extension of Section 203 for 25 Years

In 2006, Congress reauthorized the provisions for an additional 25 years, and emphasized that covered jurisdictions “were required to provide language minorities with not only bilingual election materials but also bilingual election assistance, including oral assistance and other written election and voting assistance, such as instructions, guides, forms, notices, and ballots, in response to the needs demonstrated by limited English speaking citizens.”³⁶ The House Judiciary Committee Report accompanying the bill detailed a litany of problems facing voters with limited English proficiency and/or little education. For example, it recounted testimony that during the 2004 election in Pima County, Arizona, many LEP Latino voters were denied equal access to the electoral process due to a lack of bilingual ballots.³⁷ It noted that the Department of Justice (DOJ) had litigated an increased number of Section 203 cases since 2000, which the report described as “critical to protecting language minority voters.”³⁸

II. PROGRESS AND BARRIERS FOR LIMITED ENGLISH PROFICIENT VOTERS

The VRA's language assistance provisions are essential to ensuring equal participation for language minority communities that have historically been the targets of discrimination. Although voter participation rates for Asian Americans (47.3 percent), Latinos (48 percent),³⁹ and American Indians and Alaska Natives (46.6 percent)⁴⁰ continued to lag behind to that of whites (64.1 percent) in 2012,⁴¹ the VRA's language protections have positively influenced voter participation and turnout. Following the enactment of the language assistance provisions of the VRA, voter registration and turnout rates for Native Americans, Asian Americans, and Latinos have greatly increased:

- Following the 1992 extension of coverage under Section 203 to jurisdictions that had more than 10,000 LEP language minority voting age citizens, “the number of Asian-Americans registered to vote increased dramatically. Between 1996 and 2004, Asian-Americans had the highest increase of new voter registration[s], approximately 58.7 percent. During that same period, Asian-Americans experienced an increase in turnout of 71 percent.”⁴²
- The Latino voter registration rate has nearly doubled since the addition of the language assistance requirements in 1975. Additionally, between 1980 and 1990, Latino “voter participation increased [at] five times the national rate.”⁴³
- For Native Americans, between 1975 and 2013, in covered counties “[r]egistration and turnout increased between 50 percent and 150 percent.”⁴⁴

Studies and surveys have nearly uniformly shown a substantial increase in voter participation when language materials and assistance are provided—and by implication, participation is lower than it would be when language assistance is not provided.⁴⁵ For example, one witness testified at the National Commission on Voting Rights (NCVR) California state hearing that, “in San Diego County, [] once the county adopted a comprehensive [language assistance] program, voter registration increased by 20 [percent] in the Filipino American community and increased by 40 [percent] in the Vietnamese American community.”⁴⁶

A recent study found that even controlling for other variables, a county that is covered by Section 203 has a Latino voter turnout that is 15 percent higher than a similarly situated county that is not covered; counties with Spanish-speaking staff see Latino registration that is 6 percent higher than those without such staff; counties that provide voting materials in Spanish have a 4 percent higher Latino voter registration rate; and, finally, that “[a]ll other things equal, a county covered under Section 203 has Latino voter turnout that is 11 percent higher than non-covered counties.”⁴⁷ Moreover, Latino voter registration in covered counties is almost 15 percent higher than in non-covered counties.⁴⁸

Despite its effectiveness, some jurisdictions continue to fail to comply with Section 203. A 2005 study found that of jurisdictions covered for an Asian, Spanish, or Native language, a large number failed to provide at least one element of the language assistance required.⁴⁹ A memo provided to the Presidential Commission on Election Administration states flatly, “Despite an array of federal, state, and local laws and practices requiring accommodations for voters of limited English proficiency, the need for assistance is often unmet.”⁵⁰ The memo cites numerous recent problems, including poor and inaccurate translations that could have impacted voters’ ability to cast a meaningful ballot.⁵¹

On the left, Henry Yee, Co-Chair of the Chinatown Residents Association in Boston, testified at the NCVR Boston regional hearing on the need for Chinese language ballots in the City of Boston. He said, “The biggest right that we enjoy as American citizens is the right to vote, and because of the language barrier, a lot of times when these citizens will go and vote, it’s hard for them to tell on the ballot which—which one is maybe Bush or Obama, and there’s a lot of mistakes that would occur when they’re trying to vote.”

PHOTO CREDIT: MEREDITH HORTON

There are several recent examples of significant translation errors. In 2012, Maricopa County, Arizona published the wrong election date in the Spanish translation of official election materials, listing the election date as November 8 instead of November 6.⁵² The same problem was repeated on Spanish-language bookmarks distributed at a voter-education event.⁵³ In 2012, the Spanish translation of Maryland’s ballot summary misstated the proposed effect of the voter initiative on same-sex marriage.⁵⁴ “Barack Obama” was misspelled as “Barack Osama” on New York’s absentee ballots for Spanish speakers in 2008, and a 2010 ballot in Massachusetts had to be reprinted when it improperly spelled the word “Alguacil” (Spanish for “sheriff”) as “Aguacil” (Spanish for “dragonfly”).⁵⁵

In another memo for the Presidential Commission on Election Administration, it was noted that one in seven jurisdictions could not provide researchers registration materials in required languages, one in four did not have the necessary personnel to provide assistance, and one-third failed to provide either translated materials or bilingual personnel.⁵⁶

Additionally, at the California state hearing of the NCVR, Deanna Kitamura, a senior staff attorney for the Voting Rights Project of Asian Americans Advancing Justice of Los Angeles, told the Commission of serious failures to comply with Section 203 obligations for Asian languages during the 2012 election, including missing translated materials and the absence of bilingual poll workers.⁵⁷ The Commission further received testimony stating that the Department of Justice has filed nine lawsuits for failure to comply with Section 203 in California since 2004.⁵⁸

At the NCVR Pennsylvania state hearing, Jerry Vattamala, an attorney for the Asian American Legal Defense and Education Fund, talked about voting accessibility for language minorities in Philadelphia. The City agreed to provide voting assistance in Chinese, Khmer, Korean, and Vietnamese. Vattamala remarked, “Since that time, they have significantly backslid each successive election, until the point in 2012 where there were only four Asian language interpreters for the entire city... [In] South Philadelphia... there was long lines of Vietnamese-American voters that needed language assistance, but there was no interpreter.”⁵⁹

The Commission also heard about a failure to provide language assistance for Haitian Creole speakers in several counties in Florida. Until 2006, Miami-Dade County was required by a consent decree to provide Creole language assistance and hire Creole-speaking poll workers. However, by 2012, Creole-speaking voters in Palm Beach, Broward, and Miami-Dade Counties reported “that they did not have adequate access [to] translation or literacy assistance.” In some cases this led to voters mistakenly invalidating their ballots.⁶⁰

The impressive gains in voter registration and participation for LEP voters after the enactment of the VRA’s language minority provisions are a welcome sign of progress. However, the continued reports of insufficient compliance with language assistance requirements and hostility toward LEP voters in some jurisdictions, as illustrated by testimony before the NCVR and the litigation summaries below, highlight the need to continue working to ensure true equal and meaningful access to voting throughout the United States.

III. EXAMPLES OF RECENT LANGUAGE ACCESS LITIGATION

Between 1995 and 2014, there have been 58 successful language minority cases and settlements (matters) throughout the United States (see Table 4 in Chapter 2 for a table outlining the languages and states involved). A great majority of these cases involved Spanish-speaking voters. A breakdown for the matters involving different language minorities is as follows:

- 46 matters involved Spanish.
- Ten discrete matters involved Asian languages: Seven involved Chinese, four involved Vietnamese, two involved Korean, one involved Japanese, one involved Bengali, one involved Tagalog, and one involved Ilocano.

- Five discrete matters involved a Native American language: Three involved Navajo, two involved Keresan, one involved Lakota, and one involved Yup'ik.
- One matter involved Creole.

Some of these recent matters are summarized below.

Refusal to Provide Language Assistance

In Nick v. Bethel,⁶¹ the State of Alaska entered into a settlement agreement as a result of its longstanding disregard for the federally protected voting rights of its Native citizens. The Bethel Census Area is 81.6 percent Alaska Native or American Indian, and its most populous town the City of Bethel has a population that is 61.8 percent Alaska Native or American Indian. Yup'ik is the most common native language in Alaska, and many elders cannot read or speak English. Language assistance is especially important in Bethel because the illiteracy rate among the Eskimo limited-English proficient population is 21.46 percent, almost 16 times the national illiteracy rate of 1.35 percent.⁶² However, plaintiffs contended that the State failed to provide the language assistance required by Section 203 of the VRA.

Yup'ik is historically a written language, and the State of Alaska has provided other, non-election documents in Yup'ik.⁶³ The City of Bethel was continuously covered by Section 4(f)(4) since October 22, 1975.⁶⁴ Despite this, plaintiffs, who were illiterate in English, alleged that Bethel had falsely told Yup'ik-speaking voters that they must go into the voting booth alone and that no one may see their votes, denied voters their right to select or receive assistance from the assistor of their choice, required Yup'ik-speaking voters to be assisted by poll workers not fluent in Yup'ik, and required that all assistance take place outside the voting booth.⁶⁵ In 2002 and 2004, the DOJ sent letters to remind Bethel of the VRA's bilingual election requirement.⁶⁶

The State's response to the litigation was characterized by a high degree of resistance and hostility. The district court found that "evidence of past shortcomings justifies the issuance of injunctive relief to ensure that Yup'ik-speaking voters have the means to fully participate in... State-run elections."⁶⁷ Although the State had been "covered by Sections 203 and 4(f)(4) for many years[, it] lacks adequate records to document past efforts to provide language assistance to Alaska Native voters" and "the revisions to the State's minority language assistance program, which are designed to bring it into compliance[,] are relatively new and untested."⁶⁸ In granting a preliminary injunction ahead of the 2008 elections to obligate the State to provide language assistance to Yup'ik voters (including translators, sample ballots, and a Yup'ik-English glossary of election terms), the district court observed that the State “had failed to [...] provide print and broadcast public service announcements (PSA’s) in Yup’ik, or to track whether PSA’s originally provided to a Bethel radio station in English were translated and broadcast in Yup’ik; ensure that at least one poll worker at each precinct is fluent in Yup’ik and capable of translating ballot questions from English into Yup’ik; ensure that ‘on the spot’ oral translations of ballot questions are comprehensive and accurate, or require mandatory training of poll workers in the Bethel census area, with instructions on translating ballot materials for Yup’ik-speaking voters with limited English proficiency.”⁶⁹

The State argued that because it had already begun to take steps to remedy its defective language assistance program, an injunction was not necessary, an argument that the district court rejected because of the long history of noncompliance.⁷⁰

Effective Minority Language Assistance Leads to Electoral Success

A 1999 case filed in Passaic County, New Jersey, illustrates the impact of increased compliance with Section 203 of the VRA.⁷¹ Starting after World War II, Passaic County experienced an influx of Latino residents, and eventually became covered by Section 203 in 1984.⁷² Latino presence continued to increase, going from 21.7 percent of the county population in 1990 to 30 percent in 2000. The County, however, had failed to comply with the language assistance requirements of state and federal statutes, which resulted in a state court invalidating the result of the Patterson city council elections in 1986 and ordering the County to provide bilingual poll workers in future elections.⁷³ Over the next several years, the County continued to disenfranchise Latino voters by failing to comply with the court order. Latino voters continued seeing a lack of Spanish-speaking poll workers, insufficient Spanish-language materials at the polls, failure to advertise election information in Spanish-language media, as well as ethnically derogatory remarks by poll workers and their refusal to allow voters to obtain assistance in voting by a person of their choice.⁷⁴ Eventually in 1999, the DOJ filed suit, which resulted in a consent decree, but the County failed to comply.⁷⁵ In 2000, the DOJ filed an application to hold the County in contempt, and under an agreed order, the court appointed an independent elections monitor, granting him sweeping authority to bring the County into compliance with its language assistance obligations.⁷⁶ By May 2002, vast improvements had been made, including:

- the appointment of the County’s first Latino member to the four-member Board of Elections;
- the appointment of a Latino to a senior position in the County’s elections office (i.e., deputy superintendent of elections);

- registration of thousands of new Latino voters; and
- increasing availability of Spanish-language materials at the polls and a record-breaking Latino voter turnout.

These improvements were followed in short order by the election of the first Latino member of the County Board of Freeholders and the election of the first Latino mayor in Passaic City.⁷⁷

Similarly, in 1998, the Department of Justice filed a lawsuit against the City of Lawrence, Massachusetts, on behalf of Latino citizens, some of whom were LEP voters.⁷⁸ The City of Lawrence had been covered under Section 203 since 1984; however, “the jurisdiction had done little to comply with” its obligations.⁷⁹ Along with vote dilution claims relating to the election systems for city council and school committee, the lawsuit alleged that the City had (1) failed to provide election-related materials in Spanish, as required by Section 203; (2) failed to assign Latino poll workers on the same basis as whites, in violation of Section 2; and (3) provided ineffective oral and written bilingual assistance and discriminatory poll worker assignments, in violation of Section 2.⁸⁰ In 1990, Latinos comprised 41.6 percent of the Lawrence population and 34.1 percent of the voting age population. As of 1997, approximately 31 percent of Lawrence’s registered voters were Latino. Importantly, 51.8 percent of Latino voting age citizens (or 12.8 percent of all voting age citizens) were LEP.⁸¹

In September 1999, the City entered into a settlement agreement with the DOJ, which, among other things, required the city to (1) hire a coordinator to implement the language access program;⁸² (2) provide Spanish translations of all election-related information;⁸³ (3) provide bilingual poll workers at each precinct; and (4) assign Latino poll workers in each precinct that was proportionate to the share of Latino registered voters in the precinct.⁸⁴

The settlement agreement had a major impact. Previously, only one Latino had been elected to the City Council in its history, and that candidate had run from a majority-Latino district.⁸⁵ “In the first election after the settlement, three Latinos were elected to the nine-member City Council.”⁸⁶ One of these candidates, Marcos Devers, won running at-large. Devers had lost four previous times in at-large elections for City Council.⁸⁷ Later, in 2009, William Lantigua was elected mayor of Lawrence, making him the first elected Latino mayor in the State of Massachusetts.⁸⁸

A third matter that highlights the positive impact of Section 203 compliance involved Harris County, Texas. Though the County took some steps to comply in 2002 when it was first required to provide assistance in Vietnamese under Section 203,⁸⁹ it did not translate its electronic ballot. According to Trang Q. Tran of the Asian American Legal Center, while the remedy had “been to provide paper templates in [the] Vietnamese language to be used with the E-Slate machines in the polling booths” these were, at times, denied to Vietnamese voters requesting them, or they arrived late to the polling locations and were not distributed.⁹⁰ After the November 2003 election, the County and the DOJ arrived at an agreement, which resulted in the translation of the County’s ballot into Vietnamese, the hiring of a Vietnamese staff member in the county clerk’s office, and the staffing of precincts with a significant number of Vietnamese-speaking poll workers. These changes resulted in the doubling of Vietnamese-American voter turnout,⁹¹ and “are probably responsible, in part, for the [2004] election of Hubert Vo, the first member of the Texas legislature of Vietnamese descent.”⁹² Vo defeated “the incumbent chair of the Appropriations Committee by sixteen votes out of more than 40,000 cast.”⁹³

Hostility Toward Limited English Proficient Voters

On the left, Ana Sostre-Ramos testified at the NCVR Pennsylvania state hearing about Spanish-speaking voters being turned away at residential polling sites in Philadelphia. PHOTO CREDIT: BEN BOWENS

In July 2008, DOJ filed suit against Salem County, New Jersey, in United States v. Salem County, alleging violations of Sections 4(e), 208, and 2 of the VRA related to Puerto Rican and other Latino voters in Penns Grove, a Borough of Salem County.⁹⁴ DOJ claimed that Salem County and Penns Grove officials failed to translate ballots into Spanish, prohibited family members or other people from assisting voters with limited English skills, interfered with assistance when it was allowed, directed hostile or discriminatory remarks to Latino voters at elections, turned away Latino voters, and committed other violations of the law.⁹⁵ On the same day DOJ filed its complaint, it entered into a settlement agreement with Salem County to resolve the dispute, and the court approved the settlement agreement shortly after it was filed.⁹⁶

In another case in Pennsylvania, United States v. Berks County, language issues joined with hostile actions led the court to require Berks County to provide Spanish language assistance. In this case, the DOJ brought suit under Sections 2, 4(e), and 208 (the jurisdiction was not covered by Section 203). The court found that poll workers made discriminatory remarks to Latino voters, prevented and discouraged them from voting (e.g., because they could not understand their names or refused to “deal” with Latino last names),⁹⁷ and treated them differently with respect to voter identification requirements—they demanded photo identification from Latino voters even though such identification was not legally required in order to vote in the State.⁹⁸ The court also found that the County did not provide bilingual oral and written assistance at the polls and barred Latino voters from bringing in people to assist them.⁹⁹ In granting the United States’ motion for preliminary injunction, the court ruled that the lack of bilingual materials and poll workers had a “severe” impact on limited-English proficient voters.¹⁰⁰ In that same order, the court noted the problems in voting experienced by a woman born in Puerto Rico who was unable to read the English-language ballot, and consequently pushed all the buttons on the ballot and was unsure who she had voted for.¹⁰¹

Moreover, the Berks County government had been made aware of the above issues by the Department of Justice four separate times between 2001 and 2002—after four elections—but the County still failed to take action to remedy the situation.¹⁰² The district court granted permanent relief on August 20, 2003.¹⁰³ The permanent injunction authorized the appointment of federal observers and ordered, among other things, that the County: (1) provide bilingual election materials; (2) provide trained bilingual poll workers and interpreters; (3) provide dedicated phone lines staffed by trained bilingual employees; (4) provide training for all poll workers to make them aware of voting rights and compliance with the VRA; and (5) appoint language coordinators to hold regular meetings with the Latino community and investigate and report on any complaints related to hostility toward Latino voters.¹⁰⁴

“In 2012 , APIA Vote-Michigan [...] [found that m]any poll sites failed to provide Bengali ballots, make translated materials available, or provide interpreters. [...] In one case [...] the translated sign displayed next to the Voter Bill of Rights had nothing to do with voter [...] rights at all. Poll workers also complained that voting machine scanners would not read the translated Bengali ballots,” testified Theresa Tran of APIA Vote-Michigan at the NCVR Michigan state hearing.

The case United States v. City of Hamtramck, Michigan is an additional example of the interconnection between racial hostility and minority language issues. Though this case was brought under Sections 2 and 208 of the VRA because Hamtramck was not covered under Section 203, a substantial part of the remedy involved requirements for language assistance. A group of Arab citizens in Hamtramck, an enclave surrounded by the City of Detroit, had their right to vote challenged and were not allowed to vote in a 1999 election until they recited an oath of citizenship—even when some were able to produce an American passport. The challenges were made by a “group named Citizens for a Better Hamtramck..., which had registered with the city clerk to provide challengers for the city elections in an effort to keep the election ‘pure.’”¹⁰⁵ In 2000, a court entered a consent decree:

“order[ing] the city to establish a program to train election officials and private citizens regarding the proper grounds for election challenges.” The order also required the placement of bilingual poll workers at every polling location in Hamtramck on Election Day and assigned federal observers to ensure the city’s compliance with the order.¹⁰⁶

There continued to be problems in Hamtramck after the consent decree, including the City’s failure to hire sufficient numbers of bilingual poll workers. This led the court to extend the consent decree to 2004, amending it to require at least two bilingual poll workers in every precinct for the assistance of Arab-American voters.¹⁰⁷

Case Spotlight

California's English-Only Initiative and Recall Petition Process

A major barrier identified by witnesses from the Greenlining Institute and the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund (MALDEF) during the NCVR California state hearing is that, according to a ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, individuals and organizations that circulate recall petitions and initiatives for voter signatures may do so only in English without violating Section 203 of the VRA. California's ballot initiative process, established in 1911, plays a crucial role in determining public policy in California. However, because initiative petitions may be circulated in English only, LEP voters are subject to manipulation by unscrupulous paid signature gatherers who misinterpret or deliberately lie about the substance of the initiative the LEP voter is being asked to support. In Padilla v. Lever, an en banc panel of the Ninth Circuit determined that the scope of Section 203 is limited to "voting materials" provided by the government, which does not include recall petition materials.¹⁰⁸ In that case, plaintiffs challenged a recall petition that was circulated in English in a district with a high concentration of LEP voters. MALDEF, who represented the challengers, testified that a number of people signed the petition after being told that they were signing in support of something else, and that the petition resulted in the recall of a school board member who was supported by the Latino community, according to MALDEF.

At the NCVR California hearing, MALDEF President Thomas Saenz testified about the barriers Latinos face when voting in English-only elections. PHOTO CREDIT: ANDRIA LO

“For Latino citizens that speak little English, [much recent research shows that] access to Spanish ballots [...] and language assistance increases and influences election turnout.”

– Dr. Mindy Romero, Director of the California Civic Engagement Project at the UC Davis Center for Regional Change (NCVR California hearing)

“I have been part of those who have gone abroad extolling the American process [...] I went to the Soviet Union [...] I went to South Africa [...] during Apartheid [...] I was there to try to offer a little encouragement [...] I cited the American experience. I cited the struggle we had in the South with voting rights, the lynchings of persons who attempted to exercise their right[s] [...] We had the ‘64 Civil Rights Act. We had the ‘65 Voting Rights Act. [...] Throughout the country, we had African Americans serving on our various bodies of jurisprudence. These things, I felt, were made possible because persons were able to vote. [...] And, now, here in this country [...] we are engaged in a degree of voter repression [...] [and] it’s urgent that we turn this around.”

—Guest Commissioner and retired Judge for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, Hon. Nathaniel Jones at the NCVR Columbus regional hearing

CONCLUSION

This report sets forth in substantial detail the breadth and depth of how election laws and practices adopted or implemented since 1995 have had a negative and disproportionate impact on the full and equal participation of African-American, Latino, Native American, and Asian voting age citizens.

Voting Rights Act violations, other than those related to language assistance, remain most concentrated in the jurisdictions that were formerly covered by Section 5. Although the full impact of the Shelby County decision and its effective nullification of Section 5 cannot be fully comprehended so soon after the decision, the immediate reaction of several formerly covered states has been to implement voting changes that a federal court or the Department of Justice had affirmatively blocked or that the jurisdiction had deferred while waiting for the Shelby County decision. These states' instantaneous reaction to the Court's decision does not portend well for the future.

As the minority language population continues to grow and move in larger numbers to more states and localities, violations of Section 203 and the other language-related protections—sometimes in combination with intimidation or harassment—are occurring in new areas of the country. Indigenous peoples also continue to suffer recent and severe discrimination in voting.

Perhaps the most disturbing emerging trend involves the spike in activities described in Chapter 6: laws and practices—like government-issued photo identification requirements for voters—which effectively disenfranchise racial minorities in greater number, and the laws that reduce the availability of methods of voting—like early voting—that minority voters use more than white voters. It is difficult not to view these voting changes with a jaundiced eye, given the practical impediments they create and the minimal, if any, measurable legitimate benefit they offer. The “omnibus” voting legislation passed in North Carolina is perhaps the best example of how this emerging trend and the Shelby County decision have coalesced: after Shelby County, the North Carolina legislature quickly enacted a law that, among other things, contains a restrictive voter identification requirement, reduces the duration of early voting, and eliminates same-day voter registration during the early voting period.

In 1964, the Supreme Court stated in Reynolds v. Sims that because “the right to exercise the franchise in a free and unimpaired manner is preservative of other basic civil and political rights, any alleged infringement of the right of citizens to vote must be carefully and meticulously scrutinized.” This principle of constitutional law should guide courts, policymakers, election administrators, and citizens every time they contemplate an election law or practice. All too often, however, this principle is ignored—to the detriment of minority voters. As long as this is the case, specific legal protections that deter and combat the broad range of methods of discriminating against minority voters, and the vigorous enforcement of these protections, remain vitally important to American democracy.

ENDNOTES

CHAPTER 1

- 1 South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301, 315–16
- 2 See United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1876); United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214 (1876).
- 3 See J. Morgan Kousser, The Shaping of Southern Politics: Suffrage Restriction and the Establishment of the One-Party South, 1880-1910, at 45–62 (1974).
- 4 Richard Wormser, The Rise and Fall of Jim Crow 165–82 (2003).
- 5 See, e.g., Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 313.
- 6 U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, The Voting Rights Act: Ten Years After 43 (1975).
- 7 President Lyndon B. Johnson, Special Message to Congress: The American Promise (Mar. 15, 1965), available at <http://www.lbjlib.utexas.edu/johnson/archives.hom/speeches.hom/650315.asp>.
- 8 Voting Rights Act of 1965, Pub. L. 89-110, 79 Stat. 437.
- 9 Id. § 4 (codified as amended at 42 U.S.C. § 1973b).
- 10 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(c).
- 11 Voting Rights Act, § 6.
- 12 42 U.S.C. § 1973f.
- 13 See 42 U.S.C. § 1973c.
- 14 See Voting Rights Act, § 2 (codified as amended at 42 § 1973).
- 15 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(e).
- 16 42 U.S.C. § 1973i.
- 17 South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301, 308 (1966).
- 18 Id. at 328 (footnote omitted).
- 19 Voting Rights Act, § 4.
- 20 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, Pub. L. No. 91-285, 84 Stat. 314; Voting Rights Amendments of 1975, Pub. L. No. 94-73, 89 Stat. 400; Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1982, Pub. L. No. 97-205, 96 Stat. 131; Fannie Lou Hamer, Rosa Parks, Coretta Scott King, Cesar Chavez, Barbara C. Jordan, William C. Valasquez, and Dr. Hector P. Garcia Voting Rights Act Reauthorization and Amendments Act of 2006, Pub. L. No. 109-246, 120 Stat. 577.
- 21 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970.
- 22 Voting Rights Amendments of 1975.
- 23 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478 (2006); H.R. Rep. No. 97-205 (1982); H.R. Rep. No. 94-196 (1975); H.R. Rep. No. 91-397 (1969).
- 24 H.R. Rep. No. 94-196.
- 25 Id.
- 26 Id.
- 27 Voting Rights Amendments of 1975 § 203 (codified as amended at 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-la).
- 28 Id.
- 29 See Mobile v. Bolden, 446 U.S. 55 (1980).
- 30 S. Rep. No. 97-417 (1982).
- 31 Katzenbach v. Morgan, 384 U.S. 641 (1966).
- 32 Georgia v. United States, 411 U.S. 526, 535 (1973).
- 33 City of Rome v. United States, 446 U.S. 156, 172–82 (1980).
- 34 Lopez v. Monterey Cnty., 525 U.S. 266 (1999).
- 35 Backgrounder: The Voting Rights Act, VRA for Today, http://vrafortoday.org/?attachment_id=212 (last visited July 16, 2014).
- 36 See generally Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act at Work 1982-2005 (2006).
- 37 Press Release, Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, Civil Rights Coalition Celebrates Renewal of Landmark Voting Rights Act (July 27, 2006), available at <http://www.civilrights.org/press/2006/civil-rights-coalition-celebrates-renewal-of-landmark-voting-rights-act.html>.
- 38 Reno v. Bossier Parish Sch. Bd., 520 U.S. 471 (1997).
- 39 Georgia v. Ashcroft, 539 U.S. 461 (2003).
- 40 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 66-72.
- 41 Id. at 61-62.
- 42 Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/sec_2/about_sec2.php (last visited July 16, 2014).
- 43 42 U.S.C. § 1973(b).
- 44 S. Rep. No. 97-417, 28-29 (1982).
- 45 Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 47 (1986). The potential Section 2 factors include:
 1. the history of official voting-related discrimination in the state or political subdivision; 2. the extent to which voting in the elections of the state or political subdivision is racially polarized; 3. the extent to which the state of political subdivision has used voting practices or procedures that tend to enhance the opportunity for discrimination against the minority group, such as unusually large election districts, majority-vote requirements, and prohibitions against bullet voting; 4. the exclusion of members of the minority group from candidate slating processes; 5. the extent to which minority group members bear the effects of discrimination in areas such as education, employment, and health, which hinder their ability to participate effectively in the political process; 6. the use of overt or subtle racial appeals in political campaigns; and 7. the extent to which members of the minority group have been elected to public office in the jurisdiction.
- See id. at 36–37. Also potentially relevant is: whether there is a significant lack of responsiveness on the part of elected officials to the particularized needs of the members of the minority group [or] whether the policy underlying the state or political subdivision's use of such voting qualification, prerequisite to voting, or standard, practice or procedure is tenuous.
- Id.* at 37 (quoting S. Rep. 97-417, at 28-29).
- 46 See Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 36, at 88.
- 46a Gingles, 478 U.S. at 49-51.
- 47 Id. at 46.

- 48 Section 5 defines a voting change as any practice that differs either from the pre-existing practice or from the practice in effect on the date that the jurisdiction's coverage began. 42 U.S.C. § 1973c(a). Most of the Section 5 jurisdictions were covered for changes after November 1, 1964 based upon the original enactment of Section 5 in 1965; a few were covered for changes after November 1, 1968 based upon a 1970 amendment to Section 5; and others were covered after November 1, 1972 based upon the 1975 amendments to the statute. Jurisdictions Previously Covered by Section 5, U.S. Dep't Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/sec_5/covered.php.
- 49 Allen v. State Board of Elections, 393 US 544, 566 (1969).
- 50 Clark v. Roemer, 500 U.S. 646, 658 (1991).
- 51 Submissions to the Attorney General generally were required to be decided within 60 days or the submitted voting change automatically was precleared by operation of law. However, in certain circumstances the Attorney General was authorized to extend the review period, most particularly when needed to ensure that preclearance decisions regarding controversial changes were based on a complete factual record. See Procedures for Administration of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, As Amended, 28 C.F.R. § 51.10.
- 52 See South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. 301, 328 (1966); 28 C.F.R. § 51.52(a).
- 53 See 42 U.S.C. § 1973c(a).
- 54 Beer v. United States, 425 U.S. 130, 141 (1976).
- 55 See 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(c).
- 56 Id. § 1973b(f)(3).
- 57 See Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 329–33.
- 58 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(a)(1)–(6).
- 59 See Section 4 of the Voting Rights Act, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/misc/sec_4.php#bailout (last visited July 24, 2014).
- 60 Jurisdictions Previously Covered by Section 5, supra note 48.
- 61 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975 (enacting 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(f)(4)).
- 62 Id. (enacting 42 U.S.C. § 1973 aa-1a).
- 63 28 C.F.R. § 55.8(a).
- 64 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 2006, Determinations Under Section 203, 76 Fed. Reg. 198 (Oct. 13, 2011).
- 65 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(f)(4); id. § 1973aa-1a(b)(3)(A).
- 66 Attorney General's Guidelines on Implementation of the Provisions of the Voting Rights Act Regarding Language Minority Groups, 76 Fed. Reg. 169 (Aug. 31, 2011) (codified at 28 C.F.R. pt. 55).
- 67 Id. § 55.2(b).
- 68 Id. § 55.16.
- 69 Id. § 55.17.
- 70 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(e).
- 71 42 U.S.C. § 1973a(a).
- 72 Id. § 1973a(c).
- 73 Id. § 1973aa.
- 74 Id. § 1973aa-6.
- 75 Id. § 1973i(a).
- 76 Id. § 1973i(b).
- 77 See generally Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 36, at 15-25 (discussing "The Two Problems Addressed by the Act[.]" disfranchisement and vote dilution).
- 78 See Shelby County v. Holder, 133 S. Ct. at 2633-35 (Ginsburg, J., dissenting).
- 79 Bolden v. Mobile, 542 F. Supp. 1050, 1075 (S.D. Ala. 1982).
- 80 Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339 (1960).
- 81 Dillard v. Crenshaw Cnty, 640 F. Supp. 1347, 1357 (M.D. Ala. 1986).
- 82 This transformation of American politics has been documented in numerous reports, books, and articles. See, e.g., Quiet Revolution in the South (Chandler Davidson & Bernard Grofman eds., 1994); Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 36; U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, supra note 6; U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, The Voting Rights Act: Unfulfilled Goals (1981).
- 83 U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, supra note 6, at 43.
- 84 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 12–17, 25–28.
- 85 Id. at 29-31.
- 86 Voting Determination Letters for Mississippi, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=ms (referencing determination letters issued May 21, 1969 and May 26, 1969).
- 87 Voting Determination Letters for Georgia, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=ga (referencing determination letters issued June 19, 1968 and July 11, 1968). Voting Determination Letters for South Carolina, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=sc.
- 88 Voting Determination Letters for South Carolina, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=sc (referencing determination letter issued March 6, 1972).
- 89 H.R. Rep. No. 94-196, at 10.
- 90 Section 5 Objection Letters, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/index.php.
- 91 See Mark A. Posner, The Real Story Behind the Justice Department's Implementation of Section 5 of the VRA: Vigorous Enforcement, as Intended by Congress, 1 Duke J. Const. L. & Pub. Pol'y 79, 104-05 (2006).
- 92 S. Rep. No. 97-417, at 9–11.
- 93 S. Rep. No. 97-417, at 9–11.
- 94 White v. Regester, 412 U.S. 755 (1973).
- 95 S. Rep. No. 97-417, at 24-27 (discussing Mobile v. Bolden, 446 U.S. 55 (1980)).
- 96 Quiet Revolution in the South, supra note 82, at 35–36 (overview), 54–56, 61–64 (Alabama), 78, 99–100 (Georgia), 112–13, 120–21, 133 (Louisiana), 142–43, 151–52 (Mississippi), 171–73, 189 (North Carolina), 226–27, (South Carolina), 254–55, 264–68 (Texas), 297 (Virginia); Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 36, at 81–88.
- 97 Garza v. County of L.A., 918 F. 2d 763 (9th Cir. 1990).
- 98 Mark Rosenbaum, Op-Ed, Drawing Fair District Lines, L.A. Times, (Sept. 27, 2011), <http://articles.latimes.com/2011/sep/27/opinion/la-oe-roosenbaum-county-supervisors-redistricting-20110927>.
- 99 Reno v. Bossier Parish School Bd., 520 U.S. 471 (1997).
- 100 Reno v. Bossier Parish School Bd. (Bossier Parish II), 528 U.S. 320 (2000).
- 101 Id. at 342-53 (Souter, J., dissenting).
- 102 Mark A. Posner, Time is Still on Its Side: Why Congressional Reauthorization of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act Represents a Congruent and Proportional Response to Our Nation's History of Discrimination in Voting, 10 N.Y.U. J. Legis. & Pub. Pol'y 51, 114 (2006); Peyton McCrary et al., The End of Preclearance As We Knew It: How the Supreme Court

Transformed Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, 11 Mich. J. Race & L. 275, 276, 284–86, 297 (2006). In Busbee v. Smith, 549 F. Supp. 494 (D.D.C. 1982), the district court denied preclearance to a Georgia congressional redistricting plan that was not retrogressive but which was adopted specifically to minimize the opportunity of African Americans to elect any members of the State's congressional delegation. The plan was adopted pursuant to the leadership of a redistricting committee chair who openly avowed a racial intent. The district court's decision was summarily affirmed by the Supreme Court. Busbee v. Smith, 459 U.S. 1166 (1983).

- 103 See Pleasant Grove v. United States, 479 U.S. 462, n.11 (1987); City of Richmond v. United States, 422 U.S. 358, 378–79 (1975).

104 Georgia v. Ashcroft, 539 U.S. 461, 482 (2003).

105 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 68–72.

106 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 68, 71.

107 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 811 F. Supp. 2d 424 (2011).

108 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 679 F. 3d 848 (2012).

109 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 133 S. Ct. 2612 (2013).

110 Id. at 2627.

111 Id. at 2619.

112 Id. at 2632–52.

113 Id. at 2632–33 (footnote omitted).

114 Id. at 2650

CHAPTER 2

- 1 Cases brought under Section 2 of the VRA that raised successful claims based upon the failure to provide language assistance are included in the separate category of language assistance cases, along with cases brought under Sections 203, 4(f)(4), and 4(e) of the VRA.

- 2 The Section 2 and language assistance cases include those in which a court ruled for the plaintiffs, and those in which the parties entered into a consent decree or settlement requiring that the challenged election practice be replaced or altered (including decrees and settlements in which the defendants admitted a violation (or the equivalent) and those in which no violation was admitted). The language cases include a few matters where out-of-court settlements were reached without litigation being filed.

- 3 Had the passage of time purged the vestiges of historic voting discrimination (i.e. conditions as they existed circa 1965–75), then the cases should show no geographic clustering.

- 4 As indicated in note 2, in identifying successful Section 2 lawsuits we include adjudicated court findings of Section 2 violations as well as settlements of Section 2 claims for which there was no court finding. This is because it would seriously understate the scope of the problem to rely exclusively upon adjudicated violations. In the first place, it would be incorrect to assume that the strongest Section 2 cases were those that were finally adjudicated. Indeed, strong Section 2 cases are very likely to settle. Voting rights cases are widely known for being “fact-heavy”, and it is the policy of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the federal courts to encourage settlements and to conduct trials only when necessary to resolve genuine factual disputes. Cases are routinely weeded out via dispositive motions when courts conclude that they do not present triable factual claims. While defendants frequently deny liability in settlement agreements, the fact that a settlement has altered the status quo in the plaintiffs' favor weighs strongly in favor of including them for purposes of assessing the extent of voting discrimination and the impact of the Voting Rights Act. Plaintiffs carry the burden of proof under Section 2, and a settlement is a reasonable indication that the defendants made a considered judgment that they stood a substantial risk that trial would result in a finding of liability against them.

- 5 At the time of the 2000 Census, nine states were fully covered under Section 4(b), and seven states were covered in part, leaving 34 states and the District of Columbia entirely uncovered. When Shelby County was decided, there was one fewer partially-covered state, since the covered townships in New Hampshire had bailed out of coverage.

- 6 See Voting Rights Act: Evidence of Continuing Need: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 202-03 (2006) (Findings of the Michigan Voting Rights Initiative).

7 League of United Latin American Citizens v. Perry, 548 U.S. 399 (2006).

8 Id. at 440.

9 White v. Regester, 412 U.S. 755 (1973), the first case in which the Supreme Court upheld a claim of minority vote dilution, involved a Texas state legislative redistricting plan.

10 Texas v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d 133, 153, 159 (D.D.C. 2012) vacated and remanded, 133 S.Ct. 2885 (2013).

11 Cal. Elec. Code. §§ 14027-14032.

12 The constitutionality of the CVRA was unsuccessfully challenged in Sanchez v. City of Modesto, 145 Cal. App. 4th 660 (2007). See also generally National Commission on Voting Rights, California State Hearing (Jan. 30, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee) (discussing examples of successful litigation under the CVRA).

13 See Table 3, note b for an explanation as to six objections that are omitted from this objection count.

14 Two of the preclearance denials by the D.C. district court were preceded by administrative preclearance denials by DOJ regarding the same voting changes. Since the district court rulings superseded the DOJ determinations, these two administrative denials are not included in the total number of objection letters issued by DOJ.

15 This Report does not include Section 5 enforcement actions since 1995. Such cases concerned the limited (but important) question of whether voting changes were being implemented by a covered jurisdiction without the requisite preclearance. These cases can provide indirect evidence of efforts to implement discriminatory voting changes, but because they did not deal with the substantive question of whether the voting practices at issue were discriminatory or not, they are not included here.

16 28 C.F.R. § 51.52.

- 17 By contrast, Section 2 and Section 5 of the VRA do not require states to follow any specific procedures. Instead, they prohibit the use of voting practices and procedures that are shown to be racially discriminatory (under Section 2) or that jurisdictions could not show to be nondiscriminatory (under Section 5).
- 18 See Attorney General's Guidelines on Implementation of the Provisions of the Voting Rights Act Regarding Language Minority Groups, 28 C.F.R. § 55 (2011), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/28cfr/55/28cfr55_2011.pdf; see also Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., Dep't of Justice, Assistant Attorney General Thomas E. Perez Speaks at the National Association of Secretaries of State 2012 Conference (Jan. 30, 2012), available at <http://www.justice.gov/crt/opa/pr/speeches/2012/crt-speech-1201301.html>.
- 19 28 C.F.R. § 55.17
- 20 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-6 ("Any voter who requires assistance to vote by reason of blindness, disability, or inability to read or write may be given assistance by a person of the voter's choice, other than the voter's employer or agent of that employer or officer or agent of the voter's union.")

CHAPTER 3

- 1 See Mark A. Posner, The Real Story Behind the Justice Department's Implementation of Section 5 of the VRA: Vigorous Enforcement, as Intended by Congress, 1 Duke J. Const. L. & Pub. Pol'y 79, 102, 104–05 (2006).
- 2 See id.
- 3 See id.; see generally Section 5 Objection Letters, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/index.php (last visited July 23, 2014), (listing determination letters issued by the Department of Justice by State). It was rare that a covered jurisdiction filed for preclearance with the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. From 1965 to 2006, that court denied preclearance in eleven cases. Posner, supra note 1, at 113–14. After the 2006 reauthorization, the district court denied preclearance in four additional cases: Florida v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d 133 (D.D.C. 2012); Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d 113 (D.D.C. 2012), vacated and remanded, 133 S. Ct. 2886 (2013); Texas v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d 133 (D.D.C. 2013), vacated and remanded, 133 S. Ct. 2885 (2013); and South Carolina v. United States, 898 F. Supp. 2d 30 (D.D.C. 2012).
- 4 Determination Letter from J. Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Texas (Dec. 10, 1975), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/TX-1000.pdf; Determination Letter from J. Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Texas (Jan. 3, 1976), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/TX-1010.pdf.
- 5 Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d at 115.
- 6 Texas v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d at 138, 159, 161, 162, 177–78.
- 7 See Voting Determination Letters for Texas, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=tx (last visited July 23, 2014), (listing determination letters issued by the Department of Justice pertaining to the State of Texas).
- 8 South Carolina v. United States, 898 F. Supp. 2d at 32.
- 9 Determination Letter from Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of South Carolina, 1–3, (Dec. 23, 2011), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/SC/L_111223.pdf.
- 10 See 898 F. Supp. 2d at 40 ("About 96% of whites and about 92–94% of African-Americans currently have one of the . . . photo IDs [listed by the 2011 statute]. That racial disparity, combined with the burdens of time and cost of transportation inherent in obtaining a new photo ID card, might have posed a problem for South Carolina's law under the strict effects test of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act. . . .").
- 11 Id. at 36.
- 12 Id.
- 13 Id.
- 14 Id. at 48.
- 15 Id. at 48–50.
- 16 Id. at 53–54.
- 17 Determination Letter from Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Georgia (Dec. 21, 2012), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/GA/L_121221.pdf.
- 17a Id.
- 18 Id. at 3.
- 18a Complaint at 5–6, Howard v. Augusta-Richmond Cnty., No. 1:14-cv-00097 (S.D. Ga. May 13, 2014), available at <http://redistricting.ils.edu/files/GA%20howard%2020140414%20complaint.pdf>.
- 19 Order Granting Motion to Dismiss at 8, Howard v. Augusta-Richmond Cnty., No. 1:14-cv-00097 (S.D. Ga. May 13, 2014), available at <http://redistricting.ils.edu/files/GA%20howard%2020140513%20order.pdf>.
- 20 Sandy Hodson, City Wins Lawsuit over Change in Election Date for Local Offices, Augusta Chron. (May 13, 2014), <http://chronicle.augusta.com/news/government/elections/2014-05-13/city-wins-lawsuit-over-change-election-date-local-offices>.
- 21 Determination Letter from Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Beaumont Indep. Sch. Dist. (Dec. 21, 2012), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/L_121221.pdf.
- 21a Id. at 1–3.
- 22 Id. at 2.
- 23 See Complaint, Walker v. Beaumont Indep. Sch. Dist., No. 1:13-cv-128 (E.D. Tex.), available at <http://redistricting.ils.edu/files/20131223%20walker%20v%20bisd%20complaint.pdf>.
- 24 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478 (2006), at 57.
- 25 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 679 F.3d 848, 872 (D.C. Cir. 2012).
- 26 Id. (quoting Modern Enforcement of the Voting Rights Act: Hearing Before the S. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 22 (2006)).
- 27 See Winter v. Natural Res. Def. Council, Inc., 555 U.S. 7, 20 (2008); see also id. at 51 (Ginsburg, J., dissenting).

- 28 In sum, the preliminary injunction remedy is considered “extraordinary” and “drastic.” 11A Wright, Miller, Kane, Marcus & Steinman, Federal Practice & Procedure § 2948 (3d ed.).
- 29 United States v. Charleston Cnty., 316 F. Supp. 2d 268, 272 (D. S.C. 2003).
- 30 Id. at 272.
- 31 Id. at 273.
- 32 Id. at 307.
- 33 United States v. Charleston Cnty., 365 F.3d 341 (4th Cir. 2004).
- 34 Determination Letter from Assistant Att’y Gen. R. Alexander Acosta, U.S. Dep’t of Justice, to Charleston Cnty. Sch. Dist. (Feb. 26, 2004), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/SC/SC-2180.pdf
- 35 N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 163-227.2 (2013) (amended 2013).
- 36 N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-82.6(a) (2013) (amended 2013).
- 37 N.C. Gen. Stat. § 163-82.1(d) (repealed by H.B. 589 (2013)).
- 38 2012 Election Turnout Dips Below 2008 and 2004 Levels: Number Of Eligible Voters Increases By Eight Million, Five Million Fewer Votes Cast, Bipartisan Policy Ctr. (Nov. 8, 2012), bipartisanpolicy.org/news/press-releases/2012/11/2012-election-turnout-dips-below-2008-and-2004-levels-number-eligible.
- 39 Press Release, Democracy N.C., Republicans, African Americans, Women and Seniors Post the Highest Voter Turnout Rates in North Carolina (Dec. 19, 2012), available at democracy-nc.org/downloads/NCVoterTurnout2012PR.pdf.
- 40 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 133 S. Ct. 2612 (2013). Shelby County effectively removed the preclearance provision of Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, which had required covered jurisdictions to prove that proposed voting changes had neither a discriminatory purpose or a discriminatory retrogressive effect.
- 41 Expert Report of J. Morgan Kousser at 38, League of Women Voters of N.C. v. North Carolina, No. 1:13-cv-00660-TDS-JEP (M.D.N.C. May 19, 2014) (quoting Rob Christensen & John Frank, Confident GOP Preps for Voter ID Bill - Democrats Say It’s More the Same; Poll Shows Bill Has Support, News & Observer, Mar. 6, 2013), available at <http://moritzlaw.osu.edu/electionlaw/litigation/documents/League1557.pdf>.
- 42 The bill allowed voters to use employee ID; ID issued by the University of North Carolina or its constituent institutions; ID issued by a North Carolina community college; ID issued to a fireman, EMS or hospital employee, or law enforcement officer; ID issued by a unit of local government, public authority, or special district; and ID issued for a government program of public assistance.
- 43 United States’ Memorandum of Law in Support of its Motion for a Preliminary Injunction and for the Appointment of Federal Observers at 12, League of Women Voters of N.C., No. 1:13-cv-00660-TDS-JEP (internal citation omitted).
- 44 See N.C. Sess. Laws 2013-381 (H.B. 589).
- 45 Id. at § 2.1.
- 46 United States’ Memorandum of Law in Support of its Motion for a Preliminary Injunction and for the Appointment of Federal Observers, supra note 43, (internal citation omitted).
- 47 Aaron Blake, North Carolina Governor Signs Extensive Voter ID Law, Wash. Post (Aug. 12, 2013), www.washingtonpost.com/blogs/post-politics/wp/2013/08/12/north-carolina-governor-signs-extensive-voter-id-law/; cf. N.C. Sess. Laws 2013-381 (H.B. 589).

CHAPTER 4

- 1 This report uses the terms “African American” and “black” interchangeably. In addition, the report uses the terms as “Latino” and “Hispanic” interchangeably. “Native Americans” include American Indians and Alaska Natives.
- 2 Whereas this report refers to Latinos, the statute refers to “persons . . . of Spanish heritage.” Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975, Pub. L. No. 94-73, § 203, 89 Stat. 400, 401–02.
- 3 Nat’l Comm’n on the Voting Rights Act, Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act at Work, 1982–2005 (2006).
- 4 Id. at 15.
- 5 Jon Greenbaum et al., Shelby County v. Holder: When the Rational Becomes Irrational, 57 How. L.J. 811, 816 (citing Alexander Keyssar, The Right to Vote: The Contested History of Democracy in the United States (2000)); J. Morgan Kousser, The Shaping of Southern Politics: Suffrage Restriction and the Establishment of the One-Part South, 1880-1910 (1974); see also Ellen Katz et al., Documenting Discrimination in Voting: Judicial Findings Under Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act Since 1982, 39 U. Mich. J.L. Reform 643, 646 (2006).
- 6 Keyssar, supra note 5, at 111.
- 7 Joel Heller, Shelby County and the End of History, 44 U. Mem. L. Rev. 357, 367 (2013).
- 8 Keyssar, supra note 5, at 114–15. Additionally, in Georgia by 1910, only 4% of all black males were registered to vote. Id. at 114–15. In 1964, only 6.7% of African Americans eligible to vote in Mississippi were registered compared to 70.2% of whites. Extension of the Voting Rights Act: Hearings Before the Subcomm. on Civil & Constitutional Rights of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 94th Cong. 4 (1975) [hereinafter House VRA Hearings of 1975] (statement of Hon. Peter W. Rodino, Jr.). Just prior to the enactment of the VRA in March of 1965, “registration statistics in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Virginia were 19.3, 27.4, 31.6, 6.7, 46.8, 37.3, and 38.3 percent, respectively.” H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 7 n.8 (2006) (citing H.R. Rep. No. 94-196, at 6 (1975)).
- 9 Katz et al., supra note 5, at 646.
- 10 Heller, supra note 7, at 367 n.51.
- 11 House VRA Hearings of 1975, supra note 8, at app. 1023. The disparity between black and white registration rates in the covered states was approximately 44.1 percent prior to the Act (in March 1965). Id. at app. 1026. This disparity was approximately 27.4 percent in September 1967 and 11.2 percent for 1971–1972. Id. The 1975 legislative history also highlights the overall increase in turnout from pre-VRA to post-VRA elections. As compared to the 1964 presidential election, turnout in the 1968 presidential election increased

- in all seven covered states. Id. at app. 1029. “The increase ranged from 0.1 percentage point in Georgia to 19.3 percentage points in Mississippi.” Id. at app. 1029; see also id. at app. 1028 tbl. 4 (depicting “Voter Turnout in the Presidential Elections of 1964, 1968, and 1972 in Southern States Covered by the Voting Rights Act”). National turnout dropped for the 1972 election but remained above the 1964 rates in four of the seven covered states. Id. at app. 1029. The record notes that “[w]here persons vote in States with traditionally low turnout, despite a strong national trend toward nonvoting, it seems likely that many of the voters are persons who had previously been denied the opportunity to vote.” Id. Further, this conclusion is supported by survey data that Congress relied upon in 1975, which indicated that participation rates among Southern blacks “increased sharply” from 1964 to 1968. Id. at app. 1031. Though it declined slightly between 1968 and 1972, the 1972 rates remained higher than 1964 rates. Id.
- 12 Id. at 20 (statement of Hon. Arthur S. Fleming, Chairman, U.S. Comm’n on Civil Rights). Additionally, the U.S. Census found that the voter turnout rate of African Americans and other nonwhites in the South rose from 44 to 51 percent between the 1964 and 1968 elections despite an overall decline in voting turnout nationally in that year. U.S. Census Bureau, Current Population Reports: Voting and Registration in the Election of November 1968 1 (1969).
- 13 1975 House VRA Hearings, supra note 8, at 31.
- 14 U.S. Comm’n on Civil Rights, Political Participation 12 (1968).
- 15 Id. at 21.
- 16 Allen v. State Bd. of Elections, 393 U.S. 544 (1969).
- 17 Quiet Revolution in the South: The Impact of the Voting Rights Act 1965-1990 33 (Chandler Davidson & Bernard Grofman eds., 1994).
- 18 Id.
- 19 Id. at 384.
- 20 See, e.g., Katz, supra note 5, at 656 (“Courts identified violations of Section 2 more frequently between 1982 and 1992 than in the years since. Of the 92 total violations identified, courts found 46.7% of them during the 1980s.”); see also Nat’l Comm’n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 3, at 81–83.
- 21 Quiet Revolution in the South, supra note 17, at 385.
- 22 Id.
- 23 See Debo P. Adegbile, Voting Rights in Louisiana: 1982-2006, 17 S. Cal. Rev. L. & Soc. Just. 413, 429 (2008) (“In fact, [the governor] ‘publicly expressed his opposition to the concept of a majority black district, stating that districting schemes motivated by racial considerations, however benign, smacked of racism, and in any case were not constitutionally required.’”).
- 24 See id. at 429–30 (citing Major v. Treen, 574 F. Supp. 325, 355–56 (E.D. La. 1983)).
- 25 Though the rates of African American voter registration, turnout, and elected officials had increased, there were more Section 5 objections “lodged between 1982 and 2004 than were interposed between 1965 and 1982 and . . . such objections did not encompass minor inadvertent changes[,]” nor does this account for the number of withdrawals. H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, supra note 8, at 21 (citing Nat’l Comm’n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 3, at 54).
- 26 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, supra note 8, at 21.
- 27 Voting Determination Letters for Mississippi, U.S. Dep’t of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=ms (last visited July 23, 2014).
- 28 Katz et al., supra note 5, at 646; see also H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, supra note 8, at 21.
- 29 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, supra note 8, at 23.
- 30 Id. at 21.
- 31 Dillard v. Crenshaw, 640 F. Supp. 1347 (M.D. Ala. 1986).
- 32 Id. at 1356–57.
- 33 Quiet Revolution in the South, supra note 17, at 53–54.
- 34 Dillard, 640 F. Supp. at 1373.
- 35 James Blacksher et al., Voting Rights in Alabama 1982–2006 9 (2006), available at <http://www.protectcivilrights.org/pdf/voting/AlabamaVRA.pdf>.
- 36 Harris v. Graddick, 593 F. Supp. 128, 130 (M.D. Ala. 1984).
- 37 Harris v. Siegelman, 695 F. Supp. 517, 526 (M.D. Ala. 1988).
- 38 Press Release, U.S. Census Bureau, 2010 Census Shows Black Population has Highest Concentration in the South (Sept. 29, 2011), available at http://www.census.gov/newsroom/releases/archives/2010_census/cb11-cn185.html.
- 39 See Historical Time Series Tables, U.S. Census Bureau, <https://www.census.gov/hhes/www/socdemo/voting/publications/historical/> (last visited July 23, 2014) (download Table A-1. Reported Voting and Registration by Race, Hispanic Origin, Sex, and Age Groups: November 1964 to 2012).
- 40 See id.
- 41 Nat’l Comm’n on the Voting Rights Act, supra note 3, at 11–25.
- 42 Id. at 37.
- 43 David Lublin et al., Has the Voting Rights Act Outlived its Usefulness? In a Word, “No”, 34 Legis. Studies Q. 525, 526 (2009). It may be the case that coalition districts, or districts in which “more than one protected minority group combined forms a majority in a district,” have been particularly successful in electing African American candidates. Matt Barreto et al., Redistricting: Coalition Districts and the Voting Rights Act 1 (2011), available at <https://www.law.berkeley.edu/files/Coalition.pdf> (discussing voting patterns among Black and Latino voters in Los Angeles County in the 2010 election of Kamala Harris as California Attorney General).
- 44 Throughout this chapter, references to “Section 2 cases” refer only to those cases not involving bilingual assistance.
- 45 See Supplemental Online Appendix, available at <http://votingrightstoday.org/discriminationreport>
- 46 See id.
- 47 See id.
- 48 See id.
- 49 See infra Chapter 6.
- 50 Paul Taylor et al., Pew Research Ctr., An Awakened Giant: The Hispanic Electorate Is Likely to Double by 2030 5 (2012), available at http://www.pewhispanic.org/files/2012/11/hispanic_vote_likely_to_double_by_2030_11-14-12.pdf.
- 51 Mark Hugo Lopez et al., Pew Research Ctr., Diverse Origins: The Nation’s 14 Largest Hispanic-Origin Groups 5 (2013), available at http://www.pewhispanic.org/files/2013/06/summary_report_final.pdf.
- 52 NALEO Educ. Fund, Latino Voters at Risk: The Impact of Restrictive Voting and Registration Measures on the Nation’s Fastest Growing Electorate (2012), available at <http://www.naleo.org/downloads/LatinoVotersatRisk.pdf>.

- 53 The Latino community in the United States, although often referred to as a cohesive ethnic group, is in fact comprised of groups that are quite diverse in important aspects, including race and country of origin, tracing their family heritage to “more than 20 Spanish-speaking nations worldwide.” Lopez et al., supra note 51, at 3.
- 54 Mexican Americans and Puerto Ricans comprise 64.6 % and 9.5% of all Latinos in the U.S., respectively. Id.
- 55 In 1836, Anglo-Americans took control of the Texas government, then part of Mexico, and eventually Texas was annexed to the U.S. in 1845. Expert Report of Dr. Andres Tijerina at 2–3, Texas v. United States, 2011 WL 6476787 (D.D.C. Aug. 8, 2011); Juan F. Perea, A Brief History of Race and the U.S.-Mexican Border: Tracing the Trajectories of Conquest, 51 UCLA L. Rev. 283, 284–85 (2003). Shortly after, the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo in 1848 which ended the Mexican–American War, ceded to the United States a great portion of land that belonged to Mexico, including California, present-day Arizona and New Mexico and parts of Utah, Nevada, and Colorado. Id.
- 56 Later, the Foraker Act of 1900 established a civilian government in Puerto Rico consisting in part of a governor and supreme court appointed by the President of the United States. César A. López Morales, Note, A Political Solution to Puerto Rico’s Disenfranchisement: Reconsidering Congress’s Role in Bringing Equality to America’s Long-Forgotten Citizens, 32 B.U. Int’l L.J. 185, 192–93 (2014). Congress authorized Puerto Ricans to elect their own governor and draft their own constitution in 1947 and 1950; in 1952, Congress approved a constitution providing for the establishment of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Id. at 195. Importantly, because state electors have exclusive authority to elect the President, the 3.7 million U.S. citizens of Puerto Rico who reside on the island are unable to participate in the election of the President and Vice-President. Id. at 187–88
- 57 Katherine Culliton-González, Time to Revive Puerto Rican Voting Rights, 19 Berkeley La Raza L.J. 27, 29–31 (2008). This migration accelerated after World War II, when Puerto Ricans were recruited to work in East Coast factories and to support seasonal farm labor. New York has been and continues to be the most popular point of entry, but large concentrations of Puerto Ricans are also located in Chicago and Philadelphia. Id. at 43.
- 58 During the Great Depression, Mexican Americans were targeted through what came to be known as the Mexican “repatriation.” As unemployment rose, so did the level of hostility toward Mexican Americans and possibly 400,000 people, many of whom were U.S. citizens, were forced out of the country. Wendy Koch, U.S. Urged to Apologize for 1930s Deportations, USA Today (Apr. 5, 2006), http://www.usatoday.com/news/nation/2006-04-04-1930s-deportees-cover_x.htm. Although not at a massive scale, incidents of unlawful deportation of U.S. citizens of Mexican ancestry have continued to take place. In 2007, for example, Peter Guzman, a U.S. citizen was deported to Tijuana with $3 in his pocket. He had not visited Tijuana in more than a decade and knew no one there. He survived by begging and eating from garbage cans. A lawsuit was filed by the ACLU in 2008. Family of U.S. Citizen Illegally Deported to Mexico Says Government Endangered His Life, Am. Civil Liberties Union (Feb. 27, 2008), <https://www.aclusocal.org/family-of-u-s-citizen-illegally-deported-to-mexico-says-government-endangered-his-life/>.
- 59 For example, Mexican-Americans in South Texas were the victims of government-sponsored vigilante raids to drive them away from land grants. In 1874, in a raid aimed at taking land south of Corpus Christi, every adult, male Mexican American in a community of 500 was murdered by white vigilantes whose leaders were deputized in Brownsville. See Juan Cartagena, Latinos and Section 5 of The Voting Rights Act: Beyond Black and White, 18 Nat’l Black L.J. 201, 212 n.69 (2004) (citing Expert Report of Dr. Andres Tijerina, Balderas v. Texas, No. 6:01CV158 (E.D. Tex. Nov. 28, 2001)). Another example of violence toward Mexican Americans were the Los Angeles “Zoot Suit” riots during World War II, during which “over a period of days, Anglo servicemen beat Mexican Americans on the city streets while police watched...and, if arresting anyone, only arresting the victims.” Kevin R. Johnson, Hernandez v. Texas: Legacies of Justice and Injustice, 25 Chicano-Latino L. Rev. 153, 165 (2005). Racial strife and hate crimes against Mexican Americans have not been completely eradicated. According to a leading Latino organization, hate crimes against Latinos have risen by 40%. Hate Crimes, Mexican Am. Legal Def. & Educ. Fund, http://www.maldef.org/immigration/public_policy/hate_crimes/ (last visited July 23, 2012).
- 60 See Mendez v. Westminster, 64 F. Supp. 544 (S.D. Cal. 1946), aff’d, 161 F.2d 774 (9th Cir. 1947) (en banc) (holding that the segregation of Latinos in public schools is unlawful).
- 61 See Hernandez v. Texas, 347 U.S. 475, 482 (1954) (holding that the dearth of persons of Mexican or Latin American descent serving on juries in the previous 25 years “bespeaks discrimination,” in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment). In 1977, the Supreme Court also held that a Texas county’s system for impaneling grand juries was unconstitutional. Castaneda v. Partida, 430 U.S. 482, 501 (1977). Mexican Americans made up approximately 80% of the county but from 1962 to 1972 they made up less than 40% of the grand jurors. Id. at 486–87 & n.7. Similarly, between 1959 and 1969, “Mexicans were under-represented on Los Angeles grand juries by a ratio of 8 to 1.” Johnson, supra note 59, at 185 (quoting Ian F. Haney Lopez, Racism on Trial: The Chicano Fight for Justice (2003)) (internal quotation marks omitted).
- 62 Ian Haney Lopez, Race and Colorblindness After Hernandez and Brown, 25 Chicano-Latino L. Rev. 61, 62 (2005).
- 63 Hernandez, 347 U.S. at 482.
- 64 Id. at 479–80.
- 65 Cartagena, supra note 59, at 212. In 1918, Texas Governor, William Hobby established an additional force of 1000 men to supplement the work of the Texas Rangers. Private citizens also attempted to block the Mexican vote. In 1928 in Welasco, Texas, a group of Anglo Texans headed to the polls with shotguns and yelling “Don’t let those Mexicans in to vote.” Id. (citing Expert Report of Dr. Andres Tijerina, supra note 59, at 4, 8).
- 66 Cartagena, supra note 59, at 213.
- 67 California adopted its English literacy test in 1894 and it was not invalidated until 1970 by the California Supreme Court. See Castro v. California, 466 P.2d 244, 256 (1970). Arizona passed its literacy test in 1912 “in an acknowledged attempt to deter the ‘ignorant Mexican vote.’” NALEO Educ. Fund, supra note 52, at 6.

- 68 NALEO Educ. Fund, supra note 52, at 6.
- 69 Culliton-González, supra note 57, at 29–31. The literacy test was used for voters who could not present a certificate demonstrating that they were educated in English up to the eighth grade. Even though English was the official language of schools in Puerto Rico until 1946, inspectors often denied certificates from Puerto Rican schools. Rodolfo O. de la Garza & Louis DeSipio, Save the Baby, Change the Bathwater, and Scrub the Tub: Latino Electoral Participation After Seventeen Years of Voting Rights Act Coverage, 71 Tex. L. Rev. 1479, 1493 (1993).
- 70 NALEO Educ. Fund, supra note 52, at 6.
- 71 Id.
- 72 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(e).
- 73 Testimony during the legislative process estimated that in New York, approximately 330,000 Puerto Ricans had been prevented from registering as a result of the literacy test. The literacy tests were not only discriminatory on their face, but also in application: “literacy test certificates would ‘suddenly disappear’ causing delays of hours, if not the entire day, to replace them, or how basic supplies like pencils would be missing whenever Puerto Ricans sought to take the test.” Cartagena, supra note 59, at 206.
- 74 Katzenbach v. Morgan, 384 U.S. 641, 646 (1966).
- 75 See Brief of National Latino Organizations as Amici Curiae in Support of Respondents at 11–12, Shelby Cnty., Ala. v. Holder, 133 S. Ct. 2612 (2013); de la Garza & DeSipio, supra note 69, at 1492.
- 76 de la Garza & Desipio, supra note 69, at 1492.
- 77 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975, Pub. L. No. 94-73, § 203, 89 Stat. 400, 401–02. See also de la Garza & DeSipio, supra note 69, at 1481–82.
- 78 Cartagena, supra note 59, at 212. The 1975 Amendments extended preclearance and federal observer protections to any jurisdiction in which more than 5 percent of voting age citizens were of a single language minority, election materials had been prepared only in English in the 1972 presidential election, and less than 50 percent of voting age citizens had registered for or voted in the 1972 presidential election. Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975 § 203; see also de la Garza & DeSipio, supra note 69, at 1481–82. Bilingual election materials were mandated in jurisdictions where a single language minority constituted more than 5 percent of the voting age population and the illiteracy rate among the language minority was higher than the national English illiteracy rate, and the use of literacy tests in voter registration were permanently banned. See Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975 § 203.
- 79 42 U.S.C. §§ 1973b(f)(1)–(2).
- 79a White v. Regester, 412 U.S. 755, 769 (1973).
- 80 Id. at 768 (first alteration in original).
- 81 Garza v. Cnty. of Los Angeles, 756 F. Supp. 1298, 1303–04 (C.D. Cal. 1990), aff’d, 918 F.2d 763 (9th Cir. 1990), cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1028 (1991).
- 82 Id. at 1351.
- 83 Anna Brown & Mark Hugo Lopez, Pew Research Ctr., Mapping the Latino Population, By State, County and City 4 (2013), available at <http://www.pewhispanic.org/2013/08/29/mapping-the-latino-population-by-state-county-and-city/>; see generally id. (providing a complete breakdown and maps of the Latino population growth by state, county and metropolitan area).
- 84 Benjamin Highton & Arthur L. Burris, New Perspectives on Latino Voter Turnout in the United States, 30 Am. Pol. Res. 285, 300 (2002).
- 85 Current Population Survey, U.S. Census Bureau (Nov. 2012).
- 86 See generally Highton & Burris, supra note 84.
- 87 Id. at 294–95.
- 88 Id. at 295.
- 89 Id. at 295.
- 90 de la Garza & DeSipio, supra note 69, at 1509–10.
- 91 Highton & Burris, supra note 84, at 294.
- 92 Nina Perales et al., Voting Rights in Texas: 1982-2006, 17 S. Cal. Rev. L. & Soc. Just. 713, 726 (2008).
- 93 S. Rep. No. 97-417, at 28–29 (1982).
- 94 Id. at 29.
- 95 Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 69 (1986).
- 96 Katz et al., supra note 5, at app. For complete VRI Database Master List, visit <http://www.sitemaker.umich.edu/votingrights/home>, select “Final Report” and download “MasterList.xls.”
- 97 NALEO Educ. Fund, 1996 National Directory of Latino Elected Officials (on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 98 NALEO Educ. Fund, 2009 National Directory of Latino Elected Officials (on file with the Lawyers’ Committee); NALEO Educ. Fund, 2013 National Directory of Latino Elected Officials (on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 99 Lublin et al., supra note 43, at 532.
- 100 See, e.g., League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) v. Perry, 548 U.S. 399, 408, 423–43 (2006) (holding that changes to a Latino-majority district in west Texas violated Section 2); Texas v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d 133, 135 (D.D.C. 2012) (denying preclearance by unanimously concluding that the State of Texas engaged in intentional discrimination against African-American and Latino voters in enacting the 2011 State Senate and Congressional redistricting plans, and that the Congressional plan was retrogressive).
- 101 See, e.g., United States v. Osceola County, Fla., 475 F. Supp. 2d 1220, 1235 (M.D. Fla. 2006) (holding that the county’s voting system diluted Hispanic votes in violation of Section 2).
- 102 See Supplemental Online Appendix, supra note 45.
- 103 Sanchez v. Colorado, 97 F.3d 1303 (1996).
- 104 Id. at 1307.
- 105 Id.
- 106 Id. at 1323.
- 107 See id. at 1308, 1319.
- 108 Id. at 1329.
- 109 United States v. Long County, No. 2:06-cv-00040 (S.D. Ga., Feb. 10, 2006).
- 110 Id.
- 111 Russ Bynum, Georgia County Questions 95 Hispanics’ Right to Vote, Fla. Times-Union (Oct. 28, 2004), <http://jacksonville.com/apnews/stories/102804/D860K2N01.shtml>.
- 112 Brannon Stewart, Challenge Dropped Against Most Atkinson Voters, WALB News (Oct. 28, 2004).
- 113 Paul Taylor et al., supra note 50, at 6.
- 114 Am. Civil Liberties Union, Voting Rights in Indian Country 2 (Sept. 2009), available at <https://www.aclu.org/files/pdfs/votingrights/indiancountryreport.pdf>.
- 115 Id. at 16.

- 116 President Richard Nixon, Message to the Congress of the United States on the American Indians (July 8, 1970), available at <http://www.presidency.ucsb.edu/ws/index.php?pid=2573&st=&st1=>.
- 117 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 5 (quoting Draper v. United States, 164 U.S. 240, 240, 246 (1896)).
- 118 Laughlin McDonald, American Indians and the Fight for Equal Voting Rights 5–7 (2010). Congress terminated the treaty-making process in 1871.
- 119 Id. at 11.
- 120 Id. at 10, 13.
- 121 Am. Indian Policy Review Comm'n, Final Report 66 (1977).
- 122 McDonald, supra note 118, at 6.
- 123 Id. at 12.
- 124 Id. at 18.
- 125 Natalie Landreth & Moira Smith, Voting Rights in Alaska: 1982-2006 4 (Mar. 2006), available at <http://www.protectcivilrights.org/pdf/voting/AlaskaVRA.pdf>.
- 126 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 7.
- 127 Id.
- 128 Id.
- 129 Id.
- 130 McDonald, supra note 118, at 26.
- 131 Id. at 46.
- 132 Every Native Vote Counts: Fast Facts, Nat'l Congress of Am. Indians, available at http://api.ning.com/files/p5H7-N8Ot6oPr2YAnodb2julJeBCSZyUzu*8mwLExUIWlcHSI05tI5aYJM44Plw-YObm-USu6-wzlyZ5e7uaDvXMhxGA*YxQ/NVInfographic.compressed.pdf.
- 133 Current Population Survey: Voting & Registration Supplement, U.S. Census Bureau (Nov. 2008).
- 134 Current Population Survey: Voting & Registration Supplement, U.S. Census Bureau (Nov. 2012).
- 135 See Buckanaga v. Sisseton Indep. Sch. Dist., No. 54-5, S.D., 804 F.2d 469, 474–75 (8th Cir. 1986).
- 136 Ryan D. Dreveskracht, Enfranchising Native Americans After Shelby County v. Holder: Congress's Duty to Act, 70 Nat'l Law. Guild Rev. 193, 205 (2013).
- 137 Stabler v. Cnty. of Thurston, Neb., 129 F.3d 1015, 1023 (8th Cir. 1997).
- 138 Dreveskracht, supra note 136, at 205.
- 139 See Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 52–53.
- 140 National Caucus of Native American of State Legislators, Nat'l Conf. of St. Legis., <http://www.ncsl.org/research/state-tribal-institute/national-caucus-native-american-state-legislators.aspx> (last visited July 28, 2014) (reporting “76 members from 17 states”).
- 141 Nat'l Congress of Am. Indians, supra note 132.
- 141a Daniel McCool et al., Native Vote: American Indians, the Voting Rights Act, and the Right to Vote 48–67 (2007).
- 142 Separate listings identifying each matter in these categories is included in the Supplemental Online Appendix, supra note 45, to this Report.
- 143 Order Re: Plaintiffs' Motion for a Preliminary Injunction Against the State Defendants, Nick v. Bethel, No. 3:07-cv-00098 (D. Alaska July 30, 2008).
- 144 Settlement Agreement, Nick v. Bethel, No. 3:07-cv-00098 (D. Alaska Feb. 16, 2010).
- 145 Tova Wang, Ensuring Access to the Ballot for American Indians & Alaska Natives: New Solutions to Strengthen American Democracy 9 (2012), available at <http://www.demos.org/sites/default/files/publications/IHS%20Report-Demos.pdf>.
- 146 Little Thunder v. South Dakota, 518 F.2d 1253, 1254 (8th Cir. 1975).
- 147 Id. at 1254.
- 148 Id. at 1254–55.
- 149 Id. at 1255.
- 150 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 7.
- 151 United States v. South Dakota, 636 F.2d 241, 243 (8th Cir. 1980).
- 152 Id. at 244.
- 153 Id. at 243.
- 154 United States v. Day Cnty., No. 1:99-cv-01024-RHB (D.S.D. 2000).
- 155 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 19.
- 156 Id.
- 157 Id.
- 158 Amended Consent Judgment and Decree at 7, United States v. Day Cnty., No. 1:99-cv-01024-RHB; see also Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 19.
- 159 Emery v. Hunt, 615 N.W.2d 590, 593 (S.D. 2000).
- 160 McDonald, supra note 118, at 55.
- 161 Bone Shirt v. Hazeltine, 336 F. Supp. 2d 976, 1028 (D.S.D. 2004).
- 162 Emery, 615 N.W.2d at 592–93.
- 163 Id. at 597.
- 164 Id. at 593.
- 165 S.D. Legislative Research Council, Issue Memorandum 95-36, Majority-Minority Districts: Legislative Reapportionment After Miller v. Johnson 6 (1995), available at <http://legis.sd.gov/docs/referencematerials/IssueMemos/im95-36.pdf>.
- 166 Bone Shirt, 336 F. Supp. 2d at 1028.
- 167 Laughlin McDonald et al., Voting Rights in South Dakota: 1982-2006, 17 S. Cal. Rev. L. & Soc. Just. 195, 196 (2007); see also Partial List of Determination Pursuant to Voting Rights Act of 1965, as Amended, 41 Fed. Reg. 784 (Jan. 5, 1976).
- 168 For a discussion of the pre-clearance requirement of Section 5, see Chapter 1.
- 169 McDonald et al., supra note 167, at 196–97.
- 170 McDonald, supra note 118, at 140.
- 171 Complaint, Quick Bear Quiver v. Hazeltine, No. 5:02-cv-05069-KES (D.S.D. 2002).
- 172 Consent Order at 2, Quick Bear Quiver v. Hazeltine, No. 5:02-cv-05069-KES.
- 173 Id. at 2–3.
- 174 McDonald, supra note 118, at 140.
- 175 Bone Shirt v. Hazeltine, 461 F.3d 1011, 1016 (2006).
- 176 Id.
- 177 Id. at 1019.
- 178 Id. at 1029.
- 179 Blackmoon v. Charles Mix Cnty., CIV. 05-4017, 2005 WL 2738954, at *3 (D.S.D. Oct. 24, 2005).
- 180 Blackmoon v. Charles Mix Cnty., 386 F. Supp. 2d 1108, 1110 (D.S.D. 2005) (order permitting discovery on plaintiff's motion for summary judgment).
- 181 See id. at 1112.
- 182 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 32.
- 183 Blackmoon, 2005 WL 2738954, at *1.
- 184 See id.
- 185 Id. at *2.
- 186 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 32.

- 187 Consent Decree at 2–3, Blackmoon v. Charles Mix Cnty., No. 05-4017, (D.S.D. Dec. 4, 2007).
- 188 Am. Civil Liberties Union, supra note 114, at 32.
- 189 Id.
- 190 Id.
- 191 Id.
- 192 Determination Letter from Grace Chung Becker, Acting Assistant Att’y Gen., U.S. Dep’t of Justice, to Charles Mix Cnty., S.D. (Feb. 11, 2008), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/SD/_080211.pdf.
- 193 Brooks v. Gant, No. 12-5003-KES, 2013 WL 4017036, at *1 (D.S.D. Aug. 6, 2013).
- 194 See Anna Brown, U.S. Hispanic and Asian Populations Growing, but for Different Reasons, Pew Res. Center (June 26, 2014), available at <http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2014/06/26/u-s-hispanic-and-asian-populations-growing-but-for-different-reasons> (reporting that since 2012, the Asian population has grown at a rate of 2.9 percent, compared to the Hispanic growth rate of 2.1 percent).
- 195 Ming Hsu Chen & Taeku Lee, Reimagining Democratic Inclusion: Asian Americans and the Voting Rights Act, 3 U.C. Irvine L. Rev. 359, 360 (2013); see also Brown, supra note 194.
- 196 See, e.g., Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882, ch. 126, 22 Stat. 58, repealed by Act of Dec. 17, 1943, Pub. L. No. 78-199, 57 Stat. 600.
- 197 Naturalization Act of 1790, ch. 3, 1 Stat. 103.
- 198 Naturalization Act of 1870, ch. 254, 16 Stat. 254, 256.
- 199 In re Ah Yup, 1 F. Cas. 223, 224 (C.C.D. Cal. 1878).
- 200 United States v. Bhagat Singh Thind, 261 U.S. 204, 214–15 (1923).
- 201 Marie A. Fallinger, Yick Wo at 125: Four Simple Lessons on the Contemporary Supreme Court, 17 Mich. J. Race & L. 217, 228 (2012) (footnotes omitted).
- 202 Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 358–59 (1886).
- 203 Fallinger, supra note 201, at 223.
- 204 Id. at 227–28.
- 205 Yick Wo, 118 U.S. 356, at 373–74.
- 206 Id. at 370.
- 207 Fallinger, supra note 201, at 233–34.
- 208 Korematsu v. United States, 323 U.S. 214, 219 (1944).
- 209 Exec. Order No. 9066, 7 Fed. Reg. 1407 (1942).
- 210 Natsu Taylor Saito, Symbolism Under Siege: Japanese American Redress and the “Racing” of Arab Americans as “Terrorists”, 8 Asian L.J. 1, 4 (2001).
- 211 Wendy K. Tam Cho & Albert H. Yoon, Pan-Ethnicity Revisited: Asian Indians, Asian American Politics, and the Voting Rights Act, 10 Asian Pac. Am. L.J. 8, 9 (2005).
- 212 Act of Dec. 17, 1943, Pub. L. No. 78-199, 57 Stat. 600 (repealing the Chinese Exclusion Act).
- 213 Act of July 2, 1946, Pub. L. No. 79-482, 60 Stat. 416 (repealing exclusion of Indians and Filipinos and granting naturalization rights).
- 214 Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, Pub. L. No. 85-414, § 311, 66 Stat. 163, 239 (permitting Japanese Americans and other Asian Americans to naturalize).
- 215 Chen & Lee, supra note 195, at 378 (citing Immigration and Nationality Act of 1965 (Hart-Cellar Act), Pub. L. No. 89-236, 79 Stat. 911).
- 216 Id.
- 217 Voting Rights Act Language Assistance Amendments of 1992: Hearing on S. 2236 Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the S. Comm. on the Judiciary, 102nd Cong. 134 (1992) [hereinafter Hearings on Language Assistance Amendments of 1992] (statement of Sen. Orrin Hatch).
- 218 Extension of the Voting Rights Act: Hearings on H.R. 939, H.R. 2148, H.R. 3427, and H.R. 3501 Before the Subcomm. on Civil & Constitutional Rights of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 94th Cong. 926 (1975) (statement of Rep. Edward R. Roybal).
- 219 Id.
- 220 See Hearings on Language Assistance Amendments of 1992, supra note 217, at 144 (statement by Sen. Hatch).
- 221 See 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a(b)(2)(A)(ii) (applying the bilingual voting materials requirement to areas in which “more than 10,000 of the citizens of voting age of such political subdivision are members of a single language minority and are limited-English proficient”).
- 222 See Hearings on Language Assistance Amendments of 1992, supra note 217, at 254 (letter from Morton H. Halperin & Antonio J. Califa, Legislative Counsel, Am. Civil Liberties Union) (discussing the need for expanded coverage); id. at 294 (statement of the Nat’l Asian Pacific Am. Legal Consortium) (discussing the communities in these jurisdictions that would benefit from a 10,000 person population benchmark).
- 223 See Chen & Lee, supra note 195, at 361.
- 224 Janelle Wong et al., Asian American Political Participation: Emerging Constituents and Their Political Identities 3 (2011).
- 225 Jeffrey S. Passel & D’Vera Cohn, Pew Research Ctr., U.S. Population Projections: 2005–2050 2 (2008).
- 226 Karthick Ramakrishnan & Farah Z. Ahmad, Ctr. for Am. Progress, Demographics: Part of the “State of Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders” Series 2 (2014).
- 227 Brown, supra note 194.
- 228 Wong et al., supra note 224, at 99.
- 229 See Chen & Lee, supra note 195, at 392.
- 230 Id.
- 231 Id. (footnote omitted).
- 232 See id. at 396 (discussing historically low, albeit increasing, geographical compactness as one barrier to Asian Americans’ ability to bring successful Section 2 claims).
- 233 Wong et al., supra note 224, at 27.
- 234 Id.; see Current Population Survey, U.S. Census Bureau (Nov. 2012).
- 235 Id. at 56.
- 236 See Seung-Jin Jang, Get Out on Behalf of Your Group: Electoral Participation of Latinos and Asian Americans, 31 Pol. Behav. 511, 512 (2009) (pointing to past research that found “length of residence and nativity” significantly affected voter participation rates).
- 237 Id. at 516.
- 238 In its 1975 amendment of the Voting Rights Act, Congress mandated the use of bilingual assistance materials in jurisdictions with proportionally high populations of language minorities, indicating that “voting discrimination against citizens of language minorities is pervasive and national in scope.” Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975, Pub. L. No. 94-73, § 203, 89 Stat. 400, 401 (1975).
- 239 Asian Americans Advancing Justice, Voices of Democracy: Asian Americans and Language Access During the 2012 Elections 5 (2013) (citing Asian Pacific Am. Legal Ctr., Asian Americans at the Ballot Box: The 2008 General Election in

- Los Angeles County 24 (2011), available at http://apalc.org/sites/default/files/APALC_BallotBox_LA2008_FINAL.pdf.
- 240 Press Release, Asian & Pacific Islander Am. Vote, New Poll Finds Major Political Parties Ignore Asian Americans, Huge Gaps and Opportunities for Engagement Remain Untapped (May 4, 2012), available at <http://www.apiavote.org/newsroom/press-releases/2012/new-poll-finds-major-political-parties-i>.
- 241 See generally National Asian Pacific American Political Almanac (2014–2015) (Don T. Nakanishi & James Lai eds., 2014).
- 242 Two notable exceptions are U.S. Representative Bobby Scott from Virginia's 3rd District and Attorney General of California, Kamala Harris. Scott, who is both Asian American and African American, was elected in a majority African American district. Harris, also Asian American and African American, was elected in a statewide election. For further discussion of how voting patterns in Los Angeles County in the election of Harris may demonstrate coalitions between multiple minority groups, see Barreto et al., supra note 43, at 5–6.
- 243 Wong et al., supra note 224, at 116.
- 244 Id.
- 245 Id. at 75.
- 246 Id. at 65.
- 247 Asian Am. Legal Def. & Educ. Fund, Asian American Access to Democracy in the 2008 Elections 7 (2009), available at <http://www.aaldef.org/docs/AALDEF-AA-Access-to-Democracy-2008.pdf>.
- 248 Id. at 12.
- 249 Id. at 13.
- 250 Id. at 9.
- 251 Id. at 14.
- 252 Asian Am. Legal Def. & Educ. Fund, Asian American Access to Democracy in the 2012 Elections 16 (2013).
- 253 See Supplemental Online Appendix, supra note 45.
- 254 See id.
- 255 See id.
- 256 See id.; see also Determination Letter from Loretta King, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Georgia (May 29, 2009), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/GA/I_090529.pdf (describing the voter verification program submitted for preclearance).
- 257 See Chen & Lee, supra note 195, at 390; but see id. at 375 n.80 (pointing to eight Section 2 cases concerning Asian American voters).
- 258 See Felicia Sze, Falling Predictions in Pursuit of Proportional Representation: Assuring Asian American Voter Strength in San Francisco Through 2 Litigation, 11 Asian Am. L.J. 97, 105 (2004).

CHAPTER 5

- 1 Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 555 (1964).
- 2 Id. at 546.
- 3 Id. at 555.
- 4 See generally U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, Political Participation, A study of the participation by Negroes in the electoral and political processes in 10 Southern States since passage of the Voting Rights Act of 1965 21–39 (1968).
- 5 Patricia Lombard & Carol Krafka, Fed. Judicial Ctr., 2003–2004 District Court Case-Weighting Study: Final Report to the Subcommittee on Judicial Statistics of the Committee on Judicial Resources of the Judicial Conference of the United States 5 (2005).
- 6 Johnson v. DeGrandy, 512 U.S. 997, 1011–12 (1994).
- 7 Glossary of Terms, Redrawing the Lines, <http://redrawing-thelines.sitewrench.com/glossaryofterms> (last visited July 22, 2014).
- 8 Nw. Austin Mun. Util. Dist. No. One v. Mukasey, 573 F. Supp. 2d 221, 263 (D.D.C. 2008), rev'd and remanded on other grounds, 557 U.S. 193, 197 (2009).
- 9 See generally Bruce M. Clarke & Robert Timothy Reagan, Redistricting Litigation; An Overview of Legal, Statistical, and Case-Management Issues (2002).
- 10 Id.
- 11 Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 44–45 (1986).
- 12 Sanchez v. Colorado, 97 F.3d 1303, 1308 (10th Cir. 1996).
- 13 Id. at 1329.
- 14 Old Person v. Cooney, 230 F.3d 1113, 1127 (9th Cir. 2000) (alterations in original).
- 15 Old Person v. Brown, 312 F.3d 1036, 1051 (9th Cir. 2002).
- 16 Smith v. Beasley, 946 F. Supp. 1174, 1175–76 (D.S.C. 1996).
- 17 Id. at 1202.
- 18 Colleton Cnty. Council v. McConnell, 201 F. Supp. 2d 618, 623 (D.S.C. 2002).
- 19 Id. at 641.
- 20 Id. at 643.
- 21 Black Political Task Force v. Galvin, 300 F. Supp. 2d 291, 294 (D. Mass. 2004).
- 22 Id. at 296.
- 23 Id. at 310.
- 24 Id. at 317.
- 24a W. Tenn. African-Americans. Affairs Council v. Sunquist, 209 F. 3d 835 (6th Cir 2000).
- 24b Baldus v. Members of Wis. Gov't Accountability Bd., 849 F. Supp. 2d 840 (E.D. Wis. 2012).
- 25 Bone Shirt v. Hazeltine, 336 F. Supp. 2d 976, 980 (D.S.D. 2004).
- 26 Id. at 1017 (alterations in original).
- 26a See generally Memorandum, Gary King & Ken Strasma to Arizona Independent Redistricting Commission, Racially polarized voting analysis (Nov. 28, 2011), available at <http://azredistricting.org/Meeting-Info/AZ%20racially%20polarized%20voting%20analysis%20112911%20-%20DRAFT.pdf>.
- 26b See generally id.
- 26c See generally id.
- 27 Lisa Handley, Frontier Int'l Consulting, LLC, Voting Patterns by Race/Ethnicity in Recent Kansas Statewide and Legislative Elections 6 (2012), available at http://kslegislature.org/li_2012/b2011_12/committees/misc/ctte_s_re-app_1_20120118_03_other.pdf (last visited July 22, 2014).
- 28 Id.
- 29 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 34 (2006).

- 30 David Bositis, Joint Ctr. for Political & Econ. Studies, Resegregation in Southern Politics 1 (2011).
- 31 Sekou M. Franklin, Expert Report of Sekou M. Franklin, Ph.D. 6, Na'l Comm'n on Voting Rights, Nashville, Tenn. Reg'l Hearing (May 8, 2014) (expert report) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 32 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Jr., Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of Ariz. (May, 20 2002), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/AZ/1_020520.pdf.
- 33 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Jr., Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of Fla. (July 1, 2002), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/FL/FL-1040.pdf.
- 34 Determination Letter from Deval L. Patrick, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of La. (Aug. 12, 1996), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/LA/LA-2310.pdf.
- 35 Determination Letter from Isabelle Katz Pinzler, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of S.C. (Apr. 1, 1997), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/SC/SC-2090.pdf.
- 36 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of Tex. (Nov. 16, 2001), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/TX-2930.pdf.
- 37 Nw. Austin Mun. Util. Dist. No. One v. Holder, 557 U.S. 193 (2009).
- 38 Brief for Professors Nathaniel Persily, Stephen Ansolabehere, and Charles Stewart III as Amici Curiae on Behalf of Neither Party at 9, Nw. Austin Mun. Util. Dist. No. One v. Holder, 557 U.S. 193 (2009).
- 39 Id. at 11.
- 40 Id. at 10.
- 41 Id. at 17.
- 42 Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, Highlights Of Hearings Of The National Commission On The Voting Rights Act, 2005: A Supplement to: Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act at Work, 1982-2005 7–8 (2006).
- 43 Rogers v. Lodge, 458 U.S. 613, 616 (1982).
- 44 Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 48 (1986).
- 45 Quiet Revolution in the South: The Impact of the Voting Rights Act 1965-1990 23 (Chandler Davidson & Bernard Grofman eds., 1994).
- 46 Id.
- 47 City of Rome v. United States, 446 U.S. 156, 184 n.19 (1980) (quoting U.S. Comm'n on Civil Rights, The Voting Rights Act: Ten Years After 206–07 (1975)).
- 48 Davidson & Grofman, supra note 45, at 24.
- 49 Id.
- 50 Id.
- 51 Separate listings identifying each matter in these categories is included in the Supplemental Online Appendix to this report, available at <http://www.votingrightstoday.org/discriminationreport>.
- 52 Determination Letter from Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of Miss. (Mar. 24, 2010), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/MS/L_100324.php.
- 53 Complaint at ¶ 10, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D.N.D. Mar. 6, 2000).
- 54 General Population Characteristics, North Dakota (1980 Census), U.S. Census Bureau 11, Table 15, available at http://www2.census.gov/prod2/decennial/documents/1980a_ndABCD.zip (last visited July 23, 2014).
- 55 Consent Decree at 3 ¶ 10, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D. N.D. Mar. 10, 2000).
- 56 Complaint at ¶ 10, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D. N.D. Mar. 6, 2000).
- 57 Id.
- 58 Consent Decree at 4 ¶ 13, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D. N.D. Mar. 10, 2000).
- 59 Complaint at ¶ 19, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D. N.D. Mar. 6, 2000).
- 60 Consent Decree at 5 ¶ 2, United States v. Benson Cnty., N.D., No. A2-00-30 (D. N.D. Mar. 10, 2000).
- 61 Id. at 7 ¶ 6.
- 62 United States v. Osceola Cnty., Fla., 475 F. Supp. 2d 1220, 1235 (M.D. Fla. 2006).
- 63 Id. at 1222.
- 64 Id. at 1223.
- 65 Id. at 1224.
- 66 Id.
- 67 Id. at 1225–26. Around the same time, the County was failing to provide Spanish-speaking citizens an equal opportunity to vote. In 2002, the United States sued the County alleging this denial of equal opportunity to vote based on “the failure of poll officials to communicate effectively with Spanish-speaking voters, the refusal to allow certain Spanish-speaking voters assistance in voting by the person of their choice, and hostile remarks by poll officials.” Id. at 1226. The case was settled by consent decree, though in 2005 the United States advised the county that its Spanish language program was not equal in scope and effectiveness to its English language program, and the county agreed, in writing, to continue using the consent decree as a guide to complying with the VRA and to take additional steps to improve its Spanish language program.
- 68 Id. at 1232.
- 69 Id. at 1232–35.
- 70 Id. at 1233–34.
- 71 United States v. Village of Port Chester, No. 06 Civ. 15173 (SCR), 2008 WL 190502, at *1 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 17, 2008).
- 72 United States v. Village of Port Chester, 704 F. Supp. 2d 411, 419 (S.D.N.Y. 2010).
- 73 Id. at 420.
- 74 Id. at 438.
- 75 Id. at 431–37.
- 76 United States v. Village of Port Chester, Brennan Ctr. for Justice (Apr. 22, 2011), <https://www.brennancenter.org/legal-work/united-states-v-village-port-chester>.
- 77 United States v. Blaine Cnty., Mont., 363 F.3d 897, 900 (9th Cir. 2004).
- 78 General Population Characteristics, Montana (1980 Census), U.S. Census Bureau 10, Table 15, available at http://www2.census.gov/prod2/decennial/documents/1980a_mtABCD.zip (last visited July 23, 2014).
- 79 General Population Characteristics, Montana (1990 Census), U.S. Census Bureau 7, Table 5, available at http://www2.census.gov/prod2/decennial/documents/1980a_mtABCD.zip (last visited July 23, 2014).
- 80 Blaine Cnty., Mont., 363 F.3d at 900.
- 81 Id. at 900–01.
- 82 Daniel McCool et al., Native Vote: American Indians, the Voting Rights Act, and the Right to Vote 129 (2007).

- 83 United States v. City of Euclid, 580 F. Supp. 2d 584, 612 (N.D. Ohio 2008).
- 84 Id. at 588.
- 85 Id. at 588–89.
- 86 Id. at 587.
- 87 Large v. Fremont Cnty., Wyo., 709 F. Supp. 2d 1176, 1231 (D. Wyo. 2010).
- 88 Id. at 1182.
- 89 Id. at 1183.
- 90 Id. at 1184.
- 91 Id. at 1186–88.
- 92 Id. at 1219–20.
- 93 Id. at 1220.
- 94 Id. at 1232.
- 95 Large v. Fremont Cnty., Wyo., 670 F.3d 1133, 1136 (10th Cir. 2012).
- 96 Id.
- 97 Order on Remedial Plan at 25, Large v. Fremont Cnty., Wyo., No. 2:05-cv-00270-ABJ (D. Wyo. Aug. 10, 2010).
- 98 Id. at 31. The decision was affirmed on appeal (based on the failure of the hybrid plan to conform to state law, which did not allow for such hybrid plans). Large, 670 F.3d at 1148–49.
- 99 Cuthair v. Montezuma-Cortez Sch. Dist. No. RE-1, 7 F. Supp. 2d 1152, 1171 (D. Colo. 1998).
- 100 Id. at 1154.
- 101 Id. at 1154–55.
- 102 Id. at 1155–61.
- 103 Ga. State Conference of NAACP v. Fayette Cnty., Ga., 950 F. Supp. 2d 1294, 1326 (N.D. Ga. 2013).
- 104 U.S. Census Bureau, Table DP-1. Profile of General Demographic Characteristics: 2000, Geographic area: Fayette County, Georgia, available at <http://censtats.census.gov/data/GA/05013113.pdf>.
- 105 Fayette County, 950 F. Supp. 2d at 1300.
- 106 Id. at 1300.
- 107 Id. at 1300–01.
- 108 Id. at 1312.
- 109 Fayette County, 950 F. Supp. 2d at 1316–18.
- 110 United States v. Charleston Cnty., 316 F. Supp. 2d 268, 273 (D.S.C. 2003).
- 111 Id. at 275.
- 112 Id. at 278, 280, 285 n.20.
- 113 Id. at 292.
- 114 Id. at 294.
- 115 Id. at 286 n.23.
- 116 Id.
- 117 Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act at Work, 1982–2005 55 (2006) [hereinafter Protecting Minority Voters].
- 118 Charleston Cnty., S.C. v. United States, 543 U.S. 999 (2004).
- 119 Protecting Minority Voters, supra note 117, at 55–56.
- 120 Id. at 56.
- 121 Determination Letter from R. Alexander Acosta, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of S.C. (Feb. 26, 2004), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/SC/SC-2180.pdf.
- 122 Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533 (1964).
- 123 Voinovich v. Quilter, 507 U.S. 146, 153–54 (quoting Thornburg v. Gingles, 478 U.S. 30, 46 n.11 (1986)).
- 124 Consent Decree at 5, Jackson v. Wolf Point Sch. Dist., No. CV-13-65-GF-BMM-RKS (D. Mont. Mar. 13, 2014).
- 125 Id. at 3.
- 126 Id.
- 127 Id.
- 128 Id. at 5.
- 129 Order Adopting Findings & Recommendations, Jackson v. Wolf Point Sch. Dist., No. CV-13-65-GF-BMM-RKS (D. Mont. Apr. 9, 2014).
- 130 Consent Decree at 4 ¶ 13, Jackson v. Wolf Point Sch. Dist., No. CV-13-65-GF-BMM-RKS (D. Mont. Mar. 13, 2014).
- 131 Id.
- 132 Id. at 6 ¶ 5(a).
- 133 Id.
- 134 Consent Decree at 7 ¶ 7, Jackson v. Wolf Point Sch. Dist., No. CV-13-65-GF-BMM-RKS (D. Mont. Mar. 13, 2014).
- 135 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to state of Ariz. (May 20, 2002), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/AZ/l_020520.pdf.
- 136 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Northampton Cnty., Ga. (Sept. 28, 2001), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/VA/VA-1280.pdf.
- 137 Id.
- 138 Id.
- 139 Id.
- 140 Id.
- 141 Id.
- 142 Id.
- 143 Determination Letter from Ralph F. Boyd, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Northampton Cnty., Va. (May 19, 2003), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/VA/VA-1310.pdf.
- 144 Id.
- 145 Id.
- 146 Id.
- 147 Id.
- 148 Id.
- 149 Determination Letter from J. Michael Wiggins, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Northampton Cnty., Va. (Oct. 21, 2003), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/VA/VA-1320.pdf.
- 150 Baldus v. Members of Wis. Gov't Accountability Bd., 849 F. Supp. 2d 840, 847 (E.D. Wis. 2012).
- 151 Id. at 854.
- 152 Id.
- 153 Id. at 855–856.
- 154 Bartlett v. Strickland, 556 U.S. 1 (2009).
- 155 Baldus, 849 F. Supp. 2d at 855–856.
- 156 Id. at 856.
- 157 Id. at 855.
- 158 Id. at 856.
- 159 Id. at 855.
- 160 Id. at 859.
- 161 Determination Letter from R. Alexander Acosta, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't Justice, to state of La. (Dec. 12, 2003), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/LA/LA-2430.pdf.
- 162 Id.
- 163 Id.

- 164 Determination Letter from R. Alexander Acosta, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to City of Ville Platte, La. (June 4, 2004), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/LA/LA-2440.pdf.
- 165 Id.
- 166 Id.
- 167 Id.
- 168 Stabler v. Cnty. of Thurston, 129 F.3d 1015, 1019 (8th Cir. 1997).
- 169 Id. at 1020.
- 170 Id. at 1026.
- 171 Cnty. of Thurston v. Stabler, 523 U.S. 1118 (1998).
- 172 Determination Letter from Wan J. Kim, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Randolph Cnty, Ga. (Sept. 12, 2006), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/GA/GA-2700.pdf [hereinafter Randolph Cnty. Letter].
- 173 Cook v. Randolph Cnty., Ga., 573 F.3d 1143, 1145 (11th Cir. 2009).
- 174 Randolph Cnty. Letter, supra note 172.
- 175 Cook, 573 F.3d at 1145–46.
- 176 Randolph Cnty. Letter, supra note 172.
- 177 Id.
- 178 Id.
- 179 Id.
- 180 League of United Latin Am. Citizens (LULAC) v. Perry, 548 U.S. 399, 410 (2006).
- 181 Id. at 423–24.
- 182 Id.
- 183 Id. at 427.
- 184 Id. at 424.
- 185 Renewing the Temporary Provisions of the Voting Rights Act: Legislative Options After LULAC v. Perry: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution, Civil Rights and Property Rights of the S. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 2 (2006) (opening statement of Sen. Kennedy, Member, S. Comm. on the Judiciary).
- 186 LULAC, 548 U.S. at 424.
- 187 Id. at 423–24.
- 188 Id. at 439–41.
- 189 Id. at 441.
- 190 Id. at 438–439.
- 191 Id. at 440, 442.
- 192 Texas v. United States, 887 F. Supp. 2d 133, 138 (D.D.C. 2012).
- 193 Id. at 178.
- 194 Id. at 152, 161–62, 177.
- 195 Id. at 162.
- 196 Id. at 163.
- 197 Id. at 163–164.
- 198 Id. at 164.
- 199 Id. at 162.
- 200 See id. at 197–247 (lengthy appendix detailing the court's factual and legal findings).
- 201 Id. at 197.
- 202 Id.
- 203 Id. at 153.
- 204 Id. at 160.
- 205 Id. at 177.
- 206 Id. at 177–78.
- 207 Id. at 177.
- 208 Id. at 178.
- 209 Id. at 234.
- 210 Id.
- 211 Id. at 178 (emphasis in original).
- 212 Id.
- 213 Scheduling Order at 3–4, Perez v. Perry, No. 5:11-cv-00360-OLG-JES-XR (W.D. Tex. Oct. 18, 2013).

CHAPTER 6

- 1 Brief of Community Voter Registration Orgs. as Amici Curiae in Support of Appellants at 19, Kobach v. U.S. Election Assistance Comm'n, Nos. 14-3062 and 14-3072 (10th Cir. June 3, 2014).
- 2 Decl. of Russell Weaver at A7688, Florida v. United States, No. 1:11-cv-01428 (D.D.C. April 10, 2012).
- 3 League of Women Voters of Fla. v. Cobb, 447 F. Supp. 2d 1314, 1317 (S.D. Fla. 2006).
- 4 Id. at 1316.
- 5 League of Women Voters of Fla. v. Browning, 863 F. Supp. 2d 1155, 1159–65 (N.D. Fla. 2012).
- 6 Id. at 1157–58.
- 7 United States' and Defendant-Intervenor's Joint Submission Concerning Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law at 26, Florida v. United States, No. 1:11-cv-01428 (D.D.C. May 3, 2012).
- 8 Decl. of Russell Weaver, supra note 2, at A7688–89.
- 9 Id.
- 10 United States' and Defendant-Intervenor's Joint Submission Concerning Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, supra note 7, at 31.
- 11 Id. at 27.
- 12 Id. at 32.
- 13 42 U.S.C. § 1973gg-5(a)(6)(A). Federal public assistance programs covered by Section 7 include, inter alia: the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP, formerly the Food-Stamp Program); the Special Supplemental Nutrition Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC); the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program (formerly the Aid to Families with Dependent Children or AFDC program); the Medicaid program; and the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP). State public assistance programs are also covered. The National Voter Registration Act of 1993 (NVRA), U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/nvra/nvra_faq.php (last visited July 28, 2014).
- 14 U.S. Dep't of Health & Human Servs., Characteristics and Financial Circumstances of TANF Recipients, Fiscal Year 2010: Appendix tbl.8 (2011), available at http://www.acf.hhs.gov/sites/default/files/ofa/appendix_fy2011_final_amend.pdf; Kelsey Farson Gray & Esa Eslami, U.S. Dep't of Agric. Food and Nutrition Serv., Office of Policy Support, Characteristics of Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program Households: Fiscal Year 2012, at 76 tbl.B.10 (2014), available at <http://www.fns.usda.gov/sites/default/files/2012Characteristics.pdf>.

- 15 Id.
- 16 Id.
- 17 Decl. of Russell Weaver, supra note 2, at A7688.
- 18 Voting Rights Litigation, Lawyers' Comm. for Civil Rights Under Law, http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/projects/voting_rights/page?id=0025 (last visited July 28, 2014).
- 19 Voting Section Litigation, U.S. Dep't of Justice, <http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/litigation/caselist.php> (last visited July 28, 2014).
- 20 Lisa J. Danetz, Senior Counsel, Dēmos, Testimony to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights: Increasing Compliance with Section 7 of the NVRA (April 19, 2013), available at <http://www.demos.org/sites/default/files/publications/Final%20USCCR%20Testimony.pdf>.
- 21 Id.
- 22 Id.
- 23 See Miss. State Chapter, Operation Push v. Allain, 674 F. Supp. 1245, 1251-52 (N.D. Miss. 1987), aff'd 932 F.2d 400 (5th Cir. 1991).
- 24 Id. at 1268. Plaintiffs also brought constitutional claims based on the clear discriminatory intent of the 1892 law and subsequent revisions, but the district judge found it unnecessary to address those claims in light of his statutory ruling. Id.
- 25 See 42 U.S.C. §§ 1973gg-3 to -5.
- 26 Young v. Fordice, 520 U.S. 273, 291 (1997).
- 27 Determination Letter from Isabelle Katz Pinzler, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Mississippi (Sept. 22, 1997), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/MS/MS-2650.pdf.
- 28 Arizona v. Inter Tribal Council of Ariz., 133 S. Ct. 2247 (2013).
- 29 See Voter Registration, Op. Ariz. Att'y Gen., No. 113-011 (R13-016) (Oct. 7, 2013), available at <https://www.azag.gov/sites/default/files/sites/all/docs/Opinions/2013/113-011.pdf>; Letter from Kris W. Kobach, Sec'y of State, State of Kan., to Alice Miller, Acting Exec. Dir., Election Assistance Comm'n (Aug. 2, 2013), available at http://www.eac.gov/assets/1/Documents/KW%20to%20EAC%20%20\(8%202%2013\)-with-Kansas-to-Counties-OCR.pdf-with-Kansas-to-Counties-OCR.pdf).
- 30 Yearbook of Immigration Statistics: 2013, Dep't of Homeland Security, <http://www.dhs.gov/publication/yearbook-immigration-statistics-2013-naturalizations> (click to download tbl.21).
- 31 See Determination Letter from Loretta King, Acting Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Georgia (May 29, 2009), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/GA/I_090529.php [hereinafter King Determination Letter].
- 32 Compl. at ¶¶ 33-40, Morales v. Handel, No. 1:08-cv-3172 (N.D. Ga. October 9, 2008) [hereinafter Morales Complaint].
- 33 See Morales v. Handel, No. 1:08-CV-3172, 2008 WL 9401054 (N.D. Ga. Oct. 27, 2008).
- 34 Morales Complaint, supra note 32, at ¶¶ 49-63.
- 35 Morales, 2008 WL 9401054 at *8-9.
- 36 King Determination Letter, supra note 31.
- 37 Id.
- 38 Id.
- 39 See Morales v. Kemp, Lawyers' Comm. for Civil Rights Under Law, http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/projects/voting_rights/page?id=0021 (last visited July 28, 2014).
- 40 Compl., Arcia v. Detzner, No. 1:12-CV-22282 (S.D. Fla., June 19, 2012).
- 41 Id. at ¶ 26.
- 42 Arcia v. Florida Secretary of State, 746 F.3d 1273, 1276-77 (11th Cir. 2014).
- 43 Id. See generally What is SAVE?, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, <http://www.uscis.gov/save/what-save/what-save> (last visited July 28, 2014).
- 44 Arcia, 746 F.3d at 1286.
- 45 Compl., Mi Familia Vota Education Fund v. Detzner, No. 8:12-CV-01294-JDW-MAP (M.D. Fla. June 8, 2012).
- 46 Order of Dismissal, Mi Familia Vota Education Fund v. Detzner, No. 8:12-CV-01294-JDW-MAP (M.D. Fla. July 24, 2013).
- 47 Brandon Larrabee, Appeals Court: Florida Voter Purge Violated Federal Law, News-Press Apr. 2, 2014, <http://www.news-press.com/story/news/politics/2014/04/01/appeals-court-florida-voter-purge-violated-federal-law/7181283/>.
- 48 Rita Bettis, Written Testimony, National Commission on Voting Rights, Hearing in Kansas City, Missouri (Apr. 22, 2014) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 49 Aff. in Support of Resistance to Motion to Dismiss at 1-2, Am. Civil Liberties Union v. Iowa Sec'y of State Matt Schultz, No. CVCV009311, 2012 WL 4054139 (Iowa Dist. Sept. 13, 2012), available at <http://moritzlaw.osu.edu/electionlaw/litigation/documents/PetitionersExhibitList.pdf>.
- 50 Bettis, supra note 48, at 1-2.
- 51 Id.
- 52 Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 16-166(F); Kan. Stat. Ann. § 25-2309(l); Ala. Code § 31-13-28; Ga. Code Ann. § 21-2-216(g)(1); see also Wendy R. Weiser & Erik Opsal, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, The State of Voting in 2014, at 3 (2014), available at <http://www.brennancenter.org/analysis/state-voting-2014>.
- 53 42 U.S.C. §§ 1973gg-4(a)(1), 1973gg-7(a)(2).
- 54 See Register to Vote in Your State by Using This Postcard Form and Guide, http://www.eac.gov/assets/1/Documents/Federal%20Voter%20Registration_6-25-14_ENG.pdf (last visited July 25, 2014).
- 55 See 42 U.S.C. § 1973gg(b).
- 56 Arizona v. ITCA, 133 S. Ct. 2247 (2013).
- 57 Id. Plaintiffs also asserted in that litigation that the proof-of-citizenship requirement violated Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, but that claim was not resolved on appeal to the Ninth Circuit and was not addressed by the Supreme Court. Gonzalez v. Arizona, 677 F.3d 383, 404 n.30 (9th Cir. 2012).
- 58 Kobach v. U.S. Election Assistance Comm'n, No. 13-cv-4095-EFM-TJJ, 2014 WL 1094957 (D. Kan. Mar. 19, 2014); See generally U.S. Election Assistance Comm'n, Memorandum of Decision Concerning State Requests to Include Additional Proof-of-Citizenship Instructions on the National Mail Registration Form 41-43 (2014), [hereinafter EAC Proof-of-Citizenship Decision] available at <http://www.eac.gov/assets/1/Documents/20140117%20EAC%20Final%20Decision%20on%20Proof%20of%20Citizenship%20Requests%20-%20FINAL.pdf>. The EAC denied Georgia's similar request, but the state is not participating in the lawsuit with Arizona and Kansas. Id.
- 59 Kobach, 2014 WL 1094957 at *13.
- 60 Kobach v. U.S. Election Assistance Comm'n, Nos. 14-3062 and 14-3072 (10th Cir. June 3, 2014).

- 61 Erik Eckholm, After Ruling, Alabama Joins 2 States in Moving to Alter Voting Rules, N.Y. Times (Mar. 21, 2014), <http://www.nytimes.com/2014/03/22/us/after-ruling-alabama-joins-2-states-in-moving-to-alter-voting-rules.html>.
- 62 EAC Proof-of-Citizenship Decision, supra note 58, at 28–31, 33–35.
- 63 Kristen Baker & Nelly Ward, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, Survey of Georgia Elections Officials on Voting by Non-Citizens 1 (2009), available at <http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/legacy/blog/GA.survey.e.officials.doc>.
- 64 Brief for Election Administrators as Amici Curiae in Support of Respondents, at 7, Arizona v. ITCA, 133 S.Ct. 2247 (2013), available at <http://moritzlaw.osu.edu/electionlaw/litigation/documents/AmicusBriefofElectionAdministrators.pdf>.
- 65 Jessica Gonzalez, Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute, New State Voting Laws: A Barrier to the Latino Vote? 5 (2012).
- 66 EAC Proof-of-Citizenship Decision, supra note 58, at 42–43.
- 67 Determination Letter from Isabelle Katz Pinzler, Acting Assistant Att’y Gen., U.S. Dep’t of Justice, to State of Tex. (Jan. 16, 1996), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/state_letters.php?state=tx.
- 68 Id.
- 69 Id.
- 70 42 U.S.C. § 1973gg-6(b)-(d).
- 71 42 U.S.C. § 1973gg-6(e).
- 72 See U.S. Civil Rights Comm’n, Voting Irregularities in Florida During the 2000 Presidential Election ch. 5 (2001).
- 73 Id.; see also Tova Andrea Wang, The Politics of Voter Suppression: Defending and Expanding Americans’ Right to Vote 120 (2012).
- 74 Myrna Pérez, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, Voter Purges 1 (2008), available at <http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/legacy/publications/Voter.Purges.f.pdf>; Florida Scraps Flawed Felon Voting List, USA Today (July 10, 2004), http://usatoday30.usatoday.com/news/nation/2004-07-10-felons-vote-fla_x.htm; Laleh Ispahani & Nick Williams, Am. Civil Liberties Union et al., Purged (2004), available at https://www.aclu.org/files/FilesPDFs/purged%20-voting_report.pdf.
- 75 Wang, supra note 73, at 115. (“The huge number of people with felony convictions has everything to do with the change in approach to criminal law in the 1980s and 1990s that increased the number of crimes considered felonies. And even though crime rates dropped in the 1990s, the national prison population grew at an unusually high rate because of the so-called war on drugs that increased penalties for drug crimes. These new sentencing rules for drug offenses also had a disproportionate effect on minority communities, particularly African Americans. African Americans are convicted of drug crimes at a much higher rate than white Americans, despite the fact that white Americans report higher rates of drug use. The disparities in the criminal justice system for African Americans and whites can be seen throughout the process from arrest, conviction, sentencing, and incarceration.”).
- 76 Richardson v. Ramirez, 418 U.S. 24 (1974).
- 77 Id. at 54.
- 78 Hunter v. Underwood, 471 U.S. 222 (1985).
- 79 Am. Civil Liberties Union et al., Democracy Imprisoned: A Review of the Prevalence and Impact of Felony Disenfranchisement Laws in the United States 2 (2013) [hereinafter Democracy Imprisoned].
- 80 See generally Jeff Manza & Christopher Uggen, Locked Out: Felon Disenfranchisement and American Democracy (2008).
- 81 Compl., Johnson v. Bush, No. 1:00-cv-03542-JLK (S.D. Fla. Sept. 21, 2000).
- 82 Id. at ¶ 31.
- 83 Id. at ¶ 44.
- 84 Johnson v. Bush, 214 F. Supp. 2d 1333, 1338–39 (S.D. Fla. 2002).
- 85 Johnson v. Governor of State of Florida, 353 F.3d 1287 (11th Cir. 2003).
- 86 Johnson v. Governor of State of Florida, 405 F.3d 1214, 1228 (11th Cir. 2005) (en banc) (citing Richardson v. Ramirez, 418 U.S. 24, 48–52 (1974)).
- 87 Democracy Imprisoned, supra note 79, at 6.
- 88 Farrakhan v. Gregoire, 590 F.3d 989 (9th Cir. 2010).
- 89 Id.
- 90 Farrakhan v. Gregoire, 623 F.3d 990, 993 (9th Cir. 2010) (en banc) (emphasis omitted).
- 91 Howard v. Gilmore, No. 99-2285, 2000 WL 203984 (4th Cir. Feb. 23, 2000); see also Anita S. Earls et al., RenewtheVRA.org, Voting Rights in Virginia: 1982-2006, at 23–24 (2006).
- 92 Democracy Imprisoned, supra note 79, at 5.
- 93 Id.
- 94 National Commission on Voting Rights, Richmond, Virginia Hearing 27 (Apr. 29, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 95 Ky. Const. § 145.
- 96 Ky. Advisory Comm. to the U.S. Comm’n on Civil Rights, Voting Rights in Kentucky: Felons Who Have Completed all Terms of Their Sentences Should Have the Right to Vote 22 (2009), [hereinafter Voting Rights in Kentucky] available at <http://www.usccr.gov/pubs/KYVotingRightsReport.pdf>.
- 97 Christopher Uggen, Sarah Shannon & Jeff Manza, Sentencing Project, State-Level Estimates of Felon Disenfranchisement in the United States, 2010, at 16 tbl.3 (2012), available at http://www.sentencingproject.org/doc/publications/fd_State_Level_Estimates_of_Felon_Disen_2010.pdf.
- 98 Voting Rights in Kentucky, supra note 96, at 22.
- 99 Phillip M. Bailey, Opposition to Felon Voting Rights Thawing, Kentucky Lawmaker Says, WFPL News (Oct. 21, 2013), <http://wfpl.org/post/opposition-felon-voting-rights-thawing-kentucky-lawmaker-says>.
- 100 Bettis, supra note 48, at 2.
- 101 Thomas H. Castelli, Written Testimony, National Commission on Voting Rights, Hearing in Nashville, Tennessee 3 (May 8, 2014) (on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 102 Id.
- 103 See generally National Commission on Voting Rights, California State Hearing 50–53 (Jan. 30, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 104 National Commission on Voting Rights, Minnesota and Wisconsin Hearing 113 (Feb. 25, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 105 National Commission on Voting Rights, Miami, Florida Hearing 34 (Mar. 31, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 106 See, e.g., South Carolina v. United States, 898 F. Supp. 2d 30, 32 (D.D.C. 2012); Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d 113, 115 (D.D.C. 2012).

- 107 For Louisiana, see Tyler Bridges, Louisiana's Voter ID Law from 1997 Eases Effects of Supreme Court Decision, The Lens (June 27, 2013), <http://thelensnola.org/2013/06/27/louisianas-voter-id-law-from-1997-eases-effects-of-supreme-court-decision/>; see also Wendy Underhill, Voter Identification Requirements | Voter ID Laws, National Conference of State Legislatures (June 25, 2014), <http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/voter-id.aspx#Details> ("If the applicant does not have identification, s/he shall sign an affidavit to that effect before the commissioners, and the applicant shall provide further identification by presenting his current registration certificate, giving his date of birth or providing other information stated in the precinct register that is requested by the commissioners."). For Virginia, see Election 2012: Voting Laws Roundup, Brennan Ctr. for Justice (Oct. 11, 2012), <http://www.brennancenter.org/analysis/election-2012-voting-laws-roundup> ("Virginia passed a law requiring an ID to vote, including various forms of photo. Id. This law eliminated an option to sign an affidavit to confirm identity when voting at the polls or applying for an absentee ballot in person.").
- 108 42 U.S.C. § 15483(b)(2)(A). Acceptable identifying documents include current and valid photo identification or a copy of a current utility bill, bank statement, government check, paycheck, or other government document that shows the name and address of the voter. Id.
- 109 See Sarah Childress, With Voting Rights Act Out, States Push Voter ID Laws, PBS Frontline (June 26, 2013), <http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/pages/frontline/government-elections-politics/with-voting-rights-act-out-states-push-voter-id-laws/>.
- 110 Martha Bergmark, Mississippi's Secretary of State Moves to Enforce Voter ID Law, Huffington Post (July 10, 2013), www.huffingtonpost.com/martha-bergmark/voting-rights-act-shelby-county-v-holder_b_3575216.html. Mississippians in 2011 voted in favor of an initiative to amend the State Constitution to require that all voters seeking to vote in person (with certain limited exceptions) present a government-issued photo ID in order to cast a ballot that will be counted. A subsequent analysis of the initiative vote by the Lawyers' Committee showed that voting on the ballot measure was highly racially polarized—over 75% of non-white voters opposed the initiative while only about 17% of white voters opposed it. See Russell C. Weaver, Lawyers' Comm. for Civil Rights Under Law, Pulling Back the Curtain: An Analysis of Racial Voting Shows that Mississippi's Ugly History of Voter Suppression Continues (2012), available at <http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/admin/site/documents/files/Pulling-Back-the-Curtain.pdf>.
- 111 Tomas Lopez, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, Shelby County: One Year Later 3 (2014), available at http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/analysis/Shelby_County_One_Year_Later.pdf; see also Kara Brandeisky & Mike Tigas, Everything That's Happened Since Supreme Court Ruled on Voting Rights Act, Pro Publica (Nov. 1, 2013), <http://www.propublica.org/article/voting-rights-by-state-map>.
- 112 Indeed, incidents of fraud perpetrated by voters of any kind are rare. See, e.g., Lorraine C. Minnite, The Myth of Voter Fraud (2010); Justin Levitt, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, The Truth About Voter Fraud (2007); Natasha Khan & Corbin Carson, Comprehensive Database of U.S. Voter Fraud Uncovers No Evidence That Photo ID Is Needed, News 21 (Aug. 12, 2012), <http://votingrights.news21.com/article/election-fraud/>.
- 113 See Lorraine C. Minnite, Project Vote, The Politics of Voter Fraud (2007); Eric Lipton & Ian Urbina, In 5-Year Effort, Scant Evidence of Voter Fraud, N.Y. Times (Apr. 12, 2007), www.nytimes.com/2007/04/12/washington/12fraud.html?pagewanted=all&r=0.
- 114 In early 2007, there was a major political controversy over the firings of several U.S. attorneys. As a larger picture of the politicization of the Department of Justice emerged, especially the Civil Rights Division, the focal point was the firing and forced resignations of nine U.S. attorneys and the consideration of three more for sudden removal, for apparent political reasons. As it turned out, five of those twelve were targeted because they had not pursued alleged voter fraud accusations with sufficient vigor for the political operatives in the Bush administration. See Lipton & Urbina, supra note 113; see also Dan Eggen & Amy Goldstein, Voter Fraud Complaints by GOP Drove Dismissals, Wash. Post (May 14, 2008) <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2007/05/13/AR2007051301106.html>; Eric Lipton, Panel Asks Official about Politics in Hiring, N.Y. Times (June 6, 2007) <http://www.nytimes.com/2007/06/06/washington/06justice.html>; Frank Morris, Attorneys Scandal May be Tied to Missouri Voting, NPR (May 3, 2007) <http://www.npr.org/templates/story/story.php?storyId=9981606>
- 115 According to Lorraine C. Minnite,
- [n]o state considering or passing restrictive voter identification laws has documented an actual problem with voter fraud. In litigation over the new voter identification laws in Wisconsin, Indiana, Georgia and Pennsylvania, election officials testified they have never seen cases of voter impersonation at the polls. Indiana and Pennsylvania stipulated in court that they had experienced zero instances of voter fraud.
- When federal authorities challenged voter identification laws in South Carolina and Texas, neither state provided any evidence of voter impersonation or any other type of fraud that could be deterred by requiring voters to present photo identification at the polls.
- Lorraine C. Minnite, SSN Key Findings: The Misleading Myth of Voter Fraud in American Elections (2014), available at http://www.scholarsstrategynetwork.org/sites/default/files/ssn_key_findings_minnite_on_the_myth_of_voter_fraud.pdf; see also Applewhite v. Pennsylvania, No. 330 MD 12, 2012 WL 3332376 (Pa. Commw. Ct. Aug. 15, 2012), vacated, 617 Pa. 563 (2012), remanded to 2012 WL 4497211 (Pa. Commw. Ct. Oct. 2, 2012), subsequent determination in 2014 WL 184988 (Pa. Commw. Ct. Jan. 17, 2014) ("The parties are not aware of any incidents of any in-person voter fraud in Pennsylvania and do not have direct personal knowledge of in[-]person voter fraud elsewhere"); Nick Wing, Pennsylvania Voter ID Law Trial Set To Begin As State Concedes It Has No Proof Of In-Person Voter Fraud, Huffington Post (July 24, 2012) http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2012/07/24/pennsylvania-voter-id-trial_n_1697980.html. In North Carolina,

[t]he state presented no tangible evidence of voter fraud to justify the new restrictions. "There is no evidence we had problems with these enhanced forms of participation," Senator Dan Blue, the Democratic minority leader, testified. (Ironically, the law does nothing to restrict absentee voting, where the potential for fraud is greatest.)

Ari Berman, North Carolina Will Determine the Future of the Voting Rights Act, The Nation (July 10, 2014) <http://www.thenation.com/blog/180608/north-carolina-will-determine-future-voting-rights-act#>; see also Press Release, Advancement Project, North Carolina's Answer to Lawsuit Offers No Justification for Making It Harder to Vote (Oct. 21, 2013), <http://www.advancementproject.org/news/entry/north-carolinas-answer-to-lawsuit-offers-no-justification-for-making-it-harder-to-vote>.

116 Crawford v. Marion County Election Bd., 553 U.S. 181 (2008).

117 Frank v. Walker, No. 11-CV-01128, 2014 WL 1775432, at *6 (E.D. Wisc. Apr. 29, 2014).

118 Said Rep. Todd Rokita (R-IN), a former Indiana Secretary of State:

Whether or not you agree that in-person voter impersonation fraud exists -- and I will say that as eight years of being Indiana's Secretary of State, it does exist, we have allegations made every election . . . [b]ut if it's happening in Indiana, it's happening everywhere from New York to California. . . .

Now these gentleman and others say 'well you can't produce one case, you can't produce one conviction, therefore it doesn't exist,' the word evidence was used. Well that's not true, there's a lot of evidence

There are several cases that I presented to prosecutors who didn't take up the case, not because of a lack of evidence, but think about the kind of fraud it is, think about the kind of crime it is It's something that happens in an instant and than it's gone. . . .

It's the kind of cases, the kind of fraud, that's very hard to prosecute, but that doesn't mean it doesn't exist

Ryan J. Reilly, GOP Rep: Voter Fraud 'Happening Everywhere,' But Prosecutors Wouldn't Take Cases, Talking Points Memo (Sept. 13, 2011) <http://talkingpointsmemo.com/muckraker/gop-rep-voter-fraud-happening-everywhere-but-prosecutors-wouldn-t-take-cases-video>. Rokita said that the Indiana voter ID law is intended to encourage "faith in the election process, and in the integrity of it. Identify theft is the fastest-growing problem in America."

He acknowledges there have been no prosecutions for impersonating a voter. "But we still have a right to protect ourselves against the possibility of voter fraud," he said.

ID Laws Spur Voting Legal Battle, Assoc. Press (Jan. 23, 2008) http://usatoday30.usatoday.com/news/nation/2008-01-23-voting-court_N.htm. Testifying before the Indiana Committee on House Administration, he said

This is not about voter intimidation. It is about voter confidence. It is about the right of a legally registered voter to have her ballot counted and to expect that ballot to have exactly the same weight as every other legally registered voter's ballot. Inherent in this is the right not to have her vote diluted or cancelled out by someone who would act to defraud the system. Requiring government issued photo identification at the polls is a way to ensure this.

Testimony of Indiana Secretary of State Todd Rokita for the Committee on House Administration, Indiana Sec'y of State, Elections Division (Feb. 9, 2005), www.in.gov/sos/3183.htm. North Carolina House Speaker Thom Tillis offered a similar rationale for North Carolina's voter ID law:

"There is some evidence of voter fraud, but that's not the primary reason for doing this," Tillis told Melvin. "We call this restoring confidence in government," Tillis said. "There are a lot of people who are just concerned with the potential risk of fraud."

He added a voter ID law "would make nearly three-quarters of the population more comfortable and more confident when they go to the polls."

Laura Leslie, Tillis: Fraud 'Not the Primary Reason' for Voter ID Push, WRAL (updated Mar. 17, 2013), www.wral.com/tillis-actual-voter-fraud-not-the-primary-reason-for-voter-id-push-/12231514/. The U.S. Supreme Court has expressed similar reasoning:

Voter fraud drives honest citizens out of the democratic process and breeds distrust of our government. Voters who fear their legitimate votes will be outweighed by fraudulent ones will feel disenfranchised.

Purcell v. Gonzalez, 549 U.S. 1, 4 (2006) (per curiam). In Purcell,

The state Respondents' brief was most emphatic in its advocacy of a state interest to restore confidence in elections. Citing Gallup and Rasmussen polls attesting to the widespread lack of confidence Americans have in the integrity of elections, the state's brief contained an entire subsection titled, "The need to preserve public confidence in elections justifies the Voter ID Law." Because opportunities for abuse exist, this state interest in restoring confidence is compelling, the brief argued, "[r]egardless whether particular instances of fraud are well documented."

Stephen Ansolabehere & Nathaniel Persily, Vote Fraud in the Eye of the Beholder: The Role of Public Opinion in the Challenge to Voter Identification Requirements 4–5 (Columbia Law Sch. Pub. Law & Legal Theory Working Paper Grp., Paper No. 08-170, 2008), available at <http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/legacy/Democracy/Persily%20Ansolabehere%20attitudes%20study.pdf> (citations omitted).

- 119 Crawford, 553 U.S. at 197 (while “Indiana’s interest in protecting public confidence ‘in the integrity and legitimacy of representative government’ . . . is closely related to the State’s interest in preventing voter fraud, public confidence in the integrity of the electoral process [also] has independent significance, because it encourages citizen participation in the democratic process”) (citation omitted).
- 120 See, e.g., Matt A. Barreto et al., The Disproportionate Impact of Indiana Voter ID Requirements on the Electorate (Wash. Inst. for the Study of Race and Ethnicity, Working Paper, 2007), available at http://depts.washington.edu/uwiser/documents/Indiana_voter.pdf; Matt A. Barreto et al., Voter ID Requirements and the Disenfranchisement of Latino, Black and Asian Voters (Sept. 1, 2007) (prepared for presentation at the Am. Political Science Ass’n Annual Conference), available at http://faculty.washington.edu/mbarreto/research/Voter_ID_APSA.pdf; Brennan Ctr. for Justice, Citizens Without Proof: A Survey of Americans’ Possession of Documentary Proof of Citizenship and Photo Identification (2006) [hereinafter Citizens Without Proof], available at http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/legacy/d/download_file_39242.pdf; John Pawasarat, Univ. of Wisc.-Milwaukee Employment and Training Institute, The Driver License Status of the Voting Age Population in Wisconsin (2005), available at <https://www4.uwm.edu/eti/barriers/DriversLicense.pdf>.
- 121 Citizens Without Proof, supra note 120, at 3.
- 122 Shailla Dewan, In Georgia, Thousands March in Support of Voting Rights, N.Y. Times (Aug. 7, 2005) http://www.nytimes.com/2005/08/07/national/07march.html?_r=0; Ellen Berry, Georgia Gov. Signs Voter ID Bill Into Law, L.A. Times (Apr. 23, 2005) <http://articles.latimes.com/2005/apr/23/nation/na-voterid23>.
- 123 Ga. Code Ann. § 21-2-417.
- 124 Common Cause of Ga. v. Billups, 406 F. Supp. 2d 1326, 1376 (N.D. Ga. 2005).
- 125 Vishal Agraharkar, Wendy Weiser & Adam Skaggs, Brennan Ctr. for Justice, The Cost of Voter ID Laws: What the Courts Say 3 (2011), available at <http://www.brennancenter.org/sites/default/files/legacy/Democracy/Voter%20ID%20Cost%20Memo%20FINAL.pdf>.
- 126 Common Cause III, 504 F. Supp. 2d 1333, 1377–80.
- 127 Crawford, 553 U.S. 181.
- 128 Id.
- 129 From the Indiana Election Division’s website:

Public Law 109-2005 requires Indiana residents to present a government-issued photo ID before casting a ballot at the polls on Election Day.

Your photo ID must meet 4 criteria to be acceptable for voting purposes. It Must:

1. Display your photo
2. Display your name, and the name must conform to your voter registration record . . .
3. Display an expiration date and either be current or have expired sometime after the date of the last General Election . . .
4. Be issued by the State of Indiana or the U.S. government

In most cases, an Indiana driver license, Indiana photo ID card, Military ID or U.S. Passport is sufficient.

A student ID from an Indiana State school may only be used if it meets all of the 4 criteria specified above. A student ID from a private institution may not be used for voting purposes.

Photo ID Law, Indiana Election Div., www.in.gov/sos/elections/2401.htm (last visited July 30, 2014). The law provides certain exemptions:

Exemptions do exist for the indigent, those with a religious objection to being photographed, and those living in state-licensed facilities that serve as their precinct’s polling place. If you are wishing to claim an exemption from the photo ID requirement based on indigence or a religious objection, you may do so in one of two ways:

1. Go the polls on Election Day, and cast a provisional ballot. Within 10 days of the election, visit the county election office and affirm that an exemption applies to you.
2. Vote absentee-in-person at the county election office before Election Day, and while there, affirm that an exemption applies to you.

If you are a resident at a state-licensed facility that serves as your polling place, you may claim the exemption at the polls on Election Day.

If you are unable or unwilling to present photo ID on Election Day, you may cast a provisional ballot. Upon casting a provisional ballot, you have until noon 10 days after the election to follow up with the County Election Board and either provide photo ID or affirm one of the law’s exemptions applies to you.

Also, if you qualify to vote absentee-by-mail or absentee-by-traveling board, and you chose to vote as such, you are not required to present photo ID.

Exemptions, Indiana Election Division, <http://www.in.gov/sos/elections/2624.htm> (last visited July 30, 2014). In Crawford, the Court asserted that “the evidence in the record does not provide us with the number of registered voters without photo identification[.]” Crawford, 553 U.S. at 200. Drawing from the district court’s determinations, the Supreme Court found that the burden on voters was “limited[.]” Id. at 203 (quoting Burdick v. Takushi, 504 U.S. 428, 439).

- 130 Crawford, 553 U.S. at 203 (quoting Burdick, 504 U.S. at 439).
- 131 Id. at 200.
- 132 Id. at 201.
- 133 Id.
- 134 Id. at 204.
- 135 Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d at 124, vacated and remanded, 133 S. Ct. 2886 (2013).
- 136 Defendants' Motion to Dismiss at 1, Veasey v. Perry, No. 2:13-CV-193, 2013 WL 6046807 (S.D. Tex. June 26, 2013). Texas cited Crawford repeatedly throughout its Motion to Dismiss.
- 137 Order on Motions to Dismiss at *14-*15, Veasey v. Perry, No. 2:13-CV-193, 2014 WL 3002413 (S.D. Tex. July 2, 2014).
- 138 Frank v. Walker, No. 11-CV-01128, 2014 WL 1775432 at *3, *18, *33 (E.D. Wisc. 2014).
- 139 Id. at 23.
- 140 Id. at 24-38.
- 141 Id. at 33.
- 142 Id. at 8.
- 143 Id. at 8-10.
- 144 Karyn L. Rotker, Written Testimony, Nat'l Comm'n on Voting Rights, Hearing in Minneapolis, Minnesota 9 (Feb. 25, 2014) (citing Matt A. Barreto, Rates of Possession of Accepted Photo Identification Among Different Subgroups in the Eligible Voter Population, Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, Expert Report Submitted on Behalf of the Plaintiffs in Frank v. Walker at 18-19, 34, Frank v. Walker, No. 11-CV-01128, 2014 WL 1775432 (Apr. 23, 2012), available at <https://www.aclu.org/files/assets/062-10-exhibitjexpertreport.pdf>).
- 145 Id. at 10.
- 146 See Joshua A. Douglas, The Right to Vote Under State Constitutions, 67 Vand. L. Rev. 89, 91, 101-05 (2014).
- 147 Weinschenk v. State, 203 S.W.3d 201, 221-22 (Mo. 2006).
- 148 Order on Preliminary Injunction at 3, Kohls v. Martin, No. 60CV-14-1495 (Ark. Cir. May 23, 2014). According to the ACLU of Arkansas, "as many as 25% of African-Americans in the state lack government issued photo ID, compared to 8% of their white counterparts." Voter ID Laws Disenfranchise Eligible, Longtime Voters, Am. Civil Liberties Union of Ark. (2013), www.acluarkansas.org/content/voter-id-bill-in-arkansas-house#.U9fdlPldVp6.
- 149 Applewhite v. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 617 Pa. 563 (2012).
- 150 Id. at 567 ("PennDOT—apparently for good reason—has refused to allow such liberal access. Instead, the Department continues to vet applicants for Section 1510(b) cards through an identification process that Commonwealth officials appear to acknowledge is a rigorous one.").
- 151 Id. at 569 ("While there is a debate over the number of affected voters, given the substantial overlap between voter rolls and PennDOT's existing ID driver/cardholder database, it is readily understood that a minority of the population is affected by the access issue. Nevertheless, there is little disagreement with Appellants' observation that the population involved includes members of some of the most vulnerable segments of our society (the elderly, disabled members of our community, and the financially disadvantaged).").
- 152 Id. at 570 ("[I]f the Commonwealth Court is not still convinced in its predictive judgment that there will be no voter disenfranchisement arising out of the Commonwealth's implementation of a voter identification requirement for purposes of the upcoming election, that court is obliged to enter a preliminary injunction.") (emphasis added).
- 153 Applewhite, 2014 WL 184988 at *26-27.
- 154 Id. at *11-*12.
- 155 Id. at *14-*17.
- 156 In the first case, the North Carolina State Conference of the NAACP and other individuals and churches challenge portions of House Bill 589 pursuant to the federal Voting Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1973, and pursuant to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution. N.C. State Conference of the NAACP v. McCrory, No. 1:13-CV-658 (M.D.N.C. 2014). In the second case, the League of Women Voters of North Carolina and other individuals and groups raise similar challenges under the Voting Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1973 and § 1973a, and under the Fourteenth Amendment. League of Women Voters of N.C. v. North Carolina, No. 1:13-CV-660 (M.D.N.C. 2014). Finally, in the third case, the Department of Justice also raises similar challenges pursuant to the Voting Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1973. In all three cases, the claims are asserted against the State of North Carolina, the members or director of the State Board of Elections, and/or North Carolina Governor McCrory. United States v. North Carolina, No. 1:13-CV-861 (M.D.N.C. 2014). See Order, N.C. State Conference of the NAACP v. McCrory, No. 1:13-CV-658 (M.D.N.C. 2014), available at <http://www.advancementproject.org/page/-/esjt/files/resources/NC%20Order.pdf>.
- 157 N.C. State Board of Elections, Apr. 2013 SBOE-DMV ID Analysis (Apr. 17, 2013), www.democracy-nc.org/downloads/SBOE-DMVMatchMemoApril2013.pdf.
- 158 Compl. at 15-16, United States v. North Carolina, No. 13-CV-861 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 30, 2013).
- 159 Rachael V. Cobb, D. James Greiner & Kevin M. Quinn, Can Voter ID Laws Be Administered in a Race-Neutral Manner? Evidence from the City of Boston in 2008, 7 Q.J. Pol. Sci. 1, 3 (2010); Lonna R. Atkeson et al., A New Barrier to Participation: Heterogeneous Application of Voter Identification Policies, 29 Electoral Stud. 66, 66-73 (2010).
- 160 Id.
- 161 National Commission on Voting Rights, Pennsylvania State Hearing 125 (Feb. 6, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 162 Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d at 115.
- 163 Id. at 124-25.
- 164 Id. at 144.
- 165 Determination Letter from Thomas E. Perez, Assistant Att'y Gen., Dep't of Justice to State of Texas (Mar. 12, 2012), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/I_120312.pdf.
- 166 Texas v. Holder, 888 F. Supp. 2d at 144.
- 167 Id.
- 168 Id. at 138.
- 169 Id. at 139-40. At the NCVR Texas hearing, the Commission heard direct testimony regarding the hours it can take some voters to get to the Department of Public Safety. See Rogene Gee Calvert, Testimony of Rogene Gee Calvert, Dir., Tex. Asian American Redistricting Initiative 122, National Commission on Voting Rights, Houston, Texas Regional Hearing (Apr. 5, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 170 Id. at 144 (internal citations omitted).

- 171 Texas v. Holder, 133 S. Ct. 2886 (2013); Texas v. Holder, No. 1:12-cv-00128 (D.D.C. Aug. 27, 2013).
- 172 Sarah Ferris, Texas Revives Voter ID Law in Wake of Supreme Court Decision, Opponents Pledge to Keep Up Fight, Houston Chron. (June 25, 2013) blog.chron.com/txpotomac/2013/06/texas-revives-voter-id-law-in-wake-of-supreme-court-decision-opponents-pledge-to-keep-up-fight/#13481101=0.
- 173 The lawsuit brought by the United States and the private suits have been consolidated using the caption of the first-filed case, Veasey v. Perry, No. 2:13-cv-193 (S.D. Tex. 2014).
- 174 Absentee and Early Voting, Nat'l Conference of State Legislatures, <http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/absentee-and-early-voting.aspx#early> (last visited July 30, 2014).
- 175 Florida v. United States, 885 F. Supp. 2d 299, 322–23 (D.D.C. 2012).
- 176 See, e.g., id. at 329–30, 337.
- 177 Id. at 308–09.
- 178 Carolyn Thompson, Florida Voter Protection Advocate, Advancement Project, National Commission on Voting Rights, Miami, Florida Regional Hearing (Mar. 31, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 179 Michael C. Herron & Daniel A. Smith, Precinct Closing and Wait Times in Florida during the 2012 General Election, Dartmouth College (Aug. 28, 2013), <http://www.dartmouth.edu/~heron/HerronSmithAPSA2013.pdf>.
- 180 Scott Powers & David Damon, Analysis: 201,000 Voters Didn't Vote Because of Long Lines, Orlando Sent. (Jan. 29, 2013), http://articles.orlandosentinel.com/2013-01-29/business/os-voter-lines-statewide-20130118_1_long-lines-sentinelanalysis-state-ken-detzner.
- 181 Michael C. Herron & Daniel A. Smith, Souls to the Polls: Early Voting in the Shadow of House Bill 1355, 11 Election L.J. 331, 341 (2012).
- 182 Id. at 346.
- 183 Id. at 343.
- 184 Florida v. United States, 885 F. Supp. 2d at 322–24.
- 185 Paul Gronke & Charles Stewart, Early Voting in Florida, 26 (Mass. Inst. of Tech. Political Science Dep't, Working Paper No. 2013-12, 2013), available at http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm?abstract_id=2247144.
- 186 Id.
- 187 Id. at 6.
- 188 Id. at 7.
- 189 Compl. at ¶ 29, United States v. North Carolina, No. 13-CV-861 (M.D.N.C. Sept. 30, 2013).
- 190 Id. at ¶ 30; see also Expert Decl. of Charles Stewart III at ¶¶ 129–214, United States v. North Carolina, Nos. 13-CV-861 and 13-CV-660 (M.D.N.C. May 19, 2014) (citing the numbers for 2008 and 2012, as well as discussing figures from other years and predicting a negative impact on African Americans from HB 589's early voting cuts); Amended Rule 26(A)(2)(B) Expert Report & Decl. of Paul Gronke, PhD at ¶¶ 8–41, League of Women Voters of N.C. v. North Carolina, No. 13-CV-660 (M.D.N.C. May 19, 2014).
- 191 Compl. at ¶¶ 37–39, League of Women Voters of N.C. v. North Carolina, No. 13-CV-660 (M.D.N.C. Aug. 12, 2013). The trial in this case is not expected to take place until 2015, although motions for a preliminary injunction are pending.
- 192 See generally Michael Herron & Daniel A. Smith, Race, Shelby County and the Voter Information Verification Act in North Carolina, Dartmouth College (Feb. 12, 2014), <http://electionsmith.wordpress.com/2014/02/11/late-night-exclusive-latest-herron-smith-race-shelby-county-and-the-voter-information-verification-act-in-north-carolina/>.
- 193 Russell Weaver & Sonia Gill, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, Early Voting Patterns by Race in Cuyahoga County, Ohio 10 (2012), available at http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/admin/site/documents/files/EarlyVoting_Cuyahoga_Report.pdf.
- 194 Statistical Analysis on file with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.
- 195 Daniel Brill, Franklin Cnty. Bd. of Elections, 2008 Early In-Person Voting 2 (2012), available at <http://www.nova-ohio.org/Franklin%20Cty%20Brill%20Report%20revis%208-16-12.pdf>.
- 196 Obama for America v. Husted, 2014 WL 2611316 (S.D. Ohio June 11, 2014); see also Obama for America v. Husted, 888 F. Supp. 2d 897, 910–11 (S.D. Ohio 2012) (opinion and order on preliminary injunction). Secretary of State Husted attempted to circumvent the preliminary injunction order when he issued Directive 2012-40, which "strictly prohibit[ed] county boards of elections from determining hours for the Friday, Saturday, Sunday, or Monday before the election." Jon Husted, Ohio Sec'y of State, Directive 2012-40, sos.state.oh.us (Sept. 4, 2012), <http://www.sos.state.oh.us/SOS/Upload/elections/directives/2012/Dir2012-40.pdf>. Husted rescinded Directive 2012-40 three days later after the court ordered him to personally appear to explain the directive. See Jon Husted, Ohio Sec'y of State, Directive 2012-42, sos.state.oh.us (Sept. 7, 2012), <http://www.sos.state.oh.us/SOS/Upload/elections/directives/2012/Dir2012-42.pdf>; Compl. at ¶ 44, Ohio State Conf. of the NAACP v. Husted, No. 2:14-CV-404 (S.D. Ohio May 1, 2014) [hereinafter Husted Complaint].
- 197 Obama for America v. Husted, 2014 WL 2611316 at *4.
- 198 Husted Complaint, supra note 196, at ¶ 40.
- 199 Jon Husted, Ohio Sec'y of State, Directive 2016-06, (Feb. 25, 2014), available at <http://www.sos.state.oh.us/sos/upload/elections/directives/2014/Dir2014-06.pdf>.
- 200 See Husted Complaint, supra note 196.
- 201 Id. at ¶ 69.
- 202 See, e.g., Brill, supra note 195; Weaver & Gill, supra note 193.
- 203 Darrel Rowland, Voting in Ohio: Fight Over Poll Hours Isn't Just Political, Columbus Dispatch (Aug. 19, 2012), <http://www.dispatch.com/content/stories/local/2012/08/19/fight-over-poll-hours-isnt-just-political.html>.
- 204 Jason Stein & Don Walker, Scott Walker Signs Early-Voting Bill; Partial Veto Extends Voting Hours, Milwaukee J.-Sent. (Mar. 27, 2014), <http://www.jsonline.com/news/statepolitics/scott-walker-signs-asbestos-lawsuit-bill-b99234687z1-252672541.html>.
- 205 Charles Stewart III & Stephen Ansolabehere, Waiting in Line to Vote 11 (Cal. Inst. of Tech. & Mass. Inst. of Tech. Voting Tech. Project, Working Paper No. 114, 2013), available at <http://vote.caltech.edu/sites/default/files/WP%20114.pdf>.
- 206 Id. at 1, 11–12.
- 207 Michael C. Herron & Daniel A. Smith, Advancement Project, Congestion at the Polls: A Study of Florida Precincts in the 2012 General Election Executive Sum-

- mary (2013), available at http://b3cdn.net/advancement/f5d1203189ce2aabfc_14m6vzttt.pdf.
- 208 Status Report of the House Judiciary Comm. Democratic Staff, Preserving Democracy: What Went Wrong in Ohio 4 (2012).
- 209 Spirit Lake Tribe v. Benson Cnty., 2010 WL 4226614, at *1–2 (D.N.D. Oct. 21, 2010).
- 210 Id. at *6.
- 211 Id. at *3, *5–6.
- 212 Id. at *3.
- 213 Id.
- 214 Id.
- 215 Id. at *4.
- 216 Id. at *5.
- 217 Order Granting Plaintiff's Application for a Temporary Restraining Order at 2, Miguel Hernandez Chapter of the Am. Gl Forum v. Bexar Cnty., No. 5:03-cv-00816 (W.D. Tex. Aug. 26, 2003) [hereinafter Temporary Restraining Order], available at http://www.clearinghouse.net/chDocs/not_public/VR-TX-0420-0002.pdf.
- 218 See Compl. at 6, 7–8, Miguel Hernandez Chapter of the Am. Gl Forum v. Bexar Cnty., No. 5:03-cv-00816 (W.D. Tex. Aug. 26, 2003), available at http://www.clearinghouse.net/chDocs/not_public/VR-TX-0420-0001.pdf.
- 219 See Temporary Restraining Order, supra note 217, at 1–3, 6; Testimony of Nina Perales, Reg'l Counsel, Mexican Am. Legal Def. & Educ. Fund, Southwest Regional Hearing 51 (Apr. 7, 2005) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 220 Compl. at 1, Oliver v. State of California, No. C-03-03658 JF, 2003 WL 22025009 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 5, 2003) [hereinafter Oliver Complaint], available at http://www.clearinghouse.net/chDocs/not_public/VR-CA-0129-0001.pdf.
- 221 Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, Highlights of Hearings of the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act 2005: A Supplement to Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act at Work, 1982-2005, 1982-2005, at 57 (2005) (testimony of Robert Rubin).
- 222 Id.
- 223 Oliver Complaint, supra note 220, at 3, 5.
- 224 Order to Show Cause re Preliminary Injunction; Temporary Order Restraining Mailing of Overseas Ballots at 4, Oliver v. State of California, No. C-03-03658 JF, 2003 WL 22025009 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 15, 2003), available at http://www.clearinghouse.net/chDocs/not_public/VR-CA-0129-0003.pdf.
- 225 Order Denying Preliminary Injunction Without Prejudice and Conditionally Dissolving Temporary Order Restraining Mailing of Overseas Ballots at 2, Oliver v. State of California, No. C-03-03658 JF, 2003 WL 22025009 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 5, 2003), available at http://www.clearinghouse.net/chDocs/not_public/VR-CA-0129-0004.pdf; Letter from Joseph D. Rich, Chief, Voting Section, Civil Rights Div., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to Monterey Cnty., Cal. (Sept. 4, 2003), available at <http://f11.findlaw.com/news.findlaw.com/hdocs/docs/elections/richmont90403lr2.pdf>.
- 226 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 41 (2006) ("Absent Section 5 coverage there would not have been a withdrawal of these particular polling place consolidations. The only alternative would have been to file a Section 2 case and seek a preliminary injunction enjoining the consolidation of these polling places.") (citing testimony presented to the Committee).
- 227 Jennifer Weddle, Co-Chair, Am. Indian Law Practice Grp., Greenberg Traurig, LLP, Written Testimony, National Commission on Voting Rights, Colorado-New Mexico Regional Hearing 9 (Mar. 7, 2014) (transcript on file with Lawyers' Committee); see also Letter from Christopher Coates, Chief, Voting Section, Civil Rights Div., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to State of Alaska (Sept. 10, 2008), in Amici Curiae Brief of the Alaska Federation of Natives, Alaska Native Voters and Tribes in Support of Respondents at App. 45–46, Nw. Austin Mun. Util. Dist. No. One v. Holder, 557 U.S. 193 (2009), available at http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/admin/voting_rights/documents/files/12-96-bsac-Alaska-Federation-of-Natives-et-al.pdf.
- 228 Determination Letter from Wan J. Kim, Assistant Att'y Gen., U.S. Dep't of Justice, to N. Harris Montgomery Cnty. College Dist., TX (May 5, 2006), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/records/vot/obj_letters/letters/TX/TX-2960.pdf.
- 229 Compl. at 6, English v. Chester Cnty., No. 10-244 (E.D. Pa. Jan. 20, 2010) [hereinafter Chester Cnty. Complaint].
- 230 Id. at 6.
- 231 Id. at 6–7.
- 232 Id. at 8.
- 233 Id. at 9.
- 234 Marian K. Schneider, Senior Att'y, Voter Protection Program, Advancement Project, Written Testimony, National Commission on Voting Rights, Hearing in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 3 (Feb. 6, 2014) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 235 Chester Cnty. Complaint, supra note 229, at 9–11.
- 236 Id. at 12–13.
- 237 Id. at 2.
- 238 Marian Schneider, Senior Att'y, Advancement Project, Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, Pennsylvania Regional Hearing 37 (Feb. 6, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 239 Nadine Padilla, Native American Voters Alliance, Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, Colorado–New Mexico Regional Hearing 59 (Mar. 7, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 240 Julie Garreau, Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe Member, Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, South Dakota Regional Hearing 98–100 (May 1, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 241 2008-2012 American Community Survey 5-Year Estimates, U.S. Census Bureau, <http://factfinder2.census.gov/faces/nav/jsf/pages/searchresults.xhtml?refresh=t> (select the "race/ancestry" radio button; then search "Dewey County, South Dakota"; then on the search results page, select "ACS DEMOGRAPHIC AND HOUSING ESTIMATES") (last visited July 29, 2014); Garreau, supra note 240.
- 242 Garreau, supra note 240.
- 243 Brooks v. Gant, No. CIV. 12–5003–KES., 2012 WL 4482984, at *1 (D.S.D. Sept. 27, 2012).
- 244 Brooks v. Gant, 2013 WL 4017036 (D.S.D. Aug. 6, 2013). At the beginning of the 2014 South Dakota legislative session, Secretary of State Gant and the State Elections Board had proposed Senate Bill 33, the purpose of which was to prohibit private funding (of the type provided by Four Directions) from being used to support election-related activities. Senate Bill 33, South Dakota Legislative Research Counsel (Jan. 20, 2014), http://legis.sd.gov/Legislative_Session/Bills/default.aspx?Session=2014. The measure failed in committee on a 5 to 1 vote. Id.

- 245 Mark Wandering Medicine, Rapid City Hearing (May 1, 2014) (transcript on file with Lawyers' Committee); Forsyth Montana, Forsyth Chamber of Commerce and Agric., <http://forsythmt.com/about.cfm> (last visited July 29, 2014).
- 246 Order, Wandering Medicine v. McCulloch, No. CV 12-135-BLG-DWM (D. Mont. Mar. 26, 2014). The court had previously denied a preliminary injunction. Wandering Medicine v. McCulloch, 906 F. Supp. 2d 1083 (D. Mont. 2012), vacated as moot by Wandering Medicine v. McCulloch, 544 Fed. Appx. 699 (9th Cir. 2013) (preliminary injunction request was moot because relief requested was for 2012 elections, which had passed).
- 247 Stephanie Woodard, The Missing Native Vote, In These Times (June 10, 2014), http://inthesetimes.com/article/16773/the_missing_native_vote.
- 247a See Compl., Navajo Nation v. Brewer, No. 3:06-cv-01575-ROS (D. Ariz. June 20, 2006). The case was consolidated with Gonzalez v. Arizona, No. 2:06-cv-01268-ROS, and Intertribal Council of Ariz. v. Brewer, No. 3:06-cv-01362-ROS.
- 247b Order, Gonzalez v. Arizona, No. 3:06-cv-01575-ROS (D. Ariz. May 27, 2008).
- 248 Letter from Jon Greenbaum, Chief Counsel & Senior Deputy Dir., Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, to Clear Channel Outdoor (Oct. 9, 2012) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 249 See United States v. New Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, No. 2:09-CV-0065 SD (E.D. Pa. 2009); United States v. Brown, 494 F. Supp. 2d 440 (S.D. Miss. 2007), aff'd 561 F.3d 420 (5th Cir. 2009). Both of these cases were brought against African Americans. The New Black Panther Party case involved allegations that members of the party were standing in front of a in Philadelphia polling place dressed in uniform, insulting and threatening voters or people who were aiding voters. The actions of the Party members were captured on videotape. Ultimately, DOJ dismissed the case against the Party and some of the defendants after one of the defendants was enjoined by a court "from displaying a weapon within 100 feet of any open polling location on any election day in the City of Philadelphia, or from otherwise violating 42 U.S.C. § 1973i(b)." Judgment, United States v. New Black Panther Party for Self-Defense, No. 2:09-CV-0065 SD (E.D. Pa. 2009). In the Brown case, the district court found that Ike Brown, a political boss in majority-black Noxubee County, had violated Section 2 by "administer[ing] and manipulat[ing] the political process in ways specifically intended and designed to impair and impede participation of white voters and to dilute their votes." 494 F. Supp. 2d at 485. The court did not find a violation of Section 11(b). Id. at 477 n.56.
- 250 See e.g., Adam Serwer, Section 11(b) And Why the NBPP Case Was Dropped, Am. Prospect (July 12, 2014) <http://prospect.org/article/section-11b-and-why-nbpp-case-was-dropped>. In a 2008 article, voting rights advocates argued for greater use of the VRA against voter intimidation:
- "We really need the Justice Department to get out there and make a pronouncement, publicly, that voter intimidation and voter suppression will not be tolerated because it violates federal law," said Gerry Hebert, executive director of the Campaign Legal Center and a former Department Voting Section Chief. "We have asked the Attorney General to do this and thus far there has been a deafening silence." "I think the Department's response to these issues, at best, is tepid, and at worst ignores what we think is a serious problem and their responsibility to address it," [Wade] Henderson [Executive Director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights] said. "The Department of Justice often argues that its jurisdiction is limited. But we think the interpretation that they have given to their jurisdiction is exceedingly narrow and it certainly ignores the larger responsibility to use the bully pulpit of the Attorney General to make clear that the Department will vigorously prosecute where possible, under federal law, any attempt to suppress the right of duly registered American citizens."
- Steven Rosenfeld, Justice Department Targets ACORN But Ignores GOP Voter Suppression, Alternet (Oct. 22, 2008) http://www.alternet.org/story/104201/justice_department_targets_acorn_but_ignores_gop_voter_suppression.
- 251 James J. Woodruff II, Where The Wild Things Are: The Polling Place, Voter Intimidation, and the First Amendment, 50 U. Louisville L. Rev. 253, 266–67 (2011).
- 252 Craig C. Donsanto & Nancy L. Simmons, U.S. Dep't of Justice, Federal Prosecution of Election Offenses 54–55 (7th ed. 2007), available at <http://www.justice.gov/criminal/pin/docs/electbook-rvs0807.pdf>.
- 253 42 U.S.C. § 1973(a).
- 254 As discussed in Chapter 3, it appears that DOJ has stopped sending observers to formerly covered jurisdictions as a result of the Shelby County decision. 42 U.S.C. § 1973f.
- 255 About Federal Observers and Election Monitoring, U.S. Dep't of Justice, http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/examine/activ_exam.php.
- 256 Id.
- 257 2006 Voting Rights Act: Sections 6 and 8—The Federal Examiner and Observer Program Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 49 (2005) (statement of Barry H. Weinberg, Former Deputy Chief and Acting Chief, Voting Section, Civil Rights Div., U.S. Dep't of Justice) [hereinafter Weinberg Statement].
- 258 Caroline Fredrickson & Deborah J. Vagins, Am. Civil Liberties Union, Promises to Keep: The Impact of the Voting Rights Act in 2006, at 11 (2006), available at https://www.aclu.org/files/images/asset_upload_file516_24396.pdf.
- 259 2006 Voting Rights Act: Sections 6 and 8—The Federal Examiner and Observer Program Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 75–76 (2005) (statement of Rep. John Conyers, Jr., Member, Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary).
- 260 Evan Perez, Justice Department Suspends Most Poll-Watching, CNN (July 22, 2014) <http://www.justice.gov/criminal/pin/docs/electbook-rvs0807.pdf>.
- 261 Liz Kennedy et al., Dēmos & Common Cause, Protecting the Freedom to Vote Against Wrongful Challenges and Intimidation 4 (2012), available at <http://www.demos.org/sites/default/files/publications/BulliesAtTheBallotBox-Final.pdf>.

- 262 Maureen Haver, Bd. Member, Common Cause, Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, Texas Hearing (Apr. 5, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 263 Paul Taylor et al., Pew Research Ctr., The Return of the Multi-Generational Family Household (2010), available at <http://www.pewsocialtrends.org/files/2010/10/752-multi-generational-families.pdf>.
- 264 Brentin Mock, How the Tea Party's Building a 'Poll Watcher' Network for November, Colorlines (Aug. 23, 2012) http://colorlines.com/archives/2012/08/true_the_votes_large_and_growing_far-right_network.html; see also Kennedy et al., supra note 261, at 4–8, 28.
- 265 Chris Robarge, Cent. Mass. Field Coordinator, Am. Civil Liberties Union of Mass., Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, Boston Regional Hearing (Mar. 31, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 266 Gary O. Bartlett, SBOE Numbered Memo 2012-26: Maintaining Order at Polling Sites and Reports of Other Illegality, State Bd. of Elections of N.C. (Oct. 2012), http://www.wral.com/asset/news/state/nccapitol/2012/10/29/11715961/2012-26_Maintaining_Order_at_Voting_Sites_2_.pdf.
- 267 Chris Brook, Legal Director, Am. Civil Liberties Union of N.C., Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, North Carolina Hearing (Mar. 28, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 268 Consent Order and Decree at 1, United States v. City of Hamtramck, No. 00-73541 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 4, 2000).
- 269 Id. at 3–4.
- 270 Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 811 F. Supp. 2d 424, 464 (D.D.C. 2011) (alteration in original) (citations and internal quotation marks omitted).
- 271 Id. at 486 (quoting Weinberg Statement, supra note 257); see also Shelby Cnty. v. Holder, 679 F.3d 848, 870 (D.C. Cir. 2012) (noting evidence heard by Congress about “discriminatory treatment and harassment of minorities by poll officials in Alabama”) (citation omitted).
- 272 See Bettis, supra note 68.
- 273 O. Kay Henderson, Schultz Says Two-Year Investigation Found 117 Cases Of Alleged Voter Fraud, Radio Iowa (May 8, 2014), <http://www.radioiowa.com/2014/05/08/schultz-says-two-year-investigation-found-117-cases-of-alleged-voter-fraud/>.
- 274 Id.
- 275 Eben Cathey, Commc'ns. Coordinator, Tenn. Immigrant and Refugee Rights Coal., Nashville Regional Hearing (May 8, 2014) (transcript on file with Lawyers' Committee); Eben Cathey, Written Testimony, National Commission on Voting Rights, Nashville Regional Hearing (May 8, 2014) (expert report) (on file with the Lawyers' Committee).
- 276 Boustani v. Blackwell, 460 F. Supp. 2d 822, 827 (2006).
- 277 Id. at 825.
- 278 Id. at 826.
- 279 Id.
- 280 Id. at 827.
- 281 United States v. Texas, 445 F. Supp. 1245, 1261 (S.D. Tex. 1978).
- 282 Symm v. United States, 439 U.S. 1105, 1105 (1979).
- 283 United States v. Texas, 445 F. Supp. at 1253.
- 284 Ronald D. Server, Prairie View A&M Students Walk the Walk of Political Engagement, Peer Review, Spring/Summer 2008, at 26, available at http://www.aacu.org/peerreview/pr-spsu08/documents/pr-spsu08_server.pdf.
- 285 Am. Civil Liberties Union, The Case for Extending and Amending the Voting Rights Act 842–43 (citing Letter to the Editor, Waller Times, from Waller Cnty. District Att'y (Nov. 5, 2003)), available at <https://www.aclu.org/files/pdfs/votingrightsreport20060307.pdf>.
- 286 Id. at 843; see also Prairie View Chapter of NAACP v. Kitzman, No. H-04-459 (S.D. Tex. 2004).
- 287 Nat'l Comm'n on the Voting Rights Act, Protecting Minority Voters: The Voting Rights Act At Work 1982-2005 65–66 (2006), at (information provided by John B. Strasburger (Houston, Tex.), a lawyer representing the students); see also Prairie View Chapter of NAACP v. Waller County Comm'n, No. H-04-0591 (S.D. Tex.).
- 288 Server, supra note 284, at 26.
- 289 Id. at 27.
- 290 Reeve Hamilton, A Polling Place of Their Own: Students Win a Long Battle, N.Y. Times, Sept. 28, 2013, at A29A.

CHAPTER 7

- 1 Jennifer M. Ortman, Chief of Populations Projections Branch & Hyon B. Shin, Education and Stratification Branch, Language Projections 2010–2020 Presented at the Annual Meetings of the American Sociological Association 3 (Aug. 20–23, 2011). It should be noted that these numbers include some residents who are not yet citizens.
- 2 See Ortman & Shin, supra note 1, at 9.
- 3 42 U.S.C. §§ 1973b(f)(3), 1973aa-1a(b)(1), 1973aa-1a(b)(3)(A).
- 4 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a(b)(2)(A).
- 5 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a(b)(2)(A)(ii); 28 C.F.R. Pt. 55.6(a)(2)(ii).
- 6 42 U.S.C. §§ 1973b(e)(1), (2).
- 7 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-6.
- 8 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(e).
- 9 Juan Cartagena, Latinos and Section 5 of The Voting Rights Act: Beyond Black and White, 18 Nat'l Black L.J. 201, 206–07 (2004–2005).
- 10 S. Rep. No. 94-295, at 3 (1975).
- 11 Id. at 39.
- 12 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a. The illiteracy rate of such language minority citizens in the political subdivision must also be higher than the national illiteracy rate. Id.
- 13 42 U.S.C. § 1973aa-1a.
- 14 42 U.S.C. § 1973b(f)(1), (3).
- 15 Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1975, Pub. L. No. 94-73, §§ 202, 203, 89 Stat. 400, 401–402. See also Rodolfo O. de la Garza & Louis DeSipio, Save the Baby, Change the Bathwater, and Scrub the Tub: Latino Electoral Participation After Seventeen Years of Voting Rights Act Coverage, 71 Tex. L. Rev. 1479, 1481–82 (1993).
- 16 121 Cong. Rec. S5311-5323, S5313 (daily ed. April 7, 1975) (statement of Sen. Evan Bayh).
- 17 127 Cong. Rec. H6841-6878, H6866 (daily ed. Oct. 2, 1981) (statement of Rep. Leland).

- 18 Id. at H6870 (statement of Rep. Robert Garcia).
- 19 127 Cong. Rec. E4503-04 (daily ed. Sept. 30, 1981) (statement of Rep. Ron Wyden).
- 20 127 Cong. Rec. S3539-42, S3542 (daily ed. Apr. 7, 1981) (statement of Sen. Charles Mathias).
- 21 H.R. Rep. No. 102-655, at 3 (1992).
- 22 Voting Rights Language Assistance Act of 1992, Pub. L. No. 102-344, § 2, 106 Stat. 921, 921.
- 23 H.R. Rep. No. 102-655, at 4 (1992).
- 24 See id. at 7–8.
- 25 Id. at 8.
- 26 S. Rep. No. 102-315, at 17 (1992).
- 27 Pub. L. No. 102-344, § 2, 106 Stat. 921, 921.
- 28 H.R. Rep. No. 102-655, at 4 (1992).
- 29 Id.
- 30 Id.
- 31 Id. at 9.
- 32 S. Rep. No. 102-315, at 4 (1992).
- 33 Id.
- 34 Id. at 11.
- 35 Id. at 14.
- 36 H.R. Rep. No. 109-478, at 11 (2005).
- 37 Id. at 52.
- 38 Id.
- 39 Voting and Registration in the Election of November 2012 – Detailed Tables, U.S. Census Bureau, <https://www.census.gov/hhes/www/socdemo/voting/publications/p20/2012/tables.html> (last visited July 29, 2014) [hereinafter 2012 Voting and Registration Data] (download “Table 4b. Reported Voting and Registration by Sex, Race and Hispanic Origin, for State: November 2012”).
- 40 Current Population Survey: Voting & Registration Supplement, U.S. Census Bureau (Nov. 2012).
- 41 Refer to Chapter 4 for a more detailed discussion about historical discrimination and voter participation rates for these groups. The voter turnout statistics for Asian Americans, Latinos, and whites are based on the 2012 Election and were taken from U.S. Bureau of the Census. See 2012 Voting and Registration Data, supra note 39 (download “Table 4b. Reported Voting and Registration by Sex, Race and Hispanic Origin, for State: November 2012”).
- 42 James Thomas Tucker, Native American Rights Fund, Barriers to Language Minority Voters and How to Overcome Them 3 (Presidential Comm’n on Election Admin. 2013), available at <https://www.supportthevoter.gov/files/2013/09/Jim-Tucker-Barriers-to-Language-Minority-Voters-and-How-to-Overcome-Them-Testimony-to-PCEA.pdf>.
- 43 Id. (citing H.R. Rep. No. 102-655, at 6 (1992)).
- 44 Id. at 2 (citing Voting Rights Act: Section 203—Bilingual Election Requirements (Part III): Hearing Before the Subcomm. On the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 17 (2005) (statement of Jacqueline Johnson, Executive Director, National Congress of American Indians)).
- 45 See Tova Andrea Wang & Youjin Kim, From Citizenship to Voting: Improving Registration For New Americans, (Dec. 19, 2011) (enumerating studies finding increased participation when bilingual election materials are provided). Scholars also found in a survey of several thousand of Asian Americans that an overwhelming majority of Asians not proficient in English would use voting materials in their language if they were provided. See Janelle Wong et al., Asian American Political Participation: Emerging Constituents and Their Political Identities 74–75 (2011); see also Daniel J. Hopkins, Translating into Votes: The Electoral Impacts of Spanish-Language Ballots, 55 Am. J. Pol. Sci. 814, 827 (2011) (finding that adopting language assistance has a “strong and consistent” impact on election results).
- 46 Nat’l Comm’n on Voting Rights, Protecting Equal Access In A Diverse Democracy: Voting Rights In The Golden State 11 (2014), available at <http://votingrightstoday.org/ncvr/resources/california> (select “Download the Full Report”).
- 47 Michael Jones-Correa & Israel Waismel-Manor, Language Provisions Under the Voting Rights Act: Effectiveness and Implementation (Presidential Comm’n on Election Admin., Sept. 4, 2013), available at <https://www.supportthevoter.gov/files/2013/09/Michael-Jones-Correa-Language-Provisions-VRA.pdf>.
- 48 Id. at 16.
- 49 James Thomas Tucker, The Battle over Bilingual Ballots: Language Minorities and Political Access Under the Voting Rights Act 138–46 (2009).
- 50 Memorandum from Jacob Shelly & Matt Forbes to Nate Persily on Language Challenges and Voting – Version 2, 1 (June 17, 2013), available at <https://www.supportthevoter.gov/files/2013/08/Language-Challenges-and-Voting-Forbes-and-Shelly.pdf>.
- 51 Id. at 7.
- 52 Id. (citing Alyssa Newcomb, Arizona Elections Department Flubs Election Date, ABC News (Oct. 17, 2012, 10:26 AM), <http://abcnews.go.com/blogs/politics/2012/10/arizona-elections-department-flubs-election-date/>); see also Ed Payne & Michael Martinez, Arizona County Gives Wrong Election Date in Spanish Voter Cards, CNN, (Oct. 8, 2012, 5:40 AM), <http://www.cnn.com/2012/10/18/us/arizona-spanish-election-ballot/>).
- 53 Memorandum from Shelly & Forbes, supra note 50, at 7 (citing John Rosman, More Controversy with Spanish Translation in Arizona, Fronteras (Oct. 24, 2012), <http://www.fronterasdesk.org/news/2012/oct/24/more-controversy-spanish-translation-arizona>).
- 54 Memorandum from Shelly & Forbes, supra note 50, at 7 (citing Michelle Garcia, Spanish Translation Problems for Maryland Ballot Summary, Advocate (Oct. 23, 2012, 3:03 PM), <http://www.advocate.com/politics/2012/10/23/spanish-translation-problems-maryland-ballot-summary>).
- 55 Adam Wooten, International Business: Elections Lost in Translation, Deseret News (Oct. 28, 2011, 7:00 AM), <http://www.deseretnews.com/article/705393232/Elections-lost-in-translation.html>.
- 56 Jones-Correa & Waismel-Manor, supra note 47, at 13.
- 57 Deanna Kitamura, Senior Staff Attorney, Asian Americans Advancing Justice of L.A., Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, California State Hearing 142–43 (Jan. 30, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 58 Lawyers’ Comm. for Civil Rights of the S.F. Bay Area, Voting Rights Barriers & Discrimination in Twenty-First Century California (2000-2013) 23 (Mar. 2014), available at <http://www.lccr.com/assets/press-releases/Voting-Rights-Barriers-In-21st-Century-Cal%20Update.pdf>.
- 59 Jerry Vattamala, Attorney, Asian Am. Def. & Educ. Fund, Testimony at National Commission on Voting Rights, Pennsylvania State Hearing 74–75 (Feb. 6, 2014) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 60 Transcript of the National Commission on Voting Rights, Florida Hearing, Miami, Florida, March 31, 2014, p. 140;

- also Consent Order, United States v. Miami-Dade Cnty., 1:02-cv-21698-PAS (S.D. Fla. June 17, 2002).
- 61 Settlement Agreement, Nick v. Bethel, Alaska, 3:07-CV-00098 (D. Alaska Feb. 4, 2010).
- 62 Complaint at 4, 6, Nick, 3:07-CV-00098.
- 63 Id. at 7.
- 64 Id. at 5.
- 65 Id. at 9.
- 66 Id. at 5.
- 67 Nick, 3:07-CV-00098, at 9 (order granting preliminary injunction).
- 68 Id. at 8.
- 69 Id. at 7–8 (footnotes omitted).
- 70 Id. at 8.
- 71 James Thomas Tucker, The Power of Observation: The Role of Federal Observers under the Voting Rights Act, 13 Mich. J. Race & L. 227, 256 (2007).
- 72 Id.
- 73 Id. at 257.
- 74 Id. at 258–60.
- 75 Id. at 260.
- 76 Id. at 269–70.
- 77 Id. at 274–75 (footnotes omitted).
- 78 Complaint at 1, United States v. Lawrence, No. 98-CV-12256-WGY (Nov. 5, 1998 D. Mass).
- 79 To Examine the Impact and Effectiveness of the Voting Rights Act: Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 29 (2005) [hereinafter Hearing to Examine the VRA] (written testimony of Joe Rogers).
- 80 Complaint at 1–2, Lawrence, No. 98-CV-12256-WGY.
- 81 Id. at 3.
- 82 See Joint Motion for Entry of Settlement Agreement and Order at 12, Lawrence, No. 98–CV-12256-WGY (Sept. 10, 1999 D. Mass).
- 83 Id. at 15–17.
- 84 Id. at 21.
- 85 Hearing to Examine the VRA, supra note 79, at 29 (written testimony of Joe Rogers).
- 86 Id.
- 87 Marcos Devers, Lawrence (Mass.) City Council Member, Testimony at National Commission on the Voting Rights Act, Northeast Regional Hearing 158 (June 14, 2005) (transcript on file with the Lawyers’ Committee).
- 88 Jill Harmacinski, Latingua Becomes First Hispanic Mayor in State; Vows to Be ‘Mayor for All’, Eagle Trib. (Nov. 4, 2009), <http://www.eagletribune.com/local/x546147919/Lantigua-becomes-first-Hispanic-mayor-in-state-vows-to-be-mayor-for-all>.
- 89 Voting Rights Act: Evidence of Continued Need Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 308 (Mar. 8, 2006) (written testimony of Bill Lann Lee and Joe Rogers).
- 90 Id. at 3680–81 (Letter from Trang Q. Tran, Bd. Member, Asian Am. Legal Ctr. to David Beirne, Harris Cnty. Dir. Public Affairs (Oct. 30, 2003)).
- 91 James Thomas Tucker, Enfranchising Language Minority Citizens: The Bilingual Election Provisions of the Voting Rights Act, 10 N.Y.U. J. Legis & Pub. Pol’y 195, 248 (2006) (citing Voting Rights Act: Section 203—Bilingual Election Requirements (Part I) Hearing Before the Subcomm. on the Constitution of the H. Comm. on the Judiciary, 109th Cong. 12 (Nov. 8, 2005) [hereinafter Hearing on Section 203] (written testimony of Bradley J. Schlozman, Acting Assistant Att’y Gen., of the United States)).
- 92 Highlights of Hearings of the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act 2005 (February 2006) (Testimony of Rogene Calvert, past president of the Houston Chapter of the Organization of Chinese Americans) p. 14; Lisa Falkenbert, Heflin likes his odds in the House, Houston Chronicle, 16 Dec. 2005, B1.
- 93 Tucker, supra note 91, at 248 (citing Hearing on Section 203, supra note 91, at 12).
- 94 Complaint at 1–2, 7–9, United States v. Salem Cnty., No. 1:08-cv-03726-JHR-AMD (D.N.J. July 24, 2008), available at http://www.justice.gov/crt/about/vot/sec_203/documents/pennsgrove_comp.pdf.
- 95 Id. 5–6.
- 96 Settlement Agreement, United States v. Salem County, No. 1:08-cv-03726-JHR-AMD (D.N.J. July 24, 2008).
- 97 United States v. Berks Cnty., 277 F. Supp. 2d 570, 575 (2003) (“Berks II”).
- 98 Id.
- 99 Id. at 576–77.
- 100 United States v. Berks Cnty., 250 F.Supp.2d 525, 530 (2003) (“Berks I”).
- 101 Id.
- 102 Id. at 531.
- 103 See id. at 542 (granting preliminary injunction); Berks II, 277 F. Supp. 2d at 582 (granting permanent injunction).
- 104 Berks II, 277 F. Supp. 2d at 584–85.
- 105 Jocelyn Friedrichs Benson, iSu Voto Es Su Voz! Incorporating Voters of Limited English Proficiency Into American Democracy, 48 B.C. L. Rev. 251, 298 (2007).
- 106 Consent Decree and Order, United States v. City of Hamtramck, No. 00-73541 (E.D. Mich. Aug. 7, 2000).
- 107 Benson, supra note 105, at 301.
- 108 Padilla v. Lever, 463 F.3d 1046, 1053 (9th Cir. 2006) (en banc).

APPENDIX A

ABBREVIATIONS

ABBREVIATIONS

AALDEF

Asian American Legal Defense Fund

ACLU

American Civil Liberties Union

DMV

Department of Motor Vehicles

DOJ

Department of Justice

EAC

Election Assistance Commission

Lawyers' Committee

Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights
Under Law

LEP

Limited English Proficiency

MALDEF

Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund

NAACP

National Association for the Advancement of Colored People

NALEO

National Association of Latino
Elected Officials

NCVR

National Commission on Voting Rights

NVRA

National Voter Registration Act

SNAP

Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program

TANF

Temporary Assistance for Needy Families

VRA

Voting Rights Act

APPENDIX B MAPS

Map 1: Preclearance Denials
From 1995 to June 2014

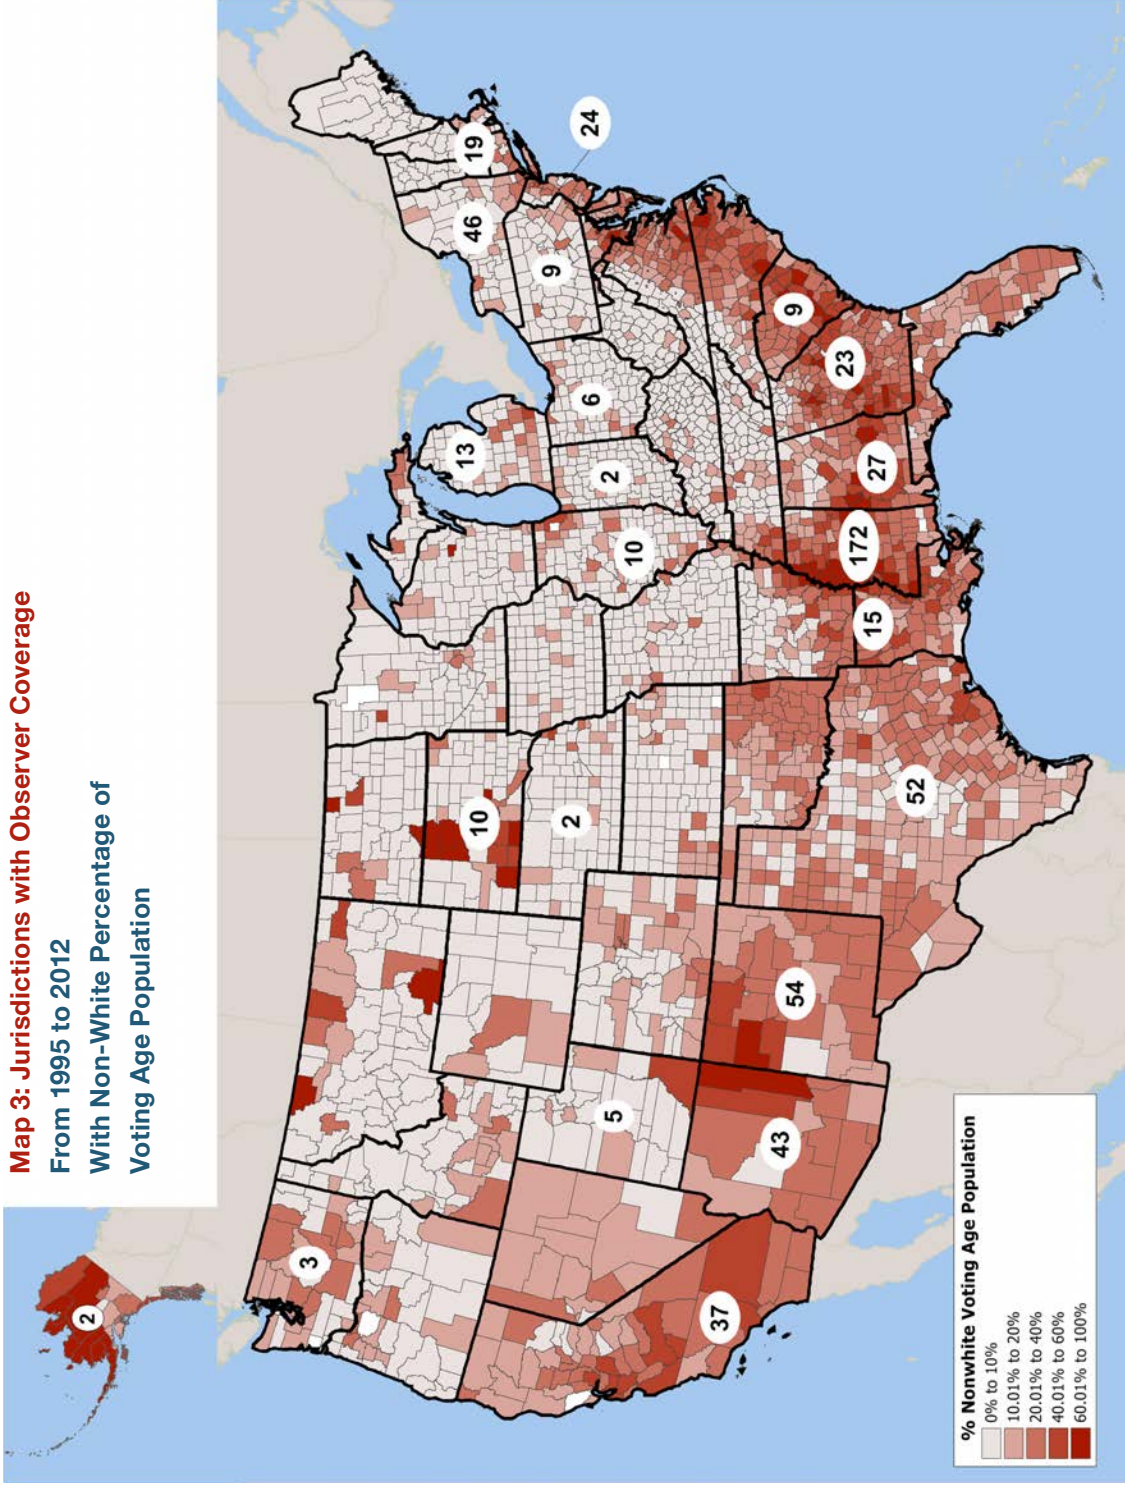

Objections counted by objection letter, and court denials counted by unsuccessful Section 5 declaratory judgment actions. Includes one Section 3 objection in South Dakota. Figures do not include objections withdrawn based upon a subsequent change in law or fact, and an objection where preclearance subsequently was granted by the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. There were no denials in Hawaii or Alaska during this period. Data: derived from U.S. Department of Justice records. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.

Map 2: Preclearance Denials
From 1995 to 2013
With Non-White Percentage of
Voting Age Population

Objections counted by objection letter, and court denials counted by unsuccessful Section 5 declaratory judgement actions. Includes one Section 3 objection in South Dakota. Figures do not include objections withdrawn based upon a subsequent change in law or fact, and an objection where preclearance subsequently was granted by the U.S. District Court of the District of Columbia. There were no denials in Hawaii or Alaska during this period. Data: derived from U.S. Department of Justice records and U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.

Map 3: Jurisdictions with Observer Coverage
From 1995 to 2012
With Non-White Percentage of
Voting Age Population

There were no observers in Hawaii during this period. Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File and observer data derived from U.S. Department of Justice records. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 4: Total Number of Observers
From 1995 to 2012

There were no observers in Hawaii during this period. Data: Derived from U.S. Department of Justice records. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 5: Successful Section 2 Cases
From 1995 to June 2014

Includes cases in which courts ruled for plaintiffs and litigation settlements; does not include Section 2 cases challenging a failure to provide language assistance. Data and cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 6: Successful Language Assistance Cases
From 1995 to June 2014

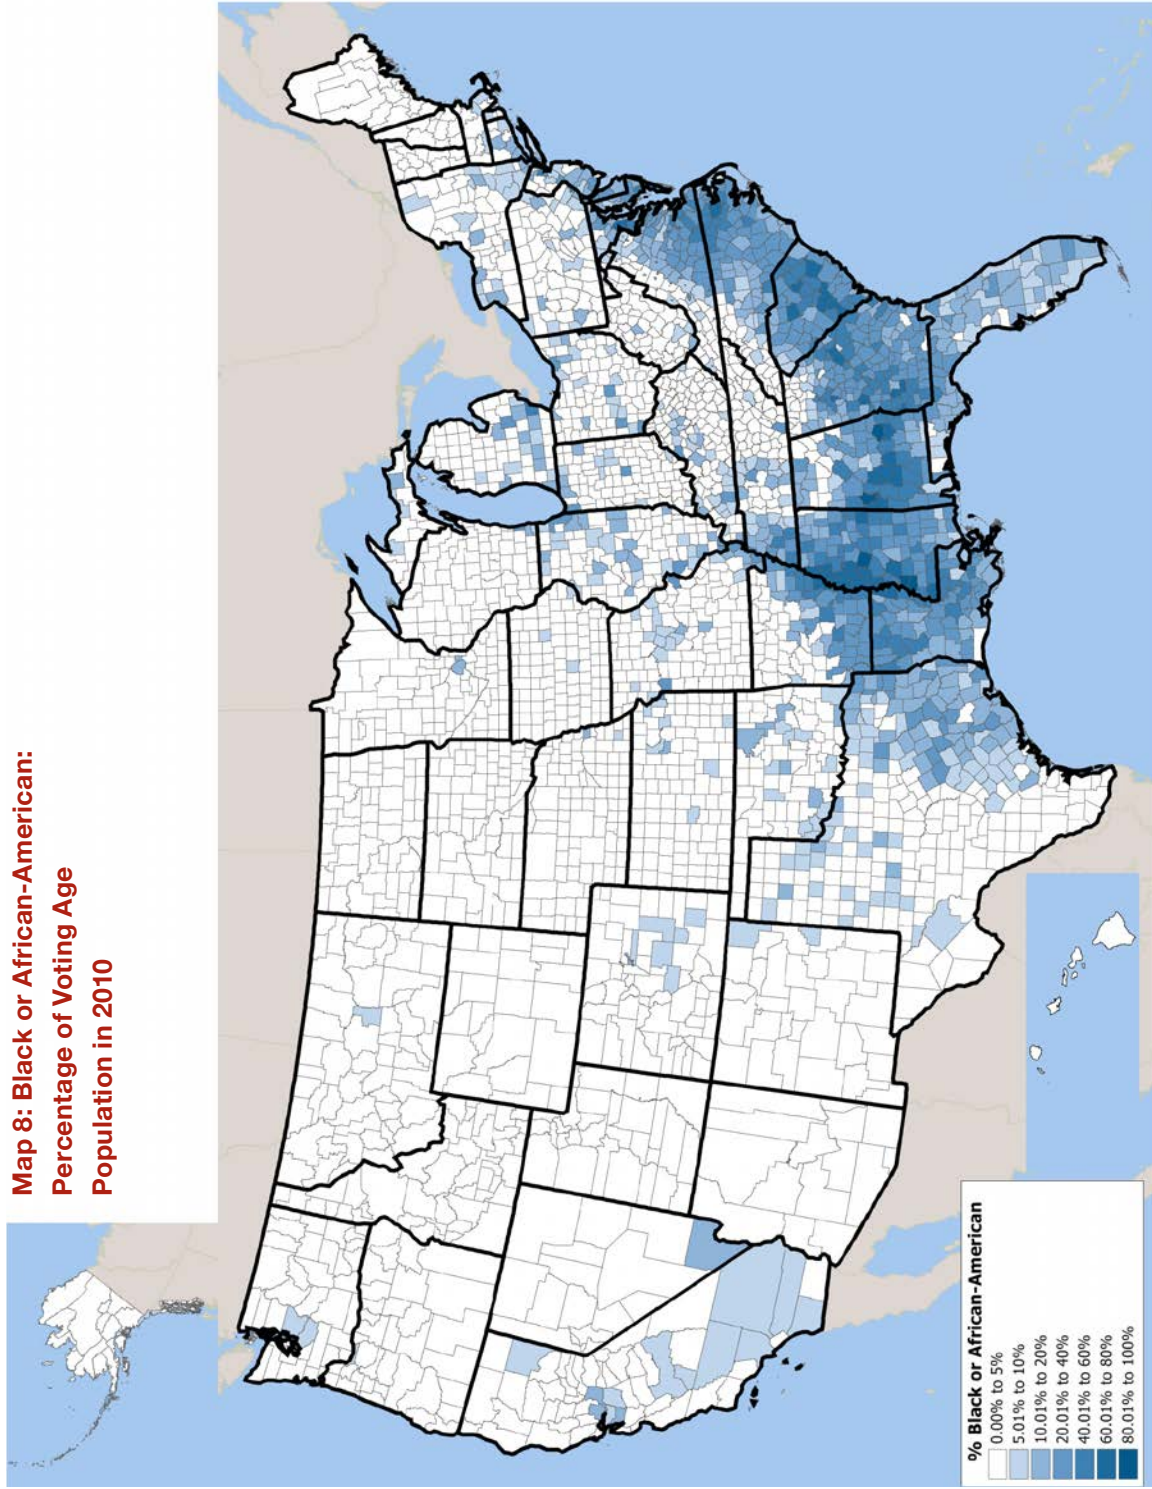

Includes cases in which courts ruled for plaintiffs, litigation settlements, and non-litigation settlements. Cases filed under Sections 2, 4(e), 4(f)(4), 203, and/or 208 of the Voting Rights Act. Data and cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 7: 2011 Language Minority Determinations
Section 203 of the Voting Rights Act

*For Alaska, coverage refers to coverage of a borough or census area. Data: U.S. Census Bureau, 2011 Determinations under Section 203. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 8: Black or African-American:
Percentage of Voting Age
Population in 2010

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 9: American Indian and Alaska Native: Percentage of Voting Age Population in 2010
One Race including Cherokee, Chippewa, Navajo, and Sioux

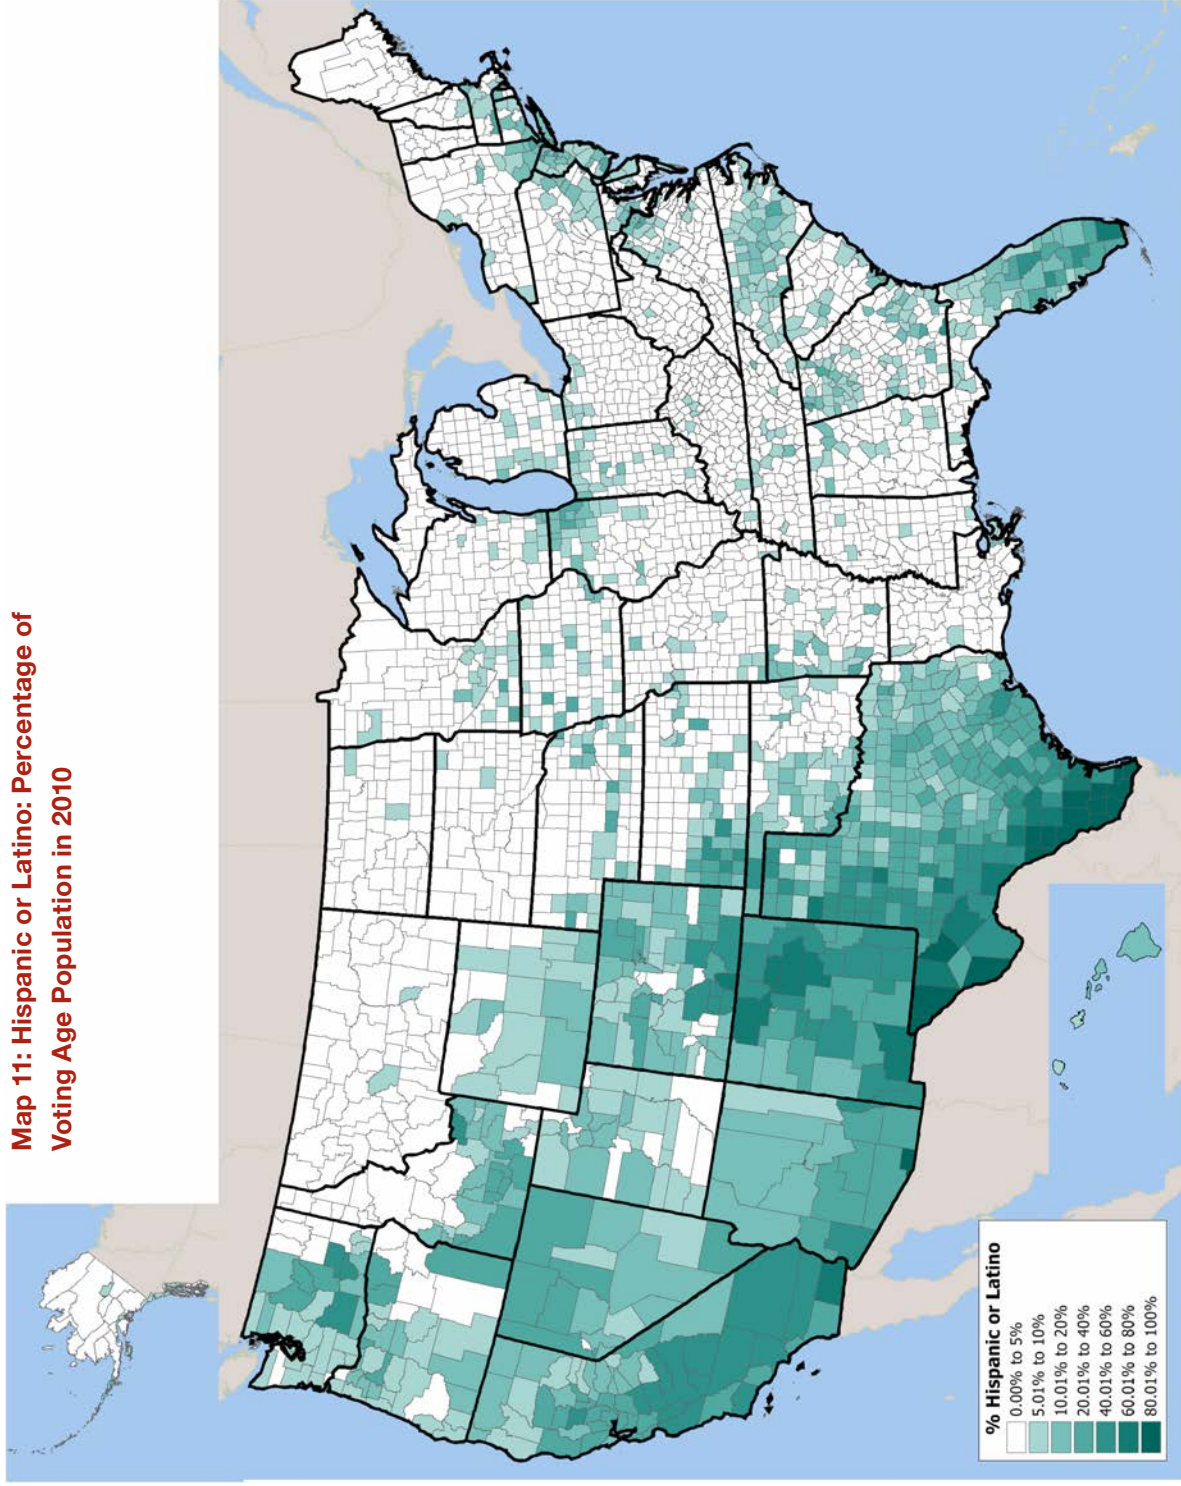

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 10: Asian: Percentage of Voting Age Population in 2010
One Race including Chinese, Filipino, Asian Indian, Japanese, Korean, Vietnamese, and Other

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

Map 11: Hispanic or Latino: Percentage of Voting Age Population in 2010

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Census 2010 Redistricting Data (PL 94-171) Summary File. Cartography: Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

APPENDIX C TABLES AND LINE GRAPHS

Table 1: Federal Observers by Election Type and State (1995 – 2012)

	Election Type (Jurisdiction Counts)						Total Observers
	Federal	State	School District	Municipal	Other	Total Jurisdictions
AK	0	1	0	1	0	2	18
AL	3	16	0	8	0	27	306
AZ	8	33	0	2	0	43	1,074
CA	3	21	0	12	1	37	1,093
GA	4	15	1	2	1	23	235
IL	1	4	0	5	0	10	297
IN	0	0	0	2	0	2	120
LA	0	10	0	3	2	15	180
MA	0	8	0	8	3	19	716
MI	2	5	0	4	2	13	385
MS	18	129	0	18	7	172	1,850
NE	0	2	0	0	0	2	15
NJ	2	13	4	4	1	24	525
NM	17	33	3	0	1	54	894
NY	8	27	2	9	0	46	663
OH	0	6	0	0	0	6	191
PA	0	7	0	2	0	9	512
SC	1	7	0	1	0	9	149
SD	0	10	0	0	0	10	119
TX	4	29	0	18	1	52	1,123
UT	4	1	0	0	0	5	99
WA	0	2	1	0	0	3	138
Total	75	379	11	99	19	583	10,702

Data: Information derived from U.S. Department of Justice records.

Table 2: Federal Observers by Election Type (1995 – 2012)

	Election Type					Total
	Federal	State	School District	Municipal	Other
Total Jurisdictions	75	379	11	99	19	583
Total Observers	1,235	7,196	173	1,733	365	10,702

Data: Information derived from U.S. Department of Justice records.

Tables 3–5: Limited English Proficiency (LEP) Populations

Top Ten Languages Spoken by Limited English Proficiency Individuals, 2010
Rank	Language	Number (in thousands)	Share
1	Spanish or Spanish Creole	16,524	65.5
2	Chinese	1,548	6.1
3	Vietnamese	836	3.3
4	Korean	635	2.5
5	Tagalog	489	1.9
6	Russian	416	1.7
7	French Creole	323	1.3
8	Arabic	321	1.3
9	Portuguese or Portuguese Creole	277	1.1
10	African Languages	276	1.1

Data: Migration Policy Institute, National Center on Immigrant Integration Policy, "LEP Data Brief". Dec. 2011

Top States for Number and Share of Limited English Proficiency Residents, 2010
Rank	State	LEP Population (thousands)	Share of Total US LEP Population (percent)
1	California	6,898	27.3%
2	Texas	3,359	13.3%
3	New York	2,458	9.7%
4	Florida	2,112	8.4%
5	Illinois	1,158	4.6%
6	New Jersey	1,031	4.1%

Data: Migration Policy Institute, National Center on Immigrant Integration Policy, "LEP Data Brief". Dec. 2011

Top Ten States with the Highest Growth in Limited English Proficiency Population, 1990 to 2010
Rank	State	1990 LEP Population (thousands)	2010 LEP Population (thousands)	Change from 1990 to 2010 (percent)
1	Nevada	62	310	398.2
2	North Carolina	87	430	395.2
3	Georgia	109	522	378.8
4	Arkansas	21	88	311.5
5	Tennessee	46	174	281.4
6	Nebraska	22	76	242.2
7	South Carolina	38	127	237.2
8	Utah	41	137	235.2
9	Washington	165	512	209.7
10	Alabama	36	109	202.1
	U.S.	13,983	25,223	80.4

Data: Migration Policy Institute, National Center on Immigrant Integration Policy, "LEP Data Brief". Dec. 2011

Graph 1: Voter Turnout for Presidential Elections
Citizen Voting Age Population

Graph 2: Voter Turnout for Midterm Elections
Citizen Voting Age Population

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Current Population Survey, November 2012 and earlier reports, Table A-1. Analysis by Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. *Due to changes in the CPS race categories beginning in 2003, 2004-2012 data on race are not directly comparable with data from earlier years.

Graph 3: Voter Registration for Midterm Elections
Citizen Voting Age Population

Graph 4: Voter Registration for Presidential Elections
Citizen Voting Age Population

Data: U.S. Census Bureau, Current Population Survey, November 2012 and earlier reports, Table A-1. Analysis by Voting Rights Project, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. *Due to changes in the CPS race categories beginning in 2003, 2004-2012 data on race are not directly comparable with data from earlier years.

VISIT WWW.VOTINGRIGHTSTODAY.ORG

Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

1401 New York Avenue, NW, Suite 400

Washington, D.C. 20005

202-662-8600

<http://www.lawyerscommittee.org/>

Table of Contents

2. Alabama Hearing Transcript
3. Arizona Hearing Transcript
4. Baltimore Hearing Transcript
5. Boston Regional Hearing Transcript
6. California Hearing Transcript

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23

ALABAMA STATE HEARING

NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

DATE: April 1, 2014
TIME: 3:00 p.m.
PLACE: St. Paul's Methodist Church
1500 6th Avenue North
Birmingham, Alabama 35203

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23

APPEARANCES

Appearing For The Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law:

Mr. Alejandro T. Reyes
1401 New York Avenue NW
Suite 400
Washington, DC 2005-2124

Members of the Commission:

Mr. Jerome Gray
Mr. Scott Douglas
Mr. Lee Loder
Mr. Bernard Simelton, Chair

Court Reporter: Anne E. Miller

1 P R O C E E D I N G S

2

3 MR. REYES: Hello, everyone. We are 4 going to go ahead and get started. I am going to 5 briefly introduce our guest commissioners, and the 6 Chair today will be Mr. Bernard Simelton. My name
7 is Alejandro Reyes. I'm an attorney for Civil 8 Rights in the Law, and I'm very happy to be here
9 today. I want to thank everyone who has come out.
10 I want to especially thank our co-sponsors for 11 this event, State Conference of NAACP, National 12 Congress of Black Women. And with that, I would 13 like to introduce our guest speakers.

14 Before I do, just to let you know that 15 we will have food downstairs. There is a restroom
16 out this door. For those of you who will be 17 testifying either formally on a panel or during 18 the public testimony portion of our hearing, 19 please be sure that when you begin, you say your 20 name; if you are with an organization, the name of 21 your organization. And this will allow the court
22 reporter to transcribe your testimony. Please be 23 mindful that everything we are saying today will

1 be transcribed and will be made publicly
2 available.

3 With that, I would like to introduce our 4 guest commissioners. Starting here on your right,
5 my left -- I will begin here on your right,
6 beginning here is Mr. Lee Loder. Mr. Loder is an 7 attorney and founder of Gift Corps. To his left
8 is Mr. Bernard Simelton, president of Alabama
9 State Conference of NAACP. To his left is 10 Mr. Scott Douglas, the executive director with the 11 Greater Birmingham Ministries. And to his left is 12 Mr. Jerome Gray, Senior, retired, Democrat
13 Conference, ADC field director. With that, I will 14 turn it over to you, Mr. Simelton. Thank you.

15 MR. SIMELTON: Good afternoon, everyone.
16 We certainly want to thank the Lawyers Group for 17 coming to Alabama, which is a cradle of the Voting
18 Rights Act, where it was born and unfortunately 19 it's where it met its death. But it's not dead
20 because we are going to keep it alive. But we are 21 glad to be here this afternoon, and we thank all 22 of you all for taking the time to come out and 23 share your views of what has happened to you

1 during the -- be it good or bad during the voting
2 process. And voting is a process. It just
3 doesn't start on voting day or election day. It
4 starts much sooner than that. And so we are glad
5 to have all of you here. Thank our commissioners
6 who took time out of their busy schedule to be 7 here today, and we also want to thank the sponsors
8 for being here and to show their support as well.

9 What we would like to do, first of all,
10 is before the commissioners have an opportunity to 11 give their testimony, we just want since it's a 12 small audience for everyone to stand up and just 13 tell who you are and what organization or where 14 you are from. So we will start with the gentleman
15 in the back.

16 MR. O'NEAL: My name is Ervin O'Neal.
17 I'm not a committee, just a citizen coming out to 18 hear what's being said and maybe if there is any 19 opportunity will give some involvement.

20 MR. SIMELTON: You are from?

21 MR. O'NEAL: I live here in Birmingham.

22 MR. SIMELTON: Okay, Birmingham. Okay.

23 Thank you.

1 MS. LEWIS: Good afternoon. My name is
2 Chastity Lewis, and I am with Congresswoman Terri
3 Sewell's office here in Birmingham.

4 MS. LEWIS: Good afternoon also. I'm
5 from Shelby County NAACP, Ms. Joyce Lewis. I am
6 glad to be here.

7 MR. HARRIS: Bobby Lee Harris, former
8 councilman, City of Alabaster in Shelby County.

9 MR. THREAT: Mark Threat. I live at 10 5515 Highway 62 in Vincent, Alabama, and I'm 11 representing myself.

12 MS. MIDDLETON: Good afternoon. My name
13 is Shirley Middleton. I serve on the town council
14 of Harpersville. That's in Shelby County.

15 MS. THREAT: Good afternoon. My name is 16 Wanda Threat. I have just come with my husband.

17 MS. GIBBONS: I'm Ann Gibbons. I'm an 18 attorney. I have a home in Vincent, Alabama, and 19 I have been involved with the election over the 20 past four years in Vincent.

21 MR. HARRIS: Good afternoon. My name is
22 Commissioner John Andrew Harris. I'm from Lee
23 County. I come to give a testimony here. I have

1 been an elected official of Lee County for over
2 26 years. Thank you.

3 MR. HENDERSON: Good afternoon. Jerry
4 Henderson, Pike County, Alabama.

5 MS. SHORT: Good afternoon. I'm Karen
6 Short, and I live in Montgomery, Alabama. And I'm 7 an attorney at Southern Poverty Law Center.

8 MRS. SERVIN: Hello all. My name is 9 Evelyn Servin, and I am with the Alabama Coalition
10 for Immigrant Justice. And I actually live in 11 Russellville, Franklin County.

12 MR. DALE: Good afternoon. I'm 13 Reverend Charles A. Dale, Franklin County, and 14 ADC chairman from Franklin County. Also I'm with 15 the NAACP Tri County branch. And I am going to be 16 testifying. Okay.

17 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you all. I
18 know you are with the church, ma'am.

19 MS. BELL: Well, I represent the church,
20 and I'm Lesley Bell. I'm a member of St. Paul's, 21 and we welcome you all. We are honored that you
22 are here.

23 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you all. And at

1 this time, I believe our agenda calls for the 2 commissioners to have up to five minutes to give 3 an introductory statement about themselves, and I
4 will start on my left with Mr. Jerome Gray,
5 Senior.

6 MR. GRAY: I'm not a senior, but I'm
7 Jerome Gray. My home is Evergreen, Alabama. I'm 8 retired. I serve as state field director for the 9 Alabama Democratic Conference for 27 years. I 10 served as Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture for 11 three years with the State of Alabama, 2008. I
12 was state political director for the Barak Obama
13 campaign. And since I have been retired, one of 14 the things I have continued to do is stay involved
15 in my community. And one of the things that 16 happened in the last year is that through our 17 local NAACP and Democratic conference, we 18 challenged the City of Evergreen in Section 2
19 voting rights lawsuit that we won. It took about 20 a little over a year, but we became the first 21 jurisdiction after Shelby County to become covered 22 by Section 3 of the Voting Rights Act. So we will 23 have protection in terms of the City of Evergreen

1 through 2020 elections, and we will have the 2 advantage of having federal observers to come and 3 monitor our elections. The city cannot draw new 4 lines, cannot make any changes without the court's 5 approval. No annexations can be made without the 6 plaintiffs having an opportunity to participate in 7 that process. So we are happy to have been 8 organized to the point to be able to push back and 9 win a Section 2 lawsuit post Shelby that gives us
10 this protection going forward under Section 3 of 11 the 1965 Voting Rights Act through 2020.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Next Mr. Scott Douglas.
13 Go ahead.

14 MR. DOUGLAS: Good afternoon. I'm Scott
15 Douglas, and like Lesley, I'm executive director
16 of the Greater Birmingham Ministries. And like 17 Lesley, I'm a member of St. Paul's United 18 Methodist Church. And I want to extend a welcome
19 because this church in 1963 was the departure 20 point for most of the failed marches in the civil 21 rights demonstration of 1963. I call them failed
22 marches because they were going from this church
23 to city hall, but something happened along the

1 way; the dogs, Bull Connor, the fire hoses.

2 In the basement, in the fellowship hall
3 in this church is where Reverend C. T. Vivian
4 conducted nonviolence civil disobedience training
5 where they passed around our collection plates.
6 They weren't collecting money. They were 7 collecting guns and knives and other things that 8 could deter from the peaceful nature of the 9 nonviolence civil disobedience protest. People
10 learned how to be nonviolent, how to practice love
11 in the face of hate. So welcome to this place.

12 And I will just finish by saying I'm not 13 a Voting Rights Act expert. I'm just a person who 14 wants to vote, exercise my full citizenship and 15 choose the leadership of my local, state and 16 national government. But we operate in a state
17 that in 1901 adopted a constitution whose stated
18 purpose was one major goal, to quote
19 "disenfranchise the negro," the newly freed slaves
20 who had come to vote after the Civil War. And the 21 vote had been restored by the 14th Amendment. But 22 that struggle still continues, the one that 23 began -- really began in 1901.

1 There were some heroes in the 1901
2 constitution. Yeah. One white delegate, no black
3 delegates were allowed, male or female, said,
4 "Sir," to the proponents of this 5 disenfranchisement, if you disenfranchise the 6 negro with a poll tax, you also disenfranchise
7 poor whites." And his response was, "So be it."
8 The efforts to shut up the voices of the newly 9 freed slaves continued for decades and for a 10 century or more until this day. And I see it as 11 part of one effort to silence all poor people and 12 black people in particular from having a voice in 13 the government of this state.

14 I'm saddened by the fact that Alabama
15 never chose justice on its own. The justice that 16 we have was demanded in the streets of Birmingham,
17 demanded on the bridge in Selma, and produced by 18 congress and the conscience of the nation. Once
19 again we must waken the conscience of the nation
20 and the world to the plight of the diminishing
21 democracy that we are facing today. So I look
22 forward to hearing the testimony. We have a case 23 to fight for, and we are not fighting for our

1 vote. We are fighting as Dr. King fought to save
2 the sole of America.

3 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you.

4 MR. LODER: Good afternoon. I'm Lee
5 Loder, and I am an attorney here in Birmingham. I
6 have handled several civil rights cases. I served
7 on the Birmingham City Council for approximately 8 two terms in the early part of 2000. Speaking of 9 voting rights, my father was one of the plaintiffs 10 on the lawsuit in Birmingham that ultimately led 11 to the district voting in the city. At that time 12 there was a question about voter dilution of 13 residents of the eastern area, most of whom were 14 white residents, but that voter dilution also 15 affected black residents who lived on the eastern 16 side of town. My father participated in that 17 lawsuit. I had a firsthand -- front row seat on a 18 voting rights challenge that now, you know,
19 districts seem to be and everybody seems to be 20 really comfortable with their districts. And who 21 knows where we are headed from here now.

22 But additionally, I have been in the 23 ministry for, I guess, almost two decades. And I

1 wanted to mention something. Ms. Kennedy, Yvonne
2 Kennedy is here, and we are also sitting in 3 hallowed halls because her father, the Reverend 4 Dr. Joseph Lowery, pastored here for four and a 5 half years. A lot of people don't know that 6 tidbit of history, and he happened to be my pastor
7 under watch here while I was in Atlanta serving in 8 school at Morehouse College and serving at Kent
9 State. But we are truly on hallowed ground.

10 I'm not going to talk long because I
11 really want to listen to what everybody has to 12 say, and our job is going to be to try to prick
13 your conscience and try to encourage you to really 14 dig deep within the wells of your conscience to 15 try to figure out this dilemma that we have with 16 the Voting Rights Act. And I was listening to 17 Mr. Gray. Mr. Gray is one of the premiere -- he 18 is the guru -- he won't say this, but I will -- 19 activist. And he does such a good job of 20 protecting his community and this state. And you
21 can see, they are covered down there in his area.
22 So we have a lot of work to do. We need a lot of 23 Mr. Grays.

1 But I read the opinion, the Supreme
2 Court opinion, before I came here. I wanted to 3 try to understand exactly what they said. And 4 these are the things that I'm listening for as you
5 give your testimony. A couple of things, when I
6 first read it, the first thing that happened, I
7 became really afraid, alarmed and to some degree
8 concerned about the extent to which even this kind
9 of hearing might help. One of the reasons why I
10 say that is because the current court -- obviously 11 the court changes. That's going to solve part of 12 the problem, but we don't know how quickly. We 13 don't know when that will happen. That could be 14 years from now. But assuming that the courts 15 remain similar to its current structure, one of 16 the things that the court rejected was the 17 congressional record, the argument that the 18 congressional record had a lot of instances of 19 current discriminatory acts. And, you know, those 20 of us who are lawyers or law school in other 21 words, we know judges like to do that when we are 22 trying to obtain an opinion and support. They 23 will just ignore stuff that really matters. So

1 apparently there was a congressional record that
2 had evidence of current Voting Right Acts since 3 the enactment that the Supreme Court chose to 4 ignore. One of the reasons they ignored it is 5 because they argued that congress ignored it.

6 The second thing is they also ignore
7 this notion that there is second generation
8 discrimination going on. Second generation
9 discrimination. This notion that maybe we don't 10 have to read, you know, the constitution in order
11 to take a test or we don't have to pay a poll tax
12 or we don't have to do that. But the notion that, 13 you know, our children, the children of those who 14 had to pay poll tax or who had to read lengthy 15 scripts before they could vote, are still affected
16 by what happened to their parents and to their 17 grandparents. They rejected that notion. So
18 that's something I'm listening to because maybe
19 there is more scientific support for second
20 generation effects of voting rights.

21 The other thing is this is probably the 22 most important argument that the Court used to 23 strike down Section 4 was the argument that the

1 states weren't being treated equally. I mean,
2 that's interesting that they would argue that, the 3 states were being discriminated against.
4 Fundamentally that's what they said. So that's 5 interesting because I think any strategy that we 6 have to address it is going to have to be a
7 national strategy. It's going to have to be a
8 strategy, and I think -- my time is already up.
9 So that's something I will also be looking for is 10 issues that affect everyone equally all across the 11 country. So I look forward to it.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you, Mr.
13 Loder. And I would just like to say in addition,
14 Bernard Simelton, president of the state NAACP.
15 And for years the NAACP has been very instrumental 16 in helping people to register to vote and get out
17 to vote. But I think one of the things that we 18 have not done as well as we should is educating 19 people on why it is really important to vote.
20 Because if you educate them on why it's important
21 to vote, we believe that, you know, the person
22 will vote year after year after year after year
23 rather than voting only during the presidential

1 election. And all politics are local, so a lot of 2 the local elections can be won by these two or 3 three votes. So it's important for people at the 4 local level to understand why it is so important
5 to not let that right that your forefathers and 6 your foreparents, you know, fought so hard and 7 died for. And every time I cross the Pettus
8 Bridge, you know, I'm thoroughly reminded of the 9 beating that took place on that bloody Sunday.
10 And it was a senseless beating that, you know,
11 changed the nation. And if it had not been for 12 the press, if it not been for the press that was 13 there to show the world and show this nation what 14 was happening in Selma, Alabama, you know, voting
15 rights certainly would have been delayed. I'm 16 quite sure we would have it by now, but it
17 certainly would have been delayed.

18 But we want to thank again all of you
19 for being here, and at this point we are going to 20 call our first two guest panelists. I think we 21 are at that point. So we are going to call 22 Mr. Bobby Harris and Mr. John Harris to come and 23 testify.

1 AUDIENCE: She told me to advise you
2 that the news media were here.

3 MR. SIMELTON: That's fine. They can
4 come on in. So if Mr. Harris and Mr. Harris would 5 take their seats. And if you have a schedule in 6 front of you, we are going to have to mix it up
7 because some of the panel members are not here.
8 So rather than try and wait, we are going to go
9 forth with the ones that are here. And the ones
10 that come late, we will catch them up. Please 11 before you start your testimony, please state your 12 name for the court reporter, and I have been 13 reminded that she does not -- if you don't do it 14 the first couple of times, she will hit you over 15 the head to get your attention. So with that 16 being said, Mr. Bobby Harris, if you want to go
17 first.

18 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: Yes. Thank you, sir.
19 Bobby Harris from the City of Alabaster in Shelby 20 County. I have about three and a half pages, and 21 I will use up four minutes. Prior to the year
22 2004, I served 12 years on the Alabaster, Alabama,
23 City Council. I represented Ward One, minority

1 ward, so designated by the Dillard lawsuit. A 2 minority had represented this ward since 1976 or 3 earlier. During the years 1995 through 2000, the 4 City of Alabaster approved ordinances which
5 assigned large white populations to my ward, Ward
6 One. During the 2000 municipal elections, it was 7 determined by the United States Department of 8 Justice voting right section that the city
9 approved ordinances to my ward had not been 10 cleared by that department. So the Lawyers
11 Committee in Washington, along with attorney Ed
12 Steel, attorneys from the U. S. Justice Department
13 and attorneys from North Carolina, the Justice
14 Department came to Alabaster. And they allowed 15 the city election from mayor and council to go on 16 according to state law. However, the unapproved
17 neighborhood, Weatherly, which was the white
18 annexed neighborhood, they could vote for mayor
19 but they could not vote for City Council.

20 I was opposed by a white gentleman, Todd
21 Goode. After the election, my opponent received
22 the most votes, but the Justice Department
23 disallowed all votes from the unprecleared section

1 of Weatherly for council. I was allowed to remain
2 in office for four more years in spite of state
3 and federal litigation. The local, the state and 4 the federal courts affirmed my election in respect
5 to the voting rights at the 1965 and beyond, which 6 is preclearance. United States Supreme Court took 7 no position when it was appealed all the way to 8 the U. S. Supreme Court.

9 However, I ran once again for reelection
10 in 2004, and I was defeated by another white
11 opponent from the same annexed Weatherly
12 subdivision. I was defeated by less than 50
13 votes. As a result of my defeat and the failure
14 of the City of Alabaster to remedy the voting 15 blight, there is no minority representation on the 16 City Council as of this date. Since 2004, a 17 minority has failed to seek election to the 18 council from Ward One, the designated minority
19 ward. The ward is represented today by a white 20 female, Sophia Martin.

21 Finally, as a result, Section 5 of the 22 Voting Rights Act helped me in the year 2000.
23 However, the retro regression did me in in 2004,

1 and there was no remedy sought to rectify the loss
2 of minority representation in Alabaster, Alabama,
3 the largest city in Shelby County, Alabama. Thank
4 you.

5 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you, Mr.
6 Harris, Mr. Bobby Harris. Shall we ask questions
7 now or just go to the next one and ask questions?

8 MR. GRAY: I say let's go to the next
9 one.

10 MR. SIMELTON: Mr. John Harris.

11 MR. JOHN HARRIS: My name is
12 Commissioner John Andrew Harris. I'm from Lee
13 County. I'm the oldest serving commissioner in 14 Lee County, and I have talked to Mr. Gray about 15 this voting precinct in my district, one in my 16 district and one in part of my district. That's 17 at the Thomas and the National Guard Armory in Lee 18 County. And those voting places have been in 19 existence ever since I have been in the county
20 commission. I have been a county commissioner
21 since '94, and I have been in the City Council
22 area since 1986. And at this commission two weeks
23 ago, our channel building has brought a resolution

1 to the other commissioners requesting that there
2 be some voting places changed. I questioned that.
3 I said the commission hasn't deliberated on the 4 voting changes. We have no public input in a
5 voting change. How can you come up at election
6 time in June and got one in November and come
7 about a change now? Because what I was concerned
8 about and I told him, I said, this year we had a
9 very tough time in the changing of the district
10 line. And they had talked to all the commission
11 about what district they are going to get. Then 12 they are going to come to me at the last minute
13 and say, "Well, Commissioner, you have to do this.
14 No, you can't do that." We have to be fair about 15 this, and we have to have all types of input
16 there.

17 And we had contention -- a debate on the 18 county commission, and they were saying they are 19 going to vote. They said they had voted four to 20 one, and I threatened them with a lawsuit. So at 21 the next commission meeting, they came to the 22 conclusion and said, "Commission, if you will drop 23 your lawsuit, we will come and raise your

1 percentage up a little bit."

2 Then after that, I got notice because
3 I'm very active in keeping registered voters and 4 being active about changing some things in our 5 area. And I went into the voter register list,
6 and they have taken 780 felonies off the voting
7 list this year. I said, "Why are you all doing
8 that?" I said, "Give me the names" because these 9 people weren't notified and some of the letters --
10 they got a certified letter and some of the 11 addresses, they weren't notified. Some of them
12 weren't felonies because I had straightened them
13 out myself, and they knock on my door. They said, 14 "We have being voting 30 years, 10 years. We have 15 never been taken off the list. Why are they doing
16 this now?" I asked the question. I went to voter 17 registration and said give me the names and 18 addresses.

19 I contacted Jerome, saying they are 20 going to -- with the state, they told me that I 21 had to fill out a public information thing. And 22 there was still no way. I needed that list to 23 help those people get straightened out. Then

1 after that, that's when they had this polling
2 place change. I said, "Why are you messing with 3 my district?" They haven't messed with no other 4 commission district. But part of that, one of the 5 commissioners, he got part and I got part. But 6 one of them was directly in my district. So what 7 I did -- and I talked to Jerome about that -- is 8 that I said, "Why did we request the change?" He 9 said the mayor, Gary Fuller, and him talked.
10 That's the mayor. I said the mayor hasn't got 11 anything to do with our election. This is a 12 county building. We should sit around the table 13 as a commission and deliberate on this, and if we 14 are going to change, do all the boxes. But what 15 my thinking is what is convenient for the citizens
16 of Lee County? Let's bring the public in because 17 most of the people are telling me they didn't like 18 that change. They didn't want to do that. They 19 rejected the public input about them changes.
20 They said the channel made a statement saying,
21 "well, in this law book, we don't have to have a
22 public hearing. We can go ahead and do it anyway.
23 We have the vote. He said the mayor said he would

1 accommodate us and put on that new facility and 2 without any regards to what I had to say. One of 3 them was directly in my district and one of them
4 was part of my district, but lots of people in 5 that district. I want to remind the panel that 6 changes, the move, there was a larger precinct in 7 the City of Opelika, a larger voting. That place
8 was for people to vote there in high percentages,
9 and lots of people in my district voted there.

10 I asked for a list -- I asked for a list
11 because I want to know the name because, you know,
12 Mr. Gray had talked to me about this and how many 13 people are going to be affected. And I did that 14 because I needed that information. At the last -- 15 I asked that two weeks ago. You know what they 16 did? I got a sheet of paper with some numbers. I 17 didn't get no names. They gave me a sheet of 18 paper saying that they had 5,000 something votes
19 in this other man's district and 245 in my 20 district. I know that was wrong. I said, "Well,
21 why don't they give me no names because I know
22 most of the people and the address?" I didn't ask
23 for this. You can put any numbers on it. 5,000

1 is unrealistic because if you look at this and the 2 City of Opelika, every City Council person, there
3 is about 5,000 votes for the City Council. It has 4 five wards. That's a whole City of Opelika
5 voting. You have kids and everything. Them
6 numbers are unrealistic. I told them that. I
7 can't accept this. This is just some numbers you
8 are going to put on a piece of paper. What's 9 wrong with giving me the voting list with the 10 address and names? What's wrong with bringing 11 people up here to a public hearing? Because if we 12 are talking about accommodating the people, that 13 would be a way to accommodate the people.
14 Somebody had a problem, they said the air-
15 condition. But we didn't have no air-conditioner.
16 I had a guy, Reverend Wilson. I think, Jerome,
17 you know Reverend Wilson. But he has been voting
18 in this place 40 years. I talked to him. Said
19 never had a problem. Used to be a poll worker
20 over there. Never had a problem. So you all want 21 to let people -- and we take them to the polls and 22 never had a problem.

23 So I have a direct conflict with the

1 commission because of the changes in this Voting
2 Rights Act, which Jerome knows what I'm talking
3 about. They feel let down, says the law is going 4 to change, they can do what they want to do. We 5 had a lot of people at that commission meeting,
6 and they said they didn't like it. They wanted
7 some change. But that's basically why I'm here
8 today to give you my testimony of what went on.

9 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you, Mr.
10 Harris, John Harris that is. Okay. Now we'll ask
11 the commissioners if they have questions of either
12 of the panel members. Mr. Gray?

13 MR. GRAY: I guess I do to Mr. Bobby
14 Harris first. You indicated that since you were 15 defeated in 2004, that no black candidates have 16 sought election to City Council in Alabaster since 17 2004?

18 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: Have not.

19 MR. GRAY: Right, have not. What would 20 be your response to a city that would say that 21 these annexations that we are making and that we 22 have made going forward are not racial, but we are 23 doing it simply for growth potential and economic

1 development?

2 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: Well, that's a very
3 good question. I even suggested to the city that 4 we assign the new ordinances, the new annex
5 people, we will assign them to different city
6 wards. Instead of assigning them to the ward
7 which was contiguous to my ward for voting
8 purposes, assign them to another ward which would 9 also be contiguous. We have seven wards. So that 10 means this particular population that was annexed
11 is contiguous to at least three wards. My 12 recommendation was that you assign the voters, the 13 new voters, to another majority white ward. And 14 eventually you can go back and count the votes and 15 come up with a way. You may have to go to nine 16 districts. Instead of seven wards, go to nine
17 wards. Homewood, Alabama, has 11 or 12, I 18 believe. So I know it's valid. So that would be 19 my recommendation.

20 MR. GRAY: Did you propose to them,
21 let's say, if their response probably would be 22 that we do not want to increase the number of 23 districts just so that we can keep a minority

1 black district per se in terms of the sharing of 2 the new population that was added to the City of 3 Alabaster to annexations, did you propose or get 4 anyone to draft a plan that would disperse that 5 population in such a way that it still would have 6 allowed that Ward One to remain majority black or 7 nearly so?

8 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: In 2004, I did not 9 make that recommendation because I had been 10 defeated. I lost the election. When I lost the 11 election, there was more like a ground swell of 12 support from various people in the community, in 13 the white community, that this is really what we 14 want. And it was just like me fighting as a lone 15 ranger at that particular time. And I didn't make 16 any other recommendations as to what we can do. I
17 made my recommendation prior to the election.
18 Prior to -- see, I had -- the Justice Department
19 and Lawyers Committee came in in the year 2000.
20 That's when I recommended the remedy. The Justice
21 Department and the Lawyers Committee kept me on 22 the council up to 2004. So in 2004, I lost the 23 election. After I was defeated, I didn't make any

1 recommendations as to which direction we should go
2 because there was almost nonsupport.

3 MR. GRAY: Nonsupport from the white
4 community?

5 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: Yes.

6 MR. GRAY: Yeah. But if you all are 7 thinking about maintaining minority representation
8 as a strategy, even though you had been defeated
9 as a candidate, in terms of making a record, I
10 think it would probably have been a good strategy
11 even though you were a losing candidate to have 12 some group or demographer to draw a plan that 13 would have shown from a record that if this 14 annexed population had been dispersed in a 15 different way or assigned a different way to these 16 seven districts, the outcome could have been 17 different or may be different going forward for 18 other candidates who may compete, minority
19 candidates.

20 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: That's good in 21 hindsight, yes. And that's one reason I'm here 22 today. Perhaps the Lawyers Committee or some 23 other group can come in and take look at the 1 demographics from here, yes.

2 MR. LODER: Mr. Chairman, Mr. Bobby
3 Harris, was your testimony a part of the record or 4 did you give an affidavit in the Shelby County
5 case?

6 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: I did, yes.

7 MR. LODER: I also wanted to ask
8 Mr. John Harris, can you clarify for me exactly 9 what they were doing to the box you were talking 10 about? I know you were saying they were 11 manipulating the box. Did you say they were 12 splitting the box or --

13 MR. JOHN HARRIS: No, they didn't split
14 the box. Basically what they did, they had the 15 box located at the National Guard Armory. They 16 moved it to the sports complex.

17 MR. LODER: They moved the boxes, one of 18 your boxes?

19 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Part of my boxes. One 20 of the boxes at Tom, that's my district. The 21 other box is in the -- you are talking about an 22 additional four not in my district, because a lot
23 of my voters vote at that place because it's

1 centrally located. Most of the people that vote
2 in my district use that box to vote at. Where 3 they have located at now, it's at a nice facility,
4 but it's inconvenient for them to go there because 5 if you know anything about Opelika, where the 6 Opelika High School is at, teachers and students,
7 when they get out from the school, the teachers
8 get out from their job, they can go right across 9 the street and vote.

10 And you look at the history of that box, 11 more people in Opelika vote at that box at the 12 National Guard Armory because it's centrally 13 located than any box in the City of Opelika. They 14 have a big turnout, my constituents and the other 15 constituents too. So that was the reason I asked
16 why are you going to move it. The commission
17 didn't deliberate on it. We didn't have no public 18 hearing for it. The citizens said, "Well, it's 19 inconvenient to us." And the other commissioners
20 up there -- I'm the only candidate that got 21 elected -- nine in the county, Lee County, the 22 only Democrat in the courthouse.

23 So I asked the question, "Why do you

1 three move the people in my district that vote for 2 me and the people that vote for the state
3 representative?" He was at that meeting, he was 4 very concerned with that. They were trying to put 5 it on the mayor. See, the City of Opelika changed
6 their voting places, and I wanted that testimony
7 to be said. Two years from now, they are going to 8 be voting at the sports complex. So what they 9 were thinking that they didn't confuse the people
10 during this election this time. See, their 11 election is two years from now. If they are going 12 to change, why are you going to change in two 13 years? Why do you want to do it right now? It's 14 early to move it now.

15 Then I said -- I can understand we had a 16 public input like Jerome and I talked about. You 17 bring it to a public hearing. And most of the 18 people in the armory said they want a change. As 19 being a commissioner and a veteran representative,
20 I couldn't say anything. We had had one citizen
21 request a change. But I asked the citizens come 22 to the meeting and say they didn't want no change.

23 MR. GRAY: John Harris, I wanted to ask

1 you just on the record, you were elected to the 2 commission in 1994?

3 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's correct.

4 MR. GRAY: And that National Guard
5 Armory site has been used as a polling place
6 without any problem or request from you or 7 citizens to be moved since 1994; is that correct?

8 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's correct.

9 MR. GRAY: Give the specific reason that 10 was told at the county commission meeting a couple
11 of Mondays again that they wanted to move it.

12 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Well, the probate
13 judge came in with a resolution and said he had 14 talked to Mayor Fuller. He is the mayor of the 15 City of Opelika. And Mayor Fuller told him that 16 they had made a move to the city to the sports
17 complex because they said that the 18 air-conditioning. And when they feed that, you
19 know, them ballots in the box, they had a little 20 problem. That's what he said.

21 So I talked to the mayor about that, and 22 the mayor said he didn't say that. It was a 23 little different. He said the probate judge is

1 trying to kind of encourage him to make a move by 2 the air-conditioning. He said, "Well, there is 3 something wrong with the air-conditioning. We 4 moved over here where the county can move over
5 there." So he brought that back to the county
6 commission. I called the mayor. I asked him, I
7 said, "Mayor, did you say that?" He said no. He 8 said the probate judge asked me if there was any 9 problem there." And I said, "I have been in the 10 commission since '94. I ain't never had a citizen 11 come up here, talk to me or said anything to the 12 commission about they wanted to move or change."
13 I said, "That's my district, and this is the other
14 commissioner's district. Even he didn't make no
15 request to change. How can you all come up here
16 and make the change? Plus one of those boxes,
17 here is my district, Thomas.

18 MR. GRAY: Why did they want to move --
19 what was the reason given for wanting to move the 20 one from Tom's to a new location?

21 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Well, that is simply 22 saying -- I want to make that statement too.
23 People that vote in my district, 77 percent of my

1 constituents vote in that. The reason they said
2 they were going to move that because when it rains
3 sometimes, Jerome, the ground get a little -- when 4 people are trying to park and stuff like that,
5 that was the reason they do it. But like I
6 said --

7 MR. GRAY: But that place has been used
8 how long has as a polling place?

9 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Ever since I have been
10 there.

11 MR. GRAY: Since 1994?

12 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Yes, since 1994.
13 Never had no problems. You probably have that 14 problem with some parking, but what's wrong with 15 us taking care of that and fixing that? If you
16 have a -- they put it back over there at the fire
17 station, about a mile away from where the original 18 poll. And that's really the heart of my district.

19 MR. GRAY: Okay. Thank you.

20 MR. DOUGLAS: Yeah. Mr. John Harris, I
21 lost track of the time sequence. When did these 22 polling place changes happen?

23 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Okay. About two weeks

1 ago, they voted to change because what the probate
2 judge read to us, they had a state law saying you
3 had nine days prior to the election that you can 4 move a voting place. See, they didn't give the 5 commission time to do anything. They read 90
6 days, he brought it to the commission saying he 7 wanted the commission to move. That's too fast.
8 Why we shouldn't talk about that move a long time
9 ago, get a chance to get the people together, give 10 me some information. He gave me a resolution
11 talking about change. I sat down. I can't 12 understand that because the two places you are 13 talking about moving, it affected me because at 14 the National Guard Armory a lot of my constituents
15 vote there. It's centrally located. Nobody had 16 expressed to me they want a change.

17 Same way with Tom, you get the 18 statistics, I can go back and show percentage wise
19 that there is a bigger turnout in that area of 20 voters. They don't have that many people to vote
21 there, but percentage wise because the people that 22 live in that percentage, a big turnout.

23 MR. DOUGLAS: One more thing. In your

1 jurisdiction, county, who has the authority to 2 locate voting places?

3 MR. JOHN HARRIS: The County Commission.

4 MR. DOUGLAS: You are the County
5 Commission?

6 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's correct.

7 MR. DOUGLAS: Did the County Commission
8 vote on the voting changes?

9 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Yeah. Once they
10 brought the resolution, it was four to one.

11 MR. DOUGLAS: Four to one?

12 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's correct.

13 MR. DOUGLAS: Who recommended the new 14 voting place? You mentioned the mayor?

15 MR. JOHN HARRIS: The mayor of the City
16 of Opelika. I said how can the mayor recommend us
17 to move a voting place? I said that's County 18 Commission's job to move the voting place. We 19 didn't have no public input. I haven't had one 20 citizen come up here and say, "We are going to the 21 commission. We want a change." You are correct.

22 MR. DOUGLAS: And you also mentioned
23 that one of the reasons given for the change in

1 voting places is that when it rains, it gets 2 muddy?

3 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's one voting
4 place. That's at the Tom.

5 MR. DOUGLAS: The Tom?

6 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Yeah, the ground, you
7 know, when people drive up.

8 MR. DOUGLAS: Yeah.

9 MR. JOHN HARRIS: But they could have 10 fixed that if we had a problem with that ground.
11 I told them we have equipment that we repaired
12 roads and stuff. That could have been an 13 agreement because we moved in a house that -- you
14 know, these things they have at these schools?

15 MR. DOUGLAS: Portables?

16 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Portable things, they 17 were going to use one of them at this place. One 18 thing about the people that I know to vote, they 19 don't like to vote at the police precinct and 20 where you have all these fire stations because we 21 have one up here. Low voter turnout because they 22 are intimidated. We have a place in Opelika, Lee 23 County, when you put it over there to the City of

1 Opelika, you can't do no kind of campaigning.
2 They can't put signs on the city property. See,
3 that's intimidation. You have to go by the 4 guidelines because we were down there at Best
5 Western one time passing out literature, and I
6 have come in there five times because they said a
7 man on the property and nobody can't pass no
8 literature out. I said the law says you can stand
9 30 feet in front of the voting place and you can 10 pass out any materials. I said that's a law. We 11 used that place, and if we can't do that, we don't 12 need to use that place no more. So when I went 13 down to assist, they sent a sheriff down there two 14 or three times.

15 MR. SIMELTON: I thank you very much for 16 your testimony. Any more questions? Yes in the 17 audience?

18 MS. ROSE. Thank you. I may have 19 misunderstood what the commissioner for the City
20 Council person at Alabaster said, but this is my 21 confusion. If the Justice Department and the 22 Lawyers Committee intervened to allow him to win
23 the election in 2000, what happened different in

1 2004? My question is did they intervene the same
2 way? Were the districts the same? Section 5 was 3 clearly the law in 2004. So if Section 5 clearly
4 could not help you and support you then, why -- I
5 mean, in reviewing Section 5, I would assume it
6 would still help you. So could you please explain
7 to us because I don't think I heard all the facts?
8 What is it are you saying that the Justice
9 Department and the Lawyers Committee should have 10 done something differently? Was there a change in 11 the districts? Exactly what happened to cause you
12 to lose the election or was it just voter turnout?

13 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: That's a good
14 question. Thank you for asking. After the 15 election, I contacted the Lawyers Committee, one
16 of the representatives at the Lawyers Committee,
17 and I was told to wait perhaps another year or 18 later, 18 months. They were going through some 19 transitions, and they would get back with me. We 20 never did get back together. We never did go 21 revisit the defeat, neither did we go back and 22 revisit the reassignment of populations in the 23 City of Alabaster. As a result of that, we have

1 had two elections since that time, 2000, and each
2 time no minority has qualified for election. The 3 population today is around 66 percent white in 4 that particular district, 66 percent. That's 5 where we are right now.

6 MR. LODER: Just to close out, I want to 7 ask two quick questions to summarize. Mr. John
8 Harris, is it my understanding that your testimony
9 is that the moving of the electoral box was an 10 effort to dilute the African-American voting?

11 MR. JOHN HARRIS: That's correct.

12 MR. LODER: And discourage?

13 MR. JOHN HARRIS: Discourage, that's 14 correct.

15 MR. LODER: And same something with 16 Mr. Harris, is it your understanding or is it your 17 position that the annexation of the land and the 18 attempt to place the annexed population in your 19 district was an effort to dilute the African-20 American voting power?

21 MR. JOHN HARRIS: I would say yes. And 22 the same year I lost in 2004, they moved my -- 23 they moved the city election that year also. They

1 moved it from the traditional place of voting to a
2 more consolidated place of voting, somewhat
3 similar to what they attempted to do in Lee
4 County.

5 MR. LODER: And finally, you talked
6 about there was a collective conscience to move on 7 beyond the challenge to the district by 8 particularly what you described were white. Would 9 you describe or did you feel that it rose to the 10 level of intimidation? Did you feel the 11 collective conscience or the members of the 12 community were asking you to not -- to take it
13 under conceal? Did you feel that that was --

14 MR. JOHN HARRIS: I think so because I
15 had fought many fights in the city. I had sued
16 for the principalship of the school and won it
17 through the courts, and there was a lot of -- 18 during the same time period, there was a lot of 19 backlash going on in the city. So it was kind of 20 an exhale moment, kind of a moment to exhale. I
21 exhaled and other people in the community exhaled,
22 white and black. And because of that -- and I'm 23 going to admit it -- somebody dropped the ball as

1 relates to going back and revisit it.

2 MR. GRAY: I want to make a final, I
3 guess, comment. It kind of picks up on Ms.
4 Standard's question to you. And it makes me, I
5 guess, raise the question on annexation issues
6 going forward. And we saw this a lot in the '80's
7 and '90's in redistricting, and particularly in 8 that Dillard case. And we have to be careful
9 about annexations because we saw in the Dillard
10 case where in a number of instances, we wanted and 11 black citizens were requesting local governments,
12 municipalities, to annex certain black areas so
13 that cities would grow and become blacker in terms
14 of minority populations. And the white city
15 fathers many times would refuse because they knew 16 the implications of that. So we have to really 17 watch that whole -- our approach to annexations
18 because we don't want to box ourselves in because 19 if we say that we don't want white growth to take 20 place in certain localities, if it's happening,
21 you know, naturally and not discriminatorily. By 22 the same token, we don't want places where we are 23 growing to be shut out if we are in a position to

1 increase our populations. And we aren't given
2 that opportunity for areas to be annexed in so
3 that communities and cities can become -- increase
4 their black populations.

5 And the other thing when you mentioned
6 about the lawyers didn't get back and you didn't 7 get back to them, I think as community groups, we 8 have to have a strategy ourselves in terms of what 9 we expect and want lawyers to do. And if we can't 10 get free counsel from, say, New York, Washington,
11 DC, sometimes we may have to raise money locally
12 and hire attorneys to represent our interest, if 13 that gives us results more quickly. And I think
14 maybe that's something -- that's why I asked you
15 the question I did earlier about did you all draft
16 a plan to test what the city had done, whether it
17 really was discriminatory. Did you have something 18 to offer to show that if you did it this way, the 19 outcome could have been different, might have been 20 different?

21 MR. BOBBY HARRIS: During 2000, right
22 after 2000, yes. But not in 2004, no.

23 MR. GRAY: Okay. Thank you.

1 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. All right. We
2 want to thank our first panel. You finished your 3 testimony, right? We want to thank you all for 4 your testimony, and we really appreciate your time
5 and very good statements. Thank you all. Give 6 them a round of applause.

7 The next panels that we will call is -- 8 and we are not going by the script because some of 9 the people are not here. We will call Theangelo
10 Perkins.

11 THE AUDIENCE: He is not here.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Then we will call Ms. Ann 13 Gibbons and Mr. Mark Threat. Just a reminder to 14 please state your name when you first begin
15 speaking so the stenographer or court reporter
16 will not hit you on the head. Yes, sir? Question
17 from the audience?

18 MR. HENDERSON: If I am in order, if I
19 could offer a suggestion and recommendation to the 20 commissioners. That as we look at strategies
21 going forward -- and I get back to the point that 22 Mr. Loder raised about looking at what the Supreme 23 Court said last year. And I go to Commissioner

1 Harris's comment that the commissioners stated
2 that they could do whatever they want to do, I
3 don't think that anywhere in the Supreme Court
4 ruling last year they moved discrimination off the 5 table in terms of anything going forward. They 6 talked about it does not exist from the past. But 7 if we will consider as a commission the point that 8 Mr. Harris made that tied the city -- the mayor
9 into this equation, if it was a city
10 recommendation to the commission, there must be 11 something in the minutes of the City Council
12 meeting to move to that point. It's just a 13 detailed point and a procedure matter.

14 And on the question on the four to one
15 vote on the County Commission, back to the issue
16 of the discrimination and the intent, and I think
17 that to some extent --

18 MR. SIMELTON: Are you giving a 19 testimony now or --

20 MR. HENDERSON: No, no.

21 MR. SIMELTON: And could you state your 22 name?

23 MR. HENDERSON: Jerry Henderson.

1 MR. SIMELTON: Jerry Henderson? Thank
2 you, Mr. Henderson. Okay. Are we ready to move
3 on, panel? Commissioners? Okay. We'll start
4 with Attorney Gibbons.

5 MS. GIBBONS: I'm Ann Gibbons,
6 G-i-b-b-o-n-s. I worked 20 years in the United 7 States government in the judicial branch in the 8 chambers of Judge Gewin in the Northern District
9 of Alabama. I now do work -- I have since retired 10 from the government. I do what I want to do, and 11 that's been representing just causes and people
12 that I really care about.

13 I became involved in voting about four 14 years ago when I found out that they were putting 15 a quarry in Shelby County, in Vincent, right next 16 to my farm. I immediately became involved. This 17 was not things that the citizens had known about 18 because it was done surreptitiously. The property
19 was bought without the citizens knowing who had 20 bought it. The problem was that they bought the 21 land in a residential area, and that was zoned
22 agricultural/residential area. They had to redo
23 the city code in order to get that. They bought

1 the land in a predominantly black area. Knowing
2 that this had to be done, they waged a campaign to 3 get the city zoning ordinances changed. I sued
4 them. I kept them in court for over three years,
5 slowing down things while we could get organized
6 in that -- so that we could fight this. We 7 realized -- Vincent did, however, pass the zoning
8 code, which was drafted primarily by White Rock's 9 attorneys, Balch, Bingham. I'm not saying they 10 drafted it themselves, but they certainly had 11 major input into what was there. It was exactly 12 what White Rock Quarries wanted.

13 We realized that we were going to have 14 to elect a council that would represent the 15 people, and we started a campaign to get people to 16 run for office. We were fortunate to have people 17 who volunteered to run for every district, and we 18 were confident that we would be able to win a City
19 Council election the next time. In between time, 20 White Rock had to get the Harpersville -- they 21 were planning to take their product out through 22 Harpersville, and they wanted -- they needed to 23 get a change from a county road to -- from a

1 residential area to a county road. So they took 2 it before the Shelby County Commission.

3 The night that ensued, I was in 4 attendance. The meeting was presided over by 5 Lindsey Allison, chairman of the County
6 Commission. I knew that she was one of the 7 attorneys for White Rock Quarries, and she did not 8 disclose that to anyone until I called it to the 9 attention of the audience. Also sitting on that 10 commission was Mr. Ellis, who is the son of the 11 Shelby County attorney. Mr. Ellis represented us,
12 but he did not represent us. He voted the county 13 line, and he went right along with them and 14 changed that road.

15 When election time came, the city
16 realized that they were going to be able to -- 17 that they were going to lose that election. And 18 so they had Shelby County come in and redistrict
19 Vincent. We had candidates who were going to run
20 in every district. Mrs. Threat, who is sitting 21 over there, was going to run in her district.
22 When the redistricting came in, we found that they 23 -- they had moved all of our candidates into one

1 district, and that district was the district for 2 the one councilman who had voted for us.

3 I'm about out of time, but there is so
4 much involved here. We lost the election by eight
5 votes. The election was posted with eight votes
6 the night of the election. Amazingly the next
7 day, the vote had changed, and they won by 24
8 votes instead of eight votes. This has involved a 9 recount. It's involved petitions for recounts.
10 We found out that the ballots, the absentee 11 ballots, were not handled correctly. The 12 provisional ballots were not handled correctly.
13 And the board of registrars had to seize the 14 provisional ballots by a court order. All of this 15 has gone on and so much more that I could tell you
16 about. Thank you.

17 MR. DOUGLAS: Thank you.

18 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you, Attorney
19 Gibbons. At this time we will hear from 20 Mr. Threat. Remember to state your name.

21 MR. THREAT: My name is Mark Threat, and 22 I live in 5515 Highway 62, Vincent, Shelby County, 23 Alabama. And I received this letter from the

1 voters administration on the 4th and the 18th of 2 2008. And kind of like John Harris, I have a
3 voter number. My voter number is 580035740. And 4 it reads, "Removal from voters list due to felony
5 conviction. In accordance with Section 17-4-131
6 Code of Alabama as amended, the Circuit Clerk has 7 notified the Shelby County Board of Registrars 8 that you have been convicted of a felony which 9 disqualifies you from voting under Amendment 579
10 of the constitution of Alabama. Section 17-4-132
11 requires that you be notified by certified letter
12 that the Board of Registrars will strike your name
13 from the list of registered voters. Section
14 17-4-132 also provides that any person whose name
15 is stricken from this list can appeal the decision
16 of the Board of Registrars without giving security
17 for cost, and a trial by jury may be had. If you 18 wish to appeal this decision, please provide 19 official documentation as to why you feel this 20 action to be incorrect. You have 30 days from the 21 date of this letter to submit your formal appeal
22 request to the Shelby County Board of Registrars.
23 In the event that you appeal, your voting rights

1 will be restored during the appeal process pending
2 the final resolution. Your voting rights may be
3 also restored should you provide official document
4 in proof of the registration of the voting rights
5 by the Board of Pardons and Parols."

6 I received this letter, and I was 7 disturbed. And me and my wife talked about it.
8 So she called her sister, and her sister works for 9 the State of Alabama. But I don't know what kind 10 of letter she wrote, but she wrote a letter to the 11 Board of Registrars. In, I guess, about ten days, 12 I got another letter, which says, "We have 13 received notification from Mary Harris, circuit
14 clerk for Shelby County, advising our office that 15 information contained in the above referenced case
16 number has been correct. The notification sent 17 earlier to our office stating this was a felony
18 conviction was in error. Therefore, we are 19 reinstating your voter's registration to active 20 status. It will not be necessary for you to 21 reregister." But I had a letter saying that -- 22 before I got this letter that I had to reregister.
23 But then I guess she sent them another letter, and

1 now they said that I don't have to reregister.

2 But this was right before the Obama election.

3 MR. DOUGLAS: In '12? 2012?

4 MR. THREAT: 2008. The crime was I was 5 burning some trash. And some trash got away,
6 which I own about 28 acres of land, and the fire
7 got away. And they said that -- I guess setting a 8 fire on your property is a felony. But that was 9 -- that was the only thing that -- which I was not 10 arrested for it. I had -- I posted my own bond
11 that day that the game wardens came.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Are you finished or is 13 there more testimony?

14 MR. THREAT: No.

15 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Well, we will see
16 if our commissioners have any questions for you.
17 At this time we will go to our right since I
18 started on my left last time. Mr. Loder?

19 MR. LODER: Sure. Mr. Threat, now did
20 you actually have a felony?

21 MR. THREAT: No.

22 MR. LODER: Actually the information was 23 incorrect?

1 MR. THREAT: Yeah.

2 MR. LODER: Is what you are saying? So
3 your concern -- let me ask you this: Are you
4 aware of after that happened to you of any other
5 voters who received those letters in error? Is it
6 your opinion that that may be a common mistake and 7 practice that were happening?

8 MR. THREAT: Well, I mean, I hadn't
9 heard of anyone in my county or in Vincent that 10 received a letter like that. But I was listening 11 to John Harris when he said that there was some 12 people that -- I mean, some voters, numbers that 13 were sent to him instead of names that were sent 14 to him that they were convicted of felonies. And 15 it sounds like it's about the same thing.

16 MR. LODER: Sure. And it sounds like
17 there was probably some kind of check, it wasn't a 18 comprehensive check, it was a check of people who 19 had been cited or accused or arrested of things.
20 And as a result of that, they fundamentally put 21 the onus on you to prove that you didn't have --

22 MR. THREAT: Right.

23 MR. LODER: And trying to change the --

1 and then, Ms. Gibbons, I wanted to ask you about 2 you said that they redistricted and all of your 3 candidates were in the same district. So you ran 4 one in that district? Or was this after you had 5 ran --

6 MS. GIBBONS: The incumbent still ran in 7 that district, and he has represented us quite 8 well. We got someone to run in all the other
9 districts. I campaigned -- I campaigned heavily
10 for Bruce Hamilton, who is black, in a 11 predominantly white district, and he won. This 12 involved voter registration. I went door to door.
13 I registered voters. I was intimidated, but I was 14 not intimidated, but the effort was made to 15 intimidate me. I was followed everywhere I went.
16 One of the ladies who did run was intimidated.
17 She was harassed at her home by she did not know
18 who they were. But things like that happened.

19 If I may make a comment about the 20 question that was asked to Mark, it was my 21 understanding that Vincent purged its voter list
22 between the last election and this one we just had 23 without reason. And I'm certain they didn't send

1 -- I'm appalled about what Mark got. I'm certain
2 they didn't send letters like that out. We just 3 had voters who kept insisting they were registered
4 to vote, and they weren't on that list anymore.
5 They had been purged from the voters list.

6 MR. LODER: Thank you.

7 MR. DOUGLAS: Ms. Gibbons, Shelby County
8 has changed. I would like both of you to speak --
9 are you both natives of Shelby County?

10 MR. THREAT: Yes, I am.

11 MR. DOUGLAS: You are not? You retired
12 there?

13 MS. GIBBONS: No. I spent -- my father
14 owned this place all my life. I have grown up
15 there, but I live in Birmingham. My second home
16 is there.

17 MR. DOUGLAS: Both of you are old enough
18 to remember Shelby County say 20, 30 years ago?

19 MS. GIBBONS: Yeah.

20 MR. DOUGLAS: What's the difference
21 between now and then demographically and 22 economically?

23 MR. THREAT: Well, where I am -- which

1 they call the Vincent area the poor neighborhood
2 of Shelby County -- it's primarily the same. It's 3 growing a little bit, but Vincent is not growing.
4 Harpersville is growing a little bit, but the 5 Vincent area is not growing that much. But you do
6 have -- you do have two blacks on the City Council
7 at Vincent.

8 MR. DOUGLAS: In Vincent?

9 MR. THREAT: Yeah.

10 MR. DOUGLAS: How about you?

11 Differences?

12 MS. GIBBONS: Not greatly, no. I think
13 what I have seen during the 2012 election is so 14 horrible that it could be compared to Jim Crow
15 south. Voters were not allowed -- we had blacks
16 who came to vote who were told that they were not 17 on the list. They did not use provisional ballots
18 in Vincent, and they sent them away without being 19 given the opportunity to vote. I have affidavits 20 from three poll watches to that effect. They were 21 sent away. How many people did they influence
22 when they left that came early in the morning?
23 How many people did they influence when they went

1 out "there is no point in your going because they 2 are not going to let you cast a vote"? They 3 closed the poll before seven o'clock. We had 4 black citizens standing outside waiting to vote,
5 and they were not allowed to vote. There was no
6 official timekeeper there.

7 When the ballots came in, the absentee
8 ballots, they did not check to see if those 9 ballots had been signed, if they were notarized,
10 if they were witnessed. They didn't follow any 11 portion of Alabama law. They refused to let the 12 poll watchers see what envelopes were there, whose 13 name was on the envelope. They just opened those 14 ballots, and without looking at them, stuck them
15 in the machine. Those were part of the 16 irregularities that went on there. I have a list.
17 I have documentation to leave with someone, which 18 can substantiate all of this. You just wouldn't 19 believe what went on at Vincent. I see no
20 difference at all.

21 I know I laughed when you said that 22 intermingled between Shelby County and Vincent. I
23 have seen a different side of it. I see White

1 Rock's attorney sitting as head of the Shelby
2 County Commission. I was told when I originally 3 got involved in this that the next vacancy on the 4 circuit court had already been promised to Corey
5 Moore, who was the Vincent attorney. The next
6 vacancy that came up came up in 2014, and Corey
7 Moore was speedily appointed circuit court judge.
8 In addition to that, the presiding judge of the 9 Circuit Court in Shelby County's sister works in 10 the office at Vincent. There is just so much that 11 goes on. There is -- there is so much going on 12 down there that I said it would be -- that John 13 Gresham should write a novel about what's going on 14 there. You wouldn't believe what goes on out
15 there.

16 MR. DOUGLAS: And he is a prolific
17 writer. Maybe more than one. I think about 30
18 years ago, I used to have one of my mentors,
19 Reverend Carl Williams, live in a place called 20 Fungo Hollow outside of Alabaster. Do you know 21 what that is?

22 THE AUDIENCE: I live in Fungo Holler.

23 MR. DOUGLAS: You live in Fungo Holler?

1 Thank you. Pelham, I'm sorry. And I couldn't
2 find it any more.

3 THE AUDIENCE: It's still there.

4 MR. DOUGLAS: It's still there? My X is 5 gone with all the development around there. And 6 there was a TV story. A lot of wealth is in 7 Shelby County now when it used to be all pretty
8 much poor. And there was a TV news story about a 9 parent who had been fined or arrested for not 10 attending -- to make sure their son attended
11 school. This was two white parents. The school
12 had sent -- Shelby County school has sent notice
13 to the parents several times, and they never came 14 to see about their son. His family is white. The 15 TV crew came out there and found out that the 16 parents were illiterate. The parents could not 17 read the note that the school board had sent.
18 That was the first clash between the new Shelby
19 Countians, wealthy folks pursuing land and new 20 suburb development, coming into clash with the old
21 Shelby Countians; poor, landless, rural whites
22 whose ancestors had been sharecroppers and tenant
23 formers. And the two don't mix very well. That

1 was '82, '84. And when you add racism to classism
2 and nepotism together, you have a -- after this
3 hearing, the jury maybe will have an ethics
4 hearing of Shelby County as well.

5 MR. SIMELTON: I'm sorry. There is a
6 question from the audience.

7 THE AUDIENCE: Yes. Thank you for your
8 honesty. My question is in North Carolina, which 9 is a perfect example, they moved that they were 10 able to form a coalition of organizations, black, 11 brown, white, etc. They have been able to 12 organize poor white people, working class white
13 people, to vote in their own interest. And one 14 reason why we have this voter suppression laws is 15 because the majority of Alabamians, white
16 Alabamians, elect people who pass these bad laws.
17 And there has got to be a coalition of people who 18 are adversely affected by these bad laws. My 19 question to you is: I heard you say that four 20 years ago, you became aware and became involved.
21 So my question is what advice can you offer?
22 People are trying to organize a movement of people
23 that were collectively -- what advice can you give

1 us in terms of your experiences, in terms of how 2 we can organize not just in Shelby County but
3 statewide similar to they are doing in North
4 Carolina? Is it possible poor whites in Alabama
5 are so hopelessly brainwashed? Is there any 6 method of strategy that can be used to move them
7 forward as you have been moved?

8 MS. GIBBONS: We have the most wonderful
9 group of friends in Vincent. Wanda and Mark, just 10 we are close friends. We have worked together, 11 and what we have accomplished could not have been 12 accomplished unless we had worked together. We 13 have met regularly. We have played together. We 14 have worked together cleaning up a cemetery. We 15 have celebrated birthdays together. We have cried
16 when our people died. But there is a common bind
17 there. It's not -- I don't view it as a racial 18 bind. I just view it as Christian people working 19 together for one goal, and it's benefitted all of 20 us in this effort. We have been very fortunate in 21 this.

22 One thing that has helped, the election,
23 the last election, they have a vote count a little

1 over 200 people. In the 2012 election, there was 2 708 people who voted in that municipal election.
3 We did voter registration. I had never been 4 involved in a voter registration before, but I
5 walked to every house in Riverview, which is where 6 we are. If they weren't registered, I carried 7 registration forms with me. If they were 8 registered, they got on my mailing list, and I 9 sent them emails. Judy Noggle has just been 10 wonderful sending emails, and we -- she and I 11 together organized the Vincent Historical and 12 Environmental Society, and we have been involved
13 in historical things and environmental projects
14 benefitting our area. And it's led to a wonderful
15 closeness.

16 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you. Let me
17 just remind everyone that we have a time frame
18 that we are trying to stay within, and we want to 19 give everybody an opportunity to speak. And what 20 we are going to ask is that in the future, if 21 there is questions from the audience, if you could 22 save those until the end. And that way at least 23 we will get all the speakers in because it's

1 important to hear their comments. Not that your
2 questions are not important, but the speakers did
3 come here to share their testimony. And also when 4 the speakers are responding -- and I know you have 5 a lot that you want to share. But if you could,
6 you know, condense it as much as possible so that 7 we can get all the speakers in. So Mr. Gray?

8 MR. GRAY: My first question is to Ms.
9 Gibbons. What is the black percentage today in 10 the town of Vincent? Do you know?

11 MS. GIBBONS: I do not know. I would -- 12 it depends upon the area. The River Loop is 13 predominantly black.

14 MR. GRAY: The reason why I ask that is 15 I understood you to say that two blacks were 16 elected to the council?

17 MS. GIBBONS: Yes.

18 MR. GRAY: I know Vincent was in that 19 Dillard case that the organization that I worked 20 for before I retired filed back in the mid '80's.
21 And I would think based upon the black population
22 percentage -- that's why I asked -- based on the 23 2010 census, that you probably -- if you have two

1 black council members who were elected, that you
2 have population or equality in terms of 3 representation or parody on the Vincent City
4 Council even though you all are running blacks for 5 other positions as well. But what I want to get 6 to is let's say if the representation in terms of 7 election success, the outcome, gave you parody of 8 equity, what would you consider to be the most 9 flagrant abuses? I heard you say that the 10 absentee ballots, I believe you said, were not 11 handled correctly. They just pretty much did what 12 they wanted to do. And I guess my follow-up 13 question to that was: Did each candidate or the 14 candidates that you all were supporting, did they 15 have poll watchers?

16 MS. GIBBONS: Yes, we did.

17 MR. GRAY: And the absentee ballot box?

18 MS. GIBBONS: Yes, we did.

19 MR. GRAY: Okay. What did they report
20 that they observed that was not done correctly?

21 MS. GIBBONS: With the absentee ballots?

22 MR. GRAY: Yes.

23 MS. GIBBONS: Well, in the first place,

1 they were not kept in town hall. The city clerk
2 had to send out and get them from wherever they 3 were. We do not know where she even kept them and 4 who had custody of those absentee ballots. She 5 did not let anyone check the voter list of the 6 absentee list that had been posted. So there was 7 no way to check and see if the votes submitted
8 were the votes of people who had actually applied
9 for an absentee ballot.

10 MR. GRAY: So there was no daily posting 11 of who had requested an absentee ballot by the 12 clerk?

13 MS. GIBBONS: No. No, there was not.

14 MR. GRAY: Where was the absentee --
15 where were the absentee ballots counted? Do you 16 all know that?

17 MS. GIBBONS: They were counted --

18 MR. GRAY: At city hall?

19 MS. GIBBONS: -- at the poll. They were 20 counted that night. They were placed right into 21 the voting machine. Nobody -- they just -- she 22 gave them to the poll inspector. He stuck them
23 right on in the box. They never looked at them.

1 They don't know if they were signed. They don't 2 know if the person who submitted it was a
3 registered voter.

4 MR. GRAY: Where were the watchers?
5 Where were the watchers for the candidates?

6 MS. GIBBONS: They were there. They saw
7 this. They were not allowed to comment.

8 MR. GRAY: They were not --

9 MS. GIBBONS: They were not allowed to 10 comment. In fact the city clerk at one time told 11 one of our poll watchers that if he -- he who had 12 asked her a question, that if he didn't hush, she 13 was going to have him put out of the poll, and she 14 would have done it. It's --

15 MR. GRAY: Why I ask that because I 16 think it's testimony like that that's important to 17 have because many times after elections, the 18 abuses that are observed by poll watchers and 19 others are not documented quickly and reported to 20 -- you have it, but to the Justice Department or 21 to attorneys so that that can become a part of a 22 known record and also probably go public to the 23 media because I think sometimes if we were to

1 embarrass these people and cite what the state law
2 is as well as a Voting Rights Act, that will maybe
3 stay the hands of some of these elected officials
4 and officials like the clerk who do these abusive
5 things.

6 MS. GIBBONS: I have tried to get the 7 Justice Department to send a poll monitor in. I
8 had been -- I originally contacted U. S.
9 Attorney's office in Birmingham, and eventually 10 was referred to Mr. Russ, Bert Russ, in 11 Washington, DC. He and I were communicating back
12 and forth. I requested that they send a poll
13 watcher. I knew the election would be stolen if 14 we didn't have a -- did not have someone from the 15 federal government there. A week ahead, I kept 16 talking to him. Things were so bad the day of the 17 election, things that were reported to me were so
18 bad the day of the election, I called him
19 repeatedly that day and asked him to please send 20 somebody from the justice department. The closest
21 person he had, to send somebody to us.

22 We sent -- when the redistricting plan
23 came out -- I didn't have time to say this -- they

1 approved that plan prior to the date for 2 opposition letters to be received. That's just 3 horrible. The very idea that they had already 4 made a decision to okay that plan prior to the 5 deadline when our citizens could oppose it should 6 not have taken place. I did involve the Justice
7 Department. I tried to involve the Justice
8 Department. I would have loved to have the 9 Justice Department here. As far as publicity is 10 concerned, we have had great difficulty in having 11 anything put in the papers or the television which 12 was adverse to the quarries.

13 MR. GRAY: Even in Birmingham, try to 14 get them in Birmingham?

15 MS. GIBBONS: Yes, yes. We have. It's 16 hard to get people to come or to know if you can't 17 get the media to publish what's going on. I
18 believe the majority of the citizens of Alabama
19 would be appalled if they knew what had taken
20 place in that little town. It's a wonderful town.
21 The people are wonderful for the most part. I
22 hope that -- my husband and I had planned to live
23 the rest of our lives down there. His health has

1 prevented us from doing that. But it's such a
2 peaceful, wonderful place, wonderful people. I
3 hate to see them treated as they have been.
4 Somebody said, "Why do you care what goes on?" I
5 care because it's wrong. I care because these are 6 my friends. I don't like the quarry there and I
7 don't want it to come, but I can also leave and 8 come back to my home in Birmingham. The rest of 9 the people there can't. That is their home. I 10 have seen people there who have spent their entire 11 lives working hard to build a life for themselves, 12 and they are about to have it destroyed. And as 13 the chairman of the Planning Commission in Vincent 14 said to me, "We don't care what happens to the 15 people in the River Loop." And that's exactly 16 right. They don't care because they don't live in 17 that area.

18 MR. GRAY: Thank you.

19 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. I don't have any 20 follow-up questions. I think your testimony has 21 been very effective, and we appreciate your time
22 both. And we just appreciate you being here
23 today.

1 MS. GIBBONS: Thank you so much for 2 letting me say.

3 MR. THREAT: Thank you.

4 MS. GIBBONS: With whom do I leave this?
5 Thank you very much.

6 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. If the 7 commissioners are ready, we will call the next.
8 Okay. And I will just go down my list here.
9 Shirley Gavin, Dorothy Swain?

10 MS. FLOYD: My last name is Floyd,
11 Shirley Gavin Floyd.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. I thank you all 13 again, and I just remind you to give your 14 statement, be sure you give your name for the 15 court reporter. SO we will start with Ms. Gavin.

16 MS. FLOYD: My name is Shirley Gavin
17 Floyd, and I serve as the business manager of the 18 Civil Rights Activists Committee, the home of the 19 Foot Solders. Also I serve as the research and 20 historian of the civil rights movement and how we 21 got the right to vote and the struggle that we 22 went through. So the purpose of the office was to 23 engage ordinary people and ex-cons even to be

1 reregistered to restore their voting rights so
2 that they would have equal access with the 3 decisions that are made in the country. So we set 4 out to do that, and it was quite hard to get an 5 ex-con to come in our office and willing to admit 6 that he had committed a crime and regardless of 7 whether he had served his time or not. So it took 8 a lot of time to explain to him no matter what you 9 have done, him or her, no matter what you have 10 done, if you have served your time, you have the 11 right to vote. But you must restore your voting
12 rights.

13 So we worked in the historical district
14 of the civil rights movement on 4th Avenue North.
15 And in that district, we find there are a lot of 16 beauty shops and barber shots. And the people
17 that were convicts at one time visit the barber
18 shops or the beauty shops. I think they felt more 19 comfortable talking to their barbers and their 20 beauticians and cosmetologists about the problem
21 with voting. So what we did was we set up little 22 substations in these venues so that when we went 23 there, maybe they would be encouraged just to fill

1 out the voter registration form. And once a week,
2 it was my duty to go by and pick up the forms and 3 make sure I got them to the county courthouse in 4 order for them to be recorded so that processes
5 could be made to restore their voting rights. I 6 encouraged them that, yes, you have served your 7 time. You are paroled, pardoned, and you should 8 be receiving your voter rights card in about no
9 later than six weeks. That was my grace time for 10 them. But many of them came back and said that 11 they were denied their voting rights because of 12 the criminal acts that they were charged with in 13 the past and even though they had served their 14 time.

15 So having a close relationship with our 16 county clerk, Ann Marie Adams, I was able to go to 17 her. And she was very receptive to my need. And 18 she would do follow up on it and then direct me 19 where to go in order to direct them where to go in 20 order to go through the channels of Birmingham.
21 And when we got to the pardon and parol board, we 22 usually were met with the accusation that there 23 was nothing on file about their completing their

1 probation or parole status or that they had served
2 their time, and as a result they were not allowed
3 to vote.

4 Now when we came up in the year 2007, we
5 had a surge of citizens who really wanted to vote
6 because of the anticipation of the first African-7 American president. So we were swamped with many 8 of those persons who would not have come on a 9 normal day coming into the office because they 10 wanted to be a part of this great historical saga, 11 and many of them were turned around. So what we 12 did was we kept a log of all those persons who 13 were rejected, and we contacted the Department of 14 Pardons and Parole Board and invited to see if we 15 could get the information whether they were 16 cleared of a crime where they could legally vote
17 again by restoration of their voting rights or 18 whatever. However, that information was not privy 19 to us. We were not privy to that because of the, 20 I guess, nonrelationship to the person which we 21 were inquiring about. So our office was at a 22 standstill. It was up to that person himself to 23 go, and many of them -- many of them probably

1 could have done it, but they were somewhat
2 illiterate to the words to use and to the Pardons
3 and Parole. And many of them didn't even want to 4 disturb that entity again, seeing that they had 5 been under the auspices of so many years. So we 6 found it difficult to register citizens here in 7 Birmingham, and we are not just talking about 8 black citizens. We had white citizens as well
9 that underwent that. So my thing is the Pardons
10 and Parole employee is effective in their record
11 keeping of making sure that you have a record,
12 each and every individual who completes the status
13 of parole or probation and make sure that that is 14 sealed so when it's time to come to vote, to 15 register, there would not be a road block.

16 And that's our major concern. We 17 continued. We continued to register people. We 18 continued to hand walk those registrations to the 19 county courthouse because we feel that we are -- 20 if we put them in the mail, anything can happen.
21 So we put them in the hands of the workers at the 22 county courthouse. And a lot of times because we 23 go so much, many of the employees will stop what

1 they are doing and just key it in. And they can 2 tell us straight away no, they can't register or 3 yes, they can. So that's where we are.

4 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Thank you.

5 Dr. Rimpsey?

6 DR. RIMPSEY: My name is Freddy Rimpsey.
7 I spell Freddy with a Y instead of i-e. I'm the 8 president of the Alabama Voters League in 9 Anniston, Calhoun County, and I had received the 10 best training that one can receive in knowing our 11 Alabama politics from your own Mr. Jerome Gray,
12 who is also a high school teacher of mine,
13 biology. But upon my return to Alabama after 14 going to college, I went back to my hometown,
15 which is Anniston. And they were operating a 16 system that made it impossible for any black man
17 to be elected unless the white folks wanted him to 18 be elected. They had an at-large system. There
19 was one black that was on it, City Council
20 Dr. Gordon Rogers. When he did or said something 21 they didn't want him to say, they voted him out 22 and put a black man of their choosing in that 23 wouldn't say anything. And so even though all the

1 blacks in the city voted for Dr. Rogers, but the 2 at-large system of whites defeated him.

3 So we worked with ADC for many years,
4 over 20 years, to do away with that system. And 5 we were able to create two black wards, get two 6 blacks elected. They would be part of the lawsuit
7 that went down at the prison county system and 8 elected in the county government. And later we 9 were able to redistrict it. We were able to get 10 Dr. Bartley in the state legislature. So those 11 are the only blacks in the whole county, in 12 Anniston. Because of the system and the lawsuit 13 we had to file, we were able to move towards.

14 But we still haven't been able to make a 15 lot of changes in the city because we have the 16 city manager, male city manager. We have four 17 wards, and the mayor runs at large. On every 18 issue that's involved in advancing black people,
19 the vote is always three to two. The two blacks
20 will vote for it and the two whites against it.
21 And the mayor runs at large, he votes against it.
22 So we are really not making much progress in that 23 area.

1 We cannot even get a street named in
2 honor of Dr. King in Anniston because the whites
3 didn't want it. And so we just -- but things have 4 changed. I was told if we would just pray and 5 wait on the Lord, a change will come. And so the 6 city now, because of white flight, white people
7 running into the suburbs and not wanting to go to 8 school with blacks, our schools have went from 90
9 percent white to all black. We are now over 52
10 percent of the population in Anniston. We can 11 very easily elect a third black councilman and 12 even a mayor. And so the people who want to keep 13 things as they are know that.

14 And so in this last election, the black 15 boxes where we had blacks running and they put 16 whites to run against them, some of their kind of 17 blacks, Oreos we call them, at the polling places,
18 they ran out of ballots. When blacks went down
19 there to vote, they were told we don't have any 20 more ballots. We have to go to Birmingham to pick 21 up ballots, and you know people are not going to 22 come back later to vote. So they were able to get 23 rid of our people that we had in those two black

1 wards and got somebody else of their people in 2 those wards who are not going to stand up and 3 speak up for justice, particularly when it comes 4 to blacks.

5 So we went backwards because of trickery
6 and those types of things. And so -- and even 7 though -- let me say this to you. We don't just 8 hang out a sign and say we are here. We work hard 9 to -- we work hard to make changes by monitoring
10 elections, put people out working, screening
11 candidates. But all in all, we are still not 12 making very much progress because of the trickery
13 that's been -- the tricks that they pull. And not 14 just have time to -- but we want to stop these 15 kind of things, if at all possible. So when 16 someone that we select, a black that runs, is 17 going to speak out for the black people and be 18 elected fair and square without something being 19 taken from them through trickery. Thank you for 20 giving me this opportunity to speak.

21 MR. DOUGLAS: Ms. Gavin, just one
22 question about you mentioned the part about how 23 the employees for the county were able to relate

1 to the ex-offenders, ex-felons you were trying to 2 get registered to vote, how did that happen? Did
3 you introduce them to the people at the --

4 MS. FLOYD: No, no. It was when, you
5 know, I went on a personal basis on many to hand
6 deliver.

7 MR. DOUGLAS: Hand deliver?

8 MS. FLOYD: And at that time we had a 9 registrar by the name of Ms. Mary Hunter, and what 10 I did was I formed a bond with Ms. Hunter. So 11 when I would come into the office, she would 12 receive me and the employees would too. So I
13 would ask, you know, can you run this real quick.
14 I need to know if this person -- and they were 15 cooperative there. I had no problem really with 16 the county part. It was when the county rejected
17 them for reasons from the Parol Board, for 18 instance, that we were stalled at that point. And 19 as a result, we lost a lot of voters that possibly 20 could have voted in the elections. I think 21 because by the time they got through going to the 22 Parole Board and following up, the election had 23 come and gone.

1 MR. DOUGLAS: Is there any expense other
2 than time and effort to the ex-felon in getting
3 these records cleared up with the Parol Board?
4 Number one, is there any way they can let these 5 people know before it's too late in the time frame
6 for an election?

7 MS. FLOYD: That was our concern. And 8 it seemed like that was not working. That's when 9 we asked to at least let them know the reason why
10 they can't get their voting rights restored,
11 whether you didn't fulfill all the days or you
12 skipped out of town or you came -- whatever it
13 was, communicate with that person. That person
14 was held in limbo, and all they knew was that 15 their voting rights were rejected, which was quite 16 depressing and that that caused them not to even 17 want to try again -- you know, many of them have 18 been waiting to vote for 10 or 15 years and didn't 19 have -- they didn't have the knowledge that if 20 they had done their time and fulfilled the duties
21 of the court or whatever, the parole board, that 22 they were entitled to get their voting rights
23 restored. As a result a lot of them could not get

1 a place to live because there is no -- voting
2 rights give you a lot of privileges. They 3 couldn't get a bank account. You know, a lot of 4 them became homeless and ended up in the park. We 5 did a lot of extensive work in the parks with the 6 homeless people, trying to see why you can't get 7 your voting rights. Did you do a crime? And many 8 of them just had a streak of bad luck. Didn't go 9 to the polls and vote for the last five years, and 10 they were dropped from the rolls.

11 MR. DOUGLAS: If anything else comes out
12 of these hearings, if we can begin to build an 13 understanding of the voting rights as rights, they 14 are not privileges, and that people shouldn't have 15 to depend on the kindness of strangers to exercise
16 their right to vote, that will be a good day.

17 MR. SIMELTON: A couple of questions.
18 Dr. Rimpsey, you are saying that they ran out of 19 ballots at the polling place. Do you think that 20 the election was lost because those voters said I
21 don't have time to wait for you run to Birmingham
22 to get ballots?

23 DR. RIMPSEY: I don't think. I know. I

1 talked to several, many hundreds. They said, "We 2 didn't vote. We had to get a ride down there, and 3 they didn't have any ballots." And when they got 4 back home, they weren't able to get back down
5 there. There was a lot of people, especially a 6 lot of people living in the area where they have 7 to travel a couple of miles. There is an area on 8 the south end of the city, there is a housing
9 project called Constantine Town. Well, just out
10 of that, just out of that area, you are talking
11 about over a thousand people voting and in South
12 Highland Center. And we don't really have mass 13 transit. We have a little bus that may run every 14 hour or two, and many of them don't have cars.
15 And they got a ride there, and they just didn't go 16 back. And a lot of them was angry about it. They 17 said we didn't get a chance to vote. They said, 18 "How long do you think it will be before you get 19 ballots? Well, we have to go to Birmingham and 20 get them." And some of the places, they never 21 even got back from Birmingham with ballots.

22 MR. SIMELTON: Was there any -- and you
23 may have mentioned this, but I don't remember.

1 Was there anything filed with the Justice
2 Department? That was in 2000 what again?

3 DR. RIMPSEY: Two years ago.

4 MR. SIMELTON: Two years ago. Was there
5 anything filed with the Justice Department?

6 THE WITNESS: I don't think so. I spoke
7 to somebody with the Justice Department, but not
8 officially filed. There was one candidate, Ben 9 Little who was in ward two, Reverend Ben Little.
10 Now he officially filed some paperwork because he 11 lost.

12 MR. SIMELTON: So he did file the 13 paperwork?

14 DR. RIMPSEY: He did file.

15 MR. SIMELTON: And you mentioned -- Ms.
16 Gavin, the ex-felons, Alabama is one of those 17 states that you have to apply -- of course, you
18 know that -- to have your voting rights restored.
19 Did they really understand what all needed to be 20 done for the process? And I think now that when 21 they exit -- when they complete their sentence, if 22 they are confined, I think they are supposed to 23 receive some kind of checklist to tell you what

1 you need to do to get your voting rights restored.

2 MS. FLOYD: Perhaps they did. But by

3 the time they got to us, they were not aware of 4 that or they didn't have the document. And I'm

5 sure they got a document when they were released,

6 and they are coming -- certainly I have never been

7 in that situation. But I would think that if you

8 are cleared of something, you would get it in

9 writing. And many of them were just satisfied

10 with being cleared and out of trouble. The voting

11 wasn't really something important to them. It was

12 because we were coming up to this great election

13 that our office really got people coming to us

14 instead of us going out to them. And that's when

15 the castrophy of knowing you can't do it, and what

16 a depressing thing. You want to vote in this

17 great election and be a part of history. I did

18 something 20 years ago, and I don't have my slip.

19 And they gave me 20 years to prove that I'm 20 cleared and they say I'm not, I can't register and 21 restore my voting rights. And many of those

22 persons of that nature, they really slipped

23 through the drain. Many of them were cleared, but

1 they didn't have the documents. And then by the 2 time they got the word whether they were or not,
3 the election was over. And we were faced with 4 those obstacles.

5 MR. LODER: Good afternoon. Good to see
6 you, Ms. Gavin. I wanted to ask you: Who was it
7 that told you that you couldn't inquire and you
8 were -- you are still with the Foot Soldiers
9 organization?

10 MS. FLOYD: Yes.

11 MR. LODER: So you were acting on behalf
12 of the advocacy organization when you were 13 inquiring. Who was it that told you that you 14 couldn't inquire about a felon's right because 15 they weren't the actual felon?

16 MS. FLOYD: Well, you know, when I made 17 the call, I called, introduced ourselves and the 18 nature of the call. And I have that recorded.
19 But today I can't tell you if it was Pardons and 20 Parole or the sheriff's department, the attorney
21 general's office or what. But we got word from 22 higher up that we would not be privy to that 23 person. Now he had the right to get his

1 information himself.

2 MR. LODER: Well, you were an advocacy
3 organization so that's all a part.

4 MS. FLOYD: And what was so depressing
5 was that our organization that was founded in the 6 year 2002 by Mr. Tommy Wren, he set up a Board of 7 Directors and Articles of Incorporation. And we 8 had a purpose mission statement, all of it was 9 recorded in the state of Alabama, especially the 10 Articles of Incorporation with a real book number 11 and page number on there. So we were a legitimate 12 organization. But for some reason, we could not 13 get any information. That led me to get back with 14 the person and say, "Look, this is what you need
15 to do. You need to get in touch with this 16 department and try to get this document or 17 whatever." And, of course, they were not -- you 18 know, they were insecure. A lot of them were 19 insecure with trying to do it on their own. They 20 didn't really know the language to use, and some 21 of them felt that, you know, they were out of 22 touch with reality really.

23 MR. LODER: Thanks.

1 MR. GRAY: Ms. Floyd, I'm going to start
2 with you first. The whole issue of felony
3 restorations has certainly been something that's 4 been dear to me. Back in around 2003, '04, Scott
5 Douglas and Olivia Turner and a bunch of us, we 6 formed something called the Alabama Restore the 7 Vote Coalition to try to get legislation through 8 the legislature to make it easier for ex-felons to 9 get that voting right restored. And we did get a 10 bill passed. And one of the provisions in that 11 bill requires the Board of Registrars to notify 12 the ex-felon within, I believe it says, 45 days of 13 being contacted by the ex-felon of whether he or 14 she is going to get his or her voting rights. If 15 they are denied, they just give a reason, an 16 objective reason, why that ex-felon is denied.
17 The reason -- and must be a majority of the 18 members of the board. And the reason must be you 19 either have some time left on your probation or 20 parole or you owe some fines and restitution.
21 What we found to be most helpful though is that 22 since in Alabama the ex-felon has to really take 23 the initiative to begin to get the voting rights

1 restored, we worked out a compromise through the 2 legislature and the legislature requires an
3 ex-felon to get something called a CERV,
4 certificate of eligibility to register and vote.
5 And when the ex-felon fills out that simple form,
6 it's an easy form, one of the things we began to 7 do -- and I say we, the Alabama Restore the Vote
8 Coalition -- we had staff that would track -- we 9 developed a relationship with the Board of Pardons
10 and Parole, and we would track once that 11 application went in to the Board of Pardons and 12 Parole the turnaround time to see if they would 13 get that response back within that 45-day period.
14 If the ex-felon had not heard from the Board of 15 Pardons and Parole within that 45-day period, then
16 we would write a letter to the Board of Pardons
17 and Parole saying Jerome Gray has sent in his 18 application for felony restoration on this date.
19 We would always keep a copy. He has not heard 20 from the board. What is the status of that? And 21 we would track that felon's form over usually a 22 two month period, and we found that that was one 23 of the most workable things we could have done by

1 us being there as an advocate for that ex-felon
2 and because we had developed that relationship.
3 And we could call the Board of Pardons and Parole
4 also and ask for an update on the status of that 5 ex-felon if that ex-felon had not heard from the 6 Board of Pardons and Parole, say, within a 45 or 7 60 day period.

8 And before I retired, I know the ACLU of 9 Alabama continued to do that through a project
10 they had. But that, I found, was one of the most 11 helpful things. Now one of these I can say is 12 that the Board of Pardons and Parole is extremely 13 backlogged, and they use parole officers many 14 times to do the background check. So that's 15 another thing is that if we know these parole
16 officers in communities, that's another place
17 where we need to sometimes put some pressure on 18 them to say, "look, I know you have got a full 19 load of other things you have to do. But one of 20 things we would like for you to do also is help us
21 to expedite the turnaround time of felons getting 22 their voting rights restored. But that tracking 23 process is one of the most important things that

1 needs to happen in that process.

2 MS. FLOYD: Let me ask you though:
3 After you track, what kind of communication was 4 directed from your organization to that 5 particular?

6 MR. GRAY: We had a form letter. Just a
7 form letter.

8 MS. FLOYD: That's it? So, I mean, you
9 send him a form letter?

10 MR. GRAY: We would send one to the 11 Board of Pardons and Parole, and we would send the 12 ex-felon a copy of it.

13 MS. FLOYD: So in other words, it could 14 have been -- are you saying it could have been 15 negligence on their part not to respond to the 16 form letter the reason --

17 MR. GRAY: Yeah. In other words, we 18 were documenting because we knew what the law said
19 the response time should be to notify. So we were 20 putting them under the gun. The law says that you 21 shall notify the ex-felon within 45 days the 22 status of his voting rights.

23 MS. FLOYD: Well, you know, when we

1 questioned, they only tell us "I did this and 2 served this time. I have been through 20 years."
3 Things like that, you track them and notify them
4 with a form, and we fill it out. We only know I
5 need my voting rights back. So I'm glad to know
6 that such an organization is in place on the 7 board, and I would just like to have that 8 information so that I can reach out to you through 9 this organization. And you can be my front line
10 leader to get them --

11 MR. GRAY: I'm retired, but I will be 12 glad -- the ACLU is doing that now.

13 MS. FLOYD: When I have to put their 14 names in a dead file and say I have to -- it's a 15 cold case to me because eventually you have to go
16 back in there and try again. So that doesn't work 17 and it's --

18 MR. GRAY: It works though because even 19 though I am retired, if I get an application of an 20 ex-felon and a relationship I had before I
21 retired, I just write that form letter and send it
22 to a mole I know inside the Board of Pardons and 23 Parole.

1 MS. FLOYD: I'm happy to know -- now
2 that I know that, we can utilize some other assets
3 to get to these dreams they have because it's such 4 a joy when they do get their voting rights and 5 they come by with tears in their eyes and they 6 thank us so much. They feel so worthy as a 7 citizen all over again, and that's what we need to 8 build on.

9 MR. SIMELTON: You need to push Alabama
10 to pass a law where it's automatic. Once they pay
11 the fines, restitution, it should be automatic.

12 MR. GRAY: I'm not optimistic on that,
13 Mr. Simelton. We are in Alabama. We are one of 14 the red states. I want to ask Reverend Rimpsey a 15 quick question. On the inadequate resources,
16 ballots, not enough in these majority black 17 polling places, did you for the record check to 18 see if they had that problem in any of the 19 majority white voting places?

20 REVEREND RIMPSEY: We did. Yes, we did.

21 MR. GRAY: Did they run out? Any 22 reports of that?

23 REVEREND RIMPSEY: That did not happen

1 at the white boxes because we also monitored those 2 boxes too. We had our people, you know, handing
3 out ballots at all our boxes in the county. And 4 one thing -- I don't think anybody can stop this,
5 we need to hire better people. We had far more
6 racist white people riding around paying people
7 that we had hired to work, paying them more to -- 8 so we just got some Uncle Toms out there that we 9 had not -- and they were taking the money, and 10 they were buying the ballots. Like we put a guy 11 out there and gave him a handful of ballots to 12 hand out, paid him $100. Some white guy riding
13 around and said, "Give me those ballots, and I
14 will give you $100." So he is paying the workers,
15 and even those racist redneck Chamber of Commerce
16 were all involved in election. The Chamber of 17 Commerce. It's just sad. It's bad. I don't 18 know -- seems like we have more problems in that 19 county than any county in the state. Chambers of 20 Commerce openly involved in it. Doing things, 21 putting money, paying people, trying to get their 22 people elected. Just don't want to give up that 23 control, and it's just bad. Paying people off,

1 but can you imagine somebody riding around, people
2 working, and giving them money and buying our 3 ballots? So I had people going around monitoring
4 the election, and they called me, "Our folks don't 5 have any ballots." I said we have a whole box of 6 ballots. You have given out a whole box of 7 ballots since you were out here? And that was the 8 other blacks that saw what was happening. Said, 9 "Reverend, a white man came and bought your 10 ballots. Your workers sold them to his guy going 11 around buying your ballots." And they worked that 12 hard just to defeat our candidates, to keep that 13 control. It's all about racism, and I'm sick of 14 it.

15 MR. SIMELTON: Let me follow up on that 16 point because -- and I work the polls, and I don't 17 understand how you can buy a ballot because those 18 ballots are counted for. They are not just 19 like -- even the workers, you know, they have to 20 count for the ballots. You can't tear up a whole 21 or give a person a whole -- unless everybody in 22 that polling place is on the take more or less.

23 MR. GRAY: Sample ballots.

1 REVEREND RIMPSEY: Sample ballots that 2 our workers hand out. The workers at every 3 polling place that hand out --

4 MR. SIMELTON: I'm sorry?

5 REVEREND RIMPSEY: Paying them and 6 buying them.

7 MR. GRAY: As my former boss, Joe Higg,
8 would say, you can't stop bootlegging. All you
9 can do is try to control it a little bit, but you
10 can't stop it.

11 REVEREND RIMPSEY: But it's that 12 mentality you are dealing with. Dr. King said a 13 man struck him in the face, and they said, "Do you 14 want to press charges, Dr. King?" He said,
15 "Putting that man in jail will serve no purpose."
16 He said, "That's why we are marching today, to let 17 our white sisters and brothers know we must be 18 respected." It's just been another one take his 19 place that a black man don't have to be respected
20 and he is nothing. You can hit him in the face, 21 and nothing will be done to you. And we just have 22 to pray and keep working at it. But that 23 mentality, you can't put your candidate out there

1 and let him campaign, and we ain't fair and 2 square. You have to do all these undermining and 3 low down things to defeat the man that's running
4 against your man, and that's what whites are 5 continuing to do because they realize that. If we 6 just stick together, the black folk, and go out
7 and vote for somebody that's going to stand up and 8 do us right, we can be in control of our own
9 destiny over there. But they don't want to give 10 up the control. But as long as I'm living, it
11 ain't going to happen.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Anything else? Okay. At 13 this time we are going to take a 20 minute break
14 so we will be back at 5:30. And there is food 15 downstairs for the panel members and the 16 commissioners and volunteers. Thank you all.

17 (Recess taken.)

18 MR. SIMELTON: At this time we are going
19 to go to a little departure here and do public 20 testimony. So if you have public testimony, we 21 have Ms. Shirley Middleton and Richard Rutledge
22 and Mark Threat.

23 MR. THREAT: I'm out.

1 MR. SIMELTON: And John Harris. So are
2 we allowing five minutes? You have time for five
3 minutes?

4 MR. GRAY: Can we do a little shorter?

5 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Let's do three
6 minutes then. Three minutes for your public
7 testimony. And please, again, state your name for 8 the court reporter.

9 MS. MIDDLETON: My name is Shirley
10 Middleton. I serve on the town council of 11 Harpersville in Shelby County. Well, right now 12 many of you may have heard of Harpersville. We 13 are in a lawsuit. This lawsuit has been in the 14 allegation against the court. And as you may or 15 may not know -- I don't want to talk about the 16 lawsuit, but you may or you may not know that the 17 council and the mayor, once you choose your mayor 18 or your judge, you have no control over your 19 judge. You have no control over the court. The 20 judge has all that control. But the town has been 21 sued in this lawsuit, and it said that -- I want
22 to say that we hired a judge back in -- I think it 23 was 2004 is when we hired this judge. And he has

1 been our judge ever since. Now when this case got 2 started, when we found out about it, the county
3 judge, Judge Harrington, ordered the council and 4 the mayor to appear in his court. Okay. And 5 anyway, and this is -- remember, we have the one
6 black mayor in Shelby County. We have two black
7 representatives in Shelby County. Now we are not 8 the only municipality that this judge is over, but 9 we are the only one named in this lawsuit of some 10 of these things going on. Okay.

11 Now let me read what I got wrote down
12 here, that this order was for Mayor Perkins and 13 the council to appear before him one week before 14 the elections. And we felt that it was to 15 influence the elections. Now in my -- you know, I 16 have been on the council now since 1988. I'm very 17 rarely challenged. But, you know, Mayor Perkins
18 has been mayor -- he is on his third term. Okay.
19 He has been challenged heavily, and it's at large.
20 But we are so successful because we are so 21 organized. We set up a campaign. Way back in 22 '82, I think it was, when the Dillard case came 23 out was George Daily, Booker Kelly and Mr. Gray.

1 You all came out, and y'all set it up. And we 2 have been organized. We set up poll watchers,
3 and we set people on the outside where we check
4 off who has been to vote, who has not been to 5 vote, go get this person, go get that person. So
6 we are very organized. It's not that they gave up
7 mayor. We worked hard to get this mayor, and 8 every time we still work hard to get him. And he 9 has been heavy -- the last two times, he has had 10 heavy competition.

11 But so when this came up, you know,
12 about -- first of all, our lawyer said he can't 13 just order y'all -- the judge cannot just come and 14 order you all to do this in your town, but we 15 closed our court and we don't have court now. We 16 closed the court, and they came and got our books
17 and records and everything. And now we felt -- of 18 course, when we did that, we didn't know we no
19 longer had to go to court. The council did not 20 have to appear in court, but we had signed
21 documents that we -- have that we would be there
22 and they gave us -- I'm sorry, I'm not 23 exaggerating, a paper this big, a stack of papers

1 this big. You have to read this and sign that you
2 have read this before you come to court. I read
3 every page because I wanted to know what he was 4 talking about.

5 MR. SIMELTON: Can you kind of 6 summarize?

7 MS. MIDDLETON: Okay. Now let me be
8 real quick with this. Our representation on the 9 -- okay. Back to what we were talking about White
10 Rock. White Rock decided they were going to come
11 through Harpersville. White Rock wanted to come 12 through Harpersville with hazardous waste. They 13 didn't come to us and ask for any kind of council
14 vote, what do you all feel. They went to the 15 county. The county, you know, is all white. No
16 black representation on the commission at all.
17 And so a bunch of us was down. Said, no, we don't 18 want that to come through Harpersville. We don't 19 want that to come through our residential area,
20 that hazardous waste. Well, the council passed it 21 anyway. We felt that if we were represented, they 22 would not have come through our heavily populated 23 black residential area. And anyway, let me just

1 stop with that because I could go on. But we feel
2 like they have been -- no matter what they say --

3 MR. SIMELTON: The bottom line, they 4 didn't allow your vote to count or what or put it
5 up for a vote?

6 MS. MIDDLETON: Well, no. They voted.
7 The commissioners voted, even the one who 8 represented us. The comment he made was all 9 commissioners we invited, please come see what -- 10 one of the representatives said that's not my 11 district so I don't have any business to go up 12 there. But I said, "But you are going to vote on 13 it. So you should come see what you are talking
14 about, 25 to 50 trucks a day through this area
15 with these people, with children playing, you
16 know, in the road all the time still." They walk,
17 you know, they walk back and forth from down --
18 what we call downtown and everything. They said, 19 "It's not my district so I'm not going to come
20 there."

21 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. And again in the 22 interest of time, I hate to stop you short.

23 MS. MIDDLETON: That's okay.

1 MR. SIMELTON: Any questions? Okay.
2 Mr. John Harris. Just a reminder that you have 3 three minutes and please state your name again for 4 the court reporter.

5 MR. JOHN HARRIS: My name is John C.
6 Harris. I was a candidate in the council race on 7 August the 27th. Ms. Jordan Jackson, who was my 8 poll watcher, who has worked this poll watching
9 for Mayor Kincaid and myself for twice, we filed a 10 complaint with the Secretary of State because of 11 some voter irregularities at Memorial Park. One 12 was that people did not have an idea who was 13 allowed to vote. The second one was they stopped
14 the voting machine to allow another voting machine
15 to catch up to that machine. She was not allowed
16 even though -- other times she was allowed to help
17 people who needed help to vote. The fourth thing
18 is that they had her to sign an envelope at 3:30,
19 long before the polls closed, and the fifth thing
20 was that they held open the boxes until they left
21 the poll. The Secretary of State sent out
22 complaints to Alabama attorney general. They also 23 sent out complaints to Jefferson County district

1 attorney. I met with a person from the district
2 attorney's office. We met with a person from the 3 district attorney's office, and they basically
4 said he was concerned about signing the envelope
5 before time. But what he said was most of the 6 other was not criminal. And that's where we were,
7 and I would like to present this to the body.

8 MR. GRAY: What city are you from?

9 MR. JOHN C. HARRIS: City of Birmingham.

10 MR. SIMELTON: Are there any questions
11 for Mr. John Harris? Thank you, Mr. Harris. Was 12 there anyone else for public testimony?

13 MR. GRAY: Reverend Dale?

14 MR. SIMELTON: I saw this gentleman
15 first.

16 MR. RUTLEDGE: My name is Richard
17 Rutledge. Like Mr. Harris, I was a candidate for 18 Birmingham City Council District 2. These are 19 three Birmingham News articles that were written.
20 This one was my predictions on some of the chaos
21 that we would see because of some issues that were 22 occurring with the registered voter list and the 23 maps of the district. This was the account of 1 what happened in District 6 that Mr. Harris was 2 talking about, and the third is the article from 3 Birmingham News about the certification of the 4 vote for the Birmingham City Council and school

5 board elections, even though there were 6 discrepancies.

7 For a year and a half or so prior to the 8 City Council election, I'm state chairman for the 9 Conservative party for the US, which is a national 10 binder party. So did not know whether I was going 11 to run, but figured at the very least that I would 12 be involved in campaigns for candidates in this 13 election so I became concerned. The City Council 14 district lines were approved by the council in 15 January of 2011. But the maps, district lines and 16 registered voter lists were not released to 17 potential candidates or to the public until early 18 May of 2013. And the reason being is outlined in 19 this: I filled two complaints with the Department
20 of Justice prior to the election on this matter.
21 I also was in direct contact with the Secretary of 22 State's office and with the county registrar's
23 office. This contains the first DOJ complaint

1 that I filed on March 5th that also contains an 2 email that I had gotten from Barry Stephens, the 3 registrar from Jefferson County outlining why they 4 could not release the registered voter list or the 5 maps of the district.

6 And then I filed the second complaint on 7 the 15th of August, which was 12 days out from the 8 election, because I saw the confusion that was 9 coming. When they sent out the voter registration
10 cards, for example, they notified individuals that 11 they had changed possibly the polling location, 12 but what they did not notify them of was that they 13 may be voting in the same polling location that 14 they voted in for many, many years but were voting
15 in different council districts. Nobody, including 16 myself, knew how to read the thing. And 17 consistently on the campaign trail, I was seeing a 18 consistent problem with going into areas, I was in 19 the wrong district. Secondly, because of the 20 lateness of the data being released and the fact 21 that the Birmingham city council elections were 22 off the normal election cycle for many county and 23 state elections, your major companies that

1 generally do the mailing lists, do your phone
2 banks and other crucial campaign issues did not
3 have fully updated voter lists. And we played
4 havoc. It created all sorts of havoc in this
5 election, and I literally went through hell
6 getting my registered voter list to these 7 individuals, making sure it was accurate and being 8 able to get a mailing list and a phone bank list 9 out. Other candidates didn't. We had a lot of 10 crossover and a tremendous amount of confusion at 11 the polls.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Let's fill out -- is that 13 a report there?

14 MR. RUTLEDGE: This is the Birmingham
15 News article. This is the first complaint with 16 DOJ, and this second one was filed after the 17 election. John Harris is one of the individuals
18 on that. There was a number of us that filed this 19 complaint and sent it to the Department of 20 Justice. So there was a total of three complaints
21 that was filed with DOJ that I was a party of.

22 MR. SIMELTON: The DOJ, have they 23 resolved this?

1 MR. RUTLEDGE: They haven't resolved it.
2 We never got a reply. Had a hard time trying -- 3 I'm trying to raise the issues prior to the 4 certification vote. Other things, couldn't get 5 media coverage. Just seemed like nobody cared 6 frankly.

7 MR. SIMELTON: Okay.

8 MR. RUTLEDGE: But this is a very 9 serious, serious issue. A number of voters in the 10 city were disenfranchised. There was a tremendous 11 amount of confusion, and it was created --

12 MR. SIMELTON: Your three minutes are
13 up.

14 MR. RUTLEDGE: Can I get this on the 15 record because it was caused by a specific 16 legislative act in 2008. It was 416-2008 was the 17 legislative known as the Mary Moore bill. It was 18 unintended, but the consequences of that bill
19 being passed is what created this. And in ten
20 years, we are going to go through the same thing
21 again if we don't correct this. I will leave them
22 here. Thank you, gentlemen.

23 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you, sir. Again, I

1 will remind you to state your name and you have 2 three minutes.

3 REVEREND DALE: My name is Reverend
4 Charles A. Dale. I'm from the County of Franklin,
5 City of Russellville. And I come before you today
6 to give some information that was supposed to have 7 happened and didn't, which was -- one of the 8 things that was happening, we were in on the 9 Dillard deal with the redistricting. And every 10 ten years, you are supposed to go back and 11 re-evaluate that district. I went before the 12 mayor and the City Council, notified the clerk
13 first, to get re-evaluated. And I stayed on the 14 clerk so much, she went before the mayor and told 15 him. So he was supposed to have presented it to 16 the council. So it was election year. So he 17 didn't want to be bothered with it because he 18 thought he was going to get reelected. And come 19 to find out, he wound up he lost the election.

20 So when the new mayor and council came 21 in, I notified the clerk again. And she said she 22 talked to the new mayor and council about it. But 23 as of this date, as of this hour, nobody has done

1 anything about the re-evaluation of the 2 redistricting and looking at the districts. And 3 the reason this is so important to me is because 4 of the fact that Franklin County, Alabama, has the 5 largest immigration Hispanic organization in the 6 whole state of Alabama. And if we went back and 7 re-evaluated, we have a black district, but we 8 could get a Hispanic district. So without 9 re-evaluation, we will never know that.

10 The other thing very shortly is that in 11 the last election that we had, we had -- we got 12 five districts, and that was a person that ran 13 that lives in the county but he ran for City
14 Council in the city. And the opponent that ran 15 against him, she knew that he lived in the county,
16 but she was afraid to bring it forth so she lost
17 the election. He wound up on the City Council, 18 and he is serving right now on the City Council of 19 Russellville but he lives in the county. And 20 that's illegal. So something needs to be done
21 about it.

22 MR. SIMELTON: Okay.

23 REVEREND DALE: Thank you very much.

1 MR. SIMELTON: Any questions? Okay.

2 Thank you, Reverend Dale. Okay. Are there any 3 more public testimonies? Are you public?

4 MR. GRAY: He is one of the named people
5 to testify, Norman Gibbons.

6 MR. SIMELTON: So you are not a public.
7 Okay. If not, then we will -- I think Ms. Carter
8 is back there. Ms. Catrena Carter and 9 Mr. Gibbons, if you all will come forth and give 10 your testimony. And while you are coming, I will 11 just remind you to please state your name again
12 for the reporter, and you will have five minutes
13 to give your testimony. And are there any others
14 to participate on the panel? We are ready, Ms.
15 Carter. Do you want to go first?

16 MS. CARTER: If you insist. Ladies
17 first. Thank you. I'm Catrena Norris Carter, and 18 I am president and CEO of Women of Will. When 19 asked to testify at these hearings, there are a 20 whole lot of issues that comes along with these 21 voter suppression tactics that are being -- that 22 we are dealing with here in Alabama. But the one 23 thing that troubled me and my organization most is

1 a bill that has been passed and codified. It can
2 be found by googling Alabama code section 17-9-30
3 online or on the Secretary of State web site.
4 Application for an Alabama voter identification
5 card shall elicit the information required under 6 subdivisions one to seven, inclusive of subsection
7 H. The application shall be signed and sworn to 8 by the applicant, and any falsification or fraud
9 in the making of the application shall constitute 10 a Class C. Felony. If someone already has a valid 11 ID, accusations can be made if they attempt to 12 get a free voter ID that they are falsifying
13 information. In laymen terms, this means if you 14 attempt or if you get that state issued ID that's 15 supposed to be free for anyone who does not have 16 one and they find out later that you worked at the 17 Social Security office and your employee ID was 18 sufficient, that's a felony. That is a Class C
19 felony for something that most of us lay people
20 would see just as a mistake. You know, no attempt 21 to fraud the State of Alabama.

22 We want to contend that this law and 23 others disproportionately affect elderly, minority

1 and low income groups that tend to vote
2 democratic. Obtaining voter ID can be costly and 3 burdensome, and so now we are adding to that 4 burden that you might just be prosecuted and get a 5 felony if you are misinformed or you are old or 6 you are young or you are poor and don't know all
7 of the many issues that go along with obtaining 8 these free state ID's. We believe that this is 9 another attempt to dissuade people for applying
10 for this free state issued ID, along with the 11 other issues that go along with getting these free
12 ID's. A lot of our folks may have some driving 13 violations that oftentimes results in warrants if 14 you haven't paid a ticket. You know, we feel that 15 those people aren't going to be going down to any 16 place, any government place, to get these ID's in 17 fear that they will be arrested. So once again, 18 these state issued ID's, this voter ID issue, we 19 see as something to dissuade poor people, young
20 people, elderly people and even some of our, you
21 know, white counterparts that may not be in that 22 top, you know, 10 or 20 percent. So we feel that 23 this is the literacy test of 2013. So I wanted to

1 come here to exclusively talk about this voter ID
2 law and the long term impacts it could have on us
3 as far as, you know, we getting into trouble with 4 the law by simply trying to get these ID's that 5 they say are free.

6 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Mr. Gibbons?

7 REVEREND GIBBONS: My name is Reverend 8 Norman L. Gibbons from Lineville. Clay County is 9 my county. I ran for the mayor in 2012, and the 10 reason I came is to -- I can't do anything about 11 what happened two years ago, but I can do
12 something to the next person -- a minority to run
13 for mayor. There was a lot of infractions taking 14 place. One thing was like voter suppression.
15 They had a lot of policemen there. People voted 16 twice, absentee ballots and going to the poll.
17 The things that disturbed me the most, I had poll
18 watchers to observe the process, and they was 19 denied. So I felt like that was a violation of 20 the voter, and it was a lot of small town politics 21 going on.

22 I'm not going to speculate, but small
23 town, the mayor and the judge and everybody is in

1 together. And I feel like a lot of my absentee
2 ballots was not counted. I have some people that 3 came forward to talk to me about it, but they 4 won't come forward to testify. So I took them to 5 court, and I lost my case because of family stayed 6 together because they had -- the mayor's aunt was 7 the secretary. So it was stacked against me when 8 I went in there. So I just wanted to make you
9 aware of small town politics, what happened in a
10 small rural town. And like I said, can't do
11 nothing about two years ago, but I can make it 12 better for the next person of minority to run for 13 office.

14 MR. SIMELTON: Questions from
15 commissioners?

16 MR. DOUGLAS: Ms. Carter, in the 17 Secretary of State's documents explaining the 18 other valid ID's that can be used, do they define 19 what valid is?

20 MS. CARTER: Well, I guess so. I mean,
21 they have passports, you know, different state
22 ID's. But again when we are talking about our 23 young folk, first time voters. We are talking

1 about elderly folk who can't even read sometimes
2 at this point. You are talking about poor people
3 who may not always have access to even a computer
4 to get online to get this information of what 5 valid documentation is. You know, these were our 6 concerns that, you know --

7 MR. DOUGLAS: Do you think that -- I
8 think I heard you say fear of doing something 9 wrong would keep people from applying for --

10 MS. CARTER: We feel that this is 11 another form of voter suppression to keep 12 democratic -- most of these folks, I mean, let's 13 be real here. Most of these folks are Democrats.
14 We feel this is yet another tactic to keep these 15 demographic of people from the polls, dissuade
16 them from going.

17 REVEREND GIBBONS: Can I add to that?
18 In my election they had policemen everywhere.
19 Then in October, I went up, wasn't no policemen to 20 be found. So the common factor was that when a 21 minority run for office. I'm like what? I'm 22 looking around, what is the policeman doing here?
23 And when I ran for mayor, they were everywhere.

1 They were in the parking lot. They were guarding
2 doors. It was kind of like they suppressing the 3 vote or keep people from coming in.

4 MR. SIMELTON: What had been the 5 precedence in the past of the policemen at the 6 polling places?

7 REVEREND GIBBONS: It got out that I was 8 way ahead in the polls. So they got together and 9 kind of suppressed the minority vote. But it was 10 obvious that in October when wasn't nobody there, 11 what in the world is going on? But I knew what 12 the situation was. They didn't want no black
13 mayor in a small town. So that was suppressed.

14 MR. LODER: I think both of you all have 15 mentioned what I'm going to call we talked about 16 felony disfranchisement. So I'm going to call it
17 misdemeanor disenfranchisement because I think
18 that's a big issue. I think you just identified 19 two very significant intimidation issues that 20 don't even relate felonies, but people who may 21 have warrants for failure to pay fines, for 22 tickets, traffic tickets, or child custody. I
23 mean, a very common issue, both issues that

1 disproportionately affect particularly
2 African-American men, especially child support
3 warrants that may be out, but I don't know. I
4 don't think they eliminate their voting rights. I
5 think your driver's license may be suspended.

6 MS. CARTER: You won't have a valid ID.

7 MR. LODER: But they don't automatically
8 disqualify people for not making child support
9 from voting. So --

10 MS. CARTER: If you don't have that 11 valid ID, if they revoke your driver's license, 12 which they do after a certain amount that your 13 back pay in child support, they revoke your 14 driver's license. So that will affect your voting
15 because you won't have a valid driver's license.

16 MR. LODER: Nor will you want to go to a
17 state agency to get a new one, to do that. So I 18 do think that's a significant issue that 19 ultimately clearly with disproportionate effect.

20 REVEREND GIBBONS: What I was going to 21 say is if they got a warrant or something like 22 that, they are not going to come and vote. And 23 then if you don't have the proper identification,

1 you can't do that. So that's suppressing the
2 vote.

3 MR. LODER: Absolutely, absolutely.

4 MR. SIMELTON: Mr. Gray?

5 MR. GRAY: I guess I want to ask
6 Gibbons, you being from a small town like I am
7 from, it can be rough.

8 REVEREND GIBBONS: Yes, sir.

9 MR. GRAY: But what do you see going
10 forward that could maybe prepare other candidates
11 for what they may face, say, in the next municipal 12 election cycle? What would be some of the things 13 that you think we ought to know that this group is 14 going to do a report that would be worth knowing 15 in terms of kind of a to-do list for folks going 16 forward, knowing you have small town politics.
17 That's not likely to change. And, you know, like 18 mentioning the police presence, that's probably 19 not likely to change. So what do you see that we 20 need to do? Here we are in Birmingham, you know,
21 and we know what happened in this city in order
22 for things to change and how students and young 23 people faced police dogs and fire hose and so

1 forth. So what do you think should happen in 2 Lineville and other small towns like Lineville to 3 prepare for police presence in the future and 4 small town politics to make it so that black
5 candidates may be more successful in the future?

6 REVEREND GIBBONS: Okay. A couple of 7 things is that we have to educate the people on 8 the committee on how to be an effective poll
9 watcher, what to look for, and make sure they have 10 a proper identification, make sure that they live
11 where they say they live at. It's a lot of small 12 things that we can do in our strategy. And one
13 thing that excited me about running for mayor, I 14 went and counted the number of minorities within 15 the city limits. And, hey, I thought wasn't no 16 way I could lose. But, you know, they did some 17 things to strike some of my votes and things. But 18 one thing I will say, we have to educate them.
19 You know, maybe go to classes on how to be a poll
20 watcher, maybe ADC, some kind of organization.
21 And once a person decides they are going to run
22 for office, do your homework, do your research, 23 and make sure that the people that are working for

1 you are effective by knowing the knowledge on how 2 to be a better poll watcher and making sure that 3 you go out in the community with the churches
4 coming together in one car because of the strength
5 of numbers and educate our minority people, not 6 only blacks, Hispanics, on the proper
7 identification and things you have where you will 8 not be turned away at the polls.

9 MR. GRAY: How do you see young people,
10 new voters, helping to change some of these 11 dynamics in these small towns?

12 REVEREND GIBBONS: They have to get 13 involved. And being a pastor myself, we need to 14 do more to educate them to our right to vote and 15 the price that was paid for us to have a right to 16 vote. People died, you know, in order for us to 17 vote, to make a difference in our community
18 because a lot of young people don't know about 19 what Dr. King and everybody went through in order
20 to get the Voting Rights Act passed back in the 21 '60's, you know. We just have to get to the young 22 people. And we always are complaining about who 23 is in office, but the only way you are going to

1 make a change, you have to cast that vote. So we
2 need to educate them the importance of casting a 3 vote and being prepared to cast a vote. And 4 that's the only way we are going to make a
5 difference in our nation, our state, our 6 candidates in our small towns.

7 MR. GRAY: Great. Well said. Thank
8 you.

9 MR. SIMELTON: Any other questions?

10 MS. MIDDLETON: Can I ask a question? I
11 went with the voter ID, and I have heard people 12 talk about it before. But this is maybe unique to 13 us. We have a lady, she is 80 years old. The two 14 forms of ID that -- the two things they will take 15 is a marriage certificate or a birth certificate.
16 Well, back in about five years ago, we tried to 17 get her a birth certificate. Back then they 18 wasn't keeping too good of records. We couldn't 19 get her birth certificate and she went to 20 passport. They would give her a temporary six
21 month passport, but it's not good for anything
22 else. She is lucky that she has a driver's
23 license. She is 80, but she still has a driver's

1 license. She has something like -- suppose she
2 wasn't married, and she can't get a birth
3 certificate and she didn't have a driver's
4 license, could she not vote? There could be 5 people that don't have either one of those things,
6 and they can't vote.

7 MR. SIMELTON: I understand what you are 8 saying. But yeah. Yes, ma'am?

9 MS. CARTER: I wanted to make sure that 10 I address the issue of women when she talked about 11 that too. There have been challenges with women
12 with name changes when they are going in to get 13 these state ID's. If your, you know, your maiden
14 name versus your married name versus like Catrena
15 Norris, if it says a hyphened Carter and I'm not 16 hyphened, I can't -- I couldn't get that state
17 issued ID. So we need to talk about that along 18 with the minorities and the older and the young 19 folks that no longer drive. So what about our 20 disabled older folks? Now they are talking about 21 sending out these mobile units, but how are these 22 disabled folks going to get to these mobile units?
23 And here in Alabama, our Secretary of State talked

1 about they would be going into some of the nursing
2 homes and things of that nature, but who is 3 checking to see if that's happening?

4 MR. SIMELTON: They put a list where 5 they were going into a nursing home -- at least on 6 the list I saw -- were not -- they didn't have 7 those designated. They were going to -- most of 8 them are already in the city where the -- you can 9 get the regular ID anyway.

10 MS. CARTER: So those people that are in 11 rural areas that don't have cars and that don't 12 drive, what happens?

13 MR. SIMELTON: That's an issue.

14 MS. MIDDLETON: And a birth certificate
15 is $25.

16 MR. SIMELTON: Birth certificate, you
17 can get free.

18 MS. MIDDLETON: Where?

19 MR. SIMELTON: You don't get them in 20 hand, but they have an agreement with the Office
21 of Vital Statistics or whatever it's called,
22 bureau, that will allow you to get a birth
23 certificate. It will be transferred to where you

1 get your ID.

2 MS. MIDDLETON: If you were 80 years
3 old, you can't get that.

4 MR. SIMELTON: If you read the 5 regulation or the law, you can get a -- you don't 6 get it in your hand, but they do it
7 electronically.

8 REVEREND GIBBONS: One illustration I
9 used, I know you can't have too many, to answer
10 your question is the absentee ballots. The 11 absentee ballots is good for elderly people that 12 can't get to the polls.

13 MS. CARTER: Haven't the times been cut
14 in half on all those absentee ballots? I know
15 that's another issue. I'm not sure about Alabama.
16 I don't want to stray too far away, but I know
17 some of the times have gone from 40 days to 20
18 days to 10 days in some of our southern states.

19 MR. GRAY: It stayed the same though.
20 They were trying to reduce the number of days that 21 you could fill out a registration form and turn it
22 in. But the absentee ballots provision in terms
23 of execution and turning it in, that didn't

1 change.

2 MS. CARTER: That hasn't changed in
3 Alabama?

4 MR. GRAY: No, huh-uh (no).

5 AUDIENCE: I go to the nursing homes,
6 and I'm scared about the absentee. Someone said
7 that you have to bring the person to the, you
8 know, visibly have that person there to ID them.
9 How do you do that because I have people in the 10 nursing home that's been all paper, 15 years?

11 MR. SIMELTON: You said that they have 12 -- you heard that they have to do what now?

13 MS. CARTER: Physically be there.

14 AUDIENCE: I think I took about 220 in 15 2012 out to the nursing home, and the social 16 worker and some of the help out there filled out
17 all of those papers and sent them out. And we had 18 a problem that you have to be there physically. I
19 said what about -- they don't have driver's
20 licenses. People put out false information.
21 Because I think it's about 250 people out there.
22 I went out there, and I said (inaudible) if you
23 are talking about voting for the older people.

1 This man here had been on paper for 15 years at 2 the prison and everybody was telling him you
3 can't. So having him fill out his registration
4 (inaudible), but you fill out false information to 5 these people. Now we were told that you could go
6 to the Boutwell this Saturday and get your ID, get 7 your ID's, and they will send it to somebody at 8 the health department to give you birth
9 certificates and picture ID's. I don't know who 10 told it. They will fill out the different areas.

11 MR. SIMELTON: Are there any other
12 questions for the visitors? We want to thank Ms.
13 Carter and Mr. Gibbons for your testimony. We 14 appreciate your time and your efforts.

15 REVEREND GIBBONS: Thank you, sir.

16 MR. SIMELTON: Are there any other panel
17 members to testify? I know I haven't seen Ms.
18 Glasgow, Eric Hutchins, Dorothy Swain or Robert
19 Binion, I haven't seen any of those individuals.
20 Yes, ma'am?

21 MS. VOLKER: I had signed the sheet
22 saying is that the time now for the audience.

23 MR. SIMELTON: Yeah. We had one

1 period. So we will have another period if there
2 are no more panel members to testify. Your name,
3 please?

4 MS. VOLKER: Virginia Volker.

5 MR. SIMELTON: How many further
6 testimonies do we have? And we know Ms. Gray had 7 to leave. We want to certainly thank him for 8 being on the panel today as commissioner, and he 9 has to leave so he can get home. Is there just 10 one to testify? Please state your name again.

11 MS. VOLKER: I'm Virginia Volker, and 12 what I want to talk about is sort of a view from 13 the campaign trail and my concerns about some 14 things I have seen changed that are really -- that 15 are really contributing to voter suppression and 16 are undercutting the democratic process. First of 17 all, I think Ms. Carter certainly talked about a 18 lot of those key issues that we have seen here in 19 Birmingham. I have been on the campaign trail. I
20 have had three very successful elections and one
21 that was not so successful, and a lot of issues
22 were involved. But in each of those three 23 campaigns over the past decade, what I have seen

1 are some real changes in the way people come out
2 to vote. Number one, I would like to say that I
3 am very upset about the Section 5 of the Voting
4 Rights Act being gutted by the Supreme Court
5 because from my daily interaction with all the 6 people I see in my community, there is still a 7 great, great need for federal oversight of 8 elections from the beginning until the end. Not 9 just saying hey, we have solved the problems that 10 are addressed. So I can't say that enough. We 11 need that restored, and we need it expanded.

12 The next thing I see is the influence of 13 money in campaigns. Sure, it takes money, but 14 there has been an increasing part of me for a 15 candidate has to have money to quote "buy your 16 volunteers." It's like -- you know, and sometimes 17 these volunteers that are your buddies are there
18 for the highest bidder. And that includes
19 everything from who is going to hand out 20 literature for you to who is going to be at the 21 polls during the day, who is going to be a poll
22 watcher. We have always had some money, and 23 certainly people need to be compensated. But

1 there is an increasing cost to that, and it's a --
2 I think that's an issue that we need to sometime
3 get a handle on. Also I see that there probably 4 have been contributions that go to certain groups
5 or I should say group leaders to either do a big 6 campaign to get out the vote or to as voters not 7 to go out.

8 I think in this very past election in 9 Birmingham with the City Council and the school
10 board, I think there was an effort to not get out 11 the vote. And I with -- my suspicion is that some 12 people got some help to discourage people from 13 voting, and I think this is a very subtle but real 14 form of voter suppression. I think that also the 15 media increasingly will not speak about campaigns
16 or not speak about upcoming elections unless they 17 are getting money for advertisements. Campaigns
18 have been very low gear. The last campaign was 19 extremely low gear. Very few people were talking 20 about it. It was not the big issue, and yet there
21 was some very important issues at stake. And I 22 think that there has been too much effort to 23 deliberately keep the vote low. There is also an

1 undercurrent among younger people of all
2 persuasions throughout the city to say what
3 difference does it make if you voted or you vote.
4 There has been told, well, look, we have Obama in 5 the White House and he was going to do good
6 things, and dang, I still don't have a job. And 7 that's very true for a lot of our younger people.
8 That is an issue, and that is being fanned in by 9 certain people to say, well, it doesn't matter if 10 you vote or not. So people don't bother to vote, 11 even if they may have gotten registered because in 12 the high schools for a period of time we were 13 making a great effort to get people to register to 14 vote.

15 And the other thing -- could I just say
16 one more thing? I think we need voter education
17 from the top down, and I would like to see this 18 state require teaching about real citizenship, how 19 the laws are made and how people are elected and 20 then the nuts and bolts of how to get your 21 registration and the importance of voting. I 22 can't say that enough. I just think that's key,
23 and thank you for listening.

1 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you, Ms. Volker.
2 Are there any questions for her? Okay. I see
3 Mr. Eric Hutchins, an attorney, has stepped in.
4 So he was one of the panel members so we are going
5 to take his testimony at this time. You have your 6 choice, either mic.

7 MR. HUTCHINS: Good evening. I
8 apologize.

9 MR. SIMELTON: Let me remind you, give 10 your name, restate your name, and you have five
11 minutes.

12 MR. HUTCHINS: Yes, sir. My name is 13 Eric Hutchins, and I'm an attorney. And I'm also 14 here for the Alabama State Conference NAACP. And 15 I would like to thank the commission for inviting 16 me here to speak, and hopefully my appearance, my 17 experience, that I had can shed some light on some 18 of the issues in terms of voting rights. Back in 19 August of 2012, I had the opportunity to represent 20 a gentleman by the name of --

21 MR. SIMELTON: Excuse me. Let me --
22 Mr. Gibbons testified earlier so --

23 MR. HUTCHINS: Okay. And just generally

1 speaking, when I went to Lineville, one thing that 2 I discovered going there was that Reverend
3 Gibbons, he had a well organized campaign. And it
4 looked as though he was going to create something
5 very historic, to be the first African-American
6 elected to the City of Lineville, and for that 7 matter, as mayor of Lineville. Lineville is in 8 Clay County, Alabama, which is the home county of 9 former Governor Bob Riley. Demographically, it's 10 majority white, and now it is Republican. I say
11 that as it being a relevant issue towards voting
12 for the simple fact that Reverend Gibbons had 13 created a threat to the incumbent mayor. And in 14 the process of going through registering people or 15 campaigning or whatnot and both organizations
16 getting together, getting people out to vote,
17 getting absentee votes in, what ended up happening
18 is in terms of folks at the courthouse or people
19 administering elections, they ended up getting 20 information about -- internal private information
21 about seeing which way these people were voting.
22 One can conclude or they guessed that the people
23 that were submitting these ballots which were

1 supposed to be private and not seen, that the 2 assumption was that since they were African-
3 American, you were voting for a very viable
4 candidate who was African-American.

5 Reverend Gibbons had played football,
6 was the first African-American quarterback up
7 there, and he had been successful with his own
8 business. And then he was successful in terms of 9 operating a -- rising up to, I think, higher
10 management for Hardee's. And to make a long story
11 short, in order to curtail his ability to get 12 elected, what local officials ended up concocting
13 was rumors of him registering or submitting
14 ballots for people who were deceased. And then 15 they began -- some people close to the mayor began 16 spreading rumors that Reverend Gibbons and an 17 elected official from Clay County who is African-18 American had paid people money and promised them
19 alcohol and everything in exchange for their vote
20 for Reverend Gibbons.

21 But it even went further than that.
22 What we had in Clay County was a person who was 23 over monitoring elections and making sure

1 everything went fairly was the mother-in-law to 2 the incumbent mayor's secretary. And in addition
3 to that, her son was also at the sheriff's 4 department. Well, what we ended up finding out
5 was that her son had contacted a Caucasian female 6 who had earlier supposedly gotten into some 7 trouble, and he never did prosecute her, never did
8 submit that to the DA's office or anything like 9 that. So what he did was as months went by and 10 this individual was -- you know, everything was 11 leaning towards Reverend Gibbons possibly being 12 elected, he contacted this female on numerous 13 occasions by phone. And then as it got closer and 14 closer to the election, he called her probably a 15 total of about eight or nine times in one day and 16 with the very purpose of getting her to say that a 17 local elected African-American had paid her to -- 18 and given her beer and given her promises for 19 voting for Reverend Gibbons and basically doing
20 something fraudulent. And she refused to do so.
21 She refused to answer the calls, and he became 22 upset. He told her that he had found some 23 marijuana in her vehicle earlier before and that

1 he was going to prosecute her or send her to the 2 DA's office to have her prosecuted because she 3 didn't do what he wanted her to do. And he even 4 went so far to say that they elected a nigger for 5 president, but I will be damned if they elect a
6 nigger to be mayor of Lineville.

7 As the election rolled on, during the 8 election day when ballots were to be counted,
9 ballots were supposed to be counted in a 10 centralized location according to statute at the 11 city hall. That was never done. This was seen as 12 though it was a mere oversight. But what I failed 13 to mention was leading up to the election, when 14 people were doing absentee votes and everything, 15 you had members of the sheriff's department and 16 law enforcement going out to people's individual 17 homes and telling them that they could not vote if 18 they were delinquent on their power bill. And 19 they also told them that what they were doing was 20 illegal and they would be arrested for doing that.
21 And then they also told individuals that they had 22 to go on the day of the election and actually
23 vote.

1 Now the question is this: To have, you
2 know, someone so active, so concerned about
3 people's voting habits, but the question is how do
4 you know how a person voted? How is it that 5 government officials can go to people's actual 6 homes, knock on their doors in a very intrusive
7 manner using Gestapo type tactics? This is 8 happening in America. It's happening in 2012.
9 But on the day that it came time to count the 10 votes, you had police officers and the sheriff's 11 department surrounding the ballots. People going
12 in and out, and any effort by Mr. Gibbons, 13 Reverend Gibbons, or anybody else to monitor and 14 be poll watchers to see what was going on, it was 15 usurped by the fact that the sheriff's department
16 ended up conspiring in a veil of secrecy.

17 So what we eventually did was this:
18 When they tried to certify the votes, we filed the 19 open records -- we filed an open meeting suit, and 20 the whole purpose of filing that was we were going 21 to try to do the Rule 27 petition or we were going 22 to try to go through discovery to get what we 23 could get in terms of information and then

1 challenge the number of votes counted. I think
2 the most important thing we learned from this is,
3 number one, when things like this are going on, I
4 came in on the tail end as an attorney. We didn't 5 have any way to, you know, I guess, prevent the 6 wrongdoing or I say to respond to it. That's 7 number one. And number two, when it came time to 8 challenge what was going on in that critical time,
9 we missed the ball on a lot of that. So the 10 remedy that we were left with is an open meeting
11 suit. And to me, there was a weak and tepid 12 response to something that was painful then and 13 blatantly wrong.

14 So at this point, there is other avenues
15 potentially, you know, maybe a federal lawsuit
16 that we considered. But, you know, whenever a 17 person goes through something like that and they 18 have something stolen from them, it becomes an 19 individual decision for an individual person. I
20 mean, on the one hand, they want to be the trail
21 blazer for people to come. But on the other hand,
22 a person -- they make the individual choice of I
23 have to move on with my life. I have to deal

1 with, you know, other things in the future. But I
2 think a lesson learned from Reverend Gibbons'
3 debacle -- and I call it a debacle. Not on his 4 part, but it was a debacle on the part of people
5 who are still entrenched in victory and 6 intimidation and deception -- is I think on a 7 local level, you know, when things like this are 8 going on, we had to be cognizant and then it was 9 respond as quickly as possible and have some 10 people or an organization available to assist a 11 person and prevent this. Thank you.

12 MR. SIMELTON: Thank you, Attorney
13 Hutchins. Any questions from the panel members?

14 MR. LODER: I have a quick question.
15 It's good seeing you, Attorney Hutchins. But I
16 think we have kind of -- your testimony, listening
17 to your testimony and the testimony of Mr. Bobby 18 Harris from earlier, I think we are starting to 19 establish another pattern. I notice when I was 20 reading the Supreme Court opinion that one of the 21 ways they measured whether a district is still 22 acting like it was before the segregation laws
23 were passed or whether it was acting like a modern

1 city is the success of Section 2 lawsuit. In 2 other words, how much success our lawyers have in 3 winning voting rights lawsuits in that district.
4 So I think you brought up an interesting thing. I
5 think Mr. Harris mentioned some of the lawsuits
6 are never even brought because there is a lack 7 of -- a lot of it is lack of it's hard to find an 8 attorney who will do that. Not even pay an 9 attorney. Don't even get to the point where you 10 can pay one. Mr. Harris was, you know, having to 11 go to DC, and they can't do everything in DC. So 12 I think that's definitely something that we need
13 to document is that a lot of these lawsuits you
14 say you all missed the vote, it was too late to do
15 anything other than the open meetings, follow the 16 statute and everything. But one of the things 17 they need to document is that it's difficult to 18 even find an attorney to bring the Section 2
19 lawsuits in this state that's conservative because 20 lawyers don't want to buck. They don't want to 21 fight the hand that feeds them because a lot of 22 time, the judges are the same ones who are doing
23 the child support cases and doing the -- they are

1 relying on getting their fees from. So that's a
2 significant issue. And you might want to comment
3 also on how difficult that is, you know, for -- I
4 think you are not even -- you don't live in 5 Lineville, do you?

6 MR. HUTCHINS: No.

7 MR. LODER: So he had to come down to 8 Russellville, I guess.

9 MR. HUTCHINS: Alex City, yeah.

10 MR. LODER: So you might want to comment
11 on that because I think that's the difficulty even 12 to find attorneys or a machine to bring these 13 Section 2 lawsuits.

14 MR. HUTCHINS: I think that I would
15 agree in the sense that you have a civil rights
16 organization, and then you will have, say, ABC, 17 New South and you have organizations such as 18 those. And I think whenever there is some sort of 19 education, educational meetings or anything like 20 that that's there, it's not too often that you are 21 going to have a local attorney that is there at 22 the meeting that's involved. And it is not an 23 involvement for a political end. To me it's a

1 civil liberty thing. It's a matter of basic human
2 rights for a vote to be legitimate. I mean, I
3 don't care if you are a Republican. I don't care
4 if you are a Democrat. I don't care what party
5 you are. But in America, the election process
6 needs to be fair, and it must have some sort of 7 transparency. It must have some sort of 8 legitimacy, and there must be some sort of 9 (inaudible) regardless of the party that's 10 involved.

11 And I was in Ohio during the John Kerry,
12 when he ran back in -- I want to say it was 2000
13 -- was it 2004? During the 2004 presidential 14 campaign, and one thing that I noticed that was 15 interesting was when it came to voter rights
16 issues or challenges, a party that traditionally 17 is not known to raise those sort of issues and be 18 proactive in those issues, you have a well
19 developed and organized machine in the Republican
20 party in Ohio when it came to that. And what I 21 would like to see at some point is on local 22 elections, if there is some sort of mass or some 23 sort of attorneys where we want to have a large

1 association to have watch dogs there. And the 2 reason why I mention that is oftentimes the case,
3 it's targeted towards the African-American
4 population or minority population because the 5 intent is to dilute or totally eliminate the voice
6 of minorities in the election process, to make the 7 minority become irrelevant. And the way to make 8 people become irrelevant is to make your vote not 9 count. And, you know, I wish there were a way
10 that, you know, we can get something centralized
11 and we can make that something critical. I think 12 the recent decision, the Shelby County decision, 13 maybe that opens people's eyes up to that. It's 14 not the equivalent of a person walking across the 15 Edmund Pettus Bridge. But I hope the younger 16 generation of attorneys and people as civil rights
17 advocates, that they take an interest. Thank you.

18 MR. SIMELTON: Any other questions?

19 Okay. I think that concludes all of our 20 testimonies. I don't see anyone else jumping up
21 to testify. We certainly again want to thank all
22 of our members who testified, and this should help
23 paint a better picture of the voting rights issues

1 that we face here in the State of Alabama.

2 And we don't know where this will go,
3 but Mr. Reyes said earlier this will be a public
4 record so we will be able to use this testimony
5 for various reasons and for various issues that we 6 come -- that come up in our communities. And we 7 want to make sure that it's available to you, and 8 I know maybe tell us how we can get copies of the 9 testimonies. With that --

10 MR. DOUGLAS: I don't have a question,
11 but I do have a comment. And I do hope that we 12 can use the transcript not just to inform federal 13 level congress work what voting rights really 14 means, but also to use it here in Alabama to 15 inform our dearly misinformed legislature that 16 there is a voting problem in Alabama. It has 17 nothing to do with voter ID. There is voter fraud
18 in Alabama as being conducted by public officials
19 who are colluding and conniving to deter, suppress 20 and lower the voting right of poor people and 21 especially people of color. And the other thing I
22 found is there is a pattern throughout this whole 23 hearing today was particularly in small towns, the

1 collusion that's nepotism in these small towns
2 where small families rule absolutely. Nephews,
3 uncles, nieces, dealing, trading, wielding power
4 on behalf of families. There is a precedent for 5 that. It was called the plantation, the last time
6 families control masses of people. I think we 7 should break away from that.

8 And in Vincent, there is collusion
9 between families and corporations in terms of 10 White Rock quarry places. So I just think that 11 there are several targets for this. We mentioned 12 at the city level, at the county level, and at the 13 state level, not just the national, there is work
14 for everybody to do. So I just want to thank 15 everybody for the courage in speaking out,
16 especially some of these small towns. You can 17 stand up and find out that your credit at the 18 local hardware outlet has been cancelled. Your 19 credit at the local car dealership is no good. So 20 there is all kinds of repression that comes to 21 people in small towns that has nothing to do with 22 oppression from the state but from the economic.
23 Sorry about that point. But the prevalence of 1 nepotism and power in this day and age, that was 2 the biggest surprise to me of who is kin to who.

3 Birmingham, we have our problems too.

4 MR. LODER: Mr. Chairman, just real
5 quickly. I want to follow up on Mr. Douglas 6 because, remember, at the beginning, I mentioned
7 about second -- and the Supreme Court brushed out
8 the idea of second generational discrimination.
9 That's basically what Mr. Douglas is talking 10 about. Yes, there are more African-Americans and 11 minorities who are registered to vote. Yes, there 12 are more elected officials than there have been 13 before. But the backlash is that you increase the 14 participation, and then you get the nepotism and 15 the families who have been in power for years, 16 okay, generational power that they transfer from 17 daughter to son to children. And then all the 18 sudden, they are trying to keep those folks who 19 are voting from voting or their vote. So I think 20 this is definitely an accomplishment of this 21 hearing to evidence, strong evidence, of second
22 generational discrimination. It's blatant. It
23 doesn't matter how many folks you get to vote or

1 register to vote. We are going to keep things the 2 way they are in our town because we have been 3 running it like this and we are going to keep 4 running it like this because my mama ran it like 5 this, my granddaddy, etc., etc. So I think that's 6 a great point.

7 MR. SIMELTON: Yes, ma'am, question?

8 MS. BENNETT: Yes. I want to bring up
9 something too about the last. It was so
10 secretive.

11 MR. SIMELTON: I'm sorry. So what now?

12 MS. BENNETT: So secretive. People
13 didn't even know it was voting time. I'm being 14 honest because (inaudible).

15 MR. SIMELTON: Ma'am, you need to speak
16 up.

17 MS. BENNETT: Mildred Bennett. I want
18 to know why you don't supposed to know about the 19 voting period when it's voting time because I just 20 barely know because I'm out there in the clinches,
21 but my people been down there in Alice. But I'm 22 saying I knew about the voting happening about 23 three weeks before it was, before they put these

1 people in their 15 years. This is the council now
2 and the mayor. I went out and exercised my voting
3 rights. And I would say now are you going to vote
4 today? We don't know anything about voting, and I
5 mean this went on to day one of them being put 6 back in office. But they were about three days
7 with them, you know, with their shirts on and 8 their people coming to the poll and everything.
9 But these were people that they had told secretly
10 about the voting. And how do you put somebody in 11 office and then ask them to give their son -- get 12 my son a job on the council and put me in the 13 president's seat? How do you do stuff like that?
14 But it happened. It was such a secretive -- it
15 was a secret. And I'm not guessing. I know it
16 because I was out there.

17 See, I was out there in 2012, and I took 18 over 200 youngsters to the polls. I took my 19 voting right papers to the Parole Board. They 20 don't have the kind of felony papers that Mildred 21 have, and the people that work out there had me to 22 swap those at the Parole Board. They don't want 23 these youngsters to know that you can vote, but my

1 felony papers proved that to some of them.
2 Everything was secret in the last voting right
3 period, and God in heaven, I'm telling you the 4 truth. I didn't know, and today, somebody just 5 told me they are voting today. And I left the 6 council this morning. I'm just about there every 7 Tuesday. But they put who they wanted in the 8 chair because when I saw our president in there,
9 out there on the 44th Street North, it shocked me.
10 I can't think of his name. When I saw him sitting 11 in the president's chair, I liked to have fainted.
12 They got rid of (inaudible) and put -- but, see,
13 he knew I didn't know it because we had something 14 like a program dedication until I could just 15 faint. But we were out there, and when they 16 mentioned "and we are going to introduce the 17 president," when he got up there and saw me, he 18 got down in the chair just like this, like I
19 couldn't see him. But everything in this voting
20 right period, it was a secret. And everybody I 21 told to get to vote, "well, we didn't know about 22 it."

23 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. I think your three

1 minutes are up.

2 MR. SIMELTON: We have Ms. Charles
3 Hicks, wherever he is, to testify. But you can 4 come up afterwards. And this is probably --
5 Helen, you will be the last one. Mr. Hicks,
6 please state your name, and you have three
7 minutes.

8 MR. HICKS: Thank you very much. My 9 name is Charles Hicks. I'm a citizen of 10 Birmingham, been here most of my life. But there
11 are so many irregularities in Jefferson County
12 that occurs at election time until it's just 13 pathetic. And then there is no way to verify
14 these things. The biggest reason why I'm here
15 right now is that during the last election, I 16 think the last large election, I think it was the 17 mayor's election at that time, some six or eight
18 months ago, there was a -- the Justice Department
19 allowed Jefferson County to put most of the black 20 people into two specific districts. And I'm just 21 a little bit shook up about that because I don't 22 think we live in just two particular districts.

23 Secondly, there is no one doing any --

1 what do you call it? You call it security when 2 you have money. Your vote is just as important.
3 The problem I'm seeing is that there are too many 4 irregularities as it relates to how the votes are 5 counted. We don't know who counts the votes. We 6 don't know who is on the committee. There is not 7 enough information prior to the election. It
8 needs to be out there who is on the committee that 9 decides where the polling places are going to be.
10 We need to have all this information. There are 11 too many people sitting in positions that should 12 be able to give this data to the citizens, but 13 they are not doing it. I think we need to call on 14 these people to get up off of it. They can't 15 continue to receive these wages or these salaries
16 if they are not performing.

17 But I'm really here about the two 18 districts where it's just black people in two 19 districts. I'm a little upset about how they drew 20 the lines is what I'm trying to say.

21 MR. SIMELTON: Are you talking about the 22 city or the county?

23 MR. HICKS: I'm talking about the county

1 and the city when it comes to county and then
2 there are irregularities in the city. The problem
3 I'm seeing is just too much unfairness here. We 4 need to look at it like it really is. And if we 5 are going to deal with it, we need to deal with it
6 or we need to communicate and let people know who 7 is over the election committee, who has the -- how 8 many votes are on there. We need to know the 9 times and dates. We don't need to be told we can 10 advance the election because people have schedules
11 to keep and they have income to earn. I just 12 think we need to be a little bit more about the 13 business. I don't see the stewardship that needs
14 to be on the voting committees, and I want to know
15 who counts the votes.

16 MR. SIMELTON: Okay.

17 MR. HICKS: That's very important. But 18 we don't seem to know this information.

19 MR. SIMELTON: Okay. Who counts the 20 votes, that's certainly -- the probate judge is 21 responsible for that.

22 MR. HICKS: Well, he is just a judge.
23 You know, I can't give to the judge because he is

1 a judge.

2 MR. SIMELTON: No, no. I'm saying he is
3 responsible for that, for the election.

4 MR. HICKS: He, who?

5 MR. SIMELTON: The probate judge. Or
6 she. And I'm quite sure Birmingham and Jefferson
7 County has electronic feeders. I don't know what 8 kind of machines you have.

9 MR. HICKS: Well, we need to verify
10 those feeders.

11 MR. SIMELTON: One thing I think that 12 can help is if people will sign up to work the 13 polls. You can see what goes on.

14 MR. HICKS: Well, we are not talking
15 about seeing. We are talking about verification
16 of who we have in that actual slot of who is the 17 computer person that's handling that. We are 18 talking about real information and how this -- you
19 know, who is collecting this data. We know that 20 there are poll counters at each poll, but we don't 21 know the summation of any of this.

22 MR. SIMELTON: Okay.

23 MR. HICKS: You know what I'm talking

1 about. It's not Greek. You are talking about 2 stealing, and you know we see that here in 3 Birmingham. I see it. We see it here in the 4 county. We see some things that we shouldn't be 5 seeing in 2014. It's sad.

6 MR. SIMELTON: I agree with you.

7 MR. HICKS: It is very sad.

8 MR. SIMELTON: Your time is up.

9 MR. HICKS: I know you are pushing me
10 out of the way, but I'm not through.

11 MR. SIMELTON: Okay.

12 MR. HICKS: It's just crooked is what 13 I'm trying to say to you. You need to clean it
14 up.

15 MR. SIMELTON: Yes, sir.

16 MS. REVIS: Thank you. My name is Helen 17 Revis, and I'm a resident of Birmingham for the 18 past 33 years. And today I voted in an election
19 for District 53. We have been without a 20 representative for the entire legislative session,
21 even though our representative died last August.
22 And I think that the process is somewhat
23 disenfranchising, and it had all kinds of serious

1 consequences for the legislative session. It
2 threw our delegation out of balance, and those are 3 political things that may or may not have 4 happened. So we will be represented tomorrow and 5 Thursday in the legislature and in a possible
6 legislative session. And also because of the 7 snow, it was postponed a week, but we were not
8 notified of that. But I would like to say
9 generally that the Jefferson County county clerk
10 does a good job, but I am concerned at the amount
11 of time it takes to replace an official because I
12 think we have not been represented. Thank you.

13 MR. SIMELTON: I see Judge Batiste
14 trying to slip out of the room. Thank you for 15 being with us, Judge. I guess that's all our 16 public testimony, and I think this concludes our 17 program. Do we have any closing remarks that our 18 commissioners have? And we will start with my 19 left.

20 MR. LODER: Just want to thank Alejandro
21 and his organization for their efforts to 22 encourage us to put this together down here. It
23 was certainly a pleasure to meet you. Thank you.

1 MR. SIMELTON: I would like to echo
2 those comments and also thank the committee that 3 worked with Alejandro, Ms. Yvonne Kennedy and --

4 THE AUDIENCE: The National Congress of 5 Black Women.

6 MR. SIMELTON: The National Congress of 7 Black Women. And was there anyone else?

8 MS. KENNEDY: NAACP, yourself.

9 MR. SIMELTON: At this time we are going
10 to -- these are all our comments, and we will turn
11 it back over to Alejandro from the Lawyers
12 Committee who certainly did an excellent job
13 keeping us here and all the work they did.

14 MR. REYES: Just very quickly want to 15 thank everyone for coming out. We are really in 16 the age of we are back where we started in terms
17 of voting rights. So this is an incredibly 18 important time in history to be fighting for a 19 very simple right that we are all entitled to.
20 And I think someone said earlier today, we are not 21 talking about a privilege. We are talking about a 22 right, and that's really where we need to be. I 23 would like to thank everyone at St. Paul's for

1 making this space available to us. Ms. Yvonne
2 Kennedy, thank you so much for everything. The 3 guest commissioners, we couldn't do this without 4 you and everyone on the planning committee. We 5 actually worked on this for a number of months to 6 coordinate, to get the witnesses together, and I
7 want to thank everyone. That's all I have. Thank 8 you very much for coming out.

9

10

11 (Hearing concluded at 7:09 p.m.)

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23

C E R T I F I C A T E

STATE OF ALABAMA)

JEFFERSON COUNTY)

I hereby certify that the above and foregoing proceeding was taken down by me by stenographic means, and that the questions and answers therein were produced in transcript form by computer aid under my supervision, and that the foregoing represents, to the best of my ability, a true and correct transcript of the proceedings occurring on said date at said time.

I further certify that I am neither of counsel nor of kin to the parties to the action; nor am I in anywise interested in the result of said case.

/s/Anne E. Miller

ACCR #486

Expires 9/30/14

WORD INDEX
< $ >	42:1 45:21, 22	45 89:12 91:6
$100 95:12, 14	85:2 143:12	92:21
$25 125:15	2002 88:6	45-day 90:13, 15
	2003 89:4	486 159:20
< 0 >	2004 18:22 20:10,	4th 52:1 73:14
04 89:4	16, 23 27:15, 17
	29:8, 22, 22 41:1, 3	< 5 >
	42:22 45:22 99:23	5 20:21 41:2, 3, 5
	143:13, 13	130:3
< 1 >	2005-2124 2:7	5,000 25:18, 23
1 1:18	2007 75:4	26:3
10 23:14 82:18	2008 8:11 52:2	5:30 98:14
114:22 126:18	54:4 109:16	50 20:12 103:14
11 28:17	2010 65:23	52 79:9
12 18:22 28:17	2011 106:15	53 155:19
54:3 107:7	2012 54:3 58:13	5515 6:10 51:22
14 159:21	64:1 115:9 127:15	579 52:9
1401 2:6	133:19 138:8	580035740 52:3
14th 10:21	149:17	5th 107:1
15 82:18 127:10	2013 106:18
128:1 149:1	114:23	< 6 >
1500 1:21	2014 1:18 60:6	6 106:1
15th 107:7	155:5	60 91:7
17-4-131 52:5	2020 9:1, 11	60's 122:21
17-4-132 52:10, 14	220 127:14	62 6:10 51:22
17-9-30 113:2	24 51:7	66 42:3, 4
18 41:18	245 25:19	6th 1:21
18th 52:1	25 103:14
1901 10:17, 23	250 127:21	< 7 >
11:1	26 7:2	7:09 158:11
1963 9:19, 21	27 8:9 138:21	708 64:2
1965 9:11 20:5	27th 104:7	77 35:23
1976 19:2	28 54:6	780 23:6
1986 21:22
1988 100:16	< 3 >	< 8 >
1994 34:2, 7 36:11,	3 8:22 9:10	80 123:13, 23
12	3:00 1:19	126:2
1995 19:3	3:30 104:18	80's 44:6 65:20
	30 23:14 40:9	82 62:1 100:22
< 2 >	52:20 57:18 60:17	84 62:1
2 8:18 9:9 105:18	159:21
141:1, 18 142:13	33 155:18	< 9 >
20 48:6 57:18	35203 1:22	9 159:21
78:4 86:18, 19		90 37:5 79:8
93:2 98:13 114:22	< 4 >	90's 44:7
126:17	4 15:23	94 21:21 35:10
200 64:1 149:18	40 26:18 126:17
2000 12:8 19:3, 6	400 2:6	< A >
20:22 29:19 40:23	416-2008 109:16	ABC 142:16
	44th 150:9
		ability 135:11
		159:11
		able 9:8 49:18
		50:16 62:10, 11
		74:16 78:5, 9, 9, 13,
		14 79:22 80:23
		84:4 108:8 145:4
		152:12
		absentee 51:10
		59:7 66:10, 17, 21
		67:4, 6, 9, 11, 14, 15
		115:16 116:1
		126:10, 11, 14, 22
		127:6 134:17
		137:14 absolutely 120:3, 3
		146:2
		abuses 66:9 68:18
		abusive 69:4
		accept 26:7
		access 73:2 117:3
		accommodate 25:1 26:13
		accommodating
		26:12 accomplished
		63:11, 12 accomplishment
		147:20 account 83:3
		105:23
		ACCR 159:20
		accurate 108:7
		accusation 74:22
		accusations 113:11
		accused 55:19
		ACLU 91:8 93:12
		acres 54:6
		Act 4:18 8:22
		9:11 10:13 13:16
		20:22 27:2 69:2
		109:16 122:20
		130:4
		acting 87:11
		140:22, 23
		action 52:20
		159:15
		active 23:3, 4
		53:19 138:2

activist 13:19	135:4, 6 136:17	Alabaster 6:8	Anniston 77:9, 15
Activists 72:18	144:3	18:19, 22 19:4, 14	78:12 79:2, 10
acts 14:19 15:2	African-Americans	20:14 21:2 27:16	answer 126:9
74:12	147:10	29:3 40:20 41:23	136:21
actual 87:15 138:5	afternoon 4:15, 21	60:20	answers 159:8
154:16	6:1, 4, 12, 15, 21	alarmed 14:7	anticipation 75:6
Adams 74:16	7:3, 5, 12 9:14	alcohol 135:19	anybody 95:4
ADC 4:13 7:14	12:4 87:5	Alejandro 2:4 3:7	138:13
78:3 121:20	age 147:1 157:16	156:20 157:3, 11	anymore 57:4
add 62:1 117:17	agency 119:17	Alex 142:9	anyway 24:22
added 29:2	agenda 8:1	Alice 148:21	100:5 102:21, 23
adding 114:3	ago 21:23 25:15	alive 4:20	125:9
addition 16:13	37:1, 9 48:14	allegation 99:14	anywise 159:16
60:8 136:2	57:18 60:18 62:20	Allison 50:5	apologize 133:8
additional 31:22	85:3, 4 86:18	allow 3:21 40:22	appalled 57:1
additionally 12:22	115:11 116:11	103:4 104:14	70:19
address 16:6	123:16 151:18	125:22	apparently 15:1
25:22 26:10	agree 142:15 155:6	allowed 11:3	appeal 52:15, 18,
124:10	agreement 39:13	19:14 20:1 29:6	21, 23 53:1
addressed 130:10	125:20	58:15 59:5 68:7, 9	appealed 20:7
addresses 23:11, 18	agricultural 48:22	75:2 104:13, 15, 16	appear 100:4, 13
administering	Agriculture 8:10	151:19	101:20
134:19	ahead 3:4 9:13	allowing 99:2	appearance 133:16
administration 52:1	24:22 69:15 118:8	Amazingly 51:6	APPEARANCES
admit 43:23 73:5	aid 159:9	amended 52:6	2:1
adopted 10:17	ain't 35:10 98:1,	Amendment 10:21	Appearing 2:3
advance 153:10	11	52:9	applause 46:6
advancing 78:18	air 26:14	America 12:2	applicant 113:8
advantage 9:2	air-conditioner	138:8 143:5	application 90:11, adverse 70:12	26:15	American 42:20	18 93:19 113:4, 7, adversely 62:18	air-conditioning	75:7 135:3, 18	9
advertisements	34:18 35:2, 3	amount 108:10	applied 67:8
131:17	ALABAMA 1:9, 22	109:11 119:12	apply 85:17
advice 62:21, 23	4:8, 17 6:10, 18	156:10	applying 114:9
advise 18:1	7:4, 6, 9 8:7, 9, 11	ancestors 61:22	117:9
advising 53:14	11:14 17:14 18:22	Andrew 6:22	appointed 60:7
advocacy 87:12	21:2, 3 28:17 48:9	21:12	appreciate 46:4
88:2	51:23 52:6, 10	angry 84:16	71:21, 22 128:14
advocate 91:1	53:9 59:11 63:4	Ann 6:17 46:12	approach 44:17
advocates 144:17	70:18 77:8, 11, 13	48:5 74:16	approval 9:5
affect 16:10	85:16 88:9 89:6,	Anne 2:13 159:19	approved 19:4, 9
113:23 119:1, 14	22 90:7 91:9 94:9,	annex 28:4 44:12	70:1 106:14
affidavit 31:4	13 104:22 111:4, 6	annexation 42:17	approximately 12:7
affidavits 58:19	112:22 113:2, 4, 21	44:5	April 1:18
affirmed 20:4	124:23 126:15	annexations 9:5	area 12:13 13:21
afraid 14:7 111:16	127:3 133:14	27:21 29:3 44:9,	21:22 23:5 37:19
African 42:19	134:8 145:1, 14, 16,	17	48:21, 22 49:1
75:6 135:2, 17	18 159:3	annexed 19:18	50:1 58:1, 5 64:14
African-American	Alabamians 62:15,	20:11 28:10 30:14	65:12 71:17 78:23
42:10 119:2 134:5	16	42:18 45:2

84:6, 7, 10 102:19, 23 103:14 areas 44:12 45:2 107:18 125:11 128:10 argue 16:2
argued 15:5
argument 14:17 15:22, 23
Armory 21:17 31:15 32:12 33:18 34:5 37:14 arrested 54:10 55:19 61:9 114:17 137:20 article 106:2 108:15
Articles 88:7, 10 105:19 asked 23:16 25:10, 10, 15 32:15, 23 33:21 35:6, 8 45:14 56:20 65:22 68:12 69:19 82:9 112:19 asking 41:14 43:12 assets 94:2
assign 28:4, 5, 8, 12
assigned 19:5 30:15 assigning 28:6
assist 40:13 140:10 association 144:1
assume 41:5
assuming 14:14 assumption 135:2
Atlanta 13:7
at-large 77:18 78:2
attempt 42:18 113:11, 14, 20 114:9 attempted 43:3
attendance 50:4 attended 61:10
attending 61:10
attention 18:15 50:9
attorney 3:7 4:7 6:18 7:7 12:5 19:11 48:4 50:11

51:18 60:1, 5 87:20 104:22 105:1 133:3, 13 139:4 140:12, 15 141:8, 9, 18 142:21 attorneys 19:12, 13 45:12 49:9 50:7 68:21 142:12 143:23 144:16
Attorney's 69:9 105:2, 3
audience 5:12 18:1 40:17 46:11, 17 50:9 60:22 61:3 62:6, 7 64:21 127:5, 14 128:22 157:4
August 104:7 107:7 133:19 155:21 aunt 116:6
auspices 76:5
authority 38:1
automatic 94:10, 11
automatically 119:7
available 4:2 140:10 145:7 158:1
Avenue 1:21 2:6 73:14
avenues 139:14 aware 55:4 62:20 86:3 116:9
< B > back 5:15 9:8 28:14 35:5 36:16 37:18 41:19, 20, 21 44:1 45:6, 7 46:21 47:15 65:20 69:11 71:8 74:10 77:14 79:22 84:4, 4, 16, 21 88:13 89:4 90:13 93:5, 16 98:14 99:22 100:21 102:9 103:17 110:10 111:6 112:8 119:13 122:20 123:16, 17 133:18

143:12 149:6 157:11, 16 background 91:14
backlash 43:19 147:13
backlogged 91:13
backwards 80:5
bad 5:1 62:16, 18 69:16, 18 83:8 95:17, 23 balance 156:2
Balch 49:9
ball 43:23 139:9
ballot 66:17 67:9, 11 96:17
ballots 34:19 51:10, 11, 12, 14 58:17 59:7, 8, 9, 14 66:10, 21 67:4, 15 79:18, 20, 21 83:19, 22 84:3, 19, 21 94:16 95:3, 10, 11, 13 96:3, 5, 6, 7, 10, 11, 18, 20, 23 97:1 115:16 116:2 126:10, 11, 14, 22 134:23 135:14 137:8, 9 138:11 bank 83:3 108:8
banks 108:2
Barak 8:12
barber 73:16, 17
barbers 73:19 barely 148:20
Barry 107:2
Bartley 78:10
based 65:21, 22
basement 10:2
basic 143:1
basically 27:7 31:14 105:3 136:19 147:9
basis 81:5
Batiste 156:13 beating 17:9, 10
beauticians 73:20
beauty 73:16, 18
beer 136:18
began 10:23, 23 90:6 135:15, 15

beginning 4:6 130:8 147:6 behalf 87:11 146:4
believe 8:1 16:21 28:18 59:19 60:14 66:10 70:18 89:12 114:8
BELL 7:19, 20
Ben 85:8, 9 benefitted 63:19
benefitting 64:14
BENNETT 148:8, 12, 17, 17
Bernard 2:11 3:6 4:8 16:14
Bert 69:10
Best 40:4 77:10 159:11 better 95:5 116:12 122:2 144:23 beyond 20:5 43:7
bidder 130:18
big 32:14 37:22 101:23 102:1 118:18 131:5, 20 bigger 37:19
biggest 147:2 151:14
bill 89:10, 11 109:17, 18 113:1 137:18 bind 63:16, 18
binder 106:10
Bingham 49:9
Binion 128:19
biology 77:13
Birmingham 1:22 4:11 5:21, 22 6:3 9:16 11:16 12:5, 7, 10 57:15 69:9 70:13, 14 71:8 74:20 76:7 79:20 83:21 84:19, 21 105:9, 18, 19 106:3, 4 107:21 108:14 120:20 129:19 131:9 147:3 151:10 154:6 155:3, 17

birth 123:15, 17, 19
124:2 125:14, 16,
22 128:8
birthdays 63:15
bit 23:1 58:3, 4
97:9 151:21
153:12
Black 3:12 11:2, 12 12:15 27:15
29:1, 6 43:22
44:11, 12 45:4
49:1 56:10 59:4
62:10 65:9, 13, 21
66:1 76:8 77:16,
19, 22 78:5, 18
79:9, 11, 14, 23
80:16, 17 94:16
97:19 98:6 100:6,
6 102:16, 23 111:7
118:12 121:4
151:19 152:18
157:5, 7
blacker 44:13
blacks 58:6, 15
65:15 66:4 78:1, 6,
11, 19 79:8, 15, 17,
18 80:4 96:8
122:6 blatant 147:22
blatantly 139:13 blazer 139:21
blight 20:15 block 76:15 bloody 17:9
board 51:13 52:7, 12, 16, 22 53:5, 11
61:17 74:21 75:14
81:17, 22 82:3, 21
88:6 89:11, 18
90:9, 11, 14, 16, 20
91:3, 6, 12 92:11
93:7, 22 106:5
131:10 149:19, 22
Bob 134:9
Bobby 6:7 17:22
18:16, 18, 19 21:6
27:13, 18 28:2
29:8 30:5, 20 31:2,
6 41:13 45:21

140:17 body 105:7
bolts 132:20
bond 54:10 81:10
book 24:21 88:10
Booker 100:23
books 101:16
bootlegging 97:8
born 4:18
boss 97:7
bother 132:10 bothered 110:17 bottom 103:3
bought 48:19, 20, 20, 23 96:9
Boutwell 128:6
box 31:9, 11, 12, 14,
15, 21 32:2, 10, 11,
13 34:19 42:9
44:18 66:17 67:23
96:5, 6
boxes 24:14 31:17,
18, 19, 20 35:16
79:15 95:1, 2, 3
104:20
brainwashed 63:5
branch 7:15 48:7
break 98:13 146:7
bridge 11:17 17:8
144:15
briefly 3:5
bring 24:16 33:17
111:16 127:7
141:18 142:12
148:8
bringing 26:10 brothers 97:17 brought 21:23
35:5 37:6 38:10
141:4, 6
brown 62:11
Bruce 56:10
brushed 147:7
buck 141:20
buddies 130:17
build 71:11 83:12
94:8
building 21:23
24:12

Bull 10:1
bunch 89:5 102:17 burden 114:4
burdensome 114:3
bureau 125:22 burning 54:5
bus 84:13 business 72:17
103:11 135:8
153:13 busy 5:6
buy 96:17 130:15
buying 95:10 96:2, 11 97:6

< C > Calhoun 77:9
call 9:21 17:20, 21
46:7, 9, 12 58:1
72:7 79:17 87:17,
18 91:3 103:18
118:15, 16 140:3
152:1, 1, 13
called 35:6 50:8
53:8 60:19 69:18
84:9 87:17 89:6
90:3 96:4 125:21
136:14 146:5
calls 8:1 136:21
campaign 8:13
49:2, 15 98:1
100:21 107:17
108:2 129:13, 19
131:6, 18 134:3
143:14
campaigned 56:9, 9
campaigning 40:1
134:15
campaigns 106:12
129:23 130:13
131:15, 17
cancelled 146:18
candidate 30:9, 11
32:20 66:13 85:8
97:23 104:6
105:17 130:15
135:4
candidates 27:15
30:18, 19 50:19, 23
56:3 66:14 68:5

80:11 96:12
106:12, 17 108:9
120:10 121:5
123:6
car 122:4 146:19
card 74:8 113:5
cards 107:10
care 36:15 48:12
71:4, 5, 5, 14, 16
143:3, 3, 4
cared 109:5 careful 44:8
Carl 60:19
Carolina 19:13
62:8 63:4
carried 64:6
cars 84:14 125:11
Carter 112:7, 8, 15,
16, 17 116:16, 20
117:10 119:6, 10
124:9, 15 125:10
126:13 127:2, 13
128:13 129:17
case 11:22 31:5
44:8, 10 53:15
65:19 93:15 100:1,
22 116:5 144:2
159:16
cases 12:6 141:23
cast 59:2 123:1, 3 casting 123:2
castrophy 86:15
catch 18:10 104:15
Catrena 112:8, 17
124:14
Caucasian 136:5
cause 41:11 caused 82:16
109:15
causes 48:11
celebrated 63:15 cemetery 63:14
census 65:23
Center 7:7 84:12
centralized 137:10
144:10
centrally 32:1, 12
37:15
century 11:10
CEO 112:18

certain 44:12, 20
56:23 57:1 119:12
131:4 132:9
certainly 4:16
17:15, 17 49:10
86:6 89:3 129:7,
17 130:23 144:21
153:20 156:23
157:12
certificate 90:4
123:15, 15, 17, 19
124:3 125:14, 16, 23 certificates 128:9
certification 106:3 109:4
certified 23:10
52:11
certify 138:18
159:6, 14
CERV 90:3
Chair 2:11 3:6
150:8, 11, 18
chairman 7:14
31:2 50:5 71:13
106:8 147:4
challenge 12:18 43:7 139:1, 8 challenged 8:18
100:17, 19 challenges 124:11
143:16
Chamber 95:15, 16
chambers 48:8
95:19
chance 37:9 84:17
change 22:5, 7
24:2, 8, 14, 18 27:4,
7 33:12, 12, 18, 21,
22 35:12, 15, 16
37:1, 11, 16 38:21,
23 41:10 49:23
55:23 79:5 120:17,
19, 22 122:10
123:1 127:1
changed 17:11
22:2 33:5 49:3
50:14 51:7 57:8
79:4 107:11 127:2
129:14

changes 9:4 14:11
22:4 24:19 25:6
27:1 36:22 38:8
78:15 80:9 124:12
130:1
changing 22:9 23:4
channel 21:23
24:20 channels 74:20 chaos 105:20
charged 74:12
charges 97:14
Charles 7:13
110:4 151:2, 9
Chastity 6:2
check 55:17, 18, 18
59:8 67:5, 7 91:14
94:17 101:3
checking 125:3
checklist 85:23
child 118:22 119:2, 8, 13 141:23
children 15:13, 13
103:15 147:17
choice 133:6
139:22
choose 10:15 99:17 choosing 77:22
chose 11:15 15:3
Christian 63:18
Church 1:20 7:18,
19 9:18, 19, 22
10:3
churches 122:3
Circuit 52:6 53:13
60:4, 7, 9
cite 69:1
cited 55:19
cities 44:13 45:3
citizen 5:17 33:20
35:10 38:20 94:7
151:9
citizens 24:15
32:18 33:21 34:7
44:11 48:17, 19
59:4 70:5, 18 75:5
76:6, 8, 8 152:12
citizenship 10:14
132:18

City 6:8 8:18, 23
9:3, 23 12:7, 11
18:19, 23 19:4, 8,
15, 19 20:14, 16
21:3, 21 25:7 26:2,
2, 3, 4 27:16, 20
28:3, 5 29:2 32:13
33:5 34:15, 16
38:15 39:23 40:2,
19 41:23 42:23
43:15, 19 44:14
45:16 47:8, 9, 11
48:23 49:3, 18
50:15 58:6 66:3
67:1, 18 68:10
77:19 78:1, 15, 16,
16 79:6 84:8
105:8, 9, 18 106:4,
8, 13 107:21
109:10 110:5, 12
111:13, 14, 17, 18
120:21 121:15
125:8 131:9 132:2
134:6 137:11
141:1 142:9
146:12 152:22
153:1, 2
Civil 2:3 3:7 9:20
10:4, 9, 20 12:6
72:18, 20 73:14
142:15 143:1
144:16 clarify 31:8
clash 61:18, 20
class 62:12 113:10, 18 classes 121:19
classism 62:1
Clay 115:8 134:8
135:17, 22 clean 155:13 cleaning 63:14 cleared 19:10
75:16 82:3 86:8, 10, 20, 23
clearly 41:3, 3
119:19
Clerk 52:6 53:14
67:1, 12 68:10

69:4 74:16 110:12, 14, 21 156:9
clinches 148:20
close 42:6 63:10
74:15 135:15
closed 59:3 101:15, 16 104:19
closeness 64:15
closer 136:13, 14 closest 69:20
closing 156:17
Coalition 7:9
62:10, 17 89:7
90:8
code 48:23 49:8
52:6 113:2
codified 113:1
cognizant 140:8
cold 93:15
collecting 10:6, 7
154:19 collection 10:5
collective 43:6, 11
collectively 62:23
College 13:8 77:14
colluding 145:19
collusion 146:1, 8
color 145:21
come 3:9 4:22
6:16, 23 9:2 10:20
17:22 18:4, 10
22:5, 6, 12, 23
28:15 30:23 33:21
35:11, 15 38:20
40:6 50:18 65:3
70:16 71:7, 8 73:5
75:8 76:14 79:5,
22 81:11, 23 94:5
101:13 102:2, 10,
11, 13, 18, 19, 22
103:9, 13, 19 110:5,
18 112:9 115:1
116:4 119:22
130:1 139:21
142:7 145:6, 6
151:4
comes 80:3 83:11
112:20 146:20
153:1

comfortable 12:20 73:19	common 55:6 63:16 117:20 118:23	concludes 144:19 156:16	89:13 136:5, 12
coming 4:17 5:17 61:20 75:9 86:6, 12, 13 107:9 112:10 118:3 122:4 149:8 157:15 158:8	communicate 82:13 153:6	conclusion 22:22	contained 53:15
comment 44:3 47:1 56:19 68:7, 10 103:8 142:2, 10 145:11	communicating 69:11	concocting 135:12	contains 106:23 107:1
comments 65:1 157:2, 10	communication 92:3	condense 65:6	contend 113:22
Commerce 95:15, 17, 20	communities 45:3 91:16 145:6	condition 26:15	contention 22:17
COMMISSION 1:11 2:7 21:20, 22 22:3, 10, 18, 21, 22 24:4, 13 27:1, 5 32:16 34:2, 10 35:6, 10, 12 37:5, 6, 7 38:3, 5, 7, 21 47:7, 10, 15 50:2, 6, 10 60:2 71:13 102:16 133:15	community 8:15 13:20 29:12, 13 30:4 43:12, 21 45:7 122:3, 17 130:6	conducted 10:4 145:18	contiguous 28:7, 9, 11
Commissioner 6:22 8:10 21:12, 13, 20 22:13 33:19 40:19 46:23 129:8	companies 107:23	Conference 3:11 4:9, 13 8:9, 17 133:14	continue 152:15
commissioners 3:5 4:4 5:5, 10 8:2 22:1 24:5 27:11 32:19 46:20 47:1 48:3 54:16 72:7 98:16 103:7, 9 116:15 156:18 158:3	compared 58:14	confident 49:18	continued 8:14 11:9 76:17, 17, 18 91:9
commissioner's 35:14	compensated 130:23	confined 85:22	continues 10:22
Commission's 38:18	compete 30:18	conflict 26:23	continuing 98:5
committed 73:6	competition 101:10	confuse 33:9	contributing 129:15
Committee 2:3 5:17 19:11 29:19, 21 30:22 40:22 41:9, 15, 16 72:18 121:8 152:6, 8 153:7 157:2, 12 158:4	complaining 122:22	confusion 40:21 107:8 108:10 109:11	contributions 131:4
committees 153:14	complaint 104:10 106:23 107:6 108:15, 19	Congress 3:12 11:18 15:5 145:13 157:4, 6	control 95:23 96:13 97:9 98:8, 10 99:18, 19, 20 146:6
	complaints 104:22, 23 106:19 108:20	congressional 14:17, 18 15:1	convenient 24:15
	complete 85:21	Congresswoman 6:2	convicted 52:8 55:14
	completes 76:12	conniving 145:19	conviction 52:5 53:18
	completing 74:23	Connor 10:1	convicts 73:17
	complex 31:16 33:8 34:17	conscience 11:18, 19 13:13, 14 43:6, 11	cooperative 81:15 comprehensive 55:18	consequences 109:18 156:1	coordinate 158:6
	compromise 90:1	Conservative 106:9 141:19	copies 145:8
	computer 117:3 154:17 159:9	consider 47:7 66:8	copy 90:19 92:12
	conceal 43:13	considered 139:16	Corey 60:4, 6
	concern 55:3 76:16 82:7	consistent 107:18	corporations 146:9
	concerned 14:8 22:7 33:4 70:10 105:4 106:13 138:2 156:10	consistently 107:17	Corps 4:7
	concerns 117:6 129:13	consolidated 43:2	correct 34:3, 7, 8 38:6, 12, 21 42:11, 14 53:16 109:21 159:12 conclude 134:22	conspiring 138:16	correctly 51:11, 12 66:11, 20
	concluded 158:11	Constantine 84:9	cosmetologists 73:20
		constituents 32:14, 15 36:1 37:14	co-sponsors 3:10
		constitute 113:9	cost 52:17 131:1
		constitution 10:17 11:2 15:10 52:10	costly 114:2
		contact 106:21	council 6:13 12:7 18:23 19:15, 19 20:1, 16, 18 21:21 26:2, 3 27:16 29:22 40:20 47:11 49:14, 19 58:6 contacted 23:19 41:15 69:8 75:13

65:16 66:1, 4 77:19 99:10, 17 100:3, 13, 16 101:19 102:13, 20 104:6 105:18 106:4, 8, 13, 14 107:15, 21 110:12, 16, 20, 22 111:14, 17, 18 131:9 149:1, 12 150:6 councilman 6:8 51:2 79:11 counsel 45:10 159:14 count 28:14 63:23 96:20 103:4 138:9 144:9 counted 67:15, 17, 20 96:18 116:2 121:14 137:8, 9 139:1 152:5 counterparts 114:21 counters 154:20 Countians 61:19, 21 country 16:11 73:3 counts 152:5 153:15, 19 County 6:5, 8, 14, 23 7:1, 4, 11, 13, 14, 15 8:21 18:20 21:3, 13, 14, 18, 19, 20 22:18 24:12, 16 31:4 32:21, 21 34:10 35:4, 5 38:1, 3, 4, 7, 17 39:23 43:4 47:15 48:15 49:23 50:1, 2, 5, 11, 12, 18 51:22 52:7, 22 53:14 55:9 57:7, 9, 18 58:2 59:22 60:2 61:7, 12 62:4 63:2 74:3, 16 76:19, 22 77:9 78:7, 8, 11 80:23 81:16, 16 95:3, 19, 19 99:11 100:2, 6, 7 102:15, 15 104:23 106:22 107:3, 22 110:4	111:4, 13, 15, 19 115:8, 9 134:8, 8 135:17, 22 144:12 146:12 151:11, 19 152:22, 23 153:1 154:7 155:4 156:9, 9 159:4 County's 60:9 couple 14:5 18:14 34:10 83:17 84:7 121:6 courage 146:15 course 85:17 88:17 101:18 Court 2:13 3:21 14:2, 10, 11, 16 15:3, 22 18:12 20:6, 8 46:15, 23 47:3 49:4 51:14 60:4, 7, 9 72:15 82:21 99:8, 14, 19 100:4 101:15, 15, 16, 19, 20 102:2 104:4 116:5 130:4 140:20 147:7 courthouse 32:22 74:3 76:19, 22 134:18 courts 14:14 20:4 43:17 court's 9:4 coverage 109:5 covered 8:21 13:21 cradle 4:17 create 78:5 134:4 created 108:4 109:11, 19 134:13 credit 146:17, 19 crew 61:15 cried 63:15 crime 54:4 73:6 75:16 83:7 criminal 74:12 105:6 critical 139:8 144:11 crooked 155:12 cross 17:7 crossover 108:10	Crow 58:14 crucial 108:2 current 14:10, 15, 19 15:2 curtail 135:11 custody 67:4 118:22 cut 126:13 cycle 107:22 120:12 < D > daily 67:10 100:23 130:5 DALE 7:12, 13 105:13 110:3, 4 111:23 112:2 damned 137:5 dang 132:6 DA's 136:8 137:2 data 107:20 152:12 154:19 DATE 1:18 20:16 52:21 70:1 90:18 110:23 159:13 dates 153:9 daughter 147:17 day 5:3, 3 11:10 51:7 54:11 69:16, 18, 19 75:9 83:16 91:7 103:14 130:21 136:15 137:8, 22 138:9 147:1 149:5 days 37:3, 6 52:20 53:11 82:11 89:12 92:21 107:7 126:17, 18, 18, 20 149:6 DC 2:7 45:11 69:11 141:11, 11 dead 4:19 93:14 deadline 70:5 deal 110:9 139:23 153:5, 5 dealership 146:19 dealing 97:12 112:22 146:3 dear 89:4	dearly 145:15 death 4:19 debacle 140:3, 3, 4 debate 22:17 decade 129:23 decades 11:9 12:23 deceased 135:14 deception 140:6 decided 102:10 decides 121:21 152:9 decision 52:15, 18 70:4 139:19 144:12, 12 decisions 73:3 dedication 150:14 deep 13:14 defeat 20:13 41:21 96:12 98:3 defeated 20:10, 12 27:15 29:10, 23 30:8 78:2 define 116:18 definitely 141:12 147:20 degree 14:7 delayed 17:15, 17 delegate 11:2 delegates 11:3 delegation 156:2 deliberate 24:13 32:17 deliberated 22:3 deliberately 131:23 delinquent 137:18 deliver 81:6, 7 demanded 11:16, 17 democracy 11:21 Democrat 4:12 32:22 143:4 Democratic 8:9, 17 114:2 117:12 129:16 Democrats 117:13 demographer 30:12 demographic 117:15 demographically 57:21 134:9
--	--	--	--

demographics 31:1 demonstration 9:21 denied 74:11 89:15, 16 115:19 Department 19:7, 10, 12, 14, 22 29:18, 21 40:21 41:9 68:20 69:7, 20 70:7, 8, 9 75:13 85:2, 5, 7 87:20 88:16 106:19 108:19 128:8 136:4 137:15 138:11, 15 151:18 departure 9:19 98:19 depend 83:15 depends 65:12 depressing 82:16 86:16 88:4 Deputy 8:10 describe 43:9 described 43:8 designated 19:1 20:18 125:7 destiny 98:9 destroyed 71:12 detailed 47:13 deter 10:8 145:19 determined 19:7 developed 90:9 91:2 143:19 development 28:1 61:5, 20 died 17:7 63:16 122:16 155:21 difference 57:20 59:20 122:17 123:5 132:3 Differences 58:11 different 28:5 30:15, 15, 17, 17 34:23 40:23 45:19, 20 59:23 107:15 116:21 128:10 differently 41:10 difficult 76:6 141:17 142:3 difficulty 70:10	142:11 dig 13:14 dilemma 13:15 Dillard 19:1 44:8, 9 65:19 100:22 110:9 dilute 42:10, 19 144:5 dilution 12:12, 14 diminishing 11:20 direct 26:23 74:18, 19 106:21 directed 92:4 direction 30:1 directly 24:6 25:3 director 4:10, 13 8:8, 12 9:15 Directors 88:7 disabled 124:20, 22 disallowed 19:23 disclose 50:8 discourage 42:12, 13 131:12 discovered 134:2 discovery 138:22 discrepancies 106:6 discriminated 16:3 discrimination 15:8, 9 47:4, 16 147:8, 22 discriminatorily 44:21 discriminatory 14:19 45:17 disenfranchise 10:19 11:5, 6 disenfranchised 109:10 disenfranchisement 11:5 118:17 disenfranchising 155:23 disfranchisement 118:16 disobedience 10:4, 9 disperse 29:4 dispersed 30:14 disproportionate 119:19	disproportionately 113:23 119:1 disqualifies 52:9 disqualify 119:8 dissuade 114:9, 19 117:15 district 12:11 21:15, 16, 16 22:9, 11 24:3, 4, 6 25:3, 4, 5, 9, 19, 20 29:1 31:20, 22 32:2 33:1 35:13, 14, 17, 23 36:18 42:4, 19 43:7 48:8 49:17 50:20, 21 51:1, 1, 1 56:3, 4, 7, 11 73:13, 15 103:11, 19 104:23 105:1, 3, 18, 23 106:1, 14, 15 107:5, 19 110:11 111:7, 8 140:21 141:3 155:19 districts 12:19, 20 28:16, 23 30:16 41:2, 11 56:9 107:15 111:2, 12 151:20, 22 152:18, 19 disturb 76:4 disturbed 53:7 115:17 document 53:3 86:4, 5 88:16 141:13, 17 documentation 52:19 59:17 117:5 documented 68:19 documenting 92:18 documents 87:1 101:21 116:17 dogs 10:1 120:23 144:1 doing 23:7, 15 27:23 31:9 63:3 71:1 77:1 93:12 95:20 117:8, 22 136:19 137:14, 19, 20 141:22, 23 151:23 152:13	DOJ 106:23 108:16, 21, 22 door 3:16 23:13 56:12, 12 doors 118:2 138:6 Dorothy 72:9 128:18 Douglas 2:10 4:10 9:12, 14, 15 36:20 37:23 38:4, 7, 11, 13, 22 39:5, 8, 15 51:17 54:3 57:7, 11, 17, 20 58:8, 10 60:16, 23 61:4 80:21 81:7 82:1 83:11 89:5 116:16 117:7 145:10 147:5, 9 downstairs 3:15 98:15 downtown 103:18 Dr 12:1 13:4 77:5, 6, 20 78:1, 10 79:2 83:18, 23 85:3, 14 97:12, 14 122:19 draft 29:4 45:15 drafted 49:8, 10 drain 86:23 draw 9:3 30:12 dreams 94:3 drew 152:19 drive 39:7 124:19 125:12 driver's 119:5, 11, 14, 15 123:22, 23 124:3 127:19 driving 114:12 drop 22:22 dropped 43:23 83:10 due 52:4 duties 82:20 duty 74:2 dynamics 122:11 < E > earlier 19:3 45:15 53:17 133:22
---	---	--	--

136:6, 23 140:18 145:3 157:20 early 12:8 33:14 58:22 106:17 earn 153:11 easier 89:8 easily 79:11 eastern 12:13, 15 easy 90:6 echo 157:1 economic 27:23 146:22 economically 57:22 Ed 19:11 Edmund 144:15 educate 16:20 121:7, 18 122:5, 14 123:2 educating 16:18 education 132:16 142:19 educational 142:19 effect 58:20 119:19 effective 71:21 76:10 121:8 122:1 effects 15:20 effort 11:11 42:10, 19 56:14 63:20 82:2 131:10, 22 132:13 138:12 efforts 11:8 128:14 156:21 eight 51:4, 5, 8 136:15 151:17 either 3:17 27:11 89:19 124:5 131:5 133:6 elderly 113:23 114:20 117:1 126:11 elect 49:14 62:16 79:11 137:5 elected 7:1 32:21 34:1 65:16 66:1 69:3 77:17, 18 78:6, 8 80:18 95:22 132:19 134:6 135:12, 17 136:12, 17 137:4 147:12	election 5:3 6:19 17:1 19:15, 21 20:4, 17 22:5 24:11 27:16 29:10, 11, 17, 23 33:10, 11 37:3 40:23 41:12, 15 42:2, 23 49:19 50:15, 17 51:4, 5, 6 54:2 56:22 58:13 63:22, 23 64:1, 2 66:7 69:13, 17, 18 79:14 81:22 82:6 83:20 86:12, 17 87:3 95:16 96:4 106:8, 13, 20 107:8, 22 108:5, 17 110:16, 19 111:11, 17 117:18 120:12 131:8 136:14 137:7, 8, 13, 22 143:5 144:6 151:12, 15, 16, 17 152:7 153:7, 10 154:3 155:18 elections 9:1, 3 17:2 19:6 42:1 68:17 80:10 81:20 100:14, 15 106:5 107:21, 23 129:20 130:8 131:16 134:19 135:23 143:22 electoral 42:9 electronic 154:7 electronically 126:7 elicit 113:5 eligibility 90:4 eliminate 119:4 144:5 Ellis 50:10, 11 email 107:2 emails 64:9, 10 embarrass 69:1 employee 76:10 113:17 employees 76:23 80:23 81:12 enactment 15:3 encourage 13:13 35:1 156:22	encouraged 73:23 74:6 ended 83:4 134:17, 19 135:12 136:4 138:16 enforcement 137:16 engage 72:23 ensued 50:3 entire 71:10 155:20 entitled 82:22 157:19 entity 76:4 entrenched 140:5 envelope 59:13 104:18 105:4 envelopes 59:12 Environmental 64:12, 13 equal 73:2 equality 66:2 equally 16:1, 10 equation 47:9 equipment 39:11 equity 66:8 equivalent 144:14 Eric 128:18 133:3, 13 error 53:18 55:5 Ervin 5:16 especially 3:10 84:5 88:9 119:2 145:21 146:16 establish 140:19 ethics 62:3 Evelyn 7:9 evening 133:7 event 3:11 52:23 eventually 28:14 69:9 93:15 138:17 Evergreen 8:7, 18, 23 everybody 12:19 13:11 64:19 96:21 115:23 122:19 128:2 146:14, 15 150:20 evidence 15:2 147:21, 21	exactly 14:3 31:8 41:11 49:11 71:15 exaggerating 101:23 example 62:9 107:10 excellent 157:12 exchange 135:19 excited 121:13 exclusively 115:1 ex-con 73:5 ex-cons 72:23 Excuse 133:21 execution 126:23 executive 4:10 9:15 exercise 10:14 83:15 exercised 149:2 ex-felon 82:2 89:12, 13, 16, 22 90:3, 5, 14 91:1, 5, 5 92:12, 21 93:20 ex-felons 81:1 85:16 89:8 exhale 43:20, 20 exhaled 43:21, 21 exist 47:6 existence 21:19 exit 85:21 ex-offenders 81:1 expanded 130:11 expect 45:9 expedite 91:21 expense 82:1 experience 133:17 experiences 63:1 expert 10:13 Expires 159:21 explain 41:6 73:8 explaining 116:17 expressed 37:16 extend 9:18 extensive 83:5 extent 14:8 47:17 extremely 91:12 131:19 eyes 94:5 144:13 < F >
---	---	---	--

face 10:11 97:13, 20 120:11 145:1	felonies 23:6, 12 55:14 118:20	fire 10:1 36:16 39:20 54:6, 8 120:23	9, 16 93:4, 21 117:11 126:21 131:14 159:9
faced 87:3 120:23	felons 91:21	first 5:9 8:20 14:6, 6 17:20 18:14, 17 27:14 46:2, 14 61:18 65:8 66:23 75:6 89:2 101:12 105:15 106:23 108:15 110:13 112:15, 17 116:23 129:16 134:5 135:6	formal 52:21
facility 25:1 32:3	felon's 87:14 90:21	fixing 36:15	formally 3:17
facing 11:21	felony 52:4, 8 53:17 54:8, 20 89:2 90:18 113:10, 18, 19 114:5 118:16 149:20 150:1	flagrant 66:9	formed 81:10 89:6
fact 11:14 68:10 107:20 111:4 134:12 138:15	felt 73:18 88:21 100:14 101:17 102:21 115:19	flight 79:6	former 6:7 97:7 134:9
factor 117:20	female 11:3 20:20 136:5, 12	Floyd 72:10, 10, 11, 16, 17 81:4, 8 82:7 86:2 87:10, 16 88:4 89:1 92:2, 8, 13, 23 93:13 94:1	formers 61:23
facts 41:7	field 4:13 8:8	folk 98:6 116:23 117:1	forms 64:7 74:2 123:14 failed 9:20, 21 20:17 137:12	fifth 104:19	folks 61:19 77:17 96:4 114:12 117:12, 13 120:15 124:19, 20, 22 134:18 147:18, 23	forth 18:9 69:12 103:17 111:16 112:9 121:1
failure 20:13 118:21	fight 11:23 49:6 141:21	follow 59:10 74:18 96:15 141:15 147:5	fortunate 49:16 63:20
faint 150:15	fighting 11:23 12:1 29:14 157:18	followed 56:15	forward 9:10 11:22 16:11 27:22 30:17 44:6 46:21 47:5 63:7 116:3, 4 120:10, 16
fainted 150:11	fighths 43:15	following 81:22	fought 12:1 17:6 43:15
fair 22:14 80:18 98:1 143:6	figure 13:15	follow-up 66:12 71:20	found 48:14 50:22 51:10 61:15 76:6 89:21 90:22 91:10 100:2 113:2 117:20 136:22 145:22
fairly 136:1	figured 106:11	food 3:15 98:14	founded 88:5
false 127:20 128:4	file 74:23 78:13 85:12, 14 93:14	Foot 72:19 87:8	founder 4:7
falsification 113:8	filed 65:20 85:1, 5, 8, 10 104:9 107:1, 6 108:16, 18, 21 138:18, 19	football 135:5	four 6:20 13:4 18:21 20:2 22:19 31:22 38:10, 11 47:14 48:13 62:19 78:16
falsifying 113:12	file 74:23 78:13 85:12, 14 93:14	forefathers 17:5	fourth 104:17
families 146:2, 4, 6, 9 147:15	filed 65:20 85:1, 5, 8, 10 104:9 107:1, 6 108:16, 18, 21 138:18, 19	foregoing 159:6, 10	frame 64:17 82:5
family 61:14 116:5	filing 138:20	foreparents 17:6	Franklin 7:11, 13, 14 110:4 111:4
fanned 132:8	fill 23:21 73:23 93:4 108:12 126:21 128:3, 4, 10	form 62:10 74:1 90:5, 6, 21 92:6, 7,	frankly 109:6
far 70:9 95:5 115:3 126:16 137:4	filled 106:19 127:16		fraud 113:8, 21 145:17
farm 48:16	fills 90:5		fraudulent 136:20
fast 37:7	final 44:2 53:2		Freddy 77:6, 7
father 12:9, 16 13:3 57:13	Finally 20:21 43:5		free 45:10 113:12, 15 114:8, 10, 11 115:5 125:17
fathers 44:15	find 61:2 73:15 110:19 113:16 141:7, 18 142:12 146:17		freed 10:19 11:9
fear 114:17 117:8	finding 136:4
federal 9:2 20:3, 4 69:15 130:7 139:15 145:12	fine 18:3
feed 34:18	fined 61:9
feeders 154:7, 10	fines 89:20 94:11 118:21
feeds 141:21	finish 10:12
feel 27:3 43:9, 10, 13 52:19 76:19 94:6 102:14 103:1 114:14, 22 116:1 117:10, 14	finished 46:2 54:12 fees 142:1
feet 40:9
fellowship 10:2
felon 87:15

friends 63:9, 10 71:6	18, 21, 23 67:13, 17, 19 68:6, 9 69:6 70:15 72:1, 4 112:5, 9 115:6, 7, 8 117:17 118:7 119:20 120:6, 8 121:6 122:12 126:8 128:13, 15 133:22 134:3, 12 135:5, 16, 20 136:11, 19 138:12, 13 140:2	131:4, 7 137:22 138:5, 22 141:11 145:2 goal 10:18 63:19 God 150:3 goes 60:11, 14 71:4 139:17 154:13 going 3:4, 4 4:20 7:15 9:10, 22 13:10, 12 14:11 15:8 16:6, 7 17:19, 21 18:6, 8 22:11, 12, 19 23:20 24:14 25:13 26:8 27:3, 22 30:17 32:16 33:7, 11, 12 36:2 38:20 39:17 41:18 43:19, 23 44:1, 6 46:8, 21 47:5 49:13 50:16, 17, 19, 21 59:1, 2 60:11, 13 64:20 68:13 70:17 77:14 79:21 80:2, 17 81:21 86:14 89:1, 14 96:3, 10 98:7, 11, 13, 18 100:10 102:10 103:12, 19 106:10 107:18 109:20 110:18 114:15, 15 115:16, 21, 22 117:16 118:11, 15, 16 119:20, 22 120:9, 14, 15 121:21 122:23 123:4 124:12, 22 125:1, 5, 7 130:19, 20, 21 132:5 133:4 134:2, 4, 14 137:1, 16 138:11, 14, 20, 21 139:3, 8 140:8 142:21 148:1, 3 149:3 150:16 152:9 153:5 157:9 Good 4:15 5:1 6:1, 4, 12, 15, 21 7:3, 5, 12 9:14 12:4 13:19 28:3	30:10, 20 41:13 46:5 83:16 87:5, 5 123:18, 21 126:11 132:5 133:7 140:15 146:19 156:10 Goode 19:21 googling 113:2 Gordon 77:20 gotten 107:2 132:11 136:6 government 10:16 11:13 48:7, 10 69:15 78:8 114:16 138:5 governments 44:11 Governor 134:9 grace 74:9 granddaddy 148:5 grandparents 15:17 Gray 2:7 4:12 8:4, 6, 7 13:17, 17 21:8, 14 25:12 27:12, 13, 19 28:20 30:3, 6 33:23 34:4, 9 35:18 36:7, 11, 19 44:2 45:23 65:7, 8, 14, 18 66:17, 19, 22 67:10, 14, 18 68:4, 8, 15 70:13 71:18 77:11 89:1 90:17 92:6, 10, 17 93:11, 18 94:12, 21 96:23 97:7 99:4 100:23 105:8, 13 112:4 120:4, 5, 9 122:9 123:7 126:19 127:4 129:6 Grays 13:23 great 70:10 75:10 86:12, 17 123:7 130:7, 7 132:13 148:6 Greater 4:11 9:16 greatly 58:12 Greek 155:1 Gresham 60:13 ground 13:9 29:11 36:3 39:6, 10
fulfill 82:11 fulfilled 82:20 full 10:14 91:18 Fuller 24:9 34:14, 15 fully 108:3 Fundamentally 16:4 55:20 Fungo 60:20, 22, 23 further 129:5 135:21 159:14 future 64:20 121:3, 5 140:1	G-i-b-b-o-n-s 48:6 Gift 4:7 give 5:11, 19 6:23 8:2 14:5 23:8, 17 25:21 27:8 31:4 34:9 37:4, 9 46:5 62:23 64:19 72:13, 14 83:2 89:15 95:13, 14, 22 96:21 98:9 110:6 112:9, 13 123:20 128:8 133:9 149:11 152:12 153:23 given 35:19 38:23 45:1 58:19 96:6 136:18, 18 gives 9:9 45:13 giving 26:9 47:18 52:16 80:20 96:2 glad 4:21 5:4 6:6 93:5, 12 Glasgow 128:18 go 3:4 9:13 18:8, 16 19:15 21:7, 8 24:22 28:14, 15, 16 30:1 32:4, 8 37:18 40:3 41:20, 21 46:23 54:17 68:22 72:8 74:2, 16, 19, 19, 20 75:23 76:23 79:7, 20 83:8 84:15, 19 93:15 98:6, 19 101:5, 5, 19 103:1, 11 109:20 110:10 112:15 114:7, 11 119:16 121:19 122:3 127:5 128:5
< G > game 54:11 Gary 24:9 Gavin 72:9, 11, 15, 16 80:21 85:16 87:6 gear 131:18, 19 general 104:22 generally 108:1 133:23 156:9 general's 87:21 generation 15:7, 8, 20 144:16 generational 147:8, 16, 22 gentleman 5:14 19:20 105:14 133:20 gentlemen 109:22 George 100:23 Gestapo 138:7 getting 82:2 91:21 108:6 114:11 115:3 131:17 134:16, 16, 17, 19 136:16 142:1 Gewin 48:8 GIBBONS 6:17, 17 46:13 48:4, 5, 5 51:19 56:1, 6 57:7, 13, 19 58:12 63:8 65:9, 11, 17 66:16,

Group 4:16 30:12, 23 63:9 120:13
131:5
groups 45:7 114:1
131:4
grow 44:13 growing 44:23
58:3, 3, 4, 5
grown 57:14 growth 27:23
44:19
Guard 21:17
31:15 32:12 34:4
37:14 guarding 118:1
guess 12:23 27:13
44:3, 5 53:11, 23
54:7 66:12 75:20
116:20 120:5
139:5 142:8
156:15
guessed 134:22 guessing 149:15
guest 3:5, 13 4:4
17:20 158:3
guidelines 40:4
gun 92:20 guns 10:7
guru 13:18
gutted 130:4
guy 26:16 95:10, 12 96:10

< H > habits 138:3

half 13:5 18:20
106:7 126:14
hall 9:23 10:2
67:1, 18 137:11 hallowed 13:3, 9
halls 13:3
Hamilton 56:10
hand 76:18 81:5, 7
95:12 97:2, 3
125:20 126:6
130:19 139:20, 21
141:21
handful 95:11
handing 95:2
handle 131:3

handled 12:6 51:11, 12 66:11 handling 154:17
hands 69:3 76:21
hang 80:8
happen 14:13
36:22 76:20 81:2
92:1 94:23 98:11
121:1
happened 4:23
8:16 9:23 13:6
14:6 15:16 40:23
41:11 55:4 56:18
106:1 110:7
115:11 116:9
120:21 149:14
156:4
happening 17:14
44:20 55:7 96:8
110:8 125:3
134:17 138:8, 8
148:22 happens 71:14
125:12
happy 3:8 9:7
94:1
harassed 56:17
hard 17:6 70:16
71:11 73:4 80:8, 9
96:12 101:7, 8
109:2 141:7
Hardee's 135:10
hardware 146:18
Harpersville 6:14
49:20, 22 58:4
99:11, 12 102:11,
12, 18
Harrington 100:3
HARRIS 6:7, 7, 21,
22 17:22, 22 18:4,
4, 16, 18, 19 21:6, 6,
10, 11, 12 27:10, 10,
14, 18 28:2 29:8
30:5, 20 31:3, 6, 8,
13, 19 33:23 34:3,
8, 12 35:21 36:9,
12, 20, 23 38:3, 6, 9,
12, 15 39:3, 6, 9, 16
41:13 42:8, 11, 13,
16, 21 43:14 45:21

47:8 52:2 53:13
55:11 99:1 104:2,
5, 6 105:9, 11, 11,
17 106:1 108:17
140:18 141:5, 10
Harris's 47:1
hate 10:11 71:3
103:22
havoc 108:4, 4
hazardous 102:12, 20 head 18:15 46:16 60:1
headed 12:21
health 70:23 128:8
hear 5:18 51:19 65:1
heard 41:7 55:9
62:19 66:9 90:14,
19 91:5 99:12
117:8 123:11
127:12
HEARING 1:9
3:18 11:22 14:9
24:22 26:11 32:18
33:17 62:3, 4
145:23 147:21
158:11
hearings 83:12
112:19
heart 36:18
heaven 150:3
heavily 56:9
100:19 102:22
heavy 101:9, 10
held 82:14 104:20
Helen 151:5
155:16
hell 108:5
Hello 3:3 7:8
help 14:9 23:23
41:4, 6 91:20
104:16, 17 127:16
131:12 144:22
154:12
helped 20:22 63:22 helpful 89:21
91:11 helping 16:16
122:10

HENDERSON 7:3,
4 46:18 47:20, 23,
23 48:1, 2
heroes 11:1
hey 121:15 130:9
Hicks 151:3, 5, 8, 9
152:23 153:17, 22
154:4, 9, 14, 23
155:7, 9, 12
Higg 97:7
high 25:8 32:6 77:12 132:12
higher 87:22 135:9
highest 130:18
Highland 84:12
Highway 6:10
51:22 hindsight 30:21
hire 45:12 95:5
hired 95:7 99:22, 23
Hispanic 111:5, 8
Hispanics 122:6
historian 72:20
historic 134:5
Historical 64:11, 13
73:13 75:10
history 13:6 32:10
86:17 157:18
hit 18:14 46:16
97:20
Holler 60:22, 23
Hollow 60:20
home 6:18 8:7
56:17 57:15 71:8,
9 72:18 84:4
125:5 127:10, 15
129:9 134:8
homeless 83:4, 6 homes 125:2
127:5 137:17
138:6
hometown 77:14
Homewood 28:17
homework 121:22
honest 148:14 honesty 62:8
honor 79:2
honored 7:21

hope 70:22 144:15
 145:11
hopefully 133:16
hopelessly 63:5
horrible 58:14
 70:3 hose 120:23
hoses 10:1
hour 84:14 110:23
house 39:13 64:5
 132:5
housing 84:8
huh-uh 127:4
human 143:1
hundreds 84:1
Hunter 81:9, 10
husband 6:16
 70:22
hush 68:12
Hutchins 128:18
 133:3, 7, 12, 13, 23
 140:13, 15 142:6, 9, 14 hyphenated 124:15, 16

 < I >
ID 113:11, 12, 14,
 17 114:2, 10, 18
 115:1 119:6, 11
 123:11, 14 124:17
 125:9 126:1 127:8
 128:6 145:17
idea 70:3 104:12
 147:8
identification 113:4
 119:23 121:10
 122:7
identified 118:18
ID's 114:8, 12, 16,
 18 115:4 116:18,
 22 124:13 128:7, 9
i-e 77:7
ignore 14:23 15:4, 6
ignored 15:4, 5 illegal 111:20
 137:20
illiterate 61:16

76:2
illustration 126:8
imagine 96:1
immediately 48:16
Immigrant 7:10 immigration 111:5
impacts 115:2
implications 44:16 importance 123:2
 132:21
important 15:22
 16:19, 20 17:3, 4
 65:1, 2 68:16
 86:11 91:23 111:3
 131:21 139:2
 152:2 153:17
 157:18 impossible 77:16
inadequate 94:15 inaudible 127:22
 128:4 143:9
 148:14 150:12 includes 130:18
including 107:15
inclusive 113:6
income 114:1
 153:11
inconvenient 32:4, 19
Incorporation 88:7, 10 incorrect 52:20
 54:23
increase 28:22
 45:1, 3 147:13
increasing 130:14
 131:1
increasingly 131:15 incredibly 157:17
incumbent 56:6
 134:13 136:2
indicated 27:14
individual 76:12
 136:10 137:16
 139:19, 19, 22
individuals 107:10
 108:7, 17 128:19
 137:21
influence 58:21, 23

100:15 130:12
inform 145:12, 15
information 23:21
 25:14 37:10 53:15
 54:22 75:15, 18
 88:1, 13 93:8
 110:6 113:5, 13
 117:4 127:20
 128:4 134:20, 20
 138:23 152:7, 10
 153:18 154:18
infractions 115:13 initiative 89:23
input 22:4, 15
 24:19 33:16 38:19
 49:11
inquire 87:7, 14
inquiring 75:21
 87:13
insecure 88:18, 19
inside 93:22
insist 112:16 insisting 57:3
inspector 67:22 instance 81:18
instances 14:18 44:10 instrumental 16:15
intent 47:16 144:5
interaction 130:5
interest 45:12
 62:13 103:22
 144:17
interested 159:16
interesting 16:2, 5
 141:4 143:15
intermingled 59:22
internal 134:20
intervene 41:1
intervened 40:22 intimidate 56:15
intimidated 39:22
 56:13, 14, 16
intimidation 40:3
 43:10 118:19
 140:6
introduce 3:5, 13
 4:3 81:3 150:16 introduced 87:17

introductory 8:3
intrusive 138:6
invited 75:14
 103:9
inviting 133:15
involve 70:6, 7
involved 6:19 8:14
 48:13, 16 51:4, 8, 9
 56:12 60:3 62:20
 64:4, 12 78:18
 95:16, 20 106:12
 122:13 129:22
 142:22 143:10
involvement 5:19
 142:23
irregularities 59:16
 104:11 151:11
 152:4 153:2
irrelevant 144:7, 8
issue 47:15 78:18
 89:2 109:9 114:18
 118:18, 23 119:18
 124:10 125:13
 126:15 131:2, 20
 132:8 134:11
 142:2
issued 113:14
 114:10, 18 124:17
issues 16:10 44:5
 105:21 108:2
 109:3 112:20
 114:7, 11 118:19,
 23 129:18, 21
 131:21 133:18
 143:16, 17, 18
 144:23 145:5
its 4:19 11:15
 14:15 56:21

 < J > Jackson 104:7
jail 97:15
January 106:15
Jefferson 104:23
 107:3 151:11, 19
 154:6 156:9 159:4
Jerome 2:7 4:12
 8:4, 7 23:19 24:7
 26:16 27:2 33:16
 36:3 77:11 90:17

Jerry 7:3 47:23 48:1	keep 4:20 28:23 79:12 90:19 96:12 97:22 117:9, 11, 14 118:3 131:23 147:18 148:1, 3 153:11	53:9 56:17 59:21 60:20 65:4, 6, 10, 11, 18 67:3, 16 68:1, 2 70:16 79:13, 21 81:5, 13, 14 82:5, 9, 17 83:3, 23 85:18 87:16 88:18, 20, 21 91:8, 15, 18 92:23 93:4, 5, 22 94:1, 2 95:2, 18 96:19 97:17 99:15, 16 100:15, 17 101:11, 18 102:3, 15 103:16, 17 106:10 111:9 113:20 114:6, 14, 21, 22 115:3 116:21 117:5, 6 119:3 120:13, 17, 20, 21 121:16, 19 122:16, 18, 21 124:13 126:9, 14, 16 127:8 128:9, 17 129:6 130:16 136:10 138:2, 4 139:5, 15, 16 140:1, 7 141:10 142:3 144:9, 10 145:2, 8 148:13, 18, 18, 20 149:4, 7, 15, 23 150:4, 13, 21 152:5, 6 153:6, 8, 14, 18, 23 154:7, 19, 19, 21, 23 155:2, 9	land 42:17 48:21 49:1 54:6 61:19 landless 61:21 language 88:20 large 19:5 78:17, 21 100:19 143:23 151:16 larger 25:6, 7 largest 21:3 111:5 late 18:10 82:5 141:14 lateness 107:20 laughed 59:21 Law 2:4 3:8 7:7 14:20 19:16 24:21 27:3 37:2 40:8, 10 41:3 59:11 69:1 92:18, 20 94:10 113:22 115:2, 4 126:5 137:16 laws 62:14, 16, 18 132:19 140:22 lawsuit 8:19 9:9 12:10, 17 19:1 22:20, 23 78:6, 12 99:13, 13, 16, 21 100:9 139:15 141:1 lawsuits 141:3, 5, 13, 19 142:13 lawyer 101:12 Lawyers 2:3 4:16 14:20 19:10 29:19, 21 30:22 40:22 41:9, 15, 16 45:6, 9 141:2, 20 157:11 lay 113:19 laymen 113:13 leader 93:10 leaders 131:5 leadership 10:15 leading 137:13 League 77:8 leaning 136:11 learned 10:10 139:2 140:2 leave 59:17 71:7 72:4 109:21 129:7, 9
Jordan 104:7	kept 29:21 49:4 57:3 67:1, 3 69:15 75:12	knowing 48:19 49:1 77:10 86:15 120:14, 16 122:1 knowledge 82:19 122:1 known 48:17 68:22 109:17 143:17 knows 12:21 27:2
Joseph 13:4	Kerry 143:11	< L >
joy 94:4	key 77:1 129:18 132:22	lack 141:6, 7
Joyce 6:5	kids 26:5	ladies 56:16 112:16
judge 34:13, 23 35:8 37:2 48:8 60:7, 8 99:18, 19, 20, 22, 23 100:1, 3, 3, 8 101:13 115:23 153:20, 22, 23 154:1, 5 156:13, 15	kin 147:2 159:15	lady 123:13
judges 14:21 141:22	Kincaid 104:9
judicial 48:7	kind 14:8 35:1 40:1 43:19, 20 44:3 52:2 53:9 55:17 79:16 80:15 85:23 92:3 102:5, 13 118:2, 9 120:15 121:20 140:16 149:20 154:8
Judy 64:9	kindness 83:15
jumping 144:20	kinds 146:20 155:23
June 22:6	King 12:1 79:2 97:12, 14 122:19
jurisdiction 8:21 38:1	knew 44:15 50:6 69:13 70:19 82:14 92:18 107:16 111:15 118:11 148:22 150:13
jury 52:17 62:3	knives 10:7
Justice 7:10 11:15, 15 19:8, 12, 13, 22 29:18, 20 40:21 41:8 68:20 69:7, 20 70:6, 7, 9 80:3 85:1, 5, 7 106:20 108:20 151:18	knock 23:13 138:6
< K >	know 3:14 7:18 12:18 13:5 14:12, 13, 19, 21 15:10, 13 16:21 17:6, 8, 10, 14 25:11, 11, 15, 20, 21 26:17 28:18 31:10 32:5 34:19 39:7, 14, 18 44:21
Karen 7:5

led 12:10 64:14 88:13	line 22:10 50:13 93:9 103:3	146:18, 19	78:15 81:19 82:23
Lee 2:10 4:6 6:7, 22 7:1 12:4 21:12, 14, 17 24:16 32:21 39:22 43:3	lines 9:4 106:14, 15 152:20	localities 44:20	83:2, 3, 5 84:5, 6, 16 88:18 108:9 112:20 114:12 115:13, 15, 20 116:1 118:1 121:11 122:18 129:18, 21 132:7 139:9 141:7, 13, 21
left 4:5, 7, 9, 11 8:4 54:18 58:22 89:19 104:20 139:10 150:5 156:19	Lineville 115:8 121:2, 2 134:1, 6, 7, 7 137:6 142:5	locally 45:11	lots 25:4, 9
legally 75:16	list 23:5, 7, 15, 22 25:10, 10 26:9 52:4, 13, 15 56:21 57:4, 5 58:17 59:16 64:8 67:5, 6 72:8 105:22 107:4 108:6, 8, 8 120:15 125:4, 6	locate 38:2	love 10:10
legislation 89:7	listen 13:11	located 31:15 32:1, 3, 13 37:15	loved 70:8
legislative 109:16, 17 155:20 156:1, 6	listening 13:16 14:4 15:18 55:10 132:23 140:16	location 35:20 107:11, 13 137:10	Low 39:21 98:3 114:1 131:18, 19, 23
legislature 78:10 89:8 90:2, 2 145:15 156:5	lists 106:16 108:1, 3	Loder 2:10 4:6, 6 12:4, 5 16:13 31:2, 7, 17 42:6, 12, 15 43:5 46:22 54:18, 19, 22 55:2, 16, 23 57:6 87:5, 11 88:2, 23 118:14 119:7, 16 120:3 140:14 142:7, 10 147:4 156:20	lower 145:20
legitimacy 143:8	literacy 114:23	log 75:12	Lowery 13:4
legitimate 88:11 143:2	literally 108:5	lone 29:14	luck 83:8
lengthy 15:14	literature 40:5, 8 130:20	long 13:10 36:8 37:8 84:18 98:10 104:19 115:2 135:10	lucky 123:22
Lesley 7:20 9:15, 17	litigation 20:3	longer 101:19 124:19	< M >
lesson 140:2	little 8:20 23:1 34:19, 23 36:3 58:3, 4 63:23 70:20 73:21 84:13 85:9, 9 97:9 98:19 99:4 151:21 152:19 153:12	look 11:21 16:11 26:1 30:23 32:10 46:20 88:14 91:18 121:9 132:4 153:4	ma'am 7:18 124:8 128:20 148:7, 15
letter 23:10 51:23 52:11, 21 53:6, 10, 10, 12, 21, 22, 23 55:10 90:16 92:6, 7, 9, 16 93:21	live 5:21 6:9 7:6, 10 37:22 51:22 57:15 60:19, 22, 23 70:22 71:16 83:1 121:10, 11 142:4 151:22	looked 67:23 134:4	machine 59:15 67:21 104:14, 14, 15 142:12 143:19
letters 23:9 55:5 57:2 70:2	lived 12:15 111:15	looking 16:9 46:22 59:14 111:2 117:22	machines 154:8
letting 72:2	lives 70:23 71:11 111:13, 19	Loop 65:12 71:15	maiden 124:13
level 17:4 43:10 140:7 145:13 146:12, 12, 13	living 84:6 98:10	Lord 79:5	mail 76:20
LEWIS 6:1, 2, 4, 5	load 91:19	lose 41:12 50:17 121:16	mailing 64:8 108:1, 8
liberty 143:1	local 8:17 10:15 17:1, 2, 4 20:3 44:11 135:12 136:17 140:7 142:21 143:21	losing 30:11	maintaining 30:7
license 119:5, 11, 14, 15 123:23 124:1, 4		loss 21:1	major 10:18 49:11 76:16 107:23
licenses 127:20		lost 29:10, 10, 22 36:21 42:22 51:4 81:19 83:20 85:11 110:19 111:16 116:5	majority 28:13 29:6 62:15 70:18 89:17 94:16, 19 134:10 life 57:14 71:11 139:23 151:10		lot 13:5, 22, 22 14:18 17:1 27:5 31:22 37:14 43:17, 18 44:6 61:6 65:5 73:8, 15 76:22	making 27:21 30:9 76:11 78:22 80:12 108:7 113:9 119:8 122:2 132:13 135:23 158:1
light 133:17			male 11:3 78:16
liked 150:11			mama 148:4
limbo 82:14			man 40:7 77:16, 22 96:9 97:13, 15, 19 98:3, 4 128:1 limits 121:15
Lindsey 50:5

management 135:10	118:23 139:20 143:2 149:5	103:6, 23 123:10 125:14, 18 126:2	131:17 135:18 152:2
manager 72:17 78:16, 16	means 28:10 113:13 145:14 159:8	Mildred 148:17 149:20	monitor 9:3 69:7 138:13
manipulating 31:11	measured 140:21	mile 36:17	monitored 95:1
manner 138:7	media 18:2 68:23 70:17 109:5 131:15	miles 84:7	monitoring 80:9 96:3 135:23
man's 25:19	meet 156:23	Miller 2:13 159:19	Montgomery 7:6
maps 105:23 106:15 107:5	meeting 22:21 27:5 33:3, 22 34:10 47:12 50:4 138:19 139:10 142:22	mindful 3:23	month 90:22 123:21
March 107:1	meetings 141:15 142:19	mine 77:12	months 41:18 136:9 151:18 158:5
marches 9:20, 22	member 7:20 9:17	Ministries 4:11 9:16	Moore 60:5, 7 109:17
marching 97:16	Members 2:7 18:7 27:12 43:11 66:1 89:18 98:15 128:17 129:2 133:4 137:15 140:13 144:22	ministry 12:23	Morehouse 13:8
Marie 74:16	Memorial 104:11	minorities 121:14 124:18 144:6 147:11	morning 58:22 150:6
marijuana 136:23	men 119:2	minority 18:23 19:2 20:15, 17, 18 21:2 28:23 30:7, 18 42:2 44:14 113:23 115:12 116:12 117:21 118:9 122:5 144:4, 7	mother-in-law 136:1
Mark 6:9 46:13 51:21 56:20 57:1 63:9 98:22	mentality 97:12, 23	minute 22:12 98:13	move 25:6 32:16 33:1, 14 34:11, 16 35:1, 4, 12, 18, 19 36:2 37:4, 7, 8 38:17, 18 43:6 47:12 48:2 63:6 78:13 139:23
marriage 123:15	mention 13:1 137:13 144:2	minutes 8:2 18:21 47:11 99:2, 3, 6, 6 104:3 109:12 110:2 112:12 133:11 151:1, 7	moved 31:16, 17 34:7 35:4 39:13 42:22, 23 43:1 47:4 50:23 62:9 63:7
married 124:2, 14	mentioned 38:14, 22 45:5 80:22 84:23 85:15 118:15 141:5 146:11 147:6 150:16	misdeemeanor 118:17	movement 62:22 72:20 73:14
Martin 20:20	mentors 60:18	misinformed 114:5 145:15	moving 37:13 42:9
Mary 53:13 81:9 109:17	mere 137:12	missed 139:9 141:14	muddy 39:2
mass 84:12 143:22	messed 24:3	mission 88:8	municipal 19:6 64:2 120:11
masses 146:6	messaging 24:2	mistake 55:6 113:20	municipalities 44:12
materials 40:10	met 4:19 63:13 74:22 105:1, 2	misunderstood 40:19	municipality 100:8
matter 47:13 73:8, 9 103:2 106:20 132:9 134:7 143:1 147:23	mentioning 120:18	mix 18:6 61:23	< N >
matters 14:23	mentors 60:18	mobile 124:21, 22	NAACP 3:11 4:9 6:5 7:15 8:17 16:14, 15 133:14 157:8
mayor 19:15, 18 24:9, 10, 10, 23 33:5 34:14, 14, 15, 21, 22 35:6, 7 38:14, 15, 16 47:8 78:17, 21 79:12 99:17, 17 100:4, 6, 12, 17, 18 101:7, 7 104:9 110:12, 14, 20, 22 115:9, 13, 23 117:23 118:13 121:13 134:7, 13 135:15 137:6 149:2	mentors 60:18	modern 140:23	name 3:6, 20, 20 5:16 6:1, 12, 15, 21 7:8 18:12 21:11
mayor's 116:6 136:2 151:17	mere 137:12	mole 93:22
mean 16:1 41:5 55:8, 12 92:8 116:20 117:12	messed 24:3	moment 43:20, 20
	messaging 24:2	Mondays 34:11
	met 4:19 63:13 74:22 105:1, 2	money 10:6 45:11 95:9, 21 96:2 130:13, 13, 15, 22 method 63:6
	Methodist 1:20 9:18
	mic 133:6
	mid 65:20
	MIDDLETON 6:12, 13 98:21 99:9, 10 102:7

25:11 46:14 47:22
 51:20, 21 52:12, 14
 59:13 72:10, 14, 16
 77:6 81:9 99:7, 9
 104:3, 5 105:16
 110:1, 3 112:11
 115:7 124:12, 14,
 14 129:2, 10
 133:10, 10, 12, 20
 150:10 151:6, 9
 155:16
named 79:1 100:9
 112:4
names 23:8, 17
 25:17, 21 26:10
 55:13 93:14
nation 11:18, 19
 17:11, 13 123:5
NATIONAL 1:11
 3:11 10:16 16:7
 21:17 31:15 32:12
 34:4 37:14 106:9
 146:13 157:4, 6 natives 57:9
naturally 44:21
nature 10:8 86:22
 87:18 125:2
nearly 29:7
necessary 53:20
need 13:22 40:12
 74:17 81:14 86:1
 88:14, 15 91:17
 93:5 94:7, 9 95:5
 120:20 122:13
 123:2 124:17
 130:7, 11, 11, 23
 131:2 132:16
 141:12, 17 148:15
 152:10, 13 153:4, 5,
 6, 8, 9, 12 154:9
 155:13 157:22 needed 23:22
 25:14 49:22 85:19
 104:17
needs 92:1 111:20
 143:6 152:8
 153:13 negligence 92:15
negro 11:6
negro, 10:19

neighborhood
 19:17, 18 58:1
neither 41:21
 159:14
Nephews 146:2
nepotism 62:2
 146:1 147:1, 14
never 11:15 23:15
 26:19, 20, 22 35:10
 36:13 41:20, 20
 61:13 64:3 67:23
 84:20 86:6 109:2
 111:9 136:7, 7
 137:11 141:6
New 2:6 9:3 25:1
 28:4, 4, 13 29:2
 35:20 38:13 45:10
 61:18, 19 110:20,
 22 119:17 122:10
 142:17 newly 10:19 11:8
news 18:2 61:8
 105:19 106:3
 108:15
nice 32:3
nieces 146:3 nigger 137:4, 6 night 50:3 51:6 67:20
nine 28:15, 16
 32:21 37:3 136:15
Noggle 64:9
nonrelationship
 75:20
nonsupport 30:2, 3
nonviolence 10:4, 9 nonviolent 10:10
normal 75:9
 107:22
Norman 112:5
 115:8
Norris 112:17
 124:15
North 1:21 19:13
 62:8 63:3 73:14
 150:9
Northern 48:8
notarized 59:9
note 61:17

notice 23:2 61:12
 140:19 noticed 143:14
notification 53:13, 16 notified 23:9, 11
 52:7, 11 107:10
 110:12, 21 156:8
notify 89:11 92:19, 21 93:3 107:12
notion 15:7, 9, 12, 17 novel 60:13
November 22:6
number 28:22
 44:10 52:3, 3
 53:16 82:4 88:10,
 11 108:18 109:9
 121:14 126:20
 130:2 139:1, 3, 7, 7
 158:5
numbers 25:16, 23
 26:6, 7 55:12
 122:5 numerous 136:12
nursing 125:1, 5
 127:5, 10, 15
nuts 132:20
NW 2:6

 < O >
Obama 8:12 54:2
 132:4
objective 89:16
observe 115:18 observed 66:20
 68:18 observers 9:2
obstacles 87:4
obtain 14:22
Obtaining 114:2, 7
obvious 118:10
obviously 14:10
occasions 136:13 occurring 105:22
 159:12
occurs 151:12 o'clock 59:3
October 117:19
 118:10

offer 45:18 46:19 62:21
office 6:3 20:2
 49:16 53:14, 17
 60:10 69:9 72:22
 73:5 75:9, 21
 81:11 86:13 87:21
 105:2, 3 106:22, 23
 113:17 116:13
 117:21 121:22
 122:23 125:20
 136:8 137:2 149:6, 11 officers 91:13, 16
 138:10
official 7:1 52:19
 53:3 59:6 135:17
 156:11
officially 85:8, 10
officials 69:3, 4
 135:12 138:5
 145:18 147:12
oftentimes 114:13
 144:2
Ohio 143:11, 20
Okay 5:22, 22
 7:16, 17 16:12
 21:5 27:9, 10
 36:19, 23 45:23
 46:1 48:2, 3 54:15
 64:16 66:19 70:4
 71:19 72:6, 8, 12
 77:4 98:12 99:5
 100:4, 10, 18 102:7,
 9 103:21, 23 104:1
 109:7 111:22
 112:1, 2, 7 115:6
 121:6 133:2, 23
 144:19 147:16
 150:23 153:16, 19
 154:22 155:11
old 57:17 61:20
 114:5 123:13
 126:3
older 124:18, 20
 127:23 oldest 21:13
Olivia 89:5
Once 11:18 20:9
 38:9 74:1 90:10

94:10 99:17 114:17 121:21 O'NEAL 5:16, 16, 21 ones 18:9, 9 141:22 online 113:3 117:4 onus 55:21 Opelika 25:7 26:2, 4 32:5, 6, 11, 13 33:5 34:15 38:16 39:22 40:1 open 104:20 138:19, 19 139:10 141:15 opened 59:13 openly 95:20 opens 144:13 operate 10:16 operating 77:15 135:9 opinion 14:1, 2, 22 55:6 140:20 opponent 19:21 20:11 111:14 opportunity 5:10, 19 9:6 45:2 58:19 64:19 80:20 133:19 oppose 70:5 opposed 19:20 opposition 70:2 oppression 146:22 optimistic 94:12 order 15:10 46:18 48:23 51:14 74:4, 19, 20 100:12 101:13, 14 120:21 122:16, 19 135:11 ordered 100:3 ordinances 19:4, 9 28:4 49:3 ordinary 72:23 Oreos 79:17 organization 3:20, 21 5:13 65:19 87:9, 12 88:3, 5, 12 92:4 93:6, 9 111:5 112:23 121:20 140:10 142:16 156:21	organizations 62:10 134:15 142:17 organize 62:12, 22 63:2 organized 9:8 49:5 64:11 100:21 101:2, 6 134:3 143:19 original 36:17 originally 60:2 69:8 ought 120:13 outcome 30:16 45:19 66:7 outlet 146:18 outlined 106:18 outlining 107:3 outside 59:4 60:20 101:3 oversight 130:7 137:12 owe 89:20 owned 57:14 < P > p.m 1:19 158:11 page 88:11 102:3 pages 18:20 paid 95:12 114:14 122:15 135:18 136:17 painful 139:12 paint 144:23 panel 3:17 18:7 25:5 27:12 46:2 48:3 98:15 112:14 128:16 129:2, 8 133:4 140:13 panelists 17:20 panels 46:7 paper 25:16, 18 26:8 101:23 127:10 128:1 papers 70:11 101:23 127:17 149:19, 20 150:1 paperwork 85:10, 13	pardon 74:21 pardoned 74:7 Pardons 53:5 75:14 76:2, 9 87:19 90:9, 11, 15, 16 91:3, 6, 12 92:11 93:22 parent 61:9 parents 15:16 61:11, 13, 16, 16 park 36:4 83:4 104:11 parking 36:14 118:1 parks 83:5 parody 66:3, 7 parol 74:21 81:17 82:3 parole 75:1, 14 76:3, 10, 13 81:22 82:21 87:20 89:20 90:10, 12, 15, 17 91:3, 6, 12, 13, 15 92:11 93:23 149:19, 22 paroled 74:7 Parols 53:5 part 11:11 12:8 14:11 21:16 24:4, 5, 5 25:4 31:3, 19 59:15 68:21 70:21 75:10 78:6 80:22 81:16 86:17 88:3 92:15 130:14 140:4, 4 participate 9:6 112:14 participated 12:16 participation 147:14 particular 11:12 28:10 29:15 42:4 92:5 151:22 particularly 43:8 44:7 80:3 119:1 145:23 parties 159:15 party 106:9, 10 108:21 143:4, 9, 16, 20	pass 40:7, 10 49:7 62:16 94:10 passed 10:5 89:10 102:20 109:19 113:1 122:20 140:23 passing 40:5 passport 123:20, 21 passports 116:21 pastor 13:6 122:13 pastored 13:4 pathetic 151:13 pattern 140:19 145:22 Paul's 1:20 7:20 9:17 157:23 pay 15:11, 14 94:10 118:21 119:13 141:8, 10 paying 95:6, 7, 14, 21, 23 97:5 peaceful 10:8 71:2 Pelham 61:1 pending 53:1 People 10:9 11:11, 12 13:5 16:16, 19 17:3 23:9, 23 24:17 25:4, 8, 9, 13, 22 26:11, 12, 13, 21 27:5 28:5 29:12 32:1, 11 33:1, 2, 9, 18 35:23 36:4 37:9, 20, 21 39:7, 18 43:21 46:9 48:11 49:15, 15, 16 55:12, 18 58:21, 23 62:12, 13, 16, 17, 22, 22 63:16, 18 64:1, 2 67:8 69:1 70:16, 21 71:2, 9, 10, 15 72:23 73:16 76:17 78:18 79:6, 12, 21, 23 80:1, 10, 17 81:3 82:5 83:6, 14 84:5, 6, 11 86:13 95:2, 5, 6, 6, 21, 22, 23 96:1, 3 101:3 103:15 104:12, 17 112:4 113:19 114:9, 15, 19, 20, 20
--	--	--	---

115:15 116:2 117:2, 9, 15 118:3, 20 119:8 120:23 121:7, 23 122:5, 9, 16, 18, 22 123:11 124:5 125:10 126:11 127:9, 20, 21, 23 128:5 130:1, 6, 23 131:12, 12, 19 132:1, 7, 9, 10, 13, 19 134:14, 16, 18, 21, 22 135:14, 15, 18 137:14 138:11 139:21 140:4, 10 144:8, 16 145:20, 21 146:6, 21 148:12, 21 149:1, 8, 9, 21 151:20 152:11, 14, 18 153:6, 10 154:12 people's 137:16 138:3, 5 144:13 percent 35:23 42:3, 4 79:9, 10 114:22 percentage 23:1 37:18, 21, 22 65:9, 22 percentages 25:8 perfect 62:9 performing 152:16 period 43:18 90:13, 15, 22 91:7 129:1, 1 132:12 148:19 150:3, 20 Perkins 46:10 100:12, 17 person 10:13 16:21 26:2 40:20 52:14 68:2 69:21 75:20, 22 81:14 82:13, 13 87:23 88:14 96:21 101:5, 5 105:1, 2 111:12 115:12 116:12 121:21 127:7, 8 135:22 138:4 139:17, 19, 22 140:11 144:14	154:17 personal 81:5 persons 75:8, 12 86:22 persuasions 132:2 petition 138:21 petitions 51:9 Pettus 17:7 144:15 phone 108:1, 8 136:13 Physically 127:13, 18 pick 74:2 79:20 picks 44:3 picture 128:9 144:23 piece 26:8 Pike 7:4 PLACE 1:20 10:11 17:9 24:2 25:7 26:18 31:23 34:5 36:7, 8, 22 37:4 38:14, 17, 18 39:4, 17, 22 40:9, 11, 12 42:18 43:1, 2 44:20 57:14 60:19 66:23 70:6, 20 71:2 83:1, 19 91:16 93:6 96:22 97:3, 19 114:16, 16 115:14 placed 67:20 places 21:18 22:2 33:6 37:12 38:2 39:1 44:22 79:17 84:20 94:17, 19 118:6 146:10 152:9 plaintiffs 9:6 12:9 plan 29:4 30:12 45:16 69:22 70:1, 4 planned 70:22 planning 49:21 71:13 158:4 plantation 146:5 plates 10:5 played 63:13 108:3 135:5 playing 103:15	please 3:19, 22 18:10, 11 41:6 46:14 52:18 69:19 99:7 103:9 104:3 112:11 129:3, 10 151:6 pleasure 156:23 plight 11:20 Plus 35:16 point 9:8, 20 17:19, 21 46:21 47:7, 12, 13 59:1 81:18 96:16 117:2 139:14 141:9 143:21 146:23 148:6 police 39:19 120:18, 23 121:3 138:10 policeman 117:22 policemen 115:15 117:18, 19 118:5 political 8:12 142:23 156:3 politics 17:1 77:11 115:20 116:9 120:16 121:4 poll 11:6 15:11, 14 26:19 36:18 58:20 59:3, 12 66:15 67:19, 22 68:11, 13, 18 69:7, 12 101:2 104:8, 8, 21 115:16, 17 121:8, 19 122:2 130:21 138:14 149:8 154:20, 20 polling 24:1 34:5 36:8, 22 79:17 83:19 94:17 96:22 97:3 107:11, 13 118:6 152:9 polls 26:21 83:9 96:16 104:19 108:11 117:15 118:8 122:8 126:12 130:21 149:18 154:13 poor 11:7, 11 58:1 61:8, 21 62:12	63:4 114:6, 19 117:2 145:20 populated 102:22 population 28:10 29:2, 5 30:14 42:3, 18 65:21 66:2 79:10 144:4, 4 populations 19:5 41:22 44:14 45:1, 4 Portable 39:16 Portables 39:15 portion 3:18 59:11 position 20:7 42:17 44:23 positions 66:5 152:11 possible 63:4 65:6 80:15 140:9 156:5 possibly 81:19 107:11 136:11 post 9:9 posted 51:5 54:10 67:6 posting 67:10 postponed 156:7 potential 27:23 106:17 potentially 139:15 Poverty 7:7 power 42:20 137:18 146:3 147:1, 15, 16 practice 10:10 55:7 pray 79:4 97:22 precedence 118:5 precedent 146:4 precinct 21:15 25:6 39:19 preclearance 20:6 predictions 105:20 predominantly 49:1 56:11 65:13 premiere 13:17 prepare 120:10 121:3 prepared 123:3 presence 120:18 121:3
--	--	---	--

present 105:7	problem 14:12 26:14, 19, 20, 22 34:6, 20 35:9 36:14 39:10 48:20 73:20 81:15 94:18 107:18 127:18 145:16 152:3 153:2	proved 150:1	45:15 46:16 47:14 56:20 62:6, 8, 19, 21 65:8 66:13 68:12 80:22 94:15 123:10 126:10 138:1, 3 140:14 145:10 148:7
presented 110:15	problems 36:13 95:18 130:9 147:3	provide 52:18 53:3	questioned 22:2 93:1
presided 50:4	procedure 47:13	provides 52:14	questions 21:6, 7 27:11 40:16 42:7 54:16 64:21 65:2 71:20 83:17 104:1 105:10 112:1 116:14 123:9 128:12 133:2 140:13 144:18 159:8
president 4:8 16:14 75:7 77:8 112:18 137:5 150:8	proceeding 159:7	provision 126:22	quick 42:7 81:13 94:15 102:8 140:14
president, 150:17	proceedings 159:12	provisional 51:12, 14 58:17	quickly 14:12 45:13 68:19 140:9 147:5 157:14
presidential 16:23 143:13	process 5:2, 2 9:7 53:1 85:20 91:23 92:1 115:18 129:16 134:14 143:5 144:6 155:22	provisions 89:10	quite 17:16 56:7 73:4 82:15 154:6
president's 149:13 150:11	processes 74:4	public 3:18 22:4 23:21 24:16, 19, 22 26:11 32:17 33:16, 17 38:19 68:22 98:19, 20 99:6 105:12 106:17 112:3, 3, 6 145:3, 18 156:16	quote 10:18 130:15
presiding 60:8	produced 11:17 159:9	publicity 70:9	< R >
press 17:12, 12 97:14	product 49:21	publicly 4:1	race 104:6
pressure 91:17	program 150:14 156:17	publish 70:17	racial 27:22 63:17
pretty 61:7 66:11	progress 78:22 80:12	pull 80:13	racism 62:1 96:13
prevalence 146:23	project 84:9 91:9	purged 56:21 57:5	racist 95:6, 15
prevent 139:5 140:11	projects 64:13	purpose 10:18 72:22 88:8 97:15 136:16 138:20	rains 36:2 39:1
prevented 71:1	prolific 60:16	purposes 28:8	raise 22:23 44:5 45:11 109:3 143:17
price 122:15	promised 60:4 135:18	pursuing 61:19	raised 46:22
prick 13:12	promises 136:18	push 9:8 94:9	ran 20:9 56:3, 5, 6 79:18 83:18 111:12, 13, 14 115:9 117:23 143:12 148:4
primarily 49:8 58:2	proof 53:4	pushing 155:9	ranger 29:15
principalship 43:16	proper 119:23 121:10 122:6	put 25:1, 23 26:8 33:4 36:16 39:23 40:2 55:20 68:13 70:11 76:20, 21 77:22 79:15 80:10 91:17 93:13 95:10 97:23 103:4 125:4 127:20 148:23 149:5, 10, 12 150:7, 12 151:19 156:22	rarely 100:17
Prior 18:21 29:17, 18 37:3 70:1, 4 106:7, 20 109:3 152:7	property 40:2, 7 48:18 54:8	putting 48:14 92:20 95:21 97:15	reach 93:8
prison 78:7 128:2	proponents 11:4	< Q >	read 14:1, 6 15:10, 14 37:2, 5 61:17 100:11 102:1, 2, 2
private 134:20 135:1	propose 28:20 29:3	qualified 42:2
privilege 157:21	prosecute 136:7 137:1	Quarries 49:12 50:7 70:12
privileges 83:2, 14	prosecuted 114:4 137:2	quarry 48:15 71:6 146:10
privy 75:18, 19 87:22	protecting 13:20	quarterback 135:6
proactive 143:18	protection 8:23 9:10	question 12:12 23:16 28:3 32:23 41:1, 14 44:4, 5
probably 15:21 28:21 30:10 36:13 55:17 65:23 68:22 75:23 120:18 131:3 136:14 151:4	protest 10:9
probate 34:12, 23 35:8 37:1 153:20 154:5	prove 55:21 86:19
probation 75:1 76:13 89:19

107:16 117:1 126:4 reading 140:20 reads 52:4 ready 48:2 72:7 112:14 real 81:13 88:10 102:8 117:13 130:1 131:13 132:18 147:4 154:18 reality 88:22 realize 98:5 realized 49:7, 13 50:16 really 10:23 12:20 13:11, 13 14:7, 23 16:19 29:13 36:18 44:16 45:17 46:4 48:12 75:5 78:22 81:15 84:12 85:19 86:11, 13, 22 88:20, 22 89:22 129:14, 15 145:13 152:17 153:4 157:15, 22 reason 30:21 32:15 34:9 35:19 36:1, 5 56:23 62:14 65:14 82:9 88:12 89:15, 16, 17, 18 92:16 106:18 111:3 115:10 144:2 151:14 reasons 14:9 15:4 38:23 81:17 145:5 reassignment 41:22 receive 77:10 81:12 85:23 152:15 received 19:21 51:23 53:6, 13 55:5, 10 70:2 77:9 receiving 74:8 receptive 74:17 Recess 98:17 recommend 38:16 recommendation 28:12, 19 29:9, 17 46:19 47:10	recommendations 29:16 30:1 recommended 29:20 38:13 record 14:17, 18 15:1 30:9, 13 31:3 34:1 68:22 76:10, 11 94:17 109:15 145:4 recorded 74:4 87:18 88:9 records 82:3 101:17 123:18 138:19 recount 51:9 recounts 51:9 rectify 21:1 red 94:14 redistrict 50:18 78:9 redistricted 56:2 redistricting 44:7 50:22 69:22 110:9 111:2 redneck 95:15 redo 48:22 reduce 126:20 reelected 110:18 reelection 20:9 re-evaluate 110:11 re-evaluated 110:13 111:7 re-evaluation 111:1, 9 referenced 53:15 referred 69:10 refuse 44:15 refused 59:11 136:20, 21 regardless 73:6 143:9 regards 25:2 register 16:16 23:5 76:6, 15, 17 77:2 86:20 90:4 132:13 148:1 registered 23:3 52:13 56:13 57:3 64:6, 8 68:3 81:2 105:22 106:16	107:4 108:6 132:11 147:11 registering 134:14 135:13 registrar 81:9 107:3 registrars 51:13 52:7, 12, 16, 22 53:11 89:11 registrar's 106:22 registration 23:17 53:4, 19 56:12 64:3, 4, 7 74:1 107:9 126:21 128:3 132:21 registrations 76:18 regression 20:23 regular 125:9 regularly 63:13 regulation 126:5 reinstating 53:19 rejected 14:16 15:17 24:19 75:13 81:16 82:15 relate 80:23 118:20 relates 44:1 152:4 relationship 74:15 90:9 91:2 93:20 release 107:4 released 86:5 106:16 107:20 relevant 134:11 relying 142:1 remain 14:15 20:1 29:6 remarks 156:17 remedy 20:14 21:1 29:20 139:10 Remember 51:20 57:18 84:23 100:5 147:6 remind 25:5 64:17 72:13 110:1 112:11 133:9 reminded 17:8 18:13 reminder 46:13 104:2 Removal 52:4	repaired 39:11 repeatedly 69:19 replace 156:11 reply 109:2 report 66:19 108:13 120:14 reported 68:19 69:17 Reporter 2:13 3:22 18:12 46:15 72:15 99:8 104:4 112:12 reports 94:22 represent 7:19 45:12 49:14 50:12 133:19 representation 20:15 21:2 30:7 66:3, 6 102:8, 16 representative 33:3, 19 155:20, 21 representatives 41:16 100:7 103:10 represented 18:23 19:2 20:19 50:11 56:7 102:21 103:8 156:4, 12 representing 6:11 48:11 represents 159:11 repression 146:20 Republican 134:10 143:3, 19 request 24:8 33:21 34:6 35:15 52:22 requested 67:11 69:12 requesting 22:1 44:11 require 132:18 required 113:5 requires 52:11 89:11 90:2 reregister 53:21, 22 54:1 reregistered 73:1 research 72:19 121:22 resident 155:17
--	---	--	---

residential 48:21, 22 50:1 102:19, 23 residents 12:13, 14, 15 resolution 21:23 34:13 37:10 38:10 53:2 resolved 108:23 109:1 resources 94:15 respect 20:4 respected 97:18, 19 respond 92:15 139:6 140:9 responding 65:4 response 11:7 27:20 28:21 90:13 92:19 139:12 responsible 153:21 154:3 rest 70:23 71:8 restate 133:10 restitution 89:20 94:11 restoration 75:17 90:18 restorations 89:3 restore 73:1, 11 74:5 86:21 89:6 90:7 restored 10:21 53:1, 3 82:10, 23 85:18 86:1 89:9 90:1 91:22 130:11 restroom 3:15 result 20:13, 21 41:23 55:20 75:2 81:19 82:23 159:16 results 45:13 114:13 retired 4:12 8:8, 13 48:9 57:11 65:20 91:8 93:11, 19, 21 retro 20:23 return 77:13 Reverend 7:13 10:3 13:3 26:16, 17 60:19 85:9	94:14, 20, 23 96:9 97:1, 5, 11 105:13 110:3, 3 111:23 112:2 115:7, 7 117:17 118:7 119:20 120:8 121:6 122:12 126:8 128:15 134:2, 12 135:5, 16, 20 136:11, 19 138:13 140:2 reviewing 41:5 REVIS 155:16, 17 revisit 41:21, 22 44:1 revoke 119:11, 13 Reyes 2:4 3:3, 7 145:3 157:14 Richard 98:21 105:16 rid 79:23 150:12 ride 84:2, 15 riding 95:6, 12 96:1 right 4:4, 5 15:2 17:5 19:8 27:19 32:8 33:13 42:5 45:21 46:1, 3 48:15 50:13 54:2, 17 55:22 67:20, 23 71:16 72:21 73:11 83:16 87:14, 23 89:9 98:8 99:11 111:18 122:14, 15 145:20 149:19 150:2, 20 151:15 157:19, 22 RIGHTS 1:11 2:4 3:8 4:18 8:19, 22 9:11, 21 10:13 12:6, 9, 18 13:16 15:20 17:15 20:5, 22 27:2 52:23 53:2, 4 69:2 72:18, 20 73:1, 12, 14 74:5, 8, 11 75:17 82:10, 15, 22 83:2, 7, 13, 13 85:18 86:1, 21 89:14, 23 91:22 92:22 93:5	94:4 119:4 122:20 130:4 133:18 141:3 142:15 143:2, 15 144:16, 23 145:13 149:3 157:17 Riley 134:9 Rimpsey 77:5, 6, 6 83:18, 23 85:3, 14 94:14, 20, 23 97:1, 5, 11 rising 135:9 River 65:12 71:15 Riverview 64:5 road 49:23 50:1, 14 76:15 103:16 roads 39:12 Robert 128:18 Rock 49:12, 20 50:7 102:10, 10, 11 146:10 Rock's 49:8 60:1 Rogers 77:20 78:1 rolled 137:7 rolls 83:10 room 156:14 ROSE 40:18 43:9 rough 120:7 round 46:6 row 12:17 Rule 138:21 146:2 ruling 47:4 rumors 135:13, 16 run 49:16, 17 50:19, 21 56:8, 16 79:16 81:13 83:21 84:13 94:21 106:11 115:12 116:12 117:21 121:21 running 66:4 79:7, 15 98:3 121:13 148:3, 4 runs 78:17, 21 80:16 rural 61:21 116:10 125:11 Russ 69:10, 10	Russellville 7:11 110:5 111:19 142:8 Rutledge 98:21 105:16, 17 108:14 109:1, 8, 14 < S > sad 95:17 155:5, 7 saddened 11:14 saga 75:10 salaries 152:15 Sample 96:23 97:1 sat 37:11 satisfied 86:9 Saturday 128:6 save 12:1 64:22 saw 44:6, 9 68:6 96:8 105:14 107:8 125:6 150:8, 10, 17 saying 3:23 10:12 22:18 23:19 24:20 25:18 31:10 35:22 37:2, 6 41:8 49:9 53:21 55:2 83:18 90:17 92:14 124:8 128:22 130:9 148:22 154:2 says 27:3 40:8 53:12 89:12 92:20 124:15 scared 127:6 schedule 5:6 18:5 schedules 153:10 school 13:8 14:20 32:6, 7 43:16 61:11, 11, 12, 17 77:12 79:8 106:4 131:9 schools 39:14 79:8 132:12 scientific 15:19 Scott 2:10 4:10 9:12, 14 89:4 screening 80:10 script 46:8 scripts 15:15 se 29:1 sealed 76:14
---	---	--	---

seat 12:17 149:13	129:14, 18, 23	Shelby 6:5, 8, 14	72:6, 12 77:4
seats 18:5	135:1 137:11	8:21 9:9 18:19	83:17 84:22 85:4, second 15:6, 7, 8,	segregation 140:22	21:3 31:4 48:15	12, 15 94:9, 13
19 57:15 104:13	seize 51:13	50:2, 11, 18 51:22	96:15 97:4 98:12,
107:6 108:16	select 80:16	52:7, 22 53:14	18 99:1, 5 102:5
147:7, 8, 21	Selma 11:17 17:14	57:7, 9, 18 58:2	103:3, 21 104:1
Secondly 107:19	send 56:23 57:2	59:22 60:1, 9 61:7,	105:10, 14 108:12,
151:23	67:2 69:7, 12, 19,	12, 18, 21 62:4	22 109:7, 12, 23
secrecy 138:16	21 92:9, 10, 11	63:2 99:11 100:6,	111:22 112:1, 6
secret 149:15	93:21 128:7 137:1	7 144:12	115:6 116:14
150:2, 20	sending 64:10	sheriff 40:13	118:4 120:4 123:9
Secretary 104:10,	124:21	sheriff's 87:20	124:7 125:4, 13, 16,
21 106:21 113:3	Senior 4:12 8:5, 6	136:3 137:15	19 126:4 127:11
116:7, 17 124:23	sense 142:15	138:10, 15	128:11, 16, 23
136:2	senseless 17:10	Shirley 6:13 72:9,	129:5 133:1, 9, 21
secretive 148:10, 12	sent 40:13 53:16,	11, 16 98:21 99:9	140:12 144:18
149:14	23 55:13, 13 58:18,	shirts 149:7	148:7, 11, 15
secretly 149:9	21 61:12, 12, 17	shocked 150:9	150:23 151:2
Section 8:18, 22	64:9 69:22 90:17	shook 151:21	152:21 153:16, 19
9:9, 10 15:23 19:8,	104:21, 23 107:9	shops 73:16, 18, 18	154:2, 5, 11, 22
23 20:21 41:2, 3, 5	108:19 127:17	SHORT 7:5, 6	155:6, 8, 11, 15
52:5, 10, 13 113:2	sentence 85:21	103:22 135:11	156:13 157:1, 6, 9
130:3 141:1, 18	sequence 36:21	shorter 99:4	similar 14:15 43:3
142:13	serious 109:9, 9	shortly 111:10	63:3
security 52:16	155:23	shots 73:16	simple 90:5
113:17 152:1	serve 6:13 8:8	show 5:8 17:13, 13	134:12 157:19
see 11:10 13:21	72:17, 19 97:15	37:18 45:18	simply 27:23
29:18 33:5, 10	99:10	shown 30:13	35:21 115:4
37:4 40:2 54:15	served 8:10 12:6	shut 11:8 44:23	sir 18:18 46:16
59:8, 12, 19, 23	18:22 73:7, 10	sick 96:13	109:23 120:8
61:14 67:7 71:3	74:6, 13 75:1 93:2	side 12:16 59:23	128:15 133:12
75:14 83:6 87:5	SERVIN 7:8, 9	sign 80:8 102:1	155:15
90:12 94:18 103:9,	servicing 13:7, 8	104:18 154:12	Sir, 11:4
13 105:21 113:20	21:13 111:18	signed 59:9 68:1	sister 53:8, 8 60:9
114:19 120:9, 19	session 155:20	101:20 113:7	sisters 97:17
122:9 125:3 130:6,	156:1, 6	128:21	sit 24:12
12 131:3 132:17	set 73:3, 21 88:6	significant 118:19	site 34:5 113:3
133:2 138:14	100:21 101:1, 2, 3	119:18 142:2	sitting 13:2 50:9,
143:21 144:20	setting 54:7	signing 105:4	20 60:1 150:10
149:17 150:12, 19	seven 28:9, 16	signs 40:2	152:11
153:13 154:13	30:16 59:3 113:6	silence 11:11	situation 86:7
155:2, 3, 3, 4	Sewell's 6:3	Simelton 2:11 3:6	118:12
156:13	share 4:23 65:3, 5	4:8, 14, 15 5:20, 22	six 74:9 123:20
seeing 76:4 107:17	sharecroppers	7:17, 23 9:12 12:3	151:17
134:21 140:15	61:22	16:12, 14 18:3	skipped 82:12
152:3 153:3	sharing 29:1	21:5, 10 27:9	slaves 10:19 11:9
154:15 155:5	shed 133:17	40:15 46:1, 12	slip 86:18 156:14
seek 20:17	sheet 25:16, 17	47:18, 21 48:1	slipped 86:22
seen 58:13 59:23	128:21	51:18 54:12, 15	slot 154:16
71:10 128:17, 19		62:5 64:16 71:19	slowing 49:5

small 5:12 115:20, 22 116:9, 10 118:13 120:6, 16 121:2, 4, 11 122:11 123:6 145:23 146:1, 2, 16, 21	specific 34:9 109:15 151:20	119:17 123:5 124:13, 16, 23 129:10 132:18 133:14 141:19 145:1 146:13, 22 151:6 159:3	23
snow 156:7	speculate 115:22	stated 10:17 47:1	strangers 83:15
Social 113:17 127:15	spell 77:7	statement 8:3 24:20 35:22 72:14 88:8	strategies 46:20
Society 64:12	spent 57:13 71:10	statements 46:5	strategy 16:5, 7, 8 30:8, 10 45:8 63:6 121:12
sold 96:10	spite 20:2	states 16:1, 3 19:7 20:6 48:7 85:17 94:14 126:18	stray 126:16
Solders 72:19	split 31:13	State's 106:22 116:17	streak 83:8
Soldiers 87:8	splitting 31:12	statewide 63:3	street 32:9 79:1 150:9
sole 12:2	spoke 85:6	stating 53:17	streets 11:16
solve 14:11	sponsors 5:7	station 36:17	strength 122:4
solved 130:9	sports 31:16 33:8 34:16	stations 39:20	stricken 52:15
Somebody 26:14 43:23 69:20, 21 71:4 80:1 85:7 96:1 98:7 128:7 149:10 150:4	spreading 135:16	statistics 37:18 125:21	strike 15:23 52:12 121:17
son 50:10 61:10, 14 136:3, 5 147:17 149:11, 12	square 80:18 98:2	status 53:20 75:1 76:12 90:20 91:4 92:22	strong 147:21
sooner 5:4	St 1:20 7:20 9:17 157:23	statute 137:10 141:16	struck 97:13
Sophia 20:20	stack 101:23	stay 8:14 64:18 69:3	structure 14:15
sorry 61:1 62:5 97:4 101:22 146:23 148:11	stacked 116:7	stayed 110:13 116:5 126:19	struggle 10:22 72:21
sort 129:12 142:18 143:6, 7, 8, 17, 22, 23	staff 90:8	stealing 155:2	stuck 59:14 67:22
sorts 108:4	stake 131:21	Steel 19:12	students 32:6 120:22
sought 21:1 27:16	stalled 81:18	stenographer 46:15	stuff 14:23 36:4 39:12 149:13
sounds 55:15, 16	stand 5:12 40:8 80:2 98:7 146:17	stenographic 159:7	subdivision 20:12
south 58:15 84:8, 11 142:17	Standard's 44:4	Stephens 107:2	subdivisions 113:6
Southern 7:7 126:18	standing 59:4	stepped 133:3	submit 52:21 136:8
space 158:1	standstill 75:22	stewardship 153:13	submitted 67:7 68:2
speak 57:8 64:19 80:3, 17, 20 131:15, 16 133:16 148:15	start 5:3, 14 8:4 18:11 48:3 72:15 89:1 156:18	stick 98:6	submitting 134:23 135:13
speakers 3:13 64:23 65:2, 4, 7	started 3:4 49:15 54:18 100:2 157:16	stolen 69:13 139:18	subsection 113:6
Speaking 12:8 46:15 134:1 146:15	STATE 1:9 3:11 4:9 8:8, 11, 12 10:15, 16 11:13 13:9, 20 16:14 18:11 19:16 20:2, 3 23:20 33:2 37:2 46:14 47:21 51:20 53:9 69:1 78:10 88:9 95:19 99:7 104:3, 10, 21 106:8 107:23 110:1 111:6 112:11 113:3, 14, 21 114:8, 10, 18 116:21	stop 76:23 80:14 95:4 97:8, 10 103:1, 22	substantiate 59:18
		stopped 104:13	substations 73:22
		story 61:6, 8 135:10	subtle 131:13
		straight 77:2	suburb 61:20
		straightened 23:12,	suburbs 79:7
			success 66:7 141:1, 2 successful 100:20 121:5 129:20, 21 135:7, 8 sudden 147:18
			sued 43:15 49:3 99:21
			sufficient 113:18
			suggested 28:3

suggestion 46:19	system 77:16, 18 78:2, 4, 7, 12	tears 94:5	16:12 17:18 18:18
suit 138:19 139:11		television 70:11	21:3, 5 27:9 36:19
Suite 2:6		tell 5:13 51:15	40:15, 18 41:14
summarize 42:7	< T >	77:2 85:23 87:19	45:23 46:2, 3, 5
102:6	table 24:12 47:5	93:1 145:8	48:1 51:16, 17, 18
summation 154:21	tactic 117:14	telling 24:17 128:2	57:6 61:1 62:7
Sunday 17:9	tactics 112:21	137:17 150:3	64:16 71:18 72:1, supervision 159:10	138:7	temporary 123:20	3, 5, 12 77:4 80:19
support 5:8 14:22	tail 139:4	ten 53:11 109:19	94:6 98:16 105:11
15:19 29:12 41:4	take 15:11 18:5	110:10	109:22, 23 111:23
119:2, 8, 13 141:23	26:21 30:23 43:12	tenant 61:22	112:2, 17 123:7
supporting 66:14	44:19 49:21 89:22	tend 114:1	128:12, 15 129:7
suppose 124:1	96:22 97:18 98:13	tepid 139:11	132:23 133:1, 15
supposed 85:22	123:14 133:5	term 100:18 115:2	140:11, 12 144:17,
110:6, 10, 15	144:17	terms 8:23 12:8	19, 21 146:14
113:15 135:1	taken 23:6, 15	29:1 30:9 44:13	151:8 155:16
137:9 148:18	70:6, 19 80:19	45:8 47:5 63:1, 1	156:12, 14, 20, 23
supposedly 136:6	98:17 159:7	66:2, 6 113:13	157:2, 15, 23 158:2, suppress 145:19	takes 130:13	120:15 126:22	7, 7
suppressed 118:9,	156:11	133:18 134:18	Thanks 88:23
13	talk 13:10 35:11	135:8 138:23	Theangelo 46:9
suppressing 118:2	37:8 99:15 115:1	146:9 157:16	thing 14:6 15:6,
120:1	116:3 123:12	Terri 6:2	21 23:21 37:23
suppression 62:14	124:17 129:12	test 15:11 45:16	39:18 45:5 54:9
112:21 115:14	talked 21:14 22:10	114:23	55:15 63:22 76:9
117:11 129:15	24:7, 9 25:12	testified 133:22	86:16 91:15 95:4
131:14	26:18 33:16 34:14,	144:22	104:17, 19 107:16
Supreme 14:1	21 43:5 47:6 53:7	testify 17:23 112:5,	109:20 111:10
15:3 20:6, 8 46:22	84:1 110:22	19 116:4 128:17	112:23 115:14
47:3 130:4 140:20	118:15 124:10, 23	129:2, 10 144:21	121:13, 18 130:12
147:7	129:17	151:3	132:15, 16 134:1
sure 3:19 17:16	talking 26:12 27:2	testifying 3:17	139:2 141:4 143:1,
54:19 55:16 61:10	31:9, 21 37:11, 13	7:16	14 145:21 154:11
72:14 74:3 76:11,	69:16 73:19 76:7	testimonies 112:3	things 8:14, 15
13 86:5 108:7	84:10 102:4, 9	129:6 144:20	10:7 14:4, 5, 16
121:9, 10, 23 122:2	103:13 106:2	145:9	16:17 23:4 39:14,
124:9 126:15	116:22, 23 117:2	testimony 3:18, 22	16 48:17 49:5
130:13 135:23	124:20 127:23	5:11 6:23 11:22	55:19 56:18 64:13
145:7 154:6	131:19 147:9	14:5 18:11 27:8	69:5, 16, 17 79:3,
surge 75:5	152:21, 23 154:14,	31:3 33:6 40:16	13 80:6, 15 90:6, surprise 147:2	15, 18, 23 155:1	42:8 46:3, 4 47:19	23 91:11, 19, 20, 23
surreptiously 48:18	157:21, 21	54:13 65:3 68:16	93:3 95:20 98:3
surrounding 138:11	targeted 144:3	71:20 98:20, 20	100:10 109:4
suspended 119:5	targets 146:11	99:7 105:12	110:8 115:17
suspicion 131:11	tax 11:6 15:11, 14	112:10, 13 128:13	120:12, 22 121:7,
Swain 72:9 128:18	teacher 77:12	133:5 140:16, 17,	12, 17, 17 122:7
swamped 75:7	teachers 32:6, 7	17 145:4 156:16	123:14 124:5
swap 149:22	teaching 132:18	thank 3:9, 10 4:14,	125:2 129:14
swell 29:11	tear 96:20	16, 21 5:5, 7, 23	132:6 139:3 140:1, sworn 113:7		7:2, 17, 23 12:3	7 141:16 148:1

151:14 155:4 156:3 think 16:5, 8, 17 17:20 26:16 30:10 41:7 43:14 45:7, 13 47:3, 16 58:12 60:17 65:21 68:16, 23 71:20 73:18 81:20 83:19, 23 84:18 85:6, 20, 22 86:7 95:4 99:22 100:22 112:7 117:7, 8 118:14, 17, 18 119:4, 5, 18 120:13 121:1 127:14, 21 129:17 131:2, 8, 10, 13, 14, 22 132:16, 22 135:9 139:1 140:2, 6, 16, 18 141:4, 5, 12 142:4, 11, 14, 18 144:11 146:6, 10 147:19 148:5 150:10, 23 151:16, 16, 22 152:13 153:12 154:11 155:22 156:12, 16 157:20 thinking 24:15 30:7 33:9 third 79:11 100:18 106:2 Thomas 21:17 35:17 thoroughly 17:8 thought 110:18 121:15 thousand 84:11 THREAT 6:9, 9, 15, 16 46:13 50:20 51:20, 21, 21 54:4, 14, 19, 21 55:1, 8, 22 57:10, 23 58:9 72:3 98:22, 23 134:13 threatened 22:20 three 8:11 17:3 18:20 28:11 33:1 40:14 49:4 58:20 78:19 99:5, 6	104:3 105:19 108:20 109:12 110:2 129:20, 22 148:23 149:6 150:23 151:6 threw 156:2 Thursday 156:5 ticket 114:14 tickets 118:22, 22 tidbit 13:6 tied 47:8 TIME 1:19 4:22 5:6 8:1 12:11 16:8 17:7 22:6, 9 29:15 33:10 36:21 37:5, 8 40:5 42:1, 2 43:18 46:4 49:19, 19 50:15 51:3, 19 54:17, 18 64:17 68:10 69:23 71:21 73:7, 8, 10, 17 74:7, 9, 14 75:2 76:14 80:14 81:8, 21 82:2, 5, 20 83:21 86:3 87:2 89:19 90:12 91:21 92:19 93:2 98:13, 18 99:2 101:8 103:16, 22 105:5 109:2 116:23 128:14, 22 132:12 133:5 138:9 139:7, 8 141:22 146:5 148:13, 19 151:12, 17 155:8 156:11 157:9, 18 159:13 timekeeper 59:6 times 18:14 40:6, 14 44:15 61:13 68:17 76:22 91:14 101:9 104:16 126:13, 17 136:15 153:9 today 3:6, 9, 23 5:7 11:21 20:19 27:8 30:22 42:3 65:9 71:23 87:19 97:16 110:5 129:8 145:23 149:4	150:4, 5 155:18 157:20 Todd 19:20 to-do 120:15 token 44:22 told 18:1 22:8 23:20 26:6 34:10, 15 39:11 41:17 58:16 60:2 68:10 79:4, 19 87:7, 13 110:14 128:5, 10 132:4 136:22 137:19, 21 149:9 150:5, 21 153:9 Tom 31:20 37:17 39:4, 5 Tommy 88:6 tomorrow 156:4 Toms 95:8 Tom's 35:20 top 114:22 132:17 total 108:20 136:15 totally 144:5 touch 88:15, 22 tough 22:9 town 6:13 12:16 65:10 67:1 70:20, 20 82:12 84:9 99:10, 20 101:14 115:20, 23 116:9, 10 118:13 120:6, 16 121:4 148:2 towns 121:2 122:11 123:6 145:23 146:1, 16, 21 track 36:21 90:8, 10, 21 92:3 93:3 tracking 91:22 trading 146:3 traditional 43:1 traditionally 143:16 traffic 118:22 trail 107:17 129:13, 19 139:20 training 10:4 77:10 transcribe 3:22 transcribed 4:1	transcript 145:12 159:9, 12 transfer 147:16 transferred 125:23 transit 84:13 transitions 41:19 transparency 143:7 trash 54:5, 5 travel 84:7 treated 16:1 71:3 tremendous 108:10 109:10 Tri 7:15 trial 52:17 trickery 80:5, 12, 19 tricks 80:13 tried 69:6 70:7 123:16 138:18 trouble 86:10 115:3 136:7 troubled 112:23 trucks 103:14 true 132:7 159:11 truly 13:9 truth 150:4 try 13:12, 13, 15 14:3 18:8 70:13 82:17 88:16 89:7 93:16 97:9 138:21, 22 trying 14:22 33:4 35:1 36:4 55:23 62:22 64:18 81:1 83:6 88:19 95:21 109:2, 3 115:4 126:20 147:18 152:20 155:13 156:14 Tuesday 150:7 turn 4:14 126:21 157:10 turnaround 90:12 91:21 turned 75:11 122:8 Turner 89:5 turning 126:23 turnout 32:14 37:19, 22 39:21 41:12
---	--	--	---

TV 61:6, 8, 15	upset 130:3 136:22 152:19	VOLKER 128:21 129:4, 4, 11, 11 133:1	74:1, 8 104:11 105:22 106:16
twice 104:9 115:16	use 18:21 32:2 39:17 40:12 58:17	volunteered 49:17	107:4, 9 108:3, 6
two 12:8, 23 17:2, 20 21:22 25:15	76:2 88:20 91:13	volunteers 98:16 130:16, 17	112:21 113:4, 12
33:7, 11, 12 36:23	145:4, 12, 14	vote 10:14, 20, 21	114:2, 18 115:1, 14, 20 117:11 123:11
37:12 40:13 42:1, 7 58:6 61:11, 23	usually 74:22 90:21	12:1 15:15 16:16, 17, 19, 21, 22 19:18, 19 22:19 24:23	129:15 131:14
65:15, 23 78:5, 5, 19, 19, 20 79:23	usurped 138:15	25:8 31:23 32:1, 2, 9, 11 33:1, 2 35:23	132:16 143:15
84:14 85:3, 4, 9	utilize 94:2	36:1 37:15, 20	145:17, 17
90:22 100:6 101:9	< V >	38:8 39:18, 19	voters 23:3 28:12, 13 31:23 37:20
106:19 115:11	vacancy 60:3, 6	47:15 51:7 57:4	52:1, 4, 13 55:5, 12
116:11 118:19	valid 28:18 113:10	58:16, 19 59:2, 4, 5	56:13 57:3, 5
123:13, 14 139:7	116:18, 19 117:5	62:13 63:23 72:21	58:15 77:8 81:19
151:20, 22 152:3, 17, 18	119:6, 11, 15	73:11 75:3, 5, 16	83:20 109:9
type 138:7	various 145:5, 5	76:14 78:19, 20	116:23 122:10
types 22:15 80:6	varius 29:12	79:19, 22 81:2	131:6
< U >	vehicle 136:23	82:18 83:9, 16	voter's 53:19
ultimately 12:10 119:19	veil 138:16	84:2, 17 86:16	votes 17:3 19:22, 23 20:13 25:18
unapproved 19:16	venues 73:22	89:7 90:4, 7 98:7	26:3 28:14 51:5, 5, 8, 8 67:7, 8 78:21
Uncle 95:8	verification 154:15	101:4, 5 102:14	121:17 134:17
uncles 146:3	verify 151:13 154:9	103:4, 5, 12 104:13, 17 106:4 109:4	137:14 138:10, 18
undercurrent 132:1	versus 124:14, 14	114:1 118:3, 9	139:1 152:4, 5
undercutting 129:16	veteran 33:19	119:22 120:2	153:8, 15, 20
undermining 98:2	viable 135:3	122:14, 16, 17	VOTING 1:11
understand 14:3 17:4 33:15 37:12	victory 140:5	123:1, 3, 3 124:4, 6	4:17 5:1, 2, 3 8:19, 22 9:11 10:13
85:19 96:17 124:7	view 63:17, 18 129:12	130:2 131:6, 11, 23	12:9, 11, 18 13:16
understanding 42:8, 16 56:21	views 4:23	132:3, 10, 10, 14	15:2, 20 16:23
83:13	Vincent 6:10, 18, 20 48:15 49:7	134:16 135:19	17:14 19:8 20:5, 14, 22 21:15, 18 understood 65:15	50:19 51:22 55:9	137:17, 23 141:14	22:2, 4, 5 23:6, 14
underwent 76:9	56:21 58:1, 3, 5, 7, 8, 18 59:19, 22	143:2 144:8	25:7 26:5, 9, 17 unfairness 153:3	60:5, 10 63:9	147:11, 19, 23	27:1 28:7 33:6, 8
unfortunately 4:18	64:11 65:10, 18	148:1 149:3, 23	37:4 38:2, 8, 14, 17, 18 39:1, 3 40:9
unintended 109:18	66:3 71:13 146:8	150:21 152:2	42:10, 20 43:1, 2
unique 123:12	violation 115:19	voted 22:19 25:9	48:13 52:9, 23
United 9:17 19:7 20:6 48:6	violations 114:13	37:1 50:12 51:2	53:2, 4 67:21 69:2
units 124:21, 22	Virginia 129:4, 11	64:2 77:21 78:1	73:1, 11, 21 74:5, 11 75:17 82:10, 15, 22 83:1, 7, 13
unprecleared 19:23	visibly 127:8	81:20 103:6, 7	84:11 85:18 86:1, 10, 21 89:9, 14, 23
unrealistic 26:1, 6	visit 73:17	107:14 115:15	91:22 92:22 93:5
upcoming 131:16	visitors 128:12	132:3 138:4	94:4, 19 104:14, 14
update 91:4	Vital 125:21	155:18	107:13, 14 119:4, 9, 14 122:20 127:23
updated 108:3	Vivian 10:3	voter 12:12, 14 23:5, 16 39:21
	voice 11:12 144:5	41:12 52:3, 3
	voices 11:8	56:12, 21 62:14
		64:3, 4 67:5 68:3

130:3 131:13	153:14 156:20	144:7, 9 148:2	44:14, 19 49:8, 12,
132:21 133:18	157:14 158:7	151:13 155:10	20 50:7 56:11
134:11, 21 135:3	wanted 13:1 14:2	ways 140:21	59:23 61:11, 14
136:19 138:3	27:6 31:7 33:6, 23	weak 139:11	62:11, 12, 12, 15
141:3 144:23	34:11 35:12 37:7	wealth 61:6	76:8 77:17 79:6, 6,
145:13, 16, 20	44:10 49:12, 22	wealthy 61:19	9 94:19 95:1, 6, 12
147:19, 19 148:13,	56:1 66:12 75:5,	Weatherly 19:17	96:9 97:17 102:9,
19, 19, 22 149:2, 4,	10 77:17 87:6	20:1, 11	10, 11, 15 114:21
10, 19 150:2, 5, 19	102:3, 11 114:23	web 113:3	132:5 134:10
153:14 157:17	116:8 124:9 137:3	week 69:15 74:1	146:10
	150:7	100:13 156:7	whites 11:7 61:21
< W >	wanting 35:19	weeks 21:22 25:15	63:4 78:2, 20 79:2, waged 49:2	79:7	36:23 74:9 148:23	16 98:4
wages 152:15	wants 10:14	welcome 7:21 9:18	wielding 146:3
wait 18:8 41:17	War 10:20	10:11	wife 53:7
79:5 83:21	Ward 18:23 19:1,	well 5:8 7:19	Williams 60:19
waiting 59:4 82:18	2, 5, 5, 9 20:18, 19,	16:18 22:13 24:21	willing 73:5
waken 11:19	19 28:6, 7, 8, 13	25:20 28:2 32:18	Wilson 26:16, 17
walk 76:18 103:16,	29:6 85:9	34:12 35:2, 21	win 9:9 40:22
17	wardens 54:11	54:15 55:8 56:8	49:18
walked 64:5	wards 26:4 28:6, 9,	57:23 61:23 62:4	winning 141:3
walking 144:14	11, 16, 17 78:5, 17	66:5, 23 69:2 76:8	wise 37:18, 21
Wanda 6:16 63:9	80:1, 2	84:9, 19 87:16	wish 52:18 144:9
want 3:9, 10 4:16	warrant 119:21	88:2 92:23 99:11	WITNESS 85:6
5:7, 11 9:18 13:11	warrants 114:13	102:20 103:6	witnessed 59:10
17:18 18:16 24:18	118:21 119:3	116:20 123:7, 16	witnesses 158:6
25:5, 11 26:20	Washington 2:7	132:4, 9 134:3	Women 3:12
27:4 28:22 29:14	19:11 45:10 69:11	136:4 143:18	112:18 124:10, 11
33:13, 18, 22 35:18,	waste 102:12, 20	150:21 153:22	157:5, 7
22 37:16 38:21	watch 13:7 44:17	154:9, 14	won 8:19 17:2
42:6 44:2, 18, 19,	144:1	wells 13:14	43:16 51:7 56:11
22 45:9 46:2, 3	watcher 69:13	went 23:5, 16 27:8	wonderful 63:8
47:2 48:10 64:18	104:8 121:9, 20	40:12 50:13 56:12,	64:10, 14 70:20, 21
65:5 66:5 71:7	122:2 130:22	15 58:23 59:16, 19	71:2, 2
76:3 77:21 79:3,	watchers 59:12	72:22 73:22 77:14	word 87:2, 21
12 80:14 82:17	66:15 68:4, 5, 11,	78:7 79:8, 18 80:5	words 14:21 76:2
86:16 94:14 95:22	18 101:2 115:18	81:5 90:11 102:14	92:13, 17 141:2
97:14 98:9 99:15,	138:14	108:5 110:11, 14	work 13:22 48:9
21 102:18, 19	watches 58:20	111:6 116:8	80:8, 9 83:5 93:16
110:17 112:15	watching 104:8	117:19 121:14	95:7 96:16 101:8
113:22 118:12	way 10:1 20:7	122:19 123:11, 19	145:13 146:13
119:16 120:5	23:22 26:13 28:15	127:22 134:1	149:21 154:12
126:16 128:12	29:5 30:15, 15	135:21 136:1, 9	157:13
129:7, 12 139:20	37:17 41:2 45:18	137:4 149:2, 5	workable 90:23
141:20, 20 142:2,	64:22 67:7 82:4	Western 40:5	worked 48:6
10 143:12, 23	100:21 118:8	whatnot 134:15	63:10, 12, 14 65:19
144:21 145:7	121:16 122:23	white 11:2 12:14	73:13 78:3 90:1
146:14 147:5	123:4 130:1	19:5, 17, 20 20:10,	96:11 101:7 104:8
148:8, 17 149:22	134:21 139:5	19 28:13 29:13	113:16 157:3
		30:3 42:3 43:8, 22	158:5

worker 26:19 127:16 workers 76:21 95:14 96:10, 19 97:2, 2 working 62:12 63:18 71:11 80:10 82:8 96:2 97:22 121:23 works 53:8 60:9 93:18 world 11:20 17:13 118:11 worth 120:14 worthy 94:6 wound 110:19 111:17 Wren 88:6 write 60:13 90:16 93:21 writer 60:17 writing 86:9 written 105:19 wrong 25:20 26:9, 10 35:3 36:14 71:5 107:19 117:9 139:13 wrongdoing 139:6 wrote 53:10, 10 100:11 < Y > y'all 101:1, 13 Yeah 11:2 30:6 36:20 38:9 39:6, 8 55:1 57:19 58:9 92:17 124:8 128:23 142:9 year 8:16, 20 16:22, 22, 22, 22 18:21 20:22 22:8 23:7 29:19 41:17 42:22, 23 46:23 47:4 75:4 88:6 106:7 110:16 years 6:20 7:2 8:9, 11 13:5 14:14 16:15 18:22 19:3 20:2 23:14, 14 26:18 33:7, 11, 13	48:6, 14 49:4 57:18 60:18 62:20 76:5 78:3, 4 82:18 83:9 85:3, 4 86:18, 19 93:2 107:14 109:20 110:10 115:11 116:11 123:13, 16 126:2 127:10 128:1 147:15 149:1 155:18 York 2:6 45:10 young 114:6, 19 116:23 120:22 122:9, 18, 21 124:18 younger 132:1, 7 144:15 youngsters 149:18, 23 Yvonne 13:1 157:3 158:1 < Z > zoned 48:21 zoning 49:3, 7
---	--	--	--

NATIONAL COMMISSION FOR VOTING RIGHTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

In Re:)
)
Arizona Voting Rights Hearing)
)
)
)

TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS

Tempe, Arizona
January 9, 2014
10:05 a.m.

REPORTED BY:
Kristy A. Ceton, RPR
AZ Certified Court Reporter No. 50200
Job 69254

1 Transcript of Proceedings of the National
 2 Commission for Voting Rights commenced at 10:05 a.m.,
 3 on January 9, 2014, at Arizona State University
 4 College of Law, 1100 S. McAllister Avenue, Tempe, Arizona,
 5 before Kristy A. Ceton, RPR, Arizona Certified Court Reporter No.
 6 50200.

7 * * *

10 APPEARANCES:

- 11 Doris Marie Provine
- 12 John Lewis
- 13 Penny Ladell Willrich
- 14 Charles Fanniel
- 15 Patty Ferguson-Bohnee
- 16 Judy Stinson
- 17 Erandi Zamora

1 Tempe, Arizona
 2 January 9, 2014
 3 10:05 a.m.

3 TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS

4 MS. STINSON: Good morning. I'd like to 5 welcome you all here to the Sandra Day O'Connor
 6 College of Law. Thank you so much for coming. We 7 are thankful to the law school for providing space to 8 discuss important issues affecting your community;
 9 voting rights, obviously, being -- anyway. Voting
 10 rights being key among them because it affects so
 11 many other rights important in our society.

12 Here at ASU we've been engaged in 13 protecting the right to vote in a number of ways.
 14 Course law in democracy, legal program. Discussing 15 the important issues about protecting the right to 16 vote. Our students have also been very actively 17 engaged in these issues, and we feel very fortunate 18 they've been able to work with our clinics and 19 program they administer Arizona legal to vote
 20 election protection project.

21 They've also written and submitted for 22 Shelby v. Holder and five cases. So we feel very 23 fortunate to be able to provide this forum.

24 We want to thank the Commission very much 25 for coming here to Arizona to take this testimony, to

1 discuss these issues. We hope that the result of 2 today's events and hearings will be that we end up
 3 with important reform in Arizona, and, frankly,
 4 throughout the country on voting rights issues.

5 So thank you all. Welcome to ASU. And 6 we hope you have a productive and wonderful day.

7 MS. ZAMORA: Good morning, Everyone. And 8 before I say anything else, I just want to take a 9 minute to make a quick announcement. We do have 10 Spanish interpretation and American Sign Language
 11 interpretation available. So if anybody needs these 12 at any point during the hearing, please go to the 13 registration table to request these.

14 So now that that's been taken care of,
 15 welcome to the National Commission for Voting Rights.
 16 Sorry.

17 So welcome to the National Commission for 18 Voting Rights at Arizona State hearing. My name is 19 Erandi Zamora. I am an attorney with the Lawyers
 20 Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.

21 I would like to start off by thanking
 22 Judy Stinson and Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law
 23 for providing such a beautiful space for this very 24 important discussion about one of our most 25 fundamental rights, which is the right to vote.

1 The Lawyer's Committee, if you're not
 2 familiar with our work, is a national, nonprofit,
 3 nonpartisan organization. We're based in Washington,
 4 D.C., and we were founded at the request of 5 President Kennedy 50 years ago.

6 Fifty years later, we continue our work
 7 in the areas of fair housing, employment, education,
 8 community development, and, of course, voting rights.
 9 This hearing is the second in a series of nationwide
 10 hearings that are being held throughout the country
 11 by the National Commission on Voting Rights.

12 As many of you know, the Supreme Court
 13 this last summer in Shelby v. Holder struck down a 14 key provision of the Voting Rights Act, leaving many 15 voters here in Arizona and throughout the country
 16 without a key protection against racial
 17 discrimination in voting.

18 So one of our goals today in this
 19 hearing, and in our hearings throughout the country,
 20 is to document the current state of racial
 21 discrimination in voting.

22 As you know as well, we have seen a wave
 23 of restricted voting laws throughout the country, and 24 these are limited access to the ballot for eligible
 25 citizens. In Arizona, they have taken the form of

1 voting laws, proof of citizenship laws that have made
2 it harder for eligible voters to participate in our 3 democratic process.

4 We have also seen a continued --
5 continued challenge with election administration.
6 This -- These, of course, also keep voters away from 7 the ballots. And these take the form of long lines,
8 as we saw here in Arizona, the misuse and overuse of 9 provisional ballots, and poor poll worker trainer.

10 Your input on these issues is critical to 11 the continued advocacy and reform efforts at the 12 national, state, and local levels. So we really 13 thank you for your participation here today.

14 We also, of course, want to know what is,
15 in fact, working in the elections process; what 16 states and municipalities are doing to protect the 17 right to vote and to expand access for eligible
18 voters. The National Commission will create two 19 comprehensive reports, and these will become 20 available to anybody seeking to improve or reform
21 voting laws.

22 And these, of course, include
23 legislators, advocates, and the voting public.

24 We also expect these reports to inform 25 Congress and the American public of the current state

1 of racial discrimination in voting.

2 And without further adieu, I would like
3 to introduce our four guest commissioners and our 4 National Commission commissioner who joins us here
5 today. They have all demonstrated a commitment to 6 protecting the right to vote and making sure that 7 access to the ballot is equal for all.

8 They are Charles Fanniel, who is 9 president of the Arizona State Conference of branches
10 of the NAACP.

11 John Lewis, executive director of the 12 Inter Tribal Council of Arizona.

13 Doris Marie Provine, who is professor
14 emerita at Arizona State University.

15 Penny Ladell Willrich, who is Associate 16 Dean of Academic Affairs and Professor of Law at 17 Arizona State Law School.

18 And we are also joined by our national 19 commissioner, Patty Ferguson-Bohnee. She is the 20 director of the legal -- Indian legal clinic here at 21 the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law.

22 Our commissioners will receive testimony
23 and they will ask questions, where appropriate, to 24 ensure that we have a robust record of the state of 25 voting here in Arizona.

1 And now before I go, I just want to go
2 over a few housekeeping items. If you've been 3 confirmed on one of the formal witness panels, we ask
4 that you please check in at the registration table.
5 If you have not been assigned to one of these formal
6 panels but would like to share your experience as a
7 voter, we would definitely like to hear from you, so
8 we ask that you please register at the registration
9 table. We will have public comment periods at 12:35
10 and at 3:50 p.m.

11 Also, I would like to let you all know
12 that this hearing is being transcribed, so, please,
13 if you are a witness, please speak clearly and state
14 your name clearly for the reporter.

15 Please be mindful of the timekeepers and 16 their signs. Again, you have Spanish and American 17 Sign Language interpretation available. And if 18 you're on Twitter, we've set up a hashtag for this 19 hearing so that friends who are not with us here 20 today can join the events. They are hashtag NCVR and 21 you can tag my organization, which is @lawyerscom.

22 And, finally, I would like to thank -- in 23 addition to thanking the College of Law and our 24 commissioners, I would like to thank the individuals
25 and organizations who have helped us and have been

1 integral in planning this event: The American Civil 2 Liberties of Arizona, the Arizona Advocacy Network,
3 the Arizona Center for Disability Law, Arizona State
4 University Legal Clinic, the Arizona Students
5 Association, the Inter Tribal Council of Arizona, the 6 League of Women Voters for Arizona, and the Mexican 7 American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the 8 National Action Network, the National Association for 9 the Advancement of Colored People. And a lot of 10 other individuals and volunteers who are here making
11 this event happen today.

12 So thank you very much, and I will turn
13 it over to our commissioners. Thank you.

14 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Good morning.
15 Sorry. I'm very honored to be here. My name is 16 Patty Ferguson-Bohnee, and I am the director of the 17 Indian Legal Clinic. And I'm honored to be asked to 18 serve as a national commissioner.

19 I would like to thank the lawyers'
20 committee for selecting me. I think that this 21 hearing is very important to identify and address
22 issues impacting voters across Arizona and also the 23 series of hearings identifying those issues impacting
24 voters across the country.

25 At the Indian Legal Clinic, I should

1 mention that we work closely with a lot of our
2 partners on election protection, native vote election
3 protection in the State of Arizona. We work with the 4 Tribal Council of Arizona, the Arizona Indian Gaming
5 Association, and the Native American Bar Association
6 of Arizona providing voter education and also 7 identifying, addressing voter concerns on election
8 day, and we've identified numerous concerns impacting
9 Indian voters across the State of Arizona.

10 In addition, I have been involved in 11 filing amicus briefs on behalf of native voters on 12 voting rights issues and involved in redistricting
13 litigation and the recent voter ID litigation that 14 resulted in a settlement for Native American voters
15 in the State of Arizona.

16 We know that the Voting Rights Act has 17 been a success. It's led to improved access to the 18 polls. And in 1970, it invalidated the English
19 language literacy requirement for voters in Arizona.
20 And that's when native voters in Arizona really were 21 able to access the ballot with the invalidation of 22 the English literacy requirement.

23 The Voting Rights Act has also reversed
24 redistricting that packed minorities in one district
25 to reduce the effectiveness of the minority vote, and

1 be a guest commissioner at this particular hearing
2 and really appreciate the work that the National 3 Commission and their report -- their forthcoming
4 report that will be available to us and to help
5 document the important information that's going to be 6 presented to us today from very key experts here in 7 this State of Arizona.

8 We welcome you to our country and really 9 appreciate you joining the efforts to ensure that 10 there is equal access and opportunity for voting for 11 the American Indian. The continuing struggle to -- 12 on access to voting and participation in voting.

13 In 1924, it was recognized that American 14 Indians were citizens in the United States and 15 eligible to vote. We formally began the struggle in 16 1928 with individuals, the Gila River Indian 17 Community going to court and wanting to vote here in 18 Arizona. They were denied that right.

19 It wasn't until 1948 when it was 20 recognized that American Indians could vote here in 21 the State of Arizona. And then it wasn't until 1970, 22 until really they were able to participate fully in 23 voting here in this state.

24 So it's been an 85-year struggle formally 25 through the courts and others and it continues to

1 it's been used to increase language access for 2 limited English proficient voters through the 3 preclearance requirements of Section 5 of the Voting
4 Rights Act.

5 With the invalidation of the coverage
6 under Section 4 of the Voting Rights Act, we've 7 already seen changes across the country that seek to 8 impede voter rights and restrict access to the 9 ballot.

10 In our democracy, our goal should be that 11 all voters have access to the ballot. We should be 12 making it easier for our citizens to vote, not 13 harder. Although we've seen gains over the years, 14 we've also encountered roadblocks that attempt to 15 move us backwards.

16 I'd like to say again, it's an honor to 17 serve in this position, and I'd like to thank the law
18 school for providing the forum. And I would also 19 like to thank all of our guest commissioners for 20 their service and all of the panelists for taking the 21 time to prepare and present testimony today.

22 Thank you.

23 MR. LEWIS: My name is John Lewis,
24 executive director of the Inter Tribal Council of 25 Arizona. And I really appreciate the opportunity to

1 today. And, again, sharing many of the issues that
2 are going to be presented today further documented
3 and with some good recommendations to go forward to 4 ensure voting for all citizens.

5 So this is a struggle for all of us, and 6 we appreciate the opportunity to work with all to 7 ensure that in the future things are changed and we 8 are able to access and participate more fully in 9 voting here in Arizona and in the United States.

10 Thank you.

11 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Good morning. My
12 name is Penny Willrich, and it is an honor and a 13 privilege to be invited to be -- a second time to be 14 a guest commissioner, to be a part of this 15 fact-finding process to determine the challenges
16 faced and the opportunities for reform in preserving 17 and protecting the voting rights of all citizens of 18 the State of Arizona.

19 It has been said by countless individuals
20 who have testified before Congress or in judicial 21 proceedings that the right to vote is the most 22 fundamental right within our democratic system. We 23 know that the purpose of the Voting Rights Act of 24 1965 was to enforce the core principals of the 15th
25 Amendment, prohibition against the denial of the

1 right to vote based on race.
 2 We are currently in an era in which we
 3 need to help our Congressional leaders develop a new 4 and better formula under Section 5 of the Voting
 5 Rights Act to ensure that the historical legacy of 6 discriminatory practices in voting and voting
 7 administration that Section 5 was mandated to protect 8 continues to be protected today.
 9 When the Act was passed and signed into 10 law by President Lyndon Johnson who lived under a 11 code of laws that were commonly known as Jim Crow
 12 laws or Black Crows that disenfranchised,
 13 specifically black Americans, under calculated -- a 14 calculated set of laws and practices to keep them
 15 from voting.
 16 And though since 1965 we have made
 17 tremendous strides for people of color in this nation
 18 and in this state to vote, there is still documented 19 proof that discrimination at the polls and in the 20 redistricting process and in the electoral 21 policymaking still exists.
 22 While in the past, it was the grandfather
 23 clause of literacy tests and the poll tax that 24 jeopardized voting; today it is voter suppression
 25 through photo identification requirements,

1 registration restrictions, precinct changes without
 2 notice, and reduction in early voting process.
 3 Even after the enactment of the Voting
 4 Rights Act of 1965, numerous laws and numerous
 5 lawsuits across the nation have been filed in order
 6 to challenge the redistricting schemes that eluded
 7 voting power or packed districts to voter
 8 registration, to challenge voter registration systems
 9 and voter ID laws, such as the two-tiered system in 10 Arizona, to challenge prohibitions against same-day
 11 registrations or prohibitions on out-of-precinct
 12 voting, and to challenge elimination of the early
 13 vote.
 14 The Supreme Court's dismantling of 15 Section 4, the preclearance process formula that put 16 Section 5 into operation has really sent us back to 17 the pre-1965 days of strategy in that we have to 18 challenge the -- the actions on a case-by-case basis
 19 in order to look at what is happening in voter 20 discrimination.
 21 But we know that challenging on a
 22 case-by-case basis is a long process and it is an 23 expensive process. And while that process goes on,
 24 the discriminatory practice is put in place by these 25 laws and policies are existing and it impacts the

1 vote of minority citizens.
 2 We are here today to document what has 3 occurred in Arizona. And so, perhaps, it's time for 4 us to begin to collectively think about a set of 5 national voting standards that must be complied with 6 by every state.
 7 Our democratic system of government
 8 should encourage expanding access to the polls,
 9 expanding early voting, utilizing technology for 10 online voter registration and same-day registration.
 11 And we need to visit -- revisit and repeal voter
 12 disenfranchise laws that prohibit persons with felony
 13 convictions from voting.
 14 It is our duty to ensure a fair electoral 15 process. We can only do that if we have a strong
 16 Voting Rights Act.
 17 So I look forward to the remarks that are 18 going to be made today and the testimony, because as 19 long as there is discrimination in the electoral 20 process, we know that our work is not done.
 21 Thank you for being here. Thank you to 22 the National Committee on Civil Rights Under the Law
 23 for choosing Arizona as a jurisdiction to collect
 24 public testimony.
 25 MR. FANNIEL: Good morning, ladies and

1 gentlemen. My name is Charles Fanniel and I am the 2 president of the NAACP Arizona State Conference. It
 3 is, indeed, my honor to be here today to serve as a
 4 commissioner for the first time on this voting rights
 5 panel of this esteemed group of men and women up
 6 here.
 7 Historically, the NAACP has always been
 8 on the battle grounds fighting for voting rights.
 9 Many of our comrades have given their money, their 10 time, and in the case of warriors like Medgar Evers,
 11 Harry and Harriet Moore, gave their lives to fight
 12 for and defend voting rights.
 13 Today, a half a century later, we're 14 still fighting that fight on the local to national 15 levels, from redistricting and proof of citizenship, 16 to expensive, restrictive, and arbitrary voter ID and 17 voter registration laws, our nation is under attack.
 18 Our state has been caught in the fray.
 19 Shortly after 2008, the elections, we were faced with 20 the introduction, proof of citizenship laws at the 21 polls of a two-tiered election system that would rip
 22 our efforts to register voters apart. Fortunately,
 23 we are winning some of these battles.
 24 A key decision last summer, the Supreme 25 Court supported the role of the National Voter

1 Registration Act in Arizona, election law changes.
2 And in December, the Arizona Supreme Court took a
3 stand against money in our political system.

4 Despite these wins in local, state, and 5 national tactics on voting rights are ongoing and we 6 hear these stories today. We're reminded that we 7 must update the Voting Rights Act.

8 Last June, the Supreme Court invalidated
9 Section 4 of the Voting Rights Act, a provision that 10 helps identify states with a history and contemporary 11 record of voter discrimination.

12 In districts across our state and the 13 U.S., we're seeing now how the Voting Rights Act has 14 protected our citizens all along. A flood of 15 relentless attacks that would not only keep our 16 community out of the ballot box, but also have a
17 profound impact on our school boards, city councils, 18 where our voices are sometimes needed the most.

19 Without a question, the Supreme Court
20 decision cracked the foundation that we built to 21 protect voters from discrimination as we called for 22 VRA to update.

23 We must not only fill those cracks in the 24 foundation, but also reenforce it so we would have a
25 stronger foundation for the future.

1 In order to do this, we must all realize
2 that voting rights is not a partisan issue. It is 3 not a right that belongs solely in the hands of the 4 far left or the far right. The fight doesn't end
5 with the people in this room. This is an Arizona
6 fight. This is an American fight.

7 It will be necessary for our Congress to 8 guarantee fairness and equality in the democratic 9 process. A fully functioning voter rights act is 10 critical to every American. And as an American, we 11 need to make sure this happens.

12 In 2014, the Voting Rights Act must be a 13 priority. It is up to us, those in this room, our 14 partners, our local coalitions, and our leaders on 15 both sides of the political spectrum to make this 16 happen on behalf of the NAACP Arizona State
17 Conference.

18 I look forward to hearing your testimony
19 today. Thank you for being here today, and thank you 20 for inviting me.

21 Thank you.

22 MS. PROVINE: My name is Doris Marie
23 Provine. I am a political scientist and lawyer and 24 professor, until very recently, at this institution.
25 I work on issues of naturalization and voting access.

1 And as the other commissioners have said, I'm honored
2 to be selected for this opportunity. I'm grateful to 3 the organizers and I'm also very grateful to the 4 witnesses who are coming forward to inform us today.
5 Thank you very much for coming.

6 Our democratic goal has got to be to make 7 registration for voting and voting easy, as well as 8 secure, and I might add, meaningful as well. We've 9 had struggles historically at every stage in 10 expanding the vote to the whole citizenry of this 11 country. And that is still true, although the 12 character of those struggles has changed over time.

13 And there are good reasons why Arizona
14 has been the subject of considerable Voting Rights
15 Act activity. Arizona has been a state with problems
16 of voting access and participation.

17 Arizona is a simple-looking state that's 18 actually pretty complicated. We're not that big.
19 We're actually pretty new as states go. And yet, we 20 have a geography that is unusual, with about half the 21 state concentrated in big cities and the other half
22 spread out very thinly in the rest of the state.

23 We have very complicated language issues.
24 In addition to Spanish and English, which we think 25 about quite a bit here in Phoenix, Indian tribes have

1 many different languages to deal with too. And 2 getting access to voting materials in all of these 3 languages is a problem in this state.

4 We're a transient state, which means
5 voter education needs to be particularly healthy and 6 strong in a place where people are moving in and 7 moving out. We have concentrations of students.
8 Students suffer certain difficulties with voting
9 because they are, by definition, transient. They 10 often have difficulty getting access to the vote.

11 We have problems of dark money in this 12 state where we have difficulty controlling, knowing
13 even where the money is coming from that influences
14 elections. And as others have noted, we have a 15 legacy of overt discrimination in voting and in 16 housing and public facilities and many other areas
17 that has been repeatedly addressed by courts and is 18 in a kind of underlying sense part of the story we're 19 dealing with today.

20 We also have issues of neglect and 21 failure to invest in voting education and voting
22 issues because this is not a wealthy state.

23 Finally, I would like to allude to the 24 problem of politics in this state. There are fears
25 that as registration of groups grows, there will be a

1 surge of undesirable voting. There is a tendency in 2 our state to criminalize activities associated with 3 voting that shouldn't be criminalized.
 4 And there is, of course, an issue that's 5 been alluded to of dual ballots, which is going to be 6 a huge mess for the people -- the administrators of 7 elections and a very costly bill to our taxpayers for 8 dubious results.
 9 Also, I want to say that Arizona has had 10 some good ideas that might be valuable to other 11 states. So one of the things we'll do today is 12 collect those good ideas, as well as the things that 13 Congress needs to think about in revising and 14 revamping and, as Charles says, hopefully improving
 15 the foundation of voting rights in Arizona.
 16 Thank you very much.
 17 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: At this time, we'll 18 begin with the first panel. And the first speaker is 19 LeNora Fulton. Ms. Fulton, if you would come forward
 20 to the podium.
 21 MS. FULTON: Good morning. It's always a 22 pleasure to come down to Phoenix area. Coming from 23 up North, we have almost zero degrees temperature, so
 24 thank you for sharing your wonderful weather with me.
 25 I am the county recorder for Apache

1 County since 2004, and I'm honored to present this
 2 testimony on behalf of Apache County.
 3 Apache County is located in the 4 northeastern of Arizona bordered by New Mexico and 5 Utah and is unique among all small counties in the 6 country in many ways, particularly because it is the 7 longest county in the country. 211 miles from the 8 Utah border to just south of Alpine.
 9 Two thirds of the population and over one
 10 half of the land area is comprised of the Navajo
 11 Nation, the largest Native American tribe. Its 12 population in Apache County is over 71,000 with over 13 50,000 registered voters and over 40,000 of the 14 voters are based within the Navajo Nation.
 15 It is important that we have access, as 16 mentioned, to the voting process and the registration
 17 should be easy so that people can register or 18 participate in the electoral process. The concerns,
 19 as expressed by the citizens, in reference to the ID
 20 or the identification requirement at the polling
 21 place.
 22 Many of the poll workers are selected
 23 from the local rural communities where everyone knows
 24 everyone else by first name. During election time, 25 the poll workers show up at a polling place where the

1 poll workers require that the citizens have an ID.
 2 Sometimes the citizens have insufficient ID or no ID
 3 at all, and then people say that they should be 4 allowed to vote in the regular ballot.
 5 On native lands, family is a way of life,
 6 and family clanship is closely knit and almost all
 7 family live close together. For the lack of 8 sufficient ID or no ID, the voter will make a 9 provisional or a transitional provisional ballot, and 10 this process is not accepted to the rural community.
 11 Poll workers state that many of the people walk away
 12 in frustration without voting.
 13 Another concern expressed by the majority
 14 of the voting population is the removal or the 15 nonrenewable of the preclearance requirement without 16 the consultation or without hearings. They feel that 17 the preclearance will be protection of their voting
 18 rights, especially for those that do not speak or 19 understand English.
 20 Another concern is the lack of sufficient 21 funding for counties to invest in translation of 22 minority language of the election-related materials
 23 and through educations through the mass media.
 24 The lack of emphasis for aggregate voting
 25 and education created in the state's education system

1 concerning the voting information at the high school
 2 and elementary level is another concern. Lack of 3 training for teachers about election and voting
 4 registration and time for classroom learning is very 5 limited.
 6 A large population of our county are,
 7 again, between the ages of 18 and 24. It ranges
 8 almost half of the population. The dual registration
 9 system that is needed to be maintained and developed 10 by counties due to the bifurcation, which the federal 11 voter registration forms lacks the Arizona
 12 citizenship requirement language.
 13 This is costly and causes more confusion
 14 and frustration to the voters and more work for 15 county staff. To develop such a complex system,
 16 there are not many voters who fall into this category
 17 so it does not justify the expense and time invested.
 18 Most voters who fill out the federal form are not 19 aware that they are signing up to vote for only -- 20 only for federal offices and races.
 21 The lack of funding to counties to 22 continue to develop the street file, particularly in 23 Apache County, we're very rural and there are very 24 few, if any, standardized street addresses outside of 25 three towns in the county. The development and

1 completion of the street file is essential to ensure
2 that the voters are placed in correct voting
3 precincts.

4 With all the concerns and challenges that
5 we have, we do have some successes. And I will list
6 a few of those.

7 First of all, the Apache County Election
8 and Recorder's Office have merged so that we will 9 enable the offices to streamline logistics and for 10 grammatic services, and also to ensure that 11 additional safeguards during the election process to 12 address certain changes to the election laws in a 13 uniformly maximized manner so that we can provide 14 services to this citizen.

15 We also work closely with the Navajo and 16 the Apache tribes to maximize voter participation.
17 One of the successes we had with the Navajo Nation is 18 that they changed their primary election date to 19 coincide with the primary election date in Arizona so 20 that on election day, we have a huge turnout and that 21 there's not any confusion as far as the different
22 dates of the election dates.

23 The White Mountain Apache is in 24 discussion with that, and perhaps that would be 25 something they would look forward to.

1 MS. PROVINE: Ms. Fulton, one thing. It
2 was very interesting to hear all the things that have 3 happened in Apache County because it's historically
4 been a real site for interest from the Voting Rights
5 Act, as you know. But one thing, if you would talk a
6 bit more about whether the level of registered voters
7 in Apache County is what it should be in relation to 8 other counties in the state. Is it low, is it about 9 average, or is it on the high side?

10 MS. FULTON: Thank you.

11 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: If you'll push the 12 button on the mic.

13 MS. FULTON: Thank you.

14 As I stated, the population of Apache
15 County is about 71,000. So we have 50,000 and over 16 that are registered voters. So the registration is 17 high, although we know that the population may not be 18 accurate according to the census of 2010. But 19 according to that, we see it's high. We know there 20 are many more people that we can register to vote.

21 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Other questions?
22 Yes.

23 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you for your 24 testimony. I'm so sorry about this mic. I don't 25 know what to do. I'll sit back.

1 Apache County established also an 2 outreach office with a little more staff near the 3 Navajo Nation capital in an effort to expand the 4 outreach program to work closely with language
5 translation and also to function as a satellite
6 office.

7 And, lastly, Apache County, with its
8 increase in voter registration within the last 10
9 years -- within the last 8 years have increased
10 almost 10,000 registered voters. And as a result, 11 members of the Navajo Nation has assumed for the 12 first time in its history certain offices, such as 13 the county sheriff, the county superintendent of 14 school, the treasurer, recorder, and assessor.

15 So we really feel strongly that all
16 efforts that can be made that we would have a strong 17 voting rights that would be accessible to all the 18 citizens within the county and within the State of 19 Arizona.

20 Thank you.

21 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Ms. Fulton, if you
22 would take a seat at one of the chairs there at the 23 table to face the commissioners, because there may be 24 some questions for you.

25 And so now I'll open it up for questions.

1 You said a couple of things that were 2 really interesting and concerning to me. And the 3 first is you discussed the voter ID law and that 4 there are people who walk away. And I was wondering
5 if you could explain a little bit more as to if you
6 have any idea of what percentage that may be.

7 Is it a high percentage of people that
8 don't have ID when they leave the polling location?
9 Because these really aren't captured in numbers, but 10 it seems to be an indication that the voter ID law is 11 impacting the ability of voters to exercise their 12 right to vote.

13 MS. FULTON: Thank you.

14 That's always been a concern to us as 15 well. And we know throughout the county that the ID
16 requirement is something that people are still 17 learning about. But a lot of times people don't 18 carry an ID, particularly up within the Navajo Nation
19 and in the rural community in Apache County.

20 We ask the poll workers and they don't 21 normally keep track of it. But I know they say from 22 10 to 20 per precinct. And we're trying to figure 23 out how to work around that. I think one of the 24 problems that we found is people just feel that an ID
25 is kind an infringement on their rights.

1 And within the Native American Nation,
 2 many, many people do not carry any type of documents.
 3 And one of the things that the poll workers have 4 always expressed is since it's a rural community,
 5 everyone knows, you know, who one another is. And 6 poll workers are selected from the community. So an 7 individual will come up and say to them and say, You
 8 know who I am and you know who my mother is. This is 9 where I live. Why do I need to bring an ID?

10 And so it becomes a conflict. And so 11 they try to work with him. People get frustrated and 12 say, I'm not going to vote.

13 MR. FANNIEL: Ms. Fulton, you said that 14 you had significantly increased your voter
 15 registration numbers. However, you also said that 16 there is inadequate funding and training. Could you 17 be a little bit more specific in reference to your 18 funding and training? Has your budget been cut or 19 can you explain?

20 MS. FULTON: Thank you.

21 In Apache County, of course, we're one of 22 the rural communities. And because of the majority
 23 of our land-based population goes into the Native
 24 American Nation, especially the Navajo Nation, you
 25 know, lack of jobs and things, is very obvious that

1 address, which is that 120 South, North, West. Then
 2 there's a nonstandard address which is one mile south
 3 of the chapter house or the store.

4 And so when we converted our database
 5 into the PowerProfile, we found that about 33,000 of 6 the registered voters within our communities have a 7 nonstandard address. So we did approach the 8 Secretary of State. Did offer some more funding for 9 us to develop a portion into the software that would 10 be able to convert a nonstandard address to a 11 standard address within the software.

12 We felt that it was still quite a few 13 that was not converted. And what it is, is in the 14 rural community, a person would list an address.
 15 Maybe it would be two miles south of a store and so,
 16 in order for us to precinct that person in the 17 correct voting precinct, we're not sure exactly where 18 they're at.

19 And so the system that we have is we have 20 a GIS individual that's hired that can use
 21 coordinates or the GPS units, and so it's a long 22 process. Because of lack of funding, we're not able 23 to completely do that with the program. So that's 24 where we do need additional funding.

25 MR. LEWIS: Thank you.

1 specific problem that we have.

2 Now, within the county, it's very
 3 limited. And each year my program has reduced its 4 budget, and so it's very difficult to put money into 5 radio. A lot of the people listen to the radio as a 6 way of getting information. Translation, this is 7 something that we're sometimes very limited. And so
 8 we do the best that we can as far as the training.

9 Now, the training is really with the 10 school system, I think. For whatever reason, the 11 curriculum does not include voter registration.
 12 There's not Kids Voting. Those are good programs 13 that go through the school, but because of lack of 14 funding, lack of time with the classroom that's 15 offered, that is something that's always been a 16 concern to us.

17 MR. LEWIS: I have a question with the 18 street file and what is involved with that and what 19 is it going to take to complete that?

20 MS. FULTON: Thank you.

21 So of the 15 counties, the voter
 22 registration went into a new software. It's called 23 PowerProfile. All 15 counties utilize that. It's a 24 uniform system that we have. And within that system,
 25 we do have a field. It's called a standardized

1 I have one other question in terms of 2 your work and coordination with the federal
 3 government. Do you have any formal type of agreement
 4 as to how you coordinated work with them or what is 5 your relationship on that?

6 MS. FULTON: A lot of it is we don't
 7 really have a formal agreement between the two 8 governments. But we do have an understanding and so 9 both the Navajo Nation Election Administration and 10 the county work very closely in related areas. The 11 White Mountain Apache also have some verbal
 12 understanding. So I feel that is working well.

13 For example, a person is registered to 14 vote in the county, but did not have a physical 15 address or we didn't have a mailing address. We're 16 able to contact the Navajo Nation and they're able to 17 give us some direction of how to address it. Perhaps 18 working with each house and we're able to contact the 19 voter so that we could get additional information.
 20 So there's that type of information.

21 And we also share the same polling place
 22 in -- for example, on the primary election, a certain 23 chapter house that we utilize for both the Nation's 24 voting and then also the county. We use the same
 25 building. We do it in the same room and so that poll

1 workers from both sides can work together.
 2 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Thank you,
 3 Ms. Fulton. I'm going to ask you to stay there with 4 the panel in case there are other questions later.
 5 I'm also going to invite the other panelists to the 6 table at this time.
 7 Alessandra Soler, Paul Eckstein, Leonard
 8 Gorman. If you would please come down to the chairs
 9 and we'll have Ms. Soler speaking to us next.
 10 I've been asked to limit the questions
 11 until after the testimony. And then the 12 commissioners will be able to question the panelists
 13 at that time.
 14 Thank you. Ms. Soler.
 15 MS. SOLER: Thank you very much. Should 16 I continue to sit at the table or would you like me
 17 to stand at the podium. This is good?
 18 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Yes. Great.
 19 MS. SOLER: Thank you so much for the 20 opportunity to participate in today's hearing and the 21 National Commission on Voting Rights Hearing. I'm 22 the executive director of the ACLU of Arizona. And I 23 especially want to thank the Lawyer's Committee for 24 Civil Rights Under the Law for its leadership in 25 establishing a commission and convening today's

1 hearing of voting experts.
 2 The ACLU of Arizona is the -- is a
 3 leading civil rights advocacy organization in the 4 state with about 6,000 members and supporters. We're 5 part of a nationwide network of 53 affiliates and we 6 work for support in the communities and in the state
 7 legislatures to ensure that everyone receives the 8 protection under the Constitutional rights.
 9 So the ACLU are also co-counsel in Shelby
 10 County, two Supreme Court cases that were heard by 11 the Court this past summer: Shelby County v. Holder,
 12 and Arizona v. ITCA. And we have been actively 13 engaged in state-level advocacy on a variety of 14 voting and election reform issues, including leading 15 statewide efforts to end Arizona's discriminatory
 16 voting ban. And most recently we lobbied against 17 state and local changes regarding provisional ballots
 18 and concerns with registration.
 19 So I want to -- given that we have a 20 brief amount of time, I want to just talk about two 21 issues.
 22 One, I want to discuss today why it's 23 absolutely critical that Congress work in a 24 bipartisan manner to restore and redesign the Voting
 25 Rights Act, parts of which, as you all correctly

1 noted, have been rendered obsolete by the U.S.
 2 Supreme Court in Shelby County v. Holder. A brief
 3 summary of recent voting changes that we believe will 4 make it harder to vote.
 5 Since its passage in 1965, the Voting
 6 Rights Act has proven to be one of the most effective
 7 civil rights statutes in blocking and preventing 8 numerous forms of voting discrimination. And 9 presidents from Ronald Reagan to George W. Bush have 10 joined alongside members of Congress, including Bob
 11 Inglis, Tom Feeney, and former House Judiciary
 12 Committee Chairman, James F. Sensenbrenner, is now,
 13 once again, a leader to restore the Voting Rights
 14 Act, to speak out in favor of the law.
 15 Unfortunately, the most recent decision
 16 in Shelby County v. Holder invalidated the coverage
 17 formula of Section 4(b) which determines which 18 jurisdictions are subject to preclearance. The Court
 19 found that while "voting discrimination still 20 exists," Section 4(b) of the Voting Rights Act was 21 Constitutional on the basis that the coverage formula 22 had not been updated recently and no longer reflected 23 current conditions of discrimination.
 24 In Arizona, and across the country,
 25 Section 5 of the law -- with its preclearance and

1 notice position has been instrumental in -- it's been
 2 an instrumental tool in preventing discrimination
 3 before it happens.
 4 I won't get into the specific examples of 5 the Section 5 objections, but I think it's worth
 6 noting that for all the testimony which I have 7 submitted, but I think it's worth hearing that here
 8 in Arizona, the most recent objection came in 2003,
 9 when the Bush administration, the Department of 10 Justice objected to proposed changes to elect board
 11 members of a joint technological education
 12 district -- the Coconino Association for Vocations, 13 Industry and Technology -- because they found the 14 change would have had a retrogressive effect,
 15 diminishing the opportunity for Native American
 16 voters to elect a representative of their choice.
 17 That happened in 2003.
 18 And in a moment, you'll hear from Paul 19 Eckstein on the various redistricting that were also 20 objected.
 21 I do want to point out that, and it's 22 certainly worth noting that just two months after the 23 Shelby County decision, our state Attorney General
 24 Tom Horne issued a number of statements that six 25 previously enacted statutes and policies that were

1 submitted for preclearance here in Arizona but were 2 withdrawn were actually going into effect.
 3 And one of those, which H.B. 2261 created
 4 additional proposed at-large seats to the Maricopa
 5 County Governing Board of the Maricopa Community
 6 College District.
 7 The lawyers have been challenging that
 8 law under State Constitutional ground. At-large 9 districts have been found to be voter swayed, and 10 although there is no racial impact record at this 11 time, in terms of impact of age to be determined 12 2261, it's worth noting that no state or 13 Constitutional claim is a substitute for Section 5
 14 because they do not provide the provision and they do
 15 not prevent discrimination before it happens.
 16 That is why we are calling on Congress to 17 work together to do the following: Establish a new 18 preclearance formula. Jurisdictions with a recent 19 history of voting discrimination should be subject to 20 preclearance. And they need to expand to judicial 21 bail-in provisions. Allow a federal district court
 22 to order a preclearance remedy upon a finding of a 23 violation of the Voting Rights Act and other federal 24 voting rights laws that protect minority voting.
 25 Under the current law, the Court can only order this

1 after a finding of intentional discrimination.
 2 Stopping new discrimination. Going
 3 forward, we need an effective and less burdensome way
 4 to freeze discriminatory voting changes in these 5 noncovered jurisdictions from being implemented while 6 lawsuits are brought under other provisions of the 7 VRA, such as Section 2, are being heard by federal 8 courts.
 9 My time is up, actually.
 10 And then finally, providing notice and 11 disclosure. Jurisdictions should be required to 12 provide public notice of proposed voting changes,
 13 particularly those that have meaningful impact on 14 minority voters. Otherwise, we would never have any 15 information about these changes and the impacts on 16 our community.
 17 My time is up.
 18 I'll just briefly identify one of the 19 voting issues that is particularly problematic here
 20 in Arizona, and that's the criminal
 21 disenfranchisement laws here in the State of Arizona, 22 which remain the most significant means of preventing 23 formerly incarcerated individuals from having a voice
 24 in the political process.
 25 Arizona is one of only eight states in

1 the country to bar individuals with certain felonies
 2 from ever voting again unless they go through an
 3 extremely complicated process that even county
 4 officials have a hard time understanding.
 5 We issued a report in 2006 where we
 6 analyzed how the civil rights restoration process
 7 here in Arizona worked and found that 54 percent of 8 election officials are unable to answer elementary
 9 eligibility questions concerning individuals with 10 felony convictions. And our survey showed that 11 election officials are confused as to what the law is 12 in Arizona and are dispensing incorrect and false
 13 information.
 14 One of the possible solutions here,
 15 obviously, is an appeal to the state law. And given
 16 the issues with the state legislature, Congress -- it
 17 would the national level for Congress to pass
 18 Democracy Restoration Act, which would restore voting
 19 rights in federal elections to over 4 million
 20 Americans and eliminate this complicated patchwork of 21 state laws that we have here in Arizona.
 22 My time is up. I'm happy to take
 23 questions.
 24 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Thank you.
 25 We'll come back with questions after all

1 the panels have presented. Next we'll call on 2 Mr. Paul Eckstein.
 3 MR. ECKSTEIN: Good morning. My name is 4 Paul Eckstein. I'm a lawyer with the law firm of 5 Perkins Coie in the Phoenix office of Perkins Coie.
 6 My remarks today reflect my views and not necessarily 7 the views of the law firm or any of the lawyers in 8 the law firm. We have a very active political law
 9 practice nationally and in Arizona as well.
 10 I've been practicing law approximately 48
 11 and a half years. And for much of that time I have 12 been litigating election law issues. And hearing
 13 Mr. Lewis talk about the fact that reservation
 14 Indians were not allowed to vote in Arizona elections
 15 until 1948 reminds me of a case I handled as a baby
 16 lawyer in 1972, '73 involving the right of a
 17 reservation Indian, who happened to be a Navajo,
 18 Mr. Tom Shirley, who was elected to the county board
 19 of supervisors in Apache County and was enjoined from 20 taking office on the grounds that he could pass laws
 21 that he wasn't subject to and wasn't subject to 22 service of process.
 23 It took about nine months for us to get 24 him his office back and the right to sit as a 25 commissioner. But I'm happy to report today that

1 that principle was established. But in my 2 lifetime -- my lifetime as a lawyer, that was not an 3 established principle.
 4 I'm going to talk primarily about 5 redistricting because I've also been involved in 6 redistricting matters in the 1980s and in the early 7 2000s when I represented the Arizona Minorities for 8 Voting Rights in Fair Redistricting.
 9 A little background about the Arizona
 10 legislature, and our issues involved redistricting
 11 with respect to the legislature not with respect to 12 the Congressional seats.
 13 Number one, Arizona has 30 legislative 14 districts. We have one senator elected from each of 15 the 30 districts and two representatives elected from 16 each of the 30 districts. I thought for a long time
 17 that the fact that we have two representatives
 18 elected from one legislative district presents
 19 significant problems.
 20 We've had it in our constitution for 21 almost 50 years. It hasn't been challenged, but I 22 think it is ripe for a challenge. In 2000, the 23 voters of Arizona adopted another amendment to the 24 constitution that created the Independent
 25 Redistricting Commission which took over

1 redistricting from the legislature.
 2 Because Arizona was a covered
 3 jurisdiction, redistricting had to be precleared by 4 the Department of Justice. And that was a good thing
 5 in the early 2000s because, as you know from the 6 written statement that I have filed, the Independent
 7 Redistricting Commission didn't exactly do a good job
 8 in protecting minority voting rights.
 9 The Department of Justice not only found
 10 that with respect to five legislative districts, the 11 effect of what is to create retrogression, that is to 12 move backwards in terms of voting rights for 13 minorities, but with respect to one of those 14 districts, District 23, the Department of Justice
 15 speculated, somewhat, that it was the intent of the 16 Independent Redistricting Commission to create a 17 retrogressive effect.
 18 And what happened was, the Department of 19 Justice refused to preclear it, and in a proceeding
 20 that was held before a three-judge district court,
 21 some interim lines were drawn and the Redistricting
 22 Commission was given the responsibility to come up
 23 with permanent lines for the 2004, '6, '8, and '10
 24 elections, which they did.
 25 But when they did it, they did what is

1 often done, and that is packed minorities into at 2 least one district, District 14, and moved three 3 percentage points more than was required by the 4 justice department Hispanics into that district,
 5 which made it less likely that Hispanics would be 6 able to elect representatives of their choice in one
 7 of several neighboring districts.
 8 So from my personal experience, I've seen
 9 how the preclearance process is beneficial to making
 10 sure that the people who are doing the redistricting, 11 whether it's the legislature or whether it's an 12 independent commission, understand that there's 13 someone watching you. And if they don't do it right, 14 if they attempt to lose minority voters, attempt to 15 pack minority vote, someone -- someone under the old
 16 law in the justice department is likely to catch it.
 17 I know there are a lot of people in 18 Arizona who believe that it was wrong for Arizona to 19 be included in covered jurisdictions in the 1960s and 20 1970s. I think my experience and the experience just 21 from what I've heard up here today demonstrates that 22 maybe the reasoning wasn't right, but certainly the 23 fact that Arizona was included as a covered
 24 jurisdiction resounded to the benefit of minorities
 25 and minority voting rights in Arizona.

1 Thank you.
 2 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Thank you,
 3 Mr. Eckstein.
 4 And we'll again take questions at the 5 end.
 6 Now, Mr. Richard Gorman.
 7 MR. GORMAN: The mic system is wrong on 8 this side.
 9 My name is Leonard Gorman and I'm a
 10 member of the Navajo Nation, and a registered voter
 11 in the State of Arizona. I will primarily talk about 12 the redistricting activities of the past. I'm 13 currently the director of the Native Rights
 14 Commission.
 15 In March 2011, the Commission was 16 directed by the Speaker of the Navajo Nation to 17 represent the Navajo Nation and the Navajo people in 18 the decennial redistricting activities in Arizona,
 19 Utah, New Mexico, and Colorado. I and my staff
 20 actively participated in redistricting meetings,
 21 providing input to those in each state charged with 22 redistricting efforts, proposing Navajo-sponsored 23 plans, and providing commentary on other plans.
 24 When litigation was necessary, I was a
 25 plaintiff to ensure that my rights under the Voting

1 Rights Act were protected.
 2 The Navajo Nation is the most populated
 3 United States Indian Nation. Over 300,000 Navajos,
 4 of which approximately half live within the 5 geographic district of the Navajo Nation. Navajo
 6 voters are sufficiently large and geographically
 7 compact as to constitute a majority in certain of the 8 legislative districts in the states of Arizona and 9 New Mexico, and have therefore been afforded 10 protection under such institute and five of the 11 Voting Rights Act.
 12 Regarding a progression, in Arizona there
 13 has only been one majority ruling. The Navajo Nation
 14 has objected to it, that there not be retrogression
 15 or dilution and that the Native American Voting Age
 16 Population be enhanced. The Navajo voting age
 17 population using 2010 census for the 2000
 18 redistricting plans was 59 percent.
 19 The Navajo Nation was successful in 20 advocating for the enhancement of the voting age
 21 population between the redistricting plan that 22 consists of 63 percent in the Legislative District 7,
 23 the relevant legislative district.
 24 In New Mexico, there are several
 25 legislative districts on the Navajo Nation.

1 Historically, these legislative districts have 2 consisted of 70 to 90 percent of the NAVAP. The 3 Navajo Nation objective was to create additional 4 districts with significant NAVAP in order for more
 5 Navajos and other Native Americans to vote in 6 districts where the Native American voters would have 7 an opportunity to elect candidates of their choice.
 8 A similar situation exists in San Juan
 9 County, Utah. Fifty-two percent of the population in 10 San Juan County, Utah, is Native American. There are 11 three geographically elected county commissioners.
 12 District 1 has a 90 percent NAVAP; while Districts 2
 13 and 3 have significantly lower NAVAP.
 14 The Navajo Nation has presented
 15 redistricting plans that would unpack the current
 16 District 1 so that it would share some of its 90
 17 percent NAVAP with at least one other district.
 18 However, the county commission charged with 19 redistricting resisted Navajo's recommendations and 20 the Navajo commissioner was continuously outvoted to 21 maintain two Anglo districts and continue to pack
 22 Navajos in District 1.
 23 Successes in Native American voting and 24 threats of Native American voting strength in this 25 century have led to new forms of attack on Native

1 American voting. The voter identification law in 2 Arizona resulted in a significant decrease in the 3 number of Native Americans who voted in the 2006
 4 elections.
 5 The Navajo Nation filed a lawsuit against 6 the State of Arizona challenging that law, which suit
 7 was settled by expanding the types of documents that 8 Native American voters can use for identification.
 9 Further attempts to disenfranchise Native
 10 American voters occurred during the 2008 Arizona
 11 election where the candidacy of Navajo candidates
 12 were challenged because the addresses on the 13 signature petitions included post office boxes and 14 not physical addresses.
 15 Litigation to enforce voting rights is 16 not a sufficient alternative to Section 5 coverage.
 17 Litigation is not quick, easy, or cost-effective.
 18 The Navajo Nation cannot afford to challenge every 19 law that impacts Native American voting rights.
 20 Section 5 has been a deterrent to even more
 21 challenges to Native American voting.
 22 In conclusion, the Commission has 23 participated in the redistricting efforts by 24 providing testimony in the redistricting processes in 25 Arizona, New Mexico, and in San Juan County, Utah.

1 We have testified in several court cases in New
 2 Mexico, appeared as an amicus in a federal court case
 3 in Arizona, and is a plaintiff in an ongoing court
 4 case in San Juan County, Utah.
 5 We have expressed our concerns regarding 6 Section 5 preclearance by filing an amicus brief with 7 the U.S. Supreme Court in Shelby County v. Holder.
 8 On behalf of the Commission and the 9 Navajo Nation, we hope that the Congress will remedy
 10 the situation and restore protections of Section 5 of 11 the Voting Rights Act.
 12 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Thank you,
 13 Mr. Gorman.
 14 Now, we'll open it up for questions from 15 the commissioners.
 16 MS. PROVINE: We've talked about the 17 ineffectiveness of litigation as a substitute for 18 preclearance requirements under Section 5, but could 19 anybody on the panel talk more specifically about the 20 financial cost of the litigation, the poor litigation
 21 alternative versus the preclearance requirement,
 22 either for your organizations or even estimating what 23 they might be for the State of Arizona taxpayers?
 24 MS. SOLER: This is Alessandra again.
 25 That's actually a very good point is that the

1 administrative costs, there are administrative costs.
2 I don't have those figures, but are substantially
3 less than the actual litigation costs. And so I
4 think that that's one of the positive factors that if 5 we can convince Congress to include to make -- to 6 expand the ban on the provision to make it easier for 7 states that are not covered to be precleared, to not 8 have to go through the boards.

9 Ultimately, it would be better -- a 10 better situation for taxpayers, less costly for 11 taxpayers.

12 MR. ECKSTEIN: Cost is certainly an
13 important consideration, but I think an even more 14 important consideration is the fact that under 15 Section 5, the law is, in effect, staying until the 16 Department of Justice or the District of Columbia
17 District Court preclears the legislation or electoral 18 change, whichever it is.

19 And the burden is on the jurisdiction
20 purporting to adopt the legislation or the change
21 that demonstrate that it doesn't cause retrogression
22 and that it allows protected minorities, language
23 groups, and racial and ethnic groups to have a fair
24 opportunity to elect representatives of their choice,
25 particularly in the redistricting context.

1 three states: Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah. And 2 also in Colorado.

3 Navajo Nation has a solution and its
4 people have allocated a sufficient amount of funds.
5 I wouldn't say a war chest of surety that protects 6 the rights of the Navajo people. However, and for 7 the current redistricting activities of the Navajo
8 Nation, it's at least a million dollars, which will 9 address at least those three states at the present
10 time.

11 We've gone through litigation on the New 12 Mexico side and have prevailed on all four cases.
13 And then we are currently in litigation on the 14 Arizona side and we're in litigation on the Utah
15 side. So I don't monitor the pocketbook of the 16 Navajo Nation as far as that million-dollar
17 appropriation.

18 But it has been a struggle for the Navajo
19 to protect the rights of the people in setting aside
20 these monetary resources.

21 Section 5 has been, I think, in my 22 opinion, involved in two activities. Powerful
23 measure for the Navajo people. We've been able to, I 24 think, advocate for all three states Section 5. New 25 Mexico and Utah are not covered jurisdictions. And

1 If you don't have Section 5, which we
2 don't have now, you have to do one or two things. We
3 have to revert to bringing an action under Section 2
4 where the burden shifts to the plaintiffs who were 5 going to be asserting the action, or you have to find
6 some other vehicle to make the point.

7 And I should have mentioned that I am one 8 of the vice presidents of the Lawyer's Committee for 9 Civil Rights, sit on the board, and filed in the last 10 couple weeks an action involving at-large elections
11 in Maricopa County.

12 And we had opportunities to consider
13 filing under the State Constitution or under Section
14 2. And, at least at this point, we opted to file 15 under the State Constitution because of the costs and 16 because of the fact that we have something that was 17 fairly well-tested in the law.

18 So it's -- it's -- Cost is important.
19 And I know there's going to be a lot of litigation
20 under Section 2. And maybe when those cases win
21 their way through the courts, we will know better
22 what the rights and remedies are under Section 2.

23 MR. GORMAN: I think regarding the 24 question of cost, as far the Navajo Nation, the 25 Navajo Nation is very spread out into, for sure,

1 setting standards to meet where you talk about such 2 impact, and what the voting age population should be
3 for a Navajo is the majority of that district.

4 And setting those standards, for example,
5 we agreed with the District of New Mexico that we 6 would set the standard at 60 percent of the voting
7 age population -- the Native American voting age
8 population. And that is sufficient to ensure -- at 9 least ensure the popularity of having Navajos elect
10 the person of their choice.

11 Primarily because if you take 100 voting
12 age population -- the Navajo voting age population,
13 you whittle it down to about 45 of that number.
14 Because I took off the top about 28 of the voting age 15 population who simply just don't care to vote in any 16 of the elections.

17 You take another 20 off that have a
18 difficult time voting. Basically because while I 19 think Navajo Nation adjusting its laws to provide for 20 some -- perhaps some accessibility to voting places,
21 there are a strong number of pockets of Navajo
22 voters, voting age population that have a very 23 difficult time traveling from polling place to 24 polling place, which, on an average, takes about an 25 hour and a half to drive from one polling place to

1 the next polling place. And that's a part of the 2 disenfranchisement.
 3 And then the weather conditions and the 4 transportation costs. So really, for us, we whittle
 5 that down to about a good reasonable 45 voting age
 6 population on the Navajo Nation that do actually go
 7 out and vote in the Navajo Nation elections, plus
 8 also the state elections.
 9 But Section 5 I think it might be very
 10 enforceable advocacy for Navajo Nation to achieve
 11 from 59 percent as a standard in District 7 in 12 Arizona to 63 percent in Navajo. That was 13 comfortable.
 14 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.
 15 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Other questions by
 16 the Commission?
 17 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: I have another
 18 question for Ms. Fulton, because we're talking about 19 Section 5 and as a county recorder, as part of the 20 lawsuit, the Shelby County case, there was a 21 discussion that Section 5 is burdensome for county
 22 recorders, the preclearance requirement.
 23 Can you respond to that, in your opinion,
 24 as a county recorder who would be involved in the 25 Section 5 process?

1 deemed voting is also a race concern, so -- which is
 2 why it was detailed to us.
 3 I think the basis of participation is 4 you're expected as who you are, and the tradition
 5 that you exist as a human being. And on the Navajo
 6 Nation as calling -- as addresses. Rural addressing 7 is -- rural addresses are not -- I guess, let me just 8 say "fashionable," as it is here in the City of 9 Tempe.
 10 But the reality is that there are things
 11 that are helping and they should live in the manner
 12 that they feel comfortable with. And that is their 13 ability to communicate with other individuals through 14 the clanship in the case of the Navajo people, and be 15 able to use that form of identification as a right to 16 have somebody, a relative, a brother, sister,
 17 grandmother, aunt that is sitting and manning the 18 state election that he or she calls sister, brother,
 19 mother.
 20 Yet that same person has the ability
 21 under state law to not permit that individual to cast
 22 a ballot. That's ridiculous. That seems to be so 23 inhumane. I mean, a vastly different point than the 24 last commission is expressing.
 25 While we realize that we're talking about

1 MS. FULTON: Thank you.
 2 My comment is that if it wasn't for
 3 Section 5, we would have thousands of voters,
 4 citizens that would not have the opportunity to 5 participate in the electoral process. Since 2004,
 6 coming on board, we worked very well for Section 5, 7 didn't have any problems, and I don't recognize it as 8 a burden.
 9 I think, because a long history of Apache
 10 County, there is a need for protection for voters.
 11 And I hope that there would be something in place
 12 because things do not change, you know, quickly. And 13 so as the recorder and as the election -- overseeing 14 the election office now, both offices and the staff,
 15 we don't see it as a problem in the past, and I don't 16 see it as a problem in the future.
 17 MR. LEWIS: I have a question.
 18 Regarding the challenges the candidates
 19 had in 2008, you had mentioned because of the 20 addresses and the city provision, what sort of 21 actions are your commission taking to address those 22 concerns and have they been responded to?
 23 MR. GORMAN: Thank you for the question.
 24 I think my commission as the human rights
 25 advocacy commission, and as a matter of government,

1 straps and straps of policies here that have been
 2 built for so long, for some time, on trying to untie
 3 all these straps I think is very difficult. So rural 4 addressing, I think, is one of the biggest problems.
 5 A lot of us use post office boxes.
 6 And the other issue about identification.
 7 Identification, as I mentioned, is a form of 8 identification. Clanship is form of identification.
 9 And it's recognized. It's been recognized. So
 10 trying to have all of us as human beings understand 11 that these forms of existence do carry on in all of 12 our lives and there is a language to it in the State
 13 of Arizona.
 14 I don't think I intend to apologize
 15 because I'm a Navajo person that has the ability to 16 speak the Navajo language fluently. I have no
 17 business apologizing for that.
 18 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Other questions?
 19 I want to thank the panelists on behalf
 20 of the National Commission on Voting Rights. Thank 21 you for your response to this and thank you for your 22 written comments as well.
 23 At this time, we're going to take an 24 approximately 10-minute break and we'll be back.
 25 (A break was taken at 11:23 a.m.)

1 MR. FANNIEL: Good morning. We are going
 2 to begin with our second panel, and, I believe that
 3 we have Nina Perales, Pastor Stewart, and Judy
 4 Dworkin. All right. Then, Mrs. Perales, you will be 5 first.

6 MS. PERALES: Thank you very much.
 7 Members of the Commission on Voting Rights, thank you
 8 for the invitation to testify.

9 My name is Nina Perales, and I serve as 10 vice president of litigation for MALDEF, the Mexican 11 American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

12 Since our founding as a nonpartisan civil 13 rights organization in 1968, MALDEF has served as the 14 primary organization that litigates voting rights on 15 behalf of Latinos in the United States.

16 According to the census, the Latino
 17 community in the United States grew by over 15
 18 million from 2000 to 2010, and accounted for more 19 than half of the nation's total growth. Over the 20 same decade, the number of Latino-eligible voters --
 21 U.S. citizen adults -- also increased from 13.2
 22 million in 2000 to 21.3 million in 2010.

23 In Arizona, over the last decade, the 24 Latino United States citizen adult population grew at 25 a rate of more than 50 percent, adding more than

1 250,000 potential Latino voters to the State's 2 population. At the same time, Latinos are 3 underregistered in Arizona, compared to Anglos who 4 are registered at a rate of about 70.5 percent.
 5 Latinos are only registered at 52.2 percent.

6 As the Latino and other racial minority
 7 communities have grown and expanded their share of 8 the U.S. electorate, some states have attempted to 9 cap or even reduce the electoral strength of minority 10 voters. This testimony will focus on one example of 11 recent state laws that operate to limit Latino
 12 political participation, and that's Arizona's
 13 Proposition 200, formally known as the Arizona
 14 Taxpayer and Citizen Protection Act of 2004.

15 Arizona voters adopted Prop 200 and 16 changed the voter registration rules to require all 17 new voter registrants to provide documentary proof of 18 U.S. citizenship. Those already on the voter roles 19 were grandfathered in, an old phrase with which we 20 are familiar, and don't have to show documents
 21 proving citizenship.

22 Following enactment of Proposition 200,
 23 over 30,000 individuals were rejected for voter 24 registration in Arizona. Voter registration and 25 community-based voter drives in Maricopa County

1 plummeted by 44 percent.

2 Because I only have a few minutes, I
 3 wanted to focus not on Proposition 200's broad 4 disenfranchising effect, which is described in 5 greater detail in my written submission, but in 6 Proposition 200's special barriers for naturalized
 7 citizens.

8 My client, Mr. Jesus Gonzales, tried to 9 register to vote on the day he took the oath of U.S.
 10 citizenship at a naturalization ceremony in Yuma,
 11 Arizona. He was excited. After over 30 years of 12 being a permanent legal resident in the United 13 States, he was going to become a U.S. citizen, and 14 exercise the rights of citizenship, including voting.

15 He followed the instructions on the 16 Arizona voter registration form and, as requested,
 17 provided the number of his certificate of 18 naturalization, which he happened to be holding in 19 his hand because he had just exited his 20 naturalization ceremony.

21 Mr. Gonzales was promptly rejected for 22 voter registration because the Yuma County Recorder
 23 was unable to confirm his citizenship using the 24 number of his certificate of naturalization in the 25 federal database. That's because the federal

1 database cannot confirm citizenship based on anyone's
 2 naturalization certificate number, although that is 3 the number requested by Proposition 200.

4 Mr. Gonzales tried to register to vote
 5 again. This time, asking his daughter for help
 6 registering online using the Internet and going onto 7 the website for the Arizona Secretary of State. He 8 was rejected for voter registration again, either
 9 because the computer found that his driver's license
 10 was issued before 1996, or because he was coded as a 11 foreigner in the driver's license database.

12 At trial, Mr. Gonzales testified that for 13 many years he had been discriminated against as a 14 fieldworker and somebody from Mexico, and that upon 15 gaining citizenship he felt, once again, that he was 16 being treated as a second-class human being.

17 The problems for naturalized citizens who 18 tried to register are predictable and systematic to 19 Proposition 200 and its implementation by election
 20 officials. And the impact is not insubstantial. In 21 2012, over 13,000 individuals in Arizona naturalized
 22 and became eligible to vote.

23 As I mentioned previously, in addition to 24 asking for a naturalization number that cannot be 25 verified, the flaws in the Arizona Motor Vehicle

1 Division database create unique problems for 2 naturalized citizens. Most naturalized citizens got 3 their driver's licenses when they were permanent
4 legal residents of the United States.

5 And Arizona will put a code in the 6 database for the driver's licenses "F" for 7 "foreigner." Well, at least it's literal. And the 8 "F" does not show up on your driver's license. So 9 you don't know that you are "F" for "foreigner" until 10 some day, happily, you naturalize and then attempt to 11 use your driver's license to register to vote, in 12 which case, you are immediately flagged because, of 13 course, there is no system by which the Arizona Motor 14 Vehicle's database updates itself based on 15 naturalization records with -- with the federal 16 government.

17 The purpose of Prop 200's registration
18 requirement, as described in the statute, is to 19 combat undocumented immigration. However, Arizona
20 hasn't identified a single instance in which 21 undocumented immigrants registered or voted in 22 Arizona.

23 The federal court, once Mr. Gonzales and 24 others brought suit, found that there were only a 25 handful of instances in which noncitizens had

1 registered to vote, and even fewer in which 2 noncitizens had cast a ballot. Importantly, the 3 Court cited evidence that the small number of 4 noncitizens who had registered to vote had done so
5 mistakenly and without realizing that they were 6 ineligible.

7 In recent years, very public attempts by 8 election officials in other states to claim 9 widespread voter fraud by immigrants have met with 10 embarrassing failure. And, in my written submission,
11 I describe efforts in Florida and Colorado, and now
12 Kansas to whip up anti-immigrant fervor, and 13 conveniently, also, make it much more difficult to 14 register to vote by claiming that there are 15 noncitizens polluting the voter roll of their 16 particular state.

17 The voting restrictions of Prop 200,
18 ostensibly to curb registration by immigrants who are 19 not qualified, comes at a time when Latinos comprise 20 Arizona's fastest-growing citizen voting age
21 population, and Arizona is engulfed in an 22 often-heated debate about immigrants from Mexico
23 living in the state.

24 As Latinos strive to overcome the effects
25 of past exclusion from the political process,

1 Proposition 200 has operated to thwart Latino entry
2 into the electorate.

3 Last year in our case against Proposition
4 200, the U.S. Supreme Court declared that Prop 200
5 must yield to the National Voter Registration Act
6 when an individual seeks to register using the 7 federal voter registration postcard.

8 This decision provides some protection to 9 voters in Arizona who can still register using the 10 federal form, but, of course, as you know, Arizona
11 has now moved to split its voter rolls so that anyone 12 registered to vote in federal elections will not be 13 allowed to vote in state or local elections unless he 14 or she provides documentary proof of citizenship.

15 This move by Arizona will substantially 16 increase the cost of conducting elections and will 17 undoubtedly cause voter confusion as Arizona election
18 officials try to administer two sets of voter rolls
19 and two sets of ballots.

20 Although Latino registration and voting
21 rates do lag behind those of Anglos in Arizona and 22 elsewhere, Latino voters are steadily increasing in 23 number and achieving higher levels of voter
24 participation in each four-year cycle.

25 State practices that seek to freeze in

1 place the current electorate and limit the entry of 2 Latino voters can run afoul of federal law as we saw
3 to some degree in Proposition 200, as well as the 4 Constitution. And, most importantly, they are 5 fundamentally undemocratic.

6 Thank you.

7 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you very much.
8 Pastor Stewart, you're next.

9 MR. STEWART: Commissioners, thank you
10 for the opportunity to witness today testifying about 11 issues affecting African-American voters in Arizona.
12 My name is Warren H. Stewart, Sr., and I'm the senior 13 pastor of the First Institutional Baptist Church, 14 Phoenix, Arizona.

15 The right to vote came to millions of 16 African-Americans at a very high cost involving 17 blood, sweat, and tears, generations before and since 18 the Voting Rights Act of 1965.

19 In Arizona, where the African-American
20 population is less than five percent, issues
21 affecting African-American voters become pronounced 22 and challenging. I remember shortly after I became 23 senior pastor of the First Institutional Baptist 24 Church in Phoenix in 1977, hearing this state's 25 governor reminding a group of African-American

1 leaders meeting with him that we were only three
 2 percent of the State's population.
 3 The inference was that we should not
 4 expect more from Arizona government than our 5 percentage of population warranted. Over 30 years
 6 later, African-American voters still face many issues
 7 that impede our right to vote.
 8 In gathering input from African-American
 9 leaders in Arizona, I offer the following as issues
 10 affecting African-American voters in Arizona.
 11 Check. Voting rights are subject to 12 State regulations, which mean Arizona's laws are 13 affected by the changes of political climate and 14 leadership and have led to a regression in voter
 15 access, voter education, and voter participation.
 16 Check. Election laws passed under the 17 super majority of the Republican-controlled State
 18 legislature have led to practices that favor the 19 Republican party and the majority white population of 20 Arizona.
 21 Check. Redistricting has often
 22 gerrymandered districts in favor of the Republican
 23 party and have diluted African-American's voter 24 strength.
 25 Check. The very small percentage of

1 African-Americans in Arizona in any district makes it
 2 challenging to elect African-Americans to political 3 office without an effective crossover appeal to 4 non-African-American voters.
 5 Check. A tax on grassroots voter
 6 education and organizing by the Republican-controlled
 7 State legislature have led to criminalizing voter 8 education, community led voter registration and 9 ballot collecting, particularly in communities of 10 people of color.
 11 Cost prohibitive voter identification
 12 requirements, for example, quasi poll tax for the 13 required identification.
 14 Check. Voter disenfranchisement after 15 not voting in two consecutive elections, as well as 16 after committing felonies with no restoration of 17 voting rights for most felons in State elections.
 18 Check. Identifying ballots clearly as to 19 not appear like legal summons.
 20 Check. Possible two-tier voting system
 21 for federal and state elections.
 22 Check. Many African-Americans refuse to 23 vote because they feel that issues affecting them
 24 daily are hardly ever addressed by elected officials.
 25 The aforementioned issues affecting

1 African-American voters in Arizona are an incomplete
 2 summary. It is my prayerful hope that this testimony
 3 has been helpful to the National Commission on voting
 4 rights.
 5 Thank you.
 6 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you, Pastor Stewart,
 7 for your testimony on African-American issues.
 8 At this time, we will go to Ms. Judith 9 Dworkin.
 10 MS. DWORKIN: You got it right.
 11 Good morning. My name is Judith Dworkin,
 12 and I'm the managing partner of the law firm of Sacks
 13 Tierney here in Arizona and special outside counsel
 14 for the Navajo Nation on redistricting and election
 15 issues.
 16 I'm providing testimony of the Navajo
 17 Election Administration in Window Rock, Arizona, this 18 morning. The Election Administration monitors all 19 Navajo Nation election matters. This includes 20 tribal, county, state, and federal elections.
 21 The Navajo Nation extends into three 22 states: Arizona, Utah, and New Mexico, and includes 23 11 counties within those three states.
 24 The Election Administration is 25 responsible for ensuring that the voting rights of

1 the Navajo people are protected. The Navajo Nation
 2 has brought litigation against the counties and the 3 states for voting rights violations, and these 4 lawsuits have resulted in consent decrees, memoranda
 5 of understanding, and agreements for protection of 6 Navajo voting rights.
 7 The Voting Rights Act has been essential
 8 in protecting Navajo voting rights. Although 9 proposed laws may not intentionally discriminate
 10 against Native Americans, Native Americans often 11 become the unintended casualties of these laws.
 12 Such laws include voter identification
 13 requirements, early voting laws, and changes to 14 voting site locations.
 15 Adoption of these laws has an adverse 16 impact on the ability of Navajos to exercise their 17 Constitutional right to vote. A substantial number
 18 of Navajos still live in locations where there are no
 19 paved roads, no electricity, no running water, no
 20 stores, no governmental facilities, no employment, no
 21 street addresses, no immediate access to the 22 amenities that urban Americans take for granted.
 23 The adoption of election laws developed
 24 for urban Americans often does not work as intended
 25 in Indian country. And the right to vote is too

1 important for the legislators and administrators to 2 fail to prospectively consider the impact of these 3 laws on Native Americans.

4 Most Native American tribes in the 5 Southwest have retained their native language. Many 6 tribal members have limited or no knowledge of the 7 English language. All of the 11 counties covering
8 the Navajo Nation are required to provide language
9 assistance under Section 203 of the Voting Rights
10 Act.

11 Despite the need for language
12 translations, some counties do not readily provide 13 these services in a manner to ensure that Navajo 14 voters can equally participate in the electoral 15 process. As a result, U.S. Department of Justice
16 filed actions alleging violations of the Voting
17 Rights Act which resulted in consent decrees and 18 agreements to ensure that Navajo language assistance
19 is provided to Navajo voters with limited English
20 proficiency.

21 The Navajo election administration
22 collaborates on voter education with election
23 officials from the 3 states and 11 counties. Through 24 these collective efforts, the election entities
25 develop voting materials in the Navajo language.

1 Although some Native American languages
2 remain unwritten, the counties in the Navajo Nation
3 developed a glossary of election terms in the Navajo
4 language. The Navajo glossary is used for 5 election-related projects on the reservation.

6 Materials, such as public service
7 announcements, poll worker instructions, ballot
8 language interpretation, and election terminology
9 translations are made using this Navajo glossary. In 10 order to maintain this uniformity, the Navajo Nation, 11 county, state, and federal governments need to 12 continue to work together.

13 Before each election the Navajo Election
14 Administration, along with county and state election
15 officials, translate ballot language from English
16 into the Navajo language. These translations are 17 used for voter education for the Navajo people so 18 they can better understand the ballots and the voting
19 process.

20 With the coordination and collaboration
21 of the federal, state, county, and Navajo Nation
22 officials, assistance is provided, as best as 23 possible, for the Navajo people.

24 While much progress has been made in 25 Section 25 and 20 of the Voting Rights Act, Navajos

1 still face problems at the polls and do not have the 2 same access to voting as other voters.

3 First, language translations are not
4 always available when early voting begins.

5 Second, there are limited early voting
6 hours on the reservation as compared to early voting
7 opportunities for off-reservation voting.

8 I see my time has ended. I have a few
9 more comments, if possible.

10 Third, the lack of permanent addresses
11 with which Mr. Gorman talked about. Navajos who are 12 registered to vote sometimes are not included on the 13 voter roster for the precinct or are turned away from 14 the polls. Navajos do not have the same access 15 because of the lack of language translation, lack of 16 early voting locations, distance to the post office,
17 and lack of transportation to get to the required
18 location.

19 In Arizona, this results in Navajo voters
20 being subject to the heightened voter ID requirements
21 when voting on election day, as compared to early 22 voters who are not required to show such 23 documentation.

24 The invalidation of the coverage form on 25 Section 5 preclearance in Shelby County v. Holder

1 raises concerns regarding implementation of existing 2 laws and adoption of new ones.

3 In conclusion, the Navajo Election
4 Administration appreciates the opportunity to present
5 this statement. We have more written comments, but
6 thank you very much.

7 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you. We appreciate
8 your comments. We will ask questions later.

9 Last, but certainly not least, we'll have 10 Steve Titla.

11 MR. TITLA: Thank you for allowing me the 12 opportunity to present testimony on behalf of Native
13 American voters. My name is Steve Titla and I'm a 14 member of the San Carlos Apache Tribe. I have been 15 active in representing the San Carlos Apache Tribe on 16 voting rights issues in the State of Arizona.

17 I'm also a Native Vote Election
18 Protection volunteer and have served the San Carlos
19 Apache Reservation in this capacity during the past 20 three election cycles.

21 I would like to discuss three issues with 22 the Commission: Redistricting, and the ongoing need 23 for Section 5 coverage in Arizona; access to the 24 ballot issues for Native American voters; and the 25 disparate impact voter ID has had on Native American

1 voters in Arizona.
 2 Redistricting. There are 22 tribes in 3 Arizona, and approximately 27 percent of land in 4 Arizona is located in Indian country. There have 5 been widespread practices of discrimination against 6 Native Americans in Arizona, and there have been 7 numerous attempts to reduce the effectiveness of 8 Native American voting strength.
 9 The San Carlos Apache Tribe has fought
 10 hard to be included in a Native American
 11 majority-minority district to ensure that the Apache
 12 voice is represented in the State. During the 2000
 13 election cycle, we were unsuccessful in advocating 14 for inclusion in the Native American
 15 majority-minority legislative district and the Native
 16 American vote was diluted.
 17 The Commission did not enhance the only
 18 Native American majority-minority district in Arizona
 19 because of an aberration in high voter turnout of 20 Native American voters resulting from the Proposition
 21 202 Indian Gaming Initiative. As a result, the 22 effectiveness of the Native American vote was 23 actually reduced because white voters were successful
 24 in preventing Native Americans from electing 25 candidates of choice.

1 During the most recent redistricting
 2 cycle we were successful in presenting evidence to 3 the Arizona Redistricting Commission that the Apaches
 4 should be included in the Native American
 5 majority-minority legislative district because we are 6 a community of interest with other Native American
 7 voters.
 8 Because Arizona was covered by Section 5
 9 of the Voting Rights Act, the Commission took 10 potential retrogression of the Native American vote
 11 into consideration and sought to maintain a robust
 12 Native American majority-minority district.
 13 Without Section 5, it is not clear that 14 similar measures would be taken to analyze the voting
 15 strength of Native American voters in Arizona.
 16 Section 2 is not a viable alternative to 17 Section 5 because of the expense and time involved in 18 Section 2 lawsuits. Therefore, I recommend that 19 efforts be made to update the coverage formula so
 20 that Section 5 can be effective again in Arizona.
 21 Second, access to the polls. During the 22 2012 general election a number of issues were 23 identified on reservations in Arizona. Common types 24 of incidents included voters not found on the 25 registration rolls; issues relating to provisional

1 ballots and voter identification; incidence of voter
 2 intimidation; problems with early ballot requests;
 3 long lines; and inadequate poll worker training.
 4 Issues relating to inactive lists, voter
 5 registration, and insufficient addresses on the voter 6 registration rolls, and voters who left without 7 voting based on some of the aforementioned issues.
 8 The most common problem reported in 2012
 9 was voters being turned away from the polls because a 10 poll worker said they were not on the voter rolls.
 11 In many instances, the voters were not 12 offered provisional ballots as required under the 13 Help America Vote Act. At times, election protection
 14 volunteers were able to confirm a voter's
 15 registration and either sent the voter back to the 16 polls because the voter's registration was confirmed
 17 or directed the voter to the correct polling
 18 location.
 19 Some voters complained because they have 20 been voting at the same voting location for years and 21 they now have to vote at a new location. This was 22 fairly common in Whiteriver on the White Mountain
 23 Apache Reservation.
 24 In Whiteriver, for example, a voter
 25 exited the Whiteriver poll and spoke to election

1 protection volunteers because she was denied a
 2 ballot. She stated that she voted in Whiteriver
 3 during the primary, but now the poll workers told her
 4 she needed to vote in Graham County. The voter was 5 confused as to the change in polling location from 6 the primary to the general election. The change in 7 polling locations was confusing for many of these 8 voters.
 9 Another example of voters not found on 10 the polls was in Apache County -- Still got a couple 11 pages. I'm trying to read as fast as I can.
 12 MS. PROVINE: Can you abbreviate maybe?
 13 MR. TITLA: Yeah.
 14 There were other -- also other access
 15 issues. On some reservations, people waited from one
 16 to three hours to cast a ballot. In Whiteriver, poll
 17 workers told voters that they could not pick a person 18 of their choice to vote for when the poll worker had 19 denied the voter a ballot.
 20 Voter ID. In 2004, Arizona voters passed
 21 Proposition 202 in their attempt to combat alleged 22 voter fraud at the polls. Proposition 202 requires 23 all Arizona voters to present ID when voting in 24 person on election day. This law resulted in a sharp
 25 decrease in the Indian voters in 2006 and

1 disproportionately impacted Native Americans for 2 several reasons.
 3 First, Native Americans vote at the polls
 4 in higher numbers than off-reservation voters due to 5 language translation issues, socioeconomic issues,
 6 and cultural reasons.
 7 Second, the types of ID initially listed
 8 as acceptable forms of proof did not take into 9 consideration the types of documents that are easily
 10 accessible to Native American voters. It was found
 11 that some Native American voters had a very difficult 12 time obtaining a photo identification from the 13 Arizona Department of Transportation.
 14 One voter went to the Department several 15 times only to be turned away because she was born at 16 home and the Department would not accept her 17 certificate of live birth document issued by the 18 Bureau of Indian Affairs.
 19 In 2012, voter ID continued to be an
 20 obstacle for many Native American voters. Native
 21 vote volunteers sought to educate voters on the type
 22 of education voters needed to bring into the polls
 23 with them to vote. Too often poll workers would turn 24 away voters who did not have proper ID rather than 25 offer them provisional or conditional provisional

1 ballots.
 2 In some instances, the voters did have
 3 sufficient ID under the special procedures for Native
 4 American voters, but the poll workers did not accept 5 it. Sometimes Native vote volunteers were able to 6 troubleshoot the issue with voters to determine if 7 they had valid ID under the special procedures for 8 Native American instituted as part of the voter ID
 9 lawsuit.
 10 There were a number of voters who were 11 not even offered provisional ballots if they lacked 12 ID, and there were ballots not counted because of 13 failure to provide ID.
 14 We still have a long way to go to make 15 sure that Native American voters have equal access to 16 the ballot box. We hope that issues can be improved
 17 so that Native voters are not discouraged from 18 participating in the voting process.
 19 Section 5 is needed to ensure that Native
 20 American voters are not prevented from participating 21 in voting.
 22 Thank you for the opportunity to present
 23 testimony. I would be happy to address any questions
 24 the Commission may have. I think the written 25 testimony is submitted. Thank you.

1 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you very much. We
 2 appreciate your testimony. At this time, the 3 Commissioners have questions.
 4 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: I have a question
 5 for the panel -- the panel as a whole.
 6 Do any of you have an opinion with 7 respect to the barriers to the voting -- voter 8 registration that occurs in Arizona? If that has an 9 impact on the number of people of color who are 10 elected to office in Arizona?
 11 MS. PERALES: For my part, I would say
 12 that the ability to elect your preferred candidate to 13 office turns not just on registration, but also two 14 additional factors, which is turnout and the way your 15 boundaries are drawn for your election district,
 16 districtwide or jurisdictionwide.
 17 And so thwarting voter registration is 18 one component of reducing the ability to elect and 19 can go hand in hand with efforts that reduce voter 20 turnout or that impact the vote through 21 redistricting.
 22 MS. DWORKIN: I'd like to sort of follow
 23 up with Ms. Perales' comment. As Mr. Eckstein
 24 commented on earlier, in Arizona, legislative 25 districts included one Senate and then at-large two

1 representatives in the House. And what this permits
 2 is for, depending upon how the district is drawn,
 3 even in a majority-minority district, like a district
 4 in which the Navajo Nation is found, there can be
 5 single-shot voting in communities, such that you
 6 wouldn't be able to elect the first candidate of 7 choice, but you elected the second candidate.
 8 So that in the period between 2002 and 9 2010, but for the first election in which the gaming
 10 issue came up, the representatives from that 11 district, which was the only Native American
 12 majority-minority district included a single Navajo
 13 for one of the seats, and someone from Flagstaff.
 14 So it would be two -- of the two elected
 15 from that district, which was at the time legislative 16 District 2, one would be Navajo and the other would 17 be a group from Flagstaff. And that's a concern that 18 we have.
 19 MR. FANNIEL: Pastor Stewart, you
 20 mentioned in your statement that over 30 years ago
 21 you had a governor reminding you of the population of 22 African-Americans here in the State of Arizona, and 23 the reference that since you make up such a small 24 population, then you should get just a small piece of 25 the pie.

1 Today, do you feel that the attitudes
 2 still possessed in government today or with a lot of
 3 elected officials?
 4 MR. STEWART: Very much so. It is --
 5 There is a consensus among African-American leaders
 6 and community members that neither major political 7 party takes African-Americans seriously because of 8 our low percentage. And with the increase of Latino
 9 population, they -- they consider African-American
 10 voters virtually irrelevant. So I think it's worse.

11 And without throwing the name, that 12 governor was a Democratic governor who reminded us we 13 were only three percent.

14 MS. PROVINE: I have a question. I have 15 a question for Ms. Perales. On this naturalization
 16 issue, is this fixable as far as you can determine 17 from your own research? I'm thinking particularly of 18 requiring the DMV to be at all naturalization 19 ceremonies since it actually is important on your 20 driver's license and in their database whether you're 21 marked as a foreigner or a citizen, or maybe a 22 technological fix, or would you direct your efforts
 23 in a different direction?

24 MS. PERALES: Well, after we brought the 25 lawsuit, after Mr. Gonzales and others sued Arizona,

1 The other issue, which I didn't mention
 2 with respect to naturalization, is that, while 3 registering under Prop 200, the law allows you to 4 photocopy your passport or your U.S. birth
 5 certificate, but the law as it's written does not 6 allow you to photocopy your naturalization
 7 certificate. And the law as written says you must 8 present it in person.

9 And some counties then informally began
 10 to say to people, Well, we'll take the photocopy of 11 naturalization certificate, but the additional 12 problem is that the naturalization certificate itself
 13 says that it is a crime to photocopy it for purposes
 14 outside of law, which is kind of a vague phrase that 15 strikes fear in people, especially if your 16 certificate is new.

17 And so there is this tension around the 18 naturalization certificate also with respect to 19 whether in-person registration is required, and 20 that's never been resolved.

21 And then, finally, I wanted to mention
 22 that there are persons who do not have documentary
 23 proof of citizenship, including young people who 24 naturalized by operation of law when their parents
 25 formally naturalized. Such young people do not

1 Arizona tried to attempt to fix some of the problems
 2 that were in Proposition 200. And a naturalization
 3 issue in Prop 200 isn't the only drafting problem
 4 there. It does list as several items of proof of 5 citizenship: Native American documents that don't 6 exist and immigration documents that don't exist.

7 But putting that aside and just focusing 8 on naturalization, Arizona tried to fix the problem
 9 to some degree by asking naturalized citizens to 10 provide the number, their alien registration number 11 which, for some people, is printed on their 12 naturalization certificate, not for others.

13 So Arizona did make an attempt in 14 litigation to try to reduce its liability. It has 15 not tried to fix the problem with Motor Vehicles.
 16 And, certainly, updating Motor Vehicle's records
 17 based on naturalization information would go a long
 18 way towards fixing this problem.

19 Being present at naturalization
 20 ceremonies, though, I'm not sure would fix the 21 problems because not everybody stops at a table when 22 they do leave the naturalization ceremony.
 23 They're often there with lots of relatives, everybody
 24 is very excited, you might have lunch planned. So
 25 not everybody stops, although many do.

1 receive a naturalization certificate or any other
 2 document and would have to write away to the federal
 3 government to either get a U.S. passport or a
 4 certificate of citizenship in order to even have a
 5 document demonstrating citizenship for Proposition
 6 200.

7 So, yes, there are things that can be 8 done to make it better. I'm not sure that it will 9 ever be completely fixed unless you were to rewrite
 10 the statute or strike it down.

11 MR. FANNIEL: Another question I had, and 12 anybody else could answer this if they know.

13 We hear constantly in discussions about
 14 voter fraud that noncitizens have attempted to vote.
 15 Admittedly, the numbers that can be verified are 16 absolutely tiny.

17 I also suspect that a lot of those 18 suspicious voters are probably legal permanent 19 residents who get confused rather than the real 20 target of concern in this state of people who are 21 utterly without legal status.

22 Do you have any data on that?

23 MS. PERALES: Well, that information was 24 brought forward in the Gonzales litigation. Arizona
 25 has never identified an undocumented person who

1 registered or voted in the state. And those people
2 who were, that very small handful of people who did
3 register while they were not citizens were legal 4 permanent residents or other people with status who 5 were confused about their eligibility to register.

6 And I think we have to recognize that
7 there is a tiny number of noncitizens who mistakenly 8 register and probably look at that in the context of 9 other people who mistakenly register.

10 So, for example, some people own two 11 homes in two different states and they do register in 12 both places by mistake.

13 It's, again, a very tiny number of 14 people. So there is some error along the edges of 15 our voter rolls. Certainly nothing has drawn the 16 kind of vociferous remarks and comments as the 17 noncitizen. And it relates really to old narratives
18 around the purity of the ballot that have been used
19 historically to disenfranchise minority voters.

20 MS. PROVINE: Of course, if you go back
21 far enough, many of the Western states allowed
22 noncitizens to vote in order to attract population,
23 but we won't go there right now.

24 I do want to ask the panel in general.
25 This is my last question.

1 that effort and I wanted to recognize that.

2 MS. PERALES: Thank you.

3 MR. LEWIS: I also have a question for 4 Steve, in relation to the San Carlos Apache Tribal 5 Government and its coordination with the surrounding 6 counties. You addressed a number of issues, and are 7 you getting good cooperation and coordination in some 8 of those issues and the counties and their resources
9 regarding the education, and as-needed, to increase
10 the voter participation of the San Carlos Apache
11 Tribal citizens?

12 MR. TITLA: I think that's the issue I
13 talked about earlier. Thanks for your question.

14 We're getting some cooperation, but it's 15 still not enough to gain full access to the voting in 16 the election. We have three counties. We're in 17 three counties. We're in Pinal County, Gila County, 18 and Graham County and so we have to vote in those 19 areas.

20 But I think that the people that work in 21 the counties, the elections, the state, county,
22 federal elections, they try to help, but I don't 23 think they have the funding. The voter outreach, the 24 voter education necessary to really access all
25 Apaches.

1 Reverend Stewart mentioned the problem of
2 discouraged voters because of lack of representation
3 in the legislature and lack of addressing of the 4 issues of the community. And I wonder if others of 5 you -- or perhaps we would want to elaborate on that,
6 Dr. Stewart -- see a kind of a vicious cycle working 7 between lack of access that ends with lack of what we 8 might call effective representation that leads to 9 discouragement that goes back to lack of access, so
10 that it becomes a kind of a self-perpetuating cycle 11 that needs to be broken if we're going to have an 12 effective democratic process.

13 MR. STEWART: Well, that's very much so.
14 I encountered that in the recent city council
15 election, and there were people who just said, 16 There's no reason to vote. It's not going to make 17 any difference. So I encountered that much in the 18 last city council election.

19 MR. LEWIS: I want to take the 20 opportunity at this time to thank Nina Perales for 21 her role in Arizona, and also along with her time in 22 Arizona, her participation in the issue in last 23 year's U.S. Supreme Court decision that Arizona
24 Proposition 200 must yield to the National Voting and 25 Registration Act. And she's had an exemplary role in

1 Apaches want to vote, but they just don't
2 have the access to the areas. Therefore, this 3 results in the lack of choice to vote for your choice
4 in office.

5 I think earlier, you had discussion by 6 the Honorable Willrich about the impact. We don't 7 have the chance to vote. We don't have the choice in 8 the election because of the area.

9 And then the other question that we got 10 was by Professor Provine about voting fraud. We 11 don't have voter fraud because we don't have a chance
12 because we can't vote.

13 Thank you.

14 MR. FANNIEL: Were you about to say
15 something?

16 MS. DWORKIN: I was going to respond to 17 the question about frustration of voters. I think as 18 Steve Titla has indicated, the Native American voter 19 is very, very interested in exercising their 20 franchise because it is so new. For many older 21 Native Americans, they have seen that change in their 22 lifetimes.

23 And so eligible Native American voters
24 who speak no English will go to the polls and have 25 someone translate into Navajo what will take

1 sometimes an hour with all the ballot propositions in 2 order to be able to exercise their election
 3 franchise.
 4 And they are very, very interested in
 5 doing that. And, particularly, the voter ID
 6 requirement which doesn't occur if you early vote,
 7 but which is so difficult to do for very many of 8 these Native American voters has become an incredibly 9 problematic issue, particularly on the Navajo
 10 Reservation.

11 MR. FANNIEL: I want to pose a question
 12 either one of these panelists can answer.

13 How do you feel the laws -- if you feel 14 like the laws -- the proposed laws are racially
 15 discriminatory and have an impact on your community?

16 And the second question is, what is the 17 number one barrier affecting your community? So 18 either one can answer that.

19 MS. PERALES: I don't think there's any 20 question that Proposition 200 was racially
 21 discriminatory. If you look at the proposition
 22 itself, it talks about noncitizens, and specifically 23 undocumented people, the vast majority of whom in 24 both categories are Latino in the State of Arizona,
 25 stealing the value of citizenship from the real

1 and leadership of the State of Arizona.

2 And I agree with my fellow panelist's
 3 witness that it's couched in a language that's not
 4 racist, but the intent is to discourage and decrease
 5 the number of -- of the participation, I believe, in 6 people of color in the State of Arizona.

7 MR. TITLA: My response on the question
 8 is that I'd like to talk about the election. In one 9 district, San Carlos Apache district, that's where 10 I'm from. It's where the good Apaches are from, by 11 the way.

12 In that district, they have over 90
 13 percent voting in that district on the Apache 14 Reservation for tribal elections. And then we get to 15 a county, federal, state elections, and I think the 16 end result of Proposition 202, the numbers showed 17 that there's a sharp decrease in the voters in 2006,
 18 is that this unfortunately impacts Native Americans
 19 for several reasons, as stated earlier.

20 I think that is a very interesting impact
 21 on the voting population.

22 MR. FANNIEL: Anyone else?

23 Thank you so very much. I appreciate
 24 your testimony and your time today.

25 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: At this time, we're

1 citizens of Arizona.
 2 The language of Proposition 200 is 3 heavily laden with racial ideas, even though they're 4 couched in terms of immigration because immigration
 5 is often used as a code word for Latino. And many 6 Latinos feel that anti-immigrant hysteria is being 7 not only an immigrant, but also as Latinos who are 8 U.S. citizens.

9 And certainly the fight over Arizona
 10 SB1070 and the whole idea of being stopped because 11 you look possibly undocumented, which kind of boggles
 12 the mind of many native-born Latinos and Native
 13 Americans, to be honest. I don't think there's any 14 doubt, and certainly there's no doubt in my mind that 15 Proposition 200 was aimed at the issue of race.

16 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you.

17 Anyone else?

18 MR. STEWART: Most recent legislation
 19 last year, I think it's House Bill 2305, that 20 definitely -- the intent appears to be a way to ward
 21 off an increasing number of people of color who are 22 -- who are citizens in the State of Arizona and who 23 are either voting or registered to vote that -- that 24 as people of color, coupled with if they become 25 active, it will change the whole political climate

1 going to move into public testimony and I have some 2 cards of individuals who have submitted requests to 3 speak, and I'd like to call those individuals forward
 4 one at a time.

5 The first individual, and I apologize but
 6 I think I'm going to say this name wrong is Rivko
 7 Knox, from the League of Women Voters in Arizona.

8 MS. KNOX: You pronounce it Rivko Knox.
 9 The hat I'm wearing today is on behalf of the League
 10 of Woman Voters of Arizona, and this is the statement 11 that we submitted in writing on behalf of the 12 president of the League of Women Voters of Arizona
 13 whose name is Robyn Prud'homme-Bauer, whose name I
 14 can't pronounce correctly.

15 I won't read all of it because time is 16 short, and, of course, where I stand I can't see the 17 time cards, so it's a problem.

18 The League of Women Voters of Arizona,
 19 which is also first open to many and has many male 20 members is excited to be here today to give our 21 testimony and acknowledge our organization and 22 experience in Arizona.

23 The League was founded by activists who 24 secured voting rights for women in 1920 and formed
 25 the basic principle of the organization, which is a

1 belief that every citizen has a right to vote.
 2 Since then the League has always worked
 3 to protect the voting rights for all Americans,
 4 assure opportunities for citizen participation and 5 work for open, accountable representatives and 6 responsive government at every level.
 7 We support the rights of all citizens to 8 vote and encourage all citizens to vote in individual 9 liberties guaranteed by the Constitution of the 10 United States. And although our focus is not in the 11 testimony, I've heard many people talk about the 12 inability of smaller groups, minority groups to get 13 people elected.
 14 We'd also very strongly support choice
 15 voting which you all ought to look into. During the 16 '80s and '90s, we were having the lobby and 17 organization of Voting Rights Act and then passage
 18 and implementation of the National Voter Registration
 19 Act, and we work for -- we advocate for compliance of 20 existing laws and regulations, such as the National 21 Voter Registration Act of 1993.
 22 In 2006, the National League launched
 23 something called Public Advocacy for Voter Protection
 24 Project. And by the early 2010, the Public Advocacy
 25 for Voter Protection had the standard to 18 states

1 and targeted state-based advocacy.
 2 In 2008, the League of Voters in Arizona
 3 was given a grant to do a project. The goal was to 4 provide voter protection to underrepresented voters
 5 such as Latinos, Native American communities, urban 6 central voters. At that time, the League developed a
 7 very public campaign because of the voter ID lawsuit
 8 the League was involved in.
 9 So we developed a very modest plan that 10 we thought was doable, not involving the legislature.
 11 And one of the goals of the project which was voter 12 database management. The specific objective to the 13 project was to improve the rate in which eligible
 14 voters were being registered through the motor 15 vehicle department and state offices that provide 16 public assistance, DES, prior to 2010 election.
 17 For the 2008 project, we surveyed 111
 18 people who came to the DES offices and went to 18 DES 19 offices in four counties: Maricopa, Pinal, Pima, and 20 Coconino. Here are some of the overall findings.
 21 Only one office had voter registration applications
 22 in the waiting area.
 23 Only 5 of the 18 reported that they 24 automatically provided the voter registration
 25 application with the initial benefits application.

1 No opposition that they provided voter
 2 registration application with an address change
 3 report. And only one office asked the person being 4 surveyed for this project if he or she would like to 5 register to vote. I know a lot of this is outlined
 6 now and more people are using it.
 7 So overall, Arizona DES offices did not
 8 seem to provide voter registrations in a consistent 9 manner. A small outcome of this project was to have 10 the DES offices agree to post signs stating that 11 voter registration applications were available.
 12 Today, we focus on education and advocacy
 13 and we -- both the Arizona League and the League of 14 Voters of United States were involved in the Supreme 15 Court ruling voting rights case Arizona versus Inter
 16 Tribal Council of Arizona which examined whether the 17 National Voter Registration Act prevented states from 18 passing laws that restrict the voter registration
 19 process. The Supreme Court, of course, upheld the 20 NVRA resulting in a victory for voters.
 21 Because of the recent actions of the 22 Arizona State Attorney General, the Arizona League
 23 continues to work to protect voters as we have sought
 24 to intervene as defendants in the case Kobach,
 25 et al., v. U.S. Election Assistance Commission, along

1 with the League of Woman Voters of the United States
 2 and the League of Woman Voters of Kansas.
 3 So, in summary, we continue to work to 4 secure the rights to vote for everybody. It started
 5 with women but have now moved on to all potential
 6 registered voters, and for all of the people to have 7 access to the polls. And we will continue to do so
 8 to work to close the door to voter discrimination.
 9 As I said, this is a statement in the 10 record on behalf of the president of the League of 11 Woman Voters of Arizona.
 12 Thank you all.
 13 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you.
 14 Could you sit right there in case the 15 commissioners have any questions for you, or stand?
 16 That's fine.
 17 Anyone have any questions for her? Okay.
 18 Thank you.
 19 All right. Our next presenter is Tonya
 20 Norwood, President of the National Organization for 21 Women.
 22 MS. NORWOOD: Commissioners Provine,
 23 Willrich, Lewis, and Ferguson, thank you for the 24 opportunity.
 25 Voting ID laws, provisional ballots,

1 fewer voting locations in districts that need more,
 2 boundaries, manipulations, redistricting.
 3 Proposition 200, misuse of provisional ballots, poor
 4 training for poll watchers, questioning felony
 5 status, and redirecting to different locations.
 6 Al Sharpton said, We are no longer
 7 challenged by Jim Crow laws, we are now struggling
 8 against his offspring, James Crow, Esquire.
 9 My name is Tonya Norwood, and I stand
 10 before you first and foremost as a mother; secondly,
 11 as a citizen, a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, 12 Incorporated, and the president of the National 13 Organization for Women, Phoenix metropolitan chapter.
 14 I have witnessed the 1965 Voting Rights
 15 Act sidestepped through legislation, print, and 16 practice propaganda, intellectual intimidation. You
 17 see I was a candidate in 2012.
 18 The one thing that we did that validates
 19 my standing here today is on election day, we sent 20 out over 30 members of my campaign to elections
 21 polling places and we asked them not only to be 22 involved with direction, but be poll watchers and to 23 also report back.
 24 You see, we hired lawyers to be at our 25 campaign headquarters to retrieve calls and respond

1 changes. I would like to utilize the model -- the 2 Pima County model, which they have a separate
 3 commission on voting integrity. Now, that is amazing
 4 to me.
 5 I love the idea that there were a group
 6 of people that said, We need outside help on 7 maintaining integrity in our -- in our area.
 8 Secondly, expand our voting model.
 9 Washington State and Oregon have done this. They 10 have come up with innovative ways. And I'm going to 11 go backward and then go forward.
 12 This year -- I'm sorry. Last year,
 13 Oregon was the first state to vote by iPad. Now, 14 that's a bit much. You know, that's a bit much. But 15 I'd like to point out that these two states vote by 16 mail.
 17 Now, I don't know if that's totally 18 feasible, but I do like the idea of voting by mail
 19 with municipality voting locations, which means you
 20 cannot only, you know, have a comfort of your own 21 home of voting, being able to do the research. But 22 you also, for those of us who like to go down and get 23 our stickers, you have the opportunity to show your 24 pride.
 25 Now, why does this help? That totally

1 to issues. Why did we do this? We did this because 2 prior to the election cycle on the dates that were 3 set, letters were sent out saying the wrong date,
 4 saying the wrong time, saying the wrong places,
 5 predominantly, in Latino areas.
 6 We also found out that there were people
 7 out there coming up with their own ways of 8 discrimination, which were through local -- let's 9 call them, clubs, which would tell people not to 10 vote, which would tell people that they don't have 11 the right to vote because maybe they were in the 12 law -- had issues with the law.
 13 Well, I'm here not to complain. I'm here
 14 to offer solutions. We have made some strides within 15 the State of Arizona by the installation of an 16 Arizona Independent Redistricting Commission, which 17 is continuously challenged. But the two solutions I 18 would like to talk about today are, first and 19 foremost, to expand access to our polls, which is 20 directly addressed under Section 5, and to remove 21 barriers to our voting population.
 22 The first way I'd like to talk about -- 23 the first thing I'd like to talk about is an 24 independent commission on how we access our voting
 25 law, what changes are made, and if they are just

1 eliminates the voter suppression at the polls. I
 2 witnessed this. I know for a fact there's 3 intimidation factors that go on there. If you are 4 not -- if you're in my living room, you're there
 5 because I asked you to be there.
 6 If I am discussing my vote, I'm doing it
 7 because I want to, not because you're quizzing me.
 8 Those are the two areas of solution that I offer that 9 I will pursue and that I --
 10 Time's up. Thank you for your time.
 11 Commissioners, thank you.
 12 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you. I do
 13 have one question. So if you could just take a seat
 14 right there. And then anyone else has a question,
 15 they can follow up.
 16 Ms. Norwood, I just wanted to follow up
 17 because you said that there were letters sent out
 18 with the wrong date during the election that you were 19 discussing. Can you let us know the time frame for 20 that and who sent those letters?
 21 MS. NORWOOD: I do not want to misspeak.
 22 I do not have that -- I do have a copy of it, but I
 23 do not have it with me. Let's just say it was a -- a 24 strategic letter through an organization that knew
 25 what they were doing, and it was definitely -- I know

1 there was mostly in Spanish and the timing was, I do
 2 believe, two weeks before the actual November voting
 3 date.
 4 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: The 2012 general
 5 election?
 6 MS. NORWOOD: Yes.
 7 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Okay.
 8 Ms. Norwood, one of the things that you
 9 mentioned was felony disenfranchisement. Do you
 10 believe that felony disenfranchisement laws are 11 outdated?
 12 MS. NORWOOD: I'm sorry. They're
 13 outdated?
 14 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Outdated.
 15 MS. NORWOOD: Oh, definitely. I believe 16 that the laws themselves need to be revisited and 17 revised.
 18 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Any other
 19 questions? Okay. Thank you very much.
 20 Our next presenter is Bishop Jeff
 21 Metcalfe from the National Action Network.
 22 MR. METCALFE: Good afternoon to you. I
 23 am Bishop Metcalfe, president of the National Action
 24 Network in Arizona under the leadership of Reverend 25 Al Sharpton. I have just a couple comments today.

1 paper.
 2 Hispanics and African-Americans were
 3 automatically handed provisional ballots before they 4 even asked if they needed one. I have been a
 5 resident, though I have a couple homes in -- the same
 6 home for over 20 years. The person they had 7 volunteering did not know me from Adam and I did not 8 identify myself until I had to sign in.
 9 One minute left already. Three minutes.
 10 Okay. Thank you.
 11 And so when I approached that person
 12 about, "Why are we getting a provisional ballot?"
 13 they apologized to me and then asked me the question,
 14 "Are you a resident of -- is this your area to vote
 15 in?" I witnessed that.
 16 I also witnessed a letter from one of my 17 church members that went out a few weeks before the 18 election telling them a different date on when to go
 19 vote.
 20 I also witnessed someone having to come
 21 down and take the train we have here, the new train,
 22 and at a certain time, it's 2 o'clock and they had a 23 group of people telling people on the train that most 24 Hispanics are illegal to vote, and most 25 African-Americans are felons.

1 I want to thank you all for having this 2 voting rights in the State of Arizona and allowing 3 the citizens to be heard, and for what they have 4 shared with us today is very helpful. I have a few
 5 concerns.
 6 A couple of my concerns have been already
 7 somewhat mentioned, but I want to talk a little bit
 8 about I made a phone call on election day and I did a 9 follow-up call. It was an 800-number stating that if 10 you need some information about federal observers or 11 having more observers at the polls to call and let 12 them know what was going on.
 13 Some things that troubled me on the 2012
 14 election and I witnessed it with other people. I'm 15 not only the president, but I am the Bishop of four 16 churches, so I have a very multi-cultured church and 17 I saw a lot of things happened.
 18 One of the things that happened was when 19 we were in line, they were giving out provisional
 20 ballots before they even knew if a person needed
 21 provisional ballots. And this is the way I saw it
 22 going. There were lines of people, that if you
 23 were -- to me, it seemed, if you were Anglo -- if you
 24 were a white American, they didn't ask you any 25 questions. They gave you some kind of a voting

1 These are the kind of things that I want
 2 to address because I have a multi-cultural church and 3 most of our Anglo or white members never was 4 approached, never saw these kind of letters until 5 they came by the church and I showed it to them.
 6 And so I want to bring to your attention
 7 that I am asking the State of Arizona, especially, to 8 have more federal observers.
 9 Also, intimidation was very heavy.
 10 People can do a couch intimidation and don't need to 11 be very out front with it. But there were a lot of 12 innuendos to people that were in line.
 13 Again, we were in a line that we had been 14 a resident of over 20 years, always go to vote, and 15 then assumptions were made when we entered the room.
 16 And so we got to find out who these volunteers are,
 17 what they're being taught, and who is talking to 18 them. That's all I can say in the few minutes I
 19 have.
 20 I wanted to be a part of the panel
 21 discussion today, but, however, somehow we got this 22 information going back and forth five times. On the 23 fifth time, somebody said, We'll add you to a 24 sponsorship, but Reverend Sharpton asked for two 25 weeks straight through e-mails to put us on that.

1 Thank you very much. God bless you.
 2 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Yes, thank you.
 3 Can you stay at the microphone for one
 4 second because I have a question and I appreciate
 5 your sharing of this information.
 6 The first thing, I don't know if you're 7 willing to share, but I think it's very important, is 8 if you can share the county of the polling location
 9 you were in or if you know the name of it, because I
 10 think that kind of information is very important
 11 to --
 12 MR. METCALFE: Maricopa County.
 13 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Okay. Maricopa.
 14 MS. PROVINE: I have a question. Sorry.
 15 Did -- When you looked at the election
 16 workers that were in that polling place, these are 17 people who were not part of your community? Nobody 18 knew them? They were simply sort of dropped in from 19 another place? Is that the situation?
 20 MR. METCALFE: I want to say that Arizona
 21 is growing. We used to know everybody in a small 22 town. These people I did not recognize. Although I
 23 did recognize two of them, yes, I did. And the two I 24 recognized were just doing as they were told. The 25 ones that were doing most of the talking, I did not

1 recognize. They're new into the West Valley.
 2 MS. PROVINE: So you had the sense that 3 they were instructed in some way that was intended to 4 be at least somewhat intimidating?
 5 MR. METCALFE: Absolutely. Handing me a
 6 provision ballot, me being a citizen and a resident 7 all these years and well-known in the area was an 8 outright disgrace -- and my wife.
 9 MR. FANNIEL: Two questions. Did you --
 10 You spoke with, I guess, perhaps maybe the supervisor
 11 on a site there. Did you file a complaint with the 12 election department? And the second piece of that 13 is, do you have any letters that you were speaking
 14 about?
 15 MR. METCALFE: I had no idea that we were 16 going to have this wonderful meeting today in 17 Arizona. Had I known that, I would have kept them as 18 record. I don't have a letter, but I can ask Sonny.
 19 I do know the members who the letters were given to,
 20 and I can ask them if they still have the letters.
 21 In the future, those kind of letters will be kept.
 22 As far as calling a number, I did call 23 the number and I spoke to the person there. They 24 were very disappreciative (sic) of me speaking about 25 any kind of discriminatory or any kind of unbalanced

1 -- at the election sites.
 2 And I did call the -- there's a number
 3 you call to ask, you know, if anybody was talking 4 about having federal appointers there. I think they 5 said they will have this in the next discussion. I
 6 did not know we were going to have a meeting like
 7 this. I'm happy we're having one.
 8 I have a special ballot in the future
 9 waiting for someone who wants to listen. There used
 10 to be a song, I'll give you 25 cents and tell 11 somebody who cares. I called and I called. It takes 12 a long time to get through. When I finally got a 13 hold of somebody, the conversation was just very 14 short.
 15 MR. FANNIEL: Thank you very much.
 16 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you. We
 17 appreciate it.
 18 Our next speaker is Vince Rabago.
 19 MR. RABAGO: Thank you, members of the 20 Commission. Again, my name is Vince Rabago. I'm a 21 former Assistant Attorney General with the State of 22 Arizona, and prior to that, I was a California
 23 Attorney General. Now, I'm in private practice.
 24 I've worked on election matters at the 25 trial court level and before the Arizona Supreme

1 Court, and I've also previously last year served on 2 the Redistricting Commission for the City of Tucson.
 3 Last year -- and I've also served in 4 political positions. I'm the former chairman of the 5 Democratic County of Pima County. I'm currently the 6 chairman of the Latino Democratic Caucus in Pima 7 County, and I've been active in politics. In my 8 government work, I served with Republican
 9 administrations and Democratic administrations.
 10 And this past election cycle, afterwards,
 11 I was approached by both former elected legislator, 12 an election attorney, and also former candidates for 13 office -- or candidate for office who expressed to me
 14 their direct experiences with efforts to suppress 15 Latino voters and communities of color in Arizona in 16 the last election cycle.
 17 And so on their behalf, and I'll be 18 giving copies, both electronic and paper, with the 19 Commission of a complaint that I filed on their 20 behalf with the United States Department of Justice
 21 last June just before the Shelby County decision that 22 was issued.
 23 So I wanted to just briefly give you an 24 overview of what was -- what we found to be occurring
 25 in three different counties in the State of Arizona,

1 both with respect to private efforts to suppress
 2 voting as well as government-related efforts.
 3 First, a former lawmaker, Ted Downing and 4 an election attorney named Bill Riley contacted me
 5 and provided affidavits, which are here under penalty
 6 of perjury, which you will have at your disposal,
 7 regarding outside efforts using deceptive
 8 Spanish-automated phone calls known as robocalls into 9 Pima County deceptively telling Spanish-speaking 10 voters that it was a call from a purported federal 11 election center and that they had to bring their 12 identification documents in Spanish to the poll in 13 order to vote. And as everyone here ought to know,
 14 Arizona certainly does not provide any identification
 15 document in Spanish.
 16 The -- Both of these gentlemen heard the 17 calls and provided affidavits. We tracked the calls
 18 to a switchboard in Pennsylvania, and we don't know 19 who was behind those automated calls to suppress the 20 vote because people would certainly not go to vote if 21 they didn't have the right identification.
 22 The other section of misconduct that we 23 discovered and presented to the U.S. Department of 24 Justice involved Yuma County. And on behalf of a
 25 former candidate for sheriff in Yuma County,

1 Mr. Ricardo Sandoval, a retired federal law
 2 enforcement officer who ran for sheriff. Members of 3 his family and other Democratic Latino voters
 4 actually received the wrong party ballot during the 5 primary election cycle.
 6 It's unknown how many, but there were
 7 many reports of that happening. And it was quite a 8 hassle, particularly for elderly voters of any 9 community, whether they be African-American, Native
 10 American, or Hispanic to go down and have to deal
 11 with finding out why they're getting the wrong
 12 party's ballot to vote. And there's affidavits under 13 penalty of perjury to that effect.
 14 There were other activities in Yuma
 15 County. I'm sure there are some other speakers here
 16 today. I believe they've testified about the 17 problems we've had in Yuma County. But the 18 inaccuracy of the number of ballots that were 19 presented at various poll locations led to huge 20 lines, particularly in minority areas, precinct
 21 polling locations.
 22 And many people, hundreds and hundreds of 23 people, according to these affidavits and witnesses,
 24 simply did not vote because they could not wait hours
 25 and hours and hours to be able to be have access to a

1 ballot.
 2 There were other activities involving
 3 other violations of federal law, including the hat
 4 jack who had deputized law enforcement officers,
 5 obtaining signatures for the Republican sheriff
 6 candidate from Latino voters, who certainly felt 7 pressure apparently to sign to get these people on 8 the ballot, when you have an armed law enforcement
 9 officer asking for your signature to get a certain 10 person on the ballot. Those issues happened as well.
 11 And then finally, and some people I'm 12 sure will talk a little about this. The issue that 13 happened here in Maricopa County. And I'm not sure 14 if there was an allusion to it with your former 15 speaker that just finished a few minutes ago,
 16 Ms. Norwood, but in Maricopa County you had official 17 government activity with respect to official
 18 government documents from the county recorder's 19 office that actually had the correct election date in 20 English, but the incorrect election date in Spanish.
 21 Two separate sets of documents.
 22 There's the old saying, you know, fool me
 23 once, you know, shame on me -- you know the old 24 saying -- but twice. It was quite astounding. And 25 there were many efforts in Maricopa County to get

1 newly registered voters, predominantly Latino and 2 other people of color, to vote with respect to the 3 sheriff's election.
 4 And as a direct result of those efforts,
 5 there were misleading reports that were allowed to 6 stand by government officials here in Maricopa County
 7 suggesting that it was illegal for one person as a 8 volunteer to take another person's ballot in.
 9 Thereafter, the Arizona legislature, this
 10 last session, changed the law, the HB2305, to make it
 11 a crime for organizations to help gather ballots and 12 take them into polling locations.
 13 So there are many activities here across 14 the state. I don't know of anyone else that 15 submitted something involving the entire state of 16 Arizona, but we did submit this complaint. The 17 Department of Justice did receive it and we've heard
 18 nothing further.
 19 So we're grateful today to have the 20 opportunity to present these issues to the Commission
 21 for their review. Certainly, issues such as Voting
 22 Rights Act, Section 4, of the quota of numbers, the 23 preclearance, the statute needs to be authorized and 24 changes need to happen.
 25 I'll sum up by saying this: I think

1 Justice Ginsburg said it best in her consent in the 2 Shelby County decision; and that is, When you cut off
3 one head of the snake, many more arise. And that's 4 the situation we find ourselves here both in Arizona
5 and across the country.

6 You stop at one specific type of 7 activity, which is designed to suppress voting, and 8 they find many others, whether they be through laws
9 or other types of activity.

10 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you very
11 much.

12 You have a question?

13 MS. PROVINE: Thank you very much for 14 clarifying that it was actually an official 15 government activity, that incorrect date in the 16 Spanish ballot information. It's good to have that 17 in the record.

18 I want to ask you, you mentioned a
19 switchboard in Pennsylvania. We haven't talked yet 20 in this hearing about outside influences that are 21 making it harder to vote in Arizona, and I don't know 22 whether you're the right one to ask about this. But 23 a lot of observers say that Arizona is on the cusp of 24 a major political change or described as a purchase
25 state, as opposed to a red state.

1 And I wonder if you anticipate or you can 2 inform us about out-of-state efforts to suppress the 3 vote or to affect the vote in Arizona.

4 MR. RABAGO: Well, to the extent that I
5 have been involved in elections, I have previously
6 myself personally run for office, and I've helped 7 other candidates. I've been successfully elected to 8 office. I can't say I think the demographics are 9 changing. It's hard when you get a great new group
10 of people that want to vote and then their efforts
11 become suppressed and laws are enacted and designed 12 specifically to suppress them.

13 What I can say is, in this particular 14 last election cycle, these were efforts that we 15 believe they were from out of state, but it certainly 16 could have been from in state given the way the 17 telecommunications work.

18 I know Arizona is also an almost ground
19 zero for what is the dark money movement. There's a 20 nonprofit, which was cited for violating California
21 law, but it's an Arizona nonprofit, for laundering
22 millions and millions of dollars in California's
23 elections.

24 I, myself, have previously represented a 25 -- a supervisor for the Pima County Board of

1 Supervisors with respect to illegal dark money that 2 came in which was funneled through Delaware and then
3 sent back into Arizona to impact her election.

4 And we presented those sorts of 5 complaints to the Arizona Secretary of State, which 6 basically said, We're not going to look at this, and 7 sent it back to the county to deal with.

8 So I believe there are many different --
9 it's very hard, given the abuse of the nonprofit
10 system, sometimes to track who is behind these 11 efforts to suppress votes from a private side of 12 things.

13 But when you see, like, in Yuma or in 14 Maricopa County when you have official government
15 acts, the wrong ballot is being given to communities
16 of color, or in Maricopa County the wrong date on 17 official government documents, that's why I say it's 18 like a hiking because it's coming at you from many 19 different ways.

20 I know with reenactment, it had Voting
21 Rights Act, we can fix some of that, but much more 22 needs to be done. It is like a hydra. It has many 23 different faces and many different things.

24 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.

25 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you very much

1 for your testimony. If you leave us copies, we will 2 make sure it's included in the record. You can bring 3 it up here.

4 MR. RABAGO: Thank you very much.

5 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Our next speaker is 6 Randall Holmes from the Arizona Advocacy Network
7 Board.

8 MR. HOLMES: Hi, folks. I didn't notice
9 any C-span camera, so I guess I didn't need to dress
10 up.

11 My name is Randall Holmes. I have the 12 honor of sitting on the Board of Arizona Advocacy
13 Network. They brought to you the Arizona Clean 14 Elections and have been defending democracy in 15 Arizona since about 2006 or so, and long before that 16 as individuals.

17 We wear partisan and nonpartisan hats,
18 because in Arizona, statutorily, the political 19 parties have a whole lot of rights and 20 responsibilities. And I help to administer
21 elections, and particularly the county chairs of the 22 political parties can appoint poll workers,
23 officially known as election board workers.

24 They can appoint election observers who 25 are observing voting procedures, as well as at the

1 central count and at the receiving sites where 2 ballots are dropped off and things like that. And in 3 -- I chair the State Democratic Party Election
4 Committee, which we established in 2005.

5 In the year 2000, we saw voter
6 suppression and election fraud, electronic as well as 7 other types in Florida and other states. And we 8 thought, Well, our parties can get serious about this 9 and we're going to get on top of this issue and we'll 10 do something about it.

11 And 2004 came around and Ohio was stolen
12 and other states as well, but we paid attention to 13 Ohio because it was the last one that decided the 14 election. And so we noticed that.

15 And still nothing was happening, either
16 partisan -- there was some nonpartisan activity
17 around election integrity, election administration
18 reform and things like that. And so we established 19 the Election Integrity Committee in Pima County and 20 in Maricopa County party organizations, and then we 21 established the State Party Election Integrity
22 Committee.

23 Progressive Democrats of America was 24 founded during the 2004 campaign, as well as 25 Democracy for America. Progressive Democrats of 1 America has issue organizing teams that work on 2 general legislation, among other things. And we're 3 particularly interested in HR12 introduced by John

4 Lewis.

5 I've had the honor of coordinating the 6 election integrity issue team for PDA on a national 7 basis. We promote good legislation, try to stop bad
8 legislation, and try to facilitate state and local 9 groups around the country who want to work on voting
10 rights and election integrity.

11 HR12 was introduced by John Lewis of 12 Georgia and has a lot of cosponsors with the Election
13 Integrity Voting Rights bill. And, of course, it 14 won't see the light of day with the present House
15 makeup.

16 What I really want to talk to you about,
17 though, is politics. When we started the Election
18 Integrity community in the State party and we asked,
19 Why hasn't this been done before? Doesn't anybody
20 care? We spent millions of dollars and man hours
21 getting people out to vote and go to the polls.

22 What happens to them when they get to the 23 polls? Where are they going to be able to vote and 24 will the votes be counted by the computers once they 25 are turned into electrons and you can no longer look

1 at them?

2 And they said, Well, we don't want people
3 -- we don't want the voters to think there's 4 something wrong with the elections because they won't
5 turn out if they think that the elections are rigged.
6 And what I said was, Well, the voters know that the 7 elections are rigged. That's why they don't turn 8 out. And if they see us as defending democracy and 9 their right to vote, maybe they'll turn out to vote
10 for us.

11 So the solution to all our problems, we 12 keep running into politics, and that includes the 13 Supreme Court, of course, which is extremely right 14 wing and extremists right now and they read the 15 Constitution differently than the rest of us. They 16 don't see a Constitutional right to vote, even though
17 the 15th Amendment, you know, talks about the right
18 to vote.

19 There's far too much to talk about in 20 five minutes, but let me say this. The only solution
21 to our problems is critical political mass --
22 political critical mass. We need enough citizens to 23 consider themselves as citizens and not just 24 consumers, and we need them to think about voting.

25 In order to do that we have to give them

1 something to vote for. The 2012 cycle in Maricopa
2 County groups, like Promise Arizona, who you'll hear 3 from this afternoon, registered 30,000 new voters in 4 Maricopa County because we have a very popular county
5 sheriff, and so they had motivation to go vote.

6 It's when they got to the polls or when 7 they tried to register to vote and ran into 8 roadblocks of obstruction and voter suppression,
9 that's when we got interested in election integrity
10 and voting rights.

11 And so the vast number of citizens aren't 12 going to be interested in voting rights until they 13 have something that they feel they need to go vote
14 for. And that's what we need to do.

15 And I'm going to stop now. The dog ate 16 my homework. I didn't get my testimony written, and 17 so I'll try to e-mail it tomorrow to Erandi Zamora.
18 I'd like to meet her. I got her picture on Twitter,
19 but I don't know if I can find her or not.

20 Unless you have any questions, I'll stop
21 there.

22 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Any questions?

23 MR. LEWIS: I have a question in relation
24 to your Election Integrity Committee.

25 What are some of the issues that you're

1 working on in terms of that committee?
 2 MR. HOLMES: The political party
 3 committees in Maricopa County and State party. One
 4 of the main things we do is try to recruit people,
 5 voters, to be poll workers. And, as I said, the 6 county sheriff can appoint or at least nominate
 7 people to be poll workers.
 8 One of the problems we saw, Arizona
 9 Advocacy Network was kind of the Arizona affiliate of 10 election -- national election protection put on by 11 the Lawyers Committee and others. And we recruited 12 observers to be inside the polls. And through some 13 cooperation with some of the county chairs, we got 14 credentials by the county chairs for our observers to 15 be inside, and saw a whole lot of problems.
 16 And I forgot to mention, I was a poll
 17 worker for Maricopa County elections from about 2005
 18 to 2007 or '8. And I was a troubleshooter, which 19 means I was a supervisor at five or six polling
 20 places and drive around and see if the poll workers
 21 knew what they were doing and helping them follow
 22 procedures.
 23 One voter suppression is that the rules
 24 and regulations and laws and procedures are so 25 complex. And I think they do this on purpose to 1 confuse people and frustrate them so that they give 2 up. And we have a hard time finding poll workers,

 3 election board workers who understand the rules or 4 who are able to follow a checklist in the manual and 5 are motivated to do so and treat the voters right and 6 make sure that they get to vote, you know, if they're 7 eligible. Make sure they get to the right polling
 8 place. Make sure they understand the voter ID law, 9 which is way too complex for the average human to 10 understand.
 11 So it's important that we have observers;
 12 more particularly poll workers who understand these 13 rules. And so we need citizens to be motivated to 14 vote. We need them to be frustrated with voting
 15 procedures, and we need them to be motivated to do 16 something about it and to make it an issue in 17 political campaigns. And vote for the Secretary of 18 State who will uphold their voting rights. Vote for 19 the President and U.S. Senators who interpret the 20 Constitution the way we do and who will militantly
 21 screen their applications to the federal match to 22 people who interpret the Constitution the way we do.
 23 Did that answer the question?
 24 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you very
 25 much, and thank you for your testimony and your

1 written testimony. If you would like to submit it
 2 after, anyone in the room will accept that.
 3 Our last speaker for our public testimony
 4 for this session is Jim Maleaky from Democracy for 5 America. I apologize if I said your name wrong.
 6 MR. MALEAKY: Thank you. No, name
 7 pronouncement was perfect.
 8 DFA is one of the number of organizations
 9 I belong to. I'd rather speak upon myself. What I
 10 want to share with you is that basically there's a 11 belief that I have in the project that is called 12 America. And that project means that we need to be 13 inclusive of people within the democratic process.
 14 If we were to follow our founding
 15 fathers, none of you would be on this panel today.
 16 And we have over the past couple centuries plus
 17 strove to include more and more people.
 18 Unfortunately, what has happened has been 19 this issue of voter integrity has taken upon a 20 partisanship element. It's an us-versus-them
 21 argument.
 22 One of the things that I would share is 23 that I recall in 2012 seeing on the news here in 24 Arizona, there were long lines in downtown Phoenix, 25 in minority areas, but what we saw were long lines in

1 North Scottsdale, Paradise Valley.
 2 And so the knee-jerk reaction comes to 3 be, Oh, there's long lines for the rich white, that 4 means it's okay for there to be long lines for the 5 lower, socioeconomic minority class. I would present
 6 to you that that is the wrong answer. The right
 7 answer is that it does not need to take three hours
 8 for anybody to vote in person, by all means.
 9 What I would ask of you is to consider
 10 referring more funding to occur. Higher voter 11 turnout is a good thing. I cannot stress that 12 enough. Partisanship comes in line, but we, as a 13 good government, need to make sure that more and more
 14 people are involved.
 15 I have worked with Spanish-speaking
 16 people in terms of coming to the polls. I've seen --
 17 Well, basically, it's a bookmark that occurs from one 18 party or another that is left at the polling sites
 19 where somebody comes to vote and there it is and 20 election workers are not removing those.
 21 It's a really difficult job that we're 22 asking these people to do despite party lines.
 23 I would also ask that, quite frankly,
 24 regarding the recent Supreme Court decisions, that 25 Arizona -- I understand the preclearance, but

1 already? We've earned the right to be on the watch
 2 list again immediately.
 3 So I would recommend that you put forth
 4 the idea that we get on that watch list right away;
 5 not only for Democrats, not only for minorities, but 6 for Republicans and well-to-do white folks because we 7 saw the long lines across the state.
 8 Thank you.
 9 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Thank you very
 10 much.
 11 Any questions?
 12 Thank you very much. We would like to 13 thank the public for participating and for offering 14 testimony. I think it's very important to have the 15 perspectives of all citizens and to hear the actual 16 stories and the experiences of our -- of our 17 citizenry.
 18 At this time, we're going to take a lunch
 19 break. We're going to -- I think we'll take about 25
 20 minutes, so we'll see you back here in about 25
 21 minutes.
 22 (A break was taken at 1:21 p.m.)
 23 MR. LEWIS: Good afternoon. We're ready
 24 to begin our afternoon session. We have -- On this 25 panel, we're going to begin with Governor Gregory

1 Mendoza from the Gila River Indian Community. And I
 2 want to note to the Commissioners that Governor
 3 Mendoza does have to leave after his presentation of 4 his testimony, and we'll take some questions
 5 following his testimony from the Commission.
 6 And then we'll proceed with the panel,
 7 and we'll hold the questions until the remainder of 8 the panel is completed.
 9 I really appreciate Governor Mendoza
 10 taking some of his valuable time to come here and 11 present some information.
 12 MR. MENDOZA: Good afternoon. I am
 13 Gregory Mendoza, the governor of the Gila River
 14 Indian Community. I want to thank the commissioners 15 for providing me with an opportunity to discuss the 16 voting barriers facing American Indians within my 17 community.
 18 The Gila River Indian Community is 19 comprised of the Akimel O'otham and the Pee-Posh
 20 Tribes, and has over 20,000 enrolled members.
 21 Approximately 12,000 of these members live on our 22 reservation, which is roughly 372,000 acres and 23 located in the Phoenix metropolitan area, just south
 24 of the cities of Phoenix, Tempe, and Chandler.
 25 Our reservation is divided into seven

1 political districts. The legislative body of the 2 community is called the Community Council and is 3 comprised of 17 representatives who are elected by 4 the members that reside within their respective 5 districts.
 6 The executive branch of our government is 7 comprised of the governor and the lieutenant governor
 8 positions, which are each elected by the majority of 9 all tribal members.
 10 The community's leadership values the 11 importance of engaging our members in both tribal and 12 state elections and strive to ensure their 13 participation in the electoral process. In the 2012
 14 election cycle, we designated an individual to lead
 15 the Get Out The Vote efforts, which included
 16 assisting community members with voter registration.
 17 We also undertook nonpartisan efforts to 18 educate voters about the ballot initiatives and 19 candidates for various offices. Through these 20 education campaigns we successfully published a 21 detailed voter guide in our community's newspaper for 22 the first time.
 23 As an example, I am proud to share that 24 we hosted a debate between two state candidates for 25 the U.S. Senate seat.

1 Despite these critical and innovative
 2 efforts, our community's voter turnout still must 3 improve. Obstacles continue to hinder further
 4 increases in voter turnout and must be tackled.
 5 One of the main obstacles that I saw
 6 during the last election was that the voters are 7 still turned away from the polls over address issues.
 8 In some instances, they are offered and allowed to 9 cast provisional ballots. However, there needs to be 10 more done to increase the ability of voters to use 11 regular ballots, and the default should not be to 12 provide voters with provisional ballots.
 13 The issue of provisional ballots is 14 fairly common here in our state. A voter may use a 15 provisional ballot if their name does not appear on 16 the precinct register or if the voter has moved and 17 failed to update their voter registration.
 18 It is my understanding that more than 19 120,000 provisional ballots were cast in Maricopa
 20 County during the 2012 election; the most provisional 21 ballots used in the County's history. The vast 22 majority of the provisional ballots were cast due to 23 people moving or requesting an early ballot, but 24 showing up in person to vote.
 25 It is common within my tribe for voters

1 to change addresses between election cycles. And it
2 is also common that our voters fail to update their 3 voter registration forms. And many of our tribal 4 citizens do not have street addresses. Thus,
5 completing the necessary paperwork may be 6 challenging.

7 There must be a better way to allow our 8 tribal members to vote that doesn't rely on them
9 having these updated address on file or use
10 provisional ballots. While the use of provisional
11 ballots may appear to increase a voter -- voter's
12 opportunity to vote, overutilization of provisional 13 ballots can be a hindrance to the actual counting of 14 the voter's ballot. And a voter who votes a 15 provisional ballot leaves the ballot box never 16 knowing if their actual vote was actually counted or 17 will be counted.

18 Additionally, during the last election,
19 both the poll workers and voters within my tribe
20 seemed uninformed about the ability of the 21 provisional ballots and when a provisional ballot is 22 appropriate to be used. Several voters contacted the 23 tribal government indicating that they were not 24 allowed to vote in the precincts in which they lived.

25 Others indicated that they were not

1 tribe was provided more information about the use of 2 regular ballots and provisional ballots, we could 3 include that information in our voter guide and 4 publish it in our tribal newspaper.

5 Lastly, tribes and the Secretary of 6 State's office should meet after each election to 7 assess the rate of voter turnout on each reservation
8 and debrief in order to apply lessons learned to the 9 next election process. Tribal governments are 10 committed to improving voter turnout within our 11 communities, but we need better educational tools to 12 help us to do so effectively.

13 Lastly, I would like to conclude my 14 testimony by expressing my appreciation that tribal 15 identification cards are an acceptable form of 16 identification for voting in this state. Allowing 17 the use of this form of identification respects our 18 tribal sovereignty as governments and allows our 19 tribal members to use the form of identification that 20 they are most comfortable with. Any attempts to 21 limit the use of tribal identification for voting
22 purposes should be discouraged.

23 Thank you for your time. And I want to 24 thank the Commission for inviting me to testify today
25 on this very important issue.

1 offered a provisional ballot by the poll workers.
2 And others felt that their vote may not have been 3 counted because they voted a provisional ballot
4 versus a regular ballot. The problem is one of 5 education for both the poll workers and the voters.

6 In one of our busiest precincts, a poll
7 worker was trained the night before the election.
8 Voting precincts lack adequate information about the 9 availability of provisional ballots. Given how 10 provisional ballots are used within Arizona, more
11 information and training about when such ballots may 12 be used should be posted and available as well as 13 when regular ballots should be used.

14 Again, all efforts should be prioritized
15 toward a voter casting a regular ballot and then a 16 provisional ballot, but that doesn't seem to be the 17 case in practice.

18 It is also important to improve
19 communication between our tribal government and the 20 Secretary of State's office.

21 For example, the Secretary of State's 22 office could work with us before election to seek 23 volunteers for polling precincts and to assure that 24 they are properly trained well in advance.

25 Furthermore, if the community or our

1 Thank you.

2 MR. LEWIS: Thank you, Governor. One of
3 the issues you have raised, the provisional ballots.
4 The Secretary of State, as you had mentioned to 5 really increase opportunities to work together, and 6 in addition, the delivering. The community is 7 involved in more than one county which also 8 complicates matters.

9 But in terms of your relationship with 10 the counties, they also can be a resource to the 11 issues you raised. And have there been response to 12 the Gila River community by the counties in 13 addressing some of these issues, and particularly the 14 address issue and the provisional ballots issue?

15 MR. MENDOZA: Thank you, Commissioner.

16 And, yes, we do. We do have ongoing
17 communications with not just the two counties that 18 are represented within my community, that includes 19 Maricopa County and Pinal County. But, yes, we are 20 in communications. But I believe those efforts do 21 need to include, as mentioned, with regard to 22 education and providing some of those additional 23 tools that are needed for us.

24 MS. PROVIN: Governor Mendoza, I know
25 you need to leave so we're going to ask you questions

1 before the others.
 2 I think it was really helpful that you
 3 mentioned that discouraging impact of overuse of 4 provisional ballots because in one sense, they're an 5 innovation that has actually helped voters be able to 6 vote when they otherwise might not be. But there's a
 7 serious downside, as you point out.

8 I wondered if you could tell us if you
 9 think Arizona could clarify more clearly for members
 10 of your community that being on the permanent early 11 voting list means that you must use that ballot and 12 not show up at the polls? And also, I wonder if you 13 could tell us if you think that the tribal ID could 14 somehow be used in place of address information?

15 I don't know what information is on file
 16 through the tribal ID, but is there potential for 17 that as a way of dealing with the address issue that 18 you mentioned?

19 MR. MENDOZA: Thank you, Commissioner,
 20 for that question.

21 Yes, I think at this point it's worth
 22 exploring for us as tribal governments, because, you
 23 know, we have the same issues with regard to border
 24 crossing issues. You know, the form of tribal 25 identification is used in some cases such as that.

1 And I think if we can come to some type of 2 arrangement, I think it could help our efforts. I
 3 believe it's worth exploring.

4 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Governor Mendoza,
 5 thank you for your testimony. I think it's very 6 important that you highlighted that there are address
 7 issues at Gila River, which is a -- a community close
 8 to the Phoenix Metro area.

9 Earlier, we heard testimony from the 10 Navajo Nation and Apaches that they also have address
 11 issues. And I think, for the record, I think it's 12 very helpful to explain how that hinders their right
 13 to vote. And I just want to give you one snippet, 14 because we were at the hotline for Native Vote on 15 election day.

16 And at Gila River, a lot of people have 17 some physical address, but it's not a given physical 18 address or street address, and so people use their 19 P.O. boxes. And under state law, the -- the counties 20 are supposed to provide both your physical and your 21 street address on the voter roster. And we received 22 a lot of calls from Gila River from people who were 23 being turned away because they didn't have both 24 addresses. So their ID might have been physical 25 address, which is put down, but the voter roster had

1 their P.O. box or vice versa. And so they were told
 2 that their IDs didn't match.

3 So if you could just expound on those 4 issues and disenfranchisement and discouragement of 5 voters at Gila River, I think that would be helpful.

6 MR. MENDOZA: Thank you, Commissioner,
 7 for that question as well.

8 And, you know, to this Commission, you
 9 know, I would invite you to come to Indian country so 10 that you could have a better understanding. A lot of 11 us do live in rural situations. As Commissioner
 12 Ferguson-Bohnee pointed out, a lot of our tribal 13 members face that. We don't have those physical 14 addresses that are required.

15 I think definitely we can work with the 16 State to, again, explore ways we can change that.
 17 And for a lot of our tribal members, as you know, we 18 have our own form of elections as well. We have our 19 own tribal elections. And a lot of our tribal 20 members are comfortable with their tribal election
 21 process.

22 And for them to go into a precinct,
 23 whether it be a state election, federal election, to 24 follow another process, becomes very confusing for a
 25 lot of our members, particularly a lot of the elders.

1 Some, as you know, don't speak English. We have 2 issues with our elders that don't speak English, and,
 3 again, that is a problem.

4 And for a lot of our tribal members, they 5 use their tribal identification as a form of 6 identification for everything that they do, not just 7 within our community, but even they use it outside
 8 the community. If there would be a way for us to 9 work to change so that it could be recognized, their 10 identification and their address. And I think that 11 it would be something that would be positive, not 12 just for my community, but for all tribes.

13 Thank you.

14 MR. LEWIS: Any other questions?

15 Thank you, Governor.

16 MR. MENDOZA: Thank you again. And I
 17 apologize for leaving. Thank you.

18 MR. LEWIS: Next on the list is Casey
 19 Dreher.

20 MR. DREHER: Commissioner Ferguson-Bohnee
 21 and guest commissioners, I appreciate the opportunity 22 to present testimony on voting rights, and more 23 specifically in this section, issues affecting 24 students' ability to register to vote here in 25 Arizona.

1 My name is Casey Dreher and I am
 2 currently the organizing director of the Arizona
 3 Students' Association, ASA. ASA is a student-led,
 4 student-directed, nonpartisan, nonprofit organization
 5 whose mission is to give students a voice in the 6 State by increasing their electoral participation.
 7 Since 2008, I've personally been involved
 8 with registering over 55,000 students in both Oregon
 9 and here in Arizona. I'm also a registered voter
 10 here in the 24th legislative district in Arizona,
 11 encompassing Central Phoenix. Every semester, ASA
 12 organizes students on campus to conduct statewide 13 voter registration, nonpartisan voter education, and 14 Get Out The Vote activities.
 15 Like -- Many of the issues you've heard
 16 today affects students, as well, such as the P.O.
 17 boxes, especially up at Northern Arizona University,
 18 as well as difficulties providing the documentation
 19 needed at the polls. But, today, I'm going to focus 20 my remarks specifically on the issues that increased 21 voter registration ID requirements have had on the 22 participation levels of university and community
 23 college students here in Arizona.
 24 I want to be clear and not sugarcoat the 25 program. By adding the additional requirements for

1 proof of citizenship and the dual track system that
 2 you'll hear about later, thousands of students --
 3 thousands of students that want to vote here in 4 Arizona will be disenfranchised from being able to 5 vote in State elections.
 6 Although many efforts have been made to 7 work with our university administrators to increase
 8 student and parent awareness of these ID
 9 requirements, such as sending letters home requesting 10 birth certificates, little progress has been achieved
 11 on that front.
 12 Students come to Arizona to study, but 13 they do so believing that they'll be able to 14 participate in elections like students in any and 15 every other state. However, due to the burdensome
 16 requirements of having to have your birth certificate
 17 on hand or an Arizona driver's license, these 18 students will not be allowed to vote for the very 19 legislators that will be deciding how much to fund
 20 their universities, how much state-based financial 21 aid will be available, or the many other policies
 22 that affect students that require state legislative 23 approval.
 24 Additionally, they would be prevented
 25 from voting for statewide offices, such as Arizona's

1 governor who appoints all the members of the 2 university's governing board, the Arizona Board of 3 Regents.
 4 Nearly 90 percent of the students in
 5 Arizona choose to register here in Arizona. So all 6 the out-of-state students included, 90 percent of 7 them would like to vote here in Arizona, so that they 8 can have a say in the policies that affect their 9 day-to-day lives. But of that 90 percent, nearly 60
 10 percent of them use the last four numbers of their 11 Social Security number to prove citizenship.
 12 Students today, however, don't carry 13 their birth certificates with them to class, nor 14 should they be expected to. Furthermore, the State
 15 believes every student should just get an Arizona ID.
 16 However, out-of-state students on certain 17 scholarships, such as the Western Undergraduate 18 Exchange Program or Alaskan students receiving an oil
 19 stipend, will lose their financial aid if they change
 20 their residency to Arizona.
 21 These burdensome requirements are 22 preventing 60 percent of students that we've 23 registered to vote who just want to participate in 24 elections in the state in which they live and have 25 direct consequences on their lives from participating

1 in the election.
 2 Prior to the Prop 200 decision, we were
 3 traditionally used to Arizona voter registration form
 4 going back to around 2010, but we would literally
 5 register several thousand students just here at the 6 ASU Tempe campus. In 2010, out of about 4,000 voter 7 registration forms, when we got 1,000 of those 8 actually turned in, and the other 3,000 were waiting 9 on follow-up with the birth certificate, and those 10 students never became registered voters.
 11 In 2012, after the Prop 200 decision, we 12 used a federal voter registration form, and we 13 tripled our record for voter registration in this 14 state. And that shows that students want to vote,
 15 but these requirements are preventing them from doing
 16 so.
 17 With no evidence of large-scale or even 18 small-scale voter fraud among students, these added
 19 requirements do nothing but drive down student
 20 participation in elections.
 21 Arizona's voter registration requirements
 22 are teaching us a civics lesson to university and 23 community college students. Your energy, your skills
 24 that you're learning and the talent you have really 25 are not welcome in Arizona. It's no wonder that half

1 of all college graduates here leave the state.
 2 The solution, though, is simple. We
 3 shouldn't require additional and unnecessary
 4 documentation or proof of citizenship beyond the 5 federal requirements. Arizona should match voters
 6 through the Social Security Administration primarily 7 rather than the Arizona motor vehicle database for 8 all of these out-of-state students.

9 County election commissioners have 10 already demonstrated the viability of this system to 11 verify citizenship. Make no mistake, to not use the 12 Social Security Administration to verify citizenship
 13 is not due to preventing voter fraud; it is not used
 14 to prevent voting by students, period.

15 Thank you. And I'd be happy to answer
 16 questions after the rest of the panel.

17 MR. LEWIS: Questions?

18 MS. PROVINE: Are we going to wait?

19 MR. LEWIS: Excuse me. Yes. I forgot my 20 own rules.

21 Peri Jude Radecic.

22 MS. RADECIC: Thank you, Commissioners,
 23 for your time today and for the opportunity for 24 persons with disabilities to highlight those 25 barriers.

1 The Arizona Center for Disability Law,
 2 which I'm the executive director, is an independent
 3 nonprofit organization. We're designated by the 4 governor of Arizona to administer a federally 5 mandated protection and advocacy system, and there is 6 one of us in every state and territory.

7 So on behalf of our board, our staff, and 8 our mental health council, we appreciate the 9 opportunity to present comments today regarding 10 voting for persons with disabilities, as well as 11 voting access issues for Hopi and Navajo voters with 12 disabilities.

13 Voting is certainly one of the 14 fundamental legal service programs at the Arizona
 15 Center for Disability Law, and I have served as the 16 voting rights staff attorney for nine years. Voters 17 with disabilities, as we know, represent every 18 gender, every race, and every national origin.

19 Voters with disabilities in Arizona have 20 reported to us their frustration with the voting
 21 process. These problems include access to the 22 polling site itself, language barriers for persons 23 with intellectual disabilities, difficulty waiting in 24 long lines, and accessible voting systems that fail
 25 to operate.

1 We provide legal representation to 2 clients regarding these issues. And as recently as 3 the 2012 federal election, we provided legal 4 representation regarding two issues: The failure of 5 an accessible voting system and an inaccessible
 6 voting site.

7 So to address the inaccessible polling
 8 places, we conduct surveys using the Department of 9 Justice polling site survey in every county in 10 Arizona. In the early stages of our work under the 11 Help America Vote Act, only 20 percent of the polling
 12 places we surveyed were accessible.

13 Thanks to the work we have done with 14 county election directors and monies that have flowed
 15 from the Help America Vote Act, I can now say 80
 16 percent of those polling sites around Arizona are now
 17 accessible. But more work remains to be done.
 18 Accessible voting systems fail to work on election
 19 day.

20 Under the Help America Vote Act, every 21 polling site is supposed to have a machine that is 22 accessible to people with disabilities, particularly 23 persons who are blind. Yet, we know those systems
 24 fail. I can assure you that every elections director 25 makes sure those systems leave the -- leave the

1 warehouse the day before the election date in working
 2 order, but yet, the morning of election day, those 3 machines are set up and something happens and they 4 fail. And they have been failing.

5 And so the Help America Vote Act is a law
 6 that for the first time guarantees a private and 7 independent vote for people with disabilities. That 8 didn't happen before 2002. But yet, these machines
 9 fail and people with disabilities no longer have a 10 private, independent vote guaranteed by the law.

11 The Native American Disability Law
 12 Center, one of our sister agencies that serve people
 13 on the Hopi and Navajo Nation, worked with the Navajo
 14 Nation Advisory Council on Disabilities and the Hopi
 15 Disability Advocacy Group, and in 2013, issued a 16 voter survey and a report and found voter 17 accessibility issues for people on the Hopi and 18 Navajo Nations.

19 Those surveys found that there were 20 accessibility problems, like a dirt parking lot or 21 loose gravel, and entrances that were not accessible
 22 to people in wheelchairs. And, again, I know
 23 elections directors that work with the tribes to make 24 sure money flows to the tribes first. However, that 25 money has been cut off by Congress.

1 I think it's important that we continue
 2 to work with Congress to ensure that the Help America
 3 Vote Act money flows into our State of Arizona, flows
 4 into the -- our nations here so that we can continue
 5 to address accessibility problems that are a barrier
 6 to people with disabilities.

7 If people with disabilities can't get to 8 the polls to vote, that vote doesn't count.

9 Thank you.

10 MR. LEWIS: Thank you.

11 Patty Hansen.

12 MS. HANSEN: Thank you for allowing me to 13 come today and testify on the Arizona dual voter 14 registration system. Some people refer to it as the 15 bifurcated system.

16 Arizona has recently developed and 17 implemented this dual voter registration system, and 18 I believe it is one of the most complex, confusing, 19 and burdensome voter registration systems in the 20 country. It's confusing to the county recorders who 21 handle and process the voter registrations. It's 22 confusing to organizations conducting voter
 23 registration guides, and it's confusing to our voters
 24 who monitor it.

25 The dual system came about because the

1 registered voters now in Arizona that the -- Maricopa
 2 County has put together.

3 I shut down every time I look at it
 4 because it looks like a complex computer design. But 5 this is how we're processing and determining voter
 6 registrations now in Arizona.

7 I should mention this is changing. We're 8 in the process still of working with the Secretary of 9 State's office and the Attorney General and the 10 county recorders on developing our final procedures.

11 We only have voters now that are 12 registered to vote and eligible to vote in federal 13 elections. They're now in two different statuses.
 14 We have federal voters that have provided proof of 15 identity, which means the last four digits of their 16 Social Security were provided and it matched with the 17 Social Security Administration's database.

18 They're eligible to vote their federal 19 ballot by mail. So they can be mailed an early 20 ballot in the -- Then we have federal letters in the 21 status that have not proved their identity because 22 there wasn't a match on Social Security. Are they 23 going to provide anything? Those voters have to show
 24 up and vote in person for the first time.

25 So now we have not only two separate

1 Arizona Attorney General's office issued an opinion
 2 in regards to the ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court's
 3 decision on the Inter Tribal Council of Arizona v.
 4 The State of Arizona, also referred to as the 5 Gonzales case.

6 The ruling said that Arizona -- the 7 Supreme Court's ruling said that Arizona could not 8 reject voter registrations that are on the federal 9 voter registration form by the NVRA, National Voter 10 Registration Act.

11 And so the Attorney General's opinion has 12 come out and has told us that these new registrants
 13 -- that's the thing to keep in mind -- it's new 14 registrants that are being affected -- that use the 15 federal form and fail to provide the state-required
 16 proof of U.S. citizenship are only eligible to vote
 17 in federal elections. They are not eligible to vote
 18 in our state and local elections.

19 This means that county recorders are now
 20 maintaining two rolls of registered voters in our 21 county. This may sound like an easy thing to 22 implement. It's just two rolls of registered voters.
 23 But it's turning out to be very complex and costly.

24 I have given you a -- in your handouts I
 25 think you may have a flowchart of processing

1 rolls, we have some people on one of the rolls that 2 has -- is limited on how they can vote. Implementing 3 this dual voter registration system has proven to be 4 very costly for the State of Arizona.

5 The initial changes that are being made
 6 to our state voter registration computer system that 7 does all of this matching is costing well over 8 $100,000. Our Secretary of State's office is using 9 HAVA phones to implement the new changes to our 10 system. And I don't know if you're familiar, Peri
 11 Jude mentioned the HAVA phones.

12 The intent of the HAVA phones were to 13 improve our election processes in the State, making 14 it more accessible for voters to be able to vote, but 15 instead, we're now spending this money to implement
 16 this dual voter registration system.

17 No matter what your personal position is 18 on requiring proof of citizenship to register to 19 vote, I think you can agree that some of the 20 registration procedures we're now following in 21 Arizona make no sense.

22 For example, our state procedures now
 23 require a county recorder to reject any voter
 24 registration application for a new registered voter 25 that uses a state form if there is no proof of 1 citizenship on it.

 2 Now, this is new to the county. If 3 you're registered in Maricopa County and you move to 4 Flagstaff, it's a new county. You have to prove your 5 U.S. citizenship again when you move to Flagstaff,
 6 Coconino County.

7 We get in our state voter registration
 8 system the digital images of the Maricopa County
 9 voter registration forms that have proof of 10 citizenship on it, but we can't accept it in Coconino
 11 County. This just didn't make any sense to me on why
 12 you have to prove your citizenship. Nobody loses
 13 their U.S. citizenship because they move from one 14 county to another.

15 Supporters of this dual voter
 16 registration system have told me that it affects so 17 few people that it isn't a big deal. And I will 18 agree, it doesn't affect a lot of people. In 19 Coconino County, less than one percent of our 20 registered voters are federal voters only.

21 But I disagree that it's not a big deal,
 22 because these are new registered voters. And people
 23 that are newly registered are excited to participate 24 in the system, and they are being frustrated and 25 discouraged from participating because when they go

1 make it possible for students to show evidence of 2 their Arizona residency?

3 They obviously don't have a citizenship
 4 issue, because that's clear, but it's a residency
 5 issue for them. Could that -- could the universities
 6 be part of the solution in your view?

7 MR. DREHER: I think absolutely they
 8 could be. If the State would accept the student IDs,
 9 and they certainly are accepted in other states.

10 MS. PROVINE: Could the student ID itself
 11 be changed in a way that would make it acceptable?
 12 That's actually the gist of my question.

13 MR. DREHER: I don't think under current 14 law it could be. It has to be in the motor vehicle
 15 database driver's license.

16 MS. PROVINE: Okay. And then,
 17 Ms. Hansen, it's really good to have someone in the 18 weeds of these issues.

19 One of my questions for you is, why is it 20 that all of the county recorders have accepted the 21 Attorney General's opinion on the necessity for a 22 dual system? It simply was an interpretation that he 23 offered. It's not a piece of legislation. So why -- 24 why, given all of the problems it's caused, has this 25 been uniformly accepted?

1 vote, they're going to find out they cannot vote for 2 governor, they can't vote for county commissioner,
 3 they can't vote, except in the upcoming election just 4 for U.S. Representatives in Congress.

5 And this is based on what paper they used
 6 to register. And it makes -- it doesn't make sense
 7 to me.

8 So, in conclusion, I would like to point
 9 out my personal belief is, when we're conducting an 10 election, we're trying to determine the will of the 11 government. We're not trying to test their 12 determination and fortitude to participate. And I
 13 think right now what we have in Arizona is not doing
 14 a good job of that and we deserve better.

15 So I want to thank you very much today
 16 for letting me come and speak a little bit on the 17 system.

18 MR. LEWIS: Thank you. And I have some 19 questions.

20 MS. PROVINE: Yes. I want to thank -- 21 this panel has been excellent in giving us a lot to 22 chew on.

23 I have several questions, but let me
 24 start with you, Casey. Is there any way that the ASU
 25 or other Arizona university IDs could be revamped to

1 MS. HANSEN: I know I have struggled with 2 that, personally. But the State procedures manual,
 3 we have to follow. It is a misdemeanor for us not to 4 follow the State procedures manual.

5 MS. PROVINE: And this opinion has been
 6 incorporated into the State procedures manual?

7 MS. HANSEN: That's correct. The 8 procedures are being developed through the Secretary
 9 of State. They end up being approved by the Attorney 10 General and the Governor.

11 MS. PROVINE: I see.

12 And then picking up on Mr. Dreher's
 13 testimony about the value of Social Security numbers
 14 for student voters. I understand that, at least in 15 Maricopa County, there are efforts afoot to try to 16 access the Social Security federal database, but so
 17 far haven't borne fruit.

18 Could you inform us as to why this seems 19 to be so difficult? Is it a question of not enough 20 technical expertise or not putting time enough into 21 it? Is it a cross-issue? Why is it that we can't 22 access that database, and, therefore, validate for 23 full voting those people who use the federal form?

24 MS. HANSEN: I believe the problem is the 25 matching criteria. If you've changed your name,

1 either through marriage or otherwise, you're not
2 coming up as a match because your name is different.
3 Your birthdate may be the same and the number may be 4 the same, but you don't come back as a match.

5 MS. PROVINE: So in Coconino County, you
6 are actually accessing the Social Security database,
7 you just have match issues; whereas, Maricopa County,
8 apparently, it hasn't gotten to that.

9 MS. HANSEN: It goes through the same
10 database. It goes through the State Voter 11 Registration System. So I am not familiar with the 12 problems they have had in Maricopa County, but I know 13 in our county, we were very frustrated that several 14 of the college students, they used it at NAU to 15 register, that were coming back without a match.

16 And when we would contact them, we would 17 ask them, Is this correct? And they would say, Yes.
18 But for some reason, when the computer databases ran 19 against each other, it did not come back as a match.

20 MS. PROVINE: Just one final question.
21 You said that in Coconino County, you have a recent 22 move in and people have to prove citizenship all over
23 again. Would these be people without an Arizona
24 driver's license, because wouldn't that be proof --
25 adequate proof of citizenship for them?

1 MS HANSEN: Well, that's what doesn't
2 make sense to me. If you use the state form, it has 3 to be on there. If you leave it blank, we reject it.
4 We are told we have to reject it.

5 MS. PROVINE: Rather than inquire if they
6 might actually have an Arizona driver's license?

7 MS. HANSEN: Yes. Where if it's a
8 federal form, we can run it, we put it in the system.
9 It is run against the database, and we can fill it in 10 for those voters. And they have made a match. This 11 is just part of how they're being treated unequally
12 based on a piece of paper they're using to register
13 to vote.

14 MS. PROVINE: Thank you very much.
15 That's enlightening.

16 MS. HANSEN: Thank you.

17 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: I have a question
18 or a couple of questions for Ms. Radevic.

19 I'm really interested in the issues that 20 are faced by citizens with disabilities with respect
21 to accessibility to the polls. One of the things I
22 was wondering is what is done preelection to either
23 investigate or determine whether or not there's going 24 to be accessibility based upon any of the voters at 25 various precincts or polling places?

1 MS. RADECIC: Well, county elections
2 directors do. They identify the counties, they 3 identify the polling places, and prior to that,
4 before the county supervisors act, elections
5 directors -- and you can certainly ask Ms. Hansen how 6 she operates, but county elections directors will go
7 out and they will put together a survey instrument
8 and they will have their staff go out and survey
9 polling sites to see if they're accessible.

10 It's been my experience after we come
11 behind and survey behind them, that sometimes where 12 the failures happen is the survey instrument they use
13 may be shorter than the Department of Justice survey.
14 And somebody might decide what to pick and choose off
15 that survey instrument that might be important to 16 them. They may not be a person with a disability, or 17 as they survey a polling site, they might decide that 18 a parking lot might be three percent -- have a three 19 percent slope when the standard is a two percent
20 slope.

21 And if you have ever tried to transfer
22 out of a car into a wheelchair, that one percent
23 makes a difference whether your chair is going to 24 slide away from you or not as you transfer. So those 25 are the types of things that can make a difference

1 when we come back out and find a problem.

2 And you have to measure the right way for 3 a front door. So those are the kinds of things. And 4 they identify those polling sites and then give them
5 to the county supervisors and the supervisors approve
6 those polling sites.

7 Over the years, it has gotten better. As 8 we point those problems out, the county elections
9 directors, for the most part, are good and they will 10 look at the next election for a better site. And 11 that's why we've gone from 20 percent accessible to 12 80 percent accessible.

13 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Just a follow-up
14 question.

15 Do you find or has the -- has there been 16 a report where persons with disabilities have 17 actually been turned away from the polls or have left 18 and not exercised their right to vote because of 19 accessibility issues?

20 MS. RADECIC: Yes. We have not issued
21 that report. But in the case that I spoke about from 22 2012, the person was frustrated and left because she 23 could not get in the front door to vote.

24 Now, the civil rights laws for people
25 with disabilities are layered. So the -- there's

1 always been the rule that polling places are supposed
 2 to be accessible since 1973, but they're not. So the 3 law was for a long time that you could vote a person
 4 at curbside -- curbside voting as an accommodation.
 5 I don't know how you get those big 6 machines out there to go vote somebody, but you could 7 vote somebody curbside. But now under the Help
 8 America Vote Act, a new layer is on top of that which 9 guarantees a private, independent vote. It's a 10 little harder to take a ballot out curbside now
 11 because you've got this machine you've got to get out
 12 to the curbside.
 13 So if a polling place is not accessible,
 14 which by law, shouldn't be, but then you could vote
 15 curbside. You now have an accessible machine that 16 you're supposed to have a private, independent vote.
 17 I don't know how you get that curbside. Disability
 18 law for voting is complicated. There are a lot of 19 layers. And, frankly, that needs to be fixed as 20 well.
 21 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: Thank you so much.
 22 Let me just follow up with one last
 23 question as to Ms. Hansen.
 24 Can you describe what the process is for 25 providing accessibility in your county?

1 vote privately and independently. And so then
 2 somebody has to -- a person who is blind who intended
 3 to use a device to have the ballot read to them and 4 vote privately and independently now has to have a
 5 poll worker read them the ballot and fill the ballot
 6 out for them, and it is no longer private and 7 independent. And that is the only option available.
 8 And then they call us.
 9 MR. LEWIS: You had made mention that 10 there are limited additional resources from the 11 federal government to address some of these issues.
 12 Are there resources available also from the county to 13 address some of these issues?
 14 MS. RADECIC: Unfortunately, the counties
 15 do not have the money to address those issues. Money
 16 had been made available under the Help America Vote
 17 Act, and that was the purpose to improve the voting
 18 systems, the voting machine itself, and then to help
 19 with the accessibility.
 20 And some Secretaries of State have not 21 spent the money. Apparently, maybe Arizona is in 22 that situation, and maybe using it for different 23 purposes. And so it was for that purpose. And when 24 Congress found out that maybe some Secretaries of 25 State were not spending the money, they cut the money

1 MS. HANSEN: Well, we do use the 2 Department of Justice's survey. We're checking our 3 accessibility for our polling places. Now, we do
 4 have several polling places on the Navajo Nation, and 5 we have one at the bottom of the Grand Canyon, Supai
 6 Village, where there's no motorized vehicles and the 7 only way to get around is to hike.
 8 In fact, we had a poll worker there who 9 had broken her leg and her husband brought her to the 10 polling place in a wheelbarrow because that was the 11 only way she could get around. So it is a challenge
 12 in rural areas.
 13 Also on the Navajo Nation we have one at 14 the coal mine. It's the only building that we can 15 use within probably a 20- or 30-mile radius, and it
 16 has a gravel parking lot. And it's not real 17 accessible, but there's no other alternative.
 18 And we do use curbside polling, though 19 with our voting equipment, we can pop out the 20 touchscreen into a smaller unit and bring it out.
 21 But it is a challenge, especially in the rural areas.
 22 MR. LEWIS: It was made mention that the 23 machines fail. So what are the options when the 24 machines fail?
 25 MS. RADECIC: The person does not get to

1 off to the Secretaries of State.
 2 But yet we still have polling places
 3 around the country that have technology problems that 4 could be addressed and could be used with those 5 resources.
 6 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: I have a question
 7 about the dual registration. And I guess I have kind
 8 of two questions because one is for Casey. And I
 9 assume -- I know in the past that students use the 10 federal form for registration, and I'm just kind of 11 wondering if what y'all have been planning in the 12 wake of the opinion and how to try to address those 13 issues?
 14 And then for Ms. Hansen, it's my 15 understanding the opinion came out in October. So
 16 there hasn't been a federal election that's applied
 17 the dual registration yet, and I know that you 18 anticipated frustration problems. But I'm just 19 wondering, you know, for the next general election, 20 if this is still in place, you'll have people who are 21 going out trying to register people to vote, and what 22 sort of, I think, more people registered a dual 23 registration and participate in that, and what other 24 types of challenges do you foresee?
 25 MR. DREHER: So as to the kind of

1 contingency plan there, we've definitely looked at a
 2 lot of different options but we really only have two 3 options. Use their Arizona voter registration form
 4 or use the federal form. And like I had mentioned
 5 earlier, when we used the Arizona voter registration
 6 form, we may collect 4,000 voter registration forms,
 7 but that still isn't going to get the student to be 8 able to provide a birth certificate. And like Patty 9 said, if it's not provided, that's rejected entirely.

10 So we're going to continue to prioritize 11 using the federal form to get out-of-state students a 12 chance to at least vote in the federal election; and 13 then as well as in-state students can still use their 14 Arizona driver's license number on that form.

15 So that's still our best alternative, but 16 it's still keeping a significant number of students
 17 from voting in the state elections.

18 MS. HANSEN: What we're going to do is 19 try to educate people that are in the federal-only 20 status on how they can get to the state status, so 21 they can vote in all of the elections if they want 22 to.

23 I do -- One thing I do think is good is 24 that I don't want that to go away. And I know there 25 is a lawsuit right now where Arizona and Kansas are

1 trying to get the Federal Election Assistance
 2 Commission to have to put the proof of citizenship on 3 the registration form.

4 But I know for college students, when 5 it's a presidential year, I have spoken to many and 6 they just want to vote for president. So there are 7 some students that will be able to participate, where 8 in the past when it was just the state forms, they 9 will not be able to participate.

10 But I agree with you. The numbers are 11 only going to go up. We are -- Our office also is 12 going to be a lot more aggressive in doing voter 13 registration. In the past we've left it mostly to 14 organizations and political parties. But to try to 15 explain this to people, it's just going to be 16 confusing.

17 And when a person is registering to vote,
 18 they see a table and they're going to go there and 19 register. They're not going to know, is it the 20 federal form or is it the state form and one I'm 21 going to be eligible for. So it's really increased,
 22 I think, our responsibility to be more actively 23 involved in voter registration to provide the 24 education.

25 MR. LEWIS: No more questions, then.

1 Thank you for your time.

2 (A break was taken at 2:49 p.m.)

3 MS. PROVINI: Sam Wercinski, executive
 4 director of the Arizona Advocacy Network.

5 Raquel Teran, who is the state director
 6 of Mi Familia Vota.

7 Petra Falcon, executive director of 8 Promise Arizona.

9 And John Sherman, staff attorney for Fair
 10 Elections Legal Network.

11 Welcome everybody. We'll start with Sam.

12 MR. WERCINSKI: Thank you, Commissioner
 13 Provinie. Thank you all commissioners for accepting 14 our testimony on the state of the right to vote and 15 election day barriers to voting in Arizona.

16 Arizona Advocacy Network's mission is to 17 secure poll justice, political rights, and full civic 18 participation, especially for low efficacy voters and 19 those who are underrepresented or marginalized to 20 achieve government of, by, and for the people. We do
 21 this by advocating and defending the Citizens Clean
 22 Election Act, passed by voters to fight political 23 corruption and encourage civic participation by 24 protecting voting rights and by promoting fair and 25 impartial courts.

1 In 2005, we were one of the organizations
 2 who organized plaintiffs that successfully challenged
 3 the State's voter registration requirements under 4 Prop 200 before the Supreme Court of the United 5 States, often referred to as the Inter Tribal Council
 6 of Arizona v. Bennett.

7 Since receiving the federal court order
 8 on August 9th, 2012, nearly 40,000 eligible citizens
 9 have been able to register to vote in Arizona using 10 the federal form who otherwise may not have been able 11 to register using the State form with its additional 12 unnecessary documentation requirements.

13 Our testimony today addresses the state
 14 of voting rights in Arizona as witnessed by Arizona
 15 Advocacy Network at the polls on election day.
 16 Despite the favorable ruling of ITCA v. Bennett,
 17 Arizona voters continue to face barriers to voting
 18 when using the federal voter registration form.

19 On election day 2012, some counties
 20 placed citizens who use the federal form on a 21 suspense list if these citizens did not provide the 22 last four of their Social Security number, an Arizona
 23 driver's license, or nonoperating ID number. These 24 citizens did not receive sample ballots for voter
 25 registration cards.

1 They were not placed on the permanent
 2 early voter list if they requested it, and were not 3 sent mail-in ballots, and they were not found on the 4 voter registration rolls on election day. This 5 procedure had a disparate impact on citizens of 6 color, individuals who lack a driver's license or 7 state ID, and eligible high school and college
 8 students.

9 As a result, many of these voters were 10 left without the necessary information to find their 11 assigned polling place, and some of them went to vote
 12 on election day who were turned away for lacking the 13 state-required ID, a requirement that they would not 14 have had to comply with if they had been allowed to 15 vote by mail.

16 Other counties, however, placed these 17 voters on their scrolls, a clear indication of 18 unequal access to voting in Arizona.

19 As Recorder Hansen addressed earlier
 20 today, for the 2014 elections, the State Attorney's 21 General issued an opinion in late 2013, and the 22 Secretary of State, based on this opinion, has 23 implemented a two-class of voters system for both 24 registration and voter ballot access.

25 Some counties may choose to implement it,

1 western metropolitan Phoenix, a heavily Latino
 2 precinct, a first-time voter came with an Arizona
 3 driver's license that had his old address in Santa 4 Cruz County. Unfortunately, this voter was forced to 5 vote a provisional ballot.

6 Another registered voter, a Latina had 7 moved from Yavapai County to Maricopa County after 8 the voter registration deadline and was denied the 9 right to vote in her new community. She was 10 confused, heartbroken, and couldn't understand why
 11 she couldn't vote for statewide candidates or the 12 presidency.

13 Arizonans seek free, fair, and accessible
 14 elections and voter registration, but the state has 15 much work to accomplish this goal. The right to vote
 16 is one of our most fundamental rights afforded to us
 17 as citizens of the United States. This fundamental 18 right protects our individual freedoms and preserves
 19 the democratic system.

20 Arizona Advocacy Network and our partners
 21 on the One Arizona Coalition firmly believes in the 22 protection of this fundamental right and appreciates
 23 the Commission's work to achieve this.

24 MS. PROVINCE: Thank you very much, Sam.
 25 Raquel.

1 others may try to object and not implement it. We're
 2 waiting to see what happens. This two-class system
 3 will increase confusion at the polls, disenfranchise
 4 voters, create longer lines, and discourage citizens
 5 from voting.

6 As we have seen in Arizona history, for 7 every expansion of access to vote, there have been 8 efforts to delay or reverse that enfranchisement.
 9 Arizona voters already face great challenges on 10 election day.

11 On November 6th, 2012, election day,
 12 volunteers and I personally witnessed poll workers
 13 accepting one type of identification in electronic 14 form, utility statements, at some polls for some 15 voters but not others.

16 At the Arizona State University Hudson
 17 Precinct in Maricopa County, paper utility bills were 18 accepted while electronic ones, incorrectly, were 19 rejected.

20 A U.S. passport was not enough to prove 21 one college voter's identity, nor were out-of-state
 22 driver's licenses or university photo ID cards,
 23 sufficient proof of ID for hundreds of students
 24 trying to vote in person.

25 At the Desert Sky polling place in

1 MS. TERAN: Good afternoon,
 2 Commissioners. My name is Raquel Teran, and I'm the 3 state director for Mi Familia Vota in Arizona. I
 4 have been engaged in the organization since 2006 and 5 have collaborated with many other organizations in 6 the civic engagement process.

7 For the last nine years, Mi Familia has 8 had constant communication with the recorder's
 9 offices in Maricopa County, Pima County, Pinal
 10 County, and Yuma County to ensure that the Latino 11 community is registered to vote, and voters could 12 sign up on the permanent early voting list and are 13 processed correctly.

14 Since 2010, our organization alone has 15 registered more than 15,500 voters and has signed up
 16 more than 48,000 Latino voters to the permanent early 17 voting list. In partnership with organizations from 18 the One Arizona table, the Latino Civic Engagement
 19 Coalition, we have seen the number of Latinos
 20 registered on the pedal grow from 95,000 to 220,000
 21 in 2012. 95,000 in 2010, to more than 220,000 in 22 2012.

23 Over the years, we have knocked on 24 hundreds of thousands of doors and our organization
 25 has built a trust among the Latino community. And

1 our organization and all of our partners many times
 2 are the premiere source of education on the voting
 3 process.
 4 Every year we encounter more and more
 5 voters who want to participate in the decisionmaking
 6 process. These same voters want the assurance that 7 their vote will be counted. Unfortunately, the high
 8 number of provisional ballots casted in 2012 prompted 9 the state legislature to pass House Bill 2305 which 10 would make it more difficult to start citizen
 11 initiatives keeping third parties off the ballot,
 12 making it a felony to a volunteer group to help
 13 elderly, homebound voters get their early voting
 14 ballots to the polls, and establishes a process to 15 remove voters from the permanent early voting list if 16 they don't vote an early ballot in two consecutive 17 federal elections.
 18 This will impact thousands of eligible
 19 Latino and Native American voters. It will put a 20 damper on the growing Latino electorate that has 21 signed up on the pedal at a record pace.
 22 We have a new dynamic in the early voting
 23 -- in the early voting process. Voters are learning 24 how to participate, and that's a great thing. The 25 County Recorder should educate the -- to educate the

1 process -- they should -- they should facilitate the 2 voting process.
 3 To take steps that are punitive, or 4 restrictive is not the solution to the high number of 5 provisional ballots. Volunteer, paid staff,
 6 community all benefit from a higher participation.
 7 So the State should have considered investing more 8 money in the County Recorder's office in order to 9 have more staff and resources allocated to educate
 10 voters, including -- and also including stronger
 11 partnership with organizations like Mi Familia Vota
 12 and the One Arizona Partners.
 13 Having County Recorders communicate
 14 electronically via e-mail or mail regarding early 15 ballots, early voting sites, and election day
 16 operations that includes 10-day notification of 17 election day, begin before election day notification.
 18 Election day notification also require the County
 19 Recorder to notify the voter when to return their 20 ballot -- return their ballot notice, provide 21 information on early voting location and website on 22 election day and polling locations and hours, promote 23 more early voting locations and weekend voting and 24 voter assistance sites to make sure the voter is 25 instructed in how to fill out the ballot.

1 The last official mailing or
 2 communication from the Recorder's office in early --
 3 in the early ballot -- I'm sorry --
 4 For the last -- the last official mailing
 5 or communication from the Recorder's office is when 6 they mail out their early ballots. It has been 26
 7 days before election day, prompting organizations
 8 like ours to be the main source of information for 9 the voter.
 10 So we would like to see the counties have 11 more resources to educate our community rather than 12 making it -- making it punitive, purging, or 13 restrictive solutions.
 14 Thank you.
 15 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.
 16 MS. FALCON: Good afternoon, and thank
 17 you. And, again, thank you distinguished commission
 18 panel, Commissioners, this afternoon. Okay.
 19 My name is Petra Falcon. I'm the 20 executive director of Promise Arizona, founded in 21 April of 2010. I was born here in Arizona and have 22 worked most of my adult life organizing across the 23 state throughout the Southwest, but mostly in 24 southern Arizona from 1997 to 2009.
 25 Promise Arizona is a statewide

1 organization that focuses on leadership development
 2 and civic engagements, specifically in immigrant and 3 Latino communities. And we are in Maricopa, Pima,
 4 and Yuma County. And since 2010, we have registered
 5 over 200,827 Latino voters.
 6 I'm here to talk to you today about our 7 experiences, especially working in these communities,
 8 about the barriers of civic engagements and 9 especially the last two election cycles. Promise
 10 Arizona organized and volunteer leaders registered
 11 close to 1,000 new Latino voters in Yuma County in 12 the last two election cycles of 2010 and 2012, and 13 with 173 volunteers.
 14 And this past fall, in 30 days, in Yuma
 15 County, our volunteers collected 1,406 petition
 16 signatures to put HB2305 on the ballot this fall.
 17 Yuma County is unique in many, many ways.
 18 Population is small, just under 200,000. It's rural,
 19 on-the-border, farm-working community, Native
 20 American community. And it is currently under court
 21 order by the Department of Justice because of low
 22 Latino voter turnout to have the County Recorder mail
 23 to each home a request to vote by mail.
 24 And yet, the county still lags behind on 25 the number of people voting early. And this causes a

1 lot of voter confusion, especially because there's so
2 much work going on right now in the community to get 3 voters engaged.

4 Yuma County is small, as I mentioned,
5 with only about 75,000 registered voters. About
6 32,000 of those are Latino. And in 2012, 42,000
7 voters came to the polls. And you would think voting
8 would be easy in smaller communities. Latino voters
9 in Yuma face the same barriers that they were facing
10 in Maricopa County and across the state.

11 There were long lines. Ten years ago,
12 lines were long, and I was there. And with the 13 increased civic engagement, voter registration, and 14 voter engagement, you would think that the county
15 would be even better prepared on election day this 16 past year.

17 Voters waited in line four to five hours.
18 We were thrilled that voters stayed in line. In 19 fact, we were handing out water and snacks so that 20 people would be comfortable. This last year, in 21 November, it was hot on election day. And especially 22 in south counties, there is only one polling place.
23 And in San Luis and Pinal County, those two polls
24 were running out of provisional ballots. The 25 machines were slow. They handed them -- the

1 provisional ballots were very slow.

2 Another key issue in South County Yuma,
3 the elderly not trusting the mail, prefer to go to 4 the polling places. And in Yuma County, the lines --
5 they like to get there. They like to get in their 6 polling booth, and they like to read the 7 propositions. And guess what? That takes time. So 8 there has to be initiatives for these situations. We 9 have heard about these issues over and over.

10 What was not mentioned in Maricopa County
11 is that even the education ballot information sent in 12 Spanish, the date was wrong for the election date.

13 And in Promise Arizona's experience, not 14 only in Yuma County and across the board, it is clear
15 that we need to work to make sure that voting
16 practices are in line of making sure that each voice
17 is counted. Our government has to do a better job to 18 be prepared for high turnout.

19 With no evidence of voter fraud, the 20 State keeps instituting laws with more hoops for 21 voters to jump through. Is there a better way to 22 communicate with voters? I think we could talk about 23 that all day. For young people, they use texts. For 24 the elderly, they need personal contact.

25 And the Constitution and its amendments

1 are clear in demanding that the right to vote is 2 sacred. Watching our local politicians treat voting
3 rights as a game where they keep changing the rules
4 to their own party politics is unacceptable.

5 Our organization and other organizations
6 met with state officials and county officials and 7 offered our participation in this and offered to move
8 forward to make sure that every vote is counted and 9 that voter education is taking place, and we were 10 turned down.

11 Thank you again to the Commission for 12 listening today.

13 MS. PROVINE: Thank you very much, Petra.
14 John.

15 MR. SHERMAN: Good afternoon. I want to 16 thank the Lawyers Committee and the commissioners for 17 holding this here today, giving me a chance to talk.
18 My name is John Sherman. I'm a staff attorney with 19 the Fair Elections Legal Network. We are a national, 20 nonpartisan voting rights and election reform
21 organization dedicated to removing barriers to 22 registration and voting for traditionally 23 underrepresented constituencies, and improving 24 overall election administration.

25 In some areas of election

1 administrations, Arizona has led the nation, for 2 instance, by adopting online voter registration as 3 early as 2002. So it is surprising that the State
4 has lagged so far behind on provisional ballot
5 counting. By Arizona law, a provisional ballot that 6 is cast in the wrong precinct is rejected in full,
7 top to bottom.

8 That means that a voter who shows up at 9 or is directed by a poll worker to the wrong precinct
10 will see all of their votes discarded, even votes for 11 President, Congress, and statewide votes for Governor
12 and Secretary of State.

13 Arizona is typically first in the nation
14 or among the top three states in this specific type
15 of disenfranchisement. In the 2012 election, 10,979
16 provisional ballots were rejected in full because 17 they were cast in the wrong precinct. That was the 18 highest state total of wrong-precinct rejections in 19 the country; more than double the next highest in 20 Illinois at 5,326.

21 It also constituted 37.4 percent of 22 wrong-precinct rejections nationwide. In the 2008
23 election, a staggering 14,885 provisional ballots
24 were rejected in full because they were cast in the 25 wrong precinct. That figure represented 33.9 percent

1 of the nationwide total.
 2 That is nearly 15,000 ballots that are
 3 never opened, and in a close election, that can be 4 outcome determinative. That means in any 5 presidential election, if your vote for President was 6 rejected because you showed up at or were directed to 7 the wrong precinct, on average you had slightly
 8 better than one-in-three odds of being an Arizona
 9 voter.
 10 Part of the explanation for the size of 11 this problem in Arizona may be the frequency of 12 polling location changes. In 2010, the ACLU of 13 Arizona reported that at least 43 percent of polling
 14 locations in Maricopa County changed between 2006 and 15 2008.
 16 The high number of rejections in 2012
 17 cannot be explained, but the use of multi-precinct
 18 polling locations, specifically in Maricopa and Pima
 19 County which both had one-to-one ratios of precincts
 20 to polling places.
 21 Fifteen states, plus the District of 22 Columbia have taken a different approach. This is 23 what I want to emphasize. Alaska, California,
 24 Georgia, Illinois, Kansas, Louisiana, Maryland,
 25 Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon,

1 Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah, and Washington,
 2 which together comprise a politically diverse and 3 regionally diverse election collection of states,
 4 have all adopted partial counting laws.
 5 These laws require the counting of all
 6 votes on an out-of-precinct provisional ballot that 7 the voter would have been eligible to cast in his or 8 her correct precinct. In short, the State
 9 prioritizes voter eligibility over location and 10 salvages validly cast votes. It is a simple and fair
 11 rule.
 12 Some of these states require the 13 provisional ballot to be cast in the correct county,
 14 but even that is far superior to rejecting the ballot
 15 in full.
 16 Two additional states, New York and 17 Missouri, will partially count a provisional ballot
 18 in the same way as long as it is passed in the right
 19 polling place. This is the so-called "right church, 20 wrong pew" provisional ballot.
 21 An additional 10 states have election day
 22 registration, and one state, North Dakota, has no
 23 registration system at all. Technically speaking, a 24 person could still wind up in the wrong place in EDR
 25 states, but, practically speaking, very few voters

1 do. EDR has done wonders to minimize the rate at 2 which voters wind up casting out-of-precinct
 3 provisional ballots.
 4 Thus, 28 states in total in this country
 5 have figured out a way to either minimize or 6 eliminate this problem. A minority of 22 holdouts,
 7 including Arizona, insists on penalizing a voter if 8 he or she votes in the wrong precinct, regardless of 9 whether it was an innocent mistake or poll worker
 10 error. But why?
 11 The only reason can be to deter voters 12 from just showing up anywhere to vote, but 13 provisional ballots are almost always cast in the 14 wrong precinct by accident, not wilfully. It's time
 15 for a change on this issue.
 16 With 29 million voting-age Americans
 17 moving every year and the frequent changes to 18 precinct and polling locations, voter and poll worker
 19 mistakes are inevitable. Punishing voters for these 20 wholly understandable errors undermines the most 21 basic right in our democracy. Numerous states
 22 preserve votes on out-of-precinct provisional ballots
 23 and should be the norm in all 50 states.
 24 MS. PROVINE: Thank you, panel, for a
 25 very informative and detailed set of issues for us to

1 consider and for Congress ultimately to consider.
 2 My fellow commissioners, would you like
 3 to ask questions?
 4 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: I'd like to address
 5 this to any of the panel members. I'm really
 6 concerned about the provisional ballots not being 7 counted. And I guess I'm wondering what kind of 8 check-and-balance system exists to oversee or monitor
 9 who makes the decision on which ballot to count and 10 which ballot not to count?
 11 MR. WERCINSKI: The Secretary of State's 12 procedure manual would cover that. And then each of 13 the County Recorders would be in charge of overseeing 14 whether or not the provisional ballots are accepted.
 15 One example in which we're actually
 16 seeing an increase in the number of ballots rejected
 17 has to do with signature verification once the 18 ballots are brought back to the election offices. If 19 we have elderly voters casting these ballots, of 20 course their handwriting is going to change over 21 time. If you have an individual who loses the use of 22 their writing hand, their signature will have changed
 23 significantly than the time, perhaps, when they were 24 issued their voter -- or their driver's license here
 25 in Arizona.

1 So it's up to the particular county
2 election official to determine what's accepted or 3 not, and then to follow through by contacting voters
4 for the procedures to come down in person and to 5 provide additional documentation or present
6 themselves in person and have that ballot counted or 7 not.

8 MS. FALCON: These are concerning that we 9 learned after the fact and people have been waiting
10 in a line to vote and their name wasn't on the list
11 and they were given a provisional ballot. If that 12 precinct was not their correct precinct, we 13 understood that that provisional was not going to be 14 counted. They had to vote at the correct precinct
15 for the provisional to be counted.

16 And that happened in many, many, many 17 instances, especially because this was a year where 18 districts changed, polling places changed,
19 legislative districts changed, and there was just a 20 lot of confusion on election day and a lot of 21 misinformation.

22 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: So, for example,
23 there was no master list of polling locations so that 24 if someone shows up at the incorrect polling place to 25 vote, there's not a way that the person can be told

1 that, well, you used to be here, but now you're 2 somewhere else, so that they can be redirected.

3 MS. FALCON: I don't think that was the 4 case.

5 MR. WERCINSKI: There is a master list,
6 but it's not available to the poll workers, to my 7 knowledge. What is available at each polling
8 location is a small map, typically on a piece of 9 paper this large, that's behind the provisional 10 ballot table. And on that map, you will have the 11 precinct outline and major streets identified and the 12 other precincts around that particular location.

13 So it's up to the voter to determine if 14 they're in the correct location before they vote that 15 provisional ballot if their name is not on the 16 signature roster.

17 MS. TERAN: And there is also no official 18 count of the ballots and no accountability of the 19 ballots from the polling locations, early ballots, or 20 the tabulation centers.

21 MR. WERCINSKI: In other states they do
22 have precinct guides that poll worker will have, but 23 even in that case, many, many times what happens is 24 the voter will walk in to vote, if they don't appear
25 on the rolls, the poll worker may not say, Let me

1 find your correct address and what precinct you
2 should have been in. And the voter will simply cast
3 a provisional ballot.

4 It comes time for certification, they
5 look it up, realize they're in the wrong place, it
6 will be rejected in full.

7 The other thing I would add in response
8 to your question is, one of the best checks on this 9 process would be better information, better data. We 10 simply don't have that. Some counties, it seems 11 like, do a good job of breaking it out by precinct so 12 you can see where specific provisional ballots were 13 rejected for specific reasons.

14 I've seen that in Pima County. The EAC
15 collects data that I cited in my testimony. But it's 16 insufficient to sort of demonstrate what the scope of 17 the problem is, and we basically have to rely on the 18 voters following up and determining whether or not 19 the provisional ballot was ultimately counted.

20 MS. PROVINE: It does seem as if a theme
21 of these remarks on this panel is that election
22 workers need to be better trained and actually better
23 -- have better information put in their hands. But 24 I'm also hearing the theme, especially from you,
25 John, that we need specific legislative changes to

1 make things work better, including changes in the law
2 that say that if you voted the wrong precinct, you're 3 totally done.

4 Are there other legislative changes that
5 you would recommend apart from the issue of better
6 training for elections workers at the polls?

7 MS. FALCON: Same-day voter registration.

8 MS. PROVINE: Others on the panel?

9 MR. WERCINSKI: Yes. Commissioner
10 Provine, there is -- to address the provisional
11 ballots, which has become a hot topic in Arizona
12 because of the large number in 2012, there's some 13 very simple solutions to reduce the number of 14 provisional ballots.

15 First, to address the voter ID under Prop
16 200, the legislature has the ability to advance the 17 intent of voters because this is a voter-protected
18 law. With a three-quarters vote to expand the 19 acceptable forms of ID to incorporate, perhaps, ID
20 that isn't accepted today. And they've done that 21 once where they allowed veterans to use their 22 military ID cards as one form of ID that wasn't
23 originally in Prop 200.

24 College students, high school students
25 today get photo IDs. The legislature could advance

1 the intent of Prop 200 and pass legislation that
 2 allows those to be acceptable forms of ID.
 3 College students have secure online
 4 accounts at their universities. For example, at ASU
 5 it's called "My ASU Account." These are secure
 6 accounts, as secure as your bank accounts that you
 7 access online. At the Hudson Precinct for about an 8 hour during election day, the poll workers were 9 accepting printouts of the My ASU Account from 10 students, along with an out-of-state driver's license
 11 as sufficient form of ID because the account had 12 their dorm addresses on, which is what was in the 13 signature roster.
 14 A partisan poll observer challenged that 15 practice. A call was made to the county elections
 16 chief official and they stopped that -- they no
 17 longer allowed that to occur. That could be expanded
 18 to be another form. And then -- That's the ID
 19 requirement.
 20 Another way to address the ID requirement
 21 would be to allow what we call a signature ballot to 22 be cast at the correct polling location. An 23 individual shows up at the poll, doesn't have the 24 acceptable ID. They should be given a ballot to cast
 25 just as an individual does with an early ballot.

1 They cast the ballot, they put it in the envelope,
 2 they attest that that's them, they sign it, and it
 3 goes into the early ballot box to be counted later
 4 with signature verification. That's going to reduce 5 the provisional ballots significantly.
 6 Finally, to help the County Recorders and 7 the election officials reduce the number of ballots
 8 being counted after election day, the procedure could 9 be put in place to allow individuals who have an 10 early ballot and show up at their current polling 11 site with acceptable ID to take that ballot out of 12 the envelope and run it through the machine, count it
 13 on election day, rather than having to be carried 14 back and counted after the fact.
 15 That would help our election officials.
 16 That would speed up the voting count process and 17 still maintain our election integrity.
 18 MS. PROVINE: Thank you very much.
 19 I have a question particularly for Petra
 20 Falcon and for Raquel Teran. There were some remarks
 21 by someone -- I'm not even sure it was on this 22 panel -- that the legislature seems to be kind of 23 playing with voting rules for whatever its own
 24 purposes are rather than thinking about opening up
 25 voting. And both of you have noted an incredible

1 number of new registrants through the efforts of your
 2 organizations.
 3 And so my first question is, has the 4 legislature or any representative of Arizona thanked 5 either or both of your organizations for these 6 outstanding efforts to increase voter enfranchisement
 7 in the State through volunteer efforts?
 8 And my second question -- I have the 9 feeling the answer may not be a resounding "Yes" on 10 that first one.
 11 My second question is, with the felony
 12 status for young people, often it is young volunteers 13 involved in trying to assist voters, how are 14 organizations staffed by volunteers going to respond
 15 to this criminalization of their activities? Now,
 16 this is, I know, currently in abeyance while we go
 17 through the HB2305 decisions.
 18 But it may well come into being that 19 there will -- that criminalization will come back at 20 us, and I just wonder how these organizations are 21 going to be able to operate with new voters with the 22 threat of criminal sanctions for their activities.
 23 MS. TERAN: Well, in terms of the 24 gratitude from the state legislature as a whole, we 25 have not received a thanks. And Petra can say for

1 herself.
 2 Senator Gallardo, Senator Quezada --
 3 Representative Quezada and a few others who are 4 grateful to the process who also invest in the 5 process because all of this takes a lot of resources.
 6 And -- But coming back to the 7 criminalization of volunteers or staff, we have to be 8 mindful, like I said in our testimony, folks have 9 only 26 -- they have -- when -- the last day that 10 folks get a notification from the county that they -- 11 that they need to turn in their ballot, it doesn't 12 come.
 13 So that's kind of the contract by the 14 county is when they receive the ballot. So having 15 this criminalization really is going to affect our 16 efforts on making sure that ballots get to the 17 polling place or to the county by Tuesday, because 18 they have to be earmarked by Tuesday.
 19 But it is going to be a challenge not 20 having our volunteers or our staff being able to 21 collect those ballots for that reason.
 22 Unfortunately, if -- if the referendum is 23 not stopped at -- because HB2305 is now going to be 24 on the ballot in November of 2014, if it's not 25 stopped, we're going to have to retrain our

1 volunteers and our staff to make sure that none of 2 them are in jeopardy of any bad record -- any 3 felonies.

4 MS. FALCON: First of all, I think I
 5 would want to -- No. I would want to remind the 6 Arizona legislature or elected officials that there
 7 was an effort in an East Valley district where we did
 8 elect a Republican, and we elected Jerry Lewis that 9 ran against Russell Pearce.

10 So we are able to cross the line and work
 11 with all communities if we need to in the interests
 12 of our community and the State.

13 But in terms of how we will impact our 14 community effort, I think there needs to be a real 15 serious pushback from the community, because it is 16 our right to be involved and to make sure that our 17 voice is counted and that volunteers cannot take that 18 bite and put it to work.

19 I think that it's a travesty. And I
 20 think that's why we have continued working on what 21 we're doing in the community. And really, quite 22 frankly, worked with this legislature and elect those 23 people that best represent our values.

24 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.
 25 Other questions from commissioners?

1 ticket races, federal only.

2 But most will count certain -- restricted
 3 to being in the right county. Some allow you to vote
 4 anywhere statewide and will count any votes that 5 would have been eligible to pass if you were in the 6 right precinct.

7 So it would be interesting to sort of 8 research the legislative history for each of those 9 particular statutes and how they came about. Further 10 research them.

11 MS. PROVINE: Other questions?
 12 MR. FANNIEL: I wanted to address
 13 Mr. Sherman. You point out some very interesting
 14 statistics. You raised the -- the identification 15 here as Arizona being the first in the nation among 16 the three states with disenfranchisement of over
 17 10,979 provisional ballots rejected. That can change
 18 some elections, couldn't it?

19 MR. SHERMAN: Certainly could if it was a 20 close election.

21 MR. FANNIEL: So I believe -- it appears
 22 that everything that we are hearing here today seems 23 like the majority of the problem lies with -- you can 24 tell me if I'm wrong -- the County Recorder and the 25 Secretary of State.

1 MR. LEWIS: I have a question regarding
 2 the movements that made changes in the way the 3 provisional ballots were addressed. Arizona has such 4 a great disparity in the numbers presented here and a
 5 number of other states that have taken action to do
 6 that. And I guess ultimately the state legislature
 7 does that, but how did that come about?

8 Is there information as to why those 9 states moved in the way they did? And is there a 10 commonality in how that policy and legislation was 11 put in place?

12 MR. WERCINSKI: It's an excellent
 13 question. The -- I don't know the answer offhand to 14 what would unify all these different states. As I 15 said, it's a pretty diverse election. There are 16 states like Washington and Oregon which have already 17 sort of moved to all-mail voting, so they have 18 partial county rules on the books, but they have a 19 limited need for them.

20 You know, other states on the list
 21 include Georgia and Louisiana, which I believe have 22 had these rules for a long time. I should emphasize 23 that there's some diversity even within this group of 24 partial counting states. Some of them, like
 25 Louisiana, will only count certain specific top

1 MR. SHERMAN: Well, I would put it first
 2 on the State legislature to change the law. I mean,
 3 they've had this law on the books, but then there's 4 problems. So that would be the easiest way to fix
 5 it. We just -- the state legislative fix. And it's 6 a simple rule to write.

7 As far as working within this law, yes,
 8 to bring down the number from 15,000, almost 11,000
 9 wrong precinct. And this is just in provisional
 10 ballots rejected because they were cast in the wrong
 11 precinct, as Sam was talking about.

12 Others that were cast because of lack of 13 voter ID, itself, would be to work with Secretary of 14 State to work with County Recorders, so that training
 15 is better, so that people know to sort of proactively
 16 direct voters to the correct precinct.

17 As far as I can tell, these things in 18 2012, this wasn't a problem of multi-precinct polling
 19 locations in places like Ohio. Ohio had major 20 litigation over this issue. In Ohio there will be,
 21 for instance, in the Cleveland Public Library alone
 22 in one general election year, 40 provisional ballots
 23 at that one polling location were rejected because 24 they were cast in the wrong precinct.

25 That's a simple error. A poll worker

1 directed someone into the wrong line. The ballot is 2 rejected in full.

3 So, yes, training and better procedures
4 to sort of direct would help. It's not a cure-all
5 because at the end of the day the rule of law is 6 there.

7 MS. PROVINE: And Commissioner
8 Ferguson-Bohnee.

9 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: I was going to ask
10 a question as to provisional ballots too, but I think 11 he answered the question.

12 MS. PROVINE: Other questions from the
13 commissioners?

14 MS. LADELL-WILLRICH: I have a question
15 for Mr. Wercinski. One of the panelists talked about 16 voter disenfranchisement because of felony
17 convictions and stated that our state has among -- is 18 among the toughest in laws in terms of restoration of 19 civil rights to vote for felons.

20 And the question is, do we know what the 21 numerical impact is, how many potential voters are 22 out there in Arizona who are essentially prohibited
23 from voting because of a felony conviction?

24 MR. WERCINSKI: Unfortunately, I don't
25 have those statistics today or with me. There has

1 been research and there are groups in Arizona
2 specifically focused on that. And the initiative --
3 the statute allows an individual with a felony --
4 with their first felony who has served their time, is 5 off probation, and has paid their fines to just 6 petition the County Recorder or the Court to restore
7 their rights. And it's relatively simple if they've 8 met all those requirements.

9 It's when an individual might have a
10 second felony that the procedure becomes much more
11 difficult.

12 MS. PROVINE: We may hear something from 13 one of our public testifiers. They'll be talking 14 about ex-defendants' rights.

15 If there are not other questions, I want 16 to thank this very distinguished panel for their 17 excellent help with our questions and with their own
18 presentations. Thank you very much.

19 We will move on to public testimony at 20 this point. We have eight people signed up for 21 public testimony, and I want to remind the testifiers
22 that we have given four to five minutes for each of 23 you and we need you to stay on schedule. And if that 24 means you have to abbreviate your presentation, you
25 should think about doing that.

1 And if we ask you questions, we would ask
2 you that your responses be brief in order that we be 3 able to finish this -- this day of learning on time.

4 Rachel Phillips is our first speaker.

5 MS. PHILLIPS: I have a whole lot to say.
6 I know I'm limited on time and I've already read
7 this. And I'll try to go slow.

8 Hello to the commissioners. Thank you
9 for your time today. My name is Rachel Phillips, and 10 I'm the owner of Educated Souls, LLC, which involves 11 students in the community as volunteers and a way of 12 giving back.

13 I'd like to start out by saying that 14 there must be a sense of accountability and a desire 15 to be ethical from everyone involved in the State of 16 Arizona, especially when it comes to voting rights.
17 Many parts of society are unaware of the voting
18 procedure, they're uneducated as to how the voting
19 process advances.

20 This is a huge contributor to the fears
21 that exist in society today, and a fear or nonbelief
22 that each vote counts is passed down to each 23 generation. And when we diminish of the 24 representation of leaders that lead by example, then 25 you leave each generation that follows less hope that

1 they will feel and believe that they have no
2 contribution to the progress and success of change in 3 their future.

4 This subliminally causes the breakdown of 5 togetherness and brings to each his or her own
6 mentality which at times is despair. I have 7 witnessed many of the concerns mentioned here today
8 throughout the years, so no need to reiterate.

9 But I would like to share that while 10 attending a redistricting meeting at Fiesta Inn in 11 Tempe, there was a huge debate between panel members
12 in regards to county inmates that are incarcerated in 13 state prisons when drawing the lines. And I believe 14 that this contributed to -- that meeting, the lines
15 that were drawn for District 8 specifically for voter
16 suppression for south Phoenix.

17 And this is where it gets a little 18 scattered. So I ask of you today to please hold the 19 State of Arizona accountable in regards to voting
20 rights.

21 I am a commissioner with the City of 22 Tempe disability concerns. I am a resident advisor
23 board member with Section 8. I'm an ASU graduate 24 with justice studies, minor in sociology. Single 25 mother of four, one who is enlisted in the Army who

1 just came home Afghanistan.
 2 I thank you for your time. We appreciate
 3 all your efforts as commissioners and the other
 4 titles that you hold. I have a little bit more time.
 5 So I just wanted to mention, and this is in no means
 6 to offend anyone, but I don't understand some of the 7 problems because I received my ballot in the mail and 8 I mail it back.
 9 So there's no lines, there's no one
 10 wondering who I am. I don't have to show ID. And I
 11 also have a voter registration card, so I haven't 12 heard that mentioned from anyone today. If you have 13 a voter registration card, I don't know that you
 14 still need to show ID.
 15 I don't expect you guys to answer any of 16 that right now. But I also think that when you talk
 17 to people, and I'm going to say teach, it doesn't 18 cost anything. Teaching youth and adults about 19 voting, there shouldn't be any funding.
 20 I don't understand the funding part
 21 because I talk to people all the time and it doesn't 22 cost me a dime. Not to say that there's other needs
 23 for funding. I'm not disputing that.
 24 The DES forms, when they ask you if you
 25 want to be registered as a voter, if I'm not

1 mistaken, that form only asks you if you want to be a
 2 registered voter, and then you sign it saying that 3 you deny it. There's nowhere on there that says, I'm 4 already a registered voter.
 5 So I always -- And, yes, I'm on AHCCCS.
 6 I always write it on there. I have to share that 7 with you so you understand I know what I'm talking
 8 about. I write it on there. I am already a 9 registered voter. So somewhere maybe that would help
 10 because I'm clueless.
 11 I also used to canvas for Mayor Stanton,
 12 Greg Stanton, not knowing because I was in Tempe, I
 13 can't vote for him, but I still canvassed for him.
 14 And we were getting piles of names with addresses and 15 phone numbers and their political party. So I don't 16 know where the -- you know, what's going on with the 17 polls having misinformation.
 18 And, let's see. What else? Thank you
 19 for being patient with me. I just wanted to say that 20 Arizona has the highest high school dropout rate, but 21 we have the most charter schools with 535 currently.
 22 And I'm mentioning that because it's all about 23 education, and I'm an advocate for education.
 24 And there is no reason why we can't teach 25 the youth and anybody else that wants to learn how to

1 vote to be voters, but there's no encouragement from 2 the state at every level. And that's just my 3 opinion. I've seen it.
 4 MS. PROVINE: I have a question for you.
 5 You mentioned you have been by the DES office. In 6 earlier testimony, I'm not sure you were here at the 7 time, was that it has been difficult to have voter 8 registration forms at DES offices and there has been 9 an effort to have those forms there. I'm just 10 wondering, have you noticed voter registration forms?
 11 Have you encountered encouragement to register to 12 vote when you've talked with DES personnel?
 13 MS. PHILLIPS: The form is given to us
 14 every single time that we go into the office when you 15 sit down with someone at a desk. It's -- I don't 16 recall if it's attached to the actual application
 17 when you go there on your own. It's always rushed.
 18 And so there's just, "Hey, sign this," and then they 19 take it back. That's it.
 20 There's no -- You know, there might be,
 21 like with me, I'm like tough and smart. I'm like, I 22 don't need all that. But there's people that I think
 23 if they would talk to them, they would be more 24 inclined to go, "Hey, I'd like to know more about 25 that."

1 MS. PROVINE: So it's not occurring, as
 2 far as you know?
 3 MS. PHILLIPS: It's not occurring, but
 4 the paper -- I want to say it's offered. It's kind
 5 of slid across the desk. And I read everything. I
 6 don't know if everybody else does. So sometimes they 7 just sign it because they want to get their benefits
 8 and they don't really know what it is.
 9 MS. PROVINE: Questions from the
 10 commissioners?
 11 Okay. Thank you so much.
 12 Our next witness is Lydia Guzman. She's 13 representing LULAC as well as probably other
 14 organizations.
 15 MS. GUZMAN: Thank you, Commissioners.
 16 I had an opportunity to sit here earlier
 17 today so that I could hear most of the testimony so 18 that I don't repeat a lot of what has already been 19 said in an effort to save time.
 20 I did take down some notes and I'm hoping 21 to help answer some of the questions that have 22 already been asked by the Commission to some of the 23 panelists in the best way that I can.
 24 First of all, let me start by thanking 25 the Commission for holding these meetings and for the

1 opportunity to speak before you today.
 2 My name is Lydia Guzman. I represent
 3 LULAC. LULAC is the nation's largest and oldest 4 civil rights volunteer-based organization that 5 empowers Americans and builds stronger communities.

6 Our volunteers with LULAC have 7 participated in voter education with many of the 8 organizations that not only have testified here today
 9 on a local level but on a national level. LULAC was 10 also a named plaintiff on the Prop 200 ITCA lawsuit.

11 I'm the national chairman for the 12 immigration committee. Also the Arizona state
 13 chairman for the civil rights committee.

14 It's been almost 10 years since I have 15 testified before this very same commission. And back 16 then, when I testified, I didn't feel that we would 17 be here again today to talk about the issues. And 18 when I testified then, I talked about some of the 19 obstacles that we were faced. This was very recent 20 post-Prop 200, and the obstacles of registering 21 voters with the proof of citizenship, as well as some 22 of the obstacles with lack of language access 23 volunteers at the polls. And so I think that we 24 would have that problem today.

25 But, now, what I'm here to talk about

1 today is that we need voter protections now more than 2 ever before because our right to vote has been in the 3 most recent years under attack more now. We're faced
 4 with a conservative state legislature who has come up
 5 with new and creative ways to oppose our voter
 6 registration and Get Out The Vote efforts.

7 Apache County Recorder, LeNora Fulton,
 8 just mentioned a lack of research to do some basic 9 things, like proper updating of our voter
 10 registration polls, when we've seen a surge of 11 dropping voters from the polls. We've all seen where 12 voters show up to the polls and say that the voter --
 13 or the poll workers say that they're simply not there 14 and they're given provisional ballots. In which the 15 County Recorders have to go and -- you know, I blame 16 the unnecessary purge of the voting rolls on the 17 increase of provisional ballots and this is what 18 happens.

19 Phoenix had done so hastily in a matter
 20 to comply with Help America Vote Act, with some of 21 the provisions of the Help America Vote Act in order
 22 to make sure that they comply with the voter
 23 registration system.

24 Now, recently, in Maricopa County, a
 25 mistake was also made to the voters in the Spanish

1 language materials that went out to the public. They
 2 printed an incorrect election date on the Spanish
 3 material. And then they requested -- they requested
 4 an extra effort to be made to conduct a campaign to 5 educate the voters -- the Spanish language voters on 6 the correct date.

7 And Maricopa County responded with 8 they're just -- We don't have enough money to do
 9 this. And so it wasn't until the County Board of 10 Supervisors in an emergency meeting approved
 11 additional funding so that they could do this -- this 12 campaign because we were days away from an election
 13 and we were afraid that we were going to have lots of 14 voters showing up to the polls, you know, on an 15 incorrect date.

16 So one of the ways that we've been 17 disenfranchised is through the lack of proper funding
 18 to -- to -- to our election systems.

19 Now, a little bit of background, and I
 20 know I have a little of time here. As a teenager --
 21 I've been conducting voter registration since the 22 early '80s, so I've been involved in this.

23 I've also worked as the director of voter
 24 outreach for the Arizona Secretary of State's office.
 25 I've also worked as the director of -- the Arizona

1 effort for the Southwest Voter Registration Education
 2 project, as well as a director of voter outreach for 3 the Clean Elections Institute.

4 I just want to say that when we were 5 given the money to upgrade our voting equipment and 6 all the things that HAVA required, the money was to 7 be allocated to provide for different things. The -- 8 Each state was supposed to submit a plan to the 9 government accounting office, and the government
 10 accounting office was supposed to be responsible to 11 make sure that all of this money was distributed and 12 applied in the same way.

13 MS. PROVINE: Your time is up.

14 MS. GUZMAN: Okay. I know I have a 15 little bit more.

16 But there's been no accountability. The 17 Secretary of State's office has not really told the 18 public or the government on how this money has been 19 allocated. We need to provide money for education 20 for -- so that we can educate our workers on all of 21 the things that were just mentioned before me with 22 respect to consolidated voting places and moving of 23 the polling places.

24 One of the things that was mentioned
 25 earlier was we talked a lot about the provisional

1 ballots. Another way that our voters have been
 2 disenfranchised is through something called a
 3 conditional provisional ballot. A conditional 4 provisional ballot is when someone shows up to the 5 poll and they say, Well, you don't have the proper
 6 ID, but they let them vote.
 7 They're given a provisional ballot but 8 they say, On the condition we won't count this until 9 you come to our elections office and you provide 10 proof that, you know, you are, you know, who you say 11 you are with ID. Because they're not going back to 12 the same polling place, it's days after the election
 13 they have to drive sometimes very far.
 14 Many people do not have transportation so 15 that they can go and provide the proof needed so that 16 their conditional provisional ballot can be counted.
 17 So these votes are tossed in the trash. The voters
 18 simply give up.
 19 One of the speakers gave an example that 20 we can continue to be challenged by a lot of these 21 efforts. You know, the -- our legislature, local and 22 some of the national, they use spin and pundits.
 23 They say things like, noncitizens are coming into 24 this country, sneaking in the darkness of night to 25 register to vote so that they tell the government

1 where they can be sent their ballot.
 2 That's simply not happening. When I
 3 worked for the Secretary of State's office, during 4 the last part of my employment there was to compel
 5 the reports that were given quarterly by this -- by 6 the County Recorder's office. I reported to the 7 Department of Justice on any of voter fraud. Voter
 8 fraud does not exist in Arizona. It didn't exist
 9 then and it does not exist now.
 10 Most recently, the Walter Cronkite School
 11 of Journalism conducted a study in between the years
 12 of 2000 and 2011. And in those 11 years, they only 13 found 11 cases of voter fraud. We're talking about 14 11 cases in 11 years compared to the millions of 15 voters that came out. So voter fraud does not exist
 16 in Arizona.
 17 So all of these unnecessary obstacles and 18 rules and laws are unnecessary.
 19 If this Commission is going to make 20 recommendations to Congress to -- you know, on voter 21 issues, my recommendation is to make sure that 22 Congress holds the Secretary of State's office
 23 accountable for the proper disbursement of HAVA funds
 24 as well as for some sort of accountability.
 25 One of the last things I just want to

1 mention is if -- if we can also be very involved in 2 the reinstating of the preclearance piece of any
 3 changes to the election law or the election process
 4 of voting, it's important because of issues like this 5 that we continue to have input and share some of the 6 cases so that they can see the kind of impact that 7 those types of changes are going to make to us and 8 how we continue to be further disenfranchised.
 9 Thank you so much. I apologize for 10 extending the time.
 11 MS. PROVINE: I wonder if you could 12 clarify for the record that -- it's come up several 13 times about the mistaken voting date, but it needs to 14 be clarified whether that mistake was before or after 15 the election. It would have been much less serious 16 problem if the mistaken date was before, but if it's 17 after the election, then that would directly 18 disenfranchise people who took account of this 19 official communication.
 20 MS. GUZMAN: When that error took 21 place -- this happened in Maricopa County, it took 22 place in several different forums. There was some 23 printed material that was distributed to the 24 different community centers in forms of printed
 25 material: Election day is going to be on this day.

1 Bookmarks were sent out. And it was only
 2 in Spanish, not in English. So only the Spanish
 3 voters are disenfranchised. This was days before the 4 election. I want to say, if I remember correctly,
 5 maybe about --
 6 MS. PROVINE: Was the date -- the date
 7 specified for the election, it was after the 8 election; is that not correct?
 9 THE WITNESS: That's correct. It did
 10 specify that. So what wound up happening is if that 11 matter did not get -- wasn't caught and went through 12 with nobody catching it, all of those voters, 13 Spanish-speaking voters, would have turned up to the 14 polls after the election took place and their voice
 15 would never have been heard.
 16 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.
 17 Questions from the panel? Other
 18 commissioners.
 19 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: I just want to say
 20 thank you for bringing up the conditional provisional
 21 ballots. I think with Prop 200 that it's complicated
 22 things a little bit more. I know in Maricopa County,
 23 there were over 1,000 conditional provisional ballots
 24 that weren't counted. And I think you explained what 25 it was, but I just wanted to thank you for bringing

1 that to our attention.
 2 MS. PROVINE: I just also wanted to ask,
 3 you were mentioning the need for more accountability
 4 from the Secretary of State's office. What about,
 5 there's been a lot of concern in Arizona about people
 6 from out of state coming and voting in our election.
 7 What about out-of-state money coming and influencing
 8 our elections?

9 MS. GUZMAN: That is another way that a
 10 lot of our -- we have outside influence pour money
 11 into our elections. Back in 2003, the Fannie Lou 12 Gainer (sic) project, they conducted a study, and in 13 the study, they took a look at several candidates and 14 some of the candidates that they took a look at were 15 candidates that participate in our state's clean
 16 elections system.

17 What they wanted to see is the engagement
 18 that voters had when they were talking to candidates
 19 that were not influenced by the Clean Elections Act.
 20 And these candidates had to go out and reach out to 21 all of those voters in order to not only get support,
 22 but, B, also get those private dollar contributions.

23 We saw an increase in the engagements and 24 the participation of a lot of our dollars that the 25 State had. I'll give you an example.

1 MS. UMARETIYA: Hi. My name is Amy
 2 Umaretiya. I'm an undergraduate student here at 3 Arizona State University. I wasn't going to testify.
 4 But I noticed there were no students who spoke today,
 5 so I thought I would actually provide some 6 illustration about what goes on to some of the 7 panelists.

8 I was a freshman living on campus during 9 the 2012 election. My precinct location was the 10 Hudson Precinct and so I thought this is my first 11 chance. I went on there. And, naturally, there were 12 long lines, as there were with many polling locations
 13 in that election.

14 The added component of student voters,
 15 many of us are first-time voters, caused a lot of 16 confusion. First-time student voters aren't 17 well-versed in voter ID laws. And so when many of 18 them showed up to the polling location with their 19 driver's licenses, unfortunately, they registered to 20 vote with their on-campus addresses, their addresses
 21 on their licenses didn't match up. And so they 22 needed another form of identification to go along 23 with that.

24 Students who live at the dorms, however,
 25 don't receive utility bills. They don't have bank

1 One of the persons that they looked at 2 was -- there was a candidate named Alfredo Gutierrez
 3 who ran for governor. And rather than seeing a lot
 4 of his donations come from areas like, you know,
 5 Scottsdale or Fountain Hills or the more affluent
 6 places, you saw a lot of support and contributions
 7 from places where candidates never visited before,
 8 places like Yuma, San Luis, Somerton.

9 So this is one of those ways where these 10 -- where money can certainly influence not only the 11 candidates, but also voter participation. And in 12 many times, when our voters engage, they will 13 participate. And this is another way, you know, to 14 silence.

15 I'm very fearful for when I hear in court
 16 a business say, Well, it's our First Amendment right.
 17 They say this is our First Amendment right. I don't 18 know where a corporation is a human being that has a 19 right. And, secondly, since when is a -- a First 20 Amendment right given to the highest bidder?

21 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.

22 Questions? Other questions from the 23 Commissioners? Thank you so much.

24 Our next testifier is Amy
 25 Umaretiya. I hope I got that right.

1 statements or credit card statements sent to their 2 dorms. So when they show up to vote the day of 3 election, if it hadn't saved that piece of mail where 4 they got the sample ballot or saved their voter ID
 5 card or they didn't have it anymore, they were kind
 6 of out of luck. There was nothing that they could 7 print out.

8 And it turns out that the Hudson polling
 9 location was allowing students to bring in a printout
 10 of their ASU account. I think it was for quite some 11 time. It was a few hours that they were allowing for 12 that. And it was a solution, but many students 13 didn't take advantage of it because they would have 14 to go back to campus and print out that document.
 15 And many students just came to the polling location
 16 between classes when they thought they had time.
 17 They didn't have time to come back and wait in line
 18 after they had that printout.

19 So what a few students and I did was 20 bring a printer out to the polling location because 21 we figured if we could get things printed while 22 students were waiting in line, it would move a lot
 23 faster. It definitely worked. We were getting 24 students through the polls pretty fast.

25 And we had worked with a nearby business

1 if we could use their wi-fi, so people were being
2 pretty helpful as well. After we had gotten about 50
3 printouts, at least on my laptop, students started
4 coming back to us saying they were no longer
5 accepting this ASU account page.

6 And so we were just confused, through
7 election day, to suddenly switch the rules on us
8 again. And so these students were forced to vote
9 provisionally once more. Now, some students went 10 home that day thinking an ASU account page was proper
11 identification; some students went home not thinking
12 that it was.

13 And I understand that the onus is on us
14 to know voter rules so we can vote properly. But we 15 should also be able to have consistency in the 16 information that is given to us when we go vote.
17 Students have a hard time getting their voices heard
18 in elections because the process is so new to them.

19 So they may mess up in their first
20 election, learn from their mistakes, and get it right
21 the next time. But then they might not represent 22 that mindset that they were in four years ago or two 23 years ago. And so there's a big gap in the 24 representation for the first-time voters, especially 25 people who move during the location like the 1 university student.

2 So we should be attempting to make the
3 process a lot easier and less cumbersome, not making
4 it more difficult by implementing things like this 5 dual-track voting system that we've heard a lot about 6 today.

7 I'm also the director of state and 8 national affairs for the undergraduate government at 9 ASU, And I know about how this really affects 10 out-of-state student voter registrations.

11 And I would also like to add that the way
12 students are going to be voted by, they're only 13 eligible for a partial ballot is through the mail.
14 And a student is transitory in nature and we're 15 afraid that a lot of these students aren't going to 16 know until they show up at the polls that they aren't 17 getting their full ballot. It's going to lead to 18 even more confusion on that front.

19 So that's all I have to say.

20 MS. PROVINE: Amy, is there any way that 21 you believe that the ASU student ID could be changed
22 or amplified to deal with some of the problems you
23 observed?

24 MS. UMARETIYA: One of the problems I'm 25 working on and I'm still trying to see the

1 feasibility of this is maybe not changing the ID, but 2 when the students enroll at ASU, they're asked to 3 provide proofs of citizenship. And some of these 4 match the proofs that are required using this new 5 system. I talked to the registrar's office and they 6 said, most of the proof comes from birth
7 certificates.

8 So if we can somehow get the university
9 registrant's database consolidated with Maricopa
10 County elections or have a checked box on the 11 application saying students with a visa information
12 when submitted to ASU. This is a public university
13 and you think you would be able to somehow work so 14 when you turn in your information to a university, it
15 goes to the county elections as well.

16 MS. PROVINE: The big issue is really 17 that home address issue that you mentioned and having 18 that be verified somehow with a picture ID?

19 MS. UMARETIYA: Yeah. So right now,
20 student services, you can go print out a verification
21 of your home address -- or your dorm address saying 22 that you live there. Students don't know this is an 23 available option and students don't know that they 24 need to do this. So it still requires them to go
25 back and forth.

1 MS. PROVINE: Big educational effort for 2 the required.

3 Other questions from other panels?

4 I just want to thank you for a really
5 moving exercise in engagement -- in civic engagement
6 when you went and got a printer and helped other 7 students vote. That is really a terrific thing to 8 do. So thank you.

9 Our next witness is Greg Jones, Maricopa
10 County Democratic Party.

11 MR. JONES: Good afternoon. My name is 12 Greg Jones. I am the election integrity chairperson
13 for Maricopa County Democratic Party. Let me give a 14 few comments that I have on the dual registration
15 system specifically.

16 I've been the election integrity chair
17 for a little more than a year, and with some other
18 people in the party, we have had a sense of meetings
19 with the county elections officials specifically 20 trying to sort through some of the problems with the 21 federal form processing by the elections people.

22 And a lot of those had to do with ASU
23 students because they use federal forms. The problem
24 that we heard was that the County wasn't ready to 25 process the federal forms and as of 11 days before

1 the election, something like 1,350 people still 2 hadn't been processed and were in suspense and were 3 required to send out letters that supposedly told
4 them which poll to go to, they could take that letter
5 to register.

6 Well, we found out two days before the 7 election that the students very, very few had 8 received that. And they had been receiving letters
9 saying, You're not eligible to vote unless you have 10 an Arizona driver's license. The ballot was supposed 11 to be sent home to people who use a driver's license
12 but it doesn't match.

13 So under the existing rules for the 14 federal form, they were weren't following them. So 15 in the process of meeting with them and trying to get 16 to the bottom of it, become more knowledgeable about 17 the way that they process the federal form. And I've 18 gone to the community network meetings, the community
19 outreach and educational were the same.

20 So when the dual registration system
21 issue came up, me and the individuals who have been 22 involved in this, we had at least a little bit of a
23 unique vantage point and specific knowledge.

24 So a couple of the things that I don't 25 think that have really come out in the press and not

1 necessarily here today, number one, the way that 2 Maricopa County processes the federal form is, and 3 this has been specifically verified by the federal 4 complaints office during the elections, that they --
5 they followed the HAVA rules which have been 6 incorporated into the voter registration manual for 7 Arizona by the Secretary of State.

8 Hansen mentioned that earlier.
9 Apparently that process of it. But the current one 10 says how you to have to process federal forms. That 11 was amended after the Gonzales case and the tribal 12 case in the 9th Circuit.

13 So to implement ways that they had to 14 process the federal form, the federal -- the 15 requirement is that if someone uses their last four 16 digits of their Social Security number, which is most 17 typical, then they check it against the Social 18 Security database, or are supposed to, and if it 19 comes back with a match as to identity, then they're 20 placed on the rolls. As of today, that's what is 21 still Arizona law, according to the Secretary of 22 State's office.

23 When the Supreme Court decision came out,
24 that nearly -- it really confirmed the status quo.
25 So that didn't change anything about what the law

1 was, because the law was -- it merely affirmed the 2 9th Circuit.

3 So at the time that these changes were 4 made, Tom Horne, as Attorney General, issued an 5 opinion saying that these changes, these provisions
6 using the federal form to place people onto the State
7 rolls were consistent with Arizona law and were 8 consistent specifically with Arizona elections
9 statutes.

10 So now, a few months later or, you know,
11 when they lost the Supreme Court case and they were 12 scrambling to do something different, then they 13 suddenly have issued an opinion opposite saying, We 14 have to have a two-tiered system because we don't 15 have any other choice.

16 Well, the status quo is clearly a choice,
17 and the -- so that's one point that I think is very 18 important. It's going to be extremely expensive.
19 It's not necessary. But it's also going to affect 20 very few people who don't -- who aren't identified by 21 using a Social Security number, because, again, the 22 County has also indicated that what they're going to 23 do now, and what they have been doing on the federal 24 forms is once they're identified and their Social 25 Security numbers are entered into the database, that

1 then -- it tells you whether they're a citizen or 2 not. It comes up.

3 So they are putting people on the State
4 rolls and you'll get a State ballot if it shows up
5 they're citizens. So only the people who haven't 6 been identified at all and fall into the cracks they 7 have a bad address, so there's a false negative
8 perhaps, those are the only ones who would be 9 affected. And so this whole process is for a very,
10 very tiny number.

11 But also, if I could just wrap up, is 12 those individuals either they -- they'll be allowed
13 to vote, be on the State rolls because we know
14 they're U.S. citizens and they qualify under state
15 and federal law and have been verified.

16 If that happens, that will be actually 17 against State law, which is Proposition 200, which 18 doesn't say you have to be a citizen. It says you 19 have to prove you're a citizen in these specific 20 ways. We know they're citizens, but they didn't 21 prove it, so they would be in violation of State law.

22 If they changed the manual to have those 23 people not, even though we know they're citizens and 24 they've been verified by the Social Security
25 Administration, if they say, You don't get a State

1 ballot, you're not qualified, that is a much worse
2 problem, which would be -- you know, there would be
3 two classes of citizenship, and it would be a due
4 process issue.

5 So it remains to be seen how we're going
6 to handle that. I don't believe they can implement
7 the system and, you know, keep the system.

8 MS. PROVINE: Questions from
9 Commissioners?

10 Thanks very much.

11 Our next witness is Tia Oso. Is Tia Oso
12 here? Well, I'll leave her on the list to come back.

13 Representative Martin Quezada is our -- 14 will follow all of that.

15 MR. QUEZADA: Good afternoon, members of 16 the Commission.

17 First, I want to thank you for being here
18 and listening to the very important testimony that's 19 been shared with you today. My name is Martin 20 Quezada. I'm a State Representative out of 21 Legislative District 29.

22 My district incorporates the west part of 23 Phoenix known as Maryvale and parts of South and West
24 Glendale. According to the 2010 census, my district
25 is 78.3 percent minority, 67.7 percent Latino. It is

1 a humble, working class, and immigrant community. It
2 is exactly the population that is affected by the 3 efforts that are being discussed here today.

4 It is the exact population that Section 5
5 of the Voting Rights Act was put in place for, and it
6 is the exact population who have the potential to be 7 hurt most now that Section 5 has been made
8 operational as a result of the Shelby County
9 decision.

10 I ran for office in that same
11 neighborhood on four separate occasions already.
12 Once in 2006 for school board for legislative 13 District 13 in 2010, for the Pendergast School Board
14 in 2012, and for my current District 29 in 2012. And 15 I'm about to start two more campaigns for reelection
16 to the House and to the school board in '14.

17 So I know these communities very well.
18 These communities are my family members. These 19 communities are my home. This is where I live. I 20 have a very personal knowledge of this community, and 21 their concerns are real. The concerns that have been 22 expressed today are very real.

23 I want to talk about the need for Section
24 5 because that was a huge blow, I think, especially 25 to my community. As the Apache County Recorder,

1 Ms. Fulton, described earlier, the benefits of 2 fulfilling the obligations of Section 5, I truly
3 believe outweighed the burden that was opposed by the 4 County -- on the County Recorders and our government
5 for having complied with that.

6 If one person's fundamental right to vote
7 is preserved because of this option that we had in 8 our group, I think that benefit absolutely outweighed
9 the burden. And that cost is something that I also 10 want to talk about, because cost is something that is 11 a major factor when we consider the effects of these 12 types of policies on our communities.

13 As it was touched on earlier, without
14 Section 5, the cost of justice becomes prohibitive.
15 We have had -- we have been fortunate to have 16 excellent help from groups like the ACLU, from LULAC, 17 from the Lawyers Committee. In fact, I have the 18 lawsuit that is challenging the community college
19 districts at large seats right now.

20 But, ultimately, those efforts through 21 our courts won't be enough, because of the cost in 22 which that we will have to face in order to pursue 23 that route. We're not always going to have the 24 benefit of having pro bono representation in the 25 Court. We are not going to be able to raise the

1 funds to fight every battle.

2 We are going to be left picking and
3 choosing the worst of the worst situations to fight
4 in court.

5 So, again, those concerns out of respect
6 are real. Those costs are going to be real. And all
7 of the situations that were touched on before, I have 8 witnessed firsthand in my work out in the community:
9 The abundance of voter confusion, voters being turned 10 away at the polls after waiting for hours in line, 11 the harassment and intimidation of the voters who 12 don't have a full command of the English language.

13 The harassment and even intimidation of 14 voters by electioneers. The consolidation of 15 precincts and the changing of polling locations
16 which, again, adds to the voter confusion. These are 17 all happening very regularly and they're happening in 18 my backyard.

19 Now, I sit here today as a State
20 Representative, as a member of the legislature, which 21 many people have talked about, has the authority and 22 really the ability to change a lot of these 23 situations. But the political reality here in 24 Arizona is that the efforts to address these issues
25 have been, and likely will continue to be,

1 unsuccessful in the near future.
 2 I have actually sponsored a lot of those
 3 efforts that have been suggested here today. Those 4 efforts haven't gotten anywhere in the legislature as 5 of right now. As a result, my colleagues that I
 6 think share my mindset to voter access, on both sides
 7 of the aisle, Democrats and Republicans, have been 8 left to resort to playing defense.
 9 And funny that we're playing defense more
 10 often at this time. We are still seeing an increase 11 in the number of bills that are seeking to harm our 12 communities. And that, in my opinion, is an attempt 13 to or intentionally disenfranchise voters. The fact
 14 that efforts are occurring immediately after efforts
 15 successful GOTV efforts by groups like Promise
 16 Arizona, by groups like Ti Mas and HAVA, et cetera,
 17 is not, in my opinion, coincidental. But it's a 18 reality of the situation that we're living in.
 19 I'm out of time. I want to thank you,
 20 again, for listening to these concerns. And I ask 21 that you take these concerns back to Congress because 22 Congressional action is needed, especially in my 23 hometown.
 24 Thank you.
 25 MS. PROVINE: I think we have some

1 But without help, it will be a long time
 2 before we can really make true changes.
 3 MS. PROVINE: Questions from other
 4 commissioners?
 5 Thank you very much for being our only
 6 legislative representative who spoke today. We 7 really appreciate you coming. Thank you.
 8 MR. QUEZADA: And thank you again.
 9 MS. PROVINE: Next we have Mel Hannah,
 10 speaking about ex-offenders' rights and voting poll
 11 locations.
 12 MR. HANNAH: Good afternoon,
 13 Commissioners. My name is Mel Hannah. And let me
 14 just say, as everyone testified so far, thank you
 15 very much for doing what you're doing.
 16 You heard today, in my humble opinion
 17 very happy to be stating the concerns of Arizonans
 18 about the voter rights and lack of voter rights. I
 19 want to talk about two things real quickly. Again,
 20 brief background on myself.
 21 I am a policy advisor for Mayor Greg 22 Stanton here in Phoenix. Previously worked 15 years
 23 for the Greater Phoenix Urban League, the second
 24 oldest civil rights organization after the NAACP.
 25 And before that, I have been an elected

1 questions for you, if you can stay for a moment. Any 2 of the commissioners want to raise a question? If 3 they don't, I actually do.
 4 I gather your bottom line is, if Congress
 5 doesn't act, the Arizona legislature is unlikely to 6 do its own housekeeping on this issue, and litigation
 7 is going to be a partial solution, at best. Is that
 8 basically --
 9 MR. QUEZADA: Yeah, I agree. I think at 10 this point, litigation is one of our only options.
 11 We have a legislature that the last day of session
 12 last year passed House Bill 2305 on the last day of 13 the session. So that's the makeup of the legislature 14 we're living in right now, and that's the mindset we 15 have. Passing bills like that, which I do believe 16 truly harm our access to the ballot box.
 17 So because of that, we're looking to the 18 courts to provide justice for us. We're looking to 19 Congress to help rectify these situations and those 20 are cost prohibitive. They really are. So with 21 limited options, our community organization will 22 continue to try to Get Out The Vote, will continue to 23 try to change the makeup of the legislature, and 24 they'll continue to do a fantastic job and will 25 continue to have successes.

1 official in Northern Arizona, served on the City
 2 Council in Flagstaff, the Coconino County Board of 3 Supervisors. And the people I have not heard today
 4 and this is -- when I stepped out a few times, it may 5 have come up.
 6 I appreciate the Commission's inference
 7 because she was speaking at my sign-in sheet that 8 there might be a bellman expert. Let me rephrase
 9 that. An expert on felons. I did have a comment on 10 that, but I know I'm not an expert.
 11 I do want to supplement the comment that 12 Sam made and that's something we need to deal with 13 here in Arizona. I am on the advisory council
 14 through the Arizona Department of Corrections, so I
 15 do have access.
 16 Arizona currently incarcerates about
 17 40,000 folks. Unlike some of the statements made 18 earlier by Reverend Stewart in that jurisdiction, if 19 you will. The minorities, collectively folks of 20 color, make up over 60 percent of that 40,000. And 21 each year, maybe up to 10 percent are released back
 22 into our communities.
 23 So any given year, you're going to have 24 anywhere from 3,000 to 3,500, quote, felons coming 25 back to our communities. You can see after a very

1 short period of time, that's a very large number of 2 folks. Mostly they are quite a bit young minority
 3 men of color.
 4 When you take that figure and you realize
 5 that those folks in most cases are now
 6 disenfranchised, not just from voting but from quite 7 a few other things forever, you can see why this 8 voting rights section is so important. The -- My 9 experience has been and, again, Sam mentioned the 10 process. They come out of prison, if you only have 11 one felony, it should be a simple mechanism to be 12 reinstated.
 13 If you have more than one, you go to the 14 Court and it's not that simple. That doesn't work.
 15 That isn't working and the Urban League, we're doing 16 a lot with youths, a lot of clients who are 17 unfortunately released from prison. Either they have 18 not heard of that process or haven't been informed of 19 it.
 20 When, in fact, they inquired about it,
 21 usually they just do it. It didn't happen. So we 22 certainly need work on that portion, where other 23 states have restoration of rights, in Arizona, we 24 continue to be behind in this.
 25 The other point I want to comment on that

1 I haven't heard. It might sound, in a moment, kind
 2 of contradictory to some of these statements we've 3 heard today about frustration and the whole process.
 4 The right to vote, you know, is a -- it is a right.
 5 And a lot of African-Americans historically, if you
 6 will, coming out of the deep South, Jim Crow area,
 7 their right to vote after that was earned after, as 8 he said, a lot of folks died for that right.
 9 The right to vote becomes -- the right to 10 vote and the ability to vote took place to cast your 11 ballot became almost synonymous. I guess what I'm 12 really saying is we move forward into the 21st
 13 Century, high-tech, mail ballots and registration
 14 online and perhaps one day voting online.
 15 I think there's still -- I think there's 16 still a need for some to have the ability to take 17 their ballot and go to the ballot place and cast that 18 ballot through -- African-Americans that are my age
 19 and older, that physical right, that physical piece
 20 was and is very, very important.
 21 So again, I'm not resisting the future.
 22 I understand the high-tech, et cetera, et cetera. I
 23 understand there's a place and a traditional right
 24 that you might want to consider. Just look at that.
 25 I'm still in the 20th century. I have a phone

1 sitting over here. It's a flip phone. I asked my 2 seven-year-old grandson to hand me the phone the 3 other day. I said, There it is on my desk. He said,
 4 This ain't a phone.
 5 So I realized I'm kind of backward, but 6 those are my comments.
 7 Thank you so much.
 8 MS. PROVIN: Questions from the
 9 commissioners?
 10 Well, thank you very much, Mr. Hannah.
 11 Good luck getting that Smartphone one of these days.
 12 Our next speaker is Michael Powell.
 13 While you're coming to the front, let me ask you, is 14 Tia Oso in the room? She's not. Okay. This will be 15 our last testifier.
 16 MR. POWELL: I have testimony on the back
 17 of a napkin as I've been typing all day. My name is 18 Michael Powell. I am currently executive director of 19 the Arizona Students Association. But I am
 20 commenting just as a private citizen in this matter,
 21 as someone who has gone through many different types
 22 of voting processes, both in California and here in 23 Arizona.
 24 I've been living in Arizona since 1990.
 25 And I've seen a few things that have worked that have

1 been, I think, maybe solutions being offered.
 2 One is when you go to a municipal polling
 3 place, I worked for the City of Avondale for 10 years
 4 and so we had a place for voters to come to at City
 5 Hall. The ballot, no matter what precinct you were 6 in, was printed out because the access was easy to 7 find. So I'm not quite sure we have a problem with 8 that.
 9 In early voting, citizens can mail their 10 ballot, but if they forget to mail their ballot, they 11 can drop it off at any polling place on the day of 12 the election and the ballot is counted and sent to 13 the proper location.
 14 So when we have issues of provisional
 15 ballots, I'm not quite sure why we just don't use
 16 early ballot formats that people could just fill out 17 and print it out at the site at the polling place and 18 then people complete their early ballot on the day of 19 the election, drop it in the ballot box, and then 20 it's -- and it's sent to the system that's already 21 established.
 22 As far as a student ID, I would agree
 23 with Sam Wercinski. Students are required to 24 basically demonstrate citizenship when they register
 25 for college or the universities, and so all the data

1 is within that. So student IDs that added whatever
 2 address that the student are currently living in 3 going to school could easily be used as voter ID
 4 mechanisms.
 5 Okay. It would require a change by the 6 legislature, but as Sam mentioned, military IDs were 7 added by the legislature of the 75 percent provision.
 8 And then I think part of the issue is,
 9 other than precincts, for election material for 10 precinct captains, for political parties, et cetera,
 11 maybe that's more of an anachronism than we realize.
 12 And so taking some of these pieces that 13 already exist and applying them to a new way
 14 methodology of voting, streamline it, we already 15 have. All right. Here in Arizona. It's a matter of 16 having a legislative will that is required to make 17 those minor changes.
 18 And so that basically, I think, is the -- 19 the sense of my remarks. That's changes that I've 20 recommended.
 21 MS. PROVINE: Questions for Mr. Powell?
 22 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: I have a question.
 23 I think Sam mentioned this too.
 24 You're talking about the military ID.
 25 Was that actually changed by the legislature, or was

1 I'll look it up afterwards, because on the actual law
 2 initially -- and y'all could be right. It could have
 3 changed.
 4 It said, you know, you can have this form
 5 of ID, you know, a photo ID, whatever kind, a 6 government ID, or two forms of other sorts of ID with 7 your name and your address. And then it was actually 8 the Secretary of State that created the list of what 9 -- what meets the statute.
 10 MR. POWELL: A government-issued ID.
 11 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Because military
 12 would be a government-issued ID.
 13 MR. POWELL: I mean, as a student at 14 community college, I also taught as faculty. When I 15 needed an ID, I went to the registration desk. I had 16 whatever paper I had that was already within the 17 system, and had my photo taken. So just expanding 18 student IDs at both community colleges and 19 universities to add the physical location that 20 students are staying where they're at now I think is 21 a really easy fix that then takes that information
 22 that is already on file to what was required for 23 applying to the university or college in the first
 24 place, and then enables that form that could easily
 25 be used for student voting purposes.

1 that changed in the proof of the procedure within the
 2 Secretary of State's office?
 3 MR. POWELL: I heard that they're --
 4 because of the Prop 200, you were required to have a
 5 -- you could change a legislative ballot. If you
 6 didn't change the intent by three-fourths vote of the 7 legislature. That's what I heard from Sam.
 8 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: My understanding of 9 the Prop 200 law is that it was very -- it's very 10 broad, and that then the Secretary of State
 11 promulgated rules to implement that and this --
 12 actually, the Secretary of State who lists the types
 13 of ID that are allowed and that had to receive 14 preclearance.
 15 MR. POWELL: That may be true.
 16 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Okay. I was just 17 wondering if I missed something.
 18 MR. POWELL: It was legislation, wasn't
 19 it? I think it's in the statute.
 20 Military ID as part of the accepted forms
 21 of ID, right?
 22 MS. FERGUSON-BOHNEE: Well, just the 23 accepted forms of ID are listed in the Secretary of 24 State's procedures. And I guess that's why -- I was 25 trying to look it up while I was sitting here, and

1 MS. PROVINE: Well, thank you very much,
 2 Mr. Powell.
 3 I got a last-minute addition here from 4 one of my fellow commissioners. Someone named AJ,
 5 and I'm not quite clear on your last name.
 6 MR. BRE'HAUT: I won't take up a lot of 7 time. I just want to explain what happened to me.
 8 I'm a member of the U.S. Navy and I've been in 9 Arizona about seven -- actually eight years now. I
 10 relocated from San Diego, and since then, I have 11 taken my civic duty to vote. And the last main 12 election when President Obama was running for 13 reelection, I found the idea was kind of weird, I 14 voted at the same place as I had for several years at 15 a church over in my district where the representative
 16 is, Martin Quezada.
 17 And for some reason, when I went to vote,
 18 I was told I cannot vote. They told me, basically,
 19 that I have to fill out a provisional ballot. I 20 became upset at that and confused because I was 21 asking why. They claim they sent me something in the 22 mail, and because I didn't respond to something I did 23 not see in the mail or never recalled getting in the 24 mail, I had to put my ballot into a box and vote in a 25 different manner than I have ever voted in my entire

1 life.

2 On that day, at that moment, as I asked

3 for a supervisor or someone to come and explain this

4 to me because I wanted to take it to the top and find

5 out exactly who is responsible, I got more of a

6 runaround that day than any time that I had ever

7 asked of any service, say they acknowledge you asked

8 for a manager or you're upset or your bill maybe is 9 miscalculated, you can get to a supervisor to fix it.

10 So I took a step and followed the chain

11 of command, obviously, as I was taught in the 12 military.

13 The problem on that day in waiting for 14 that supervisor or someone to come and talk to me, I

15 glanced over at the table where all the voters and 16 folks had voted that day were on the list. They had

17 a party affiliations there, and about 98 percent of 18 anyone who was Democrat or Independent, not

19 Republican, again, if you were Democrat or 20 Independent, you had to fill out a provisional ballot

21 that day.

22 I began to become concerned after so many

23 years of my life -- I went to a college down in 24 Louisiana. I got to see a lot of things, and also

25 being overseas in Afghanistan and other places, I had

1 unfortunate that the education level is third to last

2 in the United States of America in the Union.

3 It speaks to how things are done here in 4 this State of Arizona. I can't speak for other

5 places, but on that day, I felt like I didn't deserve

6 to be there.

7 Thank you for your time.

8 MS. PROVINE: Thank you.

9 Questions from the commissioners? I'm

10 glad you are able to speak because it kind of makes a

11 full circle, doesn't it? Service in Afghanistan and 12 not being able to vote is definitely a problem.

13 MR. BRE'HAUT: Yeah. It's different.

14 You go to other countries and you look and you

15 appreciate what you have back home. But then to come

16 home and get told, No, you can't do that and then see

17 somewhat of a form of a discriminatory fashion.

18 They're saying this party affiliation can vote, but

19 you folks over here, you got to put your ballot in a

20 box. That anyone who knows any history made it feel

21 like you were back in Mississippi somewhere.

22 MS. PROVINE: Thank you very much.

23 That concludes our public testimony. I

24 guess we're at the moment where we wrap this up.

25 Just to start off, as a commissioner who

1 seen how our country is trying to teach other

2 countries to become more democratic, to have free

3 voting rights.

4 The actual act is not being followed here

5 in our own country. It's hypocritical in the fashion

6 in which it's being done.

7 So, to this day, I still have not been

8 confirmed that my vote counted that day. I have not

9 spoken to anyone. I was told by the folks at that

10 facility I had no other choice but to put my vote in 11 a provisional box, without a guarantee.

12 And I felt so alone that day and 13 discriminated against to the point where after

14 serving my country, I stop to wonder, Is this America

15 or is this some Third World country, because this is 16 not the way we do things and not what we teach other

17 places to do. But yet in our own backyard, as Martin

18 talked about and others, it is a disgrace to anyone

19 who goes to vote, who pays taxes, who has done their

20 civic duty to show up and be turned away, and told,

21 You have to do something else.

22 And because of the history with Arizona

23 being one of the last states in America to recognize

24 the Martin Luther King holiday as a national holiday

25 here in this state and also as a discredit, it's

1 has learned a lot, I appreciate so much what people

2 have contributed today and your patience. It's been

3 a long day, but I think we've provided a lot of 4 information for this report that will be going to 5 Congress and that's the purpose of this.

6 It was a fact-finding exercise and we got

7 a lot of facts, and there is a tremendous amount to 8 work on. And I think a lot of those issues have been 9 clarified by the help that people provided today.

10 So thank you, Everyone.

11 (The proceedings concluded at 4:39 p.m.)

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23

24

25

CERTIFICATE

I, Kristy A. Ceton, Certified Court Reporter for the State of Arizona, certify:

That the foregoing proceedings were taken by me; that the testimony was taken down by me in shorthand and thereafter reduced to print by computer-aided transcription under my direction; that the foregoing pages are a full, true, and accurate transcript of all proceedings and testimony had upon the taking of said proceedings, all to the best of my skill and ability.

I FURTHER CERTIFY that I am in no way related to nor employed by any of the parties hereto nor am I in any way interested in the outcome hereof.

DATED this 22nd day of January, 2014.

Kristy A. Ceton
Certified Court Reporter No. 50200
For the State of Arizona

A
abbreviate (2)	12:10,12 13:8 16:8	ACLU (5)	215:11 236:19	administer (4)
77:12 195:24	19:25 20:16 21:2,10	34:22 35:2,9 178:12	added (4)	3:19 64:18 117:20
aberration (1)	23:15 66:15 69:21	224:16	141:18 212:14 234:1	143:4
74:19	72:2,14 73:23 75:21	acres (1)	234:7	administration (15)
abeyance (1)	77:14 79:15 87:7,9	127:22	adding (2)	6:5 14:7 33:9 37:9
188:16	88:15,24 89:2 97:7	act (60)	58:25 138:25	68:17,18,24 70:21
ability (15)	99:19,24 111:25	5:14 10:16,23 11:4,6	addition (6)	71:14 73:4 118:17
29:11 56:13,20 57:15	143:11,21 153:16	13:23 14:5,9 15:4	8:23 10:10 20:24	142:6,12 176:24
69:16 80:12,18	153:22 166:18,24	16:16 18:1,7,9,13	61:23 133:6 237:3	221:25
129:10 130:20	167:7 186:7 202:22	19:9,12 20:15 28:5	additional (16)	administrations (3)
137:24 185:16	226:6 227:16	35:25 36:6,14,20	26:11 32:24 33:19	109:9,9 177:1
225:22 231:10,16	229:15 233:6	38:23 40:18 46:1,11	38:4 47:3 80:14	Administration's (1)
242:12	accessibility (10)	49:11 59:14 64:5	84:11 133:22	148:17
able (40)	53:20 145:17,20	65:18 69:7 70:10,17	138:25 142:3	administrative (2)
3:18,23 10:21 12:22	146:5 155:21,24	71:25 75:9 76:13	160:10 165:11	50:1,1
13:8 32:10,22 33:16	157:19 158:25	87:25 94:17,19,21	179:16,21 182:5	administrators (3)
33:16,18 34:12 44:6	159:3 160:19	96:17 98:15 113:22	204:11	22:6 70:1 139:7
52:23 56:15 76:14	accessible (18)	116:21 144:11,15	Additionally (2)	Admittedly (1)
79:5 81:6 90:2	27:17 78:10 143:24	144:20 145:5 146:3	130:18 139:24	85:15
100:21 111:25	144:5,12,17,18,22	147:10 156:4 158:8	address (49)	adopt (1)
119:23 123:4 134:5	145:21 149:14	160:17 164:22	9:21 26:12 32:1,2,7	50:20
139:4,13 149:14	156:9 157:11,12	203:20,21 210:19	32:10,11,14 33:15	adopted (3)
162:8 163:7,9 165:9	158:2,13,15 159:17	223:5 227:5 239:4	33:15,17 52:9 55:21	42:23 59:15 179:4
165:10 188:21	168:13	action (8)	79:23 96:2 105:2	adopting (1)
189:20 190:10	accessing (1)	9:8 51:3,5,10 102:21	129:7 130:9 133:14	177:2
196:3 214:15	154:6	102:23 191:5	134:14,17 135:6,10	adoption (3)
216:13 224:25	accident (1)	226:22	135:17,18,18,21,25	69:15,23 73:2
240:10,12	180:14	actions (4)	137:10 144:7 146:5	adult (2)
absolutely (5)	accommodation (1)	15:18 55:21 70:16	160:11,13,15	58:24 172:22
35:23 85:16 107:5	158:4	96:21	161:12 168:3 181:4	adults (2)
152:7 224:8	accomplish (1)	active (4)	184:1 185:10,15	58:21 198:18
abundance (1)	168:15	41:8 73:15 91:25	186:20 192:12	advance (3)
225:9	account (7)	109:7	216:17,21,21 221:7	131:24 185:16,25
abuse (1)	186:5,9,11 208:18	actively (4)	225:24 234:2 236:7	Advancement (1)
116:9	213:10 214:5,10	3:16 35:12 45:20	addressed (7)	9:9
Academic (1)	accountability (5)	163:22	21:17 67:24 88:6	advances (1)
7:16	183:18 196:14 205:16	activists (1)	99:20 161:4 166:19	196:19
accept (5)	207:24 210:3	93:23	191:3	advantage (1)
78:16 79:4 124:2	accountable (3)	activities (11)	addresses (18)	213:13
150:10 152:8	94:5 197:19 207:23	22:2 45:12,18 52:7,22	25:24 48:12,14 55:20	adverse (1)
acceptable (7)	accounted (1)	111:14 112:2	56:6,7 69:21 72:10	69:15
78:8 132:15 152:11	58:18	113:13 138:14	76:5 130:1,4 135:24	advisor (2)
185:19 186:2,24	accounting (2)	188:15,22	136:14 165:13	197:22 228:21
187:11	205:9,10	activity (6)	186:12 199:14	advisory (2)
accepted (10)	accounts (3)	20:15 112:17 114:7,9	212:20,20	145:14 229:13
24:10 152:9,20,25	186:4,6,6	114:15 118:16	addressing (5)	advocacy (19)
167:18 181:14	accurate (2)	acts (1)	10:7 56:6 57:4 87:3	6:11 9:2 35:3,13
182:2 185:20	28:18 242:9	116:15	133:13	54:10 55:25 94:23
235:20,23	achieve (3)	actual (8)	adds (1)	94:24 95:1 96:12
accepting (4)	54:10 164:20 168:23	50:3 102:2 126:15	225:16	117:6,12 122:9
164:13 167:13 186:9	achieved (1)	130:13,16 200:16	adequate (2)	143:5 145:15 164:4
214:5	139:10	236:1 239:4	131:8 154:25	164:16 165:15
access (47)	achieving (1)	Adam (1)	adieu (1)	168:20
5:24 6:17 7:7 10:17	64:23	104:7	7:2	advocate (3)
10:21 11:1,8,11	acknowledge (2)	add (5)	adjusting (1)	52:24 94:19 199:23
	93:21 238:7	20:8 105:23 184:7	53:19	advocates (1)

6:23	53:22 54:5 63:20	38:21 84:6 130:7	73:13,24,25 74:8,10	213:5
advocating (3)	231:18	186:21 187:9 192:3	74:14,16,18,20,22	anyone's (1)
46:20 74:13 164:21	agencies (1)	allowed (13)	75:4,6,10,12,15	61:1
affairs (3)	145:12	24:4 41:14 64:13	78:10,11,20 79:4,8	anyway (1)
7:16 78:18 215:8	ages (1)	86:21 113:5 129:8	79:15,20 81:11 83:5	3:9
affect (6)	25:7	130:24 139:18	89:18,23 90:8 95:5	Apache (31)
115:3 139:22 140:8	aggregate (1)	166:14 185:21	103:24 111:10	22:25 23:2,3,12 25:23
150:18 189:15	24:24	186:17 221:12	127:16 145:11	26:7,16,23 27:1,7
220:19	aggressive (1)	235:13	170:19 173:20	28:3,7,14 29:19
affidavits (4)	163:12	allowing (6)	Americans (19)	30:21 33:11 41:19
110:5,17 111:12,23	ago (6)	73:11 103:2 132:16	14:13 40:20 47:5 48:3	55:9 73:14,15,19
affiliate (1)	5:5 81:20 112:15	146:12 213:9,11	69:10,10,22,24 70:3	74:9,11 76:23 77:10
122:9	174:11 214:22,23	allows (5)	74:6,24 78:1,3	88:4,10 92:9,13
affiliates (1)	agree (7)	50:22 84:3 132:18	89:21 91:13 92:18	203:7 223:25
35:5	92:2 96:10 149:19	186:2 195:3	94:3 180:16 202:5	Apaches (5)
affiliation (1)	150:18 163:10	allude (1)	amicus (3)	75:3 88:25 89:1 92:10
240:18	227:9 233:22	21:23	10:11 49:2,6	135:10
affiliations (1)	agreed (1)	alluded (1)	amount (3)	apart (2)
238:17	53:5	22:5	35:20 52:4 241:7	17:22 185:5
affirmed (1)	agreement (2)	allusion (1)	amplified (1)	apologize (5)
220:1	33:3,7	112:14	215:22	57:14 93:5 124:5
affluent (1)	agreements (2)	all-mail (1)	Amy (3)	137:17 208:9
211:5	69:5 70:18	191:17	211:24 212:1 215:20	apologized (1)
afford (1)	AHCCCS (1)	alongside (1)	anachronism (1)	104:13
48:18	199:5	36:10	234:11	apologizing (1)
afforded (2)	aid (2)	Alpine (1)	analyze (1)	57:17
46:9 168:16	139:21 140:19	23:8	75:14	apparently (4)
Afghanistan (3)	aimed (1)	alternative (5)	analyzed (1)	112:7 154:8 160:21
198:1 238:25 240:11	91:15	48:16 49:21 75:16	40:6	219:9
afoot (1)	ain't (1)	159:17 162:15	Anglo (3)	appeal (2)
153:15	232:4	amazing (1)	47:21 103:23 105:3	40:15 67:3
aforementioned (2)	aisle (1)	100:3	Anglos (2)	appear (4)
67:25 76:7	226:7	amended (1)	59:3 64:21	67:19 129:15 130:11
afoul (1)	AJ (1)	219:11	announcement (1)	183:24
65:2	237:4	amendment (6)	4:9	APPEARANCES (1)
afraid (2)	Akimel (1)	13:25 42:23 120:17	announcements (1)	2:10
204:13 215:15	127:19	211:16,17,20	71:7	appeared (1)
African-American (...)	al (3)	amendments (1)	answer (12)	49:2
65:11,19,21,25 66:6,8	96:25 98:6 102:25	175:25	40:8 85:12 90:12,18	appears (2)
66:10 68:1,7 82:5,9	Alaska (1)	amenities (1)	123:23 125:6,7	91:20 192:21
111:9	178:23	69:22	142:15 188:9	application (6)
African-Americans...	Alaskan (1)	America (18)	191:13 198:15	95:25,25 96:2 149:24
65:16 67:1,2,22 81:22	140:18	76:13 118:23,25	201:21	200:16 216:11
82:7 104:2,25 231:5	Alessandra (2)	119:1 124:5,12	answered (1)	applications (3)
231:18	34:7 49:24	144:11,15,20 145:5	194:11	95:21 96:11 123:21
African-American'...	Alfredo (1)	146:2 158:8 160:16	anticipate (1)	applied (2)
66:23	211:2	203:20,21 239:14	115:1	161:16 205:12
afternoon (12)	alien (1)	239:23 240:2	anticipated (1)	apply (1)
102:22 121:3 126:23	83:10	American (65)	161:18	132:8
126:24 127:12	alleged (1)	4:10 6:25 8:16 9:1,7	anti-immigrant (2)	applying (2)
169:1 172:16,18	77:21	10:5,14 12:11,13,20	63:12 91:6	234:13 236:23
176:15 217:11	alleging (1)	19:6,10,10 23:11	anybody (8)	appoint (3)
222:15 228:12	70:16	30:1,24 37:15 46:15	4:11 6:20 49:19 85:12	117:22,24 122:6
age (14)	allocated (4)	47:6,10,23,24 48:1	108:3 119:19 125:8	appointers (1)
38:11 46:15,16,20	52:4 171:9 205:7,19	48:8,10,19,21 53:7	199:25	108:4
53:2,7,7,12,12,14	allow (6)	58:11 70:4 71:1	anymore (1)	appoints (1)

140:1 appreciate (17) 11:25 12:2,9 13:6 73:7 80:2 92:23 106:4 108:17 127:9 137:21 143:8 198:2 228:7 229:6 240:15 241:1 appreciates (2) 73:4 168:22 appreciation (1) 132:14 approach (2) 32:7 178:22 approached (3) 104:11 105:4 109:11 appropriate (2) 7:23 130:22 appropriation (1) 52:17 approval (1) 139:23 approve (1) 157:5 approved (2) 153:9 204:10 approximately (5) 41:10 46:4 57:24 74:3 127:21 April (1) 172:21 arbitrary (1) 17:16 area (10) 22:22 23:10 89:8 95:22 100:7 104:14 107:7 127:23 135:8 231:6 areas (13) 5:7 21:16 33:10 88:19 89:2 99:5 101:8 111:20 124:25 159:12,21 176:25 211:4 argument (1) 124:21 Arizona (326) 1:4,14 2:3,4,5 3:1,19 3:25 4:3,18 5:15,25 6:8 7:9,12,14,17,25 9:2,2,3,3,4,5,6,22 10:3,4,4,6,9,15,19 10:20 11:25 12:7,18 12:21 13:9,18 15:10 16:3,23 17:2 18:1,2 19:5,16 20:13,15,17	22:9,15 23:4 25:11 26:19 27:19 34:22 35:2,12 36:24 37:8 38:1 39:20,21,25 40:7,12,21 41:9,14 42:7,9,13,23 43:2 44:18,18,23,25 45:11,18 46:8,12 48:2,6,10,25 49:3 49:23 52:1,14 54:12 57:13 58:23 59:3,13 59:15,24 60:11,16 61:7,21,25 62:5,13 62:19,22 63:21 64:9 64:10,15,17,21 65:11,14,19 66:4,9 66:10,20 67:1 68:1 68:13,17,22 72:19 73:16,23 74:1,3,4,6 74:18 75:3,8,15,20 75:23 77:20,23 78:13 80:8,10,24 81:22 82:25 83:1,8 83:13 85:24 87:21 87:22,23 90:24 91:1 91:9,22 92:1,6 93:7 93:10,12,18,22 95:2 96:7,13,15,16,22,22 97:11 99:15,16 102:24 103:2 105:7 106:20 107:17 108:22,25 109:15 109:25 110:14 113:9,16 114:4,21 114:23 115:3,18,21 116:3,5 117:6,12,13 117:15,18 121:2 122:8,9 124:24 125:25 131:10 134:9 137:25 138:2 138:9,10,17,23 139:4,12,17 140:2,5 140:5,7,15,20 141:3 141:25 142:5,7 143:1,4,14,19 144:10,16 146:3,13 146:16 147:1,3,4,6 147:7 148:1,6 149:4 149:21 151:13,25 152:2 154:23 155:6 160:21 162:3,5,14 162:25 164:4,8,15 164:16 165:6,9,14 165:14,17,22 166:18 167:6,9,16 168:2,20,21 169:3	169:18 171:12 172:20,21,24,25 173:10 177:1,5,13 178:8,11,13 180:7 181:25 185:11 188:4 190:6 191:3 192:15 194:22 195:1 196:16 197:19 199:20 202:12 204:24,25 207:8,16 210:5 212:3 218:10 219:7 219:21 220:7,8 225:24 226:16 227:5 229:1,13,14 229:16 230:23 232:19,23,24 234:15 237:9 239:22 240:4 242:4 242:20 Arizonans (2) 168:13 228:17 Arizona's (7) 35:15 59:12 63:20 66:12 139:25 141:21 175:13 armed (1) 112:8 Army (1) 197:25 arrangement (1) 135:2 ASA (3) 138:3,3,11 aside (2) 52:19 83:7 asked (15) 9:17 34:10 96:3 98:21 101:5 104:4,13 105:24 119:18 201:22 216:2 232:1 238:2,7,7 asking (7) 61:5,24 83:9 105:7 112:9 125:22 237:21 asks (1) 199:1 asserting (1) 51:5 assess (1) 132:7 assessor (1) 27:14 assigned (2) 8:5 166:11	assist (1) 188:13 assistance (7) 70:9,18 71:22 95:16 96:25 163:1 171:24 Assistant (1) 108:21 assisting (1) 128:16 Associate (1) 7:15 associated (1) 22:2 Association (7) 9:5,8 10:5,5 37:12 138:3 232:19 assume (1) 161:9 assumed (1) 27:11 assumptions (1) 105:15 assurance (1) 170:6 assure (3) 94:4 131:23 144:24 astounding (1) 112:24 ASU (16) 3:12 4:5 141:6 151:24 186:4,5,9 197:23 213:10 214:5,10 215:9,21 216:2,12 217:22 as-needed (1) 88:9 ate (1) 121:15 attached (1) 200:16 attack (3) 17:17 47:25 203:3 attacks (1) 18:15 attempt (8) 11:14 44:14,14 62:10 77:21 83:1,13 226:12 attempted (2) 59:8 85:14 attempting (1) 215:2 attempts (4) 48:9 63:7 74:7 132:20 attending (1) 197:10	attention (3) 105:6 118:12 210:1 attest (1) 187:2 attitudes (1) 82:1 attorney (16) 4:19 37:23 96:22 108:21,23 109:12 110:4 143:16 147:1 147:11 148:9 152:21 153:9 164:9 176:18 220:4 Attorney's (1) 166:20 attract (1) 86:22 at-large (4) 38:4,8 51:10 80:25 August (1) 165:8 aunt (1) 56:17 authority (1) 225:21 authorized (1) 113:23 automated (1) 110:19 automatically (2) 95:24 104:3 availability (1) 131:9 available (14) 4:11 6:20 8:17 12:4 72:4 96:11 131:12 139:21 160:7,12,16 183:6,7 216:23 Avenue (1) 2:4 average (4) 28:9 53:24 123:9 178:7 Avondale (1) 233:3 aware (1) 25:19 awareness (1) 139:8 AZ (1) 1:24 a.m (4) 1:15 2:2 3:2 57:25
B
B (1)

210:22	186:25 187:1,3,10	151:5 155:12,24	95:25 201:7 224:1	190:18
baby (1)	187:11 189:11,14	166:22	Bennett (2)	black (2)
41:15	189:24 194:1 198:7	basic (3)	165:6,16	14:12,13
back (40)	206:3,4,7,16 207:1	93:25 180:21 203:8	best (9)	blame (1)
15:16 28:25 40:25	213:4 215:13,17	basically (9)	31:8 71:22 114:1	203:15
41:24 57:24 76:15	218:10 221:4 222:1	53:18 116:6 124:10	162:15 184:8	blank (1)
86:20 87:9 98:23	227:16 231:11,17	125:17 184:17	190:23 201:23	155:3
105:22 116:3,7	231:17,18 233:5,10	227:8 233:24	227:7 242:11	bless (1)
126:20 141:4 154:4	233:10,12,16,18,19	234:18 237:18	better (25)	106:1
154:15,19 157:1	235:5 237:19,24	basis (5)	14:4 50:9,10 51:21	blind (2)
181:18 187:14	238:20 240:19	15:18,22 36:21 56:3	71:18 85:8 130:7	144:23 160:2
188:19 189:6	ballots (82)	119:7	132:11 136:10	blocking (1)
196:12 198:8	6:7,9 22:5 35:17	battle (2)	151:14 157:7,10	36:7
200:19 202:15	64:19 67:18 71:18	17:8 225:1	174:15 175:17,21	blood (1)
206:11 210:11	76:1,12 79:1,11,12	battles (1)	178:8 184:9,9,22,22	65:17
213:14,17 214:4	97:25 98:3 103:20	17:23	184:23 185:1,5	blow (1)
216:25 219:19	103:21 104:3	beautiful (1)	193:15 194:3	223:24
222:12 226:21	111:18 113:11	4:23	beyond (1)	board (20)
229:21,25 232:16	118:2 129:9,11,12	began (3)	142:4	37:10 38:5 41:18 51:9
240:15,21	129:13,19,21,22	12:15 84:9 238:22	bidder (1)	55:6 115:25 117:7
background (3)	130:10,11,13,21	begins (1)	211:20	117:12,23 123:3
42:9 204:19 228:20	131:9,10,11,13	72:4	bifurcated (1)	140:2,2 143:7
backward (2)	132:2,2 133:3,14	behalf (14)	146:15	175:14 197:23
100:11 232:5	134:4 165:24 166:3	10:11 19:16 23:2 49:8	bifurcation (1)	204:9 223:12,13,16
backwards (2)	170:8,14 171:5,15	57:19 58:15 73:12	25:10	229:2
11:15 43:12	172:6 174:24 175:1	93:9,11 97:10	big (8)	boards (2)
backyard (2)	177:16,23 178:2	109:17,20 110:24	20:18,21 150:17,21	18:17 50:8
225:18 239:17	180:3,13,22 181:6	143:7	158:5 214:23	Bob (1)
bad (3)	181:14,16,18,19	beings (1)	216:16 217:1	36:10
119:7 190:2 221:7	183:18,19,19	57:10	biggest (1)	body (1)
bail-in (1)	184:12 185:11,14	belief (3)	57:4	128:1
38:21	187:5,7 189:16,21	94:1 124:11 151:9	bill (7)	boggles (1)
ballot (116)	191:3 192:17	believe (22)	22:7 91:19 110:4	91:11
5:24 7:7 10:21 11:9	193:10,22 194:10	36:3 44:18 58:2 92:5	119:13 170:9	bono (1)
11:11 18:16 24:4,9	203:14,17 206:1	102:2,10,15 111:16	227:12 238:8	224:24
56:22 63:2 67:9	209:21,23 231:13	115:15 116:8	bills (4)	bookmark (1)
71:7,15 73:24 76:2	233:15	133:20 135:3	167:17 212:25 226:11	125:17
77:2,16,19 79:16	ban (2)	146:18 153:24	227:15	Bookmarks (1)
86:18 90:1 104:12	35:16 50:6	191:21 192:21	bipartisan (1)	209:1
107:6 108:8 111:4	bank (2)	197:1,13 215:21	35:24	books (2)
111:12 112:1,8,10	186:6 212:25	222:6 224:3 227:15	birth (8)	191:18 193:3
113:8 114:16	Baptist (2)	believes (2)	78:17 84:4 139:10,16	booth (1)
116:15 128:18	65:13,23	140:15 168:21	140:13 141:9 162:8	175:6
129:15,23 130:14	bar (2)	believing (1)	216:6	border (2)
130:15,15,21 131:1	10:5 40:1	139:13	birthdate (1)	23:8 134:23
131:3,4,15,16	barrier (2)	bellman (1)	154:3	bordered (1)
134:11 148:19,20	90:17 146:5	229:8	Bishop (3)	23:4
158:10 160:3,5,5	barriers (11)	belong (1)	102:20,23 103:15	born (2)
166:24 168:5	60:6 80:7 99:21	124:9	bit (14)	78:15 172:21
170:11,16 171:20	127:16 142:25	belongs (1)	20:25 28:6 29:5 30:17	borne (1)
171:20,25 172:3	143:22 164:15	19:3	100:14,14 103:7	153:17
173:16 175:11	165:17 173:8 174:9	beneficial (1)	151:16 198:4	bottom (4)
177:4,5 179:6,13,14	176:21	44:9	204:19 205:15	159:5 177:7 218:16
179:17,20 181:9,10	based (11)	benefit (4)	209:22 218:22	227:4
182:6,11 183:10,15	5:3 14:1 23:14 61:1	44:24 171:6 224:8,24	230:2	boundaries (2)
184:3,19 186:21,24	62:14 76:7 83:17	benefits (3)	bite (1)	80:15 98:2

box (11) 18:16 79:16 130:15 136:1 187:3 216:10 227:16 233:19 237:24 239:11 240:20	burden (5) 50:19 51:4 55:8 224:3 224:9	47:7 48:11 55:18 74:25 109:12 115:7 128:19,24 168:11 210:13,14,15,18,20 211:7,11	case-by-case (2) 15:18,22	21:8 26:12 27:12 33:22 40:1 46:7 104:22 112:9 140:16 191:25 192:2 boxes (4) 48:13 57:5 135:19 138:17	burdensome (5) 39:3 54:21 139:15 140:21 146:19	canvas (1) 199:11	cast (22) 56:21 63:2 77:16 129:9,19,22 177:6 177:17,24 179:7,10 179:13 180:13 184:2 186:22,24 187:1 193:10,12,24 231:10,17	certainly (19) 37:22 44:22 50:12 73:9 83:16 86:15 91:9,14 110:14,20 112:6 113:21 115:15 143:13 152:9 156:5 192:19 211:10 230:22
branch (1) 128:6	Bureau (1) 78:18	canvassed (1) 199:13	casted (1) 170:8	certificate (17) 60:17,24 61:2 78:17 83:12 84:5,7,11,12 84:16,18 85:1,4 139:16 141:9 162:8 242:1
branches (1) 7:9	Bush (2) 36:9 37:9	Canyon (1) 159:5	casting (3) 131:15 180:2 181:19	certification (1) 184:4
break (5) 57:24,25 126:19,22 164:2	busiest (1) 131:6	cap (1) 59:9	casualties (1) 69:11	Certified (4) 1:24 2:5 242:3,20
breakdown (1) 197:4	business (3) 57:17 211:16 213:25	capacity (1) 73:19	catch (1) 44:16	certify (2) 242:4,13
breaking (1) 184:11	button (1) 28:12	capital (1) 27:3	catching (1) 209:12	cetera (4) 226:16 231:22,22 234:10
BRE'HAUT (2) 237:6 240:13	C	captains (1) 234:10	categories (1) 90:24	Ceton (4) 1:23 2:5 242:3,19
brief (5) 35:20 36:2 49:6 196:2 228:20	California (4) 108:22 115:20 178:23 232:22	car (1) 156:22	category (1) 25:16	chain (1) 238:10
briefly (2) 39:18 109:23	California's (1) 115:22	card (4) 198:11,13 213:1,5	Caucus (1) 109:6	chair (3) 118:3 156:23 217:16
briefs (1) 10:11	call (14) 41:1 87:8 93:3 99:9 103:8,9,11 107:22 108:2,3 110:10 160:8 186:15,21	cards (6) 93:2,17 132:15 165:25 167:22 185:22	caught (2) 17:18 209:11	chairman (5) 36:12 109:4,6 202:11 202:13
bring (9) 30:9 78:22 105:6 110:11 117:2 159:20 193:8 213:9 213:20	called (10) 18:21 31:22,25 94:23 108:11,11 124:11 128:2 186:5 206:2	care (3) 4:14 53:15 119:20	cause (2) 50:21 64:17	chairperson (1) 217:12
bringing (3) 51:3 209:20,25	calling (3) 38:16 56:6 107:22	cares (1) 108:11	caused (2) 152:24 212:15	chairs (5) 27:22 34:8 117:21 122:13,14
brings (1) 197:5	calls (7) 56:18 98:25 110:8,17 110:17,19 135:22	Carlos (7) 73:14,15,18 74:9 88:4 88:10 92:9	causes (3) 25:13 173:25 197:4	challenge (11) 6:5 15:6,8,10,12,18 42:22 48:18 159:11 159:21 189:19
broad (2) 60:3 235:10	camera (1) 117:9	carried (1) 187:13	census (4) 28:18 46:17 58:16 222:24	challenged (7) 42:21 48:12 98:7 99:17 165:2 186:14 206:20
broken (2) 87:11 159:9	campaign (6) 95:7 98:20,25 118:24 204:4,12	carry (4) 29:18 30:2 57:11 140:12	center (5) 9:3 110:11 143:1,15 145:12	challenges (6) 13:15 26:4 48:21 55:18 161:24 167:9
brother (2) 56:16,18	campaigns (3) 123:17 128:20 223:15	case (20) 17:10 34:4 41:15 49:2 49:4 54:20 56:14 62:12 64:3 96:15,24 97:14 131:17 147:5 157:21 183:4,23 219:11,12 220:11	centers (2) 183:20 208:24	challenging (7)
brought (8) 39:6 62:24 69:2 82:24 85:24 117:13 159:9 181:18	campus (4) 138:12 141:6 212:8 213:14	cases (10) 3:22 35:10 49:1 51:20 52:12 134:25 207:13,14 208:6 230:5	central (3) 95:6 118:1 138:11
budget (2) 30:18 31:4	candidacy (1) 48:11	Casey (4) 137:18 138:1 151:24 161:8	cents (1) 108:10
building (2) 33:25 159:14	candidate (8) 80:12 81:6,7 98:17 109:13 110:25 112:6 211:2		centuries (1) 124:16 builds (1) 202:5	candidates (16)		century (4) 17:13 47:25 231:13 231:25
built (3) 18:20 57:2 169:25			ceremonies (2) 82:19 83:20 ceremony (3) 60:10,20 83:22
			certain (11)

15:21 38:7 48:6 65:22 67:2 130:6 224:18 chance (5) 89:7,11 162:12 176:17 212:11 Chandler (1) 127:24 change (25) 37:14 50:18,20 55:12 77:5,6 89:21 91:25 96:2 114:24 130:1 136:16 137:9 140:19 180:15 181:20 192:17 193:2 197:2 219:25 225:22 227:23 234:5 235:5,6 changed (17) 13:7 20:12 26:18 59:16 113:10 152:11 153:25 178:14 181:22 182:18,18,19 215:21 221:22 234:25 235:1 236:3 changes (30) 11:7 15:1 18:1 26:12 35:17 36:3 37:10 39:4,12,15 66:13 69:13 99:25 100:1 113:24 149:5,9 178:12 180:17 184:25 185:1,4 191:2 208:3,7 220:3 220:5 228:2 234:17 234:19 changing (5) 115:9 148:7 176:3 216:1 225:15 chapter (3) 32:3 33:23 98:13 character (1) 20:12 charge (1) 181:13 charged (2) 45:21 47:18 Charles (4) 2:14 7:8 17:1 22:14 charter (1) 199:21 check (11) 8:4 66:11,16,21,25 67:5,14,18,20,22 219:17	checked (1) 216:10 checking (1) 159:2 checklist (1) 123:4 checks (1) 184:8 check-and-balance ... 181:8 chest (1) 52:5 chew (1) 151:22 chief (1) 186:16 choice (15) 37:16 44:6 47:7 50:24 53:10 74:25 77:18 81:7 89:3,3,7 94:14 220:15,16 239:10 choose (3) 140:5 156:14 166:25 choosing (2) 16:23 225:3 church (8) 65:13,24 103:16 104:17 105:2,5 179:19 237:15 churches (1) 103:16 circle (1) 240:11 Circuit (2) 219:12 220:2 cited (3) 63:3 115:20 184:15 cities (2) 20:21 127:24 citizen (16) 26:14 58:21,24 59:14 60:13 63:20 82:21 94:1,4 98:11 107:6 170:10 221:1,18,19 232:20 citizenry (2) 20:10 126:17 citizens (45) 5:25 11:12 12:14 13:4 13:17 16:1 18:14 23:19 24:1,2 27:18 55:4 60:7 61:17 62:2,2 83:9 86:3 88:11 91:1,8,22 94:7,8 103:3 120:22 120:23 121:11	123:13 126:15 130:4 155:20 164:21 165:8,20,21 165:24 166:5 167:4 168:17 221:5,14,20 221:23 233:9 citizenship (37) 6:1 17:15,20 25:12 59:18,21 60:10,14 60:23 61:1,15 64:14 83:5 84:23 85:4,5 90:25 139:1 140:11 142:4,11,12 147:16 149:18 150:1,5,10 150:12,13 152:3 154:22,25 163:2 202:21 216:3 222:3 233:24 city (10) 18:17 55:20 56:8 87:14,18 109:2 197:21 229:1 233:3 233:4 civic (10) 164:17,23 169:6,18 173:2,8 174:13 217:5 237:11 239:20 civics (1) 141:22 civil (14) 4:20 9:1 16:22 34:24 35:3 36:7 40:6 51:9 58:12 157:24 194:19 202:4,13 228:24 claim (3) 38:13 63:8 237:21 claiming (1) 63:14 clanship (3) 24:6 56:14 57:8 clarified (2) 208:14 241:9 clarify (2) 134:9 208:12 clarifying (1) 114:14 class (3) 125:5 140:13 223:1 classes (2) 213:16 222:3 classroom (2) 25:4 31:14 clause (1) 14:23	clean (5) 117:13 164:21 205:3 210:15,19 clear (7) 75:13 138:24 152:4 166:17 175:14 176:1 237:5 clearly (5) 8:13,14 67:18 134:9 220:16 Cleveland (1) 193:21 client (1) 60:8 clients (2) 144:2 230:16 climate (2) 66:13 91:25 clinic (4) 7:20 9:4,17,25 clinics (1) 3:18 close (6) 24:7 97:8 135:7 173:11 178:3 192:20 closely (5) 10:1 24:6 26:15 27:4 33:10 clubs (1) 99:9 clueless (1) 199:10 coal (1) 159:14 Coalition (2) 168:21 169:19 coalitions (1) 19:14 Coconino (8) 37:12 95:20 150:6,10 150:19 154:5,21 229:2 code (3) 14:11 62:5 91:5 coded (1) 61:10 Coie (2) 41:5,5 coincide (1) 26:19 coincidental (1) 226:17 collaborated (1) 169:5 collaborates (1)	70:22 collaboration (1) 71:20 colleagues (1) 226:5 collect (4) 16:23 22:12 162:6 189:21 collected (1) 173:15 collecting (1) 67:9 collection (1) 179:3 collective (1) 70:24 collectively (2) 16:4 229:19 collects (1) 184:15 college (20) 2:4 3:6 4:22 7:21 8:23 38:6 138:23 141:23 142:1 154:14 163:4 166:7 167:21 185:24 186:3 224:18 233:25 236:14,23 238:23 colleges (1) 236:18 color (12) 14:17 67:10 80:9 91:21,24 92:6 109:15 113:2 116:16 166:6 229:20 230:3 Colorado (3) 45:19 52:2 63:11 Colored (1) 9:9 Columbia (2) 50:16 178:22 combat (2) 62:19 77:21 come (37) 22:19,22 30:7 34:8 40:25 43:22 100:10 104:20 127:10 135:1 136:9 139:12 146:13 147:12 151:16 154:4,19 156:10 157:1 182:4 188:18,19 189:12 191:7 203:4 206:9 208:12 211:4 213:17 218:25
--	---	--	--	--

230:10 233:4 238:3 238:14 240:15 comes (9) 63:19 125:2,12,19 184:4 196:16 216:6 219:19 221:2 comfort (1) 100:20 comfortable (5) 54:13 56:12 132:20 136:20 174:20 coming (21) 3:6,25 20:4,5 21:13 22:22 55:6 99:7 116:18 125:16 154:2,15 189:6 206:23 210:6,7 214:4 228:7 229:24 231:6 232:13 command (2) 225:12 238:11 commenced (1) 2:2 comment (6) 8:9 55:2 80:23 229:9 229:11 230:25 commentary (1) 45:23 commented (1) 80:24 commenting (1) 232:20 comments (9) 57:22 72:9 73:5,8 86:16 102:25 143:9 217:14 232:6 commission (53) 1:1 2:2 3:24 4:15,17 5:11 6:18 7:4 12:3 34:21,25 42:25 43:7 43:16,22 44:12 45:14,15 47:18 48:22 49:8 54:16 55:21,24,25 56:24 57:20 58:7 68:3 73:22 74:17 75:3,9 79:24 96:25 99:16 99:24 100:3 108:20 109:2,19 113:20 127:5 132:24 136:8 163:2 172:17 176:11 201:22,25 202:15 207:19 222:16 commissioner (19) 7:4,19 9:18 12:1	13:14 17:4 41:25 47:20 133:15 134:19 136:6,11 137:20 151:2 164:12 185:9 194:7 197:21 240:25 commissioners (40) 7:3,22 8:24 9:13 11:19 20:1 27:23 34:12 47:11 49:15 65:9 80:3 97:15,22 101:11 127:2,14 137:21 142:9,22 164:13 169:2 172:18 176:16 181:2 190:25 194:13 196:8 198:3 201:10,15 209:18 211:23 222:9 227:2 228:4,13 232:9 237:4 240:9 Commission's (2) 168:23 229:6 commitment (1) 7:5 committed (1) 132:10 committee (17) 4:20 5:1 9:20 16:22 34:23 36:12 51:8 118:4,19,22 121:24 122:1,11 176:16 202:12,13 224:17 committees (1) 122:3 committing (1) 67:16 common (6) 75:23 76:8,22 129:14 129:25 130:2 commonality (1) 191:10 commonly (1) 14:11 communicate (3) 56:13 171:13 175:22 communication (5) 131:19 169:8 172:2,5 208:19 communications (2) 133:17,20 communities (23) 23:23 30:22 32:6 35:6 59:7 67:9 81:5 95:5 109:15 116:15 132:11 173:3,7	174:8 190:11 202:5 223:17,18,19 224:12 226:12 229:22,25 community (63) 3:8 5:8 12:17 18:16 24:10 29:19 30:4,6 32:14 38:5 39:16 58:17 67:8 75:6 82:6 87:4 90:15,17 106:17 111:9 119:18 127:1,14,17 127:18 128:2,2,16 131:25 133:6,12,18 134:10 135:7 137:7 137:8,12 138:22 141:23 168:9 169:11,25 171:6 172:11 173:19,20 174:2 190:12,14,15 190:21 196:11 208:24 218:18,18 223:1,20,25 224:18 225:8 227:21 236:14,18 community's (3) 128:10,21 129:2 community-based (1) 59:25 compact (1) 46:7 compared (4) 59:3 72:6,21 207:14 compel (1) 207:4 complain (1) 99:13 complained (1) 76:19 complaint (3) 107:11 109:19 113:16 complaints (2) 116:5 219:4 complete (2) 31:19 233:18 completed (1) 127:8 completely (2) 32:23 85:9 completing (1) 130:5 completion (1) 26:1 complex (6) 25:15 122:25 123:9 146:18 147:23	148:4 compliance (1) 94:19 complicated (6) 20:18,23 40:3,20 158:18 209:21 complicates (1) 133:8 complied (2) 16:5 224:5 comply (3) 166:14 203:20,22 component (2) 80:18 212:14 comprehensive (1) 6:19 comprise (2) 63:19 179:2 comprised (4) 23:10 127:19 128:3,7 computer (4) 61:9 148:4 149:6 154:18 computers (1) 119:24 computer-aided (1) 242:8 comrades (1) 17:9 concentrated (1) 20:21 concentrations (1) 21:7 concern (9) 24:13,20 25:2 29:14 31:16 56:1 81:17 85:20 210:5 concerned (2) 181:6 238:22 concerning (4) 25:1 29:2 40:9 182:8 concerns (18) 10:7,8 23:18 26:4 35:18 49:5 55:22 73:1 103:5,6 197:7 197:22 223:21,21 225:5 226:20,21 228:17 conclude (1) 132:13 concluded (1) 241:11 concludes (1) 240:23 conclusion (3) 48:22 73:3 151:8	condition (1) 206:8 conditional (6) 78:25 206:3,3,16 209:20,23 conditions (2) 36:23 54:3 conduct (3) 138:12 144:8 204:4 conducted (2) 207:11 210:12 conducting (4) 64:16 146:22 151:9 204:21 Conference (3) 7:9 17:2 19:17 confirm (3) 60:23 61:1 76:14 confirmed (4) 8:3 76:16 219:24 239:8 conflict (1) 30:10 confuse (1) 123:1 confused (7) 40:11 77:5 85:19 86:5 168:10 214:6 237:20 confusing (7) 77:7 136:24 146:18 146:20,22,23 163:16 confusion (10) 25:13 26:21 64:17 167:3 174:1 182:20 212:16 215:18 225:9,16 Congress (23) 6:25 13:20 19:7 22:13 35:23 36:10 38:16 40:16,17 49:9 50:5 145:25 146:2 151:4 160:24 177:11 181:1 207:20,22 226:21 227:4,19 241:5 Congressional (3) 14:3 42:12 226:22 consecutive (2) 67:15 170:16 consensus (1) 82:5 consent (3) 69:4 70:17 114:1 consequences (1)
---	--	---	---	---

140:25 conservative (1) 203:4 consider (9) 51:12 70:2 82:9 120:23 125:9 181:1 181:1 224:11 231:24 considerable (1) 20:14 consideration (4) 50:13,14 75:11 78:9 considered (1) 171:7 consisted (1) 47:2 consistency (1) 214:15 consistent (3) 96:8 220:7,8 consists (1) 46:22 consolidated (2) 205:22 216:9 consolidation (1) 225:14 constant (1) 169:8 constantly (1) 85:13 constituencies (1) 176:23 constitute (1) 46:7 constituted (1) 177:21 constitution (10) 42:20,24 51:13,15 65:4 94:9 120:15 123:20,22 175:25 Constitutional (6) 35:8 36:21 38:8,13 69:17 120:16 consultation (1) 24:16 consumers (1) 120:24 contact (4) 33:16,18 154:16 175:24 contacted (2) 110:4 130:22 contacting (1) 182:3 contemporary (1) 18:10	context (2) 50:25 86:8 contingency (1) 162:1 continue (21) 5:6 25:22 34:16 47:21 71:12 97:3,7 129:3 146:1,4 162:10 165:17 206:20 208:5,8 225:25 227:22,22,24,25 230:24 continued (5) 6:4,5,11 78:19 190:20 continues (3) 12:25 14:8 96:23 continuing (1) 12:11 continuously (2) 47:20 99:17 contract (1) 189:13 contradictory (1) 231:2 contributed (2) 197:14 241:2 contribution (1) 197:2 contributions (2) 210:22 211:6 contributor (1) 196:20 controlling (1) 21:12 conveniently (1) 63:13 convening (1) 34:25 conversation (1) 108:13 convert (1) 32:10 converted (2) 32:4,13 conviction (1) 194:23 convictions (3) 16:13 40:10 194:17 convince (1) 50:5 cooperation (3) 88:7,14 122:13 coordinated (1) 33:4 coordinates (1) 32:21	coordinating (1) 119:5 coordination (4) 33:2 71:20 88:5,7 copies (2) 109:18 117:1 copy (1) 101:22 core (1) 13:24 corporation (1) 211:18 correct (17) 26:2 32:17 76:17 112:19 153:7 154:17 179:8,13 182:12,14 183:14 184:1 186:22 193:16 204:6 209:8 209:9 Corrections (1) 229:14 correctly (4) 35:25 93:14 169:13 209:4 corruption (1) 164:23 cosponsors (1) 119:12 cost (14) 49:20 50:12 51:18,24 64:16 65:16 67:11 198:18,22 224:9,10 224:14,21 227:20 costing (1) 149:7 costly (5) 22:7 25:13 50:10 147:23 149:4 costs (6) 50:1,1,3 51:15 54:4 225:6 cost-effective (1) 48:17 couch (1) 105:10 couched (2) 91:4 92:3 council (14) 7:12 9:5 10:4 11:24 87:14,18 96:16 128:2 143:8 145:14 147:3 165:5 229:2 229:13 councils (1) 18:17	counsel (1) 68:13 count (12) 118:1 146:8 179:17 181:9,10 183:18 187:12,16 191:25 192:2,4 206:8 counted (21) 79:12 119:24 130:16 130:17 131:3 170:7 175:17 176:8 181:7 182:6,14,15 184:19 187:3,8,14 190:17 206:16 209:24 233:12 239:8 counties (33) 23:5 24:21 25:10,21 28:8 31:21,23 68:23 69:2 70:7,12,23 71:2 84:9 88:6,8,16 88:17,21 95:19 109:25 133:10,12 133:17 135:19 156:2 160:14 165:19 166:16,25 172:10 174:22 184:10 counting (5) 130:13 177:5 179:4,5 191:24 countless (1) 13:19 countries (2) 239:2 240:14 country (27) 4:4 5:10,15,19,23 9:24 11:7 12:8 20:11 23:6,7 36:24 40:1 69:25 74:4 114:5 119:9 136:9 146:20 161:3 177:19 180:4 206:24 239:1,5,14 239:15 counts (1) 196:22 county (196) 22:25 23:1,2,3,7,12 25:6,15,23,25 26:7 27:1,7,13,13,18 28:3,7,15 29:15,19 30:21 31:2 33:10,14 33:24 35:10,11 36:2 36:16 37:23 38:5 40:3 41:18,19 47:9 47:10,11,18 48:25	49:4,7 51:11 54:19 54:20,21,24 55:10 59:25 60:22 68:20 71:11,14,21 72:25 77:4,10 88:17,17,18 88:21 92:15 100:2 106:8,12 109:5,5,7 109:21 110:9,24,25 111:15,17 112:13 112:16,18,25 113:6 114:2 115:25 116:7 116:14,16 117:21 118:19,20 121:2,4,4 122:3,6,13,14,17 129:20 133:7,19,19 142:9 144:9,14 146:20 147:19,21 148:2,10 149:23 150:2,3,4,6,8,11,14 150:19 151:2 152:20 153:15 154:5,7,12,13,21 156:1,4,6 157:5,8 158:25 160:12 167:17 168:4,7,7 169:9,9,10,10 170:25 171:8,13,18 173:4,11,15,17,22 173:24 174:4,10,14 174:23 175:2,4,10 175:14 176:6 178:14,19 179:13 181:13 182:1 184:14 186:15 187:6 189:10,14,17 191:18 192:3,24 193:14 195:6 197:12 203:7,15,24 204:7,9 207:6 208:21 209:22 216:10,15 217:10 217:13,19,24 219:2 220:22 223:8,25 224:4,4 229:2 County's (1) 129:21 couple (9) 29:1 51:10 77:10 102:25 103:6 104:5 124:16 155:18 218:24 coupled (1) 91:24 course (15) 3:14 5:8 6:6,14,22 22:4 30:21 62:13
--	---	---	--	--

64:10 86:20 93:16 96:19 119:13 120:13 181:20	criminalization (4) 188:15,19 189:7,15	30:18 114:2 145:25 160:25	135:15 144:19 145:1,2 164:15 165:15,19 166:4,12 167:10,11 171:15 171:17,17,18,22 172:7 174:15,21 175:23 179:21 182:20 186:8 187:8 187:13 189:9 194:5 196:3 208:25,25 213:2 214:7,10 227:11,12 231:14 232:3,17 233:11,18 238:2,6,13,16,21 239:7,8,12 240:5 241:3 242:16	109:21 114:2 141:2 141:11 147:3 181:9 219:23 223:9
court (42) 1:24 2:5 5:12 12:17 17:25 18:2,8,19 35:10,11 36:2,18 38:21,25 43:20 49:1 49:2,3,7 50:17 62:23 63:3 64:4 87:23 96:15,19 108:25 109:1 120:13 125:24 165:4,7 173:20 195:6 211:15 219:23 220:11 224:25 225:4 230:14 242:3,20	criminalize (1) 22:2 criminalized (1) 22:3 criminalizing (1) 67:7 criteria (1) 153:25 critical (6) 6:10 19:10 35:23 120:21,22 129:1	cycle (12) 64:24 74:13 75:2 87:6 87:10 99:2 109:10 109:16 111:5 115:14 121:1 128:14 cycles (4) 73:20 130:1 173:9,12 C-span (1) 117:9	decisionmaking (1) 170:5 decisions (2) 125:24 188:17 declared (1) 64:4 decrease (4) 48:2 77:25 92:4,17 decrees (2) 69:4 70:17 dedicated (1) 176:21 deemed (1) 56:1 deep (1) 231:6 default (1) 129:11 defend (1) 17:12 defendants (1) 96:24 defending (3) 117:14 120:8 164:21 defense (4) 9:7 58:11 226:8,9 definitely (8) 8:7 91:20 101:25 102:15 136:15 162:1 213:23 240:12
courts (7) 12:25 21:17 39:8 51:21 164:25 224:21 227:18	Cronkite (1) 207:10 cross (1) 190:10 crossing (1) 134:24 crossover (1) 67:3 cross-issue (1) 153:21 Crow (4) 14:11 98:7,8 231:6 Crows (1) 14:12 Cruz (1) 168:4 cultural (1) 78:6 cumbersome (1) 215:3 curb (1) 63:18 curbside (8) 158:4,4,7,10,12,15,17 159:18 cure-all (1) 194:4 current (11) 5:20 6:25 36:23 38:25 47:15 52:7 65:1 152:13 187:10 219:9 223:14 currently (11) 14:2 45:13 52:13 109:5 138:2 173:20 188:16 199:21 229:16 232:18 234:2 curriculum (1) 31:11 cusps (1) 114:23 cut (4)	daily (1) 67:24 Dakota (1) 179:22 damper (1) 170:20 dark (3) 21:11 115:19 116:1 darkness (1) 206:24 data (4) 85:22 184:9,15 233:25 database (20) 32:4 60:25 61:1,11 62:1,6,14 82:20 95:12 142:7 148:17 152:15 153:16,22 154:6,10 155:9 216:9 219:18 220:25 databases (1) 154:18 date (20) 26:18,19 99:3 101:18 102:3 104:18 112:19,20 114:15 116:16 145:1 175:12,12 204:2,6 204:15 208:13,16 209:6,6 DATED (1) 242:16 dates (3) 26:22,22 99:2 daughter (1) 61:5 day (64) 3:5 4:6,22 7:21 10:8 26:20 60:9 62:10 72:21 77:24 98:19 103:8 119:14	days (9) 15:17 172:7 173:14 204:12 206:12 209:3 217:25 218:6 232:11 day-to-day (1) 140:9 deadline (1) 168:8 deal (7) 21:1 111:10 116:7 150:17,21 215:22 229:12 dealing (2) 21:19 134:17 Dean (1) 7:16 debate (3) 63:22 128:24 197:11 debrief (1) 132:8 decade (2) 58:20,23 December (1) 18:2 decennial (1) 45:18 deceptive (1) 110:7 deceptively (1) 110:9 decide (2) 156:14,17 decided (1) 118:13 deciding (1) 139:19 decision (14) 17:24 18:20 36:15 37:23 64:8 87:23	Democrat (2) 238:18,19

democratic (17) 6:3 13:22 16:7 19:8 20:6 82:12 87:12 109:5,6,9 111:3 118:3 124:13 168:19 217:10,13 239:2	114:7 115:11 desire (1) 196:14 desk (4) 200:15 201:5 232:3 236:15 despair (1) 197:6 despite (5) 18:4 70:11 125:22 129:1 165:16 detail (1) 60:5 detailed (3) 56:2 128:21 180:25 deter (1) 180:11 determination (1) 151:12 determinative (1) 178:4 determine (7) 13:15 79:6 82:16 151:10 155:23 182:2 183:13 determined (1) 38:11 determines (1) 36:17 determining (2) 148:5 184:18 deterrent (1) 48:20 develop (5) 14:3 25:15,22 32:9 70:25 developed (7) 25:9 69:23 71:3 95:6 95:9 146:16 153:8 developing (1) 148:10 development (3) 5:8 25:25 173:1 device (1) 160:3 DFA (1) 124:8 died (1) 231:8 Diego (1) 237:10 difference (3) 87:17 156:23,25 different (25) 21:1 26:21 56:23 82:23 86:11 98:5	104:18 109:25 116:8,19,23,23 148:13 154:2 160:22 162:2 178:22 191:14 205:7 208:22,24 220:12 232:21 237:25 240:13 differently (1) 120:15 difficult (13) 31:4 53:18,23 57:3 63:13 78:11 90:7 125:21 153:19 170:10 195:11 200:7 215:4 difficulties (2) 21:8 138:18 difficulty (3) 21:10,12 143:23 digital (1) 150:8 digits (2) 148:15 219:16 diluted (2) 66:23 74:16 dilution (1) 46:15 dime (1) 198:22 diminish (1) 196:23 diminishing (1) 37:15 direct (6) 82:22 109:14 113:4 140:25 193:16 194:4 directed (5) 45:16 76:17 177:9 178:6 194:1 direction (4) 33:17 82:23 98:22 242:8 directly (2) 99:20 208:17 director (19) 7:11,20 9:16 11:24 34:22 45:13 138:2 143:2 144:24 164:4 164:5,7 169:3 172:20 204:23,25 205:2 215:7 232:18 directors (6) 144:14 145:23 156:2 156:5,6 157:9	dirt (1) 145:20 disabilities (15) 142:24 143:10,12,17 143:19,23 144:22 145:7,9,14 146:6,7 155:20 157:16,25 disability (8) 9:3 143:1,15 145:11 145:15 156:16 158:17 197:22 disagree (1) 150:21 disappreciative (1) 107:24 disbursement (1) 207:23 discarded (1) 177:10 disclosure (1) 39:11 discourage (2) 92:4 167:4 discouraged (4) 79:17 87:2 132:22 150:25 discouragement (2) 87:9 136:4 discouraging (1) 134:3 discovered (1) 110:23 discredit (1) 239:25 discriminate (1) 69:9 discriminated (2) 61:13 239:13 discrimination (20) 5:17,21 7:1 14:19 15:20 16:19 18:11 18:21 21:15 36:8,19 36:23 37:2 38:15,19 39:1,2 74:5 97:8 99:8 discriminatory (8) 14:6 15:24 35:15 39:4 90:15,21 107:25 240:17 discuss (5) 3:8 4:1 35:22 73:21 127:15 discussed (2) 29:3 223:3 discussing (3) 3:14 101:6,19	discussion (6) 4:24 26:24 54:21 89:5 105:21 108:5 discussions (1) 85:13 disenfranchise (6) 16:12 48:9 86:19 167:3 208:18 226:13 disenfranchised (7) 14:12 139:4 204:17 206:2 208:8 209:3 230:6 disenfranchisement... 39:21 54:2 67:14 102:9,10 136:4 177:15 192:16 194:16 disenfranchising (1) 60:4 disgrace (2) 107:8 239:18 dismantling (1) 15:14 disparate (2) 73:25 166:5 disparity (1) 191:4 dispensing (1) 40:12 disposal (1) 110:6 disproportionately ... 78:1 disputing (1) 198:23 distance (1) 72:16 distinguished (2) 172:17 195:16 distributed (2) 205:11 208:23 district (50) 10:24 37:12 38:6,21 42:18 43:14,20 44:2 44:2,4 46:5,22,23 47:12,16,17,22 50:16,17 53:3,5 54:11 67:1 74:11,15 74:18 75:5,12 80:15 81:2,3,3,11,12,15 81:16 92:9,9,12,13 138:10 178:21 190:7 197:15 222:21,22,24 223:13,14 237:15
---	---	---	---	---

districts (24) 15:7 18:12 38:9 42:14 42:15,16 43:10,14 44:7 46:8,25 47:1,4 47:6,12,21 66:22 80:25 98:1 128:1,5 182:18,19 224:19	169:24 Doris (3) 2:11 7:13 19:22 dorm (2) 186:12 216:21 dorms (2) 212:24 213:2 double (1) 177:19 doubt (2) 91:14,14 Downing (1) 110:3 downside (1) 134:7 downtown (1) 124:24 Dr (1) 87:6 drafting (1) 83:3 drawing (1) 197:13 drawn (5) 43:21 80:15 81:2 86:15 197:15 Dreher (6) 137:19,20 138:1 152:7,13 161:25 Dreher's (1) 153:12 dress (1) 117:9 drive (4) 53:25 122:20 141:19 206:13 driver's (21) 61:9,11 62:3,6,8,11 82:20 139:17 152:15 154:24 155:6 162:14 165:23 166:6 167:22 168:3 181:24 186:10 212:19 218:10,11 drives (1) 59:25 drop (2) 233:11,19 dropout (1) 199:20 dropped (2) 106:18 118:2 dropping (1) 203:11 dual (15)	22:5 25:8 139:1 146:13,17,25 149:3 149:16 150:15 152:22 161:7,17,22 217:14 218:20 dual-track (1) 215:5 dubious (1) 22:8 due (6) 25:10 78:4 129:22 139:15 142:13 222:3 duty (3) 16:14 237:11 239:20 Dworkin (6) 58:4 68:9,10,11 80:22 89:16 dynamic (1) 170:22 D.C (1) 5:4	78:9 234:3 236:24 East (1) 190:7 easy (7) 20:7 23:17 48:17 147:21 174:8 233:6 236:21 Eckstein (8) 34:7 37:19 41:2,3,4 45:3 50:12 80:23 edges (1) 86:14 EDR (2) 179:24 180:1 educate (9) 78:21 128:18 162:19 170:25,25 171:9 172:11 204:5 205:20 Educated (1) 196:10 education (30) 5:7 10:6 21:5,21 24:25,25 37:11 66:15 67:6,8 70:22 71:17 78:22 88:9,24 96:12 128:20 131:5 133:22 138:13 163:24 170:2 175:11 176:9 199:23,23 202:7 205:1,19 240:1 educational (5) 9:7 58:11 132:11 217:1 218:19 educations (1) 24:23 effect (7) 37:14 38:2 43:11,17 50:15 60:4 111:13 effective (6) 36:6 39:3 67:3 75:20 87:8,12 effectively (1) 132:12 effectiveness (3) 10:25 74:7,22 effects (2) 63:24 224:11 efficacy (1) 164:18 effort (9) 27:3 88:1 190:7,14 200:9 201:19 204:4 205:1 217:1 efforts (46)	6:11 12:9 17:22 27:16 35:15 45:22 48:23 63:11 70:24 75:19 80:19 82:22 109:14 110:1,2,7 112:25 113:4 115:2,10,14 116:11 128:15,17 129:2 131:14 133:20 135:2 139:6 153:15 167:8 188:1 188:6,7 189:16 198:3 203:6 206:21 223:3 224:20 225:24 226:3,4,14 226:14,15 eight (3) 39:25 195:20 237:9 either (14) 49:22 61:8 76:15 85:3 90:12,18 91:23 118:15 154:1 155:22 180:5 188:5 221:12 230:17 elaborate (1) 87:5 elderly (5) 111:8 170:13 175:3 175:24 181:19 elders (2) 136:25 137:2 elect (12) 37:10,16 44:6 47:7 50:24 53:9 67:2 80:12,18 81:6 190:8 190:22 elected (18) 41:18 42:14,15,18 47:11 67:24 80:10 81:7,14 82:3 94:13 109:11 115:7 128:3 128:8 190:6,8 228:25 electing (1) 74:24 election (201) 3:20 6:5 10:2,2,7 17:21 18:1 23:24 25:3 26:7,11,12,18 26:19,20,22 33:9,22 35:14 40:8,11 41:12 48:11 55:13,14 56:18 61:19 63:8 64:17 66:16 68:14 68:17,18,19,24 69:23 70:21,22,24 71:3,8,13,13,14
--	--	---	---	--

E

72:21 73:3,17,20 74:13 75:22 76:13 76:25 77:6,24 80:15 81:9 87:15,18 88:16 89:8 90:2 92:8 95:16 96:25 98:19 99:2 101:18 102:5 103:8,14 104:18 106:15 107:12 108:1,24 109:10,12 109:16 110:4,11 111:5 112:19,20 113:3 115:14 116:3 117:23,24 118:3,6 118:14,17,17,19,21 119:6,10,12,17 121:9,24 122:10,10 123:3 125:20 128:14 129:6,20 130:1,18 131:7,22 132:6,9 135:15 136:20,23,23 141:1 142:9 144:3,14,18 145:1,2 149:13 151:3,10 157:10 161:16,19 162:12 163:1 164:15,22 165:15,19 166:4,12 167:10,11 171:15 171:17,17,18,22 172:7 173:9,12 174:15,21 175:12 176:20,24,25 177:15,23 178:3,5 179:3,21 181:18 182:2,20 184:21 186:8 187:7,8,13,15 187:17 191:15 192:20 193:22 204:2,12,18 206:12 208:3,3,15,17,25 209:4,7,8,14 210:6 212:9,13 213:3 214:7,20 217:12,16 218:1,7 233:12,19 234:9 237:12	117:14,21 120:4,5,7 122:17 128:12 136:18,19 139:5,14 140:24 141:20 144:24 145:23 147:17,18 148:13 156:1,4,6 157:8 162:17,21 164:10 166:20 168:14 170:17 176:19 185:6 186:15 192:18 205:3 206:9 210:8,11,16,19 214:18 216:10,15 217:19,21 219:4 220:8	63:10 emergency (1) 204:10 emerita (1) 7:14 emphasis (1) 24:24 emphasize (2) 178:23 191:22 employed (1) 242:14 employment (3) 5:7 69:20 207:4 empowers (1) 202:5 enable (1) 26:9 enables (1) 236:24 enacted (2) 37:25 115:11 enactment (2) 15:3 59:22 encompassing (1) 138:11 encounter (1) 170:4 encountered (4) 11:14 87:14,17 200:11 encourage (3) 16:8 94:8 164:23 encouragement (2) 200:1,11 ended (1) 72:8 ends (1) 87:7 energy (1) 141:23 enforce (2) 13:24 48:15 enforceable (1) 54:10 enforcement (3) 111:2 112:4,8 enfranchisement (2) 167:8 188:6 engage (1) 211:12 engaged (5) 3:12,17 35:13 169:4 174:3 engagement (7) 169:6,18 174:13,14 210:17 217:5,5	engagements (3) 173:2,8 210:23 engaging (1) 128:11 English (14) 10:18,22 11:2 20:24 24:19 70:7,19 71:15 89:24 112:20 137:1 137:2 209:2 225:12 engulfed (1) 63:21 enhance (1) 74:17 enhanced (1) 46:16 enhancement (1) 46:20 enjoined (1) 41:19 enlightening (1) 155:15 enlisted (1) 197:25 enroll (1) 216:2 enrolled (1) 127:20 ensure (19) 7:24 12:9 13:4,7 14:5 16:14 26:1,10 35:7 45:25 53:8,9 70:13 70:18 74:11 79:19 128:12 146:2 169:10 ensuring (1) 68:25 entered (2) 105:15 220:25 entire (2) 113:15 237:25 entirely (1) 162:9 entities (1) 70:24 entrances (1) 145:21 entry (2) 64:1 65:1 envelope (2) 187:1,12 equal (3) 7:7 12:10 79:15 equality (1) 19:8 equally (1) 70:14	equipment (2) 159:19 205:5 era (1) 14:2 Erandi (3) 2:17 4:19 121:17 error (4) 86:14 180:10 193:25 208:20 errors (1) 180:20 especially (18) 24:18 30:24 34:23 84:15 105:7 138:17 159:21 164:18 173:7,9 174:1,21 182:17 184:24 196:16 214:24 223:24 226:22 Esquire (1) 98:8 essential (2) 26:1 69:7 essentially (1) 194:22 Establish (1) 38:17 established (7) 27:1 42:1,3 118:4,18 118:21 233:21 establishes (1) 170:14 establishing (1) 34:25 esteemed (1) 17:5 estimating (1) 49:22 et (5) 96:25 226:16 231:22 231:22 234:10 ethical (1) 196:15 ethnic (1) 50:23 event (2) 9:1,11 events (2) 4:2 8:20 Evers (1) 17:10 everybody (7) 83:21,23,25 97:4 106:21 164:11 201:6 evidence (5)
---	---	--	---	--

63:3 75:2 141:17 152:1 175:19 exact (2) 223:4,6 exactly (4) 32:17 43:7 223:2 238:5 examined (1) 96:16 example (17) 33:13,22 53:4 59:10 67:12 76:24 77:9 86:10 128:23 131:21 149:22 181:15 182:22 186:4 196:24 206:19 210:25 examples (1) 37:4 excellent (4) 151:21 191:12 195:17 224:16 Exchange (1) 140:18 excited (4) 60:11 83:24 93:20 150:23 exclusion (1) 63:25 Excuse (1) 142:19 executive (9) 7:11 11:24 34:22 128:6 143:2 164:3,7 172:20 232:18 exemplary (1) 87:25 exercise (6) 29:11 60:14 69:16 90:2 217:5 241:6 exercised (1) 157:18 exercising (1) 89:19 exist (9) 56:5 83:6,6 196:21 207:8,8,9,15 234:13 existence (1) 57:11 existing (4) 15:25 73:1 94:20 218:13 exists (4) 14:21 36:20 47:8 181:8 exited (2)	60:19 76:25 expand (7) 6:17 27:3 38:20 50:6 99:19 100:8 185:18 expanded (2) 59:7 186:17 expanding (5) 16:8,9 20:10 48:7 236:17 expansion (1) 167:7 expect (3) 6:24 66:4 198:15 expected (2) 56:4 140:14 expense (2) 25:17 75:17 expensive (3) 15:23 17:16 220:18 experience (8) 8:6 44:8,20,20 93:22 156:10 175:13 230:9 experiences (3) 109:14 126:16 173:7 expert (3) 229:8,9,10 expertise (1) 153:20 experts (2) 12:6 35:1 explain (6) 29:5 30:19 135:12 163:15 237:7 238:3 explained (2) 178:17 209:24 explanation (1) 178:10 explore (1) 136:16 exploring (2) 134:22 135:3 expound (1) 136:3 expressed (6) 23:19 24:13 30:4 49:5 109:13 223:22 expressing (2) 56:24 132:14 extending (1) 208:10 extends (1) 68:21 extent (1) 115:4 extra (1)	204:4 extremely (3) 40:3 120:13 220:18 extremists (1) 120:14 ex-defendants (1) 195:14 ex-offenders (1) 228:10 e-mail (2) 121:17 171:14 e-mails (1) 105:25 <hr/> F (4) 36:12 62:6,8,9 face (8) 27:23 66:6 72:1 136:13 165:17 167:9 174:9 224:22 faced (5) 13:16 17:19 155:20 202:19 203:3 faces (1) 116:23 facilitate (2) 119:8 171:1 facilities (2) 21:16 69:20 facility (1) 239:10 facing (2) 127:16 174:9 fact (14) 6:15 41:13 42:17 44:23 50:14 51:16 101:2 159:8 174:19 182:9 187:14 224:17 226:13 230:20 factor (1) 224:11 factors (3) 50:4 80:14 101:3 facts (1) 241:7 fact-finding (2) 13:15 241:6 faculty (1) 236:14 fail (10) 70:2 130:2 143:24 144:18,24 145:4,9 147:15 159:23,24 failed (1)	129:17 failing (1) 145:4 failure (4) 21:21 63:10 79:13 144:4 failures (1) 156:12 fair (9) 5:7 16:14 42:8 50:23 164:9,24 168:13 176:19 179:10 fairly (3) 51:17 76:22 129:14 fairness (1) 19:8 Falcon (8) 164:7 172:16,19 182:8 183:3 185:7 187:20 190:4 fall (4) 25:16 173:14,16 221:6 false (2) 40:12 221:7 Familia (4) 164:6 169:3,7 171:11 familiar (4) 5:2 59:20 149:10 154:11 family (5) 24:5,6,7 111:3 223:18 Fannie (1) 210:11 Fanniel (20) 2:14 7:8 16:25 17:1 30:13 58:1 65:7 68:6 73:7 80:1 81:19 85:11 89:14 90:11 91:16 92:22 107:9 108:15 192:12,21 fantastic (1) 227:24 far (19) 19:4,4 26:21 31:8 51:24 52:16 82:16 86:21 107:22 120:19 153:17 177:4 179:14 193:7 193:17 201:2 206:13 228:14 233:22 farm-working (1) 173:19 fashion (2)	239:5 240:17 fashionable (1) 56:8 fast (2) 77:11 213:24 faster (1) 213:23 fastest-growing (1) 63:20 fathers (1) 124:15 favor (3) 36:14 66:18,22 favorable (1) 165:16 fear (2) 84:15 196:21 fearful (1) 211:15 fears (2) 21:24 196:20 feasibility (1) 216:1 feasible (1) 100:18 federal (73) 25:10,18,20 33:2 38:21,23 39:7 40:19 49:2 60:25,25 62:15 62:23 64:7,10,12 65:2 67:21 68:20 71:11,21 85:2 88:22 92:15 103:10 105:8 108:4 110:10 111:1 112:3 123:21 136:23 141:12 142:5 144:3 147:8 147:15,17 148:12 148:14,18,20 150:20 153:16,23 155:8 160:11 161:10,16 162:4,11 162:12 163:1,20 165:7,10,18,20 170:17 192:1 217:21,23,25 218:14,17 219:2,3 219:10,14,14 220:6 220:23 221:15 federally (1) 143:4 federal-only (1) 162:19 feel (16) 3:17,22 24:16 27:15 29:24 33:12 56:12
---	---	---	--	---

67:23 82:1 90:13,13 91:6 121:13 197:1 202:16 240:20	17:11,14 19:4,6,6 91:9 164:22 225:1,3	26:7 27:12 29:3 58:5 65:13,23 72:3 78:3 81:6,9 93:5,19 98:10 99:18,22,23 100:13 106:6 110:3 128:22 145:6,24 148:24 177:13 185:15 188:3,10 190:4 192:15 193:1 195:4 196:4 201:24 211:16,17,19 212:10 214:19 222:17 236:23	96:12 138:19	162:14 163:3,20,20 165:10,11,18,20 167:14 185:22 186:11,18 199:1 200:13 212:22 217:21 218:14,17 219:2,14 220:6 236:4,24 240:17
feeling (1) 188:9	fighting (2) 17:8,14	figure (3) 29:22 177:25 230:4	focused (1) 195:2	formal (4) 8:3,5 33:3,7
Feeney (1) 36:11	figured (2) 180:5 213:21	figures (1) 50:2	focuses (1) 173:1	formally (4) 12:15,24 59:13 84:25
fellow (3) 92:2 181:2 237:4	file (8) 25:22 26:1 31:18 51:14 107:11 130:9 134:15 236:22	filed (6) 15:5 43:6 48:5 51:9 70:16 109:19	focusing (1) 83:7	formats (1) 233:16
felonies (3) 40:1 67:16 190:3	files (1) 10:11 49:6 51:13	fill (8) 18:23 25:18 155:9 160:5 171:25 233:16 237:19 238:20	folks (12) 117:8 126:6 189:8,10 229:17,19 230:2,5 231:8 238:16 239:9 240:19	formed (1) 93:24
felons (5) 67:17 104:25 194:19 229:9,24	filling (3) 10:11 49:6 51:13	filled (1) 112:11 187:6	follow (12) 80:22 101:15,16 122:21 123:4 124:14 136:24 153:3,4 158:22 182:3 222:14	former (8) 36:11 108:21 109:4 109:11,12 110:3,25 112:14
felony (13) 16:12 40:10 98:4 102:9,10 170:12 188:11 194:16,23 195:3,4,10 230:11	fill (8) 18:23 25:18 155:9 160:5 171:25 233:16 237:19 238:20	financial (3) 49:20 139:20 140:19	followed (4) 60:15 219:5 238:10 239:4	formerly (1) 39:23
felt (6) 32:12 61:15 112:6 131:2 239:12 240:5	final (2) 148:10 154:20	find (12) 51:5 105:16 114:4,8 121:19 151:1 157:1 157:15 166:10 184:1 233:7 238:4	following (7) 38:17 59:22 66:9 127:5 149:20 184:18 218:14	forms (24) 25:11 36:8 47:25 57:11 78:8 130:3 141:7 150:9 162:6 163:8 185:19 186:2 198:24 200:8,9,10 208:24 217:23,25 219:10 220:24 235:20,23 236:6
Ferguson (1) 97:23	finally (7) 8:22 21:23 39:10 84:21 108:12 112:11 187:6	finding (4) 38:22 39:1 111:11 123:2	follows (1) 196:25	forth (3) 105:22 126:3 216:25
Ferguson-Bohnee (...) 2:15 7:19 9:14,16 28:23 54:17 92:25 97:13 101:12 102:4 102:18 106:2,13 108:16 114:10 116:25 117:5 121:22 123:24 126:9 135:4 136:12 137:20 161:6 194:8 194:9 209:19 234:22 235:8,16,22 236:11	find (12) 51:5 105:16 114:4,8 121:19 151:1 157:1 157:15 166:10 184:1 233:7 238:4	findings (1) 95:20	follow-up (3) 103:9 141:9 157:13	forthcoming (1) 12:3 fervor (1) 63:12	finding (4) 38:22 39:1 111:11 123:2	fine (1) 97:16	fool (1) 112:22	fortitude (1) 151:12
fewer (2) 63:1 98:1	findings (1) 95:20	finer (1) 97:16	forced (2) 168:4 214:8	fortunate (3) 3:17,23 224:15
field (1) 31:25	find (12) 51:5 105:16 114:4,8 121:19 151:1 157:1 157:15 166:10 184:1 233:7 238:4	findings (1) 95:20	foregoing (2) 242:5,9	Fortunately (1) 17:22
fieldworker (1) 61:14	finding (4) 38:22 39:1 111:11 123:2	findings (1) 95:20	foreigner (4) 61:11 62:7,9 82:21	forum (2) 3:23 11:18
Fiesta (1) 197:10	final (2) 148:10 154:20	findings (1) 95:20	foremost (2) 98:10 99:19	forums (1) 208:22
Fifteen (1) 178:21	finally (7) 8:22 21:23 39:10 84:21 108:12 112:11 187:6	findings (1) 95:20	foresee (1) 161:24	forward (12) 13:3 16:17 19:18 20:4 22:19 26:25 39:3 85:24 93:3 100:11 176:8 231:12
fifth (1) 105:23	find (12) 51:5 105:16 114:4,8 121:19 151:1 157:1 157:15 166:10 184:1 233:7 238:4	findings (1) 95:20	forever (1) 230:7	fought (1) 74:9
Fifty (1) 5:6	finding (4) 38:22 39:1 111:11 123:2	findings (1) 95:20	forget (1) 233:10	found (22)
Fifty-two (1) 47:9	findings (1) 95:20	findings (1) 95:20	forgot (2) 122:16 142:19
fight (9)	findings (1) 95:20	findings (1) 95:20	form (52) 5:25 6:7 25:18 56:15 57:7,8 60:16 64:10 72:24 132:15,17,19 134:24 136:18 137:5 141:3,12 147:9,15 149:25 153:23 155:2,8 161:10 162:3,4,6,11

29:24 32:5 36:19 37:13 38:9 40:7 43:9 61:9 62:24 75:24 77:9 78:10 81:4 99:6 109:24 145:16,19 160:24 166:3 207:13 218:6 237:13	105:11 139:11 157:3 157:23 215:18 232:13 fruit (1) 153:17 frustrate (1) 123:1 frustrated (5) 30:11 123:14 150:24 154:13 157:22 frustration (6) 24:12 25:14 89:17 143:20 161:18 231:3 fulfilling (1) 224:2 full (13) 88:15 153:23 164:17 177:6,16,24 179:15 184:6 194:2 215:17 225:12 240:11 242:9 fully (3) 12:22 13:8 19:9 Fulton (17) 22:19,19,21 27:21 28:1,10,13 29:13 30:13,20 31:20 33:6 34:3 54:18 55:1 203:7 224:1 function (1) 27:5 functioning (1) 19:9 fund (3) 9:7 58:11 139:19 fundamental (7) 4:25 13:22 143:14 168:16,17,22 224:6 fundamentally (1) 65:5 funding (15) 24:21 25:21 30:16,18 31:14 32:8,22,24 88:23 125:10 198:19,20,23 204:11,17 funds (3) 52:4 207:23 225:1 funneled (1) 116:2 funny (1) 226:9 further (8) 7:2 13:2 48:9 113:18 129:3 192:9 208:8	242:13 Furthermore (2) 131:25 140:14 future (8) 13:7 18:25 55:16 107:21 108:8 197:3 226:1 231:21	<hr/> G <hr/> gain (1) 88:15 Gainer (1) 210:12 gaining (1) 61:15 gains (1) 11:13 Gallardo (1) 189:2 game (1) 176:3 gaming (3) 10:4 74:21 81:9 gap (1) 214:23 gather (2) 113:11 227:4 gathering (1) 66:8 gender (1) 143:18 general (15) 37:23 75:22 77:6 86:24 96:22 102:4 108:21,23 119:2 148:9 153:10 161:19 166:21 193:22 220:4 General's (3) 147:1,11 152:21 generation (2) 196:23,25 generations (1) 65:17 gentlemen (2) 17:1 110:16 geographic (1) 46:5 geographically (2) 46:6 47:11 geography (1) 20:20 George (1) 36:9 Georgia (3) 119:12 178:24 191:21	gerrymandered (1) 66:22 getting (14) 21:2,10 31:6 88:7,14 104:12 111:11 119:21 199:14 213:23 214:17 215:17 232:11 237:23 Gila (10) 12:16 88:17 127:1,13 127:18 133:12 135:7,16,22 136:5 Ginsburg (1) 114:1 GIS (1) 32:20 gist (1) 152:12 give (12) 33:17 93:20 108:10 109:23 120:25 123:1 135:13 138:5 157:4 206:18 210:25 217:13 given (24) 17:9 35:19 40:15 43:22 95:3 107:19 115:16 116:9,15 131:9 135:17 147:24 152:24 182:11 186:24 195:22 200:13 203:14 205:5 206:7 207:5 211:20 214:16 229:23 giving (5) 103:19 109:18 151:21 176:17 196:12 glad (1) 240:10 glanced (1) 238:15 Glendale (1) 222:24 glossary (3) 71:3,4,9 go (54) 4:12 8:1,1 13:3 20:19 31:13 40:2 50:8 54:6 68:8 79:14 80:19 83:17 86:20 86:23 89:24 100:11 100:11,22 101:3 104:18 105:14 110:20 111:10	119:21 121:5,13 136:22 150:25 156:6,8 158:6 162:24 163:11,18 175:3 188:16 196:7 200:14,17,24 203:15 206:15 210:20 212:22 213:14 214:16 216:20,24 218:4 230:13 231:17 233:2 240:14 goal (4) 11:10 20:6 95:3 168:15 goals (2) 5:18 95:11 God (1) 106:1 goes (9) 15:23 30:23 87:9 154:9,10 187:3 212:6 216:15 239:19 going (89) 12:5,17 13:2 16:18 22:5 30:12 31:19 34:3,5 38:2 39:2 42:4 51:5,19 57:23 58:1 60:13 61:6 87:11,16 89:16 93:1 93:6 100:10 103:12 103:22 105:22 107:16 108:6 116:6 118:9 119:23 121:12,15 126:18 126:19,25 133:25 138:19 141:4 142:18 148:23 151:1 155:23 156:23 161:21 162:7,10,18 163:11 163:12,15,18,19,21 174:2 181:20 182:13 187:4 188:14,21 189:15 189:19,23,25 194:9 198:17 199:16 204:13 206:11 207:19 208:7,25 212:3 215:12,15,17 220:18,19,22 222:5 224:23,25 225:2,6 227:7 229:23 234:3 241:4 Gonzales (9)
--	---	--	---	---	--

60:8,21 61:4,12 62:23 82:25 85:24 147:5 219:11	177:11 211:3 GPS (1) 32:21	94:12 119:9 121:2 195:1 224:16 226:15,16	62:25 86:2 handing (2) 107:5 174:19	226:11 227:16 Harriet (1) 17:11
good (40) 3:4 4:7 9:14 13:3,11 16:25 20:13 22:10 22:12,21 31:12 34:17 41:3 43:4,7 49:25 54:5 58:1 68:11 88:7 92:10 102:22 114:16 119:7 125:11,13 126:23 127:12 151:14 152:17 157:9 162:23 169:1 172:16 176:15 184:11 217:11 222:15 228:12 232:11	graduate (1) 197:23 graduates (1) 142:1 Graham (2) 77:4 88:18 grammatic (1) 26:10 Grand (1) 159:5 grandfather (1) 14:22 grandfathered (1) 59:19 grandmother (1) 56:17 grandson (1) 232:2	grow (1) 169:20 growing (2) 106:21 170:20 grown (1) 59:7 grows (1) 21:25 growth (1) 58:19 guarantee (2) 19:8 239:11 guaranteed (2) 94:9 145:10 guarantees (2) 145:6 158:9 guess (10) 56:7 107:10 117:9 161:7 175:7 181:7 191:6 231:11 235:24 240:24	handle (2) 146:21 222:6 handled (1) 41:15 handouts (1) 147:24 hands (2) 19:3 184:23 handwriting (1) 181:20 Hannah (4) 228:9,12,13 232:10 Hansen (17) 146:11,12 152:17 153:1,7,24 154:9 155:1,7,16 156:5 158:23 159:1 161:14 162:18 166:19 219:8	hashtag (2) 8:18,20 hassle (1) 111:8 hastily (1) 203:19 hat (2) 93:9 112:3 hats (1) 117:17 HAVA (7) 149:9,11,12 205:6 207:23 219:5 226:16
Gorman (8) 34:8 45:6,7,9 49:13 51:23 55:23 72:11	grant (1) 95:3 granted (1) 69:22 grassroots (1) 67:5 grateful (4) 20:2,3 113:19 189:4	guest (5) 7:3 11:19 12:1 13:14 137:21 guide (2) 128:21 132:3 guides (2) 146:23 183:22 Gutierrez (1) 211:2 guys (1) 198:15 Guzman (6) 201:12,15 202:2 205:14 208:20 210:9	happen (6) 9:11 19:16 113:24 145:8 156:12 230:21 happened (13) 28:3 37:17 41:17 43:18 60:18 103:17 103:18 112:10,13 124:18 182:16 208:21 237:7 happening (7) 15:19 111:7 118:15 207:2 209:10 225:17,17 happens (9) 19:11 37:3 38:15 119:22 145:3 167:2 183:23 203:18 221:16	HB2305 (4) 113:10 173:16 188:17 189:23 head (1) 114:3 headquarters (1) 98:25 health (1) 143:8 healthy (1) 21:5 hear (11) 8:7 18:6 28:2 37:18 85:13 121:2 126:15 139:2 195:12 201:17 211:15
GOTV (1) 226:15 governing (2) 38:5 140:2 government (31) 16:7 33:3 55:25 62:16 66:4 82:2 85:3 88:5 94:6 109:8 112:17 112:18 113:6 114:15 116:14,17 125:13 128:6 130:23 131:19 151:11 160:11 164:20 175:17 205:9,9,18 206:25 215:8 224:4 236:6	greater (2) 60:5 228:23 Greg (4) 199:12 217:9,12 228:21 Gregory (2) 126:25 127:13 grew (2) 58:17,24 ground (2) 38:8 115:18 grounds (2) 17:8 41:20 group (10) 17:5 65:25 81:17 100:5 104:23 115:9 145:15 170:12 191:23 224:8 groups (11) 21:25 50:23,23 94:12	half (10) 17:13 20:20,21 23:10 25:8 41:11 46:4 53:25 58:19 141:25 Hall (1) 233:5 hand (6) 60:19 80:19,19 139:17 181:22 232:2 handed (2) 104:3 174:25 handful (2)	heard (22) 35:10 39:7 44:21 94:11 103:3 110:16 113:17 135:9 138:15 175:9 198:12 209:15 214:17 215:5 217:24 228:16 229:3 230:18 231:1 231:3 235:3,7 hearing (19) 1:4 4:12,18 5:9,19 8:12,19 9:21 12:1 19:18 34:20,21 35:1 37:7 41:12 65:24 114:20 184:24 192:22 hearings (5) 4:2 5:10,19 9:23 24:16 heartbroken (1)
governmental (1) 69:20 governments (5) 33:8 71:11 132:9,18 134:22 government-issued ... 236:10,12 government-relate... 110:2 governor (20) 65:25 81:21 82:12,12 126:25 127:2,9,13 128:7,7 133:2,24 135:4 137:15 140:1 143:4 151:2 153:10	gratitude (1) 188:24 gravel (2) 145:21 159:16 great (5) 34:18 115:9 167:9 170:24 191:4 greater (2) 60:5 228:23 Greg (4) 199:12 217:9,12 228:21 Gregory (2) 126:25 127:13 grew (2) 58:17,24 ground (2) 38:8 115:18 grounds (2) 17:8 41:20 group (10) 17:5 65:25 81:17 100:5 104:23 115:9 145:15 170:12 191:23 224:8 groups (11) 21:25 50:23,23 94:12	H (1) 65:12 half (10) 17:13 20:20,21 23:10 25:8 41:11 46:4 53:25 58:19 141:25 Hall (1) 233:5 hand (6) 60:19 80:19,19 139:17 181:22 232:2 handed (2) 104:3 174:25 handful (2)	happily (1) 62:10 happy (6) 40:22 41:25 79:23 108:7 142:15 228:17 harassment (2) 225:11,13 hard (6) 40:4 74:10 115:9 116:9 123:2 214:17 harder (5) 6:2 11:13 36:4 114:21 158:10 harm (2)	heard (22) 35:10 39:7 44:21 94:11 103:3 110:16 113:17 135:9 138:15 175:9 198:12 209:15 214:17 215:5 217:24 228:16 229:3 230:18 231:1 231:3 235:3,7 hearing (19) 1:4 4:12,18 5:9,19 8:12,19 9:21 12:1 19:18 34:20,21 35:1 37:7 41:12 65:24 114:20 184:24 192:22 hearings (5) 4:2 5:10,19 9:23 24:16 heartbroken (1)

168:10	highlighted (1) 135:6	homes (2) 86:11 104:5	213:8	identification (30) 14:25 23:20 48:1,8 heavily (2) 91:3 168:1	high-tech (2) 231:13,22	hometown (1) 226:23	huge (6) 22:6 26:20 111:19	56:15 57:6,7,8,8 heavy (1) 105:9	hike (1) 159:7	homework (1) 121:16	196:20 197:11	67:11,13 69:12 76:1
heightened (1) 72:20	hiking (1) 116:18	honest (1) 91:13	223:24	78:12 110:12,14,21
held (2) 5:10 43:20	Hills (1) 211:5	honor (5) 11:16 13:12 17:3	human (6) 55:24 56:5 57:10	132:15,16,17,19,21
Hello (1) 196:8	hinder (1) 129:3	117:12 119:5	61:16 123:9 211:18	134:25 137:5,6,10
help (32) 12:4 14:3 61:5 76:13	hinders (1) 135:12	Honorable (1) 89:6	humble (2) 223:1 228:16	167:13 192:14
88:22 100:6,25	hindrance (1) 130:13	honored (4) 9:15,17 20:1 23:1	111:22,22 167:23	212:22 214:11
113:11 117:20	hired (2) 32:20 98:24	hoops (1) 175:20	169:24	identified (8) 10:8 62:20 75:23
132:12 135:2	Hispanic (1) 111:10	hope (8) 4:1,6 49:9 55:11 68:2	hurt (1) 223:7	85:25 183:11
144:11,15,20 145:5	Hispanics (4) 44:4,5 104:2,24	79:16 196:25	husband (1) 159:9	220:20,24 221:6
146:2 158:7 160:16	historical (1) 14:5	211:25	hydra (1) 116:22	identify (7) 9:21 18:10 39:18
160:18 170:12	historically (6) 17:7 20:9 28:3 47:1	hopefully (1) 22:14	hypocritical (1) 239:5	104:8 156:2,3 157:4
187:6,15 194:4	86:19 231:5	Hopi (4) 143:11 145:13,14,17	hysteria (1) 91:6	identifying (3) 9:23 10:7 67:18
195:17 199:9	history (9) 18:10 27:12 38:19	hoping (1) 201:20	H.B (1) 38:3	identity (4) 148:15,21 167:21
201:21 203:20,21	55:9 129:21 167:6	Horne (2) 37:24 220:4		219:19
224:16 227:19	192:8 239:22	hosted (1) 128:24	I	IDs (7) 136:2 151:25 152:8
228:1 241:9	240:20	hot (2) 174:21 185:11		185:25 234:1,6
helped (4) 8:25 115:6 134:5	hold (4) 108:13 127:7 197:18	hotline (1) 135:14	ID (79) 10:13 15:9 17:16	236:18
217:6	198:4	hour (3) 53:25 90:1 186:8	23:19 24:1,2,2,8,8	illegal (3) 104:24 113:7 116:1
helpful (6) 68:3 103:4 134:2	Holder (7) 3:22 5:13 35:11 36:2	hours (11) 72:6 77:16 111:24,25	29:3,8,10,15,18,24	Illinois (2) 177:20 178:24
135:12 136:5 214:2	36:16 49:7 72:25	111:25 119:20	30:9 72:20 73:25	illustration (1) 212:6
helping (2) 56:11 122:21	holding (3) 60:18 176:17 201:25	125:7 171:22	77:20,23 78:7,19,24	images (1) 150:8
helps (1) 18:10	holdouts (1) 180:6	174:17 213:11	79:3,7,8,12,13 90:5	immediate (1) 69:21 hereof (1) 242:15	holds (1) 207:22	225:10	95:7 97:25 123:8	immediately (3) 62:12 126:2 226:14
hereto (1) 242:14	holiday (2) 239:24,24	house (10) 32:3 33:18,23 36:11	134:13,16 135:24	91:7 173:2 223:1
Hey (2) 200:18,24	Holmes (4) 117:6,8,11 122:2	81:1 91:19 119:14	138:21 139:8	immigrant (3) 62:21 63:9,18,22
Hi (2) 117:8 212:1	home (14) 78:16 100:21 104:6	170:9 223:16	140:15 152:10	immigrants (4) 62:21 63:9,18,22
high (14) 25:1 28:9,17,19 29:7	139:9 173:23 198:1	227:12	165:23 166:7,13	immigration (5) 62:19 83:6 91:4,4
65:16 74:19 166:7	214:10,11 216:17	housekeeping (2) 8:2 227:6	167:22,23 185:15	202:12
170:7 171:4 175:18	216:21 218:11	housing (2) 5:7 21:16	186:2,11,18,20,24	impact (21) 18:17 38:10,11 39:13
178:16 185:24	223:19 240:15,16	HR12 (2) 119:3,11	187:11 193:13	53:2 61:20 69:16
199:20	homebound (1) 170:13	Hudson (4) 167:16 186:7 212:10	198:10,14 206:6,11	70:2 73:25 80:9,20
higher (4) 64:23 78:4 125:10			212:17 213:4	89:6 90:15 92:20
171:6			215:21 216:1,18	116:3 134:3 166:5
highest (4) 177:18,19 199:20			233:22 234:3,24	170:18 190:13
211:20			235:13,20,21,23	194:21 208:6
highlight (1) 142:24			236:5,5,6,6,10,12	impacted (1) 78:1
			236:15	impacting (4) 9:22,23 10:8 29:11
			idea (7) 29:6 91:10 100:5,18
			107:15 126:4
			237:13
			ideas (3) 22:10,12 91:3

impacts (4) 15:25 39:15 48:19 92:18 impartial (1) 164:25 impede (2) 11:8 66:7 implement (8) 147:22 149:9,15 166:25 167:1 219:13 222:6 235:11 implementation (3) 61:19 73:1 94:18 implemented (3) 39:5 146:17 166:23 implementing (2) 149:2 215:4 importance (1) 128:11 important (27) 3:8,11,15 4:3,24 9:21 12:5 23:15 50:13,14 51:18 70:1 82:19 106:7,10 123:11 126:14 131:18 132:25 135:6 146:1 156:15 208:4 220:18 222:18 230:8 231:20 importantly (2) 63:2 65:4 improve (6) 6:20 95:13 129:3 131:18 149:13 160:17 improved (2) 10:17 79:16 improving (3) 22:14 132:10 176:23 inability (1) 94:12 inaccessible (2) 144:5,7 inaccuracy (1) 111:18 inactive (1) 76:4 inadequate (2) 30:16 76:3 incarcerated (2) 39:23 197:12 incarcerates (1) 229:16 incidence (1) 76:1	incidents (1) 75:24 inclined (1) 200:24 include (9) 6:22 31:11 50:5 69:12 124:17 132:3 133:21 143:21 191:21 included (12) 44:19,23 48:13 72:12 74:10 75:4,24 80:25 81:12 117:2 128:15 140:6 includes (5) 68:19,22 120:12 133:18 171:16 including (9) 35:14 36:10 60:14 84:23 112:3 171:10 171:10 180:7 185:1 inclusion (1) 74:14 inclusive (1) 124:13 incomplete (1) 68:1 incorporate (1) 185:19 incorporated (3) 98:12 153:6 219:6 incorporates (1) 222:22 incorrect (6) 40:12 112:20 114:15 182:24 204:2,15 incorrectly (1) 167:18 increase (15) 11:1 27:8 64:16 82:8 88:9 129:10 130:11 133:5 139:7 167:3 181:16 188:6 203:17 210:23 226:10 increased (6) 27:9 30:14 58:21 138:20 163:21 174:13 increases (1) 129:4 increasing (3) 64:22 91:21 138:6 incredible (1) 187:25 incredibly (1)	90:8 independent (14) 42:24 43:6,16 44:12 99:16,24 143:2 145:7,10 158:9,16 160:7 238:18,20 independently (2) 160:1,4 Indian (19) 7:20 9:17,25 10:4,9 12:11,16 20:25 41:17 46:3 69:25 74:4,21 77:25 78:18 127:1,14,18 136:9 Indians (4) 12:14,20 41:14 127:16 indicated (3) 89:18 130:25 220:22 indicating (1) 130:23 indication (2) 29:10 166:17 individual (13) 30:7 32:20 56:21 64:6 93:5 94:8 128:14 168:18 181:21 186:23,25 195:3,9 individuals (17) 8:24 9:10 12:16 13:19 39:23 40:1,9 56:13 59:23 61:21 93:2,3 117:16 166:6 187:9 218:21 221:12 Industry (1) 37:13 ineffectiveness (1) 49:17 ineligible (1) 63:6 inevitable (1) 180:19 inference (2) 66:3 229:6 influence (2) 210:10 211:10 influenced (1) 210:19 influences (2) 21:13 114:20 influencing (1) 210:7 inform (4) 6:24 20:4 115:2 153:18 informally (1)	84:9 information (33) 12:5 25:1 31:6 33:19 33:20 39:15 40:13 83:17 85:23 103:10 105:22 106:5,10 114:16 127:11 131:8,11 132:1,3 134:14,15 166:10 171:21 172:8 175:11 184:9,23 191:8 214:16 216:11,14 236:21 241:4 informative (1) 180:25 informed (1) 230:18 infringement (1) 29:25 Inglis (1) 36:11 inhumane (1) 56:23 initial (2) 95:25 149:5 initially (2) 78:7 236:2 initiates (1) 128:18 initiative (2) 74:21 195:2 initiatives (2) 170:11 175:8 inmates (1) 197:12 Inn (1) 197:10 innocent (1) 180:9 innovation (1) 134:5 innovative (2) 100:10 129:1 105:12 innuendos (1) 105:12 input (4) 6:10 45:21 66:8 208:5 inquire (1) 155:5 inquired (1) 230:20 inside (2) 122:12,15 insists (1) 180:7	installation (1) 99:15 instance (3) 62:20 177:2 193:21 instances (5) 62:25 76:11 79:2 129:8 182:17 institute (2) 46:10 205:3 instituted (1) 79:8 instituting (1) 175:20 institution (1) 19:24 Institutional (2) 65:13,23 instructed (2) 107:3 171:25 instructions (2) 60:15 71:7 instrument (3) 156:7,12,15 instrumental (2) 37:1,2 insubstantial (1) 61:20 insufficient (3) 24:2 76:5 184:16 integral (1) 9:1 integrity (15) 100:3,7 118:17,19,21 119:6,10,13,18 121:9,24 124:19 187:17 217:12,16 intellectual (2) 98:16 143:23 intend (1) 57:14 intended (3) 69:24 107:3 160:2 intent (7) 43:15 91:20 92:4 149:12 185:17 186:1 235:6 intentional (1) 39:1 intentionally (2) 69:9 226:13 Inter (6) 7:12 9:5 11:24 96:15 147:3 165:5 interest (2) 28:4 75:6 interested (7)
--	--	---	--	--

89:19 90:4 119:3 121:9,12 155:19 242:15	163:23 188:13 190:16 196:15 204:22 208:1 218:22	138:15,20 143:11 144:2,4 145:17 152:18 154:7 155:19 157:19 160:11,13,15 161:13 175:9 180:25 202:17 207:21 208:4 225:24 233:14 241:8	7:4 joint (1) 37:11 Jones (3) 217:9,11,12 Journalism (1) 207:11 Juan (4) 47:8,10 48:25 49:4 Jude (2) 142:21 149:11 judicial (2) 13:20 38:20 Judiciary (1) 36:11 Judith (2) 68:8,11 Judy (3) 2:16 4:22 58:3 jump (1) 175:21 June (2) 18:8 109:21 jurisdiction (5) 16:23 43:3 44:24 50:19 229:18 jurisdictions (6) 36:18 38:18 39:5,11 44:19 52:25 jurisdictionwide (1) 80:16 justice (21) 37:10 43:4,9,14,19 44:4,16 50:16 70:15 109:20 110:24 113:17 114:1 144:9 156:13 164:17 173:21 197:24 207:7 224:14 227:18 Justice's (1) 159:2 justify (1) 25:17	175:20 Kennedy (1) 5:5 kept (2) 107:17,21 key (6) 3:10 5:14,16 12:6 17:24 175:2 Kids (1) 31:12 kind (29) 21:18 29:25 84:14 86:16 87:6,10 91:11 103:25 105:1,4 106:10 107:21,25 107:25 122:9 161:7 161:10,25 181:7 187:22 189:13 201:4 208:6 213:5 231:1 232:5 236:5 237:13 240:10 kinds (1) 157:3 King (1) 239:24 knee-jerk (1) 125:2 knew (4) 101:24 103:20 106:18 122:21 knit (1) 24:6 knocked (1) 169:23 know (119) 5:12,22 6:14 8:11 10:16 13:23 15:21 16:20 28:5,17,19,25 29:15,21 30:5,8,8 30:25 43:5 44:17 51:19,21 55:12 62:9 64:10 85:12 96:5 100:14,17,20 101:2 101:19,25 103:12 104:7 106:6,9,21 107:19 108:3,6 110:13,18 112:22 112:23,23 113:14 114:21 115:18 116:20 120:6,17 121:19 123:6 133:24 134:15,23 134:24 136:8,9,17 137:1 143:17 144:23 145:22 149:10 153:1
interesting (5) 28:2 29:2 92:20 192:7 192:13 interests (1) 190:11 interim (1) 43:21 Internet (1) 61:6 interpret (2) 123:19,22 interpretation (5) 4:10,11 8:17 71:8 152:22 intervene (1) 96:24 intimidating (1) 107:4 intimidation (7) 76:2 98:16 101:3 105:9,10 225:11,13 introduce (1) 7:3 introduced (2) 119:3,11 introduction (1) 17:20 invalidated (3) 10:18 18:8 36:16 invalidation (3) 10:21 11:5 72:24 invest (3) 21:21 24:21 189:4 invested (1) 25:17 investigate (1) 155:23 investing (1) 171:7 invitation (1) 58:8 invite (2) 34:5 136:9 invited (1) 13:13 inviting (2) 19:20 132:24 involved (23) 10:10,12 31:18 42:5 42:10 52:22 54:24 75:17 95:8 96:14 98:22 110:24 115:5 125:14 133:7 138:7	involves (1) 196:10 involving (6) 41:16 51:10 65:16 95:10 112:2 113:15 in-person (1) 84:19 in-state (1) 162:13 iPad (1) 100:13 irrelevant (1) 82:10 Island (1) 179:1 issue (35) 19:2 22:4 57:6 79:6 81:10 82:16 83:3 84:1 87:22 88:12 90:9 91:15 112:12 118:9 119:1,6 123:16 124:19 129:13 132:25 133:14,14 134:17 152:4,5 175:2 180:15 185:5 193:20 216:16,17 218:21 222:4 227:6 234:8 issued (12) 37:24 40:5 61:10 78:17 109:22 145:15 147:1 157:20 166:21 181:24 220:4,13 issues (81) 3:8,15,17 4:1,4 6:10 9:22,23 10:12 13:1 19:25 20:23 21:20 21:22 35:14,21 39:19 40:16 41:12 42:10 65:11,20 66:6 66:9 67:23,25 68:7 68:15 73:16,21,24 75:22,25 76:4,7 77:15 78:5,5 79:16 87:4 88:6,8 99:1,12 112:10 113:20,21 121:25 129:7 133:3 133:11,13 134:23 134:24 135:7,11 136:4 137:2,23	ITCA (3) 35:12 165:16 202:10 items (2) 8:2 83:4 <hr/> J <hr/> jack (1) 112:4 James (2) 36:12 98:8 January (4) 1:15 2:3 3:1 242:16 Jeff (1) 102:20 jeopardized (1) 14:24 jeopardy (1) 190:2 Jerry (1) 190:8 Jersey (1) 178:25 Jesus (1) 60:8 Jim (4) 14:11 98:7 124:4 231:6 job (7) 1:25 43:7 125:21 151:14 175:17 184:11 227:24 jobs (1) 30:25 John (9) 2:12 7:11 11:23 119:3 119:11 164:9 176:14,18 184:25 Johnson (1) 14:10 join (1) 8:20 joined (2) 7:18 36:10 joining (1) 12:9 joins (1)

154:12 158:5,17 161:9,17,19 162:24 163:4,19 188:16 191:13,20 193:15 194:20 196:6 198:13 199:7,16,16 200:20,24 201:2,6,8 203:15 204:14,20 205:14 206:10,10 206:21 207:20 209:22 211:4,13,18 214:14 215:9,16 216:22,23 220:10 221:13,20,23 222:2 222:7 223:17 229:10 231:4 236:4 236:5	13:11 22:17 27:21 28:11,21 34:2,18 40:24 45:2 49:12 54:15 57:18 80:4 102:7,14 155:17 157:13 158:21 181:4 182:22 194:14	82:8 90:24 91:5 99:5 109:6,15 111:3 112:6 113:1 168:1 169:10,16,18,25 170:19,20 173:3,5 173:11,22 174:6,8 222:25	207:18 212:17	leaves (1) 130:15
knowning (3) 21:12 130:16 199:12	laden (1) 91:3	Latinos (10) 58:15 59:2,5 63:19,24 91:6,7,12 95:5 169:19	lawsuit (8) 48:5 54:20 79:9 82:25 95:7 162:25 202:10 224:18	leaving (2) 5:14 137:17
knowledge (4) 70:6 183:7 218:23 223:20	ladies (1) 16:25	Latino-eligible (1) 58:20	lawsuits (4) 15:5 39:6 69:4 75:18	led (8) 10:17 47:25 66:14,18 67:7,8 111:19 177:1
knowledgeable (1) 218:16	lag (1) 64:21	launched (1) 94:22	lawyer (4) 19:23 41:4,16 42:2	left (10) 19:4 76:6 104:9 125:18 157:17,22 163:13 166:10 225:2 226:8
known (6) 14:11 59:13 107:17 110:8 117:23 222:23	lagged (1) 177:4	law (82) 2:4 3:6,7,14 4:20,22 7:16,17,21 8:23 9:3 11:17 14:10 16:22 18:1 29:3,10 34:24 36:14,25 38:8,25 40:11,15 41:4,7,8,8 41:10,12 44:16 48:1 48:6,19 50:15 51:17 56:21 65:2 68:12 77:24 84:3,5,7,14 84:24 99:12,12,25 111:1 112:3,4,8 113:10 115:21 123:8 135:19 143:1 143:15 145:5,10,11 152:14 158:3,14,18 177:5 185:1,18 193:2,3,7 194:5 208:3 219:21,25 220:1,7 221:15,17 221:21 235:9 236:1	lawyers (8) 4:19 9:19 38:7 41:7 98:24 122:11 176:16 224:17	leg (1) 159:9
knows (3) 23:23 30:5 240:20	lags (1) 173:24	lawmaking (1) 115:21	lawyerscom (1) 8:21	legacy (2) 14:5 21:15
Knox (3) 93:7,8,8	land (2) 23:10 74:3	lawyer's (3) 5:1 34:23 51:8	Lawyer's (3) 5:1 34:23 51:8	legal (20) 3:14,19 7:20,20 9:4,7 9:17,25 58:11 60:12 62:4 67:19 85:18,21 86:3 143:14 144:1,3 164:10 176:19
Kobach (1) 96:24	lands (1) 24:5	lawyer's (3) 5:1 34:23 51:8	layer (1) 158:8	legislation (11) 50:17,20 91:18 98:15 119:2,7,8 152:23 186:1 191:10 235:18
Kristy (4) 1:23 2:5 242:3,19	land-based (1) 30:23	lawyer's (3) 5:1 34:23 51:8	layered (1) 157:25	legislative (25) 42:13,18 43:10 46:8 46:22,23,25 47:1 74:15 75:5 80:24 81:15 128:1 138:10 139:22 182:19 184:25 185:4 192:8 193:5 222:21 223:12 228:6 234:16 235:5
<hr/> L <hr/>	language (31) 4:10 8:17 10:19 11:1 20:23 24:22 25:12 27:4 50:22 57:12,16 70:5,7,8,11,18,25 71:4,8,15,16 72:3 72:15 78:5 91:2 92:3 143:22 202:22 204:1,5 225:12	lawmaker (1) 110:3	layers (1) 158:19	legislator (1) 109:11
lack (26) 24:7,20,24 25:2,21 30:25 31:13,14 32:22 72:10,15,15 72:17 87:2,3,7,7,9 89:3 131:8 166:6 193:12 202:22 203:8 204:17 228:18	languages (3) 21:1,3 71:1	laws (49) 5:23 6:1,1,21 14:11 14:12,14 15:4,9,25 16:12 17:17,20 26:12 38:24 39:21 40:21 41:20 53:19 59:11 66:12,16 69:9 69:11,12,13,15,23 70:3 73:2 90:13,14 90:14 94:20 96:18 97:25 98:7 102:10 102:16 114:8 115:11 122:24 157:24 175:20 179:4,5 194:18	lead (3) 128:14 196:24 215:17	legislators (3) 6:23 70:1 139:19
lacked (1) 79:11	laptop (1) 214:3	lawmaker (1) 110:3	leader (1) 36:13	legislature (32) 40:16 42:10,11 43:1 44:11 66:18 67:7 87:3 95:10 113:9 170:9 185:16,25 187:22 188:4,24 190:6,22 191:6 193:2 203:4 206:21 225:20 226:4 227:5 227:11,13,23 234:6 234:7,25 235:7
lacking (1) 166:12	large (6) 25:6 46:6 183:9 185:12 224:19 230:1	lawmaker (1) 110:3	leaders (7) 14:3 19:14 66:1,9 82:5 173:10 196:24	legislator (1) 109:11
lacks (1) 25:11	largest (2) 23:11 202:3	lawmaker (1) 110:3	leadership (6) 34:24 66:14 92:1 102:24 128:10 173:1	legislators (3) 6:23 70:1 139:19
Ladell (2) 2:13 7:15	large-scale (1) 141:17	lawmaker (1) 110:3	leading (2) 35:3,14	legislature (32) 40:16 42:10,11 43:1 44:11 66:18 67:7 87:3 95:10 113:9 170:9 185:16,25 187:22 188:4,24 190:6,22 191:6 193:2 203:4 206:21 225:20 226:4 227:5 227:11,13,23 234:6 234:7,25 235:7
LADELL-WILLRI...	lastly (3) 27:7 132:5,13	lawmaker (1) 110:3	leads (1) 87:8	legislatures (1) 35:7
	last-minute (1) 237:3	lawmaker (1) 110:3	League (19) 9:6 93:7,9,12,18,23 94:2,22 95:2,6,8 96:13,13,22 97:1,2 97:10 228:23 230:15	LeNora (2) 22:19 203:7
	late (1) 166:21	lawmaker (1) 110:3	learn (2) 199:25 214:20
	Latina (1) 168:6	lawmaker (1) 110:3	learned (3) 132:8 182:9 241:1
	Latino (32) 58:16,24 59:1,6,11 64:1,20,22 65:2	lawmaker (1) 110:3	learning (5) 25:4 29:17 141:24 170:23 196:3
		lawmaker (1) 110:3	leave (11) 29:8 83:22 117:1 127:3 133:25 142:1 144:25,25 155:3 196:25 222:12

Leonard (2) 34:7 45:9	life (4) 24:5 172:22 238:1,23	58:14	98:1,5 100:19	136:12,17,19,25,25
lesson (1) 141:22	lifetime (2) 42:2,2	litigating (1) 41:12	111:19,21 113:12	137:4 145:20
lessons (1) 132:8	lifetimes (1) 89:22	litigation (20) 10:13,13 45:24 48:15	171:22,23 178:14	150:18 151:21
letter (4) 101:24 104:16 107:18 218:4	light (1) 119:14	48:17 49:17,20,20	178:18 180:18	156:18 158:18
letters (12) 99:3 101:17,20 105:4 107:13,19,20,21	limit (4) 34:10 59:11 65:1 132:21	50:3 51:19 52:11,13	182:23 183:19	159:16 162:2
139:9 148:20 218:3 218:8	limited (13) 5:24 11:2 25:5 31:3,7	52:14 58:10 69:2	193:19 212:12	163:12 174:1
letting (1) 151:16	70:6,19 72:5 149:2	83:14 85:24 193:20	225:15 228:11	182:20,20 189:5
let's (3) 99:8 101:23 199:18	160:10 191:19	227:6,10	logistics (1) 26:9	196:5 201:18
level (9) 25:2 28:6 40:17 94:6	196:6 227:21	little (17) 27:2 29:5 30:17 42:9	long (26) 6:7 15:22 16:19 32:21	205:25 206:20
108:25 200:2 202:9	line (14) 103:19 105:12,13	103:7 112:12	42:16 55:9 57:2	210:5,10,24 211:3,6
202:9 240:1	125:12 174:17,18	139:10 151:16	76:3 79:14 83:17	212:15 213:22
levels (4) 6:12 17:15 64:23 138:22	175:16 182:10	158:10 197:17	108:12 117:15	215:3,5,15 217:22
Lewis (27) 2:12 7:11 11:23,23	190:10 194:1	198:4 204:19,20	124:24,25 125:3,4	225:22 226:2
31:17 32:25 41:13	213:17,22 225:10	205:15 209:22	126:7 143:24 158:3	230:16,16 231:5,8
55:17 87:19 88:3	227:4	217:17 218:22	174:11,12 179:18	237:6 238:24 241:1
97:23 119:4,11	lines (21) 6:7 43:21,23 76:3	live (12) 24:7 30:9 46:4 56:11	191:22 212:12	241:3,7,8
121:23 126:23	103:22 111:20	69:18 78:17 127:21	228:1 241:3	lots (2) 83:23 204:13
133:2 137:14,18	124:24,25 125:3,4	136:11 140:24	longer (8) 36:22 98:6 119:25	Lou (1) 210:11
142:17,19 146:10	125:22 126:7	212:24 216:22	145:9 160:6 167:4	Louisiana (4) 178:24 191:21,25 238:24
151:18 159:22	143:24 167:4	223:19	186:17 214:4	love (1) 100:5
160:9 163:25 190:8 191:1	174:11,12 175:4	lived (2) 14:10 130:24	longest (1) 23:7	low (4) 28:8 82:8 164:18 173:21 liability (1) 83:14	197:13,14 198:9	lives (4) 17:11 57:12 140:9,25	look (19) 15:19 16:17 19:18	lower (2) 47:13 125:5
liberties (2) 9:2 94:9	212:12	living (7) 63:23 101:4 212:8	26:25 86:8 90:21	luck (2) 213:6 232:11
Library (1) 193:21	list (19) 26:5 32:14 83:4 126:2	226:18 227:14	91:11 94:15 116:6	Luis (2) 174:23 211:8
license (17) 61:9,11 62:8,11 82:20	126:4 134:11	232:24 234:2	119:25 148:3	LULAC (6) 201:13 202:3,3,6,9 224:16
139:17 152:15	137:18 165:21	LLC (1) 196:10	157:10 184:5	lunch (2) 83:24 126:18
154:24 155:6	166:2 169:12,17	lobbied (1) 35:16	210:13,14 231:24	Luther (1) 239:24
162:14 165:23	170:15 182:10,23	lobby (1) 94:16	235:25 236:1	Lydia (2) 201:12 202:2
166:6 168:3 181:24	183:5 191:20	local (13) 6:12 17:14 18:4 19:14	240:14	Lyndon (1) 14:10
186:10 218:10,11	222:12 236:8	23:23 35:17 64:13	looked (3) 106:15 162:1 211:1
licenses (5) 62:3,6 167:22 212:19 212:21	238:16	99:8 119:8 147:18	looking (2) 227:17,18	<hr/> M <hr/>
lies (1) 192:23	listed (2) 78:7 235:23	176:2 202:9 206:21	looks (1) 148:4	machine (5) 144:21 158:11,15 160:18 187:12
lieutenant (1) 128:7	listen (2) 31:5 108:9	located (3) 23:3 74:4 127:23	loose (1) 145:21	machines (6) 145:3,8 158:6 159:23 159:24 174:25
	listening (3) 176:12 222:18 226:20	location (23) 29:8 72:18 76:18,20	lose (2) 44:14 140:19	mail (19) 100:16,18 148:19 166:15 171:14
	lists (2) 76:4 235:12	76:21 77:5 106:8	loses (2) 150:12 181:21
	literacy (3) 10:19,22 14:23	171:21 178:12	lost (1) 220:11
	literal (1) 62:7	179:9 183:8,12,14	lot (65) 9:9 10:1 29:17 31:5
	literally (1) 141:4	186:22 193:23	33:6 44:17 51:19
	litigates (1)	212:9,18 213:9,15	57:5 82:2 85:17
		213:20 214:25	96:5 103:17 105:11
		233:13 236:19	114:23 117:19
		locations (21) 69:14,18 72:16 77:7	119:12 122:15
			135:16,22 136:10

172:6 173:22,23 175:3 198:7,8 213:3 215:13 231:13 233:9,10 237:22,23 237:24	manipulations (1) 98:2 manner (6) 26:13 35:24 56:11 70:13 96:9 237:25 manning (1) 56:17 manual (7) 123:4 153:2,4,6 181:12 219:6 221:22 map (2) 183:8,10 March (1) 45:15 marginalized (1) 164:19 Maricopa (42) 38:4,5 51:11 59:25 95:19 106:12,13 112:13,16,25 113:6 116:14,16 118:20 121:1,4 122:3,17 129:19 133:19 148:1 150:3,8 153:15 154:7,12 167:17 168:7 169:9 173:3 174:10 175:10 178:14,18 203:24 204:7 208:21 209:22 216:9 217:9,13 219:2 Marie (3) 2:11 7:13 19:22 marked (1) 82:21 marriage (1) 154:1 Martin (5) 222:13,19 237:16 239:17,24 Maryland (1) 178:24 Maryvale (1) 222:23 Mas (1) 226:16 mass (3) 24:23 120:21,22 Massachusetts (1) 178:25 master (2) 182:23 183:5 match (14) 123:21 136:2 142:5	148:22 154:2,4,7,15 154:19 155:10 212:21 216:4 218:12 219:19 matched (1) 148:16 matching (2) 149:7 153:25 material (4) 204:3 208:23,25 234:9 materials (5) 21:2 24:22 70:25 71:6 204:1 matter (7) 55:25 149:17 203:19 209:11 232:20 233:5 234:15 matters (4) 42:6 68:19 108:24 133:8 maximize (1) 26:16 maximized (1) 26:13 Mayor (2) 199:11 228:21 McAllister (1) 2:4 mean (4) 56:23 66:12 193:2 236:13 meaningful (2) 20:8 39:13 means (14) 21:4 39:22 100:19 122:19 124:12 125:4,8 134:11 147:19 148:15 177:8 178:4 195:24 198:5 measure (2) 52:23 157:2 measures (1) 75:14 mechanism (1) 230:11 mechanisms (1) 234:4 Medgar (1) 17:10 media (1) 24:23 meet (3) 53:1 121:18 132:6 meeting (7)	66:1 107:16 108:6 197:10,14 204:10 218:15 meetings (4) 45:20 201:25 217:18 218:18 meets (1) 236:9 Mel (2) 228:9,13 member (6) 45:10 73:14 98:11 197:23 225:20 237:8 members (33) 27:11 35:4 36:10 37:11 58:7 70:6 82:6 93:20 98:20 104:17 105:3 107:19 108:19 111:2 127:20,21 128:4,9,11,16 130:8 132:19 134:9 136:13,17,20,25 137:4 140:1 181:5 197:11 222:15 223:18 memoranda (1) 69:4 men (2) 17:5 230:3 Mendoza (11) 127:1,3,9,12,13 133:15,24 134:19 135:4 136:6 137:16 mental (1) 143:8 mentality (1) 197:6 mention (9) 10:1 84:1,21 122:16 148:7 159:22 160:9 198:5 208:1 mentioned (29) 23:16 51:7 55:19 57:7 61:23 81:20 87:1 102:9 103:7 114:18 133:4,21 134:3,18 149:11 162:4 174:4 175:10 197:7 198:12 200:5 203:8 205:21,24 216:17 219:8 230:9 234:6 234:23 mentioning (2) 199:22 210:3	merely (1) 220:1 merged (1) 26:8 mess (2) 22:6 214:19 met (3) 63:9 176:6 195:8 Metcalfe (7) 102:21,22,23 106:12 106:20 107:5,15 methodology (1) 234:14 Metro (1) 135:8 metropolitan (3) 98:13 127:23 168:1 Mexican (2) 9:6 58:10 Mexico (14) 23:4 45:19 46:9,24 48:25 49:2 52:1,12 52:25 53:5 61:14 63:22 68:22 178:25 Mi (4) 164:6 169:3,7 171:11 mic (3) 28:12,24 45:7 Michael (2) 232:12,18 microphone (1) 106:3 mile (1) 32:2 miles (2) 23:7 32:15 militantly (1) 123:20 military (6) 185:22 234:6,24 235:20 236:11 238:12 million (6) 40:19 52:8 58:18,22 58:22 180:16 millions (5) 65:15 115:22,22 119:20 207:14 million-dollar (1) 52:16 mind (3) 91:12,14 147:13 mindful (2) 8:15 189:8 mindset (3) 214:22 226:6 227:14
---	---	--	--	--

mine (1)
159:14

minimize (2)
180:1,5

minor (2)
197:24 234:17

minorities (8)
10:24 42:7 43:13 44:1
44:24 50:22 126:5
229:19

minority (19)
10:25 16:1 24:22
38:24 39:14 43:8
44:14,15,25 59:6,9
86:19 94:12 111:20
124:25 125:5 180:6
222:25 230:2

minute (2)
4:9 104:9

minutes (8)
60:2 104:9 105:18
112:15 120:20
126:20,21 195:22

miscalculated (1)
238:9

misconduct (1)
110:22

misdemeanor (1)
153:3

misinformation (2)
182:21 199:17

misleading (1) 113:5

missed (1)
235:17

mission (2)
138:5 164:16

Mississippi (1)
240:21

Missouri (1)
179:17

misspeak (1)
101:21

mistake (5)
86:12 142:11 180:9
203:25 208:14

mistaken (3)
199:1 208:13,16

mistakenly (3) 63:5 86:7,9

mistakes (2)
180:19 214:20

misuse (2) 6:8 98:3

model (3)
100:1,2,8 modest (1) 95:9

moment (5)
37:18 227:1 231:1
238:2 240:24

monetary (1) 52:20

money (26)
17:9 18:3 21:11,13
31:4 115:19 116:1
145:24,25 146:3
149:15 160:15,15
160:21,25,25 171:8
204:8 205:5,6,11,18
205:19 210:7,10
211:10

monies (1) 144:14

monitor (3)
52:15 146:24 181:8

monitors (1) 68:18 months (3)

37:22 41:23 220:10

Moore (1)
17:11

morning (11)
3:4 4:7 9:14 13:11
16:25 22:21 41:3
58:1 68:11,18 145:2

mother (4)
30:8 56:19 98:10
197:25

motivated (3)
123:5,13,15

motivation (1) 121:5

motor (7)
61:25 62:13 83:15,16
95:14 142:7 152:14

motorized (1)
159:6

Mountain (3)
26:23 33:11 76:22

move (13)
11:15 43:12 64:15
93:1 150:3,5,13
154:22 176:7
195:19 213:22
214:25 231:12

moved (7)
44:2 64:11 97:5
129:16 168:7 191:9
191:17

movement (1)
115:19

movements (1)
191:2

moving (6)
21:6,7 129:23 180:17
205:22 217:5

multi-cultural (1)
105:2

multi-cultured (1)
103:16

multi-precinct (2)
178:17 193:18

municipal (1)
233:2

municipalities (1)
6:16

municipality (1)
100:19

N

NAACP (5)
7:10 17:2,7 19:16
228:24

name (42)
4:18 8:14 9:15 11:23
13:12 17:1 19:22
23:24 41:3 45:9
58:9 65:12 68:11
73:13 82:11 93:6,13
93:13 98:9 106:9
108:20 117:11
124:5,6 129:15
138:1 153:25 154:2
169:2 172:19
176:18 182:10
183:15 196:9 202:2
212:1 217:11
222:19 228:13
232:17 236:7 237:5

named (4)
110:4 202:10 211:2
237:4

names (1)
199:14

napkin (1)
232:17

narratives (1) 86:17

nation (55)
14:17 15:5 17:17
23:11,14 26:17 27:3
27:11 29:18 30:1,24
30:24 33:9,16 45:10
45:16,17 46:2,3,5
46:13,19,25 47:3,14
48:5,18 49:9 51:24
51:25 52:3,8,16

53:19 54:6,7,10
56:6 68:14,19,21
69:1 70:8 71:2,10
71:21 81:4 135:10
145:13,14 159:4,13
177:1,13 192:15

national (43)
1:1 2:1 4:15,17 5:2,11
6:12,18 7:4,18 9:8,8
9:18 12:2 16:5,22
17:14,25 18:5 34:21
40:17 57:20 64:5
68:3 87:24 94:18,20
94:22 96:17 97:20
98:12 102:21,23
119:6 122:10
143:18 147:9
176:19 202:9,11
206:22 215:8
239:24

nationally (1) 41:9

nations (2)
145:18 146:4

nationwide (4)
5:9 35:5 177:22 178:1

nation's (3)
33:23 58:19 202:3

native (74)
10:2,5,11,14,20 23:11
24:5 30:1,23 37:15
45:13 46:15 47:5,6
47:10,23,24,25 48:3
48:8,9,19,21 53:7
69:10,10 70:3,4,5
71:1 73:12,17,24,25
74:6,8,10,14,15,18
74:20,22,24 75:4,6
75:10,12,15 78:1,3
78:10,11,20,20 79:3
79:5,8,15,17,19
81:11 83:5 89:18,21
89:23 90:8 91:12
92:18 95:5 111:9
135:14 145:11
170:19 173:19

native-born (1) 91:12

naturalization (22)
19:25 60:10,18,20,24
61:2,24 62:15 82:15
82:18 83:2,8,12,17
83:19,22 84:2,6,11
84:12,18 85:1

naturalize (1) 62:10

naturalized (8)
60:6 61:17,21 62:2,2 83:9 84:24,25

naturally (1)
212:11

nature (1)
215:14

NAU (1)
154:14

Navajo (87)
23:10,14 26:15,17
27:3,11 29:18 30:24
33:9,16 41:17 45:10
45:16,17,17 46:2,5
46:5,13,16,19,25
47:3,14,20 48:5,11
48:18 49:9 51:24,25
52:3,6,7,16,18,23
53:3,12,19,21 54:6
54:7,10,12 56:5,14
57:15,16 68:14,16
68:19,21 69:1,1,6,8
70:8,13,18,19,21,25
71:2,3,4,9,10,13,16
71:17,21,23 72:19
73:3 81:4,12,16
89:25 90:9 135:10
143:11 145:13,13
145:18 159:4,13

Navajos (9)
46:3 47:5,22 53:9
69:16,18 71:25
72:11,14

Navajo's (1)
47:19

Navajo-sponsored (1)
45:22

NAVAP (5)
47:2,4,12,13,17

Navy (1)
237:8

NCVR (1)
8:20

near (2) 27:2 226:1

nearby (1) 213:25

nearly (5)
140:4,9 165:8 178:2
219:24

necessarily (2) 41:6 219:1

necessary (6)
19:7 45:24 88:24
130:5 166:10
220:19

necessity (1) 152:21	141:10 178:3 209:15 211:7 237:23	non-African-Ameri... 67:4	221:10 226:11 230:1	obviously (4) 3:9 40:15 152:3 238:11
need (50) 14:3 16:11 19:11 30:9 32:24 38:20 39:3 55:10 70:11 71:11 73:22 98:1 100:6 102:16 103:10 105:10 113:24 117:9 120:22,24 121:13,14 123:13 123:14,15 124:12 125:7,13 132:11 133:21,25 175:15 175:24 184:22,25 189:11 190:11 191:19 195:23 197:8 198:14 200:22 203:1 205:19 210:3 216:24 223:23 229:12 230:22 231:16	new (46) 14:3 20:19 23:4 31:22 38:17 39:2 45:19 46:9,24 47:25 48:25 49:1 52:1,11,24 53:5 59:17 68:22 73:2 76:21 84:16 89:20 104:21 107:1 115:9 121:3 147:12 147:13 149:9,24 150:2,4,22 158:8 168:9 170:22 173:11 178:25,25 179:16 188:1,21 203:5 214:18 216:4 234:13	norm (1) 180:23	numbers (12) 29:9 30:15 78:4 85:15 92:16 113:22 140:10 153:13 163:10 191:4 199:15 220:25	occasions (1) 223:11
needed (13) 18:18 25:9 77:4 78:22 79:19 103:20 104:4 133:23 138:19 206:15 212:22 226:22 236:15	newly (2) 113:1 150:23	normally (1) 29:21	numerical (1) 194:21	occur (3) 90:6 125:10 186:17
needs (11) 4:11 21:5 22:13 87:11 113:23 116:22 129:9 158:19 190:14 198:22 208:13	news (1) 124:23	North (4) 22:23 32:1 125:1 179:22	numerous (6) 10:8 15:4,4 36:8 74:7 180:21	occurred (2) 16:3 48:10
negative (1) 221:7	newspaper (2) 128:21 132:4	northeastern (1) 23:4	NVRA (2) 96:20 147:9	occurring (4) 109:24 201:1,3 226:14
neglect (1) 21:20	news (1) 124:23	Northern (2) 138:17 229:1	note (1) 127:2	occurs (2) 80:8 125:17 neighborhood (1) 223:11	newly (2) 113:1 150:23	Norwood (10) 97:20,22 98:9 101:16 101:21 102:6,8,12 102:15 112:16	noted (3) 21:14 36:1 187:25	October (1) 161:15
neighboring (1) 44:7	newly (2) 113:1 150:23	note (1) 127:2	notes (1) 201:20	odds (1) 178:8
neither (1) 82:6	news (1) 124:23	noticed (3) 118:14 200:10 212:4	notice (6) 15:2 37:1 39:10,12 117:8 171:20	offend (1) 198:6
network (14) 9:2,8 35:5 102:21,24 117:6,13 122:9 164:4,10 165:15 168:20 176:19 218:18	newspaper (2) 128:21 132:4	notification (4) 171:16,17,18 189:10	notified (3) 118:14 200:10 212:4	offer (5) 32:8 66:9 78:25 99:14 101:8
Network's (1) 164:16	night (2) 131:7 206:24	notify (1) 171:19	objection (1) 37:8	offered (10) 31:15 76:12 79:11 129:8 131:1 152:23 176:7,7 201:4 233:1
never (11) 39:14 84:20 85:25 105:3,4 130:15	Nina (3) 58:3,9 87:20	noting (3) 37:6,22 38:12	objections (1) 37:5	offering (1) 126:13
	noncitizen (1) 86:17	November (4) 102:2 167:11 174:21 189:24	objective (2) 47:3 95:12	offhand (1) 191:13
	noncitizens (9) 62:25 63:2,4,15 85:14 86:7,22 90:22 206:23	number (56) 3:13 37:24 42:13 48:3 53:13,21 58:20 60:17,24 61:2,3,24 63:3 64:23 69:17 75:22 79:10 80:9 83:10,10 86:7,13 88:6 90:17 91:21 92:5 107:22,23 108:2 111:18 121:11 124:8 140:11 154:3 162:14,16 165:22 165:23 169:19 170:8 171:4 173:25 178:16 181:16 185:12,13 187:7 188:1 191:5 193:8 219:1,16 220:21	obligations (1) 224:2	office (47) 26:8 27:2,6 41:5,20 41:24 48:13 55:14 57:5 67:3 72:16 80:10,13 89:4 95:21 96:3 109:13,13 112:19 115:6,8 131:20,22 132:6 147:1 148:9 149:8 163:11 171:8 172:2 172:5 200:5,14 204:24 205:9,10,17 206:9 207:3,6,22 210:4 216:5 219:4 219:22 223:10 235:2
	noncovered (1) 39:5		observed (1) 215:23	offices (14) 25:20 26:9 27:12 55:14 95:15,18,19 96:7,10 128:19 139:25 169:9
	nonoperating (1) 165:23		observer (1) 186:14
	nonpartisan (8) 5:3 58:12 117:17 118:16 128:17 138:4,13 176:20		observers (8) 103:10,11 105:8 114:23 117:24 122:12,14 123:11
	nonprofit (6) 5:2 115:20,21 116:9 138:4 143:3		observing (1) 117:25
	nonrenewable (1) 24:15		obsolete (1) 36:1
	nonstandard (3) 32:2,7,10		obstacle (1) 78:20
			obstacles (6) 129:3,5 202:19,20,22 207:17
			obstruction (1) 121:8
			obtaining (2) 78:12 112:5
			obvious (1) 30:25

181:18 200:8	18:5 49:3 73:22	opposition (1)	94:15 110:13	127:19
official (12)	133:16	96:1	outcome (3)
112:16,17 114:14	online (7)	opted (1)	96:9 178:4 242:15	P
116:14,17 172:1,4	16:10 61:6 177:2	51:14	outdated (3)	pace (1)
182:2 183:17	186:3,7 231:14,14	option (3)	102:11,13,14	170:21
186:16 208:19	onus (1)	160:7 216:23 224:7	outline (1)	pack (2)
229:1	214:13	options (5)	183:11	44:15 47:21
officially (1)	on-campus (1)	159:23 162:2,3	outlined (1)	packed (3)
117:23	212:20	227:10,21	96:5	10:24 15:7 44:1
officials (18)	on-the-border (1)	order (22)	outreach (6)	page (2)
40:4,8,11 61:20 63:8	173:19	15:5,19 19:1 32:16	27:2,4 88:23 204:24	214:5,10
64:18 67:24 70:23	open (4)	38:22,25 47:4 71:10	205:2 218:19	pages (2)
71:15,22 82:3 113:6	27:25 49:14 93:19	85:4 86:22 90:2	outright (1)	77:11 242:9
176:6,6 187:7,15	94:5	110:13 120:25	107:8	paid (3)
190:6 217:19	opened (1)	132:8 145:2 165:7	outside (8)	118:12 171:5 195:5
offspring (1)	178:3	171:8 173:21 196:2	25:24 68:13 84:14	panel (24)
98:8	opening (1)	203:21 210:21	100:6 110:7 114:20	17:5 22:18 34:4 49:19
off-reservation (2)	187:24	224:22	137:7 210:10	58:2 80:5,5 86:24
72:7 78:4	operate (3)	Oregon (5)	outstanding (1)	105:20 124:15
often-heated (1)	59:11 143:25 188:21	100:9,13 138:8	188:6	126:25 127:6,8
63:22	operated (1)	178:25 191:16	outvoted (1)	142:16 151:21
Oh (2)	64:1	organization (23)	47:20	172:18 180:24
102:15 125:3	operates (1)	5:3 8:21 35:3 58:13	outweighed (2)	181:5 184:21 185:8
Ohio (5)	156:6	58:14 93:21,25	224:3,8	187:22 195:16
118:11,13 193:19,19	operation (2)	94:17 97:20 98:13	out-of-precinct (4)	197:11 209:17
193:20	15:16 84:24	101:24 138:4 143:3	15:11 179:6 180:2,22	panelists (8)
oil (1)	operational (1)	169:4,14,24 170:1	out-of-state (9)	11:20 34:5,12 57:19
140:18	223:8	173:1 176:5,21	115:2 140:6,16 142:8	90:12 194:15
okay (13)	operations (1)	202:4 227:21	162:11 167:21	201:23 212:7
97:17 102:7,19	171:16	228:24	186:10 210:7	panelist's (1)
104:10 106:13	opinion (17)	organizations (19)	215:10	92:2
125:4 152:16	52:22 54:23 80:6	8:25 49:22 113:11	overall (3)	panels (4)
172:18 201:11	147:1,11 152:21	118:20 124:8	95:20 96:7 176:24	8:3,6 41:1 217:3
205:14 232:14	153:5 161:12,15	146:22 163:14	overcome (1)	paper (8)
234:5 235:16	166:21,22 200:3	165:1 169:5,17	63:24	104:1 109:18 151:5
old (6)	220:5,13 226:12,17	171:11 172:7 176:5	overseas (1)	155:12 167:17
44:15 59:19 86:17	228:16	188:2,5,14,20	238:25	183:9 201:4 236:16
112:22,23 168:3	opportunities (5)	201:14 202:8	oversee (1)	paperwork (1)
older (2)	13:16 51:12 72:7 94:4	organized (2)	181:8	130:5
89:20 231:19	133:5	165:2 173:10	overseeing (2)	Paradise (1)
oldest (2)	opportunity (24)	organizers (1)	55:13 181:13	125:1
202:3 228:24	11:25 12:10 13:6 20:2	20:3	overt (1)	parent (1)
once (10)	34:20 37:15 47:7	organizes (1)	21:15	139:8
36:13 61:15 62:23	50:24 55:4 65:10	138:12	overuse (2)	parents (1)
112:23 119:24	73:4,12 79:22 87:20	organizing (4)	6:8 134:3	84:24
181:17 185:21	97:24 100:23	67:6 119:1 138:2	overutilization (1)	parking (3)
214:9 220:24	113:20 127:15	172:22	130:12	145:20 156:18 159:16
223:12	130:12 137:21	origin (1)	overview (1)	part (18)
ones (4)	142:23 143:9	143:18	109:24	13:14 21:18 35:5 54:1
73:2 106:25 167:18	201:16 202:1	originally (1)	owner (1)	54:19 79:8 80:11
221:8	oppose (1)	185:23	196:10	105:20 106:17
one-in-three (1)	203:5	Oso (3)	o'clock (1)	152:6 155:11 157:9
178:8	opposed (2)	222:11,11 232:14	104:22	178:10 198:20
one-to-one (1)	114:25 224:3	ostensibly (1)	O'Connor (3)	207:4 222:22 234:8
178:19	opposite (1)	63:18	3:5 4:22 7:21	235:20
ongoing (4)	220:13	ought (2)	O'otham (1)	partial (5)

179:4 191:18,24 215:13 227:7 partially (1) 179:17 participate (18) 6:2 12:22 13:8 23:18 34:20 55:5 70:14 139:14 140:23 150:23 151:12 161:23 163:7,9 170:5,24 210:15 211:13 participated (3) 45:20 48:23 202:7 participating (5) 79:18,20 126:13 140:25 150:25 participation (22) 6:13 12:12 20:16 26:16 56:3 59:12 64:24 66:15 87:22 88:10 92:5 94:4 128:13 138:6,22 141:20 164:18,23 171:6 176:7 210:24 211:11 particular (6) 12:1 63:16 115:13 182:1 183:12 192:9 particularly (20) 21:5 23:6 25:22 29:18 39:13,19 50:25 67:9 82:17 90:5,9 111:8 111:20 117:21 119:3 123:12 133:13 136:25 144:22 187:19 parties (7) 117:19,22 118:8 163:14 170:11 234:10 242:14 partisan (4) 19:2 117:17 118:16 186:14 partisanship (2) 124:20 125:12 partner (1) 68:12 partners (5) 10:2 19:14 168:20 170:1 171:12 partnership (2) 169:17 171:11 parts (3) 35:25 196:17 222:23 party (19)	66:19,23 82:7 111:4 118:3,20,21 119:18 122:2,3 125:18,22 176:4 199:15 217:10,13,18 238:17 240:18 party's (1) 111:12 pass (5) 40:17 41:20 170:9 186:1 192:5 passage (2) 36:5 94:17 passed (7) 14:9 66:16 77:20 164:22 179:18 196:22 227:12 passing (2) 96:18 227:15 passport (3) 84:4 85:3 167:20 pastor (6) 58:3 65:8,13,23 68:6 81:19 patchwork (1) 40:20 patience (1) 241:2 patient (1) 199:19 Patty (5) 2:15 7:19 9:16 146:11 162:8 Paul (4) 34:7 37:18 41:2,4 paved (1) 69:19 pays (1) 239:19 PDA (1) 119:6 Pearce (1) 190:9 pedal (2) 169:20 170:21 Pee-Posh (1) 127:19 penalizing (1) 180:7 penalty (2) 110:5 111:13 Pendergast (1) 223:13 Pennsylvania (3) 110:18 114:19 179:1 Penny (3)	2:13 7:15 13:12 people (142) 9:9 14:17 19:5 21:6 22:6 23:17 24:3,11 28:20 29:4,7,16,17 29:24 30:2,11 31:5 44:10,17 45:17 52:4 52:6,19,23 56:14 67:10 69:1 71:17,23 77:15 80:9 83:11 84:10,15,23,25 85:20 86:1,2,4,9,10 86:14 87:15 88:20 90:23 91:21,24 92:6 94:11,13 95:18 96:6 97:6 99:6,9,10 100:6 103:14,22 104:23,23 105:10 105:12 106:17,22 110:20 111:22,23 112:7,11 113:2 115:10 119:21 120:2 122:4,7 123:1 123:22 124:13,17 125:14,16,22 129:23 135:16,18 135:22 144:22 145:7,9,12,17,22 146:6,7,14 149:1 150:17,18,22 153:23 154:22,23 157:24 161:20,21 161:22 162:19 163:15 164:20 173:25 174:20 175:23 182:9 188:12 190:23 193:15 195:20 198:17,21 200:22 206:14 208:18 210:5 214:1,25 217:18,21 218:1,11 220:6,20 221:3,5,23 225:21 229:3 233:16,18 241:1,9 Perales (12) 58:3,4,6,9 80:11,23 82:15,24 85:23 87:20 88:2 90:19 percent (42) 40:7 46:18,22 47:2,9 47:12,17 53:6 54:11 54:12 58:25 59:4,5 60:1 65:20 66:2 74:3 82:13 92:13 140:4,6,9,10,22	144:11,16 150:19 156:18,19,19,22 157:11,12 177:21 177:25 178:13 222:25,25 229:20 229:21 234:7 238:17 percentage (6) 29:6,7 44:3 66:5,25 82:8 perfect (1) 124:7 Peri (2) 142:21 149:10 period (3) 81:8 142:14 230:1 periods (1) 8:9 perjury (2) 110:6 111:13 Perkins (2) 41:5,5 permanent (11) 43:23 60:12 62:3 72:10 85:18 86:4 134:10 166:1 169:12,16 170:15 permit (1) 56:21 permits (1) 81:1 person (31) 32:14,16 33:13 53:10 56:20 57:15 77:17 77:24 84:8 85:25 96:3 103:20 104:6 104:11 107:23 112:10 113:7 125:8 129:24 148:24 156:16 157:22 158:3 159:25 160:2 163:17 167:24 179:24 182:4,6,25 personal (5) 44:8 149:17 151:9 175:24 223:20 personally (4) 115:6 138:7 153:2 167:12 personnel (1) 200:12 persons (8) 16:12 84:22 142:24 143:10,22 144:23 157:16 211:1 person's (2)	113:8 224:6 perspectives (1) 126:15 petition (2) 173:15 195:6 petitions (1) 48:13 Petra (5) 164:7 172:19 176:13 187:19 188:25 pew (1) 179:20 Phillips (5) 196:4,5,9 200:13 201:3 Phoenix (17) 20:25 22:22 41:5 65:14,24 98:13 124:24 127:23,24 135:8 138:11 168:1 197:16 203:19 222:23 228:22,23 phone (7) 103:8 110:8 199:15 231:25 232:1,2,4 phones (3) 149:9,11,12 photo (6) 14:25 78:12 167:22 185:25 236:5,17 photocopy (4) 84:4,6,10,13 phrase (2) 59:19 84:14 physical (10) 33:14 48:14 135:17 135:17,20,24 136:13 231:19,19 236:19 pick (2) 77:17 156:14 picking (2) 153:12 225:2 picture (2) 121:18 216:18 pie (1) 81:25 piece (8) 81:24 107:12 152:23 155:12 183:8 208:2 213:3 231:19 pieces (1) 234:12 piles (1) 199:14 Pima (11)
--	---	---	--	--

95:19 100:2 109:5,6 110:9 115:25 118:19 169:9 173:3 178:18 184:14	22:22 plummeted (1) 60:1 plus (3) 54:7 124:16 178:21 pocketbook (1) 52:15 pockets (1) 53:21 podium (2) 22:20 34:17 point (18) 4:12 37:21 49:25 51:6 51:14 56:23 100:15 134:7,21 151:8 157:8 192:13 195:20 218:23 220:17 227:10 230:25 239:13 pointed (1) 136:12 points (1) 44:3 policies (6) 15:25 37:25 57:1 139:21 140:8 224:12 policy (2) 191:10 228:21 polycymaking (1) 14:21 political (26) 18:3 19:15,23 39:24 41:8 59:12 63:25 66:13 67:2 82:6 91:25 109:4 114:24 117:18,22 120:21 120:22 122:2 123:17 128:1 163:14 164:17,22 199:15 225:23 234:10 politically (1) 179:2 politicians (1) 176:2 politics (5) 21:24 109:7 119:17 120:12 176:4 poll (53) 6:9 14:23 23:22,25 24:1,11 29:20 30:3 30:6 33:25 67:12 71:7 76:3,10,25 77:3,16,18 78:23 79:4 98:4,22 110:12	111:19 117:22 122:5,7,16,20 123:2 123:12 130:19 131:1,5,6 159:8 160:5 164:17 167:12 177:9 180:9 180:18 183:6,22,25 186:8,14,23 193:25 203:13 206:5 218:4 228:10 polling (72) 23:20,25 29:8 33:21 53:23,24,25 54:1 76:17 77:5,7 98:21 106:8,16 111:21 113:12 122:19 123:7 125:18 131:23 143:22 144:7,9,11,16,21 155:25 156:3,9,17 157:4,6 158:1,13 159:3,4,10,18 161:2 166:11 167:25 171:22 174:22 175:4,6 178:12,13 178:18,20 179:19 180:18 182:18,23 182:24 183:7,19 186:22 187:10 189:17 193:18,23 205:23 206:12 212:12,18 213:8,15 213:20 225:15 233:2,11,17 polls (46) 10:18 14:19 16:8 17:21 72:1,14 75:21 76:9,16 77:10,22 78:3,22 89:24 97:7 99:19 101:1 103:11 119:21,23 121:6 122:12 125:16 129:7 134:12 138:19 146:8 155:21 157:17 165:15 167:3,14 170:14 174:7,23 185:6 199:17 202:23 203:10,11 203:12 204:14 209:14 213:24 215:16 225:10 polluting (1) 63:15 poor (3) 6:9 49:20 98:3	pop (1) 159:19 popular (1) 121:4 popularity (1) 53:9 populated (1) 46:2 population (37) 23:9,12 24:14 25:6,8 28:14,17 30:23 46:16,17,21 47:9 53:2,7,8,12,12,15 53:22 54:6 58:24 59:2 63:21 65:20 66:2,5,19 81:21,24 82:9 86:22 92:21 99:21 173:18 223:2 223:4,6 portion (2) 32:9 230:22 pose (1) 90:11 position (3) 11:17 37:1 149:17 positions (2) 109:4 128:8 positive (2) 50:4 137:11 possessed (1) 82:2 possible (5) 40:14 67:20 71:23 72:9 152:1 possibly (1) 91:11 post (4) 48:13 57:5 72:16 96:10 postcard (1) 64:7 posted (1) 131:12 post-Prop (1) 202:20 potential (6) 59:1 75:10 97:5 134:16 194:21 223:6 pour (1) 210:10 Powell (10) 232:12,16,18 234:21 235:3,15,18 236:10 236:13 237:2 power (1)	15:7 Powerful (1) 52:22 PowerProfile (2) 31:23 32:5 practically (1) 179:25 practice (6) 15:24 41:9 98:16 108:23 131:17 186:15 practices (6) 14:6,14 64:25 66:18 74:5 175:16 practicing (1) 41:10 prayerful (1) 68:2 precinct (37) 15:1 29:22 32:16,17 72:13 111:20 129:16 136:22 167:17 168:2 177:6 177:9,17,25 178:7 179:8 180:8,14,18 182:12,12,14 183:11,22 184:1,11 185:2 186:7 192:6 193:9,11,16,24 212:9,10 233:5 234:10 precincts (10) 26:3 130:24 131:6,8 131:23 155:25 178:19 183:12 225:15 234:9 preclear (1) 43:19 preclearance (20) 11:3 15:15 24:15,17 36:18,25 38:1,18,20 38:22 44:9 49:6,18 49:21 54:22 72:25 113:23 125:25 208:2 235:14 precleared (2) 43:3 50:7 preclears (1) 50:17 predictable (1) 61:18 predominantly (2) 99:5 113:1 prelection (1) 155:22 prefer (1)
--	---	---	---	--

175:3	20:18,19 191:15	prisons (1)	proceeding (1)	prohibit (1)
preferred (1)	213:24 214:2	197:13	43:19	16:12
80:12	prevailed (1)	private (10)	proceedings (8)	prohibited (1)
premiere (1)	52:12	108:23 110:1 116:11	1:11 2:1 3:3 13:21	194:22
170:2	prevent (2)	145:6,10 158:9,16	241:11 242:5,10,11	prohibition (1)
prepare (1)	38:15 142:14	160:6 210:22	process (65)	13:25
11:21	prevented (3)	232:20	6:3,15 13:15 14:20	prohibitions (2)
prepared (2)	79:20 96:17 139:24	privately (2)	15:2,15,22,23,23	15:10,11
174:15 175:18	preventing (7)	160:1,4	16:15,20 19:9 23:16	prohibitive (3)
present (16)	36:7 37:2 39:22 74:24	privilege (1)	23:18 24:10 26:11	67:11 224:14 227:20
11:21 23:1 52:9 73:4	140:22 141:15	13:13	32:22 39:24 40:3,6	project (12)
73:12 77:23 79:22	142:13	pro (1)	41:22 44:9 54:25	3:20 94:24 95:3,11,13
83:19 84:8 113:20	previously (6)	224:24	55:5 63:25 70:15	95:17 96:4,9 124:11
119:14 125:5	37:25 61:23 109:1	proactively (1)	71:19 79:18 87:12	124:12 205:2
127:11 137:22	115:5,24 228:22	193:15	96:19 124:13	210:12
143:9 182:5	pre-1965 (1)	probably (4)	128:13 132:9	projects (1)
presentation (2)	15:17	85:18 86:8 159:15	136:21,24 143:21	71:5
127:3 195:24	pride (1)	201:13	146:21 148:8	Promise (7)
presentations (1)	100:24	probation (1)	158:24 169:6 170:3	121:2 164:8 172:20
195:18	primarily (4)	195:5	170:6,14,23 171:1,2	172:25 173:9
presented (8)	42:4 45:11 53:11	problem (29)	184:9 187:16 189:4	175:13 226:15
12:6 13:2 41:1 47:14	142:6	21:3,24 31:1 55:15,16	189:5 196:19 208:3	promote (2)
110:23 111:19	primary (7)	76:8 83:3,8,15,18	214:18 215:3	119:7 171:22
116:4 191:4	26:18,19 33:22 58:14	84:12 87:1 93:17	217:25 218:15,17	promoting (1)
presenter (2)	77:3,6 111:5	131:4 137:3 153:24	219:9,10,14 221:9	164:24
97:19 102:20	principals (1)	157:1 178:11 180:6	222:4 230:10,18	prompted (1)
presenting (1)	13:24	184:17 192:23	231:3	170:8
75:2	principle (3)	193:18 202:24	processed (2)	prompting (1)
presents (1)	42:1,3 93:25	208:16 217:23	169:13 218:2	172:7
42:18	print (6)	222:2 233:7 238:13	processes (4)	promptly (1)
preserve (1)	98:15 213:7,14	240:12	48:24 149:13 219:2	60:21
180:22	216:20 233:17	problematic (2)	232:22	promulgated (1)
preserved (1)	242:7	39:19 90:9	processing (3)	235:11
224:7	printed (6)	problems (30)	147:25 148:5 217:21	pronounce (2)
preserves (1)	83:11 204:2 208:23	20:15 21:11 29:24	productive (1)	93:8,14
168:18	208:24 213:21	42:19 55:7 57:4	4:6	pronounced (1)
preserving (1)	233:6	61:17 62:1 72:1	professor (4)	65:21
13:16	printer (2)	76:2 83:1,21 111:17	7:13,16 19:24 89:10	pronouncement (1)
presidency (1)	213:20 217:6	120:11,21 122:8,15	proficiency (1)	124:7
168:12	printout (2)	143:21 145:20	70:20	proof (25)
president (16)	213:9,18	146:5 152:24	proficient (1)	6:1 14:19 17:15,20
5:5 7:9 14:10 17:2	printouts (2)	154:12 157:8 161:3	11:2	59:17 64:14 78:8
58:10 93:12 97:10	186:9 214:3	161:18 193:4 198:7	profound (1)	83:4 84:23 139:1
97:20 98:12 102:23	prior (5)	215:22,24 217:20	18:17	142:4 147:16
103:15 123:19	95:16 99:2 108:22	procedure (6)	program (7)	148:14 149:18,25
163:6 177:11 178:5	141:2 156:3	166:5 181:12 187:8	3:14,19 27:4 31:3	150:9 154:24,25
237:12	prioritize (1)	195:10 196:18	32:23 138:25	163:2 167:23
presidential (2)	162:10	235:1	140:18	202:21 206:10,15
163:5 178:5	prioritized (1)	procedures (16)	programs (2)	216:6 235:1
presidents (2)	131:14	79:3,7 117:25 122:22	31:12 143:14	proofs (2)
36:9 51:8	prioritizes (1)	122:24 123:15	progress (3)	216:3,4
press (1)	179:9	148:10 149:20,22	71:24 139:10 197:2	Prop (16)
218:25	priority (1)	153:2,4,6,8 182:4	progression (1)	59:15 62:17 63:17
pressure (1)	19:13	194:3 235:24	46:12	64:4 83:3 84:3
112:7	prison (2)	proceed (1)	Progressive (2)	141:2,11 165:4
pretty (5)	230:10,17	127:6	118:23,25	185:15,23 186:1

202:10 209:21 235:4,9	36:6 149:3	provisional (84) 6:9 24:9,9 35:17 75:25 76:12 78:25 78:25 79:11 97:25 98:3 103:19,21 104:3,12 129:9,12 129:13,15,19,20,22 130:10,10,12,15,21 130:21 131:1,3,9,10 131:16 132:2 133:3 133:14 134:4 168:5 170:8 171:5 174:24 175:1 177:4,5,16,23 179:6,13,17,20 180:3,13,22 181:6 181:14 182:11,13 182:15 183:9,15 184:3,12,19 185:10 185:14 187:5 191:3 192:17 193:9,22 194:10 203:14,17 205:25 206:3,4,7,16 209:20,23 233:14 237:19 238:20 239:11	172:12 purity (1) 86:18 purported (1) 110:10 purporting (1) 50:20 purpose (6) 13:23 62:17 122:25 160:17,23 241:5 purposes (5) 84:13 132:22 160:23 187:24 236:25 pursue (2) 101:9 224:22 push (1) 28:11 pushback (1) 190:15 put (24) 15:15,24 31:4 62:5 105:25 122:10 126:3 135:25 148:2 155:8 156:7 163:2 170:19 173:16 184:23 187:1,9 190:18 191:11 193:1 223:5 237:24 239:10 240:19 putting (3) 83:7 153:20 221:3 p.m (4) 8:10 126:22 164:2 241:11 P.O (3) 135:19 136:1 138:16	134:20 136:7 152:12 153:19 154:20 155:17 157:14 158:23 161:6 184:8 187:19 188:3,8,11 191:1,13 194:10,11,14,20 200:4 227:2 234:22 questioning (1) 98:4 questions (55) 7:23 27:24,25 28:21 34:4,10 40:9,23,25 45:4 49:14 54:15 57:18 73:8 79:23 80:3 97:15,17 102:19 103:25 107:9 121:20,22 126:11 127:4,7 133:25 137:14 142:16,17 151:19 151:23 152:19 155:18 161:8 163:25 181:3 190:25 192:11 194:12 195:15,17 196:1 201:9,21 209:17 211:22,22 217:3 222:8 227:1 228:3 232:8 234:21 240:9 Quezada (8) 189:2,3 222:13,15,20 227:9 228:8 237:16 quick (2) 4:9 48:17 quickly (2) 55:12 228:19 quite (12) 20:25 32:12 111:7 112:24 125:23 190:21 213:10 230:2,6 233:7,15 237:5 quizzing (1) 101:7 quo (2) 219:24 220:16 quota (1) 113:22 quote (1) 229:24
propaganda (1) 98:16 proper (7) 78:24 203:9 204:17 206:5 207:23 214:10 233:13 properly (2) 131:24 214:14 proposed (5) 37:10 38:4 39:12 69:9 90:14 proposing (1) 45:22 proposition (22) 59:13,22 60:3,6 61:3 61:19 64:1,3 65:3 74:20 77:21,22 83:2 85:5 87:24 90:20,21 91:2,15 92:16 98:3 221:17 propositions (2) 90:1 175:7 prospectively (1) 70:2 protect (7) 6:16 14:7 18:21 38:24 52:19 94:3 96:23 protected (5) 14:8 18:14 46:1 50:22 69:1 protecting (7) 3:13,15 7:6 13:17 43:8 69:8 164:24 protection (20) 3:20 5:16 10:2,3 24:17 35:8 46:10 55:10 59:14 64:8 69:5 73:18 76:13 77:1 94:23,25 95:4 122:10 143:5 168:22 protections (2) 49:10 203:1 protects (2) 52:5 168:18 proud (1) 128:23 prove (7) 140:11 150:4,12 154:22 167:20 221:19,21 proved (1) 148:21 proven (2)	provide (31) 3:23 26:13 38:14 39:12 53:19 59:17 70:8,12 79:13 83:10 95:4,15 96:8 110:14 129:12 135:20 144:1 147:15 148:23 162:8 163:23 165:21 171:20 182:5 205:7 205:19 206:9,15 212:5 216:3 227:18 provided (14) 60:17 70:19 71:22 95:24 96:1 110:5,17 132:1 144:3 148:14 148:16 162:9 241:3 241:9 provides (2) 64:8,14 providing (13) 3:7 4:23 10:6 11:18 39:10 45:21,23 48:24 68:16 127:15 133:22 138:18 158:25 Provine (63) 2:11 7:13 19:22,23 28:1 49:16 54:14 77:12 82:14 86:20 89:10 97:22 106:14 107:2 114:13 116:24 133:24 142:18 151:20 152:10,16 153:5,11 154:5,20 155:5,14 164:3,13 168:24 172:15 176:13 180:24 184:20 185:8,10 187:18 190:24 192:11 194:7,12 195:12 200:4 201:1,9 205:13 208:11 209:6,16 210:2 211:21 215:20 216:16 217:1 222:8 226:25 228:3,9 232:8 234:21 237:1 240:8,22 proving (1) 59:21 provision (7) 5:14 18:9 38:14 50:6 55:20 107:6 234:7	provisionally (1) 214:9 provisions (4) 38:21 39:6 203:21 220:5 Prud'homme-Baue... 93:13 public (23) 6:23,25 8:9 16:24 21:16 39:12 63:7 71:6 93:1 94:23,24 95:7,16 124:3 126:13 193:21 195:13,19,21 204:1 205:18 216:12 240:23 publish (1) 132:4 published (1) 128:20 pundits (1) 206:22 Punishing (1) 180:19 punitive (2) 171:3 172:12 purchase (1) 114:24 purge (1) 203:16 purging (1)	Q qualified (2) 63:19 222:1 qualify (1) 221:14 quarterly (1) 207:5 quasi (1) 67:12 question (52) 18:19 31:17 33:1 34:12 51:24 54:18 55:17,23 80:4 82:14 82:15 85:11 86:25 88:3,13 89:9,17 90:11,16,20 92:7 101:13,14 104:13 106:4,14 114:12 121:23 123:23	R Rabago (5) 108:18,19,20 115:4

117:4	ready (2) 126:23 217:24	198:7 218:8	redirected (1) 183:2	regarding (14) 35:17 46:12 49:5
race (4) 14:1 56:1 91:15 143:18	Reagan (1) 36:9	receives (1) 35:7	redirecting (1) 98:5	51:23 55:18 73:1 88:9 110:7 125:24 143:9 144:2,4 171:14 191:1
races (2) 25:20 192:1	real (10) 28:4 85:19 90:25 159:16 190:14 223:21,22 225:6,6 228:19	receiving (4) 118:1 140:18 165:7 218:8	redistricting (40) 10:12,24 14:20 15:6 17:15 37:19 42:5,6 42:8,10,25 43:1,3,7 43:16,21 44:10 45:12,18,20,22 46:18,21 47:15,19 48:23,24 50:25 52:7 66:21 68:14 73:22 74:2 75:1,3 80:21 98:2 99:16 109:2 197:10	regardless (1) 180:8
Rachel (2) 196:4,9	reality (3) 56:10 225:23 226:18	recognize (7) 55:7 86:6 88:1 106:22 106:23 107:1 239:23	regional (1) 179:3	regards (3) 147:2 197:12,19
racial (7) 5:16,20 7:1 38:10 50:23 59:6 91:3	realize (5) 19:1 56:25 184:5 230:4 234:11	recognized (6) 12:13,20 57:9,9 106:24 137:9	regiment (1) 8:8 17:22 23:17 28:20	Regents (1) 140:3
racially (2) 90:14,20	realized (1) 232:5	recommend (3) 75:18 126:3 185:5	register (34) 8:8 17:22 23:17 28:20 60:9 61:4,18 62:11 63:14 64:6,9 86:3,5 86:8,9,11 96:5 121:7 129:16 137:24 140:5 141:5 149:18 151:6 154:15 155:12 161:21 163:19 165:9,11 200:11 206:25 218:5 233:24	regionally (1) 179:3 racist (1) 92:4	realizing (1) 63:5	recommendation (1) 207:21	reduce (8) 10:25 59:9 74:7 80:19 83:14 185:13 187:4 187:7	registered (45) 23:13 27:10 28:6,16 32:6 33:13 45:10 59:4,5 62:21 63:1,4 64:12 72:12 86:1 91:23 95:14 97:6 113:1 121:3 138:9 140:23 141:10 147:20,22 148:1,12 149:24 150:3,20,22 150:23 161:22 168:6 169:11,15,20 173:4,10 174:5 198:25 199:2,4,9 212:19
Radecic (7) 142:21,22 155:18 156:1 157:20 159:25 160:14	really (42) 6:12 10:20 11:25 12:2 12:8,22 15:16 27:15 29:2,9 31:9 33:7 54:4 86:17 88:24 119:16 125:21 127:9 133:5 134:2 141:24 152:17 155:19 162:2 163:21 181:5 189:15 190:21 201:8 205:17 215:9 216:16 217:4,7 218:25 219:24 225:22 227:20 228:2,7 231:12 236:21	recommended (1) 234:20	reduced (3) 31:3 74:23 242:7	refer (1) 146:14
radio (2) 31:5,5	record (12) 7:24 18:11 38:10 97:10 107:18 114:17 117:2 135:11 141:13 170:21 190:2 208:12	recorder (15) 22:25 27:14 54:19,24 55:13 60:22 149:23 166:19 170:25 171:19 173:22 192:24 195:6 203:7 223:25	reducing (1) 80:18	reference (3) 23:19 30:17 81:23
radius (1) 159:15	recorder's (7) 26:8 112:18 169:8 171:8 172:2,5 207:6	records (2) 62:15 83:16	reduction (1) 15:2	referendum (1) 189:22
raise (2) 224:25 227:2	reason (7) 31:10 87:16 154:18 180:11 189:21 199:24 237:17	record (1) 122:4	reelection (2) 223:15 237:13	referred (2) 147:4 165:5
raised (3) 133:3,11 192:14	reasonable (1) 54:5	recruited (1) 122:11	reenactment (1) 116:20	referring (1) 125:10
raises (1) 73:1	reasoning (1) 44:22	recruit (1) 122:4	reenforce (1) 18:24	reflect (1) 41:6
ran (6) 111:2 121:7 154:18 190:9 211:3 223:10	reasons (5) 20:13 78:2,6 92:19 184:13	recruited (1) 122:11	refer (1) 146:14	reflected (1) 36:22
Randall (2) 117:6,11	recall (2) 124:23 200:16	recruited (1) 122:11	reference (3) 23:19 30:17 81:23	reform (7) 4:3 6:11,20 13:16 35:14 118:18 176:20
ranges (1) 25:7	recalled (1) 237:23	rectify (1) 227:19	reference (3) 23:19 30:17 81:23	referred (2) 147:4 165:5
Raquel (4) 164:5 168:25 169:2 187:20	receive (7) 7:22 85:1 113:17 165:24 189:14 212:25 235:13	red (1) 114:25	referendum (1) 189:22	referred (2) 147:4 165:5
rate (6) 58:25 59:4 95:13 132:7 180:1 199:20	received (5) 111:4 135:21 188:25	redesign (1) 35:24	refer (1) 146:14	referring (1) 125:10
rates (1) 64:21			reflection (2) 223:15 237:13	register (34) 8:8 17:22 23:17 28:20 60:9 61:4,18 62:11 63:14 64:6,9 86:3,5 86:8,9,11 96:5 121:7 129:16 137:24 140:5 141:5 149:18 151:6 154:15 155:12 161:21 163:19 165:9,11 200:11 206:25 218:5 233:24
ratios (1) 178:19			reelection (2) 223:15 237:13	registered (45) 23:13 27:10 28:6,16 32:6 33:13 45:10 59:4,5 62:21 63:1,4 64:12 72:12 86:1 91:23 95:14 97:6 113:1 121:3 138:9 140:23 141:10 147:20,22 148:1,12 149:24 150:3,20,22 150:23 161:22 168:6 169:11,15,20 173:4,10 174:5 198:25 199:2,4,9 212:19
reach (1) 210:20			reenactment (1) 116:20	registering (5) 61:6 84:3 138:8 163:17 202:20
reaction (1) 125:2			reenforce (1) 18:24	registrants (4) 59:17 147:12,14 188:1
read (8) 77:11 93:15 120:14 160:3,5 175:6 196:6 201:5			reference (3) 23:19 30:17 81:23	registrant's (1) 216:9
readily (1) 70:12			referendum (1) 189:22	registrar's (1) 216:5

25:4,8,11 27:8	194:2	24:14	4:13 5:4 173:23	62:4 85:19 86:4
28:16 30:15 31:11	rejecting (1)	remove (2)	requested (5)	resisted (1)
31:22 35:18 59:16	179:14	99:20 170:15	60:16 61:3 166:2	47:19
59:24,24 60:16,22	rejections (3)	removing (2)	204:3,3	resisting (1)
61:8 62:17 63:18	177:18,22 178:16	125:20 176:21	requesting (2)	231:21
64:5,7,20 67:8	related (2)	rendered (1)	129:23 139:9	resolved (1)
75:25 76:5,6,15,16	33:10 242:14	36:1	requests (2)	84:20
80:8,13,17 83:10	relates (1)	repeal (1)	76:2 93:2	resort (1)
84:19 87:25 94:18	86:17	16:11	require (9)	226:8
94:21 95:21,24 96:2	relating (2)	repeat (1)	24:1 59:16 139:22	resounded (1)
96:11,17,18 128:16	75:25 76:4	201:18	142:3 149:23	44:24
129:17 130:3	relation (3)	repeatedly (1)	171:18 179:5,12	resounding (1)
138:13,21 141:3,7	28:7 88:4 121:23	21:17	234:5	188:9
141:12,13,21	relationship (2)	rephrase (1)	required (17)	resource (1)
146:14,17,19,23	33:5 133:9	229:8	39:11 44:3 67:13 70:8	133:10
147:9,10 149:3,6,16	relative (1)	report (10)	72:17,22 76:12	resources (8)
149:20,24 150:7,9	56:16	12:3,4 40:5 41:25	84:19 136:14 205:6	52:20 88:8 160:10,12
150:16 154:11	relatively (1)	96:3 98:23 145:16	216:4 217:2 218:3	161:5 171:9 172:11
161:7,10,17,23	195:7	157:16,21 241:4	233:23 234:16	189:5
162:3,5,6 163:3,13	relatives (1)	reported (6)	235:4 236:22	respect (14)
163:23 165:3,18,25	83:23	1:23 76:8 95:23	requirement (14)	42:11,11 43:10,13
166:4,24 168:8,14	released (2)	143:20 178:13	10:19,22 23:20 24:15	80:7 84:2,18 110:1
174:13 176:22	229:21 230:17	207:6	25:12 29:16 49:21	112:17 113:2 116:1
177:2 179:22,23	relentless (1)	reporter (5)	54:22 62:18 90:6	155:20 205:22
185:7 198:11,13	18:15	1:24 2:5 8:14 242:4	166:13 186:19,20	225:5
200:8,10 203:6,10	relevant (1)	242:20	219:15	respective (1)
203:23 204:21	46:23	reports (5)	requirements (18)	128:4
205:1 217:14	relocated (1)	6:19,24 111:7 113:5	11:3 14:25 49:18	respects (1)
218:20 219:6	237:10	207:5	67:12 69:13 72:20	132:17
231:13 236:15	rely (2)	represent (5)	138:21,25 139:9,16	respond (5)
registrations (6)	130:8 184:17	45:17 143:17 190:23	140:21 141:15,19	54:23 89:16 98:25
15:11 96:8 146:21	remain (2)	202:2 214:21	141:21 142:5 165:3	188:14 237:22
147:8 148:6 215:10	39:22 71:2	representation (7)	165:12 195:8	responded (2)
regression (1)	remainder (1)	87:2,8 144:1,4 196:24	requires (2)	55:22 204:7
66:14	127:7	214:24 224:24	77:22 216:24	response (4)
regular (6)	remains (2)	representative (8)	requiring (2)	57:21 92:7 133:11
24:4 129:11 131:4,13	144:17 222:5	37:16 188:4 189:3	82:18 149:18	184:7
131:15 132:2	remarks (7)	222:13,20 225:20	research (6)	responses (1)
regularly (1)	16:17 41:6 86:16	228:6 237:15	82:17 100:21 192:8	196:2
225:17	138:20 184:21	representatives (9)	192:10 195:1 203:8	responsibilities (1)
regulations (3)	187:20 234:19	42:15,17 44:6 50:24	reservation (11)	117:20
66:12 94:20 122:24	remedies (1)	81:1,10 94:5 128:3	41:13,17 71:5 72:6	responsibility (2)
reinstated (1)	51:22	151:4	73:19 76:23 90:10	43:22 163:22
230:12	remedy (2)	represented (5)	92:14 127:22,25	responsible (3)
reinstating (1)	38:22 49:9	42:7 74:12 115:24	132:7	68:25 205:10 238:5
208:2	remember (2)	133:18 177:25	reservations (2)	responsive (1)
reiterate (1)	65:22 209:4	representing (2)	75:23 77:15	94:6
197:8	remind (2)	73:15 201:13	reside (1)	rest (3)
reject (4)	190:5 195:21	Republican (6)	128:4	20:22 120:15 142:16
147:8 149:23 155:3,4	reminded (2)	66:19,22 109:8 112:5	residency (3)	restoration (5)
rejected (16)	18:6 82:12	190:8 238:19	140:20 152:2,4	40:6,18 67:16 194:18
59:23 60:21 61:8	reminding (2)	Republicans (2)	resident (6)	230:23
162:9 167:19 177:6	65:25 81:21	126:6 226:7	60:12 104:5,14	restore (5)
177:16,24 178:6	reminds (1)	Republican-control...	105:14 107:6	35:24 36:13 40:18
181:16 184:6,13	41:15	66:17 67:6	197:22	49:10 195:6
192:17 193:10,23	removal (1)	request (3)	residents (3)	restrict (2)

11:8 96:18	rewrite (1)	48:19 49:11 51:9,22	203:16 219:20	26:11
restricted (2)	85:9	52:6,19 55:24 57:20	220:7 221:4,13	salvages (1)
5:23 192:2	Rhode (1)	58:7,13,14 60:14	Ronald (1)	179:10
restrictions (2)	179:1	65:18 66:11 67:17	36:9	Sam (10)
15:1 63:17	Ricardo (1)	68:4,25 69:3,6,7,8	room (7)	164:3,11 168:24
restrictive (3)	111:1	70:9,17 71:25 73:16	19:5,13 33:25 101:4	193:11 229:12
17:16 171:4 172:13	rich (1)	75:9 93:24 94:3,7	105:15 124:2	230:9 233:23 234:6
result (9)	125:3	94:17 96:15 97:4	232:14	234:23 235:7
4:1 27:10 70:15 74:21	Richard (1)	98:14 103:2 113:22	roster (5)	same-day (3)
92:16 113:4 166:9	45:6	116:21 117:19	72:13 135:21,25	15:10 16:10 185:7
223:8 226:5	ridiculous (1)	119:10,13 121:10	183:16 186:13	sample (2)
resulted (5)	56:22	121:12 123:18	roughly (1)	165:24 213:4
10:14 48:2 69:4 70:17	rigged (2)	137:22 143:16	127:22	San (14)
77:24	120:5,7	157:24 164:17,24	route (1)	47:8,10 48:25 49:4
resulting (2)	right (83)	165:14 168:16	224:23	73:14,15,18 74:9
74:20 96:20	3:13,15 4:25 6:17 7:6	176:3,20 194:19	RPR (2)	88:4,10 92:9 174:23
results (3)	12:18 13:21,22 14:1	195:7,14 196:16	1:23 2:5	211:8 237:10
22:8 72:19 89:3	19:3,4 29:12 41:16	197:20 202:4,13	rule (4)	sanctions (1)
retained (1)	41:24 44:13,22	223:5 228:10,18,18	158:1 179:11 193:6	188:22
70:5	56:15 58:4 65:15	228:24 230:8,23	194:5	Sandoval (1)
retired (1)	66:7 68:10 69:17,25	239:3	rules (15)	111:1
111:1	86:23 94:1 97:14,19	Riley (1)	59:16 122:23 123:3	Sandra (3)
retrain (1)	99:11 101:14	110:4	123:13 142:20	3:5 4:22 7:21
189:25	110:21 114:22	rip (1)	176:3 187:23	Santa (1)
retrieve (1)	120:9,13,14,16,17	17:21	191:18,22 207:18	168:3
98:25	123:5,7 125:6 126:1	ripe (1)	214:7,14 218:13	satellite (1)
retrogression (4)	126:4 135:12	42:22	219:5 235:11	27:5
43:11 46:14 50:21	151:13 157:2,18	River (9)	ruling (6)	save (1)
75:10	162:25 164:14	12:16 127:1,13,18	46:13 96:15 147:2,6,7	201:19
retrogressive (2)	168:9,15,18,22	133:12 135:7,16,22	165:16	saved (2)
37:14 43:17	174:2 176:1 179:18	136:5	run (5)	213:3,4
return (2)	179:19 180:21	Rivko (2)	65:2 115:6 155:8,9	saw (13)
171:19,20	190:16 192:3,6	93:6,8	187:12	6:8 65:2 103:17,21
revamped (1)	198:16 203:2	roadblocks (2)	runaround (1)	105:4 118:5 122:8
151:25	211:16,17,19,20,25	11:14 121:8	238:6	122:15 124:25
revamping (1)	214:20 216:19	roads (1)	running (4)	126:7 129:5 210:23
22:14	224:6,19 226:5	69:19	69:19 120:12 174:24	211:6
Reverend (4)	227:14 231:4,4,7,8	robocalls (1)	237:12	saying (16)
87:1 102:24 105:24	231:9,9,19,23	110:8	rural (14)	99:3,4,4 112:22,24
229:18	234:15 235:21	robust (2)	23:23 24:10 25:23	113:25 196:13
reverse (1)	236:2	7:24 75:11	29:19 30:4,22 32:14	199:2 214:4 216:11
167:8	rights (130)	Robyn (1)	56:6,7 57:3 136:11	216:21 218:9 220:5
reversed (1)	1:1,4 2:2 3:9,10,11	93:13	159:12,21 173:18	220:13 231:12
10:23	4:4,15,18,20,25 5:8	Rock (1)	rushed (1)	240:18
revert (1)	5:11,14 10:12,16,23	68:17	200:17	says (6)
51:3	11:4,6,8 13:17,23	role (3)	Russell (1)	22:14 84:7,13 199:3
review (1)	14:5 15:4 16:16,22	17:25 87:21,25	190:9	219:10 221:18
113:21	17:4,8,12 18:5,7,9	roles (1)		SB1070 (1)
revised (1)	18:13 19:2,9,12	59:18	S	91:10
102:17	20:14 22:15 24:18	roll (1)	S (1)	scattered (1)
revising (1)	27:17 28:4 29:25	63:15	2:4	197:18
22:13	34:21,24 35:3,8,25	rolls (17)	Sacks (1)	schedule (1)
revisit (1)	36:6,7,13,20 38:23	64:11,18 75:25 76:6	68:12	195:23
16:11	38:24 40:6,19 42:8	76:10 86:15 147:20	sacred (1)	schemes (1)
revisited (1)	43:8,12 44:25 45:13	147:22 149:1,1	176:2	15:6
102:16	45:25 46:1,11 48:15	166:4 183:25	safeguards (1)	scholarships (1)

140:17	52:24 54:9,19,21,25	Senate (2)	99:3 145:3 180:25	show (15)
school (16)	55:3,6 70:9 71:25	80:25 128:25	sets (3)	23:25 59:20 62:8
3:7 7:17 11:18 18:17	72:25 73:23 75:8,13	senator (3)	64:18,19 112:21	72:22 100:23
25:1 27:14 31:10,13	75:16,17,18,20	42:14 189:2,2	setting (3)	134:12 148:23
166:7 185:24	79:19 99:20 110:22	Senators (1)	52:19 53:1,4	152:1 187:10
199:20 207:10	113:22 137:23	123:19	settled (1)	198:10,14 203:12
223:12,13,16 234:3	197:23 223:4,7,23	send (1)	48:7	213:2 215:16
schools (1)	224:2,14 230:8	218:3	settlement (1)	239:20
199:21	secure (6)	sending (1)	10:14	showed (5)
scientist (1)	20:8 97:4 164:17	139:9	seven (2)	40:10 92:16 105:5
19:23	186:3,5,6	senior (2)	127:25 237:9	178:6 212:18
scope (1)	secured (1)	65:12,23	seven-year-old (1)	showing (3)
184:16	93:24	sense (10)	232:2	129:24 180:12 204:14
Scottsdale (2)	Security (15)	21:18 107:2 134:4	shame (1)	shows (6)
125:1 211:5	140:11 142:6,12	149:21 150:11	112:23	141:14 177:8 182:24
scrambling (1)	148:16,17,22	151:6 155:2 196:14	share (13)	186:23 206:4 221:4
220:12	153:13,16 154:6	217:18 234:19	8:6 33:21 47:16 59:7	shut (1)
screen (1)	165:22 219:16,18	Sensenbrenner (1)	106:7,8 124:10,22	148:3
123:21	220:21,25 221:24	36:12	128:23 197:9 199:6	sic (2)
scrolls (1)	see (30)	sent (17)	208:5 226:6	107:24 210:12
166:17	28:19 55:15,16 72:8	15:16 76:15 98:19	shared (2)	side (6)
seat (3)	87:6 93:16 98:17,24	99:3 101:17,20	103:4 222:19	28:9 45:8 52:12,14,15
27:22 101:13 128:25	116:13 119:14	116:3,7 166:3	sharing (3)	116:11
seats (4)	120:8,16 122:20	175:11 207:1 209:1	13:1 22:24 106:5	sides (3)
38:4 42:12 81:13	126:20 153:11	213:1 218:11	sharp (2)	19:15 34:1 226:6
224:19	156:9 163:18 167:2	233:12,20 237:21	77:24 92:17	sidestepped (1)
second (14)	172:10 177:10	separate (4)	Sharpton (3)	98:15
5:9 13:13 58:2 72:5	184:12 199:18	100:2 112:21 148:25	98:6 102:25 105:24	Sigma (1)
75:21 78:7 81:7	208:6 210:17	223:11	sheet (1)	98:11
90:16 106:4 107:12	215:25 229:25	series (2)	229:7	sign (9)
188:8,11 195:10	230:7 237:23	5:9 9:23	Shelby (13)	4:10 8:17 104:8 112:7
228:23	238:24 240:16	serious (4)	3:22 5:13 35:9,11	169:12 187:2 199:2
secondly (3)	seeing (5)	118:8 134:7 190:15	36:2,16 37:23 49:7	200:18 201:7
98:10 100:8 211:19	18:13 124:23 181:16	208:15	54:20 72:25 109:21	signature (8)
second-class (1)	211:3 226:10	seriously (1)	114:2 223:8	48:13 112:9 181:17
61:16	seek (4)	82:7	sheriff (6)	181:22 183:16
Secretaries (3)	11:7 64:25 131:22	serve (5)	27:13 110:25 111:2	186:13,21 187:4
160:20,24 161:1	168:13	9:18 11:17 17:3 58:9	112:5 121:5 122:6	signatures (2)
Secretary (28)	seeking (2)	145:12	sheriff's (1)	112:5 173:16
32:8 61:7 116:5	6:20 226:11	served (8)	113:3	signed (4)
123:17 131:20,21	seeks (1)	58:13 73:18 109:1,3,8	Sherman (6)	14:9 169:15 170:21
132:5 133:4 148:8	64:6	143:15 195:4 229:1	164:9 176:15,18	195:20
149:8 153:8 166:22	seen (16)	service (6)	192:13,19 193:1	significant (5)
177:12 181:11	5:22 6:4 11:7,13 44:8	11:20 41:22 71:6	shifts (1)	39:22 42:19 47:4 48:2
192:25 193:13	89:21 125:16 167:6	143:14 238:7	51:4	162:16
204:24 205:17	169:19 184:14	240:11	Shirley (1)	significantly (4)
207:3,22 210:4	200:3 203:10,11	services (4)	41:18	30:14 47:13 181:23
219:7,21 235:2,10	222:5 232:25 239:1	26:10,14 70:13	short (4)	187:5
235:12,23 236:8	selected (3)	216:20	93:16 108:14 179:8	signing (1)
section (54)	20:2 23:22 30:6	serving (1)	230:1	25:19
11:3,6 14:4,7 15:15	selecting (1)	239:14	shorter (1)	signs (2)
15:16 18:9 36:17,20	9:20	session (5)	156:13	8:16 96:10
36:25 37:5 38:13	self-perpetuating (1)	113:10 124:4 126:24	shorthand (1)	sign-in (1)
39:7 48:16,20 49:6	87:10	227:11,13	242:7	229:7
49:10,18 50:15 51:1	semester (1)	set (7)	shortly (2)	silence (1)
51:3,13,20,22 52:21	138:11	8:18 14:14 16:4 53:6	17:19 65:22	211:14

211:14	slide (1) 156:24	56:16 61:14 105:23	Spanish-automated... 110:8	spoke (6) 76:25 107:10,23
similar (2) 47:8 75:14	slightly (1) 178:7	108:11,13 125:19	Spanish-speaking (3) 110:9 125:15 209:13	157:21 212:4 228:6
simple (8) 142:2 179:10 185:13 193:6,25 195:7 230:11,14	slope (2) 156:19,20	156:14 158:6,7 160:2	speak (13) 8:13 24:18 36:14 57:16 89:24 93:3 124:9 137:1,2 151:16 202:1 240:4 240:10	spoken (2) 163:5 239:9
simple-looking (1) 20:17	slow (3) 174:25 175:1 196:7	Somerton (1) 211:8	speaker (8) 22:18 45:16 108:18 112:15 117:5 124:3 196:4 232:12	sponsored (1) 226:2
simply (9) 53:15 106:18 111:24 152:22 184:2,10 203:13 206:18 207:2	small (11) 23:5 63:3 66:25 81:23 81:24 86:2 96:9 106:21 173:18 174:4 183:8	somewhat (4) 43:15 103:7 107:4 240:17	speakers (2) 111:15 206:19	sponsorship (1) 105:24
single (4) 62:20 81:12 197:24 200:14	smaller (3) 94:12 159:20 174:8	song (1) 108:10	speaking (7) 34:9 107:13,24 179:23,25 228:10 229:7	spread (2) 20:22 51:25
single-shot (1) 81:5	small-scale (1) 141:18	Sonny (1) 107:18	specific (12) 30:17 31:1 37:4 95:12 114:6 177:14 184:12,13,25 191:25 218:23 221:19	Sr (1) 65:12
sister (3) 56:16,18 145:12	smart (1) 200:21	Sorority (1) 98:11	speaks (1) 240:3	staff (14) 25:15 27:2 45:19 55:14 143:7,16 156:8 164:9 171:5,9 176:18 189:7,20 190:1
sit (8) 28:25 34:16 41:24 51:9 97:14 200:15 201:16 225:19	Smartphone (1) 232:11	sort (11) 55:20 80:22 106:18 161:22 184:16 191:17 192:7 193:15 194:4 207:24 217:20	special (5) 60:6 68:13 79:3,7 108:8	staffed (1) 188:14
site (11) 28:4 69:14 107:11 143:22 144:6,9,21 156:17 157:10 187:11 233:17	snacks (1) 174:19	sorts (2) 116:4 236:6	specifically (14) 14:13 49:19 90:22 115:12 137:23 138:20 173:2 178:18 195:2 197:15 217:15,19 219:3 220:8	stage (1) 20:9
sites (9) 108:1 118:1 125:18 144:16 156:9 157:4 157:6 171:15,24	snake (1) 114:3	sought (3) 75:11 78:21 96:23	specified (1) 209:7	stages (1) 144:10
sitting (4) 56:17 117:12 232:1 235:25	sneaking (1) 206:24	Souls (1) 196:10	specify (1) 209:10	staggering (1) 177:23
situation (7) 47:8 49:10 50:10 106:19 114:4 160:22 226:18	snippet (1) 135:13	south (10) 23:8 32:1,2,15 127:23 174:22 175:2 197:16 222:23 231:6	spectrum (1) 19:15	stand (6) 18:3 34:17 93:16 97:15 98:9 113:6
situations (6) 136:11 175:8 225:3,7 225:23 227:19	Social (15) 140:11 142:6,12 148:16,17,22 153:13,16 154:6 165:22 219:16,17 220:21,24 221:24	source (2) 170:2 172:8	speculated (1) 43:15	standard (5) 32:11 53:6 54:11 94:25 156:19 six (2) 37:24 122:19	society (3) 3:11 196:17,21	southern (1) 172:24	speed (1) 187:16	standardized (2) 25:24 31:25
size (1) 178:10	socioeconomic (2) 78:5 125:5	Southwest (3) 70:5 172:23 205:1	spent (1) 119:20 160:21	standards (3) 16:5 53:1,4 skill (1) 242:12	sociology (1) 197:24	so-called (1) 179:19	spin (1) 206:22	standing (1) 98:19
skills (1) 141:23	software (3) 31:22 32:9,11	sovereignty (1) 132:18	split (1) 64:11	Stanton (3) 199:11,12 228:22
Sky (1) 167:25	solely (1) 19:3	sovereignty (1) 132:18		start (8) 4:21 151:24 164:11 170:10 196:13 201:24 223:15 240:25
slid (1) 201:5	Soler (6) 34:7,9,14,15,19 49:24	sovereignty (1) 132:18		started (3) 97:4 119:17 214:3
	solution (9) 52:3 101:8 120:11,20 142:2 152:6 171:4 213:12 227:7	space (2) 3:7 4:23		state (207) 2:3 4:18 5:20 6:12,25 7:9,14,17,24 8:13 9:3 10:3,9,15 12:7 12:21,23 13:18 14:18 16:6 17:2,18 18:4,12 19:16 20:15 20:17,21,22 21:3,4 solutions (6) 40:14 99:14,17 172:13 185:13 233:1	Spanish (14) 4:10 8:16 20:24 102:1 110:12,15 112:20 114:16 175:12 203:25 204:2,5 209:2,2 somebody (10)

21:12,22,24 22:2 24:11 27:18 28:8 32:8 35:4,6,17 37:23 38:8,12 39:21 40:15,16,21 45:11 45:21 48:6 49:23 51:13,15 54:8 56:18 56:21 57:12 59:11 61:7 63:16,23 64:13 64:25 66:12,17 67:7 67:17,21 68:20 71:11,14,21 73:16 74:12 81:22 85:20 86:1 88:21 90:24 91:22 92:1,6,15 95:15 96:22 99:15 100:9,13 103:2 105:7 108:21 109:25 113:14,15 114:25,25 115:15 115:16 116:5 118:3 118:21 119:8,18 122:3 123:18 126:7 128:12,24 129:14 132:16 133:4 135:19 136:16,23 138:6 139:5,15,22 140:14,24 141:14 142:1 143:6 146:3 147:4,18 149:4,6,13 149:22,25 150:7 152:8 153:2,4,6,9 154:10 155:2 160:20,25 161:1 162:17,20 163:8,20 164:5,14 165:11,13 166:7,20,22 167:16 168:14 169:3 170:9 171:7 172:23 174:10 175:20 176:6 177:3,12,18 179:8,22 188:7,24 190:12 191:6 192:25 193:2,5,14 194:17 196:15 197:13,19 200:2 202:12 203:4 205:8 210:6,25 212:3 215:7 219:7 220:6 221:3,4,13,14,17,21 221:25 222:20 225:19 235:10,12 236:8 239:25 240:4 242:4,20 stated (4) 28:14 77:2 92:19	194:17 statement (5) 43:6 73:5 81:20 93:10 97:9 statements (6) 37:24 167:14 213:1,1 229:17 231:2 states (59) 6:16 12:14 13:9 18:10 20:19 22:11 39:25 46:3,8 50:7 52:1,9 52:24 58:15,17,24 59:8 60:13 62:4 63:8 68:22,23 69:3 70:23 86:11,21 94:10,25 96:14,17 97:1 100:15 109:20 118:7,12 152:9 165:5 168:17 177:14 178:21 179:3,12,16,21,25 180:4,21,23 183:21 191:5,9,14,16,20,24 192:16 230:23 239:23 240:2 statewide (7) 35:15 138:12 139:25 168:11 172:25 177:11 192:4 state's (20) 24:25 59:1 65:24 66:2 131:20,21 132:6 148:9 149:8 165:3 181:11 204:24 205:17 207:3,22 210:4,15 219:22 235:2,24 state-based (2) 95:1 139:20 state-level (1) 35:13 state-required (2) 147:15 166:13 stating (3) 96:10 103:9 228:17 statistics (2) 192:14 194:25 status (9) 85:21 86:4 98:5 148:21 162:20,20 188:12 219:24 220:16 statuses (1) 148:13 statute (6) 62:18 85:10 113:23	195:3 235:19 236:9 statutes (4) 36:7 37:25 192:9 220:9 statutorily (1) 117:18 stay (4) 34:3 106:3 195:23 227:1 stayed (1) 174:18 staying (2) 50:15 236:20 steadily (1) 64:22 stealing (1) 90:25 step (1) 238:10 stepped (1) 229:4 steps (1) 171:3 Steve (4) 73:10,13 88:4 89:18 Stewart (12) 58:3 65:8,9,12 68:6 81:19 82:4 87:1,6 87:13 91:18 229:18 stickers (1) 100:23 Stinson (3) 2:16 3:4 4:22 stipend (1) 140:19 stolen (1) 118:11 stop (5) 114:6 119:7 121:15 121:20 239:14 stopped (4) 91:10 186:16 189:23 189:25 Stopping (1) 39:2 stops (2) 83:21,25 store (2) 32:3,15 stores (1) 69:20 stories (2) 18:6 126:16 story (1) 21:18 straight (1)	105:25 straps (3) 57:1,1,3 strategic (1) 101:24 strategy (1) 15:17 streamline (2) 26:9 234:14 street (8) 25:22,24 26:1 31:18 69:21 130:4 135:18 135:21 streets (1) 183:11 strength (5) 47:24 59:9 66:24 74:8 75:15 stress (1) 125:11 strides (2) 14:17 99:14 strike (1) 85:10 strikes (1) 84:15 strive (2) 63:24 128:12 strong (4) 16:15 21:6 27:16 53:21 stronger (3) 18:25 171:10 202:5 strongly (2) 27:15 94:14 strove (1) 124:17 struck (1) 5:13 struggle (5) 12:11,15,24 13:5 52:18 struggled (1) 153:1 struggles (2) 20:9,12 struggling (1) 98:7 student (21) 139:8 140:15 141:19 152:8,10 153:14 162:7 212:2,14,16 215:1,10,14,21 216:20 233:22 234:1,2 236:13,18 236:25	students (70) 3:16 9:4 21:7,8 137:24 138:3,5,8,12 138:16,23 139:2,3 139:12,14,18,22 140:4,6,12,16,18,22 141:5,10,14,18,23 142:8,14 152:1 154:14 161:9 162:11,13,16 163:4 163:7 166:8 167:23 185:24,24 186:3,10 196:11 212:4,24 213:9,12,15,19,22 213:24 214:3,8,9,11 214:17 215:12,15 216:2,11,22,23 217:7,23 218:7 232:19 233:23 236:20 student-directed (1) 138:4 student-led (1) 138:3 studies (1) 197:24 study (4) 139:12 207:11 210:12 210:13 subject (7) 20:14 36:18 38:19 41:21,21 66:11 72:20 subliminally (1) 197:4 submission (2) 60:5 63:10 submit (3) 113:16 124:1 205:8 submitted (8) 3:21 37:7 38:1 79:25 93:2,11 113:15 216:12 substantial (1) 69:17 substantially (2) 50:2 64:15 substitute (2) 38:13 49:17 success (2) 10:17 197:2 successes (4) 26:5,17 47:23 227:25 successful (4) 46:19 74:23 75:2 226:15
---	--	--	--	--

successfully (3) 115:7 128:20 165:2	158:16 205:8,10 218:10 219:18	85:18	104:21 113:8,12 125:7 126:18,19 127:4 158:10 171:3 187:11 190:17 200:19 201:20 213:13 218:4 226:21 230:4 231:16 237:6 238:4	taxpayers (4) 22:7 49:23 50:10,11
suddenly (2) 214:7 220:13	supposedly (1) 218:3	swayed (1) 38:9	taken (13) 4:14 5:25 57:25 75:14 124:19 126:22 164:2 178:22 191:5 236:17 237:11 242:5,6	teach (4) 198:17 199:24 239:1 239:16
sued (1) 82:25	suppress (7) 109:14 110:1,19 114:7 115:2,12 116:11	sweat (1) 65:17	talent (1) 141:24	teachers (1) 25:3
suffer (1) 21:8	suppressed (1) 115:11	switch (1) 214:7	talk (28) 28:5 35:20 41:13 42:4 45:11 49:19 53:1 92:8 94:11 99:18,22 99:23 103:7 112:12 119:16 120:19 173:6 175:22 176:17 198:16,21 200:23 202:17,25 223:23 224:10 228:19 238:14	teaching (2) 141:22 198:18
sufficient (8) 24:8,20 48:16 52:4 53:8 79:3 167:23 186:11	suppression (6) 14:24 101:1 118:6 121:8 122:23 197:16	switchboard (2) 110:18 114:19	talked (11) 49:16 72:11 88:13 114:19 194:15 200:12 202:18 205:25 216:5 225:21 239:18	team (1) 119:6
sufficiently (1) 46:6	Supreme (21) 5:12 15:14 17:24 18:2 18:8,19 35:10 36:2 49:7 64:4 87:23 96:14,19 108:25 120:13 125:24 147:2,7 165:4 219:23 220:11	system (51) 13:22 15:9 16:7 17:21 18:3 24:25 25:9,15 31:10,24,24 32:19 45:7 62:13 67:20 116:10 139:1 142:10 143:5 144:5 146:14,15,17,25 149:3,6,10,16 150:8 150:16,24 151:17 152:22 154:11 155:8 166:23 167:2 168:19 179:23 181:8 203:23 210:16 215:5 216:5 217:15 218:20 220:14 222:7,7 233:20 236:17	talks (2) 90:22 120:17	teams (1) 119:1
sugarcoat (1) 138:24	sure (32) 7:6 19:11 32:17 44:10 51:25 79:15 83:20 85:8 111:15 112:12 112:13 117:2 123:6 123:7,8 125:13 144:25 145:24 171:24 175:15,16 176:8 187:21 189:16 190:1,16 200:6 203:22 205:11 207:21 233:7,15	systematic (1) 61:18	target (1) 85:20	tears (1) 65:17
suggested (1) 226:3	surety (1) 52:5	systems (8) 15:8 143:24 144:18 144:23,25 146:19 160:18 204:18	targeted (1) 95:1	technical (1) 153:20 suggesting (1) 113:7	surge (2) 22:1 203:10	table (11) 4:13 8:4,9 27:23 34:6 34:16 83:21 163:18 169:18 183:10 238:15	taught (3) 105:17 236:14 238:11	Technically (1) 179:23
suit (2) 48:6 62:24	surprising (1) 177:3	tabulation (1) 183:20	tax (3) 14:23 67:5,12	technological (2) 37:11 82:22
sum (1) 113:25	surrounding (1) 88:5	tackled (1) 129:4	taxes (1) 239:19	technology (3) 16:9 37:13 161:3
summary (3) 36:3 68:2 97:3	survey (11) 40:10 144:9 145:16 156:7,8,11,12,13,15 156:17 159:2	tactics (1) 18:5	Taxpayer (1) 59:14	Ted (1) 110:3
summer (3) 5:13 17:24 35:11	surveyed (3) 95:17 96:4 144:12	tag (1) 8:21		teenager (1) 204:20
summons (1) 67:19	surveys (2) 144:8 145:19	take (36) 3:25 4:8 6:7 27:22 31:19 40:22 45:4 53:11,17 57:23 69:22 78:8 84:10 87:19 89:25 101:13		telecommunication... 115:17
Supai (1) 159:5	suspect (1) 85:17			tell (8) 99:9,10 108:10 134:8 134:13 192:24 193:17 206:25
super (1) 66:17	suspense (2) 165:21 218:2			telling (3) 104:18,23 110:9
superintendent (1) 27:13	suspicious (1) 135:20 144:21 158:1			tells (1) 221:1
superior (1) 179:14				Tempe (9) 1:14 2:4 3:1 56:9 127:24 141:6 197:11,22 199:12
supervisor (6) 107:10 115:25 122:19 238:3,9,14				temperature (1) 22:23
supervisors (7) 41:19 116:1 156:4 157:5,5 204:10 229:3				Ten (1) 174:11
supplement (1) 229:11				tendency (1) 22:1
support (5) 35:6 94:7,14 210:21 211:6				tension (1) 84:17
supported (1) 17:25				Teran (6) 164:5 169:1,2 183:17 187:20 188:23
supporters (2) 35:4 150:15				terminology (1) 71:8
supposed (8) 135:20 144:21 158:1				terms (11) 33:1 38:11 43:12 71:3

91:4 122:1 125:16
133:9 188:23
190:13 194:18 terrific (1) 217:7
territory (1)
143:6
test (1)
151:11
testified (9)
13:20 49:1 61:12
111:16 202:8,15,16
202:18 228:14
testifier (2)
211:24 232:15
testifiers (2)
195:13,21
testify (4)
58:8 132:24 146:13
212:3
testifying (1) 65:10
testimony (49)
3:25 7:22 11:21 16:18
16:24 19:18 23:2
28:24 34:11 37:6
48:24 59:10 68:2,7
68:16 73:12 79:23
79:25 80:2 92:24
93:1,21 94:11 117:1
121:16 123:25
124:1,3 126:14
127:4,5 132:14
135:5,9 137:22
153:13 164:14
165:13 184:15
189:8 195:19,21
200:6 201:17
222:18 232:16
240:23 242:6,10
tests (1) 14:23
texts (1)
175:23
thank (156)
3:6,24 4:5 6:13 8:22
8:24 9:12,13,19
11:17,19,22 13:10
16:21,21 19:19,19
19:21 20:5 22:16,24
27:20 28:10,13,23
29:13 30:20 31:20
32:25 34:2,14,15,19
34:23 40:24 45:1,2
49:12 54:14 55:1,23
57:19,20,21 58:6,7

65:6,7,9 68:5,6 73:6
73:7,11 79:22,25
80:1 87:20 88:2
89:13 91:16 92:23
97:12,13,18,23
101:10,11,12
102:19 103:1
104:10 106:1,2
108:15,16,19
114:10,13 116:24
116:25 117:4
123:24,25 124:6
126:8,9,12,13
127:14 132:23,24
133:1,2,15 134:19
135:5 136:6 137:13
137:15,16,17
142:15,22 146:9,10
146:12 151:15,18
151:20 155:14,16
158:21 164:1,12,13
168:24 172:14,15
172:16,17 176:11
176:13,16 180:24
187:18 190:24
195:16,18 196:8
198:2 199:18
201:11,15 208:9
209:16,20,25
211:21,23 217:4,8
222:17 226:19,24
228:5,7,8,14 232:7
232:10 237:1 240:7
240:8,22 241:10
thanked (1) 188:4
thankful (1) 3:7
thanking (3)
4:21 8:23 201:24
thanks (4)
88:13 144:13 188:25
222:10
theme (2)
184:20,24
Theta (1)
98:11
thing (13)
28:1,5 43:4 98:18
99:23 106:6 125:11
147:13,21 162:23
170:24 184:7 217:7
things (45)
13:7 22:11,12 28:2
29:1 30:3,25 51:2
55:12 56:10 85:7

102:8 103:13,17,18
105:1 116:12,23
118:2,18 119:2
122:4 124:22
155:21 156:25
157:3 185:1 193:17
203:9 205:6,7,21,24
206:23 207:25
209:22 213:21
215:4 218:24
228:19 230:7
232:25 238:24
239:16 240:3
think (103)
9:20 16:4 20:24 22:13
29:23 31:10 37:5,7
42:22 44:20 50:4,13
51:23 52:21,24
53:19 54:9 55:9,24
56:3 57:3,4,14
79:24 82:10 86:6
88:12,20,23 89:5,17
90:19 91:13,19
92:15,20 93:6 106:7
106:10 108:4
113:25 115:8 120:3
120:5,24 122:25
126:14,19 134:2,9
134:13,21 135:1,2,5
135:11,11 136:5,15
137:10 146:1
147:25 149:19
151:13 152:7,13
161:22 162:23
163:22 174:7,14
175:22 183:3 190:4
190:14,19,20
194:10 195:25
198:16 200:22
202:23 209:21,24
213:10 216:13
218:25 220:17
223:24 224:8 226:6
226:25 227:9
231:15,15 233:1
234:8,18,23 235:19
236:20 241:3,8 thinking (4)
82:17 187:24 214:10
214:11 thinly (1) 20:22
third (4)
72:10 170:11 239:15
240:1
thirds (1)

23:9
thought (6)
42:16 95:10 118:8
212:5,10 213:16 thousand (1)
141:5
thousands (5)
55:3 139:2,3 169:24
170:18
threat (1)
188:22 threats (1) 47:24
three (22)
25:25 44:2 47:11 52:1
52:9,24 66:1 68:21
68:23 73:20,21
77:16 82:13 88:16
88:17 104:9 109:25
125:7 156:18,18
177:14 192:16
three-fourths (1) 235:6
three-judge (1) 43:20
three-quarters (1)
185:18 thrilled (1)
174:18 throwing (1) 82:11
thwart (1) 64:1
thwarting (1)
80:17
Ti (1)
226:16
Tia (3)
222:11,11 232:14
ticket (1)
192:1
Tierney (1)
68:13
time (94)
11:21 13:13 16:3 17:4
17:10 20:12 22:17
23:24 25:4,17 27:12
31:14 34:6,13 35:20
38:11 39:9,17 40:4
40:22 41:11 42:16
52:10 53:18,23 57:2
57:23 59:2 61:5
63:19 68:8 72:8
75:17 78:12 80:2
81:15 87:20,21
92:24,25 93:4,15,17

95:6 99:4 101:10,19
104:22 105:23
108:12 123:2
126:18 127:10
128:22 132:23
142:23 145:6 148:3
148:24 153:20
158:3 164:1 175:7
180:14 181:21,23
184:4 191:22 195:4
196:3,6,9 198:2,4
198:21 200:7,14
201:19 204:20
205:13 208:10
213:11,16,17
214:17,21 220:3
226:10,19 228:1
230:1 237:7 238:6
240:7
timekeepers (1)
8:15
times (10)
29:17 76:13 78:15
105:22 170:1
183:23 197:6
208:13 211:12
229:4
Time's (1)
101:10
timing (1)
102:1
tiny (4)
85:16 86:7,13 221:10
Titla (7)
73:10,11,13 77:13
88:12 89:18 92:7
titles (1)
198:4
today (84)
5:18 6:13 7:5 8:20
9:11 11:21 12:6
13:1,2 14:8,24 16:2
16:18 17:3,13 18:6
19:19,19 20:4 21:19
22:11 35:22 41:6,25
44:21 65:10 82:1,2
92:24 93:9,20 96:12
98:19 99:18 102:25
103:4 105:21
107:16 111:16
113:19 124:15
132:24 138:16,19
140:12 142:23
143:9 146:13
151:15 165:13
166:20 173:6

176:12,17 185:20 185:25 192:22 194:25 196:9,21 197:7,18 198:12 201:17 202:1,8,17 202:24 203:1 212:4 215:6 219:1,20 222:19 223:3,22 225:19 226:3 228:6 228:16 229:3 231:3 241:2,9	towns (1) 25:25 track (3) 29:21 116:10 139:1 tracked (1) 110:17 tradition (1) 56:4 traditional (1) 231:23 traditionally (2) 141:3 176:22 train (3) 104:21,21,23 trained (3) 131:7,24 184:22 trainer (1) 6:9 training (11) 25:3 30:16,18 31:8,9 76:3 98:4 131:11 185:6 193:14 194:3 transcribed (1) 8:12 transcript (4) 1:11 2:1 3:3 242:10 transcription (1) 242:8 transfer (2) 156:21,24 transient (2) 21:4,9 transitional (1) 24:9 transitory (1) 215:14 translate (2) 71:15 89:25 translation (5) 24:21 27:5 31:6 72:15 78:5 translations (4) 70:12 71:9,16 72:3 transportation (4) 54:4 72:17 78:13 206:14 trash (1) 206:17 traveling (1) 53:23 travesty (1) 190:19 treasurer (1) 27:14 treat (2) 123:5 176:2	treated (2) 61:16 155:11 tremendous (2) 14:17 241:7 trial (2) 61:12 108:25 tribal (36) 7:12 9:5 10:4 11:24 68:20 70:6 88:4,11 92:14 96:16 128:9 128:11 130:3,8,23 131:19 132:4,9,14 132:18,19,21 134:13,16,22,24 136:12,17,19,19,20 137:4,5 147:3 165:5 219:11 tribe (7) 23:11 73:14,15 74:9 129:25 130:19 132:1 tribes (9) 20:25 26:16 70:4 74:2 127:20 132:5 137:12 145:23,24 tried (8) 60:8 61:4,18 83:1,8 83:15 121:7 156:21 tripled (1) 141:13 troubled (1) 103:13 troubleshoot (1) 79:6 troubleshooter (1) 122:18 true (4) 20:11 228:2 235:15 242:9 truly (2) 224:2 227:16 trust (1) 169:25 trusting (1) 175:3 try (16) 30:11 64:18 83:14 88:22 119:7,8 121:17 122:4 153:15 161:12 162:19 163:14 167:1 196:7 227:22 227:23 trying (15) 29:22 57:2,10 77:11 151:10,11 161:21	163:1 167:24 188:13 215:25 217:20 218:15 235:25 239:1 Tucson (1) 109:2 Tuesday (2) 189:17,18 turn (7) 9:12 78:23 120:5,7,9 189:11 216:14 turned (13) 72:13 76:9 78:15 119:25 129:7 135:23 141:8 157:17 166:12 176:10 209:13 225:9 239:20 turning (1) 147:23 turnout (11) 26:20 74:19 80:14,20 125:11 129:2,4 132:7,10 173:22 175:18 turns (2) 80:13 213:8 twice (1) 112:24 Twitter (2) 8:18 121:18 two (51) 6:18 23:9 32:15 33:7 35:10,20 37:22 42:15,17 47:21 51:2 52:22 64:18,19 67:15 80:13,25 81:14,14 86:10,11 99:17 100:15 101:8 102:2 105:24 106:23,23 107:9 112:21 128:24 133:17 144:4 147:20,22 148:13 148:25 156:19 161:8 162:2 170:16 173:9,12 174:23 179:16 214:22 218:6 222:3 223:15 228:19 236:6 two-class (2) 166:23 167:2 two-tier (1) 67:20 two-tiered (3) 15:9 17:21 220:14	type (8) 30:2 33:3,20 78:21 114:6 135:1 167:13 177:14 types (12) 48:7 75:23 78:7,9 114:9 118:7 156:25 161:24 208:7 224:12 232:21 235:12 typical (1) 219:17 typically (2) 177:13 183:8 typing (1) 232:17
U
			ultimately (5) 50:9 181:1 184:19 191:6 224:20 Umaretiya (5) 211:25 212:1,2 215:24 216:19 unable (2) 40:8 60:23 unacceptable (1) 176:4 unaware (1) 196:17 unbalanced (1) 107:25 undemocratic (1) 65:5 undergraduate (3) 140:17 212:2 215:8 underlying (1) 21:18 undermines (1) 180:20 underregistered (1) 59:3 underrepresented (3) 95:4 164:19 176:23 understand (17) 24:19 44:12 57:10 71:18 123:3,8,10,12 125:25 153:14 168:10 198:6,20 199:7 214:13 231:22,23 understandable (1) 180:20 understanding (8) 33:8,12 40:4 69:5 129:18 136:10

161:15 235:8	2:3 7:14 9:4 138:17	162:13 165:20	90:25 153:13	violation (2)
understood (1)	138:22 139:7	175:23 178:17	values (2)	38:23 221:21
182:13	141:22 151:25	181:21 185:21	128:10 190:23	violations (3)
undertook (1)	167:16,22 212:3	206:22 214:1	vantage (1)	69:3 70:16 112:3
128:17	215:1 216:8,12,14	217:23 218:11	218:23	virtually (1)
undesirable (1)	236:23	233:15	variety (1)	82:10
22:1	university's (1)	uses (2)	35:13	visa (1)
undocumented (5)	140:2	149:25 219:15	various (4)	216:11
62:19,21 85:25 90:23	unknown (1)	usually (1)	37:19 111:19 128:19	visit (1)
91:11	111:6	230:21	155:25	16:11
undoubtedly (1)	unnecessary (5)	us-versus-them (1)	vast (3)	visited (1)
64:17	142:3 165:12 203:16	124:20	90:23 121:11 129:21	211:7
uneducated (1)	207:17,18	Utah (12)	vastly (1)	Vocations (1)
196:18	unpack (1)	23:5,8 45:19 47:9,10	56:23	37:12
unequal (1)	47:15	48:25 49:4 52:1,14	vehicle (5)	vociferous (1)
166:18	unsuccessful (2)	52:25 68:22 179:1	51:6 61:25 95:15	86:16
unequally (1)	74:13 226:1	utility (3)	142:7 152:14	voice (6)
155:11	untie (1)	167:14,17 212:25	vehicles (2)	39:23 74:12 138:5
unfortunate (1)	57:2	utilize (3)	83:15 159:6	175:16 190:17
240:1	unusual (1)	31:23 33:23 100:1	Vehicle's (2)	209:14
unfortunately (10)	20:20	utilizing (1)	62:14 83:16	voices (2)
36:15 92:18 124:18	unwritten (1)	16:9	verbal (1)	18:18 214:17
160:14 168:4 170:7	71:2	utterly (1)	33:11	volunteer (6)
189:22 194:24	upcoming (1)	85:21	verification (3)	73:18 113:8 170:12
212:19 230:17	151:3	U.S (26)	181:17 187:4 216:20	171:5 173:10 188:7
uniform (1)	update (5)	18:13 36:1 49:7 58:21	verified (6)	volunteering (1)
31:24	18:7,22 75:19 129:17	59:8,18 60:9,13	61:25 85:15 216:18	104:7
uniformity (1)	130:2	64:4 70:15 84:4	219:3 221:15,24	volunteers (19)
71:10	updated (2)	85:3 87:23 91:8	verify (2)	9:10 76:14 77:1 78:21
uniformly (2)	36:22 130:9	96:25 110:23	142:11,12	79:5 105:16 131:23
26:13 152:25	updates (1)	123:19 128:25	versa (1)	167:12 173:13,15
unify (1)	62:14	147:2,16 150:5,13	136:1	188:12,14 189:7,20
191:14	updating (2)	151:4 167:20	versus (3)	190:1,17 196:11
uninformed (1)	83:16 203:9	221:14 237:8	49:21 96:15 131:4	202:6,23
130:20	upgrade (1)		veterans (1)	volunteer-based (1)
unintended (1)	205:5	V	185:21	202:4
69:11	upheld (1)	v (12)	viability (1)	Vota (3)
Union (1)	96:19	3:22 5:13 35:11,12	142:10	164:6 169:3 171:11
240:2	uphold (1)	36:2,16 49:7 72:25	viable (1)	vote (228)
unique (4)	123:18	96:25 147:3 165:6	75:16	3:13,16,19 4:25 6:17
23:5 62:1 173:17	upset (2)	165:16	vice (3)	7:6 10:2,25 11:12
218:23	237:20 238:8	vague (1)	51:8 58:10 136:1	12:15,17,20 13:21
unit (1)	urban (5)	84:14	vicious (1)	14:1,18 15:13 16:1
159:20	69:22,24 95:5 228:23	valid (1)	87:6	20:10 21:10 24:4
United (15)	230:15	79:7	victory (1)	25:19 28:20 29:12
12:14 13:9 46:3 58:15	use (42)	validate (1)	96:20	30:12 33:14 36:4
58:17,24 60:12 62:4	32:20 33:24 48:8	153:22	view (1)	41:14 44:15 47:5
94:10 96:14 97:1	56:15 57:5 62:11	validates (1)	152:6	53:15 54:7 60:9
109:20 165:4	129:10,14 130:9,10	98:18	views (2)	61:4,22 62:11 63:1
168:17 240:2	132:1,17,19,21	validly (1)	41:6,7	63:4,14 64:12,13
units (1)	134:11 135:18	179:10	Village (1)	65:15 66:7 67:23
32:21	137:5,7 140:10	Valley (3)	159:6	69:17,25 72:12
universities (5)	142:11 147:14	107:1 125:1 190:7	Vince (2)	73:17 74:16,22
139:20 152:5 186:4	153:23 155:2	valuable (2)	108:18,20	75:10 76:13,21 77:4
233:25 236:19	156:12 159:1,15,18	22:10 127:10	violating (1)	77:18 78:3,21,23
university (16)	160:3 161:9 162:3,4	value (2)	115:20	79:5 80:20 85:14

86:22 87:16 88:18 89:1,3,7,12 90:6 91:23 94:1,8,8 96:5 97:4 99:10,11 100:13,15 101:6 104:14,19,24 105:14 110:13,20 110:20 111:12,24 113:2 114:21 115:3 115:3,10 119:21,23 120:9,9,16,18 121:1 121:5,7,13 123:6,14 123:17,18 125:8,19 128:15 129:24 130:8,12,16,24 131:2 134:6 135:13 135:14 137:24 138:14 139:3,5,18 140:7,23 141:14 144:11,15,20 145:5 145:7,10 146:3,8,8 147:16,17 148:12 148:12,18,24 149:2 149:14,19 151:1,1,2 151:3 155:13 157:18,23 158:3,6,7 158:8,9,14,16 160:1 160:4,16 161:21 162:12,21 163:6,17 164:14 165:9 166:11,15 167:7,24 168:5,9,11,15 169:11 170:7,16 173:23 176:1,8 178:5 180:12 182:10,14,25 183:14,24 185:18 192:3 194:19 196:22 199:13 200:1,12 203:2,6,20 203:21 206:6,25 212:20 213:2 214:8 214:14,16 217:7 218:9 221:13 224:6 227:22 231:4,7,9,10 231:10 235:6 237:11,17,18,24 239:8,10,19 240:12 240:18 voted (10) 48:3 62:21 77:2 86:1 131:3 185:2 215:12 237:14,25 238:16 voter (237) 8:7 10:6,7,13 11:8 14:24 15:7,8,9,19	16:10,11 17:16,17 17:25 18:11 19:9 21:5 24:8 25:11 26:16 27:8 29:3,10 30:14 31:11,21 33:19 38:9 45:10 48:1 59:16,17,18,23 59:24,25 60:16,22 61:8 63:9,15 64:5,7 64:11,17,18,23 66:14,15,15,23 67:5 67:7,8,11,14 69:12 70:22 71:17 72:13 72:20 73:25 74:19 76:1,1,4,5,10,15,17 76:24 77:4,19,20,22 78:14,19 79:8 80:7 80:17,19 85:14 86:15 88:10,23,24 89:11,18 90:5 94:18 94:21,23,25 95:4,7 95:11,21,24 96:1,8 96:11,17,18 97:8 101:1 118:5 121:8 122:23 123:8 124:19 125:10 128:16,21 129:2,4 129:14,16,17 130:3 130:11,14 131:15 132:3,7,10 135:21 135:25 138:9,13,13 138:21 141:3,6,12 141:13,18,21 142:13 145:16,16 146:13,17,19,21,22 147:8,9,9 148:5 149:3,6,16,23,24 150:7,9,15 154:10 162:3,5,6 163:12,23 165:3,18,24 166:2,4 166:24 168:2,4,6,8 168:14 171:19,24 171:24 172:9 173:22 174:1,13,14 175:19 176:9 177:2 177:8 178:9 179:7,9 180:7,18 181:24 183:13,24 184:2 185:7,15 188:6 193:13 194:16 197:15 198:11,13 198:25 199:2,4,9 200:7,10 202:7 203:1,5,9,12,22 204:21,23 205:1,2 207:7,7,13,15,20	211:11 212:17 213:4 214:14 215:10 219:6 225:9 225:16 226:6 228:18,18 234:3 voters (220) 5:15 6:2,6,18 9:6,22 9:24 10:9,11,14,19 10:20 11:2,11 17:22 18:21 23:13,14 25:14,16,18 26:2 27:10 28:6,16 29:11 32:6 37:16 39:14 42:23 44:14 46:6 47:6 48:8,10 53:22 55:3,10 58:20 59:1 59:10,15 64:9,22 65:2,11,21 66:6,10 67:4 68:1 70:14,19 72:2,19,22 73:13,24 74:1,20,23 75:7,15 75:24 76:6,9,11,19 77:8,9,17,20,23,25 78:4,10,11,20,21,22 78:24 79:2,4,6,10 79:15,17,20 82:10 85:18 86:19 87:2 89:17,23 90:8 92:17 93:7,10,12,18 95:2 95:4,6,14 96:14,20 96:23 97:1,2,6,11 109:15 110:10 111:3,8 112:6 113:1 120:3,6 121:3 122:5 123:5 128:18 129:6 129:10,12,25 130:2 130:19,22 131:5 134:5 136:5 141:10 142:5 143:11,16,19 146:23 147:20,22 148:1,11,14,23 149:14 150:20,20 150:22 153:14 155:10,24 164:18 164:22 165:17 166:9,17,23 167:4,9 167:15 169:11,15 169:16 170:5,6,13 170:15,19,23 171:10 173:5,11 174:3,5,7,8,17,18 175:21,22 179:25 180:2,11,19 181:19 182:3 184:18 185:17 188:13,21 193:16 194:21	200:1 202:21 203:11,12,25 204:5 204:5,14 206:1,17 207:15 209:3,12,13 210:18,21 211:12 212:14,15,16 214:24 225:9,11,14 226:13 233:4 238:15 voter's (5) 76:14,16 130:11,14 167:21 voter-protected (1) 185:17 votes (12) 116:11 119:24 130:14 177:10,10,11 179:6 179:10 180:8,22 192:4 206:17 voting (282) 1:1,4 2:2 3:9,9 4:4,15 4:18 5:8,11,14,17 5:21,23 6:1,21,23 7:1,25 10:12,16,23 11:3,6 12:10,12,12 12:23 13:4,9,17,23 14:4,6,6,15,24 15:2 15:3,7,12 16:5,9,13 16:16 17:4,8,12 18:5,7,9,13 19:2,12 19:25 20:7,7,14,16 21:2,8,15,21,21 22:1,3,15 23:16 24:12,14,17,24 25:1 25:3 26:2 27:17 28:4 31:12 32:17 33:24 34:21 35:1,14 35:16,24 36:3,5,8 36:13,19,20 38:19 38:23,24,24 39:4,12 39:19 40:2,18 42:8 43:8,12 44:25 45:25 46:11,15,16,20 47:23,24 48:1,15,19 48:21 49:11 53:2,6 53:7,11,12,14,18,20 53:22 54:5 56:1 57:20 58:7,14 60:14 63:17,20 64:20 65:18 66:11 67:15 67:17,20 68:3,25 69:3,6,7,8,13,14 70:9,16,25 71:18,25 72:2,4,5,6,7,16,21 73:16 74:8 75:9,14 76:7,20,20 77:23	79:18,21 80:7 81:5 87:24 88:15 89:10 91:23 92:13,21 93:24 94:3,15,17 96:15 97:25 98:1,14 99:21,24 100:3,8,18 100:19,21 102:2 103:2,25 110:2 113:21 114:7 116:20 117:25 119:9,13 120:24 121:10,12 123:14 123:18 127:16 131:8 132:16,21 134:11 137:22 139:25 142:14 143:10,11,13,16,20 143:24 144:5,6,18 153:23 158:4,18 159:19 160:17,18 162:17 164:15,24 165:14,17 166:18 167:5 169:12,17 170:2,13,15,22,23 171:2,15,21,23,23 173:25 174:7 175:15 176:2,20,22 187:16,23,25 191:17 194:23 196:16,17,18 197:19 198:19 203:16 205:5,22 208:4,13 210:6 215:5 223:5 228:10 230:6,8 231:14 232:22 233:9 234:14 236:25 239:3 voting-age (1) 180:16 VRA (2) 18:22 39:7 <hr/> W <hr/> W (1) 36:9 wait (3) 111:24 142:18 213:17 waited (2) 77:15 174:17 waiting (9) 95:22 108:9 141:8 143:23 167:2 182:9 213:22 225:10 238:13 wake (1)
--	---	--	---	---

161:12	191:16	weeks (4)	162:10,18 167:1	120:14
walk (3)	wasn't (15)	51:10 102:2 104:17	181:15 189:25	winning (1)
24:11 29:4 183:24	12:19,21 41:21,21	105:25	190:21 203:3	17:23
Walter (1)	44:22 55:2 148:22	weird (1)	207:13 215:14	wins (1)
207:10	182:10 185:22	237:13	222:5 224:23 226:9	18:4
want (70)	193:18 204:9	welcome (7)	226:18 227:14,17	withdrawn (1)
3:24 4:8 6:14 8:1 22:9	209:11 212:3	3:5 4:5,15,17 12:8	227:18 230:15	38:2
34:23 35:19,20,22	217:24 235:18	141:25 164:11	240:24	witness (8)
37:21 57:19 86:24	watch (2)	well-known (1)	we've (24)	8:3,13 65:10 92:3
87:5,19 89:1 90:11	126:1,4	107:7	3:12 8:18 10:8 11:6	201:12 209:9 217:9
101:7,21 103:1,7	watchers (2)	well-tested (1)	11:13,14 20:8 42:20	222:11
105:1,6 106:20	98:4,22	51:17	49:16 52:11,23	witnessed (10)
114:18 115:10	watching (2)	well-to-do (1)	111:17 113:17	98:14 101:2 103:14
119:9,16 120:2,3	44:13 176:2	126:6	126:1 140:22	104:15,16,20
124:10 127:2,14	water (2)	well-versed (1)	157:11 162:1	165:14 167:12
132:23 135:13	69:19 174:19	212:17	163:13 203:10,11	197:7 225:8
138:24 139:3	wave (1)	went (14)	204:16 215:5 231:2	witnesses (2)
140:23 141:14	5:22	31:22 78:14 95:18	241:3	20:4 111:23
151:15,20 162:21	way (46)	104:17 166:11	wheelbarrow (1)	wi-fi (1)
162:24 163:6 170:5	24:5 31:6 39:3 51:21	204:1 209:11	159:10	214:1
170:6 176:15	79:14 80:14 83:18	212:11 214:9,11	wheelchair (1)	Woman (4)
178:23 190:5,5	91:20 92:11 99:22	217:6 236:15	156:22	93:10 97:1,2,11
195:15,21 198:25	103:21 107:3	237:17 238:23	wheelchairs (1)	women (9)
199:1 201:4,7 205:4	115:16 123:9,20,22	Wercinski (10)	145:22	9:6 17:5 93:7,12,18
207:25 209:4,19	130:7 134:17 137:8	164:3,12 181:11	whichever (1)	93:24 97:5,21 98:13
217:4 222:17	151:24 152:11	183:5,21 185:9	50:18	wonder (7)
223:23 224:10	157:2 159:7,11	191:12 194:15,24	whip (1)	87:4 115:1 134:12
226:19 227:2	175:21 179:18	233:23	63:12	141:25 188:20
228:19 229:11	180:5 182:25	weren't (2)	white (9)	208:11 239:14
230:25 231:24	186:20 191:2,9	209:24 218:14	26:23 33:11 66:19	wondered (1)
237:7	193:4 196:11	west (4)	74:23 76:22 103:24	134:8
wanted (13)	201:23 205:12	32:1 107:1 222:22,23	105:3 125:3 126:6	wonderful (3)
60:3 84:21 88:1	206:1 210:9 211:13	western (3)	Whiteriver (5)	4:6 22:24 107:16
101:16 105:20	215:11,20 218:17	86:21 140:17 168:1	76:22,24,25 77:2,16	wondering (8)
109:23 192:12	219:1 234:13	we'll (18)	whittle (2)	29:4 155:22 161:11
198:5 199:19	239:16 242:13,15	22:11,17 34:9 40:25	53:13 54:4	161:19 181:7
209:25 210:2,17	ways (12)	41:1 45:4 49:14	wholly (1)	198:10 200:10
238:4	3:13 23:6 99:7 100:10	57:24 73:9 84:10	180:20	235:17
wanting (1)	116:19 136:16	105:23 118:9	widespread (2)	wonders (1)
12:17	173:17 203:5	126:19,20 127:4,6,7	63:9 74:5	180:1
wants (2)	204:16 211:9	164:11	wife (1)	word (1)
108:9 199:25	219:13 221:20	we're (64)	107:8	91:5
war (1)	wealthy (1)	5:3 17:13 18:6,13	wilfully (1)	work (58)
52:5	21:22	20:18,19 21:4,18	180:14	3:18 5:2,6 10:1,3 12:2
ward (1)	wear (1)	25:23 29:22 30:21	willing (1)	13:6 16:20 19:25
91:20	117:17	31:7 32:17,22 33:15	106:7	25:14 26:15 27:4
warehouse (1)	wearing (1)	33:18 35:4 52:14	Willrich (5)	29:23 30:11 33:2,4
145:1	93:9	54:18 56:25 57:23	2:13 7:15 13:12 89:6	33:10 34:1 35:6,23
warranted (1)	weather (2)	87:11 88:14,16,17	97:23	38:17 69:24 71:12
66:5	22:24 54:3	92:25 108:7 113:19	win (1)	88:20 94:5,19 96:23
Warren (1)	website (2)	116:6 118:9 119:2	51:20	97:3,8 109:8 115:17
65:12	61:7 171:21	125:21 126:18,19	wind (2)	119:1,9 131:22
warriors (1)	weeds (1)	126:23,25 133:25	179:24 180:2	133:5 136:15 137:9
17:10	152:18	143:3 148:5,7	Window (1)	139:7 144:10,13,17
Washington (4)	weekend (1)	149:15,20 151:9,10	68:17	144:18 145:23
5:3 100:9 179:1	171:23	151:11 159:2	wing (1)	146:2 168:15,23

174:2 175:15 185:1 190:10,18 193:13 193:14 216:13 225:8 230:14,22 241:8 worked (16) 40:7 55:6 94:2 108:24 125:15 145:13 172:22 190:22 204:23,25 207:3 213:23,25 228:22 232:25 233:3 worker (15) 6:9 71:7 76:3,10 77:18 122:17 131:7 159:8 160:5 177:9 180:9,18 183:22,25 193:25 workers (32) 23:22,25 24:1,11 29:20 30:3,6 34:1 77:3,17 78:23 79:4 106:16 117:22,23 122:5,7,20 123:2,3 123:12 125:20 130:19 131:1,5 167:12 183:6 184:22 185:6 186:8 203:13 205:20 working (13) 6:15 33:12,18 87:6 122:1 145:1 148:8 173:7 190:20 193:7 215:25 223:1 230:15 World (1) 239:15 worse (2) 82:10 222:1 worst (2) 225:3,3 worth (6) 37:5,7,22 38:12 134:21 135:3 wouldn't (3) 52:5 81:6 154:24 wound (1) 209:10 wrap (2) 221:11 240:24 write (4) 85:2 193:6 199:6,8 writing (2) 93:11 181:22 written (11) 3:21 43:6 57:22 60:5	63:10 73:5 79:24 84:5,7 121:16 124:1 wrong (31) 44:18 45:7 93:6 99:3 99:4,4 101:18 111:4 111:11 116:15,16 120:4 124:5 125:6 175:12 177:6,9,17 177:25 178:7 179:20,24 180:8,14 184:5 185:2 192:24 193:9,10,24 194:1 wrong-precinct (2) 177:18,22 <hr/> Y <hr/> Yavapai (1) 168:7 Yeah (4) 77:13 216:19 227:9 240:13 year (19) 31:3 64:3 91:19 100:12,12 109:1,3 118:5 163:5 170:4 174:16,20 180:17 182:17 193:22 217:17 227:12 229:21,23 years (34) 5:5,6 11:13 27:9,9 41:11 42:21 60:11 61:13 63:7 66:5 76:20 81:20 104:6 105:14 107:7 143:16 157:7 169:7 169:23 174:11 197:8 202:14 203:3 207:11,12,14 214:22,23 228:22 233:3 237:9,14 238:23 year's (1) 87:23 yield (2) 64:5 87:24 York (1) 179:16 young (6) 84:23,25 175:23 188:12,12 230:2 youth (2) 198:18 199:25 youths (1) 230:16 Yuma (18)	60:10,22 110:24,25 111:14,17 116:13 169:10 173:4,11,14 173:17 174:4,9 175:2,4,14 211:8 y'all (2) 161:11 236:2 <hr/> Z <hr/> Zamora (4) 2:17 4:7,19 121:17 zero (2) 22:23 115:19 <hr/> $ <hr/> $100,000 (1) 149:8 <hr/> 1 <hr/> 1 (3) 47:12,16,22 1,000 (3) 141:7 173:11 209:23 1,350 (1) 218:1 1,406 (1) 173:15 1:21 (1) 126:22 10 (7) 27:8 29:22 43:23 179:21 202:14 229:21 233:3 10,000 (1) 27:10 10,979 (2) 177:15 192:17 10-day (1) 171:16 10-minute (1) 57:24 10:05 (3) 1:15 2:2 3:2 100 (1) 53:11 11 (8) 68:23 70:7,23 207:12 207:13,14,14 217:25 11,000 (1) 193:8 11:23 (1) 57:25 1100 (1) 2:4 111 (1)	95:17 12,000 (1) 127:21 12:35 (1) 8:9 120 (1) 32:1 120,000 (1) 129:19 13 (1) 223:13 13,000 (1) 61:21 13.2 (1) 58:21 14 (2) 44:2 223:16 14,885 (1) 177:23 15 (4) 31:21,23 58:17 228:22 15th (2) 13:24 120:17 15,000 (2) 178:2 193:8 15,500 (1) 169:15 17 (1) 128:3 173 (1) 173:13 18 (4) 25:7 94:25 95:18,23 1920 (1) 93:24 1924 (1) 12:13 1928 (1) 12:16 1948 (2) 12:19 41:15 1960s (1) 44:19 1965 (6) 13:24 14:16 15:4 36:5 65:18 98:14 1968 (1) 58:13 1970 (2) 10:18 12:21 1970s (1) 44:20 1972 (1) 41:16 1973 (1)	158:2 1977 (1) 65:24 1980s (1) 42:6 1990 (1) 232:24 1993 (1) 94:21 1996 (1) 61:10 1997 (1) 172:24 <hr/> 2 <hr/> 2 (10) 39:7 47:12 51:3,14,20 51:22 75:16,18 81:16 104:22 2:49 (1) 164:2 20 (8) 29:22 53:17 71:25 104:6 105:14 144:11 157:11 159:15 20th (1) 231:25 20,000 (1) 127:20 200 (31) 59:13,15,22 61:3,19 63:17 64:1,4,4 65:3 83:2,3 84:3 85:6 87:24 90:20 91:2,15 98:3 141:2,11 165:4 185:16,23 186:1 202:10,20 209:21 221:17 235:4,9 200's (3) 60:3,6 62:17 200,000 (1) 173:18 200,827 (1) 173:5 2000 (7) 42:22 46:17 58:18,22 74:12 118:5 207:12 2000s (2) 42:7 43:5 2002 (3) 81:8 145:8 177:3 2003 (3) 37:8,17 210:11 2004 (7) 23:1 43:23 55:5 59:14
---	---	--	--	--

77:20 118:11,24 2005 (3) 118:4 122:17 165:1 2006 (9) 40:5 48:3 77:25 92:17 94:22 117:15 169:4 178:14 223:12 2007 (1) 122:18 2008 (8) 17:19 48:10 55:19 95:2,17 138:7 177:22 178:15 2009 (1) 172:24 2010 (17) 28:18 46:17 58:18,22 81:9 94:24 95:16 141:4,6 169:14,21 172:21 173:4,12 178:12 222:24 223:13 2011 (2) 45:15 207:12 2012 (29) 61:21 75:22 76:8 78:19 98:17 102:4 103:13 121:1 124:23 128:13 129:20 141:11 144:3 157:22 165:8 165:19 167:11 169:21,22 170:8 173:12 174:6 177:15 178:16 185:12 193:18 212:9 223:14,14 2013 (2) 145:15 166:21 2014 (7) 1:15 2:3 3:1 19:12 166:20 189:24 242:16 202 (4) 74:21 77:21,22 92:16 203 (1) 70:9 21st (1) 231:12 21.3 (1) 58:22 211 (1) 23:7 22 (2) 74:2 180:6 22nd (1)	242:16 220,000 (2) 169:20,21 2261 (2) 38:3,12 23 (1) 43:14 2305 (3) 91:19 170:9 227:12 24 (1) 25:7 24th (1) 138:10 25 (4) 71:25 108:10 126:19 126:20 250,000 (1) 59:1 26 (2) 172:6 189:9 27 (1) 74:3 28 (2) 53:14 180:4 29 (3) 180:16 222:21 223:14 <hr/> 3 (2) 47:13 70:23 3,000 (2) 141:8 229:24 3,500 (1) 229:24 3:50 (1) 8:10 30 (8) 42:13,15,16 60:11 66:5 81:20 98:20 173:14 30,000 (2) 59:23 121:3 30-mile (1) 159:15 300,000 (1) 46:3 32,000 (1) 174:6 33,000 (1) 32:5 33.9 (1) 177:25 37.4 (1) 177:21 372,000 (1) 127:22	<hr/> 4 (5) 11:6 15:15 18:9 40:19 113:22 4(b) (2) 36:17,20 4,000 (2) 141:6 162:6 4:39 (1) 241:11 40 (1) 193:22 40,000 (4) 23:13 165:8 229:17 229:20 42,000 (1) 174:6 43 (1) 178:13 44 (1) 60:1 45 (2) 53:13 54:5 48 (1) 41:10 48,000 (1) 169:16 <hr/> 5 (36) 11:3 14:4,7 15:16 36:25 37:5 38:13 48:16,20 49:6,10,18 50:15 51:1 52:21,24 54:9,19,21,25 55:3 55:6 72:25 73:23 75:8,13,17,20 79:19 95:23 99:20 223:4,7 223:24 224:2,14 5,326 (1) 177:20 50 (5) 5:5 42:21 58:25 180:23 214:2 50,000 (2) 23:13 28:15 50200 (3) 1:24 2:6 242:20 52.2 (1) 59:5 53 (1) 35:5 535 (1) 199:21 54 (1) 40:7	<hr/> 55,000 (1) 138:8 59 (2) 46:18 54:11 <hr/> 6 (1) 43:23 6th (1) 167:11 6,000 (1) 35:4 60 (4) 53:6 140:9,22 229:20 63 (2) 46:22 54:12 67.7 (1) 222:25 69254 (1) 1:25 <hr/> 7 (2) 46:22 54:11 70 (1) 47:2 70.5 (1) 59:4 71,000 (2) 23:12 28:15 73 (1) 41:16 75 (1) 234:7 75,000 (1) 174:5 78.3 (1) 222:25 <hr/> 8 (5) 27:9 43:23 122:18 197:15,23 80 (2) 144:15 157:12 80s (2) 94:16 204:22 800-number (1) 103:9 85-year (1) 12:24 <hr/> 9 (3) 1:15 2:3 3:1 9th (3)	165:8 219:12 220:2 90 (7) 47:2,12,16 92:12 140:4,6,9 90s (1) 94:16 95,000 (2) 169:20,21 98 (1) 238:17
--	---	---	--	--

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS
2 MID-ATLANTIC HEARING SCHEDULE
3

4 _____/

5
6
7
8 The Hearing in the above-entitled matter
9 was held on Tuesday, April 29th, 2014, commencing at 10 3:11 p.m., at the University of Baltimore, John &
11 Frances Angelos Law Center, Baltimore, Maryland, 21201, 12 before the Honorable GILDA DANIELS, moderator, and 13 R. Dwayne Harrison, Notary Public.
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23

24 REPORTED BY: R. Dwayne Harrison

25 Job # 72977

1 APPEARANCES:

2

3 THE COMMISSIONERS:

4 GILDA DANIELS

5 J. HOWARD HENDERSON

6 KIM KEENAN

7 REVERAND TODD YEARY

8 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO

9

10 Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

11 BY: Eileen O'Connor Esq.

12 1401 New York Avenue, NW

13 Washington, DC 20005

14

15

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23

24

25

PROCEEDINGS,

1
2 MS. SCHULTZ: Good afternoon. Welcome to 3 University of Baltimore School of Law and to our 4 exciting new John and Frances Angelos Law Center.
5 We're extremely proud and honored to host the National 6 Commission on Voting Rights Mid-Atlantic hearing.

7 As a public law school, we have a long
8 tradition of deep engagement in the community. For our 9 clinics, our centers, our excellent faculty and a very 10 devoted alumni, we model for our students that the law
11 is dynamic and its impact on all aspects of our society
12 profound. Nowhere is that more evident than in the 13 most basic right we have as citizens of a democratic 14 nation, the right to vote. It is the cornerstone of 15 democracy. Our privilege and our obligation as 16 citizens to the left are representatives of government.
17 The Voting Rights Act that passed August 6 1965 was a 18 recognition that many of our citizens had been denied 19 that most basic right. Literacy tests, pole taxes kept 20 millions of voters of color from exercising their right
21 to vote.

22 Today's hearing demonstrates that this
23 right, like so many fundamental rights guaranteed
24 through our laws and our Constitution, require our 25 vigilance and our attention.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 When I was at the Department of Justice in 3 the civil rights division, my colleagues and I took 4 seriously our role in enforcing those rights and 5 protecting them.

6 We at the University of Baltimore look
7 forward to playing a role in protecting the rights and 8 in gathering this important information about the state
9 of voting in our country. We look forward to the 10 commission and our distinguished commissioners who 11 welcome you all today and hope that this exercise will 12 contribute to the important work of guaranteeing all of 13 our citizens the right and the ability to vote.

14 I want to introduce Eileen O'Connor from 15 the Lawyers Committee For Civil Rights who will be 16 giving some welcoming remarks and introducing our guest
17 commissioners today.

18 Thank you so for being here. We look
19 forward to the hearing ahead.

20 MS. O'CONNOR: Thank you very much, Dean
21 Schultz. I'm going to hop up here. Thank you again, 22 Dean Schultz, for that wonderful welcome and to the 23 University of Baltimore School of Law for hosting us in 24 this beautiful new building. You've been very, very 25 gracious hosts. Your staff has been wonderful and

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 accommodating.

3 I also want to say a special thank you to 4 Laura Hunt who is a student here at the law school.
5 She's not in here right now because she's out there
6 working hard. But she is a former intern at the 7 Lawyers' Committee and the voting rights project. She 8 organized all of the volunteers that are helping to 9 make this event run so smoothly today.

10 As Vicki said, my name is Eileen O'Connor.
11 I'm an attorney at the Lawyers' Committee for Civil 12 Rights in Washington, D.C. For those of you who aren't 13 familiar with the lawyers committee, it's a non-profit,
14 nonpartisan organization founded in 1963 at the request
15 of President Kennedy to engage the private bar in the 16 civil rights movement.

17 We're continuing that fight today in a wide
18 variety of areas, fair housing, community development,
19 public policy, education, employment and, of course,
20 voting which is why we're here today.

21 The lawyers committee has convened the 22 national commission on voting rights which is 23 conducting a series of hearings like this one across 24 the country. This hearing today covers Maryland/D.C.
25 and Delaware. It covers both issues of election

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 administration and voting discrimination and this is 3 actually the 20th hearing, I believe, although there's 4 one happening at this very moment in Virginia. So 5 maybe we're the 21st if they got started on time. And 6 at the end of the series of hearings, the national 7 commission will be putting together two reports, one on 8 voting discrimination or discrimination in voting and 9 one on election administration and those reports will 10 be used to inform the public debate, possibly inform a 11 new voting rights act and be available to advocates and 12 to the public for use in improving voting in our 13 country.

14 I'd like to introduce the commissioners for 15 today's hearing. I need to come up front to make sure
16 I don't get anyone's names wrong. We have, Gilda
17 Daniels who's a professor at the University of 18 Baltimore School of Law; J. Howard Henderson from The 19 Urban League; Kim Keenan who is general counsel at the 20 NAACP; the Reverend Todd Yearly who is political action
21 chair of the Maryland State conference of the NAACP;
22 and Marcia Johnson-Blanco who is co-director of the 23 voting rights project of the Lawyers' Committee.

24 I just have a few housekeeping matters
25 mostly directed towards the witnesses. The hearing is

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 being transcribed. So please speak into the microphone
3 clearly. You each have five minutes for your testimony
4 and there's a timekeeper over there. So please pay
5 attention to him and when he says stop, try to wrap it
6 up.

7 You'll each have your five minutes of 8 testimony and then the commissioners will ask you
9 questions for about 15 or 20 minutes after that.

10 Also, the witnesses and the commissioners,
11 please sign a photo release form if you have not 12 already done that. We have a photographer who will be 13 taking some pictures today.

14 And last but not least, for those of who 15 tweet, we have hash tags and a CVR and voting rights
16 and we're at lawyerscomm which those of you who tweet
17 know what that means. So with that I will hand over to 18 the guests -- to our commissioners today to give their 19 brief opening remarks and then to invite the testimony
20 from the witnesses.

21 Thank you again to everyone for coming.

22 MS. DANIELS: Thank you, Eileen. Good
23 afternoon. Thank you so much. As Eileen mentioned, 24 I'm professor Gilda Daniels and we've made an executive 25 decision to forego our opening statements because we're

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 starting late so that we can hear from you all. We are 3 here today from those of you who braved the rain to 4 come and talk to us today about the state of voting
5 rights in Delaware, Maryland and D.C. So, with that,
6 if we can start with our first person which is 7 Ms. Alyssa Fieo.

8 MS. FIEO: Thank you. Good afternoon,
9 members of the commission. My name is Alyssa Fieo.
10 I'm the Director of Legal Advocacy, Maryland Disability
11 Law Center and I do appreciate the opportunity to 12 provide testimony today regarding the issues facing
13 Maryland voters with disabilities.

14 Pursuant to the Help America Vote Act, MDLC
15 is a protection and advocacy agency for Maryland who is 16 charged with assisting voters with disabilities to 17 participate fully in the electoral process.

18 All of our work has centered on ensuring 19 that voters with disabilities have a meaningful 20 opportunity to register to vote and to cast their 21 ballots both privately and independently.

22 While Maryland has had success in 23 addressing many of the barriers facing voters with 24 disabilities, there is still work to be done and new 25 challenges particularly related to the issue of voting

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 system technology. When MDLC started its voting work,
3 our first barrier to address was the issue of polling
4 basic accessibility and over the years Maryland had 5 worked diligently on this issue and can now boast that 6 its polling places are approximately 95 percent
7 accessible.

8 Despite the significant accomplishment,
9 there still is room for improvement and there are 10 potential problems on election day related to 11 accessibility. Through MDLC's voter hotline, MDLC has 12 received calls about locked and blocked accessible
13 entrances and lack of adequate signage.

14 Physical accessibility of polling sites
15 requires constant reexamination and vigilance.

16 Training of election judgments is critical
17 for ensuring that polling sites are accessible on 18 election day and voters have access to the voting
19 process and that they have a positive voting
20 experience.

21 Just last month, Maryland Disability law
22 Center and the National Federation For the Blind had 23 the opportunity to present Maryland association of 24 election officials and given past complaints about 25 problems using the accessible features of the voting

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 system, particularly related to the audio ballot, we 3 recommended that election judges provide a hands-on 4 training of the voting system and the accessible
5 features. We suggested that local boards provide job
6 aids or tools to election judges including visual aids,
7 checklists, picture guides, setup maps and training on 8 how to use those tools.

9 MDLC also created an election judges
10 guidebook which you have before you which is called 11 Helping Maryland Vote. I'm sorry, I think I'm missing
12 one copy, but can get one to all of you if you don't 13 all have it.

14 MDLC has also advocated for many years with 15 the creation of a disability advisory committee which 16 is consistent with the current recommendation of the 17 presidential commission on election administration and 18 currently we do not have a state-wide disability
19 related committee, nor do we have it on a local level
20 and definitely recommend that.

21 The issues related to accessibility and 22 system technology are a critical issue facing voters
23 with disabilities and they're quite nuanced. I
24 provided more detailed information in my written
25 testimony, but I do want to highlight just two points.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 The first one has to do with the lack of 3 accessibility of Maryland's absentee ballot voting
4 process. Maryland has a no excuse absentee ballot
5 process, meaning that any eligible voter can request an 6 absentee ballot.

7 However, Maryland's current paper-based 8 absentee ballot process is not accessible. State board
9 of election was recently in a position to take positive
10 steps to correct this inaccessibility by authorizing 11 the use of an accessible online absentee ballot marking 12 tool along with the online delivery of absentee 13 ballots. We believe that such action is supported by 14 the ADA and section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act.

15 However, despite assurances from a security
16 study standard commissioned by the state board, the 17 state board members did not vote to certify the 18 absentee ballot marking tool due to security concerns.

19 As a result, the state board will make 20 available online deliver of the absentee ballot -- it
21 will have to be hand-marked -- without the possibility 22 of using the accessible ballot marking tool and the 23 absentee ballots will be in a PDF format that will not 24 be accessible for many voters with disabilities.

25 The inaccessibility of Maryland's absentee

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 ballot voting process remains a critical problem. As 3 voting advocates, we all remain concerned about voting
4 system security issues. However, there is a growing
5 force, particularly in Maryland, that is pitting
6 security interests against the accessibility that is 7 required -- that requires the use of technology. Our 8 challenge is to ensure the accessible voting technology
9 is developed and made available while security concerns
10 are reasonably addressed without disenfranchising
11 voters with abilities.

12 The final technology issue I want to talk
13 about is the move that Maryland will be making from the 14 universally accessible touch screen voting system to a 15 paper based voting system which is most likely going to 16 take place by the 2016 election.

17 Any system that Maryland procures must meet 18 high accessibility requirements without creating what's 19 called a segregated ballot for voters with disabilities
20 which is required under Maryland law.

21 There is a risk of creating a segregated
22 ballot when a separate voting system is used solely by 23 voters with disabilities that produces a paper ballot
24 that's distinguishable in size and perhaps content from 25 a hand marked ballot, thus jeopardizing the secrecy and

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 privacy of the vote.

3 The Maryland Attorney General's Office has 4 concluded that there are two possible ways avoiding the 5 segregation of a ballot for voters with disabilities
6 and we'll be working with the state board to ensure 7 that privacy of voters with disabilities is secure,
8 whatever system they decide to select. Thank you so
9 much for giving me this opportunity to testify.

10 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. Ms. Blake?
11 Please introduce yourself.

12 MS. BLAKE: Thank you for this opportunity.
13 My name is Lou Ann Blake. I work for the National 14 Federation of the Blind managing our HAVA grant from 15 the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

16 Under that grant, we provide assistance to 17 touch screen advocacy system personnel, state local 18 election officials, developers of accessible election
19 technology and [inaudible] voters. Our focus is on the 20 initial access to the voting process.

21 My testimony today, I think the overarching
22 theme is that we've had a lot of progress since passing 23 HAVA in terms of accessible voting. However, that 24 progress is being eroded and I want to demonstrate that 25 by talking about three areas.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 Our current touch screen system, our move
3 here in Maryland to the paper ballot system in 2016 and 4 absentee ballot voting. Our current system, the 5 Diebold touch screen has enabled blind and low vision
6 voters to vote privately and independently for the 7 first time using the audio ballot component and the 8 large print high contrast screen, a component of that 9 machine.

10 This system is what we would consider to be 11 the ideal system because everybody uses the same 12 machine. Everybody's vote is cast, tabulated and 13 stored in the same manner. However, there are some 14 problems associated with this system. This system is 15 not accessible to the deaf/blind voter and there
16 continue to be issues with poll workers who do not know
17 how to properly activate the audio ballot.

18 Consequently, some blind voters are not 19 able to vote privately and independently. They have to 20 use sight assistance to cast their ballot.

21 In 2016, the plan is for Maryland to move
22 to a paper based system. As Alyssa pointed out --
23 well, first of all, papers aren't accessible to a blind 24 voter -- to many blind voters, not all, but most as 25 well as to limited vision voters and voting with a

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 paper base system will prevent many -- well, has the 3 possibility of preventing some blind or limited vision
4 voters from being able to cast an independent ballot
5 and, of course, deaf/blind voters will still have that 6 same problem of being able -- not being able to vote
7 privately and independently.

8 As Alyssa pointed out, the machines that 9 we'll be using in 2016 will have to be certified in the 10 2005 EVSG. Some of these machines will use the same 11 ballot as hand marked by voters who do not need to use
12 the accessible machine.

13 Some of the machine will be creating or 14 printing out a paper ballot that is different in size
15 and content from the hand marked ballot. Consequently,
16 my vote -- my ability to vote privately is jeopardized
17 by that because it can be -- the ballot can be 18 identified as being cast by someone with a disability.

19 Now, we are -- the NFB of Maryland
20 submitted a letter to the State Attorney General's 21 Office expressing our opposition to the use of these 22 machines that produces the paper ballot here in 23 Maryland. However, in the instance that that does 24 happen, that the state board does procure a machine of 25 that nature, we are certainly committed to working with

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 SBE to implement procedures to prevent a segregation of 3 those ballots to ensure that other people are using 4 that machine so that not all ballots are cast by people
5 with disabilities.

6 MS. DANIELS: One minute.

7 MS. BLAKE: Finally, the absentee ballot
8 system is currently used here in Maryland is not 9 accessible to blind voters because it consists of hand
10 marking a paper ballot. The state board attempted to 11 remedy that problem by extending the use of the online
12 or the Internet ballot delivery system and the online 13 ballot marking tool to all voters. The NFB worked very 14 closely with SBE to ensure that that system was 15 assessable. It is a model of accessibility.

16 Unfortunately, the state board members
17 failed to certify that system last Thursday and, as a 18 result, that system will not be available to impaired
19 vision and deaf/blind voters which that system would 20 enable deaf/blind voters to vote independent for the 21 first time ever.

22 There is currently no system available
23 other than an online ballot marking system that 24 deaf/blind voters can use and cast a private and 25 independent ballot.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 At the moment, the NFB is investigating all
3 of our options on how we can respond to that failure to 4 certify the system. Thank you very much. I appreciate
5 this opportunity.

6 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. Mr. Willis?

7 MR. WILLIS: I'm going to stand because I
8 sort of have my grad assistant go through a PowerPoint 9 very quickly which we will provide a copy to the 10 commission.

11 Thank you very much for participating -- to 12 allow me to participate in your hearing. My name is 13 John Willis and I'm a senior executive here at the 14 University of Baltimore and in the College of Public
15 Affairs and I teach courses in campaign selection, 16 state and local government, lobbying -- which we have 17 some good advocates for lobbying on the panel -- as 18 well as American public policy.

19 I've been involved in elections at the 20 local, state and national level for about 40 years. I
21 had the privilege of serving as secretary of the State
22 of Maryland from 1995 to 2003 and was involved heavily 23 in a variety of election related issues including at 24 the National Association of Secretaries stage
25 co-chairing the elections committee in voter

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 participation as well as more than twelve secretaries
3 of state to develop principles and guidelines that 4 became a predicate for 2002 Help America Vote Act. So 5 I'm very well aware of what goes on. I'm also the 6 editor of a 44 year old newsletter on election
7 administration reports your commission might want to 8 read which tracks a lot of developments and changes in 9 election law over the last four decades and it goes to 10 election administrators throughout the country.

11 Most recently -- I want to talk to you
12 about two things. I'm trying to do this as quickly as 13 possible. One is some of the recent work that we've 14 done here at the University of Baltimore and what the 15 findings of that were and then, secondly, offer you
16 some just broad general concepts of what I think you 17 may want to consider, this committee, as well as the 18 staff in developing their final report and would be 19 pleased to work with you on that in the future.

20 We have done a lot of things here at the 21 University of Baltimore including being one of -- the 22 only university that participated in three college poll
23 worker programs. We also have developed and managed an 24 election judge training program. We trained almost 25 30,000 individuals or had 30,000 individuals attend

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 training classes since 2004 in the Baltimore
3 metropolitan area.

4 Most recently we presented an exhaustive
5 study of what happened in Maryland in 2010, 2012
6 elections and produced this report Voting In the 7 Administration of Elections in Maryland and I'll have a
8 copy for each of the members as well as for the staff
9 and this PowerPoint is based on that.

10 Very quickly, some of the findings of this
11 report is rather complex. There are about 3.7 million
12 registered voters counting -- nearly four million
13 counting the active voters. We studied every single 14 piece of equipment in Maryland. Every single -- over 15 20,000 voting machines, all of the poll booths that 16 were we used. We interviewed every election director
17 in the state. We made direct observation of municipal 18 elections timing, how people would vote. We did 19 surveys, supplemental surveys, all of which we cited in 20 the report that confirmed some of the national findings
21 and did prove that in Maryland we had some problems
22 with wait times and developed a very sophisticated
23 weight time simulation model that I think can be used 24 to predict where problems are going to occur in the 25 future.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 The key findings are ballot length was 3 extraordinarily significant. We had a variance in 4 Maryland between ballot length of one jurisdiction of 5 well over 2,000 words to jurisdictions that had under 6 900 words on the ballot. Not surprising, the 7 jurisdictions with the longer ballots had the longer
8 wait times and they included the popular jurisdictions
9 like Baltimore City, Anne Arundel County, Prince
10 George's County.

11 The availability and allocation of 12 resources was another very significant finding.
13 Suitable polling locations, voting equipment, election
14 judges, uneven allocation of resources and the need for 15 more resources was an obvious finding. And the 16 characteristics of a precinct meaning both the physical 17 characteristics -- not so much ballot size, but where 18 it's located, availability parking, how much room
19 inside and how much outside impacted a voter. And not 20 surprisingly we found that that does disproportionately 21 affect minority voters to the extent that they 22 constitute a higher percentage within those urban 23 jurisdictions. They get impacted by older antiquated,
24 inadequate facilities and resources.

25 Two general points -- I see my sign is

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 ready to come up. Three general points for the 3 commission to consider. One is I think -- I've been 4 involved in elections for a long time and had 5 responsibility for elections.

6 Number one, there is a need in this country
7 for the independence of election administration away
8 from political influence. It is -- just like we need 9 the independence of the judiciary, we need the 10 independence of election administration so
11 administrators are buffeted from efforts to persuade 12 based on perceived political advantage, electoral 13 advantage.

14 Number two, we have to curb the instinct to 15 micromanage and legislate. Legislative bodies around 16 the country, including here in Maryland, are 17 restricting product innovation in technology and 18 modernization by detailed rules that are not always 19 practical or serve, as we've heard, constituencies that 20 need to be served.

21 Number three, there is a necessity and the 22 presidential commission -- and I went to several of 23 their hearings and talked with them. They just turned 24 away the notion of adequate funds. They didn't even 25 consider it from the very beginning and I attended at

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 least four of their sessions and talked with every 3 commission member personally. That's just unrealistic.
4 In previous testimony I've given to congress, I said it
5 ought to be a dollar, a dollar, a dollar. A dollar
6 federal, a dollar state and a dollar local. And some 7 of these jurisdictions are dealing with inadequate
8 resources that impact their ability to properly
9 administer elections.

10 Those are my general comments. I'll look 11 forward to any questions you might have.

12 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much. The 13 PowerPoint is part of the record.

14 MS. KEENAN: We'll take the report.

15 MS. DANIELS: Mr. Male?

16 MR. MALE: Thank you. Let me introduce 17 myself. My name is Timothy Male. I'm a city council
18 member in the small Maryland city of Takoma Park.
19 We're a majority/minority city where one in three of 20 our residents were born overseas, primarily in North
21 Africa and Latin America. Takoma Park is the only 22 place in the country that allows 16 and 17 year olds to 23 vote. We're one of the very places that allows
24 non-citizens to vote. We recently followed Minnesota's 25 lead and mandate that landlords allow political

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 candidates into apartment buildings to knock on doors
3 and we allow paroled felons to vote in local elections.

4 My other role is as chair of Montgomery
5 County's right to vote task force which I can talk
6 about in the Q&A, but it's a task force set up by the 7 county council to look at access to polls, turnout
8 issues and [inaudible] the question of voting rights.

9 So I chair that committee. My comments
10 here are my own, although they're obviously informed by 11 both of those experiences.

12 I want to talk about two issues that I 13 think may not come up in other testimony review and 14 perhaps other hearings received. One is municipal 15 elections and the second is overseas voter issues.

16 A large percent, the majority of Americans
17 live in urban areas most of which are incorporated.
18 Here in Maryland, about one in four residents live in 19 cities, incorporated cities. Probably the biggest is 20 Baltimore down to places that only have 2 or 300
21 residents and the attention that I see given to 22 municipal elections is scant. It's very difficult to 23 find information about turnout, patterns of turnout,
24 how you motivate voters, representation of elected
25 bodies at a municipal level. And I served in one of

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 those places where, for example, for us turnout in the 3 last municipal election was ten percent. New York
4 City's recent mayoral election was 25 percent. So just 5 incredibly low turnout.

6 I would bring to you the suggestion that a 7 big part of that turnout has to do with the year in 8 which elections are held. So for us in Takoma Park an 9 election -- federal election and traffic is something
10 like 85 to 90 percent turnout of registered voters.
11 One year later we got to ten percent.

12 So that's a huge problem in and of itself.
13 I think it's particularly a problem because the turnout
14 is disproportionally older, more affluent and property
15 owning residents and non-younger, minority and renting 16 residents and I think that pattern is true across the 17 country, although the best evidence I've seen of that 18 comes from research in California where 40 percent of 19 cities have now adopted even-year elections where the 20 research shows again and again that minority voters are 21 impacted, lower income and renters are impacted by odd 22 year elections. And this is a technical problem that 23 could be fixed and would have a huge increase in 24 turnout and thus representation in places that manage
25 school districts, police forces, recreation programs

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 and a whole host of other services.

3 On the second issue of overseas voting
4 rights -- and this is something that comes from the 5 county task force -- there are a host of 6 recommendations that have been made in terms of 7 implementation of existing federal statutes and the 8 presidential commission that was just mentioned talked 9 about some of these recommendations and they're really 10 about the practicality of getting simple information to 11 military voters and overseas voters, information on how 12 long an absentee ballot request is valid. I have seen 13 ballots that were processed and how quickly they can be 14 processed and on voters' ability to figure out -- to 15 trace their ballot, where it is in the process. And 16 I'm proud to say that Maryland has adopted many of 17 these recommendations before the commission report came 18 out, although I note that Maryland is still 42nd
19 because of its rejection rate for absentee ballots not 20 counting them as absentee ballots.

21 In particular, the standardized information
22 that, again to go back to municipal elections, very,
23 very few overseas voters hear about elections and that 24 comes from information from the state board of 25 elections [inaudible]. I have one minute left.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 I would be happy to speak more broadly on 3 the task force we have in Montgomery County looking at,
4 one, our county counsel committed itself to encourage 5 congress to pass a constitutional amendment to 6 establish a right to vote and then a whole bunch of 7 issues that have been created by bipartisan, an 8 appointed body, to look at how to improve turnout in 9 the county election. Thank you.

10 MS. DANIELS: Thank you, Mr. Males.

11 Ms. Pierson?

12 MS. PIERSON: Thank you for inviting me to 13 participate. Thank you for inviting all of us.

14 The participant from the League of Women
15 Voters was originally scheduled to be our current state
16 president, Sue Cochran, and she asked me to step in at 17 the last minute. I'm glad to be here.

18 I am a previous member of the Baltimore
19 City election board and a previous member of the 20 Maryland State election board. So I have experience on 21 all levels and I will say that I'm actually delighted
22 to be able to stand up here and tell you that I hope
23 that you hear in other places that Maryland actually 24 does a lot of things right, that we are actually -- and 25 I'm talking about election administration and our --

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 they were recently named 7th in the country in the Pew
3 Election Performance Index and over the last decade
4 we've adopted no excuse absentee voting, early voting,
5 online voter registration and, coming up soon -- I'm 6 not sure which year -- it will be the debut of same day
7 voter registration, although initially only during the 8 early voting period.

9 And I will say that our legislators also 10 are really on top of voting issues in this state. They 11 spend a lot of time during the legislative session on 12 these issues. They have learned over the years not to 13 tamper too much during an election year and they've 14 done that very well and most recently when they knew
15 there were problems with long lines, they asked
16 Mr. Willis report them and it is an excellent report.
17 I certainly recommend that to you.

18 The report did mention a problem with 19 allocation of voting machines. I would hope that that 20 gets taken care of somewhat when we go to a new 21 machine. Maryland has a mandatory polling place
22 evaluation program. All of the local jurisdictions are 23 required to do some sort of polling place evaluation on 24 election day and I think if that program were advanced 25 further and were made a little more robust,

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 identification of problems like the allocation of the 3 machines and the allocation of workers could be 4 enhanced.

5 In 2007, the General Assembly passed
6 legislation to re-enfranchise convicted felons who have 7 completed their sentence including incarceration and 8 parole probation.

9 While it's possible to identify registered
10 voters who were registered at the time of their 11 conviction, lost their right to vote and subsequently 12 re-enfranchised after serving their sentence, it is not 13 possible to identify those who were never registered 14 before their conviction and who continued to fail to 15 register to vote after serving their sentence because 16 of misinformation about the current law.

17 The league supports expanded voter outreach
18 to this specific population of ex-offenders and we 19 think we could boost our voter registration numbers
20 significantly, particularly in the Baltimore City area,
21 if this -- if the election boards had expanded outreach
22 and I'm not sure whether redistricting is one of the 23 areas you all want to hear about. But it does, in one 24 small way, actually become part of the election
25 administration and in Maryland during our recent

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 redistricting there were a million people that went to 3 a new district, a new congressional district. And,
4 actually, Mr. Willis, in his report actually points out
5 one of the problems with long lines had to do with 6 unfamiliarity of voters with the polling place.

7 So -- and at some point there were a
8 million people who went to a different voting -- or a 9 new voting place. A proportion of those actually were 10 new voters going for the first time. There was 11 actually a large number of people who went to vote
12 someplace they weren't familiar with and a number of 13 them who went to the wrong place because they didn't 14 know they had been redistricted.

15 I think if the powers that be in 16 redistricting could ask for the participation of the 17 local election officials who actually know the predicts
18 and the maps that they could perhaps have some positive 19 input in how this actually affects the voters. Thank 20 you.

21 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much.

22 We're going to start our Q&A portion for 23 this panel. We can start off with a question for 24 Ms. Fieo.

25 You mentioned that there was security

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 concerns for the absentee ballot. So I want you to 3 elaborate on the security concerns and what steps you 4 think the state should take to overcome those.

5 MS. FIEO: So, basically, from the 6 admissibility/advocacy perspective, the security
7 concerns were addressed through the state board who had 8 hired a security consultant to do a review of the 9 delivery of the online ballot and the ballot marking 10 tool. Staff at the State Board of Election were 11 satisfied by the findings of that security evaluation
12 and addressed any concerns that were identified in that 13 evaluation.

14 Proponents who were community members are 15 the ones who raised the security issues and felt that 16 the security report that was made public was not public 17 enough and did not provide enough information. The 18 State Board of Election -- I know Nikki Charlson from 19 the state board will be here later and she can address
20 this. But this -- I believe the state board felt they 21 could not release the entire report because it would 22 reveal what the security vulnerabilities were.

23 Now, Maryland has been using the online
24 delivery of the absentee ballot with the 2010 and the 25 2012 and there has never been a security breach.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 From our perspective, we felt that the
3 proponents were really raising hypothetical security
4 concerns. They were concerned about bad actors who 5 would perhaps intercept the email delivery of the 6 absentee ballot.

7 The other point I want to make is the 8 proponents were really, I think, concerned about the 9 delivery of the absentee ballot. That's where their 10 real security concerns were and not necessarily as much
11 on the ballot marking.

12 MS. DANIELS: Delivery online?

13 MS. FIEO: Delivery online. This is not --
14 I want to make this very clear. This is not online
15 voting. Once you receive the absentee ballot, you need 16 to mark it or mark it online if you have that 17 capability, print it and then mail it back in.

18 The state board has determined that it has 19 the authority still to do the delivery of the absentee 20 ballot. But because of a certain issue of the marking 21 tool was not voted on by the state board they can't 22 provide that accessible feature.

23 So now we're going to have the delivery of 24 a PDF version of a paper absentee ballot. It cannot be 25 necessarily read by a person who has a vision

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 disability or marked by a person who is blind or has a
3 dexterity disability, can't use a pen or a pencil. So
4 it's really unfortunate because the state board, I
5 think, did a fantastic job in shepherding this issue
6 and I also add that they had a $30,000 grant from the 7 federal government to develop this tool so that it can 8 be used by overseas and military voters. And because 9 of this failure to certify it, overseas and military
10 voters will not have the benefit of the ballot marking 11 as well.

12 MS. DANIELS: Are there any questions for
13 Ms. Fieo?

14 MR. HENDERSON: I have one for Ms. Blake.

15 Ms. Blake, in terms of -- we were talking
16 about the training that was needed for poll workers.

17 What kind of training were you suggesting 18 and how do you propose us putting something in place to 19 have adequate training for all poll workers?

20 MS. BLAKE: Well, we suggest that poll
21 workers receive actual training on the actual voting
22 system, the voting machine, rather than be shown a
23 video or just a PowerPoint how to enable the audio
24 ballot.

25 What the voter -- what the poller has to do

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 is they have to -- when they're loading the voter card
3 that is inserted into the machine, they need to check a 4 box to enable the audio ballot once the card is 5 inserted in the machine. If that box is not checked
6 when the card is inserted, the audio ballot does not 7 start and, unfortunately, most many blind voters don't 8 know that that's what has to be done. So they don't 9 know and the poll worker, if they're not trained
10 properly, they don't know why the audio ballot is not 11 starting. So actual training on the machine and the 12 poll book on how to check the box, they already have to 13 do that, I think would go a long way to solve that 14 problem.

15 Also, having poll workers with disabilities
16 at the poll to ensure that the accessible machines is 17 properly set up or properly functioning and the poll
18 owners know how to check the box I think would help as 19 well.

20 MR. HENDERSON: So do they have a procedure
21 manual that they're utilizing that's consistent across 22 the state?

23 MS. BLAKE: That's a question I don't know.
24 You might want to ask Nikki Charlson about that.

25 MS. DANIELS: Mr. Willis, do you have an

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 answer to that?

3 MR. WILLIS: Yes, I do. There is a
4 statewide election manual that has a disability
5 awareness section in it and I know in all of the 6 trainings that we do here at the University of 7 Baltimore -- we just had twelve hours of training
8 yesterday with about 350 people. Every judge touches
9 the machine and is shown by the trainer, you know,
10 about the box to check the audio ballot. We have the 11 headset and keypad and bracket that's used for 12 disability training that's available.

13 I can't say what happens in every
14 jurisdiction. I would concur, though, as a possible
15 solution, the enhancement of the polling place
16 evaluation because it is important with over -- well
17 over 20,000 election judges, it's really important that 18 any feedback get to the election administrators so they 19 can, in fact, either retrain that worker or substitute
20 someone else for that worker who is not following the 21 proper procedures and directions.

22 And the other suggestion, I know that you
23 made about having people there to be as resources, 24 either as voters -- providing voting assistance or 25 guidance, you know, that could probably also be

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 enhanced with additional resources as well.

3 The materials there printed, it's a pretty
4 good manual. All the election directors participated
5 in developing that manual. You might ask Nikki. I can 6 give you a copy of the statewide manual. It is 7 localized for each jurisdiction. So it's not exactly
8 the same in every jurisdiction.

9 MS. DANIELS: Those of you who mentioned
10 training. Do you have anything in addition about 11 training of election judges or things you think should 12 be made a part of the record at this time?

13 MS. FIEO: The only thing I want to add is 14 the -- we've offered training multiple times to 15 election judges at the local level. One of the 16 concerns is that there's not a lot of time to focus on 17 the specific issue.

18 This was the first time that NFB and MUSC
19 were invited to the Maryland Association of Election
20 Officials which was a fantastic first step.

21 The state board has also agreed to help us
22 distribute the Helping Maryland Vote booklet that you 23 have so that one of those will be available at every 24 polling site during -- hopefully, the primary but 25 definitely the general election and I think that will

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 be helpful as well. So we are starting to really
3 elaborate, but it's really creating a space in time for 4 that very specific training to take place.

5 MS. DANIELS: Thank you.

6 MS. KEENAN: I have another question for 7 Mr. Willis.

8 You indicated three systemic problems with 9 the voting that you identified which is the 10 independence of the election administration;
11 impediments to modernization and innovation; and,
12 finally, you said that every time you went to the 13 presidential commission they basically totally rejected
14 the issue of having adequate funding and I got the 15 impression that you had an opinion on that and that 16 having it just sort rejected out of hand seemed not to 17 make sense. So I would like to have you elaborate on 18 that point.

19 MR. WILLIS: Well, going backwards, with 20 the necessity for adequate resources, there's -- 21 jurisdictions face different challenges. For example,
22 here in the city, they have a warehouse and the 23 election board, they've been told they've got to move 24 out of that facility to make way for an improvement in 25 transportation. They have no new modern facility to

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 move to where they store things and where they keep all
3 of their supplies. Their main headquarter offices
4 they've been told they have to move out of there.
5 There's no place to go.

6 So what we proposed in the report was to 7 creation of an election infrastructure fund whereby
8 just similar to other funds that are used for other
9 government services, where state and local governments
10 could either borrow or grants could be made to allow 11 them the transition to the facility.

12 So if you go around the State of Maryland,
13 in Harford County there's a wonderful facility, new 14 facility. Other jurisdictions are still sort of 15 squeezed and crunched. Baltimore County is not in the 16 center -- its current facility is not in the center of 17 the county. It's in the western part of the county.
18 It's the larger of the counties as you know, 820,000
19 people, and the people on the east side have a hard 20 time to getting where the election board is.

21 So there's real facility issues that they 22 face and you can't deal with that just by saying that,
23 oh, everybody follows the best practices, we're going
24 to suddenly solve all the problems, you know. You 25 can't do just best practices, you have to invest and

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 the same thing on resource allocation. Early voting is 3 terrific. I'm a proponent of early voting but the 4 problem with early voting was that when you put a 5 machine at an early voting site, it's a machine that 6 can't be used on election day.

7 So Prince George's and Montgomery County
8 had significant problems in the 2012 presidential 9 election when they had early voting sites where 10 machines -- because you don't count those votes until 11 the election is over. So we had, like, 763 less 12 machines available on election day than would have been 13 available had the early voting sites not been there.

14 What had to happen was the state and local 15 government needed to buy more machines, but the 16 machines we're using aren't being manufactured anymore.
17 So you had a lack of capacity.

18 One of the reasons they're not manufactured
19 is because state legislators around the country are 20 trying to mandate the kinds of machines that get used 21 instead of letting election administrators have 22 machines properly certified and tested and there has 23 been written articles about this. There's less vendors
24 now than they were 20 years ago, there's less product
25 innovation and all of that is the result of tightening

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 legislative laws in response to, you know, certain --
3 whether their agendas, you know. I don't want to 4 attribute direct things to them, but it's changed the 5 marketplace for election equipment and we had growth in 6 that in the '90s and early 2000s and that's been really
7 limited in the last several years. That's a much
8 bigger issue.

9 MS. KEENAN: Do you have a position on why
10 you think that investing in election infrastructure is 11 just sort of a, oh, no, we can't don't that?

12 MR. WILLIS: Well, it's always been a low 13 priority. I'm sure Lou can say when she was on the 14 board fighting to it -- or you take Montgomery County.
15 You're now at 620,000 voters and you're operating with 16 about the same number of people you had 20 years ago.
17 So whether it's personnel --

18 MS. DANIELS: You're talking about people
19 or machines?

20 MR. WILLIS: People and, actually, machines
21 per people is less because they haven't bought any 22 machines. So you're dumping more and more on to the 23 election administration process with less resources in 24 many instance and were you to compare -- they did a 25 study, the secretary state, when we changed voting

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 systems in 2001 and 2002 and found out tremendous 3 disparities from jurisdiction to jurisdiction and the 4 number of people working in election administration
5 versus the size of the population they were tending to 6 serve and Prince George's was -- and the city were down
7 staff compared to, you know, suburban counties. Things
8 that you would find all over the country, but they 9 impact the quality of the election administration and 10 thereby affecting voters.

11 MR. HENDERSON: This is a followup to 12 Mr. Willis before you pass it on. When you say you 13 cannot utilize those same machines, can technology be 14 utilized to download some of those machines and reset
15 them or is that --

16 MR. WILLIS: You can't end of vote. You
17 cannot end the election on the machine from early 18 voting. What happens there's securely -- after early 19 voting has ended, they're securely locked up and 20 they're not -- the election has not ended and you can't 21 reuse the machine or take the --

22 MR. HENDERSON: So you can't download the 23 information and store it somewhere safely.

24 MR. WILLIS: They're under tight security.

25 MR. HENDERSON: We're going to have the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 same problem in the next election.

3 MR. WILLIS: Oh, yes. They can used for 4 the next election.

5 MR. HENDERSON: 2016, that's going to be 6 issue again if we have an early election, right?

7 MR. WILLIS: Correct. I don't anticipate,
8 given turnout factors, there will be that much of an 9 impact in 2014, but I worry about 2016 depending on the 10 type of voting system we're using and what the 11 economy -- for example, the change of system, one of 12 the other problems was the legislature said they wanted 13 a new voting system, but they said that right in the 14 middle of the recession. Well, there's -- and they 15 postponed the decision or implementation or transition
16 to a new system because the legislature never prorated
17 the money for it. So the legislature tells you to do
18 something and then there's no money to do it.

19 MR. YEARY: So when we raise the question
20 of voter access, I think, Professor Willis, you raise
21 an interesting point and I want to tie into Mr. Male's
22 acknowledgement of low voter participation overall 23 depending on which election cycle you're in.

24 In Baltimore City, they just moved the 25 city-wide election to coincide with the federal

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 election. So they added a year to the term because I
3 think in the back of some folks' minds that was a 4 concern.

5 But if we're trying to expand that early 6 voting period -- and it's come up a couple of times in 7 terms of legislative proposals in Annapolis -- one of 8 the pushbacks is if you try to move too close to the 9 actual election day, this makes it difficult for the 10 turnover time for the election boards to get ready for 11 the actual election day independent of the number 12 there's a couple of things going on.

13 My question really is tied to what is -- do
14 we know, the fiscal note thing that always seems to be 15 the boogie man when you propose this stuff. What's the 16 cost projected or estimated, however we come up with 17 it, that would accomplish and achieve the goal of the 18 maximum participation for all of the voters that you
19 think we would need?

20 The reason I'm asking that is on one hand
21 we have an issue with the hardware, right, and the mode
22 of transmission for disabled voters. Then we have the 23 issue of accessibility in the early voting window and 24 we have all of these things kind of running together.

25 Now, you mentioned the length of the ballot

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 has something to do with participation tied to wait
3 times, 900 to 2,000, I think, was kind of the number 4 range.

5 If we were to do election consolidations,
6 so let's handle all of our business according to the 7 same time line, that doesn't necessarily make us more
8 efficient. So how do we resolve this concern so that 9 we can get more folks engaged in the process in the 10 most efficient manner, expand the opportunity for folks 11 to vote in a formal that allows them to vote and 12 participate?

13 MR. WILLIS: That's a very complex
14 question. Mr. Male is correct about the participation 15 rates in Maryland. I mean, you have mayors and local 16 officials being elected by very small numbers of 17 potential voters. But the problem is the converse
18 problem -- and that legislature just did that -- you
19 allow municipalities to now go on an even year election
20 cycle. But if you do it in a presidential year, you're 21 only going to have a lengthy the ballot problem. With 22 Montgomery County with 26 municipalities and Prince
23 George's with 28 you're going to make the problem
24 course. So if you're going to even year, you may want 25 to do gubernatorial years.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 With regard to their -- some consolidation
3 can work with the -- for example, the largest precinct
4 in Maryland with the total -- the largest registration,
5 the largest voter turnout on election day didn't have a 6 problem and the reason they didn't have a problem is 7 because they were in a brand new country school with 8 parking, more parking than you have within blocks of 9 this facility right here. You had adequate machines.
10 You had well over 30 machines at the -- in that polling
11 place and they were able to handle and process people.

12 In Augusta, Maine, everybody votes at the 13 convention center. It's a mid to small city,
14 twenty-some thousand, you know, potential voters.

15 So consolidation can create efficiencies.
16 But when you do that, that doesn't necessarily address
17 all of the turnout issues. That -- that's a much more 18 complex question about motivating a turnout. You can 19 enhance it, you can improve it. And we've made 20 progress in Maryland over the last 30 years or so with 21 some of the things that we've done to improve turnout.
22 We rank higher now than we did 30 years ago, but that's 23 the margins.

24 In terms of cost, I estimated for this 25 report that if we had a $50 million-dollar

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 infrastructure fund in Maryland, that would go a long
3 way to helping the local governments and the local 4 administrators solve a lot of their problems, staffing
5 problems, their facility problems and maybe even some 6 of their equipment problems because they could use it
7 for technology.

8 MR. YEARY: My followup question has to do
9 with timing. You talked about the redistricting piece
10 and making sure that voters know which precincts
11 they're now voting in. There's been some redrawing of 12 those. But the other piece is that the primary this 13 year is at a different point in time.

14 Are there concerns from any of the members
15 of the panel in terms of the impact of the -- well,
16 one, what is your evaluation of voter information about 17 the change in the primary date and do you have concerns
18 about possible adverse impact on voter participation
19 based on your assessment of the information that's 20 available?

21 MS. PIERSON: Yes, I think there is a
22 problem. I think it's going to cause -- there will be 23 lower turnout in the primary. I think candidates who 24 are now going door to door are finding that people have 25 no clue that there's an election a month and a half

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 away.

3 The reason for the change, of course, was 4 to accommodate the overseas -- voting overseas and the 5 45-day extra time that they need to allow them the 6 opportunity to vote and you add that with the amount of 7 time it takes to actually certify the ballot and then
8 go forward to the next election and do all that, then
9 that's sort of how we got where we are. But I do
10 anticipate it's going to be a problem.

11 I have not seen a lot of either local or 12 state-wide advertisement, so to speak, about the new 13 election day. I will get an occasional Facebook update 14 from a local election board here in Baltimore City, but 15 I do think it's going to be a problem and, frankly, the 16 date has moved around quite a bit in the last few 17 cycles and people just aren't used to voting in June.
18 I mean, it's what you get used to because other places
19 have, you know, elections at this time all the time.
20 But I think it is going to be a problem.

21 MS. DANIELS: So you think affect --

22 MS. PIERSON: I think it will affect 23 turnout. I think people will be on vacation and 24 forget.

25 MR. WILLIS: It's one of my -- I have every

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 turnout election back to 1789 in this state and I can
3 tell you I am very concerned about a late June primary
4 and it's effect on turnout.

5 Last time we had a June primary in Maryland
6 was 1954. The difference is in 1954 we had a shorter 7 legislative session and, in fact, that's one of the 8 reasons, I think, that later date was chosen, to get as 9 far away from the end of the legislative session as 10 possible.

11 On the other hand, we don't know. We've 12 never experienced this particular date before in the 13 history of Maryland and I think that that is the number 14 one factor, uncertain factor having it in June and the 15 impact.

16 We have eight days of early voting. We've 17 expanded from six days to eight days of early voting so 18 that may help. That may help boost turnout. Early 19 voting was a little less than 15 percent of the vote in 20 2012. Our expectation is -- and we talk about that 21 also in the report is that could grow to 25 percent of 22 the total vote. But getting that number up -- you 23 know, our highest turnout in Maryland within recent 24 memory were in the '80s, '82 and '86 gubernatorial
25 elections. They were the highest. It spiked up a

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 little bit in '94 and then on a downward trend since.

3 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: First I want to say
4 this panel has just a great wealth of information and 5 if you have not shared task force recommendations or 6 other materials with us regarding election
7 administration, please do. I look forward to getting 8 this list. I am learning more.

9 Mr. Willis, I have a question about the 10 training of election workers, whether it's supplemental 11 or is it part of what the state does and I also have a 12 question for Mr. Male about -- can you talk more about 13 the rejection of absentee ballots and why?

14 I'm particularly curious also about why the 15 state is moving to a paper ballot system and what the 16 reasoning you've heard has been for that.

17 Is the election worker training, is it 18 supplemental or --

19 MR. WILLIS: Well, it is -- the local
20 government does it. The State Board of Elections
21 designs a manual and then the local jurisdictions can 22 supplement that with additional instructions and times.
23 The jurisdictions -- depending on their own needs, some 24 jurisdictions have the ability -- Howard County, for 25 example, does a pre-test with judges online. But, of

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 course, that's one of the wealthiest counties in the 3 entire county and it's a whole different -- you know,
4 they have a different size, number of people
5 participating. Montgomery County trains their election
6 judges for specific jobs. So they'll have -- they do
7 it by job. Baltimore City, in contrast, trains judges
8 on voting units, traditional ballots and electronic 9 poll booths. So they multi train, they cross train.
10 So there are variances at the local level on the 11 training which probably are fine. It accommodates
12 their needs and how they're going to run the system.
13 Montgomery County has one that I like. They have -- 14 train judges that come in to just close the election at 15 the end of the day. Other jurisdictions don't do that.
16 I think there's value in that because people make less
17 mistakes. I understand it's a very hard job. You show
18 up 6:00 in the morning and you don't leave until 9:00
19 or 10:00 in the evening.

20 In other jurisdictions around the county
21 you're experimenting now with split shifts. But that's 22 a resource issue. When I've raised that issue over the 23 last 20 or 30 years about split shifts or other -- oh,
24 we don't have the money to hire anybody else. You 25 know, we don't have this. You said it to Reverend

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 Yearly, that always becomes an obstacle and I think if 3 you want to -- if you value participation and you want
4 to increase it, you've got to invest in it.

5 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: So the training you
6 do at the University of Maryland will help --

7 MR. WILLIS: He did hear classrooms here at 8 the University of Baltimore last night and we'll be 9 using Morgan State University in a couple of weeks to 10 do --

11 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: Local jurisdiction
12 training here or...

13 MR. WILLIS: The hearing -- we actually
14 started in Baltimore County and other jurisdictions do 15 it in-house with their own people if they have it. The 16 election director of Baltimore County when they got 17 over a half million, people came and said the HAVA was 18 being implemented, different laws, different change of 19 voting system and she said I can't do this anymore.

20 So we developed a model based on using 21 classroom, bringing the adult learners into a classroom
22 setting, have the machines there available and we found 23 that to be fairly effective and we've been doing that 24 in the city since 2006 and we've used mainly the 25 University of Baltimore and Morgan and we've also been

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 at the community college in Baltimore County. We used
3 the community colleges out there as well to train. But 4 other jurisdictions, particularly small -- Kent County
5 has only got nine precincts and they train by precinct
6 team which I think, actually, is a very good idea where 7 you just -- all the people who are going to serve in 8 that predict come in together and you can train as a 9 team, but they only have nine predicts. Baltimore City
10 has 294. So every jurisdiction has a different
11 problem.

12 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: And some other
13 rejections --

14 MR. WILLIS: One other comment, though.
15 This latest manual for 2014, in addition to the state
16 efforts -- they hired an educator to help them in 17 training material. The local Maryland Association of 18 Election officials also helped with drafting of that.
19 So the state/county -- the state local participation, 20 as you indicated with your disability issues, has 21 improved in the last several years and I think it
22 reflects itself in a manual that has better problems
23 solving chapters in it.

24 So I think we've made improvements. I want 25 to be positive about that.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MR. MALE: So the Pew study found that one
3 in ten overseas ballots were received back by the state
4 or rejected and I wish I could answer your question
5 because our county is requesting from the state
6 information and the thought is potentially that's 7 because some of those people are requesting an absentee 8 ballot and then, not receiving it, they're using 9 federal write-in absentee ballots which is another
10 option.

11 So essentially they're receiving absentee
12 ballots. Maybe it's the second one that's being 13 appropriately rejected. We just don't know that.

14 MR. WILLIS: There is data and when Nikki
15 becomes the deputy director, she has all of that data.
16 The two principle reasons for rejection are that the 17 person was not registered and so that may be a 18 registration issue, either due to timing or due to 19 whatever and the second major rejection is received too
20 late.

21 In other words, coming from overseas
22 military it's received too late, which the whole
23 Internet and technology part could help. I mean, the 24 State of Washington does well with that and other 25 states have voting -- even West Virginia has

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 experimented with it for military voting on a pilot
3 program basis similar to Virginia because we see the 4 online deliver of ballots for persons serving overseas.

5 MR. MALE: That's true but it's unclear why
6 Maryland would stand out in percentages. We're 7 11 percent. Other jurisdictions are two or three 8 percent rejection rate. So those issues, it's not 9 clear why those would be specific to Maryland.

10 MS. DANIELS: Takoma Park is very unique in 11 that it allows parole felons to vote, 16 and 17 year
12 olds, even non-citizens.

13 I wanted to know if you all are having 14 issues with ensuring that voters are educated and 15 knowing that they can only vote for these local 16 elections as opposed to federal or state elections and 17 if you're having issues with voter fraud and voter 18 confusion.

19 MR. MALE: I think the answer to all of 20 those questions is yes. It's a small municipality. So 21 just to make people aware that we even have municipal 22 government is a challenge at some level.

23 So it's constant education. I think the 24 issue is more of people just learning about the city
25 election system as to opposed to our city election

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 creating people who then turn out to vote in a federal 3 election or state election and being turned away. It's 4 more the other way around.

5 MS. DANIELS: Are you spending more money
6 to educate voters about the uniqueness of the system?

7 MR. MALE: Yeah. We do a lot of --
8 landlords now hand out voter registration information
9 when you turn these in. We do poster campaigns, you
10 know, social media. We do our best to try to spend 11 money essentially on the elections. The turnout is 12 still very low, but we are doing our best to get it
13 higher.

14 MS. DANIELS: Ms. Keenan?

15 MS. KEENAN: I was going to ask you about 16 the decision to allow felons to be re-enfranchised and 17 what the experience has been with that because it seems 18 like in other places around the country they're 19 restricting -- they give it and in Florida and take it 20 away in a stroke with a pen, but you all are trying to 21 expand it in a way that's seems to be working for you 22 guys. I just want to hear what the experience has been 23 about.

24 MR. MALE: Yeah. I mean, there was a
25 recent exit poll in one of our city elections that show

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 the public -- the majority of the public supports it.
3 We had, during the process, people with felony
4 convictions come to speak to us about how important
5 that was to them personally. So on a local scale we'd 6 only be one of the states that allows municipalities to 7 do the innovation order we're taking on. It's been a
8 positive experience and each of these changes are one
9 or two percent of the total electorate. We're not -- I
10 think the change in year would make a bigger 11 difference, but we're getting, you know, one, two 12 percent changes. 16, 17 year olds are three percent of 13 our voting population now. So, you know, we can't make 14 dramatic improvements, but each of those things play an 15 important role in getting our elections being more 16 representative.

17 MS. DANIELS: One last question. In your 18 survey in regards to wait time, did you find that 19 polling places where voters of color were, the majority
20 had a longer wait time than other polling places?

21 MR. WILLIS: We found that urban voters
22 waited longer than suburban or rural voters with one 23 exception, Anne Arundel County, that they had a very 24 long ballot with 15 local charter amendments on their 25 ballot and they had problems in Anne Arundel County not

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 just in minority areas, but throughout the county of 3 Anne Arundel. But Prince George's did, but they had 4 resource issues. They had issues with the quality and 5 adequacy facility. They had different arrival time
6 issues.

7 MS. DANIELS: The arrival time of the 8 election workers?

9 MR. WILLIS: The voters. Oh, no. We did
10 have those problems about ten years ago. We've done a 11 lot to -- we had them in the city. The first time that 12 the university got involved, through our call center, 13 operated like a hotel. We did wake-up calls to the 14 judges. Since we did that for an election cycle, it's 15 been much improved. But in terms of our report, the 16 impact -- we also -- part of the reason that number of 17 impact goes up is the early voting. The early voting
18 sites were limited and constricted in Prince George's.
19 They weren't equally used. Some were more popular than 20 others. How that close the site -- one of our 21 researchers did a lot of work on graphing out the 22 proximity of a site. The siting is very important 23 particularly if you're dealing with communities that 24 don't use the automobile as the primary form of 25 transportation, but are using other ways to get to the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 site, that that impacted. Because the further away
3 from a site you are, the less likely you are to use an 4 early voting site and who does that disproportionately
5 impact? It disproportionately impacts those who don't 6 live on the means of transportation.

7 MS. DANIELS: So the early voting waiting
8 time as well as election day wait time.

9 MR. WILLIS: Correct. It operates both 10 ways.

11 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. Are there any 12 other questions?

13 MR. YEARY: Just one clarification.

14 With the designated early voting sites,
15 particularly for persons with disabilities, do you have 16 any concerns about where the sites are, how the sites
17 function, any issues of persons -- how does that work
18 in terms of the participation of persons with 19 disabilities in that early voting?

20 MS. FIEO: I could just say that we're very 21 pleased that the early voting sites are a hundred 22 percent accessible and that's been great. But there 23 are at least five percent state-wide that are not 24 accessible still, but every early voting center is, in 25 fact, accessible.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MR. YEARY: Thank you.

3 MS. BLAKE: And if I may add, I would add
4 also that early voting centers should be located near 5 public transportation. Transportation is the biggest 6 issue for people with disabilities. So it needs to be 7 in a place where they can get to easily.

8 MR. YEARY: Thank you.

9 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much. We'll now
10 public testimony. Mr. Akbar, please come forward while 11 the panel is leaving. Thank you again.

12 Mr. Akbar, go ahead, please.

13 MR. AKBAR: Thank you. My name is Rais
14 Akbar. I'm an attorney in Maryland and I work for Fair
15 Vote which is a 501 B3 organization based in Takoma
16 Park which advocates for electoral reform issues and 17 fair representation issues and things of that nature.

18 I think most -- I was going to give some 19 comments regarding Takoma Park's experiences with local 20 elections, but Mr. Male covered that ground adequately.
21 So I'd like to talk a little bit about representation
22 and redistricting issues. I hope that is not beyond
23 the ambit of the panel.

24 So just as a -- I'm not sure how many 25 people in the room are attorneys, many are not. But in

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 the voting rights world, there's often a distinction
3 made between litigation that concerns vote denial or 4 abridgment and other litigation that involves vote
5 dilution claims.

6 Mostly litigation under the federal VRA is 7 actually concerned with vote dilution. Recently
8 there's been considerable attention to voter ID laws
9 including a decision handed down today in Wisconsin
10 that's relatively major. But despite the proper and 11 valid attention paid to voter ID issues, actually voter 12 dilution has occupied the bulk of the body of law under 13 section [inaudible] of the Voters Rights Act.

14 The distinction would be something like 15 vote denial and enrichment concerns that barriers that 16 are or may be in place to casting of a ballot in the 17 first place versus what dilution is concerned with,
18 even if you cast a ballot, will your ballot then 19 translate into adequate and effective representation.

20 So the standard fact pattern in a vote
21 dilution basis, there will be some local jurisdiction
22 that uses an at large voting system which is to say
23 that every member -- every seat of a governing body, 24 the city council, the school board, whathaveyou, is 25 elected by all of the voters of that district, however

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 many seats there are and if there's a pattern of racial
3 block moving in which white majority consisting of a
4 block, minority residents will have no representation
5 whatsoever. And the standard remedy has been under 6 the -- it's not the required remedy, but it's the 7 remedy that tends to be adopted in voter dilution cases
8 is that single member districts are carved out of this 9 system on the theory that you'll have one or more
10 majority/minority districts which elect minority
11 representatives.

12 A better system, in my view, would be one 13 in which an alternate voting system is used rather than 14 winner take all because then you would have to go 15 through the question of drawing districts at all and at 16 large system combined with something like a single 17 transferable vote or cumulative voting would have all
18 the advantages of ensuring minority representation on a 19 governing body without the bother and expense and the 20 politics and potential litigation over race conscious
21 districting that would necessarily follow if you use
22 the standard remedy and my time is up.

23 There's so much to say on this matter, but 24 my time is up. Thank you.

25 MS. DANIELS: Do you have questions for

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 Mr. Akbar?

3 MR. YEARY: Since he's the panel, I guess
4 so.

5 MS. DANIELS: Do you think that -- where do
6 you think cumulative voting or, in particular, the type
7 of alternate method of election do you think would work
8 best for this particular --

9 MR. AKBAR: Well, the federal Voter Rights
10 Act does not preclude better remedies, but because the 11 Gingles factor is made -- G-I-N-G-L-E-S, that's the 12 name of the Supreme Court case that described the 13 pre-conditions that are necessary for a group of 14 plaintiffs can establish that there's a violation.

15 The first of the three Gingles factors says
16 that if a minority committee is large enough and 17 geographically cohesive enough to form the majority of 18 some district that could be created, then that's one of 19 pre-conditions necessary to sustain a claim.

20 The problem is that that -- having that as 21 one of the pre-conditions suggests that the proper 22 remedy would be to just create a district which is 23 fine, which often works fine. But it has a set of 24 associated problems because single member districting
25 can potentially pack in minority voters where their

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 influence might be better -- might increase if they
3 were spread out a bit more --

4 MS. DANIELS: But are you arguing for a
5 different system for, say, legislature for the City
6 Council?

7 MR. AKBAR: Oh, I see. I'm sorry.

8 MS. DANIELS: Where do you think this 9 method would work better or best for?

10 MR. AKBAR: The proper [inaudible] would be 11 city council, all municipalities. Something like 12 congressional districts are probably -- that's a 13 different matter. But so long as the scale of the 14 governing body is not too large and you could very well
15 have local legislative bodies that don't bother
16 [inaudible] districts at all. That would be very 17 effective, not just for ensuring that actual election
18 of minority members, but it would also increase the 19 influence of minority members even beyond the actual 20 ability to elect a candidate.

21 So you can have both. You can have your 22 cake and eat it too. You can guarantee elections and 23 you can have added influence on top of that using 24 multi-member districting and using something like 25 single transferable vote.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MR. HENDERSON: Have you been identify any
3 places that this has been a problem?

4 MR. AKBAR: In Maryland, there have not
5 been any session II cases brought. Racially polarizing
6 voting does exist, though. Baltimore County is one
7 area in which the patterns of voting clearly
8 demonstrate fairly distinct difference -- consistent
9 difference in candidates of choice for the white
10 majority and the racial minority communities there.

11 California is instructive in this case --
12 in this situation because California also did not see a 13 lot of federal enforcement. But once California
14 adopted a state level Voting Rights Act, which they did 15 in 2001, there was actually a lot of litigation brought 16 under state law.

17 So the lack of federal enforcement in a
18 given area does not necessarily indicative that a 19 problem doesn't exist. It's just that the remedies are 20 often possible under federal law, but not really 21 possible unless a state law supplements some federal 22 legislation.

23 MR. YEARY: To that point, just in this 24 session, chapter 50, the governor just signed it which 25 is -- it authorizes States Attorneys and the Attorney

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 General to take on certain enforcement mechanisms in 3 cases of what sounds like your point, the dilution
4 issue. I want to go, though, to your assessment of the 5 recent redistricting in the State of Maryland.

6 Assuming your initial argument is the 7 platform, give me your assessment of what you think the 8 impact is going to be practically since we know it's 9 already been taken through the court system.

10 But are there cautions that we need to be 11 sensitive to in light of that based on your concern
12 around that issue?

13 MR. AKBAR: The recent districting in 14 Maryland, a lot of commentary has been made and a lot 15 has been written about how Maryland has one of the most 16 blatant gerrymandered congressional maps in the nation.
17 The federal jurisprudence on the matter of partisan
18 gerrymandering is that it's not illegal. But if it has 19 a racial valance to it, then it has all sorts of 20 potential issues.

21 The Maryland congressional redistricting,
22 as far as I know, did not really have a problematic
23 racial valance to it. African-Americans generally vote 24 democratic. The map was generally in favor of 25 democrats. So it did not -- in any case, it did not

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 harm racial representation.

3 MS. DANIELS: But you're not arguing
4 [inaudible] congressional elections?

5 MR. AKBAR: No, certainly not.

6 MR. YEARY: The general assembly map.

7 MR. AKBAR: Oh, I see.

8 MR. YEARY: Let's say in Baltimore City
9 there's a loss in population, you lose representation.
10 Now we have to figure out which district gets redrawn
11 to balance out the representation in Annapolis.

12 Is there any analysis that you bring to 13 that around the dilution issue?

14 MR. AKBAR: I don't think I can really
15 comment on that right now. I have not studied that 16 particular matter closely enough. I would just say
17 that having single member districts in the first place
18 will always raise these concerns. Any time you try to 19 do it this way, there will always have to be this 20 consideration of what sort of racial valance is there.

21 MR. YEARY: The reason I ask is that in --
22 particularly on the senate side and because of the loss
23 of population there is one less senator in Baltimore
24 City. So there is a district that's redrawn where 25 there's kind of a shared senator.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 In some -- I don't know if there's a
3 formula to determine what the ratio is, but let's say
4 44A and 44B, now you have this kind of redesigned
5 district that puts, actually, representatives in 6 competition with one another for the seat. So now to 7 get to the city's representation, how do we look at 8 which seat gets redrawn to affect which population
9 around dilution? Any thoughts on that when we start
10 looking at the General Assembly map?

11 MR. AKBAR: My thought would be that if you
12 had a single transferable vote system of allocating 13 your votes, that's a sort of poly sided topic, but 14 it's -- single transferable just means that you can 15 rank your candidates of choice and so long as the 16 threshold of the victory is met, you win.

17 The representation for the city could be 18 better achieved by having candidates that try to appeal
19 to cross-racial coalitions which is possible under our 20 choice voting system in a way that is not impossible, 21 but considerably less likely under a winner take all
22 system such as we have now.

23 So vote dilution problems arise when 24 minority and majority voters consistently prefer 25 different candidates. But if you had a system of

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 voting which properly incentivized candidates to appeal
3 to people outside of what they may think of as their 4 natural constituency, rightly or wrongly, then you have 5 less concern about voter dilution because in many cases
6 people's interests are more likely to be represented.

7 MR. YEARY: That assumes, though, that the 8 redrawing -- that the redrawing creates the potential
9 for this cross-racial coalitions. If you are pitting
10 groups from within the same voting block based on the 11 relationship and the ties to the existing 12 representative, then you're not going to get the 13 benefit for the coalition. What you're actually going 14 to get is the removal of the interest factor because 15 now you've taken members of the same general voting
16 block and pitting them against each other based on 17 demography -- say when you have part of a district in 18 the city and part of the district in the county, but 19 basically the same demographic that you're drawing.

20 MR. AKBAR: You're describing a single 21 winner district. This would work under a multi-member
22 district. So if you have -- for example, the Maryland
23 House of Delegates uses anywhere between three and, I
24 think, five. But the problem with the House of 25 Delegates force is you just vote as a block for the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 member from that distinct. Instead you had a three to 3 five member district using random choice voting. The 4 minority community would almost certainly be able to 5 elect one member and almost certainly be able to have 6 the influence a second seat.

7 MS. DANIELS: Thank you, Mr. Akbar.

8 MR. AKBAR: Thank you.

9 MS. DANIELS: We're now going to take a 10 break until -- a 10 or 15 minutes break and there are 11 refreshments in the lobby. So please take advantage of 12 the refreshments in the lobby and we'll reconvene at 13 5:05.

14 (There was a recess taken at 4:53 and the 15 hearing resumed at 5:28 p.m.)

16 MS. DANIELS: We're getting ready to start
17 the second panel. Our first speaker is Reverend 18 Gloria -- would you please pronounce your last name for 19 us?

20 MS. SWIERINGA: Swieringa.

21 MS. DANIELS: Swieringa, Reverend Gloria
22 Swieringa. Please go ahead.

23 MS. SWIERINGA: Thank you very much for the 24 opportunity to be here today and my name is Pastor
25 Gloria Joan Swieringa. I'm co-chair of Communities

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 United of Greater Washington and we are very interested
3 in social justice.

4 So the subject of restoring the right to 5 vote to ex-offenders is monumentally important.
6 Maryland took a very important step in that direction
7 in '07 when the law changed to allow ex-offenders to 8 regain the franchise once they had served their 9 sentence and satisfied any demands with regard to 10 parole or probation.

11 However, as many things happened, what was 12 supposed to be a supportive mechanism to help the 13 reentry process by having these individuals attain a 14 very important point of inclusion became somehow 15 somewhat dysfunctional because it is very unclear. We 16 know it's estimated that about 50,000 people regained
17 the right to have the franchise. When the law changed,
18 they regained the right, but there's absolutely no
19 information about how many registered, how many voted,
20 what the law is doing, how we can be intentional
21 enough, that this is not just one more law that rests
22 dormant on the books -- and don't get me started on 23 that subject because I'm, you know -- as a social 24 justice volunteer, I have some laws that negatively
25 affect me that we don't implement. But there is

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 nothing more important than the right to vote. It's 3 one of the most important fundamental privileges that 4 American citizens can possess and we need to be 5 extremely supportive when -- especially when it comes
6 to the reentry process of making sure that the things
7 that are supposed to happen happen and, as most things
8 do, the negatives of this more greatly affect people of 9 color. All of this is documented and we have come to 10 encourage you to see what we can do to improve upon 11 this situation because the Freestate isn't very free if 12 we can't un-incarcerate our residents who have learned
13 the right to be so because of what we have not done
14 about a law that's been on the books since '07.

15 For example, a check of the website for the 16 Department of Safety and Correctional Services -- I
17 hope I said that right. I'm getting all of this 18 secondhand because access to ADA is another law that 19 Maryland has not -- no, I won't bore you with the kind 20 of problems I run into because we're still going to get 21 around to implementing that law. It's been on the 22 books since July 26, 1990 for heaven's sake. I'm not 23 sure I'm a member of the commission for persons with 24 disabilities, so I know that. I don't know what we're 25 waiting for, but we haven't gotten around to it.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 But when it comes to reentry, that's a
3 passion for me because for some 30 years I was a 4 volunteer for the DC Department of Correction most of 5 my time and on call for Maryland because, as you know,
6 ordained clergy have a lot more privileges when it
7 comes to people who are residents of our penal 8 institutions than even the family does.

9 So if a family has someone on the inside
10 and they really want to know what's happening, they're 11 going to go see a pastor because I can go and see them.
12 You can't force me to sit behind the glass, although 13 one or two chaplains for reasons known only to God
14 unsuccessfully tried to do that. You can't do it, it's 15 illegal.

16 But we need to -- we really need to 17 consider the blood, the suffering, the treasure that 18 went into the right to vote. Viola Liuzzo left six 19 motherless children so that black folks could vote.
20 Three babies, Chaney -- Schwerner, Goodman and Chaney
21 died in Mississippi so that people can have the right
22 to vote and it fuels my boiler that we still treat that 23 so casually. The information on the website as of 24 April 23rd, 2014 was all incorrect. It's been taken
25 down now and we're hoping that we get to a better

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 point.

3 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much. Time is
4 up.

5 MS. SWIERINGA: So this is what we've come
6 to encourage you to do is to let that process begin 7 before -- when they're released from prison because 8 maybe there needs to be more time to implement it
9 properly. But whatever needs to be happen, we need to 10 do it. Thank you.

11 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much.

12 MS. YEOMANS: Good afternoon. I'm Barbara 13 Yeomans. As president of the League of Women Voters of 14 the District of Columbia, I am pleased to provide 15 information about a special effort in voter service
16 undertaken by League members Melody Webb and Emily
17 Tamlyn.

18 DC laws says a person otherwise eligible to 19 vote may do so so long as he or she is not currently 20 incarcerated for a felony. On the record you'll see 21 the citation and the code. A person may vote while 22 charged and awaiting trial after having served time for 23 a felony conviction and while on probation or parole.

24 However, many persons who have a "criminal
25 record" think that they are not allowed to vote in D.C.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 and that they have lost this right when they were 3 convicted of a crime.

4 League members, in fact, Webb and Tamlyn,
5 in fact, found that many citizens returning to the 6 community from jail are unaware of their ability to 7 vote in the district. Also, although DC's laws
8 regarding their voting rights have been in place for 9 some time, it seems that there is not a lot of 10 information directed toward those returning.

11 Therefore, since early 2013, league members have been 12 working with another nonpartisan organization, Second 13 Chance to Vote, to develop strategies on how to educate 14 returning citizens on registering to vote as well as 15 voting. In July of 2013, we participated in 16 registration drives with Second Chance to Vote -- for 17 example, one at the Anacostia Metro Station and another
18 at a concert at the large centrally located Verizon 19 Center. These were special efforts distinguished from 20 other registration efforts.

21 With the assistance of the DC Board Of 22 elections, Ms. Webb and Ms. Tamlyn created a brochure
23 called The Right to Vote of Incarcerated and Returning 24 Citizens of the District of Columbia. The brochure is 25 also featured on our website and I brought a copy for

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 the record for all others who do not know this already,
3 the dog ate my homework and you don't have the 4 pamphlet, you know, foldout, but you do have a hard 5 copy.

6 Ms. Webb and Ms. Tamlyn also put together a
7 presentation based on the brochure to educate returning
8 citizens. We are now prepared to present information
9 on voting and voter registration at the DC jail and we 10 have proposed this to officials.

11 A basic mission of the League is to 12 encourage all DC citizens to understand their rights to 13 vote and to vote. We hope their efforts directed 14 toward returning citizens will help them to become more 15 fully integrated within the community. Thank you.

16 MS. DANIELS: Thank you.

17 MR. ABRIGO: Lennox Abrigo.

18 MS. DANIELS: Yes, go ahead.

19 MR. ABRIGO: I'm pastor of Seventh Day New 20 Covenant Ministries and also the founder of the 21 Washington, D.C. Chapter of National Action Network.

22 However, when the request came to us, they 23 specifically asked that we give a local perspective.
24 So, today, I'm representing -- speaking for the 25 Washington, D.C. coalition of civil rights -- local

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 civil rights leaders. We have all of the local civil 3 rights leaders represented in our coalition. It is a 4 coalition of DC civil rights leaders and, just like the 5 constitution of the panel, we have two local presidents
6 for local chapters of the NAACP. I don't know what 7 that indicates, but that is the way it is. We're both 8 here today in our coalition.

9 I want to take a chance to talk a little 10 bit about some new ideas that we are proposing for 11 increasing voter participation. We believe that the -- 12 that voting is the nucleus of any democratic system.
13 There is equivalence between the legitimacy of 14 democratic systems and the participation quotient of 15 voters within that system. If that was not so, then 16 there would be no outcry against monarchies,
17 oligarchies or dictatorships. So the more one -- the 18 more a democracy allows its constituents to vote, the 19 higher the rate of participation, the more legitimate 20 we believe the democracy is and there has been many 21 studies written that support that thesis.

22 So we want to propose that education of 23 voters and potential voters be continuous. We would 24 like to suggest that begins in high school, that 25 somehow voter experience and voter volunteering in

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 voting booths -- in voting centers are conducted and 3 tied to graduation, high school graduation,
4 qualifications and community service.

5 Isn't it strange that when the community --
6 that we send our high school students out for community
7 service away from the school, but when the community
8 comes to that high school -- because so many high 9 schools are voting centers, when the community comes to 10 that high school, we do not allow the students to 11 participate in their community being in their building.

12 So we're suggesting to this commission,
13 this honor and distinguished commission, group of 14 commissioners that we believe that should be addressed.
15 We do not have a prototype for you or a profile, but 16 we -- or even a facsimile, probably not even precedent,
17 but we would like to suggest that they be investigated
18 and we can be called upon to give more testimony in 19 this regard.

20 I think, also -- we think, also, that there 21 should be some connection to voting education to 22 acquiring a driver's license. If being qualified to 23 drive is important for all of society, then voting is 24 equally important to a democracy. So since most people 25 transition in life and acquire a driver's license, we

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 think that that's a good point, nexus point, at which
3 to attach the importance of voting and voting
4 education.

5 Churches -- as a pastor, I notice that you
6 have able representative of the clergy in the group of 7 commissioners. Churches are -- play an important role
8 in this and we think it should be ongoing because a lot
9 of people do not qualify to vote because they haven't 10 prepared to vote. They might not be aware of the 11 things that they need and it's too late to get it
12 sometimes. So voting should be ongoing and we suggest 13 that there be a need for preparation.

14 So it is our petition to this honest panel,
15 to this honest group of commissioners that we tie
16 voting education to our schools and driver's license
17 acquisition and that they be an ongoing process.

18 Thank you.

19 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. Ms. Taylor?

20 MS. TAYLOR: Hello. My name is Sharon
21 Taylor. I'm secretary and vice-president of the Prince 22 George's County NAACP and the communications chair for 23 the state conference of the NAACP.

24 I'm not really quite sure where I was 25 supposed to begin, but I'm going to start with what our

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 regional person talked about and I think it's kind of 3 five minutes. I'd like to speed read it.

4 I don't want to point at individuals
5 because I think the problem is a process that I think 6 allow a lot of good -- men of good will to not be their 7 best selves.

8 The Voting Rights Act changed the character
9 of American politics. I'm quoting a constitutional law
10 professor in Maryland, state senator Jamie Raskin who 11 in his 2003 book, Overruling Democracy, goes on to say
12 that the result was the African-American population in 13 the south which had a voter registration averaging less 14 than 25 percent in 1956 reached 62 percent registration
15 in 1968.

16 With the Voting Rights Act in after a near 17 century, post-reconstruction Jim Crow was out of 18 business. Now less than 60 years in the face of 19 overwhelming evidence to the contrary, including
20 30-plus states and acting voters, suppression
21 legislation limiting access to the franchise, Judge
22 Robert's court believes that provisions of the Voting
23 Rights Act harken to a time gone by. It's cognitive 24 dissidence. He is not unique in this, but, rather,
25 follows a long line of judicial decisions after the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 Voting Rights Act that, under the cover of law,
3 undermines black political power.

4 Read's instruction occurred as a result of 5 the shear numbers of black southern voters who's having 6 been counted in the census, notwithstanding their 7 no-vote status, helped the south maintain dominance in 8 congress access to the government's largesse. America
9 has always counted Africans in this country whether as 10 a function of trade and business or as a function of 11 political power in the reapportionment and 12 redistricting process. It is in perfection of the 13 gaming of these processes played out both -- by both 14 parties in which voters of color have been and continue
15 to be shortchanged.

16 Black representation has been thwarted at 17 every turn under the cover of law. Amendments to the 18 Voting Rights Act in 1982 ushered in, after the 19 1990 census, growth of majority minority districts from 20 26 to 52 and, along with them, historical numbers of 21 black and Hispanic members to Congress and state
22 legislators.

23 The racial quota narrative raised its ugly
24 head over two majority minority districts out of 25 twelve, narrow though they were, 53.4 percent black and

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 45.5 percent white and 53.3 percent black to 45.2 white
3 respectfully.

4 Shaw v. Reno paved the way for an avalanche
5 of lawsuits that reversed many of those districts,
6 essentially saying that the strict, strict scrutiny is 7 required whenever majority minority districts are 8 consciously created but not necessarily so in the 9 creation of white majorities.

10 I quote Senator Raskin: Under this
11 asymmetrical doctrine, whites gain a presumptive
12 constitutional right to be the majority of territorial 13 districts at every level of government unless 14 minorities can form majorities by being concentrated in 15 enclosed geographic areas. Enclosed geographic area
16 most certainly applies to Congresswoman Donna Edward's
17 congressional district four. It was undone in the last 18 redistricting.

19 The growth of the voting power minority
20 voters has to pay off for communities of color rather 21 than simply perpetuating white male dominance
22 protecting incumbency, seniority and party dominance no
23 matter the party.

24 Here in Maryland, minority voters
25 consistently deliver seven points margins of victory

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 for the democratic party. While half of the democratic 3 voters in Maryland are minority voters, most of the 4 important issues facing communities of color that stand
5 to be elected because elected people can't, dare not or 6 don't respond and communities are not included in 7 discussions on matters related to opportunities.

8 In anticipation of a presidential election,
9 the narrative of Maryland's redistricting was the 10 importance of national party dominance and a single 11 congressional seat that would surely save the 12 presidency. It, of course, would have been blasphemy
13 to utter the possibility that two Republican
14 congressional seats is fair in Maryland notwithstanding 15 population over history. Meanwhile, Maryland's real 16 opportunity for two majority minority districts was 17 tossed away for a single goal by flinging
18 African-American, Hispanic-American and Asian-American 19 populations across the state to shore up safe districts 20 and effectively diluting the voting power of 21 communities of color across Maryland, minority voters
22 on lockdown for another ten years.

23 In addition, safe congressional and state
24 districts that had become too largely populated by 25 minority voters, even though minority voters had proven

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 themselves loyal and reliable, were adjusted to reduce
3 the influence on minority votes. This, then, I believe
4 is central to where we find ourselves today regaining
5 ground we thought already won.

6 One can hardly doubt the willingness of 7 minority voters to vote for non-white candidates. But,
8 today, the assurance of our vote is manipulated so that 9 non-white candidates are our only choice and we do not 10 have the right to concentrate our voting power.

11 Perhaps we've invested too much time in 12 permanent interests. In the political landscape, as 13 minority voters have become mobile and reliable, we've 14 seen the unraveling of our rights and, along with it, 15 fairness and decency. Where are the beneficiaries of 16 our loyalty when multiple states duplicated the Stand
17 Your Ground like laws all over the country? Why didn't 18 they sound the alarm when state legislators were 19 pushing through voter suppression legislation
20 registration all over the country? Why didn't they 21 move to act on the court's warning at the last 22 reauthorization that the formula related to 23 pre-clearance was outdated?

24 MS. DANIELS: Ms. Taylor, your time is up.
25 Do you want to give a summary?

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MS. TAYLOR: Well, let me just say, in
3 closing, I think I get most of my facts right. I think
4 these are complicated issues, but I think that people
5 can get it. Millions of men and women pave the civil 6 rights highway so other seeking their civil rights
7 would know the way with no toll to pay. I think they 8 have to be in the fight, not kind of in the fight. All 9 in. Thank you.

10 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. You have 11 submitted your written testimony, right?

12 MS. TAYLOR: I have.

13 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. Mr. Sloane?

14 MR. JAMES: No, Mr. James. I have 15 submitted the written testimony. So I won't go over 16 some of that same ground. However, I have some points
17 with regard to what we have done in the State of 18 Maryland.

19 We've been very active over the last 20 20-some years and prior to that I wasn't around with 21 regard to making sure there was equal opportunity for 22 fair representation at the polls. It's not perfect.
23 It's a work in progress but we're moving forward. In 24 the last several years, the last ten years, one of the 25 big important things we've done is have

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 re-enfranchisement of our ex-offenders, our returning
3 citizens, if you wish, so that, in fact, at first they 4 get the right to vote with some delays in terms of how 5 soon they could apply for their vote. In fact, now we 6 have a point where they can now be eligible to vote as 7 soon as they're off of parole based on everything
8 outside the state system.

9 What we want to see with regard to that is,
10 in fact, an administration that says when you're in and 11 when you're about ready to come out, we're going to 12 give you those applications, those forms so, in fact -- 13 so you know and you're educated that you can return to 14 become a full citizen in this country and in this state 15 because, without that, the form says under penalty of 16 perjury and probation and law, all of those other good
17 stuff. Some ex-offenders do not want to take the risk
18 but yet they're in our communities. And I say to you 19 voting is not only citizenship, voting is economic 20 community because a lot of our legislators enact laws
21 that affect us economically.

22 We understand if we had more voters and we 23 had other things, the war on poverty would never have 24 happened. But it did and now it takes away our voting 25 opportunities. We want those ex-offenders to have the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 right to vote. We're talking about 200,000 citizens in 3 the State of Maryland that should have their voting
4 rights returned to them. We have reached 40,000.
5 There's another 160 that still have to go. We still 6 have to make that happen.

7 With regard to protecting us so, in fact,
8 we're not the subject of what I call predatory actions
9 by those that wanted to suppress our voting, the State
10 of Maryland has turned around and has -- five years
11 ago, if I'm correct, started a process where, in fact,
12 we will penalize you, put you in jail for criminal 13 behavior when you take actions that really suppress the 14 vote. When you tell people it's the next election day, 15 you send out flyers and this and that nature, when 16 you're told you gotta have your paid up gas bill or 17 your paid up water bill to go to vote.

18 You know, we'll put people in jail, but 19 that was at the state level. This year we passed it
20 where, in fact, it goes down to the municipal level.
21 So we're looking at protecting all of our citizens.
22 But, also, we're fighting at the state level so that,
23 in fact, we don't have those who want to, in fact, deny 24 our right to vote by requiring unjust, unrequired and 25 unneeded ID checks. Every year as state legislators we

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 have to, in fact, say to folks there is voter fraud in 3 Maryland. Why do you want to put these Draconian
4 measures in place that really do nothing but, in fact,
5 deter the right to vote?

6 We're constantly against and fighting to 7 stop those behaviors and stop that action.

8 And, finally, the one thing that I would 9 like to say, the fact is that we need education.
10 Education, education, education. It's not on who 11 you're voting for, but it is on the issues. We have,
12 in fact, an educated population. They can make up
13 their minds who to vote for. We need to have the right
14 to know what are the issues and, in this state, with 15 all of this opportunity, there is no reason why our 16 legislators, our officials, our churches, even our 17 schools, our communities organizations cannot get 18 together to say these are the issues that are affecting 19 our population. We encourage you to vote. Some people
20 say that, in fact, we are a pro democratic party.
21 We're not. We're pro issues. I want the person in 22 Western Maryland who may be part of the Klu Klux Klan
23 and is not part of the party that I might vote for as 24 an individual to really turn around and say I know the 25 issues. So, in fact, if I'm voting for someone, that

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 someone should protect issues, to protect my children,
3 protect my opportunity so, in fact, I can participate
4 also. Western Maryland, eastern shore, central 5 Maryland, we as the citizenry need to have the best
6 education and the best information possible to make
7 good decisions, but also to be encouraged to vote. I
8 want to step back on that last part. It is economic 9 necessity that we vote because the law is now our 10 economic future. Thank you.

11 MS. DANIELS: Thank you. We'll allow time
12 for question from the panel. This seems to be a common 13 thing from this group vote, the need for voter
14 education as well as the issue of felony
15 disfranchisement and its impact on voters. We're 16 certainly interested in hearing. Mr. James we're 17 talking about 200,000 voters in the State of Maryland?

18 MR. JAMES: In the State of Maryland
19 because -- unfortunately, because of the war on drugs,
20 you have taken some of our ordinary citizens on minor
21 penalties and have disenfranchised them. So the list
22 of statistics that I've looked at -- and I have to 23 admit that was in 2012 -- there was, like, 200,000
24 ex-offenders coming out from the system that would be 25 allowed to go vote if, in fact, they had the proper

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 information.

3 So we're asking the fact that our
4 Department of Corrections and public safety put a 5 program in place so, in fact, they can encourage these 6 individuals to, in fact, as soon as they're out,
7 register to vote.

8 If you want to talk about a sad situation,
9 be at a mall and you can see this gentleman with his 10 children and we talk voter registration and he can't -- 11 his children don't know why, but he can't because he's 12 an ex-offender. And when you tell him now what they 13 can do, the smile that they have because they've been 14 holding it.

15 MS. DANIELS: Ms. Yeomans, in DC, what 16 numbers are we talking about?

17 MS. YEOMANS: I don't have those numbers.
18 Our particular members just are now getting engaged in 19 this phase.

20 MS. KEENAN: I do want to ask some 21 questions about the felony -- the issue of felony
22 dis-enfranchisement and I certainly would like if 23 people -- this is directed to everyone on the panel, if 24 anyone and has anecdotes like you were talking about at 25 the mall, I'd like to hear those. But I'd also like to

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 hear what the impact has been of the outreach to let 3 people know that they really can vote. In other words,
4 you know, what people are saying in terms of the 5 response when, you know, the law is revealed in these 6 jurisdictions where you, in some cases, have the 7 opportunity to vote.

8 MR. JAMES: Again, this is August James.
9 The only impression that I have and that is working,
10 for instance, is the job opportunities task force here
11 in Baltimore with several ex-offender groups that are 12 located in Baltimore and Prince George's County, that 13 the response they have -- on the individual basis
14 because we're talking about ones and twos initially.
15 When you talk to someone and they find out that they 16 can vote, it's sort of, okay, I can vote. But then 17 when it sinks in what that means and when we're under, 18 as we will be in the next several months, all the 19 campaign advertising and of these other things where 20 you can say, okay, I can't vote, they turnout. There 21 is good turnout. I know there was in Baltimore City
22 several years back and I imagine across the state.
23 But, again, the right to vote is the individual vote
24 and I really don't want to shout out that I had my vote
25 returned to me when people don't even know I lost it.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 So all they do is go vote.

3 MS. TAYLOR: May I say something about
4 that? I really believe that process -- you know, too
5 much process can paralyze you, but a little process can 6 take you a very long way and I think in government we 7 could use our best commonsense. Somebody in a
8 correctional facility knows who's coming in and out,
9 some kind of caseworker. And I'm sure the world would 10 come to an end if we did something like counsel a 11 person as they prepare to leave that, based on whatever
12 your term and your sentence and your circumstances, you 13 are eligible to vote now, you will be eligible to 14 register to vote now or you will be in six months and 15 give them some direction because, of course, voter -- 16 you know, driver's license, voter registration, the 17 world came to an end when we did that.

18 But the place where we know an incarcerated
19 individual will be touched is the place where he or she 20 is incarcerated. So it makes sense in a country that 21 really believes that the right to vote is an important 22 right, then that would seem the most logical place for 23 us to put that in place rather than running various...

24 MS. DANIELS: What does the state currently 25 do?

PROCEEDINGS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

MS. TAYLOR: Nothing.

MS. DANIELS: In Maryland, it's once you've completed probation and parole in D.C. is the felony conviction, you are no longer incarcerated.

MS. YEOMANS: The brochure --

MS. DANIELS: This is from the League of Women Voters.

MS. YEOMANS: This is just come out?

MS. DANIELS: Do you know what the District of Columbia does as far as educating persons who are out there about how to get their right to vote?

MS. YEOMANS: I want to put this fairly. We are prepared to give that presentation. There's been some difficult in trying to set that up and I cannot speak beyond that.

MS. KEENAN: Could we ask that you submit those materials, though, so we have that as a part of the record?

MS. YEOMANS: Materials meaning...

MS. KEENAN: You said there was a presentation on the issue --

MS. YEOMANS: It has been prepared.

MS. KEENAN: Right. What I'm saying is when you get in a position or posture where you can

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 provide it, we certainly -- the hearing ends today, but
3 it doesn't mean that you can't submit it --

4 MS. YEOMANS: You say the presentation
5 itself?

6 MS. DANIELS: Whatever information you get
7 about what D.C. is doing...

8 MS. KEENAN: Right, right. We'd like you
9 to add those materials to the record so that people
10 have access to them because, of course, DC is a lot 11 more broad in its ability to accept people, to 12 re-enfranchise people. So, again, other places are 13 saying this is impossible, it can't be done, it's been 14 given and taken away sometimes between elections. But,
15 obviously, in a place where it is happening and the law
16 allows it, we certainly want to hear what the 17 experience of that jurisdiction has been.

18 MR. ABRIGO: We have begun to look into 19 that and what we have found is that probation officers
20 are acting on theory and illegal to re-imprison people
21 because we have a lot of offenders who spend equal or 22 more time for parole violation than the original prison
23 terms.

24 So we're looking into that and I think that 25 one of the reasons probably why those who are being

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 released aren't getting that information is because the 3 prison system expects them to return and they have a
4 system -- and this is just an assumption on our part,
5 but there seems to be a system that wants to put them
6 back.

7 I want to talk a little bit about the --
8 this matter of educating voters. I think it's 9 incumbent upon government. Every local, state and 10 federal government agency should attempt to educate and 11 prepare voters because it's not a matter of just 12 telling people to vote and the means to talk about the 13 right to vote. But the right to vote should also be 14 accompanied by preparation because we know that you 15 can't just stop at a polling station one morning and 16 vote. You have to be registered. Then you have to 17 have the right IDs. So I think the panel needs to -- I 18 would like to suggest that the committee pursue that in 19 some way and they can give you more data.

20 The last thing I want to say on that is, as 21 a pastor, the psychological benefit of a person who was 22 incarcerated, be approached to say I can help you get 23 you qualified to vote, that act in itself is 24 restorative and healing for him because it's the 25 opposite of what incarceration does. Incarceration

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 shuts him away from society. It says you are not able 3 to be in society either because you hurt somebody or 4 because you're being punished. But when we approach
5 someone who -- an ex-offender and say to him here is a
6 chance to vote, here is how we're going to register
7 you, it's psychologically -- it's a welcoming act and 8 then it's also an act of acceptance that he knows in 9 this hullabaloo that is costing probably billions of 10 dollars or, let's say, multi-million amounts of 11 dollars, he is participating, he or she, and we have a 12 rally coming up on females who have been incarcerated 13 and it's amazing how the community reaching out and 14 voting is just one way that we can reach out to 15 ex-offenders, male and female, how it is -- how it has 16 destroyed families. I think it will be a good thing 17 for us to have, again, an education program that is 18 targeted at ex-offenders whether we do it in prison or 19 outside.

20 MS. KEENAN: I just have a quick followup
21 to that because you mentioned IDs and, because you
22 mentioned it, I feel compelled to ask this question.

23 In D.C., you don't need your ID to vote and 24 I never hear or read anything about voter fraud in the 25 District of Columbia.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 So I was just wondering, since we have some
3 representatives from D.C., has anyone encountered
4 individuals trying to vote on behalf of people other
5 than themselves?

6 MS. YEOMANS: I will tell you that when my 7 husband was incapacitated a lot, I would definitely 8 have to help him vote. We had discussed it. It's 9 almost like helping the elderly.

10 MS. DANIELS: Yeah, but you didn't vote in 11 his place. You still voted as you and he still voted 12 as him?

13 MS. YEOMANS: Right.

14 MR. HENDERSON: In terms of process, it was 15 brought up by a number of folks that have testified 16 here today. As it relates to putting a process in 17 place, what would it take to be able to have -- before
18 you are released, have someone as you said, Ms. Taylor?
19 What would it take to have a requirements that this is 20 in place in terms of having folks who are coming out 21 who assert all of their time and register vote prior to 22 their release.

23 MR. ABRIGO: We'd have to have the 24 attention of the mayor.

25 MR. HENDERSON: Hold on. What else would

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 it take for those who are coming probation at that 3 point, after their probation officer registered them to 4 vote? Is that something that's realistic or not?

5 MR. JAMES: The fiscal on that is zero.
6 It's the will of the government to put training in 7 place for leadership to say, at this point, you need
8 to -- but also it is a mental note. These are 9 returning citizens. Don't call them ex-offenders.
10 They're returning citizens and key officials need to 11 think of them as returning citizens. That's why I said 12 the fiscal limit is zero. It's just a will of the 13 different administrations. I was an R person. It was 14 easy --

15 MR. HENDERSON: So you're saying that that 16 would be a governor's decision to make that a policy or 17 a requirement?

18 MR. JAMES: Yes. Can I ask you one other
19 point because this is going to be critical. You go
20 back because we can't answer it here. Since we're 21 talking ex-offenders, returning citizens, we understand 22 that with new laws coming into place because of 23 decriminalization of marijuana and, in fact, we have 24 the president and probably certain governors will 25 commute sentences, things of this nature, how will that

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 affect our process to get people eligible for
3 elections?

4 I mean, that's a question. It's not
5 something I can answer, but it is one that we need to 6 think of. Like I said earlier, war on -- the war on 7 crime and the war on drugs devastated our communities.
8 We all know that and now with the different laws
9 changing with regard to minimal sentences and low 10 levels of marijuana use and things of this nature and 11 the decriminalization of marijuana, that affects 12 probably hundreds of thousand if not millions of 13 individuals across the country. That's why I'm saying 14 it's across the country with regard to their ranks, 15 Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and places like this. In 16 Maryland, we have it covered because you get your 17 voting rights back.

18 MS. TAYLOR: Well, there is a louder voice
19 in the country. The state's rights voice in the 20 country would make this a state by state decision and 21 so, like health care, you have all the southern states
22 don't want to that and, you know, some of the northern 23 states would, you know, blink, and then get it done.

24 So, I mean, it would wind up being this 25 patchwork of places where we would have it done or not

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 have it done. I mean, it is exactly where we are in an
3 America in terms of who is it we really say we are. I 4 mean, we say that the vote is both a right and 5 responsibility, but all of these years later we're 6 still figuring out whether it really is or not.

7 Do you know what I mean? So it becomes 8 a -- we say it's the right thing to the rest of the 9 world, but then it becomes a struggle to get any of 10 these things done because ideology, you know, has moved 11 us away from any discussion of what is right.

12 MR. YEARY: In the consideration of how 13 voting rights are restored -- so in some instances you 14 say it's automatic. I know in some places you have to 15 register in order to get to complete that reinstatement
16 and going back a few presidential elections we do know
17 that there are some persons who were improperly
18 disqualified from voting because they were still listed
19 as having been disqualified for a conviction.

20 So does anybody know whether or not there's 21 automatic information sharing between departments of 22 corrections and election boards to make it known on the 23 election board side that if they get a re-registration,
24 that this person has satisfied and completely fulfilled
25 their sentence including any parole or probation?

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 How do we know when the re-registration
3 goes in to the election board that the election board
4 has accurate information upon which to issue the voter
5 registration card?

6 MR. ABRIGO: It's not accurate. Sometimes
7 it's not updated. Sometimes they're in possession of 8 the accurate information, but they're updating their 9 systems and that's why I think this has to be 10 approached on the question of possibilities as a 11 partnership. We have to talk with government leaders, 12 not just the government officials. We have to get the 13 attention, as in the District of Columbia, of the mayor
14 and we have gotten a lot of results by talking to the 15 mayor directly and him bringing in his agency head like 16 the head of prisons and discussing the issue.

17 So I think the partnership is what makes it 18 possible and once we get the mayor's attention, that 19 will forge the allocation of funds because education is 20 going to require funds, as somebody said earlier, to 21 make what policy states be implemented.

22 MR. YEARY: But the requirement that 23 agencies, government agencies share information is 24 often not done by executive order. It's often done by 25 legislation and do we have the legislation in place

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 that then becomes an enforceable framework upon which
3 to know when the accurate information has been shared
4 or to impose appropriate remedies in instances where it
5 should have been shared but it was not?

6 MR. JAMES: In Maryland -- I work with the 7 ACLU on this. When, in fact, there was a delay --
8 there was a waiting period, that was one of the 9 arguments with regard to when a waiting period ended
10 and how the individual board of elections because in 11 Maryland, if I'm correct, you have a State Board of 12 Election. But, really, the board of elections are by 13 county and that's where that information is housed.
14 That's where the problem lies because the State Board
15 of Election probably can talk to the Department of 16 Corrections and give that information and I think it
17 goes by executive board that they were doing that. We 18 did not float it down to the County Board of Elections
19 and so what the wording was, if I'm correct on this,
20 was that when we changed to -- there's not a waiting 21 period. As soon as you're outside of any kind of 22 probation, control or whatever, you can apply and at 23 that point there has to be a reason to deny you. But 24 here again, that is on the wishes of the executive 25 coming down. That is not on legislation that was made

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 permanent throughout the state law binding.

3 MR. YEARY: Now, the other piece --
4 Ms. Taylor, you raised an interesting concern about 5 concentration of votes in the safe districts and the 6 question is, with redistricting and the analysis, is 7 what is the appropriate balance for effective
8 engagement, not just the exercise of the right to vote
9 but the ability to influence potential outcomes?

10 The reason I raise that is two points.
11 One, when the current commission published its report
12 on the 1968 uprisings, the '65, '66, '67 uprisings when '68
13 came out, is that -- they noted that any progress made 14 around what we would call at that time "black 15 empowerment" was concentrated in those areas where 16 there was a sizable enough electoral population to 17 swing elections and so when we look at redistricting on 18 one hand, when we look at processes of reinstatement of 19 rights, is there a need to reconsider what the ultimate 20 goal is in a redistricting plan so as not to have an 21 overconcentration of voters in single districts, but to 22 more equitably distribute them so that the potential to 23 impact the outcome of the election causes all voters to 24 reengage in the process?

25 MS. TAYLOR: Right. Well, let me just say

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 I've done -- you know, I'm not a lawyer. I do this --
3 this is just a subject that's of enormous interest to 4 me and I've done a lot of work on it. The whole
5 redistricting piece, we apportioned it in the 6 Constitution and there are two questions they just left 7 unresolved which is the status of the District of 8 Columbia and this issue.

9 So, as it is today, it's manmade and with 10 the addition of dollars coming down to communities
11 based on the count, talk to the people who have prisons
12 in their population and they get more money because 13 they got a bigger prison population. So it's about a 14 system that was not supposed to be political. You're 15 supposed to just divide up the country and you're 16 supposed to just make sure you have X number -- equal 17 number of people so that everybody would be 18 represented. That's sort of a broad brush of the way
19 it goes, but the deal is -- what you do is we wind up 20 with these districts where people understand that the 21 way to protect incumbency, the way to protect seniority
22 is simply to draw it the way you need it. And, with 23 regard to the minority community, since Shaw v. Reno, 24 the whole deal is, well, let's make sure that there's 25 not enough minority population either to effect me --

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 even though they've been loyal voters to me, I don't 3 want them to get up to the 40 and 50 percent where they 4 could actually change their mind about me and maybe
5 vote somebody else in or you want to make sure that you
6 don't wind up with a lot -- majority minority.

7 To make a majority minority district now,
8 you gotta move heaven and hell and it's completely at 9 odds, plus, you know, post 1990 census, you have this 10 humongous undercount as a result of not being able to 11 use statistical sampling and the decision isn't made by 12 the director of the bureau of the census, it's now made 13 by the commerce director. I mean, the whole thing has 14 been so adulterated that it's almost not what's it was 15 originally designed to be. So that's an enormous -- I
16 think in this discussion, as we move toward reinstating
17 the vote, that's an enormously important part of that, 18 I think.

19 MS. KEENAN: But you're essentially saying
20 that's why we need section 5 because people stopped --

21 MS. TAYLOR: Absolutely. And I'm sure the 22 way to get back to it is being proposed to us
23 incrementally. But you know what? We need to leap 24 forward on this because this is ground we've already 25 been over. We can't get back to it incrementally.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MS. DANIELS: But Maryland, DC and Delaware
3 are accessioned by states.

4 MS. KEENAN: No, they're not. She's 5 talking about a problem --

6 MS. TAYLOR: But that's because, you know,
7 I think I might have asked to be on a later panel. I
8 really kind of thought it was more -- it was more 9 related to that whole section. But, still, I think the 10 incarcerated population voter rights is enormously
11 important.

12 MS. DANIELS: These are all very complex
13 and important issues. We've run out of time for this 14 panel.

15 Do you have a question?

16 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: It has to do -- back
17 to the point about the education that's needed.
18 Ms. Taylor, I just wanted to talk with you.

19 With your discussion about the 20 redistricting process that took place, what would you
21 recommend that would be needed for public education?
22 What would the elected officials or community leaders
23 and organizations would need to do to educate the 24 public? How could the public have engaged better?

25 MS. TAYLOR: I happen to have been the head

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 of redistricting commission for my county and I will
3 tell you that the point person for me, I said -- I
4 would love to have X number of public meetings because 5 I knew that it was not only a matter of drawing lines,
6 there was also a matter of educating the people and I'm 7 telling you this person was like concrete in front of 8 me to stop me and I simply said, you know what, I'll go
9 public with the idea that I'm thwarted at every turn
10 here because this is a public issue and it's public
11 understanding that helps people. This is not a 12 redistricting plan that is the gospel according to 13 Sharon Taylor.

14 So I believe everybody who is an elected
15 official who has earned the vote of some constituency
16 has a responsibility as early as three years before the 17 census, first, to tell people why the census is 18 important because it is from those numbers that come
19 the reapportionment and redistricting process.

20 I think that any public official who 21 doesn't see that as, you know, critical in terms of 22 educating his or her constituency about their own self 23 interest, really has already fallen down on the job.

24 So I think that's the perfect way to do it.

25 MR. JAMES: The critical point on this is,

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 like I said, you spend a lot of money -- the federal 3 government spends a lot of money on getting people to 4 participate in the census and yet we spend very little 5 money on the back end that the census will determine 6 redistricting and that should go out before or at the 7 same time.

8 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I just want to say,
9 commissioners, it's a privilege -- I am concerned about 10 the recommendation about, when folks leave prison, to 11 let them know that they can register upon completion of 12 their sentence because, if that's given to someone 13 before -- when they leave prison and they still have 14 the probation or parole to complete, there's concern
15 about it causing confusion. They can think, oh, I can 16 register right now.

17 So I'm just wondering about putting that in 18 the hands of the parole officer. I know there's a 19 caution program about the probation officer. I just 20 wanted to raise a concern about misinforming if they -- 21 depending upon the release from incarceration, do they 22 still have to complete probation.

23 MR. JAMES: If I'm correct -- and somebody
24 here might be able to tell me if I'm incorrect -- you
25 have to have an education level to become a parole

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 officer. You have to have capacity to understand
3 rules, regulations, policies and procedures. You can't 4 tell me that a parole officer, parole administrator,
5 governing body cannot have this caveat as part of the 6 requisition in the job structure.

7 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I'm not arguing. I
8 agree with the probation officer. I was just speaking
9 to the point about someone has handed the information
10 as they're leaving prison and not fully understanding
11 any cohesive sense of what means, that might cause
12 confusion. I just wanted to raise that point and I
13 need --

14 MR. JAMES: I understand.

15 MS. DANIELS: Thank you all so much.
16 Please make sure that you submit your written testimony
17 or any other documents so we can include those in the 18 record. Thank you all so much.

19 (There was a brief recess taken.)

20 MS. DANIELS: This is panel three.
21 Ms. Banks and Ms. Charlson. Are we ready to begin?

22 Ms. Banks, go ahead.

23 MS. BANKS: Good evening. I would like to 24 first take this opportunity to thank you for coming to 25 speak today. My name is Daneen Banks and I'm the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 deputy administrator for the Prince George's County
3 Board of Elections.

4 I was asked to cover topics including
5 advances Prince George's County has made in election
6 administration; plans that Prince George's County has 7 for changes in the near future; and what the county has 8 done to improve access for the language minority
9 communities.

10 Currently, Prince George's County has 11 565,000 registered voters which is approximately 12 87 percent of the voting age population in the county.
13 We have moved from five early voting centers in 2012 to 14 8 early voting centers beginning this June and we have 15 also increased to 2,074 precincts for the 2014
16 elections.

17 Given the economic constraints experienced
18 by the county and state, the board was faced with 19 challenges in determining how to efficiency use its 20 resources. As a result, we have been resourceful when 21 it comes to looking for polling places. We look for 22 places that are county owned facilities when practical.

23 As a result of redistricting, the board had 24 a challenge of securing almost 50 new polling places.
25 Using the current technology that we have with our

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 voting equipment, the board was able to cut costs by 3 combining smaller precincts into one polling place.
4 Instead of using 274 separate polling places, we were 5 able to combine some of the smaller precincts and 6 reduce the number of polling places to 243. And by 7 doing that, we eliminated the need for paying certain 8 rental costs for additional polling places. We also 9 eliminated the need for hiring additional election day
10 poll workers to operate those sites. Many of the 11 policies and procedures implemented for election
12 administration in Maryland or the same state-wide. We 13 are using the same equipment state-wide and 14 Ms. Charlson will be able to provide more information
15 on the type of equipment we use and where we're going.

16 Our election judges are required to attend
17 training prior to each election and we decided in 18 Prince George's County to try to make it a little more 19 convenient for our judges. What we did was we offered 20 online registration for the trainings so that they 21 could schedule their own training at their convenience.

22 In the past, prior to this year, we would 23 schedule the judges and end up having to reschedule the 24 judges because of scheduling conflicts. So this is 25 working out well. That's one of the things

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 technologically that we've done to try to make it a
3 little easier for our judges.

4 The board maintains connections with voters
5 as well using social media. We have a Facebook
6 editorial account on our Facebook and Twitter accounts.
7 We update them regularly. We're planning to use these 8 accounts during early voting and on election day to 9 disseminate information. We also want the voters to be 10 able to communicate with us and they will be able to do
11 so using those sites. We will have someone manning
12 those sites on election day and during the entire early 13 voting period all day.

14 Line management is a huge focus for the 15 Prince George's Board of Elections. We expect that 16 adding an additional three early voting centers this 17 time around we'll reduce some of the wait times that we 18 experienced during the 2012 cycle.

19 We also are training our judges to be able 20 to handle the lines, to walk the lines and actually ask 21 questions and take care of needs while the voters are 22 standing there instead of them waiting until they get 23 to the registration desk and find out something is 24 totally wrong.

25 Our outreach plan has been impacted due to

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 physical constraints. We know that we're moving to a
3 June primary and this is the first time that we are 4 going to be having June primary.

5 However, we are notifying everyone of the 6 dates. We're including our community groups. We're 7 including churches. We're sending out flyers to be 8 disseminated through the schools, college,
9 universities. In addition to our sample ballots that 10 will be mailed out, we will also use our office of 11 community relations to disseminate that information.
12 So I guess I'll stop at that point.

13 MS. DANIELS: Ms. Charlson?

14 MS. CHARLSON: Thank you very much. My 15 name is Nikki Charlson. I'm the deputy administer for 16 the State Board of Elections and I would like to thank 17 you for inviting me here today for having this 18 opportunity to speak.

19 In Maryland, I'm proud to say that we have 20 a strong history of election reform and initiatives
21 here and I'd like to share some of them with you. Some 22 of them are really obvious to the voters and to all of 23 you and then some them are initiatives on the back end
24 that make our lives a little easier which means we can 25 focus on resources and energy in other places.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 We've had early voting since 2012. So we
3 are a new state to early voting and have already seen
4 its popularity grow. 2010 started with about 5 12 percent of voters going into early voting and we 6 expect it to be about 19 percent for the primary 7 election. While it doesn't seem like a huge job, when 8 you looked at the county levels, we have counties at 9 nine percent of voters. But then we have another
10 county where it's almost 30 percent. So there's huge 11 variations among the counties for turnout. It
12 obviously reduces lines on election day and it reduces 13 the stress of election day for the poll workers and the 14 system and what we're finding is that most of our early 15 voters are actually election day voters who are moving 16 to voting earlier.

17 We do have a few counties where we're 18 seeing reduction in absentee voting. Those voters are 19 transitioned to early voting. So we're starting to see 20 some trends and will be able to get more after probably 21 this election. This will be our third cycle with it.

22 One of the election administration
23 improvements that we've been using for the last couple
24 of election years is our call center to help answer
25 calls to our office, Daneen's office and for other

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 local boards of elections. And what that -- the call
3 center handles basic questions of am I registered to 4 vote, when do I vote, the basic institute services that 5 we have a hard time answering in our office. The call 6 center in 2012 generally handled 97,000 calls. Those 7 are calls that we wouldn't have the ability to answer.
8 So that's a great tool for us.

9 In 2012 which rolled out online voter
10 registration and expanded online voter services, hugely
11 popular in 2012, over 180,000 Marylanders used online
12 registration to register, update registration
13 information.

14 We also participated in a multistate
15 program. The electronic registration information
16 center which allows us to share databases in other
17 states to try to improve the accuracy of our voter
18 lists. And then in 2013 the governor's office had a 19 bill that expanded some more -- expanded early voting,
20 the number of days, hours and locations as Daneen
21 talked about. It allows any voter to use the online
22 system to request a ballot, to receive their ballot
23 electronically. And so those changes will be in place
24 for this election cycle.

25 In 2016, we have some big changes coming.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 We're implementing a new voting system. We're moving
3 away from our touch screen system to our paper based 4 voting system and that will be a huge undertaking for 5 us at this table as well as all of the voters. It will 6 start with selecting a system, then do training of all
7 of us and then ultimately educating the voters on how 8 to vote on the new system.

9 Also in 2016 we'll be releasing new 10 registration during early voting. We're going to be 11 busy in the next couple of years. So this means that 12 individuals who aren't registered to vote or need to 13 make a change can do that on election day and vote a 14 regular ballot instead of being a provisional vote.

15 Daneen talked about wait times and we are 16 equally investing time and resources in that -- the 17 first step was to amend our regulations so that we had 18 some flexibility in allocating equipment. Our 19 regulations were pretty rigid before. It was just a 20 flat one, the equipment. One unit for so many voters
21 and after the University of Baltimore said, as you 22 heard from John Willis earlier, we took their 23 suggestions and made our regulations a little more 24 fluid so we have more flexibility. We can look at 25 historical turnout. We can look at how long is the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 ballot which I'm not sure if he spoke about that. But
3 the length of ballot is really key.

4 And also looking at ways of notifying
5 voters of how long the wait times are. Montgomery
6 County posts on the website the wait time for this 7 voting center is 20 minutes. So how can we start
8 putting that information out there so people can 9 decide, yes, I can commit to that or I'll try another
10 day.

11 I think one of the interesting things from 12 the University of Baltimore study was the impact that 13 voters' preparedness had on wait times and that the 14 more prepared the voter is the quicker they vote. It 15 makes sense. So that's our job is to make sure and 16 Daneen's -- all of our jobs is to make sure that voters
17 come prepared so that they can help us move them
18 through the process more quickly. Thank you.

19 MS. DANIELS: Thank you very much. I just 20 want to start -- certainly an issue that was talked 21 about earlier with the earlier panel was the move from 22 touch screens to paper ballots.

23 Can you explain why the state decided to 24 move from touch screens to paper ballots? Pallets.

25 MS. CHARLSON: Sure. The law has been in

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 effect since 2007. The General Assembly passed a law
3 that changed -- well, it didn't change. It actually 4 defined a kind of a new system that we need to have.

5 So there was a movement against touch
6 screens and to move to paper based voter verifiable
7 system. Our current system can't be adapted for that 8 and the legislature passed the bill saying that it was 9 a paper based voter verified system with some kind of 10 unit for voters with disabilities. And it wasn't 11 funded for many years and funding started this year or 12 last year for some planning -- last year for some plan
13 and more money this year to do more planning and then 14 move forward with a request for proposals.

15 MS. DANIELS: What were the problems with 16 the touch screen?

17 MS. CHARLSON: So there's a movement out
18 there with people who don't like the electronic voting.
19 There is no way that I can see how my vote was and we 20 obviously do extensive testing on the equipment.

21 The local Board of Elections right now is 22 in the process of voting the ballots on each unit and 23 testing. They have a script, how many -- we're going 24 vote this many and these are the results and we're 25 going to do it and then compare the results. So it's a

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 different process with the touch screen to validate the 3 security but we've been doing that since we had it.

4 MS. DANIELS: Did you find any security
5 issues with the touch screen machine?

6 MS. CHARLSON: Initially when we -- about 7 2001 when we signed the contract there was a report of 8 some vulnerabilities of the system that were quickly
9 fixed and all of the security procedures that were 10 identified for us to implement were implemented
11 immediately and continued to do so.

12 MR. HENDERSON: I just want to ask you a 13 question of you or Ms. Banks.

14 In terms of your social media and your 15 communication with your voters, what has been your 16 experience in relation to racial moving in terms of -- 17 have you done any analysis of that, of how many folks
18 that have access to that technology and how many people
19 have responded to you?

20 MS. BANKS: We have not done an analysis of 21 that yet. This is new for us and we wanted to go this 22 route because young people that have a phone, that's 23 what they do. So we're trying to capture as many 24 people and we can to provide information. But we will 25 take a look at our followers and see if we can figure

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 that out.

3 MS. DANIELS: Back to the machines.

4 Earlier we were with persons who represented groups
5 with the Maryland Disability Law Center and other -- 6 what is the other group? I'm sorry. National 7 Federation of the Blind. They said they had issues
8 with moving from touch screen to paper ballot in that 9 the ballot for persons with disabilities would be 10 different from ballots -- than the other ballots. The 11 Board of Elections evaluated or assessed --

12 MS. CHARLSON: The 2007 legislation defines 13 how the voting system, the new voting system has to 14 address voters with disabilities and there's a 15 requirement in that law that says -- I'm not going to 16 get verbatim, but says that the ballots casts on the 17 accessible ballot marking device cannot be segregated
18 from other ballots and we didn't know exactly what that 19 meant. So we asked the Attorney General's Office for 20 an opinion and they've issued one to us talking about 21 that -- it sort -- it was a two-part question, the 22 ballot should look the same, be tallied the same. But 23 you could also implement a system in a way that 24 everybody is offered the opportunity to vote a paper
25 ballot or vote on the ballot marking device and so that

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 my ballot could be different than your ballot. But as 3 long as that is equally implemented, that that would be 4 a sufficient way to implement a system.

5 So, at this point, we're just waiting to 6 see what the marketplace submits and then decide do we 7 have that issue and, if we do, how do we implement it
8 in such a way that we comply with the requirements of 9 the law.

10 MR. YEARY: Can you provide a copy of the 11 AG's opinion?

12 MS. CHARLSON: Sure.

13 MR. YEARY: I want to go back to the social 14 media question, if I might. So Facebook and Twitter,
15 if you want them to follow you, they have to know you
16 exist in the social media world.

17 So how do you communicate to folks you're 18 trying to get to follow you that, one, you exist and,
19 two, they need to follow you and for what reason?
20 That's still kind of interesting to me in terms of how 21 you begin to expand your social media.

22 MS. BANKS: Well, the Prince George's
23 County has a social media account as well as the State.
24 We drum up for those accounts. In addition, we friend
25 our friends who friend promoting everyone, please,

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 friend this account. And the more people that we can 3 get to friend us, the more other people will see and 4 hopefully do the same. We have it on our website. We 5 put it on the bottom of many of our letters, on our 6 flyers, follow us, trying to promote that. And we have 7 received, in boxes and things of that nature, on 8 election day in the past from individuals who may have 9 said, oh, there's a line here or someone is standing 10 too close to -- an election year standing too close to 11 the polling place. We've gotten those kinds of items
12 from just friends of the board of elections Facebook
13 account.

14 MR. YEARY: How many followers do you have 15 right now?

16 MS. BANKS: I think we have about 2 or 300.

17 MR. YEARY: Out of 560,000?

18 MS. BANKS: Right. Right now, yes. But,
19 again, this is a new process for us.

20 MS. CHARLSON: Yeah, I think that we are 21 equally novice at the State Board of Elections about 22 this. Many -- I think it's safe to say that every 23 local board of elections in the state and certainly 24 staffs, we don't have communications people. We don't 25 have a staff person to do this.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 So it becomes another thing that somebody
3 has to do and we're -- we've been -- we had some 4 presentations last year on social media and how we do
5 it and we're all learning and the numbers don't look
6 good when you compare, but we're coming along slowly.

7 MR. YEARY: And one quick question. On the 8 smaller precincts that were consolidated, what was the 9 associated impact? Do we know the SES, racial 10 composition, length of time? Is this the first 11 election since the consolidation?

12 MS. BANKS: We had a couple consolidated in 13 the past, but this is the first time that we've had 30.

14 MR. YEARY: Is there a plan to monitor what 15 the impact is in terms of wait time, participation?

16 Do you know what the transportation
17 impact -- what are some of the factors that you're 18 going to be monitoring to reinforce the decision to 19 consolidate?

20 MS. DANIELS: If I could add to that, and 21 to educate the persons that their polling places have 22 been closed and moved.

23 MS. BANKS: Well, we -- during the 24 redistricting process, we've already notified everyone
25 of their polling place. So they have received their

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 voter notification card back in January for us stating
3 where they're scheduled to vote.

4 Some -- to answer your question, the 5 various polling places could have had maybe 200, 300
6 voters. These combinations of co-polling places, it's 7 not going to rise to the level of one of our larger 8 polling places. We may have taken one area that had 9 250 voters and then another area had 400 voters and 10 combined those together as one polling place.

11 So it's not going to generate the same type
12 of line that even a polling place with 1,500 to 2,000
13 people would generate. So I think we've accounted for 14 it in -- with our election judges and our poll workers
15 that are going to be in that precinct also with the 16 number of voting units because it is mandated by law
17 how many voting units we have to service a certain 18 number of individuals in a polling place.

19 MR. YEARY: How many voters total were 20 impacted by the consolidation of those 30 precincts?

21 MS. BANKS: Probably about 6 or 7,000, off
22 the top of my head.

23 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I have a couple of 24 questions. I'd like to give you an opportunity to talk 25 about the Asian minority language voters that you had

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 mentioned. Those are two of my questions for the 3 county and then I'd love to know about the board's
4 outreach as well.

5 On an earlier panel, we heard about the 6 absenteeism ballot rejections. I'd just to hear some 7 of the reasons why absentee ballots have been rejected
8 and how that could be addressed and then -- with 9 regards to the last panel and to talk generally about 10 voter education.

11 I'd like to hear your thoughts about some 12 of the suggestions there and, generally, from an 13 election administration civics type of cross education
14 aspect what the county or the State does to educate 15 voters both about election administration process, the 16 "how to vote" as well as the issues, if any -- any 17 issues related to education is done.

18 MS. BANKS: Okay. I'll start with the 19 minority language. Prince George's County, since 2002,
20 have been printing all of our literature, ballots,
21 specimen ballots in both English and Spanish. We've 22 done that again since 2002 because of our growing
23 Spanish population, Hispanic population. We -- again, 24 that's everything that we have.

25 MS. DANIELS: It's not a section 203 code,

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 is it?

3 MS. BANKS: No, this is not. We chose to 4 do it on our own. We also participate in a number of 5 outreach activities at various civic associations,
6 community associations. We provide voting units for 7 the children to vote on and schools and that is a part 8 of our public outreach, to let them get familiar with 9 how to use the touch screens. We do that for a number 10 of elementary and high schools. We also do it for 11 colleges and universities in the area. We use our 12 office of community relations to promote voter 13 registration and to inform everyone of all of our 14 deadlines and the new election date.

15 Going to your question in reference to 16 absentee ejection, if I'm remembering correctly, you 17 wanted to know specifically about the overseas and 18 military voters?

19 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: Well, are there any 20 more reasons why absentee ballots are generally
21 rejected?

22 MS. BANKS: In Prince George's County, the 23 reasons could be failure to sign the oath, the voter is 24 not -- mainly failure to sign the oath, I think.

25 MS. CHARLSON: I think the most common

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 reason for absentee ballots to be rejected is because 3 they were mailed late or received late. Maryland has 4 a -- it's a two-part deadline. It's a postmarked
5 deadline and a receipt deadline. So absentee ballots
6 have to be postmarked on or before election day and 7 received by 10:00 a.m. on the second Friday. So the 8 most common rejection reason is late.

9 Daneen mentioned the voter's failure to 10 sign and that used to be a higher rejection rate and 11 this is a good example of how just something really 12 simple in an election administration has a pretty 13 significant impact.

14 We just decided one year, well, let's put a 15 big X at the signature line of the absentee ballot
16 oath. So it's printed on the back of the envelope. We 17 just put a big bolded X and the number of ballots that 18 got rejected for missing a signature went way down. So
19 we kept it there and it didn't cost us anything. It 20 was just looking at the numbers and what can we do to 21 get people to sign where they're supposed to and we 22 tried an X and it worked.

23 So late -- the rejection reasons for 24 overseas ballots do differ slightly. Generally, it's 25 late as well, but they have some other nuances that

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 cause a slightly different pattern of their rejections.
3 So we're working on the late, but sometime it adds a
4 little piece of the puzzle that we can't really 5 control.

6 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I must say that the 7 [inaudible] 2012 and the extension of the early voting
8 and all of that, I go on social media to get my 9 information about that. So I find that would be very 10 effective.

11 MS. KEENAN: I just want to jump in. I
12 missed it when I should have jumped in. But I want to 13 know -- you talked about that you had a number of 14 efforts that made voters more successful in voting more 15 rapidly and that's what moved the line. That's one of 16 the key factors is moving the line and being prepared.
17 But you didn't get a chance to talk about what factor 18 or what you've seen in your experience that makes those 19 voters more prepared so that they can respond more
20 rapidly when they have to do their -- and I want to add 21 a part two to that. It seems to me that moving from 22 the touch screen to a physical ballot is going to 23 compound that process.

24 So I just want to get a sense of what you
25 think will be successful and what things might be done

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 to deal with that because it seems to me we're moving
3 backwards in technology, not forward.

4 MS. CHARLSON: So in answer to the first
5 question, of the questions in University of Baltimore's
6 voter survey was were you -- did you prepare before you
7 came to vote? Did you take the simple ballot that the 8 local board of elections mailed to you? Did you look 9 at it? Did you fill it out? That's what we do at 10 home. We sit down and we fill out our sample ballot 11 and we take it with us to the polls. I'm trying to 12 teach a civics lesson to my daughter. But I live in 13 Anne Arundel County. You had something like 20 ballot
14 questions. I couldn't remember them all, how I wanted
15 to vote and I'm an elections person.

16 So I think what is really interesting about 17 the University of Baltimore's voter survey is they 18 found -- it was something like a prepared -- an 19 unprepared voter took at least 30 seconds longer to 20 vote than a prepared voter. That really quickly adds
21 up if you have too many unprepared voters versus a 22 precinct that has a lot of prepared voters.

23 I recall voting in Severna Park and there
24 was a woman who was at the touch screen for at least 15
25 minutes working through the ballot. And that was one

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 touch screen that was, in essence, out of operation for 3 that 15 minutes when you might have been able to get 4 three people on.

5 So I think, really, the sample ballot and 6 filling out at home and bringing it in with you,
7 that's -- it's acceptable. We encourage people to do
8 that and also, to the extent that your schedule
9 allows -- and I get that absolutely this is an option
10 for some people and not for others -- but coming in off
11 peak times. You can come in at 10:30, 11:00 in the 12 morning and you probably won't have to wait in line.
13 But I realize that I couldn't do that. Lots of people 14 can't do that, but those that can, please do that. But 15 really being educated and using your sample ballot as a 16 resource especially on the ballot questions.

17 Your second question about the transition
18 back to paper. Certainly while at the State level and 19 at the local board of election level, we will have some 20 money to do voter outreach. We have a model. We've 21 implemented a new voting system in 2002 through '06.
22 We did early voting in 2010. We have a model for how 23 to educate voters and while we hope that we can touch
24 everybody, we know that we're going to miss large 25 sections of the population. It's just inevitable.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 So that's going to be a struggle for us.
3 It's a new system. We already have some wait lines.
4 We're implementing in the presidential election which 5 is when, of course, we have the longest wait lines and 6 we're going to need some help. We're hoping that the 7 University of Baltimore and their research team will 8 help us on how we can manage wait times.

9 It's an entirely different flow in the 10 polling place than we have now. We know where our 11 bottlenecks are and we can figure out how to solve 12 them. This is a new system. So we're going to have to 13 spend time laying out all the polling places and what 14 makes sense for one in management and we're dealing 15 with some old polling places that aren't designed to 16 have even a small precinct of 300 or 400 people come
17 through. It's -- a cafeteria in a small school doesn't 18 provide you with a great way to manage lines.

19 So some of it is constrained by our 20 facilities. We have a lot more flexibility in early 21 voting because they're bigger facilities. So it's top
22 on our list. I don't have the answer to that but we're 23 going to work through that.

24 MR. HENDERSON: Let me just follow up with 25 a question that was raised in the last panel.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 What role can and do you play as in
3 relations to getting ex-offenders back on the roll?

4 MS. CHARLSON: So I guess I'm going to let 5 Daneen talk -- the first thing I'd like to clarify is 6 that the requirement of the courts provide the data
7 about individuals who have been convicted of a felony.
8 That is a statutory requirement in the election article
9 and it requires the courts to give the data to us and 10 we are required to give it to the local election
11 officials and that process has been in place for a long 12 time and it's electronic now. So we get an electronic 13 file, we load it into the state-wide voter restriction
14 list for the local election officials to process. So 15 it is a statutory process.

16 MR. YEARY: How does it work in terms of 17 effectiveness.

18 MS. CHARLSON: So we get files regularly
19 that we -- it's not a perfect file because it includes 20 misdemeanors. So we have to go through that. Just 21 send us what we really need and then we vote it and 22 then the locals process it within a few days and then 23 I'll let Daneen talk about that processing at the local 24 level.

25 MS. BANKS: So as it's processed on the

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 local level, it will show up in our system possible
3 conviction and what we, in turn, will do is research it
4 along with the State board will contact them, ask them
5 look on their list and we'll research it to make sure
6 that we actually see what it was that was there.

7 We send a letter to the individuals saying
8 that you appeared on this list, please let us know
9 what's going on. If you've completed your sentence, 10 you're eligible to vote, but we just need to hear from 11 you.

12 MS. DANIELS: Is the list only persons who 13 have been convicted of felony or persons released or -- 14 what is the list -- on the list?

15 MS. BANKS: The list is what the State
16 loads which are the convictions.

17 MS. DANIELS: All the convictions?

18 MS. CHARLSON: Convictions from the last 19 month. We get them regularly. So there's an immediate 20 window of time when the conviction is entered until we 21 get it.

22 MS. BANKS: Right. And so we generate this 23 process, send a letter out to the individual. Many 24 times they'll call, they'll write us and say, hey, no, 25 you're wrong, you know, I've completed my sentence and

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 we've complete the process. There's no issue. They'll 3 be registered to vote. They'll get their notification
4 card in the mail.

5 MR. YEARY: I'm confused. So when you get 6 the information from the court, is that after the 7 conviction is entered or after the conviction has been 8 satisfied?

9 MS. CHARLSON: After the conviction has 10 been entered.

11 MR. YEARY: So if I'm getting new data, I'm 12 trying to understand how someone that has a felony 13 conviction, to notify them now at the beginning of 14 their process that they're on a list.

15 MS. CHARLSON: All right. So this is the 16 process to make sure that somebody who is not eligible
17 is not on the list. This is the front end. This isn't 18 at the back end when the person has finished serving
19 his or her sentence, parole or probation getting them
20 re-registered. This is the process to determine 21 whether the person is eligible to stay on the list now.

22 MR. YEARY: And to make sure that if 23 they're not, that they know they're not so that they 24 don't attempt to vote while they are ineligible?

25 MS. CHARLSON: Correct.

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MS. DANIELS: How do you purge someone from 3 the list.

4 MS. CHARLSON: We put them in a canceled
5 status.

6 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: There is no process
7 to notify them when they're again eligible to vote
8 because the courts don't notify you affirmatively that 9 this person who previously was ineligible has completed
10 their sentence?

11 MS. CHARLSON: That's correct.

12 MS. KEENAN: So what do they have to do?

13 MS. CHARLSON: They could just re-register?

14 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I do have a followup
15 question. If you called someone and they say there's a 16 mistake, that I've completed my sentence, do you
17 require any documentation to show that they have 18 completed their sentence is it just or a verbal...

19 MS. BANKS: They sign the document saying 20 that they have completed it. Oftentimes they will send 21 stuff just because --

22 MS. DANIELS: The mere attestation.

23 MR. HENDERSON: So is that a resource issue
24 in terms of you're not following up to let those folks
25 know when they are eligible to register to vote?

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 MS. BANKS: Well, we, I don't think, would
3 have that access.

4 MS. CHARLSON: We don't know. We know what 5 the initial -- we know what the initial sentence is.
6 We don't know if it's been shortened. We don't know if 7 it's been lengthened. We only know what it was when it
8 was originally entered.

9 MR. HENDERSON: Where is that all of that 10 information kept, in one place or this everywhere?

11 MS. CHARLSON: It would be judiciary,
12 parole and probation, perhaps.

13 MR. YEARY: One of the other panels talked
14 about how you develop an informed civic mind. You
15 mentioned your daughter, electorate, and the question
16 that was raised on the panel just before you about 17 engaging particularly high school students whose 18 schools might be used as a precinct in some sort of 19 service learning capacity around the electoral process
20 and what's involved.

21 Has there been any thought given to any 22 kind of service learning opportunities when it comes to 23 staffing polling places by some students?

24 MS. BANKS: In Prince George's County we 25 have students who served as elections judges. They

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 come in, they go through the training and they
3 participate on election day.

4 MS. CHARLSON: And I think Montgomery
5 County has a good program too. At the State level, we 6 have in the past worked with the national 7 parent-student mock election program where it's a high
8 school based program, typically, where they have 9 debates and it's integrated into their civic government 10 class and they vote and then there's usually an 11 election night celebration. It's not Tuesday election
12 day, it's a little bit before and they pick the winner
13 and they do it nationally. So it's a neat program. It 14 only goes under residential. It's only active in 15 presidential elections.

16 MR. YEARY: My final question is, if you
17 can answer it -- because I want to go back to the point 18 that was raised. It seems like we're doing the 19 regression thing.

20 With the efforts that must be made to go
21 back to a somewhat antiquated voting system, what 22 impact would you experience if there were focused 23 efforts to try to undo this regression from electronic 24 balloting back to paper?

25 MS. CHARLSON: It would require a

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 legislative change.

3 MR. YEARY: I'm clear on that. But if the 4 legislative change were to come, how difficult would it
5 be to kind of stay on track of what we got prior to the 6 2016 ramp-up?

7 MS. CHARLSON: 2016 -- well, we would be
8 well on our way for 2016. We're -- our schedule has us
9 issuing it at the end of 2014 to start receiving 10 equipment in 2015, first or second quarter. So any 11 legislative changes in '15 would -- we'd already have a 12 contract in place.

13 MS. DANIELS: What is the plan for the 14 touch screen machines once the new machines come in,
15 just sell them other jurisdictions?

16 MS. CHARLSON: We're sort of looking at -- 17 there's not really a market for used touch screens.

18 MS. DANIELS: Let me ask you one more
19 question. You mentioned that Maryland has had early 20 voting since 2010 and that you've had -- you've seen
21 increases and you also said that people essentially
22 moved from election day voting to early voting.

23 Has it been a real increase in voter
24 participation with early voting or are we just shifting 25 people from one way of voting to several days of

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 noting? Are we shifting the same people?

3 MS. CHARLSON: It's the latter. We did
4 some analysis before 2010 to figure out what should be
5 our projected turnout and everything we read was it
6 doesn't impact voter turnout at all, it just shifts
7 people from one way to another.

8 MS. DANIELS: Do you think that same day
9 registration will increase?

10 MS. CHARLSON: In other states, that says
11 an increase in voter registration. Ours will only be 12 in 2016 during early voting. So it's only during that 13 window can you register to vote and vote on the same
14 day. To make it be same day registration on election
15 day requires a constitutional amendment.

16 MR. YEARY: Is that for the primary and the 17 general election in 2016? That would be the case?

18 MS. CHARLSON: Yes, yes.

19 MR. HENDERSON: Let me ask one other 20 question. What are you doing to educate those 21 individuals who will be eligible to vote who are not of 22 the proper age at this point to be able to vote?

23 Are you doing any outreach to that group?

24 MS. BANKS: In Prince George's County we 25 have a relationship with the school systems. We send

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 out information to guidance counselors. We, again,
3 host a lot of those school elections and provide them
4 with information while our staff is on-site assisting
5 with those elections. That's the extent of what we do
6 as far as any public school or even private school
7 systems in Prince George's County.

8 MR. HENDERSON: How does that work? If 9 they're -- after the age of, I believe, 18 by the 10 general election, they can vote in the primary? Is 11 that --

12 MS. BANKS: Yes. They can register at age
13 17. So we can hit some juniors and seniors, pretty
14 much.

15 MR. YEARY: Any thoughts about trying to 16 connect that to the requirement to register for the 17 selective service?

18 MS. BANKS: Not on our level. I guess
19 that's something that we can look at.

20 MS. DANIELS: Any other questions?

21 (No response.)

22 Thank you all so much. There are no other 23 questions from the panel. Thank you. We do not have 24 persons who signed up for public testimony. Therefore,
25 that concludes our commission questioning. Do any

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 commissioners have any closing statements?

3 MS. KEENAN: I want to say each one of 4 these is different. We did the one in New York and it
5 had a different focus. I just want to say a couple of 6 things about today. One, I want to do a thank you. I
7 saw so many members of the NAACP leadership here today
8 and I want to commend them for the work that they do
9 year-round, regardless of the election or regardless
10 whether there is an election, to make sure that people
11 know that voting matters.

12 And today I want to just focus on this 13 notion of felon re-enfranchisement. If we are going to 14 allow them to become active members of society, then 15 essentially what we're saying is you can never pay your 16 debt to society and if you can never pay your debts to 17 society, then you can never be a part of how it will go
18 forward and, essentially, you know, you dame (phonetic)
19 them to a world where they can't participate. And so 20 that keeps the cycle of them returning to a world where 21 criminalization is the world that they live in.

22 So I think it's very important that we're 23 thoughtful about this and I haven't heard anybody say 24 anything here today about why it's a problem to 25 re-enfranchise people. In other words, there's no

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 reason why can't do it and then what that makes you
3 wonder is why we don't want to do it.

4 And then, finally, I would note that a
5 recurring theme through all of the testimony today was 6 this notion of voter education and how having better
7 prepared voters means that they are able to execute 8 their service to the democracy in a way that is 9 befitting of the importance of the vote itself.

10 So I'm very pleased to have had that 11 opportunity to hear that from various segments of the 12 community and I look forward to reading the University
13 of Baltimore study because a lot of the patterns that 14 it raises are reoccurring themes. And it's not just a 15 question of the problems that we saw, you know, that 16 are legislated and helped through section 5, but there
17 are other problems that serve as barriers to the right
18 to vote and I think it's very important that we treat
19 voting more importantly. Voting has to have the 20 constituency of someone voicing that this is important 21 and that we have advocates who do this. I just want to 22 add that the commentary as a guest commissioner.

23 MR. HENDERSON: And I would just like to 24 add onto that. I want to, first of all, thank the 25 panel for their great presentations and taking time out

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 of their busy schedule to speak on this.

3 It's a very important issue to me because I
4 feel that if we're going to continue as a
5 representative form of government and in order for our 6 voices and our values to be represented, we must vote
7 and vote people in who represent our values so that our 8 voices can be heard. So I think that's very important 9 that we look how we can get more folks engaged in the 10 voting process. I just want to say thank you to the 11 panels that were here today.

12 MR. YEARY: To our transcriber, thank you
13 for hanging in there. You get to stay from beginning 14 to end, so you get the star. To those who have hung in 15 there, we appreciate the audience.

16 My feeling in my gut right now is it feels 17 like we keep playing Whac-A-Mole with the franchise.
18 We find something that should enhance participation and 19 before we get a chance to see the results, some 20 interest causes us to regress back.

21 So we have created this almost intentional
22 structure of confusion amongst folks who really want to 23 exercise their right to vote, but every time there's an 24 election, whether it's local, state or federal, there's 25 some new rule, some new process, some new step that

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 requires that we all stay engaged in an ongoing process
3 of voter education. This is not a one time do it and 4 go away because, as we just heard from our state
5 elections officials, their job is real-time and it
6 feels like it's real frustrating.

7 So we're going to have to figure out what's 8 the legislative plan to make it clear, particularly in 9 Annapolis, that we need some sensibility in the process
10 to protect the franchise whether it is the enhancement
11 around early voting so that we can get more folks
12 participating. The sign up and vote on the day of, how 13 do we get that advanced. How do we get folks to really 14 appreciate it, I think for some folks, particularly in 15 poorer communities and communities of color.

16 I'm frustrated and I don't have that 17 particular barrier, right? I get the information, I 18 ask the church to have folks come through and want to 19 talk to my congregation when it's time. So I know when 20 the primary is, I know when early voting is. I don't 21 have that as an issue. But for folks who are 22 disconnected from the church and the electoral process, 23 we have created a stratified electoral system that to 24 be remedied and I think we've got to put commonsense
25 back in the process at some level. So to all of you

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 that can help, rally for commonsense, sign up, then
3 stay engaged and we're ready to do our part. Thank you
4 for your time and your participation.

5 MS. JOHNSON-BLANCO: I also would like to 6 thank the University of Baltimore for hosting and, as 7 Eileen mentioned, this was either our 20th or 21st
8 hearing depending on when Virginia got started today.
9 But each hearing brings a particular emphasis and focus
10 regarding voting rights and election administration.
11 Commissioner Keenan already expressed, you know, what 12 the focus here today. But I just wanted to let you 13 know that this testimony that we received today is 14 going to be very valuable in filling out our reports as 15 we look nationally at voting discrimination and 16 election administration and I particularly appreciate
17 the election officials coming out and testifying 18 because it's also important to know about how your 19 world works, what the impact is and also it helps us to 20 fill out the picture about best practices and 21 recommendations that we can make because we're not just 22 looking to identify problems, but we want to also make 23 recommendations about how election administration could 24 be improved and also looking at the impact of some of 25 our laws and it was highlighted here today,

PROCEEDINGS

1
2 particularly the felony disenfranchisement laws and,
3 more importantly, I think the need to properly
4 education our electorates so they can really engage 5 fully in our democracy.

6 MS. DANIELS: Thank you so much. To my 7 fellow commissioners and all of you, hopefully we can
8 take this wealth of information that you heard today
9 and use it because we know knowledge is power and we 10 can take this information to empower our communities
11 and our organizations and even our elected officials.
12 Thank you so much for attending today and, hopefully,
13 you have learned a lot and will take all of this 14 information into your community. Thank you.

15 (Hearing concluded at 7:15 p.m.)
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

1 State of Maryland

2 County of Baltimore, to wit:

3 I, R. DWAYNE HARRISON, a Notary Public of 4 the State of Maryland, Baltimore County, do hereby 5 certify that the within-named proceedings took place
6 before me at the time and place herein set out.

7 I further certify that the proceedings were 8 recorded stenographically by me and this transcript is 9 a true record of the proceedings.

10 I further certify that I am not of counsel
11 to any of the parties, nor an employee of counsel,
12 nor related to any of the parties, nor in any way
13 interested in the outcome of this action.

14 As witnessed my hand and notarial seal this 15 13th day of May, 2014.

16
17
18 19 20 _____
21 R. DWAYNE HARRISON

22 Notary Public

23
24 My commission expires:

25 September 15th, 2017

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2
3
4 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS
5 NEW ENGLAND HEARING

6
7 Monday, March 31, 2014
8 10:06 a.m.
9

10
11 COMMISSIONERS:

12 RAHSAAN HALL, Deputy Director, Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Economic Justice

13
14 BRENDA WRIGHT, Litigation Director, Demos

15 JOHN DUNNE, former Assistant U.S. Attorney General for Civil Rights

16 RACHAEL COBB, Associate Professor and Chair, Suffolk
University Government Department

17
18 DARNELL WILLIAMS, Executive Director, Urban League of Eastern MA Chairman

19
20
21 Held At: Suffolk University Law School
120 Tremont Street
22 Boston, Massachusetts

23
24 Reporter: James A. Scally, RMR, CRR

25 Job # 72547

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 A P P E A R A N C E S

3
4 LAWYERS' COMMITTEE FOR CIVIL RIGHTS UNDER LAW

5 1401 New York Avenue NW

6 Washington, District of Columbia 20005

7 By: Meredith Horton, Esq.

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23

24

25

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. HORTON: So we are going to get started.
3 Will folks be able to hear me if I just don't use a mike?

4 MR. HALL: Yes. Here.

5 MS. HORTON: Or we can do that. Thank you.
6 Okay. So welcome, everyone. Good morning.
7 Thank you for braving some kind of nasty weather to come
8 join us today.

9 So welcome to the New England regional 10 hearing of the National Commission on Voting Rights. I'm 11 Meredith Horton. I'm an attorney at the Lawyers' Committee
12 for Civil Rights Under Law in Washington, DC.

13 The Lawyers' Committee is a nonprofit,
14 nonpartisan civil rights organization founded 50 years ago
15 to engage the private bar in the fight for civil rights and 16 racial justice in the United States. So we continue our 17 work today in areas of fair housing, employment 18 discrimination, education, community development, and 19 voting rights, the reason that we're all here today.

20 Our partner in organizing today's event is 21 the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Economic 22 Justice, which serves the Greater Boston area. And so on 23 behalf of both lawyers' committees, we'd like to welcome
24 you and thank you for your support and participation today.

25 So today's hearing is the 11th in a series

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING
2 of nationwide fact-finding hearings convened by our 3 National Commission on Voting Rights. The commission, the 4 charge of the commission is to gather information about the 5 current landscape of voting rights and election
6 administration across the country. So today we'll focus on 7 five states, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire,
8 Vermont, and Maine.

9 As many of you know, last summer the Supreme 10 Court -- US Supreme Court effectively gutted a key
11 protection of the Voting Rights Act, one that protected
12 voters from the effects of discriminatory changes in voting
13 practices. The court released states with some of the most 14 troubling histories of race discrimination in voting from a 15 critical responsibility to demonstrate up front that voting
16 changes, such as moving a polling place, would not 17 disadvantage minority voters. So in the Supreme Court's 18 view, this requirement was outdated and no longer related 19 to current needs. We believe they got this wrong. So one 20 of our main purposes through these national hearings is to 21 identify the needs for strong protections against 22 discrimination in voting by looking at the current records
23 in states across the country.

24 In addition, today we also want to hear from 25 you about election administration and election reform. So

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 across the country over the past few years, we've seen a 3 wave of restrictive voting laws, those making it harder for 4 many eligible voters to cast a ballot. Some of these have 5 taken the form of strict ID laws, proof of citizenship,
6 registration laws and others. Further, we continue to see
7 similar election administration challenges, cycle after 8 cycle, related to poll worker training, voter registration,
9 use of provisional ballots and the like.

10 So your input today on these issues in this
11 region is really critical for ongoing advocacy and reform
12 at the state, local, and national level. So the testimony 13 that we receive today, and after the hearing, the national 14 commission will use to prepare two reports, one on voting
15 discrimination and another on election administration. The 16 reports and records from the hearings will be available to 17 anyone seeking to reform or improve existing voting laws,
18 including policymakers, advocates, and the voting public.

19 So now I'd like to introduce you to our 20 commissioner panel for today's hearing. So presiding over 21 our event are four commissioners, each with a deep
22 commitment to protecting access to the ballot on equal 23 terms for all.

24 First I'll introduce John Dunne in the 25 center. Mr. Dunne is a former Assistant Attorney General

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 for Civil Rights in the US Department of Justice. Mr.
3 Dunne is also one of our national commissioners, so we're 4 particularly excited he could join us today for this 5 hearing.

6 And from right here in the New England
7 region, we have Rahsaan Hall, who's the deputy director of 8 the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and Economic 9 Justice. Rahsaan's work includes policy and legislative 10 advocacy, community outreach, and he maintains a litigation
11 caseload that includes voting rights work as well as police
12 misconduct and public accommodations. Rahsaan's voting
13 work has also involved coordination of the state-wide
14 Election Protection program as well.

15 We also have Brenda Wright. Brenda is the 16 vice president of legal strategies at Demos. Brenda has 17 led many progressive legal and policy initiatives on voting
18 rights, campaign finance reform, redistricting, election
19 administration, and other democracy and electoral reform
20 issues, and is a nationally known expert in these areas.

21 We also have Rachael Cobb. Rachael is an 22 associate professor and chair of the Suffolk University
23 Government Department. Her work as a political scientist
24 includes research that focuses on US elections, election
25 administration, electoral politics, civic engagement, and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 political participation.

3 And last on the panel we have Darnell
4 Williams, who's with the Urban League.

5 And Darnell, I apologize, I will let you
6 give a more extensive introduction as well.

7 So our commissioners, as I said, will 8 preside over today's event. They'll receive testimony from 9 our witnesses, which we'll have several panels, and we'll 10 ask follow-up questions as well to ensure that we create as 11 robust a record as possible about the state of voting in 12 the New England region today.

13 So before I turn it over to our 14 commissioners to introduce themselves, just a few
15 housekeeping items.

16 If you're here and you've been confirmed on 17 a panel, please check in at the sign-in table, if you 18 haven't already.

19 And for individuals who are here today who 20 would like to share their voting experiences but did not 21 sign up in advance and have not been placed on a panel, we 22 want to hear from you too. You can sign in at the 23 registration table and speak to one of our volunteers for 24 instructions. And a commissioner will call your name when 25 it's time for you to come up and testify.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So a few other items. Our hearing is being 3 transcribed. Our court reporter is on that side of the 4 room. So please speak clearly, especially your name.
5 We're also being videotaped. The video camera's at the 6 back of the room facing the commissioners and will remain
7 in that position for the duration of the hearing. I also 8 will be taking photos, so just putting you on the alert for 9 that as well.

10 So please make sure you've signed the two 11 media releases, one for Suffolk and one for the Lawyers'
12 Committee, which are out on the table, and see me if you
13 have any questions or concerns.

14 Also, please be mindful of the timekeepers
15 and their signs. Timekeepers will be here. We'd like to 16 really try to keep the program running on schedule, so we 17 appreciate that.

18 Another note is that later on we'll have a 19 Cantonese translator on site. So if you need those 20 services or know others who do, our translator will be here
21 at 1:30 and is certainly happy to help as she can.

22 As far as our schedule, we'll begin this 23 morning with two witness -- two witness panels and then the 24 session for open testimony. That will take us to 12:30.

25 So 12:30 we'll break for lunch. We'll break for one hour.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So we ask you to come back by 1:30 for part two of the 3 afternoon.

4 And if you're a tweeter, we have a hashtag
5 for our hearings. It's hashtag NCVR, for National 6 Commission on Voting Rights, and my organization is 7 @LawyersComm, with two M's. I don't know about Boston,
8 maybe Lawyerscom with one M?

9 MR. CROSBY: Yes, that's right.

10 MS. HORTON: Okay. So you can spell it or 11 misspell it and we'll get it right.

12 So, finally, before I stop talking, I just 13 wanted to do a round of thank you's. This event, as I'm 14 sure many of you in the room who plan events, it always 15 takes a lot of work that you don't see behind the scenes.

16 So I wanted to first thank Professor Cobb
17 and Suffolk University for being wonderful hosts and 18 supporters of this program. We really appreciate that.

19 I'd also like to thank Access Strategies. I
20 don't know if anyone from Access Strategies is in the room, 21 but Access Strategies provided generous funding directly to 22 the Lawyers' Committee in Boston for this event as well, so 23 we definitely appreciate that support.

24 I'd like to thank the numerous organizations
25 and individuals who work on voting issues and civic

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 engagement issues throughout this region, particularly in 3 Massachusetts, for all of your help organizing, planning,
4 promoting the event, coming up with just great ideas for 5 the concept of the event. It makes a huge difference. And 6 as well as our witnesses and our commissioners for your 7 time and support for this effort as well.

8 And, finally, I want to issue a very special 9 thank you to the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights and 10 Economic Justice here in Boston, in particular Rahsaan Hall
11 and Tyler Crosby, who -- you have to stand up.

12 As many of you know, Tyler has done a 13 wonderful and diligent job in helping put together this 14 event, recruiting organizations, just thinking through all 15 of the details, and his commitment to voting rights and 16 this community has definitely been evident to me and I'm 17 sure to you as well. So we've got a gem here in the Boston
18 area.

19 So thank you, everyone. I'm going to turn
20 it over to our commissioners to allow them to give brief
21 opening remarks, and then they will call up our first 22 panel.

23 MR. HALL: Okay. I guess I'll go first.

24 And thank you, Meredith, for the 25 introductory remarks, and thank you to all of our witnesses

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 who are here.

3 This is a very significant time here in the 4 Commonwealth, but also in the country for voting rights.
5 And I take very seriously the work that is before us and 6 the contribution that we have to make to the larger 7 narrative around voting rights, particularly in light of 8 the Shelby v. Holder decision. So I'm glad that folks are 9 here to testify and to make contributions to this effort to 10 building this record.

11 I know that oftentimes people kind of 12 overlook Massachusetts and New England when we think about 13 voting rights and voting rights issues because of the very 14 visible voting rights issues that happen in some places in 15 the South and even in the Midwest and in the West. But 16 there are significant concerns. But there's also an 17 opportunity to talk about the things that are being done
18 right, here in Massachusetts as well.

19 So we look forward to your commentary. I am
20 certainly appreciative of it, and I am honored and humbled
21 to be on the panel with such illustrious commissioners.

22 So I will now allow Brenda to make a few
23 opening remarks as well.

24 MS. WRIGHT: Okay. Thanks, Rahsaan. And
25 thanks to the organizers of this event, the Lawyers'

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in particular.

3 I also want to give a nice shout-out to 4 Suffolk University Law School, which is hosting us today.
5 I happen to know that the Suffolk Law School moot court
6 team was in New York last weekend at a major national 7 tournament, made it to the finals, and came in second out
8 of 24 --

9 MR. HALL: Great.

10 MS. WRIGHT: -- very impressive schools. So
11 congratulations to Suffolk Law School and to the students
12 involved, and thank you for hosting us here.

13 I'm very happy to be part of this panel this 14 morning. The work that I've done in voting rights goes
15 back more than 20 years now starting out in Washington, DC
16 at the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law there,
17 and continuing through my work today at Demos, which is a 18 national public policy organization that works to ensure 19 that every American has an equal say in our democracy and 20 an equal chance in our economy.

21 I moved here to the Boston area about 15
22 years ago. And as Rahsaan said, it's -- it's -- it's easy
23 to sometimes overlook the fact that voting rights problems
24 are not confined to any one part of this nation. There are 25 issues with access to the ballot and access to registration

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 throughout our country, and New England is no exception to 3 that.

4 When -- when I arrived here, I got involved
5 in the litigation and was part of the legal team that 6 challenged the redistricting of the Massachusetts
7 legislature after the 2000 Census, and many of you may 8 recall that that litigation not only resulted in a finding 9 that the districts were drawn in a way that violated the 10 Voting Rights Act and dug into the votes of communities of 11 color in the Boston area, but also resulted in an 12 obstruction of justice indictment for the Speaker of the 13 House himself here in Massachusetts.

14 So voting rights in Massachusetts and New 15 England is a very serious business. I'm very happy to say
16 that in the wake of that -- that experience, Massachusetts
17 really did step up to the table during the redistricting 18 process of 2010 and ran an open and accessible and 19 transparent process that resulted in redistricting plans
20 that were pretty much unanimously applauded as fair and 21 giving opportunity to communities of color and being fair
22 to everyone in the state. And I think that's something for 23 Massachusetts to be proud of.

24 I also know that we have a ways to go here
25 in this state and in other New England states in terms of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 access to registration and voting. We don't have here in 3 Massachusetts, for example, yet some of the procedures that 4 we take for granted in other states, such as early voting.
5 I'm hopeful that we are on the way to change that with 6 bills that are pending in the legislature.

7 But I just -- you know, I want to mention
8 that my organization is actually currently involved in two 9 voting rights-related lawsuits here in New England. One 10 involves the administration of the National Voter 11 Registration Act of 1993, looking at the way that law has 12 been implemented in public assistance agencies, and a 13 colleague of mine from Demos will be testifying in more
14 detail about that later today.

15 We're also involved in Rhode Island in a 16 lawsuit regarding the practice of prison-based 17 gerrymandering in the city of Cranston. The city of 18 Cranston has its entire -- the entire state-incarcerated
19 population of Rhode Island concentrated in just one ward of 20 the city council, and we have filed a lawsuit challenging 21 that under the one-person-one-vote protections of the 22 Fourteenth Amendment.

23 So this is just by way of saying there is a 24 lot of work to do on voting rights and access to voter
25 registration here in New England, and I think it's terrific

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 that we're holding this hearing today, and I'm very eager
3 to hear the testimony of the witnesses this morning.

4 MR. DUNNE: I'm John Dunne. I'm warning you
5 up front, I'm a New York lawyer, and I'm here in 6 preparation for the hearing which we will conduct in New 7 York City in about two weeks.

8 Everyone in the room knows, really, what the 9 problem is. So if I may be egocentric, I'd like to just 10 tell you about who I am.

11 I was appointed by the first President Bush
12 to be the Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights, 13 coming on the heels of eight years of a frigid attitude
14 toward enforcement of civil rights. It was a tremendous 15 challenge, and it was really, as I say to so many people,
16 it was a lawyer's dream to have that opportunity to serve
17 and be involved with real issues.

18 Once you've been stung with the civil rights
19 bug, you just never get over it. And while the wisdom of 20 the American electorate in 1992 told President Bush to go
21 home and take his pals with him, I found myself without a 22 job, and I thought I would return to New York state, where 23 previous to going to the Justice Department, I served for 24 24 years in the New York State Senate, where I was 25 privileged to serve as chairman of a number of committees,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 including crime and correction, the environment, judiciary
3 committee, and served in my final years as the deputy 4 majority leader, and I was involved in a lot of very 5 crucial issues.

6 But I think my motivation came from my law
7 school experience. Actually, I tell people I didn't go to 8 a law school; I went to the New Haven Institute of Social 9 Policy and Justice, some call it Yale Law School, but 10 that's one of the realities of life. And we had just a 11 great class, group of classmates. Three of my classmates
12 were the first three executive directors of the United 13 States Civil Rights Commission, and another one of my 14 distinguished classmates is Judge Stephen Reinhardt from 15 the Ninth Circuit, who's the hero of every liberally
16 oriented thinking citizen. And they really set me on a 17 course for a career which has been extremely fulfilling.

18 However, I point out -- and if I've used my 19 three minutes, give me another one -- when you get stung
20 with that civil rights bug, it doesn't leave. And when we 21 were thrown out of Washington, I went back to New York to 22 practice law. But I kept my hand in a great many issues.
23 I chaired the capital punishment committee, which provided
24 representation for indigents who were charged with capital
25 crimes, New York State having restored capital punishment

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 in 1995. And, fortunately, by dint of the work of a
3 extraordinary staff, we convinced the state's highest court
4 to declare the statute unconstitutional, and there's been 5 no more talk ever since that time.

6 I led the effort to reform our criminal drug
7 laws and seeking principally to provide for diversion and 8 treatment and to give the courts that discretion.

9 I've been a long-time defender for indigent
10 representation. The governor appointed me to the recently
11 created state office of indigent legal services. We have a 12 dish (phon sp) program to provide uniform standards for the 13 attorneys who are going to provide indigent services.

14 I've been involved through the state bar
15 with regard to Family Court matters, particularly to raise 16 in New York the age of responsibility, New York being one
17 of two states in the union which still has criminal
18 responsibility for youngsters under 18.

19 I fought for a court consolidation,
20 particularly with regard to the criminal division, which 21 had serious backlogs. I chaired a committee on judicial 22 independence when the sport of the day by the president,
23 the mayor, and the governor were all to beat up on judges
24 for unpopular decisions. I just finished chairing a 25 committee for the state bar on ballot access, and I also

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 chaired the chief judge's commission on the future of 3 probation.

4 So I'm with you. I'm engaged, just as 5 everyone on this panel is, and I take my hat off to the 6 courageous and brilliant members of this panel who have 7 committed so much more than just a simple operation of a 8 lawyer.

9 So I look forward to hearing from you, I
10 won't pull this New York lawyer cross-examination with 11 anyone, be assured, and I look forward to learning from you
12 during the day.

13 MS. COBB: Good morning, everyone. I'm 14 Rachael Cobb, and I'm chair of the government department at 15 Suffolk University.

16 And I first got involved in -- seriously
17 involved in voting rights in 2006 when I started a program 18 at Suffolk to recruit students to be poll workers. At the 19 time the City of Boston was under a memorandum of 20 understanding with the Justice Department for noncompliance
21 on providing services for language minorities.

22 And so one of the advantages of recruiting
23 college students was that they brought to the table, first 24 of all, their youth, but also, some of them, having 25 capacity to be bilingual poll workers and could offer that,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 and to do outreach to other communities.

3 So since then I've been running that 4 every -- very aggressively in every even-numbered year to 5 recruit college students.

6 In addition, in 2008, we did an exit poll in 7 the City of Boston in four different languages, Vietnamese,
8 Chinese, Spanish, and English, to ask voters about their 9 voting experience, whether they were treated with dignity
10 and respect, and to also ask about whether they were asked
11 for identification, which, in Massachusetts, you should not 12 be asked for identification unless you're a first-time 13 voter who did not provide identification at the time of 14 registration. So, in the course of doing analysis for 15 that, we found that specifically African-Americans, 16 Latinos, and Asians were asked for ID at a higher rate than 17 their white counterparts, and we published that article.

18 And we would love to do more studies like 19 that. However, running an exit poll is a lot of work and 20 costs a lot of money to do it right. And to do it in four 21 languages requires even more effort. So I dream of the day
22 when we can do more.

23 I also wanted to just provide a brief
24 overview. Over the weekend I just did a very quick 25 analysis of where we are in the New England states of the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 kinds of voting things that we do either to promote access
3 or to prevent access to voting. So I scored all of the 4 states along five measures, because I'm a political 5 scientist, so I like to do things like that.

6 So I proceeded as follows: If your state
7 had a statute on the books intended to make voting easier,
8 you received a 3 in that category. So Connecticut, for 9 example, has online voter registration, so it receives a 3.
10 Massachusetts does not -- although it's pending -- so it 11 received a zero. I'm just dealing with statutes that are 12 currently on the books.

13 Along five reforms, which included online
14 voter registration, voter identification requirements --
15 and these are mostly convenience voting in terms of online
16 voter registration -- preregistration for 16- and 17-year-
17 olds, same-day registration, is that five or is that four?
18 I'll add it up in just a minute. Along these five reforms,
19 the highest score a state could receive would be a perfect
20 15. And when I tabulated the results, who do you think was 21 the highest-scoring state in the New England region?

22 MS. WRIGHT: Connecticut.

23 MS. COBB: Maine. Maine, which scored a 9.
24 Maine does not require documentation to vote. It has 25 preregistration and early voting, no-fault absentee.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire tied for 3 last, scoring 3. But Massachusetts has the opportunity to 4 be a perfect 15 if it passes election-day registration
5 along with all of the other reforms in the bill.

6 New Hampshire has same-day registration but 7 none of the other reforms, and Rhode Island has 8 preregistration but none of the other reforms. Vermont
9 scored a 6, and Connecticut scored a 5 for having online
10 voter registration and requiring that poll workers request
11 an ID, but I gave them a 2 because they permit them to 12 provide just the name and address if they don't have 13 documentation.

14 So I hope that we can talk about all of the 15 various reforms that are trying to promote access and as 16 well talk about all of the states, I think today we have a 17 very Massachusetts focus, which is absolutely fine. But we 18 are part of a set of states, and New Hampshire, of course,
19 is now a swing state. So what happens in New Hampshire
20 also has an impact on the rest of the country in a profound
21 way.

22 So thank you for coming; thank you for being 23 here.

24 MR. WILLIAMS: Good morning, everyone. My
25 name is Darnell Williams, and I'm very humbled and honored

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 to be sitting on this panel. I know that they have been 3 trying to track me down for some time for some of the 4 calls. I was either in Cuba or China somewhere, and,
5 obviously, with the cell systems the way they are, I was 6 not able to join the calls. So I do want you to know I do
7 apologize profusely.

8 But let me just tell you why I think I'm 9 sitting here as a civil rights person. My focus -- I'm so 10 glad that we're surrounded by these talented attorneys, but 11 I come at it from the actual voter standpoint of view.
12 I've been around the track as a candidate for office, three 13 times. I lost three times. And my wife took the checkbook
14 and told me I needed to find another line of work, so I 15 became the president of the Springfield branch of the 16 NAACP. Subsequently I became (sic) the New England Area
17 Conference of all the New England states, and now I
18 currently serve at the national board of the Urban League,
19 as well as the local president.

20 But having said that, I've been around since 21 1976, when Jimmy Carter and Mo Udall ran. So you go 22 through, between Mike Dukakis, Ted Kennedy in 1980. I was 23 a Ted Kennedy delegate in New York City. I've been to 24 probably every Democratic National Convention and midterm
25 along the way.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 And so I think I've had good fortune to be
3 at the ground level where the actual voters were being 4 impacted by many of the things that have been previously
5 articulated. So I have a deep compassion and sensitivity
6 to when democracy is supposed to work. It's supposed to 7 work when people are engaged or enticed to be participants,
8 as opposed to having barriers. And when barriers are put 9 up, that's when I go to work.

10 And so, therefore, we are no stranger to 11 this. I believe in 2000 I found myself marching in the 12 city of Miami when we came up with the phrase, "Make every 13 vote count" and "One vote count," or whatever the phrase
14 was back in 2000. It's 13 some-odd years later. But we 15 were there very much stridently challenged by the votes
16 that were the hanging chads and the Supreme Court decisions
17 around that, and then four years later we found ourselves
18 in Ohio with some of the similar kinds of incidents.

19 And so I think it really just baffles me as 20 an American that we talk about our voting system around the 21 world and we can -- we can serve as observers in elections
22 across the world, but then we can't get it right at home.

23 And so it really gives me really a burr in 24 my saddle that I would love for us to get it right here, 25 that every person regardless of race, creed, or sexual

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 orientation can show up on the day of an election, cast his 3 or her ballot for the candidate who they believe represents
4 their interest, and if we can get that right, then I think
5 that this panel and the panels that are set up around the 6 country will be doing this nation a great service.

7 And also I think lastly, as I'll close, this
8 is not the first time that the Supreme Court got it wrong.
9 As a nonlawyer speaking, I believe that, this is my life,
10 my last 32 years of living, we have challenged the Supreme 11 Court in many judicial decisions across this nation, and 12 we've done it not because they are bad people or they 13 just -- they're interpreting the law wrong. And then 14 when -- the group of us who see it differently are able to 15 coalesce our thoughts and our legal prudence around it to 16 get them to change that. So change is good, but also 17 remind them that this is a land of laws, but also in terms
18 of enforcement, it's about really holding them accountable
19 to the promises of the founding fathers of this nation, and 20 it's our job to do that to make sure that everybody has the 21 right to the democracy that we hold and cherish so much.

22 So I'm very grateful to be part of this
23 process.

24 MR. HALL: Well, thank you all. Again, very 25 distinguished group of commissioners.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So we will begin to proceed. First I want
3 to take a brief moment to acknowledge Ms. Stephona Stokes
4 from Access Strategies. Again, Meredith mentioned her, or 5 mentioned Access Strategies earlier on. And I also wanted
6 to acknowledge Senator Stanley Rosenberg, who is with us.
7 Very appreciative of his efforts. Brenda mentioned the 8 redistricting process, and he was a critical champion on 9 making that process what it was.

10 So without further ado, we will have our 11 first panel. The first panel, each of the panel is to have 12 ten minutes to testify each, and then there will be a 13 period of question-and-answer from the commissioners for 14 approximately 30 minutes.

15 So the first panel discussing an overview of 16 the current voting rights issues in Massachusetts, we have 17 Pam Wilmot from Common Cause, Sara Brady from MassVOTE, 18 Gavi Wolfe of ACLU of Massachusetts, and Cheryl Clyburn
19 Crawford of MassVOTE.

20 So our timekeeper, Ms. Sasha Kopf, will give 21 you the notice at five minutes, three minutes, one minute,
22 and stop. And, again, you have ten minutes.

23 MS. BRADY: Thank you so much for having me
24 today. My name is Sara Brady, and I'm the policy director
25 at MassVOTE here in Boston, Massachusetts.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 A little background on MassVOTE before I get 3 started. We are a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that 4 works to increase voter participation here in 5 Massachusetts. We focus particularly on low-income
6 communities and in communities of color. We go about our 7 work in a couple of different ways. What I'm going to 8 focus on in my testimony is around the policy efforts that 9 we have to increase voter access and voter participation.
10 So, you know, what changes can we make to our current 11 system to encourage more people to come out and vote.

12 We also do voter engagement and voter
13 turnout work with community partners across Massachusetts, 14 providing individual voters with the information and 15 resources they need to be able to get out to vote, which 16 Cheryl Crawford will touch on a bit later.

17 And in addition to kind of what we're
18 talking about today, we've also been a partner in Election
19 Protection efforts with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil 20 Rights and Common Cause and many others over the years,
21 making sure that we have observers at the polls on election
22 day to catch any issues as they are going on, and to 23 address them as best as possible and look for, you know,
24 solutions that we can make to improve future elections down 25 the line.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So for my testimony today, I'm going to 3 focus on kind of where we are right now in Massachusetts in 4 terms of our election policies and some of the legislation
5 that we are hearing about that's being considered right
6 now.

7 So Massachusetts is, unfortunately, pretty
8 far behind, I think, as a couple of our commissioners
9 mentioned, and as Commissioner Rachael Cobb highlighted.
10 In New England we are at the bottom of the pack, and 11 unfortunately it's not just in New England. If we look 12 across the country, we've really fallen behind where it 13 comes to taking opportunities to pass legislation that will 14 encourage participation.

15 While we might not be kind of the hotbed of 16 voter suppression in some of what we've seen, you know,
17 across the country in terms of voter ID efforts or a lot of 18 voter suppression at the polls, though you'll hear some 19 tales of Massachusetts in the next panel, we've really 20 fallen behind when it comes to having legislation in place
21 that will encourage participation. In fact, in 2012, Rock
22 the Vote ranked Massachusetts 42nd in the country when it
23 came to having voting laws that encouraged participation,
24 particularly amongst young voters.

25 Fortunately, we're in a position now where

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 the Massachusetts State House and State Senate have both
3 passed legislation to update our voting laws. It's been a
4 long time coming. We're really excited that this year
5 could be the year that we surge to the head of the pack. A 6 lot of the reforms that are being considered right now have 7 actually passed in the past in one body or another, but 8 this is definitely the closest we've been to crossing the 9 finish line.

10 For a couple of the pieces, one of the most 11 substantial being election day registration, that actually 12 passed in the Senate back in 2008, and it passed again this 13 session. I'm going to talk a little bit about election-day
14 registration, as well as preregistration for 16- and 17-
15 year-olds in our state, as well as permanent registration, 16 and then I'm going to leave it to Pam to my right to 17 highlight a couple of the other pieces that were included 18 in this comprehensive package that's under consideration in 19 conference committee right now.

20 So the first piece that I am going to touch
21 base on is the -- is preregistration. So what 22 preregistration is, it would allow 16- and 17-year-olds to 23 preregister to vote. It doesn't change the voting age, but 24 gets young people on the voting rolls, with the expectation
25 that once they're on the rolls, we'll be kind of better

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 able to encourage them to participate in the election.

3 It's actually been found that one of the 4 biggest barriers to participation for young people is 5 actually the registration process. It's just getting on 6 that list in the first place. So we think that 7 preregistration will go a long way in helping with that 8 specific demographic, and there we're really looking at 9 that youngest group, that 18- to 21-year-olds.

10 14 states have preregistration, and based on 11 experiences in the other states, it's been seen that the -- 12 there's been an increase in participation amongst 18- and 13 19-year-olds to about 5 to 10 percent. Which might not 14 sound a lot to the average person, but I think to most of 15 the election folks here, you know, that's a substantial -- 16 that's a substantial number.

17 It's also important to highlight that, you
18 know, voter -- voter participation is habit forming, right?
19 So if you get these young people to be able to come out and 20 vote that first time, when they're 18 or 19 years old, the 21 chances of them continuing to vote dramatically increase.

22 In the 2012 elections, about 50 percent of 23 eligible youth, 18 to 29, turned out to vote, but amongst 24 registered youth, 84 percent turned out. So there's 25 definitely -- you know, there's this gap between voter

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 participation when it comes to the registration numbers.

3 So, you know, that's why we focus on this preregistration;

4 we think it's really one of the keys to engaging our

5 youngest demographics.

6 I also just wanted to point out kind of a

7 personal story around -- all around preregistration. So

8 Cheryl and myself actually went up to, I think it was

9 actually Lawrence, where we were doing a presentation

10 around the 2012 election for a group of ESL students.

11 Actually, something like 80 students were there, really

12 engaged around the presidential election, had a lot of 13 questions about just how the voting process worked, and 14 then we did just kind of a Q&A.

15 And one of the facilitators for -- for this

16 meeting came up to me afterwards and said, "So if -- if

17 you're going to be 18 on election day, you can actually

18 register to vote? Like you don't have to be 18, you know,

19 like already in order to register for the election?"

20 I said, "Yeah, that's it. You know, if

21 they're going to be 18, you know, by election day, then

22 they, you know, they can cast a ballot."

23 She was like, "Okay. You can't tell my 24 daughter, because she's going to kill me, because she's not

25 going to be able to vote in this election."

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So her daughter was 17, and her birthday was 3 the day before the election. And, you know, she just 4 thought that her daughter wouldn't be eligible -- or it was 5 the day of the election, and she just thought her daughter
6 wouldn't be eligible to vote in that election.

7 So preregistration, you know, in addition to 8 these other benefits, you know, hopefully there is a 9 uniform voting age so there's less confusion about when 10 exactly it is that you can register to vote in order to be 11 able to cast a ballot in your first election. So it
12 happens in real life is something I wanted to touch base 13 on.

14 So, briefly, two other pieces that are being 15 considered right now include permanent registration, which 16 there's kind of a couple of different forms, but what we're 17 looking at here in Massachusetts is a way to keep people's 18 voter registration up to date by using address changes
19 provided by the Registry of Motor Vehicles and by the US
20 Post Office.

21 In fact, a lot of people right now think if 22 they change their address with the Registry of Motor
23 Vehicles it updates their voter registration, and, in fact,
24 it does not. It's an opportunity to use our state
25 databases to get them to better communicate with one

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 another and in order to keep folks on the voting rolls. In 3 Massachusetts one out of ten people move within 4 Massachusetts each year. So we'd be, you know, reducing 5 the administrative burden in terms of folks having to re-
6 register each time after they move and be able to save some 7 money too by making sure we're sharing that information
8 between our databases.

9 As you can imagine, lower-income voters,
10 people of color, younger people are more likely to be 11 renters, are more likely to move from year to year. This 12 would be a big benefit to increasing participation amongst 13 those communities.

14 And the last piece I wanted to touch base on 15 would be election-day registration, which is by far the 16 most significant reform that we can do to increase voter
17 participation. On average, states with election-day
18 registration have turnout rates of about 10 to 12 percent
19 higher than the national average. In the '09 report by 20 Demos, they estimate that Massachusetts could see an 21 increase of about 4.9 percent. So, again, sounds like a 22 small number, but a big pretty number when it comes to 23 voter participation. Again, amongst young people,
24 communities of color, and lower-income voters, we would see 25 this number even higher.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Again, I worked as a poll worker for several 3 elections in the city of Boston, and, again the number one
4 issue I'd run into is people with registration problems.
5 Election-day registration provides a solution to that 6 problem and allows voters to be able to exercise the right
7 to vote. So there's not a better reform to increase
8 participation in Massachusetts.

9 So thank you so much. I'll pass it on to 10 Pam to talk a bit more.

11 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

12 MS. WILMOT: Hi, folks. My name is Pam
13 Wilmot, and I am executive director of Common Cause
14 Massachusetts. We are a state chapter of the national 15 organization Common Cause, which was founded in 1970 by 16 John Gardner, who was a liberal Republican in a Democratic 17 administration. And John founded an organization that 18 would focus on a number of things, but eventually to 19 establishing the rules of democracy that would work for 20 all, an open, accountable government and free and fair
21 elections. And we've been involved with these issues ever 22 since.

23 Here in Massachusetts, we also were founded 24 very shortly after, in 1972, were involved in many 25 different campaigns to -- to improve the rules and the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 enforcement of participation in both elections and campaign
3 finance reform, ethics, and the rest. We've had, since
4 we've been doing election protection here in Massachusetts,
5 we've had the privilege of working with Rahsaan and the 6 Lawyers' Committee and MassVOTE and ACLU and others to turn
7 out -- to man the hotline and to turn out grassroots poll
8 workers. Last time in 2012, Common Cause recruited about 9 150 poll monitors, trained all the poll monitors, and 10 placed them in some of the urban locations across the 11 state.

12 Like many other states, Massachusetts had 13 problems in 2012. We had a wide range of issues that were 14 reported to the hotline, from requiring ID, to telling 15 people how to vote, to tons of problems with inactive
16 voting, with provisional balloting, language assistance.
17 Over the years, Lawyers' Committee has represented a number
18 of communities, and a number of them have been under DOJ
19 consent decrees around providing language assistance.

20 But in 2012, we had people in most of our 21 major cities waiting for two and three hours to vote. That 22 is just unacceptable. And now, of course, we're not the 23 eight hours that we saw in a few places across the country,
24 but as the president said, no individual in the bipartisan 25 presidential commission, which, you know, was truly a

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 consensus report that was released recently, no voter
3 should have to wait more than 30 minutes. And as Sara 4 mentioned, we're missing many of the reforms here in 5 Massachusetts that would make that possible.

6 32 states have early voting. We do not.
7 The bill that passed the House and the Senate would 8 establish early voting. The House bill is much more
9 minimal than the Senate, which would allow for weekend
10 early voting.

11 This is really important. Waiting in line
12 isn't just about convenience; it is also about the right to 13 vote. Because not -- some of us have flexible schedules 14 and can commit that time, but the vast majority of the 15 population really doesn't.

16 Making all the other barriers that we have 17 to register to vote is also a real challenge to the 18 franchise, because 20 days before the election, which is 19 Massachusetts standard, is a time where many people aren't 20 actually thinking about the election. If you move every 21 year, you're -- the burdens on you are much higher than a 22 stable family that stays in the same place for year after 23 year.

24 So we're particularly excited about the 25 provisions in the bill that's being considered that Sara

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 mentioned, but there's also online voter registration,
3 which has increased participation in the states that have 4 it, as well as providing for more accuracy, cost
5 effectiveness, and with the tie-in with permanent 6 registration, really can help increase getting people who 7 are not registered actually registered.

8 We brought in a number of speakers recently,
9 including David Becker from Pew, to talk about the ERIC 10 program and were able to bring him around to many of the 11 legislators that are considering this, and it's a terrific 12 program, and we would really like to see Massachusetts
13 participate.

14 One other piece that isn't about bringing 15 more folks to the polls and allowing them to participate,
16 but ensuring that their vote counts is post-election
17 audits. We submitted the -- helped to write and submit the 18 first post-election audit bill in 2004, and the first 19 preregistration bill in 2004 as well. I participated in 20 the HAVA committee around that area -- era.

21 But the post-election audits, we have not 22 actually had -- experience here in Massachusetts during 23 recounts, we find some small changes when -- because 24 machines can't pick up what is really the voter intent.
25 But we've seen across the country how they can actually

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 fail to properly record, and even if there's a huge vote
3 spread, not accurately reflect the ballots that were cast.

4 In Florida in 2012, there was a city council
5 election where there were three races that were transposed
6 by the counting machine, by the scanner, and two of them
7 actually flipped. Even though there was no recount
8 recorded, this was -- the audit found the error, was able 9 to fix it. More importantly -- or actually not more
10 importantly, because that's about as important as you can 11 get. More frequently, it finds problems with voter 12 instruction, so that people are confused about how to fill
13 out the ballot, other -- other issues with pens, 14 programming of the scanners, and the like. It's a very 15 cost-effective reform, but the cost of not doing it is so 16 high, which is -- makes it such a clear solution.

17 So we think that this is a really -- all of 18 these issues are very critical reforms that need to be 19 enacted, and we have a great chance to do it.

20 I'm just going to touch very briefly on 21 redistricting as well. I know Brenda mentioned it, and 22 Demos and MassVOTE were very involved for a long time;
23 we've been involved for decades. Massachusetts issues with 24 redistricting didn't just start in 2000, however. There 25 was a violation of the Voting Rights Act found in the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 1980s. In the 1990s there was also a lot of controversy.

3 There was no successful lawsuit in the 1990s, however.

4 And -- and that led to a number of -- of actions in 2000.

5 Of course, the lawsuit was a big -- big
6 issue. We conducted a campaign for an independent
7 redistricting commission that would have a -- a diverse
8 commission that would adhere to strict principles and have 9 a whole transparent process and then ultimately still be 10 approved by the legislature.

11 But in 2010, because of, I think, the 12 lawsuit, because of the people that were in charge, because 13 of the campaign from the independent commission, the 14 legislature really did step up to the plate -- to the plate
15 and really did a terrific job. They exceeded all of our 16 expectations in terms of transparency of the process and 17 then also in terms of representing minority voters in the 18 districts that were drawn, triple the number in a number of 19 instances. And it just shows, I think, what an active 20 citizenry can do when you're concerned about an issue and 21 proceed with a well-thought campaign.

22 I'm going to stop there and just say that 23 we're going to continue our advocacy for reform, regardless
24 of what happens here, and also participation in Election
25 Protection, which is so critical to having your eyes and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 ears on the ground. There's another panel that is going to 3 talk -- Tyler from my office will be there to talk about 4 what we found in Lawrence and then also some more specifics
5 for 2012. Thank you.

6 MR. HALL: Thank you.

7 MR. WOLFE: Good morning. My name is Gavi
8 Wolfe. I'm here on behalf of the American Civil Liberties
9 Union of Massachusetts. And thank you for inviting us to 10 testify.

11 The ACLU of Massachusetts represents about 12 25,000 members and supporters around the state, and our 13 work is -- takes on a number of different forms:
14 litigation, legislative advocacy, community organizing. It
15 also spans a wide range of issue areas. But, to be frank, 16 the voting rights work underpins a whole lot of it. If we 17 don't have people out participating in their government and 18 holding their government accountable, directing the course
19 of our government, then many of the other issues that we 20 work so hard for sort of fall by the wayside. So voting
21 rights is a core component of what we do.

22 Much of that work takes place in -- has to 23 do with Election Protection efforts, and my colleague, 24 Chris Robarge, will speak a little bit later about those -- 25 that piece of our work, and in particular our efforts in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Worcester. But I've had the pleasure of working in our 3 legislative advocacy with my colleagues on this panel, and 4 I'd like to speak for a moment about one of the components
5 of the reforms that we're seeking to pass here in 6 Massachusetts. That's online voter registration.

7 So the ACLU has a priority -- has identified
8 a priority area. We -- that's called the Technology for 9 Liberty Project. We've created this project within the 10 ACLU of Massachusetts because we have come to appreciate
11 that we live in a digital age. And in a digital age, there 12 are particular challenges for civil rights and civil 13 liberties that we have to address head on.

14 So often we're in the process -- we're in 15 the position of dealing with those issues -- with 16 technology as a challenge. How do you grapple with it?
17 How does it affect our privacy? How does it affect access
18 to opportunity? But technology can also be an incredible
19 gift for civil rights, and there is no doubt that in this 20 instance it, you know, presents an opportunity for us that 21 we need to take advantage of.

22 Online voter registration is really a no-
23 brainer. 19 states have -- have put it on their books.
24 And here in Massachusetts we are -- we consider ourselves a 25 technology leader, we think of ourselves as a high-tech

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 hub, and that's all true, but somehow we're not taking
3 advantage of the opportunity that we have. Those 19
4 states, one of them is Connecticut, so that's very -- you
5 know, that's one of the New England states, but this
6 hearing today is focussed on the other five New England
7 states, none of which has online voter registration.

8 If we want people to vote, we first need
9 them to be able to register. And if they -- if 10 registration is a cumbersome process, that means that fewer 11 people are going to participate. Today in Massachusetts, 12 in order to register to vote, you have to fill out an 13 application, a paper application, you have to sign it, and 14 you have to get it to the appropriate office, either by 15 walking it there or by mailing it in.

16 But if we allow people to register to vote
17 online, it's a simple process that can be done with a click
18 of a mouse. And it takes advantage of the fact that people 19 already are -- their information is already present in the 20 Registry of Motor Vehicle database; their signature is on 21 file. If those conditions exist, then they could register
22 online very easily.

23 It's important to say up front that online
24 voter registration is secure, and it's something that,
25 because it -- because the voter puts in their own

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 information, as opposed to where they've written it out on 3 a piece of paper, and their handwriting might be a little 4 bit illegible, somebody else has to translate that into the 5 information that gets into a database, it actually has a 6 greater accuracy than, you know, the paper ballot, the 7 paper registration forms.

8 It's also secure in the sense that newly 9 registered voters would -- at the polls for the first time, 10 they'd have to show their -- their proof of residence the 11 first time that they vote.

12 Online voter registration increases
13 registration. In Arizona, it's been shown to increase 14 registration quite substantially. The number that we have 15 is 9.5 percent, which is extraordinary, and that may be 16 because it's combined with a lot of other efforts to get 17 people to register, take advantage of other -- you know, of 18 technology to make sure that people are -- there's a sort 19 of outreach going on. But even just enabling people to 20 vote -- to register to vote online increases people's 21 registration.

22 It also is a cost-saving measure, and I
23 think it's puzzling that we should not take advantage of an 24 efficiency that also saves money. So I'm hopeful that when 25 we -- you know, when we end this legislative session, we

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 will certainly have accomplished online voter registration,
3 and it will be on our books. But it saves money to the 4 tune of in -- I understand that it's about -- the 5 difference between a paper registration and an online
6 registration, processing costs in Arizona, the difference
7 is 83 cents to 3 cents. Now, that's a nice little bit of 8 change that you can put away. Maricopa County alone, since 9 2008, has saved $1.4 million. So this is -- this is a 10 pretty easy step forward for voting rights and one that we 11 should take advantage of right away.

12 MR. HALL: Thank you.

13 MS. CRAWFORD: Good morning. I'm Cheryl 14 Clyburn Crawford, currently the executive director of 15 MassVOTE.

16 So MassVOTE has been involved with voting
17 rights issues during all of my tenure and way before that.
18 In terms of the election-day registration, and 19 reprecincting, all of those things that my colleagues so 20 eloquently spoke of.

21 But, you know, one of the mainstays at 22 MassVOTE is our Democracy for Nonprofits, where we engage 23 all nonprofit organizations in talking with them about 24 election reform and the best practices around electoral 25 work and getting out the vote. We monitor -- one of our

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 projects is a group, Civic Engagement Initiative, CEI,
3 where we monitor organizations to see what the impact is in 4 the communities that they're serving.

5 We've touched upon the redistricting;
6 MassVOTE was very much involved with that, as already
7 mentioned. But even when we were doing the redistricting,
8 one of the challenges was redistricting the city of Boston
9 in particular. And a part of that is due to the fact that 10 reprecincting has not occurred in Boston in over 80 years.

11 Every ten years, the census occurs, and most 12 of the cities and towns in Massachusetts reprecinct
13 according to their needs. But there was an exemption put 14 in place many, many years ago which prevented Boston from 15 being reprecincted. 80 years. And as you can imagine, the 16 landscape has changed in 80 years; the population for sure 17 has changed. We now have precincts, some with as little as 18 500 people and others with as many as 4,000. So it's very 19 unequal, and we believe that this is one of the major
20 causes of long lines.

21 And, you know, I've served as a warden
22 several times in these local precincts here, and oftentimes 23 at the polling location, you'll have two or three 24 precincts, and you'll have two precincts where people are 25 in and out in five minutes, five, ten minutes, especially

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 in presidential election years, right, it's not that long.
3 But then you'll have this third precinct, because it's so
4 unbalanced and unequal, where they may be in line two 5 hours. So there's a lot of confusion right there at the 6 polling location that people want to jump in a shorter
7 line, of course, right? But because of it not being 8 equalized, we have this issue going on.

9 But we see -- some of these are problems
10 that reprecincting has caused, like the landscape over on 11 the waterfront, for instance, has been really built up over 12 the past 80 years, which causes some people to have to walk
13 over a mile to get to their polling location. That's a 14 problem for many people.

15 Another problem is it causes the election
16 department additional work, because you can't send out
17 uniform packages of ballots right, you can't even staff it
18 uniformly, because it's so different, and that just causes
19 them extra work to figure out how many ballots need to go
20 to each polling location. Whereas if it was equalized,
21 then you could just send out the standard batch.

22 Again, the long lines are quite a burden.
23 But also smaller precincts are a waste of money, really, 24 because they require you the same things. They require the 25 exit table. They require, which is -- which Boston,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Massachusetts is the only state that has exit tables. But
3 also a police officer. So each polling location costs
4 about $3,000 per election, right, per precinct per 5 election.

6 We have currently 254 precincts in the City
7 of Boston. If we were able to remove this exemption and 8 have Boston reprecincted like most cities and towns, we 9 could drop that from 254 precincts down to about 190, which 10 would give us a savings of over $100,000, and we would 11 reprecinct such that it would be approximately 2,000 people
12 in every polling location.

13 I really believe that with the evisceration
14 of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, it brought attention to 15 Massachusetts. We are not considered a swing state, but 16 because this is going on, it gave us an opportunity to 17 highlight some of the issues that are happening here in the 18 City of Boston.

19 I know later today, on another panel,
20 they'll talk about other issues that are pertinent to 21 Boston, such as the bilingual ballots and things of that 22 nature. But I just wanted to highlight the reprecincting.
23 If we're able to -- and it's already passed as a home rule
24 petition, and it's currently at the State House. We have 25 legislation that we're hoping to pass around the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 reprecincting which would require it to be reprecincted
3 every ten years, like every other city and town in Boston,
4 Massachusetts. Excuse me.

5 MR. HALL: Great. Well, thank you all very 6 much. We appreciate your testimony, and if you would 7 endure with us for a little while, we'll have some 8 questions from our commissioners. So I'll open it up.

9 MR. DUNNE: Ms. Crawford, while it's fresh
10 in our mind, the redrawing of the precincts, the existing 11 law, has it been challenged in court?

12 MS. CRAWFORD: For one thing, we were 13 looking for the existing law. They had not been able to 14 find it, right? And that's what brought about our work at 15 city hall in challenging them to find this exemption. No
16 one has really been able to put their finger on this 17 exemption. So they did take a vote, and we got a home rule 18 petition passed where we will be able to do it. But at 19 this time, they have not been able to find that exemption.

20 MR. DUNNE: Thank you.

21 MS. WRIGHT: To follow up on that, I'm just 22 curious about what is the opposition to reprecincting or to 23 enacting home rule legislation to allow that? It seems 24 like a fairly -- should be fairly straightforward.

25 MS. CRAWFORD: That's what we say as well.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. WRIGHT: That there's an obvious need
3 for it. So I'm just curious about where is the opposition?

4 MS. CRAWFORD: It's come up after the 5 redistricting, you know, the census, that there's not 6 enough time. That's generally the response we have 7 received in the past. There's not enough time. It's going 8 to take more time to look at these maps, to be able to draw
9 these precincts. And that's why we've got a jump start on 10 it now, before the 2020 census is taken, that we'll be able 11 to have everything already in place and they're already 12 starting that process.

13 I don't know if you want to --

14 MS. BRADY: Yes. I was just going to add,
15 you know, I think that the city actually lost time. The 16 election department told us that they were planning on 17 doing the reprecincting, but they kind of -- they ran into 18 the -- you know, their perceived legal barriers to being 19 able to do that with this exemption. So, then, you know,
20 kind of back to the State House, and they think that, you
21 know, with it being a city-specific issue, you know,
22 especially as we were talking about some of this other
23 election legislation, it might not be that kind of, you 24 know, number one, you know, priority issue for a lot of 25 folks if you're looking at Massachusetts generally, but it

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 would be a really, you know, a really substantial help.

3 As Cheryl was saying, you know, as much as,
4 you know, these other reforms will go a long way to 5 reducing lines and increasing participation with having the 6 city not be reprecincted, we're still going to see, as Pam 7 had mentioned, you know, some of these two- or three-hour
8 waits, you know, within the city.

9 But I think that there is -- I think most 10 people want to do that -- do this at this point. You know, 11 it's a matter of, you know, getting this exemption removed.
12 And it will be a big help, you know, come 2020 to have our 13 elections start looking a little bit more like they should.

14 MS. CRAWFORD: And we've had conversations
15 with the local commissioner here who's very much in favor
16 of the reprecincting part. It only makes sense if we're 17 going to have these other reforms.

18 MR. WILLIAMS: I believe, Ms. Brady and Mr.
19 Wolfe, you both referenced the 14 states that have 20 preregistration, and I believe you quoted a figure around a 21 4.9 percent increase? Is that increase of the voters who 22 preregistered actually showed that there was a higher 23 turnout in the 14 states, or was that across the board for 24 all 14 states?

25 MS. BRADY: So I think that --

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. WILLIAMS: I just wanted to clarify
3 that.

4 MS. BRADY: Yeah. I think the number that I
5 suggested was -- was across the board, but it has been, you
6 know, proven in the states that have preregistration, if 7 you are preregistered, versus registering, you know, kind
8 of standard at the age of 18, you are more -- you have a 9 higher rate of voter participation, like as a preregistered
10 voter.

11 MR. WILLIAMS: But I'm asking you a
12 different question, though. My question is, okay, presume 13 that we have voter registration on the books, and you have 14 the 14 states, has there been demonstrated increase in the 15 voters in those preregistered states to show that the 16 number -- I believe you quoted 18 to 21, and I believe, Mr.
17 Wolfe, you quoted the same 14 states.

18 MR. WOLFE: No. I'm just referring to the 19 online registration.

20 MR. WILLIAMS: Online registration.

21 MR. WOLFE: Online registration was 19
22 states.

23 MR. WILLIAMS: Online -- I think they're 24 comparable in a sense, are they not?

25 MS. WILMOT: No.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. BRADY: No. They both help young
3 voters, right.

4 MS. WILMOT: Professor --

5 MR. WILLIAMS: Let me give you my question,
6 so if you can collectively answer it, it's fine. I'm just 7 looking to see if there has been an increase in the number 8 of voters in those states, whether it's online or 9 preregistration, that will suggest that because they're in 10 place, we will see a higher number of voters. That's what 11 I'm trying to get at.

12 MR. WOLFE: For online registration, the 13 only state that I have --

14 MR. WILLIAMS: Definitive.

15 MR. WOLFE: -- statistics for is Arizona,
16 whereby enabling people to vote online, it increased voter
17 registration 9.5 percent, which is an enormous number.

18 MR. WILLIAMS: So let me make sure I'm 19 hearing what you're saying. 9.5 percent higher voter
20 participation --

21 MR. WOLFE: Voter registration.

22 MS. WILMOT: Registration, not
23 participation.

24 MR. WILLIAMS: Registration. So I'm --

25 MR. WOLFE: You're trying to get to do those

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 people actually cast a ballot.

3 MR. WILLIAMS: That's right.

4 MS. WILMOT: So --

5 MR. WOLFE: I'll let Pam answer.

6 MS. WILMOT: Yeah. On online, there is not
7 any data that I know. On preregistration, Professor --
8 Professor Eric Plutzer at Penn State, and I believe there
9 is another -- is it Michael McDonald?

10 MS. BRADY: Michael McDonald, yes.

11 MS. WILMOT: Michael McDonald did a study
12 too where they did show a participate rate, not just a 13 registration rate boost.

14 And, in fact, here in Massachusetts, the 15 Worcester Telegram was going to editorialize against 16 preregistration because our town clerks were against it and 17 worked hard to oppose it. One, they think that they might 18 have to have a card file and look through it to find
19 people's birthdays rather than having an online database
20 that actually makes people turn automatically a registrant
21 once they turn 18. But the Worcester Telegram reviewed
22 these studies and said, "Yeah, we're convinced." It does 23 provide a demonstrable increase in voter participation, as 24 well as registration, and therefore it's worth a try here
25 in Massachusetts.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. COBB: A recent Pew study looked at the 3 device ownership of people in the United States by device.
4 So basically the more affluent you are, the more likely you
5 are to have a laptop. But 91 percent of Americans have a
6 cell phone, although not all Americans have a smartphone.

7 What -- and I don't know if you're able to 8 answer this, but can you talk about the technology involved
9 in online registration and what kinds of technology is -- 10 would the -- would the laws that are currently being 11 suggested enable people to register on their devices or 12 only with a laptop?

13 MS. WILMOT: That's not -- that's not a law.
14 That would be an implementation issue. And, actually, Rock
15 the Vote has a nice app that allows you to register, and I 16 assume that whatever we put in place in Massachusetts could 17 be captured by that app.

18 But the level of detail of how this would be 19 implemented would be something the secretary and the 20 Registry would need to work out together, hopefully with 21 input from the rest.

22 But, you know, you're totally right;
23 accessing a smartphone is a critical piece, and we've been 24 so remiss in that. We not only have not had online voter
25 registration, you have not been able to even look up

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 your -- your voter registration status to see whether you
3 were an active voter, where you were registered to vote,
4 until we tried to pass it legislatively, it didn't get 5 through, but then -- well, anyway, we won't get into that.

6 But the secretary did do that as something
7 he felt he could do administratively, and we're looking for 8 the whole thing coming up soon. But that just went online, 9 what --

10 MS. BRADY: No, not even that, two months
11 ago.

12 MS. WILMOT: Three months ago, yeah.

13 So 42 other states had that capacity. And 14 so we're technologically -- I'm going to -- we're so far
15 behind when it comes to this stuff. The fact that a fear
16 about, you know, registration is they'd have to look at a 17 card file clearly speaks volumes to where we are in 18 thinking about voter registration.

19 MR. HALL: So my question is to you, as 20 advocates, having been raising these issues for quite some 21 time and advocating for this legislation to be passed, what 22 do you all identify as the stumbling blocks as to why 23 Massachusetts is so far behind with the advent of 24 technology and with the fact that there are so many other 25 states that are doing these things that are working and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 that are increasing access to the polls?

3 MS. WILMOT: I think change is always
4 difficult, and we're very much of a traditionalist state.
5 We don't change easily. We don't tend to like to be the 6 first person to do anything, first state to implement
7 reforms. Of course, we're considerably behind the times,
8 we're behind that line, and many of these reforms are not 9 just in the first half or on the second half or in the last 10 quintile or in the last decile.

11 So I think inertia is part of it. We do
12 also have -- the Town Clerks' Association has been a pretty 13 active opponent to a number of these items, and that is 14 critical. They've moved. So, for example, they're 15 supporting online voter registration. The association has 16 not been opposing early voting. But -- but that has been a 17 stumbling block.

18 MS. BRADY: I was just going to add, you
19 know, I don't think state legislatures change, you know, 20 voting laws lightly. So, you know, that's maybe on kind on 21 either side of that issue. But, you know, I think that,
22 you know, we're at a point now where a lot of these reforms
23 obviously have been in place in other states. We've been 24 able to see the effect, to set the benefits of these 25 reforms. And they've been discussed, you know, extensively

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 in the -- in Massachusetts now that, you know, the 3 conversations I think that we have with legislators now are 4 maybe -- you know, they're different than the ones we had,
5 you know, ten years ago, a lot of people being very 6 familiar with the benefits of something like, you know,
7 preregistration that's been discussed for several years
8 now.

9 So I do hope that, you know, I think, you
10 know, obviously with the State House and Senate both 11 passing legislation this year, you know, we're confident, 12 you know, that something, and we hope something very 13 substantial, you know, will ultimately come out of the 14 conference committee. But, you know, it takes time, but 15 we're -- hopefully we're at that time now.

16 MS. CRAWFORD: I also think a major part of 17 this is the implementation, right, and adding the task
18 force to, as a piece of this legislation, with the town
19 clerks and city clerks and this whole panel will have an 20 opportunity to take a look at how this is going to be 21 implemented. It's not something to be handed from the top
22 down, but they'll have an opportunity to figure out, you
23 know, what works best in their town and their city.

24 MR. WILLIAMS: Ms. Wilmot, you asked a 25 couple of -- you made a couple of comments, and I want to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 just find out for clarification, you talked about requiring 3 ID's, telling people how to vote, and language assistance.
4 Was that in any particular part of Massachusetts, or was 5 that broad stroke, or was it isolated?

6 MS. WILMOT: The next panel will get into 7 some of the places where we saw some particularly egregious
8 examples of those.

9 There was an issue in New Bedford in 2010
10 where an organization was setting up tables and holding 11 signs saying you had to show your ID to vote and kind of 12 ended up -- I think they were eventually kicked out, but it
13 took basically all day for that to happen.

14 In 2012, we had one precinct, which I can't 15 remember the town, where there was a sign up that said you 16 had to show -- Southbridge, where you had to show ID to 17 vote.

18 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay.

19 MS. WILMOT: There was a poll worker -- they 20 were scattered. In the general election, there was a big 21 issue in the primary, which we'll hear from Chris Robarge
22 about, and -- but I think the more comprehensive kind of 23 issues we have are more around some of these reform pieces,
24 but also around inactive voting rules, around provisional
25 balloting, who gets a provisional ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 One of my board members was a warden in 3 Brookline, 17 percent provisional ballots, which probably 4 was a misinterpretation of an active voting rules and what 5 kind of ballot, because we have challenge ballots, we also 6 have provisional ballots, and those get very confused.

7 We had reports throughout the hotline, all
8 over the state, including Hamilton, which is an incredibly 9 wealthy town, of somebody being turned away and the poll
10 worker not looking at the inactive voting list. And that's 11 just the tip of the iceberg. I'm sure this happens
12 consistently.

13 One of the other pieces that we've been 14 pushing for reform on that we did not mention -- I meant
15 to, but I forgot -- was that we need to change our inactive
16 voting rules. In Massachusetts, we're unique in the 17 country in tying your inactive voting status to whether you 18 return the state census form every year. So municipal -- 19 I'm sorry.

20 So you can become an inactive voter even if 21 you voted three times in the past year, if you don't return
22 your -- your census form. Most other states have it tied 23 to voting history and then with a confirmation card. That 24 is our suggestion. That's what the Senate passed. I think 25 there's some controversy over that. I'm not sure it

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 ultimately will come out. But the fact that so many voters
3 here are legally required to be inactive really increases
4 the -- and you can still vote, of course, you just have to 5 show more identification, sign an affidavit, and that slows
6 down the lines and the processing time.

7 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you.

8 MS. WRIGHT: I have a question on another
9 topic, and that is the topic of prison-based gerrymandering
10 in Massachusetts. I understand there is a resolution
11 that's been introduced in the legislature that would call
12 on the Census Bureau to change its method of allocating 13 incarcerated populations so that it would -- they would be 14 allocated to their home communities rather than to the 15 prison location, and I'd love to hear any commentary from 16 anyone on this panel about -- about that measure and, you
17 know, your thoughts about the issue.

18 MS. CRAWFORD: I believe it would make a 19 significant difference if we were able to take that 20 challenge up right with the prison gerrymandering. Many of 21 the prisoners come from cities, the larger cities, right?
22 Censuses dole out money based on population. And then here
23 in Massachusetts where those citizens do not have the right
24 to vote renders their voice insignificant, right, but the 25 money is going into that particular city or town wherever

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 the prison is. I think it will make a major difference if 3 you were able to allocate those ballots back to -- or just 4 made it available, right, where people were counted
5 absolutely where they come from or where they're going back
6 to, you know, pretty much. Because most of them are not 7 staying in the little towns where they're being imprisoned
8 at this time.

9 So we have worked with many organizations, I
10 know MassVOTE has collaborated with several organizations
11 in talking about how to make this happen.

12 MS. WILMOT: As have we. And the other
13 thing I would say is it was a recommendation, as well, from 14 the redistricting committee. So this isn't just a -- a 15 resolution that's on the side. It's part of the 16 recommendations going forward from the official committee
17 addressing that, including the chairman that's here today.
18 So I would guess that it would have a good -- our belief is 19 that it will pass. It's an important issue. It's an 20 important national issue. And thank you for continuing to 21 bring that up and making sure that we do.

22 MR. HALL: Note to our commissioners, we're 23 about at the three-minute mark, or three minutes left.
24 We're at it now. So if there are any final questions that 25 we want to ask this panel, now would be the time.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. COBB: Another thing that you've raised
3 is confusion on election day because of poll workers not 4 necessarily having the training that they need in order to 5 carry out the election efficiently, confusion over 6 provisional ballots to other issues. Do you have some 7 thoughts about what you'd like to see happen around that?

8 MS. BRADY: So one piece that I was actually 9 going to kind of add on when Pam was talking about the 10 inactive voters, actually changing our inactive, you know,
11 kind of voter procedures would go a long way to, I think,
12 reducing that confusion at the polls.

13 So in the 2012 election, actually, I was the 14 warden at my local precinct, and all I did for the entire 15 14 hours was do paperwork the entire day for inactive
16 voters. Most of them actually were not provisional 17 ballots. I think I had maybe five provisional ballots.
18 But I probably had 30, 40, or something like that,
19 challenged ballots, and, you know, usually because, you
20 know, folks had not replied to the census.

21 So if we were looking for ways to, you know,
22 reduce that, that would help a lot of voters, and it would 23 help a lot of poll workers who, again, as we were saying,
24 you know, there's kind of, you know, depending on when a 25 voter comes in, they get -- one, they might just have to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 fill out a form affirming they live at the same address;
3 two, they might have to fill out a form, but if they don't
4 have the identification, then it has to be a challenge
5 ballot, where you read them an oath and you're writing on 6 the ballot, and people don't like it when you write on 7 their ballots; or, three, they could end up as a
8 provisional ballot if they were kind of nowhere to be found
9 and you can't, you know, redirect them.

10 So if we look at ways to reduce the number 11 of people that are appearing as inactive, that's going to 12 help a lot of ways in terms of poll worker training, and 13 just the fact that poll worker training, I think, really 14 varies, not, you know, Boston -- you know, across 15 Massachusetts, and just making sure that they, you know,
16 have the resources, you know, that they need to really 17 provide adequate training.

18 MS. WILMOT: One of the provisions of the 19 bill is for election administrators to get extra training, 20 but that does not filter down to the poll workers. And 21 part of it, I think, is a resource issue; part of it is a
22 cultural issue in the sense of having the diversity of age, 23 race, and other dimensions to be poll workers. Many of our 24 poll workers are quite elderly. Some of the rules around 25 that tend to facilitate it, again, the low pay, then also

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 that you have to be there all day long. So I think some of 3 the programs that we have done to try to recruit a more
4 diverse poll-working base are important and then having 5 training. I think that's something that probably needs to 6 come rather than statute based but more from the secretary.

7 MR. DUNNE: Do you think that --

8 THE TIMEKEEPER: Sorry. We're out of time.

9 MR. HALL: We're out of time, but we'll --

10 MR. DUNNE: Just one brief question.

11 We all acknowledge difficulty in getting 12 poll workers --

13 MS. WILMOT: Yes.

14 MR. DUNNE: -- put in. New York is a 15-15 hour day. Have you considered split, getting them for 16 eight hours each?

17 MS. WILMOT: Yes.

18 MR. DUNNE: And has that worked?

19 MS. BRADY: Well, I was going to say, a 20 couple of cities do. Actually, the first time I was a poll
21 worker, I could only commit to -- you know, I could only 22 commit to, you know, to a half day, and they were able to 23 do that.

24 I think, you know, for some of the bigger 25 cities, it's a little more difficult just kind of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 administratively figuring -- you know, obviously recruiting
3 more people to cover the day. But I think -- I think that 4 can be really beneficial, especially if we're talking about 5 bringing younger people in who might, you know, not be able 6 to do the full-day commitment.

7 MS. WILMOT: There's no statutory 8 requirement that they do a day. It's really just the 9 culture and practice.

10 MR. DUNNE: Thank you.

11 MR. HALL: All right. Well, thank you all 12 very much for your testimony and for your advocacy, and if 13 you have any copies of your testimony or any remarks or 14 information that you would like to -- or materials you'd 15 like to provide us with, please do so.

16 MS. CRAWFORD: Thank you for having us.

17 MR. HALL: So we will now invite the next
18 panel to come forward that will talk about Election
19 Protection issues. And so far who I see here for this 20 panel are Chris Robarge from the ACLU of Massachusetts and 21 Tyler Creighton from Common Cause. We were expecting Aron
22 Goldman, but I don't see him as yet. So hopefully he will 23 join us. He's from the Springfield Institute. So given 24 the weather conditions and the distance, he may be a bit
25 delayed.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Each of our panelists on this panel are 3 invited to testify for five minutes each, and we will 4 reserve 15 minutes for question and answer from our
5 commissioners.

6 So the panel is yours, gentlemen.

7 MR. CREIGHTON: So thank you for having me.
8 My name is Tyler Creighton. I'm the assistant director at 9 Common Cause Massachusetts with Pam. So you guys already 10 kind of heard what Common Cause does. I think Pam touched 11 a little bit on the work we do around Election Protection,
12 but just a little overview.

13 Election Protection is a national initiative
14 led by Lawyers' Committee and the other groups across the 15 country to combat a concerted effort to suppress voting
16 rights and also problems with unintentional problems of 17 election administration, and just making sure that voters
18 have the correct information, are able to cast their votes
19 on election day.

20 Common Cause has been involved with these 21 efforts in Massachusetts for a number of years. In 2012,
22 we teamed up with the ACLU, MassVOTE, the Lawyers'
23 Committee, and others to recruit and train and deploy about 24 150 poll monitors across the state, primarily in Boston,
25 Worcester, Springfield, and a couple of other urban areas.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 The poll monitors, you know, passed out accurate
3 information to voters about when the polls were open, what 4 sort of identification they needed to provide.

5 There was a lot of problems with voters
6 going to the wrong polling location. It was the first
7 election with new districts. So we helped voters find
8 their correct polling locations, made sure poll workers
9 were doing their jobs correctly and according to the law.

10 There are, you know, as you mentioned, some 11 poll workers that just don't know all of the intricacies,
12 making sure that they were applying the law appropriately,
13 and others that are intentionally flouting the law, either
14 by asking for the wrong types of ID or, in some cases,
15 actually telling people how to vote on ballot questions.
16 And, you know, we tried to alert authorities if there are 17 any ballot bullies, which I think Chris will touch on a 18 little bit more, since Worcester has been an area where,
19 you know, groups have actively tried to suppress voting
20 rights.

21 I want to talk a little bit about some work
22 that we did in Lawrence last year. There was a mayoral
23 election in November. We in -- we got a report that was 24 actually put out by the Lawrence Eagle-Tribune that there
25 were a lot of election irregularities up in Lawrence during

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 the mayoral primary race. This included things like
3 candidates or campaign workers electioneering in polling
4 locations and trying to tell people how to vote within the 5 polling location itself.

6 There was reports that voters that weren't
7 on the rolls were coming to the poll worker check-in desk
8 and being able to get ballots even though they weren't on 9 the rolls. Problems with poll workers looking over ballots
10 and, you know, stepping on the secret -- the idea of a 11 secret ballot, and just general confusion and a chaos
12 within the location.

13 So we, in kind of a rapid-response way,
14 recruited about 25 poll workers to go up in Lawrence and 15 spend the day up there. I was up there all day driving
16 around to different polling locations, in particular, ones
17 that had been identified during the primary as particularly 18 problematic.

19 The Secretary of State actually ended up
20 deploying, I think, three to five monitors himself, 21 including his general counsel, that drove around with the 22 Lawrence city clerk to make sure there wasn't any -- any 23 problems.

24 And by and large, it was a relatively 25 successful election, and we didn't end up seeing a lot of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 problems, but I think in many ways it was because of this 3 increased presence and watch -- watchdog capacity that both
4 we were involved in and the Secretary of State.

5 We did see problems with signage; that was 6 something across the board, not adequate signage as to 7 where the polling location was, both from the street and 8 once you kind of got up to the building. Continued to see
9 some problems with secret ballots and poll workers, I
10 think, unintentionally looking over ballots, not really 11 understanding the importance of the secret ballot.

12 But by and large, things went quite 13 smoothly, and we were -- we were glad to be up there. But,
14 you know, it's not something that I think should be 15 necessary that we should have to, you know, have these poll
16 monitors up there, and I think, as the previous panel
17 touched on, there's a number of election administration
18 solutions that we could implement legislatively to solve 19 some of these issues. So thank you.

20 MR. HALL: Thank you.

21 MR. ROBARGE: Good morning. My name is 22 Chris Robarge, and I am the Central Mass. field coordinator 23 for the ACLU of Massachusetts. And for the purposes of 24 some of the Election Protection work we've done in 2012, I 25 was one of the folks who coordinated and organized our

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING
2 efforts in central Massachusetts.

3 So I want to apologize in advance. I'm 4 going to have a really hard time doing this in five
5 minutes. I've been trying to figure out what I can pare
6 down. So I will do my best. I may have to beg for an 7 extra minute.

8 MR. DUNNE: Use some of his time.

9 MR. ROBARGE: I'll use his time.

10 MR. CREIGHTON: We do have Q&A after as 11 well, so.

12 MR. ROBARGE: That's true.

13 So, and for the purposes of being brief, I'm 14 going to mention two groups. I will just explain them very 15 briefly now. If you have further questions about them, I'd 16 be happy to try to answer them. But two groups that I'll 17 reference in my testimony will be Activate Worcester and 18 Show ID to Vote.

19 Activate Worcester is a fairly prototypical
20 voter integrity, quote/unquote, so-called voter integrity 21 organization that doesn't actually seem to do a lot of 22 voter integrity work, but tends to push more for ballot
23 challenges and things of that nature.

24 Show ID to Vote is pretty self-explanatory
25 with what they do by the name of their organization.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 They're ostensibly an organization that seeks to promote
3 the idea of us having a voter ID law but in reality
4 sometimes tends to seemingly misguide folks into believing
5 that we currently have a voter ID law.

6 So that's a very brief description of those
7 two, and then I will talk about our experience in Worcester
8 between September and November of 2012, which was our last 9 major election.

10 So in June of 2012, we began organizing a 11 voter protection network in Central Massachusetts in 12 conjunction with the statewide Election Protection
13 organization that was developed for the elections of 2012
14 with all the groups that have already been mentioned.

15 In September of 2012, September 7th,
16 specifically, it was a Thursday primary, we had a -- a 17 number of primary races across the state, including a race
18 in the Worcester 15th. We were primarily organizing for 19 the November election, but we did decide to put out sort of 20 a skeleton crew of folks, and I had given people my 21 information and told them to let me know if there were any 22 issues.

23 On the morning of September 7th, I started 24 to receive calls, probably around 8:00 or 9:00 in the 25 morning, that there were voter intimidation issues

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 happening primarily at the 50 Murray Avenue polling
3 location, and that is Ward 10, Precincts 3 and 5, for 4 anyone who's counting, in Worcester. The initial complaint
5 that I received was that there were challenges being made 6 for voters who were trying to bring voting assistance in 7 with them, so another person who they could bring into the 8 polling location with them, and that there were some 9 challenges happening around that.

10 When I arrived at 50 Murray Avenue a short 11 time later, I observed not only that issue but several 12 other issues, which I'll try to just quickly highlight.
13 The issues included ballots being challenged for people
14 bringing voting assistants into the polls, for voting
15 assistants specifically who were wearing Neighbor to 16 Neighbor T-shirts, anyone who was speaking Spanish or any 17 other non-English language in the polling location, or, in 18 some cases, seemingly for no reason other than that the 19 potential voter had a Latino-sounding name.

20 In addition, observers were directly
21 confronting and engaging with voters in an intimidating
22 manner, they were photographing their identification when 23 it was presented to poll workers, and they were videotaping
24 people in one of the two precincts, up-close videotaping.

25 An observer that is known to me as a member

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 of Activate Worcester had also set herself up in one of the 3 two precincts as the first point of contact, so she was 4 actually set up in front of the check-in table, and she 5 would be the first person you'd encounter before you
6 actually got to a clerk. And that was an activity that was 7 being allowed by one of the two clerks that was there.

8 There was another observer who was in the 9 other precinct who had refused to identify herself and was 10 essentially just getting into verbal altercations with 11 voters, challenging ballots, verbally engaging with voters
12 in an intimidating manner.

13 Having personally observed all of the above,
14 there's no doubt in my mind that voters were intimidated,
15 ballots were challenged without any legal basis, and that 16 potential voters were scared into declining to participate
17 in the election.

18 Murray Ave. was definitely the worse of the 19 problems. It was definitely by no means the only place
20 where there were problems.

21 One of the other pieces that I wanted to 22 highlight, speaking of the Show ID to Vote folks, rather, 23 there is another polling location nearby, which is the 24 Belmont Street Towers, and at the Belmont Street Towers, I 25 was sent over to -- to check out a report that I had gotten

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 that there were people from the group that were outside
3 that were actually asking people to show them their 4 identification on their way into the polling place. They 5 were actually out in the back parking lot. They had been 6 asked to move along by someone else, another citizen,
7 before I arrived. But I did speak to several people who'd
8 had that experience.

9 We had a great deal of testimony in the 10 coming weeks after this all came to light. There were 11 reports in the paper. Several rules were changed for how 12 observers, specifically, were handled in elections. And 13 our election in November did go quite a bit more smoothly.
14 We had a lot less problems. I would attribute that both to 15 the changes that were made by the election commission and 16 the fact that we had a very robust presence. We were in 17 essentially every polling location at some point or another
18 during the day.

19 The last thing I just wanted to talk about 20 quickly, it was mentioned in the last panel, a lot of folks
21 have talked to you about the election modernization
22 legislation that's currently in the State House. One piece 23 that I wanted to highlight as a serious, serious problem in 24 Worcester that I'm hoping this legislation will be able to 25 solve is the issue of inactive voting.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So Worcester is one of the largest 3 communities that actively uses response or nonresponse to 4 the city census as a primary basis for determining voter
5 activity. Thus, one can vote in every election, like I do,
6 and they can also be rendered an inactive voter, like I was 7 in 2012, as a result of not returning their city census.

8 The census is mailed to the last address
9 that the clerk has for you, which may or may not be where 10 you live, and I'm sure you can imagine, particularly in a 11 city that is very heavy on renters, many times where you
12 were in last November or December is not where you are now.

13 If you're rendered inactive, it's required
14 that you show proof of residence and you also sign a voter
15 affidavit. This creates a huge logjam in polling locations 16 where there are many inactive voters who have to wait in 17 line for a warden. The warden is the only person, 18 apparently, in Worcester at least, who can give you the 19 voter affidavit.

20 It also creates a de facto show ID to vote
21 situation. People are being asked for ID. They should be 22 asked for proof of residency, but essentially the shorthand
23 that winds up developing again and again is, you know, "Can 24 I have your ID?"

25 According to statistics from the city, this

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 problem disproportionately affects people of color in 3 Worcester, particularly our Latino and Southeast Asian 4 communities. I don't have the numbers with me,
5 unfortunately, but I believe for the Southeast Asian 6 community, it was almost a twofold increase in terms of 7 folks who were inactive.

8 The city census, I should mention quickly,
9 is only sent in English. So if English is not a language
10 you read or understand, it would be very difficult to 11 understand what you're supposed to do with it even if you
12 receive it.

13 The bill that is in conference committee
14 currently contains a component that would change how 15 inactive voting is defined, and it would change it from a 16 response to the city census or nonresponse to the city
17 census to, I believe, a failure to vote in two consecutive 18 federal elections. I just wanted to highlight this piece.
19 It's not something I hear a lot of people talking about;
20 it's not one of the marquee items of the bill. But it's so 21 important; particularly in a place like Worcester, it would 22 have a huge impact on helping people be able to go to the 23 polls and alleviate these logjams that we have at the polls
24 and also this ID situation that we're encountering.

25 So thank you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

3 MR. ROBARGE: Thank you for the extra time.

4 MR. HALL: Any questions from our
5 commissioners?6 MS. WRIGHT: Sure. I'd love to hear more
7 about the changes in procedures that were put into place
8 between the primary and the general election that you said
9 alleviated the situation somewhat, and then any other
10 commentary you might have about does Massachusetts need 11 stronger protections against unfounded challenges at the 12 ballot box itself?13 MR. ROBARGE: Sure. So some of the -- some 14 of the procedures that were -- that were either highlighted 15 or altered included the -- the real definition of the -- I 16 believe the law says for observers that you're supposed to 17 stay behind the guardrail. If you've been to polling
18 locations, as I'm sure many of you have or all of you have,
19 there doesn't tend to be a guardrail to be behind. So what 20 the city actually did was they made tape guardrails. This 21 was definitely effective in keeping observers in specific 22 places.23 Not to, you know, to deviate too far, I
24 actually thought that it was probably a little bit too far.
25 It made it difficult to observe what was happening out in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 the voting area. So it really kind of dealt with how all
3 observers were treated instead of addressing conduct. But 4 it was effective, at least, in keeping people in their 5 area. Observers were also asked to identify themselves,
6 although that was not required. But they were also asked
7 to wear a badge that said that they were an observer.

8 So one of the problems we've had is that 9 with these situations, someone comes up to the check-in or 10 check-out table, and someone's right there; they're behind 11 the table, which is where observers usually are, and 12 they're just sort of yelling, and someone's taking 13 instructions from the person who's yelling at them the 14 loudest, not really understanding that they're not a poll
15 worker. They're just there; ostensibly they're there to 16 observe. So poll workers -- I'm sorry. Observers were 17 asked to identify themselves.

18 I think those were the primary changes,
19 other than the city also brought in some extra assistant
20 commissioners so they'd have more manpower. They did offer
21 some retrainings or refresher courses for the existing poll
22 workers. They also trained the police, which hadn't
23 happened in Worcester in years. The police that monitor
24 the polls were actually given a poll worker training so 25 that they understood what the rules were.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So those were some of the changes that were 3 made. And, I'm sorry, I've forgotten your second question.

4 MS. WRIGHT: Do you think Massachusetts
5 needs stronger laws or changes in its laws to deal with 6 this problem?

7 MR. ROBARGE: I mean I certainly think that 8 what -- it needs to be taken more seriously. My personal 9 opinion is that there is a fairly good structure of laws
10 dealing with the observer process.

11 What hasn't happened so well in the past,
12 particularly in Worcester or from my experience, at least,
13 in Worcester, is an understanding of the officials in the 14 polling place as to what they can and can't do, which,
15 again, leads in situations where you might have even a poll
16 worker or maybe even a warden who is being told what to do
17 by an observer. And we had observers telling poll workers
18 that challenged ballots go in the same place as provisional
19 ballots, and they did it, because they didn't understand 20 what the rule was.

21 So I think the enforcement of bad
22 behavior -- or in dealing with bad behavior consistently is 23 important, and also making sure that the poll workers are 24 very, very clear on the rules and very confident so that 25 they can feel empowered that they know what the rules are,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 regardless of what someone is yelling, is also very 3 important.

4 MR. DUNNE: Mr. Robarge, tell me, if you
5 would, please, how do you qualify to get one of these 6 observer badges?

7 MR. ROBARGE: Anyone, in my understanding at 8 least, of state election laws, certainly in Worcester,
9 anyone can walk in to observe a polling location. You
10 don't have to be a part of an organization; you don't have 11 to qualify in any manner. Any citizen can walk into any 12 polling location and say, "I would like to observe at this 13 polling location," and they'll say, "Okay. This is the 14 place for observers," and you're in.

15 MR. DUNNE: But there's no official badge?
16 You made reference to something of that sort.

17 MR. ROBARGE: In Worcester, between -- after 18 what happened in September of 2012 in the primaries, the 19 city -- the city created an observer badge that said "Poll 20 Observer," and they asked that when poll observers came in 21 and identified themselves as poll observers that they be 22 given one of these badges and asked to wear it. It's 23 unclear to me what would have happened if someone said no.
24 To my knowledge, no one did. But that's where that process
25 began.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. DUNNE: Are there any guidelines with 3 regard to the legitimacy of an objection or an interruption
4 which a self-appointed observer might raise? I mean how do
5 you legitimize a challenge?

6 MR. ROBARGE: So there are. There's -- it
7 would be a lot to try to get into all of it, but for the 8 purposes of discussing quickly, let's talk about the 9 challenge ballot process.

10 So there -- there are supposed to be 11 guidelines, and this is, again, where knowing the 12 guidelines is so important. We had people who were 13 challenging -- just challenging ballots, just, you know, 14 one after the other, or about half the people who came in.

15 To make a challenge to a voter, you are 16 supposed to have specific knowledge that that voter is not 17 who they say that they are. If you don't have specific 18 knowledge to that, you know, to that point, you know, that 19 this voter says that they are Joe Smith, and I know that 20 Joe Smith is 23 years old, because it's here on my list, 21 and this person who's here is 90. Or I know Joe Smith and 22 that definitely is isn't Joe Smith. It's supposed to be 23 that general level of burden.

24 But what happens in practice, when you have 25 someone who is actively challenging and you have poll

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 workers who don't understand the rule, or in some cases who 3 might not necessarily mind the fact that there are so many 4 challenges happening. One of the issues we have in 5 Worcester continuing is that many of the folks who had been 6 doing this observation process are now poll workers. So
7 that's -- it's -- that's supposed to be the sort of level
8 of proof that you need. And so it needs -- it needs to be 9 held that way in practice so that people aren't just 10 blindly challenging.

11 MR. HALL: I think it's worth adding there's 12 some -- there are other people here --

13 MR. CREIGHTON: So there's a list of items, 14 not just on, you know, you're not who you say you are, but 15 it could be that you're not registered at that address, or 16 any number of -- there's a number of things. I don't 17 remember all the specifics. And you just have to name one 18 of these six things or seven things that are listed in the 19 law. But as far as I'm aware, there isn't either strict 20 rules or enforcement around, you know, providing concrete 21 evidence. You just have to be able to name one of these 22 items.

23 In any case --

24 MR. HALL: I think the Secretary of State
25 offered some clarification on the regulations that have

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 been previously promulgated on voter challenges, and I
3 think that was in light of, maybe it was 2012 or it was 4 2010, a special election or primary election that happened
5 in -- there were some issues around Worcester, and so the 6 Secretary of the Commonwealth re-issued these regulations
7 with some clarification specifically directed towards poll
8 observers.

9 So there is a regulation in place that both
10 Chris and Tyler, the comments that you made, are a point
11 regarding some of the examples that they use for how to 12 make challenges or what's required, but I don't think it
13 goes into specific documentary proof that is needed.

14 MR. ROBARGE: And I should just preface by 15 saying that my knowledge of how it is handled is with, A, 16 from 2012 primarily, and B, from the documentation that the 17 city gives to poll workers and not from the state law.
18 They should -- you know, presumably they should be one and 19 the same. That's where the information should be coming 20 from. But that's where I was drawing my information from.

21 MR. WILLIAMS: Mr. Robarge, you had 22 mentioned in your presentation that there were voters who 23 were intimidated and they were afraid, and I wanted to make 24 sure: Was that at the Belmont Street Towers only or was 25 that in several of the locations?

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. ROBARGE: There were issues in several
3 locations. The hot spot in that particular primary was -- 4 was actually not at the Belmont Street location but at the 5 50 Murray Avenue. But it did happen at other locations,
6 including the Belmont Street location.

7 Essentially, we had -- we had other races
8 where people were going to the polls, but we had a race in 9 the Worcester 15th that was a hotly contested primary. And 10 so those -- pretty much all of those spots were the spots
11 where the most voters were and where the most observers
12 were and where the issues came from. I spoke mostly about 13 50 Murray Avenue, mainly because it was the worst place
14 that I saw, and --

15 MR. WILLIAMS: I'm sorry. Secondary
16 question would be is that were there any identifiers for 17 the folks who, I believe you said these were observers that 18 were in the parking lot, and some of them were in parked 19 cars, some with identifying nature of the groups that were 20 actually intimidating or causing fear for the voters?

21 MR. ROBARGE: So there's sort of different
22 specific issues. At Belmont Street where we had the issue
23 with people who were asking voters on their way into the 24 building, asking them to show them their identification
25 before they went in to vote, those folks had literature

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 with them, the Show ID to Vote literature with them. So
3 based on the information that I have about that incident, I
4 would presume that that was the group that was asking 5 people.

6 In terms of some of the issues with poll
7 observers, the poll observers, in my experience, have not 8 generally been asked to or been particularly willing to 9 identify either themselves or who they are with.

10 MR. WILLIAMS: Very helpful. Thank you.

11 MS. WRIGHT: Did you observe people actually
12 turning away and not voting because of the intimidation
13 that they were experiencing?

14 MR. ROBARGE: I did not. I was inside of 15 the polling location, so I did not see anyone leaving.

16 MS. WRIGHT: Okay.

17 MR. HALL: We have three minutes remaining.
18 So if there are any other questions.

19 MR. DUNNE: I wonder if we could focus our 20 attention on another subject. When I was at Justice, I was 21 charged with enforcement of the Americans with Disabilities
22 Act. And you made reference to a situation where there was 23 a challenge or a question raised with regard to an eligible
24 voter to bring a person as an assistant to aid them casting
25 their ballot. Can you tell me about that, and have you

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 heard about such situation and how those have been 3 resolved?

4 MR. ROBARGE: I can tell you about the 5 process of bringing a voting assistant or about the issues
6 that were happening?

7 MR. DUNNE: The issues.

8 MR. ROBARGE: Okay. So the issues that were 9 happening primarily seemed to be around -- they primarily 10 seemed to be around the group Neighbor to Neighbor.
11 Neighbor to Neighbor is a statewide community organization.
12 They have offices and a fairly strong presence in 13 Worcester. And there had been prior questions that had 14 been brought before our election commission on whether or 15 not they could wear identifying shirts into polling places
16 at all, and it had been determined by our elections
17 commission and the city clerk that they could.

18 And so most of the questions that -- or most 19 of the issues, rather, that I experienced at 50 Murray
20 Avenue around people wanting to bring voting assistants
21 into the polls with them were people who were -- who were 22 not -- people who were wearing Neighbor to Neighbor shirts
23 who were being challenged by poll observers and being told 24 by poll observers that they shouldn't be allowed to go and 25 assist those people with their ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. CREIGHTON: And, in general, we're
3 talking about language assistance, not generally disability
4 assistance. These are Latino voters in most cases, or you
5 had you have a big Southeast Asian population as well?

6 MR. ROBARGE: Yeah. I mean and other
7 populations. But a good deal of people who do not speak a 8 language that is addressed with a ballot, at least in 9 Worcester.

10 But I mean in Massachusetts you can bring -- 11 I think the only exceptions are you can't bring your boss
12 and you can't bring your union steward. But you can bring 13 anyone else you want for any reason or no reason whatsoever
14 into a polling location with you. That's your choice.
15 Certainly if -- you know, there are situations where a 16 voter may be asked, "Do you want this person to be with 17 you," and if the answer is anything besides a confident,
18 resounding yes, they should be asked to leave. But people
19 do have that right for essentially any reason.

20 MR. DUNNE: Other than that one incident,
21 have you found any kind of a pattern of practices with 22 regard to discouraging the use of assistants in voting?

23 MR. ROBARGE: I would say that between that 24 election in not just that location but in other locations,
25 and some of the other elections around that time that I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 have observed in Worcester, many of the challenges seemed
3 to arise around language issues. So "I object to you
4 bringing in someone to assist you in voting because you
5 speak Spanish or a non-English language," or "I object to 6 you speaking in a non-English language in the polling
7 place." Those sorts of things. That to me, my observation
8 would be that that was a major unifying factor in many of 9 the challenges.

10 MR. DUNNE: Thank you.

11 MR. HALL: All right. We are at our time
12 for this panel. So, gentlemen, we appreciate your 13 testimony and the work that you all are doing in this 14 field. We appreciate it. Thank you.

15 We have come to the point where we are 16 taking open testimony, and we would just ask that the 17 people have a list of several names of people who have 18 signed up for open testimony. If you are here and you
19 would like to testify and you have not signed up, please do
20 so.

21 We're going to ask that the panelists --
22 that you give us your name and what organization you're 23 representing, and if you're not representing a particular
24 organization, at least what municipality or city or state
25 you're from. We're giving each individual three minutes to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 testify. After that we will follow with any questions or 3 concerns.

4 And so the first person that we'll have
5 testify for this open period is Lisa Danetz from Demos.

6 MS. DANETZ: Good morning. I'll just get my 7 stuff out. All right. I will try to move it. Good 8 morning, commissioners.

9 MR. DUNNE: Good morning.

10 MS. DANETZ: I am Lisa Danetz from Demos. I
11 am co-counsel for the New England Area Conference of the 12 NAACP and New England United for Justice in a lawsuit
13 against the Commonwealth for various state agencies and the 14 Secretary of the Commonwealth's failure to ensure that 15 voter registration services are provided by public 16 agencies, and in particular public assistance agencies, as 17 required by the federal National Voter Registration Act.

18 And I think it's important, although I think
19 many of you here today know this, but I think it's worth
20 noting that the NVRA requires that voter registration
21 services be offered in an affirmative way by public
22 assistance offices and agencies, because low-income people
23 are less likely to have cars and less likely to go to the 24 Registry of Motor Vehicles and therefore less likely to 25 come into contact with what is viewed as the primary

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 location to access voter registration opportunities. And 3 the motivation behind the NVRA is to provide voter
4 registration at those government agencies where people come
5 into contact and where they kind of do their business with 6 the government.

7 The lawsuit was filed in the spring of 2012,
8 about six months prior to the presidential election, and is 9 ongoing. I -- I'm going to give you some of the background
10 factual information. Just to be clear, I am not going to 11 discuss much of any of the discovery that has come up 12 during the lawsuit, because there's a protective order in 13 place, and so I'm somewhat limited.

14 I see I have one minute, and I'm just in my 15 introduction. So I better get going.

16 MR. HALL: We'll give you a little extra
17 time.

18 MS. DANETZ: Okay. So let me just get to 19 the bottom line, then.

20 I think the first thing is that there is an 21 enormous voter registration gap in Massachusetts. So in 22 2010, a census data showed that the gap was 18.7 percentage 23 points; in 2008, a presidential election year, the gap was 24 28 percent points. And it's notable that the voter
25 registration rate for the low-income population of citizens

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 in the Commonwealth was virtually identical in the 3 presidential and non-presidential election years, which is 4 pretty significant. The entire reason for the increased
5 gap between 2008 and 2010 was because our affluent
6 citizens, and those are in households making $100,000 or 7 more, were registered at 10 percentage points higher, but 8 there was no notable shift for our low-income citizens
9 between those federal election years. It's that kind of 10 problem that the NVRA aims to address.

11 So how do we know that Massachusetts is not 12 really doing its job here? First, the state provides data 13 to the EAC on a biannual basis. And just by way of 14 example, in the -- and it's a two-year reporting period.
15 In the '99-2000 period, Massachusetts reported that just 16 shy of 27,000 voter registration applications came in from 17 public assistance offices. 10 years later, 2009-2010, 18 which was the reporting period immediately preceding our 19 lawsuit, that number was down to just over 2,000 in the 20 two-year period. So a reduction of 92.5 percent.

21 There was a ground investigation done by our 22 clients, New England United for Justice. They visited six 23 DTA offices around the state, and they found a widespread 24 failure to offer voter registration opportunities.

25 I see I'm about to get the zero.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Of the 174 public assistance clients
3 interviewed, 73 percent, or 129 individuals, reported they 4 did not receive voter registration in any way. That means
5 there was not the required written offer of voter
6 registration; there was not a voter registration
7 application provided to them; nobody asked them orally;
8 nobody offered them assistance. There was no way, no how,
9 no voter registration offered in almost three-quarters of 10 the time.

11 The offices similarly didn't provide voter 12 registration applications to people who didn't respond to 13 any voter registration question, and they also didn't have 14 voter registration materials on hand in the office.

15 I see that I've been told to stop. I would 16 just like to make two additional points if that's okay.

17 I've kind of talked about the facts that 18 we're -- that underlay the lawsuit. I do want to note that 19 in the summer of 2012, the parties entered into an interim 20 agreement in lieu of a preliminary injunction under which 21 the Commonwealth took various remedial efforts to address
22 some, although not all, of the systemic problems.

23 As part of that, the Commonwealth sent out a 24 recapture mailing to 478,000 households. At a minimum,
25 32,000 voter registration applications were returned. It

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 is likely more. We don't know about the return rate to 3 local elections officials directly.

4 And I think it's really important to keep 5 that return in mind, that 32,000 from the one-time mailing,
6 because from my conversations with folks at the state table
7 here in Massachusetts, I know that all of the organizations
8 focusing their voter registration efforts in low-income
9 communities collectively collected and submitted 19,000
10 voter registration applications from around the state. So
11 from that you can see just how important the state's role
12 in providing voter registration opportunities to our low-
13 income citizens actually is.

14 So thank you for giving and extended my time
15 to speak today.

16 MR. HALL: You're welcome, and thank you for 17 your testimony and work.

18 Are there any questions from our
19 commissioners?

20 MS. DANETZ: Come on.

21 MR. HALL: Okay. I have one. I probably 22 shouldn't. I'm counsel on this case as well.

23 How many other lawsuits like this have been 24 filed?

25 MS. DANETZ: Well, we have represented

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 parties around the country. I think -- I don't know the 3 number offhand, but I'm going to guess that there have been 4 around six or eight lawsuits, but we've also, in addition,
5 had pre-litigation settlements with several states. So
6 we've probably worked on this issue in between, you know,
7 15 and 20 states. We don't have it concluded in all those 8 places, but we've probably concluded in maybe 13 or 14.

9 MR. HALL: And what are some of those 10 states -- where there's been some pre-litigation
11 resolution, what are some of the states and what have some 12 of the resolutions been?

13 MS. DANETZ: Sure. I'm going to actually 14 just highlight two states in particular that I think are 15 worthwhile, one that is an outcome that resulted from 16 litigation and one that was a pre-litigation settlement.

17 So in Ohio, which we were part of the co-
18 counsel team in litigation, that was filed in 2006. I mean 19 that's probably the state where we have the most 20 experience, because we went through two and a half years of 21 litigation, and then the settlement agreement was, I think 22 it was three and a half years. It expired just less than a 23 year ago.

24 And in Ohio, before the lawsuit and before
25 any intervention, the state was seeing about 1775 voter

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 registration applications per month submitted statewide
3 from public assistance offices, and in the first few years
4 after the settlement agreement was entered into, the state
5 averaged about 15 or 16 thousand voter registration
6 applications per month. So an enormous increase.

7 I would say there was somewhat of a decline
8 in the last year of the settlement agreement, but I would 9 note that even with that decline, the rate of voter
10 registration applications coming in through Ohio public
11 agencies is higher than in almost any state. I mean if you
12 look at the number of voter registration applications
13 coming in through the agencies compared to covered
14 transactions, you know, those times when voter registration
15 needs to be offered, you know, it went from something like 16 40 percent to 20 percent. So it's still quite high.

17 The other state that I would highlight is 18 Alabama. Alabama is a state where we certainly did not 19 expect to have a cooperative negotiation. And we brought 20 the problems to the Secretary of State of Alabama, and she 21 corralled all the agencies, and we did have, you know, a
22 year and a half of negotiation, and finally came to a 23 settlement agreement, it was a few months ago, but now I'm 24 forgetting the exact date.

25 But Alabama agreed to a comprehensive set of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 practices, both in the office, in terms of oversight and 3 tracking and monitoring, and that, you know, it didn't 4 necessitate litigation and they too, actually, like 5 Massachusetts in the interim agreement, Alabama on its 6 own -- well, we certainly suggested it, but it wasn't part 7 of the agreement. They did a mailing as well to their 8 Medicaid and other public assistance, you know, SNAP
9 caseload.

10 Did that answer your question?

11 MR. HALL: It did. Thank you.

12 MS. WRIGHT: One more softball question for 13 you, Lisa. You know, since we've begun this work, and much 14 of it is in partnership with groups like Project Vote
15 and --

16 MS. DANETZ: Yes.

17 MS. WRIGHT: -- Lawyers' Committee and other
18 partners, what's the total number of voter registration
19 applications that's been generated at public assistance
20 agencies nationwide?

21 MS. DANETZ: From around the country, the 22 numbers that have been generated through our work with our 23 partners is 2.5 million. And that's 2.5 million above and 24 beyond what you would otherwise expect.

25 Any other softball questions?

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: Are any of those mailings or 3 voter registrations directed by party?

4 MS. DANETZ: No, none of them are. And, in 5 fact, the NVRA includes strict prohibitions against 6 partisan influence and manipulation, and you can be 7 prosecuted for that.

8 MR. HALL: Okay. If there are no other
9 questions, thank you very much. Thank you for your time --

10 MS. DANETZ: Thank you.

11 MR. HALL: -- and thank you for your 12 testimony.

13 The next witness we're calling is former 14 representative John Businger, who was the chairman of the 15 Mass. Joint Committee on Election between '85 and '91 and a 16 member of the Commission on Election Laws between '71
17 and '99.

18 So watch out for our timekeeper, three 19 minutes, and we will ask questions afterwards.

20 MR. BUSINGER: Well, I could talk about this 21 all day, having been one of the few people in America,
22 probably, who's served 28 years on a committee on election
23 laws. I was chairman for six years, and also I was the 24 originator of mail-in voter registration in this state,
25 based on a book by Frances Fox Piven and Richard Cloward

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 from BU in 1985. I also was the main sponsor of Motor
3 Voter registration, working with Human SERVE, an affiliate
4 of the Service Employees International Union.

5 Without cutting into my time, I'd like to 6 ask a question, because I'm going to touch on it. Did you
7 say that Maine has a different system on voter 8 identification than Massachusetts? They have to follow the 9 federal law, don't they?

10 MS. COBB: I was talking about a different 11 state. I think it was Connecticut. So all they do is they 12 are required to ask for photo identification.

13 MR. BUSINGER: Under the federal law?

14 MS. COBB: Under -- no. No, no, no. The 15 state says that they would like -- that the poll worker has 16 to ask for identification.

17 MR. BUSINGER: To everybody?

18 MS. COBB: To everybody. But if the person
19 doesn't have --

20 MR. BUSINGER: Oh, right, that's true. But 21 in Massachusetts, we don't do that.

22 MS. COBB: You are not required to ask --

23 MR. BUSINGER: Right.

24 MS. COBB: -- for identification except in 25 the case of a first-time voter.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. BUSINGER: Right. Okay. Okay.

3 Actually, the lack of -- I want to analogize the 4 discrimination in registration to that in voting, okay, and 5 I'll tell you about the root causes.

6 It's very popular to talk about the Voting
7 Rights Act in the '60s and the Civil Rights Act, mainly 8 thought to be based on race, a very important, obviously,
9 topic and a target of much of discrimination. But there's 10 other kinds of discrimination we have to be very aware of, 11 and I think it all goes to one root cause, which I'll 12 mention.

13 There's by gender. I remember a young woman
14 calling me in the early '70s crying at the end of a desk, a 15 table, in the Boston Election Commission. The clerk or the 16 assistant, whoever it was, harassed the young lady and 17 said, "Why don't you go back to your suburb." And I said, 18 "You don't have to do that."

19 There's discrimination by age, young people,
20 particularly. I remember I found a young woman, I still 21 remember her name, Patricia Garrett, to sue my own town.
22 They weren't letting her register. She was young, and she 23 was also a student, another category, because there's 24 discrimination by type.

25 There's discrimination by perceived income

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 levels. There's discrimination based, I think, on all of 3 these things, on political philosophy. People who run
4 elections are often the people who are the ins, and it's us
5 against them.

6 And while the comment about Mitt Romney
7 winning the election because of voter ID in Pennsylvania
8 got a lot of publicity last year, I would think an equally 9 salient comment which didn't get as much publicity was the 10 comment by the Iowa Republican Secretary of State saying we 11 need all these restrictive laws because elections are 12 closer than they used to be. Now, who's he kidding?
13 Elections have always been close. I think they just want 14 to win more. There's much more discord between the 15 parties.

16 I remember when John F. Kennedy was 17 president, he had a commission, and, unfortunately, like a 18 lot of voting rights issues, they get ignored; they get on 19 the shelf. In 1962 there were razor-thin elections across 20 the country. I believe one involved the governor of 21 Minnesota and one the governor of Maine.

22 So there is this discrimination across a
23 whole way of thinking, both in registration, and there's a 24 lot of people I think -- we talk about voting being a 25 right, but a lot of people really think they shouldn't

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 question authority. I remember a young class came in front
3 of me in the '70s. Voting is a privilege. I said no, it's 4 a right. Because if you think it's a privilege, you're 5 going to not complain. You're going to think you're so
6 honored just to vote. It's a right. Registration is only 7 an administrative procedure to effectuate that right.

8 Let me get to another question. I'm taking 9 a little bit of time because I want to answer some things
10 that came up here. One was a point about clerks.

11 The League of Women Voters, I think in the 12 late '70s or '80's, did a survey across the country. Every 13 group, including the most conservative groups, the chambers
14 of commerce, the VFW, voting rights groups, they're all way
15 above 50 percent for the changes. The clerks were 16 uniformly at 20 to 30. Why? Because, again, they tend to 17 represent the ins. They tend to be more politically 18 conservative, though it's been changing a lot in 19 Massachusetts.

20 And I think also clerks know that they are 21 going to be at the bottom of the totem poll in their towns
22 for getting money, because their selectmen or their city
23 counsel aren't going to give them money. And even 24 progressive reps oftentimes will vote with their clerks,
25 because you want to be friendly with your local clerk.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Now, I want to say this: We do have a lot
3 of changes here in Massachusetts in the last 40 years.
4 We're a lot better than we were 40 years ago. In fact,
5 we're fortunate now to have a very effective Secretary of 6 State, Bill Galvin. He's also very adept and eloquent in 7 resisting on -- in fact, he had a town clerk as his 8 opponent last time -- in arguing against restrictive laws
9 and procedures that stifle or suppress the right to vote.

10 And he's been an active member of our 11 Democratic state committee, appearing in front of us. I am 12 on our Democratic state committee. I'm part of the 13 committee that put some of these laws we're talking about 14 in front of the legislature. He's been a frequent guest on 15 the -- at the committee, and he's been a frequent help in 16 the State House in trying to get these laws passed, for 17 example, on early voting.

18 But the reality is there's still resistance.
19 No Secretary of State can do it alone. You need
20 legislative help, and it's the responsibility of all of us
21 in this room to go out and preach the gospel on these 22 issues so that we have a unified front so that we can 23 convince the legislature to change some of these laws.

24 I want to mention -- just end with a couple
25 of other things.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: Okay. We are at --

3 MR. BUSINGER: I would like to end with 4 this.

5 MR. HALL: Okay. Thank you.

6 MR. BUSINGER: You know what's the problem
7 with the voter ID? It's not just what all the commentators
8 say, many of whom politically are on my side. They're very 9 right to question how many people may not have one. But,
10 remember, the Tea Party likes to compare -- complain about 11 government, government has too much power over people. By 12 asking for voter ID, you're giving a government official,
13 somebody representing government, even if it be a poll
14 worker, the right to say, "Yeah, you have your voter ID, 15 but that doesn't look like you."

16 This kind of thing used to happen in the 17 state of registration, which is why I passed the affidavit
18 of registration law in 1972, getting rid of the ID
19 requirement. Because if the government official has all 20 the power and has the -- you have the burden of proof, they 21 can do anything they want. They can ask you any number of 22 questions until you answer it wrong. They can say you 23 don't have your voter -- "I don't see your voter ID. Your 24 picture, it's 20 years old. It doesn't look like you."

25 I'm also waiting for some well-off person

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 making six figures walking in the poll at quarter of 8:00
3 at night -- and I have experience with this, because I know
4 some of these people. They don't always take their wallet
5 to work. They don't always drive. They show up at the 6 poll at quarter of 8:00 and all of a sudden realize they 7 don't have their voter ID. Wait until they complain,
8 because, quite frankly, these laws, these voter ID laws,
9 discriminate against everybody.

10 And the last thing I want to answer is 11 somebody talked about the reprecincting. I know the 12 reason. I was the guy who fought for it. It took me a 13 while to find out what was going on, and I'm surprised that 14 nobody told the individual the law. It's from the 1920s,
15 like a lot of the laws, they exempt Boston from their laws.
16 It was Boston, quite frankly, that opposed my efforts to 17 get rid of the state census, and ironically that speaker
18 only got in trouble because the state census I had 19 abolished, and he wouldn't have been testifying, because 20 that was the first time we were using the federal census.

21 But the reality is Boston opposed it for a 22 very simple reason. The individuals in Boston, they get 23 elected every four years to their ward committees. You 24 start fooling around with precincts and wards, they're 25 running in hostile territory. So the reason the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 reprecincting was never done, and I know it for a fact, was 3 because it changes the who gets elected to the local 4 political party positions. And so Boston wanted to 5 maintain its pride and not reprecinct for years, and if 6 they're not -- either they're not telling the truth because 7 they don't know, or they know but they don't want to tell
8 anybody that it was a political reason.

9 So a lot of these issues are very political 10 at their core, and we have to get the politics on our side, 11 and that's the only way we're going to effect change, to 12 change the politics, to change who makes the decisions. To 13 elect a Secretary of State like a Bill Galvin who works
14 with his Democratic state committee, who works in his 15 political party, and like the legislators who will work
16 with their political party to get the kind of changes we 17 need so that people really can effectuate the right that is 18 so sacred, and that is the right to vote.

19 And I want to thank you, and I'll be happy
20 to answer any questions.

21 MR. HALL: Okay. Thank you very much for 22 your testimony. Any questions from our commissioners?
23 Okay.

24 MR. BUSINGER: My pleasure to speak in front
25 of you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: Thank you very much. And thank
3 you for your former years of service and your current --

4 MR. BUSINGER: And I will be happy to be a
5 resource to the committee on any of the issues you
6 encounter going around the country.

7 And if I have to say one thing to take
8 around the country, don't fall for this thing about 9 students not voting in their town, okay? For residence
10 voting purposes, physical presence plus intent to remain
11 indefinitely.

12 I remember in Cambridge one time, they 13 excluded students back in the '70s before this affidavit
14 took effect because the person was taking a vacation. That 15 person is no different than some contract employee who 16 comes to another state, okay, who's only going to be there
17 a short time. And where is that student going to vote?
18 You've got to vote somewhere. Are you going to vote back 19 in your parents' place? What if they moved to Florida from 20 Ohio?

21 MR. HALL: Yes. Thank you.

22 MR. BUSINGER: Then you have no place to
23 vote.

24 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

25 MR. BUSINGER: Please take that around.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 That's one of the craziest notions that students shouldn't
3 be able to vote in the town in which they reside.

4 Thank you.

5 MR. HALL: Thank you.

6 Our next witness is Jonathan Simon --
7 Simmons? Simon.

8 MR. SIMON: Simon.

9 MR. HALL: Simon. Thank you.

10 MR. SIMON: Hi. My name is Jonathan Simon.
11 I'm the executive director of Election Defense Alliance,
12 which is an organization founded in 2006 with the purpose
13 of restoring observable vote counting as the foundation for 14 American democracy.

15 I want to thank the commissioners and the 16 committee for staging this broad-based inquiry. So far, to 17 my view, it hasn't been quite broad based enough. So I 18 want to add something which probably has not been 19 discussed. I wasn't here for the whole morning's
20 proceedings.

21 But the preceding panel was nominally about 22 election protection, and we take a somewhat broader view of 23 election protection. And that comes down to the fact that 24 you can make a lot of things right with elections. But 25 it's all for naught if the security of the counting process

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 is inadequate or compromised. And the most direct and 3 pernicious way to negate hard-won voting rights is to 4 directly manipulate vote counts.

5 And we have a faith-based counting system in 6 America where the votes, the vast majority of the votes,
7 all but a sprinkling of the votes, are counted in 8 cyberspace, in the pitch dark of cyberspace. And my 9 colleagues and I, our experience with this is that we've 10 been doing election forensics, what we call election
11 forensics, which is trying to verify vote counts by 12 whatever means are available since 2002, and it hasn't been 13 encouraging.

14 You know, we live in a culture where, I
15 think it's become pretty obvious that it's a "just win"
16 culture, "just win, baby," and cheating is in many high-
17 stakes ventures, from sports to high finance to academia,
18 job applications even. It's become somewhat the norm.

19 And the security of cyberspace is also not 20 very commendable at this point. Target, banks, the IMF.
21 What contest, what stakes are higher and what prize greater
22 than control of the American government or state
23 governments in America?

24 And yet we entrust this counting process to 25 private corporations, and the vulnerability of this

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 counting process should be one of the things that is most 3 directly considered with regard to voting rights.

4 And, again, you know, when I talked to Tyler
5 about the testimony, he asked me to give him a synopsis,
6 and I said somewhat snarkily that three minutes would be a
7 synopsis, and like the other testifiers, I haven't, you
8 know, even broken the surface.

9 But what I do want to get to is the fact
10 that if we don't take very, very serious attention, pay
11 very serious attention to the way votes are counted, then 12 all the other things that we're discussing, access and 13 qualifications, voter ID, can be -- can be really rendered
14 almost useless because the votes, when cast, are not 15 necessarily going to be counted in a way that reflect the 16 voters' will in casting those votes.

17 And where we want to go with this is to have 18 observable vote counting. And there's a certain amount of 19 debate about what observable vote counting means and 20 entails. For some, it's hand counting paper ballots. For 21 others, it's a robust and well-administered audit process,
22 which is what I hope we're on the way to as part of the new 23 legislation here in Massachusetts. Because until now we've 24 had nothing. We've had no audits, no spot checks, zero.
25 And elections that really were anybody's guess as to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 whether the numbers that the computers were spitting out
3 reflected the votes that were being put in.

4 And I want to conclude with the fact that we
5 are discussing voting rights, but it's my very deeply held
6 belief that rights come with duties. And that if we want a 7 democracy on the cheap, where convenience rules, and we 8 don't want to really be bothered with the process of 9 counting, we've got it.

10 But the relatively trivial duty, much less
11 burdensome, let's say, than jury duty, to be participants
12 in the vote-counting process, to have hand-counted paper
13 ballots or seriously run audits, at the very least, is 14 something that we should very seriously consider adopting 15 if we believe we deserve a democracy.

16 MR. HALL: I'm sorry. Could you give me the 17 name of your organization again?

18 MR. SIMON: Election Defense Alliance, EDA
19 for short, dot org.

20 And I'd be happy to answer any questions.
21 I'm very well aware that this is not a comfortable topic.
22 We've been banging our heads against the wall for more than 23 a decade. It does seem that America -- you know, our 24 reputation as the beacon of democracy somewhat stands
25 against us in this area, because it becomes very hard to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 consider that our vote-counting process is no better than 3 many of those that we would find in the Third World and 4 send in observers and monitors and overturn elections, as 5 in the Ukraine or Kenya or one of those places. Our pride
6 militates against looking at ourselves with that same
7 vision.

8 MR. HALL: So are there any questions from 9 our commissioners?

10 MR. DUNNE: Yes. Mr. Simon, very 11 interesting observation. But tell me, can you give me an 12 example of how you would implement what you described as 13 observable vote-counting process? Who would do it? How 14 would it be done, by what authority?

15 MR. SIMON: Yes. Well, again, there's a 16 great deal of inertia that would have to be overcome,
17 because we've basically adopted with HAVA a fait accompli
18 of computerized vote counting, which seems to jibe with the 19 overall modernization of culture, which now, of course,
20 we're looking at with a bit of a cost/benefit analysis and 21 seeing that a lot of the modernization has led to other
22 problems.

23 But you could have hand-counting of paper
24 ballots. We've done an econometrics study of that. It 25 would require about four hours per voter lifetime to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 actually have volunteer hand-counters at all the polls for 3 the federal elections. Minimal federal and -- I'm sorry --
4 federal and statewide elections.

5 You could also have an audit system that 6 takes the problem of ballot custody very much to heart and 7 is willing to implement that audit, that sampling of 8 ballots or sampling of precincts, and human counting to 9 verify the count from the machines, but does it on election
10 night before those ballots leave and exit the chain of 11 custody and could be stored or substituted for in any 12 number of ways.

13 So an audit bill that is risk sensitive,
14 which I believe is, you know, one of the ones that has been 15 proposed -- there are several architects of that 16 approach -- really minimizes the amount of labor involved
17 in the process.

18 And I should say, you know, this is a lot of 19 topic to handle in a very short space. I have written a 20 book. I'd be very happy -- I brought some with me -- to 21 make it available on a complementary basis to each of the 22 commissioners. There's -- you know, there's bread and 23 cheese upon the shelf, and there's a lot to be found in 24 there that I wouldn't have time for today.

25 There are many in election integrity who

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 bristle at the idea of audits, feel that that is false
3 reassurance. I've gradually come around to the position
4 that if we're not going to see hand-counted paper ballots,
5 if that's too much of a leap culturally, in most places in 6 America, that we should at least take care to have a 7 verification process that's a hell of a lot better than 8 what we have now.

9 MR. DUNNE: Thank you very much.

10 MR. SIMON: You're welcome.

11 MR. HALL: Any additional questions from our
12 commissioners?

13 I thank you, Mr. Simon. And I believe on 14 behalf of myself and the other commissioners, we'd 15 certainly appreciate receiving a copy of your book. And 16 for yourself and any other of our witnesses, please feel 17 free to supplement any of your testimony with written 18 testimony that we'll continue to receive even after this 19 hearing today.

20 MR. SIMON: Thanks very much. And the book
21 is called Code Red, so you'll be able to identify it. And 22 it does contain within it, by way of appendices, a lot of 23 factual studies, evidentiary studies, forensic studies that 24 could help shed some light on these issues.

25 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So right now we have reached a breaking
3 point for the day, for now. We'll be taking a lunch break
4 from 12:30 to 1:30, at which point we will reconvene, and 5 from 1:30 to 2:10 -- okay. Sure. That's a good idea.

6 It may make sense at this point, there is a 7 second open testimony panel this afternoon from 2:10 to 8 3:30, but I think some of the commissioners have raised a 9 concern around whether or not there is somebody that may 10 need to testify for which coming back in the afternoon is 11 too much of a burden or difficulty to overcome, recognizing 12 that we'll be back in the afternoon and there will be this 13 opportunity. But if that is the case, I think we can make 14 one exception.

15 MS. HORTON: Have you guys all signed in?

16 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Yes.

17 MS. HORTON: Okay.

18 MR. FERRITER: I'd like to take one minute
19 of your time. Is that okay?

20 MR. HALL: That's fine.

21 MR. FERRITER: Thank you very much. Mike
22 Ferriter. I'm also with Election Defense Alliance. And 23 I'm very pleased that you're taking the time to listen to 24 me just for a second.

25 I just wanted to mention, I've worked with

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Jonathan for a long time. The depth of the knowledge that 3 he has is incredible. The book that you're going to read
4 will amaze you and frighten you, and it will also point to 5 the fact -- the reason I wanted to mention this is because 6 five other nations in the world have decided to not use
7 computers to count ballots, because, as most election-
8 counting specialists will tell you, anything electric can 9 be manipulated. It doesn't matter how trustworthy you are.
10 That's why those five other nations said, "We're going back
11 to paper ballots." They do it now. It's cost effective.
12 It's efficient. They get the numbers done by the next day.
13 Thank you.

14 MR. HALL: Thank you very much for your 15 testimony. Appreciate it.

16 Okay. So at this time, we will break for 17 the afternoon, and reconvene at -- promptly at 1:30.
18 There'll be a panel immediately at 1:30, and then at 2:10,
19 we'll have remaining open testimony. Thank you very much.

20 (Recess: 12:36 p.m. to 1:31 p.m.)

21 MR. HALL: Okay. Good afternoon, everyone,
22 and welcome back. We are reconvening the National 23 Commission on Voting Rights, New England.

24 We'll begin with a third panel which --
25 okay. So our third panel, which will run from 1:30 to 2:10

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 with each witness testifying for approximately five
3 minutes, and then a 20-minute question-and-answer period
4 from our commissioners, will be individuals talking about 5 various aspects of the voter registration, voter
6 participation, election administration barriers to access
7 at the polls, experiences as a poll worker, and a
8 grassroots-organizing perspective of voter registration.

9 So our first panel consists of Kate Bowden
10 from the Rhode Island Disability Law Center; Elainy Mata
11 from Suffolk University, a student here; and Sandra Klautz, 12 who is with Grassroots -- Grassroots SW Boston.

13 So if you all could please come forward.
14 And, again, testimony is limited to five minutes. Keep an 15 eye for our timekeeper, who will give you the three-minute
16 sign and the one-minute sign and the stop sign. Thank you.
17 Please proceed.

18 MS. BOWDEN: Good afternoon. My name is 19 Kate Bowden. I'm a lawyer with the Rhode Island Disability 20 Law Center. Thank you very much for inviting me to 21 testify.

22 As I said, I'm here on behalf of the Rhode 23 Island Disability Law Center. We are a federally funded,
24 nonprofit law office designated as Rhode Island's 25 protection and advocacy system to advocate for people who

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 have disabilities. With our grant funding under the Help
3 America Vote Act, we work to ensure that people with 4 disabilities participate in the electoral process.

5 Turning to voting and the landscape in Rhode 6 Island, I will start with photo ID. Studies have shown
7 that photo ID requirements can impose a barrier to all
8 people, including people with disabilities. We worked with 9 many organizations to oppose voter ID legislation in Rhode 10 Island, and we were successful for a number of years, but 11 then it did pass. This year is the first year with a 12 strict photo requirement. So we will be monitoring the 13 impact through our voting rights hotline as well as through 14 outreach.

15 We have noticed that discrimination can be a 16 barrier at the polls. We are aware of one serious incident
17 that occurred. Following the general election in November 18 of 2010, we learned of problems in the small town near the 19 state long-term hospital. As patients from the hospital
20 were arriving to vote, these patients had obvious physical 21 disabilities. Political party watchers reportedly 22 intimidated the voters and questioned their mental capacity
23 to vote. The actions of the party watchers caused the poll
24 workers to commence to treat these voters with disabilities
25 differently than they were treating other voters. After

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 investigation, the Board of Elections agreed with us and 3 found that the conduct that occurred was egregious.

4 Thereafter, we advocated for the Board of 5 Elections to promulgate regulations concerning permissible
6 conduct at the polls, which they did. The regulations
7 state that only challenges based on identity can occur at 8 the polls.

9 We also represented two forensic patients
10 from the state psychiatric hospital. There we prevailed at 11 the Board of Elections and preserved our clients' right to 12 vote. Following that matter, the Board of Elections 13 updated its voter registration form in order to update and 14 clarify Rhode Island's competency requirement.

15 Physical access can be a barrier at the 16 polls. Luckily in Rhode Island, we have had many fewer 17 problems with physical access. The kinds of things that we 18 see are problems with lack of adequate signage to show
19 where the accessible parking would be or lack of adequate 20 signage to show the path of travel to the polling place.

21 We work collaboratively with state agencies
22 to troubleshoot these problems through our voting rights
23 hotline, we negotiate for changes on the spot where we can,
24 and we file complaints when necessary. We have advocated
25 for Rhode Island to update its standards for choosing

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 accessible polling places, and we expect to monitor that
3 process.

4 Problems with technology can be a barrier
5 for people. Rhode Island uses the AutoMARK voting system
6 for its accessible voting equipment. When this program
7 first rolled out in 2006, there were many problems,
8 problems with malfunctioning with the equipment as well as 9 with adequate -- inadequate poll worker training. Excuse
10 me.

11 So we filed a number of complaints on these 12 issues, and the Board of Elections responded by creating a 13 hands-on training program which better assists poll workers
14 with understanding the technology. And they also 15 implemented -- implemented a protocol whereby poll workers
16 are required to test the machines on site on election day.
17 And with these procedures, we have seen the number of 18 complaints -- reported problems reduced significantly.

19 On the bright side in Rhode Island, the mail
20 balloting system has been broadened. So now anyone who may 21 not be able to get to the polls is allowed to vote by mail.
22 So this helps people with voting.

23 Also, my office has worked to ensure that
24 information about best practices on working with people
25 with disabilities is in the poll worker training, and this

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 has been a good thing.

3 So in closing, I would just like to say that 4 my agency will support any kind of policy or legislation or 5 reform that would enhance opportunities for electoral 6 participation for voters with disabilities, and we see 7 those as including modern standards for the selection of 8 accessible polling places, the opportunity for early
9 voting, online voter registration, and a robust list of IDs
10 that would satisfy the requirements for proving identity at 11 the polls.

12 Thank you for the opportunity to testify
13 before you, and I would be happy to answer any questions
14 you may have.

15 MR. DUNNE: Just give me that last point,
16 robust? What was that?

17 MS. BOWDEN: A robust list of identification
18 that one could use to prove identity at the polls.

19 MR. DUNNE: Thank you very much.

20 MR. HALL: Ms. Bowden, you mentioned that 21 your organization would support any policy around 22 modernization efforts. Is there -- are you aware of the 23 current status of any pending legislation in your state?

24 MS. BOWDEN: My understanding is that the 25 Board of Elections is open to and planning to update the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 standards. I think by federal law, states are supposed to 3 have standards for choosing polling places, and Rhode 4 Island's are outdated. So they will be -- I understand
5 they will be working on that issue.

6 MR. HALL: Okay. Great. Thank you. And is 7 your program, is it an LSC-funded program?

8 MS. BOWDEN: We are federally funded under 9 federal legislation that's referred to as the Protection
10 and Advocacy System. So there's an agency like mine in 11 every state. I think here in Boston they're called the 12 Disability Law Center. Each one of us is incorporated, and 13 they function differently in different states.

14 MR. HALL: Okay.

15 MS. WRIGHT: I have a question about the 16 Rhode Island photo ID law. Now, my recollection about the 17 law was that I thought it contained at least some sort of 18 backup provision for persons who don't have the actual ID 19 that the law calls for. So I just -- I'd be interested in 20 having you lay that out in a little more detail.

21 MS. BOWDEN: The way it currently works in 22 Rhode Island is that if a person arrives to vote and they 23 do not have a photo ID, they would vote by a provisional
24 ballot. So that ballot would not automatically be counted.
25 The provisional ballots then go back to the local

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 municipality, and if the signature on the provisional
3 ballot appears to match the signature of the person when 4 they registered, then the ballot is supposed to be kept.

5 MS. WRIGHT: Okay. I'd also be interested
6 in knowing what steps, if any, did Rhode Island take to 7 expand the availability of photo ID for people who might 8 not have one?

9 MS. BOWDEN: The secretary -- the 10 legislation requires that the state provide a free ID if a 11 person does not have one that qualifies. And the Secretary
12 of State's office is responsible for that program.

13 MS. WRIGHT: How did you feel about the 14 extent of educational opportunities or outreach that was 15 conducted to make that -- you know, to make people aware of 16 the new requirement and of the possibilities for how you --
17 how you go about getting an ID?

18 MS. BOWDEN: I know that efforts were made,
19 and I'm aware of some of the efforts. I don't know whether 20 it was robust enough, and I think this year will tell the 21 story, because this is the year when the requirement is at 22 its strictest.

23 I will add that there is legislation pending
24 this session, one, to repeal the legislation all together,
25 and another that they're referring to as the so-called

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 freeze, which would include some forms of ID that are 3 non-photo, such as a Social Security card or a birth
4 certificate. We're not clear whether either of those will 5 get any traction this season.

6 MS. WRIGHT: Okay. Thanks.

7 MS. COBB: You said that the poll workers
8 treated the voters with disabilities differently. Can you 9 elaborate on what that difference was?

10 MS. BOWDEN: Reportedly what happened was -- 11 so these -- these folks were people who are very physically 12 disabled from a local hospital, and the party watchers were 13 scrutinizing them, looking them up and down, trying to get 14 close to them, questioning whether they could have the 15 mental capacity to vote. And my understanding is that the 16 poll workers became very sort of flustered by the 17 atmosphere that was created, and they started saying things
18 such as "Do you know why you're here today?" Which is 19 just -- you can't ask that unless you're asking everyone
20 else. It's discriminatory.

21 But we were pleased with the state's
22 response to the situation.

23 MR. HALL: Thank you. And, Ms. Bowden, if 24 you don't mind, maybe just stay for the rest of the panel,
25 in case some other questions may be able to be answered

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 from the other panelists or what some of the other
3 panelists say may influence -- or you may have some input
4 on. Thank you.

5 Either, I believe -- Ms. Klautz?

6 MS. KAUTZ: It's Kautz.

7 MR. HALL: Okay. I said it the wrong the 8 first time. Kautz. You can go ahead. And Elaine? Okay,
9 go ahead.

10 MS. KAUTZ: I'm Sandy Kautz. I live in 11 Southwest Boston, Roslindale part of Boston. I've been 12 active in progressive causes since a teenager, but since 13 2004, I've taken on some leadership and organizing roles in 14 our community through local and national campaigns for 15 president, right down to city council.

16 And as a result of this process, I've formed
17 a neighborhood coalition I call Grassroots Southwest
18 Boston. About a thousand people engage with me through 19 e-mail and outreach to get information about elections, 20 about when they can register to vote, and engagement in our 21 election process. I'm also very active in registering 22 voters and enabling people to get the information they 23 need.

24 During regular-scheduled elections and 25 during special elections, I've managed campaign

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 headquarters for various candidates, election-day
3 storefronts, and then setting up election-day command
4 centers out of my home, mobilizing volunteers to do this.

5 I wanted to let everyone know that getting
6 out the vote on election day takes an army, an absolute
7 army of people. A lot of volunteers are needed to knock on 8 doors, to call people, for various reasons. One is many 9 people do not know there's an election. Unless it's a 10 national election, which is inescapable from every kind of 11 media perspective, people don't know that there is an 12 election going on.

13 In Massachusetts, we had many special
14 elections in the last year or two, and the voter turnout
15 was terrible. Other than having those little sandwich
16 boards on the corners of streets, most -- most communities
17 don't engage or tell people there's an election.

18 During our mayoral election last year in 19 Boston, the local papers didn't even engage this field of 20 12 people until September, and then people were shocked 21 about what day or when they were going to vote and for how 22 many people.

23 There's a crucial lack of information and a 24 lack of outreach for letting people know that there's an 25 election going on.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 I understand my friends at MassVOTE and
3 Common Cause described very much the problems in voter
4 registration in Massachusetts, which is very cumbersome and 5 old fashioned. In a state where people move through 6 academic and nonacademic programs, they're moving around a 7 lot, our rules make people jump through hoops at odd
8 registration dates, and until recently, you had to have a 9 card stock that can only be obtained through the city
10 election department and you had to mail that in. The 11 innovation has been to get an online printout which you 12 mail in.

13 The same goes for absentee voting. I get 14 calls from people who have a job such as medical emergency 15 people, religious relief organizations, that don't have 16 regular schedules. So they can't say when an emergency 17 comes up or if a family has a problem, there are so many 18 reasons why somebody can't vote that Tuesday. And in order
19 to get that absentee ballot in Massachusetts, it's a long
20 wait or it's a cumbersome process which is not understood 21 and has to happen in two parts. So because my day job is 22 right across from the city election department, I do a lot 23 of running back and forth for people to get -- get their 24 absentee ballots.

25 Also, a lot of people at the polls show up

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 thinking that they are registered when they in fact are not 3 registered. If they didn't vote in the last election, they 4 might be on an inactive list. How you get on that inactive
5 list is kind of a mystery. So people show up thinking that 6 they can vote, and they can't.

7 Also, I just wanted to say briefly about 8 young people's engagement. I understood in the last couple
9 of years for the first time that civics class disappeared
10 sometime, which is a great explanation for the 11 disengagement of most young voters who don't understand the 12 basic rights and responsibilities of citizenship in 13 registering to vote and what a gift it is in order to vote.

14 I just wanted to say that democracy is 15 complicated, that all kinds of procedures happen way before
16 we get to the voting booth. There are caucus process, 17 conventions, all kinds of things to bring our candidates to 18 the voting booth. The end of line in the democracy is that 19 voting right. And it should be made easy, and it should be 20 obvious when the time is to vote. By more aggressive 21 action to make people aware that participation is the 22 absolute key to a democracy, that we participate, that is 23 what it's supposed to be about.

24 Thank you for listening.

25 MR. HALL: Thank you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Any questions from our commissioners?

3 MR. WILLIAMS: I just have a quick question.

4 You -- I think you -- first of all, thank you for your 5 volunteer efforts in doing what you've been doing. I don't 6 want to mispronounce it -- Klautz?

7 MS. KAUTZ: Kautz.

8 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. I'll stay with Sandra.

9 Ms. Sandra, question: You've done a great 10 job in outlining what I would consider the problems or the 11 barriers. Would you spent a few minutes, if you can, just 12 talking about what would you recommend to us to improve
13 some of those items that you highlighted?14 MS. KAUTZ: Well, it is -- I remember --
15 well, first of all, the civics part is I think something 16 that's very actionable in schools so that you have a real 17 foundation in schools, a requirement that -- to teach young 18 people what -- that democracy is a gift of participation.
19 It is not something that you fling around, that it's 20 something you take part in.21 The publicity piece for knowing when to vote 22 is -- I'm not sure can be legislated, but to make --23 MR. WILLIAMS: It can be more increased, at 24 least.

25 MS. KAUTZ: Yes. I mean it's really -- some

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 of us have bought -- paid to buy our own banners to hang up
3 in our streets, on street corners, you know, to say "Vote
4 Today," because there aren't any. I mean these are simple,
5 pretty simple things, to have giant banners, to enable the 6 media, the press, to say and impress upon them somehow that 7 they should be telling people when they're going to be 8 voting.

9 And in special elections, it's a nightmare.
10 There's no -- people don't know that's going to happen.
11 They think they vote in November. Or maybe they remember
12 that they're going to vote in a primary in the springtime.

13 But in a national election year, these are 14 things that the media can't stop talking about. But in a 15 nonelection -- national election year, a non-presidential 16 year, everyone is aware that the voting participation goes 17 way down. So even if you are lucky enough to know how to 18 register to vote and don't live in a state where you have 19 repressive voting problems, in a state like Massachusetts, 20 you would think this is -- this is going to be easy. It's 21 really not. And ...

22 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you.

23 MS. KAUTZ: All right.

24 MR. HALL: Any additional questions?

25 Okay. Thank you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So, Elaine Mata, and I'll just briefly
3 acknowledge our fourth panelist, Mr. Avi Green from 4 Scholars Strategy Network. So after Elaine.

5 MS. MATA: So my name's Elaine Mata, and I'm
6 a student here, a sophomore here at Suffolk University.
7 And I have participated in being a poll worker for the 2012
8 presidential election and the mayoral primary election here
9 at city hall. I had the opportunity -- the opportunity
10 came to me in Class Government 120, taught by Rachael Cobb,
11 and she encouraged all of her students to be a poll worker,
12 and we were all located in different areas within Boston.

13 For -- I remember that I had to go to a 14 training and -- in city hall in this very bleak room with 15 cement walls with bleachers going so high, taller than me,
16 and I'm only five two, and we -- there were about 50 of us,
17 and we had to listen to one man over on the ground floor
18 yelling to us, telling us what to do. It was a three-hour
19 training, and I barely got anything out of it.

20 So when I went to the day -- November 4th, I 21 did not know much until I actually was put on the floor and 22 I actually had to do things. And even then I had to 23 constantly ask questions about what I had to do.

24 And that day -- and I'll first talk about 25 the 2012 presidential election. That day I -- as great of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 an experience as it was, I did see some difficulties that I
3 didn't think I would come across.

4 First off, there was -- I was located in 5 Roxbury, which is very far from me, because I was living on 6 campus over on Somerset Street. And they located me there
7 because I am a Hispanic and I am a Spanish speaker, and 8 they needed translators. So it made sense. But because it
9 was so far, it was difficult for me to get there. So I had 10 to spend my own money to go there, and it took a while, and 11 I had to be there at 6:00 a.m., so I had to get up at 4:00
12 a.m. to make sure I was ready.

13 I got there. There were already protestors
14 across the street, but I understand the buffer. I get 15 there. There was this disorganization, and there were 16 people arguing about getting in already and wanting to 17 vote, and there was a little bit of hostility towards those 18 people who already wanted to get in because it was such a 19 cold day.

20 When we started letting people in, there was 21 a long line. There were four tables, and it depended on 22 what area of the city you were in. And they made -- the 23 first job that I had to do was walk up and down the lines
24 to tell them which table they're supposed to go to, because 25 they didn't know. And it was very difficult for me to tell

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 them that they weren't even in the right polling location.

3 And I had this book this thick that I had to search through 4 which address they lived in and tell them which table to go
5 to, and also where they really belonged, in which polling
6 location.

7 I also saw that there were people -- there
8 were handicapped people that did need assistance in 9 their -- in their booth, and I was always the one being 10 sent to help them. I did not give -- tell them what to 11 vote for. I just told them what each question said, and I 12 stepped away and let them do it. But the fact that I was 13 the only one doing so was a bit disappointing.

14 Also, the lack of translators there. There
15 were not just Hispanic speakers, there were Cape Verdean
16 speakers, there were Chinese speakers, and I couldn't help
17 them. They could barely speak English. But the lack of 18 translators baffled me, because it didn't make sense that 19 they couldn't have help.

20 And with the provisional ballots, there were 21 a lot of people that were listed as inactive or they had to 22 show ID. People either didn't drive or didn't have a 23 passport because they didn't want to travel. And it was 24 difficult to turn them away or to tell them that they 25 couldn't vote that day or that their vote might not even

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 count because they had to fill out a different form. And I
3 had to turn away a lot of people.

4 And at last for the mayoral primary, there
5 was barely anybody there. So as compared to the 2012
6 election, where there was a huge turnout and everybody was 7 complaining about the amount of people there, and then to 8 the mayoral primary, where nobody showed up, and it was 9 complaints about people not showing up, there's this mixed 10 message here of whether we're ready for a big national 11 turnout and whether we should have it.

12 And I think mobilization is key, and I
13 commend Suffolk, because they harassed me to the ground for 14 registering to vote. And I am from Peabody, Massachusetts, 15 so I had to come register here to vote in the City of 16 Boston, which I did. I'm a government major.

17 So I do think that there are -- there are 18 improvements -- there need to be improvements within our 19 election days, with voter registration as well, and I'll 20 answer any questions that you guys have.

21 MR. HALL: Thank you, Ms. Mata.

22 Any questions from our commissioners?

23 MR. WILLIAMS: May I ask, where were you in 24 Roxbury?

25 MS. MATA: I was located I think at the Boys

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 & Girls Club or the YMCA. I don't remember.

3 MR. WILLIAMS: Do you remember what street?

4 MS. MATA: I do not.

5 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. Because that would be 6 helpful to know.

7 Secondly, you raised some very, very
8 interesting components in terms of your experience, and you
9 said that there was a high turnout at the national 10 election, but it was lower in the mayoral, so that means 11 you worked in both?

12 MS. MATA: Yes, sir.

13 MR. WILLIAMS: Same location?

14 MS. MATA: No. I was located at city hall
15 for the mayoral primary election.

16 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. So the one that you --
17 where there was a high turnout, that was in?

18 MS. MATA: Roxbury.

19 MR. WILLIAMS: In Roxbury.

20 MS. MATA: Yes.

21 MR. WILLIAMS: Because they had problems
22 there. But when you worked at City Hall, there were less
23 problems --

24 MS. MATA: Because there were less people.

25 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. So is there any

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 connection between the high turnout/low turnout that you
3 think you can surmise from your experience?

4 MS. MATA: Connections as in? I'm sorry.

5 MR. WILLIAMS: In other words, why? Help me
6 understand why. Why was there less people voting in the 7 mayoral versus the presidential, from your experience or 8 observations?

9 MS. MATA: Well, I didn't think that the 10 mayoral primary was advertised enough, I mean just going 11 out to vote in general. I know the debate was -- the 12 mayoral debate was here at Suffolk, which I did participate
13 in, and Twitter is a strong thing. So is Facebook, and so 14 is every other social media. And they tried too. But 15 young -- I mean they don't really know what's going on, and 16 I do agree that they don't know when the elections are, and 17 I think that's why, they don't -- or they just don't think 18 it's that big of an election.

19 MR. WILLIAMS: So social media is not being 20 utilized to reach that audience; is that what you're 21 suggesting?

22 MS. MATA: I'm sorry?

23 MR. WILLIAMS: That social media, Twitter,
24 Facebook, are not being utilized in order to reach that 25 segment --

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. MATA: Not enough for these small
3 elections, especially here with the mayor, Mayor Tom 4 Menino, leaving and somebody new is coming in. I just 5 don't think people thought it mattered that much for the 6 primary.

7 Unfortunately, I couldn't work for the main
8 election.

9 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you.

10 MR. HALL: Any additional questions?

11 MS. WRIGHT: Yeah. So I'm sorry that you
12 found the poll worker training to be not sufficient, and 13 I'd like to just ask a few more questions about that.

14 You said it was three hours, and just an 15 individual sort of talking to people?

16 MS. MATA: Yes.

17 MS. WRIGHT: Were there written materials
18 that you got?

19 MS. MATA: We did get written materials of 20 what we expected for that day. We got a packet of what we 21 were to expect that day. We also got to see what the 22 ballot would look like, and that's about it. And he would 23 show us the machines, but because I was sitting so up, so
24 high up, I could barely -- only when I was leaving.

25 But when being trained for the mayoral

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 primary election, it was a smaller room with a lot less
3 people. But it was still one person lecturing, and it's 4 the same deal, just a smaller room, less people.

5 I just -- I agree that I think if we got 6 more hands-on training of how to use the machines, what 7 sort of books are we looking at when it comes to addresses,
8 it'll help me more. Because I learned more being on the 9 floor and just putting -- getting everything in my face
10 rather than having that training.

11 MS. WRIGHT: Okay. Thanks.

12 MR. HALL: Would you do it again?

13 MS. MATA: Of course I'll do it again.

14 MR. HALL: Good. And thank you.

15 All right. If there are no further
16 questions, we'll go to Avi Green.

17 MR. GREEN: Thanks so much for having me,
18 and I want to apologize for coming in late. I was flying
19 in from out of town.

20 So I'll just start, first of all, by saying 21 that I'm deeply impressed by everybody else I'm sitting 22 here with on the panel, and especially you, Elaine.

23 So my name is Avi Green. I work at the 24 Scholars Strategy Network, where I co-chair the task force
25 on protecting and expanding the right to vote. I was the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 executive director of MassVOTE for six years from 2012 --
3 from 2006 to 2012, when I left the organization with more
4 capable hands than mine, and I serve on the Massachusetts
5 State Ballot Law Commission as well.

6 I'll keep my comments really brief, but I
7 think Massachusetts is a state and part of a nation where 8 differences drive disparities. Differences between 9 elections, differences between localities, and 10 difference -- and racial and economic differences and 11 inequalities drive deep disparities.

12 So first of all, there's major differences
13 between elections. The amount of resources available to 14 every city and town for different elections varies, and 15 it's simply impossible to maintain the level of turnout and 16 participation that you'd like to when a municipality might 17 experience 12 elections over the course of three years,
18 which often happens, given special elections, special
19 primaries, local preliminaries, local general elections,
20 presidential primaries, state primaries on a different date
21 from the presidential, and then the presidential. That 22 could easily happen. Plus you might have a few vacancies,
23 which would be additional special primaries and special 24 general.

25 So the City of Boston has had over 20

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 elections in the last three years in different parts of the 3 city. Some -- and some individual citizens living in a 4 single neighborhood might go through many elections, as 5 many as ten elections, over the course of two years easily.
6 So there's no surprise that turnout is a lot lower in some 7 elections that really matter.

8 Second disparity is the disparity between -- 9 between localities. So elections are funded partially at 10 the state level but partially at the local level, and local 11 city and town officials run those elections. There's vast 12 disparities, and particularly in the cities and in our 13 poorest towns, there is just not enough resource for 14 elections, and the state regulates and reimburses, but does 15 not lift the bar.

16 For example, in the area of poll worker
17 training, unlike other states, you can't -- you can't take 18 the poll worker training online. There's no same training
19 for the whole state. You can't watch films; you can't be 20 quizzed. You know, all those resources that could be made
21 available to people across the whole state aren't.

22 Where do those two disparities leave us?
23 They leave us actually in a situation where because our 24 lowest -- our communities with the least resources for 25 running elections are also home to our highest amount of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 diversity, we have some extreme disparities in voter
3 turnout. Massachusetts -- and I would just say that those 4 disparities in voter turnout have become a national 5 problem.

6 The -- Massachusetts is a relatively wealthy
7 and highly educated state, and so as a result, we have 8 relatively high levels of voter participation. However,
9 because we tolerate massive economic inequality and racial 10 inequality in terms of wealth and educational outcomes and 11 also because of those election administration disparities, 12 we see really low turnout again and again in some of our 13 communities of color across the state.

14 And it's not just immoral, it's also 15 impacting voters in other parts of the state. Chief
16 Justice John Roberts, for example, brought up Massachusetts
17 as an example of a state with really low -- with a really
18 high -- excuse me -- disparity between the turnout of white
19 voters versus the turnout of black voters, and he said, 20 well, if this is tolerable in Massachusetts, because 21 Massachusetts is not recognized under the Voting Rights Act
22 as requiring special preclearance, then why should Texas or 23 Mississippi be required?

24 And our -- our politicians in the state were 25 forced to argue that, well, the census data that was

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 involved was slight -- was not quite specific enough, and 3 we were within the margin of error with Mississippi.

4 Mississippi is one of the poorest states in 5 the union, and -- in a state -- in a nation in which we 6 know that economics drives voter participation, and we're 7 one of the wealthiest states, then what that means is that 8 we are tolerating absolutely abysmal voter education and 9 absolutely abysmal voting administration.

10 Thank you.

11 MR. HALL: Thank you.

12 Any questions for Mr. Green from our
13 commissioners?

14 MR. DUNNE: If you have a minute. Do we 15 have any time left?

16 MR. HALL: Oh, yeah. We have plenty of 17 time. We have 20 minutes, actually, for --

18 MR. DUNNE: Ms. Mata.

19 MS. MATA: Yes.

20 MR. DUNNE: You touched on something which 21 we've heard kind of recurring in an abject sort of way.
22 When you went to the polls to open them up at six o'clock
23 in the morning, you said that there were a lot of voters
24 waiting and there were also crowds of interested people.
25 Are these people who were going to be challenging voters?

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 I'm concerned that we hear that there are, I almost 3 characterize it as vigilantes, citizens who really want to 4 challenge the right of others to vote, although they don't 5 have any really official role. Are we seeing much of that 6 from your standpoint?

7 MS. MATA: When I participated in the 2012
8 election, I know that there's a buffer zone that protestors
9 cannot be within X amount of feet in the polling location.
10 They did not challenge anybody. They just stayed in their 11 way and said what they wanted to say. And of course with 12 being Obama versus Romney, they were very one-sided. So 13 especially within that area, within Roxbury.

14 But the people that -- the people that 15 wanted to get in were people that had work at 6:30 and they 16 just wanted to go in, vote, and get out. And of course we 17 tried to accommodate, and I told them, you know, "I know 18 it's cold. At least you can wait in the lobby."

19 But there were people -- and I noticed that 20 I was the youngest one there. There were people older than 21 me telling them that, "No, you need to stay outside." So
22 they were a bit rude. But nobody challenged them or swayed
23 them from who they wanted to vote for.

24 MR. DUNNE: All right. Thank you.

25 MR. HALL: And I stand corrected. I said we

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 have 20 minutes for question and answer. But we've been 3 doing the question and answer along the way. So I think we 4 have closer to three minutes.

5 MS. WRIGHT: Yeah. For Avi or for anybody,
6 actually, picking up on the issue that we don't have 7 uniform poll worker training, that we don't have training
8 online that people can access for refresher, have there 9 been legislative recommendations, has there been 10 legislation introduced over the past several years that 11 would make some improvements and changes, and if not, is 12 that something that ought to be considered?

13 MR. GREEN: There's been a couple of pieces
14 of legislation that have passed, mainly in the middle part 15 of the last decade. There was legislation that passed that 16 allowed for 16- and 17-year-olds to become poll workers and 17 that allowed for poll workers to come from communities
18 outside of the actual municipality so that you didn't have 19 to be a Brookline resident to run a Brookline election.
20 Those were positive steps forward. And also the 21 Massachusetts Voters Bill of Rights was a positive step 22 forward.

23 But I think that most of the things that 24 would be required to improve voters -- to improve the 25 experience of poll workers, they certainly could be done by

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 legislation, and occasionally you see some legislation, but 3 a lot of this poll worker stuff rests in the hands of the 4 Secretary of State, and if the Secretary chose to exert
5 greater leadership -- I think that in a lot of other
6 states, you haven't needed statewide legislation for a 7 Secretary who already regulates how poll workers would be 8 trained by the municipalities to say, "Not only am I
9 regulating it, but I'm going to go ahead and promulgate a 10 set of free tools that you can all use." So that could be 11 legislation. It -- you shouldn't have to.

12 MS. WRIGHT: Okay.

13 MR. HALL: Please go ahead.

14 MS. BOWDEN: This is Kate Bowden.

15 Rhode Island, as you all know, is very 16 small. We have under 600 polling places, and 3500 poll
17 workers. We do have a uniform poll worker training
18 program. All of the poll workers are trained by the Board
19 of Elections. It's the same training, and I think we've 20 benefitted from that.

21 MR. GREEN: Can I add one thing?

22 MS. WRIGHT: Sure.

23 MR. GREEN: The only other thing that I'd 24 add, and I've served as a poll worker in Boston a few times
25 and helped the city, along with Professor Cobb, in revising

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 their poll worker training several years ago. The City of 3 Boston has a particularly different problem with attracting 4 and retaining good poll workers, which is that it has on 5 average the smallest precinct size in the state of 6 Massachusetts, because it's grandfathered out of 7 participating in the decennial reprecincting. And what 8 that means is it needs more personnel per location, and 9 that means that the selectivity of that personnel is less 10 rigorous and that the city has its hands full simply 11 training the 2,000 people they need instead of training, 12 say, 1400 really excellent people.

13 MS. KAUTZ: I just wanted to underscore
14 the -- my observations of chaos in the polls and poll
15 workers over time. That's part of the election day 16 procedure when we have a bunch of volunteers for every 17 campaign is to respond to the different polling locations
18 because of chaos and confusion by people who are confused
19 by the books, are confused by what they're looking up, what 20 does inactive mean, they have to ask a few people what's 21 inactive, what's a provisional ballot. We've seen all of 22 that. So I understood score the -- that point.

23 MS. MATA: I just think that it'd be great 24 if we had more younger poll workers. Because me being the 25 only -- the only two times that I've served as a poll

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 worker, I was the youngest one, and it's --

3 MR. GREEN: Was it close?

4 MS. MATA: No. Do you mean close as in age?

5 MR. GREEN: Yes.

6 MS. MATA: No. But so I would really -- I
7 mean I think with more participation with younger poll
8 workers, I think there'll be more participation in voting.
9 And showing them the background and showing them the behind
10 the scenes and showing them what it really takes to be part 11 of this whole voting process, it will encourage them to 12 want to vote and actually be part of that process, not just 13 being a poll worker, but being a voter. And I think if we 14 really mobilize the young people between ages 18 through 15 24, and college students and all, and tell them that it is 16 a good opportunity to work as a poll worker, and you get 17 paid, it's -- I really think that it's going to increase 18 voter participation if they see how it all happens
19 firsthand.

20 MR. WILLIAMS: Mr. Green, you made a comment
21 in your presentation that there was a clear demarcation in 22 terms of the wealth and the education of Massachusetts
23 voters and a clear distinction that there was a low turnout
24 in people of color, I think the term that you used. What 25 recommendations would you present to the commission in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 terms of what would reverse that trend or to increase the 3 low people-of-color turnout?

4 MR. GREEN: Sure. So I guess I would start
5 by saying that -- this is going to sound like an overly
6 simplistic comment, but it's incredibly important at the 7 beginning of thinking about this. Obviously all people of 8 color are different from each other, and even if you look 9 at subgroups like African-Americans, Latinos, and Asian 10 Americans, each of those communities face different
11 challenges.

12 That said, the first thing that I would look 13 at is the issue that about 1 million people in 14 Massachusetts need to register to vote or need to upgrade
15 their -- update their voter registration at any given 16 moment, and that group is much more diverse than the group
17 of people who already have their registration up to date.
18 And that's largely because they are younger and because 19 they are poorer, because they involve more people who are 20 renters and therefore have moved to a new place.

21 About 600,000 people in our state move to a 22 new home each year; about 100,000 people turn 18, and 23 that's a lot -- that's an extremely diverse 100,000 people.
24 And 100,000 people move to our state from other states.
25 And of course since those 800,000 people -- oh, and 25,000

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 people become new citizens. So, but of course that 825,000
3 people are not registered effectively each year, so there's 4 a backlog that moves over from year to year.

5 What could help? Extremely efficient voter
6 registration, including full implementation of the Motor
7 Voter Act, not just for its current agencies, but for more
8 agencies. And also for agencies that are moving their 9 services online, voter registration needs to seamlessly
10 move online as well so that if you can now -- and I should 11 also say by telephone. That is, if you can apply for 12 unemployment insurance over the phone, well, I'm really 13 glad. It saves money, and it works efficiently. But it's 14 taken some of the wind out of the sails of the Motor Voter
15 Registration Act, because people are going to the office 16 less. So that enhanced voter registration would be the 17 first thing.

18 And I should say, of the voter registration
19 tools, the one that's actually got the best track record --
20 online registration is very promising, but it's very new.
21 The one that has the real track record is election-day
22 registration, because that means that the criteria to vote
23 is are you a citizen over the age of 18. And when that 24 happens, get out the vote efforts are much more vibrant, 25 and the whole community is brought in, and disparities in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 voting are decreased. It really has a great impact on not
3 just bringing out low-income Americans, bringing out young
4 Americans, African-Americans, Latinos. It's a really good
5 measure.

6 MR. HALL: Thank you very much. Thank you
7 all to all of our panelists. We'll have to move on to the 8 next segment of testimony. But if there is any testimony
9 that you all have -- would like to supplement, feel free to 10 leave that with us, and we can -- we'll continue to take 11 testimony even beyond today's hearing.

12 And, again, thank you all for your time and 13 effort and the distance you drove and the flight you caught
14 back. Thank you.

15 MR. GREEN: Thank you all.

16 MR. HALL: We've now come to a portion where 17 we will receive testimony from the general public who is 18 here. There are several folks who have been here from this 19 morning, and then there are several folks we need to make 20 special accommodation for. So I will read the list of 21 individuals that will be coming to testify in the specific 22 order.

23 Because the next group of people need the 24 assistance of a Cantonese translator, we will be calling
25 Henry Yee, Tong Kinwah, and Karen Chen to testify.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Following them, we'll have Leila Quinn, Wendy Joseph,
3 Michael Arnott, Grace Ross, Tony Mack, and Phi Tran, in 4 that order. I'll repeat these names after this panel.

5 Again, each of our panelists, we ask that 6 you take three minutes to testify. Watch for our sign, our 7 timekeeper, who will give you the one-minute notice and the 8 stop notice. And then we may ask some follow-up questions.
9 Thank you. Please go ahead.

10 MR. YEE (through interpreter): My name is 11 Henry Yee. I am the co-chair of the Chinatown Residents 12 Association. Because there will be interpretation going on 13 simultaneously, I would be asking for twice the time to 14 speak, because it takes twice as long to be able to get the 15 message across.

16 MR. HALL: Yes. Thank you.

17 MR. YEE: We're here today to speak about 18 the issue with bilingual ballots. I understand that the 19 government has made special provisions for immigrants who 20 speak their mother language to take the citizenship exam in 21 their mother language so that they could become citizens of 22 the United States.

23 The biggest right that we enjoy as American
24 citizens is the right to vote, and because of the language
25 barrier, a lot of times when these citizens will go and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 vote, it's hard for them to tell on the ballot which -- 3 which one is maybe Bush or Obama, and there's a lot of 4 mistakes that would occur when they're trying to vote.

5 After a very long and difficult struggle for 6 bilingual ballots in Massachusetts from the year 2003 and 7 2010, during the seven years, we were able to have 8 bilingual ballots or bilingual translation on our ballots.
9 And because of having this luxury of having bilingual
10 ballots in 2010, the people who actually came out to vote
11 in Chinatown has increased exponentially.

12 What's really too bad is that we only have a 13 three-year period where this bilingual ballot is in effect.
14 So last year in 2013, the privilege has expired. So right
15 now what we're trying to advocate for is a provision that's 16 going to allow bilingual ballots to be in Massachusetts
17 forever and not for just three years.

18 It seems like an uphill battle every three 19 years when we're about to expire this privilege that we 20 should have that a lot of these senior citizens or elderly, 21 they will have to march from Chinatown to here for their 22 basic right. It doesn't seem to make sense at all. And we 23 hope that everyone here at this panel would also support
24 bilingual ballots forever here in Massachusetts and that 25 this will be in effect as soon as possible.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Thank you.

3 MR. HALL: Thank you. Any questions for Mr.
4 Yee from our commissioners?

5 MR. DUNNE: I'm not from Massachusetts, so
6 help me here. Why has there been a three-year limitation?

7 MR. YEE: We asked for permanence. We asked
8 for that provision to stay forever. But, however, this was 9 the condition that the government allowed at the time when 10 we tried to ask for bilingual ballots.

11 MS. CHEN: Well, I was just going to say
12 that the reason why there's bilingual ballots, one, because 13 we don't have enough -- we don't have the numbers to get 14 bilingual ballots for Chinese and Vietnamese in 15 Massachusetts, but because this is part of our struggle in, 16 you know, 2001, some voters actually filed complaints with 17 the election commissioner and eventually there was a 18 Department of Justice investigation, and as part of 19 investigation, there was a settlement, you know, with the 20 city's election department in 2003, and that's how they 21 provided a bilingual ballot.

22 And, then, thereafter the community, you
23 know, lobbied for legislation, which we asked for permanent 24 bilingual ballot, but, you know, the state because, you 25 know, this is part of like the negotiation, right, and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 actually the Secretary of State was, you know, really
3 against it, and at that time, actually, he was very -- he 4 was trying to exclude transliterated names, which is the 5 most important part of the ballot. And that's why, you
6 know, I think, you know, as a compromise, there's like a 7 sunset clause on the bilingual legislation which expires on 8 April 21st, 2013.

9 MR. HALL: And just to be clear, this was a 10 complaint that was filed with the Department of Justice
11 specific to Boston?

12 MS. CHEN: Yes.

13 MR. HALL: Okay. And then it sounds like a 14 three-year consent decree to monitor the continued use of 15 the bilingual ballots, but then at that three-year --

16 MS. CHEN: Right.

17 MR. HALL: -- it sunset --

18 MS. CHEN: Right. And then after that, the 19 community, you know, applied for -- to try to get passed
20 the legislation to allow a bilingual ballot in Boston, so.

21 MR. HALL: Okay. And currently there are 22 no --

23 MS. CHEN: Currently, no, there isn't. But 24 I'm going to give you guys a copy of the legislation draft
25 that's currently in the State House.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 THE INTERPRETER: Just a quick pause so that 3 our audience can also hear, who need interpretation, just 4 to follow, I will just summarize really quickly.

5 MR. WILLIAMS: Just a question. You have 6 legislation pending that would provide the provisions for 7 it to be not only in Boston but across the Commonwealth?

8 MS. CHEN: It only covers City of Boston.

9 MR. WILLIAMS: Covers the City of Boston?

10 MS. CHEN: Yes. And we would like for it to 11 be across the Commonwealth. But, you know, our work is 12 mostly here in Boston, so.

13 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay.

14 MR. HALL: Okay. And the rest of the panel.

15 MS. KINWAH (through interpreter): My name
16 is Tong Kinwah. I live in the second voting district, 17 South End. I'm a long-time voter of Boston. I am also on 18 the board of the Chinese Progressive Association.

19 So the legislation for bilingual ballots has 20 expired in 2013, December 31st. So in February of this 21 year, we have already passed the -- we passed unanimously
22 bilingual ballots in the city voting -- in voting in the 23 city government. And so even though this has passed on the 24 city level, we still have to go through the Senate and the 25 House of Massachusetts and then to the governor before we

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 are able to make this permanent.

3 The evidence of bilingual ballots to assist
4 in voting, it's not something that's rare. And it's not
5 something that hasn't been done before. It's been long
6 existing in cities like New York and San Francisco.

7 Asian Americans have been in America for a 8 very long time. Although our English might not be very 9 fluent, but we love America, and we call this our home, and 10 to be able to vote is the basic right that we Americans
11 have.

12 Many Chinese Americans might take the 13 advantage of using Chinese so that they could pass their 14 citizenship exam. However, but without the assistance of 15 the mother language on a voting ballot, a lot of times
16 there's a lot of error that could occur, and it also limits
17 their rights to vote. And in other words, it's actually 18 violated their voting rights. They do not have the full 19 privilege that most people enjoy as voters. I think this 20 is absolutely unfair and unjust.

21 Having bilingual ballots also protects the 22 privacy of voters, so that it could prevent them from third
23 parties' interference when they're voting.

24 The fact that bilingual ballots have been 25 anonymously passed in the city government, we hope that

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 everyone here sitting at this panel will also unanimously
3 support us. Because we all understand how important this 4 is to have this permanence in bilingual voting ballots in 5 the history of America.

6 Thank you very much.

7 MR. HALL: You're welcome. Thank you.

8 Any questions from our commissioners?

9 I'll just note that although we may have our 10 individual preferences and support for initiatives, the 11 primary focus of this commission is to take testimony and 12 to take evidence that can be used to advance different 13 initiatives and bring about change in the voting in this 14 country.

15 I do have a question for Ms. Kinwah.
16 Currently there is a federal formula that determines which 17 locations will have bilingual ballots based on the 18 percentage of a language minority in that city. Are you 19 suggesting that it would be better that the formula would 20 be changed so that the percentage to require bilingual
21 ballots would be lower now?

22 MS. KINWAH: I'm not really understanding
23 what you're suggesting.

24 MS. CHEN: What is the percentage now?

25 MR. HALL: Offhand, I can't recall what the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 specific percentage is.

3 MS. KINWAH: So, yeah, of course we would 4 like for that percentage to be lower, and, you know, as you
5 heard from us, we expressed how important bilingual ballots
6 is to the community, and that's why we are here at the, you
7 know, State House lobby over and over again and, you know,
8 to get, you know -- to pass the legislation that would give 9 us bilingual ballots. So yes.

10 MR. WILLIAMS: I offer my support, not as a 11 member of this commission, but extend my greetings to Lydia 12 Lo (phon sp). And after this meeting I'll love to be able 13 to connect up with you to see if I can help in terms of my 14 work with you at the State House.

15 MS. KINWAH: Thank you.

16 MS. CHEN: Well, I guess Mr. Yee and Tong
17 Kinwah talked a lot about the importance of bilingual 18 ballots, so I'm not going to, you know, go over that. But 19 apparently, you know, it's really important for the 20 community.

21 But there's a few things I want to touch on 22 in terms of redistricting. So, you know, the Chinese
23 community, you know, even though improvement has been made,
24 the Chinese community is lacking, you know, equal 25 opportunities and representation, you know, in the city

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 council, in the state, and, you know, federal level as 3 well. And basically, you know, in drawing the district
4 lines, you know, Boston -- you know, Boston to Chinatown is 5 a small community, right? But we always share the city
6 council with, you know, one of the political dominant
7 neighborhoods, South Boston.

8 So actually during the last, you know,
9 redistricting, we've been trying to actually redraw the 10 district lines so we're not with South Boston so that we 11 can have, you know, equal representation so our votes, you 12 know, count more. But, you know, is really difficult, and 13 we're still part of South Boston.

14 So we would encourage the federal guidelines
15 for taking responsibility for redistricting out of the 16 hands of the interested elected officials, because during 17 redistricting, you know, a lot of the city council was just 18 interested in, you know, preserving their incumbency, and 19 that was what happened. That's why, you know, Boston --
20 you know, Chinatown is still with, you know, South Boston.

21 So, and also the other thing in terms of -- 22 that's important is for them to reprecinct Chinatown. So,
23 you know, in Chinatown, we have two precincts, one with 24 like 4,290 voters, another with like 4,416 registered 25 voters. So, you know, there's one of the biggest

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 precincts, right, in, you know, some city council
3 districts. So I think that, you know, it would be great if 4 it could be redrawn, because it disproportionately, you
5 know, like prohibits elderly from like waiting because 6 like, you know, because in the 20 -- 2012 election year,
7 elderly members were like, you know, in walkers and stuff,
8 they have to wait, you know, for hours and hours, and then 9 finally like some actually couldn't stand anymore and they,
10 you know, left. And they tried to come back again and, you
11 know, still couldn't vote because the precinct was so big.

12 And also, you know, it would be really good 13 to have absentee ballots, for the same reasons, to have 14 absentee ballots in demand. So we do -- you know, during 15 the election season, we go to the elderly buildings for 16 people who, you know, can't walk to help them fill out, you
17 know, absentee ballots.

18 But, you know, it would be really important,
19 you know, for -- you know, but right now the state law
20 requires that absentee ballots only to those who are out of 21 town, disabled, you know, infirm or otherwise unable to get 22 to the poll. But I think that, you know, for people who 23 want to -- you know, need absentee ballots should just be 24 able to, you know, get it.

25 And the other thing is same-day registration

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 because, you know, particularly with people with limited
3 proficiency, sometimes they may have registered or they 4 don't remember whether or not they registered, and actually
5 just filling out a new, you know, registration form, you
6 know, is difficult. So having same-day, you know, same-day
7 registration would encourage more voter participation.

8 So thank you.

9 MR. HALL: Okay. Thank you very much.

10 Any questions from the commissioners?

11 MS. WRIGHT: I would just like to thank you 12 all for making these really serious problems known and for 13 speaking up about them. I think that the issue of 14 bilingual ballots is critical for our democracy here in 15 Massachusetts, and thanks for bringing that to the 16 forefront.

17 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

18 Next we'll have Leila Quinn.

19 MS. QUINN: Hi. My name is Leila Quinn. I
20 work for a national nonprofit called Generation Citizen.
21 It's a civic education nonprofit. And I am here in support 22 of the election reform bills that are happening in 23 Massachusetts right now, because House Bill 3788 and Senate
24 Bill 1981 are currently in conference committee, and 25 Generation Citizen, as an organization that's dedicated to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 empowering young people to be politically active through
3 action civics, encourages a substantial election reform
4 bill, such as the Senate bill.

5 The provisions that they provide are 6 preregistration for 16- and 17-year-olds and election-day
7 registration, as well as other important initiatives, such 8 as post-election audits, and a home rule petition allowing 9 17-year-olds in Lowell, Massachusetts to vote in municipal 10 elections.

11 We support the -- this legislation as a
12 means to combat civic disengagement, which is an issue
13 we've seen, for instance, when only 30 percent -- 38
14 percent of citizens in Boston participated in their recent 15 mayoral election here. Civic disengagement is particularly 16 pronounced among youth, especially those from low-income
17 and minority backgrounds, many of which Generation Citizen 18 works with.

19 The proposed reforms are crucial for 20 encouraging young people to become genuinely interested in 21 political involvement. While there are many valuable means 22 of participating in democratic processes, voting is often 23 the first entry point and is a habit that's formed early in 24 one's life. Voting is the basis for creating knowledgeable 25 and motivated citizens.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 In 2008, 83 percent of registered 18- to 3 24-year-olds voted, but only 51 percent -- sorry -- were 4 registered to vote, but only 51 percent of those eligible
5 between 18 and 24 actually voted.

6 Young people are an important voting
7 demographic, and getting them registered and to the polls
8 remains a crucial task. Youth that preregister are more 9 likely to vote than those who register at 18, and we could 10 have an impressive 5 to 10 percent increase in 11 participation, especially from marginalized groups, from 12 election-day registration, as seen in 11 states, including
13 Washington, DC.

14 Additionally, civics and social studies will 15 become increasingly important in our schools and we 16 encourage districts and the board of elementary and 17 secondary education to continue their increased support for 18 social studies and civics education, as young people are 19 increasingly given a voice in our local, state, and federal 20 elections.

21 So, in conclusion, preregistration and 22 election-day registration are the two most important
23 initiatives we see, because they'll ensure that underserved
24 young people regain the political voice that they deserve.
25 Empowering young people to become informed political actors

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 will ensure not just the long-term health of our civic 3 society but to ensure that young people can realize their 4 potential and attain educational and career success
5 regardless of their socioeconomic status or cultural 6 background. Thanks.

7 MR. HALL: Thank you, Ms. Quinn. I
8 apologize, it's Leila?

9 MS. QUINN: Yes.

10 MR. HALL: Okay. I said Layla.

11 MS. QUINN: It's all right.

12 Any of our commissioners have any questions?

13 MR. DUNNE: If I may, Ms. Quinn, you said 38
14 percent participated in the mayoral election. Is that 38
15 percent of registered -- actual registered voters?

16 MS. QUINN: Yes.

17 MR. DUNNE: Wow.

18 MS. COBB: And where is your organization
19 based?

20 MS. QUINN: Generation Citizen, we have --
21 we work in Boston, New York, Providence, and the Bay Area.
22 Boston and New York kind of split our major hubs where we 23 work out of, yeah.

24 MS. WRIGHT: Is that a membership
25 organization?

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. QUINN: No. So we -- our program model
3 is that I, as the program associate, work with college
4 students. We train them to be democracy coaches, and they 5 go to local middle schools and high schools and lead the 6 youth through the process of designing an advocacy
7 campaign, so they're learning about advocacy and community
8 organizing to make lasting systemic change in our 9 communities. So that's what our basic program model looks 10 like.

11 MR. HALL: Do you have any data or 12 information about other municipalities where 17-year-olds
13 are allowed to vote on municipal elections?

14 MS. QUINN: I don't offhand, but I have 15 plenty of allies who do.

16 MR. HALL: Okay.

17 MS. QUINN: I can follow up with that in an 18 e-mail.

19 MR. HALL: If you could.

20 MS. QUINN: Absolutely. Sure.

21 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

22 If there are no other questions, we thank 23 you and thank you for the great work that you're doing.

24 MS. QUINN: Thanks. Have a great day.

25 MR. HALL: You too.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. WILLIAMS: I have to excuse myself, as 3 previously stated.

4 MR. HALL: Oh, yes, absolutely.

5 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you so much. It's been 6 an honor to serve with all of you.

7 MR. HALL: And thank you, Mr. Williams, for 8 your time serving on this commission. We appreciate it,
9 and your contributions are duly noted.

10 Wendy Joseph from Highlands Coalition.

11 Hello, Ms. Joseph. How are you?

12 MS. JOSEPH: Hello. Nice to see you in 13 person.

14 MR. HALL: Nice to see you in person too.

15 MS. JOSEPH: My name is Wendy Joseph. I am
16 a member of the Highlands Coalition in Lynn, Massachusetts.
17 We are a 501(c)(3) social justice organization advocating 18 for the Highlands neighborhood.

19 The Highlands is a gateway community for 20 most immigrants. It is by far the poorest neighborhood in 21 the city, with 95 percent of the school children eligible
22 for federally assisted free breakfast and lunch in school.
23 We have double the amount of English as a second language
24 speakers than in the rest of the Lynn as a whole and 10
25 percent more people live below the poverty line. In an

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 area of less than one-half of a mile, there are 14,000
3 residents, making the Highlands three times more densely
4 populated than the rest of Lynn.

5 Now, here is a tale of straight, blatant,
6 systematic disenfranchisement of a community of color by 7 the city. In 2004 local elections, there was a Hispanic
8 gentleman, I think his name was Manny Nunez (phon sp), 9 running for a board councillor. He won in the primary and 10 made a strong showing in the general election against a 11 white incumbent, and that would not do in the city of Lynn,
12 Massachusetts.

13 The polling station, which was based in our 14 beloved community school, was pulled, ostensibly for 15 financial reasons. Soon afterward our neighborhood was 16 gerrymandered right down the middle so that while I go to 17 the North Shore Community College on the waterfront to 18 vote, my neighbor goes almost to the Saugus line on the 19 other end of the city.

20 Since 2004, the numbers show, from now until 21 2012, where the latest numbers were available, voting in 22 the Highlands has dropped by 34.5 percent. In ward 1, 23 where the rich white people live, called the diamond
24 district, they have three polling places.

25 We've been fighting for this restoring

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 voting to our neighborhood for ten years. I'm going to 3 tell you about some of the players.

4 In 2013, the Lynn city council created a
5 human rights commission, and returning voting to the 6 Highlands was their first inaugural case. The knee-jerk
7 reason that city hall has for pulling voting, they say, is 8 that the school is not handicapped accessible. It's, of 9 course, accessible for the Highlands children to learn
10 there. And because of this, the Human Rights Commission 11 requested a site visit from Attorney Galvin's office to 12 report on the accessibility with the clerk of elections
13 supposedly in attendance.

14 The elections clerk ducked the city council
15 order for over 120 days with no repercussions. I actually 16 had to sit down with the city council president and ask to 17 be put on the agenda. "How is this site visit thing going?
18 How is it being handled?"

19 And he said, "Please don't ask me that 20 question. I'm going to ask you not to ask me that,"
21 basically.

22 When the site visit actually occurred, the 23 city clerk was not even in attendance, but did leak the 24 report to the local paper, even before the city councillors
25 and the human rights commission even got a look at it.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: Thank you, Ms. Joseph. I know
3 we've had some previous conversations about some of the 4 things that have been going on in the Highlands. And one
5 of the questions I may have asked you, and I don't recall,
6 are some of the demographics of the Highlands area, and 7 specifically is there one racial or ethnic group that is 8 highly concentrated there that would create a majority
9 minority vote in the district?

10 MS. JOSEPH: Thank you for that question.
11 That's exactly what you left me with when we finished our 12 phone conversation. And then upon further investigation,
13 we realized that -- I'm not sure if it was you, but someone 14 was saying that the census data, the language of it was 15 written back in '69 or '72, where it was, you could check 16 off "Black" or "Hispanic." Now the check-off you can do is 17 "Mixed." So, consequently, all of these people that are 18 checking off "Mixed" do now -- now do not get counted as 19 either black or Hispanic. So it absolutely skews our 20 demographics. And right now we're trying to kind of tease 21 and pull apart demographics that could be brought back to 22 the language of either black or Hispanic. But right now
23 it's -- basically it was supposed to help, but it's 24 actually hurt.

25 MR. HALL: All right. And then you

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 referenced the Manny Nunez election and seemed to suggest
3 that that was the jumping-off place for the redistricting
4 and the gerrymandering of the Highlands.

5 MS. JOSEPH: That was the jumping off for 6 the polling being pulled.

7 MR. HALL: The polling place being pulled,
8 okay. And do you recall what the election -- or what the 9 voter turnout was in the Highlands area for Manny Nunez?

10 MS. JOSEPH: I don't have the numbers
11 specifically for that. It was -- it was just a complete 12 surprise to everyone, especially in city hall.

13 MR. HALL: That that candidate was --

14 MS. JOSEPH: That the -- yes. That that -- 15 basically that the Highlands voted as a group and had some 16 power to change some things.

17 MR. HALL: Okay. Any other questions?

18 MS. WRIGHT: What year was that?

19 MS. JOSEPH: The polling place, the election
20 was in 2000, and the polling place got pulled in 2004.

21 MS. COBB: What was -- did the Secretary of 22 State's office indeed come and make a determination about 23 the accessibility of it?

24 MS. JOSEPH: They did, and I have much to 25 say about that, that site visit.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 The report looked like it was written by a
3 fifth grader. It was very discouraging, and basically did 4 not refer to the -- I believe it's 950 CMR, which is the 5 statute that is giving the tolerances. So, for example,
6 you get a pass/fail as opposed to the railings failed. How 7 much did the railings fail? Well, according to the 8 statute, they failed by 2 inches.

9 The handicapped spaces, accessible spaces on 10 her first page, she said there were no designated spaces.
11 We have pictures of the designated spaces. Then on page 2, 12 she says these designated spaces, which did not exist on 13 page 1, were 6 inches off. Actually, she didn't say. She 14 said failed. According to the statute, they were 6 inches
15 off.

16 So in addition, our -- the Highlands
17 Coalition has identified donors and grants so that the city 18 does not have to pay for anything to be changed in order to 19 get the voting back in our neighborhood.

20 MS. WRIGHT: So how many polling places
21 does -- is the Highlands area assigned to now?

22 MS. JOSEPH: It's split so that there's none
23 in the Highlands, and we get to go to two different places.

24 MR. HALL: What's the average traveling 25 distance for those polling locations for the people in the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Highlands?

3 MS. JOSEPH: In order to -- I actually did a
4 run. From the Highlands -- there is no -- actually, there
5 is no public transportation within the Highlands. It's a
6 brisk ten-minute walk for someone with no mobility issues
7 to get to the bus. It's a 40-minute bus drive. Any of the 8 old New England towns, you just know that you're going in 9 and out, in and out. And then they let you off at Mass
10 State Highway Route 1A, you have to cross the state
11 highway, and then two more blocks to the polling place.
12 Again, with no -- myself, no mobility issues, and that bus
13 ride was not during rush-hour traffic.

14 MR. HALL: Okay. Any other questions from 15 our group?

16 Okay. Well, thank you for coming and 17 testifying, and continue to raise awareness around this 18 issue and continue to advocate for the people of the 19 Highlands. We certainly appreciate --

20 MS. JOSEPH: Thank you.

21 MR. HALL: -- your testimony.

22 Michael Arnott.

23 MR. ARNOTT: Hi. My name is Michael Arnott.
24 I'm a resident of Cambridge. My professional background is 25 public policy, but for the -- oh, more than a decade or

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 more, I've been a poll worker in the city of Cambridge.

3 Started out as an inspector, moved up to clerk, and for 4 many years now I'm a warden.

5 I'm going to just go over some -- there's 6 many issues, but the ones that in my experience as a warden
7 are the ones I'm going to touch on.

8 The inactive voter procedures. That seems 9 to be one of the things that I find really slows up a lot
10 of people. A lot of these things that say if there's going 11 to be improvements, it can't be by municipality. It really 12 needs to be mandated by the state so it can be statewide.

13 I've talked to poll workers and wardens in 14 other municipalities, and I see a wide range of quality of 15 training. In Cambridge, we've got every election separate 16 trainings for the inspectors and one for the clerks and the 17 wardens. They're very comprehensive. No more than about 18 30 people per training, so you get the -- get more 19 experience on the machines, answer all the questions. That 20 should be in every -- and also we get a thick book.

21 Inspectors get their own book; clerk and wardens, we get 22 our own book.

23 Some of the things I've heard today really 24 amaze me about the differences from one to the other.

25 One interesting thing is that in the Motor

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Voter, there's a lot of problems in getting registrations
3 from the registry to the state back to the municipality and 4 to the actual printed list. A lot of times I'm calling up
5 the Election Commission to find out that somebody is 6 registered, but it somehow didn't make it to our list.

7 When I started doing this many years ago,
8 there was -- there was -- ID had to be something like a --
9 from your landlord or utility bill or your driver's
10 license. Now, in Cambridge at least, it's anything printed 11 with your name and current address. I don't know how 12 widespread that is. There's -- oh. Wait a minute. I'm 13 trying to look for ones that -- of many.

14 Oh. In Cambridge now we're required two 15 test runs, one in the morning, one in the afternoon, for 16 the handicapped voter machine to make sure it's working and 17 we know how to use it. That would be great statewide, 18 again.

19 I think a lot has to be done to state-
20 mandated rules and regulations so that you don't have this 21 great disparity in training and how it's implemented from 22 municipality to municipality.

23 One is, I thought earlier today would be a 24 great idea, have election observers at the trainings as 25 well as at the polling station to see how -- the quality of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 the training. I bet a lot of them would -- the trainings
3 would go up.

4 When I was working in a previous position,
5 knew that conservation commissioners had regular trainings
6 that they were required to go to. That would be great if 7 election commissioners had regular trainings and 8 retrainings and refreshers that they were required to do.
9 If we can do it in Massachusetts for conservation
10 commissions, how about for election commissioners.

11 MR. HALL: Thank you. Thank you very much.

12 Any questions from our commissioners? Okay.
13 Seeing none around --

14 MR. ARNOTT: Well, thank you.

15 MR. HALL: Thank you, and thank you for your 16 service as a poll worker.

17 Grace Ross.

18 MS. ROSS: Hi there. So I realized that 19 three minutes was not probably -- I really didn't know what 20 made sense to capture in three minutes.

21 My name's Grace Ross, and I live in 22 Worcester. I'm not here representing anybody in 23 particular. I have been passionate about voting rights 24 stuff for a long time, and, among other things, when the 25 issues came down in the presidential elections, first in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Florida and then in Ohio, I actually filed briefs at the 3 United Nations to seek election observers with a number of 4 national organizations. And I'm assuming you guys are 5 going to have access to the data that we built up about 6 what happened in the -- particularly in the Ohio election.

7 I was part of the process of the five teams
8 that ended up descending on Congress to try to get an 9 objection filed to the Ohio vote count. What was dramatic 10 about that was the way in which, when we drilled down into 11 all the communities and states where there was assumptions
12 that there might have been various kinds of voter
13 suppression and voter tampering, was the way in which it
14 appeared to all come from the same playbook, literally
15 fliers that were used in the Haitian community in Florida
16 being visually similar as well as worded the same to fliers
17 that were used in Ohio -- in Illinois and some of the 18 communities of color, et cetera, et cetera.

19 So I'm hoping you're going to grab those 20 stories. They didn't happen in Massachusetts at the time,
21 but I had friends who did Election Protection work, and one 22 of them is one of the long-time diversity committee members
23 of the Massachusetts Democratic Party, and she said, as one 24 of the folks who came from Massachusetts and worked as an 25 Election Protection volunteer in Florida, that it was the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 most traumatic experience she had ever had as an African-3 American woman, that she was targeted by a bunch of the 4 suppression activities, because they assumed she was a 5 voter, not an Election Protection volunteer, because she 6 wasn't white. And she's an incredibly powerful woman. She 7 spent three weeks in bed trying to recuperate from the 8 experience.

9 So I think that's really a rich area of 10 information, and if you have problems accessing the data
11 that we created out of that, I'd be happy to help.

12 Two things I draw from that, one was the 13 EUCD election volunteers who did come in 2008, the woman
14 from Venezuela talked about how impossible the US system
15 is. She's like why can't you just use indelible ink on 16 people's hands like everybody does in developing nations to 17 show that someone's voted and, you know, if they've got 18 their Social Security card, they should be there.

19 So I've also run for office, and the thing
20 that's most striking for me about that is voter 21 registration deadlines that are a few weeks in advance of 22 the vote. People wake up to the vote usually within, you 23 know, maybe a week or two before the vote for folks who are 24 not kind of tied into the electoral insanity, and to not 25 have same-day registration I think should be a national

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 law. I just don't see how we can possibly claim to be a
3 democracy without that.

4 In terms of Massachusetts, I think folks
5 assume that we're better in terms of voting stuff. I think
6 the things that came out earlier around the testimony
7 around the Voting Rights Act says a lot. But I have 8 friends who work in the blind community, and they say
9 the -- getting Braille information related to anything in 10 elections is impossible. You simply can't educate people
11 about who's voting. When I ran, I actually printed Braille
12 information cards, but it's not just access to the physical 13 voting machine; it's access to voting information.

14 So I'm going to stop and, I guess, let folks
15 ask questions, but there's stuff about the money we don't 16 have to train poll workers, translation, and I was at the 17 polling lines in Worcester in 2012 and witnessed all sorts 18 of mess, so if it's appropriate to talk about that. But 19 I'm out of my time, so I'm not sure.

20 MS. WRIGHT: Actually, I was just going to 21 ask whether you were -- saw or witnessed any of the 22 problems in Worcester?

23 MS. ROSS: Yeah. Well, so I was in the 24 busiest polling place in Worcester. There are three 25 precincts that vote there, and we had extensive lines.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MS. COBB: Which precincts?

3 MS. ROSS: I'm sorry?

4 MS. COBB: Which precincts?

5 MS. ROSS: You know, I don't -- I'd have to 6 go look them up, and I think Chris left. It's the senior
7 center in Worcester. And we had folks out the door, a lot
8 of folks who got in, you know, inside the door at eight
9 o'clock to make sure they'd be able to vote. We were there
10 until almost nine.

11 The three lines made it almost impossible,
12 and actually the only reason that folks figured out which 13 line they should be in was sometime late in the morning, 14 the local rep, state representative, showed up, and he 15 decided to make it his job for the next, I don't know, six 16 or seven hours to go through where people were standing in 17 line with a registration booklet and make sure they were in 18 the right polling place. We had tons of folks who weren't.

19 Worcester has redone its polling places in 20 the last few years. You're no longer -- you're often --
21 the place near you to go vote, which is where everybody
22 walks to, is not your polling place. This came out of a 23 bunch of complexities around accessibility. And I'm not 24 sure what Worcester did with it was really legal.

25 Our guy who is in charge of the voter

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 registration stuff is fabulous and very committed, and he's 3 tried to balance things. But they had problems with sex
4 offenders, third-level registered sex offenders. Of 5 course, the schools are mostly where people vote, and so
6 they moved all the polling places out of schools so that 7 they wouldn't run into problems with folks who are not 8 supposed to be around children being able to exercise their 9 right to vote. It's created a bunch of other complexities
10 that are problems for us.

11 But in that precinct, what was dramatic to 12 me was the number of young folks, sort of early twenties,
13 who showed up after work, around like 6:30, trying to vote,
14 and it was their second time ever voting. They had come 15 out for the first Obama election, often, you know,
16 literally just 18 years old. Young people of color. There
17 were lot of them. And if they were in the wrong place, 18 they didn't find out in time to go to a new place because 19 of the way that people waited in line and then found out, 20 oh, the polling place had changed, but they couldn't get 21 from where they were to where they needed to be.

22 There was no way to do provisional ballots
23 for the wrong place. There are other things you can get 24 them for. Lots of people got provisional ballots who 25 shouldn't have. I ended up complaining about it because I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 know the voting laws really well. And the problem in 3 Worcester anyway is they don't count provisional ballots in 4 the first count. They only count them if they, quote, need
5 them. Well, what does that mean? I don't even -- I don't 6 even get that. What do you mean you don't need someone's
7 vote?

8 Okay. Anyway, I think it's just a bad
9 experience. My big concern is that we've figured out how 10 to discourage people from voting in such a powerful way.
11 You can't register; you want to register.

12 You know, I've had folks who didn't come
13 vote because they're older voters who had never registered 14 before or had registered but had never voted. They were 15 embarrassed to show up and not know how to use a voting
16 machines. You know, they might move from one community to 17 another -- we have five different voting machines in 18 Massachusetts -- and they didn't want to look stupid.

19 And it's like why can't we just have a video 20 that shows people how to use the voting machines in their 21 community, and anybody can watch it and then go in and not 22 feel like an idiot. Maybe it would help the poll workers.
23 I don't know.

24 We also had voting machines that were down.
25 The amount of voters was just over the capacity, the pace,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 for the voting machines to handle it. They were pretty 3 good about getting them back up. But, again, folks would 4 come to come vote at lunch hour, the machine takes 40
5 minutes to get up. They can't necessarily come back.

6 And the other thing I find most dramatic 7 about that is people have no clue that you're allowed to 8 take time from work to vote. We've had employers tell 9 people that they weren't allowed to when they tried to 10 exercise that right. And I think for folks who are often 11 these days working odd hours, two jobs, et cetera, et 12 cetera. If you can get one job, you usually have to have 13 two; everybody else doesn't have any. It's really, really 14 bad.

15 And even with a clerk who's so committed to 16 voting, you can't get through to the -- to the voter
17 registrar's office on the day of the election. So if you
18 have a problem, the lines are jammed, the poll workers
19 can't get through with their questions, the fact that most 20 of the stuff is not just available online, at least to the 21 poll workers, seems insane to me. They should be able to 22 check stuff.

23 But if we're going to have long lines, the 24 more important thing is there has to be someone at the door
25 that helps people figure out, am I in the right voting

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 place, am I not in the right voting place, what do I need
3 to do, you know, am I even active, which is a huge problem
4 that Chris already talked about from Worcester; it just 5 plagues us with the inability to really have a real vote.

6 So that's just the beginning of the tip of 7 the iceberg.

8 MS. WRIGHT: Thank you.

9 MR. HALL: Thank you very much, Grace.

10 Any other questions?

11 MS. COBB: I'm just curious what -- if all 12 of these schools stopped being locations, where did they 13 move them to?

14 MS. ROSS: Well, it's part of my concern was 15 that part of the problem was then identifying public 16 buildings in each precinct. So we ended up with folks with 17 some pretty weird places to go. One of the places that 18 they did was the EcoTarium, which is a great building, but 19 you have to pay to get in the gate. And so they had to try
20 and sort out who was there to vote and who -- who was there 21 to get in. It's up to two very long flights of stairs from 22 the regular parking, unless you park in the handicapped
23 parking. There were problems about people doing that.

24 The other thing is they ended up renting
25 space in stores. So there are folks, you know, lined up to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 pay for their groceries here and folks lined up to vote
3 over there.

4 It seemed like a pretty dysfunctional
5 solution, but I think that whoever had organized for the 6 rights of folks who were sex offenders had done a pretty 7 good job of convincing the city that, you know, they had to 8 move everything.

9 So the bigger issue here to me is just the 10 public commitment to voting, right? I mean they did find 11 places, but they were crazy places sometimes, right? And 12 to me that's the deeper issue here. I just sort of feel 13 like if we have a commitment to democracy, then we have a 14 commitment to everybody being able to vote, and we have to 15 put the resources -- our state doesn't put a lot of 16 resources into training poll workers. That's part of our 17 problem.

18 And I think -- I always feel like this is 19 the larger issue, having been up at the State House to 20 lobby for any number of electoral reforms. And we have 21 Spanish ballots in Worcester. When the Secretary of the 22 Commonwealth found out we did when we don't have the 23 threshold requiring them, he tried to get them rescinded, 24 even though we'd had them for 15 years already in 25 Worcester, English/Spanish.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 So, I don't know, I feel like the deeper
3 issue here is do we have a moral call for people to be able 4 to vote or not. And I think if we don't, then I think we 5 have to -- have to be real about that. I mean, you know,
6 somebody was saying other countries look to us, but I think
7 that we have to decide whether we look to ourselves or not.

8 We can do this. These are all things that 9 can be done, different states have done great with 10 different ones of them. I shudder to think what happens
11 when we end up with -- and I hope we don't -- an ID
12 requirement, because I just think that's so far beyond
13 reasonable. It's completely unnecessary.

14 And we have street listings in 15 Massachusetts, and our legislators are very attached to 16 those, as one of them said, "So that I know who I have to 17 talk to before an election." Like it would be nice to talk 18 to all the constituents, whether they vote for you or not.

19 MR. HALL: Exactly. Thank you very much.

20 MS. ROSS: Thank you.

21 MR. HALL: Okay. Mr. Dunne has to depart, 22 but we certainly appreciate his time and service on this 23 commission and know that you will continue to do great work
24 in this vein.

25 MR. DUNNE: See you soon.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 MR. HALL: All right. We have four
3 remaining witnesses, that is Tony Mack from the Mass Voter
4 Table. After him will be Phi Tran. Following Phi will be 5 Ryan Thomas, then Chris Maynard.

6 MR. MACK: Hi. So I am Tony Mack from the 7 Mass Voter Table. I'm actually going to be reading
8 testimony from Neighbor to Neighbor Massachusetts. They 9 could not be here today, but they had submitted written
10 testimony, and so I'm going to read it for them.

11 The Mass. Voter Table is a network of 12 currently 40 community-based nonprofit groups based in low-
13 income communities and communities of color that does voter 14 participation and engages communities in elections and in 15 issues. And Neighbor to Neighbor is one of our 40
16 partners.

17 So this testimony was written by Ivette
18 Luna, so I'm going to speak in her voice -- no. Ivette is 19 the organizing director of Neighbor to Neighbor.

20 So with over 18,000 low-income and working
21 class members in the cities of Springfield, Holyoke,
22 Worcester, Salem, and Lynn, Neighbor to Neighbor builds 23 political power that improves the quality of our lives.

24 For the past 18 years, Neighbor to Neighbor
25 has been leading the charge in the cities where we work to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 ensure that low-income communities of color and communities
3 of color raise their voice through voting. We prioritize 4 electoral organizing as a way to build, strengthen, and 5 enhance the communities in which we work. We strive to 6 build awareness in our communities about the important role
7 that voting plays in our lives, from electing leaders who 8 will prioritize our needs to passing ballot initiatives
9 that will effectively alter our living conditions.

10 Because we understand that problems such as 11 poverty, unemployment, education, housing, health care, to 12 name a few, are concentrated in particular demographic 13 groups, we've worked to increase voter participation among 14 what we call the rising Massachusetts electorate, comprised 15 of low-income people, people of color, unmarried women, and 16 youth.

17 Throughout the past decade, we've seen
18 repeatedly our community's voice diminished through voter 19 suppression efforts. We've seen how in part, due to 20 problems with current election regulations, such as 21 inactive voting procedures, lack of access to early voting, 22 lack of accessibility to the polls, our community has been 23 turned away by the dozens from the polling booth.

24 In 2012 Neighbor to Neighbor experienced the 25 following voter suppression incidents. People were turned

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 away at the polls because of inactive status. They were 3 not offered provisional ballots. Poll checkers asked for 4 state-issued identification cards of voters, even though
5 they had a household utility bill, so many voters were 6 turned away.

7 Due to redistricting and lack of information
8 from the city to the voters, voters didn't have the right
9 polling place and thus were turned away at the polls.

10 Voters with language barriers were not allowed to have 11 translators at the booths, even though voters requested the 12 support. At the polls, there was a lack of translators to 13 help new voters vote. New voters were turned away at the 14 polls because of inaccuracies in the voting lists at 15 polling places.

16 For example, one voter who had a letter from 17 the Springfield election office stating that he was 18 registered was not on the voting list at the correct
19 polling place. With lines backed up at this presidential 20 election, poll workers didn't have the time -- didn't take 21 the time to call city hall to find out if he was indeed 22 registered or even offer him a provisional ballot, and he 23 was turned away. But because Neighbor to Neighbor
24 advocates were with him, we insisted that he be given a 25 provisional ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Neighbor to Neighbor fully supports
3 legislation currently being considered by the state
4 legislature that will increase and improve access to 5 voting, particularly in the communities where our members
6 live and work. This legislation includes online voter
7 registration, early voting, preregistration of 16- and 17-
8 year-olds, post-election audits, election-day registration,
9 automatically updated registration, and improved inactive
10 voting procedures so that a one-time failure to reply to 11 the city census does not make a voter inactive.

12 In closing, we hope that these provisions
13 will make Massachusetts a national leader in having an 14 efficient, modern, fair, and accessible system that truly
15 works to voter engagement and participation. We have begun 16 the process of ending voter suppression. Our challenge is 17 to pass and enact these measures to ensure getting to the 18 polls is not a foreign or intimidating experience for our 19 communities.

20 And I just wanted to add that the 21 Massachusetts Voter Table as a whole has also endorsed all 22 of those pieces of legislation, and it's one of the 23 priorities for the Table for this year.

24 MR. HALL: Thank you. Thank you very much.
25 Thank you for relaying those -- that testimony for us.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Any questions from the commission?

3 Even though those aren't your words

4 exactly --

5 MR. MACK: Yes.

6 MR. HALL: -- I know that you agree with the 7 spirit of them.8 MR. MACK: I do agree with it. And I
9 should -- as full disclosure, I used to be an organizer
10 with Neighbor to Neighbor before I did this, and I 11 experienced many of those things myself when I worked with 12 them. Thanks.

13 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

14 Phi Tran.

15 MR. TRAN: Hello. Thanks for having me. My 16 name is Phi Tran. I represent Asian American Resource 17 Workshop. We are a civil rights, Asian American, Pan-
18 Asian, social justice organization, and I work specifically 19 in Dorchester running the Dorchester organizing and 20 training initiative. It is a program to get young 21 Vietnamese residents of Dorchester to become more 22 politically and civically engaged in the community.23 And I'm here to testify on behalf of the 24 bilingual ballot, which is also in Vietnamese. Just to 25 supplement all of the great things that have been said

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 already by the Chinese community, the Vietnamese community
3 wants to double that as well.

4 We also want to talk about this little bit
5 of history you might have heard of this tiny war called the 6 Vietnam War that happened in the '60s and the '70s that 7 caused a lot of immigration to happen in the Vietnamese
8 community.

9 So just to break down a small amount of 10 history. Three main waves of immigration happened in '75,
11 1980, and the 1990s up until now. I mention these dates
12 because a really specific immigration issue that happened
13 in the community is that because of the timing of 14 immigration, now is the right time for naturalization to 15 happen for these citizens in these communities.

16 Vietnamese -- the Vietnamese population --
17 well, just to show you this new report that was released
18 this year, 2013, by the Asian American Advancement of 19 Justice, which a disaggregation of the US census data of 20 2006 to 2012, I believe, the Vietnamese community is at 21 around 64 percent legal permanent resident with a high rate
22 of nationalization possibility. And as Mr. Yee has stated 23 before, being able to take the nationalization test in your 24 mother language is a huge advantage that a lot of people
25 don't know in the community, which is a shame.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 And to back that up, two-thirds of the 3 Vietnamese population in Boston is limited English
4 proficient, again backing up the claim -- the need for 5 bilingual ballots in our community to really further boost
6 our civic engagement process.

7 I also used to work for the Vietnamese
8 American Initiative for Development, it's a community
9 development corporation, as their civic engagement
10 coordinator. And through my years of working there, I've 11 seen higher rates of voter turnout in the community
12 specifically in the precincts that I worked because of the 13 bilingual ballots from 2010 to 2013.

14 And also with the Vietnamese-American Civic 15 Association, which works in promoting all of these legal 16 forms and promoting civic engagement, they recorded over 17 200 applications for naturalization in 2013 alone for 18 Vietnamese citizens. And so with that, we really want to 19 push bilingual ballots as an even playing field to support
20 everything the Chinese community has said for the 21 Vietnamese community as well.

22 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

23 Any questions?

24 Okay. Thank you for your testimony.

25 Thank you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Ryan Thomas.

3 MR. THOMAS: Hi. My name is Ryan Thomas.

4 I'm a student at Suffolk University, undergraduate student
5 at the college of arts and sciences. I'm a resident of 6 Kingston. And I voted in both the presidential election of 7 2012 as well as the special election for the US Senate in 8 2013.

9 I would just like to open by stating that I
10 had positive experiences when voting in both elections.
11 But I did take note of certain areas of the process that 12 could be improved upon.

13 Specifically I'd like to address my voting
14 experience during the presidential election year of 2012.
15 At the time I was attending college in South Carolina and 16 would not be home to vote on election day. So to solve
17 this, I decided to vote absentee. I did this in the town
18 of Kingston, where I live, when I was home on school break,
19 and this was around October 19th. So it was a couple weeks
20 before the election.

21 Everything went as planned. I was able to 22 fill out my application form and vote in that one visit.
23 But while my voting experience went smoothly, I just wanted
24 to offer a couple comments on the process that I observed.

25 I noticed that it took longer than usual as

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 I was taking -- when I went in to vote. I was taken into a
3 side room to fill out my absentee ballot. It worked
4 sufficiently, because it was in a small town like Kingston,
5 and there was not a logjam; it wasn't crowded. But I could 6 see problems with this procedure in larger areas with 7 greater populations where the town hall could become more
8 crowded with absentee ballot requests.

9 So to avoid a logjam of voters, I would 10 suggest clarifying the state guidelines on absentee voting, 11 especially pertaining to the final weeks before the 12 election. The website for the Massachusetts state 13 government instructs potential absentee voters to plan to 14 visit their town hall two to three weeks before the 15 election. But then this, just to clarify, is when voting
16 absentee in person.

17 In order to clarify and simplify this 18 process for potential absentee voters, I would suggest a 19 revision of the absentee voting guidelines on the state 20 website to include the earliest possible date that an 21 absentee voter could be counted. Because I know from my 22 experience, when I went to check, we could not find that 23 out, and we had to go there in person to find that out.
24 They do advise you to go there two to three weeks
25 beforehand so you won't run into any problems, but they

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 don't give you any specific dates.

3 And I'd just like to clarify, this is just 4 my personal experience voting at the town hall and doesn't
5 really address voting absentee by mail.

6 So thank you.

7 MR. HALL: Thank you.

8 Any questions from our commissioners?

9 MS. WRIGHT: No. But thank you for taking 10 the time to share your experience.

11 MR. THOMAS: Thanks.

12 MR. HALL: Thank you very much. We 13 appreciate it.

14 Chris Maynard.

15 MR. MAYNARD: How are you all doing today?

16 MR. HALL: Good. How are you?

17 MR. MAYNARD: Doing quite well.

18 My name is Chris Maynard. I'm a BSBA
19 candidate here at Suffolk University, and I'd like to thank 20 you all for coming here today.

21 And before I get started, I would just like 22 to touch upon the issue of Worcester and voting. And it
23 seems clear, from my perspective -- I'm not an expert --
24 however, if someone is unable to vote in the public
25 destination, they should be issued an absentee ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 There's no reason for taxpayers' dollars to be spent
3 renting out a private venue, nor should that business be 4 disrupted due to the actions of another. That's my take on 5 the city of Worcester.

6 My name is Chris Maynard, and I'm here to 7 largely talk positively about my experience as an election
8 official in the city of Boston. I work in the State House
9 and the Boston Copley Library during state and national 10 elections, and I think it goes great. We have about 20 11 percent turnout in both precincts. And people glow when 12 they vote. It's just tremendous to see. People are happy 13 to be there, and they're excited. And I came here today to 14 relay that excitement of voting and to propose a new venue
15 of voting that the Commonwealth has yet to see this 16 century.

17 I am here to propose today that voting be 18 implemented in the higher education level. As a student
19 here at Suffolk University, a $100 million yearly 20 operation, the students have no say whatsoever in how the 21 money is spent here. And being that this is a project that 22 we fund entirely, the students believe that we should have 23 a right to vote on the projects and initiatives that are 24 taken in higher education.

25 Suffolk University is a very progressive

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 school in the heart of Boston, and we believe that we can
3 start it here. And if we work together, we can issue
4 voting into higher education and make the 21st century the 5 year of voting for higher education. Thank you.

6 MR. HALL: Thank you. Any questions?

7 MS. WRIGHT: I'm just interested in, do you
8 have an organization that's pushing this idea within 9 Suffolk, and where does it stand?

10 MR. MAYNARD: I came here today to start it.

11 MS. WRIGHT: Okay. Everything has to start
12 somewhere. So thank you for sharing that.

13 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

14 MR. MAYNARD: Thank you.

15 MR. HALL: Appreciate it.

16 All right. And the last witness that we 17 have signed up is Andy Morgan from Rosie's Place.

18 MR. MORGAN: I just want to say I commend 19 you all for doing this all day, with such an upbeat
20 attitude.

21 MR. HALL: Thank you very much.

22 MR. MORGAN: Good afternoon, members of the 23 National Commission on Voting Rights. My name is Andy 24 Morgan, and I am the public policy assistant at Rosie's
25 Place in Boston.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Rosie's Place is committed to providing a
3 safe and nurturing environment to help poor and homeless
4 woman maintain their dignity, seek opportunity, and find
5 security in their lives. I'm here today to speak on behalf
6 of Rosie's Place and the thousands of women we serve.

7 During each election, we conduct voter
8 registration and education at Rosie's Place. To date,
9 almost 300 women are registered to vote with Rosie's Place
10 as their address. In the past 18 months alone, we've 11 registered over 800 individuals to vote.

12 The reason we take voter registration
13 seriously is because poor and homeless people face great 14 barriers to casting their ballot. Voting is a fundamental 15 right of every American citizen. No one should be denied 16 that right because they have no place to call home.

17 In Massachusetts, voters who are homeless or 18 at risk of homelessness can use the address of their 19 shelter or temporary accommodation, or even a street corner
20 they reside, to register to vote. Our guess is that other 21 people experiencing homelessness, across this state and 22 others, are transient, either due to unstable housing or 23 shuffling between shelters. When it comes down to it, many 24 of our guests simply do not know where they will be on 25 election day.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Voters who reside in family shelters may be 3 placed in shelters that are up to 20 miles from their 4 original residence. Many more temporarily couch-surf with 5 friends and family until their options run out. Many 6 shelters for homeless individuals have time constraints,
7 such as daily bed lotteries, which can mean a homeless
8 individual does not know day to day where he or she is 9 sleeping that night, all contributing to the barriers of 10 casting their vote on election day.

11 Our guests are highly motivated to vote.
12 Many of them assisted with voter registration efforts or 13 conducted their own voter drives at other shelters, day
14 centers, support groups and community centers.

15 On election days, the women we serve try to 16 squeeze in voting between bed lottery, shelter curfew, meal
17 programs, and other obligations. As we like to say, being 18 homeless is a full-time job. Oh, sorry.

19 Okay. Take the election day experience of a 20 guest. She was an elderly survivor of violence who was 21 eager to vote. She participated in all of our candidate
22 forums, and come election day, due to the transient nature
23 of being homeless, she was unable to cast her vote because 24 of the long lines.

25 I'm just going to be very quick.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Election policies that we urge the 3 commission to support include allowing citizens who are 4 housing -- or who have unstable housing to have the 5 flexibility in their address for voter registration;
6 Massachusetts election-day registration, which will allow 7 voters to vote instead of being turned away from the polls
8 because they don't know where they'll be housed or 9 sheltered on election day; removing a lifetime ban on 10 people with criminal records, similar to what Massachusetts
11 does.

12 Civic and electoral engagement have been 13 tied to reduced recidivism. Considering that a majority of 14 people who are in prison or have a criminal record due to 15 either the crimes of poverty or crimes of addiction, a 16 lifetime ban on voting is the wrong policy that other 17 states have adopted.

18 And early voting and at-will absentee voting
19 will also go a long way in making sure that citizens who 20 are homeless or at risk of being homeless are still able to 21 cast their ballots without being dictated by circumstances
22 beyond their control.

23 Thank you. I have copies.

24 MR. HALL: Great. If you could leave us
25 with some copies, we'd appreciate it.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 Any questions from our commissioners? Okay.

3 MS. WRIGHT: Thank you for the work you do.

4 Thanks.

5 MS. COBB: Thank you.

6 MS. HORTON: Is there anyone else in the 7 audience who signed up to testify or didn't sign up but 8 would like to testify? Questions? Well, actually not 9 questions.

10 So I'm just going to close this out. By,
11 one, saying thank you to all of you who are still in the 12 audience who testified or participated, and we hope it's 13 been an informative experience for you, as it has for us.

14 Thank you to our panel of commissioners, as 15 well, for continuing the conversation today and making
16 everyone feel heard and creating what I'm sure will be a 17 pretty full record for us out of the New England hearing.

18 I wanted to let each of the commissioners
19 just close this out with final remarks, but I also wanted 20 to say that for individuals who either testified but have 21 written materials that you'd like to submit, or if you know
22 of folks who weren't able to attend but still have 23 testimony that would be helpful, we are still collecting 24 testimony for the next two weeks from this hearing, and you
25 can e-mail that to ncvr@lawyerscommittee.org. So that's

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 our central space to collect testimony. If you happen to 3 forget that, if you have my e-mail or Rahsaan's or anyone
4 who's on the panel, that's always a fallback as well. But 5 ncvr@lawyerscommittee.org.

6 I just wanted to thank everyone. Thank you,
7 thank you. And I'll let each of you finish up with closing 8 remarks.

9 MR. HALL: Okay.

10 MS. COBB: I'll be brief, but I want to just 11 highlight some of the key themes that I thought came out
12 today.

13 First of all, the issue of inactive voters
14 being a real problem, along with provisional ballots that 15 causes great confusion to poll workers, voters, and it's 16 one of the additional layers that adds to the long -- when 17 we do have a lot of voters -- to the long lines because of 18 that confusion that can botch up the works.

19 The other key thing that I think came out
20 today, along with the issues of adequate translators, 21 bilingual ballots, accessibility for disabled voters, was 22 really statewide training for poll workers, because so much 23 of the issues occur as a result of this largely -- even 24 though they are paid, largely volunteer workforce.

25 Imagine a job where you have to show up at

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 6:00 a.m. and have really no prior training, and you're on 3 the minute you begin, you have to implement very 4 complicated law and make sure that you're right, and not
5 necessarily know the team, not necessarily, as Elaine
6 pointed out, know anything the day you begin. And you have 7 one shot at it to get it right, and that's it. That is not 8 helpful to the functioning of democracy.

9 So implementing some form of statewide
10 training for poll workers that is accessible, that can be 11 online, where you can do refreshers, you can watch videos,
12 and then have also hands-on training in small groups doing 13 all of the pedagogical techniques that we know are 14 effective for active learning, would help tremendously to 15 make that core of people competent and also feel confident
16 themselves when it comes to actually implementing the laws
17 on election day. And also avoid additional issues with the 18 lack of training that leads to when there are people 19 present at voting locations who are engaging in kinds of 20 intimidation that we heard about today, they will feel 21 confident about knowing what is and is not permissible and 22 acceptable and legal.

23 So those were the key themes that I heard
24 today, and I look forward to the work of this group to be 25 able to make changes that are necessary to ensure that

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 everyone who wants to vote may vote.

3 MS. WRIGHT: So I very much appreciated the 4 opportunity to be here and to see the incredible commitment
5 and passion that so many people from so many communities
6 have about accessing the right to register and to vote.

7 I was really struck by the, you know, many 8 different stories of difficulty and exclusion, you know,
9 everything from the Highlands community in Lynn and 10 discrimination in voting that they are experiencing to the 11 voter intimidation that happened in Worcester, to, you 12 know, the problems with -- throughout the state with the 13 inactive list which, you know, I think was in fact a theme 14 here. Access to bilingual ballots is clearly an absolutely 15 crucial issue that Massachusetts needs to address.

16 A couple of other themes that I thought kept
17 resurfacing: One was the issue of reprecincting in Boston
18 and how many problems that -- the fact that that hasn't 19 been done is causing. That just -- you know, long lines in 20 certain parts of the city with the largest precincts, but 21 also effects on being able to recruit the best folks for 22 poll workers, because you have just too many that you need 23 to recruit. So that's clearly a problem that needs to be 24 solved.

25 I was, you know, really inspired by the work

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 that so many folks are doing to make voting accessible. I
3 was talking with Commissioner Dunne, before he left, during 4 the lunch break, we were talking a little bit about 5 Representative John Lewis, because we were talking about 6 the new Voting Rights Act amendments that he's really one 7 of the key sponsors of. And it reminded me that one of the 8 things that Representative Lewis always says, which is that 9 voting is the most powerful nonviolent tool that we have in 10 a democracy. And we have to make sure that people can use
11 that tool and exercise their right to vote.

12 So I really thank all the people who brought 13 us the testimony and the evidence about how far we need to 14 go in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and in the whole New 15 England region to really realize that right and make sure
16 it's accessible to everyone.

17 Thank you.

18 MR. HALL: I would echo the sentiments of 19 both Rachael and Brenda. I think those themes captured my 20 attention as well.

21 I would also say that I am inspired by the 22 young people who came forward who are engaged in the 23 process of getting other young people to turn out to vote,
24 to register, to advocate on behalf of historically 25 disenfranchised communities. That was refreshing and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 reassuring to know that there -- that the next generation
3 is in touch with these issues and engaged with these 4 issues.

5 I cannot say, however, that I am surprised
6 by what I've heard, in part because many of the advocates
7 that came forward have been the advocates that I've been 8 partnering with over the last several years at the Lawyers'
9 Committee. But it certainly did underscore the fact that 10 there are gross disparities that exist, certainly 11 throughout this country, but particularly here in 12 Massachusetts, that leave historically disenfranchised
13 communities on the margins of the electoral process.

14 And, you know, despite the best intentions
15 of election officials, there are -- we are still beset with 16 gaps in funding and in resources, and antiquated procedures 17 that end up forcing these people to the margins, because 18 the voting process is not necessarily an easy one in this 19 Commonwealth. And it can certainly be made easier, and 20 we've heard a lot of great suggestions of how it can be 21 improved.

22 So I'm certainly honored to be a part of 23 this commission and glad for the work that has been going 24 on.

25 I want to take a brief moment to acknowledge

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 some folks, certainly our partners in helping to coordinate
3 this. MassVOTE, Common Cause, the ACLU of Massachusetts
4 have been consistent partners in our voting rights work and 5 consistent in working with us to get this -- to hold this 6 hearing.

7 We also had support from the League of Women
8 Voters, the New England Area Conference of the NAACP, the 9 Urban League of Eastern Massachusetts.

10 Brenda, Demos is certainly very well
11 respected and appreciated, and your support and 12 participation is appreciated.

13 Suffolk Law School and the School of 14 Government, we're glad to have you on board, Rachael.

15 Also Access Strategies for funding us, the 16 Springfield Institute, MIRA Coalition, Progressive Mass, 17 and Lawyers' Committee, national Lawyers' Committee and the 18 local affiliate. Thank you for doing this work and for 19 bringing it to the New England area and for your resources
20 and support.

21 And I would be remiss if I were not to thank 22 Tyler Crosby, who spearheaded all this work on the ground
23 here while I was tied up getting prepared for a trial. I
24 just kind of turned it over and said, "Tyler, run with it,"
25 and he ran with it.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 And certainly, Meredith, we appreciate all
3 your support, guidance, and technical assistance.

4 And to the rest of the Lawyers' Committee
5 staff, who I believe are out in the hall, for their help as 6 well.

7 So hopefully we look to see the great work
8 that comes out of this great work moving forward.

9 Thank you all.

10 (Hearing concluded: 3:44 p.m.)

11 12
13
14
15
16
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS - NEW ENGLAND HEARING

2 C E R T I F I C A T E

3
4 I, James A. Scally, RMR, CRR, a Certified
5 Shorthand Reporter and Notary Public in and for the 6 Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do hereby certify that the 7 foregoing transcript is a complete, true, and accurate
8 transcription of my stenographic notes/audiographic
9 recordings taken in the aforementioned matter to the best
10 of my knowledge, skill, and ability.

11 Dated: 4/10/2014

12
13 James A. Scally, RMR, CRR

14 CSR/Notary Public

15 My Commission Expires:

16 April 23, 2015
17
18 19 20 21
22
23
24
25

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2

3 IN RE:)

4 CALIFORNIA STATE HEARING)

5)

6)

7)

8

9

10

11 TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS

12

13

14

January 30, 2014

15

San Francisco, California

16

17

18

19 20

21

22

23 Reported By:

24 Hanna Kim, CLR, CSR No. 13083

25 Job No. 69470

1 January 30, 2014

2
3 Transcript of proceedings of the National
4 Commission on Voting Rights commenced at 9:10 a.m., on 5 January 30, 2014, at UC Hastings College of Law,
6 located at 198 McAllister Street, San Francisco,
7 California 94102, before Hanna Kim, CLR, CSR No. 13083.

8
9 APPEARANCES:

10
11 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law

12 BY: MARIA PERALTA, ESQ.

13 KIMBERLY THOMS RAPP, ESQ.

14 ERANDI ZAMORA, ESQ.

15 1401 New York Avenue, N.W.

16 Washington, D.C. 20005

17
18 19
20 Commission Panel:

21 DOLORES HUERTA, UFW Co-Founder

22 KATHAY FENG, California Common Cause

23 ALICE HUFFMAN, President of NAACP

24 CRUZ REYNOSO, (ret.) Justice of California Supreme

25 Court, UC Davis School of Law

1 struggle between those who would engage, those who wish
2 to participate, those who want to assert their rights
3 and fulfill their responsibilities, no matter who they 4 are, what their walk of life, what their economic 5 means, and those who would exclude, who would 6 marginalize, who would say that some voices are left 7 unheard.

8 I know from my own family background, with 9 parents who came to this nation to pursue that great 10 American Dream that we all hold so dear, even if, from 11 time to time, we take it for granted, that for some 12 people, it is difficult -- for many people, it is 13 difficult to gain access to the courtroom, to the 14 polling place, because they may not have the language 15 skills; or even if they do, they make speak with an 16 accent, as my parents did, and no matter how 17 grammatically perfect, no matter what their vocabulary,
18 however learned they were, others wouldn't take them
19 quite as seriously.

20 That is what we seek to change. Here, this is 21 an effort to bring about progress, to ensure that 22 everyone who wants to be part of this body politic, who 23 wants to say that they too have an idea, that they have 24 a candidate they wish to support, or perhaps even to 25 run for office themselves, that they will be given an

1 TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS

2 THURSDAY, JANUARY 30, 2014; SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA

3 9:12 a.m.

4
5 MR. AARONSON: Good morning. And it's my 6 pleasure to introduce, to welcome you and start this 7 terrific event, with our Chancellor and Dean, Frank Wu.

8 MR. WU: Good morning, and welcome to the 9 University of California, Hastings College of the Law.

10 Many people suppose that the study of law and 11 the practice of law is an end in itself. I'd like to 12 suggest that, to the contrary, it is a means to an end.
13 The statutes, the case law, the arguments that we make,
14 they are a means of achieving justice, of doing right 15 in the world, of ensuring that we are able to persuade 16 one another.

17 That is why it is so fitting that we here host
18 and co-sponsor these public hearings, because these too
19 are a means to an end, of ensuring participation in 20 this diverse democracy of ours, of creating a system, a 21 set of procedures, a structure in concrete terms
22 whereby everyone can stand up and speak out, even if,
23 literally, they do not stand nor speak. For in this 24 democracy of ours, there is even now, in this day after 25 voting rights acts have been passed and undone, a

1 equal and fair opportunity. That is what makes this 2 nation great. And it is up to us to take this 3 rhetoric, all these ideals, and to make it a reality.

4 So I say to you, welcome to the University of 5 California, Hastings of the Law. Welcome to San 6 Francisco. I know this is an important day, when 7 everything you do in this dialogue will allow us to 8 make good on these ideals of ours.

9 Thank you very so much.

10 MS. RAPP: Good morning and welcome. I'm 11 Kimberly Thoms Rapp, the executive director of the 12 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights of the San 13 Francisco Bay Area, and it is really our pleasure to 14 join Chancellor and Dean Wu and David Young and 15 Professor Mark Aaronson to collaborate in sponsoring 16 and supporting today's very important hearing.

17 On behalf of my colleagues here in the San 18 Francisco Bay Area and our colleagues at the National 19 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in D.C., 20 we welcome all of you. And we are particularly pleased
21 to be joined by a distinguished panel of commissioners,
22 who will be introduced in great detail very shortly.

23 I think it's important, as we start
24 the -- begin to start the day and before we open the 25 proceedings, to really remember why it is that we are

1 here. You may recall that back in 2005, the National
 2 Lawyers' Committee established the National Commission
 3 on Voting Rights at that time to determine whether or 4 not widespread discrimination was still happening,
 5 still taking place in jurisdictions covered by
 6 Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act.

7 The commission at that time held hearings
 8 around the country and issued a report of its findings
 9 that Congress was able to rely on at the time to inform 10 its considerations as it was looking at whether to 11 reauthorize Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act.

12 And, in fact, Congress did rely on the 13 information yielded from the hearings and other 14 information to determine that Section 5 should, in 15 fact, be reauthorized.

16 And here we are, fast-forward to the summer of 17 last year, when the U.S. Supreme Court in Shelby County 18 v. Holder, was reviewing and considering the 19 constitutionality of the coverage formula that enforces
 20 the preclearance provisions under Section 5. And, of 21 course, the coverage formula came under challenge. And 22 the coverage formula is extremely important because it
 23 is what really determines which jurisdictions really 24 need to go through the process of having any changes to 25 their election systems reviewed and approved prior to 1 any election.

2 And so the Court, in a 5/4 decision, struck
 3 down Section 4 of the Act, which, as I have mentioned,
 4 established the coverage formula. And by doing so, the 5 Court effectively struck down Section 5, effectively
 6 nullified Section 5, the preclearance provision, which 7 really had been the strongest antidote to voting
 8 discrimination other the last 50 years.

9 And here we are now, in 2014 here in 10 California, with that decision having gutted the 11 preclearance provisions, needing to take a look at the 12 same thing that the commission back in 2005 looked at, 13 whether or not discrimination is continuing in 14 jurisdictions that were previously covered under 15 Section 5.

16 And this commission also, in addition to 17 looking at whether or not discrimination -- voter
 18 discrimination and racial discrimination is continuing,
 19 will also be looking at the structural barriers to 20 voting, including electoral administration and reform
 21 issues.

22 So this commission will be issuing two
 23 reports: one report focused on racial discrimination
 24 and a second report focused on election administration
 25 problems and the barriers that these particular

1 problems create.

2 I know I have people ask questions about why
 3 it is that there is a need for voting rights here in 4 California. Some suspect that California is far too
 5 progressive to face the kind of challenges that have 6 been seen in Shelby County, for example, and other
 7 areas in the South. However, right here in California,
 8 there are several jurisdictions that were covered under 9 Section 5, including Kings, Yuba, and Monterey
 10 Counties.

11 In addition, during the 2012 election cycle, a 12 number of our volunteer attorneys and pro bono 13 partners, who were helping us to monitor elections and 14 monitor polling locations, observed a number of 15 barriers and challenges to folks exercising their very 16 basic fundamental rights. And these barriers included 17 things like excessively long lines in order to be able 18 to vote; voter intimidation issues, particularly in 19 predominantly Latino and African-American
 20 jurisdictions. There was excessive provision balloting
 21 being required of registered voters, and de facto
 22 disenfranchisement of folks who have been formerly 23 incarcerated.

24 So there are a number of continuing barriers
 25 and different things that are taking place that are

1 interfering with the fundamental exercise of the right
 2 to vote.

3 So we are very pleased to be here with all of 4 you today to look at the existence and the extent of 5 those particular barriers. We are very honored to be 6 joined by several panels of witnesses today who have 7 expertise in all of these areas. And for us here in 8 California, as we're looking at implementation of the 9 California Voting Rights Act, today's hearing is 10 incredibly important. And the findings will be used 11 during our work to look at that implementation and also 12 to deal with the Voting Rights Act amendments that 13 Congress will be considering going forward.

14 And so with that, I want to especially thank 15 Joanna Cuevas Ingram, our equal justice work voting
 16 rights fellow here at the Lawyers' Committee in San 17 Francisco, and Erandi Zamora, who is the associate 18 counsel from the National Lawyers' Committee, who has 19 been incredibly instrumental in helping to organize the 20 proceedings here today, along with the planning
 21 committee, and all of our partners who have worked with 22 us to put the hearings on today. And I particularly 23 want to acknowledge the support -- the very important
 24 support that we've received from the James Irvine
 25 Foundation; the Silicon Valley Community Foundation;

Page 10

1 O'Melveny & Myers; Manatt, Phelps & Phillips;
 2 Morrison & Foerster. And, of course, DLA Piper has 3 been a very important partner of our training volunteer
 4 lawyers to do these election monitoring, polling site
 5 monitoring. I would also refer you to the back of the 6 program for information on all of our supporting 7 partners and sponsors.
 8 And to introduce our distinguished panel of 9 commissioners and so that we can begin today's 10 proceedings, I want to introduce Erandi Zamora from the 11 National Lawyers' Committee.
 12 MS. ZAMORA: Good morning. How are you all 13 doing today?
 14 So thank you very much, Kimberly, for your 15 introduction and your very thoughtful remarks.
 16 My name is Erandi Zamora, and I'm an attorney 17 with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under the 18 Law, based in Washington, D.C., and it is a great 19 pleasure for me to be here with you today. I want to 20 join Kimberly in thanking UC Hastings and the Center
 21 for State and Local Government Law here at UC Hastings
 22 for hosting us.
 23 And I want to thank the Lawyers' Committee of 24 the Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area for all 25 your work, your countless hours in putting this

Page 12

1 all.
 2 In the role of national commissioner, with 3 have Dolores Huerta. Ms. Huerta is the president of 4 the Dolores Huerta Foundation, and she has been working
 5 as a social justice activist for over 50 years. Her
 6 many accolades include the Medal of Freedom Award
 7 received from President Obama, the Eleanor D. Roosevelt
 8 Human Rights Award received from President Clinton. As 9 I'm sure you all know, she is cofounder of the United 10 Farm Workers, along with Cesar Chavez, and is a
 11 founding board member of the Feminist Majority 12 Foundation. She has been a strong advocate for social 13 justice, women's rights, the working poor, immigrants,
 14 reproductive freedom, and LGBT civil rights.
 15 Kathy Feng, serving as guest commissioner, is 16 the executive director of California Common Cause. And 17 under her leadership, Common Cause has championed
 18 election and redistricting reforms here in California.
 19 Most recently, Ms. Feng led the efforts to pass online
 20 voter registration and same-day voter registration here
 21 in California.
 22 We are also joined by guest commissioner Alice
 23 A. Huffman. Ms. Huffman is president of the California
 24 NAACP. And under her tenure, the organization has 25 become one of the most sought-after organizations in

Page 11

1 together, our steering committee, of course, and our 2 funders.
 3 For those of you who might not be aware, the 4 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under the Law is a 5 nonpartisan civil rights organization. We're based in 6 Washington, D.C., and we were founded at the request of 7 President Kennedy 50 years ago to engage the private 8 bar in the fight for racial justice and equality.
 9 Today, we continue our work in the areas of 10 fair housing, employment discrimination, community
 11 development, education, and, of course, voting rights.
 12 As Kimberly mentioned, this is a crucial time
 13 for voting rights in the United States, and your 14 participation here today, your -- the expertise and 15 experiences that you will share, with regards to racial 16 discrimination and election administration, will be 17 instrumental in educating and informing our legislators
 18 and our voting public about the barriers that continue 19 to exist to this day throughout the United States. So,
 20 again, thank you for all being here.
 21 As -- now it is my honor to introduce our very 22 distinguished panel of commissioners who will be 23 presiding over today's event. Each of our 24 commissioners has a remarkable commitment to equality
 25 and to protecting access to ballot on equal terms for

Page 13

1 the California policy arena. Ms. Huffman is also
 2 president and CEO of her consulting firm, AC Public
 3 Affairs. And for the last five years, she has been 4 named as one of the "100 Most Influential
 5 Californians."
 6 Mr. -- sorry.
 7 Our third commissioner is Justice Cruz
 8 Reynoso. Mr. Reynoso is professor of law emeritus at 9 UC Davis School of Law. And he has served as vice 10 chair of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights and was 11 awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President
 12 Clinton. A former associate justice of the California
 13 Supreme Court, he is recognized for his leadership in 14 civil rights, immigration, and refugee policy,
 15 government reform, the administration of justice, legal 16 services for the poor, and education.
 17 So we are in really good company today. So
 18 please join me in welcoming our distinguished panel.
 19 And now, before we start the program, I just 20 have a few housekeeping items. As you know, there will 21 be three formal panels today, with witnesses and 22 experts. These three panels will address systemic 23 procedural barriers to voting in California. The 24 second will address ongoing second-generation harms and 25 vote dilution and voting discrimination. And the third

1 panel will address barriers to language access for 2 California voters.
 3 There will also be opportunities for public
 4 testimony. We will have three public comment periods,
 5 and we really encourage you all to sign up. They will 6 start at 10:40, 12:35, and 2:55.
 7 And I -- just a few other items: Our hearing
 8 is being video recorded and transcribed, so, please, if 9 you are testifying, speak clearly and be mindful of the 10 timekeepers and their signs. It will be right over 11 there. And we have Spanish and sign-language 12 interpretation available today. If you would like to 13 take advantage of either service, please go to the 14 registration desk. And these services are provided
 15 thanks to the courtesy and generosity of TransPerfect
 16 and Bay Area Communication Access.
 17 Also, as I'm sure you have seen, we have 18 breakfast in the back of room, and we will be serving
 19 lunch thanks to the generosity of Panache Catering.
 20 And, lastly, if you are on Twitter, please 21 join the conversation by using the hash tags "NCVR" and 22 "voting rights."
 23 So without further ado, I will turn it over to 24 our guest commissioners. Thank you.
 25 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Good morning,

1 everyone. Good morning, everyone, and thank you very 2 much for being here, especially thanking to the 3 Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights for all the work
 4 that they've done to make sure that our voting rights
 5 are secured and that we can really make a democracy
 6 work, because we know that the basis of our foundation
 7 of democracy is that people participate and also one of 8 the basic ways to participate is that they vote.
 9 And I know many of you that are here will be 10 testifying today. I want to thank you for taking the 11 time to be here.
 12 I think it's very interesting in that I talked 13 with Judge Reynoso about this, that my first 14 activism -- and I always say that the first step to 15 becoming a leader is to go out and register voters door
 16 to door. And that's what we did way back almost 17 60 years ago. I was just doing the math on that, and I
 18 think my first voter registration door to door was back 19 in 1955, almost 60 years ago. That was back in the 20 community service organization. It was the first, you
 21 might say, mass-based Spanish-speaking organization
 22 that we formed here in the State of California under 23 the leadership of the Fred Ross, Sr.
 24 And it was interesting because we had so much
 25 discrimination then that you could not even register

1 voters door to door. You really had to -- you had to 2 pick a site, get it approved. You had to go down to 3 the registrar's office to get yourself boarded as a
 4 deputy registrar, and it made it very, very difficult.
 5 So one of the first acts that we did in the 6 committee service organization, once we got people
 7 registered up and down the State of California was,
 8 change some of the laws. And one of the first laws
 9 that we changed was, yes, you could register voters
 10 door to door. We actually had to pass a law to make it
 11 happen, and that was in 1963.
 12 And then we passed another law that said you
 13 can get your ballots in the Spanish language and other 14 ethnic languages. And who would think that we are 15 still not there yet, that we still have barriers to 16 keep people from voting. We still have that 17 discrimination and those out there that would like to 18 keep, especially people of color, and also have to add 19 the young people and older people, to keep them from 20 voting.
 21 So we still have a lot of work to do. We're 22 still not there yet. We still do not have a perfect 23 democracy. And unless we can raise those barriers, we 24 know that we have not arrived.
 25 So I want to thank you again for being here,

1 and I know we're going to have a very fruitful session
 2 today. Thank you.
 3 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Good morning. I'm 4 Alice Huffman, president of NAACP in California, and 5 I'm also on the National Board of Directors of the 6 California -- of the National NAACP. And I'm glad to 7 see my Regional Director Dugar, here, who was really
 8 instrumental in getting me up and out here this morning
 9 from Sacramento. And I see a few other NAACP members
 10 in the room. And I hope you are all NAACP members, but 11 there's a couple I recognize.
 12 You know, the NAACP -- as I stand here, I 13 carry a heavy tradition because we're the ones who have 14 the hoses turned on us, who had people murdered and all 15 kinds of horrible things happen to us as we forged our 16 right to vote in this country. And it's kind of 17 ironic; I was up in D.C. in 2005 when we were able to 18 get the Voting Rights Act to reauthorize, and it was a 19 unanimous decision. I think it was 2005. It was a 20 unanimous decision. Everyone realized that while we've 21 come a long way in America, we still have a long ways
 22 to go. And while voting is something that many of us
 23 take for granted, in certain pockets in this country,
 24 it is denied to people who should vote.
 25 I once did a focus group of African-Americans

1 that were occasional voters. They were registered to 2 vote. And I go -- you know, the long lines had just 3 happened in Africa, where people stood out there for 4 days to get a chance to vote. And I go, "What's the 5 matter with you guys? Why don't we have long lines?"

6 And they go, "We've already gotten past that.
7 We have the right to vote. Now we need something to 8 vote for."

9 Well, we have to make sure that when we have 10 something to vote for, like these last couple of 11 elections, that everybody can participate freely.
12 Doesn't matter what race you are. While we may have 13 led the way and have had a lot of harm done to us for 14 the right to vote, women did it before us. It doesn't 15 matter what color you are, what creed you are, what 16 sexual orientation you are, what disability you might 17 have or physical challenge you might have; it is 18 everybody's right in America to vote. And I am 19 standing here because it's a sacred principle in the 20 NAACP. That is one of our most sacred canons that we 21 fight for across this country, is to make sure that 22 everyone has equal opportunity, equal access to the 23 voting ballots.

24 So I'm particularly pleased to be on this 25 panel. I believe that we have lived long enough to see

1 that in order for our society to work, we need
2 100 percent participation; and when we have not reached
3 that 100 percent goal, what do we need to do coactively
4 to open those doors, remove those barriers, and find a 5 way for society to be fully embracing of all of our 6 nation's diversity.

7 I will say that I'm very active with many of 8 the groups who are in this room, around thinking about 9 voting rights policies, but also in participating in 10 what we call the Election Protection Network, which 11 monitors how election days are going, receives calls 12 from voters and, on election day, leading up to 13 election days, really gets at the heartbeat at what 14 some of the biggest problems are.

15 And, in California, I'm sad to say that we 16 still get thousands of phone calls asking for help.
17 And when we monitor poll sites and work with many other 18 organizations that do this kind of work, what we find 19 again and again is, there are continuing reports of 20 problems in the poll sites, denial of access, people
21 being told to go to the back of the line because they 22 don't speak English like everybody else.

23 And so I think it's important for us to 24 document that information, in part because it's an 25 important reminder to Congress, as well as our Supreme

1 that everything given to us is eventually taken away,
2 and we start to bow all over again to maintain and 3 support our rights.

4 And I want to pay homage to this distinguished
5 panel that is here today. I am privileged to serve
6 with the people on this panel, and I hope this is very 7 productive, and I hope we get the kind of information
8 and input from you today that will really make a 9 difference.

10 They think California doesn't need this. We 11 do. I mean, I have seen things happen in California
12 with the non-English-speaking people in certain 13 pockets, where they have put up barriers, given them
14 the wrong voting date, tell them all kinds of things to 15 stop them from going to the polls. So we hope that we, 16 once again, from this hearing, lead the way. Thank
17 you.

18 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I was trying to be 19 deferential, but Cruz insisted that I come up here and 20 speak, first.

21 Two days ago, we heard President Obama remind 22 us that citizenship means standing up for everyone's 23 right to vote. And I think, fundamentally, that's what 24 today's hearings are about: How do we affirm and 25 uphold that basic principle of our democracy, which is

1 Court, that there is still much to be learned and to be
2 improved upon in order to reach that ultimate goal
3 where everyone has the right and the ability to vote.

4 I just want to end on a sentence that I
5 thought was very powerful for myself coming from the 6 State of the Union that President Obama said: "It
7 should be the power of our vote, not the size of our 8 bank account, that carries and drives our democracy."

9 Thank you.

10 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Voting in democracy
11 is essential. We do have to remember we've come a long 12 way. When the country was first formed, you had to be 13 male and you had to be a property owner to vote. Since 14 that time, we've reached the point where we believe 15 that every citizen has a right to vote. But often, the 16 problem is in administering that. Perhaps some of you
17 remember the -- the joke of many years ago.
18 Particularly, there was an effort to have 19 African-Americans not vote in the South, where 20 the -- where the law required in that state that you be 21 able to read. When African-Americans showed up to try 22 to register, the registrar showed them writing. The 23 writing happened to be in a Chinese language. And he 24 says, "Can you read this?"

25 And the man who wanted to vote said, "Oh, I

1 read that very well. It says, 'No black person is 2 going to vote in this county today.'
 3 So very often, the registrar gets the 4 operation, and that's what I have seen in California.
 5 When I was a young lawyer, I saw efforts to intimidate
 6 Latino lawyers because the law at that time required
 7 that a person be able to read in the English language.
 8 That's been declared unconstitutional since that time.
 9 It's sad to say I was also on the U.S. Commission of 10 Civil Rights that reviewed the disaster of Florida a 11 few years ago where, in my view, frankly, the vote was 12 stolen and a person became president who didn't win the 13 election. And that's a matter of operation.
 14 So we have to worry a great deal, and I think 15 that we'll be spending time today talking not just 16 about the laws, but how they're operated on, because 17 the operation itself is -- is as important as the law.
 18 Thank you very much.
 19 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Excuse me. I just 20 want to add something that I left out. I left my notes
 21 over there on the desk. But we still have,
 22 unfortunately, in many parts of California, where we do
 23 not have -- excuse me, we do not have representation.
 24 We do not have people of color on school boards, on 25 city councils, on as supervisors. And so we know the

1 mics are working now. Can you hear me all right?
 2 It's my honor to call the first panel up. So
 3 if the first panelists would come up. And I have here
 4 Lori Schellenberger; Fred Nisen; Dorsey Nunn; Aida
 5 Macedo, a former student of mine; and Joanna Caevas
 6 Ingram.
 7 Now, I understand that I don't have to be the 8 time sergeant. We have somebody over here being the 9 time sergeant. So -- but it's my job to simply hear
 10 from you, and then the panelists will have questions
 11 for you as they seem appropriate.
 12 So the first witness is Lori Schellenberger, 13 if you can proceed, please. And I hope your mic is 14 working.
 15 L. SCHELLENBERGER: Is it working?
 16 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I don't know if you
 17 will be picked up on it or what.
 18 (Inaudible.)
 19 L. SCHELLENBERGER: I don't know. I have 20 never said anything less than five minutes.
 21 Good morning, and it's an honor to be here.
 22 I'm Lori Schellenberger. I'm the director of the 23 Voting Rights Project for the American Civil Liberties
 24 Union of California. When I was hired a few years ago
 25 to do voting rights, having come from Ohio, where

1 way the districts have drawn is -- really keeping
 2 people from having the proper representation. And that 3 is, of course, a very big issue.
 4 And I just want to say, about the power of the 5 voting, we know that in the last election here in 6 California, because we did -- the voters did vote for 7 Proposition 30, which, if you will remember, was the 8 proposition that said that millionaires had to pay 3
 9 percent more in state income taxes -- remember that 10 one -- and people who made half million had to pay 2
 11 percent more, and 250,000, one percent more in state
 12 income taxes.
 13 Hey, guess what? We are now in a good place
 14 in terms of our budget in the State of California, and 15 we can thank that. And one of the organizations that 16 was behind the movement to make sure that we passed
 17 Proposition 30 -- I know we had many people involved:
 18 labor unions, California Teachers Association and many 19 others. But I just want to give a shout-out to an 20 organization called California Cause, which is 21 dedicating all of its efforts to make sure that people
 22 register to vote, that they're educated on how to vote,
 23 and that they do vote.
 24 Thank you.
 25 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I understand these

1 things are very heated and contested there, I thought,
 2 hmm, this was going to be a smooth ride. Voting rights
 3 in California, that couldn't be so bad. And as our 4 esteemed commissioners have already pointed out,
 5 California is not a safe haven from an attack on voting
 6 rights, and we remain ever vigilant in protecting the 7 rights, particularly protecting minorities, racial,
 8 ethnic, and language, those with disabilities,
 9 repeatedly being excluded from -- from the franchise
 10 and facing increasing challenges in participation.
 11 I just quickly -- the second panel today will 12 talk more about the Voting Rights Act, and I just 13 wanted to place procedural barriers into -- into the 14 voting rights context, because one of the things I
 15 noticed when I started doing this work here was that 16 there was this kind of sense of a procedural and 17 election reform policy, and that's very distinct and 18 separate from civil rights and voting rights.
 19 And I think what this panel will demonstrate 20 is that they are entwined and that they're -- there
 21 continue to be procedural law -- laws and procedurals
 22 in place that put up barriers to participation
 23 and -- and that we have to continue to monitor.
 24 So one of the things the second panel will 25 talk about -- and I just want to highlight very

1 briefly -- is that the Voting Rights Act was amended
2 after its passage to make a very important distinction
3 between intentional and -- discrimination and -- and 4 policies that result in discrimination. And with very 5 few exceptions, the Voting Rights Act protects people
6 against policies that result in -- we do not have to 7 show that someone intended to exclude people. The 8 second panel will address that. I want to just 9 highlight a few -- just a few -- of those examples in 10 California in the last couple of years.

11 The first is probably more overt -- overt 12 state policy that was implemented that excludes those 13 convicted of a crime of certain categories of people
14 sentenced that have a felony conviction from a right to 15 vote, stripping -- an act to strip and reduce the 16 number of people that can participate in the franchise
17 after the passage of the Criminal Justice Realignment
18 Act in California, which was a criminal justice policy
19 reform that shifted the sentencing of low-level felony
20 offenders to local supervision rather than state
21 supervision.

22 The California Constitution was amended in 23 1974 to protect and expand the franchise, and the only 24 exception of voting with a criminal conviction is those 25 people who are currently in prison or on parole. So

1 significant changes to the system so that now that 2 system will be available to people without
3 identification, will be accessible in those languages,
4 and is more accessible to people with disabilities.
5 That was only done through hard-fought and advocacies
6 by civil rights group.

7 The third category is -- is really legislation
8 that exists that people are just lazy about 9 implementing, like, yeah, that's a nice law, but no one 10 really cares if we enforce it, right. And one of those 11 is the National Voter Registration Act, which -- 12 commonly known as Motor Voter, which requires DMV to 13 offer voter registration, but also requires public 14 assistance agencies to offer voter registration. And 15 the intent of that law when it was passed 21 years ago
16 was to reach those people who slipped through the 17 cracks, right, who don't have opportunities to register
18 to vote.

19 But when they're interacting with government
20 to get services, either those people who have 21 disability and they're getting government services or 22 are applying for public assistance, and that law was 23 not enforced in State of California. But currently -- 24 we're doing better, but it's another example of the 25 need for vigilance.

1 that is just one example.

2 This new category of people were deemed by the 3 Secretary of State through a directive they issued to 4 counties and sort of through administrative fiats that 5 these people will not be allowed to vote. So this is 6 one example of a state policy that was done, sort of,
7 very quietly that disenfranchised disproportionately
8 people of color.

9 And second is something that we remain very 10 cognizant of, is reforms that, in our eagerness, right, 11 to achieve reform, that we still continue to do those 12 things without being conscious of certain categories of 13 people who are left out of those reforms. Online voter 14 registration is one example where we have had to fight
15 very hard, and we have successfully fought that battle.
16 But to have online voter registration be available in 17 Spanish, be available in the languages that Section 203
18 of the Voting Rights Act requires that the counties
19 offer voter materials in. In addition, the systemwide
20 launch was not accessible to people with disabilities.
21 That is being changed. Online voter registration has 22 one -- one of the caveats is that one has to have an ID
23 to use it, and are we disproportionately impacting
24 people who don't have access to state-issued
25 identification. And the Secretary of State has made

1 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you very much.
2 And you're still sitting, so that's very good.

3 F. NISEN: Thank you for the opportunity be 4 here. (Inaudible.)

5 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Are you reading from 6 testimony so we can find -- this one? Thank you.

7 F. NISEN: (Inaudible.)

8 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you.

9 And I would like to comment that Mr. Nisen has 10 presented the commission with some written materials
11 that are very helpful. So I'm sure that if any of you
12 haven't presented the commission with written 13 materials, even after the hearing, I'm sure the 14 commissioners will welcome it.

15 With that, I would like to call up on Mr.
16 Nunn, Dorsey Nunn.

17 D. NUNN: I very seldom write anything. But I
18 curse a lot, so I figure it's important for me to write
19 so I could be understood.

20 My name is Dorsey Nunn, and I'm the executive 21 director of Legal Services for Prisoners with Children.
22 I'm also the cofounder and proud member of All of Us or 23 None, a civil and human rights organization comprised
24 of formerly incarcerated people. I have been engaged
25 one way or another in fighting for the full restoration

1 of the civil and human rights of people with a 2 conviction history for approximately 40 years. I have 3 been doing voter registration for over 20 years. I'm 4 honored to have an opportunity to witness today,
5 because very seldom do people like me get an 6 opportunity to speak in our own voice.

7 I'm a member of a community that has yet to be 8 recognized, even though our membership numbers' in the 9 millions. I must point out that the question of 10 feeling disenfranchised holds much more important than 11 people normally assigned to this issue. It is 12 certainly much more than the issue of voting rights for 13 an individual person in one particular state. I'm on a 14 national conference call every other week with formerly 15 incarcerated people from across the United States, and 16 we have organized a delegation of -- reorganized the 17 delegation of formerly incarcerated from 15 states to 18 going to Pennsylvania to register people from the 19 formerly incarcerated community to vote in the 2012
20 election.

21 Formerly incarcerated people have been in 22 continuous dialogue since the 2000 presidential 23 election, where our votes were contested and legally 24 stolen. During these conference calls, so many 25 questions have been raised. I want to make sure that I

1 State of Vermont and Maine because of the relatively 2 low amount of Black citizens in those states? Is
3 criminal conviction a proxy for race? When entering a
4 guilty plea, why are immigrants advised of potential
5 collateral consequences on residence status, and yet we 6 are not advised of a guilty plea's impact on 7 citizenship? Do we really have freedom of movement
8 when our citizenship status can be stripped simply by 9 moving across state lines.

10 My involvement in California started with a 11 simple gesture of trying to register formerly 12 incarcerated people to vote. I approached people going
13 and coming from Alcoholics Anonymous and Narcotics
14 Anonymous meetings, knowing that people addressing 15 issues of addiction would most likely have a greater 16 chance of having a conviction. From countless 17 responses from people I was trying to register, I 18 learned many thought they could not vote because they 19 had been convicted of a felony. A number of people
20 could recite the Miranda warning or come fairly close
21 to reciting the plea bargain colloquy they had heard 22 before the pronouncement of the citizen rights, but 23 couldn't tell me the same about the right to vote.

24 The other thing that stood out was the age.
25 Many of us -- many of the first time-voters, many of

1 share some of these questions before addressing the 2 issue of my voting rights as a California resident.

3 Many of us see the fundamental rights
4 of -- many of us see voting as a fundamental right of 5 citizenship. But the extensive disenfranchisement of 6 formerly incarcerated people raise numerous questions:
7 Are we saying that during the period of time when we 8 are unable to legally vote? If voting rights are 9 solely determined by the state, then where does our 10 citizenship attach? Are we citizens of a particular 11 state or are we citizens of the United States? What 12 does equal protection mean when our voting rights vary 13 from one state to another? Are prisoners allowed to 14 vote in the State of Vermont and Maine because of the 15 relatively low number of Blacks in those states? Is 16 criminal conviction a proxy for race? When entering a
17 guilty plea, why are immigrants advised of potential
18 collateral consequences on residence status, and yet we 19 are not advised of our guilty impact --

20 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: That's a powerful
21 statement.

22 D. NUNN: Yeah, it is, if I got to read it --

23 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Just lean in to your 24 microphone.

25 D. NUNN: Are prisoners allowed to vote in the 1 them were well into their 40s. I myself cast my first

2 vote at the age of 35.

3 Earlier in the process, we made efforts to 4 access our incarcerated community, housing and county
5 jails, so we could advise them of their voting rights,
6 as well as to register them. These efforts were not 7 taken seriously by various sheriffs departments or by 8 the Secretary of State. These marginalized voters were 9 not considered valuable to the body of politics or to 10 any real particular party. Many of us knew that during 11 the "tough on crime" era, people were often voted -- 12 often voting via ballot initiative to extend the length
13 of sentences and establish new laws.

14 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: And, sir, I'm sorry.
15 I thought I wasn't going to enact the role of a 16 communist sergeant, but the lady has put up a stop
17 sign, so if you could summarize.

18 D. NUNN: I can summarize this way: If we 19 sent my family members into the Iraqi war, the action
20 that required a right to vote in an Iraqi prison, I 21 think I should be able to vote in any prison inside the 22 United States. You are sending my children into harm's
23 way and you're not giving me the right to vote here.

24 So if I have to summarize this, I declare that 25 I'm a human being and a citizen of the United States,

1 and I demand a god-damn right to vote.
 2 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Don't get mad and 3 walk away.
 4 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: We might have
 5 questions.
 6 D. NUNN: All right. I'll stay.
 7 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 8 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Ms. Macedo.
 9 A. MACEDO: Good morning, Commissioner. Can 10 you hear me okay?
 11 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yes, we can hear
 12 you.
 13 A. MACEDO: My name is Aida Macedo. I was the 14 field project manager for the Election Protection
 15 Project in Fresno, and it's an honor to be here before 16 you today.
 17 This is the first time that we've had an 18 election protection team in Fresno, California, which 19 is an essential valley, rural area of California. As 20 it was mentioned earlier, anybody who thinks that there
 21 are no longer any issues of voting rights, I welcome
 22 and invite all of you to come to the Central Valley in 23 Fresno to see what is going on in the rural areas of 24 California.
 25 Some of the testimony I will give before you

1 today includes also issues in Southern California from 2 our partner groups in the Election Protection. Just 3 quickly, I would like to thank the leadership of the 4 Election Protection Project. As I said, this is the 5 very first time we did anything in Central Valley. It
 6 was a small group of 20 of us. As you will see, we 7 discovered so much with just a small group who led the 8 effort there.
 9 Some of the main issues that we saw -- the 10 filing issue that I want to cover is -- the issue I
 11 want to cover is the issue of inadequate paper ballots
 12 and incomplete ballots in areas of Fresno County and 13 Southern California. We also got reports of vote by 14 mail ballots not received before the election by many 15 voters. The biggest issue we saw in Fresno County,
 16 which was in the City of Orange Cove, was voter 17 intimidation for folks who went and showed up at the 18 polling sites. Fourth issue that we saw, which was 19 especially prevalent in Southern California, was voter
 20 ID issues where folks were being asked for voter 21 identification. And then the fifth issue that we saw 22 were incomplete voter roll, where people showed up at 23 the polls and their name was not on the roll.
 24 So the first issue I want to cover is, in 25 Fresno County, in particular, folks who were registered

1 to vote by mail received their ballot. And people had 2 voted absentee for years, after submitting their
 3 ballot, received a letter from the county registrar
 4 explaining that the letter -- that their ballot was 5 incorrect. The -- I have a copy of the letter that I
 6 will submit to the Commission. But this letter was 7 explaining that due to a redistricting error, all the 8 ballots sent in were incorrect and the ones that had 9 been submitted were to be destroyed, and that these 10 voters had to vote again. And we got a voter who 11 reported this to us and said that she had -- she had 12 already voted, and a few days later, on October 22nd, 13 she received a new ballot. She was concerned that 14 people who had already voted may not want to do it
 15 again, and they might not remember their previous votes
 16 and generally be confused and dismayed.
 17 This was an issue for an election -- the 18 ballot, it didn't include the Fresno County School
 19 District race. As you will see, the letter is quite 20 confusing in terms of how voters were supposed to vote
 21 again, whether their initial vote was going to be 22 counted or not or were these votes going to be 23 destroyed. That is the first issue.
 24 There are also -- in Southern California,
 25 there were wide-state precincts that ran out of paper

1 ballots. And that was in the 2008 election. This was 2 a statewide problem, but it was especially severe in 3 Southern California. So because of that, many voters
 4 were forced to vote provisionally.
 5 The second issue that I want to cover, because 6 my time is short, is voter intimidation. We had 7 several legal observers, volunteers, go out to Orange
 8 Cove, which is almost 95 percent a Latino community.
 9 And there have been rumors that police officers were 10 going to be present at the polling site. There is only 11 one polling site in that location. We received word 12 from committee members saying that they were afraid to 13 go because there was going to be police officers; there
 14 was going to be intimidation.
 15 And when we sent out volunteers, sure enough, 16 there was. There were members from the voter -- the 17 Voting Integrity Project or True The Vote Project, who 18 stood behind voters, within 5 feet of the ballot box, 19 and continuously took notes while voters were casting 20 their vote. And we have contacted some of those polls
 21 who felt intimidated and felt threatened by the 22 presence of these folks. And in general, it seemed 23 that the poll workers were not adequately trained and 24 did not handle the situation. Orange Cove is out in a
 25 rural area, about an hour south of Fresno, Downtown

1 Fresno, so it was very difficult to get anybody down
 2 there to help.
 3 I have a lot more examples of some of the 4 issues that we face, and I will submit that to the 5 Commission.
 6 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you very much.
 7 We may have questions for you at a later time.
 8 Now I would like to have Joanna Ingram.
 9 J. INGRAM: Hello.
 10 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Hi.
 11 J. INGRAM: Professor Reynoso, I'm here today
 12 filling in for (inaudible).
 13 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Move up a little 14 bit.
 15 J. INGRAM: Yes.
 16 I am an attorney Lawyers' Committee for Civil 17 Rights. And we at the Lawyers' Committee worked 18 together with my colleague (inaudible) and others in 19 2012, along with a number of pro bono volunteers -- 90
 20 pro bono volunteers here in Northern California -- to 21 observe aberrations and barriers in potential voting
 22 elections on election day in 2012. And one of the 23 things that we found is that structural barriers, as 24 Aida mentioned, persist here in California. With 25 regard to who is affected, we do believe that it's a

1 racial justice issue.
 2 So just to give a few examples of our what
 3 volunteers saw on election day in Northern California,
 4 in San Jose, a voter received a deceptive phone call
 5 saying that there was a problem with voter
 6 registration. And also, all the voters are generally
 7 not required to present identification in order to vote
 8 once they are registered here in California. Poll
 9 workers in San Mateo County were requiring some voters
 10 to present ID in order to vote.
 11 There were issues with discrimination based on 12 race, as well, here in California in 2012. We received 13 a report from a Humboldt County voter who was denied a 14 provisional ballot, and felt it was because of 15 discrimination based on his or her multiethnic heritage
 16 as part African-American.
 17 In Vallejo, a predominant African-American
 18 neighborhood, were telling a substantially large number 19 of voters that they registered to vote absentee, and 20 therefore, they had to vote by provisional ballot.
 21 In San Mateo County, as well, at least Palo
 22 Alto, a largely Latino, African-African, and Pacific
 23 Islander precinct, the city hall precinct, we received 24 numerous reports from our volunteers that there was 25 excess numbers of provisional balloting going on and

1 that ballots -- they ran out of ballots by 10 a.m. in 2 the morning in San Mateo County. No less than 3 one-third of the people who were voting in that period
 4 were completing provisional ballots rather than full
 5 ones. One election day volunteer said that since she's 6 been a resident, for other 30 years, she's confident
 7 there has been no turnover in the population since 2008
 8 and 2012 that would otherwise rationalize effective
 9 results. Many voters walked away from precincts in 10 anger and frustration over the use of provisional
 11 ballots.
 12 And in Alameda County, an African-American
 13 voter reported that, despite being registered to vote
 14 by regular ballot in person and at the same address for 15 40 years, she was forced to vote by provisional ballot
 16 on election day. According to poll workers at her 17 polling place, she was registered as a mail-in voter
 18 and was only eligible to cast a provisional ballot.
 19 The voter insisted that she had never registered to 20 vote by mail and never received a mail-in ballot. And 21 she noted that another African-American friend in line
 22 near her had the same experience.
 23 So we know that excessive provisional ballots,
 24 long lines and, as Aida Macedo testified, intimidation
 25 continues to persist here in California. There were

1 also reports from San Diego County of a racial epithet
 2 being used by a poll worker against a Latino voter. So
 3 we understand, the Lawyers' Committee, that even that 4 we've come (inaudible) local level, and particularly in 5 rural areas, but also in rural areas, there are 6 procedures that are systemically impacting community of 7 color in a way that we do not see precincts that are 8 largely White being impacted.
 9 Another -- another set of issues that we will 10 be addressing -- we don't have written testimony --
 11 testimony here for you here today, but we will 12 publishing a report in March 2014, outlining and giving 13 an overview of the systemic barriers to voting in 14 California, including felony disenfranchisement, de
 15 facto disenfranchisement as it impacts the formerly
 16 incarcerated Californians, as Dorsey mentioned, as well
 17 as these issues that we see with election coalition and 18 vote dilution.
 19 The next panel will be addressing the lack of 20 representation at the local level. We, at the Lawyers'
 21 Committee, have been very much involved in the last ten
 22 years in working with the California Voting Rights Act
 23 to address vote dilution or the lack of representation
 24 and racial polarization in communities throughout
 25 California where city councils, school boards, boards

1 of supervisors, do not represent the community.
 2 One example of that that we can give from this
 3 past year is that we settled a case with San Mateo
 4 County, the last county in California as an at-large 5 system to a district-based system thanks to the 6 pressure of the California Voting Act lawsuit and the 7 ultimate measure to change the at-large system there to 8 the district-based system. San Mateo County is over 40
 9 percent Asian and Latino, yet their board of 10 supervisors have been predominantly White for as long
 11 as people can remember.

12 Through the settlement process in the 13 California Voting Rights Act, communities will be able 14 to engage in a community-based redistricting process
 15 and be able to ensure that Asian-American voters, as 16 one district, be able to have meaningful opportunities
 17 to vote; and coalition voters in another district,
 18 Asian, Latino, and African-American voters now have a 19 right to vote in a meaningful vote in three out of the 20 new five districts in San Mateo County thanks to the 21 California Voting Rights Act. We know over 17 cases
 22 have been filed since 2001, and over 100 school
 23 districts have changed voluntarily from at-large to 24 district-based systems to comply with the California
 25 Voting Rights Act.

1 To conclude our remarks, we will be providing 2 this information in a forthcoming formal report on 3 voting rights violations in the last 13 to 15 years
 4 here in California on March 14th.

5 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you very much.
 6 Thank you very much, panelists. Now members of this 7 commission will have questions for various of you. And 8 I would like to start with -- first, and just go this 9 way, and then there will be a free-for-all.

10 Why don't you start.

11 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I do. I have a 12 question for Aida. You mentioned an incomplete ballot.
 13 What is an incomplete ballot?

14 A. MACEDO: So what I meant there, the ballots
 15 that were sent out -- by mail ballots that were sent 16 without one of those local --

17 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Without the race, 18 uh-huh.

19 A. MACEDO: And they were sent corrected ones
 20 after that. I think it was -- they were -- 21 October 9th. They received the second ballot -- I'm 22 not sure -- maybe about 10 days, 15 days later --

23 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Does the voter 24 registrar have the ability to change the election date
 25 to a later date?

1 A. MACEDO: No.

2 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: So it was not legal.

3 A. MACEDO: They didn't change the date, no.
 4 What was your question? Sorry.

5 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I thought you said
 6 they made a mistake, they sent a new ballot out for 7 people to vote again, which is not on election day.

8 A. MACEDO: They were vote-by-mail ballots.

9 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: They could receive
 10 both before -- before election.

11 L. SCHELLENBERGER: It was that time period
 12 for early voting by mail --

13 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: So it was, ten days
 14 left. I got it.

15 I have a lot of questions on disabilities.
 16 Your testimony is a real education for people like me,
 17 who take certain things for granted. And I'm not 18 sure -- some of my colleagues here have probably done
 19 more work in the area of challenge voters.

20 But if I understand your testimony, when you 21 go to a public polling place, they don't have the 22 facilities to accommodate you or they're second rate, 23 and therefore, people who have challenges are 24 disadvantaged in the voting process.

25 F. NISEN: (Inaudible) They are accessible --

1 machine but California's allow only one. That can't --
 2 they have to ask somebody else, but that may not mean
 3 the ballot's not private, although a big problem is 4 people don't know how to set up or after.

5 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.

6 My Chair has suggested that we go down and 7 then I might get to come back. I have other questions.

8 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Just that we just 9 ask one question and then keep going.

10 SPEAKER: We have copies of his testimony if 11 you would like.

12 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: We have. Thank you.

13 Let me follow up with a question to Fred.

14 I think in your written testimony, there was 15 some mention that, when you all are monitoring poll
 16 sites, you oftentimes find that they're inaccessible.
 17 And one of the things that you find is that elevators
 18 can be locked, that there is no ramp, there is no space
 19 for people to actually be able to get into the poll
 20 site.

21 Can you share with us any specific examples
 22 that DRC has recently had reports of?

23 F. NISEN: Yes. The problem is that even the 24 accessible sites, the old ones -- that is accessible, 25 is locked.

1 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Yep.
 2 F. NISEN: And one polling site, the elevator
 3 access is in a school. But the school decided to lock 4 the elevator, and the coworkers didn't know that -- and 5 didn't know; had them locked.
 6 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: My question is for 7 Lori.
 8 You mentioned that there are some agencies
 9 that are supposed to be promoting voter registration,
 10 and they're not really doing what they're supposed to 11 be doing. And I have another question about that.
 12 At the same time, part of the Affordable Care
 13 Act that was enacted in Congress, it was supposed to 14 include voter registration. And I wanted to ask if 15 your organization has done any work on that to see if 16 we can get that enforced. I know there have been some 17 reluctance in California, because as people are 18 supposed to be signing up for Affordable Healthcare
 19 Act, they're also supposed to be able to press a button
 20 if they're not registered to vote, so they can vote. I
 21 wanted to ask if your organization has taken any direct
 22 action or legal action to make sure that that happens.
 23 And we also have a lot of people that have 24 already registered for the Affordable Care Act. I know
 25 there's people that are still not registered. I

1 wondered if you can enlighten us on if there are any 2 acts that have been taken in that matter.
 3 L. SCHELLENBERGER: Of course. I don't think
 4 my mic is working. Can you hear me?
 5 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Lean in.
 6 L. SCHELLENBERGER: There you go.
 7 Yes. It's still unclear at the federal level
 8 whether they're required to offer voter registration.
 9 The Federal Exchange has not done so. But the State of 10 California, we advocated for a long time to have 11 Covered California our state's exchange designated as a 12 mandatory voter registration agency. What that means 13 is that Covered California is required with every 14 transaction, whether it be an application, a renewal,
 15 someone submitting a change of address, it triggers a 16 statutory obligation for them to offer that person 17 voter registration and assistance in completing the 18 voter registration application to the same level that 19 they would provide assistance in completing their own 20 forms.
 21 Covered California has resisted this. They 22 continue to resist it. As of last Tuesday, 2 million
 23 people have successfully completed an application on 24 the Covered California site or through with the 25 assistance of -- of a certified enrollment counselor or

1 their county office. And none of them have been 2 offered voter registration. And so we are seeking to 3 enforce that, both -- and -- and to be clear, we want
 4 to make sure that prospectively they have best
 5 practices and they incorporate voter registration but 6 that we also feel strongly that every person who has 7 gone through that date Cover California have an 8 obligation to offer those people voter registration as 9 well. Because as you can imagine, the people applying
 10 for the cover for Affordable Care Act very much mirror
 11 the almost 6 million eligible Californians who are 12 still not registered to vote.
 13 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: And I would like to 14 have a question for Mr. Nunn.
 15 I got to do it right I've got a question for 16 Mr. Nunn. Some of the matters you mentioned, sad to 17 say, in my view, are based on statutes.
 18 What specific statutes might would you suggest 19 be changed or that we consider recommending being 20 changed?
 21 D. NUNN: I have a lot of recommendations. I
 22 don't know if they're about -- about your statute.
 23 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yes.
 24 D. NUNN: Some things that I know, I know we 25 fall for voting rights and we contact the Kevin Shelly

1 who didn't respond to us until six days after the 2 election. We had to ACLU fight for us and file a writ
 3 of mandate, and that came in after the elections. So
 4 for me, I don't have a right. I think I only have a 5 privilege that people take at will. I think Deborah
 6 Borns just grabbed between 67 -- between 63- and 67,000
 7 votes, just on a whim. So if you ask me what statute
 8 need to be changed, I think I have the right, but I
 9 don't think that people respect me enough to actually 10 allow the law to be enforced, that's there. All the 11 way up until then, my right to vote inside of a county
 12 Jill was determined by a conviction by a status of 13 parole or being incarcerated in prison. And 14 administrative decision have rushed out between 63- and 15 67,000 votes. And nobody came to the aid.
 16 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Well, we've been 17 hearing actually that many of the problems in 18 California are problems of how the law is executed and 19 not being executed well. But there is statutory 20 example that say felons can't vote while they're in 21 prison. Should that be changed there is a law they're 22 on parole they can't vote, should that be vote.
 23 D. NUNN: But I think the legal women voters
 24 under Bruce McPherson, what they basically determined
 25 in that particular case, that prison was a particular

1 place and in imprisonment in the county jail didn't
 2 constitute being in prison. I believe that was the 3 determination.
 4 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Right, right.
 5 D. NUNN: Right?
 6 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Right.
 7 D. NUNN: So if we're never going to see
 8 parole based on realignment put us in a status of, I
 9 think you called it a -- a community supervision, and 10 not necessarily parole, we're not on parole and we 11 should have a right to vote. In the event that we're 12 not in state prison and you start serving extraordinary 13 long periods of time in county jails, we are not in the 14 prison in the state prison, and I believe that was the 15 distinction in that particular case.
 16 When you ask what should be changed, what I
 17 think that I -- I think I just want you -- to live up
 18 to the letter of the law when it applies to me.
 19 Because I see that my rights are not being respected.
 20 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Okay.
 21 D. NUNN: And I'm sorry for getting angry.
 22 But if your stuff is consistently being stole, not over
 23 a period of couple of days but over the course of a 24 lifetime, it's not hard to not be angry about it. And 25 we wrote at a certain point, we conduct -- conducted

1 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: And to provide a
 2 facility for them to vote.
 3 L. SCHELLENBERGER: Exactly.
 4 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I understand that.
 5 L. SCHELLENBERGER: So that's -- there is no
 6 statute that requires that but that would do a lot to 7 end de facto disenfranchisement.
 8 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Ms. Ingram?
 9 J. INGRAM: Yes, just to give some number and 10 context to that and also to speak more to the 11 implementation of to AB149 which is something that the 12 ACLU, Officer Nunn, Lawyers' Committee worked on. Our 13 understanding is that de facto -- this will be 14 forthcoming in the Lawyer's Committee report. There
 15 may be de facto disenfranchisement for over 350,000
 16 Californians who are on probation or incarcerated in 17 county jail who are now unclear as to their voting
 18 rights, even though there was this decision in 19 McPherson in 2006 there was an executive action by our 20 Secretary of State in 2011 to affirmatively
 21 disenfranchise on community supervision, under the 22 realignment act. So many people who report sometimes 23 to same the probationary officers are confused about 24 their rights. One of the things that ACLU and Officer
 25 Nunn and other allies did in 2012 was to pass AB149.

1 and asked to be advised and we wrote every public
 2 defender in the State of California. We contacted 3 Attorney General, we contacted the Democratic Party, we 4 contacted the Republican Party and our rights are not
 5 still being respected.
 6 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you very much.
 7 L. SCHELLENBERGER: Can I add one more thing?
 8 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I beg your pardon?
 9 L. SCHELLENBERGER: Can I add one more thing
 10 to what Dorsey said in terms of -- ou asked for a 11 concrete recommendation. And I think the definition of 12 who gets to vote is defined in our California
 13 constitution. So to expand that, beyond what it is 14 now, would require constitutional amendment.
 15 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Sure.
 16 L. SCHELLENBERGER: But I think the issue
 17 Dorsey eloquently heartbreaking issue of hundreds of 18 thousands of people who mistakenly believe they fall
 19 into the exceptions of people who can -- who are 20 deprived of the right to vote. And we worked on 21 legislation this year to require probation officers,
 22 county probation officers, county jails and parole
 23 officers to inform people of their right to vote so 24 that when somebody's parole ends, they're handed a 25 voter registration card.

1 Unfortunately, the bill was somewhat watered down upon
 2 passage and now only requires probation departments to 3 either post the Secretary of State's guideline for 4 persons who are currently from incarcerated or to post
 5 it online.
 6 We did an initial survey of that online and 7 found that three -- I'm sorry, actually, 30 county
 8 probation departments actually posted this online by 9 January 6th. So it wasn't that they were truly
 10 compliant, when the law was implemented but it wasn't 11 required to do so. It was an either or requirement.
 12 It was either you could post it in your office or you
 13 could post it online. There was no requirement that it 14 be visible or that there be active registration under 15 the NVRA as Lori's mentioned. There was no requirement
 16 that we register people in county jails or on probation
 17 under the NVRA even though it's not prohibited in 18 California.
 19 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Thank you.
 20 A. HUFFMAN: I have no further questions.
 21 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I want to go back the 22 Aida Macedo's testimony.
 23 I'm interested in hearing the additional 24 stories that you said that you had collected from the 25 2008 and '12 elections. And in particular, to what

1 extent have groups like True the Vote vote or even less
2 organized groups exercised voter intimidation practices
3 in recent elections.

4 A. MACEDO: So we know that there -- those 5 groups have a strong -- they're highly organized in the 6 Central Valley, hold recruitment meetings often and we 7 have gotten some reports that some of them actually
8 apply to be poll workers in the Central Valley.

9 One of the anecdotes that I wanted to share
10 with the commission was that we had a report from a 11 voter who showed up to vote and he is a -- he was -- he 12 is a Maong decent who is a huge community in the 13 Central Valley in Fresno County. And the poll worker
14 actually said to him, "you know who to vote for, right.
15 You know who to vote for, right." He was kept 16 mentioning this. It was at a small voting site. So we 17 immediately contacted the county clerk and said, you
18 know, there is intimidation by one of your poll
19 workers, intimidating workers of Asian -- Asian 20 American decent. And so, they sent out somebody to 21 remove that poll worker but that had been in the 22 evening, so he had been there for a long time already.
23 And so, we know that they're highly organized. They 24 recruit a lot of people in the Central Valley, and we 25 got, you know, propaganda from them. We saw them

1 visible in other polling sites, not just in Orange
2 Cove. And, you know, they were observing from afar.
3 While our election protection volunteers were there, we 4 didn't see any issues at the other polling locations
5 but they were present at the locations. And before
6 that, we think that it actually intimidated, hindered a 7 lot of voters from actually showing up from the polls
8 they had heard there was going to be present and they 9 had heard there was going to be police officers
10 present. So that's one of the issues. And then 11 something -- let me make sure I covered everything.

12 Oh, and also at one the polls locations,
13 Orange Cove, the poll worker was actually requesting 14 voters announcing their address out loud and also to 15 state their party affiliation when they were giving 16 their address. And this was out loud. Our volunteer
17 witness, at least four voters, if they were Republican 18 or Democrat and required to answer before they were 19 given a provisional ballot. So there are various 20 anecdotes of various situations that we saw where 21 voters were just intimidated who had even showed up.
22 There was a lot of confusion, also. Even for poll
23 workers to look up polling sites. If people -- voters 24 showed up and they weren't sure if they were at the 25 correct site. Instead of look up the information, the

1 poll workers just fell back to provisional ballots. We 2 saw a lot of that, that they weren't even trained at 3 all, but the fall back was just give provisional
4 ballots without explaining to voters what that meant.

5 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: We have time for one
6 more question. Do you want to --

7 D. HUERTA: Thank you. Ms. Macedo, I know
8 what you experienced is pretty much -- I'm in 9 Bakersfield, California and we do a lot of -- also.

10 A. MACEDO: Yes.

11 D. HUERTA: So what you're telling us that you 12 are experiencing in that area also. And I do want to 13 make a comment -- and I don't know whether in the work
14 that you do and in the Voting Rights Project and what 15 the other folks are doing if you are going in get more 16 poll workers back who either speak Spanish or some of 17 the other ethnic languages that people need. We have 18 been doing that with our organization when they say
19 they can't find poll workers that can't speak Spanish.
20 And we had a press conference. We had over 50 people
21 that volunteered to be poll workers so I think that's 22 the work that needs to be done in terms of making sure 23 the voters are taken care of when they go into the 24 polling place.

25 The other thing that I wanted to mention was

1 all your groups of work on the issues of people who
2 have been in prison and be able to vote. I agree that
3 we should eventually completely eliminate that, you
4 know -- take away that prohibition because that -- what 5 are they going to vote on? I mean, how are they going
6 to -- affect the voting -- affect the issues, I mean,
7 there's unless they are going to legalization of 8 marijuana or something like that, you know, which we 9 know that has been happening in Colorado or Washington
10 State. And so, I mean, we should definitely think 11 about in the future how to handle that is another form
12 of Jim Crow basically because a large number of African 13 Americans and Latinos are in the prison system right
14 now.

15 And I don't know, often thought that maybe 16 approaching the administration here, you know, our 17 state administration and instead of having to pass
18 legislation in terms of giving people as they are being 19 released from the prison system, that they can know 20 when they can require voting rights, because many 21 people after even though -- they have -- they're no
22 longer on probation they still don't know that they can 23 vote now. And I think some work should be done maybe 24 at the administrative level, because they need to 25 educate people as they are coming out of prison. And

1 also while they're incarcerated have them learn about
2 their rights as voters so by the time they come out,
3 some kind of civic education system I think would also 4 help.

5 A. MACEDO: I just want to comment. I think
6 one of the issues that we're facing in the Central 7 Valley is lack of resources like I mentioned this was 8 the first time we had the election protection project
9 in Fresno and there was a small group of us, many 20.
10 I took the punch to lead it without knowing much really 11 what I was getting myself into, but there were 12 only -- we only had about 20 volunteers an were 13 covering a large number, as you know, the rural areas
14 in Central Valley are widespread. I think some of the 15 advocacy work they try to do ahead of time, those are 16 spread really thin. So that is one of the things I
17 wanted to convey today. We really need more resources 18 in the Central Valley advocacy to ensure that these 19 face specific issues and rural areas such as being 20 living really far from a their only being one polling 21 place in an entire city so that they're able to 22 exercise the right to vote adequately even when we try 23 to do advocacy before the election we face a lot of 24 resistance from the elected officials from the county
25 clerk because we thought we were out to get them we

1 stolen we ended up with a president that was not
2 elected. So how laws are enforced are equally what the 3 laws are. So thank you very much. I very much 4 appreciate it and now I turn the -- the chair over to 5 my fellow commissioner, Ms. Huffman for -- for those 6 who are here who are not panel lists who have indicated
7 they would like to speak for a few minutes.

8 Thank you very much. Thank you.
9 A. HUFFMAN: Time allotted for public
10 testimony is 10:40 to 11:10. We would ask you limit
11 your comments to three minutes. We have a time keeper.
12 There is a microphone that someone could pull over to 13 the center to the floor, whoever the first speaker is.
14 And I will ask each of you to please state your name
15 again and your organization for the recorder. And the 16 first person is Manuel Fontan.

17 Second person is Chris Lavin. That's you.
18 Who is the first person, there? We would like 19 you to line up so we maximize our time. So we'll put 20 three of you up there at a time. David Gary.
21 Are you here, David?
22 Okay.

23 M. FONTAN: My name is Manuel Fontan. I'm a 24 father of three, a community organizer, and formerly 25 incarcerated person. Most importantly I'm a human

1 just wanted people to have the opportunity to vote and 2 be well informed and know where they are to go vote to 3 know that their -- their names would be on the role.

4 D. NUNN: Just one point that I think I need
5 to address. I'm from East Palo Alto and Menlo Park.
6 So it took two efforts before East Palo Alto became a
7 city. The determinative factor of it becoming a city
8 was less than 80 votes. The first time it failed, we 9 had that many people in the county jail that didn't
10 have access to the right to vote. Justice Reynoso, you 11 talked about the 2000 elections, so I assume you're 12 conscious to recognize that it was more than our votes
13 that were being stole. It took our kids to war almost 14 immediately after we were stripped after the right to 15 vote in Florida. So it's not just a common -- a 16 conversation, how it impacts me. I write the vote our 17 black and brown people. It's not just us, it's not an 18 individual feely touchy type thing.

19 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: No. You're
20 perfectly right. I want to thank this panel very much 21 and the emphasis I notice has been even more on the 22 practices rather than the statutes not being 23 interpreted properly and so on. I was sad to say I was 24 on the U.S. commission of civil rights when we had 25 hearings on Florida. My own conclusion the vote was

1 being. And I'm also part of the National Movement of 2 Formerly Incarcerated People and Families for a
3 Brighter Community here in the U.S.

4 As someone considered expendable since the 5 first grade with zero tolerance policies, through most 6 of my teen years being locked up in Juvenile Hall and 7 going to State Prison, caged up as an adult, I know
8 firsthand why many people with similar backgrounds see 9 voting as a gimmick. And a gimmick can be defined as a 10 trick or device to get people's attention. I remember 11 coming home from incarceration back in 2003. And I was 12 under the assumption I did not have the right to vote
13 because of my felony conviction. And it was not until 14 I joined All of Us or None that I learned it was a 15 possibility.

16 But the fact still remain that I didn't have 17 trust in our current government. But after such 18 misinformation was clarified, I was tasked to surveying
19 my community. We decided to do rise in county jails,
20 Alameda County, San Mateo, to survey and hopefully help
21 individual family members who are in the visiting 22 lines. Most people we engage with either assumed they 23 couldn't vote or that they believed that voting didn't 24 matter. So it's easy to incriminate ideas that voting 25 is hope less when poor people are ignored by local as

1 well as statewide politicians when widespread voter
 2 intimidation aims to keep peoples of color away from 3 the polls and when the proceed -- the electoral college
 4 failure to accurately and consistently reflect the 5 national popular will. In addition, it's contradictory
 6 to work in the U.S. whether in the fields as farm
 7 workers as homes as domestic workers, in farm works as 8 pack as not have a voice in matters pertaining to our 9 existence despite to house corporation and broader 10 America. So it behoves us all to build courage to be 11 able to address this in more fundamental meaningful 12 ways. So that other people like me who presently don't 13 have to again face our current government can become 14 more engaged in a civic process. In closing, everyone
 15 who resides, works and lives off the land in America, 16 must have the right to have a meaningful voice in their 17 community particularly held in dungeons like San 18 Quintin, Pelican Bay, Corcoran, Florence and the likes.

19 Thank you.

20 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you. I would ask the 21 speakers to glance over to the timetable so you can 22 pace yourself better.

23 C. LAVIN: I also have a public written 24 testimony that I have submitted earlier. Members of 25 national committee.

1 would not discount achievements of PM and polices and 2 certainly have made great strides however many of us in 3 my community remain puzzled we cannot breakthrough the 4 gripes of local I electoral structure and politics can 5 potentially influence constituency in our state or in 6 our country. At more than 14 million people,
 7 approximate the largest here in California. Many of us
 8 are not naturalized citizen of adopted. State and 9 national representation as of November 2012 there is 10 only one fill American in the state legislature and 11 across the United States. Among the solutions in 12 (inaudible) want to make you aware of include the 13 following. outreach participating of voter but more 14 why voting in our active way of getting involved. For 15 opportunities for leadership training by working with 16 community organizations to harness the untapped
 17 potential leaders in the Filipino American community.
 18 To develop a more robust team we encouraged local 19 leaders to run for county, statewide and national 20 office. Finally, I would like to end comments with a 21 statement. Evidence from numerous studies has 22 repeatedly shown that the Filipino American community
 23 is an active force driving our nations over we 24 currently remain voiceless -- remain voiceless in the 25 political process that directly impacts our economic,

1 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Remind your name and
 2 organization.

3 C. LAVIN: Yeah, my name is Chris Lavin. I'm 4 a representative of the Filipino Service Group in Los 5 Angeles.

6 Members of the National Committee. Good
 7 morning. It's privilege to provide oral testimony here
 8 today in the California statewide hearing and voting
 9 about Filipino American and political involvement.
 10 Providing testimony here as one of the current board
 11 members of the Filipino American group as one of the 12 Filipino champions was previously participant of the 13 California registrants and most recently Los Angeles
 14 alternatives of voting matters. City clerk is now
 15 resulted in the formation of a Los Angeles city voter 16 participation commission, whose primary tasks to 17 increase voter participation in the City of Los 18 Angeles. As a member of the Filipino American 19 community, I say our community needs representation.
 20 And voting rights and access to voting is a gate way to 21 ensure that we as community are heard and represented.
 22 Everything from history began migration into the United 23 States in the 17 hundreds. But I look around our 24 country and find no one except here in California and 25 looks like or reflects the Filipino American voices. I

1 social and political rights. I see the day where we as 2 a community would have more representatives and in 3 higher levels government for the future of our country.
 4 Representatives who -- of our goals and aspirations of 5 our people, and it all starts with one vote.

6 Thank you so much for this opportunity to 7 speak.

8 A. HUFFMAN: Chris, are you going to?

9 C. LAVIN: I have a written testimony with 10 more details.

11 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you very much.

12 While David comes forth, will Peter Mendoza
 13 and Anne Gutierrez -- is it Gutierrez -- join us at the 14 microphone.

15 D. KERRY: Thank you commissioners. My name
 16 the David Kerry. I'm speaking on my own behalf. I'm 17 going to start with some testimony about my service on 18 San Francisco's election of observation panel for the 19 November 2012 election. During that election, on 20 election day, I visited a number of precincts it's to 21 see what was happening in the pre criminal intents. I 22 had selected those precinct its on evidence and 23 statistical voting data that suggested those PP were 24 having problems with votes. Inevitably when precincts
 25 were dominated by voters from low income background and

1 people of color.
 2 There is also some problems with accessible
 3 voting including one case where voter who needed
 4 accessible voting had to wait for 45 minutes while the 5 poll workers including a field election deputy tried to 6 get the machine to work so she could begin the voting
 7 process. While I washed and talked to field election
 8 deputy who described the well the problem is sometimes 9 you have to turn this machine off and on before you can 10 get it to work. And not just off an on but off an on 11 several times. And not just on and off several times,
 12 but on and off several times quickly if you do it 13 quickly enough, eventually you can usually get the 14 machine to work. These are the types of problems that 15 people who need accessible voting are having in -- in 16 San Francisco. I also found that very often those 17 accessible voting machines were not set up properly, so
 18 voters could cast the vote independently and in secret 19 and sometimes they weren't completely assembled. I had 20 one poll worker say he had to help a poll
 21 worker -- help a voter cast their vote while -- because 22 it wasn't set up correctly, and they didn't know how to 23 get it set up correctly. Also witnesses -- witnessed 24 here at the long lines here at city hall snakes up and 25 down in halls up and I down I didn't time it exactly

1 I'm sure it was payment people waiting for more than an 2 hour. Consistently, there were seeing problems with 3 poll -- adequate poll education and people providing 4 adequate assistance to voters. One of the problems we 5 saw was that as people wanted to -- were in San 6 Francisco they reside in another county. They were not 7 able to cast a ballot, not even a provisional ballot
 8 that would count for statewide contest. And often the 9 poll workers didn't even know how to handle that 10 situation. When I tried to call the help line to help
 11 in one case, I was kept on -- on hold for 20 minutes.
 12 Have and that's the kind of help voters are getting 13 then there's the definite problem that voters are 14 seeing in San Francisco.
 15 Thank you very much.
 16 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 17 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Thank you.
 18 A. HUFFMAN: Peter Mendoza. And is Eric -- I
 19 have to say the name right.
 20 P. MENDOZA: Madam Chairman and distinguished 21 members. For the record, my name is Peter Mendoza, 22 from the Community Learning Resource Center of San 23 Francisco. And I briefly provided services and -- for 24 people of disability in all ages including veterans of 25 San Francisco. I don't want to be redundant and go

1 over the eloquent of many folks that talked about the 2 various experience by persons with disabilities. But 3 as we -- people with disabilities have a very difficult
 4 time voting and often times these barriers worldly
 5 inhibit them from participating in the fundamental 6 right to vote. I.
 7 Wanted to give you a couple of personal
 8 experiences that kind of explain some of the 9 problematic and problems we often have. As was stated
 10 earlier, a lot of times the accessible accommodations
 11 are not available at a polling place or if an example 12 of electronic polling machine no one knows how to 13 operate it and many types. Or the machine itself is 14 not functioning.
 15 Oftentimes in my own personal experience, I
 16 found that maybe there is a ramp to go to accessible
 17 door and the door is locked. Can't get in. When 18 there's a problem -- forgive my voice -- when there's a 19 problem, it takes a long time to have it resolved even 20 if you call the help line, there's nobody immediately
 21 available that can assist you or they tell you to come 22 back later. If you're working, you know, it becomes a 23 corporate issue.
 24 You can't miss work, so you miss your right to 25 vote. Also when you have maybe the voting place is

1 accessible but the travel to the voting place is not
 2 accessible. I lived in Marin County and there is poll
 3 place that the fire house. The fire house is 4 accessible however the main roadway to the fire house
 5 is not paved, so no sidewalk, so I couldn't get 6 thereafter work one day. And it was dark and raining.
 7 If I tried to travel on the dark it would probably hit
 8 by a car so therefore I couldn't vote. Those are just 9 a few of the issues that we all experience. I want to 10 reemphasize that people who are also under served are 11 with intellectual disabilities and accessible voting
 12 for them.
 13 I want to commend you both as -- as an 14 individual and as members that of ICF for hearing this 15 hears to address these issues and look forward to the 16 voting process to be accessible to all.
 17 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 18 I would like Pamela Strong and Jerry Elser to 19 line up with the mic, please.
 20 A. GUTIEREZ: First name is actually Arie.
 21 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you, Arie.
 22 A. GUTIEREZ: Thank you to the Lawyer's
 23 Committee for civil right under the law for the 24 opportunity to speak today.
 25 My name is Arie Gutierrez, and I am the

1 founding co chair of the Latino Equality Alliance, a 2 nonprofit organization established in response to the 3 intimidating experience its founding members
 4 encountered during the December 2008 election cycle.
 5 Specific to this election an anti LGBT, which means 6 lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender initiative was 7 on the ballot. California Proposition 8 with the 8 intention of taking away -- as LGBT Latinos I and 9 fellow community members volunteered to defend this 10 right in independent campaign rights. However our 11 effort to exercise our rights to persuade voters
 12 leading to and on election day was met with harassment, 13 intimidation and an active effort to prevent our 14 legally allowed campaign efforts at polling places.

15 As an example of the situation, on election
 16 day, November 4th, 2008, Mr. Rolland Polinski, an 17 executive with a statewide philanthropy organization
 18 and highly respected LGBT community leader was 19 threatened with arrest if he handed a flyer to a voter 20 that included a slate of voter appeals including one
 21 against the anti LGBT ballot initiative. Mr. Polinski
 22 had been acting within the legally allowed election
 23 their boundaries, but was harassed by a poll worker in 24 a polling place in East Los Angeles. The incident was 25 neutralized with the support of ACLU attorneys

1 intimidation. Never should a voter feel suspect or be 2 remorseful in casting a vote that may or may not be in 3 line of the teachings of the facility acting as a
 4 polling location as I dared to do that year.

5 A. HUFFMAN: Time.

6 A. GUTIEREZ: If I may please have an extra
 7 minute.

8 A. HUFFMAN: Yes.

9 A. GUTIEREZ: Stricter guidelines for entities
 10 like churches that openly campaign for or against 11 ballot issues and also host polling locations should 12 not be located in church facilities in which Los 13 Angeles County seems to be commonplace.

14 Thank you for your time.

15 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.

16 Yes, we have seven more minutes. For those of 17 you that do not get an opportunity to speak, there are 18 hearings, public testimony throughout the agenda, so
 19 after each segment we will again take public testimony.

20 Pam?

21 P. STRONG: Good morning. I'm Pamela Strong,
 22 proud member of All of Us or None, and a formerly 23 incarcerated person that needs to be heard. I find the 24 opportunity to give some of the things that we go
 25 through when we come home. And one thing is a mother

1 stationed at our East LA campaign office (inaudible).

2 Likewise, our volunteers experienced similar 3 intimidation at the polling locations set over the 4 previous weekend for early voting. Due to the 5 increased voter interest in the historical presidential 6 election that year, early voting was set up in the 7 county of Los Angeles registrar's main office in 8 Norwalk California. The license of voters were very 9 long and wrapped around buildings, exceeding 100-foot
 10 boundary for election and here again our voters -- our 11 volunteers were threatened and intimidated by poll
 12 workers. Further, polling places themselves were 13 intimidating to voters who identify as LGBT including 14 myself. And those supportive of LGBT issues when the 15 voting booths on the property of faith institutions.
 16 These sites were often sometimes the same locations
 17 community members heard from and on pulpit on radio, 18 urging a vote in favor of the anti LGBT initiative and 19 the political climate of the time was clearly hostile
 20 toward LGBT and people and issues to vet we were 21 expected onto property and facilities operated by the 22 entities driving the hostility. Clearly, as to not 23 deter voting by LGBT people and our allies polling 24 places should be located on neutral grounds where 25 voters can cast their vote without direct or indirect

1 that couldn't see her son for six years because I was
 2 an ex-inmate, I think that's kind of absurd when you
 3 have no one dad is not in your life now he's deceased
 4 and they gave my son 15 years. And I hadn't seen him
 5 in 14 years so I finally got approved now I can visit
 6 him because I was formerly incarcerated. I can't visit
 7 my son, what can I do what is intimidating for an 8 inmate to see your own child. And I think that's 9 really something we should look at.

10 And I really -- when I came home from prison, 11 I really got into my parole agent because I went to the 12 program when I was there. Prison is nothing like I
 13 thought. And no one wants to be a -- a felon or no one 14 asked for this. And I think I could have done better.
 15 And I really -- I'm going to back to school now, 16 because I was in default. I didn't know how I was 17 going to go to student loans -- the money, they kept 18 the money too, so I was in default. I once you was 19 default I went back to school and I saw a lot of 20 opportunities for people that do come home and want to 21 do something with their life. We're not bad people we 22 just made bad choices. So I would like support in 23 getting our communities back together because we take 24 so many from the community and when they come home they 25 have nothing to do but go back. They don't get a job.

1 They don't have housing. So what do you do. You know,
2 what can we do. Him -- not going to take all day, by I
3 just wanted to address that I think people that come
4 home should have better accesses to the compute, like
5 getting back to the life and community.

6 A. HUFFMAN: Thank you, Pam. Justice Reynoso
7 here, and my other colleagues are miracle workers. I
8 think they heard you even though it wasn't on voting
9 rights. They took what you said. Point well taken.

10 Jerry. Is jerry here. And I think we may 11 have time for maybe the -- Jerry's going to be the last 12 one in the segment if he uses his three minutes.

13 J. ELISON: My name is Jerry Elison. I'll 14 read from a quick note for time sake. Mass
15 incarceration of people of color. This was not so
16 apparent to me as a young marginalized black man
17 growing up in south central Los Angeles. My rebellious
18 nature crossed paths with that criminal justice system.
19 I rarely accepted responsibility. Upon arriving to 20 prison I became aware of the overwhelming
21 disproportionate number of black and brown people
22 there.

23 A. HUFFMAN: Incarcerated.

24 J. ELISON: This was the first time I had 25 actually understood that crime in America was

1 predisposed -- was predisposed to race. I accepted the 2 personal responsibility and did the personal work
3 toward educating myself and gaining my freedom. After 4 26 years of incarcerate, I was granted parole. As a
5 black man I was oppression that rebelliousness however
6 as formerly incarcerated person I found out the full
7 intent of the American justice system when at 50 years
8 old. I have never been eligible to vote in a national 9 election. Approximately 12 -- 12 to 13 percent of 10 America's population is African-American, but we make 11 it about 81 percent of the penal system in America.
12 Looking back upon the future, marginalized targeted
13 community, my home was a little home, I can see why
14 they feel in this country, their vote doesn't count.
15 When they can look at us and say, these are the guys 16 the old Gs and this is what America had for them? They 17 just don't understand. And they don't want to be part 18 of system that's not a part of them.

19 Thank you.

20 THE WITNESS: We're going to conclude this 21 segment but four cards left and I'm sure there will be 22 others. The other public testimony will be taken at 23 12:35 to 1:05. And I believe we are ready for a break.
24 11:10 to 11:25. A break and we'll pick up panel two.

25 (Short recess taken.)

1 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Please come forth
2 forth and take your seats. And the moderator of the 3 second, third panel is our most distinguished Dolores
4 Huerta and she will guide you through your panel. Keep 5 time you and crack the whip. We have a time keeper.
6 Thank you.

7 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you very much,
8 Ms. Huffman.

9 And we know that this second panel of, we're 10 going to hearing testimonies on the ongoing second
11 generation harms, voter dilution, and voting
12 discrimination. So this panel will cover racial 13 discrimination and will constitute voting right
14 violations including Section 5, Section 2, 15 redistricting, CVRA violation implementation of 16 discriminatory changes post the Shelby decision, et 17 cetera.

18 And thank you very much panelists for coming
19 and preparing giving us your testimonies.

20 And our first witness is Mr. James Morgan, and 21 I am going to pronounce this right.

22 J. KOUSSER: Kousser.

23 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Mr. Kousser.

24 He's a professor at California institute of 25 Technology.

1 J. KOUSSER: Yes. I'm not representing
2 anybody but myself. I teach at Cal Tech. And I will 3 try to go very fast. I've got numbers. I -- they're 4 based upon two data sets that I've been collecting for 5 a long time. Since 2009, I've been collecting a data
6 set on essentially all voting rights, events throughout
7 the country from 1957 to the present; Section 2 cases;
8 Section 5 cases; Section 5 objections; more information
9 requests; settlements to the extent that we got them;
10 Section 203 cases; and so on.

11 And the second data set is on the CVRA, and 12 that just started. And what I've looked at is the 13 K through 12 school districts. So both of the data
14 sets are incomplete. But they have interesting 15 implications for what ought to be done about changes in 16 the -- in voting rights laws and how they have worked.
17 In particular, there was a lot of discussion in 2005, 18 2006 on the renewal of voting rights acts about the 19 inhibitory effects of Section 5, proflactac effects, 20 stopping local jurisdictions that were adverse to the 21 rights of minorities. That is very important, but we 22 have now lost that, at least temporarily. One of the 23 things that was not discussed to the same extent was 24 the degree of which having a favorable voting rights
25 acts environment, Section 2 in VRA cases and the CVRA,

1 has actually forced settlements and the extent to which
2 settlements have been important in voting rights
3 successes, i.e., wins by minorities, hasn't really been 4 understood. These two data sets give you a good chance
5 to -- to understand that.

6 Does this work? Okay. There we go.
7 There -- I have records of around 6,000 -- a 8 bit more than 6,000 voting rights cases, or actions, of 9 which, by the way that I counted them about 4100 have 10 been successes, nationally. The ones that came from 11 lawsuits under Section 2, there were 1800 roughly 12 successes, nationally, during that whole period of 13 time. And a third of those approximately came out of 14 consent agreements or other sorts of settlements.

15 And I only counted things as consent
16 agreements if I had positive -- positive indication
17 that they were consent agreements or other settlements.
18 They're probably a lot of settlements than that. Some 19 more lawsuits successes than that. But about a 20 third -- the bottom line is, about the third of the 21 total successes came from consent agreements. So
22 that's what the voting rights -- it's one of the things
23 that the Voting Rights Act does. It encourages people 24 to make changes, which make it possible to for 25 minorities to elect candidates of their choice. This

1 is -- oops.

2 This is even with the case with the CVRA. And 3 the CVRA has really revolutionized things in 4 California. The first Voting Rights Act success in 5 California came in 1976. And through 2013, about 6 three-fourths of all successes came from the CVRA, the 7 rest from the VRA or 13th, 14th, or 15th Amendments.

8 If you look at the districts and the number
9 that have elected Hispanics, the -- there were 55
10 districts that were drawn, 55 jurisdictions that had 11 school districts before 2007. After 2007, which is the 12 major case, that Robert will tell you about, there have 13 been 88 that switched, probably more than that. Now, 14 almost all of those have districts associated with 15 them.

16 If you look at at-large elections, districts
17 without at-large elections, they're less likely to 18 elect Hispanics than local school districts that elect 19 their candidates by districts. If you look at 20 districts that are over than 60 percent Hispanic in 21 population, then they'll elected -- you'll elect
22 Hispanic members, either they're at-large or district
23 systems. But if you go down to districts that are 40
24 percent Hispanic in population they're more likely to 25 elect Hispanic members if you have local district

1 elections.

2 So the -- in considering changes that
3 the -- that the C -- VRAA, the new proposal may make,
4 the -- one of the most important things that ought to 5 be taken into account is that it may well encourage 6 people to -- to settle by making districts switch,
7 which are more likely to elect minorities. That's 8 particularly true because it's got a 15-year rolling 9 trigger to settle and that will encourage districts to 10 settle rather than to be brought under the Section 3
11 preclearance. So that's actually very important, I
12 think, in considering national changes under the VRA,
13 and the CVRA has led the way.

14 I will shut up now.
15 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you very much.
16 As -- our next panelist will be Mr. Rubin, Mr.
17 Robert Rubin from the University of California Hastings
18 of Law. He's a teacher here.

19 R. RUBIN: That's why I have professor Kousser
20 as my expert. He knows how to operate the remote. I
21 would like to talk a little bit about, before we move
22 to CVRA, which we've been very extensively involved in,
23 I would like to talk about Section 5 and what that's 24 meant here in California.

25 You know, we -- we appear in front of judges

1 throughout California. And we typically get the same
2 reaction: Oh, voting rights violations, you're in the 3 wrong state. This isn't Mississippi or Alabama. And 4 we have to overcome that bias, this notion that there
5 are no voting right prompts in California. And 6 obviously just in the couple of hours that we heard
7 this morning, that is certainly not the case.

8 In 1962, California was one of only of 19
9 states that made English language literacy a 10 requirement of voting. As late as 1962. One of only 11 19 states that had the English literacy requirement.
12 That, of course, was one of the reasons why the four 13 counties in California were designated under Section 5.
14 And utilizing that very effective tool, perhaps, the 15 most effective tool in the history of civil rights
16 enforcement in -- in 2002, we secured a letter of 17 objection from the Department of Justice, regarding the 18 Chular School District that was switching from a 19 district system to an at-large system, a blatant 20 violation and retrogressive finding that took place.
21 And this is late as 2002.

22 And shortly thereafter, in August of 2003,
23 together with my colleagues from Waldorf we obtained
24 temporary restraining orders against the gubernatorial
25 recall election for moving precincts. And moving

1 precincts might not like sound that big a deal, but if 2 you are low income, you don't own a car, you can't get
 3 to the other side of town, and you're informed two days
 4 before the election, that your precinct has moved
 5 around the corner to up the hill and around the bend,
 6 that can be a barrier to voting and often a tool used
 7 be southern politicians to deny the rights to Black
 8 folks in -- in those areas.

9 It also highlights the strategic advantage
 10 that Section 5 gives us because oftentimes these 11 changes, subject to Section 5, happen at the last 12 minute. And because the burden is placed on the 13 jurisdiction to justify those changes, it -- it keeps
 14 those discriminatory practices from going into effect
 15 until they've been pre-cleared by the justice
 16 department.

17 And I haven't even mentioned Lopez versus 18 Monterey County, which is a Section 5 case that we went 19 to the Supreme Court case twice in the mid-'90s and 20 late-'90s and prevailed both times finding California
 21 and the four counties in violation of Section 5. So 22 California voters have not only benefitted from 23 Section 5's protections, but they are harmed by 24 dismantlement.

25 Let me move quickly to the California voting

1 right act. As you know, California Voting Rights Act
 2 was enacted in 2001. Allows challenges to at-large
 3 systems and seek to convert them into district systems
 4 or other alternative systems such as cumulative voting.
 5 There have been approximately 20 suits filed. We've 6 won all of them, most by settlement. One is pending in 7 the Court of Appeals right now, the City of Palmdale
 8 that we just finished briefing and will probably be 9 arguing shortly. So the CVRA has been hugely
 10 successful as Professor Kousser's data confirmed.

11 Indeed, in the truest traditions of private 12 attorney generals, the private bar and -- and the civil 13 rights organizations around the state have acted to 14 defend the constitutionality of the statute and indeed
 15 has gone further than that to enforce the law through 16 monitoring our advocacy and litigation.

17 But there are limitations to the CVRA and 18 we're likely proposing changes to it. There's 19 frustration of getting a district converted from 20 at-large districts and then having the lines drawn so 21 poorly, that where -- is equally disenfranchised under 22 district system that's jerrymander than we are with an 23 at-large system. In a way, the CVRA is like Moses.
 24 That is, they take you to the periphery of the Promise
 25 Land. However, if you are still subject to the

1 oppression of -- of -- of -- even if you have escaped
 2 the prison of at-large system and you're still subject
 3 to district that are malapportioned and jerrymandered,
 4 you might as well be in Egypt.

5 My rabbi insisted that I include that.
 6 We had a recent instance of -- of this very 7 fact. In San Mateo County, where after a lawsuit was 8 settled, they were drawing the lines. And the 9 community came together in a wonderful display of 10 colescing and presented a unity map that all elements
 11 of the community supported. We assumed that, since 12 that was pretty much the only map that was presented to 13 board, that's what they would go with. They chose a 14 map that we didn't even present to them from the 15 community. And they denied us the right we thought we 16 had of establishing an Asian/Latino coalition district.

17 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Okay. Thank you very 18 much. I think your time is up, but I think you will be 19 able to introduce more of your testimony during the 20 questioning period.

21 And I think that what happened there happened
 22 in other areas like mine. Okay.

23 R. RUBIN: Unfortunately, that's all too true.

24 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you.

25 Our next panelist is Mr. Eugene Lee, who is

1 with the Voter Rights Project and is director of the 2 Asian American Advancing Justice Project from Los 3 Angeles.

4 Mr. Lee.

5 E. LEE: Honorable, Commissioners, thank you
 6 for holding this hearing on the critical subject of 7 voting rights. And thank you for the invitation to 8 testify before you today.

9 My name is Eugene Lee, and I direct the Voter 10 Rights Project at the Asian American Justice Project in 11 Los Angeles which is a civil rights organization based 12 in Southern California and formerly known as the Asian 13 Pacific American Legal Center.

14 In my time today, I wanted to do three things.
 15 The first is to provide a very quick overview of what 16 the Shelby decision means for Asian nationally, to put 17 the decision in context. The next few things I wanted
 18 to do was to make two points about vote dilution faced
 19 by Asian Americans. The first point on vote dilution
 20 is that Asian American communities in California do 21 face racially polarized voting. The second point is 22 that Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act, while a 23 powerful and important tool, is insufficient as a 24 safeguard against dilution of Asian American electoral 25 opportunities. I have prepared testimony that I will

1 provide you after this panel.

2 So the impact of Shelby County. Again I want
3 to try to put that decision in context very quickly.
4 Immediately prior to Shelby, there were 15 states that 5 were covered in whole or in part under Section 5. And 6 of these states, over half or among the top 20 having 7 the largest Asian American populations in the country.
8 Former Section 5 jurisdictions are home to the most 9 rapidly growing Asian American populations. From 2000
10 to 2010, the country's Asian American population grew 11 by 46 percent, making Asian Americans making the 12 fastest racial group in country. Notably in two-thirds 13 of former Section 5 states, the Asian American 14 population actually grew at a more rapid rate than 15 this.

16 The termination of Section 5 coverage for 17 these states comes at a pivotal moment for Asian 18 Americans, who in recent years have begun to emerge
19 politically in these states as they increase in size.
20 As our nation has historically witnessed, when groups
21 of racial minorities move into an area or outpace the 22 general population growth in an area, the result is 23 often racial tension and sometimes racial 24 discrimination including voting discrimination.

25 Turning to vote dilution, my first point there

1 is that Asian Americans are confronted with racially
2 polarized voting, that impairs their ability to elect
3 candidates of choice, perhaps not in every area of the 4 state where Asian Americans are concentrated, but at 5 least in certain areas of the state.

6 Leading up to the redistricting that followed
7 the 2010 census, we worked with a political scientist
8 to access the existence of racially polarized voting
9 against Asian American in the San Gabriel Valley and in 10 the south bay regions of Los Angeles county. The 11 political scientist looked at 13 elections from 2002 to 12 2010. He found that in all elections Asian American 13 voters demonstrated cohesive voting patterns in favor
14 of Asian American candidates. Non-Asian Americans
15 tended to vote against the candidates preferred by 16 Asian American voters. In ten of the elections, 17 non-Asian Americans gave less than 50 percent of their 18 vote to candidates preferred by Asian Americans.

19 For example, in the June 2006 Democratic 20 Primary for Assembly District 49 located in the West
21 San Gabriel Valley, candidates supported by 74 percent
22 of Asian Americans received support from only 24
23 percent of non-Asian American voters.

24 As another example, in the June 2010
25 Democratic Primary election for attorney general race

1 looking within the boundaries of Assembly District 53
2 located in the South Bay, the candidates supported by 3 83 percent of Asian American voters received only
4 supported from four percent from non-Asian Americans
5 voters.

6 The second point on vote dilution is that
7 Section 2 is insufficient to protect against vote
8 dilution of Asian Americans communities. Generally
9 speaking, Section 2 is an inadequate substitute for the 10 Section 5 pre-clearance process because of its expense
11 and the uncertainty of obtaining injunctive relief.

12 For Asian American communities specifically 13 the first jingles precondition particularly after 14 Bartlett vs. Strickland makes Section 2 an illusive 15 safeguard against vote dilution. This is because it in 16 many of the areas of the state, Asian Americans are 17 sizable, but not sufficiently large and geographically
18 compact to form a majority of a hypothetical district.

19 If forced to rely on Section 2 alone, Asian 20 American communities face a significantly uphill battle
21 in asserting challenges to at-large election systems
22 and unfairly drawn districts.

23 Thank you, again, for your invitation to 24 testify before you.

25 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you very much,

1 Mr. Lee.

2 Our next presenter will be Mr. Thomas Saenz,
3 president and general counsel of the Mexican American
4 Legal Defense and Educational Fund, MALDEF.

5 T. SAENZ: Good morning. Commissioners, it's 6 a deep honor and pleasure to be before four folks who 7 have esteem and admiration for their record and 8 understanding of these issues in California and across 9 the nation.

10 I am Thomas Saenz, president and general
11 counsel of MALDEF. And I am pleased to be before you
12 to talk about California voting rights issues.

13 My colleague Nina Perales, a few weeks ago,
14 testified before the commission about some of the 15 voting rights issues faced in Arizona.

16 Today, I will focus on California and begin
17 with a premise alluded to by my good friend Robert 18 Rubin. There is a perception by some inside and 19 outside of outside of California that somehow this 20 state is a progressive island, not susceptible to the 21 kinds of discriminatory patterns that we see in other 22 parts of the country. And, indeed, we have to 23 acknowledge a great progress has been made in 24 California. This is not the same California of 25 20 years ago, when we saw repeatedly wedge issues based

1 on race like Proposition 187 and Proposition 209
 2 presented to voters and exploited by state political 3 leaders.
 4 But, despite the progress, we continue to face
 5 challenges in the State of California. And today I
 6 would like to highlight three of them. First, I would 7 like to talk about statewide redistricting.
 8 We, as you know, have an independent
 9 redistricting commission in California which undertook
 10 its efforts for the first time, following the last 11 census. It's important for me to note that that 12 commission did a good job. In part, it did a good job
 13 because it included commissioners with deep knowledge
 14 of voting right issues that were there for obtaining 15 and looking at data on racially polarized voting going
 16 on throughout the State of California.
 17 Using that data, they made important decisions
 18 about creating majority/minority for the state
 19 legislature and the Congress. But, despite that 20 overall good job done by that commission that included
 21 those very well-informed and experienced commissioners,
 22 at MALDEF, we concluded that the maps drawn and adopted
 23 by the commission still failed to draw two Latino
 24 majority districts that should have been drawn based on 25 the ability to do so and the existence of racially

1 polarized voting: One a state senate district in the 2 Inland Empire; the other a congressional district in 3 the Inland Empire as well. As I know you are, you are 4 familiar with the Inland Empire, and you can understand
 5 how important creating majority/minority districts
 6 given longstanding patterns of racially polarised
 7 voting and policymaking in that area is.
 8 Second, I would like to talk about board of 9 supervisors redistricting, redistricting of those seats
 10 so important in California because of the critical
 11 role, particularly in the delivery of social services, 12 healthcare, and mental healthcare that boards of 13 supervisors play. Redistricting lies in the hands of 14 supervisors themselves.
 15 After the last redistricting round, following
 16 the 2010 census, MALDEF identified 10, 10 counties out
 17 of a total 58 in the State of California, that failed
 18 to draw a Latino majority supervisorial district even 19 though there was evidence before them of the ability to 20 do so and the existence of racially polarized voting.
 21 Of those 10, two should have created the first 22 Latino majority supervisorial district in their 23 histories, seven should have created a second Latino
 24 majority district. Even though they had one in 25 existence, there was the ability and the necessity,

1 given the demonstrated racially polarized voting, to 2 create a second.
 3 And in one county, a county previously covered
 4 by Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, they should have 5 drawn a third Latino majority supervisorial district.
 6 Thus, problems around redistricting continue
 7 to apply in the State of California. Ordinarily, the 8 failure to draw these districts seem to be justified by 9 concerns about protecting incumbents and concerns about 10 changing the political policy views of a majority or 11 significant minority of the board of supervisors in the 12 county involved.
 13 Third and finally, I would like to talk about 14 how our progressive -- progressive measures that were 15 well known for in the State of California such as 16 initiative, referendum, and recall themselves sometimes 17 raise voting rights concerns. I want to particularly 18 highlight the inability or the unwillingness to require
 19 that petitions for initiatives, referenda, and recall
 20 be presented in languages other than English.
 21 Now, this relates to Section 203, but it also 22 relates to other concerns of the Voting Rights Act, 23 particularly as where we have seen at MALDEF and,
 24 indeed, litigated, voters are misled through the use of 25 nontranslated materials into signing petitions that

1 they did not agree with. In particular, MALDEF
 2 represented a number of years ago challengers to a
 3 recall position that was circulated in -- in English
 4 only in a district with large numbers of 5 non-English-speaking voters and parents. And resulted 6 in the recall of a school board member who appeared to 7 have the support of the Latino community. We had 8 testimony from a number of people who signed the 9 petition, indicating that they had been told, when they 10 asked in Spanish, that the recall was about something 11 other than what it actually involved. So I highlight 12 those three issues and I look forward to expand upon 13 them in written testimony submitted later. And I look 14 forward to your questions.
 15 Thank you, commissioners.
 16 D. HUERTA: Thank you, Thomas, Mr. Saenz.
 17 And our next presenter is Mr. Sean Dugar, who 18 is the western regional field director of the National 19 Association for Colored People.
 20 S. DUGAR: Thank you.
 21 Good morning, commissioners. You have my 22 testimony written in front of you, and I am actually 23 going to stick to that script this morning.
 24 As was said, my name is Sean Dugar, and I'm 25 the western regional field director for National

1 Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the 2 NAACP. The NAACP is the oldest, largest nonpartisan
 3 organization fighting for civil and human rights. For 4 more than 1800 active volunteer branches, youth
 5 councils, and college chapters, there are few issues
 6 more sacred and important than unfettered access to the 7 ballot box. Our members have organized, marched,
 8 suffered beatings, and, yes, even have lost their lives
 9 for this right.

10 As we focus on updating Section 4 of the VRA, 11 nationally, many of our state-level organizations have 12 stepped up to the plate to ensure continued, equal
 13 representation through the redistricting process. A 14 great example of that process -- of that process is the 15 California/Hawaii State Conference of NAACP and their 16 engagement in redistricting here in California.

17 As you know, in the presidential election of 18 2008, California voters approved the Voters First Act
 19 establishing the independent citizens redistricting
 20 commission. And subsequently in 2010, voted to amend 21 the commission to include congressional districts. In 22 doing its task, redrawing the legislative districts of 23 California, the commission sought the advice and 24 opinions of statewide advocacy groups, like the NAACP.

25 In this process, the California State

1 Conference and NAACP submitted a number of draft maps
 2 to the redistricting commission encouraging it to look
 3 beyond what may be considered packed minority
 4 districts. It's the belief of the California NAACP,
 5 that because of urban centers African-Americans,
 6 Latinos, Asian Pacific, and Whites all live in the same
 7 neighborhoods. This means we must work, socialize,
 8 attend school, and compete with each other to create
 9 diverse and thriving communities.

10 In the redistricting context, communities of 11 interest -- it's a traditional and important 12 redistricting principle that should be employed in the 13 process of drawing a fair map. This approach was 14 unique to the NAACP. Like many other minority 15 organizations that would push for districts that would 16 include 50 percent plus 1 -- or 50 percent --
 17 50 percent of an ethnic group, while this approach
 18 should ensure minority districts would remain, it would 19 have consolidated and reduced the number of elected
 20 officials of color throughout the state. In maps
 21 submitted and mostly adopted by the redistricting
 22 commission from the California State Conference NAACP, 23 their position resulted in multiple districts in Los 24 Angeles, Alameda, and Contra Costa Counties that most 25 likely would elect a minority to office, but would also

1 require a majority of votes for more than one ethnic
 2 group.

3 For instance, in its first draft of maps, the 4 commission took a traditionally African-American
 5 district, held by then-assembly member Mike Davis and 6 converted it to a 47 percent African-American,
 7 42 percent Latino, and 3 percent Asian Pacific Islander
 8 district. It was at the urging at the California state
 9 Conference NAACP that we saw the commission redraw the 10 map to include Koreatown thus allowing the API
 11 community to have more influence in the district, while 12 also allowing the African-American community have more 13 influence in another district.

14 In addition to advising the Citizens
 15 Redistricting Commission, the California State
 16 Conference filed an amicus brief in the Ward Connelly
 17 v. State of California case. The amicus responded to 18 the plaintiffs' challenge to the California
 19 redistricting assertion that the commission is required
 20 to be reasonable -- to be reasonably representative of 21 the state's diversity. The plaintiff claimed that 22 Proposition 11 is unconstitutional and -- because it
 23 impermissibly required the commission to grant
 24 preferential treatment to applicants on the basis of 25 race, ethnicity, and gender and, accordingly, to

1 discriminate against other applicants on the same
 2 basis. As we -- and ultimately the Court decided -- 3 that was not true.

4 So today we see the fruits of the California
 5 State Conference and the commission, redistricting
 6 commission's efforts to members of the legislative 7 Black, Latino, and API caucuses from districts that 8 were not previously competitive.

9 While the process was new and results not 10 always ideal, we overall are pleased with the results
 11 from the redistricting commission. After all, this is 12 the most diverse state in the nation, and we must lead 13 by example when it comes to living, working, and 14 electing together.

15 Thank you.

16 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thanks very much. We 17 would like to start the questioning process, and we'll 18 start here with Ms. Feng.

19 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: You caught me off
 20 guard. I was so engaged. And now I pushed my name 21 over.

22 Robert Rubin, you were about to tell us about 23 some of the litigation that was successful around the 24 state using the California Voting Rights Act. And 25 maybe you could share a few more of the details of the

1 jurisdictions that you all have brought some litigation
2 against and how those resulted in different
3 representation.

4 R. RUBIN: Well, first off, I think the impact
5 to the litigation has produced voluntary compliance
6 than we actually achieved through the courts, which is 7 great. You know, we're often challenged at the end of 8 the case of, you know, you file this, you're getting 9 millions of dollars in attorneys' fees, and why does it
10 cause so much money. Jurisdictions don't have to wait
11 for us to sue. They actually can comply with the law 12 voluntarily, which is the way it's set up to do. And 13 since 2001, that's been -- the law of the land at-large 14 elections that impair the right to vote are illegal, 15 and they should have been voluntarily compliant. So we 16 reject this -- this criticism that we're filing
17 lawsuits to collect attorneys' fees. That could be 18 easily be avoided.

19 I'm proud to say that we have gotten the 58th
20 and last county in California to comply with the CVRA,
21 San Mateo County, and is now done by districts.
22 Although as I say, that is a partial victory because 23 again, like Moses, gets only the periphery of the 24 Promised Land, we still need to get decent districts to 25 escape the oppression. And here, our fairly drawn

1 politician, the politician chooses the voters
2 through -- through this line-drawing process. So
3 that's -- that's one change. And we would like
4 to -- we would like to sort of deal with the ignorance
5 of California courts, too, by instructing them as to 6 what remedies they can actually apply. Because as we 7 talked about earlier, California judges don't think 8 there is discriminatory voting practices that go on.
9 And so, when we say, not only is there a discriminatory
10 voting practice, but you need to join us up on upcoming 11 election, they're horrified. I'm an elected judge, and 12 you can't stop my election.

13 And this is just something that we would not 14 encounter in the South. And that's one area where I 15 think we need some enlightenment as to what happens.

16 So we're going to try to push for some of 17 those changes in the CVRA, to open it up to challenges
18 to districts and to challenge district lines that are 19 unfairly gerrymandering and diluting the minority vote, 20 and specify the remedies so the judges can have some 21 greater level of comfort.

22 I know how that strikes you, Justice Reynoso.
23 I would think the judge would feel better if they 24 remedy listed in a statute, that they would have that 25 much greater comfort level in ordering and joining in

1 districts are rejected by the county. So one thing --

2 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Can you describe what 3 they ultimately enacted?

4 R. RUBIN: We had sought a majority/minority
5 Asian District which was, it was pretty unavoidable for 6 them to do. But we also had which was very nice
7 coalition effort that resulted in the Asian and Latino
8 communities coming together in which there would have 9 been a coalition districts so that coalition districts
10 are not majority/minority but they are together a 11 majority/minority, that is, one might comprise 30 and 12 the other might comprise 25. And as long as they're 13 voting in similar ways, that's what we call a coalition
14 district, which under state law, the CVRA, California
15 Voting Rights Act is permissible. Under federal law,
16 it's a little more questionable.

17 So we were -- we would actually like to see
18 some changes in the CVRA. It's been a wonderful tool, 19 but we would like into get into the Promised Land, and 20 we would like to get fairly drawn districts. And so, I
21 think what we need to see is, like, as it was being 22 discussed. We need citizen commissions at the local 23 level. We need to get the politicians out from drawing 24 their own lines because there's many saved today. It's 25 not a politician no longer -- voters no long choose a

1 on an upcoming election.

2 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I have a question.
3 And I think anybody can answer it, but the NAACP.

4 As Sean alluded, during the redistricting, we 5 did not seek a majority African-American district. We 6 found, over the past years, that our strength was to 7 have enough potent numbers to have influence, but that 8 we diminished our voting power when we locked ourselves
9 into a majority district because then we impact one
10 district instead of spreading it out. And I think I
11 hear testimony that you want a majority Asian district, 12 a majority Latino district. And I come from the 13 vantage point that one of these days we're really going 14 to rule California if we don't turn on each other. And 15 I am just wondering as to where your boundaries are as 16 having a focused, single district as opposed to 17 spreading it out and letting those who are protected by 18 the -- were protected by the Voting Rights Act fight it 19 out as it happened in Oakland when Bante, and an 20 African-American didn't win. It was a fair fight, but 21 it was, you know, a couple of protected classes
22 and -- and still a minority won. I'm wondering what 23 your point of view is on that for redistricting in case
24 I'm involved.

25 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I think Tom Saenz

1 should respond to that.
 2 MR. SAENZ: I will. Of course, I think that I
 3 am proud, and I know that Eugene shares that pride that 4 in the redistricting round, minority communities worked
 5 together by and large to present, wherever possible,
 6 unity maps. In doing so, of course, we became everyone
 7 more acutely aware, as I think everyone should be,
 8 while we ought to work together, minority communities
 9 have different experiences. Today, with voting in 10 California.

11 So, for example, because of differentials in 12 participation and turnout, you can create a district in 13 which African-American voters are likely to control the 14 outcome and have a candidate of choice elected and much 15 lower percentages than you could either for the Latino
 16 and Asian American community. And that's simply 17 because of the differentials between those groups in 18 turnout and participation, that continues.

19 So I think the answer has to be that there is 20 no one answer for every community. There is no one
 21 answer for the entire State of California. You really 22 have to be aware of what's happening in each local area
 23 when your drawing the statewide maps. And I think all
 24 communities benefited going out prior to the commission
 25 beginning its process and talking to constituents in

1 they -- under the law, they really had to settle or 2 they had a chance of losing. So I wonder, whether it
 3 would be helpful in local -- in local elections,
 4 particularly counties and cities, if we had -- I don't
 5 know if whether it could be done in California
 6 constitutionally or statutorily that -- that they, too,
 7 establish reapportionment commissions the way we have 8 now for states, rather than allowing them as Mr. Rubin
 9 say, where you have those running for office
 10 decide -- decide who their constituents will be rather 11 than the voters deciding who will represent them. I 12 wonder if you have given some thought on that.

13 J. KOUSSER: It's conceivable that you could 14 do that. One of the difficulties with commissions is 15 that commissions can be simply a blind for the 16 incumbents actually drawing things --

17 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Excuse me. Let me
 18 interrupt.

19 That's absolutely true. I think one of the 20 saving graces that the state experienced were the 21 guidelines given to the commission. So I was wondering
 22 if that could also be done locally.

23 J. KOUSSER: That would help. But long ago, I 24 had worked in the Gartha vs. Los Angeles Board of 25 supervisors case. And each redistricting, the LA

1 those communities of what's going on locally to 2 understand where coalition districts might make most 3 sense, where influence districts might lead eventually,
 4 or even more immediately to outcomes that would be more
 5 commensurate of the views of minority voting
 6 communities and where you still need to create minority
 7 majority different community by community.

8 So, for example, you're approaching Los 9 Angeles County, is likely to be different than it would 10 be in the Inland Empire, as I discussed previously.
 11 Your approach in the Bay Area is likely to be different 12 from what it would be in the San Joaquin Valley. You 13 really have to be attentive to the different needs of 14 the different communities in local areas of the state.

15 So I guess that's my way of saying, I can't 16 answer the question because I think it has to be 17 multifaceted answer that continues to involve as a
 18 process matter coalitions between all minority
 19 communities in California to present unity maps
 20 wherever possible.

21 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.

22 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Mr. Kousser, I was 23 interested in particularly the statistics of how often 24 there is a settlement. And it seems to me there's got 25 to be a settlement because the defendants saw that

1 County Board of Supervisors would appoint a commission,
 2 and it would be ethically representative, and it was a
 3 total blind because the commissioners just told their 4 representatives -- sometimes the representatives didn't
 5 even see the plans before they, quote, voted on them.

6 So as you were emphasizing before, the way
 7 that the law is carried out is more important than law
 8 states on its face. And to look at the -- the 9 redistricting commission that did the state, in 2011,
 10 the first draft that they put out of the legislative 11 districts was quite deficient. And it was pressure
 12 after the first draft, I think, that that caused them
 13 to draw districts.

14 There were -- the Latino districts,
 15 proportionate Latino districts was woefully inadequate
 16 in the first draft. I looked at it very closely in LA
 17 County. And those were just awful districts. So 18 commissions are perhaps helpful, but what goes on 19 underneath the tent may not be what you think. It's 20 not -- it's not a be all and end all.

21 If I may say something about the redistricting
 22 question, that was asked earlier. We need more 23 studies -- we put into effect the top two system and 24 the top two system is going to change the proportions
 25 that are needed of any particular minority group and

1 the degree to which minority groups cooperate. And 2 studies or biases that we have based upon pre-top two
 3 experiences are not necessarily going to be applicable
 4 in the -- the next redistricting, the 2021
 5 redistricting. We need more studies of the post-top 6 two district competition before we can really get an 7 idea of the proportions of each minority group and the 8 likelihood of minor groups to work together under that 9 system. This is a call for political science studies.

10 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I would like to make 11 a comment on the commission because I did follow that 12 commission very closely. And Thomas, unlike what you 13 think, I wanted to sue ourselves for making sure that 14 they were ignorant. They were not expert
 15 commissioners. They were absolutely grass -- I won't 16 say grass roots people. They went so far as to the 17 language that which I didn't have draft and some people
 18 at the table did. They were actually having trying 19 people had no political acumen which I thought was a 20 danger but on the other hand, they had to learn, I 21 think that 's why the first maps were dismal. They 22 were not manipulated by the politicians. It was groups
 23 like us going in after -- over and over, testifying.
 24 And even in their hearings they worked very hard to not 25 show any bias even toward our various groups. But I

1 think a commission at a local level, with the right
 2 guidelines, would be a lot better than what they're 3 doing now locally, because they're just protecting
 4 incumbents. And that's what went on in the state level
 5 for so long.

6 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Excuse me. Those 7 commissions need a lot of help. I know leadership of 8 California forward and we actually set aside several 9 staff people a lot of money to help them and I think
 10 that -- that helped a lot with the improvements.

11 I'm sorry. Go on.

12 MR. SAENZ: I think commissions can be 13 helpful, particularly, again, where you have 14 decision-makers who are focused on their -- protecting 15 their own incumbency. But I do think, as has been 16 suggested and explicitly stated, it depends on who the 17 commissioners are. And it's not clear you can come up 18 with a selection process that will ensure you get the 19 right commissions.

20 I think in this case, by and large,
 21 Commissioner Huffman, you are right. There were two or 22 three had enough knowledge they brought expertise to 23 the table, but happenstance we ended up with those two 24 or three people sitting on the commission and certainly 25 there is no guaranty that will happen in ten years or

1 that will happen with local commissions where they're 2 credited. I also think it's important to note the 3 critical importance of the advisors, paid and unpaid of 4 any commission. Certainly, our experience, even on the 5 state legislature in 2001, the influence of the 6 consultant who was hired --

7 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Oh, yes.

8 MR. SAENZ: -- to draw the line was 9 substantially more than any individual legislator and 10 perhaps of entire caucuses of legislators. And there's 11 not, in my view, enough protection against the 12 possibility of bias consultants with the statewide
 13 commission.

14 And, finally, I will say while we have I agree 15 a good experience with this first use of the 16 commission, there is no guaranty that it will work the 17 same the next time and we have to constantly individual
 18 lent. Exhibitions cannot be a substitute for a 19 vigorous law protecting votes rights, vigorous laws
 20 both at state and federal level because of deterrent 21 effect that they have. And also how important it is to 22 continue to have court intervention as a realistic
 23 possibility even where commissions are drawing the 24 line. And that too is really in having vigorous 25 protection violates in law and both in federal statute

1 and state statutes.

2 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: On that note. I
 3 would like to ask the panel list what has been done in 4 those areas where we know that the districts were not 5 Drawn the way they were supposed to be drawn, but they 6 were, as Professor Rubin said, the politicians were 7 keeping the vote.

8 So can you give us some examples of -- of a 9 cases that you're working on or what is being done, I'm 10 just thinking in my own county, in Kern County, we were 11 totally robbed of a second supervisorial district of 12 Latinos. Now that county is more than half of Latinos.
 13 And combined with the African-American and the Asian 14 population, it's much more than the majority. So, you 15 know, what can communities do to defend themselves or 16 what actions can they take it's either board, school
 17 districts, water boards, et cetera.

18 J. KOUSSER: Well, the problem right now is 19 that the only remedy is under federal law, Section 2, 20 and it's very expensive and it's very burdensome in an 21 evidence standpoint. You have to prove histories of 22 discrimination and -- and hire -- justifiable apply
 23 well-paid experts. But they're expensive. And that's 24 why we would like to make some changes under our state
 25 law to allow us to challenge those gerrymandered

1 districts. We know it's that Kern County is a problem.
2 We know there's a number of other counties that are a
3 problem. We have them all converted 58 counties to 4 districts but many of them are malapportioned. And 5 gerrymandered and dilutive of the protective groups
6 voting power. And so, it is a call for professor
7 courthouse for political science, I call for more
8 lawyers and litigators to challenging these districts.
9 Maybe we will have everybody employed by the end of the 10 day.

11 MR. SAENZ: STWOEKTS expensive times and the 12 others that are required. Any tests that the court is 13 applying, totality of the circumstances test, you can 14 imagine how much has to be presented.

15 The other difficulty is there are just a
16 handful of lawyers with experience doing Section 2
17 work, and that means it's a limited bar available. But 18 currently, that's the remedy that exists to challenge
19 in court the board of supervisors redistricting that 20 they did not create districts that they should have.
21 MALDEF certainly is committed to pursuing as many of 22 those cases as possible, given those resource 23 constraints. There is no way -- there is no way that 24 MALDEF can do ten cases in the course of a decade under 25 Section 2 against the ten counties that fail to draw a

1 cases are elected by the same electorate, same county,
2 that elects those supervisors. In any county around 3 the state, among the most powerful political figures in 4 countywide voting and elections are supervisors.

5 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yeah.

6 MR. SAENZ: So I'm going to work as anyone,
7 and Hal is going to work as hard as anyone to get in 8 amendment to CVRA. We still need to have a strong
9 federal Voting Rights Act and mechanism for challenging 10 voting violations that include preclearance as well as 11 the ability to resort to Section 2.

12 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Could I ask Mr.
13 Saenz, the panelist, when you give us your written 14 testimony, did you include the ten counties that you're 15 talking about?

16 MR. SAENZ: Yes.

17 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: If you can three in 18 some school districts that would be cool also.
19 Whatever evidence I think that would help us in terms
20 of advocating again for the return of Section 5 and for 21 those clearance provisions MR. SAENZ absolutely.

22 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: So I want to thank you
23 commissioner H for takes us out of the battleground and 24 referendum of the commission.

25 Much as I love that issue, I actually did want

1 district.

2 That's why Section 5, which the Supreme Court
3 disabled under Shelby County, is so critically
4 important. It's an effective mechanism to ensure that 5 situations where there is vote dilution and district
6 drawing can be prevented without resort to Section 2
7 litigation. That's why it's so critically important to 8 ensure that the congress re-I that is corrects a 9 coverage formula under Section 5. I hope that the 10 commission will conclude that that preclearance
11 mechanism, that coverage formula, needs to reach into 12 this progressive island of California because of what 13 we continue to see of patterns of voting rights
14 violations.

15 The other alternative and one that Robert
16 alluded and we're working with Robert with a coalition 17 and one to my right in the state is a possibility of 18 having the CVRA apply to already districted systems. I 19 think that's an important step. But as strong as the 20 CVRA is, it has one indelible, inherent flaw, and that 21 is any CVRA case comes before an elected state judge.
22 And that raises concerns, particularly when you talk
23 about county board of supervisors.

24 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yeah.

25 MR. SAENZ: These judges who are hearing these

1 to dig a little bit more into the ten counties that you
2 talked about. And if you could give us more details
3 or -- or even focus on the particular county for the 4 record to talk about what the Latino population is like
5 and -- and what happened in the redistricting
6 circumstances where the Latino community ended up not 7 being represented or have (inaudible) in the 8 redistricting process.

9 MR. SAENZ: Sure. Let me identify the ten
10 counties. The two that should have drawn their first 11 Latino majority district ever are Orange County and 12 Santa Barbara County.

13 The seven that should have drawn a second
14 Latino majority supervisorial district, they already 15 have one, are Los Angeles, Ventura, San Bernardino, 16 Riverside, Kern, Fresno, and Tulare.

17 The county that shouldn't drawn a third Latino
18 majority supervisorial district is Monterey.

19 Now, MALDEF weighed in a handful of these 20 presenting maps, and we provided technical assistance
21 to a handful of others to local community groups that 22 were presenting maps with the Latino majority districts
23 that we believed should have been drawn. Also 24 presented was evidence of racially polarized voting
25 much of that courtesy of the statewide commissions

1 having collected that data about various areas of the 2 state. So supervisors had before them enough to get 3 legal advice telling them you need to draw these 4 districts, but they didn't. You asked me to focus. I
 5 will focus on Los Angeles County, where they were 6 basically the board ended up split, 3 to 2. The three 7 White incumbents did not want to create a second Latino
 8 supervisorial. The African were strongly in support of 9 a map that would have created both two Latino majority 10 and supervisorial retained the district in which the 11 African-American incumbent selected. In other words
 12 this change in Los Angeles County, an overwhelming
 13 minority population, for the first time, a board of 14 supervisors that would be majority minority 3 of the 5
 15 would have likely been candidates selected by minority
 16 communities.

17 Now, what's interesting about Los Angeles
 18 County is they have term limits, so it was not 19 necessarily individually incumbency protection that 20 motivated all the supervisors, because they were all 21 term limited, very shortly. But it may have been an 22 interest in seeing their successors, someone they 23 wanted to succeed them, have a district in which he or 24 she could be elected. But what we saw was the 25 emergence of the, I think, facially superficially

1 polarization not decrease it, but with no other
 2 evidence whatsoever there were assertions that no race
 3 (inaudible) simply do minimal changes to maps.

4 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I will have a
 5 follow-up question.

6 Is it -- does the law prevent or allow a local 7 supervisorial district from running its own, I don't 8 know you call it, ordinance or initiative to insist on 9 a citizen's committee selected not by nonpoliticians to 10 do the redistricting?

11 MR. SAENZ: Sure. Locally, Los Angeles County
 12 could adopt an independent commission. Los Angeles
 13 county does have a commission, but it's an advisory 14 commission.

15 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I mean an 16 independent -- like state the voters vote --

17 MR. SAENZ: Yes. They could do it locally, or 18 it could be imposed by the state. But it has not, and 19 so what LA County has is an advisory commission
 20 appointed by the supervisors themselves, and it comes 21 through the supervisors and they make decisions.

22
 23 R. RUBIN: That might not be so easy.
 24 Because it's part of the charter so it will require a 25 vote by the people before it can be changed it can't be

1 appealing to some argument that somehow a policy
 2 consideration ought to involve preserving districts as 3 they have existed for the last ten years and longer,
 4 that somehow continuity for as many voters as possible
 5 of being in same district for more than a decade indicate
 6 a, three decades was somehow an important policy
 7 consideration. This became an argument for making 8 minimal changes to previously existing map, only to 9 reconfigure population so they were close to equal
 10 after the 2010 census. But that argument, which I'm 11 not sure beyond its soup I believe appeal what it said
 12 frankly had to give way to voting rights
 13 considerations, and it did not in the course of policy
 14 making in the Los Angeles County.

15 At the same time, there were assertions of 16 racially polarized voting doesn't exist in Los Angeles
 17 County; not based on evidence, but based on anecdotal
 18 experience and, I think, based on wishful thinking.
 19 They all wanted to believe that we changed and Los 20 Angeles County could be a place where voters all races
 21 will vote for candidates of any race despite the fact 22 there is evidence from social scientists to count that 23 is not the case and the time they were going through 24 the redrawing exercise things were going on nationwide
 25 demonization of Latino that was highly likely increase

1 changed by a stroke of the pen. And that's actually an 2 issue that's being litigated right now, and that is the 3 power or state versus the power of charter cities and 4 charter counties to control the method of election. So
 5 that will probably be decided by the courts in the next
 6 four to six months. So it might be a little bit more
 7 difficult.

8 (Inaudible)

9 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: And could I ask a
 10 question of Mr. Lee?

11 Because the concentrations of Asian-Americans
 12 is not quite as great as Latinos and African-Americans, 13 how do you look at it in terms of still protecting the 14 political influence, if you will, of Asian Americans?
 15 Do you look at a certain percent, ten percent or 16 something of that sort? I wondered how you looked at 17 it.

18 Liaison: We look at it from both what would 19 be required to state claim under Section 2 and where 20 that ability to do that is not possible to look at from 21 strategies that would comport with state criteria, such 22 as communities of interest. And that is largely the 23 strategy that we use in coalition with AP organizations
 24 across the state in 2011 to amplify the voice of Asian 25 Americans in redistricting talking about Asian

1 Americans of interest. That were tied together by 2 race, by ethnicity but also by other considerations
 3 such as in some instances common concern education.
 4 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Coalitions liaison
 5 jobs concerns pertaining to immigrant communities.
 6 I -- I wanted to go back to the commission
 7 that -- the question that Commissioner Huffman raised
 8 earlier, which I think is really about this question of 9 what percentage of the district are we really looking 10 at for various communities of color when talking about 11 what is going to be enough for the opportunity to elect
 12 for a given compute of color. And I fully echo 13 Mr. Science comments that the circumstances and the 14 experiences of various communities of color can differ
 15 in terms of both as Mr. Science said turn out patterns
 16 and registration pattern. I would also add the degree
 17 of communities of color may voice polarized voting in a 18 given area. And I wanted to take the opportunity to 19 repeat the point of Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act
 20 and how, because of the Bartlett v. Strickland case, in 21 2009 Section 2, has been made inflexible as a remedy
 22 for vote dilution where -- where that Bart let 23 case -- as -- as you know, now requires that in order
 24 for a plaintiff to be able to say claim under vote of 25 Section 2 it Mr. Chairman hypothetical district in

1 which the protected class mains up at least the 2 majority of that district and it's a bright line rule
 3 ignoring the reality of that, the protected class may 4 be just under 50 percent, at 45, 48 percent, and still 5 be -- if a district were drawn at that percentage, that 6 community would have the opportunity to elect, even 7 though it doesn't need that red line test.
 8 The Bartlett ignores that in some 9 jurisdictions and some election systems. Majority is 10 not required. Peculiarity is allowed to win that 11 election. So I repeat that point because it under 12 scores the -- the -- the -- one of the reasons we're 13 having this hearing today, which is something needs to 14 be done to restore the vitality of our federal 15 antidiscrimination system. And, again, it's because 16 Section 2 for various reasons that we stated today is 17 not a sufficient safeguard against vote dilution
 18 against voting discrimination.
 19 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: So thank you very 20 much.
 21 Are there any questions from the
 22 commissioners?
 23 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I have one. I have 24 one little teaser here. You know, I thought about this 25 a long time. And we all -- as minority people, we talk

1 about protected classes. And I found during the 2 redistricting, arguing against some of you,
 3 that -- arguing for a protected class that polarization
 4 was going on between protected classes. And my 5 question is how can that be if you have two protected
 6 classes let the best person win. But I think I was on 7 the minority on that because someone I heard in 8 testimony that, you know, a Black and brown, blacks are 9 never voting with the Latino or never vote with Asians
 10 therefore we became the enemy of the other group as 11 opposed to two protected classes going at it and 12 letting the best one win, which is what I thought we 13 were all fighting for, just a little teaser, I'm sure 14 you don't agree with me I thought levity into the 15 conversation.
 16 MR. SAENZ: And I would go back by saying, I 17 think that there is no such thing as enemies when 18 you're talking about voting rights that we all share a 19 concern that making sure all communities have the 20 opportunity to compete fairly and I think last the 21 matter. That the matter figuring out what that means.
 22 And that is tied into history. It's tied into 23 historical local and nation in lots of cases. It's 24 tied into structure. And I think that's what we're 25 talking about today. It's tied into structure of 1 decision-making. It's tied into structure of voting

 2 and the mechanics of voting. It's tied into a lot of 3 things, and we have to be sophisticated about it and 4 recognize that this is not one group versus another.
 5 It never is. It's really about ensuring that taking 6 into account all context, we are protecting voting
 7 rights of everyone and being fair in the political 8 arena.
 9 R. RUBIN: There are winners and losers in 10 this process. I can't say there aren't enemies, but I
 11 think we know --
 12 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: We're just frenemies.
 13 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: I want to challenge
 14 that a little bit, because I can say that with my 15 experience I can think of many examples that -- in our 16 community of Kern, California, where we have an 17 African-American major, with a population of about 18 90 percent Latino, okay. And I can give other
 19 examples. And Los Angles, where Latino to support 20 African-American candidates. They just did happen to 21 be the best candidate because, as you said, the 22 mechanics of voting, people doing the work on the 23 ground to try the get the person best elected. And 24 sometimes you have to have an organization to work to 25 get that person elected, where she come a long way and

1 where he come forward, correct these flaws that you
 2 have all testified to today.
 3 I want to thank the panel. Thank you all.
 4 You're such high level, excellent people. You've done
 5 such good work in the whole area. I want to thank you
 6 for doing the work here. Public testimony. Thank you.
 7 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: The time is 12:35,
 8 probably 6, and we'll have second section of public
 9 testimony. I have some cards left over from this 10 morning, from the first one. I don't know if we have 11 additional cards, but you have three minutes. You're 12 asked to please give your name and organization for 13 recording purposes. And we'll start with Christine
 14 (inaudible)
 15 Can you hear me now?
 16 My name is Christine Chune. I'm the senior 17 staff attorney at Disability and Rights Advocates. I 18 want to touch on a couple issues that were raised by 19 the first panel today, the first failure of the state 20 to implement voting laws that exist that protect the 21 right to vote. The second is the inaccessibility of 22 poll sites.
 23 I'm currently litigating two voting rights
 24 cases on behalf of people with disabilities. We 25 brought a lawsuit against Alameda County after the 2012

1 elections continues to tell voters with disabilities
 2 that they need to locate an alternate accessible poll
 3 site to control and as a result many voters have been 4 deterred.
 5 Thank you.
 6 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 7 I want to say it's almost disheartening when 8 you want the vote and you realize that elections are 9 rigged. So I voted for the first time when I was 18.
 10 It was an exciting experience but once I realized like
 11 I said, elections are rigged, so and I just hear you
 12 guys talking about how your going to get people to vote
 13 you're talking about people that the government doesn't 14 care about and they don't give them anything so I why 15 would I vote for anybody or try to vote for somebody 16 who probably doesn't have even my interest or best 17 interest at all.
 18 You know, and I haven't really heard about 19 getting the youth to vote. We're the next to run this 20 country. You know, so I think that's where you should 21 really start, is, you know, trying to getting kids to 22 vote and teaching them, you know, just what really 23 voting is about. I don't have nothing to write. I 24 just come here spin this top of my head. I think it's 25 really important to look at the kids and they're the

1 general election, after the widespread malfunctioning
 2 of accessible voting machines at poll sites. As Fred
 3 of the DRC mentioned, the California secretary of state
 4 is required to place one accessible voting machine at 5 each poll site for voters with disabilities. We had 6 clients who were ushered from poll sites having cast a 7 ballot but using because the machines were broken or 8 not properly set up therefore they were denied the 9 right to a private and independent vote. We brought 10 the action and one of our state law claims was under 11 the California election placement of the machine.
 12 However the second tear of state has failed to issue
 13 regulations to implement the law, our state law claim 14 was dismissed with prejudice, and we were not able to 15 proceed with that claim. So this is concerning because 16 the law exists, but you're unable to enforce it.
 17 The second involves the widespread
 18 inaccessibility of poll sites for physical poll sites.
 19 This case was actually in New York City, but one
 20 concerning argument that the board of elections raised 21 in our case in New York was that it was the burden of 22 the voter with a disability to locate an amount ive
 23 accessible pole site and not the board of elections.
 24 And the district court rejected this argument, but the 25 court appealed. And in the meantime, the board of

1 future. If you don't get them now, you know, before
 2 they get older they're going to lose faith like I did,
 3 because I lost faith in the system, and I still don't 4 have faith in the system. You know, when you learn
 5 that this president, his brother owns Debolt, and they 6 own the machines that were breaking down when we were 7 voting, you know, back in the day, that's just 8 disheartening to learn.
 9 So I think teaching kids what they're doing,
 10 how to do it, you know, and just doing the right thing
 11 because at the end of the day, you're voting -- you're 12 voting for people that are all going to go to the same.
 13 They might be two different people, but it's going in 14 the same direction. So I think teaching kids about who 15 they are voting for and what they'll really voting for 16 is just really the most important thing that you can 17 do.
 18 Thank you.
 19 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you very much.
 20 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I want to thank you
 21 for coming, and I have a comment or two.
 22 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Me too.
 23 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: It's not 24 appropriate, but I'm going to make it anyway because 25 I'm supposed be taking testimony.

1 I think your comments are very poignant. But
 2 I will probably suggest that if you didn't vote, you
 3 might get something worse than what you might have the 4 voted for the country and democracy won't work unless 5 you vote. I think your points are well taken that you
 6 should focus on youth and we do in some organizations
 7 you just can't feel I but many of do but you can't give 8 up on us, if you give up on us where is our future. So
 9 ma will be my comment that's my $0.02 lecture that you
 10 didn't ask for I see somebody else that would like to 11 address you as well.

12 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: First of all thank 13 you for being here thank you for comments. I think the 14 youth is very important it's not about voting. It's 15 about advocacy, whomever assembly, your congressman, 16 they need to hear from you. They have offices in your 17 area. You go over there and you talk to, them. And 18 you take some people with you. You be in their face
 19 and you tell them what you need. It's not about people 20 in office. It's about educating them about what your 21 community needs. You never have to step back.
 22 Remember, every politician works for you, because you
 23 pay for their salary with your taxes. And that's what 24 our community needs to hear. Just don't give up. Keep 25 on working.

1 here to speak to you about the importance placed or 2 lack of importance placed studies disabling voter
 3 participation and effected on variety of different
 4 issues. According to the last census, 57 million
 5 Americans have disabilities. It's certainly a sizable
 6 community whose voter participation should be cataloged
 7 and referenced equally with other populations.

8 As you know, Rutgers University and the 9 National Council on Disability do substantial studies.
 10 Quite frankly, this community is under studied and 11 cataloged in that participation compared to other 12 communities. My background is actually in LGBT field 13 politics. I was the senior staff member of the "No On 14 Prop 8" campaign, so I've worked with populations all 15 over the country. And similar to the LGBT community, 16 people with disabilities are Black and White, they're 17 older, younger; they're male, female. They cross all
 18 sorts of different boundaries. And I would challenge
 19 you to find a voter block that doesn't touch
 20 accessibility. You can't. We are in every single 21 voter block. So for the example I'm going to leave are 22 you today, we've been advocating with covered 23 California for accessible. For the past year. Their 24 website is not access toll people with disability,
 25 their town haul forms are not quite and push back

1 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you for being
 2 here.

3 Ted Jackson.

4 Hi. My name is Ted Jackson I'm the community
 5 organizing director at California foundation for 6 independent living centers and we're a statewide
 7 disability rights organization. We -- our membership
 8 organization of 21 of the 28 independent living
 9 centers, and we support approximately 350,000 people
 10 with disabilities who seek assistance. But also 11 through our programs, one of which I run, the 12 Disability Organizing Network, or the DO Network, we 13 support the disability community statewide, people with 14 disabilities, whether they need services or anything
 15 like that. And voting is a primary issue for us. It's 16 something that we worked on a lot and even last year we 17 were recommended with the California secretary of state
 18 with a medallion award for outstanding advocacy on 19 behalf of voters with disabilities.

20 There are other groups here that are talking 21 about more specifics regarding voters with disabilities
 22 today, and our community partners and I greatly
 23 appreciate their information. Mine is going to be more 24 anecdotal and, really, to speak to your sense of 25 leadership in a spiritual and temporal way, and I'm

1 response. Eventually went to a senate hearing which
 2 was very educational and informational and found out
 3 they were using voter data to chart their marketing for 4 the health benefits exchange. Which the disability can 5 community fought for very vehemently. So right now,
 6 there is a whole sector of the population who are 7 disabled, who are not on Medi-Cal or Medi-Cal expansion
 8 who are not being served by the health benefits
 9 exchange because their voter participation was not 10 cataloged.

11 And so I really encourage you, even if our own 12 coalition partners we find they use terminology and 13 words in presentations to the community that would 14 deter the community from taking part, like the words
 15 handicapped instead of accessible disability. Hand
 16 anecdotes for you I strongly encourage you use your 17 leadership role to get secretaries of states and county
 18 government add well as federal government in other 19 academic institutions to really take a good strong look 20 at voters with disabilities and cataloging their 21 participation, their barriers, and access to successes.

22 Thank you.

23 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you. The last 24 card I have looks like L-E-N-C-O-M-O-M.

25 B. TURNER: No longer here.

1 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: No longer here.
 2 That's the last card I have for public testimony. You
 3 have one?
 4 You have a card up here?
 5 B. TURNER: Yes, I do. Thank you.
 6 My name is Brent Turner. And I'm here on 7 behalf of California Association of Voting Officials.
 8 We have been doing election systems security work
 9 in -- for over a decade and have demonstrated open 10 source election systems. The reason why I wanted to 11 bring this to your attention there is a security at 12 issue inherent with the secret software,
 13 corporate-owned software systems that are used for 14 elections and this of course have been all 15 well-documented in the California secretary of state's 16 top to bottom review. But I want you to do know we are 17 working on federal and state levels to get an 18 open-source system certified in the State of California
 19 that can be utilized nationwide in creating a better
 20 environment for election administrators to have the 21 option of a more secure system at a -- with taxpayer
 22 savings.
 23 So I just wanted to bring that to your 24 attention because I didn't see the morning session and 25 I don't know what's going on next, but -- and I

1 choices and a perfectly printed ballot comes out. I
 2 think this the direction LA is going but the difference
 3 is we want to make sure that the software code that 4 they utilize this their systems is -- is general public
 5 license open source software because that is the way to 6 maximize the security and to make sure that other
 7 counties and states can bet fit from the work done
 8 there. But whether they go the proper direction or 9 not, I think these subpoenas will get certified in 10 California and the state can be a model for the rest of 11 the country.
 12 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 13 B. TURNER: Thank you.
 14 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: You kept going along
 15 to get the other cards. Thanks very much.
 16 We have a Perry Grossman and Frank Williams
 17 are the next speakers.
 18 Are you Perry?
 19 P. GROSSMAN: I am. Thank you very much,
 20 Madam and Mr. Commissioners.
 21 I'm Perry Grossman (inaudible) Oakland. I'm a 22 Yolo County resident and voter deficit Section 2 in 23 Mr. Science and Mr. Rubin both alluded to the 24 difficulty of bringing Section 2 cases they're profound 25 expense and the time consuming nature of them and

1 appreciate all the all great work that's gone on 2 regarding lines and so forth because, you know,
 3 that's -- those are crucial elements. But we deal
 4 specifically with the software that runs the systems
 5 from the central tabulator forward, and we just wanted
 6 to be on record with your good commission that there is 7 a solution available and we're trying to gather the 8 political will for implementation.
 9 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: What is an open
 10 source?
 11 B. TURNER: Open-source system is a --
 12 consistent with what the Defendant of Defense and Air
 13 Force uses in critical situations. It's a transparent,
 14 actually publically owned free software that creates a 15 great security -- security environment because if there 16 were any bugs in the system, or miss happens within the 17 system they would be easily spotted and remedied to any 18 election system lock down.
 19 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Does that system
 20 have a receipt or something once you vote, you know, a 21 piece of paper trail or something that goes with it?
 22 B. TURNER: Yes. Actually, Ephraim Esposito
 23 was going to be here this morning. I don't think he 24 made this event. That would be a paper ballot printing 25 system where the voters experience is you press your
 1 difficulty injunctive relief. The most available data
 2 is from this commission's last report in 2005 which is 3 written by Mr. Lee. And Jay Keen, who couldn't be here
 4 today, but is instrumental to the passage of CBRA,
 5 really one of the great champions of voting rights of 6 California.
 7 And as of the last report, there was over
 8 4,000 city council seats -- other 4,000 school board
 9 seats in the state of California, 15 percent were 10 occupied by Latinos and Latinos. And even smaller 11 percentage occupied by Asian-Americans. And given 12 these sheer number --
 13 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Say the numbers -- slow
 14 down and say the numbers again.
 15 THE WITNESS: I wrote them down just in case.
 16 This is Footnote 8 from the 2005 report that was 17 authored by the Commission of California Hearing. 535
 18 out of 4,850 school board seats were occupied by 19 Latinos or Latinas, and 14.2 out of -- 14.2 percent out 20 of 2,507 council seats, total of 357, were occupied by 21 Latinos and Latinas. And in 2003, 2004, only 38 Asian 22 Americans Pacific city council seats out of that 2,507.
 23 Out of those it's very difficult to monitor
 24 4800 plus city council seats and very difficult to 25 monitor 2500 plus -- sorry 48 and 25 plus city council

1 seats and those local level districts which have the 2 greatest degree of primary agency of the people. They
 3 affect transportation. They affect school, property
 4 taxation. They don't get media coverage. They don't 5 get coverage from statewide and civil rights
 6 organizations because who has the resources to cover
 7 all that. So there is a really strong need for as many 8 enforcement enforces as many transparency as possible
 9 to make sure that those district and those seats are 10 being voted for by people casting effective ballots.
 11 There needs to be greater data transparency in 12 California so we can monitor those districts.

13 I recently budgeted possible Section 2
 14 (inaudible)in California city council and school board
 15 that might (inaudible) voter dilution. The expert 16 witness fees alone would have topped $35,000 out of 17 pocket, and that doesn't include the overruns for 18 trial. Making election data, which should be publicly 19 available and easily accessible to any voter in the 20 State of California, would reduce that cost 21 significantly and allow to make one final point and 22 professor is checking my research there has not been a
 23 single vote dilution, a Section 2 vote dilution case
 24 brought against a local jurisdiction in California in 25 the last ten years. There hasn't been a single success

1 we need to take a -- look at what does that mean once
 2 you do your time. You do your time. Once you did your 3 time, it should be over with. You shouldn't -- you
 4 should not have to follow them the Rest of our lives.
 5 We are human beings, and that he has people will.

6 Second of all, I would like to say that it's 7 nice be here, but it would have been better to have 8 this in bay just Hunters Point, like western addition, 9 like in our communities where our -- our -- our 10 communes should be sitting in here hearing from you
 11 guys. This is why, young lady feel this way they not 12 being educated this way. You know, if more of her
 13 appears probably part of this have an impacts on them
 14 we have these meetings just like selective and secluded
 15 because of our organizations don't even get e-mails for 16 this that is going on where we can bus them here.
 17 Bayview, Hunter's Point, mull PI senior, which I'm a 18 part of under executive director Kathy Davis, we help
 19 our seniors to do the vote every -- every four years.
 20 We help them -- prepare them to vote. We have buses
 21 and stuff where we take people to go vote. So we also 22 work with seniors as well and also work with the 23 criminal justice system, so together, we need more help
 24 with this. We need some of these policies change. I
 25 don't understand we're in 2014 and we still got all

1 vote dilution case brought by a plaintiff in the State
 2 of California since 1995. So anything that can be done
 3 to improve the quality and quantity of litigation in 4 local level would be appreciated.

5 Thank you.

6 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 7 Frank Williams.

8 F. WILLIAMS: My name is Frank Williams. I'm 9 the director of the senior expanded program of point in 10 San Francisco. I will say it's a pleasure to be here, 11 but I'm glad to be here with so many professors and 12 students that aspire to become lawyers. However, with 13 the disenfranchisement of any race, Black, White,
 14 green, yellow that has been incarcerated is still 15 prevalent today, as you have heard from testimony from 16 (inaudible). We also help them get employment. We 17 break down barriers. We have housing for them and the 18 whole nine yards, but it's hard for us to get them
 19 actively involved. If I can aspire a senior to regain 20 purpose and life all over again because he felt his 21 whole life has ended, but I can get them at City
 22 College, he can become a community health outreach
 23 worker, become certified treatment counselor, can come
 24 out here in the social model to help people change
 25 their lives, but he can't vote. It's a travesty. So

1 this discrimination and racism going on with all the 2 powerful minds why is this all happening. We really 3 need to make change profiting we are need make that is 4 my comment. Thanks for hearing me.

5 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.

6 If I could tell you why racism is still going 7 on. I would be a zillion year it's deep in fabric and 8 some cultures things are getting better I want to 9 defend the hearing being here. Any time you make a 10 decision to hold the hearing it's never the right
 11 place. But I think your point is well taken it would 12 be nice maybe the NAACP and some of us brought the 13 community so we could hear back from the compute. But 14 the thing about doing a hearing like this is you get 15 more than what you thought your were going to get. And 16 my question all of this testimony that we gotten on 17 disenfranchisement of ex-offenders. It's like a state
 18 issue that we should take up with the state
 19 legislature; not to say that there are not voting
 20 rights implications there. As I think it was Mike 21 Davis who carried a bill that said your vote should be 22 counted if you vote in county polices where you live.
 23 I think these state issues that we should take up at 24 the state level. Shouldn't we go up and talk to 25 Governor Brown that the fact that realignment --

1 F. WILLIAMS: Right.
 2 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: -- has left some
 3 quirks in the system? I would like to engage you all 4 to talk to the NAACP and see if we can take care of 5 some of this at the state level.
 6 F. WILLIAMS: I would love to. Thank you.
 7 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Well -- well, I
 8 don't know. Maybe everybody is hungry. I don't have 9 any more cards. And despite the fact that we are ten
 10 minutes --
 11 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Five minutes.
 12 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: -- only five minutes
 13 early, let's take a lunch break. And we would like to 14 be back at 1:45. Thank you.
 15 (Lunch recess taken.)
 16 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I'd like to call back
 17 our hearing participants and invite our next panel up
 18 to the table. Our next panel is on language access,
 19 and it's an issue that's near and dear to my heart.
 20 Prior to joining California Common Cause -- Common
 21 Cause, I worked for what used to be the Asian Pacific
 22 Legal Center, which is now gone through a couple of 23 transformations and is now the Asian American Advanced 24 Justice. But I did a lot of work on monitoring 25 elections and making sure that elections were

1 accessible for people who have a need for language
 2 assistance. And not so long ago, we regularly
 3 documented examples of voters who were literally told
 4 to go to the back of the line because they didn't speak
 5 English so that regular voters could vote first or be 6 helped. So I'm very excited to welcome up our esteemed
 7 panel. And I think we have everybody now.
 8 Deana Kitamura, senior staff attorney of the 9 Asian American Advanced Justice of Los Angeles.
 10 Dr. Mindy Romero of California Civic 11 Engagement -- sorry. She is the California Civic 12 Engagement project director of UC Davis Center for 13 Regional Change.
 14 Neal Kelley, who is Orange County registrar of 15 voters.
 16 And Michelle Romero, the Claiming Our
 17 Democracy director of Greenlining Institute.
 18 Please join me in welcoming our panel.
 19 So we're going to start out with Deanna
 20 Kitamura of the Asian Americans Advancing Justice.
 21 D. KITAMURA: Thank you, and good afternoon.
 22 Again, my name is Deanna Kitamura. I'm a senior staff
 23 attorney for the Voting Rights Project at Asian 24 Americans Advancing Justice of Los Angeles. Thank you 25 for holding this important hearing. And thank you to

1 the Lawyers' Committee for inviting me to testify.
 2 You've already heard from my colleague -- colleague
 3 Eugene Lee about vote dilution in Asian American 4 communities. I would like to focus my testimony on 5 language assistance for Asian American voters.
 6 Most of my testimony is based on the report
 7 entitled, "Voices of Democracy," which was produced by 8 the four Asian American Advancing Justice affiliates.
 9 For that report we and our local partner organizations
 10 monitored nearly 900 precincts in a total of seven 11 states during the November 2012 elections. And I have 12 given you all a copy of that report as well as my 13 written testimony.
 14 Language is a significant barrier to the -- to 15 ability for many Asian Americans to vote. Three in 16 four Asian Americans speak a language other than 17 English at home. And almost one-third of all Asian 18 Americans have some difficulty communicating in 19 English. Of course rates vary by ethnic community.
 20 Among Asian Americans, Vietnamese Americans have one of 21 the highest rates of limited English proficiency at 22 51 percent. Koreans, Cambodians, Mong, and Bangladesh
 23 communities all have English proficiency rates above
 24 40 percent.
 25 Fortunately, Section 203 of the Voting Rights

1 Act requires translated material -- written materials
 2 and oral assistance at poll sites when certain language
 3 groups -- including Asian language groups -- reach
 4 specific population thresholds.
 5 The map I'm showing you now shows the 6 jurisdictions which must provide language assistance
 7 under Section 203 for Asian languages. The populations
 8 in blue font are those that are currently covered. And 9 those in green font are populations that may be covered
 10 in the near future.
 11 Currently 11 states have at least one Asian 12 language covered under Section 203. In California,
 13 eight counties must provide assistance in at least one 14 Asian language. Los Angeles County has the most number 15 of Section 203 languages. In addition to Spanish, it
 16 must provide assistance in eight Asian languages.
 17 Those languages are Chinese, Hindi, Khmer -- that's the 18 Cambodian language -- Japanese, Korean, Tagalog, Thai, 19 and Vietnamese.
 20 In addition to poll monitoring, my 21 organization has conducted election day exit polling.
 22 From our sampling, we found that Asian American voters
 23 are using the available language assistance to vote.
 24 For example, for Los Angeles for the 2008
 25 election, 30 percent of Chinese American voters

1 informed us they used some type of language assistance.
 2 Use among Filipino American voters was 33 percent. It
 3 was 50 percent among Vietnamese American voters and 4 60 percent among Korean American voters.
 5 In Orange County, we found that 62 percent of 6 Vietnamese American voters used some form of language
 7 assistance in the 2004 election. While a number of
