 8 jurisdictions meet their Section 203 obligations in 9 commendable fashion, common problems emerge among the 10 nearly 900 precincts that we monitored in the 11 November 2012 elections.
 12 The most disconcerting statistic was that 45
 13 percent of the precincts monitored had either missing 14 translated materials or poorly displayed translated 15 materials. Oftentimes, the translated materials were 16 hidden under the English versions.
 17 Twenty-three percent of the precincts
 18 monitored were missing at least one Asian language
 19 speaking bilingual poll worker -- poll monitor -- I'm 20 sorry, yeah, poll worker. In some of those instances, 21 we were able to ask the county to send a replacement
 22 poll worker. But in other instances, there were no 23 replacements to send.
 24 Another trend we saw in the precincts that we 25 monitored was that 35 percent of poll workers waited

1 for voters to request help, instead of actively 2 approaching voters.
 3 Lastly, we saw that many pollers were 4 unfamiliar with voting laws. For example, 14 percent 5 did not provide provisional ballots when a voter's name 6 was not on the roster.
 7 Although many jurisdictions strive to improve 8 their language assistance at the polls, in the past 9 decade the United States Department of Justice brought 10 Section 203 enforcement actions in California in San 11 Diego County, the City of Rosemead, the City of Walnut, 12 and Alameda County were noncompliant with respect to 13 Asian language requirements.
 14 Once comprehensive language assistance is 15 provided by a county under Section 203, we find that 16 voter registration and turnout increases. In San Diego 17 County, once the County adopted a comprehensive 18 program, voter registration increased by 20 percent in 19 the Filipino American community and increased by 20 40 percent in the Vietnamese American community. We 21 also found out, voter turnout doubled once Harris
 22 County in Texas provided comprehensive language
 23 assistance.
 24 In my written testimony, I have provided 25 information regarding language assistance under

1 California law, and I would be happy to answer
 2 questions you have about the State's requirements
 3 during the question-and-answer session.
 4 But in closing I would like to add that,
 5 should this commission wish to review suggested 6 practices to ensure that elections are accessible to 7 voters who are not fully proficient in English, I would 8 like to refer you to pages 25 through 27 of our report
 9 which I have given you.
 10 Thank you for allowing me to testify today.
 11 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Next, we have Dr. Mindy 12 Romero of UC Davis, Center for Regional Change.
 13 M. ROMERO: Thank you. Good afternoon,
 14 Commissioners. It's a pleasure and a privilege to be 15 here today.
 16 Jumping in: Language access. So my goal 17 today, by the way, I should say at the outset, is to 18 speak more broadly in regard of the trends and to 19 emphasize some future potential direction, as well.
 20 So language access, simply put, matters. So 21 there's been lots of research that has demonstrated a 22 clear association between language access and voter 23 participation rates. Both nationally and in 24 California, we know that language assistance remain as 25 factor in low voter participation rates in English

1 proficiency.
 2 Let me back up for a moment though and talk 3 about the disparities in California with regard to 4 turnout rates and registration by race and ethnicity.
 5 So we know that over the last decade, largely due to 6 dramatic increases in eligible voter population of 7 Latinos and Asian Americans, there has been dramatic 8 increases in their share of the vote. For many folks 9 that's quite encouraging.
 10 But at the same time, by 2012, there are 11 still -- both groups are underrepresented in terms of 12 their proportion of actual voters and the proportion 13 that are actually eligible. Currently Latinos and 14 Asians make up about a third of the State's vote, and 15 along with African Americans, about 40 percent.
 16 The reason why they're underrepresented is 17 because they both register and turn out to vote at 18 rates much lower than non-Latino and non-Latino White 19 electorates, and of course, there are dramatic 20 disparities. And these disparities as I have mentioned 21 have remained consistent through 2012. And just really 22 briefly -- in all of these slides, I should say, in my 23 expanded testimony, I have laid out all the details.
 24 So if we look over the decade 2000, 2012, we 25 see a lot of fluctuation. But what really matters here

1 in this slide and what I want to emphasize now is, we 2 see the continuing story of disparity, right, And also 3 a gap. A gap between the Latino and Asian vote, the 4 voter -- eligible voter turnout rates, and White 5 non-White Latino rates as well. And that gap has 6 decreased slightly from 2012 on average a few 7 percentage points. But for Latinos, actually, the gap 8 actually increased from 2008.

9 Okay. And, briefly, of course, as we talk 10 about state levels, we have to recognize that there are 11 dramatic disparities throughout the state, community 12 and county levels. There are many communities for 13 Latinos and Asians, where their registration rates and 14 their turnout rates are much lower than their state 15 averages and much lower than the general electorate 16 rates, for the nonLatino, nonLatino Whites. And 17 briefly, as you can see from left to right, running 18 from the north of the state to San Diego, showing 19 really quickly, some of those differences by region in 20 the state in terms of rates and gaps.

21 Language access. So 10 percent of all
 22 households, according to the U.S. census, American 23 community survey, are linguistically isolated. They 24 defined it in 2012. Of course, for Spanish-speaking 25 it's higher. It's about 22 percent. Households

1 speaking Asian and Pacific Islander languages are about 2 28 percent. That totals about to 1.2 million
 3 Californian households. And at the individual level, 4 that's 33 and 36 percent of Latinos and Asians, 5 respectively, that speak less than very well as the 6 measure.

7 Language access and voter participation. So
 8 I'm going to breeze through this because my wonderful 9 colleague has talked on some of this already. We know 10 that Hispanics who are naturalized citizens generally 11 now -- recent research has shown us, vote at higher 12 rates than Hispanics who are U.S. born citizens -- but 13 the rates, I want to emphasize, are still low and lower 14 than non-Latino Whites. Generally, nationalization 15 votes at the same or lower registration than 16 native-born voters. And a key barrier to these rates 17 are their lower registration rates.

18 In 2012, registered Asian voter turnout was 9 19 percentage points lower, and this is the national Asian 20 American political survey. A percentage of those 21 folks, Asian respondents, indicated that those that had 22 difficulty speaking English cited language barriers for 23 not voting. And of that study identified 55 percent of 24 respondent living in 203 jurisdictions indicated, like 25 Deanna mentioned as well, that translated election

1 documents or bilingual poll workers were actually not 2 available.

3 For Latino citizens that speak little English, 4 lots of research now, in recent years have shown us 5 that there's a difference in terms of, it affects 6 turnout rates, so access to Spanish ballots, for 7 instance, and language assistance increases and 8 influences election turnout. Additional research 9 supports conclusions that structural barriers also 10 influence. And studies examining the impact of Section 11 203 tell us that when implemented properly, it can play 12 a significant role in increasing turnout rates for 13 Latinos.

14 So, in closing, I just want to emphasize that 15 as we talk about the topics that we're talking about 16 today, we really need to look towards the future. The 17 State of California is going to be experiencing 18 demographic dramatic changes over the next 30 years, 19 and these changes will not be even across the State.

20 So if projections hold, we're going to gain 21 8.3 million new eligible voters, 8 million will be 22 people of color, non-White. We're going to shift our 23 electorate from one that's dominated by non-Latino 24 Whites.

25 Oops.

1 By 2040, assuming parity -- and there's lots
 2 of different ways that we measure this -- but 3 potentially Latinos are projected to be just over -- 4 and Asians together -- over 50 percent of California
 5 actual California voters and in some areas much higher.
 6 But here is the kicker and here is the challenge. So 7 population change, eligible voter change, mean lots of 8 opportunity for increased voice. But if these new 9 voters entering into the electorate are not 10 transitioned into actual -- from eligible to actual 11 then we can have a decrease in representation.

12 And that's it. Thank you.

13 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Our next speaker -- our 14 next speaker is Neal Kelley, Orange County Registrar of 15 Voters.

16 N. KELLEY: Good afternoon.

17 I don't have a presentation although I
 18 presented some materials to -- prior to the meeting. I 19 would like to express my gratitude to the commission 20 for giving me the opportunity to share from my 21 experience and lessons learned as an elections official 22 in Orange County. It's both an honor and a challenge 23 to be responsible for providing high-quality election 24 services, now supported in nine languages which include 25 Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Japanese, Khmer, Korean,

1 Vietnamese, and Hindi, which includes the State's 2 Voting Act requirements. This is to Orange County's 3 3 million residence and 1.6 million registered voters.
 4 In the materials I provided to you, I've 5 included demographic and minority language information 6 for you. In light of these challenges, I'm proud of 7 the accomplishments that we have made in the area of 8 language compliance and support and being a partner in 9 the nation's proud tradition of expanding the 10 franchise. I want to start first and tell you about 11 what we did in 2006. And that was during that year, to 12 increase by 20 percent what was required by the 13 Department of Justice for bilingual poll worker 14 recruitment. That's allowed us to be over-staffed in 15 many areas, but also allowed for cancellation and 16 no-shows when we have them. Since that time we've 17 expanded our outreach operations to include not -- not 18 only oral and written support, but a comprehensive 19 language and support program that grows with each
 20 election.
 21 We conduct all elections that occur in Orange
 22 County. This includes 34 cities, 26 special districts 23 and 32 school districts as well as unincorporated 24 areas. We have established a unique program within 25 Orange County that the City Clerks now can access their

1 language requirements by city on a specialized website
 2 that is only accessible to those City Clerks. Using 3 standards for measuring compliance that mirrors both 4 the federal and state Voting Rights Act that allows to 5 produce voting materials that are translated and 6 proofread by our outreach team. This is a duty shared 7 by court-certified translators and our community 8 specialists.
 9 In order to track each word and document
 10 through the process we have developed applications 11 in-house that track the workflow and location of every 12 translated item whether it's web pages, ballots, or 13 other voter materials. This allows us to track 14 corrections very accurately, court-ordered changes and 15 translate web pages in less than 24 hours. This also 16 provides a level of quality control to ensure the 17 accuracy, completeness, and cultural sensitivity of 18 translated materials. A minimum of six people review 19 each document prior to its dissemination.
 20 The reduction of risk was a major factor in 21 developing a system that could be described by my staff 22 as excessive but absolutely necessary in my opinion.
 23 We have designed two-tier system in providing language
 24 material or assistance required by the Voting Rights
 25 Act.

1 Specifically in recruiting election officers
 2 to provide language assistance at the polling place, we 3 use language request criteria for Spanish and 4 Vietnamese while place of birth criteria for Korean and 5 for Chinese. Voter instructions are translated into 6 the eight languages that we now support covered in 7 Orange County and can be found in the sample ballot
 8 our website posted in the polling places and the voting 9 booths, this taking exception with the state voting 10 rights requirement where it would be precinct-specific 11 so that would not be county wide for those four 12 languages. All notices, instructions, ballots and 13 other pertinent materials are provided in those eight 14 languages at every polling place. Affidavits of 15 registration, request for permanent vote by mail
 16 status, and applications for one-time-vote-by-mail 17 ballots are all translated into our minority language, 18 and these forms are placed in public places, including 19 our website where voters can have easy access to them.
 20 Our efforts for publicizing the availability of 21 materials and assistance in the minority language is 22 specific to each language community. Spanish speaking 23 television stations are most effective for us in Orange 24 County to reach the Latino community. And in the 25 Vietnamese community, both radio stations and

1 Vietnamese newspapers are effective for communicating
 2 to the voters. In the Chinese and Korean communities, 3 Orange County sections of major ethnic newspapers are 4 the most effective means for reaching voters 5 themselves.
 6 Our polling places are supplied with sample
 7 ballots in all the languages and are placed on a table
 8 for voters' reference. All voters including minority 9 voters are allowed and encouraged to take their sample 10 ballots into the voting booths which also have an 11 electronic translated in all four federally required 12 languages. And I believe, with the exception of San 13 Mateo County, we're the only county in California that 14 has a full compliment of electronic voting booths in 15 all of the polling places with the heart system.
 16 New for 2014 will be bilingual welcome name 17 badges. This is a significant changes. We used to 18 send those to the inspectors in the polling places to 19 disseminate to the poll workers. But as Deana found in 20 some of her polling place observations, the poll 21 workers don't always get that information out, so we're 22 now sending it out to the bilingual poll workers so 23 they can peel it off and stick it on themselves prior 24 to going to the polling place.
 25 Finally, our community engagement program has

1 increased the way we reach out in general to our voters
2 in our county. Through community events, intimate 3 speaking engagements, neighborhood gatherings,
4 award-winning programs such as our student My Ballot
5 Program, customized music events to reach out to 6 culturally sensitive areas in the county, and large 7 scale events, we have found new and unique ways to 8 connect with voters.

9 One last word, if I may, and I will sum up
10 here. While we make every effort to exceed voters 11 expectations, I do want to take an opportunity to make 12 an observation that I don't have is lost on this 13 commission. Elections are the only government 14 operation of its kind at the federal, state, or local 15 level. And specifically I'm talking about, volunteers 16 make up the a majority of that staffing on election day
17 out in the field. As such, the commitment and skill 18 set sometimes vary. Although I love my poll workers 19 dearly, that's something I think we need to point out.

20 Thank you again for the opportunity and I hope 21 the information I provided gives you a glimpse of what 22 we're doing in Orange County. Thank you.

23 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Finally but not least 24 Michelle Romero of the Greenlining Institute.

25 MICHELLE ROMERO: Thank you. Thank you for

1 to the guides as too complex or too confusing. Some 2 even equated voting with taking an exam. Many voters 3 with limited English proficiency also complained that 4 then the translated material didn't make sense.

5 When we ran a Flesch-Kincaid reading grade 6 level analysis on various sections of the voter guide
7 over the past five years -- or 5 election cycles, I'm 8 sorry, we found over the past five cycles several 9 sections would require above a twelfth grade reading 10 level to understand. The most extreme examples were 11 where parts of the voters guides scored at a sixteenth
12 grade reading level. That's a college degree. No
13 wonder those with college degrees are voting at higher 14 rates. That's how we're designing the system.

15 Additionally the more difficult the text is in 16 English, we found that then the word-for-word 17 translations are poor in quality as well.

18 Language access isn't just about translating 19 material from one language to another. It's about 20 ensuring that the audience can actually understand the 21 content. So to this end, language access should 22 include policies to provide material in plain language 23 that's readily understood and relevant to our diverse
24 voters.

25 Plain language is a studied concept. It

1 inviting me to come testify today. My name is Michelle 2 Romero. I'm the Claiming Our Democracy director at 3 Greenlining Institute. And I want to talk today about 4 two areas of our democracy where I think we can better 5 serve and empower limited English communities to 6 participate where there isn't already existing law. So 7 each year, the Greenlining Institute's Claiming Our 8 Democracy program convenes a series of community focus 9 group style sessions across the State to learn more 10 about how voters of color interact with voting 11 material, make decisions on ballot measures, and 12 experience and engage in our democracy.

13 We use this information to inform policymakers 14 and our own advocacy to improve democracy by ensuring 15 they can participate. From these community sessions, 16 we have identified two what we call modern literacy
17 tests that I would like to talk to you about today.
18 The first deals with our voter information guides and 19 voting information in general. But the state's voting 20 information guide is a single piece of information that 21 every voter receives. Yet when we held focus groups on 22 the issue, we learned quickly that voters across the 23 spectrum both limited in English and fluent in English 24 found the voter information guides to be full of 25 legalese -- these are their words -- and often referred

1 encourages the use of things like active versus passive 2 voice, shorter words compared to words with many 3 syllables and many other best practices for 4 readability. The plain language movement in the United 5 States began in the 1970s when President Nixon ordered 6 the Federal Register to read in laymen's terms. Then 7 in 1998, President Clinton issued orders to require 8 federal employees to write regulations in plain 9 language. Most recently, in 2010, President Obama had 10 signed a Plain Language Writing Act to promote clear 11 government communications that the public can 12 understand and use, and it applies to federal agencies.

13 We should have something similar to ensure 14 voting material is clear, concise, and voter friendly.

15 The second modern day literacy test that I
16 would like to talk to you about appears in the ballot
17 initiative process. The ballot initiative system plays 18 an important role in setting policy in California.
19 Established in 1911, the initiative system was the way 20 to give people make and unmake their own state laws and 21 hold their government accountable. However, these 22 initiative petitions are in English only, and they 23 leave millions of eligible voters in California who 24 don't speak English very well out of the process
25 entirely. Between 1990 and 2010, California's limited

1 population grew 56 percent to a total of 6.9 million
 2 residents. At least 2.6 million in California are 3 eligible voters. They make up approximately 11 percent 4 of our total citizen voting age population in our 5 state.
 6 By failing to provide language accessible 7 initiative petitions, many voters are out left out of 8 the process. I would call this, you know -- we can 9 compare it basically to White primaries of -- before, 10 where Blacks were excluded from voting in primary even 11 after they had gained the right to vote by engaging in 12 selective inclusivity, where only Whites were included.
 13 English only signature processes function in this way, 14 where in the primaries, we're nominating candidates to 15 move forward in the ballot. In the signature gathering 16 of an initiative process, we're nominating issues to 17 move forward. And so our electoral process doesn't 18 begin on election day; it start much sooner. This 19 issue effects California and several other states to 20 have an initiative process. And so, we would encourage 21 this commission and the civil rights community as a 22 whole to begin to think how we can fill that gap.
 23 Unfortunately, there seems to be some 24 confusion as to how the federal Voting Rights Act 25 language assistance provision would or should be

1 applied to the initiative referendum and recall 2 materials.
 3 So with that, I would like to thank you for 4 considering both of these issues and providing the 5 space to discuss solutions.
 6 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Thank you so much to 7 our panel again. Let me turn the questions over to my 8 fellow commissioners and we will start with Dolores 9 Huerta.
 10 She's going to pass. All right.
 11 Anybody. Justice Reynoso.
 12 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I have tons of 13 questions.
 14 I would like the first -- well, we'll just ask 15 one question each again. I want to ask Ms. -- this -- 16 this Ms. Romero a question.
 17 M. ROMERO: It could be confusing.
 18 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: What -- the report
 19 is obviously instructive in terms of what's happening, 20 but it seems to manifest that we need to change some of 21 the things that are happening, for example, the 22 language isolation that -- that you pointed to.
 23 What should be done about those things?
 24 That's not what you studied, but I'm just curious.
 25 What are your thoughts in terms of what can be done to

1 ameliorate the language isolation, because, you know, 2 we have, as indicated Kelley, language assistance and 3 all that and yet your studies that is all, yet your 4 study shows that you still have that. So give us your 5 thoughts.
 6 A. HUFFMAN: What is language isolation before
 7 you answer his. That is going to be my question 8 before you answer his.
 9 M. ROMERO: Yes. And I do give you a 10 definition in my -- in my written testimony.
 11 So according to the American community survey, 12 it's all members of a household over age 14 that don't 13 speak English, so, yeah.
 14 A. HUFFMAN: Oh, okay.
 15 M. ROMERO: There's a very specific 16 definition.
 17 Well, if you're speaking about language
 18 isolation with regard to participation voter 19 participation?
 20 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yes, yes,
 21 particularly. Actually, there's also another -- I'm 22 sure there's another problem, and that is voter 23 registration. But your study just went to voting 24 participation. So that's what my question is about.
 25 M. ROMERO: Sure. And what we're talking about

1 today about language access can extend to registration 2 process as well.
 3 So I think it goes back -- certainly having 4 materials available is key and having that 5 assistance -- hands on assistance is key. But I think 6 ultimately it comes to mobilization and education.
 7 Just as with voter turnout, period, whether there is a
 8 language access issue. Latinos and Asians, we know -- 9 and all groups -- all subgroups responds to direct 10 mobilization, but more so for Latinos and Asians. And, 11 you know, there is recognizing the institutional
 12 barriers that we're talking about today, language 13 access being one. There is recognizing resource 14 barriers in terms of for Latinos and Asians more and 15 particularly those that are linguistically isolated -- 16 if I can say it -- find themselves with lower resources 17 more likely to be in groups of lower income and lower 18 education, and those are predictive of lower turnout.
 19 But besides that, probably one of the single 20 biggest ways to address that or counters that -- those 21 trends, is direct mobilization. And we know that 22 there's so many good things that are happening in 23 California, so much good work that is done to mobilize 24 communities, but there is not enough. And there's 25 research that shows us that community Latinos and

1 Asians -- and little more on the Latino side, in terms 2 of actual established research, but we know that these 3 communities are less likely actually to be contacted, 4 particularly by their traditional dominant ways that 5 folks get contacted. So people will vote and Latinos
 6 and Asians will vote if they are asked, but they also 7 need information. They need to be asked and recruited, 8 and they also need information to feel confident in 9 their vote. And we get that from candidates, we get 10 that information from parties, Get Out the door -- 11 knob -- Get Out the Vote doorknob hangers to calls to 12 door knocks or whatever it might be. And that system, 13 the way our system is designed to recruit folks it is 14 still very much based on the likely voter model.
 15 Whether it's accurate or not, often not in many of 16 these communities. And so, many Latinos and Asian 17 communities, particularly linguistically isolated 18 communities, are not getting that mobilization or that 19 contact. So it's addressing that and making it very 20 tailored and specific to the needs of those 21 communities, too, not just a blanket formula.
 22 D. KITAMURA: And can I add one thing to that.
 23 When I speak about Section 203 jurisdiction, that does 24 not require the jurisdiction to provide language
 25 assistance in every precinct. It's a very targeted

1 Latinos in terms of cultural -- community of origin or 2 country of origin statuses in terms of citizenship, in 3 terms of naturalization rates, all different factors 4 that play into differing turnout rates differing 5 challenges.
 6 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Any thought given 7 to -- any thought about what we do to -- what we do for 8 voters who are unable to read?
 9 N. KELLEY: Thank you for the question.
 10 That's a great question.
 11 We do offer oral assistance both in the 12 polling place as well in our phone banks. One of the 13 things we have been providing are CDs that voters can 14 order, if they have trouble reading. And providing 15 that text of like what Michelle was talking about where 16 it's very lengthy and involved, we're translating that 17 and putting that down to audio and sending to voters
 18 that's one way. It's hard to get the message out. I
 19 want to make that pretty clear because in Orange 20 County, like most of the Southern California counties, 21 we're very large. And the resources are limited. But 22 that shouldn't be an excuse, so we do our best to 23 provide what we can.
 24 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: And then a comment.
 25 I've been in California quite a few years. And I

1 decision how and -- where and how they provide that 2 assistance. And Neal Kelley talked about going above 3 and beyond what is required under Section 203. And 4 wouldn't it be great if all registrars of voters went 5 above and beyond and provided more assistance than they 6 really had to provide.
 7 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Sometimes we have a 8 general term, like, Asian Americans. But as folk who 9 work in that field, hey, folks don't say I'm an Asian 10 American. They will say I'm a Korean, I'm Japanese, or 11 whatever. And presumably particularly immigrants 12 still, if they aren't dominant in English presumably 13 speak Korean, Japanese, or Chinese or whatever. So 14 obviously it's got to be focussed on that. It seems to 15 me to get over that to a certain extent.
 16 M. ROMERO: If I may add something to that.
 17 Because of time and ease of conversation, you
 18 know, I have been talking about Latinos and Asians.
 19 But recognizing that particularly within Asian 20 community there is a wide turnout rates and access and 21 familiarity to the system. And just as with education 22 levels and income levels and so forth, it -- there 23 really is no blanket kind of formula for the Asian 24 community either. And there should be a recognition of 25 the different needs and access. And same thing for the 1 remember Orange County. You sound like a new Orange

 2 County. What happened?
 3 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: It's a new Orange
 4 County, that's what happened.
 5 N. KELLEY: Thanks for that observation.
 6 We're proud of our team. We have turned our office
 7 upside down. I can tell you that for sure, and that 8 trend will continue.
 9 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Thank you.
 10 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: I also have a 11 question for Mr. Kelley.
 12 In terms of the poll workers that you do have, 13 what percentage of the poll workers are Latino and/or 14 Asian?
 15 N. KELLEY: 30 percent of our poll workers are 16 either mixed in with Latino or Asian. I don't have 17 that specific breakdown for you. 30 percent of the 18 overall number of poll workers. And we have, by the 19 way, close to 10,000 poll workers. So that gives you 20 an idea. In many of our cases, we have bilingual poll 21 workers in our polling places that are not required to 22 be targeted for bilingual support, so that allows us to 23 move them around a little bit, which helps quite a bit.
 24 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: And I might add 25 that's a little bit low, considering the population of 1 Orange County and how it's grown in terms of Asian and 2 Latino community.

 3 And are your poll workers, are they trained in 4 terms of handling of voter intimidation, which I do 5 understand has happened even as recently as the last 6 election in Orange County where Latino voters and Asian 7 voters were challenged when they were trying to vote.
 8 N. KELLEY: Yes, ma'am. We do quite an 9 extensive training program with the poll workers. In 10 fact, there is legally-mandated training that, as a 11 result of the 1988 incident, that many of you are 12 probably aware of, where there was intimidation in the 13 polling places. And that is included in all of the 14 polling packets to the poll workers.
 15 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Ms. Romero, I wanted
 16 to ask you, in terms of trying to get the ballot
 17 language in plain English as you mentioned and plain 18 Spanish also, I think, or other languages, are you
 19 doing anything in terms of working with the Attorney 20 General's Office to make that happen?
 21 MICHELLE ROMERO: We haven't yet approached
 22 the Attorney General's Office. We introduced a bill 23 that would address language access in the initiative 24 system in the past two years, but with respect to voter 25 information guide, we haven't gotten there yet. We

1 have begun to engage the Secretary of State Office. I 2 think the other office that we should be looking at is 3 the legislative analyst office that produces a lot of 4 the analysis for the voter guide. So there are a few 5 different offices that are involved in producing 6 material that end up going into that pamphlet.
 7 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: So I recommend that 8 you also check with the Attorney General's Office.
 9 MICHELLE ROMERO: Thank you.
 10 N. KELLEY: I serve with Michelle on 11 consortium called Future of California Elections, as 12 well as Deanna and other colleagues -- Kathay, as well.
 13 And out of that process, I really got intrigued with 14 plain language. And as a result, we're putting all of 15 our sample ballots and voter materials through a plain 16 language process. So for June, we'll have plain 17 language material. And it was a result of that 18 consortium that led us to do that.
 19 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: And I think also, we 20 have to have a plain Spanish, please.
 21 N. KELLEY: Yes, ma'am.
 22 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: And there is also, I
 23 should mention, an effort not only to convert to plain 24 language but to use icons and commonly used symbols so 25 that people don't necessarily even need to read the 1 language to understand what we're pointing to.

 2 I do have a question.
 3 So, in 2012, California implemented for the 4 first time online voter registration. And while some 5 of the research has shown that there's a tremendous 6 response to that, some 800,000 people registering for 7 the first time and it's a fairly diverse one. And I
 8 would love to hear -- Dr. Romero, you talk a little bit 9 about that.
 10 I think the question is, there has also been 11 concern that, in the initial rollout, that has not been 12 fully accessible to all language groups.
 13 Deanna Kitamura, can you talk about what's 14 been available for some groups but not all groups and 15 what the challenges are and have you heard difficulties 16 from the Asian American communities in using online 17 voter registration.
 18 D. KITAMURA: Sure.
 19 California online voter registration was 20 launched and was in English and in Spanish and has been 21 a huge success for those languages. But it has not 22 been translated on -- online live, for any of the Asian 23 languages. It will be done in March of this year. The 24 Secretary of State Office has indicated in March that 25 will happen.

1 Currently, for Asian languages, they can get a 2 form, print it out, fill it out, and mail it in. And 3 that's the way that they can -- that they can register 4 using online capabilities.
 5 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: So not so online. Not 6 realtime.
 7 D. KITAMURA: That's right. That's right.
 8 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: And my question for 9 Neal Kelley, working with your counterparts -- without 10 having to name anybody's name -- what are some of the 11 challenges that other registrars might face as they try 12 to implement bilingual assistance? And do you ever see 13 less than full excitement about implementing them -- in 14 commitment -- I guess is a better word in -- in 15 implementing them.
 16 N. KELLEY: That's a tough question.
 17 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Without naming -- it 18 could be counties around the country, even.
 19 N. KELLEY: I will say this, and I think Deann 20 touched on this quite well is that what we found is 21 that some counties do only do targeted precinct 22 support. And we have found in Orange County, that the 23 best way to approach it is across the entire county so 24 that you will have translated materials regardless of 25 whatever polling place you go into.

1 So if you are a voter that needs language
2 assistance and you happen to be in Laguna Beach and you
3 live in Anaheim, you're going to get that language
4 assistance. Now, you might not get the oral, but you 5 will have that written assistance.

6 So I think that's probably the biggest thing
7 that I see, Kathay, across the state.

8 And one other quick comment on the Voting 9 Rights Act for the state side, you know, that data was 10 provided to us a couple of months ago. And there's 11 certainly a little bit of a scramble statewide among 12 some of my colleague on how this will be implemented 13 for June. I can definitely be honest with you about 14 that.

15 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: In terms of the 16 registrars all over the State of California, that do 17 the same kind of work that you do, now, do they have 18 access -- or when you have your meetings, is this 19 discussed, are their training sessions for the 20 registrar of voters so that they can keep implement the 21 same type of procedures and practices that you're 22 doing.

23 N. KELLEY: We do a lot of best practice
24 sharing that occurs twice a year, in December as well 25 as July. So there are times we do get together. And I

1 would say that out of the 58 counties, 90 percent
2 participate, which is good. So we do see quite a bit 3 of sharing go on and training.

4 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you.

5 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I think some of my 6 colleagues are eager to ask more questions.

7 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yes. I have a
8 different sort of question for -- I have a different 9 sort of question for Mr. Kelley.

10 The voting registration and voting percentages
11 are the lowest for the young people, 18 to 25. And I 12 was reading that a county near where I live, near 13 Sacramento, has a program sponsored by the voter 14 registrar's office to encourage high schools to have a 15 mock -- well, two things: have a mock voting; and two, 16 encourage as many young people who are going to be 18 17 at the next election to register. And the figures they 18 show are phenomenally higher than the surrounding 19 counties. So I just wondered whether you have any such 20 program, have you thought about it or what you have 21 heard about those programs.

22 N. KELLEY: Thank you, Justice Reynoso, for 23 the question. That is actually a very passionate part 24 of my job that I love to do.

25 We developed a program called My Ballot. And

1 we took a step farther rather than have a mock
2 election. We bring -- we first go to the high school
3 and teach the kids about the voting right struggle.

4 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Let me just mention.
5 I got to vote when 18-year olds couldn't vote. And I
6 was so anxious and I thought, what a great law, as soon 7 as they change that, all the 18-year olds are going to 8 vote. Well it hasn't turned out that way.

9 N. KELLEY: You're right.

10 But what we have found is, through our 11 program, we teach the kids about voting right 12 struggles. We then bring them to our office and they 13 create their own ballot for their ASB election for our 14 system. So it teaches them the complexity of building
15 a ballot. And then we take or system. The students 16 vote in our voting booth for their ASB elections. It 17 gives them direct access to the voting booths.

18 And from that -- here is the selfish part: We 19 recruit them to be bilingual poll workers. And we 20 found that the high school students are fantastic at 21 it, and we have 2200 that participated in the 22 November 2012 election.

23 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: That's frankly so
24 encouraging -- ta-da. Can you hear me now?

25 Now I forget what I was going to say.

1 I beg your pardon?

2 N. KELLEY: I will tell you this, Justice, 3 that the -- the issue is, that you can -- we are seeing 4 registration numbers increase for 18 to 25-year olds.
5 The problem is getting them to vote consistently. That 6 is what we are finding to be the problem.

7 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: There is a different 8 problem in that regard, I teach courses, sometimes 9 seminars, to true freshmen even though I teach at the 10 law school. They're 17 and 18 years old. And the ones
11 who sign up for my registrar are obviously interested.
12 So I ask them, why do your colleagues not vote. And 13 they say, they don't see the relationship of government 14 to their lives. And these are kids in a public 15 university, so we have a lot of educating to do, 16 apparently.

17 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Yes.

18 Michelle, I was thinking of doing some work on 19 the initiative process now, and I was thinking about 20 you recommendation. And I was wondering about the 21 mechanics of it. I'm on the petition side, not on the 22 ballot language side of it.

23 But for a person who's circulated petitions, 24 how in the world could I handle how many languages? I 25 would have to have out there with my -- my flip chart

1 and my petition. How would that work? Do you have 2 some idea with what the mechanics would with.
 3 MICHELLE ROMERO: We can sign on iPads -- no.
 4 Well, we have given some thought to this. I
 5 mentioned the Greenlining Institute sponsored 6 legislation in the past two years to try to do this in 7 California. And so, there's a couple of ways that we 8 thought about it under our current structure of how we 9 gather signatures now which is pen and paper, 10 basically.
 11 So each county has to -- for each county, you 12 have to circulate a different petition, so a signature 13 gather has a petition that they fill in the line of 14 what county you're circulating in today. So they're 15 used to -- and oftentimes they're circulating several 16 different initiatives at the same time, so they carry 17 different clipboards, and they're used to that.
 18 What we could do to ensure there is language 19 access is, when you're going to be circulating in a 20 county where Spanish is also a required language that 21 you need to have material in or there are four 22 different languages that you have to provide material 23 in, you would have an English title and summary at the 24 top and then the Spanish title and summary, and then 25 you would sign on that page.

1 that -- like Los Angeles county is the most complex, 2 right. There are nine languages that you would have to 3 provide material in. You can have the title and 4 summary in English, and then in each of the nine 5 languages all in 1 or 2 pages and attach to the 6 petition so that it's easier for folks to just 7 reference as they're out in the field. But I think the 8 complexity of how we do it is, it's always in the 9 details, right. We can talk about those things. But I 10 think it's a worthwhile pursuit to figure out how we 11 ensure that these communities can have a voice and a 12 say and what issues that move on to the ballot.
 13 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I guess as -- if I 14 were on the end of paying for the signatures, as we 15 know is done, I think I would be looking for some 16 avenues to make sure that I wasn't signing up a lot of 17 people that were not either citizens or not registered.
 18 I'm thinking of the money -- I'm thinking of the 19 opposition you would get that. You should think about 20 that a little bit, because I'm sure we could find some 21 safeguards somewhere. But that would be one of the 22 first concerns because every signature collected in 23 theory represents money and counts toward 24 qualification.
 25 MICHELLE ROMERO: Yeah. You actually -- so

1 So we're talking about maybe translating the 2 title and summary, not the entire initiative. Most 3 voters don't bother to read the entire -- 4 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Petition.
 5 MICHELLE ROMERO: -- legal text in the minute
 6 they might give you to look at the petition. But that 7 information would at least voters allow to verify what 8 a signature gather is explaining.
 9 There was an issue in the Inland Empire when 10 we went around and did our listening sessions where we 11 heard Spanish-speaking voters talking about signing -- 12 that they had signed an initiative petition that was a 13 recall effort for government Gray Davis several years
 14 ago. And they don't know that it was going to recall 15 the Governor. They thought it was just going to 16 overturn the vehicle license fee. And so, it wasn't 17 until they learned on Spanish-language television later 18 that there was actually a targeted effort to do this 19 petition that they thought themselves, I think that's 20 probably what I signed. And so, it gave them greater 21 distrust of the process as a whole. And so, providing 22 some of initial material gives them a way to verify 23 what someone is telling them and also to read for 24 themselves whether it's something they want to sign.
 25 Another way to do it for some of the counties

1 you raise another issue which is that, not only are 2 voters potentially misled or manipulated by paid
 3 signature gatherers to sign an initiative. Proponent 4 groups that want to engage those communities to sign an 5 initiative that may actually be well-supported by that 6 group are at a disadvantage, too.
 7 In some counties, and so, where there's the 8 higher levels of concentration of limited English 9 communities, those are the same counties that have high 10 activity in terms of initiatives being circulated. And 11 it's purely a population game as you say, right.
 12 You're looking for the most signatures in the shortest 13 amount of time, like Los Angeles County.
 14 The limited English share of the citizen
 15 voting age population there is 17 percent. In other 16 counties like Imperial, it's 20 percent. And so, if 17 one in five of the voters, you know, the eligible 18 voters, that you're coming into contact with, aren't 19 able to even participate purely because of language 20 access, you could make the argument that providing 21 material in those languages would allow you to engage 22 those voters that you are not currently engaging to 23 gather signatures faster.
 24 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: Thank you for that.
 25 Mr. Kelley, just one more question. In terms

1 of, you know, there is a statement that has been made,
2 I think, it's 55,000 Latinos graduate from high school
3 every month throughout the country. And so this idea 4 of registering high school seniors is very important.

5 In terms of getting the cooperation of the 6 high schools, has that been easy for you? Because I
7 know in other place where people try to go into high 8 schools to register the seniors, they are not given 9 that permission to do so.

10 N. KELLEY: It depends on the district, and 11 that's that good question. Some of the districts are 12 not as cooperative as others, but I found it to be much 13 useful to go to the elected school board members than 14 to deal with the administrators. And once we do that, 15 we are given access to the campus. So it seems to work
16 out pretty well for us. We are using a lot of repeat
17 schools. For example, Anaheim High School in Anaheim
18 is the one of the largest providers of bilingual high 19 school students to us in any election. So we continue 20 to develop those relationships where that matters.

21 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Don't forget
22 Fullerton High School. That's where I went.

23 N. KELLEY: Yes, sir, we wouldn't.

24 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Sorry. Go ahead.

25 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Have -- I have heard

1 studies that indicate that the percentage of 2 that -- the percentage of voting depends a lot on the 3 economic background of the voter -- well, I said the 4 voter, of those vote that don't vote and analyze what 5 happened if we have universal voting.

6 Any concepts of how we can get closer to 7 universal? Doesn't Australia actually require you to 8 vote, for example?

9 M. ROMERO: I can jump in.

10 In universal voting, you mean near 100 percent 11 of those are eligible, correct?

12 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yeah.

13 M. ROMERO: Yeah. So not only is 14 California -- well, it fluctuates, but on any given 15 election year, we're in the bottom 20 percent of states 16 of U.S. in terms of eligible turnout rates. The U.S.
17 as a whole is one of the lowest -- has one of the 18 lowest turnout rates internationally of quote/unquote
19 "developed nations."

20 So, yes, Australia, many European countries, 21 all have some sort form of, if they don't require, they 22 have either the incentive -- they have either the 23 carrot or stick approach, where they will give 24 incentives for folks to vote or they will give 25 disincentives. There will be a tax or something --

1 either tax break or a tax benefit. There's been 2 several, you know, well-known studies looking at the 3 U.S. and how we can get close to those to comparable 4 nations and increase our turnout rate. And most of the 5 work that's been done is along the lines of what we 6 have been talking about: Reforms to our electoral 7 system itself. So there is work in mobilization, which 8 we know is a key way to overcome many of the barriers.
9 But in terms of, if we look just at the institutional 10 barriers, the fact that it's -- it can be cumbersome to 11 register still or at least in the terms of the 12 education around it and the knowledge around it and the 13 familiarity and comfort level and the actual voting 14 process and all the issues around that.

15 If we eliminate that on a national scale, then 16 we would make up much of the ground, not all of it, but 17 much of the ground and close the gap, the U.S. turnout
18 rate, the gap with the U.S. turnout and other 19 industrialized nations. So most of the focus has been 20 on industrial factors.

21 Does that answer your question?

22 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Yes, yes.

23 Thank you very much.

24 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I have a question for 25 Neal. You mentioned briefly that Orange County is one

1 of two counties that provides multiple languages using 2 an electronic voting system.

3 Can you describe what the voter experience is 4 when they come into a poll site and how that might make 5 a difference? Or what, if you -- to the extent that 6 you know, how other counties operate, what are they 7 facing when they go to other counties by comparison?

8 N. KELLEY: So I can tell you very briefly, in 9 our county, when they do come to the polling place and 10 they engage with the poll worker, they don't have to 11 express a desire a specific language to the poll
12 worker; they can do that in private. So when they go 13 to the voting booth and they are given an access code, 14 they can select their language in the privacy of the 15 voting booth.

16 In other counties, it is a little bit
17 different because, in 2007, the majority of systems 18 were decertified for use in California. And when that 19 happened, the majority of counties went to paper. And 20 so when you go to paper, then you're left with a 21 situation where you have to decipher which languages 22 that the voter would like a ballot in. And so that is 23 really, I think, a big difference, Kathay, between, you 24 know, our county versus the other counties that have to 25 use paper. That may change going down the road in

1 certification of California changing. We may get new 2 voting systems on board, but, for now, that's the way 3 it is.

4 D. KITAMURA: And can I add to that, with 5 regard to specific Los Angeles County specifically.
6 Los Angeles County has a paper ballot, and it's the 7 ballot that you get is a Scantron card, so all you get 8 are numbers and bubbles, so there are no words on it.
9 So you take your Scantron card and you slip it in the 10 ballot holder. And so, you see the list of 11 presidential candidates and you mark the bubble that 12 you want.

13 For a non-English speaker, who wants to use a 14 translated ballot, they need to take their translated 15 ballot, and then line it up to the English version, and 16 then make sure that they are not moving their hand or, 17 you know -- make sure that they then mark the correct 18 bubble.

19 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Let me see if I 20 understand this. What you're saying is, the 21 actual -- hello. If I'm understanding -- what you're 22 saying the actual voting equipment that they're using 23 does not have translations?

24 D. KITAMURA: That's right. It's a paper ball
25 and doesn't have the translation. You would have a

1 separate translated ballot that you would use. And 2 L.A. County is looking into updating its system, and I
3 know that the Registrar Voter very much wants to update 4 the system. But the current system that we have now is 5 the one I just described.

6 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: One more comment. I
7 don't know whether they still do this or not in Orange
8 County. But I attended the Santa Ana Community
9 College, where they call Kinder Caminata, where -- this 10 is incredible. They have all the kindergarten kids.
11 And they get them from different school districts. And 12 there's like about a thousand of them, I think. And 13 they have all the little kindergarten kids and they 14 march into the community college. And they have a 15 march, "Si Se Pueda," if you can, and then they have 16 entertainment, and they all get to vote. And they get 17 to vote for their best -- favorite cartoon character.
18 But it's just amazing when you see all the kindergarten 19 kids marching with the whole idea that they will be 20 voting when they become adults and what kind of 21 vocation they want to choose. I don't know if they 22 still have that or no.

23 N. KELLEY: They do, and that's an event that 24 we participate in every year..

25 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: I would suggest it to 1 people. I don't know if it's on YouTube, but it's 2 overwhelming and inspirational.

3 N. KELLEY: I agree.

4 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Well, no. I'm going 5 to ask a point of personal privilege to not speak on 6 language because we have one voter registrar. I want 7 to ask a question, but it's not on this topic.

8 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I think you're allowed 9 to deviate from the topic.

10 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: May I deviate.

11 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I think we already 12 have, so go ahead.

13 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Were you here this 14 morning?

15 N. KELLEY: No ma'am.

16 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Did you hear some of 17 the testimony from people with disabilities that -- 18 well, it was very touching to hear some of the 19 barriers.

20 And I wondering since you seem so progressive 21 in Orange County, tell me how you dealt with access or 22 challenge to people who are physically challenged one 23 way or the other. Let me tell you some of the things 24 they talked about: Not sufficient polling places; they 25 get there, and the door, the ramp, that they can get

1 in, the door is locked and people don't know how to 2 unlock; the elevator is not up or down; and sometimes 3 it's just one spot, they're isolated to vote; they're 4 not part of the general flow of voting traffic -- lots 5 and lots of barriers that discourage people with 6 disabilities from participating.

7 Have you dealt with that in your county? And 8 if yes, how?

9 N. KELLEY: Yes, ma'am, we have.

10 I have been very aggressive on the grant side 11 to obtain state and federal grants to update our 12 polling places. And we now have a very extensive 13 inventory of ramps and items we can upgrade polling 14 places to become close to accessible on election day, 15 the closest that we can.

16 We are also fortunate with our electronic 17 system, that allows voters with disabilities to vote
18 without assistance. These have sip and puff devices.
19 There are jelly switches. There is audio. There's all 20 the things that are necessary to provide a voter with 21 disabilities with the option to vote on their own.

22 I have a sister in her late 30s with severe 23 CP. It's an issue near and dear in my heart but at the 24 same time, seeing what Santa Cruz County went through 25 with their accessible polling issues and being sued by

1 the state, we don't want to be in that same boat. So 2 we have been very aggressive in getting grants to 3 upgrade.

4 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I hope when you meet 5 with your other colleagues, when you do your best 6 practices, you will indicate that there's some of the 7 things that came up here ought to be addressed 8 voluntarily by them.

9 And at the same time, there's one other quick 10 one: When the Marriage Equality Act was on the ballot, 11 some polling places were in the churches. And members 12 of that community felt like they were going into the 13 enemy camp to vote -- just to say it briefly. And that 14 might be something that never crosses the radar unless 15 you're a member of that community. But it is very 16 real, people not wanting to go to the polling places 17 where -- just some things that came up that you might 18 want to --

19 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Could I add 20 something?

21 The commission -- the president-appointed of 22 measures, just recommended that often as possible the 23 polling places be a public schools. Does that make 24 sense to you, or is that possible?

25 N. KELLEY: It does especially in Orange

1 County, where we have very large residential 2 communities with very limited access to public places.
3 And those areas tend to be schools or churches,
4 particularly in south county, Orange County. So we're 5 really forced to go to those public places to reduce 6 the reliance on residences because you can't get those 7 compliant on election day. You can get close, but you 8 can't get them fully compliant.

9 Just the one issue on that is, you know, 10 safety on school campuses and we have to cognisant of 11 that. So it's important for registrars to work with 12 the school officials to make sure the polling places 13 are in the front of the campuses so you don't have 14 voters walking through the entire campus.

15 (Interruption.)

16 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: I guess you heard 17 me, maybe the others didn't. I just had raised that 18 issue, because, one, there was the recommendation; and 19 two, it would get way from anybody that feels 20 uncomfortable to religious institutions.

21 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: I might say, that 22 also applies to not -- to the LGBT community in 23 Proposition 8 every other year, we have these 24 anti-choice initiatives that are aimed against women's 25 right to choose. And, again, having the voting place

1 in a church -- might be a little issue with that, so
2 I -- I also wanted to second with what the commissioner 3 said and people who testified -- do try to get those 4 voting sites, community centers or public schools -- 5 places that are politically neutral.

6 N. KELLEY: Because the precincts are so
7 dense, it's sometimes very difficult to find polling 8 places. In the north in Orange County, our most 9 creative is a mortuary, and in the south, it's a VW 10 dealership. So sometimes we are -- we have to be 11 creative.

12 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: We have a lot of 13 rural areas. I work out a lot in rural areas, and I 14 think that's another issue that we have to talk about 15 and we haven't talked about that much in this 16 particular session. But the size of voting districts
17 also is a real -- inhibits. It makes people to vote 18 when you got these precincts with thousand voters. And 19 some people have to even cross boulevards and freeways 20 and highways, where it's dangerous for them to even 21 walk to their polling. And, of course, if they don't 22 have transportation, they can't even make it. I know 23 that that's probably a county issue, but I think it's 24 one that we all need to think about and start focusing 25 on. We need to make the precincts of a size that are

1 manageable and have voting sites where people can 2 actually walk to the precinct, if they don't have 3 transportation.

4 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I am being signalled
5 that we should be wrapping this panel up. I do want, 6 just as the Chair of this particular panel to ask the 7 last question:

8 Earlier, in the morning panel, we actually had 9 a very vivid testimony of people who had been engaged 10 in electronic monitoring observing that, as recently as 11 the 2008 and 2012 elections, there are documented 12 incidents of voter intimidation by groups whose intent 13 it is to try to push for purging of lists or to target 14 voters either based on minority status or in some cases 15 their perception that some voters don't belong.

16 I'm wondering if any people -- any of our 17 panelists have any anecdotes or information that would 18 like to share with the commission about your own 19 experience with observing or -- or collecting evidence 20 about election intimidation.

21 D. KITAMURA: I would like to add one thing.

22 Our monitors have seen in some -- very few 23 cases where a poll worker might say that a voter needs 24 to be able to speak English, so they don't want -- they 25 begrudgingly provide the translated material to the

1 person if the person specifically asks for it. But 2 where we see that, we notate it, and we inform 3 the -- the Registrar Voter that that has happened.
 4 N. KELLEY: I just want to add one quick item.
 5 And that is, in 2012, what we decided to do is 6 offer training to those individuals who wanted to 7 monitor the polling places. And we saw a variety of 8 groups that came in. One of the advantages -- now that 9 doesn't prevent them from doing things at the polling 10 place they shouldn't be, but at least we can tell them 11 the laws and the requirements for them to observe in 12 polling place. And I think that did help a little bit.
 13 But that is going to be a challenge moving forward for 14 sure.
 15 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Thank you so much.
 16 Let's give our panel a hand.
 17 I will hand the gavel over to Alice Huffman for 18 the public.
 19 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: You have listened to 20 us all day. This is your last chance. This is the 21 public testimony from 2:55 to 3:55. We have a few 22 cards here from people who would like to testify. We 23 will take other cards, if you are interested and would 24 like to share some thoughts with us.
 25 I'm going to start with Matt Martini. And

1 after Matt, it will be Fang G-A-O, Gao.
 2 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: Maybe Gao Su Fung?
 3 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Is that right?
 4 Okay. And then Jim Soper.
 5 SPEAKER: Good afternoon, Commissioners. My 6 name is Matthew Martini. I'm actually a graduate of 7 this institution. And like Justice Reynoso, I had to 8 wait until I was 21 to vote, but I was active in 9 politics and very much interested. And that was a long 10 three years for me.
 11 I have been an election inspector here in the 12 city -- I'm semiretired -- for about the last 13 13 inspections. And I would like to echo what the 14 Registrar Kelley said in terms of having the students 15 participate in the process. It's absolutely fabulous.
 16 And I did become an naturalized citizen, so I
 17 was born in Budapesh, Hungary, and I'm an immigrant.
 18 And we're a country of immigrants. And I can be fairly 19 certain, there never will be a bilingual Hungarian 20 English ballot as long as I'm a citizen of the United 21 States. But that does not mean that you can't exercise
 22 the franchise. And more than anything else, and I know 23 this beyond the purview possible of this commission or 24 this particular hearing, but I just would like to 25 remind the commission that, if it's not broke, don't 1 fix it.

 2 And this whole issue of voter ID becomes very 3 problematic because what it's really doing is 4 complicating something that is not at all complicated.
 5 So with that, my anecdotal experience, I wish the best 6 and we can go forward, and getting this country, our 7 voting record up to the rest of the First World's.
 8 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Well, I thank you.
 9 We are very wary of voter ID. We know that it's not 10 intended to increase access at all.
 11 Yes, sir.
 12 SPEAKER: Good afternoon. My name is Jim 13 Soper. I am a techie, a -- was a senior consultant for 14 digital equipment. I currently teach people how to 15 write mobile apps. I'm also the author of a website 16 called CountItAsCast.org and -.com and cochair of the 17 Voting Rights Task Force.
 18 The issues that you have been talking about 19 today are indeed very important. But I want to shift
 20 the topic a few minutes here, if I may, to what we call 21 election integrity. Because from my experience the 22 civil rights lawyer are not really aware of what's 23 going on.
 24 One of the things that was highly discussed 25 today was, if you're a felon, you can't vote. But if

1 you're name is Jeffrey Dean and you have 23 convictions
 2 for embezzlement; you were a senior vice president 3 writing source code for the Diebold machines that were 4 counting your ballots. He got hired by John Elder, who 5 was convicted cocaine trafficker. They met in prison.
 6 These are the Diebold -- this was the global election 7 systems that Diebold bought up. The code is still in 8 there. This is not speculation from the National 9 Inquirer. These are conviction papers.
 10 I could go on with a whole bunch of other 11 things, we don't have time. Would be a separate 12 hearing.
 13 But the important point is, that there are 14 people writing the code, that have control over how 15 those votes are being counted. They can flip tens of 16 thousands, hundreds of thousands of votes. And we're 17 getting very little check on this.
 18 One of the things we need is open source 19 software so we can read the code, but open source 20 software is not enough because the code gets extremely 21 complicated.
 22 On my website there's something called the -- 23 there's a procedures diagram. And people say this is 24 really complicated. Yeah. Running an election is 25 really complicated. It's something that election

1 integrity advocates sometimes don't understand.
 2 The point of the diagram is that everything 3 was going in and out of one computer. It's called the 4 election management system. And that computer is not 5 well-protected. All you need is a password --
 6 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Are you talking 7 about at the state or the county level? I want to 8 follow you because -- 9 THE WITNESS: At the county level. Every 10 county has their own system.
 11 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Uh-huh. So which 12 county are you referencing so we have -- 13 THE WITNESS: Well, I have a photo. I'm going 14 to -- but this is every county. This is the entire 15 United States.
 16 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Okay.
 17 THE WITNESS: I have a photo here of two 18 gentlemen sitting at a central tabulator typing in 19 votes. This is not the Ukraine. This is not Bulgaria.
 20 This is San Francisco, November 2006. And they're 21 sitting at the central tabulator typing in the votes.
 22 They have that power.
 23 Now, I double-checked. I took the photograph.
 24 And then I asked around and said, you know, what was 25 going on. And they said, well, the janitor locked up

1 the memory cards, so they had to hand-type them in.
 2 There was no close election that election, so I didn't 3 worry about it. But they had the possibility to do
 4 that. And I think San Francisco is honest, but there 5 are other counties throughout the country and 6 throughout California that are not honest. Now, we 7 need to be aware of that.
 8 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I think your time is 9 up, although this is intriguing.
 10 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: You can share your 11 written testimony, if you've got anything, with folks 12 here so that we can make sure it's captured.
 13 THE WITNESS: Okay. If I may add one more
 14 statement.
 15 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Yeah.
 16 THE WITNESS: The Lawyers' Committee for Civil 17 Rights held a hearing -- or co-hosted a hearing in 18 Washington, D.C., today, at which there was some talk 19 about Internet voting. If you want to let insiders and 20 outsiders to have at your central tabulators, those 21 vulnerable machines, go ahead and vote on the Internet.
 22 If you want to protect your elections, then we 23 need state by state people stopping this, because 24 they're pushing it all over the country.
 25 Thank you.

1 SPEAKER: (Translation.)
 2 Good afternoon. I am Sun Fung Gao, and I'm 3 80 years old. I became a U.S. citizen on 4 November 20th, 2013. I registered to vote right away.
 5 But I'm always afraid when I go to vote. No one will 6 be able to speak in Mandarin and help me if I have 7 questions.
 8 (Translation.)
 9 Also at the Registrar Office, they should have 10 staff who speak in Asian language to help us understand 11 the proposition that we are voting for. Many seniors 12 like me want to vote. But we don't want to make 13 mistakes when we vote. We also don't want to be 14 treated with disrespect at voting place because we do
 15 not speak English well.
 16 Please protect our voting rights. Please make 17 sure there are enough interpreters to help us.
 18 Thank you very much.
 19 SPEAKER: By the way, I want to spend one 20 minute to talk something very serious. My name is Lynn 21 Tao with the Self-Help for the Elderly.
 22 Should I stop?
 23 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: One comment. The 24 comment I want to make was, I appreciate your request 25 for language help, but I'm 77 years old. And I make

1 mistakes. So don't let that stop you from voting 2 because the ballots have very tricky.
 3 Yeah, I'm talking to her.
 4 (Translation.)
 5 Thank you.
 6 SPEAKER: Okay, I want to mention it, I am 7 from Self-Help for the Elderly. I have several 8 wonderful new citizens that came here.
 9 Today is a very special day for Chinese 10 people. They should stay home, prepare food to 11 celebrate for Chinese New Year. They are here.
 12 But, unfortunately, there is no Chinese 13 interpreter for us. So for the last one hour, they 14 watch everybody. Yeah. Anyway, the spirit is here, 15 not leave here.
 16 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: When it's Chinese
 17 New Year, do we have say Happy New Year?
 18 THE WITNESS: Happy Chinese New Year.
 19 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: (In Chinese).
 20 Thank you for staying for this whole hearing.
 21 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: Are there any other 22 persons wishing to testify that we missed? No cards
 23 missed? Everybody talked out?
 24 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: You did a good job.
 25 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: All right.

1 We get to close. If anyone would like to make 2 closing remarks. Shall we.
 3 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: Dolores.
 4 COMMISSIONER D. HUERTA: First of all, I want
 5 to thank our commissioners that came today. Let's give 6 them an applause, please, over here. Justice Reynoso, 7 Alice Huffman, and Kathay Feng.
 8 And, of course, we want to thank all of you 9 that came here today and prepared your statements and 10 are helping us so much. This is so important. This 11 commission is a national commission. It is taking 12 testimonies all over the United States of America.
 13 And like many of you said today, we think 14 California, our Golden State doesn't have any problems, 15 but, of course, we know that it does.
 16 And so all the testimonies people gave us
 17 today are going to help us. We're going to incorporate 18 these testimonies. And these will be presented and, of 19 course, they will be used to try to correct and make 20 sure that our democracy does work; that all the 21 irregularities, they will be fixed. We know, when I 22 say that, it's not always to do that. Some of these 23 provisions, as you know, the Supreme Court had a great 24 say in terms of terminating some of the protections we 25 had under the Voting Rights Act, we know that there is

1 legislation that's been introduced in the Congress to 2 try to remedy that.
 3 But the thing that we do know is that, if we 4 all keep on working, not only out there in our 5 precincts and getting people to vote, but coming to 6 these sessions and talking to our Congress people, that 7 we will be able to someday achieve the true promise of 8 our democracy, that we will have everybody that will 9 vote, they will be able to elect the kind of 10 representatives that really represent the communities, 11 and we can make it happen. Si, se puede. We can do
 12 it.
 13 COMMISSIONER A. HUFFMAN: I would like to 14 thank my fellow commissioners, as well, and the lawyers 15 committee and all the staff and volunteers that have 16 made this happen. I'm always hardened when I see 17 people who really care about full participation and 18 diversity in California. Sometimes we work in isolated 19 environments in our own little own silos and we forget 20 the beauty and dynamics of coming together for working 21 for a common good. So I appreciate having the 22 opportunity to serve as your commissioner today. And I 23 am really assured that something great is going to come 24 from this hearing. Thank you.
 25 COMMISSIONER C. REYNOSO: And I want to thank

1 the staff that worked so hard to put this together and 2 those -- and those who came. Thank you very much.
 3 COMMISSIONER K. FENG: I will just say, I was 4 inspired today, both by the hard work that many of the 5 advocates do in -- every day being out in the field to 6 defend the rights of voters, but also our very last 7 group of speakers who moved me to tears.
 8 I also should be home cleaning my house. And 9 I really appreciate your taking this very important day
 10 to sit here and defend your -- your rights as American 11 citizens. And so, we should all be very proud and 12 inspired. Thank you.
 13 Ms. Huerta says I should say happy new year.
 14 (In Chinese).
 15 MS. INGRAM: And so with that, we want to wish 16 everyone a Happy New Year. And we want to thank our 17 national commissioner, Dolores Huerta; our guest
 18 commissioners, Kathay Feng, Alice Huffman, and Justice
 19 and Professor Cruz Reynoso, for taking the time today 20 to look at the history and the record of barriers that 21 we continue to face here in California to the right to 22 vote.
 23 We also want to thank all of our -- our formal 24 panelists, formal witnesses, members of the public, who 25 came forth today to give their testimony based on their

1 experience and the experiences of their constituencies
 2 regarding these continued barriers and how we can work
 3 together to address them, particularly as our Congress 4 considers a new voting rights amendments act of 2014.
 5 So once, again, we want to thank all of our 6 supporters, our steering committee, or co-sponsors on 7 behalf of the staff and community served by the 8 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights of the San 9 Francisco Bay Area and the Lawyers' Committee for Civil 10 Rights Under Law, the National Lawyers' Committee, for 11 all of your efforts and all of your support to make 12 this event, this important and critical hearing to 13 happen today. Thank you, again. And have a wonderful 14 day. Thank you.

2 MS. TALMAGE: Good morning, everyone. My name is 3 Connie Talmage. I'm the executive director of the Colorado
4 Lawyers' Committee. I'm delighted to welcome you here today
5 to the Colorado and New Mexico State Hearing for the 6 Commission on Voting Rights. We are pleased to be a 7 co-sponsor of this event with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil 8 Rights and the Law.

9 I did want to tell you who the other sponsors are 10 of this event. Colorado's Common Cause, the Elections Task 11 Force of the Lawyers' Committee, the Legal Center for People 12 with Disabilities and Older People, Common Cause of New 13 Mexico, the University of Denver Sturm College of Law, and 14 last but certainly not least, the Sweetser Law Firm

15 I would like to give a special thank-you to two 16 people who have worked tirelessly here in Colorado to help set 17 up this event.

18 Elizabeth Steele, would you please take a bow?

19 (Applause.)

20 MS. TALMAGE: And Dan Sweetser, would you please 21 take a bow?

22 (Applause.)

23 MS. TALMAGE: Thank you. And I think that's really 24 all I have to say.

25 Now it is my pleasure to introduce to you Chris

1 Melody Fields. Chris is the manager of Legal Mobilization and 2 Strategic Campaigns. Say that fast three times

3 MS. FIGUEREDO: You stole my line.

4 MS. TALMAGE: I'm sorry. You can say it again, 5 because I'm not certain that I didn't stumble on it.

6 For the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under 7 Law in Washington, DC. Welcome, Chris.

8 MS. FIGUEREDO: Thank you, Connie, so much for that 9 introduction, and for thanking our partner organizations.
10 It's always really great to be able to work with one of our 11 local affiliates.

12 Connie's been certainly a great leader in the state 13 of Colorado, and we appreciate everything that she does.

14 Good afternoon. Buenas tardes. On behalf of the 15 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, I would love to 16 thank you, and also welcome you to the Colorado and New Mexico
17 hearing for the National Commission on Voting Rights.

18 As Connie mentioned, my name is Chris Melody Fields 19 Figueredo. I'm the manager of Legal Mobilization and 20 Strategic Campaigns at the Lawyers' Committee.

21 Besides being an incredibly long title, essentially 22 I'm not a lawyer; I just play one on TV. But I'm the chief 23 organizer for the Lawyers' Committee.

24 I want to thank the Sturm College of Law here at the 25 University of Denver for hosting us, for giving us the

1 opportunity to have this discussion of what I think we all 2 believe in this room is one of the most fundamental pillars of 3 our democracy, the right to vote.

4 Today's hearing in Denver is the ninth in a series 5 of hearings we're having all across the country that are being 6 convened by the Commission.

7 As many of you may know, last summer the Supreme 8 Court handed us a wonderful decision -- and I mean that 9 completely ironically -- striking down a very key provision of 10 the voting rights act, a provision that protected many voters 11 from discriminatory voting practices.

12 The Court released states, who have a troubling 13 history of voting discrimination, from critical notice and 14 procedure before they move forward with those voting changes.
15 The Court found that the requirement was outdated, and no 16 longer related to the current needs. I'm pretty sure they're 17 wrong, and we'll learn that today.

18 The Lawyers' Committee felt it was incredibly 19 important -- and we actually started to talk about this before 20 the Supreme Court decision -- to convene hearings across the 21 country to look at the current record of voting 22 discrimination. So we're having hearings all across the 23 country that include all 50 states and the District of 24 Columbia.

25 In addition today, we're also going to hear about

1 election administration issues and election reform.

2 One of the reasons I put Colorado together in my 3 thinking of the larger hearings is, you know, Colorado and New 4 Mexico have been really leaders in the voting rights community 5 of working in nonpartisan coalitions to improve elections and 6 advance the franchise, so I thought it was very fitting to put 7 both states together.

8 The issues that we're going to talk about today will 9 be very critical as we move forward in advocacy and trying to 10 improve our elections. The testimony given today and through 11 all of our hearings will be put into the record, and the 12 National Commission will be issuing two reports, one that 13 focuses on voting discrimination, and the second that focuses 14 on election administration and electoral reform.

15 And later this year these reports will be made 16 available to the public for policymakers, advocates like 17 ourselves, and the voting public so they can look at the state 18 of voting in both states.

19 Now I would love to introduce our illustrious panel 20 of Commissioners, each of them who has a deep commitment to 21 protecting access to the ballots, and making sure that 22 everyone has an opportunity to vote.

23 Dr. Lonna Atkeson from the University -- excuse me.
24 I'm starting to lose my voice -- of New Mexico, Dede Feldman, 25 who's a former state senator in New Mexico, Rosemary Harris

1 Lytle, president of the Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming NAACP
2 state conference. And our de facto chair, John Zakhem, who is 3 the president of the Zakhem Law Firm.

4 So the Commissioners, their role is to preside over 5 the hearing. They'll be taking the testimony from our two 6 formal witness panels, asking followup questions so we have a 7 good record of what the state of voting is in both states.

8 A few housekeeping items. For those of you who are 9 not formal witnesses and would like to talk about your voting 10 experiences, if you'd go out to the registration table there 11 are index cards. If you haven't already filled it out 12 already, put your name, your first name and your last name, 13 and what topic you would like to speak about. You'll have 14 three minutes to speak.

15 The Commissioners will call you. You can come speak 16 up front. If you have a very loud, booming voice you can 17 speak from where you are. You'll have three minutes to speak.
18 And that will come after the formal testimony.

19 Also, rest rooms. This is about a four-hour 20 hearing, although we'll try to wrap early if we can, 21 especially since we started a little late. I think we can get 22 it done. There are rest rooms right out through the hall to 23 the left right past the elevators. Both men and women's rest 24 rooms are together.

25 The hearing is being transcribed over here by our

1 fantastic court reporter. So if you are giving testimony 2 please speak loudly and clearly so she can make sure that she 3 records your testimony correctly.

4 Also, we have sign language interpreters here today.
5 If you are social media savvy we were using two hash tags, 6 NCVR or Voting Rights to talk about the hearing, so those of 7 us who are not here present can talk about, be up to date in 8 the conversation.

9 Also the hearing is being recorded, and we are live 10 streaming as well. So fix your hair real quick.

11 And then finally, after the event there will be a 12 reception just down the hall. We welcome everybody to attend 13 that. Thank you so much Colorado Lawyers' Committee for 14 making sure that happens.

15 I know that Connie thanked some folks, but I wanted 16 to do some personal thank-yous as well. I certainly could not 17 have done this without a fantastic group of partners. Thank 18 you so much to Connie and Lisa Prado from the Colorado
19 Lawyers' Committee.

20 Thanks to the members of the Elections Task Force of 21 the Colorado Lawyers' Committee. Two former colleagues and 22 friends, Elizabeth Steele and Elena Nunez from Colorado Common 23 Cause. Another former colleague and friend, Vickie Harrison 24 of the Common Cause of New Mexico, Jennifer Levin of the Legal 25 Center for People with Disabilities and Older People, and Dan

1 Sweetser from the Sweetser law firm, thank you so very very 2 much for everything you guys did to make today possible.

3 So with that, I want to thank our Commissioners 4 again. I want to thank our witnesses. I turn it over to the 5 Commissioners for opening remarks.

6 MR. ZAKHEM: I think we'll start alphabetically.
7 Dr. Atkeson, if you'd make your opening remarks, three 8 minutes.

9 DR. ATKESON: Over my entire life I've been excited
10 and interested in elections and governing. And frankly, I 11 think it's hardwired into my DNA because it happened so young.

12 Elections are like rock concerts to me. I think I 13 said that to some of the staff earlier. And I spent my entire 14 life participating and observing them. So I was deeply 15 honored to have been selected as a commissioner as this public 16 hearing focuses on voting rights, and that I get to play a 17 central role in this very important hearing which seeks 18 information.

19 The work of this Commission is central to the 20 ongoing collection of data about the state of voting rights
21 and election administration in both New Mexico and Colorado.
22 And the collection analysis of data is a key feature in our 23 country's ongoing efforts to have well run, accessible, and 24 efficient elections for all voters.

25 It is through the examination of data that we can

1 truly have a scientific understanding of our election 2 processes and where and how they are succeeding and/or 3 failing; therefore, I have always strongly advocated for a 4 data driven approach to election reform.

5 Over the past eight years I have been especially 6 working with Bernalillo County and County Clerk Maggie
7 Toulouse Oliver in a joint academic local election official 8 project to continue to assess and reform our election process 9 year after year based upon a data driven approach.

10 This project has produced much fruit. And the 11 citizens of Bernalillo County in particular, and in New Mexico 12 more broadly, have benefitted from the openness and innovation 13 of Maggie Toulouse Oliver.

14 Most recently during our election observations in 15 the mayoral election in Albuquerque I was approached by a poll
16 worker while observing the process. And he told me how much 17 he appreciated all the work we did, and how he really feels 18 more confident in the election process in New Mexico because 19 he's been a poll worker over the last ten years and he's seen 20 how much has changed, and what a difference it's made to the 21 citizens of New Mexico, especially Bernalillo County.

22 His point and the point that I want to make here is 23 that our efforts in collecting data and using data to 24 continually reform and reflect on the process is critically 25 important to the ongoing efforts, and what we're going to do

1 in the 2014 midterm elections.

2 Thank you.

3 MR. ZAKHEM: Thank you.

4 Senator Feldman?

5 MS. FELDMAN: Thank you. Well, this is two New 6 Mexicans in a row. I don't know how much you can take here.

7 We bring greetings from the south. And I want to 8 thank you for having these hearings. It's a real matter of 9 importance to us in New Mexico.

10 We are, as you know, a majority minority state 11 where we have a majority of all of our minorities put 12 together, Hispanics, Native Americans, and a number of others, 13 a number of African Americans, Laotians, all kinds of people 14 thrown together in what we call the land of enchantment.

15 So I am a former New Mexico state senator. I was in 16 the New Mexico senate for 16 years, elected five times. So 17 I've been through, in a very real sense, I've been through the 18 election process as a candidate five times, and of course been 19 through it many more times. That's just myself with the 20 others that I have supported and opposed.

21 So, you know, one of the things that I found out in 22 serving in the New Mexico senate -- and I just recently wrote
23 a book about that called Inside the New Mexico Senate, Boots, 24 Suits, and Citizens. And those are three of the major players 25 in the New Mexico senate and New Mexico legislature.

1 And one of the things I found out is that, while we 2 would like to say that data drives our reforms, quite often 3 it's politics that drives our reforms and drives our changes.

4 So it was in 2003 in New Mexico when in the 5 aftermath of the Gore v Bush election and Supreme Court 6 decision, New Mexico decided to go to paper ballots rather 7 than the old Shouptronic machines that we were relying upon up 8 until that.

9 This was at great expense to the state because we 10 had just purchased a lot of these electronic voting machines, 11 so here was a decision though that came through the 12 legislature that was really advocated by a lot of citizens who 13 were not happy with what happened in the 2000 election in 14 Florida and elsewhere.

15 So that's just one of the lessons I learned in the 16 New Mexico legislature. You know, and I'm not sure how much 17 you all -- and perhaps we're going to get into this a little 18 bit more today -- know about New Mexico in comparison to 19 Colorado and some of the other states.

20 But New Mexico's legislature has been controlled by 21 the Democratic party for the past 30 years with the exception 22 of one year. But now we have a divided government. We've 23 often had a divided government in the past with a Republican 24 governor and a Democratic legislature.

25 And we do not have statewide voter ID requirement in 1 New Mexico. That, again, has been something that the 2 legislature has resisted mostly on behalf of minority voters.

3 And we yet, you know, we do have I think a somewhat cumbersome
4 process of voter registration. We do not have same day voter 5 registration, and it can be a little difficult. Perhaps we'll 6 get into that here.

7 But the cities, of course, have -- some of them do 8 have different processes for elections than the counties and 9 the state. So some of those have voter ID requirements, photo 10 voter ID requirements.

11 Anyway, I want to thank everyone for coming out 12 today, especially with this snow. I think it was a surprise 13 to all of us from New Mexico who envy you Coloradans. Snow 14 and moisture seems to stop at the state line.

15 We're in a severe drought, so coming here for 16 something like this is really quite amazing. Thank you.

17 MR. ZAKHEM: Ms. Harris Lytle?

18 MS. LYTTLE: Thank you, thank you. It's an honor to 19 be here. I'm Rosemary Harris Lytle, president of the NAACP
20 Colorado, Montana, Wyoming state conference.

21 Our state conference coordinates the activities of 22 23 charter NAACP units in our three states. And we help to 23 carry out our national NAACP strategic game changer initiative 24 in education, in criminal justice, in health, economic and 25 climate justice, and of course in civic engagement and voting

1 rights.

2 I am a journalist by profession who, after that 3 career was done, worked in communications for organizations
4 like the ACLU of Colorado and the National Office of 9 to 5, a 5 national association of working women.

6 The first time that I participated in a political 7 campaign, or anything that could be described as political, 8 was when my grandmother decided that she would volunteer on 9 the campaign of Gary, Indiana's first African American, 10 Richard Gordon Hatcher.

11 I went with her from door to door and from church to 12 church. What she talked about most was democracy. So as we 13 advocate in the NAACP for full voting rights, for full access 14 to voting rights for all people, it's about what my big mama 15 talked about, and that is full access to democracy.

16 The NAACP is celebrating this year its 105th
17 anniversary. And our oldest unit in the Colorado, Montana, 18 Wyoming state conference will mark 100 years of civil rights 19 advocacy this year.

20 We are intimately connected with these issues even 21 today in the model of those on whose shoulders we stand, 22 concerned about changes that particularly affect people of 23 color even in our own three states, concerned about sudden 24 changes, concerned about misinformation like robo calls that 25 say, Don't forget to vote on Wednesday, or information that

1 says, You can't vote in Colorado if you owe anyone child 2 support.

3 We know those things not to be true. So we work to 4 make sure that voters know their own rights, and that all of 5 us are connected to the process.

6 In Colorado we're proud to have been a strong 7 advocate of legislation last year that enabled 16 and 17 year 8 olds to register to vote, pre-register, pre-registration to 9 vote.

10 We believe that early engagement, as in my 11 grandmother's model, makes for a better and stronger 12 democracy. And knowing the rights of voters early will ensure 13 that, in the future, in the future we will have people who are 14 all vigilant about these issues.

15 Thank you so much.

16 MR. ZAKHEM: Thank you. Well, we saved Z for last.
17 I'm used to going last. I was always last to recess, last to 18 lunch. It was rough.

19 I as well got an early start in politics. My dad, 20 when I was a little kid, ran for statewide office here in 21 Colorado right after becoming a US citizen.

22 It was fun to watch a guy whose third language was 23 English talking in Spanish, which was a new language to him, 24 in southwest Denver running as a Republican, and actually 25 beating the incumbent minority leader in the Watergate era.

1 So I've seen a lot of politics happen in my life.
2 And when I became a lawyer I got engaged right away as an 3 advocate.

4 I do a lot of the lecture and law campaign finance
5 work. In Colorado it's tough to cross aisles when you're a 6 worker bee like I am, so I work for Republicans.

7 And one of the first things that I did, had the 8 fortune of doing, was getting recruited to the Colorado Lawyer
9 Committee election task force by Connie Talmage.

10 I quickly learned how important it is for 11 professionals to come together in an objective manner, 12 discussing the law with elected officials, with the Secretary 13 of State's office, with professors talking about data, as 14 Dr. Atkeson was talking about, on how to best manage 15 elections, and meet our common goal of ensuring that those who 16 are entitled to vote have the ability to do so, and that that 17 vote is counted accurately and reported accurately and 18 efficiently at a reasonable cost to the citizens of the 19 jurisdiction in which they're voting.

20 Now, the reality is there's no such thing as a 21 perfect election. Believe me, I know. I've litigated many of 22 them. I have done voting contests, petition challenges, 23 redistricting litigation at the state and federal level, taken 24 cases on redistricting all the way to the United States 25 Supreme Court.

1 If I am certain of one thing for sure, it is that 2 there's no such thing as the perfect election. That doesn't 3 mean that it is not incumbent upon us as Americans, who 4 invented this system of democracy and have expanded the notion 5 of civic franchise beyond any other place on the face of this 6 world, to continually strive to improve it for all of those 7 who live here.

8 I think that's the common bond and interest that 9 brings us all together, and I look forward to all of our 10 participation today in looking at Colorado and New Mexico, and 11 how we can improve the system of voting and counting that 12 we're looking at in the next few hours.

13 Thank you all for participating. With that we will 14 call our first witness. It is, please, Ms. Ariel Bickel, 15 owner of the Chispa Consulting, formally with New Mexico Vote
16 Matters.

17 She'll be speaking on the issue of language access 18 for Spanish speaking voters.

19 MS. BICKEL: All right. Thank you so much.

20 Well, good afternoon, everyone. I'm extremely 21 excited and honored to be here and share with you the 22 firsthand knowledge that I have about voting access issues
23 from my work in New Mexico.

24 I am originally a Coloradoan. I grew up just north 25 of here in Denver -- in Loveland, excuse me, north of Denver.

1 So excited to be back. It's changed a lot.

2 But New Mexico has become my new home. I've been 3 there about a decade. And my background is actually in 4 advocacy. Started out here in Colorado, lived for 16 years in 5 Durango doing advocacy work particularly in the immigrant race 6 community and working with mostly Mexican nationals, but in 7 general the Latino population, which, now that I live in New 8 Mexico, we say Hispanic.

9 So moving to New Mexico in the southwest, really 10 being surprised at the differences as well as the similarities 11 between Colorado and New Mexico in voting, voting access, 12 attitude towards and also participation of, as Senator Feldman 13 referred to minority majority state, majority minority state 14 as they call it.

15 And there's a whole different feeling, as far as my 16 experience, to the entitlement to participation, understanding 17 the system, and the demand of participation, particularly in 18 Spanish speaking communities.

19 We have folks who can trace their ancestry back 3-, 20 4-, 500 years who speak Spanish, and then we have a whole new 21 wave of immigrants who speak Spanish. So elections become 22 really interesting when we start talking about language 23 access.

24 So what I prepared today is a presentation on 25 language access. I will make a reference to disability access

1 in my case study, although I am not even going to claim to be 2 an expert working in that community.

3 And hopefully I'll give you a little bit of an 4 insight of what my experience in the field has been and what I 5 have heard over the years working with folks on this.

6 So my title, Why aren't these people voting and what 7 we should be doing about it, conventional assumption, voters 8 don't vote because they're apathetic or they just don't care.

9 Now, a lot of what I'm saying today I want it to be 10 clear I think are challenges to voting access across the 11 board. And they're challenges in our urban areas, not just 12 rural, not just low income, not just Hispanic.

13 But these are the communities particularly I worked 14 with in 2012. So I just want to say I think this is a 15 statement frankly that I've heard in general.

16 So basically my next slide, my next comment is that 17 really voters know exactly why they're not voting. They may 18 not even realize it, but they know. They're mad. They have 19 been disenfranchised, they're hopeless, it's just too 20 difficult, it's really challenging either because of language 21 or time or lifestyle, whatever it is.

22 But one thing that's so exciting about this kind of 23 a hearing is that I think we know what a lot of the challenges 24 are, but maybe sometimes we're overlooking the really basic 25 obvious kind of challenges that we're facing.

1 And so what this is -- I'm going to back up. This 2 is a woman. I'm going to be talking about a case study from 3 Chaparral, New Mexico, on the Otero County side.

4 It is a town unincorporated way down in the southern 5 regions of New Mexico often overlooked, and really surrounded 6 by a big swath of desert.

7 This is one of the voters on the Dona Ana County 8 side, great county clerk, a team that's very concerned about 9 enfranchisement. On the Otero County side, it was very 10 different.

11 And I was in the trenches that night on election 12 night in 2012, and experienced some really disheartening 13 things.

14 (Video.)

15 MS. BICKEL: I apologize for the really poor quality 16 of that video, but I think it tells a very "impactful" story
17 that I heard over and over and over.

18 Somehow we just got them out of order.

19 So I put a lot of text in my slides. I'm not going 20 to go over all of it. I have a pdf version that I'm happy to 21 share with you folks. But I really wanted to get some points 22 in there. And these aren't even an exhaustive list.

23 I think we make a lot of common assumptions about 24 Hispanic, Spanish speakers, any minority, about voting, 25 particularly if they're rural areas or low income areas, even

1 in urban centers.

2 And I will say that being an advocate for many years
3 I only came to voting rights and election law in 2007 when I
4 served as a legislative analyst in New Mexico at our round 5 house, our state capital, on the voters and elections
6 committee.

7 And the light bulb went off for me. It was a 60-day 8 session. And after about 30 days in I said, Oh, my God. This 9 is the basis of everything.

10 And as an advocate it had never really been 11 explained to me. And I had never really talked to people in 12 the field about it.

13 What I found out, when I started talking to all 14 these people, they were extremely concerned, they were 15 extremely fired up; they all have a story to tell about being 16 turned away because they refused a translator, or they don't 17 have access, or there aren't any forms that they can 18 understand.

19 When, based upon the events that happened in 2012 a 20 bunch of disenfranchised in Chaparral, we went to actually 21 give testimony in the 2013 legislative session. Our secretary 22 of state, who is still currently secretary of state, as well
23 as some legislators said, Well, only a couple hundred people 24 didn't get to vote so it's not really that big a deal.

25 And that's the attitude that I find particularly

1 with minority groups, Spanish speakers, rural and low income
2 communities.

3 So, you know, voters report a lot of different 4 issues. But mainly it's intimidating. And we're not 5 educated. We're not talking.

6 I had a gentleman, a DJ, played at our early vote 7 rally in Anthony, New Mexico, another tiny town way down by 8 Texas on the New Mexico border said, Nobody's ever come to my 9 town to talk to me about voting. Please come back during the 10 next election.

11 If you'd been here in 2008 when they asked me for my 12 ID even though I speak English and even though -- and again, 13 these are Hispanics that I work with largely -- even though I 14 had my ID and I speak English I was asked for my ID. I was 15 harassed at the polls, and I left because it was too 16 intimidating and it wasn't worth it.

17 I heard the story countless times, not just in 18 Chaparral, but lots of places.

19 So jumping from Chaparral to Otero County case 20 study.

21 So administratively there was some, certainly some 22 issues going on there. Also election code violations. It's 23 written very clearly in our statute in our election code that 24 each precinct must have its own polling, its rolls, it's got 25 to have its own place to check in for voters. They were

1 combined. Just a whole bunch of stuff going on.

2 All Anglo workers with almost all Hispanic voters, 3 no Spanish translators. They sent down a couple from the 4 county clerk's for a couple of minutes, but it was not 5 sufficient.

6 Folks were being told election protection agents 7 such as myself, or even family members or friends were not 8 allowed to translate for them.

9 So here's the line when we showed up. We went to 10 Chaparral, the election protection team, probably got there at 11 3:30 in the afternoon. We didn't leave until 11:00 that 12 night.

13 This is the line as it's starting to grow. It wraps
14 all the way around the fire station. This is maybe 7:30, 15 8 o'clock at night. Here's an election protection guy marking 16 the last voter in line so we can make sure she gets to vote.
17 This wraps all the way, in and around.

18 This is only after dark they moved out the fire 19 trucks from the bay and finally let people -- we passed out 20 pizza, fruit, muffins, water, just to keep them to stand in 21 line. People had their kids there with them. They'd been 22 there for hours.

23 Here's a picture. We had no fewer than ten, maybe a 24 dozen sheriff's deputies showed up. They put crime scene tape 25 between the election protection workers and the voters and

1 then proceeded to stay and stand around.

2 They probably had six to eight big Blazers, 3 sheriff's cruisers plus cars. According to them they were 4 keeping the peace.

5 People were standing in line waiting to vote, that 6 was it. They wouldn't let us talk to them, they wouldn't let 7 us hand out chairs. They didn't want us giving water, 8 nothing.

9 So a bunch of external challenges. And, you know, 10 again, you can read through it but, you know, from the whole
11 life cycle of voting, particularly if you're a Spanish 12 speaker, we don't have -- we do have our registration forms in 13 Spanish, but people do not always carry them.

14 We don't have enough folks who are voter 15 registration agents, poll workers, poll watchers, precinct 16 judges who speak Spanish or a Native American dialect or 17 something else that are working the polls, and more 18 importantly, guarding and protecting the vote.

19 The entire life cycle we're having a lack of 20 reaching out, doing education, and asking these folks from 21 these other communities to get engaged.

22 So internally there's certainly some discriminatory 23 attitude; there absolutely is, even in New Mexico where it's 24 assumed if you speak Spanish you must be illegal.

25 And we actually have had some witch hunts happening

1 over the last couple of years with Hispanic voters, pulling
2 files of names of Hispanic voters and assuming, putting them 3 on a watch list that they're undocumented, and they're 4 illegally registered to vote.

5 Well, the results were it was false; it wasn't going 6 on. Maybe out of thousands of people that were pulled, maybe 7 three or four names showed up.

8 So there's a lot going on here. But what I wanted 9 to say, just to wrap up, proving people right as far as 10 Spanish language access, is that we really need to train and 11 employ people.

12 We, for our program, doing election protection and 13 voter registration, one of my activists in one of these small 14 communities said, I want to take a little bit of extra money 15 that we have and pay our poll watchers, place them in all of 16 these little towns surrounding the urban area at the polls, 17 and have our people watching.

18 And we did. And we didn't have people in Chaparral 19 until we raced over there later in the day. We did not have 20 problems in those polls for the first time in a long time, 21 they said.

22 People that were harassing those people, that had 23 been asking Spanish speaking voters for ID -- in fact, one 24 poll worker during early voting was actually let go.

25 And we have one of our poll watchers, a young woman

1 at a high school on election day, was approached by somebody 2 who said, We've been watching you guys. We know that you're 3 taking people to vote in a limo. Are you paying them?

4 So we knew that it was a boring election day in 5 those small rural Spanish speaking communities, probably we'd 6 like to think because they were out there watching.

7 So I think we can do more of that, training 8 community members, educating them, making sure that we are 9 putting out our resources in other languages.

10 And just some pictures of folks getting engaged.
11 I've got -- there's part of the team.

12 I'm happy to talk to anybody if they have any 13 questions. Thank you.

14 MR. ZAKHEM: Any questions from the Commission?
15 (Applause.)

16 DR. ATKESON: So what is the county clerk doing to 17 correct the problems here in 2014?

18 My understanding was that it was due to high 19 turnout. But that's the newspaper accounts. What's your 20 interpretation of why was the long lines? Was it high 21 turnout?

22 Are they breaking it out for 2014? What's the 23 administrative solution to it?

24 MS. BICKEL: Right. That's a really good question.

25 So I think the answer is yes to all of those. So

1 there was added high turnout in Chaparral particularly because 2 community activists had been educating on voter rights and 3 getting people registered to vote and turning them out.

4 So they're going very grassroots, and the 5 administration never saw that coming. They're used to a 6 couple hundred people showing up to vote. We had well over 7 6-, 7-, 800 people.

8 And they did not have an early voting place, even 9 though they'd asked for it. The closest early voting place is 10 85 miles away one way, so -- and when they asked the 11 commission for it -- we were talking to the county clerk -- an 12 early voting site had been denied that summer. So people only 13 had the option to go on election day.

14 So we lobbied in 2013, after the election, for an 15 early voting site. We got a lot of pushback. Now the county 16 clerk says that she's going to put a mobile site in the 17 county, and travel around to these more rural communities, and 18 we'll try it out for five days in Chaparral, a couple days 19 here, a couple days there and try and provide access.

20 I believe that's because of the testimony from the 21 activists from -- those communities gave in English and 22 Spanish during the election. It really raised the bar I 23 think, and made them realize these people are serious about 24 voting and that they're going to be engaging from now on.

25 MR. ZAKHEM: Was there any change in policy, prior

1 to the 2012 election, that resulted in the some of the 2 deficiencies or inefficiencies in the vote?

3 And has the election administration officials, 4 county clerk, been receptive to the complaints, and 5 acknowledged the shortcomings in order to rectify the 6 situation going forward?

7 MS. BICKEL: Well, I think as far as all the changes 8 to legislation and policies -- I'm not going to claim to be an 9 expert other than the areas I've dealt with. I know that the 10 early voting access has really really helped expand that.

11 I will say unfortunately on election day the county 12 clerk at the time and her assistant, who is now the county 13 clerk, maintained there wasn't any long lines and weren't any 14 problems. I would beg to differ. I was in the field.

15 MS. FELDMAN: Was this a consolidated precinct, 16 whereas where there had been two before now there was one?
17 Anything like that?

18 MS. BICKEL: It wasn't -- they were two different 19 precincts, but they still were supposed to have separate 20 lists.

21 MS. FELDMAN: Right, but they're under one group?

22 MS. BICKEL: They were being run together with one, 23 one setup.

24 I mean, physically administratively they had one 25 small table. They weren't connected lifetime. That's a huge

1 problem in these areas in New Mexico.

2 A lot of these places, they don't even have 3 broadband. They're technologically challenged beyond belief, 4 which is a huge problem for access, you know, across the 5 board.

6 So unfortunately in the beginning they weren't 7 really receptive. And what we're seeing change is that as 8 these people self-empower, and as they learn their voting 9 rights, and as they have resources and field people reaching 10 out to them to talk to them about voting -- and it doesn't 11 take much. It's like planting the seeds -- then they become 12 engaged and they push back or they ask for things and say, 13 Will you work with us?

14 I think the fact that the county clerk now is going 15 to do a mobile site for early voting means she's finally 16 hearing these communities want equal access.

17 MR. ZAKHEM: Thank you.

18 So next we have Jennifer Weddle. Jennifer? Who is 19 next? That's what's on my list. Who wants to go next?

20 STAFF: Anybody can be plugged in. I actually 21 thought we were going this way.

22 MR. ZAKHEM: Grace Lopez-Ramirez is next up. She's 23 a communication specialist for the SEIU, former Colorado State 24 Director for Mi Familia Vota.

25 Her issues will be language access for Spanish

1 speaking voters. So Grace, thank you for joining us.

2 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Sure. Thank you.

3 So SEIU stands for Service Employees International 4 Union. We obviously do a lot of -- well, maybe not obviously.
5 Not everyone may know, but we do a lot of get out the vote 6 work.

7 I've been doing election work with Latino voters for 8 a little over a decade now. I'm here to speak to you today on 9 behalf of ACCESO. I'm the chair of the committee for the 10 county clerk and recorder but I am, as John mentioned in my 11 introduction, the former state director for Mi Familia Vota, 12 a voter education participation campaign, which is a 501(c)(3)
13 organization that's been in Colorado since 2006 doing 14 nonpartisan voter registration or GOTV work -- get out the 15 vote work for those of you who are not familiar with the 16 acronym GOTV -- with Colorado's Latino communities.

17 So ACCESO, why are we here? So what is ACCESO?
18 ACCESO I should say is, I know it's all capitalized. Everyone 19 always thinks it's an acronym for something. But it's 20 actually the informal name of our committee obviously meaning 21 "access" in Spanish.

22 It's an election division with the primary goal of 23 providing guidance, Spanish language outreach, voting
24 materials, and increasing participation amongst Denver's
25 Spanish language voters. Not Latino, Spanish language voters.

1 Currently we have 17 community members serving in a 2 voluntary role. They're appointed by the county clerk and 3 recorder. I've been on the committee off and on since 2007.
4 I just recently became chair two months ago.

5 So ACCESO -- I'm sure everyone in this room knows we 6 are covered here in Denver County by the Federal Voting Rights
7 Act of '73 and the Section 203, which mandates that if more 8 than five percent or 10,000 people of the county's population
9 speak another language, that county then must provide voting 10 information and materials in that other language.

11 Here in Denver City and County, we reached that 12 threshold in 2002. And at that time Denver's election 13 division -- we've gone through a couple of forms of what 14 Denver elections really is.

15 At the time in 2002 we did set up this advisory 16 committee, but it was voluntary; it was not set in any kind 17 of, you know, any other way other than, Oh, you know, we 18 should probably do this in order to implement Section 203 in a 19 good way.

20 The advisory committee was, kind of went through all 21 these different formations and hiccups until finally in 2010 22 we decided that, in order to establish it as a permanent 23 advisory committee to Denver elections, we needed to do that 24 through a city ordinance, which we did in 2010. I believe 25 that is the first of its kind in the nation.

1 I was on the committee at the time. And we looked 2 at models that were being used in other counties across the 3 country that were falling under 203. And it just made the 4 most sense for us to establish it at the time through an 5 ordinance.

6 And again, I think we're the first ones then to do
7 it. In these last four years, who knows? There may be other 8 counties I might not be aware of have.

9 This is also interesting in the sense that here in 10 Colorado we at one point had eight to ten counties covered by 11 Section 203. We lost a number of those counties in the 2010
12 census and went down to three counties.

13 Denver is the only city and county that has this 14 kind of advisory board in the state of Colorado.

15 This is a map of Spanish speaking households in 16 Denver City and County. This map is made up with some data 17 information from the Denver public schools. It comes from 18 Denver public schools, this map.

19 You can see, you know -- obviously I know it's hard 20 to read. But the red is really the neighborhoods in the 21 Denver City and County where you have over a 22 thousand households that speak Spanish as their primary 23 language at home.

24 As you can see, it's mainly west Denver; not too far 25 from here. We're in University right now. And just west of 1 here if you go down Evans you're going to hit the Federal, the 2 south Federal corridor, which is where you have -- southwest

3 Denver, as John mentioned earlier as well when he was speaking 4 about his father, still has a large Spanish speaking 5 population.

6 We also have some in the north there Auraria, 7 Swansea, and then what we call the far northeast part of the 8 Denver County which is Green Valley Ranch neighborhood, 9 Montbello, and there's a couple of new neighborhoods up there 10 that I haven't unfortunately memorized their names.

11 But in any case, this just kind of shows you where 12 the Spanish speaking voters live in Denver County.

13 Spanish language access. Because of 203 and because 14 of the work that we've done in partnership with the Denver
15 Election Division -- and I want to thank Amber McReynolds
16 who's on the panel. She the director of Denver elections.

17 We worked so well in partnership. And we've been 18 able to provide, you know, all of the ballots, voting guides, 19 election signs, voting materials; everything is bilingual for 20 the Denver County.

21 Also the Denver Elections website is also completely 22 available in Spanish. And then all those translations are 23 done in partnership with our translation subcommittee of the 24 ACCESO board, which is chaired by a speaker from Peru, and a 25 naturalized citizen.

1 ACCESO also helps recruit bilingual election judges
2 and poll workers to make sure that every single voting center 3 has at least one bilingual election judge and poll worker. If 4 nothing else, at least in the voting centers that we know, are 5 going to have a large Spanish speaking voter population use 6 that voting center, you know.

7 In some elections I know we've had to allocate 8 resources. We have not been able to recruit all of the 9 election judges and poll workers that we ideally want. You 10 know, we've worked with Amber and her team to make sure that 11 those that we have are placed in the right places.

12 We get input on the location accessibility of voting
13 centers in the Spanish speaking voting community. Some of you 14 may have heard in the 2006 election we had some of the same 15 problems that Ariel was talking about as far as lines around 16 the door.

17 I can tell you as Mi Familia Vota at the time we 18 were also feeding people pizza and water in snow to try to 19 keep people in lines.

20 Thankfully, I think that since then we've had really 21 smooth elections; not perfect. I'll agree with you there's 22 never a perfect election. But definitely very very smooth 23 elections in the 2006 election cycle.

24 What else? Yeah. So we also recommend policies and 25 legislative positions, and we evaluate the voter outreach

1 perspective. Because one of the things that we as ACCESO do
2 is not just advocate for Spanish speaking voters and make sure 3 that all the, you know, everything is available in culturally 4 sensitive general elections, but also that, but we do voter 5 participation outreach.

6 We want to make sure that there's higher voter 7 participation among Spanish speaking voters in Denver County, 8 but that we as Denver County are supporting the right policies 9 and legislative initiatives that are going to continue to 10 enfranchise Spanish speaking voters.

11 Here in Colorado I think it was mentioned that House 12 Bill 1303 that passed through the state legislature last 13 year -- and there's a number of people in this room that had a 14 lot to do with crafting that bill and making sure it passed 15 through successfully.

16 We as ACCESO board recommended to the Denver county 17 clerk to support that bill because we thought it helped 18 enfranchise Spanish speaking voters.

19 This is just a sample of the bilingual ballot in 20 Denver. Everything is again English and Spanish.

21 Voter outreach. This is a pretty much the crux of 22 what we do as ACCESO. We conduct bilingual voter registration 23 in high traffic Latino community events.

24 We've actually been looking at really what is the 25 best bang for our buck as far as reaching Spanish speaking

1 voters. Much like New Mexico we have, you know, we have 2 Hispanic/Latino -- I'll use the words interchangeably -- 3 voters that have been here, you know, for four or five or six 4 generations.

5 That means they'll speak Spanish especially in the 6 south, southern part of our state, you know, that borders New 7 Mexico.

8 Funny. We also have an Otero County. When you were 9 saying it, Ariel was saying it I was, Is she talking about 10 our Otero County? Oh, no, it's a different Otero County. Our 11 Otero County in Colorado is in the south.

12 But in any case, traditionally, we've had booths for 13 Cinco de Mayo, (untranslated) which is a big event around 14 independence days of Native, excuse me, of South American 15 Countries, which is usually the middle of September.

16 Neighborhood and church festivals, Puerto Rican.
17 There's a large Puerto Rican festival here in Denver, even 18 though we don't have a large Puerto Rican population.

19 Then one of the biggest I think bangs for our buck 20 as far as outreach has been doing voter registration at 21 swearing in ceremonies for new citizens.

22 I think most of you know that nationalized citizens 23 vote at a higher rate than born in US citizens. So just 24 getting that information to them as soon as they become 25 citizens, getting them registered to vote literally minutes

1 after they've sworn an oath is really, we found a really great 2 way of educating Spanish speaking voters.

3 We also do work with high schools -- I didn't list 4 that there -- and in our primary areas of Denver County that 5 have large Spanish speaking populations.

6 We promote voting through a series of -- we usually 7 do all kinds of targeted communications to Spanish speaking
8 voters in partnership with UniVision and some of the Spanish 9 speaking radio stations.

10 You know, our committee members serve as guests on 11 different talk shows, like radio afternoon talk shows. Denver 12 public schools has a radio talk show called (untranslated), 13 which is three days a week, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and 14 Thursdays.

15 We pretty much before every election make sure that 16 one of our members is there talking about voting, talking 17 about the voting centers, and making sure that we are using 18 every single resource that we have in our community to get out 19 the word about voting and promoting civic engagement.

20 We also have some social media outreach. As far as 21 Facebook, unfortunately we don't have as many likes on there 22 as we'd like. So please like us. It's ACCESO is the name, 23 and again, it's all capitalized.

24 This little picture is actually us at the Puerto 25 Rico festival last year. We partnered with Mi Familia Vota,

1 which is again a (c)(3) nonpartisan organization because of 2 their voter registration drive number.

3 ACCESO doesn't have their own voter registration
4 drive number, so we've partnered with Mi Familia Vota.
5 Sometimes we do with NCLR as well, National Council of La 6 Raza.

7 The targeted precincts. This year, 2014, we're 8 really looking at specific precincts and increasing voter 9 participation in the larger Spanish speaking precincts in 10 Denver County.

11 You'll see that we identified seven precincts that 12 are kind of blown up a little bit so they're not as big as 13 they look like on this map in key neighborhoods in the Denver
14 metro area, in the Denver County that I mentioned earlier, 15 Auraria, Montbello, Gateway, and west Denver, the 16 neighborhoods of Westwood and Ruby Hill.

17 And then our goals this year are obviously 18 registering Spanish speaking Denver voters, educating Spanish 19 speaking voters on HB 1303, which was passed last year, which 20 allows for same day voter registration.

21 Green launching survey. At the end of 2012, after 22 that election we launched a voter survey to see how voters 23 were voting and how they got their information.

24 I'm being told to stop, but I'm going to take 25 another couple of seconds just to round this out as far as,

1 you know, we're also looking at increasing our voter
2 participation in the targeted precincts that I mentioned
3 earlier, which are right here, and then conducting Spanish 4 voter engagement again through the strategic communication.

5 Some extra resources. Denver County has a 311
6 hotline that is, that does have bilingual folks available, 7 agents, operators available if you have any questions.

8 Also the justvotecolorado dot org website which, you 9 know, many in this room have something to do with the Just 10 Vote Coalition. That website is very informative and has a 11 Spanish translation.

12 Then 1-888 VeyVota is a hotline, a national election
13 protection hotline by the National Association of Latino 14 Elected Officials. In the past couple of cycles we've 15 partnered with them as ACCESO but also Just Vote Colorado
16 Coalition to offer 1-888 VeyVota through our call centers here 17 in Colorado to ensure the Colorado voters are getting 18 bilingual election information, Spanish -- bilingual
19 information from people living here in Colorado.

20 The pictures, voting. We had a great voting party
21 last year where we promoted through UniVision and UniVision 22 radio had 50 community members come, explain the ballot to 23 them. We voted as a group together so that everyone 24 understood fully how to fill out their ballot.

25 And our county clerk here in Denver was able to join

1 us and that's the picture at the bottom.

2 You can find us on the web. Here's a couple of 3 websites, the Denver website in Spanish, ACCESO's website and 4 Facebook page, and then this is where you can reach me.

5 Thank you.

6 (Applause.)

7 MR. ZAKHEM: Any questions from the Commission?

8 MS. FELDMAN: Yes, I have a question.

9 What percentage of eligible Hispanic voters or 10 Latino voters in Colorado have a record of voting?

11 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: You know, I wouldn't know.

12 MS. FELDMAN: That certainly would be a good
13 statistic to have. I don't know.

14 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Yeah. I'm so sorry I don't have 15 that. I've been a little removed from this for the last year.

16 MS. FELDMAN: It might not be that easy to get. I 17 mean, you'd have to compare the Hispanic population over 18 18 with the number that are registered to vote, and then the 19 number of those registered voters that actually vote.

20 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: I mean, I think that we all know 21 probably anecdotally, but also the news reports after each of 22 the last big elections that Latino voters are participating in 23 higher levels every day because of some of the work that has 24 been done in the civic engagement infrastructure that I think 25 really is here in Colorado. We've been able to leverage so

1 many resources to make sure that young Latino voters are 2 voting and educated.

3 There's like a whole table of actually of folks that 4 actually go out and do voter registration in schools. And in 5 big election years there's kind of like a fight like, No, 6 that's my high school. I'm sorry, like, You can't come to my 7 high school 'cause I already do voter registration here, and 8 it's voter registration.

9 I think there's a lot of resources here. I would 10 say, I would think those numbers have increased 11 exponentially -- maybe not exponentially, but have increased 12 in every election.

13 MS. FELDMAN: Well, I think that the conventional 14 wisdom is the Hispanic population is growing and so therefore 15 the number of voters is growing and will grow in future
16 elections.

17 But seems like without a baseline calculation, you 18 know, how do you measure, how do you measure progress I guess 19 would be my question.

20 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: For us I can tell you with 21 ACCESO, our work plan for this year is identifying the 22 targeted precincts. We know many of those voters voted in the 23 last three elections and how many more we want to vote, right?

24 I mean, so we have measurements very --

25 MS. FELDMAN: You're looking at people that are

1 registered already? Or not?

2 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Well --

3 MS. FELDMAN: Or population of the precincts?

4 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: -- precincts already registered 5 to vote, and increasing voter participation among those 6 already registered in those precincts.

7 Do we still conduct voter registration with a target 8 of those precincts? Yes. We're still doing voter 9 registration outreach.

10 But the way we chose those precincts was based on 11 the low turnout.

12 MR. ZAKHEM: Ms. Lytle?

13 MS. LYTTLE: Yes. I thought about this question 14 during the last presenter, but I do want to ask this.

15 I know, I recognize this forum is about elections
16 and voting, but I also want to concentrate on that word 17 democracy.

18 Grace, what are you seeing in terms of Latinos, 19 Hispanics, moving from voting to fuller participation in the 20 way of becoming candidates or managers of campaigns?

21 I find that the, and even anecdotally I'd like to 22 hear, I find that voting is that first step in our true
23 democracy. But developing, identifying candidates for office 24 and then running them in credible campaigns often has been 25 shown to up numbers, especially within affinity groups if you

1 will.

2 Can you speak to whether or not there's any work
3 being done through ACCESO or other organizations with that 4 work of developing candidates for office?

5 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Here in Colorado there is -- so
6 I mentioned earlier the National Association of Latino Elected 7 Officials. I know that they have some training programs at 8 the national level.

9 Here locally we have a number of Latino leadership 10 training organizations focused on young Latino women, some 11 focused on, you know, other aspects of leadership.

12 I think that directly to your question an 13 organization called Colorado Latino Forum, a (c)(4) 14 organization, they began in I want to say December of 2008 to 15 kind of pull together Latino community leaders from across the 16 state and say, Besides increased voter registration, besides 17 increasing voter education within the Latino community, how 18 can we make sure that we are getting more civic engagement, 19 that we're recruiting folks to run from our own communities.

20 And so they started a campaign training for folks
21 that want to run for office, but also folks that want to run 22 campaigns that are Latino.

23 It's annual in the spring. It's a weekend long so 24 it's not, you know, I think intensive enough. But I think at 25 least it's like the first door opening for folks that are

1 interested and just don't know where to plug in.

2 I've spoken at that training before. I know a 3 number of folks have. So I think there is a place there.

4 We have a growing Latino elected official group here
5 in Colorado. I know you know my good friend State Senator 6 Jesse Ulibarri, who ran in Adams County.

7 I know at Mi Familia Vota we did voter turnout work 8 in that district. And I think that there was like an 9 emotional, Oh, I know the Ulibarris. I know that family. Of 10 course I'm going to go out and vote for Jesse.

11 You know, and it wasn't about parties or anything.
12 It was about recognizing somebody on the ballot or recognizing 13 a name similar to yours.

14 I think there are lots of resources here in 15 Colorado. I think there needs to be an extension of that.

16 MS. LYTTLE: There are some perfect elections, and 17 perfect elections yield candidates for the future. They're 18 done right so that someone says, who hasn't said it before, I 19 would like to have my name on this ballot. I'd like to run 20 for office.

21 So there are perfect elections and they yield 22 candidates for office in the future.

23 Thanks for that information. I appreciate it.

24 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Thank you.

25 MR. ZAKHEM: Grace, your picture how Latinos are

1 enfranchised in Denver County is much different than Otero 2 County in New Mexico.

3 And it seems to me, based on what Ariel was talking 4 about in terms of efforts not being as fruitful in registering 5 voters, voter protection, getting the participation level that 6 we're enjoying here in Denver, is based in part on the 7 resources that are deployed toward that effort.

8 We saw the pictures of get out the vote efforts, 9 voter registration at naturalization ceremonies.

10 Where are all those resources coming from in Denver, 11 and why aren't they being deployed in New Mexico?

12 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Well, I can tell you when we 13 established ACCESO through the city ordinance in 2010, we then 14 acquired some staffing resources from Denver elections.

15 That's in the form of a wonderful wonderful woman 16 named Tina Romero, who continues to like make sure our 17 meetings are as effective as possible; that, you know, makes 18 sure that we are all plugged in with information from Amber 19 and her team. So we do have some staff resources.

20 But actually all the work and all the outreach and 21 everything that I kind of went through right now is all 22 volunteer based; it's all through the committee and working 23 with partner organizations that are 501 (c)(3) organizations.

24 MR. ZAKHEM: Who's funding the (c)(3)s?

25 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: I think it's a network group,

1 right? Some of them are getting large grants at the national 2 level. Some are getting statewide foundation grants, Denver 3 foundation, a number of places.

4 But, you know, frankly it's more time than anything
5 else. Like the Puerto Rico festival was a three day festival
6 outside at the end of June.

7 You know, and so how much does it cost to buy a case
8 of water? You know, I don't know, three or four bucks, throw 9 it in the cooler. I happen to have, you know, you know, a 10 little tent at home that I can bring, and a foldout six footer 11 that I bought at Costco and we have our banner and we have 12 our, you know, our information and we have our knowledge, high 13 propensity voters out there you know, educating our Spanish 14 speaking voters about the process.

15 So I think it's want, like it's people wanting to do 16 the work, to having the support of the Denver -- of your 17 clerk, and we have that support with Denver county clerk and 18 the Denver elections division.

19 And I think just making sure that everything is in 20 partnership. Like, you know, before we set our ordinance, I 21 know there was a number of ACCESO members that really thought 22 that they were just kind of flailing around; that we really 23 green

24 Didn't have the support of Denver elections.

25 And once we sat down together, wrote the ordinance

1 together, started planning elections together for Spanish
2 speaking voters, that made all the difference.

3 And it sounds from Ariel, from your experience in 4 case studies, there was no communication really. And for us 5 there's constant communication.

6 And we meet monthly. And Amber and the county clerk 7 come to our monthly meetings, so they've made it a priority as 8 well.

9 MR. ZAKHEM: Thank you.

10 (Applause.)

11 MR. ZAKHEM: Our next presenter is going to be 12 Jennifer Weddle. She's the chair of the Colorado Indian Bar 13 Association, an attorney at Greenburg Traurig. She's going to 14 be talking about language access for Native American voters.

15 Thank you, Jennifer. Good to see you. She's also 16 a member of our Colorado Lawyers' Election Task Force.

17 I'm going to point out for the benefit of everybody
18 here, in particular to keep me in Connie's good graces, there 19 is a timer over here.

20 When she waves at you with a sign and it says, Stop, 21 it means shut up.

22 MS. LOPEZ-RAMIREZ: Are you referring to me because 23 I went last? I didn't even notice where I was until I was at 24 the two minute mark.

25 STAFF: I'll give you five minutes, three minute,

1 and then one minute, and then stop.

2 MS. WEDDLE: Why do I have to be the one?

3 Good afternoon, everyone. Great to be here with 4 you. I'm Jennifer Weddle. I co-chair of the Greenburg
5 Traurig American Indian law practice at the Denver office here
6 in Colorado.

7 And for the last ten years I have served as the 8 Native vote election protection coordinator for the National 9 Congress of American Indians here in Colorado.

10 NCAI is really the national intertribal
11 organization, kind of like the UN for tribes. I've had that 12 Native vote role since 2004.

13 Part of my work has also been working with the 14 election task force and with John, Connie, and Dan Sweetser, 15 who have been completely amazing colleagues. And with their 16 guidance and support we've actually been able to do some 17 really amazing things in Colorado in advancing protections for 18 Native voters.

19 The Native vote election protection project is the 20 umbrella organization that I work for, and has really three 21 primary goals. That's to ensure that every Native voter who's 22 eligible to vote was able to vote, and that their vote was 23 fairly counted, and to provide general voting legal assistance
24 to voters in their Native communities.

25 The catalyst for that program is very similar to 1 what the previous speakers were talking about in terms of 2 increased voter participation in the community.

3 I brought some slides today, which have a lot of 4 pictures. You'll see random pictures of my kids. But I'm a 5 very visual person, so you're going to see some pictures.

6 The Native vote has become more and more active in 7 recent years, and it's been credited in determining outcomes
8 in a number of very high profile elections including Senator 9 Maria Cantwell's election in Washington, Senator Tim Johnson's 10 election in South Dakota, Governor Janet Nopalitano's victory 11 in Arizona to name just a few.

12 With that increased voter turnout has increased 13 awareness of the disenfranchisement issues the Native voters 14 face. In particular, the Native vote project has been 15 concerned with very restricted state laws that have the affect 16 of disenfranchising Native voters, poorly prepared or 17 culturally insensitive election officials, and purposeful 18 voter intimidation and/or confusion.

19 Very similar examples occur in Indian country to 20 some of what we heard from earlier panels. Election officials 21 who will come up to Indian voters and touch their hair and do 22 other very inappropriate things with them.

23 Instances of voter, purposeful misinformation being 24 deployed into Indian country, Vote or Thursday not Tuesday, 25 things like that, that we've tried to overcome.

1 This is a map of where reservations are in the 2 United States. All the gray shaded areas are reservations. I 3 always like to point out that we got all the cherry spots.

4 Native Americans and Alaskan Natives have endured a 5 particularly extended history of exclusion from the ballot 6 box, and unconscionable mistreatment.

7 It was not until 1924 that the United States
8 recognized an Indian right to vote in federal elections; 9 thereafter, it took nearly four decades for all 50 states to 10 recognize the right of American Indians to vote in state
11 elections.

12 Colorado recognized an Indian right to vote in 1936, 13 and New Mexico was the last state to enfranchise Native
14 Americans in 1962.

15 The diversity of languages spoken by Native voters
16 and the physical seclusion of those who reside in Indian 17 country exacerbate the acute disenfranchising effect of 18 discriminatory voting and election practices.

19 A single voting change, the closure of the only one 20 polling places in a village, for example, can make it 21 virtually impossible for an entire community to vote.

22 However, scarce resources for litigation,
23 particularly where the affected voters are very geographically 24 isolated or are very isolated because of their language, have 25 led to many laws that disenfranchised Native voters going

1 unchallenged.

2 In these pictures that's Santa Claws, C-l-a-w-s, if 3 any of you don't know it.

4 Within the Native vote project structure we worked 5 with Native American bar associations around the country, in 6 13 states with very significant Native populations, to really 7 work on our election protection efforts.

8 Colorado and New Mexico were both states among those 9 election protection efforts, and have been since 2004. The 10 level of that presence has varied by state.

11 The factors that were considered, like I said, in 12 choosing those states were the Native population, the level of 13 anticipated partisan activity, race is a special importance to 14 Indian country, and the ability to recruit the state's 15 coordination and volunteers.

16 In very heavily partisan areas where the Native vote 17 has had some demonstrated effect in being the swing vote 18 really in races, we've seen increasing partisan activity from 19 both parties coming out to Indian country and doing things 20 like following people to and from the polling place, taking 21 down their license plate numbers, stopping people, purporting 22 to stop people who were giving rides to folks on the 23 reservation who didn't have a car or didn't have a driver's 24 license and nonetheless wanted to get to the polls, and being 25 accused of some inappropriate activity in that regard.

1 So we've tried to do a massive educational effort, 2 and also working very closely with state officials to try to 3 preserve and protect the Native vote.

4 In Colorado, very very proud of the successful
5 efforts that we had. Tribal IDs are now regularly accepted
6 for all voting purposes in Colorado, and that's memorialized
7 in Colorado law, thank you, Judd Choate.

8 It's been a real pleasure over the course of ten 9 years working with our Secretary of State from both parties.
10 They've been extraordinarily open to hearing about Indian 11 country's concerns.

12 Tribal IDs have been traditionally a major 13 impediment because they haven't been accepted for voting
14 purposes in state elections in Colorado and elsewhere.

15 But in most Indian communities, tribal members don't 16 have state issued IDs. Here in Colorado, for example, the 17 closest place to get a state-issued ID is more than an hour 18 away from the Mountain Ute reservation, which is in a remote 19 area of southwest Colorado.

20 Subsequently, the tribe has purchased its own ID
21 hardware and software, and issues -- exactly the same hardware
22 and software that the State of Colorado uses, and offers 23 tribal members IDs that have all the same information as State 24 IDs: height, weight, eye color, an address, your tribal 25 enrollment number; in fact, it has more information than a

1 typical Colorado ID.

2 But those were nonetheless, in previous years, not 3 being accepted for voting purposes. We were able to work
4 through that initially with some HAVA alert, Help America Vote
5 Act alert, for county clerks to accept the IDs.

6 Then over the course of the last years have amended 7 the statute and regulations in Colorado so that tribal IDs are 8 now accepted as a matter of course for all voting purposes, 9 including registration. That's been really great.

10 The issue that you-all asked me to come and talk 11 about today specifically was Native language access. And 12 again, we've had very happy success stories in Colorado.

13 There are two tribes located in Colorado, the 14 southern Ute Tribe, the Ute Tribe, and the Ute Mountain Ute
15 Tribe. Those Ute tribes speak the Ute language extensively.

16 That is an entirely oral language. It's not 17 written. They have oral interpreters available at polling 18 place to assist them.

19 The Navajo nation is not resident in Colorado. But 20 there are numerous Navajo speakers who are resident in 21 Colorado, and counties do make available written ballots in 22 Navajo for those voters.

23 So rather than giving you a glowing report about 24 just how great things are in Colorado, I wanted to take a step 25 back and tell you a little bit about what we're doing on the

1 national forefront to try to make sure that we embed these 2 rights in national voting rights acts legislation underway.

3 I do have one statistic to report, which is that in 4 ten years of manning the hotline for any Native voter's
5 disenfranchisement issues in Colorado, I've had exactly one 6 phone call.

7 That alleged discrimination was actually a woman who 8 called and said she was being intimidated at the polling
9 place. I was, This is great. Okay, I'm ready. How are you 10 being intimidated?

11 Her response was her former mother-in-law was an 12 election judge. I said, Okay, so is she telling you you can't 13 vote? What's happening? And she's like, No, I just really 14 don't like her and I don't want to go in there. I had to 15 explain to her that probably wasn't an actionable problem.

16 Indian country, these are pictures from around the 17 country. They're very remote places, very geographically 18 isolated, not a lot of resources.

19 We make the best out of what we can. This is a 20 typical firewood gathering. That is actual Native voters.
21 They really dressed up to come and vote.

22 I have in my written testimony a lot of concepts are 23 known practices concepts, some of the work that NCAI is doing 24 to try to advance various amendments to the voting rights act 25 legislation that's now making its way through congress and

1 will throughout the spring.

2 One thing I wanted to draw your particular attention 3 to was the recommendation that we have to amend Section 603 of 4 the voting rights act to require bilingual materials for 5 written Native languages.

6 In 1975 when congress added language assistance
7 provisions to the voting rights act, an amendment was included 8 that added an exception to provided bilingual election 9 materials for historically unwritten languages.

10 The voting rights act does not define what 11 "historically unwritten" means. But the exact language that 12 made it into the bill without any edits was that where the 13 language of the applicable minority group is oral or 14 unwritten, or in the case of Alaska Natives and American 15 Indians, the predominant language is historically unwritten.

16 And the state or political subdivision is only 17 required to furnish oral instruction or other information 18 relating to registration and voting.

19 We've recommended a change that takes that language
20 out, and removes any reference to American Indian or Alaskan 21 Native voters at all, and instead makes written voting 22 materials dependent upon the only metric that really matters, 23 whether the language is presently unwritten or entirely oral.

24 The way that the 1975 provision's been interpreted 25 by a number of states, such as Alaska -- and I have extensive

1 material in my testimony, written testimony on Alaska -- the 2 way it's been interpreted is that, even if a Native language 3 has been written today, if it's a modern language that's 4 written today, the State has no obligation to furnish a 5 written ballot in that language.

6 Some states have viewed that as a reason not to 7 provide Navajo language ballots. Navajo is a historically 8 unwritten language that now is commonly written. The Yupik 9 language in Alaska is another example. It's historically 10 unwritten, and now commonly written.

11 Native language groups are really fighting to make 12 sure that languages that are commonly written today in 13 communities are available for the same bilingual language 14 benefits that are afforded to other language groups under the 15 voting rights act.

16 So that's the major one. I'll actually end there 17 since I have a big stop sign. And I'll answer questions.

18 MR. ZAKHEM: Questions?

19 MS. FELDMAN: So this did go through? The change 20 did go through?

21 MS. WEDDLE: No. This is pending in a US senate
22 bill and a house bill now. But that's our recommendation.

23 MS. FELDMAN: You know, I think Navajos in New 24 Mexico really support that. I don't know whether you've 25 conferred with them or not.

1 MS. WEDDLE: Yes, we have. So the National Congress
2 for American Indians has developed this proposal and the other 3 five proposals that are laid out in my written testimony in 4 coordination with tribal leaders around the country.

5 We have these marathon conference calls that last 6 like a whole day where we go through this stuff.

7 DR. ATKESON: I was wondering about the groundwork
8 on voter registration, given the rural nature of most Native
9 American communities.

10 That's the one thing I found most difficult is 11 getting the opportunity for them to be registered. I was 12 amazed, in talking to many of these people after the 2008
13 election, and they weren't even asked -- they were like 30, 14 40, 50 years old and have never been asked, Do you want to 15 register to vote? Never been asked.

16 So how, what kind of outreach efforts are going on 17 in the chapter houses or other areas to reach these voters, 18 and encourage them to register to vote?

19 MS. WEDDLE: There have been huge efforts from 20 NCAI's Native vote project. I've been involved in the 21 election protection, and there's a huge get out the vote 22 component to it as well.

23 It involves working with the tribal governments, the 24 folks on the ground, in the community who know people. I 25 mean, things as simple as passing out pens and T-shirts and 1 information pamphlets.

2 I think that's one of the things that Nadine's going 3 to talk about, getting the word out that registering to vote 4 is okay and it's empowering to do.

5 There's a lot of resistance in Indian country to 6 signing up and registering to do anything because of the 7 historic unconscionable treatment of Native Americans.

8 If you went in and raised your hand to identify 9 yourself, you were promptly shipped off to a boarding school 10 and separated from your family.

11 So there's a lot of mistrust of going in and 12 registering for anything with any non-Indian government. And 13 we're trying to overcome a lot of that and provide 14 information, education, and really grassroots level type ways.

15 (Applause.)

16 MR. ZAKHEM: Okay. Our next presenter is Nadine
17 Padilla. She's here from the Native American Voters Alliance.
18 Her issue will be language access for Native America
19 voters.

20 MS. PADILLA: Thank you, everybody. Sorry I didn't 21 prepare a power point like the rest of my panel. But I did 22 prepare a statement, and my statement is primarily focused on 23 the disenfranchisement that our Native voters face out in 24 western New Mexico.

25 And my name is Nadine Padilla. I am with the Native

1 American Voters Alliance. We are a nonpartisan group based 2 out of Albuquerque, but we work with the 22 Native American 3 nations in New Mexico.

4 There are 19 pueblos in New Mexico, two Apache 5 nations and the Navajo nation that we work with.

6 So as Jennifer stated earlier, Native Americans were 7 barely granted the right to vote in 1948. And that was after 8 a veteran, Miguel Trujillo, had went to World War II and came 9 back and discovered that he was denied the right to vote.

10 After series of legal challenges, Native Americans 11 in New Mexico were finally granted that right to vote. And 12 since then there has been many instances of it
13 disenfranchisement, of which I've been working on voting 14 issues for about eight years now, and have, you know, worked 15 several elections out in rural New Mexico, and have a lot of 16 experience with those different types of disenfranchisements.

17 One of the biggest things is that our Native
18 community live in very rural areas. There's, you know, 19 limited cell service, limited Internet, limited even 20 infrastructure like roads and electricity and running water.
21 So those are the conditions that our communities live in 22 today.

23 So some of them may have to drive an hour and a half 24 to the nearest polling location, an hour and a half one way to 25 vote and then to turn around and come back.

1 A lot of our Native communities are low income or 2 living in poverty, just even just affording the gas to go and 3 vote is enough to, you know, convince somebody to stay at home
4 and skip their right to vote.

5 The other issue is that polling locations often in 6 what we call border towns which are, in western New Mexico,
7 they're hotbeds for racism. And people are still very divided 8 along racial lines, and there's a lot of racism that still 9 exists out there.

10 So to ask a Native voters to go into the nearest 11 border town vote and interact with, you know, members of that 12 town might not be appealing, to put it nicely.

13 So a lot of the times the environment at a lot of 14 county clerks' offices is very hostile, and that definitely 15 disenfranchises voters.

16 A few examples, a few specific examples that I have 17 is that in 2008 we were working a state senate race out there.
18 And it was a very close race. There was a Indian candidate 19 and a non Indian candidate.

20 And on the election night as they were bringing in 21 the ballot boxes, and two of the ballot boxes from the pueblo 22 went missing, just completely went missing so nobody knew 23 where they went or what happened.

24 And there was about two weeks of media around the 25 issue, but in the end nobody, there was no definitive answer

1 of what happened to those votes and if they were actually 2 counted.

3 In that race the race was decided by eight votes and 4 the Indian candidate lost, so those two ballot boxes
5 definitely would have had an impact on that election turnout.

6 In 2012, county clerks in New Mexico were sending 7 out information in Indian areas that had the wrong polling 8 location in our Indian community. So they said, You'll be 9 voting at the chapter house whereas no, they're not, they're 10 voting, you know, 20 minutes away in a different location.

11 So we called the county clerk and said, All your 12 information is wrong; like, this isn't where they're voting.
13 And she was like, Oh, I'm sorry about that. We'll get it 14 right next time. But that doesn't help.

15 So like Ariel Bickel's, there's not realtime 16 solutions to address the problems that are occurring as they 17 occur.

18 The other thing in that specific election is that 19 they listed all of the candidates, but they left off the one 20 Indian candidate in that area. And it turns out the county 21 clerk was a cousin of one of the candidates running. So it's 22 very kind of like small-town politics that still plays out 23 very big in New Mexico.

24 In both 2008 and 2012, there weren't enough ballots 25 available when people went to go vote. And instead of being

1 offered a provisional ballot they were given the offer of 2 either waiting about two hours while their poll workers drove 3 to the nearest clerk's office, printed more ballots, and then 4 came back with it.

5 So they could choose to wait or they could just 6 choose to go home without voting, and unfortunately a lot of 7 those voters in those instances just turned around and went 8 home and didn't vote in those elections.

9 Provisional ballots were not available. The 10 verification of the physical addresses is a big problem for 11 our Native voters. So many of our community use PO boxes, and 12 so when they ask for a physical address, you know, they ask 13 you to write things like, I live two miles south of this main 14 road.

15 So when you go in to verify your address, if you 16 don't remember exactly word for word how you described where 17 you lived, then you could be turned away.

18 So if, if you, you know, when you registered to vote 19 four years ago you said, Two miles south, but you went in and 20 you said, Well, actually there's a new store now and I live 21 one mile north of that store, then, you know, that difference 22 could cost you, cost your vote.

23 Another common practice that was mentioned earlier 24 to disenfranchise voters is tow trucks will usually go to the 25 polling locations of Native communities, and they'll be

1 looking for license plate numbers for people who are behind on 2 their car or truck payments.

3 And so word like that gets around pretty quickly,
4 and that will "disencourage" voters from going to the polls.
5 In the last election in 2012 reports of tires being slashed of 6 everybody that was going to go vote. So those, that's a 7 common practice as well.

8 As far as language barriers, New Mexico has the 9 22 Native nations, which has eight distinct languages with 10 varying dialects between them.

11 One of the issues is translating voter terms into a 12 Native language. So if they're talking about like a bond or 13 something, then, you know, Native languages are largely 14 descriptive, but trying to describe what that means and 15 ensuring that your translators have a solid understanding of 16 what the bond measure is, how it would impact, and making sure 17 all translators are correctly and uniformly giving that 18 information to the people they're translating the information 19 for is an issue.

20 Another issue is that translators may not be 21 immediately available at the polling locations. So they may 22 have a translator on call, so the voter will have to wait if 23 they didn't bring somebody with them.

24 They will have to wait while they call around and 25 say, Are you available? Can you come down? We've got a

1 voter. So it's more of that type of situation.

2 The final thing concerning language is that the 3 county clerks determine for which languages they'll provide 4 funding to, and how the language program will be implemented.

5 So depending on if you have a friendly county clerk, 6 or maybe a not so friendly county clerk, that could influence 7 the level of the program that you'll get for the voters.

8 So I think remedies such as the election day voter 9 registration would be great for our Native communities.
10 Increasing the use of mobile voting sites would also be very 11 helpful, and efforts such as requiring voter ID would not be 12 supportive of because it would further disenfranchise our 13 Native voters.

14 That's all I have if anybody has any questions.

15 MS. LYTLE: I have a question.

16 What has been done to establish some accountability
17 with the egregious, you know, acts of these public officials 18 especially?

19 And then 2, have you or anyone in your area
20 considered some perhaps legislation -- it was not successful 21 in Colorado but it almost was, I think -- to establish some 22 penalties for this kind of misuse of voter information in the 23 public process?

24 MS. PADILLA: Yeah. It's pretty sad really. But 25 there hasn't been a lot of accountability for all of the stuff

1 that goes on, especially in western New Mexico.

2 Part of the problem is that a lot of the elected
3 officials are not necessarily allies of the Indian communities 4 that they serve, so there's not a lot of interest in really 5 addressing the issues.

6 MS. FELDMAN: I guess I have a followup question to 7 that too.

8 The example of the tow trucks in the parking lots, I
9 assume that's in Gallup. Was that in Gallup?

10 MS. PADILLA: Yeah, it happens in Gallup, and also 11 kind of the rural --

12 MS. FELDMAN: Well, you know, I never even heard any 13 publicity about that.

14 Is that documented? Was that publicized? Some of 15 these things, simply the publicity surrounding it would be a 16 starting point.

17 MS. PADILLA: Yeah. Usually there's, there's I 18 guess a little bit of media coverage on some of this stuff, 19 like when the ballot boxes went missing.

20 MS. FELDMAN: Right, we know about that.

21 MS. PADILLA: There was about two weeks worth of 22 media on that, and then it just faded away.

23 MS. FELDMAN: Well, but are there any newspaper 24 articles or documentation of the tow trucks? Because that's 25 certainly I think is the kind of thing that spurs legislation.

1 Were there any?

2 MS. PADILLA: I think there was only just the one 3 article in the Gallup Independent regarding that.

4 MS. FELDMAN: That was in the 2012 election?

5 MS. PADILLA: Um-hum, um-hum.

6 But the county clerks are very aware of these types 7 of issues; so it's not like people, it's not like people 8 haven't been telling people, like, This is what's going on.
9 It just hasn't reached that level.

10 MS. FELDMAN: Well, it sounds like statewide 11 publicity would be, would be in order in such an egregious 12 case.

13 But there are no penalties for county clerks who do 14 these kinds of things. That's what you're getting at, right?
15 I mean, I mean other than at the ballot box themselves.

16 MR. ZAKHEM: Some of this is criminal, and needs to 17 be reported to the Department of Justice.

18 Have you done that?

19 MS. PADILLA: Yeah, there's been -- maybe Jennifer 20 knows more. But the Department of Justice is looking into 21 these areas.

22 But that's been since 2008, and as far as I can tell 23 there hasn't been much difference in the actual day to day on 24 the ground.

25 MS. FIGUEREDO: There has been federal legislation

1 introduced, the deceptive practices and voter
2 intimidation act. The Lawyers' Committee and Common Cause 3 worked on model legislation at the state level.

4 There are no statutes right now that have legal 5 ramification on that. What we have we're happy to send that 6 information to folks afterwards.

7 MS. FELDMAN: I mean, I served on the senate
8 committee that oversees these things and I never heard about 9 this.

10 And so, you know, that would be, you know, certainly 11 a target for some of this information, the senate rules 12 committee and house voters and elections committee.

13 DR. ATKESON: I wondered what kind of coordination 14 there was between the local groups and the lobbying group in 15 the legislature or, you know, how are the groups connecting or 16 interacting to make sure this information gets out.

17 MS. PADILLA: I think one of the problems with all 18 of this is that there aren't a lot of groups out there working 19 on the ground. So there are, you know, the Native American 20 Voters Alliance, and that's about it.

21 MS. FELDMAN: And I wonder if some of those groups 22 are allowed to lobby and allowed to bring that information 23 forward as a result of their tax status.

24 MS. PADILLA: Thank you.

25 (Applause.)

1 MR. ZAKHEM: Okay. Our last presenter in our first 2 segment will be Judd Choate, the director of elections for the 3 Colorado Secretary of State's Office.

4 Judd will be talking about accessibility for persons
5 with disabilities.

6 MR. CHOATE: Thank you very much for inviting me. I
7 really appreciate it. It's an outstanding panel. I've really 8 enjoyed the presentation so far.

9 My name is Judd Choate. I'm the director of the 10 division of elections for the Colorado Secretary of State's 11 Office. Our role at the Secretary of State's Office is to 12 oversee the work of the counties.

13 The counties do the real work of elections. They're 14 the people who print the ballots and send them to the voters.
15 The voters vote those ballots and they come back to the 16 counties.

17 Our work is really to help assist the counties and 18 work on legislation, run the voter registration system, run 19 the campaign finance system.

20 But in the kinds of issues that we're describing 21 today we have a central role because we sort of are the point 22 of the spear when it comes to actual legislation and then the 23 implementation of that legislature through rules.

24 So this is a great panel for us, and I appreciate 25 the fact that we can take part in it.

1 The topic that I'm talking about is accessibility,
2 but it's a different kind of accessibility than the ones
3 you've heard about today. This is about physical 4 accessibility.

5 So there are a number of sort of legislative, 6 historical legislative federal and state bills that have 7 created the parameters of physical accessibility to the 8 polling places.

9 Let me go through a couple of the sort of starting 10 points of federal legislation. So the Voting Rights Act 11 broadly talks about access to the polling place. There's also 12 the Voting Accessibility for the Elderly and Handicapped Act
13 of 1984.

14 That is woefully outdated by the Help America Vote 15 Act, which came much later and was much more specific. The 16 ADA, which was effectively implemented by the Help America 17 Vote Act, which I'm going to talk about here in a minute, and 18 then the National Voter Registration Act of 1993, which has a 19 stated purpose to help with access, but really doesn't speak 20 much about people with disabilities.

21 So those were sort of the forerunners to the Help 22 America Vote Act, which is the real piece of legislation which 23 is important to people with disabilities accessing polling 24 places and county facilities.

25 So the Help America Vote Act of 2002 was a very 1 important piece of legislation. It has several major 2 components to it. The most important relevance to this 3 particular discussion deals with access and independence for 4 voters with disabilities to all polling locations, and then to 5 full service offices, which is going to become more important 6 as I go forward and show you some pictures.

7 There's actually very little litigation around this 8 central concept of accessibility for people with disabilities.
9 So what does this particular part of that legislation mean?

10 Really, the way that we understand that legislation
11 is through two different documents: the DOJ opinion letter 12 regarding physical access to polling places and offices, and 13 the EAC advisory for accessibility for voting systems for 14 in-person voting, so that deals both with location and then 15 with machinery.

16 And then another big component of the Help America 17 Vote Act was money. There is both the money that was given to 18 states, which then was distributed to counties and 19 municipalities, which supports the technology which can be 20 used by people with disabilities, and then there's also a 21 grant program, which also is used to fund particular 22 improvements to locations.

23 So what happened with HAVA? Well, as with most 24 major pieces of legislation in this area, we had to do 25 implementing legislation at the state level.

1 Our implementing legislation for HAVA is Article
2 1.5, so Title 11.5 Article 1.5, and particular 104 and 105.
3 Then we also have accessibility in polling locations for 4 persons with disabilities under 15703, and then we elaborate
5 on that in our rules, which is Rule 7.9.

6 So the major points of our legislation, and then the 7 actual application of that legislation through rule, is that 8 there is an accessibility survey that must be done for each 9 VSPC each election cycle.

10 VSPC, by the way, for those of you who aren't 11 familiar with Colorado, election laws are Voters Service and 12 Polling Centers. That's the new terminology out of 1303, 13 which describes each one of the places where you can vote in 14 the state of Colorado are both voters service, meaning that 15 they can do things like registration and change your 16 registration, and polling places where you can actually vote.

17 So they're all full service. They represent 18 everything from registration through voting.

19 So at all VSPCs there must be an accessibility 20 survey for each election. Secretary of State's Office may 21 deny HAVA funds for the failure to utilize an accessible site.
22 The Secretary of State can conduct onsite visits to assess 23 compliance. And then in extraordinary circumstances, the 24 Secretary of State can seek an injunction for the failure to 25 meet ADA requirements.

1 To my knowledge we've never done that, nor have we 2 ever done Item No. 2, to deny HAVA funds. We do onsite visits 3 quite often, which again we'll talk about.

4 If you think about pre HAVA and post HAVA, HAVA was 5 passed in 2002. The Government Accountability Office did a 6 national survey in 2000, and found that 18 percent of the 7 polling locations in the United States were accessible -- not 8 inaccessible, accessible -- in 2000 for people with 9 disabilities.

10 You can see that has improved greatly. By 2008 it 11 went up a grand total of 10 percent to be 28 percent are 12 considered accessible by 2008 for people with disabilities.

13 In 2012 to 2013, Colorado surveyed 38 of 14 64 counties, and found general adherence to HAVA, the ADA 15 requirements of HAVA with some exceptions, for virtually every 16 location.

17 Colorado does very well on the ADA front. We do 18 have some failures, which again, I'll talk about.

19 If you break down these numbers -- I don't know how 20 well you can see that -- and you look closer into the poll, 21 this is percentage of polling places with potential 22 impediments.

23 And the first -- and it's by 2000, which is the 24 white section and then the shaded section is the 2008 numbers
25 you can see that in parking areas actually the number of areas

1 with impediments actually went up. So with regard to parking 2 we're not seeing any improvement.

3 We're also seeing very little improvement on the 4 path from parking to a building entrance. Great improvement 5 with the actual building entrance.

6 This is probably with the advancement of the button
7 that opens the door automatically, and with the expanded 8 doorways and single doors as opposed to double doors with the 9 poll in the middle, so there's been a lot of improvements 10 there. And there's been some improvement on the path in the 11 building from the entrance to the voting location.

12 So our real problem appears to be from the parking 13 lot to the front door. And that's historically been the major 14 problem with ADA compliance with people with disabilities, and 15 it remains so.

16 We do have HAVA funds for ADA compliance. Congress 17 has established a grant program which we are the central 18 office for the State of Colorado. We can request funds, or 19 historically could have requested funds from the Department of 20 Health and Human Services.

21 We have, over the last several years, requested up 22 to $2.5 million. And we granted out $1 million of that. So 23 we still have almost $1.5 million that we could grant out to 24 counties for improvement of their locations.

25 And we do still do grants. And we'll talk a little

1 bit about that. But for the most part, the interest in grants 2 has waned over the last couple of years as we've done a lot of 3 bigger items.

4 One thing I would mention, sort of to toot our own 5 horn a little bit, the last couple of times that they had 6 money to distribute out of this fund, the State had to request
7 it. And our state actively requested it.

8 A number of states, a whole bunch of states did not 9 actively request this money and so it went away. That money 10 was lost, and will never be used for ADA compliance. But 11 Colorado has requested and we have, because of that, a lot of 12 money.

13 Let me go through sort of the good, the bad, and the 14 ugly of compliance in the state of Colorado.

15 I notice that there are lawyers in the room. This 16 is where you might want to start taking notes, because we do 17 have some ADA compliance in the state of Colorado.

18 The good. We have a number of counties that have 19 really embraced training, and a lot of different things that 20 you can do with money and our funding resources.

21 There's also a lot of outside the box thinking, and 22 we've done a lot of hard work with some counties and county 23 officials that have been difficult to work with. And we've 24 made serious headway in many respects.

25 Let's talk about a couple of particular items. This

1 is a great example of a wonderful old courthouse. This is one
2 of the oldest courthouses, oldest continuously used courthouse
3 in the state. This is in Bent County.

4 You can see in the picture that before the makeover
5 it just had a series of steps going up to the front, and a 6 whole bunch of ADA requirement issues. No way to get into the 7 building if you were in a wheelchair, and then all sorts of 8 problems once you got in the building.

9 Now with the addition of the grant money and the 10 work that they did, they added this ramp that you can get in, 11 and then a lot of work on the inside.

12 This is in Gunnison County. This is the Blackstock
13 building, which is their county building. This is the before 14 picture. Again, it doesn't show any of the railing required, 15 doesn't show any of the required parking spots.

16 After we've done some significant work on the front 17 parking lot, and then the proper railing. There's also, 18 within that building, a significant ramping structure that 19 they had to put in, which works very well for people with 20 disabilities.

21 Then in Adams County, another building here looks 22 perfectly reasonable. But if you look closely you've got a 23 couple of steps there. They do have a ramp here, but that 24 ramp was not ADA compliant.

25 So we put in a ramp in the front that gets you

1 straight to the front door, and now that building is ADA
2 compliant. So there's some good stuff that's happening.

3 We also -- I'm sort of stealing from Denver just a 4 bit. And I notice in fact that even this picture is used in 5 Amber's presentation. So I'm not going to talk a lot about 6 this because I think Amber's going to come back to this.

7 But there's a great program that Denver's been doing 8 that came through grant money that was supplied through the 9 HAVA grant.

10 By the way, for your edification, at a later time if 11 you're interested I brought a list of all the different grants
12 that we've done through our grant money. It's about 100, a 13 little bit fewer than 100. Seven of those were Denver County, 14 by the way.

15 Seven of those were from Denver County. Denver
16 County's obviously taken this particular part of our ability 17 to assist those kinds of locations very very seriously. And 18 then, of course, with this program that they're going to talk 19 about.

20 A couple more things. Here's some bad. A couple of 21 pictures related to bad. I love this picture. You can kind 22 of see the problem here. We've got a spacing problem where 23 you couldn't possibly get that person in the door without 24 opening, forwardly opening that door.

25 How is he going to do that? That's a really

1 difficult thing for him to do. This of course speaks to that 2 kind of issue that we see pretty routine.

3 This is a pretty innocuous picture, but if you look 4 here, there's a significant gravel and dirt problem with the 5 ramp. That's going to create a particular kind of issue for a 6 person that's in a wheelchair.

7 And then love this one. You know, sometimes you 8 just really need to pay the extra couple of bucks and get a 9 permanent sign, because the sign in the sandbox is really not 10 going to probably work.

11 And then a couple of uglies. This is San Miguel.
12 San Miguel County. This is their courthouse, one of the most 13 beautiful courthouses in the state. Incredibly beautiful 14 building. It's got 10 stairs, 10 stairs, and no reasonable 15 back entrance.

16 I was there just in the 2013 election. I was there 17 mere months ago. And I approached the county clerk and 18 expressed my concern about the fact that their building wasn't 19 accessible and was effectively told, Look, it's a great old 20 building. We love our old building. We're really not going 21 to do much to change that building.

22 I was pretty stunned by that. I thought to myself, 23 Wow, if I was in the private world I wanted to hang out in 24 Telluride for a while. I might find a reason to -- wow, I'm 25 going to tuck that one away in the back of my brain for a

1 later date perhaps.

2 Hinsdale County, very nice people, really want to do
3 good. But they've got this old courthouse, or old county 4 court building, county building, and it's, you know, not 5 accessible in the front, has a door that doesn't open, they 6 don't have enough space for somebody to open that door.

7 We've talked to them. I think there's probably ways 8 in which we can improve upon that.

9 In Las Animas County, if you look here you've got a 10 terrible angle on this ramp. You're basically putting 11 somebody in jeopardy to go down that ramp. And that's 12 something we're trying to working with them to fix.

13 There's a lot of these type of examples. Another 14 great example in Mineral County with a building that's not ADA 15 compliant.

16 A lot of these counties really want to do something.
17 They don't have the resource or the time, and this is 18 something that's not high on their list of to-dos.

19 And then the last thing I was going to say we are 20 always going around the state. I'm going to 12 counties in 21 the primary, so I'll be in the northwest section of the state 22 for the primary. I'm going to go to another 12 for the 23 general, so I'm going to catch 24 counties this year.

24 I'm going to be there with my tape measure and my 25 level and all of that stuff and, you know, they should be

1 concerned because I'm coming their way.

2 And by the way I should note that Lisa -- who helped 3 me so much with this by the way -- she's on our staff and does 4 all of our ADA compliance, and Jennifer who is here from the 5 Center for People with Disabilities and Older People, they 6 also go around the state and advise us on counties we need to 7 be concerned about so that we can double down on trying to get 8 them to meet those ADA requirements.

9 That's all I had. Thank you very much. I'll take 10 any questions you have.

11 (Applause.)

12 MS. FELDMAN: I'll just ask the obvious. Are any of 13 the those HAVA monies available for ADA compliance?

14 MR. CHOATE: Absolutely. That is a particular grant
15 for ADA compliance.

16 MS. FELDMAN: You have over a million?

17 MR. CHOATE: We have $1.5 million solely available
18 for ADA compliance.

19 MS. FELDMAN: Sounds like a jobs program to me as 20 well.

21 MR. CHOATE: It could be, especially in a smaller 22 county where they might be suffering. Absolutely.

23 DR. ATKESON: What kind of auto vote machine do you 24 use for people with physical disabilities?

25 MR. CHOATE: We are, in the state of Colorado we

1 don't have one particular vendor. So we have actually four 2 vendors which operate that DREs in our state.

3 Denver uses the Sequoia system. Other counties use
4 Premier and Hart. We have sort of a panoply of different 5 systems so it's really very county specific.

6 Any other questions?

7 THE FLOOR: Yes. Does your office direct the use of 8 the money to the various counties?

9 MR. CHOATE: Yes. So the way it works is that they 10 ask, so they fill out the paperwork to request that money.

11 Then we evaluate it, and we have a committee of both 12 internal and external stakeholders. They consider it. And 13 ultimately that request is sent to the Secretary and the 14 Secretary approves or does not approve.

15 In my experience, the Secretary always approves if 16 we're supportive of it. And then that money is distributed as 17 fast as we can; in many respects that's very quick. We get 18 the bulldozer going very fast.

19 We've supported programs like putting elevators in 20 buildings, hundreds of thousands of dollars of work in older 21 buildings.

22 In fact, there's a great example of two buildings 23 next to each other that we put an elevator in between and 24 attached the two buildings together.

25 We can do some pretty funky things with significant

1 ADA funds.

2 MR. ZAKHEM: Thank you.

3 (Applause.)

4 MR. ZAKHEM: So now it's time for the best part of 5 the program, the break and cookies. So we're going to break.
6 If you want to sign up for public testimony do it now. In 7 five minutes we'll reconvene.

8 (Short break.)

9 MR. ZAKHEM: Please take your seats.

10 All right. We're on to our second panel involving 11 election administration initiatives. The first witness is the 12 director of elections for the City and County of Denver, 13 Ms. Amber McReynolds.

14 She's going to talk to us about the new iPad project
15 initiative. Welcome, Amber.

16 MS. MC REYNOLDS: Okay, thank you for inviting me to 17 speak today. We're very excited to be here to share this 18 innovation and solution that we believe is really leading the 19 way, and going to provide more access for more of our voters 20 in the future.

21 Our iPad or iAP program is called our iPad
22 accessibility pilot project. We started in 2012 in Denver.
23 I'll talk through kind of how we developed that program, how 24 we obtained grant money, as Judd from the State mentioned 25 earlier, and sort of how the process change happened from the 1 previous way that we dealt with group residential facilities, 2 and then now the new way.

3 So kind of an overview of what I'm going to go over, 4 what is a group residential facility and what are the legal 5 requirements for that, the need for that service, the number 6 of voters that were actually surveyed and that fall into this 7 category, our HAVA grant application process, and then the 8 2012 primary and sort of how we implemented, and then lessons
9 learned, and then how we made some changes for the general 10 election, and what we've been doing since then.

11 A group residential facility under Colorado law can 12 be a nursing home, an assisted living home, a home for persons 13 with developmental disabilities, a home for people with mental 14 illness. And most of the facilities that we tend to work with 15 are assisted living or nursing home type facilities.

16 So the requirements under Colorado law is if the 17 facility falls into one of those categories, and they have 18 seven or more residents and there's also a central mail 19 delivery, meaning that mail is not delivered to a specific 20 mailbox in the facility, our services are triggered.

21 And we do have a couple of exceptions to that. Some 22 of the facilities are small, and they sort of go back and 23 forth between seven and six and those kinds of things. If 24 we've provided service to them in the past, we offer it again
25 and make sure that we meet those facility needs.

1 So what we've had to do then, if they do fall under 2 that category, we then need to deliver, hand deliver the mail 3 ballots to them, and send election judges out to facilitate 4 the voting process, assist if needed.

5 That's what Colorado is required to do. All 6 counties are required to meet this requirement.

7 So our previous process, we kind of got a little van 8 that shows our transport to and from the facility. But we 9 would go out to the facility with our mail ballots and we 10 would send election judges to deliver it to them.

11 We would facilitate the voting process, assist where 12 we could. If any voters needed to update an address or if 13 they qualified for emergency registration or what have you, we 14 couldn't do it right there on site so we would have to travel 15 back with the forms, make those updates, then we'd have to 16 send another team out with additional mail ballots to service 17 the voters.

18 And the mail ballots aren't necessarily accessible.
19 They're a paper ballot; they don't have assistive technology 20 on them to assist the voters in an objective way.

21 For Denver, we have over 2,700 voters that fall into 22 this category. We have 53 facilities, including three 23 long-term rehabilitation centers that we service.

24 So our new process, with the iPad accessibility
25 project, pilot project, is we basically have, it's a one stop

1 shop. We can send a team of election judges out now with the 2 iPads, provide all the services necessary, including 3 registration related services. So we can offer a couple of 4 different things in addition to voting.

5 Under the new law 1303, now that we have same day
6 registration and voters have more of an opportunity to update 7 their address more frequently within the 30-day period leading 8 up to the election, we actually can use the iPads as vote 9 marking devices, but also to make the registration updates.

10 We can facilitate on the iPads updates in the voter 11 registration system. We can immediate identify what ballot 12 style the voter needs to get, and then we can facilitate the 13 voting process then on the iPad that's designated for voting.

14 So the way the program works is we use iPads as 15 ballot marking devices. So we use a similar program and 16 system to what our military and overseas voters use in 17 Colorado.

18 It's a similar platform. It has all the assistive
19 technology available on the iPad, so the iPads are actually a 20 lot more accessible than even some of our electronic voting 21 machine equipment, and they're easier for folks to use.

22 There's language accessibility. They can use the 23 headphones. They can use the touch technology that enables 24 them to, if they have any disability or difficulty using their 25 hands, they can sort of use the back of their hand if needed.

1 So the iPads offer a more complete solution, if you will, for 2 accessibility.

3 And so in addition to them, the vote marking, once 4 we figure out their registration issues and figure out what 5 ballot style they need, the election judges will bring up the 6 appropriate ballot style on the iPad.

7 The voter can then vote the ballot. They can use
8 the headphones. They can use any of that assistive technology 9 to do that.

10 We set up voting booths so they have privacy screens 11 while they complete the voting process, so they're solely 12 independent. They have an independent voting experience, 13 which prior to this program we did not offer; we couldn't 14 offer because we had to deliver mail ballots that aren't 15 necessarily accessible.

16 Once they complete that process, there's no votes 17 that are cast on line. The ballot actually is printed. So at 18 the end of their voting process on the iPad they can review, 19 they can listen to the ballot, make the review, confirm that 20 it's as they expected it to be for the vote, and then the 21 ballot is actually printed onto a computer printer.

22 We deliberately have the ballot printed so that the 23 votes are all face down, and then it's taken and can be put 24 right into a ballot box using a secrecy sleeve, and then we 25 now can take all those back to the office and tally them.

1 Prior to this service, we didn't necessarily have an 2 accessible voting option for all of these individuals. This 3 has significantly enhanced our services to the voters in the 4 City and County of Denver in how they vote.

5 So the HAVA grant, we applied for the HAVA grant for 6 the 2012 primary election for our initial implementation. And 7 so this is kind of a list of the things that we purchased.

8 And in the general election we requested additional 9 HAVA money to roll it out in a more complete way, add 10 additional iPads, and provide enhanced service.

11 So our planning and implementation for both the 12 general and the primary. We established a technical working 13 group within our office to analyze the different components 14 from a technology perspective, including the iPads, including 15 mifi wireless devices. Not every facility had wifi. We had 16 to make sure we had that mobile.

17 We also had a four person team that looked at 18 staffing and how to train. And then the iPad training itself 19 we conducted extensive training with our teams.

20 For the primary we did an extensive review to look 21 for ways to improve for the general. And so for the general 22 we made a lot of those improvements.

23 And then for the general we sort of had a new issue 24 to deal with, which is the long ballot, making sure that we 25 had enough time and the voters had an ability to get through

1 the long ballot and navigate the iPad in an easy way.

2 So with this program we received some significant 3 national recognition for our effort in this area. We received 4 the 2013 NACO award. We also received an award from the 5 election center, which is a professional innovation award from 6 across the country.

7 We actually were awarded the top honor for 8 innovation from the election center last year. So we were 9 very proud of that. We actually beat out LA County for two of 10 their programs, which is a significant achievement for us.

11 With that, I'm happy to take questions.

12 DR. ATKESON: What kind of memory does it keep of 13 the voters? Do you print it out and it disappears? How do 14 you maintain the privacy of the voter?

15 MS. MC REYNOLDS: It doesn't keep any memory. Once
16 the ballot is confirmed and we click print, it's gone. So it 17 doesn't store any of that. There's nothing cast on line.
18 Everything, once it's printed, that's it.

19 MS. LYTTLE: Is there any interaction at all with 20 voters as you use this technology? You know, how do you 21 "elevator speech" this to them, if there is any?

22 MS. MC REYNOLDS: Yeah. We have done a few 23 different things, and we're going to do a little bit more this 24 year in terms of education, prior to going out to the 25 facility, on what the service delivery will be.

1 With the iPad, as we know, you have to kind of get 2 used to the touch technology a little bit. If you're not used 3 to that, you know, using your fingernail or things like that 4 can be tough.

5 We actually downloaded, interesting enough, Angry
6 Birds onto all of them. If people wanted to sort of try that 7 first it helped them get used to how to touch and sort of use 8 the iPads.

9 We did that. What was interesting is a lot of the 10 voters that took advantage of this program, you know, we kept 11 hearing them say, Oh, this is what I use to communicate with 12 my, you know, relatives or, you know, use the Facetime.
13 They're like, Does this have Facetime?

14 You know, they had actually seen this technology 15 before, as opposed to say our traditional electronic voting 16 machines, which people aren't used to; they're new when they 17 go in.

18 We really felt we were enhancing their service. And 19 they were very excited to have an opportunity to use this in 20 an accessible way.

21 MS. TALMAGE: Do you have any plans to expand this?

22 MS. MC REYNOLDS: Yes, we do.

23 I was making notes while Judd was talking that they 24 have all this money available. We have requested a lot 25 of HAVA money to make improvements in various ways in Denver

1 County. This has been a very, a very good program for us and 2 we definitely want to expand it further.

3 It is like a mobile voting site in a lot of ways so 4 we've done a lot of different things now where we do surveys 5 similar to our voting site, map out an actual floor plan of 6 how we're going to set them up.

7 We've done some of those things. And I think, you 8 know, whatever we can do to provide additional service is 9 always good; we're always looking to do that.

10 So I just wanted to say, to add to her words and 11 accolades when they submitted their first grant to me for 12 this, I talked to the federal auditor in Washington DC.

13 I called and I said, I know this money is for 14 polling place accessibility and education. And I think this 15 is a really great thing. I explained what she wanted to do.
16 And verbal cartwheels over the phone; she went nuts with it
17 and said, This is exactly what they envisioned.

18 I mean, they wanted polling places made accessible 19 with grants, and concrete and, you know, whatever was needed.
20 But this kind, this is a thinking out of the box that we were 21 talking about when Judd was doing his presentation.

22 And our goal, to add to that for this year -- and it 23 was prior to Judd saying that. We have been thinking about 24 what we were going to do this year.

25 And I think one of the things that's the most

1 obvious next step for this is for provisional voting. Right 2 now provisionals are on paper; they're not necessarily 3 accessible.

4 So I, we would like to do that. And that's likely 5 what we will do for, you know, probably apply for some 6 additional money to look at using them for that.

7 THE FLOOR: So this probably doesn't extend to 8 Denver County. But are there any plans to extend this 9 technology even beyond persons with disabilities and HAVA?

10 What came to mind was rural counties. It seems to 11 me that if you could, you know, get a group of people with a 12 van with iPads and a printer, you could access a lot of these 13 places. And if you could get that technology to especially 14 people who are familiar with the iPad technology, which is 15 actually similar technology, you could really reach out to 16 very remote places.

17 MS. MC REYNOLDS: I think so.

18 And I think that the other thing -- I didn't talk 19 about costs, but this is a better option in terms of 20 accessibility and solutions than what an electronic voting 21 machine is.

22 Electronic voting machines, at least the ones we 23 currently have, cost $4,000 apiece. This setup with the 24 printer is 700.

25 So in terms of money, you know, this is the first

1 step in looking at voting systems that are less expensive, but 2 provide better service. And the iPads can be used for other 3 reasons.

4 We use them for training, we use them for other 5 reasons outside of an election cycle. Our DREs sit in storage 6 until the next election, and they're not usable for anything 7 else.

8 So this is a much better solution sort of for 9 elections going forward and meeting technology requirements.

10 MS. TALMAGE: You've been great with working with 11 the jail base voting in Denver County. I was wondering, could 12 this ever be used for going into the jails?

13 MS. MC REYNOLDS: Yeah. We could look at that.

14 We've been delivering -- and just so everybody's 15 clear, you can't vote if you're, you know, if you're on parole 16 or you've been convicted.

17 But for the folks that are maybe in holding or 18 haven't been convicted yet we deliver -- pre trial 19 detainees -- we've helped, we've sent election judges to take 20 the ballots out.

21 So yeah, I mean, I think, you know, really for us, 22 all options in terms of accessibility are on the table.
23 Provisional was the first thing that we've really been talking 24 about this year because it's not accessible at all as it 25 currently is. That would be another, another possibility.

1 DR. ATKESON: Given that the votes are traveling, 2 what kind of auditing process or security do you provide, or 3 an overview of that progression?

4 When they get back, before they get into the 5 machine, how do you know they get into the machine? How does 6 the voter know they get into the machine?

7 MS. MC REYNOLDS: So we have, since they're paper
8 ballots, we have a secure ballot box that's locked and meets 9 all the seal requirements under statute and rule similar to 10 our other, the way we handle ballot box transport. We have 11 security procedures, protocol in terms of chain of custody.

12 All of this equipment is the same. We actually 13 purchased some large boxes that the iPads are carried in and 14 the printer, and everything is sort of sealed and locked.

15 And then when everything comes back in, we do 16 similar to what we do with our voter service and polling 17 centers, and what we do is we make sure that what went out 18 came back. We do that with our mail ballots as well.

19 And it's election judges, so it's bipartisan teams 20 that are going out transporting all of that to and from.

21 MR. ZAKHEM: Anybody else?

22 MS. FELDMAN: Yes. Does it require Internet access 23 in the rural areas in any way?

24 MS. MC REYNOLDS: Yes. So what we've used is mifi
25 cards. So we set up like a wireless device and we can use

1 that access right there.

2 What I've suggested to the vendor, which I would 3 like to see in the future, is potentially creating more of a 4 standalone AP where it wouldn't require network. So 5 downloading everything and then everything -- because you're 6 not transferring anything on line anyway.

7 MS. FELDMAN: Right.

8 MS. MC REYNOLDS: So that would potentially be a
9 solution.

10 MS. FELDMAN: Lack of Internet access I think in 11 rural areas is a problem.

12 How many people voted this way last time?

13 MS. MC REYNOLDS: So we've had, I think in the last 14 one, approximately 105 or so, 110 used it in the most recent 15 one. And we've got, and we service 2,700 voters at that 16 location or in these facilities.

17 So our goal this time is really to educate and, you 18 know, and sort of start making sure that people are aware that 19 they can do this.

20 Part of it, too, is, you know, we're out there for a 21 specific period of time too, so we need to make sure we have 22 enough iPads and enough judges there to assist if needed.

23 And so that's why we think that we haven't had as 24 much usage because that's sort of been limited. So now with 25 expanding it we may, you know, request additional funds to 1 cover more iPads.

2 MS. LYTTLE: What's the cost of using this program?
3 Perhaps you said this and I missed it. But maybe perhaps for 4 those 105 voters, what's the cost to taxpayers for this?

5 MS. MC REYNOLDS: So the iPad and the printer itself 6 that's about a $700 or so investment; that's the 7 infrastructure. And then there's a software component to it 8 all.

9 Depending on how the software licensing is 10 structured you might be paying a yearly contract or you might 11 be paying a per election kind of thing so it sort of depends 12 on how that is structured.

13 And then of course the cost of staff, so election 14 judges, we have to rent vehicles, you know, all of that. We 15 do repurpose and use staff for different reasons if they're 16 not out at these facilities.

17 It is an investment from a staff, from a technical 18 perspective and infrastructure, you know, so all those things 19 have to be figured out.

20 And we use some HAVA money for some of that, and the 21 County has paid a, picked up the rest of the burden on that.

22 MS. LYTTLE: What's the budget for it for this year, 23 this election season?

24 MS. MC REYNOLDS: For this year? The way we budget, 25 we don't necessarily cut it out per election.

1 We have a yearly fee for various, whether it's staff
2 or software or what have you, we don't really say, It's this 3 much per election because it sort of applies across the board.

4 But I could come up with an estimate for you for the 5 primary as an example.

6 MR. ZAKHEM: All right. Thank you, Amber.

7 (Applause.)

8 MR. ZAKHEM: The next presenter is Sheila Reiner.
9 She's going to be talking about some new legislation here in 10 Colorado.

11 MS. REINER: Thank you. I am Sheila Reiner, Mesa
12 County Clerk and Recorder from Mesa County. We're almost on 13 the Utah border in the state; fairly rural area.

14 We're the only county of our size on the western 15 slope. The majority of the counties on our side are pretty 16 small.

17 But the biggest thing I want to talk about today is 18 statewide, I think the election officials -- and I can speak
19 to this because I'm the President of the Colorado County 20 Clerks Association as well -- the election officials have 21 found it hard to maneuver between being in charge of the 22 integrity of our elections and the messages that we're sending 23 our voters during times when there's allegations that make our 24 voters fearful for what our election process does or does not 25 do.

1 And so we know, as Colorado county clerks, that our 2 ultimate customer is our voters. They're the ones that keep 3 us in office, if they choose to do so, and they're the ones 4 that we answer to.

5 With that in mind, we do our very best to keep our 6 system transparent and bright, even if there's some murky 7 times that we have moved through.

8 So one of the allegations that we had to address a 9 lot as county clerks at our home base was voters coming to us
10 and saying, What's this? Now we can register and vote with a 11 utility bill?

12 So it actually, the law stayed exactly the same as 13 it had been before. What changed is that you can now register 14 on the same day that you cast a ballot.

15 So a lot of our technical working groups took this 16 issue and decided that we would continue to do the process as 17 we had before. So just like it was handled before, if someone 18 showed up to register and they didn't have one of the IDs on 19 the green side of your screen, then we would mark them as ID
20 deficient or mark their mail ballot envelope as ID required, 21 and then the secondary list we've always depended upon would 22 come into play for the actual casting of the vote.

23 Our residency statute did change. So before it was 24 30 days in a precinct. And now it's 22 days in the state, so 25 that was very significant for us.

1 The change, even though it seems like it's just a 2 couple of little numbers in there and a few words, it really 3 allowed a big shift in philosophy in our state.

4 So before, under the old one, the voter had to sign
5 an affirmation that they moved into the specific precinct 6 30 days prior to the election in order to qualify for the new 7 ballot style.

8 When I say "ballot style," I mean the things that 9 you're eligible to vote on. That's determined by where you 10 live and what districts you're allowed to participate in.

11 Now you just have to say that you are 22 days in a 12 state, and you're automatically going to have residence and 13 get issued a new ballot style. So that brought some problems.

14 The complications that we saw in the coordinated 15 election just this last fall was complicated because, in 16 Colorado, special districts and municipalities can put 17 questions on our ballots in November.

18 And we had an issue because our state law said for 19 counties and state, the requirement to be a resident was same 20 day, but in our municipalities and our special districts, the 21 law was still at the old residency requirement and it could 22 have been 25 days, 30 days, or for a property owner in a 23 special district, it was the same day. So it was super 24 complicated.

25 The issue was litigated. And in both cases, the 1 judges presiding over the hearing said that the clerks did the 2 best they could with conflicting statutes, which was not new 3 to us. And we were in substantial compliance.

4 So this year, though, however, House Bill 1164
5 changed the situation for Colorado, and updated the local 6 district deadlines to be in line with the state deadlines. So 7 going forward, all voters will start voting on the issues and 8 candidates that represent them where they live now rather than 9 where they lived before.

10 So before this legislation we had a 30-day cutoff 11 for new registrations submitted on paper or on line. So we 12 would sort through the paperwork that we got in our offices.
13 And literally if it was a new registrant to us, we would put 14 it in the basket and defer it until after the election.

15 In-person voters, in-person registrations rather, 16 were handled one of two ways past the 30-day cutoff. They 17 were either emergency registrations or provisional voters.

18 So if the voter came to us and they indicated that 19 they attempted to register 30 days before the registration
20 deadline, they signed the affirmation and gave us adequate ID, 21 then we registered them and gave them a regular ballot.

22 If they had not attempted or they were ID deficient, 23 we would issue them a provisional ballot.

24 So now there's a 22-day cutoff for paper 25 registration. I think for obvious reasons we don't want the 1 voter registration drives or campaign putting extra pressure 2 on us in the last few days where we are so very busy.

3 There was an eight-day cutoff for on line because 4 there's some efficiencies in receiving online registration. A 5 lot of the data is already typed for us.

6 And then new registrations now today continue in 7 person all the way through election day if they moved into the 8 state 22 days prior. And just like before, if they're not 9 finding that they did live here 22 days prior within the state 10 or they're ID deficient, they get a provisional ballot.

11 Our process for address updates also changed with 12 this reform. Previously, address changes within the state 13 continued for the voter if they said that they moved 30 days 14 prior to the election.

15 If they said they moved 30 days prior, we would 16 update their voter registration and correct their ballot 17 style, and even mail them the correct ballot style if they 18 were a mail-in voter until eight days before the election.

19 But if they indicated to us that they moved in those 20 last 29 days, we would issue them the old ballot style, or ask 21 them to return to an old precinct to vote.

22 So again, it's not as if we had a hard cutoff
23 before. Voter registration activities were still happening.
24 I think that's somewhat of a misconception with what this law 25 did for us as administrators, and then ultimately what it does

1 for our voters.

2 We still are servicing them, so from the voters'
3 side they probably don't see any difference. The difference 4 is what kind of ballot style they get for them.

5 This is for the in-person address changes. And, you
6 know, I'm going to go back to the other slide because I missed
7 something I wanted to highlight.

8 If they did say that they moved 29 days or less 9 prior to the election, we would give them the old ballot 10 style, but we would have to mail it to the new address.
11 Sometimes that was a little challenging to train our election 12 judges on, and our temporary workers.

13 So in person, like I mentioned before, if they were 14 in a polling place and they didn't wish to return to their old 15 precinct, they became a provisional ballot voter. If they 16 were at a vote center though, where all the ballot styles of 17 the entire county were available, we would simply give them 18 their old ballot style.

19 That was different too. We had a lot of 20 conversation around that before this reform came into play 21 that we were treating voters differently depending on what 22 county they were in.

23 If they were in a polling place county, it was 24 handled a little bit differently than if you were at a vote 25 center county, because you wouldn't have to go anywhere else,

1 and you wouldn't be offered a provisional.

2 So the process now for me is greatly streamlined.

3 And I think that, like I said, our voters really aren't going 4 to feel too much of a difference when they show up in front of 5 us.

6 Address changes within the state will continue all 7 the way through election day without question of when they 8 moved. And if it's submitted eight days prior, we're going to 9 go ahead and mail them the ballot like we did before.

10 Within seven days of the election, they'll have to 11 come to us in person. We'll do address changes, and we're 12 going to process them just like we normally would. And then 13 they're always going to get their new ballot style.

14 So this is going to be a huge efficiency, I think,
15 for all involved because now, going forward, the ballot issue
16 that we issue a voter has no question surrounding the date 17 that they moved or didn't move.

18 There's also list maintenance efficiencies. There's 19 three main components to the things that we mail or notices 20 that we get.

21 So the need for the pre-election notification has 22 been eliminated because now we're in an all mail ballot
23 delivery system. So the information we would have been giving 24 them prior to an election is going to go in the mail ballot 25 packet.

1 The update to an address and a status used to take 2 multiple steps and multiple mailings, mail out a confirmation 3 card, get the confirmation card back, do the data entry, send 4 out another confirmation card, that has been reduced 5 significantly with this new reform.

6 And then the felon and death records, they were 7 downloaded monthly prior to this reform. And now we have some 8 efficiencies that we're going to gain.

9 The monthly NCOA file, which means that we're taking 10 information from the postal service and putting it directly 11 into our voter registration system, and then sending one card 12 to update somebody's address, has -- is going to change our 13 system because we are going to get that notice before we mail 14 a piece that's been undeliverable.

15 We're going to have cleaner voter registration lists 16 because of this, and more ballots are going to be sent to good 17 addresses rather than bad addresses.

18 The felon and death record notifications are 19 downloaded daily during an election cycle now. So this is 20 also going to help with cleaner voter registration lists for 21 the realtime eligibility checks that we need to do now with 22 the voter services polling center model.

23 That was one of the things too that came with this 24 reform is that all the clerks across the state of Colorado are 25 on line doing realtime eligibility checks same day voter

1 registration.

2 So the choices in conduct for an election, before we 3 had, for each type of election, two or three choices per 4 county. So it was pretty diverse.

5 So as you can imagine, when there was an election
6 that was in a district greater than a county, it caused a lot 7 of confusion for our voters and for our campaigns, and for 8 people who were trying to watch us from county to county.

9 This uniformity allows for us to put greater focus 10 on practices, best practices and procedures, and then 11 consistent procedures obviously as well so we won't be redoing 12 our training manuals in between every election.

13 So now what we have is all mail ballot delivery with 14 voting service and polling centers.

15 This is my last slide. One of the things that we 16 found during the first election that was conducted under this 17 new model is that no political party benefitted greater than 18 the other. So this was great data for us to see as 19 nonpartisan election officials, that we were bringing the same 20 service to everyone, that it was fairly well equally 21 disbursed.

22 And the other thing that I think will be good to see 23 going forward is what the overall budgetary impact will be of 24 this legislation because of the efficiencies that I just spoke 25 through. I don't think that we have a real good handle on 1 what the labor and postage and printing and that kind of thing 2 is going to bring.

3 That's it. I would welcome any questions.

4 MR. ZAKHEM: Questions?

5 DR. ATKESON: I was wondering about the felon
6 notification. I'm not familiar with how that works.

7 I think back to Catherine Harris and how she was 8 removing people off the polls because they had like names.

9 How do you confirm in the case of felons to keep 10 from disenfranchising them and ensuring they're really that 11 person?

12 MS. REINER: So in Colorado we have a minimum 13 matching criteria for anything that we do to a voter, 14 including removing them from the rolls.

15 That includes their name, date of birth, address 16 sometimes; there's like four things that we have to go through 17 to make sure that the voter is who we've determined they are 18 in the rolls. Then there's a confirmation mailing that goes 19 to them and says we have removed them.

20 In my county I know that I had a gentleman that we 21 had not done a good job with. And he came and he was quite 22 upset that he had been removed as a felon.

23 There was a felon with the same date of birth and 24 the same first and last name as he. We were able to sort that 25 out and get him reregistered and apologize profusely.

1 I've had it happen to me.

2 MS. LYTTLE: I'm not sure if you can answer this 3 question.

4 But were there, are there provisions in the voters 5 modernization legislation that are being rolled back in this 6 legislative session, or attempts to roll any of them back?

7 MS. REINER: There are attempts to roll it back.
8 And so far, they have not been successful.

9 MS. LYTTLE: Certain provisions, or the entire --

10 MS. REINER: One senate bill was for the entire 11 thing as far as we could tell. And there was an ID bill that 12 wanted to strike a couple of things off of our secondary list 13 that failed.

14 MR. CHOATE: Can I just interject?

15 The senate bill was delayed.

16 MS. REINER: Oh, you're right.

17 MR. CHOATE: So it wasn't to roll it back
18 completely, but to delay implementation. But it failed. It 19 never made it out of committee.

20 MR. ZAKHEM: All right. Thank you.

21 (Applause.)

22 MR. ZAKHEM: Before our next speaker, I would like 23 to take advantage of recognizing a few people in attendance.

24 We're lucky enough to have Martha Tierney and 25 Richard Westfall, the co-chairs of the Colorado Elections Task

1 Force, and kind of spearhead our efforts in fostering good 2 relations among the parties and the election officials.

3 For Republican and Democrats, they're sitting on the 4 wrong side, actually. They actually get along really well.

5 Another esteemed guest we have here is Ryan Call, 6 who's the state chairman for the state Republican party. He 7 probably needs some CLE credits to keep his law license.

8 All right. So now we're going to hear from another 9 county clerk, Matt Crane, who is the county clerk and recorder
10 for Arapahoe County. He previously ran elections in Arapahoe 11 County for six years, seven years.

12 And I know firsthand this guy has dealt with 13 election day litigation. And he's no stranger to the 14 trenches.

15 Thanks for coming.

16 MR. CRANE: Good afternoon, everybody. My name is 17 Matt Crane. I am the clerk and recorder for Arapahoe County.

18 I think that Sheila's done a fantastic job kind of 19 outlining what the new model of elections looks like in here 20 in Colorado, so I drilled down a little more what it's going 21 to mean specifically to Arapahoe County.

22 To do that I started back in 2010. That's where I 23 will start to provide some historical perspective on how it's 24 evolved, at least in Arapahoe County over the last few years.

25 So in Arapahoe County, the 2010 general election,

1 Arapahoe County conducted a traditional polling place
2 election. We had 198 locations.

3 In-person voters, and this includes provisional
4 voters as well, we had just over 42,000. The location setup
5 was done, the polling location setup was done on the morning 6 of the election by election judges.

7 We had 1,500 election judges. The average length of 8 a judge class was two hours. We had 200 paper poll books, or 9 198 I guess. Voting machines, we used 1,100 voting machines 10 at the 198 locations.

11 Provisional ballots cast in 2010 was just under 12 7,000, and then we had just over 5,800 of those that were 13 counted.

14 Mail ballots, we issued 206,000, almost 207-, and 15 then cast we had almost 160,000, so it was about 80 percent of 16 those who cast a ballot in 2010 did so by mail.

17 The cost of that election, our last polling place 18 election, was one thousand -- excuse me. One thousand? I 19 wish -- 1,500,000.

20 In 2012 we switched to a vote center model. We 21 thought that we would find operational and cost efficiencies 22 with this, which we did.

23 In-person votes, 65,000. The location setup changed
24 a little bit. We went to setting up the locations one week 25 before, and we hired setup teams to go out and do that for us

1 because of the technical nature of the setup.

2 We had 560 election judges, so that number dropped 3 significantly. Our average length of our judge class was 4 about three hours. We had 265 laptops out for the electronic 5 poll book.

6 Our provisional ballots -- this is something that 7 surprised us a little bit. Normally when you go to vote 8 centers you think your provisional ballot numbers are going to 9 decrease. In 2012 ours actually increased from where we were 10 in 2010. We had 7,000, and then ironically enough we counted 11 just about the same amount, 5,800.

12 Mail ballots issued, about 260,000, and cast we had 13 223,000, again, close to 80 percent. So in a lot of ways
14 before 1303 you could make the argument that Arapahoe County
15 was an all-mail ballot county anyway just based on the 80-20 16 split between mail and in person.

17 The cost of this election, we did see a decrease in 18 the cost. It went down to $1,375,000.

19 Now, what does this look like for 2014? We are 20 going to have 25 election day voter service and polling 21 centers.

22 One thing I didn't note on the earlier slides, in 23 2010 and 2012 we had eight early voting locations. But 24 because of the language in 1303 we actually have to increase 25 that number to 11, go from eight to 11.

1 Location setup, we're going to do the same thing
2 where we set up one week before election day. Election judges 3 hired, we figure about 380. And the numbers this year are 4 still a little fluid as we still try to nail down what our 5 plans are going to be.

6 The average length of our judge class, if you look 7 at that, that jumps significantly up to 40 hours. That's 8 expressly because of same day registration.

9 The integrity of our voter registration list is so 10 very important, when we bring in temps to work on the 11 election, to do voter registration in our office, we don't let 12 them really go free and start working without supervision 13 until after that 40 hours.

14 So we don't know why the judges, out in these 15 facilities, these remote facilities, would be any different, 16 especially since we won't have full-time staff there with them 17 to look over their shoulders to make sure they're doing that 18 correctly.

19 Electronic poll books we'll cut back a little bit to 20 180. Voting machines, we're still going to put out 300 voting 21 machines. And then the provisional ballot cast obviously 22 that's to be determined.

23 Now, up top I have "election day" in quotations 24 because we no longer think of election day in terms of one 25 day. What we learned from our vote center experience in 1 2012 was really significant in terms of our election judges.

2 We figured in our 2012 "projectings" that our 3 election judges would need to turn over a voter every three 4 minutes on the computers. In our training classes that we 5 have for them, they were averaging between one and a half and 6 two minutes, so we thought we had it made in the shade.

7 Well, on election morning when they showed up to 8 Center Point, which was our busiest location, and before the 9 polls even opened at 7 o'clock there was a line going around 10 the block down the street, their first reaction was panic.

11 I don't blame the judges, right? This is a job they 12 do once every two years, and we're asking a lot of them.

13 So the reason we're, I have it in quotation like 14 that is we're going to open up the Saturday before. This will 15 allow our judges to have greater access and get more 16 comfortable in the voting locations and in the different 17 situations.

18 And then, of course, another positive, which isn't 19 to be taken lightly either, is greater access to the ballot.
20 So it's two reasons that we're doing that. But we feel it 21 will give our election judges a chance to get much more 22 comfortable before any rush they may see on election day.

23 Mail ballots. We are estimating that we are now 24 going to send out 350,000 mail ballots based on 1303, so 25 that's an increase of 100,000 ballots from 2012.

1 And the cost for this election -- now, this is 2 budgeted -- is over two million now. And the main drivers of 3 that are the expanded election judge training, the more time 4 that we're going to have judges out in the field, and the 5 printing costs of sending out 100,000 more ballots and the 6 postage and everything associated with that.

7 So that's what we're projecting at this point.

8 Now, I think it's fair to say that for counties that 9 have been vote center counties before where, as you saw in an 10 earlier slide you already saw a significant drop for us in the 11 cost of elections going from polling places to vote center.

12 So we already realized some of the savings that I 13 think other counties are looking at, but because of the items
14 I just mentioned, that's why it's shooting way back up for us.

15 Okay, 2013, this was the first election, the 16 coordinated election that we conducted under the new rules.
17 And I didn't move it up further because coordinated elections, 18 as we all know, the turnout is much smaller and the 19 requirements for the VSPCs are much smaller, so it's really 20 not a good litmus test for what we're looking at this year.

21 But what we did learn this year is, we have more 22 in-person voters than we first thought. When Arapahoe County 23 ran previous coordinated elections where the model is very 24 similar to what is called for under 1303, we never had one 25 person show up to vote on a voting machine. It was all mail

1 ballot. If they came in they would request a paper ballot, 2 replacement mail ballot, and be on their way.

3 In 2013 we had 560, 556 people show up to vote on a 4 voting machine, which in a jurisdiction of 350,000 active at 5 the time doesn't seem like a lot. But it was quite 6 significant for us to think that we may get more people 7 turning out in person in 2014 than we'd originally planned.

8 Also, the timing of the ballots cast. In the 9 2012 general election we had 16 percent of our mail ballots 10 come back on election day. In 2013 we had 40 percent of our 11 ballots come back on election day. It was a huge huge 12 increase for us on election day.

13 Going into election day in 2013 we were completely 14 caught up with our ballots; all the ballots that had been cast 15 had been gone through and counted. So we felt that on 16 election day we were doing pretty well. And the ballots kept 17 coming in and coming in and coming in.

18 So it was a great lesson learned for us that we have 19 to beef up our efforts on election day to make sure that we 20 can accommodate that. I think that's something that will be 21 very interesting to watch as people get used to the new rules 22 under 1303.

23 A lot of people like to hang on to their ballot and 24 wait till the last minute for that October surprise. And now 25 that, you know, all of the ballots are going to active voters

1 by mail, it makes sense that it will come late like that.

2 So that's something that jumped out at us, and we 3 will make sure that we are ready to address this year.

4 Okay, in terms of transparency efficiencies and 5 security of mail ballots, one of the big complaints that, at 6 least I heard in my county, was making everybody vote mail 7 ballot, and people had concerns about the mail ballot process.

8 So we're doing a couple of things in Arapahoe County 9 to help these people's concerns about that that makes the 10 process more efficient.

11 The first is ballot trace. It's a system that Amber 12 has run with in Denver before where it will allow people to 13 sign up. It's an optional sign-in where they can get text 14 messages or emails or voice calls about the status of their 15 ballot, when their ballot's printed, when it hits the post 16 office, when it gets back to us.

17 It will allow us to send text messages to people if 18 their ballot has some kind of deficiency to it; in other 19 words, if they forgot their signature or something like that.
20 So that's one thing that we're trying to do to make sure to 21 try to alleviate some of the concern.

22 The other piece that we're doing is purchasing a 23 mail ballot processing machine, which will create efficiencies 24 for us on how we process ballots.

25 In 2013 when we looked at our process we realized we

1 touched the ballot, each ballot got touched eight times
2 between when it was cast at a ballot box and when we put it
3 away to be stored for the election, which was entirely too 4 much for us.

5 I think we figured we touched ballots over two 6 million times for this election, which is completely insane
7 when you think about it. We think the new ballot processing 8 machine will cut that at least in half.

9 The other good part of it is it includes automatic 10 signature verification software, which we are looking forward 11 to using this year, which we think will be a far more accurate 12 look at the signatures on the ballot as opposed to judges, 13 especially on election day when they've been there 12, 14 14 hours, their eyes get a little blurry and some signatures that 15 maybe should not be accepted it will be a tougher look at 16 those signatures when they come through.

17 Finally, voter education and outreach. As I
18 mentioned at the beginning, this is, for the general election
19 now, for this election this will be the third straight general 20 election where we're introducing a different election model 21 for Arapahoe County. We have a lot of work to do in terms of 22 voter education and outreach.

23 So we're doing lots of mailings and community
24 events. We're going to try to be much more active with videos
25 and UTube videos.

1 I don't know if any of you are familiar with the 2 vote naked video that's been out there. When Illinois went 3 mail ballot they did this whole campaign about voting naked.
4 It was very creative. It went viral. What a great, creative 5 way to get the message out.

6 We're going to -- luckily for me the vote naked
7 thing's been done, so we're not going that route. So we'll 8 have to find some other creative way to do that.

9 We're also on social media, Facebook, Twitter, 10 LinkedIn, and UTube. As was mentioned earlier by one of the 11 other panelists we're always looking for more likes. So I 12 encourage you to visit our website, arapahoevotes.com.

13 We've got our social media icons, and we're doing a 14 great job of trying to get even better of notifying our 15 citizens about what we're doing and how to get where we're 16 going.

17 On our website, we have a lot of great tools. As I 18 mentioned, arapahoevotes.com, where we have a "find my 19 nearest" button where you can go and put in any address in the 20 county and it will give you the nearest voter service or 21 polling center, it will give you the nearest mail ballot 22 dropoff location, it'll give you the nearest clerk's office; 23 there's a whole host of information on there.

24 We also post our wait times for all of our vote 25 centers on line as well. So that's a great tool for our 1 citizens.

2 Of course sample ballots in advance. We try to let 3 people know it's not just a sample ballot with every question 4 on the county. You can pull up your specific information and 5 get only the issues that you're going to be voting on, which 6 we're going to encourage people to do to cut down the time to 7 vote on VSVP this year.

8 With that, any comments or questions? Yes, ma'am?

9 DR. ATKESON: Yes. I notice you have like 10 80 percent or more, 80 plus percent of your provisional 11 ballots counted. That seems high, seems like a high number 12 like something administratively is going wrong.

13 What are you doing to -- why are there so many 14 provisional ballots that are counted, and what is the reason?

15 MR. CRANE: That's a great question.

16 I think what we saw -- and this goes back to judge 17 issue and training issue -- I think when the judges were going 18 through and they saw the lines of people, and people waiting 19 in lines, when they're there a long time sometimes they get a 20 little upset.

21 So what I think the judges did -- well, I know this 22 is what they did, especially at Center Point where I was at, 23 they would try to look somebody up but if they didn't find 24 them on the first pass they would say, Okay, I don't see you.
25 You're going to have to vote provisional.

1 Instead of following their training where they 2 said -- I'm in the system as Matthew Crane, but if I come in 3 and sign as Matt Crane, the system wouldn't find me that way.

4 So you have to take more time and search, use a few 5 different search functions. So I think that was a lot of it.

6 It's definitely a training issue that we'll continue 7 to hammer home in the 40 hours we'll spend with them this 8 year.

9 MS. FELDMAN: I have a number of questions.

10 Thank you for your report. I mean, hearing both of 11 you makes me realize how very complex this is.

12 First of all, the poll workers, the people that work 13 at your polls, how much are they paid? And what is the 14 composition of that?

15 What we found in New Mexico was that our poll 16 workers were mostly senior citizens, are poorly paid until 17 about ten years ago when we increased their pay a little 18 bit -- they were paid about $75 a day.

19 Is it any different in Colorado?

20 MR. CRANE: It is. Counties have a little bit of 21 leeway in what they pay. In 2012 we paid our judges $225 and 22 $250 for the day, and then $250 for training.

23 But now going forward, because we're asking for such 24 a significant greater time thing, we're going to pay $12 an 25 hour. So it will be strictly by hour, so it will work out a

1 little better for them in the long run.

2 MS. FELDMAN: Okay. Because we've tried to get more
3 younger people in this, and maybe do some sort of pilot
4 program with colleges and universities. But so far I don't 5 think it's --

6 MR. CRANE: We have a student judge program here in 7 Colorado where we can use high school kids 16 years and older.
8 We actively recruit our high schools for that because kids 9 aren't afraid of technology.

10 We've had some college kids show up. But in all 11 honesty, they're not as reliable as high school kids, right?
12 Because, you now, college they get up when they get up and 13 they do their things.

14 Whereas high school kids, their moms grab them by 15 the ear and say, You got to get there. We've had a lot of 16 luck with high school.

17 MS. FELDMAN: Interesting. Okay.

18 Another question. You mentioned that you had like 19 40 percent of the people show up, not vote by mail but 20 actually vote in person on election day.

21 MR. CRANE: No. We had 40 percent of the ballots 22 cast came back by election day, mail ballots cast.

23 MS. FELDMAN: I see. Well, one of the things that 24 we experienced in New Mexico in the legislature anyway was 25 county clerks being fairly reluctant to extend the hours or to 1 do more early voting or to do even more mail-in voting because 2 of the difficulty of counting them in time.

3 The concern was the speed of reporting the results
4 rather than the access of the voter. And I wonder how speedy 5 are you in reporting your results, and how important is that?

6 MR. CRANE: Well, there's always the age-old 7 argument, speed versus accuracy.

8 Prior to 2013 I thought we were pretty good. But in 9 2013 -- I still think our processes are good; we just got 10 significantly more turnout on the last day than we 11 anticipated.

12 In Arapahoe County we didn't get done counting 13 ballots until Wednesday night into Thursday morning, which is 14 completely unacceptable, especially going into a general 15 election year.

16 If we have a close election, and in Arapahoe County 17 and in the state of Colorado there's a couple of races that 18 look like they're going to be very very close.

19 We will make sure that we can get results out as 20 quickly as possible, and not have to go days to get the 21 results.

22 MS. LYTTLE: The changes in each election cycle, I'm 23 wondering how you publicize those to communities, and more 24 specifically whether or not you use community groups, 25 indigenous leaders to help publicize those changes in election

1 procedures.

2 MR. CRANE: I can say in the past in Arapahoe County 3 we've relied strictly -- actually not strictly, but mostly on 4 mailings and, you know, we would do some PSAs on our local 5 cable channels.

6 I'm going to be more aggressive this year in using 7 our stakeholders that way in helping us spread the word. And 8 every medium we can think of we're going to try to make sure 9 that we have a presence there so that we can get the word out.

10 Because, you know, again last year 1303 -- 2013 we 11 did it this way. We used the rules under House Bill 1303, but 12 we all know general elections get a much higher turnout.

13 There's a lot of people that don't start paying 14 attention until October or mid October of those years, so we 15 have to make sure that we're well out in front of them to let 16 them know that they're going to get a ballot in the mail, and 17 not completely disregard it, you know, if they don't want to; 18 I mean, to be on the lookout for it.

19 MS. LYTTLE: I'd really encourage you to use 20 those stakeholders. And specifically those indigenous leaders 21 do more than social media or, you know, some letter could ever 22 do, especially in places like where you are working.

23 MR. CHOATE: I'm curious. What percentage or amount 24 of the 2.1 million you budgeted this year do you anticipate as 25 a rollout cost? So, a first-time cost that you don't plan to 1 repeat in future elections?

2 MR. CRANE: Honestly, none. And the reason for that 3 is because we went to vote centers already, so a lot of the 4 technology costs that the other counties are going to have to 5 incur to go from a paper poll book system to an electronic 6 poll book system, we've already done that and have the 7 infrastructure in place.

8 We will look at judge training after this year, and 9 see if it was significant enough or if maybe we have overkill 10 in there and we can pull back a little bit. But we won't know 11 that until after this year.

12 So potentially maybe there. And then -- but I don't 13 know that I'll be inclined to cut back too much because as '13
14 wasn't a great litmus test for '14, '14 will be an okay test 15 for '16 but we always get dramatically higher turnouts in 16 presidential elections than we do in gubernatorial elections.

17 So to say that I would cut much back between '14 and 18 '16 is very unlikely.

19 MR. CHOATE: What did your commissioners say to the 20 $800,000 increase? Do you think that they're going to be okay 21 with that budget going forward?

22 MR. CRANE: I think we did a good job of educating 23 our commissioners on what the bill entailed and what it was 24 looking like.

25 And in Arapahoe County in 2012 where we had Center

1 Point and some long lines that nobody wants to see happen 2 again, there was a good commitment from the entire county to 3 make sure that we invest properly in elections going forward.

4 THE FLOOR: On the election judges, will Arapahoe
5 take the route that all judges will be trained to do
6 registration at every access point? Or will you have separate 7 registration access points?

8 MR. CRANE: No. We're going to train all of our 9 computer judges, I guess is the best way to phrase it, all of 10 our computer judges will be trained on everything because we 11 want to be able to account for if somebody calls in sick one 12 day or something like that.

13 We'll train alternates as well. But our plan right 14 now is to train all of our computer judges on all of the 15 different applications and processes that they'll have to 16 know.

17 Our machine judges, they won't touch the computers; 18 we'll keep them separate. But our computer judges, we want to 19 make sure they can do everything.

20 THE FLOOR: So the 40 hours is just for computer 21 judges? That's some portion of the --

22 MR. CRANE: Right, right.

23 MS. MC REYNOLDS: I was going to ask do you 24 anticipate savings for mailings and the elimination of the -- 25 is that factored in to that?

1 MR. CRANE: Yes.

2 MS. MC REYNOLDS: So that's already taking out all 3 of the savings on mailings?

4 MR. CRANE: Yes.

5 MS. MC REYNOLDS: And then for ballot trainings, so 6 we don't just use it, we created it.

7 I had to -- Matt's one of my oldest friends. I had 8 to make sure I mentioned that. That was a big deal.

9 MR. CRANE: We're very excited to use it, and we're 10 glad you guys piloted it and got all the bugs out.

11 MR. ZAKHEM: Anybody else? All right. Thanks, 12 Matt.

13 (Applause.)

14 MR. ZAKHEM: Okay. We're down to our last 15 presenter.

16 Roman Montoya is the deputy clerk of Bernalillo
17 County, New Mexico. He's going to talk about vote centers.

18 MR. MONTOYA: I think Matt covered most of it. So 19 if you have any questions?

20 I'm going to reiterate some of the things that Matt 21 said, but I'm going to put our own twist on it. You guys in 22 Colorado have had vote centers since about 2003. And the last 23 election cycle, 2012, was the first time they were allowed 24 statewide in New Mexico.

25 The presentation I'm going to give to you kind of is

1 what we gave to our stakeholders and to our groups when we 2 were implementing exactly what it is, letting people know what 3 the benefits were. This is more going towards 2014, what we 4 were talking about from the 2012 election to the 2014
5 election.

6 Some of the areas we're going to cover today are 7 what's the precinct versus VCC, education and marketing that 8 we did to our stakeholder groups, administering of the 9 election, the feedback, and the futures of VCC.

10 So the VCC obviously is consolidated polling 11 locations where you can vote at any location. That means you 12 can vote here or here, here or here if you see a location.

13 Precinct voting doesn't allow you to do that. You 14 can only go to your one location. And it does cause the 15 issues of provisional ballots. Nobody likes provisional 16 ballots. Here at the election sites that's a four letter word 17 with a lot more letters.

18 So what we're going to talk about is some of the 19 pros and cons of VCC directly up against precincts. The 20 precincts you can only go to their own precinct. The VCCs you 21 can go to any of our 69 locations that we have in Bernalillo
22 County.

23 So like everything in life, we keep score. And VCCs
24 1, precinct 0.

25 Precinct: Voters call upset not knowing where to 1 vote. With the VCC that greatly reduced the phone calls that 2 we get by upset voters.

3 And of course, that's 2-0.

4 Just to let everybody know, we do have a call center
5 staff that is on board election day. We always have about 6 20 people that just take phone calls.

7 The majority of the phone calls they're taking are 8 things such as, Where do I vote? I didn't vote here last 9 time. That's not where I voted at the school election.
10 That's not where I voted at the city election. You guys are 11 trying to disenfranchise me because you keep changing my 12 polling location.

13 We got that down by 10 o'clock in the morning down 14 to four people, and we got to reassign the other 16 people to 15 other election duties.

16 So it really really helped the voters, and it really 17 helped us not have to worry about answering those questions, 18 and put those resources into other aspects of our election.

19 The precinct, registered voters at the wrong 20 location get provisional ballots which may not have their 21 correct candidates. At VCC the voters cannot go to the wrong 22 location, so they always will get their correct ballots.

23 Again, 3-0.

24 One thing that we talked about, like what Matt had 25 talked about, we actually had more provisionals than we

1 thought we were going to have. It did increase from the 2 previous election.

3 But we figured if you give everybody the ballot that 4 they get, they can't go to the wrong location, so we should 5 cut down significantly on the amount of provisional ballots.
6 And that didn't happen.

7 A lot of it had to do with what Matt had talked 8 about, poll workers not looking up the correct name and not 9 finding somebody, and giving up too soon and issuing 10 provisional ballots.

11 A lot of those might've been data entry things. It 12 might've been what Matt was talking about, and instead of 13 putting Matthew they were putting Matt. Or could have been a 14 human error, transposed on our side when we entered the 15 registration in the first place.

16 And the last one we have are pre-printed ballots and 17 paper rosters. So we have to have a certain number of 18 pre-printed ballots no matter who shows up. So if people 19 don't show up to vote then we have to waste a lot of 20 pre-printed paper ballots and paper rosters.

21 We use ballot on demand systems, which you have to 22 use electronic poll books and electronic signature pads, which 23 helps us eliminating having to do any kind of paperwork other 24 than the ballots themselves.

25 So it looks like it was a clean sweep of 4-0.

1 Next area we're going to talk about is the education
2 and marketing. This is what we focused on to get buy-in from 3 all the stakeholders we have.

4 And who are stakeholders? Our stakeholders are the 5 voters, obviously, the county commissioners, the political 6 parties, the community activist groups, civic groups, 7 neighborhood associations, and our internal staff and our poll
8 workers.

9 Those are other people that we had to have buy in as 10 well because they're the ones who actually have to run it, and 11 you want those people to have buy-in. You want those people 12 to be the best representation of what you have introducing 13 something new out there in the public.

14 If they're putting on a smiley face and they're 15 saying they love it, then it's more acceptable by the actual 16 voter when they come in to vote.

17 Some of the groups we targeted were civic groups, 18 neighborhood associations, political parties, and any groups
19 we had that would ignite voter participation.

20 And we sent invitations out to everybody. Those who 21 accepted we did talk to those groups and gave those 22 presentations.

23 So some of the other things we did was we used 24 television advertisement. We used static and electronic 25 billboard advertisements, radio station advertisements, cinema

1 theaters, so prior to the movie they would see an 2 advertisement, print publications, and social media, and our 3 website.

4 We also sent a registered voter out -- a registered 5 letter out to everybody letting them know about the upcoming 6 locations. On the back it had all 69 locations and a map, and 7 then it let them know also where they can vote and the times, 8 and all the information that we had on there.

9 Our esteemed Professor Atkeson gave us a quote. We 10 have a good, great partnership with the University of New 11 Mexico. They go out and have an army of students and 12 professors and educated people.

13 And they go out there and they talk to the poll 14 workers, they talk to the voters when they come out, and they 15 get a lot of information which is extremely helpful for us.

16 And it's about two or three reports, each one about 17 that thick. They've been doing this for years. We get a lot 18 of feedback, and that helps us to know what works and what 19 doesn't work.

20 Sometimes when you run the election you get that 21 tunnel vision where you can't really see outside of what's 22 happening. So they're our eyes and ears out there that tell 23 us, No, this isn't working or, Yes, it is working, and then 24 you tweak it and help it.

25 What Professor Atkeson said, or what I made up she

1 said is, Overall, the County made a strong effort, did a good 2 job ensuring the voters knew about the changes and an 3 opportunity to vote absentee by mail, early in person, or on 4 election day.

5 This is supported by the fact that more than nine in 6 ten or 93 percent of the in-person voters knew before they 7 went to vote that they could vote at any center.

8 Like I said, in New Mexico it was a bigger deal for 9 us because this is the first time we'd ever gone to this 10 model. We'd always gone just the straight precinct voting.

11 So what we're going to talk about is some of the 12 features that we used. We have a mobile AP that was available 13 on the Android and it was available on the Apple also on 14 iPhones.

15 And what it does, this is a screen shot of what it 16 looks like on this side. You'll notice it has three tabs:
17 home, hours, and dates and locations. So this is the home 18 screen.

19 When you go to hours and dates it gives some general
20 information about the election, early voting time, general
21 election day.

22 On locations we actually had it tied up to Google
23 maps to where it would list all of them. And you can list 24 them by three separate things. You can list them by 25 alphabetically, you can list them by distance, and you can

1 list them by wait time as well.

2 So we had -- that was a great feature that we didn't 3 get to introduce until about two weeks before the election by 4 the time we got all the rights from Apple and Google to let us
5 do everything. We didn't get to use that as much as we could, 6 but that's going to be heavily pushed in our 2014 election.

7 We have another site called My Voter Information, 8 MVI. What that does is it allows the voter to see all the 9 polling locations at one point on your computer screen. You 10 see all 69 Goggle dots. Everybody's seen the Google maps with 11 the little placeholder.

12 And it has a wait time AP on that that shows if that 13 dot is colored green that means there's less than a 15 minute
14 wait. If it's colored yellow, that mean there's a 16 to 29 15 minute wait. If it's colored red that means 30 minutes or 16 more.

17 You can look up the whole city at one time at one 18 shot and kind of have an idea of where it is you want to vote 19 and where the best place to go vote is.

20 It also tells you when you get there all of the 21 districts that you're eligible for. It tells you your 22 information. It gives you a copy of your sample ballot as 23 well.

24 There's a link. We have about a little over 25 500 combinations of different types of ballots you can get so

1 it has yours specifically to where you're tied at. You can 2 click on your sample ballot and it gets you right there.

3 I feel like I'm at the Oscars. I'm waiting for the 4 music to start.

5 I've talked a little bit about the study that 6 Dr. Atkeson's group does. One of the things that we've got 7 some of the feedback on there was the overall experience for 8 the VCC models was positive, both from the voters and the poll 9 officials who are hired separately and were polled separately.

10 So 97 percent of the people liked VCC better than 11 precinct voting, and 81.8 percent say the voting at the VCC 12 was easy.

13 The 97 percent, that's a number that's going to be 14 hard to improve. If that ever goes higher I'll be surprised 15 because you just can't please everybody.

16 You could actually go knock on people's doors and 17 hand them the ballot, take it back from them, take it back and 18 actually count it, and they still wouldn't like it for 19 whatever reason.

20 But the 81.8 percent is a number that we are trying 21 to target. We believe that with all the help we got, the 22 feedback that we get, the first time running a VCC election on 23 the scale that we did we thought this was going to be -- I'm 24 really happy with the 81.8, but that's a number that I know we 25 can increase a lot. We will be increasing that number.

1 The poll workers, about 96 percent stated that they 2 liked the VCC model better than the precinct. That's one of 3 our biggest, and we had a buy-in.

4 Part of the problem we had was training. We did a 5 skills assessment test. Some of the people who were working 6 at the polling locations aren't familiar with using a mouse
7 and being able to see a screen with a small box in it.

8 We had about a 15 minute skills assessment exam for 9 every single poll worker who was going to be working on the 10 laptops. A lot of them didn't make it. A lot of people had 11 been working the polls for years with us. We got a little bit 12 of flack back from some of the people saying, I know what I'm 13 doing.

14 So we do love that experience with those people, so 15 we did move them to another position that didn't have the 16 responsibilities of using the computer.

17 This is my last screen. I wanted to show everybody 18 the pre-printed ballots we had to do in New Mexico before and 19 the amount that we had, we spent about $2 million strictly on 20 the printing of the ballots; that's the only thing that cost 21 is for right there.

22 In 2012 that's what our cost was, $900,000. We had 23 about a million dollar savings just on that by itself.

24 These are some of the achievements and recognitions 25 that we got. The Pew center for the state, the National

1 Conference of State Legislators, the Oversee the Vote
2 Foundation, and the Center for Excellence in Election
3 Administration all gave us recognition.

4 That's it for my time, but I have time for
5 questions.

6 THE FLOOR: I just wanted you to throw out there, 7 when we talk about counties, people don't really know when we 8 are talking about Bernalillo County, we have 33 counties in 9 New Mexico.

10 Make sure everybody knows how many people and what 11 percentage of the state you're talking about right there.

12 MR. MONTOYA: Our state's a fairly small state. We 13 have about 433,000 registered voters in Bernalillo County, 14 which makes up approximately a little bit less than half of 15 the entire state's population.

16 So we pretty much cover -- we're the only big 17 city -- big city. Not compared to Denver or anything like 18 that. But we're the only big city in New Mexico. So we kind 19 of, we have a lot of things -- our VCC model is a little 20 different than some of the other cities.

21 These present challenges for every single city out
22 there.

23 MS. BICKEL: We talked about this when I talked 24 about Dona Ana County had vote centers at the same time that 25 Otero County had precinct based voting.

1 Because under our statute counties can opt in to 2 vote centers but they're not mandated.

3 So how do you guys address the challenges of people 4 getting confused from other counties, and think they can vote 5 at a vote center when they can't?

6 MR. MONTOYA: This situation kind of came up in the 7 2012 election.

8 One of the counties directly to the north of us,
9 Sandoval County, had a lot of long lines. And it's only a 10 suburb of Albuquerque, so the separation is basically 11 nonexistent other than streets.

12 A lot of people in Sandoval County thought they 13 could vote in Bernalillo County. A lot of them came down and 14 cast ballots here.

15 We had to tell them we had to issue them provisional 16 ballots with the understanding, You're in Sandoval County. We 17 can give you a provisional ballot, but unfortunately it's 18 probably not going to count. It's not official until we do 19 the canvas.

20 We did have a lot of that happen. A lot of people 21 just wanted the fact that they voted out there because they 22 knew the fact that they weren't going to get their vote cast 23 in Sandoval County, but they did want to say they showed up to 24 vote so they did do that.

25 We had other people from other counties doing that

1 as well. Hopefully the education, that being the first time
2 for the voter having to do a VCC election, hopefully that'll 3 help increase the awareness for the next time we have 4 something like that.

5 MS. FELDMAN: You know, congratulations on all this.
6 I think you need to thank the academy.

7 But you've eliminated a lot of these precinct
8 polling places -- they were neighborhood polling places 9 earlier -- and consolidated them into several of them.

10 Feedback that I got was, or question I guess, how 11 did you select where those polling places were? Because the 12 location of a polling place in the past has been thought to be 13 rather important to the surrounding area.

14 And so if you don't locate polling places in a low
15 income area that's an Hispanic neighborhood, there's feelings 16 that, you know, maybe you're doing that on purpose.

17 And, you know, it's all tied in with who actually 18 makes the decision as to where these polling places should be 19 located. And is it somebody that's an elected official that 20 should be making that decision? And maybe it wasn't.

21 But when you have county clerks that are elected in 22 partisan elections making some of those decisions, I think the 23 question is, is it always unbiased?

24 MR. MONTTOYA: What we did, I can show you on the map
25 right here. All the ones in the stars are the voting

1 convenience centers. The ones in the green, which is hard to 2 see on the screen, are our early voting sites which turn into 3 voting centers on election day.

4 What we are mandated by our state New Mexico is you 5 have to have one voting convenience center for every ten 6 precincts. That would mean we have 440 precincts, that means 7 we'd have to have 44 locations.

8 The way we did it, we had 69 locations, so we had 9 "24" more locations than we actually needed.

10 Because we wanted to make sure we covered every 11 area, if you don't know Albuquerque very well, this is I-40
12 right here and I-25 coming down the middle so we had four 13 separate quadrants basically in Albuquerque.

14 We tried to distribute as evenly as possible with 15 all of the previous voter data that we had from prior 16 elections.

17 It's hard to say who's going to vote at a VCC 18 because we had never done a VCC election before so this was 19 the first time at that. So we decided based on past history 20 we knew where people turned out to vote.

21 We figured it was the northeast heights and the 22 southeast heights where we were going to have the most people 23 show up. You see more stars on the right-hand side. And 24 that's mostly because of the fact that that's where we have 25 higher turnout of voting.

1 You'll see some spaces over here. That's not 2 because that's not an area --

3 MS. FELDMAN: My district. My district I might want 4 to point out.

5 MR. MONTOYA: It is spread out a little more.

6 This area right here, the south valley area, there's 7 a lot of farming communities down there, there's a lot of 8 ranches down there. There's a lot of area that's spread out.
9 We don't have the consolidated urban area we do on this side 10 of town.

11 That's part of the reasons why we did it. Every 12 single site that we have is within or on a route for a bus 13 route or a major transit route or a major street so there's 14 nothing on the side streets, nothing hidden away; everything 15 -- you can see all of these from streets when you drive by.
16 They're very transparent for people.

17 What we found out was about 75 percent of the people 18 who vote, that live within a one mile radius of these stars, 19 vote at that place. That was for early voting.

20 On election day it was about the same thing as well.
21 A little bit less on election day. And the reason is, people 22 were going a little bit further out on election day -- not 23 election day, I'm sorry, early voting -- because they saw it 24 for the two and a half week process, the time that we have 25 them out there.

1 So they were driving by them all the time. They saw 2 them on their way to work, on the way to the mall, on their 3 way to pick up a child from childcare. They were seeing these 4 sites and they realized they could go to different locations.

5 So we had a lot of people vote further away on,
6 during the early voting process. On election day they got a 7 lot closer to their location.

8 MR. CHOATE: You have no excuse absentee?

9 MR. MONTOYA: Yes.

10 MR. CHOATE: What percentage do you have in your
11 county?

12 MR. MONTOYA: We're fighting the trend of everyone
13 else. We are actually going down in the absentee voting 14 because we found out, the reason is the political parties were 15 really pushing early voting. And they pushed it hard in the 16 2012 election. Because they did that, not as many people who 17 would normally absentee vote were absentee voting.

18 Ours went up and down. If you look at Bernalillo 19 County there's no trend of it going up. They trended it 20 spiking at 80,000, down to 40,000, up to 30,000, up to 50,000
21 and down again.

22 So it's hard for us to have a trend on what's going 23 to happen. A lot of it depends on how the political parties 24 decide to push their constituents to vote.

25 MR. CHOATE: Can you designate yourself permanently

1 absentee ballot? Or do you have to on each election?

2 MR. MONTOYA: Each election you have to ask for one.

3 MS. FELDMAN: Unless you're a senior citizen.

4 MR. MONTOYA: No, each election. You have to apply 5 for one at each election.

6 DR. ATKESON: I'd like to follow up on that.

7 There's quite a bit of evidence that people are much 8 more confident their ballot is counted correctly when they 9 actually put it in a machine.

10 From that perspective I actually think it's better 11 for in-person voting. Voters feel like, Look, I see it go in 12 the machine. I know it's counted.

13 If you don't have a ballot trace or anything like 14 that, if you mail it in, you just don't know. You hear 15 rumors it never was counted in a close race and all these 16 kinds of things.

17 MR. MONTOYA: Another sidenote to that, on Professor 18 Atkeson's website the report they did on the Bernalillo County 19 VCC election -- I don't know her website but anyway it's out 20 there and available.

21 We can always provide the link to anybody who needs 22 to see it. It's a great report. It tells a lot of 23 information.

24 MR. ZAKHEM: Anybody else? Thank you.

25 (Applause.)

1 MR. ZAKHEM: Okay. That is our last presenter, last 2 panelist. Thank you all.

3 We have moved on to the public comment section of 4 our program. And we have one person who has signed up for 5 comment, three minutes.

6 Mr. James Johnson, if you would come forward, and 7 please give us your comment.

8 MR. JOHNSON: I just want you to know that Chris was 9 very helpful in giving me the sheet of how to testify.

10 I'm not exactly sure, but under No. 4 it says, 11 Please let the volunteer know if you have time constraints.
12 Who is the volunteer? And I only need an hour and a half.

13 My name is James Johnson. I'm the chair of the 14 Colorado Montana Wyoming region of the NAACP. I'm the chair 15 of the political action committee, excuse me.

16 I come here today because I really experienced many 17 aspects of voting and voting rights, one from a voter, to a 18 candidate, to an elected official, and as an election judge.
19 And so I've done a little bit of all of it.

20 I really want you to know that the NAACP is the 21 nation's oldest and largest civil rights organization. And 22 since its founding in 1909, the NAACP has fought to ensure the 23 political rights of all people.

24 I want to thank the Commission for their efforts to 25 improve the voter access around the country and for taking the 1 time to come out and listen to us.

2 Your efforts are really of great importance now as 3 we see many of the gains that we've had in the past to expand 4 access to democracy actually being rolled back, from the 5 Supreme Court decision of Shelby County versus Holder to 6 secretaries of states purging voter rolls to quote unquote 7 poll watchers who are there to actually intimidate voters.

8 And our democracy is only as strong as the citizens'
9 faith in the electoral process. And efforts of voter 10 suppression shakes citizens' confidence in free and fair
11 elections.

12 I do want to applaud particularly the Colorado state 13 legislature and the independent county clerks in the state.
14 As a county commissioner, I know how independent they believe 15 that they are. And I will tell you that they take that very 16 seriously.

17 But here in Colorado, through legislation as well as 18 from what counties have done with experimentation as to how to 19 get out and reach to voters and give them greater access, it's 20 been a really wonderful thing.

21 We've seen many more people who have not been 22 willing to participate actually participating because it's 23 been easier for them to do that.

24 One of the things that I would urge people to look 25 at how is it that we expand that opportunity even further. I

1 know that when I was a young man, and even though the draft
2 was gone by the time I was eligible, as a young man when you
3 turn 18 you get a notice that says, You now need to register 4 for the draft.

5 And I don't know why states and the federal 6 government cannot send out notices to people when they turn 7 18 that, You are now eligible to actually register to vote.

8 Also with the clerks offices, one of the things that 9 people on the corporate side do, they know when you move into 10 a community. I mean, you immediately start getting post 11 cards, mailers letting you know there's a store right around 12 the corner.

13 If we could take that approach as well when people 14 move into our community to let them know, You may want to 15 change your voter registration, as opposed to them going out 16 and look for it.

17 There's another group of people that I do want to 18 thank here in Colorado, and that's the parole officers who 19 have taken the time to actually let felons know that they can 20 vote, and that their voting rights have been restored, and 21 letting them know how it is that they need to go through the 22 process.

23 My time is up. Thank you.

24 (Applause.)

25 MR. CHOATE: We're in something called the

1 electronic registration information central, which is called 2 ERIC.

3 In ERIC, we feed information from the DMV and our 4 voter registration rolls into ERIC, and so do a whole bunch of 5 other states. And what it does is it identifies people who 6 are likely eligible to vote but who are not currently 7 registered.

8 We did a huge mailing of 763,000 postcards last year
9 to all the people that we believed were eligible but were not 10 registered, and invited them to register. Ten percent of them 11 did.

12 We then in 2014 we collected all the names and 13 addresses of the people that over the last 18 months had 14 become eligible or we believed they had. And over the next 15 couple of months or probably around June or July, we're going 16 to do another mailing for all of those people.

17 So we're effectively doing what you were saying with 18 the selective service; we're just going to do it periodically 19 as elections approach.

20 MS. LYTLE: I just had a comment.

21 Today was my first day hearing the four words,
22 Colorado Elections Task Force. As a person who pays attention
23 to her world -- and I assure you that I do -- it troubles me
24 that I, representing this organization that I represent, did 25 not know such a thing existed, or that there's an opportunity

1 for some input into this process in this way.

2 I think it just really speaks to the theme of some 3 of my comments -- maybe I'm doing this prematurely, but I'm 4 piggybacking on James -- that the need for greater information 5 is persistent in Colorado and New Mexico, and I would say in 6 other places.

7 And the ability to use indigenous leadership is 8 there. All we have to do is have the will to do it.

9 MS. FIGUEREDO: So thank you again everyone for 10 coming out today.

11 I feel like I'm cursed because the first hearing was 12 snow, second hearing was snow. I'm hoping my next one in 13 April, when spring has technically started, there will not be 14 snow.

15 But I want to thank the commissioners again. I 16 think this is maybe the first hearing where there's been 17 audience interaction, which is just a lovely thing. I think 18 it reflects how important it is to Coloradoans and New 19 Mexicans about elections, and making sure that everyone has 20 equal participation and that we're improving elections.

21 Thank you to the audience for your thoughtful 22 questions as well. Thank you again to our witnesses for 23 staying here for four hours and staying through your wonderful 24 comments.

25 I think one of the things I've loved about these

1 hearings is, I'm a total voting nerd, but I learn something 2 new every single time. They say in your career, if you're not 3 learning something then you're doing something wrong.

4 Just a couple of final housekeeping items. To the 5 guest commissioners, if you could meet with me afterward for 6 final comments for a press release afterwards for your final 7 reflections.

8 If you do want to submit additional testimony you 9 can email NCBR at Lawyers' Committee dot org. You can also 10 find more information about the upcoming hearings. Like I 11 said, this is the ninth. We're doing a little over 20 12 hearings across the country so we got a couple more. March 13 and April are going to be very very busy months for us at the 14 Lawyers' Committee.

15 For the lawyers in the room, there is CLE credit for 16 this event. There are forms out front and a basket that you 17 can drop those forms in. If you have any questions about that 18 ask Lisa Prado from the Colorado's Lawyer Committee.

19 Also to the witnesses and the guest commissioners, 20 if you can turn in the photo release forms to me.

21 And thank you to our interpreters. Although we 22 didn't have turnout from the deaf community, we thought it was 23 incredibly important, when we're talking about access as one 24 of our panels, we wanted to make sure we provided sign 25 language interpretation.

1 (Applause.)

2 MS. FIGUEREDO: And then of course because the law
3 school has been so gracious, clean up after yourself. Throw 4 away your napkins and plates and things like that. We don't 5 want to leave a mess behind for someone who has been so very 6 gracious to us.

7 As Connie knows, at Lawyers' Committee we do a lot 8 of stuff in collaboration with the legal community, and we go 9 out to law firms. And we always are very cognizant of making 10 sure that we leave the space in the same way we entered it.

11 And then just finally, you know, this is the 12 beginning of an ongoing conversation that groups have already 13 been having here in Colorado and in New Mexico.

14 But we really want these hearings to not just end
15 today; that, you know, I make the commitment from the Lawyers' 16 Committee and I've already talked to Vickie about how, from 17 the testimony I heard from the Native American community, what 18 we can do for next steps to do some legislation to prevent 19 discrimination and deceptive practices.

20 Thank you guys again. There is a reception 21 afterwards, and we welcome all of you to attend. If you just 22 go outside the hallway and down there, there's food, there's 23 booze, and we can talk further and have a continued 24 conversation.

25 I look forward to working with all of you guys

1 again. Connie?

2 MS. TALMAGE: Chris, I know that this was being 3 recorded. Will the video or the transcript be available?

4 MS. FIGUEREDO: Absolutely.

5 MS. TALMAGE: What's the timing of the report? I 6 understand you're doing two reports.

7 MS. FIGUEREDO: Thank you. Good question.

8 We're already in the process of starting the first 9 report on voting discrimination based on the hearings that 10 have already happened. There's going to be a lot to digest.
11 We started to write that report. The goal is to release the 12 first report by the end of May, early June.

13 Then the second report that will be on election 14 administration and election reform will be later this fall; 15 hopefully ahead of the elections. And we'll make that 16 available to everybody as well.

17 Then for the transcript I think it takes two to 18 three weeks to do that. I'll ask the law school how long it 19 takes for the recording. We'll make sure to get that out.

20 MS. TALMAGE: Will those be posted on the national 21 registry website?

22 MS. FIGUEREDO: You know, we haven't discussed that.
23 We've been mostly just giving it to partners that have been 24 engaged. I'll talk about it.

25 MS. TALMAGE: I'd like to know. If it's not going

1 to be posted on your website I'd like to post it on ours, but 2 I need permission.

3 MS. FIGUEREDO: We'll talk about that.

4 Thank you guys again. Have a great time.

5 (Applause.)

1 Proceedings

2 (Proceedings commenced)

3 MS. ARNOLD: Good afternoon, everyone. Thank 4 you for joining us today as part of the National 5 Commission On Voting Rights. It's great to see so 6 many people here that are dedicated to insuring
7 fairness in the vote in Florida.

8 I'm Rebecca Kelly Arnold, and I am an attorney 9 with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under 10 Law in Washington D.C. The Lawyers' Committee is a 11 nonprofit nonpartisan civil rights organization
12 founded at the request of President JFK 50 years 13 ago to engage the private bar in the fight for 14 racial justice and equality. We continue our work 15 today in a range of areas that impact racial and 16 ethnic minorities. Notably, our organization has 17 been at the forefront of a legal struggle to 18 protect advances in voting rights -- the reason 19 that we are all here today.

20 So on behalf of the Lawyers' Committee, we 21 thank you for your participation and your support
22 for this hearing. Today's hearing is the 12th in a 23 series of nationwide fact-finding hearings convened 24 by our National Commission On Voting Rights. As 25 many of you know, this summer the U.S. Supreme

1 Proceedings

2 Court nullified a vital provision of the Voting
3 Rights Act that required federal review of voting 4 changes in states with a history of voting
5 discrimination, such as here in Florida.

6 This ruling compelled the Lawyers' Committee
7 to reconvene the National Commission to host 8 national hearings to review discrimination in 9 voting as well as the impact of the recent changes 10 in the election administration laws.

11 So again, it really is great to see you all 12 here because your voices need to be heard and your 13 input on these issues is vital for ongoing advocacy 14 and reform on a state, local and national level.

15 Following these hearings, two reports will be 16 issued: One on voting discrimination and the other 17 on election administration. It is our hope that 18 these reports will inform the public debate on the 19 state of voting discrimination, the impact of 20 recent election administration laws, and efforts 21 for reform across the country.

22 So now I would like to introduce our guest
23 commissioner panel for today's hearing. Presiding
24 over our events we have four Florida commissioners, 25 each with a deep commitment to protecting access to

1 Proceedings

2 the ballot box on equal terms for all.

3 So we have Leon Russell, Vice Chairman NAACP
4 Board of Directors and one of our national 5 commissioners. We are thrilled to have him here
6 with us today. Professor Daniel A. Smith, Ph.D., 7 University of Florida Research Foundation
8 Professor; the Honorable Dan Gelber, founding 9 partner of Gelber, Schachter & Greenberg and former 10 Florida state senator and state representative; and 11 Lida Rodriguez-Taseff, partner at Duane Morris, 12 LLP, and a former member of the Miami-Dade Election 13 Reform Coalition.

14 Our commissioners will preside over today's 15 events and receive testimony from several panels of 16 witnesses. They will ask follow-up questions to 17 insure a robust record about the state of voting in 18 Florida today.

19 Just a little bit of process. That's always 20 exciting before we start the program. If you have 21 been confirmed on a panel and you haven't already 22 checked in, please make sure that you do that at 23 the sign-in table just outside here. The guest 24 commissioners will call your name when it is time
25 to present your testimony. You can come to this

1 Proceedings

2 panel and do that.

3 For those of you who would like to share your 4 voting experiences but you haven't been already 5 assigned to the panel as a preset witness, we would 6 love to hear from you too, so make sure that you
7 sign up on the witness list outside in the same
8 place I was just speaking about and you'll fill out 9 a card with your full name and generally what it is 10 that you'd like to speak about. You'll leave those 11 cards back there and someone will bring them up to 12 the guest commissioners and they will call your 13 name at the beginning of the open mic period and 14 you'll come up and testify at this podium at that 15 time.

16 A few other things. Our hearing is being 17 transcribed here to please speak clearly and state
18 your name before you begin your testimony. Please 19 be mindful of the timekeeper, and there are signs, 20 the timekeeper in the red hat. Each witness will 21 have five minutes so he'll give you the countdown.
22 So try to stay aware of that.

23 Finally, the thank-yous. In addition to the 24 University of Miami, who are fantastic folks, I 25 want to thank our amazing planning committee

1 Proceedings

2 organization. That's the Advancement Project, the 3 American Civil Liberties Union of Florida and the 4 student chapter here, the Center for Independent
5 Living of South Florida, Common Cause, Disability
6 Rights Florida, Florida New Majority, Florida State 7 Conference of NAACP, Latino Justice, League of 8 Women voters of Florida, Mi Familia Vota, the 9 National Council of Jewish Women, SEIU Florida, the 10 National Lawyers Guild of Miami student chapter, 11 and the Voting Rights Coalition of Palm Beach
12 County.

13 Clearly, there are a lot of people working 14 together to make this happen and a big, big thank 15 you to all of them. Also, thank you to our 16 witnesses for preparing and presenting testimony.
17 And a great big thank you to, our guest 18 commissioners, for being with us today and for 19 presiding over the hearing.

20 Now I will turn it over to our commissioners 21 for their opening remarks and to call up the first 22 panel of witnesses. Thank you.

23 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Good afternoon. As 24 Rebecca indicated, I'm Leon Russell. I am the vice 25 chairman of the National Board of Directors of the

1 Proceedings

2 NAACP. I'm also a former president of the Florida
3 State Conference of Branches of the NAACP. And 4 from the standpoint of voting and voting rights
5 issues I have been actively engaged in any number 6 of issues in the state including redistricting ad 7 infinitum -- Dan and I smile at each other for that 8 one -- seems it goes, every ten years comes around 9 real quick. Sometimes it never goes away.

10 For me, this hearing has basically one 11 essential function and I say that from my 12 perspective because I believe that we have to build 13 a platform of evidence that will support the new 14 amendments to the 1965 Voting Rights Act to undue 15 what the Supreme Court did in Shelby v. Holder.

16 It is important for us to understand,
17 particularly in the State of Florida, even though 18 we were covered under Section 5 by five counties, 19 there was an obligation for the State of Florida to 20 have any state action that impacted voting 21 precleared by the Justice Department because those 22 five counties were required under the Act to be 23 covered.

24 And with the Shelby decision that requirement 25 for preclearance has basically gone away. And even

1 Proceedings

2 in the new act, where there are designated 3 jurisdictions that will continue to require 4 preclearance the State of Florida, our five 5 counties are not in that list.

6 What does that mean? It means essentially 7 that our state is open to any kind of shenanigans 8 that they believe that they can get away with in 9 terms of restricting the right to vote. And for 10 us, for me, the NAACP whom I represent, and I think 11 most of us who believe that the root of democracy 12 is the ability of every citizen to cast an 13 unfettered ballot, then it is necessary for us to 14 do all that we can to restore the ability of those 15 of us who need to watch the system to insure that 16 all voters have a fair chance, an equal chance, 17 open access to the ballot. It's up to us to lay 18 the groundwork in hearings like this that can be 19 presented to the Congress to justify the amendments 20 that are going forward at this time.

21 And so that for me is the purpose of this 22 hearing. Dan.

23 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Thank you, Mr. Russell.
24 Thank you, Rebecca, and it is an honor to be asked 25 by the Lawyers' Committee to serve as a guest

1 Proceedings

2 commissioner.

3 As a political scientist at the University of 4 Florida I've had the great fortune to work with 5 many amazing organizations who are on the ground 6 here in the Sunshine State trying to insure that 7 every eligible Floridian has the right to vote.
8 Groups like the NAACP, the League of Women Voters,
9 Latino Justice, Mi Familia Vota, Advancement
10 Project, ACLU, SEIU, VAO, Florida Immigrant 11 Coalition, Puerto Rico Rights Committee, and 12 Florida New Majority and many others. My work, 13 unfortunately, tends to be as an expert in lawsuits
14 trying to hold the state accountable to make sure 15 that the rights of voters are not being suppressed.

16 I generally am using big data. I'm using the 17 1.4 million voter records in the Florida voter file 18 to be able to look at broad patterns here in the 19 state.

20 As a result I know each and every one of you
21 in intimate ways. I know your race, ethnicity; I 22 know where you live; I know if you have moved; I
23 know when you registered to vote; I know your age, 24 your real age; I know when you voted last, how 25 often you voted, whether it is a general election,

1 Proceedings

2 midterm or a primary or an off-year municipal 3 election. I know how you voted, whether you voted 4 on Election Day, early, whether you cast an 5 absentee ballot.

6 All this information is public. It comes from 7 the Florida voter file. It takes some skill to be 8 able to utilize it in effective ways, to try to 9 diagnose whether or not any of the laws, any of the 10 administrative rules passed by the legislature or 11 enforced by the secretary of state or the 12 supervisor of election, have discriminatory 13 effects.

14 What I have been able to find along with my 15 collaborator Michael Heron, a professor at 16 Dartmouth College, is that many of the changes that 17 you and I have all experienced here in Florida have 18 had differential effects on voters, according to 19 the race or their ethnicity, along age as well as 20 party.

21 For example, we have shown that using the 22 voter file that the changes from 2008 to 2012 from 23 House Bill 1355 passed in 2011 that reduced early 24 voting from 14 days to eight days had differential 25 effects. It reduced the number of

1 Proceedings

2 African-Americans and Hispanics who cast early
3 votes.

4 There is no question because we know who you
5 are, we know how you voted. We know if you voted 6 on the final Sunday of early voting and whether or 7 not you turned out to vote in 2012, and the rate 8 for Hispanics, for instance, is much less who voted 9 on that last day available on Sunday in 2008 who 10 did not turn out to vote in 2012.

11 Using the voter file we have been able to 12 determine whether lines, the length of lines in 13 2012 were long just in urban areas or as we find 14 that they were long in urban and more suburban 15 neighborhoods, but that the strong and very 16 distinct pattern was that they were longest on 17 Election Day in Hispanic predominant precincts and 18 they were long predominantly across counties in 19 early voting centers that were populated mostly by 20 African-Americans. It is not just an urban thing.
21 It had very distinct patterns along the racial and 22 ethnic composition of voters.

23 We have shown that certain voters who cast 24 absentee ballots are much more likely to have those 25 ballots rejected. The overall rate of rejection of

1 Proceedings

2 absentee ballots in Florida is not that great -- it
3 is only about one percent in the 2012 general
4 election -- but it was less than nine-tenths of one
5 percent among whites; it was about 1.4 percent 6 among Hispanics and 1.5 percent among 7 African-Americans.

8 But what is really interesting is that those 9 patterns at the state-wide level had great 10 differentiation across the counties, where you
11 could have some counties that have over 6 percent
12 of the absentee ballots cast by African-Americans 13 being rejected, and others less than one-tenth of 14 one percent.

15 It's hard to understand how an 16 African-American can be more intelligent as a group 17 in one county and fill out their absentee ballots
18 properly and less likely to do so in another 19 county. And we can condition on your age, the 20 number of times you voted in the past and when you 21 registered to vote and other characteristics 22 because of the big data available.

23 Using the big data and working with many of 24 these groups that I mentioned we were able to stop 25 the purge of potential noncitizens, the 180,000

1 Proceedings

2 that the secretary of state originally identified, 3 then the 2,625 including the 1600 potential
4 non-citizens here in Miami-Dade County. Through 5 legal action we were able to stop that purge, that 6 unwarranted purge. And just last week Secretary 7 Detzner announced that he would forego using the 8 voter file and Homeland Security data to purge more 9 voters prior to the 2014 election. That's what big 10 data does.

11 But what big data does not do, it doesn't 12 allow me to understand why. I can sift through and 13 identify patterns but I don't know why. I don't 14 know who among you decided to go home after waiting 15 for hours on end during early voting only to come 16 back to see other long lines or long lines on 17 election day and not cast the ballot.

18 I don't know who among you who were forced to 19 cast a provisional ballot because you didn't have, 20 supposedly, the right form of identification or 21 because you were asked about your address and it
22 didn't match up even though you lived in the same
23 county.

24 I don't know who among you had your voter 25 registration form tampered with by a group or not

1 Proceedings

2 processed properly by a supervisor of election. I
3 don't know whether or not the scratchpad signature 4 that you signed at the DMV was used to 5 disenfranchise you by a canvassing board. I don't 6 know who among you had to pay to get your documents
7 in order to prove your citizenship back in the fall
8 of 2012 in order to stay on the voter rolls before 9 that unwarranted purge was stopped.

10 I don't know who among you may have been 11 registered to vote by the League of Women Voters 12 and other groups in 2011 and 2012 but weren't 13 because House Bill 1533 made it onerous for groups
14 like the League of Women Voters to go out and do 15 what they have been doing for nearly a century.

16 So there are many questions that that big data
17 can allow me to answer but I don't know the why.
18 And that's why I'm here today, to hear from you, to 19 better understand your experiences, your trials and 20 tribulations trying to exercise not only your civic 21 duty but your fundamental right to vote.

22 So your testimony that I hear today will make 23 me a better expert, it will make me a better 24 scholar, and they are essential for people like me 25 who use big data to put it all in the larger

1 Proceedings

2 context. So I look forward to hearing from you
3 all.

4 COMMISSIONER GELBER: Thank you. I'm Dan
5 Gelber. And while Dr. Smith and Leon and Lida are 6 true experts in this area, I play one on TV only.
7 I'm really not the expert that they are. I have a 8 background in this area so I'll tell you what that 9 is. I was a federal prosecutor for sometime where 10 I was head of the Civil Rights Division where I did 11 voting cases as well as mostly civil rights police 12 beating cases.

13 After that I served in the legislature for a 14 decade, and that's really where I think learned 15 most about the assault on voting rights in Florida.
16 And, after that, when I returned to private 17 practice and not in public service. I have a small 18 law firm and I was counsel for the Fair Districts
19 Group that is promoting the fair districts 20 amendments and in fact seeking to vindicate them in 21 the courts. And my law firm is involved in that 22 litigation right now, which I probably won't speak 23 to at all because we are actually litigating it as 24 we speak.

25 But that all said, I want to focus most on

1 Proceedings

2 what I think I can bring to this session and what I 3 hope to focus on which really, I have seen how in 4 Florida the legislature and the governor and the 5 governors have tried to keep people from voting.
6 They fiddle with the process because they want to 7 influence the outcome. And that's really what we 8 are talking about here.

9 I wanted to start, I brought two documents,
10 because in '08 and '12 I ran around the voting 11 polls. That's what I did. I checked what was 12 going on because I like to see how people vote on 13 Election Day. I love Election Day. I think it is 14 just a wonderful day and should be a wonderful day.
15 I take my kids to the polls with me. I let them in 16 although they are probably not supposed to be 17 there. And I love watching that process. I wish 18 more people did it.

19 I like early voting. I think it is great to 20 make it easier for people to vote, not harder. But 21 if you go to early voting in Florida over the last 22 two presidential elections, '08 and '12, you saw 23 what can only be viewed as a abomination. The idea 24 that the Florida legislature and governors would 25 make it harder to vote so that they would hope that

1 Proceedings

2 a suppressed vote may lead to an outcome that they 3 would prefer is really nothing short of an 4 abomination.

5 I have with me from just the last election, if 6 you go online to Division of Elections in almost 7 any county you can find out how long it is to wait 8 on line before you vote. And actually every single 9 day a couple of times a day I would go online 10 during the early voting period and I would pull up 11 those sheets just to see where the waits were.

12 I'd already voted most of the time but I 13 wanted to know what my fellow citizens were 14 feeling. And I have with me the first day, October 15 27, of early voting in the last period and this is 16 from 12:15, around noon, and you can see that in 17 Aventura it was two and a half, and Coral Reef it 18 was three and a half hours. And it just goes on 19 and on. Four hours in the North Dade Regional 20 Library. Same thing was going on in Broward
21 County.

22 In the early voting location on the same day 23 the African-American Research Library at 9 a.m. in 24 the morning had a four-hour wait to vote. Then at 25 the end of the voting period in Dade County, and I

1 Proceedings

2 pulled out and I have lots of these in my computer
3 because I just saved them, I never knew I'd come 4 here. But, you know, I got nothing better to do.

5 On 11:10 on November 3, the last day of early 6 voting, four hours and ten minutes, three hours,
7 four hours at Coral Reef, four hours at the Kennedy
8 Library, four and a half hours at the Kendall 9 branch. Northbound Miami Public Library, four 10 hours; South Dade Regional Library, five hours;
11 elections downtown five and a half hours; West
12 Dade, West Kendall, all four and a half hours.

13 Of course that was not nearly as bad as 14 Election Day. If you, as I did, visited polls, you 15 would have seen seven and eight-hour lines for 16 people to vote. And I think in a democracy, I 17 don't think we are supposed to force people to 18 leave their jobs, leave their children, and suffer, 19 really, that way. Some people are old, sometimes 20 it's hot, and make them go through that to vote.

21 So the question everybody has got to have is 22 how does that happen? How does it happen? Was it 23 just everybody was surprised that these lines were 24 so long nobody in this age of technology and data 25 was able to figure out that the way we were setting

1 Proceedings

2 up these elections were going to create incredibly 3 long lines?

4 Professor Smith points out in mostly minority
5 communities or most pronounced in minority
6 communities nobody knew that was going to happen.
7 I can tell you that they knew exactly it was going 8 to happen. In '08 during that election it was an 9 historic election. A few years earlier the Florida
10 legislature had passed a law very precisely 11 limiting early voting, artificially, by the way,
12 under the guise -- and there is always a guise -- 13 under the guise that well, it might cost money to 14 leave the polls open 12 hours so let's limit it to 15 eight. Let's get rid of that Sunday, not because 16 of the poll, not because of that, but we want to 17 save money.

18 Of course they don't pay for the elections.
19 That's paid for by local counties who most 20 assuredly would like their citizens to be able to 21 vote in an orderly way and not have to take an 22 entire day off from work. But the Florida 23 legislature did it anyway. And I was in the 24 legislature at the time, and my group was extremely 25 upset about this.

1 Proceedings

2 I had a lot of African-Americans in my caucus.
3 I was the Democratic leader in those years. And 4 they all stood up and said exactly the same thing.
5 They said this is Jim Crow all over again. Except 6 instead of doing it in ways that you used to do it, 7 you're doing it with artificial explanations which 8 are clearly vote-suppression efforts.

9 And we saw in the early voting period horrible
10 lines. It was a hot weather election period as I 11 recall. People were fainting across my county here 12 in Miami-Dade. And I, fortunately, as the 13 Democratic leader I called up the governor at the 14 time who hadn't done the bill who had created this 15 problem but was the governor at the time, Charlie 16 Crist, and I called him up very directly in the 17 morning and explained to him that Jeb Bush had 18 expanded early voting once before because of a 19 dysfunctional machinery, maybe he'd do it now.

20 He said he would get back to me, and a few 21 hours later he expanded early voting through an 22 executive order that many people wondered whether 23 it was even legal, frankly. And at least he added 24 hours and hours for the rest of the voting period.
25 Even though it probably was not helpful to his own

1 Proceedings

2 party. I credited him at the time and to this day
3 for acting on behalf of citizens and not just a 4 particular party.

5 In 2012 it was even worse, frankly. It was 6 even worse. And the difference was because we had 7 that experience in '08, everybody in the 8 legislature knew what was going to happen. They 9 knew precisely what was going to happen. So 10 amendments flew onto the bill trying to get the 11 legislature to create an ability to provide more 12 locations for early voting so that it couldn't just 13 be in certain types of places or more hours or 14 guaranteed lower wait times.

15 Those were all amendments that were thrown on 16 that many were trying to put on there but each time
17 the legislature rebuffed those amendments because I 18 believe, unquestionably, the legislature and the 19 governor absolutely wanted to have very, very long 20 lines and a disorderly process in the early voting 21 period and on Election Day. And of course they 22 wanted that because we now know that probably 23 hundreds of thousands of people didn't vote simply 24 because it's just not fair to tell somebody you got 25 to take a day off from work or leave a child home

1 Proceedings

2 alone to vote.

3 So, for me, this is an incredibly important 4 process. And I really want to thank the National 5 Commission On Voting Rights and my colleagues and 6 those of you that speak. I don't think there is 7 anything more fundamental, obviously, to democracy 8 than the right to cast your franchise. People have 9 died for this democracy to exist and you got to 10 really fight every day to keep it. But I know 11 this, that there are people out there who would 12 love to control the process of voting so that they 13 can control the outcome.

14 There's no question about that and we have 15 seen it more acutely in Florida than any other 16 state, I suspect. But I also know that the only 17 way people are protected from those people are by 18 laws that protect them and courts that vindicate 19 those laws. That's why we are a nation of laws and 20 not of men. That's who this country is and will 21 always be.

22 So I thank you for coming here today. I thank 23 you for testifying no matter what side you take on 24 it. But I will tell you that I don't think there's 25 anything more important going on right now than

1 Proceedings

2 this hearing because there's nothing more important
3 in a democracy than allowing its citizens to vote.
4 Thank you.

5 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Good afternoon,
6 everybody. I'm Lida Rodriguez-Taseff. I'm a
7 lawyer with the law firm called Duane Morris. I'm 8 also a member of Latino justice, the National Board
9 of Latino Justice, and I also have a connection
10 deep to Miami-Dade County with the Miami-Dade
11 Election Reform Coalition, which we created in 2002
12 to address voting problems through looking at them 13 from the lens of election administration, and 14 that's really my focus.

15 The reason I'm here is I want to hear the 16 stories that impact on election administration. I
17 want to borrow something from what Professor Smith 18 said and that is, we oftentimes in analyzing 19 policies of election administration can actually 20 see things that we think are not going to work well 21 from an administrative point of view and we can see 22 how those are not going to work well. Sometimes we 23 can stop them and prevent them, other times we 24 cannot.

25 The early voting debacle that happened in the

1 Proceedings

2 2012 election after the successes in prior 3 elections of early voting is just an example. We 4 knew that cutting down on early voting hours was a 5 drastic and damaging approach to whatever it was 6 the legislature was trying to accomplish. But we 7 saw it more acutely.

8 We saw the results of it and we were able to 9 change things when we hear from people who actually 10 experienced it who were witnesses who saw it 11 happen, who saw the impacts of it through their 12 work, through their advocacy, who can speak to us 13 so that we can uncover the patterns so that we can 14 fix some of these issues with regard to election 15 administration.

16 Election administration begins at the efforts
17 to register people to vote, and it goes all the way 18 through to casting a ballot and closing of the 19 polls on Election Day and counting the ballots.
20 Often times election administrations policy,
21 practices and procedures look facially neutral.

22 They are policies that say, gee, we are going 23 to accept certain forms of ID or we are going to 24 ask people their address at the polling place may 25 seem facially neutral, but it has incredible

1 Proceedings

2 impacts that are disparate on different 3 communities. And we need to understand those 4 election administration policies, practices and 5 procedures and then understand the impact of them.

6 Let me give you an example. We are talking 7 about the long lines and how expected they were by 8 the Florida legislature because they created the 9 problem. But let's not let off the hook the 10 election administrators who locally made decisions
11 knowing full well that they were going to have a 12 problem.

13 Good example, Miami-Dade County. One of the 14 most important parts of sound election 15 administration on Election Day is reconciling the 16 number of people who signed in to vote with the 17 number of votes actually cast.

18 Most people think of overvotes and undervotes 19 and they think that's what I'm talking about. An 20 overvote and an undervote relate to an individual 21 person's casting of a ballot, i.e., whether they 22 vote for two candidates for president or choose to 23 vote for zero candidates for dog catcher. That's 24 an overvote and an undervote.

25 We want to talk about ghost votes and lost

1 Proceedings

2 votes. What are ghost votes? Well, ghost votes 3 are where you have a certain number of people who 4 sign in to vote that day, who sign the precinct
5 register, but you have more votes in the machines
6 than you do people who signed in to vote. Lost 7 votes is the complete opposite set, where you have 8 more people signed in to vote on the register and 9 fewer votes actually cast on the machines.

10 Now, ghost votes and lost votes are probably 11 one of the best indicators of disenfranchisement at 12 the polling place. If you have people sign in to 13 vote but get on the line, fill out their ballot and 14 put that ballot through the machine, is so long 15 that they just can't wait. They walk away. They 16 give the ballot back. They leave it lying 17 somewhere, they just leave. Or people who sign in 18 to vote and then are told, you know what, we made a 19 mistake, you can't vote. They have already signed 20 in, they have signed the register, but their voting 21 right is taken away by somebody at that polling 22 place. We need the information of ghost votes and 23 lost votes at the end of the night in order to 24 determine what is happening at the polling place.

25 Obviously importantly, if you have more votes

1 Proceedings

2 in the machine than you do voters, that's a
3 worrisome, worrisome problem. In fact we studied 4 prior to the 2012 election ghost votes and lost 5 votes in Miami-Dade County and determined that the 6 overwhelming percentage of precincts, over 80
7 percent of the precincts in Miami-Dade County, did 8 not reconcile, meaning they either had too many 9 ghost votes or they had too many lost votes.
10 That's what that meant.

11 What happened there nobody will know because 12 we don't have the ability to figure out what 13 happened to those voters, how that came to pass.
14 But even having the data in and of itself is 15 important because it is a way of trying to track
16 fraud. It's a way of trying to track 17 disenfranchisement. It's a way of trying to test 18 the soundness of an election administration
19 procedures.

20 So what happened in 2012 with regard to ghost
21 votes and lost votes -- and I'm picking this 22 particular election administration practice just as 23 an example. There are many election administration 24 practices and, hopefully, we will talk about some 25 of the ones coming up during the 2014 primaries and

1 Proceedings

2 general elections that we need to address. But the 3 reason I'm picking this one is because what did 4 Miami-Dade do in 2012 regarding reconciling the 5 votes at the end of the night?

6 Well, Miami-Dade knew that the lines were 7 going to be miserably long. What they did was, and 8 they knew that if the poll workers had to stay
9 after closing the polls -- and Dr. Smith can talk 10 to about how late some of these polls closed -- if 11 the poll workers had had to, after how late those 12 polls closed, to stay another hour, two hours, 13 three hours trying to reconcile why they had 14 missing votes, they would not have gone home until 15 3, 4, 5, 6 in the morning.

16 Mind you, I've been a poll worker for many,
17 many years in Miami-Dade County and the reason I do 18 it is to test election administration procedures, 19 and I was shocked that Miami-Dade County would 20 actually eliminate the task of reconciling the 21 votes at the end of the night. But they did. And 22 when asked why they did it they said, well, we are 23 just trying to simplify life for the poll workers.

24 Well, the reality was they knew the lines were 25 going to be long and what they were trying to do

1 Proceedings

2 was make it so that the poll workers could go home 3 a little earlier and not have to reconcile. And 4 they knew that if they reconciled in real time at 5 the polling place, at the end of the night you were 6 more likely to get a more accurate result than if 7 the votes are reconciled later, days later, weeks 8 later, a month later by elections officials and 9 elections personnel whose job depends on their boss 10 looking good.

11 So Miami-Dade County eliminated the procedure.
12 And, hopefully, we will hear some testimony about 13 other procedures that you guys are aware of that 14 you have learned about that we can discuss are 15 coming up in the 2014 election cycle that we can 16 nip in the bud, that we can address. Because for 17 me, these hearings are about my focus, election
18 administration, and how these facially neutral 19 procedures impact the lives of voters and the 20 outcomes of elections in ways that are racially, 21 ethically discriminatory, that impact poor people, 22 that impact students and young people.

23 We need to study election administration from 24 the bottom up, from the minutia up. Because when 25 we do, we will have an incredible tool to work with

1 Proceedings

2 at the same time that people like Leon are working 3 on changing the minds of Congress to repair the 4 Shelby decision.

5 So I take that perspective, and I would love
6 to hear from anybody with regard to election
7 administration issues. Thank you.

8 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: I want to thank the 9 panel for the opening presentations. We are 10 getting ready to call our first group. We have 11 what I'll call two flights, two panels that will be 12 interrupted by questions from the commission, and 13 then we will put in between some testimony from the 14 public that are not part of the panel.

15 A couple of reminders. For those of you who 16 are going to speak, we have a timekeeper with the 17 red hat, raise your hand, as well, so see the hat.
18 Pay attention to him. You will speak from this 19 podium. We also have a court reporter who is 20 recording the testimony. If you have written 21 testimony we ask that you turn that in as well so 22 that we have a complete record of what you say.

23 If you have a Power Point or some other type 24 of presentation, Abe is here from the law school, 25 student at the law school. He will handle that.

1 Proceedings

2 If you give it to him long prior to your 3 opportunity to speak he will get it on the computer 4 so that we can show it on the screen.

5 With that we are going to begin panel number
6 1, and our first panelist is Desmond Meade
7 representing Florida Rights Restoration Coalition.

8 MR. MEADE: Good afternoon. My name is 9 Desmond Meade. I am president of the Florida
10 Rights Restoration Coalition. I'm also the state
11 director for the Life Lines and Healing Campaign, 12 which is part of Pico Florida which is part of the 13 Pico network.

14 Not too long ago, August of 2005, I remember
15 standings in front of the railroad tracks in Miami
16 waiting on a train to come so I could jump in front 17 of it to commit suicide because at that time I was 18 recently released from prison, I was addicted to 19 drugs and alcohol, I was homeless and I saw no 20 hope, no future.

21 But by the grace of God the train never came 22 and I crossed those tracks and I entered into the 23 substance abuse treatment facility and after 24 graduating there I went to Miami-Dade College while 25 I was living in a homeless shelter. I enrolled in

1 Proceedings

2 Miami-Dade College and I was able to complete the 3 paralegal program there. One thing led to another
4 and today I am happy to announce that I am a month
5 away from graduating law school at Florida
6 International University.

7 While I appreciate the applause, my story does 8 not have a happy ending because I am among the over 9 1.54 million Floridians who cannot vote as a result 10 of Florida's policy on felony disenfranchisement.

11 As it stands today an individual will have to 12 wait five to seven years after completion of their 13 sentence before being able to apply to have their 14 rights restored. After they apply, there's an 15 application process in time of approximately six
16 years.

17 We recently heard of a story of a gentleman 18 who had been waiting ten years to find out the 19 status of his application. And, therefore, we have 20 a system or policy that would dictate that a person 21 wait anywhere between 11 to 13 years before they 22 see if they have a chance.

23 And the reason why I say "see if they have a 24 chance" is that prior to this administration in the 25 previous four years the average amount of 48,000

1 Proceedings

2 people received their rights back. So far these 3 last three years less than a thousand people have 4 received their rights back. And you are going to 5 hear testimony about that 1.5 or 1.54 million
6 people in Florida who are disenfranchised. And I 7 want to stress to the audience, to the members of 8 the panel, that that number was determined back in 9 2010.

10 I can tell you that since 2010 there have been 11 over 575, felony convictions in the State of 12 Florida. So while there's a drastic reduction in 13 the amount of individuals whose rights are being 14 restored there is a growing amount of people in the 15 State of Florida who are being denied the right to 16 vote for things such as driving with a suspended 17 license, catching a lobster whose tail is too 18 short, burning a tire in public, releasing hot air 19 balloons.

20 These charges or these statutes that totally 21 strip away the right of citizenship to an 22 individual are not only detrimental to a society as 23 a whole but we know that it has an extraordinary 24 impact in minority communities due to the fact that 25 minority communities experience over-policing. So

1 Proceedings

2 the chances, the average chance of an individual
3 such as myself, an African-American, being stopped 4 by the police, being arrested, being probably 5 charged and convicted of a felony is much higher 6 than in any other community.

7 The 1.54 million people who are 8 disenfranchised, shows that a little over 500,000
9 of them are African-Americans. And so while there 10 are a million other Americans, whether they are 11 white or Latinos who are disenfranchised in the 12 State of Florida, we cannot escape the fact that 13 these policies disproportionately impact minority 14 communities, therefore taking away their political 15 voice when the time comes for them to vote. Thank 16 you.

17 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you.

18 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Mr. Meade, we have 19 questions, I'm sure, after we hear from the others.

20 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: That means don't run
21 away.

22 The next speaker is Nancy Abudu, the Director
23 of Legal Operations for the ACLU of Florida.

24 MS. ABUDU: Thank you. Good afternoon. I do 25 have my prepared written testimony, which I'll make

1 Proceedings

2 sure that you all get a copy of at the end of my 3 remarks. But I just want to thank you all again 4 and introduce myself. I'm Nancy Abudu, the 5 Director of Legal Operations for the ACLU of 6 Florida.

7 The ACLU through our national voting rights
8 project and our state affiliates around the country
9 represents voters before the courts and state 10 legislatures and at the local level in advocating 11 for greater voting rights protections so that 12 voters can make their voices heard and impact the 13 issues about which they care most.

14 As we all know, and as the Supreme Court has 15 reaffirmed, the right to vote is preservative of 16 all the other rights we enjoy and of the most for 17 forceful ways that we can protect those other basic 18 rights. The ACLU of Florida is really proud to be 19 a partner in this hearing today and again we 20 sincerely thank you all for giving Florida citizens 21 the opportunity to collectively gather information 22 and share ideas that will hopefully improve not 23 only our daily lives but those of the families and 24 communities we represent.

25 And so a lot of our recent work includes

1 Proceedings

2 challenging the purge, which we were happy that the 3 secretary decided to rescind or roll back on 4 because of the problems that we identified along 5 with many other groups with the SAVE program, or 6 database, and we have also worked hard with Desmond 7 and others to really bring some international 8 attention to what's happening in Florida especially 9 when it comes to felon disenfranchisement.

10 But I'm here today to talk about redistricting 11 and why even in 2014, and admittedly with the 12 improved racial and ethnic political representation 13 at all levels of government, redistricting still 14 matters today.

15 As you all know, one of the primary ways that 16 the Voting Rights Act of 1965 was used was to 17 dismantle the very racially discriminatory voting 18 schemes that had been erected which made it almost 19 impossible for African-Americans, Hispanics and 20 other communities of color to elect their 21 candidates of choice. And these discriminatory 22 schemes really served as the primary means for 23 suppressing or repressing significant minority 24 populations again, thus rendering it difficult for 25 them to elect the minority-preferred candidates.

1 Proceedings

2 Florida redistricting retains, continues to be 3 a very important issue as several cities and 4 counties are still undergoing the redistricting
5 process and boards of county commissions, city 6 councils, school boards are really grappling with 7 their own electoral schemes in light of the 8 changing racial demographic shifts that are 9 occurring in their regions, especially when it 10 comes to increased population of voters and, again, 11 more of the racial diversity that I think everyone 12 would want to embrace.

13 These places include Miami Shores which has an 14 at large election scheme and a growing minority 15 population, and yet if you look at its city council 16 makeup it is pretty much almost all white. We 17 worked in the northern part of the state with the 18 city, a small town called Sopchoppy, where the 19 black population is small but strong and is really 20 trying to hold on to some racial diversity at its 21 local government level.

22 And we have even looked at places like 23 Jacksonville, where you have a very growing city
24 with a sizable minority population but a mixed 25 election scheme with about 14 single-member

1 Proceedings

2 districts and five at-large seats and questions
3 about whether or not this election scheme really 4 best represents the community's needs.

5 So we would propose that further research is 6 really needed to determine whether these current 7 political schemes are still necessary today, 8 whether they help to maintain or balance or enhance 9 political balance or if they really are today just 10 simply a mechanism for diluting minority voting
11 strength. And while the answer to those questions 12 might not be that easy in some places, the ACLU has 13 worked hard where it can to address this issue.

14 Hillsborough County, Florida is an example of 15 a place where the ACLU and several community 16 organizations tried unsuccessfully to encourage the 17 county commission to adopt a redistricting plan 18 that would allow for greater representation of the 19 Hispanic community.

20 The commission is currently made up of five 21 members, only one of its members is 22 African-American, and there is no Hispanic person
23 that's currently representing the Hispanic 24 community on that county commission. And with its 25 increased population of about 1.2 million people,

1 Proceedings

2 over 900,000 of whom are eligible voters, and a 3 Hispanic voting age population of about 23 percent, 4 an African-American voting age population of over 5 15 percent, the commission was still resistant to 6 analyzing and possibly changing its electoral 7 scheme to better represent those changing numbers.

8 And we, the ACLU, actually proposed two plans 9 which we would be happy to share with this 10 commission as well.

11 I wanted to also highlight that we are working 12 in places like Jefferson County that is also going 13 through redistricting and not only looking at the 14 population but also the presence of a prison.

15 I think we talked about felony
16 disenfranchisement, but we also have to recognize 17 that prison gerrymandering is another way in which 18 communities or their voting strength is being 19 diluted and there is often overrepresentation of 20 certain populations if a prison is in their area.

21 We also wanted to mention, I think as one of 22 the commissioners made reference to, the 23 redistricting suit that has been filed involving 24 the fair district amendments. We realize that 25 reasonable minds might differ as to what the

1 Proceedings

2 Congressional plan should look like, but we should 3 all agree that minority votes, in this case the 4 NAACP, really should have a seat at the table and 5 we are very happy to represent the NAACP so that 6 indeed their voice can be heard.

7 So, in conclusion, I just want to emphasize 8 that voting is not just about circling a name on a 9 piece of paper or pushing a button when you are in 10 the voting booth. It is really about influencing 11 those decision-makers who impact our daily lives.
12 We have communities that are dealing with low 13 economic opportunities, failing schools, and being 14 able to elect representatives who are going to 15 address those issues is really why we're here
16 today. Thank you very much.

17 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Our next 18 speaker is Maribel Balbin, President of the League 19 of Women Voters of Miami-Dade.

20 MS. BALBIN: Good afternoon. My name is 21 Maribel Balbin, President of the League of Women 22 Voters of Miami-Dade County today representing the 23 League of Women Voters of Florida. Thank you, 24 commissioners, for being in Miami today to listen 25 to our stories.

1 Proceedings

2 The League of Women Voters, absolutely, we 3 heard the stories of former Senator Gelber as to 4 the administration and other issues. Today we are 5 going to just talk about very specific issues and 6 we have also already submitted all our comments, so 7 I am going to comment on two of our points.

8 Our testimony will concentrate on the 9 following priority concerns: Improving voter 10 access, and online voter issue registration. The 11 additional comments regarding upgrades to voting
12 technology and continued studies of the vote 13 centers concept has been submitted in our written 14 statement.

15 First, voter access and the long lines on 16 Election Day. In Florida we witnessed extremely 17 long lines throughout the state including lines as 18 long as eight hours in Miami-Dade County and also 19 saw a three percent reduction in voter turnout
20 state wide. Voters in some precincts in Florida 21 were still standing in line waiting to vote after 22 midnight on Election Day.

23 We all remember the Brickell precinct, past 24 midnight, where the election had already been 25 called, people were still in line and stayed on

1 Proceedings

2 line until they voted. Additionally, at the league 3 we received a large number of calls and emails from 4 disabled and elderly voters who were physically 5 unable to endure the long lines and the long waits.
6 Apparently the State of Florida has no requirement
7 that such voters are guaranteed an expedited
8 process. And citizens like 102-old Desiline Victor 9 were forced to wait in hours-long lines to vote.

10 The second issue we would like to highlight is 11 online voting registration. During the current 12 2014 legislative session the league has actively 13 supported efforts to move online voter 14 registration, O.V.R., forward in Florida. This is 15 needed, this is a needed, important step, which 16 could address many of the root causes such as long 17 lines and inaccurate voter data and Florida 18 election headaches.

19 The concept of O.V.R. has the support of our 20 Florida supervisor of elections. At the national 21 level the League of Women Voters of the United 22 States has enthusiastically supported this 23 recommendation as well. Nineteen states have 24 already passed bills that implement O.V.R. The 25 trend has been gaining momentum since 2002.

1 Proceedings

2 In the majority of the states O.V.R. has been 3 implemented by connecting their voter registration 4 process to the DMV databases to authorize digital 5 signatures for application forms. Florida's 6 proposed legislation would go one step further by 7 allowing any voter to register online and then 8 requiring a signed postcard to capture their 9 signature for the voter file.

10 The summary report published by the bipartisan 11 President's Commission on Election Administration 12 in January highlights online voter registration as 13 the report's number one unanimous recommendation to 14 improve future election outcomes.

15 Furthermore, the commission's first-place
16 recommendation and ranking of O.V.R. stands as the 17 long-term solution to the root causes of voting 18 inconvenience experienced by so many Floridians in 19 2012.

20 As the report states: The improved management 21 at one stage of the process will yield benefits in 22 the later stages of process. Improving accuracy of 23 registration roles, for example, can expand access, 24 reduce administrative costs, prevent fraud and 25 irregularity and reduce polling place congestion

1 Proceedings

2 leading to long lines.

3 The league support for secure online voter
4 registration is steadfast and here's why. O.V.R.
5 makes registration easy. Pew Charitable Trust
6 Found that 65 percent of the registered voters
7 support allowing online. It is simply convenient.
8 It is far less expensive than paper systems and 9 reduces the chances for errors.

10 Arizona, which implemented paperless 11 registration in 2002 now registers 70 percent of 12 all voters online.

13 O.V.R. encourages voters to keep their voter 14 information up-to-date and as accurate as possible, 15 to submit address changes as well as changes in 16 their name and medical status, and it allowed 17 voters to receive accurate polling presentation to 18 match their current address. All of these are 19 critical here in Florida since Floridians are very 20 mobile.

21 Implementing O.V.R. is the next logical step 22 in harnessing technological advances in our 23 electoral system. Most importantly, registration 24 rates increase among young voters with O.V.R. The 25 league of Women Voters of Florida has always fought

1 Proceedings

2 to insure that our elections are fair, free and 3 accessible. We strongly believe that online voter 4 registration is a critical step in bringing the 5 Sunshine State into the 21st century. Thank you 6 very much.

7 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Next we'll 8 have Carol Stachurski, Program Operations Manager
9 for Disability Rights Florida. Carol.

10 MS. STACHURSKI: Good afternoon. My name is 11 Carol Stachurski and I'm the Program Operations
12 Manager at Disability Rights Florida. Thank you 13 for the opportunity to submit these comments on 14 behalf of Disability Rights Florida.

15 Our agency is the designated protection and 16 advocacy system for individuals with disabilities
17 in the State of Florida. Disability Rights Florida 18 has authority and responsibility under eight 19 federal grants. One of these grants is under the 20 Help America Vote Act that authorizes protection 21 and advocacy systems to insure the full 22 participation in the electoral process for 23 individuals with disabilities including registering 24 to vote, casting a vote and accessing the polling
25 place.

1 Proceedings

2 Section 7 of the National Voter Registration
3 Act was created to enhance voting opportunities and 4 to increase the historically lower voter 5 registration rates of minorities and persons with 6 disabilities. This section specifies that voter 7 registration opportunities must be offered through 8 all offices that provide state-funded programs, 9 engaged in providing services to persons with 10 disabilities.

11 At a minimum, an offer to assist individuals 12 with a disability to register to vote must be made 13 at the time of intake, recertification or change of 14 address. The National Voter Registration Act 15 requires agencies to specifically ask if you are 16 not registered to vote where you live now would you 17 like to vote here today.

18 In many states services were formerly 19 delivered to people with disabilities directly by 20 the state agencies. More commonly now these 21 services are contracted out by various state 22 agencies to numerous providers, most of which have 23 absolutely no knowledge of their obligation to 24 assist their clients with disabilities in 25 registering to vote.

1 Proceedings

2 This is certainly the case in Florida, and in 3 looking at the information gathered by the federal 4 elections commission, it appears to be a national 5 shortcoming. In 2012 Florida reported 438 people 6 with disabilities registered through this process.
7 And in 2013, only 280. This is absolutely -- this 8 is an astoundingly low given the number of people 9 with disabilities in Florida who receive 10 state-funded services.

11 This month we arranged a meeting with 12 Department of Children and Families, the Division
13 of Elections, and national Voting Rights Act 14 coordinators and the managing entities regarding 15 obligations of providers to offer voter 16 registration. The requirements and how to obtain 17 technical assistance from the Division of 18 Elections, the managing entity staff, had excellent 19 questions and made good connections with the 20 division of election staff. We will be monitoring 21 the rollout of this process.

22 All but one of the calls we received through 23 the National Voter Protection Hotline during the 24 early voting and on Election Day in Florida were 25 related to long lines. Secondary to this was the

1 Proceedings

2 lack of availability of disabled parking because,
3 as people were waiting a long time to vote, the 4 parking places for people with disabilities did not 5 turn over.

6 Some voters reported poll workers stationed 7 outside informing them of options as they 8 approached the lines, if they had signs of a 9 visible disability, for example, walkers, crutches, 10 portable oxygen, wheelchairs, scooters, et cetera.
11 Voters with hidden disabilities were far less 12 likely to hear any information from poll workers on 13 accommodations.

14 Based on what was reported to us we had have 15 the following recommendations for supervisors of 16 elections. Firstly, develop policies specific to 17 voters with disabilities or elders who you are 18 unable to stand in line to cast a ballot, publicize 19 these policies in advance of the time that absentee 20 ballots can be requested.

21 If voters know in advance what the 22 accommodations will be, they can make more informed 23 choices about voting in person or by mail.
24 Minimally this information can be easily posted on 25 election websites. Thirdly, post signage outside

1 Proceedings

2 of the polling place telling voters who need an on-3 site accommodation how to get them.

4 We are taking this message to the Florida
5 State Association of Supervisors of Elections. In 6 a recent meeting with the current president she 7 agreed to discuss this with her members. In 8 addition, we will be communicating this request 9 directly to the supervisor of elections.

10 During Florida's current legislative session 11 there has been discussion regarding the 12 implementation of online voter registration. While 13 it remains unclear if this will be enacted this 14 session, our work has focused on building
15 accessibility into the design of online voter 16 registration systems including verification of 17 accessibility of the system by an independent body.

18 Thank you.

19 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. The next
20 speaker is Carolyn Thompson, the Florida Protection 21 Advocate for the Advancement Project.

22 MS. THOMPSON: Thank you for inviting me here
23 today and thanks for that applause. Desmond and I 24 applaud you and all your hard work and for bringing 25 your testimony in Geneva. Many of you may not know

1 Proceedings

2 this, but our brother Desmond Meade and members of 3 the ACLU went to Geneva to speak about the felon 4 disenfranchisement issues in our state.

5 My name is Carolyn Thompson. I work for 6 Advancement Project. Since 2000 Advancement 7 Project, a national nonpartisan civil rights and 8 racial justice organization, has worked closely on 9 the ground year round with Florida citizens, 10 community organizations, nonpartisan coalitions and 11 civic engagement groups to remove barriers to 12 voting.

13 We also engage in voter education and outreach 14 and provide our coalition partners with legal 15 position and communication support on voter 16 registration and election administration. We have 17 16 pages of detailed recommendations and I will 18 present those to you in writing. But today I 19 wanted to speak about the personal stories of some 20 of our voters.

21 One we know very well, which Nancy mentioned, 22 Desiline Victor. I want to begin by saying if we,
23 if the State of Florida were covered, completely 24 covered by the Voting Rights Act we would not have 25 to tell the story of Desiline Victor and so many

1 Proceedings

2 like her who stood in line for hours and hours
3 simply to cast a ballot.

4 Ms. Victor, which Nancy mentioned, is a 102-
5 year-old woman who cast her first ballot in 2008.
6 That is, when we had 14 days of early voting and 7 the lines were four hours long, which was then 8 outrageous, the Florida legislature, as you know, 9 cut early voting by eight days. And so one plus 10 one is two; the lines doubled.

11 Ms. Victor went to vote early that morning at 12 North Miami Library in Miami-Dade County and at 102
13 years old stood in line for three hours. Other 14 voters noticed her shaking and thought well, maybe 15 we should alert poll workers, this woman could die 16 standing in line to cast a ballot.

17 Poll workers turned her away, told her they 18 couldn't assist her at that moment and that she 19 should come back. So now you have someone who is 20 102 years old, suffering from various disabilities, 21 none of them preventing her from standing, but at 22 102 you can imagine she takes medication and needs
23 assistance.

24 Ms. Victor didn't give up. She asked her 25 family members to return her to the same polling

1 Proceedings

2 place where she was finally able to cast her ballot
3 after standing in line another two hours. Thanks 4 to a 102-year-old lady, national attention was 5 brought to this issue and we were able to provide 6 the President's Commission on Election
7 Administration with all our ideas. I'm told I have 8 one minute.

9 Well, I can tell you now that the North Miami 10 Library now has Ms. Victor's name on it.

11 (Applause)

12 I bring to you again the attention of Carla 13 Vanessa Arcia. She was one of almost a hundred 14 thousand people who the state said were alleged 15 noncitizen voters. These are naturalized citizens 16 who have cast ballots before but the state didn't 17 think that. And so she was sent a letter by 18 Miami-Dade County telling her she had 30 days to 19 prove her citizenship and residency.

20 The majority of these voters who receive these 21 letters are Latino, 82 percent of them were voters 22 of color, 98 percent of the 5862 people who 23 responded, because most of them didn't, were U.S.
24 citizens. So this is dangerous when we have no
25 protections here in Florida and people can be made

1 Proceedings

2 to stand in line for unreasonable lengths of time,
3 removed from our voter rolls.

4 So I just want to add to what Lida said 5 earlier, that our fight is really about many of the 6 basic barriers, and so we need our state to be 7 covered by a stronger Voting Rights Act. Thank 8 you.

9 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Next is 10 Linda Geller-Schwartz, National Council of Jewish 11 Women. While she is coming up I will tell you that 12 the commissioners will be offered an opportunity to 13 ask questions of the folks who have spoken during 14 this flight at the end of the session.

15 MS. GELBER-SCHWARTZ: Good afternoon,
16 Commissioners. My name is Linda Geller-Schwartz.
17 I'm very pleased to be able to address you on 18 behalf of the National Council of Jewish Women of 19 Florida. The national council is a volunteer 20 organization that has been advocating for the 21 rights and needs of women, children and families 22 for over a century. We fought for women's 23 suffrage, the historic Voting Rights Act of '65, 24 the Help America Vote in 1992 and more. We've 25 continue to believe that key to our democracy is

1 Proceedings

2 that all eligible voters should be able to vote and 3 that every vote must be counted.

4 So it is fitting I should be here to talk to 5 you about the June 2013 decision of the Supreme 6 Court in Shelby County v. Holder which cut the 7 heart out of the Voting Rights Act of 1965. By 8 declaring the preclearance coverage formula in 9 Section 4B of the act unconstitutional, it removed 10 extremely important protection against voting 11 discrimination in large segments of this nation, 12 including Florida.

13 You have my written statement about the impact
14 of the Shelby decision on Florida and I won't go 15 over the detail. I just want to highlight a couple 16 of points and to answer those who might say that it 17 really wasn't that important to Florida.

18 We know that Florida was not one of the 19 original states that fell under the preclearance 20 formula, but after the amendment to Section 5 of 21 the Act in 1975, five counties, Henry, Hardee, 22 Hillsborough, Monroe and Collier, became subject to 23 preclearance. So only five of Florida's 67
24 counties were covered. Yet history shows us, as 25 Commissioner Russell indicated, that in many ways

1 Proceedings

2 the preclearance provision of the V.R.A. ended up 3 protecting voting rights across the state.

4 In my submission I cite two recent examples to 5 illustrate this point. First there is the infamous 6 Florida House Bill HB 1335 which was introduced 7 into the 2012 session. It made about 80 changes to 8 existing voting provisions, some of which were 9 particularly egregious and clearly designed to 10 suppress the vote.

11 The Attorney General under Section 5 of the 12 V.R.A. was required to get preclearance for the 13 five counties so DOJ reviewed the bill. Although 14 in strict terms DOJ was only concerned about the 15 covered counties, in practical terms, since stating 16 voting laws apply throughout the state, the 17 spotlight was focused on the overall impact on the 18 state. And this resulted in, among other things, a 19 settlement with the state to remove the worst 20 aspects of the proposed changes to the voter 21 registration process. Floridians across the state 22 benefited.

23 Second, in April of 2012 the state began its 24 voter purge, which at one point seemed to target 25 180,000 voters. The actual list sent to the SOEs

1 Proceedings

2 ended up having over 2600 names. And we know from 3 subsequent analysis that roughly 80 percent of the 4 names on the list were people of color; sixty-one
5 percent were Latino; 16 percent black; and five 6 percent Asian American. But the secretary of state 7 had neglected to seek preclearance for the five 8 covered counties, and this resulted in a suit by 9 the Lawyers' Committee, the ACLU and others.

10 Unfortunately, the case was ultimately 11 dismissed because of Shelby. But during that 12 period, when the case had been stayed, the public, 13 the press and the academic community and all those 14 who fight for voting and civil rights had the 15 opportunity to understand the ramifications of the 16 purge. We recognized its sloppiness and 17 discriminatory nature and it became a clear focus 18 for creating pressure on the government to stop the 19 purge.

20 In conclusion, we know that the preclearance 21 provision had a very important role to play in 22 Florida. Harmful and discriminatory laws and 23 procedures were stopped by the DOJ intervention or 24 the courts. We also know from the history of 25 Florida and its voting laws that there is a

1 Proceedings

2 historic inclination to voter suppression. Even 3 with the V.R.A. and the lawsuits, it was estimated 4 that changes that did pass in 2012 discouraged some 5 200,000 Floridians from voting.

6 Studies have also estimated that many black 7 and Latino voters waited nearly twice as long in 8 voting lines as white voters, and we just heard how 9 serious it was for some people. We also know that 10 the attempted voter purge in 2012 was not the first 11 and, as we have seen this year, will not be the 12 last.

13 Finally, we know that minority populations are 14 growing rapidly in Florida. Between the 2000 and 15 2010 census the African-American population 16 increased by 26 percent in the state and the 17 Hispanic population by 64 percent, while the white 18 population grew by a mere four percent in the 19 state.

20 It is clear that these demographic changes 21 will continue to provide an incentive for those who 22 resist change to try to stop it through voter 23 suppression. Now that Shelby had rendered the 24 preclearance procedure moot, one of the most 25 important tools for correcting the historic and

1 Proceedings

2 continued discrimination is gone, Florida is worse
3 for it. It increases the urgency for Congress to 4 find a new law, to approve a new formula and new 5 provisions, to make our voting process more 6 transparent and fair. We need the legal 7 protections. Thank you.

8 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Next, Mone
9 Holder representing Florida New Majority.

10 MS. HOLDER: Good afternoon. My name is Mone
11 Holder. I'm the legislative and policy director 12 for Florida New Majority. Florida New Majority is 13 a statewide voter participation organization. We 14 work to empower women, African-Americans, Latinos, 15 new immigrant communities and young people to 16 participate in the political process and to expand
17 democracy in Florida. We train grass-root citizens 18 to be leaders, mobilize communities to vote, 19 educate the public to share our values and inspire
20 Floridians to take action.

21 In January and February of 2013 Florida New 22 Majority executed a robo survey to capture stories 23 of voters from the 2012 election to find out 24 exactly how long they waited in line to vote. As 25 part of the survey we asked voters to take an

1 Proceedings

2 action, press one, and two actually record their 3 stories and have that provided as a testimony.
4 Those testimonies were actually used to inform FNM,
5 Florida New Majority, civic engagement, voter 6 participation and legislative strategy which 7 includes our advocating for legislation currently 8 that recognizes the fundamental rights to vote, and 9 also calling for the end of the voter purge, not 10 just temporarily as they are suggesting but 11 permanently.

12 Based on the recording, I submitted a 13 transcript of 20 testimonies from voters in 14 different parts of Miami-Dade County, predominately 15 from underrepresented communities. The statements
16 range from waiting on long lines, from people 17 having to return to voting locations on more than 18 one day, from being erroneously told that they were 19 not registered to vote or arriving at the polls and 20 being told that an absentee ballot was cast when it 21 actually had not been.

22 One thing that stood out among all the 23 testimonies were that voters was discouraged and 24 disappointed at their experiences at the poll.
25 Unfortunately, voters from historically under-

1 Proceedings

2 represented groups are most likely to be dropoff
3 voters, meaning they will most likely not 4 participate in midterm elections, which we know are 5 equally important, especially here in Florida.

6 Limiting access to the polls, outrageously
7 long wait times, and the overall threat of ballots 8 not being cast or counted all contribute to the 9 dropoff rate in communities of color.

10 The Rising American Electorate, or as we refer 11 to it as the RAE, is comprised of unmarried women, 12 youth ages 19 to 29, African-Americans, Latinos and 13 other nonwhite races, and they now account for more 14 than half of voting-eligible population America.
15 That's around 53.5 percent, or 115 million.

16 The RAE turnout has increased in recent 17 elections, but they still do not vote in proportion 18 to their share of the population. In fact, of the 19 34 million Americans predicted to drop off from the 20 2012 race, roughly two-thirds will come from the 21 RAE. And remember, that's 53.5 percent of the 22 population that can vote.

23 Florida specifically will have a Rising 24 American Electorate dropoff rate of 35 percent, and 25 that's highly disproportionate to the non-RAE

1 Proceedings

2 dropoff of 16.2 percent. Because RAE voters can be 3 a significant margin of difference in this year's 4 gubernatorial election, there will be significant 5 pressure to either increase the participation of 6 RAE voters or to suppress that participation.

7 Therefore this is not just a marginal matter,
8 but as Senator Gelber mentioned, it can determine 9 outcomes, and that's why the need to protect the 10 democracy for the RAE is superimportant and we need 11 to be vigilant about that.

12 With the 2014 midterm elections upcoming, 13 women of color will be a key focal point. They 14 make up a large percentage of the likely dropoff 15 voters from the presidential election and their 16 turnout or abstention will be a key factor in the 17 electoral outcomes. A direct example of that, of 18 the impact of women of color, is in the 2013 19 gubernatorial race in Virginia. Because 20 African-American, Latina and unmarried women turned 21 out in numbers close to Barack Obama's 2012
22 election, a Democratic candidate won women overall 23 and with them won the election.

24 So voting is actually the one time we are all 25 equal, whether you are young, old, rich, poor,

1 Proceedings

2 black, white, Latino, Asian-American or Native
3 American. When we stop at the voting booth we all 4 have the same say. With groups on the ground, such 5 as Florida New Majority and our other coalition 6 partners, we are working hard to increase voter 7 participation on a mass scale through education, 8 leadership development, as well as building a 9 statewide women's participation network. It is 10 important that efforts to suppress votes are 11 eliminated.

12 We are looking to our policymakers to insure 13 that the fundamental right to vote is explicit and 14 protected, not only in the State of Florida but in 15 the country. As we are midway into the 2014 16 legislative session, there are no pieces of 17 legislation moving that provide real fixes that 18 constituencies have been asking for as far as 19 election administration.

20 We are hopeful that recommendations to 21 modernize our election administration system such 22 as online voter registration are implemented and 23 that election officials actually take the time to 24 expand voting days and voting hours. So we 25 appreciate the opportunity to address the

1 Proceedings

2 commission with our concerns and stand alongside 3 our key stakeholders to make sure elections are 4 free, fair and accessible. Thank you.

5 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. The final 6 speaker in this flight is Ana Delarosa, State 7 Director Mi Familia Vota.

8 MS. DELAROSA: Thank you. On behalf of Mi
9 Familia Vota Educational Fund I would like to thank 10 you, the Lawyers' Committee, for the opportunity to 11 testify in front of this commission today. Mi 12 Familia Vota is a nonprofit organization dedicated 13 to empowering the Latino community in order to 14 increase civic participation. We do this through 15 partnering with allies in order to naturalize 16 citizens, voter registration and voter education.

17 In 2012 Mi Familia Vota along with the ACLU
18 and the Lawyers' Committee filed a lawsuit against 19 Florida's Secretary of State Ken Detzner regarding 20 Florida's implementation of the voter registration 21 procedures without obtaining the required 22 preclearance. Secretary Detzner's attempts at 23 purging the voter roles of potential noncitizens
24 led to the two plaintiffs in the case, Mira Lapage
25 and Pamela Gomez, being kicked off voter roles

1 Proceedings

2 despite being naturalized U.S. citizens who were 3 legally registered to vote in Florida.

4 The secretary made claims that his procedure
5 identified over 185,000 people on the voter rolls
6 that were ineligible to vote. Of that number,
7 Homeland Security's cross-check of his list
8 identified less than 200 people who were registered 9 to vote and might not have been citizens. While 10 there are two plaintiffs in this case they stand 11 for the many who were denied access to vote in 12 2012.

13 They also stand for those who are allowed 14 access to the vote but encountered other tactics of 15 disenfranchisement on Election Day. Christopher 16 Cruz, a paid canvasser from Mi Familia Vota during 17 that election, was redirected to three different 18 polling places that day. He was asked to wait in 19 line each time, and when his name and voter 20 registration card were cross-checked at the polling 21 place he was redistricted to a subsequent location.

22 After the third polling place our lawyers 23 accompanied him to the front of the line at the 24 original polling place he had tried to cast his 25 ballot and all of a sudden his name was found. His

1 Proceedings

2 name had been there all along. Christopher cast
3 his vote that date but he knew that he could call 4 on Mi Familia Vota to protect his right. But this 5 is a right that should be protected by the state, 6 and we shouldn't be working so hard against the 7 attempts to stop it.

8 When organizations like ours invest in the 9 civic participation of the Latino community and are 10 constantly met with ploys that undermine our very 11 effort we do not take this lightly. The Latino 12 community cannot be used as a scapegoat for voter 13 purges and other procedures that seek to suppress 14 voter turnout under the guise that there are 15 thousands of noncitizens attempting to vote.

16 There is not an epidemic of noncitizens 17 yearning to stand in long lines to cast votes in 18 Florida. Take it from an organization that 19 dedicates all of its resources trying to get 20 eligible Latinos to the polls. Voter fraud from 21 noncitizens is a nonissue. And the purging of the 22 voter polls which keep people who look like me with 23 names that sound like mine from casting a vote 24 simply proves that the integrity of the Democratic 25 process means as little to the secretary as it

1 Proceedings

2 would to anyone trying to the cheat the system from 3 any other angle.

4 While the Supreme Court's Shelby decision led 5 to a dismissal of the case, this issue is far from 6 settled. Mi Familia Vota continues its efforts to 7 register eligible voters in the state and then see 8 that they are allowed to exercise their 9 constitutional right to do so.

10 We want this state to address actual flaws to 11 the voting process such as the lack of Spanish 12 bilingual poll workers and the long lines and chaos 13 at the polling places, instead of wasting the 14 state's resources on the suppression of the Latino
15 vote.

16 I speak for the communities Mi Familia Vota 17 empowers in asking for the end to voter purges, and 18 in trying to extend an invitation to the officials 19 of state to engage us in real dialogue on how to 20 improve access to voting. It is then that Florida 21 can insure that the integrity of the process seeks 22 never to discourage its voters but, rather, protect 23 all of them, including the Latinos. Thank you.

24 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Mone, if 25 you will stay and Desmond, Nancy, Maribel, Carol,

1 Proceedings

2 Carolyn, Linda, and Mone, if you would sort of 3 approach, the commissioners now have an opportunity 4 to ask questions that they have scribbled down
5 during your testimony. So we are going to take a 6 few minutes and go through that process at this 7 point.

8 COMMISSIONER SMITH: I'm going to throw some 9 questions out, some more directed some more 10 general. But for Desmond, for instance, with 11 respect to the work you are doing, we know that 12 some states like Vermont and Maine allow felons who 13 are currently doing time to vote. Other states 14 have some ban, but then are automatically having 15 your rights restored.

16 Florida is one of the worst with respect to 17 not a lifetime ban like in Kentucky but very 18 difficult. Yet we are seeing some movement on this 19 issue across the country, most notably in places 20 like Kentucky and Virginia, and I am wondering for 21 you to think about in responding why are we seeing 22 such obstacles here in the Sunshine State. I want 23 to hear your take on this in just a moment.

24 I also have just some general questions for 25 those of you who are pushing online voter

1 Proceedings

2 registration. In the abstract I think that's a
3 wonderful idea. We know that more availability, 4 more access is probably going to get more people
5 who are not registered to do so.

6 That said, there is a digital divide in this 7 state. We know that some target populations do not 8 have access to online means as much as others. But 9 even if that could be overcome, my concern is one 10 with respect to the dual process in which we verify 11 your identity to vote. And I think this is very 12 serious and something that we don't think of in 13 terms of what the ultimate goal of registering is, 14 and that's to have not only your ability to cast a 15 ballot but to have that ballot counted.

16 And what we know here in Florida is that in 17 certain processes it is much easier to verify your 18 identity than in others. Florida, thank goodness, 19 has one of the least restrictive forms of 20 identification that are permitted to be able to 21 show who you are at the polls. You don't have to 22 have a state-issued voter ID. You can use your 23 retirement community card, you can use your student 24 ID. You can't use your state employee ID but you 25 can use your student ID still.

1 Proceedings

2 When I go the first question I'm asked is, Do
3 you have your driver's license? And I say yes.
4 Second question, Could I see it? I say no. Why?
5 Because I'm going to show you my bank card. My 6 bank card has my picture, my bank card has my 7 signature, it is a perfectly acceptable form of ID, 8 and it is something that a lot of people have that 9 don't have an official driver's license or state ID 10 card.

11 So I try to find the least barrier to showing 12 my identification. And when I vote in person all I 13 have to do is turn that card over, show them my 14 signature, I can look at it, remind myself what my 15 signature looks like and sign it.

16 When you are voting through an electronic 17 process, say signing up at the DMV or at a social 18 service agency and you are scratching your 19 signature on a pad, you really don't think about 20 it. It is like going to Publix. You don't really 21 think about your signature that you are scratching 22 out. Yet that is the official record that the 23 state is using to verify your signature if you vote
24 by mail.

25 And I suspect in the future it is going to be

1 Proceedings

2 used in person. Yet many of us don't know what 3 that signature looks like because we registered
4 when we came to Florida in 1983, or we registered 5 when we were 16, preregistered, and put a little 6 heart or smiley face at the end of our signature, 7 and yet that's our official signature.

8 And when you vote absentee and you sign your 9 normal, regular written signature on the back that 10 signature, which you use and you identify as yours, 11 has to match with that scratchpad signature that 12 you did at the DMV or when you were 16.

13 And what we know, using again big data, is 14 that the rejection rates differ widely across race 15 and ethnicity, they differ widely with respect to 16 age; and if you are disabled, and we have evidence 17 of this, and you have signed your registration form 18 but then subsequently had a stroke and you are 19 signing the back of your envelope that signature 20 can easily be rejected, in fact often is rejected 21 if it doesn't match.

22 I just want to hear some reflection about 23 moving in that direction, which again, I want to 24 register as many people as possible. I was hired 25 as an expert to try to stop the House Bill 1355's

1 Proceedings

2 effort with the League of Women Voters registration
3 drive, and I know that it had a negative effect so 4 I am really concerned about that. But I am also 5 concerned at the final end of having your vote
6 count. And that's something that I think we really 7 need to be thinking about because there are other 8 states that are moving towards digital registration 9 that aren't really interested in disenfranchising
10 people, they are interested in making sure 11 that that vote doesn't count.

12 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: So, Desmond, if you
13 remember the question that he asked you --

14 MR. MEADE: I remember. So the answer to your 15 question is not as complicated, and it really 16 didn't take me that long to think about the answer.
17 First, let me point out that Florida
18 disenfranchises more people than the entire 19 population of over 20 states and territories and 20 over 85 countries. So it is definitely the worst.

21 But when the discussion is held about why is 22 Florida disenfranchising so many people, you know 23 when you look at it, I guess when you just look at 24 the disenfranchisement policies the natural 25 reaction would be to suppress the votes. And

1 Proceedings

2 there's no denying that there is some motivation 3 behind that because all you have to do is look at 4 the Bush-Gore elections.

5 But when you look at it holistically, 6 especially in 2011, what you are seeing is the very 7 first act of the cabinet was to roll back the 8 policies and make it harder in spite of experts' 9 testimony showing that the quicker you reintegrate 10 an individual back into their community the least 11 likely they are to be an offender.

12 Right after that we have seen the rollout of 13 House Bill 1355 and then we have seen tucked into 14 the appropriations bill measures that would allow 15 the privatization of prisons in the State of 16 Florida, and right after that was a passage of a 17 statute that allowed for the housing of juvenile 18 offenders in adult facilities.

19 So when you look at the campaign contributions 20 of the individuals that instituted these policies 21 it was very clear to see that not only may it have 22 been a voter suppression ploy, which they did not 23 need to roll back the policies in order to suppress 24 the vote because the decision to grant or to 25 restore a person's right is purely arbitrary.

1 Proceedings

2 There is no clear standard to it.

3 So if I don't like the color of your purple 4 tie today I don't have to restore your rights, and 5 there is nothing that can prevent me from ruling in 6 that fashion.

7 And so, when you look at it holistically and 8 see the ties that private prisons have and you look 9 at the studies that showed that in 2009 individuals 10 who received their rights back, the recidivism rate 11 was reduced from 33.1 percent to 12.4 percent.

12 In 2010 the recidivism rate was reduced to 5.4
13 percent. So we knew, and even Governor Jeb Bush's 14 task force also reported, that when you restore a 15 person's rights you increase the likelihood of them 16 becoming productive citizens and contributing to 17 the tax base.

18 So the one question you have to ask is, who 19 would benefit from making it more difficult for a 20 person like me to be able to successfully 21 reintegrate back into the community? And the one 22 answer that kept popping up was private prisons, 23 because they make their money by making it 24 difficult for people who acclimate back into the 25 community, and then what happens is they increase

1 Proceedings

2 the likelihood of recidivism, and their number one 3 goal is to fill beds.

4 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Now,
5 Maribel. I just wondered if you remembered the 6 entirety of the question?

7 MS. BALBIN: Yes, Commissioner. The reason 8 why we are thoroughly advocating for this is, 9 obviously, because of what happened because of 10 1355. Still today with whatever the fixes were it 11 is still difficult. We need -- you have to be an 12 member of the league, you have to be registered, 13 you get a number. So to get volunteers to raise 14 the vote that we used to do before, we can't do it 15 anymore.

16 And the focus for us is young people. And 17 you'd be surprised. I sit at the malls and I'm 18 there with my voter registration forms. They come 19 up to the table, "I have to fill out the form?"
20 It's a foreign concept.

21 So we feel that with an online registration we 22 are going to get the young voters to register, 23 which are the ones we'd really like to see 24 increase, and we will continue to do the other 25 ones. We do believe the issue of the postcard,

1 Proceedings

2 that Florida requires that you mail the postcard 3 with the signature, it will maybe address the issue 4 of the identifying.

5 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Do the other
6 commissioners have any questions at this point?

7 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: I did have a basic 8 one for Ana Delarosa. Ana, this relates to your 9 testimony regarding Christopher, the volunteer who 10 was unable, who was sent to three different 11 precincts only to return to his original precinct 12 only to have them find his name on the roster.
13 Were you able to determine how it was that they 14 missed it the first time around?

15 MS. DELAROSA: No. From what we were told 16 once the lawyer walked up with him his name was 17 just on the list and they said it was just a 18 misunderstanding. That's as far as the 19 explanations went.

20 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: And this is actually 21 an interesting point for election administration
22 because you would be shocked that that in fact 23 happens. I worked the polls and have been working 24 the polls for many, many years, not as a partisan 25 observer but as a real poll worker, and one of the

1 Proceedings

2 most difficult things to watch is when you have 3 wonderful old people who volunteer to work the 4 polls but they are elderly, they learned on a 5 different alphabet.

6 For example, in Miami Beach there are many 7 Russians. They did not train on our alphabet and 8 finding people's names quickly is very, very 9 difficult for them. And we have had incidences of 10 that very thing, people being turned away because 11 somebody doesn't know the alphabet and was unable 12 to find the name quickly and therefore said you are 13 not here and sent them away just so that they 14 wouldn't be embarrassed or because they didn't 15 check right. And that happens routinely.

16 I think that a great solution from an 17 administration perspective for all of these groups 18 is that you encourage people who are activists, who 19 are caring members of the community to sign up to 20 be poll workers. The more people who are poll 21 workers who have computer knowledge and have an 22 understanding and a facility with written 23 directions and the written word is going to be key, 24 especially in the next election, because let me 25 scare you all.

1 Proceedings

2 Last Friday I went to my training on the new 3 electronic poll books. The new electronic poll 4 books deal with two problems that have already been 5 addressed here. One of which Professor Smith was 6 talking about, and that is the electronic 7 signature. We need to train voters on how to sign 8 their signature electronically.

9 I as a poll worker have the ability to reject 10 your signature if it doesn't match the ID, if the 11 ID signature does not match the signature on the 12 electronic poll book.

13 Now we are trying to create all sorts of 14 checks to prevent poll workers from doing that, but 15 guess what, the training is very amorphous and it 16 will happen. It absolutely will happen. That's 17 the number one problem with the electronic poll 18 books.

19 The second problem or issue with them is 20 there's going to be very few of them in the polling 21 place. If you go to a polling place with regular 22 precinct registers, they break them up, break up 23 the alphabet into four, five, six books, in order 24 to sit many people down and give them different 25 parts of the alphabet.

1 Proceedings

2 What is going to happen with electronic poll 3 books is you are lucky if you have two electronic 4 poll books in the polling place. That is going to 5 lead to long lines. And if the people who are 6 working the electronic poll books do not have a 7 facility with technology they are not going to be 8 able to find the people who do not come in with a 9 driver's license or the Professor Smiths of the 10 world who come in with their bank card and say 11 "find my name." There is no way of swiping the 12 bank card.

13 The poll worker has to type in your name and 14 has to use the typed-in information, find your name 15 that way. And if there are many Daniel Smiths it 16 may hit the wrong one at which one point he'll be 17 told you don't belong in this place and they will 18 print out a receipt and say you need to go to 19 another polling place.

20 These are all key technological changes that 21 are going to have severe impact and 22 disproportionate impact on communities of color.
23 And I can already tell because when I went to class 24 there were only two people who understood how to 25 use the electronic poll book, me and another lady.

1 Proceedings

2 Both of us had been in the professional world.

3 Everybody else who were training had a really 4 difficult time getting the concept and they are 5 going to have a really difficult time typing in the 6 names, getting the right information and providing 7 the right data to that voter on Election Day. So 8 these are election administration things that are 9 going to really, really have an impact and we have 10 to prepare for them.

11 MS. BALBIN: Can I add one thing to that and I 12 did get trained and I agree totally with Lida. But 13 to the point of someone that goes to a precinct and 14 that's not your precinct, and even now when they 15 give you that receipt when you go to the other 16 precinct you have to stand in line again. So I 17 have been asking, why can that person not go to the 18 front of the line? Because the second time you are 19 not going to wait, you are going to go home and 20 that voter is lost.

21 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Just when we do the 22 second round of questions, when you come back to 23 the microphone if you would, for the scribe, repeat 24 your name it would be most helpful, I am sure.

25 Just for historical note, the issue of felon

1 Proceedings

2 disenfranchisement is purely based on race and 3 racism. It is purely a post-Reconstruction concept 4 aimed at eliminating the effects of the 13th, 14th 5 and 15th amendments, and it was so stated in the 6 records of South Carolina, Virginia, and other 7 states that implemented felon disenfranchisement.
8 Its purpose was to keep ex-slaves from voting and 9 it continues to be so.

10 On that note, other questions from the panel?
11 Seeing none, Rebecca is very happy that we don't 12 have questions and she is asking me to move 13 speedily through the audience questions at this 14 point. I have cards or audience statements, and I
15 would remind each of you as I call you that you 16 have three minutes in this segment to make your 17 presentations. And be sure and watch the guy with 18 the red hat. If you have not submitted a card, I 19 don't have your name and you get your cards outside 20 at the table.

21 So our first speaker is going to be Reneta 22 Holmes, Response Leader. You tell me who you are.

23 MS. HOLMES: I am Madam Reneta Biggie Momma
24 Holmes. I'm the executive director and response 25 advocate for the Labor Education Advocacy in

1 Proceedings

2 Support of Miami, Miami-Dade County. The acronym
3 is Women's Association and Alliance Against 4 Injustice and Violence for the Empowerment of the 5 same.

6 I'll be very quick because we have several 7 hearings this evening and we are enduring quite a 8 bit of violence as mothers and juveniles who are 9 facing incarceration and gun violence.

10 My concern today is regarding those persons, 11 not just women, who are incarcerated and have yet 12 to be found guilty, who have been incarcerated for 13 less than five years or nearly five years and still 14 have not been found guilty and even our outstanding 15 citizens, a majority who have been advocates and 16 deemed militant or rebellious because of our 17 knowledge or who have been retaliatory, arrested 18 because of their sexual orientation.

19 These have been documented complaints, my dear 20 commission, and I thank you for being here, but the 21 accessibility issue is mine, not just for those 22 also, but those persons with disability that are 23 incarcerated or in the hospital. There seems to be 24 a forgetfulness that we are innocent until proven 25 guilty. We have our rights unless they be stifled.

1 Proceedings

2 I took the opportunity as a person with 3 disability, I won't state what it is, you guess, 4 because it is not my inability, and put a few 5 people on a truck. Some were convicted felons.
6 And when we got there, although I had done great 7 investigation, I apologize, they are waiting for 8 me, as an organizer that happens.

9 Siri off. Thank you. Thank you. She's very 10 hard-headed. She's an organizer also.

11 We found that ex-felons could actually vote, 12 and so they voted although it was not considered.
13 I'm concerned that that education does not get out.
14 I'm concerned that that service is not provided, 15 that accommodation is not provided and that we are 16 denied our rights not only to a fair trial but 17 denied our rights to vote.

18 Five years can make a big difference in policy 19 change. Those 25 on that truck might have been the 20 breaking vote and could you tell me how do we deal 21 with it? Is anyone actually taking care of the 22 voters rights? I want you to know that I've never 23 had a felony sentence, and although I was 24 threatened because of my rebelliousness or my 25 gender or just being a darn good organizer, as you

1 Proceedings

2 can see that goes to the mark that my rights would 3 be taken away for seven years. I attempted to find 4 out why I was not getting my voter rights restored
5 or why they were even taken away. I registered, 6 and then when it started all over again, well that 7 didn't stop me.

8 I influenced a lot more votes than my one
9 because of that now and I just want to mention 10 that. I could imagine how much influence and how 11 much empowerment we are losing by not telling them
12 that they have to provide us that opportunity 13 during incarceration. Thank you so kindly. I 14 guess I got to go. It says to stop.

15 Can we do this again because some of us went 16 to 1311 Miller? Thank you.

17 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Liza
18 McClenaghan, Collier County.

19 MS. McCLENAGHAN: Today I come before you to 20 share experiences in Collier County from the Voting 21 Rights Act in recent elections. Collier County has 22 been a covered jurisdiction under the Voting Rights 23 Act since 1976 and is currently covered under 24 Section 4F4 for Spanish speakers. Our county 25 enjoyed the preclearance under Section 5 because of

1 Proceedings

2 that determination. Our coverage also aided the 3 state since all legislative changes for the state 4 had to be precleared.

5 We have a good working relationship with our 6 supervisor of elections. I have high regard for 7 her and her staff and the service that they provide 8 to citizens of our county. But that does not mean 9 that we have not had any problems.

10 Today I want to focus on four areas. First is 11 minority language assistance, which is an issue for 12 both the county and the state.

13 The Voter Guide, a document that provides 14 plain language explanations of the voting process, 15 is extremely helpful to voters especially in the 16 Spanish and Haitian Creole versions. The county
17 guides usually provide specific information about 18 polling sites and addresses needed for absentee 19 ballots and registration.

20 In 2002, a month before the August primary, 21 the supervisors who were covered forgot to publish 22 a Spanish version or Haitian Creole version of the 23 Voter Guide on their websites in Adobe pdf as they 24 had in English. They seemed unaware that the web 25 page translators that they had on their sites would

1 Proceedings

2 not translate these documents automatically and 3 Collier County, once prompted, rushed to print
4 their version of the Spanish guide in a timely 5 fashion.

6 To this date there is no Spanish version of 7 the voter registration guide on the Division of 8 Elections website, and since October 2011 the whole
9 State of Florida has been covered under Section 203
10 for Spanish speakers. The only Spanish documents 11 you will find are in the posters for voter fraud or 12 for constitutional amendments.

13 It is very clear under the Code of Federal 14 Regulations, Part 55.1, that they are supposed to 15 provide the same information in English and the 16 designated language. We also have an ineligible 17 voter declared who was a citizen, but because she 18 was Haitian Creole information was provided in both 19 Spanish and English to assist her in the process of 20 correcting her provisional ballot. Without our 21 intervention she would not have had her vote
22 counted.

23 We also have a supervisor of election
24 consultation prior to the elimination of Section 4.
25 And that is clearly going away as the supervisor

1 Proceedings

2 has made determinations as to what she thinks is 3 significant and insignificant in discussions with 4 the parties and with outside organizations.

5 And then, finally, on redistricting, we have a 6 growing Latino population in Collier County and 7 without the help of the Lawyers' Committee or some 8 other outside groups when we get to the 2020 census 9 and find that we need to have a minority-majority 10 district, we which we do not have in Collier 11 County, we will have to go to court rather than use 12 the preclearance process. Thank you for your time.

13 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Ms. McClenaghan, I have a 14 question. On the ground in Collier maybe you can 15 tell me whether or not the practice that was going 16 on in 2012 prior to the election where the 17 supervisor's office was contacting the county
18 courthouse and requesting the jury recusal forms 19 where citizens, shirking their civic duty, wanting 20 to shirk their civic duty of participating on a 21 jury, declared that they were not in fact a 22 citizen. Obviously that's not what they should 23 have been doing. There are penalties against that.

24 But in your opinion do you think those records 25 then should have been cross-checked with the voter

1 Proceedings

2 file in Collier County and had those individuals
3 stripped of their voting rights for being a 4 noncitizen, which I heard allegations, there were 5 allegations of that going on in Collier County?

6 MS. McCLENAGHAN: To this day they are still 7 requesting the excusal forms from the clerk.

8 COMMISSIONER SMITH: So that practice is still 9 going on?

10 MS. McCLENAGHAN: Yes.

11 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Yet we know many of those 12 individuals are in fact citizens, and last I 13 checked because you put down some incorrect
14 information on a jury form it didn't mean you 15 denounced -- renounced your citizenship.

16 MS. McCLENAGHAN: The staff member at the time 17 who has since left that position was trained by the 18 clerk to use the appropriate databases to research 19 the status of those individuals and also had access 20 through the state to the Homeland Security devices 21 that were used at that time. So they felt they had 22 researched the information before they sent the 23 letters to the individuals telling them.

24 COMMISSIONER SMITH: So that would be the same 25 information that Secretary Detzner now is claiming

1 Proceedings

2 is probably not as accurate in terms of Homeland
3 Security, they were using that to disenfranchise
4 people. That practice is still going on you said?

5 MS. McCLENAGHAN: Yes.

6 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Thank you.

7 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Ms. McClenaghan, your 8 organization?

9 MS. McCLENAGHAN: I'm with the NAACP Unit 5117
10 political action committee.

11 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Thank you.

12 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Next is H. Paul
13 Douglas, Hernando County NAACP.

14 MR. DOUGLAS: Good afternoon, commissioners.
15 As Mr. Russell said, I am Paul Douglas NAACP, 16 Hernando County, Branch 5012. I'm here today to 17 let you know that we have always in Hernando County 18 looked at the issue of voter suppression -- and 19 that's what we call it -- as a two-prong fix. One 20 being legal and one being troops on the ground. I 21 take the position as one of the troops on the 22 ground.

23 It appears we in Hernando County are not 24 experiencing long lines, at least in the last 25 election. We are experiencing a strong effort to

1 Proceedings

2 keep and stop voters from ever getting to the 3 polls.

4 We are now experiencing closing of our 5 precincts. Our precincts of mostly 6 African-American communities, eight of them have 7 been closed and they are doing it in a very strange
8 way. They will close the precinct for the general 9 election and keep them open for the primaries, 10 which means when it comes to general election time 11 there will be much, much confusion.

12 They are closing these precincts. As an 13 example they closed a National Guard Armory with a 14 voter registration of 3,000 individuals, put it in 15 a 600 square foot homeowners' association precinct 16 that will be closed by the fire department because 17 it can only handle 300 people total.

18 We're finding out that Souls to the Polls is a 19 very, very tedious thing in Hernando County. And 20 how we're fighting that? They have closed Sundays.
21 We can't vote on Sundays. But they forgot to tell 22 us or we forgot to tell them that Wednesday is a 23 pretty important day. We go to church on 24 Wednesdays, and we do all of our choir singing and 25 everything and we now have moved Souls to the Polls

1 Proceedings

2 on Wednesday, and they are now trying their 3 darnedest to do something about that.

4 We've received supervisory election. We are 5 now rejecting candidates' petitions. As you have 6 spoken of here before, those candidate petitions 7 are being rejected 25 percent for signatures. And 8 we have had signatures rejected because the "A" on 9 the end of the signature does not match what 10 somebody signed 15 years ago. We are now fighting 11 that.

12 I have on every occasion made sure that the 13 supervisor of elections or elections office up in 14 the state hears every word that's happening down 15 here.

16 On our redistricting, we did a redistricting
17 plan that was .0001 variance. We got it accepted 18 by the school board. Needless to say the board of 19 community commissioners rejected it. The school 20 board had accepted it for 20 minutes before they 21 had a special order and rejected it. But we had a 22 .0001 variance and the ones that were rejected were 23 as high as .1. And to be frank with you we are 24 still working on redistricting. And the last thing 25 is I got to stop. The young man with the red hat

1 Proceedings

2 just looked at me.

3 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Finish the last thing.

4 MR. DOUGLAS: The last thing is we literally 5 challenge every decision by the supervisor of 6 elections. And the last insult we've had, every 7 candidate they had, there is a profile on the 8 supervisor of election's website, she has removed 9 them. And the ones that she wants on there are 10 still there.

11 We have taken this to the elections board up 12 in Tallahassee and we are expecting a resolution of 13 that now. We're tough little county. We are seven 14 percent of the total vote and with our partnerships 15 and our coalitions we carry a big stick. But 16 they're beating us down. Thank you very much.

17 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Paul Edwards,
18 disability related voting issues.

19 MR. EDWARDS: Commissioners, thank you very 20 much for the opportunity to testify. Let me begin 21 by telling you that I'm reliably informed that in 22 my 67 years I haven't signed in the same way twice.
23 So what that suggests is that I'm at serious risk 24 at the next election. So far I have not been 25 disenfranchised as a result of that.

1 Proceedings

2 People with disabilities, particularly people 3 who are blind -- by the way I am president of the 4 Florida Council of the Blind, it has 28 chapters 5 and a thousand members throughout the State of 6 Florida -- were overjoyed when technology made it 7 possible for us to vote privately and 8 independently. For most of my life the only way
9 that I could vote was with assistance.

10 When it became possible for me to vote
11 privately and independently I felt like my 12 citizenship had been reaffirmed and my capacity to 13 function as an independent American had been 14 significantly improved.

15 As many of you know, a decision was taken in I 16 think 2007, though my ongoing senility makes the 17 date possibly wrong, a decision was taken by the 18 governor that the machines that had been adopted in 19 county after county were to be retired because they 20 needed a paper trail, and as a result the only 21 people who were required to vote on machines that 22 were declared unsafe and unreliable were people
23 with disabilities.

24 At that time a decision was taken that 25 indicated that by the year 2012 these machines

1 Proceedings

2 would be replaced by available machines, and there 3 are some, three counties already have them, which 4 have a paper trail and also allow for accessible
5 voting.

6 Elections supervisors worked diligently two or 7 three years ago to have this deadline extended to 8 2016. The Florida Council of the Blind fought this 9 issue. I only found out two days ago that in an 10 act passed last year, 7013, that has now been 11 extended to 2020, machines that are not fit for 12 everyone else to vote on must be used by people 13 with disabilities. I have three other quick things 14 that I want to be sure that you understand.

15 The net results of this exercise have been 16 five-fold. One, people with disabilities
17 essentially do not receive training on machines.
18 Poll workers do not receive training on machines, 19 and essentially there's all kinds of anecdotal 20 evidence all over the state that time and time 21 again, when people with disabilities try to vote, 22 nobody knows how to operate the machine.
23 Consequently, they are either disenfranchised or 24 must use assistance.

25 My time is up and I'm not going to take too

1 Proceedings

2 much longer, but we must do something to make it 3 possible for me to be sure that my vote counts, and 4 I'm not sure with the machines I use and the way
5 that they're handled when I've gone to vote. Thank 6 you.

7 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you.

8 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: May I address your 9 comments, Mr. Edwards. I am Lida Rodriguez. I 10 wholly appreciate your comments because you are 11 absolutely a hundred percent right. And this was 12 an issue that arose from the time that we tried to 13 do away with direct recording electronic voting 14 devices because of the lack of simultaneously
15 created paper trail. And the decision of the State 16 of Florida was to essentially switch over to 17 precinct-counted optical scan technology which does 18 not provide the ability for people in the 19 disabilities community to vote unaided.

20 There is one solution and one solution only 21 which is for us to get together as activists 22 protecting each on other's interest and to force 23 the State of Florida to certify a machine, and 24 there are several out it there, that provide the 25 appropriate paper trail and provides the ability

1 Proceedings

2 for people with disabilities to vote unaided. It 3 can be done.

4 MR. EDWARDS: Three counties already have 5 them.

6 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Exactly. It can be 7 done and should be done. You are a hundred percent 8 correct that poll workers are not trained on the 9 existing technology. If you are a person with 10 disabilities in Miami-Dade County and you tried to 11 vote on the electronic, the only training that the 12 poll workers receive is "By the way, there's these 13 other machines, we discourage people from using 14 them. They are really onerous to use. So if you 15 want to listen to it you have to listen to the 16 entire ballot in three languages." Imagine what 17 that would have meant in the 2012 election.

18 MR. EDWARDS: I can because I did it.

19 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: It is a huge problem, 20 but it is a problem that's not being addressed and 21 it will not be addressed unless there is a ground 22 swell, and that's what it is going to take.
23 Because the alternative for people with 24 disabilities is an incredibly onerous technology 25 that has been rejected for everybody else, but

1 Proceedings

2 somehow it is okay for people with disabilities to 3 spend hours listening to an entire ballot in three 4 different languages and you're not allowed to move 5 it forward, you can't rewind it or move forward, 6 you got to listen to the entire thing.

7 MR. EDWARDS: Me oui.

8 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: The next speaker is 9 Damian Gregory, disability and early voting
10 procedures. Damian.

11 MR. GREGORY: Thank you. Good evening,
12 everyone. Thank you for the opportunity to come 13 before you to testify today. My name is Damian 14 Gregory. As you stated earlier, I wish to bring to 15 your attention a couple of issues related 16 specifically to early voting.

17 I had the opportunity to take my friend, who 18 has end stage renal disease, to an early voting 19 site. This site was at the Coral Reef Library. We 20 sat in line trying to get her to vote for four and 21 a half hours. In that time we were told about a 22 numbering system for people with disabilities that 23 was supposed to make it easier for her to vote
24 quickly: Get in, get out.

25 I must emphasize that my friend has end stage

1 Proceedings

2 renal disease, so her ability to even walk to vote 3 at this point is inspiring to me and it should be 4 inspiring to all of you as well.

5 I will say to you that after four and a half 6 hours my friend did not vote. The numbering 7 system, which was the numbers that we were given, 8 were in no particular order. The poll workers that 9 were at this voting site were not at all sensitive 10 to her needs, let alone my needs. And in terms of 11 the end, we ended up, after going another day and 12 waiting three and a half hours she did not vote 13 early. She voted on Election Day because she was 14 determined that she was going to vote.

15 This should never ever happen. It shouldn't 16 happen to anybody, but it should not be something 17 that people feel that their right to vote should be 18 held up for seven, eight, whatever many hours until 19 a system is devised that accommodates their needs.

20 I also want to mention just as a side note 21 that Miami-Dade County has recently taken the 22 position that all people at most early voting sites 23 cannot use the bathrooms because they do not have 24 the mechanisms to make sure that bathrooms are 25 accessible to people who use wheelchairs.

1 Proceedings

2 So as a matter of policy Miami-Dade County has 3 said that nobody will be able to vote -- I mean 4 nobody will be able to use the bathroom when they 5 vote early. That too is disenfranchisement to me.

6 It seems to me that if my friend had had renal 7 disease, was not given the opportunity to go 8 relieve herself after sitting in line for numerous 9 hours, this cannot be the way that anybody could 10 think that it was equitable for anybody to 11 function, for any system to function. We can and 12 we must do better.

13 I will say in closing that as my friend who I 14 spoke to last night and I asked her could you 15 provide some written comments, what she said was 16 "just tell them that sitting in line and being able 17 to vote with other people excites my soul and makes 18 me really, really, really feel like a part of the 19 system." So voting absentee is not and should not 20 be the only option for people with disabilities
21 Thank you very much.

22 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. I think we 23 have a question.

24 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Mr. Gregory, thank you 25 for that testimony. One of the things that is very

1 Proceedings

2 frustrating is that we don't know how many people 3 like your friend were in that exact situation of 4 standing in line and then leaving, coming back 5 another day, leaving.

6 Your friend fortunately, because of her
7 persistence, because of her super-dedication did 8 end up casting a ballot. But we have no 9 information in the State of Florida on how many 10 people did what she did but then didn't cast a 11 ballot through no fault of his or her own but 12 because the resources were not sufficient to 13 process people in a way that every other society, 14 every other country, and I've been an election 15 monitor around the world, has figured out and that 16 we haven't figured out how to do in this country is 17 beyond me. But I applaud you and her.

18 But I think that we need to have better 19 systems in place in terms of not only preventing 20 that but understanding it. Because, as the studies
21 that Professor Heron and I did through Advancement 22 Project in 2012, we showed definitively that in 23 Florida this is not a problem that is spread evenly 24 across Florida voters but that it's highly 25 concentrated in areas during early voting and on

1 Proceedings

2 Election Day in polling places that are populated 3 by racial and ethnic minorities.

4 MR. GREGORY: I will say to you that I took 5 other people to the polls on Election Day. I think 6 I took a total of six people. And from polling 7 station to polling station and from precinct to 8 precinct the policies vary widely depending on the 9 training of the individual, depending on the 10 compassion of the individual and depending, quite 11 frankly, on the common sense or lack thereof of the 12 individual. And they should not be.

13 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Thank you.

14 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Any other questions
15 from the panel? All right. We are going at this 16 point -- well, I think we are going to give our 17 scribe a break. I have learned one thing from 18 working in the courthouse. We'll take five minutes 19 and give him an opportunity to uncramp his fingers 20 and then come back and start with panel number two.

3 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Our reporter is back in 4 place.5 Our next witness is going to be Cynthia
6 Slater, Civic Engagement Chair for the Florida 7 NAACP, Vice President state conference and 8 president of the Volusia County branch of the 9 NAACP. She will be followed by Brad Ashwell of 10 Common Cause of Florida.11 MS. SLATER: Good evening. To this 12 commission, I thank you for taking the time out of 13 your day to listen to the testimony of the freedom
14 fighters in this state. My name is Cynthia Slater
15 and I serve as second vice president of the Florida
16 State Conference NAACP. I also serve as the NAACP 17 civic engagement coordinator for the State of 18 Florida.19 I reside in Daytona Beach where I serve as 20 president of the Volusia County Daytona Beach 21 NAACP. The NAACP is the oldest and largest civil 22 rights organization in the country, and the mission 23 of the organization is to insure the political, 24 educational, social and economic quality of right 25 of all persons and to eliminate raced-based

1 Proceedings

2 discrimination. It was very difficult to select a 3 topic to speak on regarding voting rights issues in 4 Florida because Florida voters were affected in 5 many ways by many discriminating voting laws that 6 have been put into place.

7 However, I'd like to speak on the need for the 8 implementation of the Voting Rights Act in Florida.
9 Let me just begin by quoting a statement from an 10 article written in the Huffington Post dated 11 January 24, 2013 with the headlines "Florida voting 12 lines discouraged 201,000 voters statewide." In 13 the article a most disturbing statement was, "At 14 least 201,000 Florida voters did not cast ballots
15 on Election Day 2012 because they were discouraged
16 by long lines at polling places, according to a 17 report released by the Orlando Sentinel."

18 The article went on to say that those voters 19 either waited for some time but left before voting, 20 or simply saw the long lines and turned away.
21 These words rang throughout the state on Election
22 Day and was most prevalent in communities of people 23 of color.

24 During and after the 2012 presidential 25 election these words were the main headlines of

1 Proceedings

2 many newspapers throughout the country. Florida's 3 voters experienced many problems during the 4 election, but one of the worst, seen by millions, 5 related to long lines at polling sites. Because 6 the State of Florida cut the number of days for 7 early voting and did not consider increasing the 8 number of polling sites, these actions not only 9 suppressed voters, but it also created an unsafe 10 environment, especially to those voters with health 11 and age-related problems, as we heard earlier.

12 These limitations were very troubling to 13 voters who had to wait hours to vote in some 14 cities. Around the state voters waited up to eight 15 hours to cast ballots in the heat of the day.

16 In addition to the complaints of long lines
17 and limited polling sites, hundreds of complaints
18 were made to the NAACP related to equipment
19 breakdown and malfunctioning as well as limited 20 staff in many voting sites. So much so that 21 polling sites were temporarily closed in certain 22 Florida counties.

23 Other problems that occurred included voters
24 being unaware of precinct changes, they didn't know 25 where their precincts were located, limited

1 Proceedings

2 assistance to voters who required election
3 assistance such as the elderly, people with 4 disabilities and people who do not speak English as 5 their primary language as well as voters with 6 literary issues and the threat to remove thousands 7 of voters from the voter roles, mostly people of 8 color.

9 It is without a doubt that these problems
10 occurred because of Florida's House Bill 1355, 11 which was passed in 2011 by the state legislature, 12 which made extensive discriminatory changes in 13 election laws which included restricting voter 14 registration drives.

15 As a result, some of the worst forms of voter 16 suppression occurred here in the state of that 17 Florida. The Florida State Conference NAACP
18 believes that limiting the number of days for early 19 voting as well as limiting polling sites was the 20 primary cause of Election Day problems in Florida 21 and with some of the harshest forms of voter 22 suppression that discouraged over 201,000 citizens
23 from voting in Florida.

24 So we fast forward to 2013. After the Supreme 25 Court's decision to change the federal Voting

1 Proceedings

2 Rights Act, the governor of Florida wasted no time
3 reinstating the purging of voter rolls as a result
4 of the Shelby decision.

5 Because of the Voting Rights Act Florida's, 6 five counties were protected from the 7 discriminatory laws that the state legislature
8 attempted to pass. Although Congress introduced a 9 bill to update the Voting Rights Act that included 10 a new formula to determine protected states, 11 Florida was left out, which leaves the state 12 legislatures to run amok making it harder for 13 certain Floridians to vote. NAACP strongly 14 condemns the governor's decision and will 15 scrutinize this process to the end.

16 We believe deeply that voters and citizens of 17 Florida deserve better and must be protected from 18 these egregious laws by passing the Florida Voter 19 Rights Act and the Florida Right to Vote Act.

20 Let me end with an excerpt from an op ed piece
21 written by our Florida State Conference NAACP
22 President Adora Obi Nweze, and Judith Browne
23 Dianis, co-director of the Advancement Project that 24 was entitled "My View: Legislators Must Protect 25 Rights of Florida Voters. For more than a decade

1 Proceedings

2 in the absence of such explicit protections, 3 officials have passed and pursued a kitchen sink of 4 voter suppression. These policies have targeted 5 nearly every aspect of the voting process: Who can 6 vote, where they can vote, when they can vote, and 7 how they can vote. The Florida Voter Rights Act as 8 well as the Florida Right to Vote Act fights back 9 with multi-faceted approaches to voter protection.
10 The first step toward realizing these protections
11 is putting these bills on the legislative agenda.
12 As the leading democracy in the world, our nation
13 should always work to keep our voting system free, 14 fair and accessible to all, and if Congress is 15 unable to protect Florida through the federal 16 Voting Rights Act, then Florida lawmakers must step 17 up and help to pass these bills now."

18 Thank you and have a good evening.

19 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Brad
20 Ashwell Common Cause.

21 MR. ASHWELL: Thank you all for coming. I was 22 just looking at the panel thinking about how long 23 -- this sounds a little weird, I really admired all 24 of you for a very long time and watched your work.
25 I've been working on elections issues in one form

1 Proceedings

2 or another for the past decade. I am working with 3 Common Cause and C3 Civic Engagement Group right 4 now and a number of other groups. And prior to 5 that worked I with Common Cause in the past so 6 that's a bookend to my career.

7 Common Cause is involved with a lot of things 8 people have already talked about. We are 9 supporting the V.R.A. amendment. We are working in 10 the legislature on the online voter registration 11 bills, supporting several other bills that people 12 talked about, the fundamental right to vote, the 13 state Voting Rights Act. I could go down a list, 14 and actually I might later, depending on how much 15 time I have.

16 But I think my role today is really just to 17 point out more of a top-down view on things and 18 just how hostile the state policymakers are towards 19 voters. There really is no other way to look at 20 it.

21 I think you kind of have to look at what's 22 behind that, and then I think you are probably best 23 looking at it from a realpolitik lens and power 24 politics seem to be at play. But just looking at 25 the effects, it's been one decision after another.

1 Proceedings

2 And typically when bills move forward that would 3 benefit voters it is usually to mitigate or 4 eliminate embarrassment. So there's just a strong 5 pattern of decisions that make it harder for voters
6 to participate in the democratic process. There 7 have been consistent efforts to stifle third party 8 organizations like the ones I have worked for, that 9 help engage citizens through voter registration 10 drives, election protection efforts and numerous 11 other efforts.

12 I just want to synthesize some of the things 13 going on right now. If you look at our current 14 landscape we've got the governor and secretary 15 pushing for -- actually this was just cancelled or 16 postponed the other day, but moving forward on yet 17 voter purge. Despite opposition from almost every 18 supervisor in the state, voting rights groups, some 19 legislators, the use of the SAVE database is just 20 riddled with errors, and they haven't listened to 21 reason, but it looks like they have listened to 22 embarrassment. If that works for the session, 23 great, but we are very worried about what that 24 means for the next election cycle.

25 The secretary of state is blocking the use of

1 Proceedings

2 student unions for early voting purposes. One of 3 the good things that passed in the legislation last 4 year was a pretty dramatic expansion of early 5 voting sites where supervisors can allow early 6 voting. Stadiums were explicitly allowed in that.
7 It wasn't explicitly allowed in university
8 settings. And it's just another example where the 9 state, the Division of Elections which is largely 10 an extension of the governor, is interpreting 11 policy so that it doesn't benefit voters and makes 12 it harder to vote.

13 The secretary also attempted to stop the use 14 of absentee dropoff boxes by supervisors, namely in 15 Pinellas and Volusia counties, and he backed down 16 from that largely due to embarrassment, but now the 17 legislature has incorporated into the chair of 18 ethics and elections bill and it's moving forward
19 there.

20 Just an example of where they have tried to 21 clean up their act and do some beneficial things 22 would be last session. The bill that passed last 23 session was pretty good. It did a lot of things.
24 It increased early voting, not back to the full 25 scale it was prior to 1355, but they expanded early

1 Proceedings

2 voting sites, and did a number of other good
3 things. But it was largely due to embarrassment 4 from the long lines in 2012.

5 So I lay all these out just to point out that 6 you have to look at them together to see this 7 pattern of hostility, this pattern of decisions 8 happening at the state level to make it harder for 9 voters to vote.

10 I have a lot of other things I want to go 11 into. I think the biggest dynamic, most 12 unproductive dynamic that I've seen that just gets 13 worse and worse over the past decade, at the state 14 level is deep polarization around election issues 15 at the capitol. Members are largely at the whim of 16 leadership, the legislative leadership. In this 17 case it's the Republican party. I don't think it 18 is partisan to acknowledge that. It's just the 19 facts. Leadership and their party are working in 20 concert. We saw that clear as a bell through HB 21 1355. It came out later in a court challenge.

22 We knew it all along through conversations, 23 but it's part of the court record now, that the 24 Republican party produced that report through 25 Tidewater Consulting, Bucky Mitchell wrote the

1 Proceedings

2 first draft, the same analyst who formerly was 3 working with the Division of Elections in 2000 who 4 instructed and moved forward on the voter purge 5 that led to, I think, 175,000 or 180,000 mostly 6 African-American people being removed from the 7 rolls.

8 And it is just very clear that the leadership 9 is working in concert with the party. The power is 10 being increased in the hands of leadership. They 11 are now able to legally use slush funds to win 12 favor with their local leadership funds and with 13 the other members, and the other members know to 14 keep in line because if they don't the next time 15 they run for re-election they will have a 16 competitor backed by leadership.

17 And it's leading to a place where it's really 18 a very unproductive place, where even when there is 19 common ground on an issue like online voter 20 registration, I've looked at the numbers and I 21 really don't see a partisan advantage on that 22 whatsoever. But even a pretty noncontroversial 23 issue like that can't move forward because it is 24 just a toxic environment around these issues and 25 voters really are impacted because of it, primarily

1 Proceedings

2 minority voters.

3 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: We are going to get 4 your written testimony, right? Or have you already 5 submitted?

6 MR. ASHWELL: I actually have submitted it. I
7 will fine tune it and submit it.

8 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. We are 9 going to move to Mark Dubin, Director of Advocacy
10 CIL of South Florida and former DOJ Civil Rights
11 Division attorney.

12 MR. DUBIN: Good afternoon, and thank you very 13 much for inviting me to speak with you today.
14 Again, my name is Marc Dubin. I work for the 15 Center for Independent Living in South Florida, a 16 nonprofit organization serving people with 17 disabilities in Miami-Dade County, and for 12 years 18 I served as a senior trial attorney of the Civil 19 Rights Division of the Justice Department in 20 Washington in the Disability Rights section 21 enforcing the Americans with Disabilities Act on 22 behalf of the United States nationwide.

23 I want to discuss with you today one 24 particularly troubling barrier to voters that has 25 come to our attention. It was mentioned earlier by

1 Proceedings

2 an earlier speaker, the decision by Miami-Dade
3 County to close all restrooms at all polling places 4 throughout the county to all voters.

5 I wanted to share with you what precipitated 6 that decision and some concerns about how we might 7 have that become the model for other communities 8 that will suppress the vote particularly in 9 minority communities, and that's a concern that I'd 10 like you to consider.

11 First of all, this unusual and troubling new 12 policy appears to have come about as a result of 13 our inquiry to the county concerning whether the 14 county had assessed the accessibility of restrooms 15 at polling places. We raised the question because 16 we realized the lines in Miami-Dade County were 17 very, very long, up to eight hours, and we were 18 concerned about the ability of voters waiting in 19 those lines to be able to vote, particularly voters 20 with disabilities who may be on diuretics or be 21 elderly or have other reasons to need the restrooms 22 more frequently than other voters.

23 We recognize that Miami-Dade County like many 24 other communities use churches and other religious 25 sites as polling places, and that throughout the

1 Proceedings

2 United States many religious sites are simply not 3 accessible to people with disabilities, mostly 4 because religious sites are exempt from the 5 Americans with Disabilities Act. They are 6 expressly exempt.

7 However, when they partner with state and 8 local governments to serve as polling places, they 9 must take whatever temporary measures are required 10 to insure that those polling places are usable and 11 accessible to voters with disabilities. This may 12 simply be portable restrooms or may be cones put 13 out to increase the number of accessible parking 14 spaces. But as long as a county chooses to partner 15 with one of these religious facilities, the ADA 16 applies.

17 When we asked the county whether they had 18 assessed the accessibility of restrooms and whether 19 they were going to take the steps necessary to 20 insure that voters with disabilities could access 21 them we were told instead that they were going to 22 close all the restrooms to voters. Assistant 23 director of elections John Mendez said state 24 statute, actually wrote "state statute does not 25 mandate that the restrooms in the polling location

1 Proceedings

2 be ADA compliant." What he overlooked was that the 3 ADA does require it. Whether or not state law 4 requires it, federal civil rights laws do require 5 it. "In order to insure that people with 6 disabilities are not treated unfairly," he wrote, 7 the use of restrooms by the voters is not allowed 8 on Election Day."

9 We wrote to the county attorney and said to 10 please consider the results of this upon voters, 11 including voters with disabilities, please consider 12 the mandate of the ADA, federal civil rights laws 13 obligations that the county has along with its 14 partners, the cities which partner with the county
15 to provide these assigned polling place.

16 The county attorney wrote back and said, "City 17 clerks act as the de facto supervisor of elections.
18 The department's policy is not to permit access to 19 restrooms at polling places on election days. This 20 policy was implemented to avoid situations where 21 accessible restrooms would be available to some and 22 not all voters." I have submitted this in writing 23 to you in more detail.

24 If implemented, this undoubtedly will reduce 25 the number of voters being able to cast a vote, and

1 Proceedings

2 in minority communities throughout Miami-Dade 3 County it is going to adversely impact voters in 4 the minority community even more than anyone else.

5 I want to just point out very briefly that the 6 Americans with Disabilities Act comes into play 7 here in two ways. One, it is unlawful for the 8 county to partner with anyone to engage in 9 discrimination. So they cannot say, well, we're 10 partnering with the city and it is up to the city
11 what to do.

12 Just as the Emergency Management Department is 13 not allowed to partner with the Red Cross unless 14 the Red Cross complies with the ADA, if the Red 15 Cross fails to comply the county is liable as well.
16 Here too, if they engage in partnerships with 17 cities, close the restrooms, these in my view would 18 constitute violations of the ADA as well.

19 In addition, the ADA requires reasonable 20 modifications of policy to avoid discrimination on 21 the basis of disability. Allowing a voter with a 22 disability to advance in line, allowing voters with 23 disabilities to have their place in line held so 24 they can use a restroom and providing an accessible 25 restroom so that they can exercise the right to

1 Proceedings

2 vote in my view would be reasonable modifications
3 mandated by the Americans with Disabilities Act.
4 Failure to do so I think sets a very dangerous 5 precedent and will, in my view, go statewide if 6 this is not addressed.

7 It is the reason that the Department of 8 Justice had so much success with its oversight of 9 the Voting Rights Act and why Congress needs to 10 reconsider how states and counties and local 11 officials will continue to try to take advantage of 12 opportunities to suppress the vote, particularly of 13 minority voters. Thank you very much for inviting 14 me here today.

15 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: So Marc, I want to be 16 clear, you and I agree that a denial of service 17 because of a request for accommodation is in fact a 18 violation of Title I and Title II of the ADA?

19 MR. DUBIN: We agree except for the titles.
20 Title I is the employment provision. Title II is 21 the program services and activities of the state
22 and local governments. Voting and polling places 23 are program, services and activities of state and 24 local governments.

25 In my view, it would violate the ADA. And in

1 Proceedings

2 addition, because they receive federal financial 3 assistance, it would also violate Section 504 of 4 The Rehabilitation Act and put the county and the 5 cities' federal funding at risk of being suspended 6 or terminated.

7 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: And probably that 8 violates Title VI as well?

9 MR. DUBIN: Yes, sir. I would also point out 10 that, because we do not have good information about 11 the number of voters with disability who are 12 disenfranchised, it is very important to try to 13 assess, particularly minority communities, how many 14 voters with disabilities will be impacted by this, 15 because I believe that will get the attention of 16 both the voting rights section of Civil Rights 17 Division and the disability rights section of the 18 Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department.

19 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Mr. Dubin, on that last 20 point there may be a way to get at that. Flawed as 21 the voting technology that we have already 22 discussed is, it does give an indication of people 23 who are using the electronic form of voting
24 machines as opposed to the scantrons in Miami-Dade 25 and you could do an analysis to see whether they

1 Proceedings

2 are disproportionately in heavily minority
3 precincts.

4 I don't know whether there are enough, again 5 because that technology is problematic, that many 6 will issue it because there's no paper trail, but 7 there might be empirical ways of getting that 8 actual question.

9 MR. DUBIN: I would invite the NAACP to look 10 at the churches, particularly in minority
11 communities like Liberty City, and try to assess 12 whether those churches have accessible restrooms to 13 begin with with.

14 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: I think to add to 15 what Professor Smith is saying I would also say 16 that all we have to do is pull the data about the 17 number of IVOs that were used from the last 18 election, and also from the polls pull the data 19 from the people who requested assistance, because 20 every time somebody requests assistance at the 21 polls that information is logged. So we have that 22 data. And many of the people who are disabled do 23 not want to use the IVO so they request assistance 24 instead. Those are the two sources.

25 I can tell you this is devastating because I

1 Proceedings

2 work in a majority, I've worked in a majority 3 elderly polling place and everybody in line uses
4 the bathroom. It's a rotating cycle of people 5 using that restroom. So this is impactful not just 6 with regard to the disabilities community but with 7 regard to the elderly, and it is going to cause 8 people to be turned away.

9 People who would otherwise be able-bodied, who 10 have to go to the restroom will be turned away 11 because if they can't go to the restroom and they 12 have kids or they are just in line they are going 13 to leave and they may never come back.

14 This is a huge problem. And dare I point out 15 that this is a example of a supervisor of elections 16 that is not -- allegedly -- not partisan in one way 17 or another, just plain lacking in common sense.
18 Decision after decision after decision from this 19 supervisor of elections just makes no common sense.

20 Nobody did a study of what it would cost to 21 rent port-a-potties in order to outfit the 22 locations that do not have accessible restrooms, if 23 somebody had at a minimum figured out another way 24 to accommodate this issue. But this is unstudied; 25 nobody in the community was informed because this

1 Proceedings

2 is the first I hear of it. We haven't been trained 3 around it, but I can guarantee you that within the 4 next -- and we have to address it now because the 5 substitute training for clerks and poll workers are 6 going to begin within the next month and a half, 7 and once it is the manual that you are going to be 8 trained not to let people to use the bathroom that 9 is how people will be trained and there will be 10 mistakes made. This is incredibly unnecessary. It 11 is just down right silly.

12 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: I would go back to the 13 issue of I do believe it will have a disparate 14 impact racially, but I would remind us all that 15 disability is in fact a cover. It's is a protected 16 area and that's a protected area as well while we 17 might not be able to say it.

18 In Pinellas County I can tell you there are 19 35,000 deaf individuals, there are 38,000 people 20 with sight impairment, there have got to be 60,000
21 people with mobility impairments. There's ways.
22 This is a tremendous community that is being 23 impacted in Dade County. If little old Pinellas 24 has that many folks, Dade is bound to have more.

25 MR. DUBIN: Absolutely. You should also be

1 Proceedings

2 aware, if I may just point out, that in speaking to 3 city managers about this policy the response I have 4 gotten from some city managers is "don't be silly, 5 of course we will have our restrooms open." Yet 6 that absolutely flies in the face of the county 7 policy.

8 So this is potentially a wink/wink nod/nod 9 policy where we are not going to fix it, we are 10 also not going to enforce it but we are going to 11 have a community that is not going to have access 12 to restrooms. And, therefore, if that's the case, 13 it seems to me that we have potential legal 14 liability, but we also have an attitude about the 15 value of one's vote. And I think that I bring it 16 to your attention because it took us five months to 17 get an appointment with the department of elections 18 to even discuss it.

19 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: I would suggest also 20 that for this particular community that, if the 21 disability community showed up at the county 22 commission and complained about this, they might 23 get a little action considering that the department 24 of elections here is an appointed position and 25 under the purview of the county administrator, not

1 Proceedings

2 an independently elected supervisor of election
3 like the other 66.

4 COMMISSIONER GELBER: That's just the 5 disability committee. The folly and stupidity of 6 the policy is it affects the entire community, and 7 especially in a community with so many elderly. As 8 someone who is now over 50, I know everybody's got 9 different needs.

10 MR. DUBIN: It was truly a stunning response.
11 I was expecting "We can't afford it, we can't do it 12 right now," or some other excuse for not doing it.
13 But to say we're going to protect the disability
14 community by shutting it all down was a stunning 15 response. Thank you for your time.

16 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Thank you for that 17 very valid information.

18 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Mark
19 Schneider, Voting Rights Coalition of Palm Beach
20 County.

21 MR. SCHNEIDER: Members of the commission, my 22 name is Mark Schneider, and I represent the Voting
23 Rights Coalition of Palm Beach County. I have a 24 Power Point presentation, and when I asked if Power 25 Point was available I wasn't made aware that this

1 Proceedings

2 might cause severe neck pain in the commission.

3 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: We're working.

4 MR. SCHNEIDER: Today I want to go back to Mr.
5 Meade's topic of felon disenfranchisement in 6 Florida which my coalition believes undermines the 7 democracy this country and the state claimed to 8 cherish.

9 Slide 2. Currently 1.5 million Florida
10 citizens are barred from the voting booth by reason 11 of felony conviction, fully one-fourth of the U.S.
12 total. This represents one in ten Florida adults 13 of voting age, and in some minority communities one 14 in five citizens of voting age is prevented from 15 exercising the franchise, making those communities 16 that much less politically visible and, therefore, 17 viable.

18 Slide 3. Molest a stone crab trap, trespass
19 on posted horticultural property, alter a lottery
20 ticket, possess seven unprescribed hydrocodone
21 tablets, you've committed felony in Florida and 22 could be disenfranchised for life. This is the 23 result of a constitutional provision dating from 24 1868 which does, however, give the governor, with 25 the agreement of two members of his cabinet, the

1 Proceedings

2 ability to restore voting rights to individuals who 3 petition him. The regulation of the petition 4 process, however, is entirely in the hands of the 5 governor and his cabinet acting as the clemency 6 board without either judicial or legislative 7 oversight.

8 Next slide. This has led to wild swings in 9 the number of felons who petition successfully, 10 depending upon whether the governor and cabinet 11 wish to allow or, rather, to suppress voting among 12 this segment of the population. To put this slide 13 in rough perspective, I estimate that since 1986
14 we've averaged more than 50,000 felony convictions
15 in Florida per year and have averaged around 11,000
16 successful petitions. This means we lose about 17 40,000 eligible voters per year to felony
18 disenfranchisement.

19 A period of liberalization first under 20 Governor Bush and more dramatically under Governor
21 Crist led to a yearly average of around 39,000 22 individuals having their rights restored. The 23 reversal of that liberalization under Governor 24 Scott has brought the average down to just 329 per 25 year. This reversal was explained as an aid to

1 Proceedings

2 public order and an incentive to avoid 3 re-incarceration, but critics see it as an effort 4 to reduce the size of the electorate unlikely to 5 support Governor Scott or his policies.

6 Next slide. Currently nonviolent felons must 7 wait five years after completion of their sentence, 8 probation and, where required, financial 9 restitution before being allowed to petition.

10 These petitions are routinely granted without a 11 hearing. Violent felons must wait seven years to 12 petition for a hearing, and in each case must be 13 dealt with individually.

14 There are currently around 11,400 backlogged
15 cases of these violent felon cases awaiting such a 16 hearing. At the current rate of around 300 cases 17 per year this suggests that a felon applying for a 18 hearing today would have to wait 38 years to have 19 his or her case heard.

20 Data provided by the Florida Parole Commission
21 and referenced by Mr. Meade indicate that felons 22 whose rights have been restored recidivate at 23 around 11 percent of the time while those whose 24 rights have not been restored recidivate at around 25 33 percent of the time. This disparity was noted

1 Proceedings

2 by Attorney General Eric Holder at a recent speech
3 at Georgetown University challenging the practice 4 of felon disenfranchisement and noting its 5 prevalence in Florida.

6 Now, it would be a mistake to infer causation 7 from the negative relationship between 8 enfranchisement and recidivism but the data 9 certainly favored enfranchisement. I note that if 10 I were a felon who had paid my debt to society it 11 would leave an extremely sour taste in my mouth to 12 be told to submit for an additional five to seven 13 years, and possibly 38 years, to being taxed 14 without representation just in order to show my 15 bona fides.

16 Next slide. In the face of this travesty of 17 democracy the Voting Rights Coalition supports a 18 Florida constitutional amendment to restore voting 19 rights to felons upon completion of sentence, 20 removing all the other current restrictions. A 21 bill to that effect, HJR 327, and the Senate 22 companion is currently before the legislative 23 committees but it's unlikely to be enacted.

24 The implementing bill that accompanies HJR,
25 327 which is HB 329, makes rights restoration

1 Proceedings

2 automatic for most felons and applies
3 retroactively. Barring legislative action to place 4 an amendment on the ballot in 2014, we asked the 5 governor and cabinet, as the clemency board, to 6 restore rights automatically on the model of the 7 former administration and to aggressively pursue 8 informing individuals when their rights have been 9 restored. I believe there are about 325,000 now 10 whose rights have been restored and are not yet 11 informed of it.

12 Barring legislative or executive action,
13 however, we look forward to a citizen initiative 14 ballot amendment for 2016. To do less leaves 15 Florida's claim to be a Democratic polity badly 16 stained and deeply in doubt. Thank you very much 17 commissioners.

18 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you.

19 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: Thank you.

20 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Questions?

21 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Mr. Schneider, I have a 22 quick question. Did I hear you right there are 23 about 325,000 Floridians through that automatic 24 process of nonviolent, or was that during the Bush 25 or Crist administration that have not yet been

1 Proceedings

2 informed?

3 MR. SCHNEIDER: Yes, they have the 4 certificates on file and they are unaware that 5 those certificates are on file and the issue is how 6 possibly to contact them. This is a population
7 that is sometimes difficult to contact. Our Voting 8 Rights Coalition was kind of strategizing on the 9 way down here today about possible ways of doing 10 it. But to get out into our communities and alert 11 people that their rights have in fact been restored 12 is simply difficult to do.

13 COMMISSIONER SMITH: But it is public record, 14 there are electronic files of this?

15 MR. SCHNEIDER: Yes, there are electronic 16 files and you can get a copy of them and you can 17 take them to your church, for instance, and if 18 felons were willing to get up and identify 19 themselves they could go to a computer and see 20 whether their rights have been restored.

21 And we do have rights restoration fairs where 22 we try to attract people and alert them that there 23 are many whose rights have been restored. They 24 have petitioned, but in a sense they have been 25 forgotten. The process has gone on so long they

1 Proceedings

2 have forgotten, so they are kind of a lost voting
3 population.

4 COMMISSIONER SMITH: One of the things that is 5 very frustrating here in Florida with respect to 6 the voter registration statewide database is that 7 those who have been convicted of felonies are 8 stripped out of the voter file. Other states leave 9 those individuals and make them inactive or some 10 other code saying that they don't have the rights 11 so that they can be identified once those rights 12 could be restored, including the voting right.

13 So you are absolutely right, I didn't realize 14 it was this large in terms of the likely number of 15 individuals who would be eligible to vote
16 notwithstanding that huge number of the 1.5 million 17 who are currently disenfranchised.

18 MR. SCHNEIDER: All they would need to do is 19 take the available certificate to the supervisor of 20 elections and they would be restored, I believe.

21 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Thank you.

22 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Beverly 23 Rutherford, AFL-CIO Florida Coalition for Black 24 Civic Engagement.

25 MS. RUTHERFORD: Good evening. It is an honor

1 Proceedings

2 to be here. I'm Beverly Rutherford and I do
3 represent the Florida AFL-CIO and also the Florida 4 Coalition of Black Civic Participation, and also 5 wear a hat of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, and 6 I also bring greetings from the Florida Coalition, 7 Florida Rights Restoration, where I do serve on the 8 steering committee.

9 Just to correct one little item that the 10 fellow before me just mentioned, as far as the 11 rights restoration piece of it, what we have been 12 able to accomplish is that if you go into -- we do 13 most of the grass roots work with the young folk 14 and we go into the communities, and basically you 15 can use your laptop to actually run a person's 16 information and you do find that they do have their 17 certificate.

18 We use our portable printers to print it out 19 and say, Hey, look, you have been restored. Now 20 can we register you to vote. So yes, we have been 21 able to accomplish that. Because I'm a 22 longshoreman, so we have done that a lot at the 23 longshoreman union hall and used our union hall as 24 a base for that. So a lot of people from the 25 community hear about us and they come in there and

1 Proceedings

2 we run the check and see whether they have been 3 restored and we do give them their certificates so 4 they can have them in hand.

5 Basically what I was called here to talk about 6 is when I served as the Miami-Dade coordinator for 7 the election protection under the AFL-CIO, and our 8 experience was disturbing at the least, but 9 frustrating because I was one of the ones that 10 worked with the youngest group of young folks.

11 We had young folk in high school and college 12 and they were all poll protectors. And the first 13 day of the early voting while doing my rounds I got 14 a phone call from a couple of the young fellows 15 from North Miami screaming and hollering because 16 the lines were within two hours with two, three 17 miles long and the wait was eight to nine hours.
18 And that's where we discovered the now famous 19 Desoline Victor, the 102-year-old lady who was 20 standing in line. And even though the young folk 21 were trained to know that she should have been 22 moved to the front of the line or provided some 23 kind of services, you had the lack of training for 24 the election, by the election supervisors for their 25 people that work with them, they said that no, we

1 Proceedings

2 cannot give her preference because that would be 3 violating other people's rights, which we all know 4 that our laws do protect the disabled and the 5 elderly.

6 So I had to go over there and try to explain
7 to them that no, you need to bring your supervisor 8 or your supervisors so we can discuss this because 9 this lady, there's no reason why she should have to 10 wait in line at 102 years old. Also, what they 11 were doing, by lack of training they were actually 12 getting these people's names, giving them a phone 13 number and telling them they could go home and call 14 and they would tell them when to come back, which 15 we know that's illegal by law. You cannot turn a 16 voter around and tell them to go home and you can 17 come back later and cast your vote because we all 18 know these people would go home and not come back.

19 The other issue was the lack of proper 20 facilities. Again, there was a library and most of 21 the places they weren't allowing the voters to use 22 their bathrooms because they said the bathroom was 23 for the people that were visiting the library or 24 the different facilities that the voting was taking 25 place.

1 Proceedings

2 So with the collaboration of the Advancement 3 Project, and there was a group of us that were 4 under the election protection, we met with the 5 supervisor of elections who Crist moved in a couple 6 of days and they brought portable toilets and what 7 have you. But it wasn't until me myself went out
8 to Costco and bought cases of water till I think 9 the Democratic Party went out and, wow, that's 10 right, we need water. So everybody started 11 bringing water and stuff to help and to aid the 12 people in their voting process.

13 But the thing that crippled us the most is 14 that you have to understand, especially when you 15 have first-time voters, you want that experience to 16 be one of empowerment. But when you give these 17 people the idea or the feeling that, well, maybe it 18 is not necessary to come and vote, it is not 19 important to vote because it is so cumbersome, that 20 actually fails our Democratic process.

21 Our Democratic process should be much 22 smoother. They should be able to vote and 23 understand the voting without having to be forced 24 to go through the processes that they did at those 25 times.

1 Proceedings

2 So I would implore this commission to look 3 into probably pressing the supervisors of election
4 for their preparedness for these election cycles
5 because they know it's coming. It is not like it 6 is something that's a surprise. They know it's 7 coming and they know, especially in the major 8 election, you are going to have an influx of people 9 going to vote. So the preparedness should be 10 there. And they should basically train their 11 people properly, dispense the proper information.
12 Because, again, the things that we're dispensing to 13 the voters, if we weren't there to say no, no, no, 14 that's not how it works, a lot of people would have 15 gone away believing that it was democracy at its 16 best and it was not. Thank you.

17 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. Next we 18 have Francesca Menes, Policy and Advocacy case
19 coordinator Florida Immigrant Coalition. No.
20 Okay, Katie Roberson-Young, Assistant General
21 Counsel SEIU.

22 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: While Katie is coming
23 up I think we need to talk a lot about this 24 preparedness idea that Beverly was talking about.
25 What are the different contingency plans of the

1 Proceedings

2 different counties? I think it is time that we 3 start setting up meetings with elections
4 supervisors throughout the state to find out
5 exactly how they are going to deal with meltdowns, 6 whether they are small or large.

7 And I really encourage the various 8 organizations that are here from throughout the 9 state to set up those meetings and ask for that 10 information and do public records requests if 11 necessary. But this is a key, key issue that 12 Beverly raised.

13 MS. ROBERSON-YOUNG: Thank you for the 14 opportunity to testify today. My name is Katie 15 Roberson-Young. I'm an attorney with the Service 16 Employees International Union and I have 17 participated in voter protection with SEIU's 18 nonpartisan Voter Protection Program since 2008 in 19 Florida.

20 I'd like to focus on a problem that Creole-
21 speaking citizens encountered in South Florida 22 during the 2012 general election, which is the lack 23 of access to language and literacy assistance at 24 the polls. Lack of language assistance for voters 25 who cannot read the ballot or who do not speak or

1 Proceedings

2 read the language in which the ballot is written 3 causes unnecessary delays and contributes to long 4 lines for all voters. Indeed many of the early 5 voting sites in South Florida had frequent reports 6 of inadequate language assistance also experienced 7 very long wait times.

8 During the first two days of early voting in 9 October 2012 Creole-speaking voters reported from 10 voting sites in Palm Beach, Broward and Miami-Dade 11 counties that they did not have adequate access 12 translation or literacy assistance. Lines were up 13 to eight hours long, and once Creole-speaking 14 voters who needed assistance finally got to the 15 front of the line they either had no translation 16 help, or they had to wait even longer than other 17 voters in a separate line until one of too few 18 Creole-speaking election workers became available.
19 Election workers were overwhelmed and unable to 20 meet the demand for translation assistance.

21 In Palm Beach County many Haitian-American 22 voters required help translating the English ballot
23 into Creole. For example, at Delray Beach's early 24 voting site there was only one Creole- speaking 25 election worker and that single translator left the

1 Proceedings

2 voting site at 7 p.m. sharp, so voters still in 3 line at that time had no option for translation 4 assistance from election staff.

5 In Miami-Dade and Broward counties, many 6 Creole-speaking voters needed assistance reading 7 the ballot due to eyesight or literacy issues.
8 Without this assistance many voters became confused 9 and mistakenly filled in every circle on their 10 ballot in order to make sure they voted for their 11 chosen candidate.

12 When scanned, these ballots were rejected as 13 overvotes, triggering additional delays while 14 voters waited in line for replacement ballots, 15 filled out replacement ballots often without 16 understanding what they had done wrong in the first 17 place, and then scanned the ballots a second and 18 even a third time. Worse still, some voters were 19 disenfranchised. Without translation assistance 20 they did not understand that they were submitting 21 invalid ballots or that their ballots would not be 22 counted.

23 When the first few days of early voting
24 demonstrated this barrier to Creole-speaking voters 25 in South Florida, SEIU partnered with Florida New

1 Proceedings

2 Majority, the Miami Workers Center, the AFL-CIO, 3 Advancement Project and other community partners to 4 recruit about 20 Creole speakers to offer
5 translation assistance at the polls for the last 6 five days of early voting and on Election Day.

7 On the whole the response from voters as well
8 as election staff was overwhelmingly positive. One 9 translator, Carleen Gellet, assisted 70 or more 10 voters each day of early voting, yet every night 11 she went home "feeling sick" because there were 12 still more voters asking for help and she couldn't 13 help them.

14 While not all of our translators could stay at 15 the polls from open to close, like Ms. Gellet, they 16 had significant impact. Translators responded to 17 requests from an average of 40 voters per day and 18 the 20 translators provided assistance to a 19 estimated minimum of 4,000 voters during early
20 voting.

21 I wanted to note to Lida's earlier point that 22 many of the requests for assistance, the poll 23 workers did not fill out the slips. Our 24 translators estimate that one in five of those for 25 assistance resulted in a slip being filled out, so

1 Proceedings

2 it is hard to know how many people needed
3 assistance and didn't get it. I think the record 4 of how many people even got assistance is limited.

5 Even at polling places with volunteer
6 translators, some voters were still denied
7 translation assistance. In both Palm Beach County
8 and Miami-Dade County partisan poll observers 9 misinformed poll workers and voters claiming that 10 translators could assist only a limited number of 11 voters each hour or each day and insisting that 12 poll workers deny voters' requests. Voters also 13 reported that poll workers barred them from 14 receiving literacy or translation assistance from 15 family or friends.

16 This issue effects not only voters confronted 17 by language or literacy issues, but all of us, 18 because when voters are denied access to 19 translations assistance, all voters are harmed by 20 the subsequent delay in lines.

21 Moreover, if the right to vote is to mean
22 anything, voters who do not understand the ballot
23 in front of them must be able to request assistance 24 from a person of their choice. Although there are 25 troubling practical barriers this is at least a

1 Proceedings

2 right that is currently guaranteed under Florida
3 law.

4 Last year, however, Florida's legislature 5 considered an amendment to its election code which 6 would have restricted voters' rights to request 7 assistance. That amendment failed to pass, but we 8 must guard against similar attempts to limit 9 translation assistance in the future which will 10 leave vulnerable voters with even fewer options.
11 Thank you.

12 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. I think we 13 have come to the end of panel number 2, and we are 14 going to now go back to the audience for questions 15 on this. Commissioners have questions of some of 16 the speakers who have already spoken. Mr. Gelber.

17 COMMISSIONER GELBER: Yes. I've been as quiet 18 as I can be.

19 I have a question of the folks that have 20 spoken and of anyone else. The legislature passed 21 constraints to early voting very wide-eyed about 22 what it would do because they were told, and there 23 were attempts to stop them from doing it. The 24 governor signed the bill, defended the bill in the 25 courts and refused to extend early voting when

1 Proceedings

2 asked in the 2012 election even in light of some of 3 the longest lines that have ever been seen in 4 recent history anywhere. I never heard of somebody 5 waiting eight or nine or ten hours to vote
6 anywhere. Even in third world nations you don't 7 hear about that. But you heard it in Florida and 8 here in Miami-Dade.

9 Has anybody, because you all represent so many 10 groups of people that were so diminished as people 11 in that process, can any of you tell me or us that 12 either the leadership or the legislature or 13 Governor Scott himself has apologized to you or any 14 of the people you represent that they felt somewhat 15 sorry that --

16 AUDIENCE VOICE: No, no.

17 COMMISSIONER GELBER: I suspected that might 18 have been the answer because that would have made 19 some news.

20 Second thing I want to ask, and I'm not going 21 to give a closing even though it is in the agenda, 22 is, you know, while maybe some of the things we 23 talked about are bureaucrats acting
24 bureaucratically or stupidly, I don't believe that 25 some of the great voting suppression that has

1 Proceedings

2 happened in Florida is the product of stupidity. I 3 think it's the product of craven behavior from 4 people in power who want to preserve their power.

5 And we've talked about it today as if it isn't 6 about that in some respects and really just about 7 people making bad decisions. It is not about 8 people making bad discussions. It's about people 9 trying to preserve the power they have.

10 And the fellow from Common Cause said,
11 actually used one of the political party's words 12 for the first time and I think the only time, We're 13 Republicans, we shouldn't do. This is a 14 nonpartisan hearing. And the truth is it is 15 nonpartisan and there may be states where the party 16 power is reversed. But here it should be pretty 17 clear that the party in power is trying to preserve 18 its power by suppressing the vote, and that is a 19 horrible excuse to do anything.

20 And if any of you want to comment on that I'd 21 be happy to hear about it. But I don't think it is 22 anything but that, and I feel like it does a 23 disservice to the discussion to not bring that out 24 very clearly.

25 Some of these things are not perhaps partisan.

1 Proceedings

2 Some of them are bureaucratic. But we went through 3 some horrific election cycle in 2012, ironically, 4 after we went through a horrific election cycle in 5 2008, and yet it just seems to be over and over 6 again. And whether it is felon disenfranchisement 7 or just diminishing people who have physical 8 challenges to the polls there seems to be a real 9 effort to do that in this state. And I hope these 10 hearings make one very important point, and that is 11 when that happens, when the party in power decides 12 the best way to preserve power is to suppress the 13 vote of people they think tend to vote against 14 them, then you need laws to protect everybody.
15 Because they don't even care if 30 percent of the 16 people they are suppressing would have voted for 17 them. They are trying to stop everybody from 18 voting who come from that swathe of voters. So I 19 just want that to be on the record because this 20 needs to be said because so much of it is about 21 preservation of power and I believe in a very 22 unseemly and craven way.

23 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Not your final
24 statement because I have to go out to the audience 25 for questions now, but do you have questions for any of the people who just in that last panel?

Proceedings

COMMISSIONER SMITH: It's more of a reflection on what --

COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Do you want to save your reflection?

COMMISSIONER SMITH: Yes, thank you, fellow commissioner.

COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: I have two cards and only two cards and I'll ask you to come to the microphone and make your statement or ask your question. I believe we have C.C. Reed.

MR. REED: I was requesting for testimony.

COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: This is it.

MR. REED: This is my three minutes.

COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: This is your three minutes, yes, sir. And if you'd tell us who you are.

MR. REED: My name is a Calvin Clarence Reed, now famously known as C.C. Reed. I'm the 2014 qualified gubernatorial candidate for governor for the State of Florida. I started my campaign in 1990, thank God. In 1994 I ran against Lawton Chiles as the write-in candidate. In the 1998 general election I ran against Jeb Bush. In the

1 Proceedings

2 2002 general election I ran against Jeb Bush again
3 as a write-in candidate in all three elections,
4 1994, 1998 and 2002.

5 Then as a write-in candidate they never 6 considered our vote and that wasn't right. So what 7 I did, I put my name on the ballot against Charlie 8 Crist in 2006 as a qualified gubernatorial
9 candidate for governor State of Florida. The thing 10 is by me putting my name on the ballot that didn't 11 even matter because they still didn't count not 12 only my vote but the people that voted for C.C.
13 Reed to become governor State of Florida.

14 It wasn't fair because I received like over 15 800,000 emails from people that say, C.C. Reed, we 16 voted for you. And what I did is I filed a federal 17 lawsuit immediately after the election in the 2006 18 general election, and it got dismissed for some odd 19 reason.

20 So I came back and filed another federal 21 lawsuit. The first lawsuit was to put an 22 injunction on the race. And the second was to put 23 a recall of the race. And they said that you got 24 to be in a certain percentage in order to have a 25 recall of the governor's race.

1 Proceedings

2 But that's no problem because still in 2010 my 3 name appeared on the ballot again. But this time 4 Charlie Crist was the first governor to not run for 5 re-election. And not only that, when they put Rick
6 Scott there, the money man, basically they blocked 7 me out from putting on my TV commercial. But thank 8 God I was able to get my commercial broadcast 9 within the State of Florida through Comcast, which 10 I had to file an appeal with the Voter Elections 11 Commission.

12 But the thing about that, there was a big 13 conspiracy to sabotage my campaign, my legal 14 campaign for governor State of Florida because they 15 said: Whitey is all right, black stay back. But 16 you know what? That's not fair to my people
17 because there was a conspiracy, and I know it for a 18 fact because not only Charlie Crist was the first 19 governor not to run for re-election, you had a 20 chief financial officer named Alex Sink, first time 21 a chief financial officer didn't run for her seat, 22 she ran against C.C. Reed. Then you have an 23 Attorney General, Bill McCollum, first time you had 24 an Attorney General State of Florida didn't run for 25 his position. He ran against C.C. Reed. But

1 Proceedings

2 that's OK because right now currently we have a
3 federal case pending before the Honorable Frederico 4 Moreno, and the case number is 5 13-225158-CIV-MORENO.

6 The reason why I come here was to let you 7 know, and I thank you God for this National 8 Commission On Voting Rights because there are two 9 laws in the State of Florida, Florida Statute 10 944.292 and Florida Statute 944.293. The thing is, 11 about your rights, in the State of Florida, are 12 never taken away from you. Okay? Basically they 13 are suspended. Once you do your time in prison, 14 you do your time in jail, or you complete your 15 probation, your rights are automatically restored 16 back to you by the governor of the State of 17 Florida. Now, when he come and raise the right
18 hand and take that oath they are supposed to honor 19 the laws of the State of Florida and the laws of 20 the United States Constitution.

21 Thank you very much for giving me this 22 opportunity.

23 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Thank you. The next
24 speaker is Robin Foster.

25 MS. ARNOLD: She left.

1 Proceedings

2 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: That does in fact
3 conclude the public testimony. Lida?

4 COMMISSIONER RODRIGUEZ: I'll start out. A 5 couple of closing remarks, I think the most 6 important one of which is thank you all for your 7 time. Thank you all for your testimony. Thank you 8 all for the information that you have provided us 9 today. Thank you to the Lawyers' Committee. And 10 thank you very much, Rebecca, for your hard work 11 for putting this together and the commission on 12 voting rights.

13 What we need to do is, to successfully address 14 these issues, we need to take many different 15 approaches. One, we have to take the long view and 16 we have to take a lot of approaches.

17 I have to echo something that Dan Gelber said
18 and also Dan from Common Cause said is that you 19 need to look at the big-picture political reasons 20 why this is being done. And those need to be 21 addressed, and those need to be challenged, and 22 there are people who are very well equipped in this 23 room to take those challenges on and I urge you to 24 do so.

25 In addition, there are the minutia that also

1 Proceedings

2 need to be addressed and they need to be addressed
3 and they need to be challenged and there are people 4 in this room who are very well equipped to do that 5 task. I think we all need to work together from 6 various perspectives, the big picture and the 7 minutia, to bring about changes in the way that 8 Florida disenfranchises people and prevents them 9 from voting.

10 This is not a problem that is going away soon.
11 This is a long-term problem, and we have to take 12 the long view in order to provide solutions. And I 13 really appreciate the time that you all have taken 14 and the testimony, because it's been incredibly 15 valuable.

16 Part of the problem with election
17 administration, and somebody pointed this out 18 already, is that you need to figure out how many 19 counties there are in the country and that is 20 exactly how many different methods of voting there 21 are. Every single county, every single precinct is 22 its own world. And the only solution to that is to 23 create clear and definable rules so that nobody can 24 change what happens at the polling place, what 25 happens on Election Day, what happens at early

1 Proceedings

2 voting and how people are treated and how they are 3 permitted to vote. And that's key.

4 So, for example, when I was hearing Katie talk 5 about the lack the language assistance, one 6 suggestion is to meet with the supervisor and to 7 provide a training page for how the different poll
8 workers need to be trained on language assistance.
9 Actually that's an issue throughout the state, and 10 we're not providing sufficient training guidelines
11 for how the counties are supposed to train poll 12 workers to make sure that people who need language 13 assistance are getting it.

14 I'm not running away from what Dan is saying 15 because I think what Dan is saying is very 16 important. But my focus has always been election 17 administration, so that's where I can lend the most 18 help.

19 Obviously I'm here to provide assistance to 20 any of you and your groups, whoever need it, but I 21 really encourage those people who want to work on 22 election administration issues to focus on the 23 minutia because if you focus on the minutia it is 24 shocking how many people you are able to help and 25 how many rights and how many voters you are able to

1 Proceedings

2 protect as a result. Thanks.

3 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Dan.

4 COMMISSIONER GELBER: Thank you all for what 5 you do. I know you are committed to this and I can 6 tell you that there are a lot of people who 7 appreciate what you do even though they have no
8 idea who you are, what you spend all your days 9 doing, and you've really made our democracy much 10 stronger so keep it up. Thank you.

11 COMMISSIONER SMITH: Again, thank you to the 12 Lawyers' Committee. Thank you, Rebecca, for 13 convening this here at the University of Miami.
14 But, most important, thank you to all of you for 15 coming and sharing your stories.

16 We do need, as Lida says, a mix of the micro-17 personal anecdotal stories that all of you are 18 engaged in at the grass roots level to insure that 19 those people who are eligible can become registered 20 to vote to make sure that they have access to the 21 polls; that they can get to a convenient voting
22 location or vote by mail or vote on Election Day;
23 that they can have their vote protected and done so 24 in an efficient manner; that their vote ultimately 25 counts. That is all incredibly important.

1 Proceedings

2 It's just as important as the macro-level game 3 of politics that's very partisan, that needs to be 4 challenged when it is so egregious in terms of 5 taking people's fundamental right to vote away.

6 I would just add that it is partisan. We know 7 it is. But it's not only partisan. States like 8 North Dakota, a heavily Republican state, still do 9 not require voters to register to vote. They don't 10 have requirements to show a state-issued voter ID.
11 In Wyoming there haven't been any battles over 12 voting rights. Utah, there haven't been any with 13 respect to voter ID. These are heavily, heavily 14 Republican parties. And the reason is they are not 15 battleground states.

16 It's the close elections that the gaming of 17 the system becomes the end as much as anything 18 else. The combination of the partisanship and the 19 competitiveness, and that's why we have to be 20 vigilant. That's why Congress needs to act to 21 restore the Voting Rights Act to extend the power 22 of the federal government and the Department of 23 Justice to make sure that we can be protected from 24 various levels of governance that may have ulterior 25 motives with respect to that fundamental right to

1 Proceedings

2 vote. So, again, thank you all, and I thank you
3 again to the Lawyers' Committee.

4 COMMISSIONER RUSSELL: Just from my standpoint
5 I want to thank the other three commissioners for 6 being here and listening to the testimony, and at 7 some point we'll get a report that will be the 8 Florida report that does in fact provide some basis 9 on which to tell the Congress that things need to 10 change. But also I think that we have had great 11 testimony here that can be used in Tallahassee, 12 quite frankly, as we advocate for access free and 13 unfettered to the vote for Floridians.

14 There are at least two election bills in the 15 legislature this session that argue for open 16 access, and it is this kind of information that 17 needs to go to those folks to deal with that.

18 I think that we have heard testimony also 19 about election administration at the local level
20 that all of us who have come from around the state 21 today need to go back and sit down with our 22 supervisors of elections and make sure that, to the 23 degree that they will listen, that they understand 24 that there are people who are looking at them.

25 As far as recalcitrant bureaucrats who fail to

1 Proceedings

2 carry out the law, I don't know what you folks in 3 Miami-Dade can do about that, but you definitely 4 ought not to be sitting on your hands. A bathroom
5 is a universal need and right. And it seems to me 6 it doesn't go away because you are getting ready to 7 cast a ballot. I leave you with that statement and 8 I turn it over to Rebecca. Thank you all for 9 coming. Rebecca has closing remarks.

10 MS. ARNOLD: Very brief. I want to echo the 11 guest commissioners and say thank you, all, for 12 coming out and sharing your stories. It's 13 disappointing there are so many stories about so 14 many barriers that we have to share. But the hope 15 is to turn all this information into action. And I 16 mentioned earlier, and as Mr. Russell mentioned, we 17 are going to have a report that includes the 18 information not only from this hearing but from all 19 across the country and you all can use that in your 20 advocacy. So thank you for coming out and thank 21 you to our wonderful guest commissioner panel and 22 thank you to all the organizations who helped 23 organize this. Thank you.

P R O C E E D I N G S

NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
against racial injustice and inequality.

MEREDITH HORTON: Good afternoon, everyone. It would be great if everyone can start by taking their seats.

We continue our work today in a variety of issue areas, fair housing, employment discrimination, education, and, of course, voting rights, the reason that we are all here today.

Welcome.

So today's hearing in Georgia is the first in a series of nationwide fact finding hearings convened by our National Commission on Voting Rights.

My name is Meredith Horton and I'm with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in Washington, D.C., and I want to welcome you to the inaugural hearing of the National Commission on Voting Rights.

I'm especially honored to get us started and really quick off this nationwide series right here in Georgia, such an important state in the voting rights landscape.

On behalf of the Lawyers' Committee, we want to thank you for your participation and support of this event this afternoon.

As many of you know, this summer the U.S. Supreme Court struck down a key protection of the Voting Rights Act, really stripped it away, one that protected Georgia voters in particular from discriminatory voting changes.

And right at the outset I want to thank the King Center for hosting us in such a beautiful and really fitting venue for a discussion about one of the most fundamental aspects of our democracy, the right to vote.

The Court released states like Georgia with a troubling history of discrimination and voting from a critical responsibility, and that was to show and demonstrate up front that voting changes would not disadvantage minority voters.

A little bit about the Lawyers' Committee. We're a nonprofit, nonpartisan civil rights organization. We were founded at the request of President Kennedy 50 years ago to engage private law firms and the private bar in the fight

Now, the Court found that this

NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013 requirement was outdated and perhaps no more longer related to current needs. We believe the Court got it wrong.

NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013 advocacy and reform at the local, state and national level.

So one of our main purposes to these national hearings is to identify the needs for strong protections against discrimination in voting, and looking at the current record in states across the country. Again, starting with Georgia.

The testimony that we receive today and after the hearing will be used by the National Commission to prepare two reports. One on voting discrimination, another on election administration and election reform matters.

So in addition today, we want to hear from you about election administration and election reform issues.

The reports and records from these hearings will be available to anyone seeking new reform or improve existing laws and systems. That includes policy makers, advocates, the voting public, your neighbor, whomever.

So across the country over the past few years we've seen a wave of restrictive voting laws. Those laws are even making it harder for eligible individuals to just cast a ballot. They've taken the form of strict photo ID laws in some states, proof of citizenship registration laws in others.

We expect the reports also to help inform Congress and educate the public regarding recent record of voting discrimination and also changes to look out for in your communities, you know, as time goes on.

Further, we've continued to see sort of similar election administration challenges cycle after cycle related to whole work or training, voter registration procedures, provisional ballot use.

So now I would like to introduce our Panel of Commissioners for today's hearing.

So your input on all of these issues in Georgia is critical for our ongoing efforts for

Presiding over our event are four Georgia Commissioners, each with a deep commitment to protecting access to the ballot for all on equal terms.

We have Helen Butler, Executive Director

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 of the Georgia Coalition for the Peoples' Agenda.
 3 Dr. Francys Johnson, President of the 4 Georgia State Conference of the NAACP.
 5 Laughlin McDonald, Special Counsel and 6 Director Emeritus of the ACLU Voting Rights
 7 Project.
 8 And Ruby Moore, Executive Director of the 9 Georgia Advocacy Office.
 10 Our commissioners will preside over 11 today's hearing and receive testimony from several 12 panels of witnesses and ask follow-up questions, if 13 they choose, just to ensure that we create a robust 14 record about the state of voting in Georgia.
 15 Now, just a few housekeeping items for 16 the afternoon. If you've been confirmed on a panel 17 in advance, and you would know that because you've 18 received an e-mail from me confirming you, then, 19 please make sure you checked in at the sign-in 20 table and our commissioners will call your name to 21 have you come up to sit in one of the four chairs 22 when it's time for your testimony.
 23 For the individuals who are here today
 24 and would like to share their voting experiences 25 but have not yet been assigned to a panel, that's

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 language services towards the back, Maria and 3 Gabriel can assist you there with headsets. And we 4 also have signage interpreters here in front who 5 can also provide some more assistance.
 6 Finally, I have been asked to say from 7 our communications group that if you're a tweeter, 8 and I am not yet, we have a hash tag. So our hash 9 tag for the event is NCVR for National Commission
 10 on Voting Rights.
 11 My organization's handle is at 12 lawyerscomm, L-A-W-Y-E-R-S-C-O-M-M.
 13 So I will get big kudos back home if 14 there are like tweets going out. So feel free.
 15 And finally, before I turn it over to our 16 commissioners, I just wanted to add a few huge 17 thank yous.
 18 In addition to the King Center, our 19 hosts, I want to thank our law firm sponsors, King 20 & Spalding and Kilpatrick, Townsend & Stockton for 21 helping us secure this beautiful venue and 22 providing transcription services and translation 23 services.
 24 I would also definitely like to thank our 25 Panel of Commissioners for their time this

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 okay, too, we definitely want to hear from you.
 3 So please make sure that you sign in on 4 the outside table on the witness sign-up sheet and 5 follow the instructions given by one of the 6 volunteers.
 7 We need you to put your name on one of 8 the index cards, including the topic that you would 9 like to testify on. I will make sure that those 10 cards get to our commissioners who will call you up 11 during one of the open mic sessions this afternoon.
 12 There is a microphone stand in the 13 audience to my left that you may use to testify 14 from.
 15 A few other items.
 16 Our hearing is being transcribed by a
 17 court reporter down in front. So please speak 18 clearly, especially your name.
 19 In addition, please be mindful of the 20 timekeepers who will also be down in front and 21 their signs. Be kind to the timekeepers. We'd 22 like to make sure we try to accommodate as many 23 people as we can this afternoon.
 24 Third, we also have Spanish and sign
 25 language interpreters on site today. For Spanish

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/
 2 afternoon, all of our witnesses, and the numerous 3 Georgia-based organizations that have been so 4 helpful in the planning and promoting of this 5 event. It has truly been a really fun effort and 6 I'm finally excited to be on the ground meeting all 7 of you.
 8 You'll hear from me again later, but for 9 now I will turn it over to our witnesses -- I'm 10 sorry, our commissioners, if they'd like to make 11 any opening remarks, and they will call up the 12 first panel of witnesses. Thank you.
 13 (APPLAUSE.)
 14 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Good afternoon.
 15 I'm Helen Butler, Executive Director of 16 the Coalition for the Peoples' Agenda and Advocacy 17 Organization convened by Dr. Joseph Lowery.
 18 And of course, our primary mission is to 19 improve governance through public policy reform.
 20 And of course, one of those issues is voting and 21 voting rights. And definitely that is on the 22 forefront.
 23 As you know, Dr. King and Dr. Lowery and 24 Rita and others made sure we had the right to vote 25 for communities of color, so we are so happy to be

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 here today. We want to hear your testimony, that 3 is most important.
 4 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Thank you, Helen.
 5 My name is Francys Johnson, and I'm 6 President of the Georgia NAACP. Professionally I 7 am in private practice in southeast Georgia and 8 practice before the state and federal courts here
 9 in Georgia.
 10 Additionally, I am a minister and pastor
 11 of the Mount Moriah Missionary Baptist Church in 12 Pembroke, Georgia, and the Magnolia Missionary 13 Baptist Church in Statesboro, Georgia.
 14 I come to this work after previously 15 teaching at the university level, particularly 16 courses on civil rights and race and the law.
 17 On behalf of the NAACP, I bring you 18 greetings. On behalf of our interim president and 19 CEO, Lorraine C. Miller, and chairwoman of our 20 board of directors, Roslyn McCallister Brock, and 21 the over 2200 units which make up the NAACP in all 22 50 states in many places around the world.
 23 The NAACP's original mandate was to 24 strengthen this nation's democracy and to guarantee 25 provisions of the constitution. And of course,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And then, secondly, the Court expressly
 3 upheld another major provision of the Voting Rights 4 Act, and that is Section 2. Section 2 protects the 5 equal right of racial and language minorities to 6 participate in the political process and elect
 7 candidates of their choice.
 8 So, you know, both before the Shelby 9 County decision was handed down and after it was 10 handed down, the civil rights community has held 11 weekly and biweekly telephone conferences to 12 determine how to respond to Shelby County. And 13 there have been 25, 30, 40 people on these 14 telephone calls. And there are a number of things 15 which people have discussed that need to be done to 16 rewrite the coverage formula.
 17 I think another thing that needs to be 18 done is to strengthen the bail-in provision. There 19 is a provision in the Voting Rights Act that says 20 if a court finds that a jurisdiction committed a 21 violation of the Fourteenth or Fifteenth
 22 Amendments, it can bail it into Section 5 coverage.
 23 And there have been two states that have 24 been bailed in under the jurisdictions and about 25 seven other states have been bailed in.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 that remains the mainstay of our work today.
 3 104 years later the NAACP is still 4 advocating and working to remove some of the 5 hostile obstacles that remain and linger. And 6 we're very happy to be here today and hear your 7 testimony and add to the growing record of 8 rollbacks in terms of the access to the ballot and 9 the right to vote here in Georgia.
 10 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, I'm 11 Laughlin McDonald with the ACLU Voting Rights
 12 Project. I've been there since the early 1970s.
 13 We've done literally hundreds and hundreds of 14 voting rights cases on behalf of racial minorities
 15 in the south and also on behalf of language
 16 minorities, including, Alaskan natives, American 17 Indians in the west.
 18 I want to stress that in the Shelby
 19 County case, the Supreme Court did not invalidate 20 Section 5 itself, it only struck down the coverage 21 formula.
 22 And in writing the majority opinion, the 23 Court said we understand that racial discrimination 24 still exists and that it's up to Congress to 25 redraft the coverage formula.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 But the problem is, you have to find a
 3 constitutional violation. And I think that one of 4 the ways to strengthen the bail in would be to 5 include a violation of any federal statute that 6 protects the voting rights of racial or language 7 minorities. So and you don't have to prove 8 discriminatory purpose, only that it has an adverse 9 racial effect.
 10 There are other things that could be 11 done. Section 2 could be strengthened.
 12 The problem with Section 2 is that it
 13 depends as far as enforcement on private plaintiffs 14 of the United States bringing a lawsuit. And when 15 you bring the lawsuit, you have the burden of 16 proof.
 17 Under Section 5, the jurisdiction has the 18 burden to show no retrogressive effect, but you 19 have the burden to prove it.
 20 We've been involved in literally hundreds 21 of these Section 2 cases and some of them can last 22 for years. We've had a case in Wyoming that was 23 resolved recently that was in the court like seven 24 years before it was finally decided.
 25 We were involved in a case in South

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Carolina, Lexington County, at-large members
 3 elected to the school board, and it went on for six 4 years before we finally got the decision.
 5 And they can be very expensive. You have 6 to have experts, demographers, statisticians, you
 7 might want historians, political scientists. So 8 there should be some way to strengthen Section 2 so 9 that it does not impose that kind of burden there.
 10 There's lots of ways people are talking about.
 11 Now, had this group of people come up 12 with concrete, agreed upon ways to respond to 13 Shelby County? Well, not exactly.
 14 But they are getting closer to coming up 15 with things to propose to Congress. And there are 16 members of Congress who have made a commitment to 17 doing something to deal with the coverage formula 18 and to respond to show the county. So we'll have 19 to see what the Congress will do.
 20 But all of us, believe me, have to play a 21 role in making Congress do the right thing and 22 respond to the Shelby County decision.
 23 COMMISSIONER MOORE: Good afternoon.
 24 I'm Ruby Moore. I'm the Executive 25 Director of the Georgia Advocacy Office. We are

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 the independent designated protection and advocacy
 3 system for people with disabilities in Georgia.
 4 As such, our primary mission is to 5 prevent abuse and neglect and discrimination in its 6 many forms. And in attempting to protect the 7 rights of people with disabilities, that cuts 8 across every demographic and every population and 9 base of citizenry of Georgia.
 10 I'm very honored to be here to hear what 11 people have to say. We are in a state where -- 12 well, our work every day, we're seeing 13 discrimination every day, of all manner of things.
 14 And I'm very honored to be here to be 15 able to hear what people have to say and to help
 16 with the process.
 17 Your testimony goes straight into the 18 record. We have qualified people here to make sure 19 that your voices are heard. And hopefully we can 20 change the policies and practices and laws that are 21 keeping people from exercising their citizenship
 22 right to vote.
 23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: As everyone has 24 said, the testimony that you give here today is 25 critical to be on the record to ensure that we have

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 our voices heard because we must. The power is in 3 the people and you are the people. And your voice 4 and your vote counts and so we want to hear what 5 you have to say with regards to what is going on in 6 the state of Georgia with regards to voting rights 7 and election administration.
 8 So our first panel will consist of Laura 9 Toro, Program Manager, for the Georgia Association
 10 of Latino-Elected Officials.
 11 And we're going to ask that you come up 12 and take the table to the left. The panel will sit 13 to the table to the left.
 14 Reverend Henry Ficklin from Macon, City
 15 Councilman, will come up.
 16 And Laura will give a little information
 17 about Gainesville litigation under Section 2.
 18 Reverend Ficklin will talk about 19 Macon-Bibb redistricting.
 20 And of course, we have with us Dr. Nancy 21 Dennard from Quitman, Georgia, to talk about the 22 Quitman 10 case and what happened down in her
 23 county.
 24 Representative Virgil Fludd from the 25 Georgia house of representatives will be talking

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 about the at-large voting system in Fayette County.
 3 LAURA TORO: Good afternoon.
 4 AUDIENCE: Good Afternoon.
 5 LAURA TORO: Good afternoon, everybody.
 6 Thank you for inviting us -- inviting me
 7 here to speak today on behalf of GALEO.
 8 In 2003, the Georgia Association of 9 Latino-Elected Officials, also known as GALEO, was 10 created to promote the civic engagement and 11 leadership development of the Latino community in 12 Georgia.
 13 In 2004, the GALEO Latino Community
 14 Development Fund was created as the 501(c)(3)
 15 counterpart to GALEO.
 16 Through GALEO's work, Latino civic 17 engagement and leadership development has 18 noticeably increased in Georgia.
 19 To begin with, our organization was the 20 main entity which led the 2010 census outreach 21 efforts for the Latino community in the state of 22 Georgia.
 23 Through our work and outreach to both
 24 urban and rural communities, the Latino population
 25 in Georgia nearly doubled and then counted 28

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 percent of Georgia's growth.
 3 In addition, through our ongoing Georgia
 4 Latino Vote Campaign efforts, the Latino electorate 5 has grown from only 10,000 registered voters in 6 2003 to well over 184,000 in 2012. That's 174,000
 7 people in nine years.
 8 Also, GALEO has been a leading advocate 9 voice in Georgia for the most pressing issue within 10 the Latino immigrant population, namely immigration 11 reform.
 12 The city of Gainesville, Georgia, has an 13 at-large voting process to elect all of its five 14 city council members, and we claim that this system
 15 dilutes the voting power of a growing Latino 16 electorate, in violation of Section 2 of the Voting
 17 Rights Act.
 18 The Latino community currently comprises 19 45 percent of the city's population and has a 20 majority population in three out of the five wards
 21 or districts.
 22 According to the 2012 census numbers used 23 for the most recent redistricting effort by the 24 city of Gainesville, Ward 3 has 54 percent Latino
 25 population, Ward 4 has 56 percent, Ward 5 has 61

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 percent Latino population.
 3 But despite these majority figures, the 4 facts have shown that the voting of Latinos is 5 depressed in the City of Gainesville with the 6 Latino voter participation rate of nearly 30 7 percent, which stands in stark contrast to national 8 Latino voter participation rate of 48 percent 9 during the last presidential election.
 10 We are currently in the process of filing 11 a complaint against the City of Gainesville. And 12 this case will be one of the first of its kind in 13 the southeastern United States and will have far 14 reaching impact well beyond the state of Georgia.
 15 There are many other at-large 16 municipalities in the southern areas where the 17 Latino community has grown tremendously and where 18 there is also a hostile environment against Latinos 19 due to the pending immigration reform debate in the 20 U.S. Congress.
 21 For example, many voting practices have 22 been implemented to discourage and disenfranchise 23 Latino voters from fully exercising their right to 24 vote, such as voter ID and citizen verification
 25 laws.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 The at-large voting process further
 3 disenfranchises the Latino vote by creating real 4 voter dilution situations which impede Latino 5 citizens from being able to elect their candidates 6 of choice.
 7 The population in the City of Gainesville
 8 is heavily comprised by Mexican immigrants who have 9 come to work in the area's poultry industry. And 10 poultry workers have made claims regarding 11 significant abuse and mistreatment at the 12 processing plants.
 13 The Latino population is of significantly 14 lower economic class in comparison to other 15 population segments in the city. And there are 16 persistent racial tensions against the Latino 17 community within the city and the power structure.
 18 In fact, Gainesville was the stage for an 19 anti-Latino Klu Klux Klan activity in 1998, an 20 anti-immigrant policy, such as the adoption by Hall 21 County of Section 287(G) of the Immigration and 22 Nationality Act, have further alienated the Latino 23 and immigrant population within the city and 24 surrounding the areas.
 25 The pervasiveness of discrimination and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 abuse makes access to an elected official who 3 represents the interests of the Latino community in 4 Gainesville all the more pressing. Which is why
 5 GALEO has taken on the heavy task of confronting 6 the city regarding its at-large voting process.
 7 The potential for the Latino electorate 8 to have greater influence on elected candidates of 9 choice would encourage the increase of Latino voter 10 participation and engagement.
 11 In addition, the elimination of the 12 at-large voting process in the City of Gainesville 13 would set the stage for a similar outcome in 14 another Georgia city with similar demographics, the 15 City of Dalton.
 16 Furthermore, the state's most populace
 17 county, Gwinnett County, is home to the most Latino 18 registered voters and all of the local 19 municipalities in Gwinnett County currently have 20 at-large voting process.
 21 Symbolically, should GALEO prevail in the 22 case, it will send a powerful message across the 23 state of Georgia and the southeastern United 24 States.
 25 Thank you.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you.
 3 And I'm going to tell the panel that our 4 timekeeper is there with the red shirt so that you 5 can be mindful of that.
 6 Laura, you worked very well.
 7 I know that you and Reverend Ficklin had 8 to leave. Any of the panel have questions for 9 Laura?
 10 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, I guess
 11 just one question.
 12 You gave some registered voter figures at 13 the end, but the initial figures you gave, was that 14 total population or was it voting age population or 15 citizen voting age population?
 16 LAURA TORO: The figures that I gave at 17 first, is that what you're referring to, that we 18 registered --
 19 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Yes.
 20 LAURA TORO: -- 174,000 people in nine
 21 years?
 22 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, you talked
 23 about the increase in the population. There's no 24 question that there has been an increase in the 25 Latino population. But are we satisfied that it's

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 voting age citizen population?
 3 LAURA TORO: In Ward 5, yes. And there
 4 are some other figures that will be coming out in 5 January.
 6 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: All right.
 7 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: My question is, how 8 many Latino candidates have run -- actually run at 9 large?
 10 LAURA TORO: There was one person who ran 11 in the mid-'90s. We don't -- and not enough -- 12 there was not enough voter turnout to really get 13 figures for that. And there was also somebody who 14 ran for mayor in the most recent election now in 15 2013. He did not prevail.
 16 COMMISSIONER MOORE: So do you believe 17 that the current practice actually discourages 18 people from even running?
 19 LAURA TORO: It is our contention that 20 the current at-large process discourages people 21 from getting involved and getting involved in the 22 civic process. Voting, running for office, being 23 involved in their communities, yes.
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Our next witness is 25 Reverend Henry Ficklin.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 REVEREND FICKLIN: Thank you so much.
 3 Good afternoon.
 4 This testimony comes as a follow-up to a
 5 conversation with Attorney Anna Baldwin of the U.S.
 6 Justice Department Voting Rights Section 2 on June 7 19th, 2013, at approximately 11:15 or thereabout, 8 wherein we discussed the situation surrounding the 9 consolidated governments of Macon and Bibb County
 10 and the situation that our legislative delegation 11 caused for Payne City making them a people without 12 representation, and that such a manner possibly 13 would be more appropriately addressed by Section 2
 14 of the Voting Rights Act rather than Section 5.
 15 Upon further investigation into Section 2
 16 of the Voting Rights Act, it appears that my 17 complaints regarding the above-stated references
 18 are indeed more appropriately addressed by Section 19 2. Therefore, I now, under Section 2 of the Voting 20 Rights Act, make a formal -- make formal my 21 complaints concerning all of the aforementioned 22 references upon the grounds that they were all 23 developed in an invidious manner to set forth the 24 following:
 25 1. The history of official

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 voting-related discrimination in Georgia and the 3 City of Macon, Bibb County, are well-known and 4 established by numerous news stories over the 5 years.
 6 2. Voting in the elections of Macon,
 7 Bibb County, is racially polarized and is evidenced 8 by the election statistics which will show that 9 white voters overwhelmingly vote for white 10 candidates, as in the recent 2011 mayoral race, 11 while black citizens vote for both white and black
 12 candidates.
 13 3. The population shift has made black
 14 voters the majority in Bibb County when elections 15 are partisan, as they have traditionally been in 16 Bibb County for decades, therefore, black 17 candidates experience the most success in partisan
 18 elections.
 19 4. The legislative delegation in Bibb
 20 County during the reapportionment seized an 21 opportunity to change the government and draw new 22 districts designed to defeat black candidates and 23 current black-elected officials.
 24 5. The Republican-led delegation used 25 voting practices and procedures that tend to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 enhance the opportunity for discrimination against 3 blacks, such as, a consolidated government, usually 4 large by election districts within the consolidated 5 government, unusually large election districts, the 6 addition of a Republican legislator to the Bibb 7 County delegation in order to ensure that the 8 Republicans, who are all white, will control the 9 delegation, and a prohibition against a partisan 10 election which greatly enhances and decreases 11 black-elected officials. Enhances a decrease in 12 black-elected officials.

13 6. House Bill 514, which amends the 14 original consolidation bill passed in 2003 Georgia
 15 General Assembly by the Republican-led delegation 16 signed into law a Republican -- by Republican 17 Governor, Nathan Deal, was expressly done to reduce 18 minority participation in the voting process. It 19 was passed in the last minutes of the legislative 20 session without input from the community or the 21 chair of the Bibb delegation, who was a black 22 woman.

23 The movement of the election for a mayor
 24 and commissioners of the new consolidated
 25 government from November, which was in the original

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 bill, to July, when statistically black voters turn 3 out in lower numbers, was specifically to increase 4 the chances of electing a mostly white commission.

5 This was also the strategy used to pass 6 the initial consolidation bill by scheduling the 7 vote in July despite the plea from the minority 8 community to have it in November when the 9 presidential election was on the ballot.

10 7. Black voters in Bibb County bear the 11 effects of discrimination in education, as the 12 graduation rate for the minority populated public 13 high schools is less than 40 percent; the 14 unemployment rate for minorities in Bibb County is 15 higher than the national average; the health for 16 blacks in Bibb County is one of the most staggering
 17 statistics in the state, with more than 10 dialysis 18 centers located in or near the minority community
 19 in Bibb County. And all of this tends to hinder 20 the ability of blacks to participate effectively in 21 the political process.

22 8. The wealthy Republican legislator who 23 is mainly the driving force behind most of these 24 actions, Representative Allen Peake, used a subtle 25 racial threat that he would formulate a new city in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 the north part of Bibb County, which is mostly 3 white, if citizens didn't vote to consolidate. The 4 consolidation bill overwhelmingly won in north Bibb
 5 County, while losing in every minority precinct.

6 There were other --
 7 LAURA TORO: Oh, sorry.
 8 REVEREND FICKLIN: I wasn't looking at 9 the time.

10 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Go ahead and finish
 11 your statement.

12 REVEREND FICKLIN: Okay.
 13 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: If it's quick.
 14 REVEREND FICKLIN: I will just skip to 15 the first lines.

16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay.
 17 REVEREND FICKLIN: I have been elected to 18 public service in the pre-consolidated jurisdiction 19 for more than 30 years.

20 The precincts in the new district, 2, are 21 Howard 4, a white Republican precinct with a 92
 22 percent voter turnout; East Macon 4, a white 23 Republican precinct with 88 percent voter turnout;
 24 Godfrey 1, a minority precinct, with 31 percent
 25 turnout; and a portion of Godfrey 2, a minority

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 precinct, with 37 percent turnout; and a portion of 3 Godfrey 4, a majority black precinct with 36 4 percent turnout.

5 The Republican-controlled delegation
 6 added one more element to their consolidation bill, 7 which proves the invidious nature of the entire 8 plan. The bill calls for nine commissioners to be 9 elected.

10 And, of course, the election was set for 11 September the 17th, after a federal lawsuit to get 12 it changed from the original July 16th after the 13 Supreme Court had -- Justice Department had stopped
 14 it and Supreme Court ruled.

15 And therefore, some of the Republican 16 candidates went back to court and had the election 17 set at the next possible earliest date which was 18 September the 17th.

19 There were many complaints of serious 20 irregularities in the election and called for 21 the --

22 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Reverend. Reverend 23 Ficklin, I'm going to have to ask --

24 REVEREND FICKLIN: Okay.

25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: -- if you could

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 just sum one final sentence what it is, we're going 3 to have to get the testimony of the other
 4 panelists.
 5 REVEREND FICKLIN: Okay, thank you so
 6 much. I apologize.
 7 And basically we are in court now 8 fighting to get a new election because of some of 9 the irregularities that occurred during this time.
 10 One of the main things was that voters 11 were drawn outside of the district and allowed to 12 vote in another district and not allowed to vote in 13 their correct district, and we had that happening 14 all over the county.
 15 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Questions of 16 the commissioners?
 17 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, so then
 18 there was an election held under the new plan?
 19 REVEREND FICKLIN: Yes, there was on 20 September 17th.
 21 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: And how did
 22 minorities do?
 23 REVEREND FICKLIN: Minorities in,
 24 basically, a minority district did pretty good.
 25 There were four of them drawn -- actually, there

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 sworn to secrecy.
 3 And after that, they came out with this 4 plan and they went to Atlanta and next thing we 5 know they had voted it in. We did not have any 6 input in it.
 7 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: The Department of 8 Justice actually had withheld that consolidation;
 9 is that correct?
 10 REVEREND FICKLIN: They, well, contested 11 the date of the election because we had -- after 12 the plan had been put in operation and our 13 legislative delegation, minority legislative 14 delegation offered apparently no, you know, nothing 15 against it. So, DOJ went ahead with it.
 16 But then we, in the community, we had a 17 wide campaign to write letters to the DOJ. And of 18 course, they heard us and they stopped the election 19 on July 16th based upon statistical evidence that 20 minorities show up better in November. And they 21 stopped it.
 22 But in the ensuing time, the Supreme 23 Court ruled and struck down Section 5 of the Voting
 24 Rights Act. When that happened, the Republicans 25 went back into court and got a federal judge to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 were five minority districts drawn and -- but as I
 3 was pointing out, they added in heavy voting
 4 Republican districts to overshadow the low turnout
 5 in the minority districts. And District 2 was one 6 of those districts.
 7 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: But how many 8 minorities were actually elected?
 9 REVEREND FICKLIN: Actually, four 10 minorities were actually elected. And of course, 11 the contest between myself, who is minority, and 12 another -- a gentleman who was white.
 13 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: I'm concerned with 14 what input the community had in the redistricting
 15 plans. Were they announced and advertised planning 16 sessions? Did this come up through the planning 17 commission? What was the development of the plan?
 18 REVEREND FICKLIN: The legislative 19 delegation announced that they had sequestered 20 themselves away from the community and that they 21 would come forth with a plan when they got through 22 with it. We tried to get in, find out what was 23 going on.
 24 One legislator did come forth, but he 25 couldn't say anything because he said he had been

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 issue an order to have the election at the next 3 available date, which was September the 17th.
 4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Any other
 5 questions?
 6 Our next speaker is Dr. Nancy Dennard
 7 with the Quitman 10.
 8 DR. NANCY DENNARD: Hello. I'm Nancy.
 9 I represent a group of individuals from 10 Quitman, Georgia, which is in southwest Georgia.
 11 It's probably 10 minutes short of the borderline.
 12 Our current population is probably 16,300
 13 and that's based on the 2009 census. 62.3 percent 14 white, 35.8 percent black, and 1.9 percent other.
 15 Our voting population is estimated around 16 36 percent black -- oh, I'm sorry. This is the 17 voting population. 36 percent black, 59 percent 18 white and 5 percent other.
 19 And the significance of our case is that 20 in 2009 -- well, prior to that, 2006, I ran 21 unsuccessfully for the school board and it was just 22 getting to the line of always not having enough 23 votes. That seems to be the typical thing when we 24 have elections.
 25 And we ran -- even in Black districts,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 you just got right there and you would be winning 3 in the polls, but when you got down to the 4 courthouse and did the final tabulations,
5 miraculously we lost. You go to bed thinking you 6 had won, the next morning you realized you had 7 lost.

8 And so I started doing some research on 9 this and thinking of other ways that we've got to 10 get our community engaged. And make sure that when 11 we are engaged that what we're doing is being 12 recorded and it's able to go back and we're able to 13 -- I said count it and recount it. That was the 14 base that we used.

15 And so I ran in 2009 in special election
16 and I was successful in April of winning and that 17 was by the process of getting out and doing 18 tremendous door-to-door knocking and educating 19 people on the ways they can vote.

20 And like I said, this was after the state
21 changed the early voting -- absentee voting
22 regulations to where now you could -- at that time 23 you could vote by void or reason if you wanted to, 24 there wasn't the stipulation of age and out of the 25 district and things like that.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 superintendent allowed two of the candidates to 3 switch positions, they just happened to be at-large 4 and from that same district, switch positions. We 5 challenged them in court and we were -- and we were 6 overruled on that.

7 And so, subsequent we went back to the 8 polls in November and we won all three elections.
9 We were initially told election night that one of 10 the candidates had lost by 60 votes. She was 11 notified on Friday at 4:45 before the vote was sent 12 to the state to be certified that she had won by 13 nine votes. It was a challenge, we had a recount, 14 and she eventually ended up winning by 11 votes.

15 And then we are secure in our belief that 16 that was only because we did paper ballots.
17 Majority of the votes were on paper and they were 18 recounted and recounted.

19 Had that not have happened, I think the 20 initial results that were reported to us on that 21 Tuesday night would have stood.

22 But after that the community really got 23 involved and they saw that the power of their vote 24 and it was just this wave of enthusiasm went 25 through our community.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 And I educated people about that and said
3 how easy it was to do and then there's other ways 4 they can do it.

5 And we did the massive educational voting 6 campaign in our community. We went out and we just 7 really -- we had rallies in churches and we -- just 8 where we could find people we would stop and have a 9 conversation with them and stress how important it 10 was for them to get involved.

11 If you're that dissatisfied with your 12 government, you need to get involved by either 13 running or replacing those that are in office that 14 are being ineffective.

15 In 2010 -- I was successful in 2009 with 16 my election. In 2010, another group of individuals 17 got together and decided, you know, they want to 18 challenge some of the races that were occurring 19 that year. And so we had several run for the 20 school board and some were running for the county 21 commissioner, and they were all successful in the 22 July primary.

23 After the July primary, because of -- we 24 have an at-large system in our school system, 25 school board positions, the voter election

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 This happened in November. And in 3 December 21st of that same year, 10 citizens, 4 myself included, were arrested and were charged
5 with -- of voter fraud, of things assisting voters
6 by -- illegally assisting voters, improper handling 7 of absentee ballots, and things of that nature.
8 That was in December of 2010.

9 It wasn't until November of 2011 that we 10 were indicted. By the time we were indicted, there 11 were two others added to the indictment. But it 12 went on and one thing led to another, but we 13 finally had a court date.

14 One of the persons had a court date this 15 past September, the 23rd, which ended in a mistrial 16 by the judge.

17 And during that time we found out some 18 nice information during the testimony that the 19 prosecution had, which the defense never had the 20 opportunity to have with witnesses, that do the 21 prosecution.

22 But we found out things like over 350
23 people that were interviewed by the GBI, 95 percent 24 of them were African-American. The GBI used 25 intimidations and threats of arrest to elicit

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 untruthful statements for some of the voters. The 3 prosecutor never was able to produce documentation
 4 the DA supposedly used to elicit the GBI's 5 involvement.

6 A postal worker testified that he kept
 7 logs of the absentee ballot mailings. He locked 8 the returned absentee ballots in his cash drawer
 9 for retrieval at a later time and then he furnished 10 all of this activity to a private investigator. He 11 was not authorized by any legal means by the postal 12 services to keep this data.

13 Also, we learned that the postal worker
 14 kept these logs at his house, which is why no one 15 else had access to them. This is personal 16 identifying information of citizens within our
 17 county.

18 We also learned that the board elections
 19 deputy registrar testified that she took returned 20 absentee ballots home on several occasions so she 21 could get them logged in because she was getting 22 behind in her work.

23 With these type of irregularity that was 24 going on, it just kind of justifies the reasons we 25 had to do what we had to do. How we had to come

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 local postmaster and they're like, well, nothing's 3 really happening here, but it'll get better.

4 And we had a recent election two weeks
 5 ago for our new mayor, which I'm glad to add it was 6 our first ever elected black mayor in our city, and 7 we had the same problems that came on, too. And we 8 just decided, you know, we're -- well, to answer 9 your question, we're still in the legal process of 10 having some reports filed into that and 11 investigations into that.

12 But not to be deterred in this last 13 election, what we decided to do is notify people
 14 and walk them in. Bypass the post office, walk 15 them in. If they're not there in a timely manner, 16 come in and have counsel and vote anyway. Just do 17 not deny your right to vote.

18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Is the election
 19 official that improperly took absentee ballots 20 home, which is against the code and the process for 21 administering absentee ballots in the voting 22 process, was that person removed from office?

23 DR. NANCY DENNARD: She resigned. What 24 happened -- we didn't have an election board. Our 25 particular case brought about a lot of changes in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 together. We had all of these agencies working 3 against us.

4 Let me say that was in 2010. Obviously, 5 the trial was in 2013, it ended in mistrial. We 6 suspect that they'll come back again and try to 7 bring some other things. But these are just some 8 of the things that we went through in our ordeal, 9 trying to have a fair election in Brooks County.

10 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Questions?

11 COMMISSIONER MOORE: This sounds like it
 12 was made for movie.

13 What happened to the postal worker who --

14 DR. NANCY DENNARD: We're in the process 15 now of -- well, prior to that, we've always 16 suspected that was part of the problem, the postage 17 handling. Because it was right after my first 18 election 50 absentee ballots came in the day after 19 election. That was the kind of trick that was 20 going on.

21 And then the new board of elections would 22 say, but we're mailing them out, we don't know why 23 they're not getting back in.

24 And I filed complaints with the postal 25 inspector's department. I had meetings with our

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 our local government.

3 They formulated an election board. And 4 so at that time she was -- she no longer had 5 anything to do. Her original job, which is a tax 6 collector, assessor or something in the tax 7 collector's office, so she was taking -- that 8 responsibility was taken from her.

9 We're also in the process of pursuing 10 that, too, because, you know, she violated the laws 11 at the time, too.

12 We were just kind of curious that all of 13 this came out in open court testimony, the court 14 reports and all of that, and there was no mention 15 of it later that that should have been evidence 16 that the GBI should pursue if truly they were going 17 after to see and protect the integrity of the 18 voting right.

19 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Was the indictment 20 brought in regular session of the grand jury or was 21 it a special grand jury convened for this purpose?

22 DR. NANCY DENNARD: It was during the 23 term of the grand jury that was convened, but it 24 was a special session. They called them back.

25 They convened the grand jury, I think, in October,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 but they didn't have the -- our particular case
3 presented until November.

4 And this all played into the part -- the 5 part I didn't mention, too, it all played into a 6 part, that Governor Deal had enacted the new law 7 that took into effect in July of 2012 where you can 8 remove elected officials and all of that.

9 So this became effective, the three board
10 members -- and like I said, I was -- this is not 11 even my election. I was involved and it wasn't 12 even my election.

13 And we were removed by Governor Deal in 14 July -- excuse me, January of 2012 because the 15 prosecution neglected to do what they were supposed 16 to do in a timely manner, according to the statute
17 we were removed by. We were reinstated in October 18 of that year.

19 In November of that year, it was my turn 20 to run for re-election, and I have since ran for 21 re-election, I've been elected for another
22 four-year term. I was elected again school board 23 president.

24 And that was another thing, too, it was 25 the first time ever we had majority minority on the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 primary. We have in November an election and there 3 was nothing done. It wasn't until after that 4 November election where they were allowed to switch 5 candidates and their candidates were still 6 unsuccessful.

7 I guess the next point then was to see
8 what we can do to damage reputations or whatever.
9 And so we were arrested, like I said, four day -- 10 one morning, 7:00 in the morning, they had the GBI, 11 the state trooper, the local police, the sheriff's 12 office, and GBI, the Secretary of State's office.
13 I mean, it was just covered. Our little town is 14 really small.

15 And I had like five cars come to my 16 house, wake me up out of the middle of the morning 17 and take me down, and we had mugshots put 18 everywhere.

19 And we're educators. You know, four of 20 the -- the four city board members,
21 African-Americans, are either retired educators or 22 a current educator. You know, we're all 23 professional people.

24 And to say -- all we wanted to do was 25 educate people on how to vote or how important it

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 school board, and I became the school board
3 president. I am currently again school board
4 president.

5 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: So, as I
6 understand it, none of the Quitman 10 plus 2 have 7 been convicted of any offense?

8 DR. NANCY DENNARD: That's correct. Only 9 one is --

10 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: And all those who 11 have been removed have been returned to office?

12 DR. NANCY DENNARD: Yes.

13 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: And I know that 14 was a huge public outcry for Quitman.

15 DR. NANCY DENNARD: It was.

16 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: And do you think 17 that played a significant role in the fact that 18 there's been no conviction and everybody's been 19 returned to office?

20 DR. NANCY DENNARD: Yes, and I think -- 21 another role, too, was the timing of it. We're 22 going into four years of this. This happened in 23 2010.

24 It took a year -- you know, the election
25 that was supposed to be in question was the July

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 was. And this was a stem from President Obama's
3 election.

4 Okay. Did you know we -- we're all --
5 the committee was on that role. I'm just saying, 6 well, we can do that here, you know, we've got 7 elected officials that are not performing and we 8 need you to, you know, hold them accountable. So 9 here's some things that we can do and we just 10 got -- I'm sorry.

11 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Just one more
12 question, if I could.

13 What was the cost of defending this case, 14 your reputation and the right to participate in 15 government?

16 DR. NANCY DENNARD: I would even hate to 17 speculate if we had to put a cost because we're 18 going into four years of it. But we had wonderful 19 attorneys that got together and they sent out a 20 massive call to other attorneys throughout the 21 state of Georgia.

22 And we had a meeting in Macon and we had 23 over 30 people to volunteer, 30 attorneys to 24 volunteer pro bono for this case. And we had --

25 (APPLAUSE.)

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 DR. NANCY DENNARD: -- Chevene B. King in 3 Albany, Georgia, Lori Copeland and Carl Parker in 4 Valdosta and Tiffany Simmons in the Atlanta area.
 5 But even now, I mean, we get phone calls 6 now for updates because we know this is not the 7 end. There are still -- I guess to them it's that 8 leverage that, you know, I'm sitting here with 9 indictments, you know.
 10 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Oh, absolutely.
 11 DR. NANCY DENNARD: I'm a professional 12 with indictments, yes.
 13 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay, great.
 14 And that was an at-large voting system;
 15 is that correct?
 16 DR. NANCY DENNARD: Right.
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay.
 18 DR. NANCY DENNARD: The one with Diane 19 Thomas, she ran at-large. And like I said, the 20 numbers earlier, we only had 39 percent
 21 African-American at large and she won by over 500 22 votes. Not once, but twice in the primary and in 23 the general election. And it wasn't all 24 African-American votes that put her in there and 25 kept her there.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 county was founded in 1821 and the county seat is 3 Fayetteville and part of the ARC.
 4 Moving back to about 1980, the population
 5 of Fayette was just over 30,000 and over 92 percent 6 of that population was white and just over 5
 7 percent black.
 8 Today the population is over 108,000 with 9 68 percent white, 20 percent black, 6 percent
 10 Latino, and 4 percent Asian.
 11 The African-American population is 12 largely concentrated in the northern half of the 13 county. The City of Fayetteville is about 25
 14 percent black, and the City of Tyrone where I live 15 was about one-third black.
 16 In 2012, President Obama got about 34
 17 percent of the vote. The poverty rate is 18 5.5 percent compared to 15 percent for the rest of 19 the state. High school graduation rate is over 20 90 percent compared to 70 percent in the rest of 21 the state.
 22 The median household income is $79,600
 23 compared to $46,400 in Georgia, and $50,000 across 24 the country.
 25 Interestingly, the median income for

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Great. Thank you.
 3 DR. NANCY DENNARD: So it's a clear
 4 message that everyone wanted change.
 5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 6 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Very good.
 7 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Our next witness
 8 will be Representative Virgil Fludd.
 9 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: Good afternoon and
 10 thank you.
 11 My name is Virgil Fludd, I'm a state 12 representative serving in my eleventh year in 13 office and for that duration of my time I
 14 represented parts of Fayette and parts of Fulton
 15 County.
 16 Thank you for the -- Ms. Horton and the 17 Commission for allowing me to bring testimony and 18 give us some insight on what's going on in Fayette
 19 County.
 20 There are a number of people here from 21 Fayette County. If you don't mind just standing, 22 please.
 23 While they're standing, Fayette County is 24 located just south of Atlanta, what is known as 25 Spalding, Coweta, Fulton and Clayton counties. The

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 blacks is higher than that of whites. $86,000 for 3 blacks compared to $78,000 for whites.
 4 In the history of the county, however, no
 5 black person has ever been elected to the County
 6 Commission or to the Board of Education. Over a 7 dozen people have run, both Democrat and 8 Republican, but none of them have been successful.
 9 In August of 2011, the NAACP and 11
 10 plaintiffs filed suit against the county for 11 disenfranchising Black voters. The plaintiffs 12 asserted that Fayette County's at-large method of 13 electing members to these boards, given the racial 14 -- levels of racially polarized voting, guarantees
 15 precisely this result. Elections in Fayette County 16 show a clear pattern of racially polarized voting.
 17 Although, Black voters are politically cohesive,
 18 bloc voting by other members of the electorate
 19 consistently defeats black-preferred candidates.
 20 In his 81-page ruling on May 21st of this 21 year, Judge Timothy Batten, a George W. Bush 22 appointee, ruled that, quote: The Court is 23 satisfied under the totality of the circumstances, 24 African-Americans in Fayette County are denied 25 meaningful access to the political process on

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 account of race or color.

3 As you know, Georgia is legally required
4 to comply with the Voting Rights Act because of its 5 past racial discrimination. And the lawsuit
6 alleges that Fayette's at-large voting process 7 violates Section 2, which prohibits applying or 8 imposing any voting qualifications or prerequisite 9 to voting or standard, practice or procedure, that 10 is either the purpose or the result of denying or 11 abridging the right to vote on account of race.

12 David Bositis of the Joint Center for 13 Political and Economic Studies said that at-large 14 voting elections were historically instituted 15 specifically to keep African-Americans from voting 16 in this country.

17 Before the lawsuit, other remedies were 18 attempted. The Boards could have changed the 19 system on their own but chose not to do so after 20 repeated requests by its citizens.

21 In 2005, I introduced legislation to 22 redraw the district boundaries and eliminate the 23 at-large system. The legislation failed on a 24 partisan vote. I introduced legislation again in 25 2008 and the bill was defeated again along partisan

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 As Mr. McDonald can tell you, that there
3 have been over a hundred cases of at-large voting 4 where the plaintiffs have won. The cost of 5 litigation of residents in this county now exceeds 6 $300,000. The people of Fayette County deserve
7 better. The people of Georgia deserve better.

8 Thank you.

9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Questions of the 10 panel?

11 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: What's the 12 problem with the remedy? Why is the court not 13 acting a lot quicker than it is?

14 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: That's a very good 15 question. I believe that the court has already 16 ruled that there's a remedy that will allow for a 17 district that would be of voting age -- black 18 voting age population in excess of 50 percent that 19 can be drawn.

20 He asked that the plaintiffs and the 21 defendants both provide different -- their versions
22 of the map as the remedy, but he has not selected 23 an alternative or an option at this point.

24 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, the 25 plaintiffs I know have proposed a plan, but have

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 lines.

3 Again, earlier this year, the federal 4 judge ruled that at-large voting in Fayette County
5 not only weakens the voting strength of Black 6 voters, but violates Section 2 of the Voting Rights
7 Act.

8 Most of the cases arising under Section 9 2, as you're probably aware, since its enactment, 10 it involves challenges to at-large elections, but 11 the section's prohibition against discriminating 12 and voting applies to any voting standard, 13 practice, or procedure that results in the denial 14 or abridgement of the right of any citizen to vote 15 on account of race.

16 The facts in this case are indisputable 17 and a federal court and the judge that was 18 appointed by George W. Bush has now ruled that the 19 at-large voting system in Fayette discriminates 20 against Black voters. Unfortunately, the remedy in 21 this case is still to be determined as Judge Batten 22 has not issued a final disposition as of this date.

23 Even still, I expect that the county will 24 appeal the case and waste even more scarce dollars 25 on a case that they cannot win.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 the defendants proposed a plan, too; and if so, 3 what does it look like?

4 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: I don't know what it
5 looks like, but it can't be substantially different 6 than the one that the plaintiffs have submitted 7 because there aren't very many options to draw at 8 50 percent black history in Fayette County. But it 9 is clearly doable and it's defensible as Judge 10 Batten ruled.

11 COMMISSIONER MOORE: And both of those 12 plans are before the judge already or is there a 13 date certain when that will happen?

14 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: They are before the 15 judge as we speak.

16 COMMISSIONER MOORE: Okay.

17 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: He has asked for a 18 special adviser to give him some assistance, but 19 that's been at least 60 days, 30 days.

20 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: What are the 21 residential housing patterns in Fayette County?

22 You noted that the median income for 23 African-American households exceeds that of white 24 households, so it would -- which is quite unusual 25 from a normal pattern --

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: Yep.
 3 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: -- in terms of the 4 impact of residential discrimination as well in 5 discriminatory housing patterns. So how does that 6 play in Fayette?
 7 REP. VIRGIL FLUDD: So two things. One,
 8 the bulk of the African-Americans in Fayette County 9 that live north, in the north end of the county,
 10 the population is heavily single family households.
 11 Interestingly enough, as the Black
 12 population has grown, not only has the income level 13 grown, the education -- the high school graduation
 14 rate has grown. Housing prices have grown. And so 15 as Black people have moved in, the quality of life 16 has gotten better.
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We want to thank 18 our witnesses here. Let's give them a round of 19 applause for being able to be here.
 20 (APPLAUSE.)
 21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Our next panel, 22 while we ask questions after each testimony, we 23 won't do that in the next panel. We did that 24 because some had to leave early. And so we thank 25 you for providing your testimony.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 We're going to get ready for our second
 3 panel. And we're going to ask them to move forward 4 to the stage as well.
 5 Attorney Janice Mathis from Rainbow PUSH.
 6 Representative Tyrone Brooks from the 7 Georgia Association of Black-Elected Officials.
 8 Attorney Emmet J. Bondurant, Partner with 9 Bondurant, Mixson & Elmore, LLP.
 10 So if you all would make it to the stage,
 11 we would appreciate it.
 12 Thank the two distinguished gentleman for 13 being on this panel.
 14 We're going to start with representative 15 Tyrone Brooks for the Georgia Association of 16 Black-Elected Officials.
 17 And your topics that you'll be discussing 18 with regards to discrimination and election reform
 19 issues, I take it.
 20 So Representative Brooks.
 21 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Well, thank you very 22 much, Helen, and good evening, everyone.
 23 I am honored to be here today to talk
 24 about my lifelong experiences and voting rights
 25 starting in the Southern Christian Leadership

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Conference where I was raised and trained and grew 3 up. And talk in general about some of the 4 important cases that I worked on throughout the 5 south and throughout America.
 6 Happy to see my partner, Attorney
 7 Laughlin McDonald, ACLU Regional Director for many 8 years who represented us in many of the challenges 9 that we embattled.
 10 And just listening to Dr. Nancy Dennard, 11 the President of the Brooks County Board of 12 Education Quitman, I can tell you that has been one 13 of the most challenging movements in my life.
 14 Going to Quitman with you, Helen,
 15 Representative David Lucas, Senator Robert -- the 16 late Senator Robert Brown in May of '011.
 17 Then going down for the annual GABEO
 18 conference in February of '012 and having 19 Dr. Joseph Lowery, and you, and Rita Samuels, and 20 many others, and march with over a thousand people
 21 on the courthouse in February of '012.
 22 I think that was a defining moment as to 23 where Quitman ended up being in terms of those 24 elected officials who were indicted, removed from 25 office, and are still serving, still serving today

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 even though they are under indictment, removed by 3 the government, are reinstated, winning re-election
 4 in November of '012.
 5 I was there during the election of '012
 6 all day and African-Americans saying we're not 7 going to let anybody turn us around.
 8 Keysville, Georgia. Laughlin McDonald
 9 and I worked in Keysville in the mid-'80s to revive 10 the town and we had enormous challenges. We were 11 sued numerous occasions by the county. And we were 12 supported, of course, by the Attorney General of 13 Georgia, Michael Bowers. We had Secretary of State 14 Max Cleland with us. But every turn we made we 15 were sued. We had to fight back, we had to fight 16 back. My life was threatened many times. I had to 17 be escorted in by the GBI and state troopers. It 18 was an awesome, awesome experience.
 19 But we won that county, Burke County.
 20 City of Keysville was still functioning.
 21 African-American mayor and counsel Emma Gresham was 22 the first mayor. Maggie Cartwright was the second 23 mayor. We have a new mayor today.
 24 The most egregious case that I've ever
 25 worked on was Pickens County, Alabama, Adamsville,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Alabama, 1982.
 3 Maggie Bozeman and Julia Wilder were 4 leading the voter registration educational efforts.
 5 Running candidates of public office. They were 6 arrested by Alabama state officials, county
 7 officials, and they were prosecuted.
 8 I remember Joe Lowery was our president 9 at SCLC and we marched from Adamsville, Alabama, to 10 Washington, D.C., and demanded that the Reagan
 11 Justice Department intervene to give these women 12 support. We also challenged President Reagan to 13 sign an extension of the Voting Rights Act in 1982.
 14 So when I speak about voting changes and 15 I think about the impediments that we face today as 16 a matter of law in this state and across America
 17 and the Supreme Court suspending the implementation 18 of the Voting Rights Act, Section 4 and 5, I think 19 what we see is, as Dr. Lowery says, in so many 20 words, everything has changed but nothing has 21 changed.
 22 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 23 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: The struggle to 24 maintain our voting rights is as important today as 25 it has ever been.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 3 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: I was on the voting
 4 rights march in Selma to Montgomery when Dr. King
 5 led us all the way. I was not in the first march 6 with Hosea Williams and John Lewis and others, but 7 I was in that last March, the third march actually.
 8 They went all the way to Montgomery.
 9 And I thought in 1965 that by now, just 10 looking forward, we would have to fight these 11 battles.
 12 But when you listen to Representative
 13 Virgil Fludd, who is an outstanding leader in the 14 Democratic party and the House of Representatives, 15 you listen to Dr. Dennard, you listen to all of 16 these leaders who have spoken today, you can see 17 that the struggle to keep our voting rights intact 18 and maintain that constitutional promise is as 19 important today as ever before.
 20 And I pray to God that we can get the 21 United States Congress to respond to the Supreme 22 Court challenge of creating a new formula so that 23 we can have implementation of Section 4 and 5
 24 again.
 25 Because if we don't, we're going to lose

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 political positions, we're going to see more 3 impediments created as a matter of law, we're going 4 to see all kinds of schemes, at-large voting, 5 dilution of minority votes, we're going to see 6 everything under the sun.
 7 We're going to see more voter ID laws and 8 voter verification laws and anything they can do to 9 turn the clock back.
 10 And I'm just hoping from these hearings 11 there can be some fire put under the members of 12 Congress and the White House to begin to work 13 toward an agreement where we can move legislation 14 forward because, otherwise, we will have no 15 enforcement.
 16 And Georgia, along with many other states 17 outside of the south, are working every day to 18 create more impediments as a matter of law.
 19 I remember in '011, the first -- January, 20 the first day of the session, there was a bill 21 introduced to cut out early voting days from 45 to 22 21. We had fought hard to get, you know, early
 23 voting.
 24 And the leadership of the Republican 25 party, unfortunately some Democrats, voted and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 signed the bill, but the bill passed. It cut your 3 early voting days from 45 to 21.
 4 And that was in response to President
 5 Obama winning in '08 across America. He didn't 6 carry Georgia, but he got a huge vote out of 7 Georgia because most of us had voted early.
 8 And so we know that there is a need to 9 extend the Voting Rights Act. I just wonder if 10 there's a will. And hopefully these hearings can 11 create the kind of energy that will determine 12 whether or not there's a will on the part of the 13 Administration, the House and the Senate to move a 14 bill forward so that we can have the implementation 15 and coverage that we so deserve under the 1965
 16 Voting Rights Act, which is the most important law 17 adopted since the emancipation proclamation.
 18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We have with us on 19 this panel as well a distinguished attorney who 20 fought a lot of the photo ID law, I know, and so 21 Mr. Emmet Bondurant.
 22 EMMET BONDURANT: Thank you.
 23 William Faulkner once wrote The past is 24 never dead, it's never even past. That could be 25 not -- nothing could be more true of the struggle

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 to protect voting rights against discriminatory 3 legislation to prevent people from voting, 4 especially in the south, but also in other parts of 5 the country.
 6 Ohio, Pennsylvania, a number of states
 7 have enacted restrictive legislation aimed at 8 suppressing the votes predominantly of Democratic 9 constituencies, predominantly Black people, 10 Latinos, elderly people, poor people, and the 11 disabled.
 12 There are a number of articles that have 13 been recently written, one that appeared last week 14 in Rolling Stones, a copy of which I happened to 15 have brought. But has the appropriate title, 16 essentially, voter suppression in Georgia, and 17 gives a series of examples in counties around the 18 state.
 19 For example, in the Peoples' Republic of 20 Athens where I grew up someone proposed they reduce 21 the number of voting places to two, both police
 22 stations. In other counties they have cut polling 23 places down to make voting less accessible for 24 voters.
 25 There are a number of other things that

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 have occurred. Tyrone referred to a reduction in 3 early voting period.
 4 North Carolina thought to be one of the 5 more aggressive states in the south has just 6 enacted a whole series of voter suppression
 7 legislation. Photo ID, very strict, reducing voter 8 days, eliminating early voting on Sundays, 9 eliminating college registration automatically for 10 voting, reductions in numbers of voting practices, 11 all of which are now being challenged.
 12 The other big challenge, besides photo ID
 13 and these restricted legislation, of which there 14 are many examples, are political gerrymanders.
 15 The New York Times recently wrote an 16 extensive article that I commend to the 17 Commission's consideration describing the strategy 18 of which Georgia is a classic example of which the 19 General Assembly reapportion Congressional 20 districts to systematically eliminate white
 21 Democrats by pairing them against black Democrats 22 and thus creating a -- depriving minority voters of 23 their natural allies, reducing the number of 24 Democrats in the General Assembly and creating an 25 essentially all white legislative delegation in the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 House and Senate.
 3 Of 125 House members, there is only one
 4 person of color who is a Republican -- out of 180
 5 there is only one Republican member of their 125
 6 members is a person of color.
 7 In the Senate in which they have more 8 than a super majority, of the 56 members of the 9 Senate, there are no people of color.
 10 In Atlanta and Fulton County, they 11 deliberately paired white Democrats and black 12 Democrats and since created ribbon districts to 13 include white areas in the surrounding counties to 14 prevent the Fulton County delegation from having a 15 predominately black majority and enacting local 16 legislation. And at the same time we segregate the 17 political parties.
 18 If you look at statistics in Georgia of 19 those who vote in Republican primaries, 98 percent 20 are white. That's through the systematic effort of 21 eliminating white representation in the Democratic 22 party. The plan is to drive white voters into the 23 Republican party, and guess what we will have 24 created, the all white primaries that were held 25 unconstitutional in 1948 when they were carried out

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 by guess who, the Democratic party.
 3 Let me talk about photo ID for a minute 4 which is something I know something about. And 5 let's talk about Georgia.
 6 Photo ID came not from any evidence of 7 fraud, it came from the American Legislative 8 Exchange Council, a group that operates in secret 9 primarily financed by large corporations that bring 10 Republican legislators and feeds them with model 11 legislation to take back to the states.
 12 That's where the Georgia photo ID came 13 from, that's where the Indiana photo ID came from 14 and that's where all the others came from.
 15 When it was enacted in Georgia, a claim 16 that it was to decide -- it was intended to prevent 17 voter fraud. There was not a single example of 18 fraud and in-person voting in Georgia that anybody 19 could point to over the last 15 or 20 years.
 20 The effect of it was targeted to suppress 21 predominantly Democratic constituencies, Black,
 22 Latino, poor, elderly and the disabled by making a 23 Georgia driver's license the ticket to be allowed 24 to vote in person in Georgia.
 25 You don't have to have a photo ID to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 register to vote in Georgia, you can register to 3 vote at a grocery store at a voter registration
 4 drive. You don't have to go to the courthouse.
 5 But to get a photo ID, you got to go to the 6 courthouse.

7 Let me give you the statistics from the 8 Georgia photo ID case that will demonstrate, I 9 think, beyond any reasonable doubt that the effect 10 of that is to suppress minority votes.

11 During the litigation, the state election
 12 board ran a database match between registered 13 voters and the DDS database of people with driver's 14 licenses.

15 What they found was that there were 16 198,000 registered voters who had no match in the 17 database. There were 91,000 more registered voters 18 who had had Georgia driver's licenses but didn't 19 have them in their possession because they had 20 expired or revoked. That totals 289,000 voters or 21 5 percent, almost 6 percent, of the registered 22 voters in Georgia.

23 But there were another 216,000 voters who 24 were registered to vote in Georgia who have never 25 been in the DDS database for the last 40 years.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 community survey of the census shows that of white
 3 households with no access to a car, ergo, no
 4 driver's license with their picture on it, 3.8
 5 percent were white households and black households 6 were 13.1 percent. Four times as many.

7 Well, Georgia says we cured the problem
 8 by making photo IDs available at the courthouse or 9 in Fulton County at the northern access, the 10 southern annex, the southern thing, and down on 11 Pryor Street.

12 Do you know how many photo IDs have been 13 issued to that 505,000 people who didn't have 14 Georgia driver's licenses in 2007? A total of 15 26,000 as of February of 2012. 26,000.
 16 2,000 in 2006. 4,000 in 2007. 12,000 in 17 2008. 2,500 in 2009. 2,600 in 2010. 2,000 in 18 2011.

19 What does this mean? Photo ID suppresses 20 votes. How does it suppress votes? What you have 21 done is say to people who are the least mobile in 22 the society because they don't have a car. In 23 Georgia many live in counties that have no public
 24 transportation.

25 In order to exercise your privilege of

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 They had never owned a car, never driven a car, 3 never had a driver's license of any kind.

4 The combined total is 505,000 voters.
 5 That's 10 percent of all registered voters in the 6 2008 election.

7 If you looked at votes of merely the 8 289,000 voters who didn't have matching records in 9 the database, who had surrendered licenses, and,
 10 therefore, couldn't vote because they didn't have a 11 photo ID in their possession, over 44,000 of them
 12 or 49 percent were African-American. Over half.

13 And if you looked at census data -- if 14 you ever doubt that this was targeted as much as a 15 missile can be targeted from a drone at Black 16 voters, all you had to do was look at the census.

17 The 2000 census data, which we used,
 18 showed that there was 142,000 African-American 19 households in Georgia who did not have access to a 20 car. That compared to 89,000 white households.
 21 Even though African-Americans were only 27 percent 22 of the population and whites were over 70 percent 23 of the population.

24 If you brought that up-to-date to the 25 current census, under the 2010 census, the American

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 voting as a citizen, even though you are duly 3 registered and a lawful voter, you must make a 4 special trip to the courthouse, that people with 5 driver's licenses don't have to make, just for the 6 sole purpose of getting your picture taken so that 7 you may vote at the polls.

8 I have three recommendations for this 9 Commission that I would urge that they consider 10 nationally.

11 First is the obvious one, we've got to 12 revitalize Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act and 13 we should make it nationwide.

14 Why do I say that?

15 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Amen.

16 AUDIENCE: Amen.

17 EMMET BONDURANT: Remember Ohio in 2004
 18 in which the Secretary of State said, God told him
 19 to deliver Ohio for George W. Bush.

20 There were vastly more voting machines 21 available in white precincts than there were in 22 black precincts. That was not an accident.

23 Pennsylvania has enacted restrictive
 24 photo ID. That's being litigated.

25 Indiana, enacted restrictive photo ID.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 And it was upheld by a split decision of the 3 Supreme Court of the United States.

4 Judge Posner, as you maybe have recently 5 read on the Seventh Circuit, who cast the deciding 6 two to one vote in that case to uphold it, has now
7 said he was wrong. He certainly was, but it's a 8 little late in recognizing it.

9 The second recommendation would be that 10 Congress should utilize its power granted by 11 Article 1, Section 4, of the Constitution to make 12 or alter regulations governing the time, place, and 13 manner of elections of federal officials to 14 prescribed uniform nationwide voting regulations 15 for federal elections.

16 A uniform kind of voting machine, a 17 uniform ballot design so you don't have butterfly 18 ballots and hanging chads and paper ballots used in 19 some place and voting machines with no paper trail 20 in another.

21 Uniform periods for early voting,
22 including voting on Sundays when it is convenient 23 for many church goers to go vote.

24 Uniform rules for identification of 25 voters.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 Anybody in another country thinks we are 3 stark raving mad that we have 50 states, 50 state 4 legislatures off on their own prescribing times, 5 places and manners of elections not of -- just of 6 state officials, but of members of the U.S. Senate, 7 members of Congress and members of the President.

8 If you had uniform rules, what is going 9 on in many of these places would not happen because 10 you would have taken away the principal motivation 11 which is to influence predominantly federal 12 elections. And state elections would conform 13 because it is impractical to operate two other 14 systems.

15 The third thing that needs to happen is 16 the federal courts need to pull up their robes and 17 do their job and declare political gerrymanders 18 unconstitutional.

19 The Court has ruled in no fewer than 20 three cases that it has jurisdiction to do that.
21 But the justices cannot agree on a standard.

22 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.

23 EMMET BONDURANT: Justice Powell, Justice
24 Stevens and Justice Kennedy have suggested two 25 standards that are entirely workable.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 One, a first amendment standard that 3 would say you cannot discriminate against the voter 4 based on religion, you can't discriminate against a 5 voter based on race, and you can't discriminate 6 against a voter based on association, that is, 7 membership in the Democrat or Republican party. Or 8 based on how he or she has cast their vote. That 9 is voting history.

10 That is the essence of political 11 gerrymanders. You are discriminating against 12 voters, white or black, based on how they voted in 13 the past election.

14 In fact, Justice O'Connor invited that in 15 the North Carolina case, Shaw v. Reno, in which is 16 said under the voting rights you can't talk about 17 race, but you can talk about political affiliation, 18 because we did that when I was in the Arizona 19 legislature.

20 Well, you don't have to be a dummy to 21 realize that Black voters, Latino voters, poor 22 voters, minority voters of all kinds are the core 23 of the Democratic constituents. And if you want to 24 discriminate against Democrats, and we just used 25 that language, all you have to do is discriminate

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 against Black voters. And that is what has been 3 done in political gerrymanders in Georgia and 4 throughout the country.

5 So those three reforms, redoing the 6 Voting Rights Act and making it effective and 7 making it nationwide to get Ohio, Indiana, and 8 Arizona and Alaska as well as Quitman, Georgia, 9 that is the first step.

10 Secondly, uniform nationwide standards 11 governing the elections of federal officials which 12 Congress has the power to enact. And there is no
13 states rights issue to back, as Justice Roberts
14 thought there was, in connection with the Voting
15 Rights Act.

16 An interesting little bit of information, 17 the Carter Center, right here in Atlanta, has 18 monitored over 100 elections throughout the world; 19 Napal, Egypt, the Palestinian election, a number of 20 others, South Sudan's independence election.

21 The Carter Center will not monitor an 22 election in the United States because there are no 23 uniform voting standards that can be enforced by 24 international standards. We should be embarrassed 25 as a nation that that is the case. We should be

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 embarrassed.
 3 And the courts, if they did their jobs as 4 they did with reapportionment, outlawed political 5 gerrymandering as a form of First Amendment
 6 discrimination on equal protection discrimination, 7 violating the very fundamental principle in which 8 everybody in this room and everybody in the Supreme 9 Court can agree, governments do need us to be 10 neutral when it comes to election.
 11 It is not the duty or the right of a 12 political party in power to keep themselves in 13 power by preventing the opposition from having a 14 fair shot if they can get a majority of people to 15 vote for them and improperly draw on districts.
 16 AUDIENCE MEMBERS: Amen.
 17 EMMET BONDURANT: Thank you.
 18 (APPLAUSE.)
 19 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 20 All right. We have two passionate people 21 here and I want to ask Tyrone a question about 22 felony enfranchisement in Georgia.
 23 I know you've done a couple of bills with 24 regards to that.
 25 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Yes.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Tell us how that
 3 works in Georgia.
 4 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Well, Representative
 5 Bob Holmes and I have been working to improve what 6 Georgia started in the mid-'80s in terms of making 7 sure that once you complete your sentence, you 8 serve your time, you're not on probation or parole, 9 that you can register to vote in this state.
 10 That's Georgia.
 11 Many other states, of course, put you 12 through all kind of hoops so you have to go and 13 petition the parole boards, to get governors to 14 grant you clemency, but Georgia has a system where 15 once you complete your sentence, you can register
 16 to vote.
 17 Several years ago Representative Holmes
 18 was no longer in the legislature. He was the chair 19 for the Governmental Affairs Committee for many 20 years. He served 32 years and left. But Bob and I
 21 were working to make sure that at some point, one 22 of these days, those who have served their time, 23 upon leaving the institution, at walking out the 24 door, you could register to vote again, whether 25 you're on parole or probation or whatever. That

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 takes it a step further.
 3 But in this state once you complete your 4 sentence today, you can register to vote. We want 5 to move it where in once you -- upon your release, 6 no matter what the offense is, you can register to 7 vote again. That's it. That's what we're working 8 on now.
 9 (APPLAUSE.)
 10 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: I had two 11 questions. One I'll ask Tyrone first.
 12 Tyrone, do you have any plans for 13 redrafting Section 5, any suggestions about how 14 that ought to be done?
 15 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Yes, I do. And I'm 16 going to need your help to fine-tune it.
 17 I do have a lot of ideas and I hope that 18 we can get our Congressional delegation on board, 19 particularly the Democrats.
 20 On November 2nd, some of you were down
 21 the street at Big Bethel AME church when I
 22 challenged those members of Congress who were there 23 to, again, to make this a priority.
 24 Every issue before Congress is important.
 25 But I don't think there's any issue as important as

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 responding to the Supreme Court mandate in passing
 3 the formula so that we can have another Voting
 4 Rights Act, again, as we've had since 1965.
 5 Laughlin, you and I have been partners on 6 a lot of things. We sued the state in 1988 to 7 create more opportunities for African-Americans to 8 become judges.
 9 We sued the State Board of Education to 10 deal with at-large voting in judicial circuits, and 11 our numbers went up tremendously. Now they're 12 going down.
 13 We sued the state in 1989 to address the 14 issue of second primaries, run-off elections, that 15 were created in 1964 with the specific purpose of 16 keeping Negroes and liberals from voting and 17 winning.
 18 Now, those were the words of 19 Representative Denmark Groover who has now gone
 20 onto glory. He introduced a bill and he said one 21 way to stop the Negroes and liberals from winning, 22 meaning labor unions, is to have a majority vote
 23 feature in our election code.
 24 We sued on that issue in 1989. We may 25 have to sue again. The problem is finding a

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 friendly venue in the federal judiciary. Very 3 difficult today.
 4 But I think, Laughlin, we have to come
 5 together to make sure we have something that we can 6 get at least the Democratic members of Congress in 7 this state to agree on to go forward with.
 8 I would love to see a bipartisan kind of 9 coalition that we saw in '64-'65 of Hubert 10 Humphrey, Everett Dirksen. We saw a huge vote from 11 the Republican side to pass the Voting Rights Act
 12 and the Civil Rights Act.
 13 That's not going to happen in this 14 political climate. But if we can just get the 15 Democrats on board from this region and push it, 16 maybe we can see some movement on the other side.
 17 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, do you have 18 any specific suggestions about what the redrafting 19 should look like?
 20 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: I agree with some of 21 what Attorney Bondurant has articulated as relates 22 to a national scope.
 23 I do believe, in spite of the fact it's 24 going to be difficult, many states will say, we 25 don't have a history of discriminating against

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 African-Americans in voting, well, why should we be 3 covered?
 4 But we're beginning to see more and more
 5 states create impediments. More and more states
 6 passing laws to do exactly what the southern states 7 were doing for many years, and that's why they were 8 included in the Section 5.
 9 So I agree with a lot that Emmet has 10 proposed. I think we need to think it out clearly 11 because there may be some legal challenges we might 12 have to overcome as we talk about our national 13 laws.
 14 We discussed that in '06, you know, as we 15 were getting President Bush ready to sign the 16 extension and holding hearings around the country.
 17 You and I testified before Congress, Laughlin, you
 18 and I testified in '06 before Congress.
 19 So I think the lawyers in the room and 20 beyond have to help us get over those legal 21 questions that may be there as we talk about a 22 national law.
 23 I think we've got to be more considerate
 24 of other minority groups in other states. And I 25 think we have to continue to work to make sure that

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 state legislatures are not allowed to turn the 3 clock back with voting impediments and there must 4 be consequences if they do.
 5 (APPLAUSE.)
 6 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: I have one last
 7 question --
 8 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.
 9 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: -- for Emmet.
 10 And I want to preface it by saying that, as we all 11 know, jurisdictions can bail out from Section 5.
 12 So if you're in a covered state, if you 13 can show for the preceding 10 years you had no 14 violations of voting rights and you've taken 15 affirmative steps to increase political 16 participation by minority groups, you can bail out.
 17 So I just want to ask Emmet if he would 18 want to enlarge in some way or incorporate, you 19 know, the bail-out provision in his universal or 20 nationwide coverage formula?
 21 EMMET BONDURANT: The answer is yes.
 22 As you know, Laughlin, that I have 23 written John Lewis a long letter in which I had 24 suggested, and I think if this happens pretty easy 25 to correct, that, in fact, you don't have to enact

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 any coverage formula.
 3 Because the result of Shelby County, if 4 you take the Supreme Court at its word, which, of 5 course, is a hazardous occupation, the result of 6 Section 5 is to simply strike the limitation on the 7 coverage formula.
 8 The limitation of Section 5 to the states
 9 defined by a formula that Justice Roberts said 10 violated states rights provided for states equal 11 protection of the law. Unprecedented ruling.
 12 The statute contains what is called a 13 severability clause which Congress decided if any 14 part of that statute is declared unconstitutional, 15 it was the intent of Congress with the rest of the 16 statute, including Section 5, remain in effect.
 17 And there's beaucoup Supreme Court cases
 18 that have so held, including Robert's own opinion
 19 upholding the constitutionality of the Affordable 20 Care Act.
 21 If you did that, the legal effect should 22 be that every jurisdiction is covered.
 23 Well, then, there are two provisions, one 24 which Laughlin has referred to. Any jurisdiction 25 that is totally innocent, has never discriminated,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 has no likelihood of discrimination can apply to 3 Justice to be exempted from the preclearance
4 requirements.

5 And the Department of Justice has the 6 authority to grant that simply by conceding the 7 point. Thus, the innocent can escape the burden of 8 preclearance if it is a burden.

9 The people who ain't so innocent, who 10 can't carry that burden, however, would have to 11 file for preclearance. And you have a plethora of 12 examples.

13 What's gone on in Georgia described by 14 the preceding panel in the last three months since 15 Shelby County, there is an enormous need for them 16 to have to bring those to light one by one to 17 Justice, ask for preclearance and get it.

18 Let me give you a bit of history. When 19 Georgia enacted its photo ID in 2005, it submitted
20 preclearance to the Justice Department. The career
21 staff of the Voting Rights section of the Justice
22 Department wrote a 50- or 75-page memorandum, a 23 copy of which I have that was supposed to be a 24 secret, which found, guess what, that it 25 discriminated against Black voters, that it was

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: I think it's 3 important to note that the Supreme Court did not 4 overrule the preclearance as a principle and I 5 think that's part of what you're saying.

6 However, let me also thank you on behalf 7 of the NAACP. You represented the NAACP in those 8 voter ID cases back in 2005 and '6.

9 EMMET BONDURANT: And I was proud to have 10 the opportunity to do so.

11 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: That's right.
12 That's right.

13 Matter of fact, my grandfather was one of 14 the named plaintiffs in that action. He's in a 15 nursing home now at 98 years old without a photo ID
16 and is still facing those same challenges.

17 Let me tell you even under preclearance,
18 when you look at other impediments that were there,
19 for example, John Barrow's district in District 12, 20 which is pure political gerrymandering, as you have 21 defined it, and Brother Brooks has defined it as 22 well, written out of his own district each time, a 23 coalition of voters are choosing to send him back 24 to Congress at each session, electing the candidate 25 of their choice.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 retrogressive, made it more difficult for Black 3 voters to vote and ought to be denied preclearance.

4 The next day the political appointees,
5 Hans von Spakovsky particularly, who was a member 6 of the Fulton County Election Board and now is 7 employed by The Heritage and one of the right-wing 8 foundations, overruled that as a political 9 decision.

10 Photo ID would never survive preclearance
11 under Section 5 properly applied. And there is a 12 legal way to do it. But there is a need not to 13 confine this to the former confederate states.
14 Ohio was not a confederate state. Indiana was not 15 a confederate state.

16 Missouri was not a confederate state.
17 But its Supreme Court, unlike our Supreme Court, 18 declared photo ID unconstitutional under their 19 constitution that is very similar to ours.

20 So we ought not to give up that fight, 21 but we ought not to play small ball and shoot for 22 covering Quitman, Georgia, but not covering 23 Columbus, Ohio.

24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
25 (APPLAUSE.)

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 That went to the Justice Department under 3 Section 5, while it was still in effect, and it 4 passed muster.

5 EMMET BONDURANT: Well, it really didn't 6 past muster. What Justice has been doing since the 7 decision in the Texas Water District case, which 8 presaged the Shelby County case in which Roberts 9 ruled that Section 5 was really not intended to 10 cover little water districts, and that to avoid a 11 Constitutional issue, which it was later under 12 Section 5 when they ruled it wasn't covered.

13 After that Justice had no backbone, no 14 balls, to go after anything but the most egregious 15 and the clearest cases.

16 And second, Shelby County didn't come 17 about because Justice was too aggressive in forcing 18 Section 5. Shelby County filed that lawsuit 19 against the government without going through the 20 Section 5 process.

21 So Justice was afraid that the right-wing
22 of the Supreme Court was going to do what they did 23 in Shelby County, and, therefore, avoided at all 24 cost, including the sacrifice of principle and 25 backbone, any challenge that was even remotely

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 questionable.
 3 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 4 EMMET BONDURANT: As you can tell, I am
 5 not a fan of the Justice in all circumstances.
 6 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Let me ask this 7 question of Brother Brooks who has been there 8 throughout these struggles.
 9 So you talked about the reauthorization
 10 in '82.
 11 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Right.
 12 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Reauthorization in 13 '06.
 14 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Yes.
 15 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Republican 16 presidents.
 17 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: Yes.
 18 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: What's the role of 19 the White House in pressing this claim and bringing 20 the attention to this, particularly being the fact 21 that a lot of these rollback provisions, both of 22 your testimonies, are really a result of the 2008
 23 election?
 24 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: I think the White
 25 House should take aggressive leadership. If you

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And I think we've got to say to the 3 President, Mr. President, we love you, we voted for 4 you, but you've got to make this a priority.
 5 Tell your leaders in the House and the 6 Senate to push it and call on McConnell and Boehner
 7 to join with you, and Cantor, who says he's working 8 with John Lewis. Eric Cantor says he's working 9 with John Lewis.
 10 He came down to Selma with John Lewis on 11 the memorial and the pilgrimage. He said he wanted 12 to work with John Lewis. Now, let's see if he's 13 real. Let's see if they really want to do 14 something to move this issue forward.
 15 Because if we don't, we're just kind of 16 frozen in time. There will be no enforcement.
 17 Impediments will continue to be codified as a 18 matter of law and we'll continue to go backwards.
 19 So these elected official positions that 20 we hold -- and by the way, Georgia is 30 percent 21 African-American. 30 percent of the people of this 22 state are Black folk. Only 6 percent are elected 23 officials. Only six, S-I-X, are elected officials.
 24 And you think we haven't made it across 25 the U.S.A. Less than 2 percent are black across

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 study history and you watch Lyndon Johnson's role,
 3 he didn't wait. He said, we're going to move 4 legislation forward.
 5 After Father James Reeb had been beaten
 6 to death in Selma and the nation had seen his 7 bloody body lying on the sidewalk in Selma, 8 Alabama, President Johnson said, Now, it's time to 9 pass the Voting Rights Act.
 10 I think we need the President to speak 11 clearly and forcefully on a new formula being 12 addressed by Congress.
 13 I think it's important to talk about 14 immigration, budget deficit and all of those 15 important issues, and affordable healthcare, but, 16 ladies and gentlemen, if we don't have the 17 protection of our voting rights, nothing else
 18 matters.
 19 AUDIENCE MEMBERS: That's right.
 20 REP. TYRONE BROOKS: And I think that the 21 White House has got to make this a priority and we 22 should accept no less of this President. We 23 wouldn't accept it from Bush, we wouldn't accept it 24 from Reagan, we wouldn't accept it from Johnson, 25 Kennedy.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 the United States of America. So we've made some 3 progress but we have not arrived.
 4 Don't assume that just because you see a 5 few of us here and there that we've made it over 6 the hump. No, we have not.
 7 And the few numbers that we have in 8 different states, particularly in the south, where 9 we're strong, you're going to see those numbers 10 drop tremendously.
 11 The other thing I would ask this 12 Commission to do is to consider what I've seen in 13 Brazil and Australia, making voting mandatory. How 14 do we do that, lawyers? Do we need statutory law, 15 do we need to amend the Constitution? Voting 16 mandatory in the United States of America.
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you very much 18 to this panel, distinguished panel. Thank you very 19 much.
 20 (APPLAUSE.)
 21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We're running
 22 behind and I'm going to catch us back up.
 23 We're going to have open mic and we're 24 not going to question the open mic speakers unless 25 there is something that really needs clarification.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 So we're going to start with -- if you 3 signed up outside, we have an open mic session and 4 we'll have a second open mic session a little later 5 on.

6 But the first person -- and we're going
7 to ask everyone to -- that I call your name, please 8 come towards the mic so we will all be in line and 9 be ready to give your testimony.

10 The first one will be Mr. Joe Carn,
11 Vice-Mayor of College Park. Reverend Jeffrey
12 Benoit for -- will be second. Mr. Thomas Aquell 13 will be third. And Ms. Karen Reagle will be 14 fourth. Minister Karen Reagle, I'm sorry.

15 JOE CARN: Are we ready?

16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Yes.

17 JOE CARN: All right. Good afternoon.

18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Good afternoon.

19 And we're going to ask you to watch the 20 timekeepers here. You'll have three minutes.

21 JOE CARN: Well, I'm glad to be here.
22 Good information. And I have to say, I guess, this 23 is advanced voting and situations involved in that.

24 The last election two weeks ago, it was 25 reported that Fulton County had 17 percent voter

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 turnout of eligible registered voters. DeKalb was 3 18 percent. Clayton County was about 5 percent.

4 And my question is, you know, how do you 5 expect to have good government, on school boards on 6 up, when 80 percent of the public doesn't bother to 7 show up election day?

8 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Is that your
9 testimony?

10 JOE CARN: Well, that's my testimony and 11 question as well. Because, you know, it's a 12 situation where --

13 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Well, are you 14 recommending that certain things happen from an 15 election administration purpose, reform, is there 16 something that you think would make participation 17 greater?

18 JOE CARN: Well, I think we got to start
19 making participation relevant to younger folks. I 20 guess, I'm a little younger. I used to be really 21 young. I'm a little older than I used to be.

22 But, you know, I mean, there's hardly any 23 people in this audience under 25 years old. And if 24 they're not excited about voting and they're not 25 excited about elections, you know, you're going to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 have the same kind of turnouts that you had two 3 weeks ago.

4 And we've got to figure out a way to wake
5 up young folks and let them understand that, you 6 know, this process is about them.

7 When these folks under the Gold Dome are 8 talking and discussing issues, they're discussing 9 young folks nine times out of ten. They're talking 10 about people who can't even vote actually.

11 You know, but the ironic part about the 12 elections two weeks ago, they were smaller 13 elections. And most of your tax money goes towards 14 the school boards. Whereas, people will go out and 15 vote for president more so, but the majority of 16 your money and your funds go towards the small 17 elections, school boards, city councils, and the 18 like.

19 So I just think as a community we got to 20 figure out a way to get younger people 21 understanding how this process really affects them.

22 It seems like it doesn't hit people until 23 they're over 50 apparently, you know, so...

24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right. Thank
25 you.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 JOE CARN: Thank you.

3 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Reverend Benoit.

4 REVEREND JEFFREY BENOIT: Good afternoon.
5 Again, my name is Reverend Jeffrey Benoit
6 from Clayton County.

7 Although, the Board has spoke on a
8 plethora of issues and all of them are much bigger 9 than what I have and they said there's no issue to 10 big to be put on the Board.

11 And mine is that the information. The 12 Secretary of State is required to give information 13 down to the counties as to any changes that are 14 taking place or when the voting, particular 15 registration and deadlines, that type of thing is 16 going to be cut off.

17 As of yesterday, just as of yesterday, 18 going to my local elections office, they did not 19 have this information. And of course, I'm going to 20 continue to go back and back and back and try to 21 get this information.

22 But the problem is this. When that 23 information is released, will it be released in 24 time enough for us to respond and get that 25 information out to those who may or may not be wise

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 to that, as to our seniors and into our senior 3 homes, things of that nature.

4 All too often if we don't get that 5 information on time, it will not get out to the 6 people in time. Therefore, I think there's a valid 7 problem here by holding that information to the 8 last minute so that we can't make good use of it.

9 And I think that the Secretary of State 10 has an ominous responsibility to get that out. If 11 not, then he should be held reliable or accountable 12 for that.

13 Oftentimes when contracts are written,
14 the consequences of the offer is never there. So I 15 want the author to have consequences as those 16 consequences would be to me.

17 If I don't get the information on time, I 18 can't vote in time and know what I'm voting for.
19 If he can't get it out in time, he should have some 20 kind of consequences as to law. A law as to what 21 he will suffer as to fail to do his job as he has 22 been elected to do.

23 Give that information to the people or 24 get out of office.

25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: What kind of

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 information are you talking about? The election 3 dates?

4 REVEREND JEFFERY BENOIT: As it applies
5 to all of the information that the Secretary of 6 State is supposed to get out to the county, it 7 doesn't matter what it is, by virtue of having a 8 deadline date to get that information out. They 9 are really dragging their feet as to when this 10 information is going to be released.

11 My election individual who I talked to 12 yesterday, heard counselors at the desk had no
13 information. She has some information, but it 14 wasn't put out to them to put out because it hadn't 15 came down through the channels.

16 And so I'm saying, what is the 17 deadline --

18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I'm trying to 19 understand what kind of information?

20 REVEREND JEFFREY BENOIT: Well, I was 21 asking as to what are the deadlines for individuals 22 to qualify, various things like that, the changes 23 that are being made in our particular county as it 24 relied -- as it relates to voter election and 25 location and shutting down precincts. Various

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 different things like that.

3 Again, nobody no knows what's going on.
4 We go to the last precinct to find out that 5 precinct is no longer there.

6 This kind of information needs to be 7 given to us well before the day we need it. You 8 can't do anything with the information the day you 9 need it. You need it before the day as to having 10 an opportunity to respond to the changes. If we 11 don't know the changes, we can't respond.

12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Which county are
13 you?

14 REVEREND JEFFREY BENOIT: I'm in Clayton
15 County. But this is across the state, information 16 getting out in a timely manner.

17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you.

18 This young lady has -- did you have a
19 question?

20 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: I wanted to 21 provide a resource for that, Brother. If you
22 contact the Clayton County NAACP, they'll get you 23 those dates. Those are already available.

24 REVEREND JEFFREY BENOIT: Okay. Well,
25 again, I understand what you're saying. But there

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 should be some information out there that we don't 3 have to go there, that they should have that. But 4 I gotcha. There's no consequences to getting 5 information out there at a delayed date.

6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: This next person, I
7 know I'm calling her out of order, but I didn't 8 have her information, but she has to leave.

9 Ms. Kathy Holmes-Bass with Delta Sigma 10 Theta.

11 KATHY HOLMES-BASS: Hello, my name is 12 Kathy Holmes-Bass. And I just want to say 13 historically I am from Gulfport, Mississippi, and 14 I've been by voting process a lifetime member of 15 the NAACP under President Gilbert Mason, late 16 great.

17 And also, my grandfather was the first 18 black man of Biloxi, Mississippi, to vote because 19 he could pay poll taxes.

20 And I'm a bit nervous.

21 My concern is I am a visually impaired
22 voter and I became visually impaired on July 2nd, 23 1996, when I was in Mississippi. But I moved or 24 relocated to Atlanta, Georgia, in November of that 25 year so I could obtain services at the Center For

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 the Visually Impaired because I had gone from 20/20
3 vision to total blindness in 45 minutes.

4 As a result of that, I carried a driver's 5 license at the time. But in 2000, I had to 6 reinstate, not a driver's license, but a 7 non-driving state ID, okay?

8 Well, I went to Georgia seven times to 9 get the Georgia ID because nobody there could even 10 say I needed a driving history, which I didn't have 11 at that point. So we had -- again, I had to 12 reinstate my non-driving ID in 2010, which expires
13 in 2020.

14 So there are two issues that I'm 15 concerned about, but I'll start with the first one.

16 First, voter suppression as it relates to 17 the use of ID. But I contacted the Secretary of 18 State Office in the last election just, what, two 19 weeks ago, two or three weeks ago, I was told that 20 my name was not on the list.

21 And I didn't understand why until the 22 gentleman explained to me that I might not have 23 been in their system. I thought they were wrong 24 and they were confused, okay?

25 I don't have a voter's ID, okay? And in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 workable for me. But the screen reading program
3 for the blind are very expensive. You have to be 4 trained on them and you have to go through voc
5 rehab to get the training.

6 So a person who is -- that has never been 7 trained, like, a rural carrier or someone on a 8 waiting list, will not be able to access the ballot 9 because they won't know how to use the equipment.
10 It's very sophisticated. You use keyboard
11 application and a numbers pad.

12 So when you're not trained, that's a 13 technical training, then you don't know how to 14 access this.

15 And then also at the poll, the poll
16 workers are so sweet to me there, but some of them 17 put me on the wrong machine because they're not 18 aware of that accessibility.

19 So blind people who have not been trained 20 on JAWS or MAGic are denied access. It's not a 21 reasonable accommodation.

22 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Let me ask you a 23 question as it relates to -- and this is to the 24 best of your knowledge.

25 Absentee ballots, are they available to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 2005, I guess, when it was legislated that I had to 3 have one, I had been voting at Thoreau High School.
4 I had registered to vote on May 1st, 1998, in the 5 city of Atlanta, but I built a house in 2000, so I
6 transferred. So at this point I went to Thoreau.
7 They have a screen reading program for the blind
8 there and they used my card.

9 That's No. 2. The issue of the screen
10 reading program for the blind requires technical 11 assistance and also training from the Center For 12 the Visually Impaired. Therefore, a lot of blind 13 people are not able to use it, it's laborious, 14 tedious.

15 And I catch a cab to the polls. So I 16 have to pay money to get a way to vote.

17 And so, I think we need to modify their 18 screen reading program so that we can -- that all 19 blinds can, blind people, can use the equipment at 20 the polls and acquire the technical assistance.

21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Are you saying the 22 ballots -- the audio ballot is not workable for 23 you?

24 KATHY HOLMES-BASS: No, I'm trained from 25 the Center For the Visually Impaired. It's

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 the visually impaired in Braille?

3 KATHY HOLMES-BASS: Well, what happened
4 -- and that, I don't know, because I like to do
5 early voting. But right on the last day, I
6 couldn't get a ride to the cab -- from the cab 7 driver in time. I called the Secretary of State's 8 office -- the Fulton County Elections Board and I
9 requested an absentee ballot. And the lady told me 10 on that Friday that she couldn't mail it to me
11 because I wouldn't get it by Tuesday, so, I don't 12 know. I don't have the answer for that, sir.

13 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: On the next
14 election, make sure you contact your local NAACP.
15 They'll give you a ride to the polls.

16 KATHY HOLMES-BASS: I would love it. It
17 would save me some money. Yes, sir.

18 COMMISSIONER MOORE: Or you can call the 19 Georgia Advocacy Office as well. We can give you 20 that information.

21 KATHY HOLMES-BASS: Okay. I would 22 appreciate that very much.

23 Thank you so very much.

24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Mr. Thomas
25 Aquell.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And the timekeeper is here.
 3 THOMAS AQUELL: Thank you very much.
 4 In the name of God first.
 5 I'm glad to be here. And I'm speaking on 6 behalf of ex-felons or prisoners. I wish there 7 were more here to be encouraged to register to 8 vote.
 9 Now, myself personally, I was taken off 10 the voter registration during the voting process of 11 President Obama. But I was allowed to vote during 12 the president -- canvassing of President Bill
 13 Clinton and George Bush.
 14 But when I got to the process of voting
 15 for President Obama, I got a notice in the mail 16 that I've been stripped of my voting rights due to 17 my past criminal record. And I had been out of 18 prison 17 years and requested my citizenship back, 19 made my life to God, and, you know, it just wasn't 20 right. So I thank God that I didn't let it go 21 before they never allowed me to vote.
 22 So I went -- and another brother went 23 with me -- and I reinstated my voting rights. And 24 I got the paperwork right here from the attorney
 25 that I've been stripped of my voting right. And I

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 got my voter registration card right here that I
 3 was blessed by God to get it back.
 4 So, you know, discrimination is still 5 going, as we all know, not only because of the 6 color of the skin, naturally it's still going, but 7 because of your background, your criminal 8 background.
 9 So I thank God that we are all here for 10 this event and I thank God that it will be a 11 success and don't let nobody just keep you from 12 voting.
 13 And I appreciate the opportunity to say
 14 what I had to say.
 15 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you.
 16 (APPLAUSE.)
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Minister Karen
 18 Reagle. She's going to talk about the ballots and 19 precinct -- provisional ballots and precinct 20 designations.
 21 MINISTER KAREN REAGLE: I have served
 22 several years with election protection and I 23 volunteered or was volunteered to help with 24 supervising elections, kind of checking in with 25 different precincts to find out how the voting was

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 going in early November of this year.
 3 I wound up spending all of my time in 4 Atlanta at the Saint James Methodist Church.
 5 We anticipate -- the poll manager
 6 anticipated 1700 votes. By 8:00 in the evening, we 7 had had 1,075 people voting. We had given out 25
 8 provisional ballots.
 9 The provisional ballots were primarily 10 racially blind. They weren't black folks and they 11 were predominantly white folks. But the range of 12 why they were issued provisional ballots was all 13 over the map. It was shocking to me.
 14 I've been involved in elections for a 15 very long time. Started in Chicago, so I cut my 16 teeth in a good place.
 17 One woman whose address is the same as 18 her husband, he was told to vote at Saint James, 19 she was told that she had to vote in Ridgeview.
 20 Ridgeview is in Sandy Springs. The ballots are 21 very different and it didn't match.
 22 Another person recorded that -- they were 23 elders, they were brought by their assisted living 24 place, and they were told that they had requested 25 absentee ballots and they both knew that they had

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 not, they had not received them, they had not 3 requested them. They had to vote provisional 4 because of that.
 5 Another one was told that she had already 6 voted, which she had not. And this was another
 7 problem.
 8 Katie had voted in this particular 9 precinct at this particular location since 1967, 10 but there were no records of her for this 11 particular precinct on that day.
 12 Two other people, man and wife, were sent 13 to Sarah Smith, but his card said, his voter card, 14 said that he should vote at Saint James. Go 15 figure.
 16 Then Jane was sent to Ridgeview. She 17 lives in Atlanta with her husband and he was able 18 to vote a regular ballot. She, however, had to 19 vote provisional.
 20 Jonathan and his wife both live in 21 Atlanta, but they were assigned to Ridgeview in 22 Sandy Springs. Again, not a ballot that they were 23 interested in because it wouldn't represent them.
 24 Patricia couldn't find -- they couldn't 25 find her in the system and she had been voting in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 this particular precinct for 20 years.

3 John said -- the system said John had 4 already voted in another precinct, which he had 5 not.

6 There were a lot of people, all were 7 given the orange flyer that told them how to make 8 sure that their vote was counted, but those that I 9 saw I can't tell you how angry they were. You 10 could see the smoke coming out of their ears and 11 their nostrils they were so upset.

12 I suggested to them that they write to 13 their senators and their representatives to 14 reinstate Section 4. They were confused, they were 15 angered and the changes that were made to their 16 voting records and their voting rights were very 17 nonsensical.

18 As I said, the provisional voting was 19 racially blind in that it was not all white or all 20 black. And the poll manager did a fantastic job of 21 meeting the needs of the pollers -- of the voters
22 in that particular precinct. But it's alarming.

23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.

24 And just for the records, in Georgia, if 25 they hadn't received their absentee ballot and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 hadn't voted an absentee ballot, there was a 3 cancellation process that they were entitled to 4 receipt and were entitled to vote a regular ballot
5 and not a provisional ballot.

6 MINISTER KAREN REAGLE: That was not 7 clear.

8 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you.
9 Thank you so much.

10 And we're going to go back now to our 11 next panel, then we'll have an open session a 12 little later on. But we're going to go now back to 13 our next panel.

14 We're going to have Helen Kim Ho, 15 Executive Director of the Asian-American Legal 16 Advocacy Center.

17 We're going to ask that you take the 18 stage to the left. My left, rather.

19 And then we're going to have Cheri
20 Mitchell for the Georgia Advocacy Office.

21 Sharon Blackwood is a Board Member from 22 the League of Women Voters.

23 And Richard Barron who is the Fulton
24 County Director of Elections and Registration.

25 Our timekeeper, once again, is down

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 front. And we ask that you be mindful of the time 3 as we go.

4 The next open mic will be about 6:00 or 5 thereabout.

6 Helen Ho will talk about naturalized
7 citizen voting and registration.

8 And --

9 CHERI MITCHELL: Cheri.

10 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Cheri, I'm sorry.

11 CHERI MITCHELL: No problem.

12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Cheri Mitchell will 13 be talking about HAVA. And topic, individuals with 14 disabilities.

15 Sharon Blackwood will be also talking
16 about naturalization, registration, and polling 17 place consolidation.

18 And then Mr. Barron will talk about 19 ElectioNet which is a new voter registration system
20 for Georgia.

21 We're going to hold our questions until 22 the end and then we'll ask the questions.

23 So we're going to ask Helen Ho to start 24 us off.

25 And for those people who are wishing to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 speak for open mic, you need to sign up outside.

3 HELEN KIM HO: Okay. Thanks so much for 4 the invitation to testify. I've provided some 5 written materials and some photos actually to help 6 along.

7 You know, just briefly, the Asian 8 American Legal Advocacy Center for the first 9 non-profit law center dedicated to promoting the 10 civil rights of Asians, Pacific Islanders and 11 Asian-ethnic refugees in Georgia and the Southeast.

12 Our goal and purpose is to increase the 13 civic participation of AAPIs. And so we do civic 14 engagement and voter engagement work all year 15 around.

16 I think I included a photo of our 17 billboard from last year that was very successful 18 and wanted to share with you on the second page 19 some voter statistics of Asian Americans and 20 Pacific islanders in our state.

21 Asian Americans have experienced the 22 second highest rate of voter registration, second 23 to Latinos, over the past several years. Even 24 though Latinos are double to us in number of 25 population size, we are pretty much the same in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 terms of the make-up of percentage of voters
 3 according to the Secretary of State.
 4 And we have an especially high
 5 concentration in Gwinnett County, which is the 6 second largest county in the state.
 7 And when you put Asians together with 8 Latinos and African-Americans, Gwinnett County is a 9 majority minority state -- county. Soon will be a 10 majority minority state as well.
 11 Believe it.
 12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Wishful thinking.
 13 HELEN KIM HO: On the third page of -- 14 just a quick highlight -- I was going to talk about 15 some of the problems we experienced last year in 16 our voter registration work for the Presidential 17 elections.
 18 But just quickly, we helped to register
 19 more than 1400 new voters. We ran 82 registration 20 drives. At least two dozen of them were at 21 naturalization ceremonies in partnership with the 22 USCIS.
 23 That work spurred, you know, more
 24 naturalization work in partnership with the League 25 and other groups that we partner with.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 basically the issues we encountered, and I would 3 like to put it more from a personal perspective.
 4 We started getting calls mostly from 5 newly naturalized citizens we helped to register
 6 telling us, Well, you said that it would take about 7 two weeks to get our voter registration card, but I 8 haven't gotten it yet.
 9 So after we got about six or seven of 10 those calls, we decided -- or I decided to ask my 11 staff and interns to go back and look at every 12 single form we had on file and check on the 13 Secretary of State website to see whether these 14 people had been registered or not.
 15 What we found was that 40 percent of 16 those we had on file or exactly 574 voters we 17 helped to register were either being challenged or 18 were unprocessed a week before the Presidential 19 election. So that's just people that we helped to 20 register.
 21 And I think in the past just -- you know,
 22 all of our groups are very, you know, underfunded, 23 not very resourced, so in the past we hadn't been 24 as methodical or scientific about keeping track of 25 everything, but we did that and the results were,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 We did a ton of door-to-door canvassing.
 3 Basically, what we did was, if we got 4 permission from the new applicant to hold on and 5 mail their registration forms, we would input their 6 data into a voter database and follow up with them 7 directly through phone bank and multiple touches.
 8 Before I talk about the problems, it's so 9 easy to talk about the problems, I do want to say
 10 our voter engagement work, I think, worked and made 11 an impact. I'll just give an example of one of the 12 precincts we worked in.
 13 While naturally there was a dip in voter 14 rates, there was a 3.45 percent increase in this 15 particular precinct in Gwinnett. And in fact, that 16 precinct at the state house level had redistrict a 17 Democratic incumbent into a majority Republican 18 district. That district happened to be going up 19 into New Koreatown in Duluth.
 20 So because of the numbers we did, our 21 voter engagement work there and -- that Democratic 22 incumbent won by the largest margin ever. Which 23 shows, you know, it's about maybe the issues, but 24 -- and the next page shows that specific race.
 25 So what I want to talk about are

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 of course, devastating.
 3 We tried to call the Secretary of State
 4 and we did, we spoke with Linda Ford, very nice 5 woman, but didn't really get any answers as to why.
 6 So we sent a series of open letters which 7 you can see. This was, again, a week before the 8 elections. This led to reform coverage of what we 9 found.
 10 Secretary of State didn't really respond.
 11 We asked them to please go ahead -- we actually 12 sent them an Excel sheet of every one of those 575 13 voters, last name, first name, date that they 14 registered, what county, what Secretary of State 15 website said. So there was no question, you know, 16 they could easily track them.
 17 And said, Please, here's all the data 18 that we have. We're not just one story, this is 19 574 people. Please register, help clear these up 20 and speed up the process.
 21 That didn't happen.
 22 In the interim in trying to work with 23 them, we also found or was shared an informational 24 memo that was given out to the different counties
 25 which we still believe creates more onerous

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 processing requirements for ID than what was 3 precleared by the Department of Justice.
 4 And we also brought that up and I
 5 attached that memo to you.
 6 Really all that happened was it spurred a 7 Department of Justice investigation, which I have 8 no idea what happened to it.
 9 It also spurred a Secretary of State
 10 investigation into us, which is what can happen 11 when you do things like this. And we were 12 fortunate enough to have the support and the offer
 13 by Mr. Emmet Bondurant to represent us, and as soon 14 as he stepped in, it kind of ended. Thankfully. I 15 almost lost my cool when that happened to us.
 16 But I guess, you know, in closing, you 17 know, the letters pretty much detailed what we saw 18 and what the details of what we were identifying as 19 the problems as to why these voters, especially 20 newly naturalized voters, were not being 21 registered.
 22 I think I will say from my experience
 23 there is an institutionalized deprioritization of 24 new voters in Georgia. You know, when our 25 elections are, it's no surprise to no person.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 everyone. It is an honor to be here. And my name
 3 is Cheri Mitchell and I want to thank you for this 4 opportunity.
 5 Justin Dart, the godfather of the 6 Americans with Disabilities Act said this, he said,
 7 Vote as if your life depends on it, because it 8 does.
 9 And I'm going to move real fast because 10 ain't got but five minutes.
 11 I work for the Georgia Advocacy Office as 12 their PAVA director. PAVA standing for Protection 13 and Advocacy for Voting Access. I've been that 14 person for the last six years.
 15 Voting discrimination against people with 16 disabilities comes in many forms. People with 17 disabilities, in my opinion, face the most barriers 18 compared to any other voting population.
 19 And I'm going to start with the ABCs of 20 discrimination. Attitude, building and 21 communication.
 22 Attitude. People have to want people
 23 with disabilities to be a part of the voting 24 process. And unfortunately that doesn't seem to be 25 the story.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And it almost seems like from, again, the 3 anecdotes and the stories and these 574 voters that 4 it's almost a given that the first time you try and 5 vote, you can't vote. That needs to change.
 6 And I just want to end with pictures of 7 some of the people. I can't tell you, especially 8 with the newly registered voters how excited they 9 were to register to vote.
 10 We helped one Brazilian woman register to 11 vote. And she said, The rest of my family's in 12 Brazil, they're so excited I get to vote for the 13 Presidential election. They're -- I feel like I'm 14 voting not just for myself but my entire family.
 15 That's how excited she was. She was not 16 allowed to vote.
 17 So, I guess my time is up. Thank you.
 18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 19 The timekeeper is down front. So if you 20 would --
 21 HELEN KIM HO: Sorry.
 22 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: -- be aware. We're 23 trying to stay on track.
 24 Cheri.
 25 CHERI MITCHELL: Okay. Good afternoon,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 I've heard stories of poll workers
 3 refusing to assist people with disabilities, 4 refusing to let the person of their choice assist 5 them, making people with disabilities feel like 6 second class citizens, or telling people that, You 7 have a disability, so you're not competent.
 8 I've heard guardians, family members, and 9 staff refusing to let a person with disabilities 10 vote or refusing to support them to vote.
 11 I've been the director, like I said, for 12 six years and I've reached out to the Secretary of 13 State's office on several occasions and one day I 14 hope to actually collaborate with them. I mean, we 15 are the other HAVA, which is the Help America Vote
 16 Act funding recipients for the state of Georgia.
 17 You know, at one time I used to get all 18 of my mail-in voter forms from them, I have -- at 19 one point I was receiving to two to three thousand 20 a year. They changed their policy. Now I have to 21 go to the county election boards. And all the 22 organizations that I'm working with, I'm having to 23 send them to them because I can no longer get them
 24 from the Secretary of State's office.
 25 One of my best friends, her name is

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Renita Bundrage and I have her permission to tell 3 her story and her testimony. It's in the written 4 testimony that I submitted a week or so ago.
 5 Renita is one of my best friends and 6 she's one of the smartest people I know, and she 7 has been president of People First of Atlanta three 8 times and is the current vice president for People 9 First of Georgia.
 10 Because of her disabilities, on several 11 occasions poll workers have refused to let her 12 vote. I was moved by her story and this is what 13 she says. My first voting experience made me feel 14 like a second class citizen. Even now poll workers 15 act like I'm not capable. I am tired of being 16 treated like a second class citizen. This is not a 17 one-time happening. It happens almost all the 18 time.
 19 She also said to me, she said, Stephen
 20 Hawking's proved that just because you're nonverbal 21 don't mean that you aren't smart and aren't 22 capable.
 23 And she said, And I am smart and I am
 24 capable and I can actually talk a little.
 25 Right? So I mean, it's ridiculous.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 not the accessible entrance. It's like playing 3 hide and seek, where is the entrance, where is the 4 entrance.
 5 Voter education is very important. In an 6 age where voter suppression is an issue, not just 7 for people with disabilities, but for everybody, 8 voter education is the issue.
 9 I think you were the one that said, Why
 10 aren't the young people turning out? Lack of voter
 11 education.
 12 Every year for I don't know how many 13 years now, it's been going on so long, our voting 14 funding through the HAVA Act has been decreased and 15 decreased and decreased and is still decreasing.
 16 And that's a crying shame. Oh, man, that's a 17 crying shame.
 18 Education is the key. Because when 19 people understand their rights and understand why 20 it's important to vote, they go vote.
 21 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right. That's 22 right.
 23 (APPLAUSE.)
 24 CHERI MITCHELL: It is the key to solving 25 all of these problems. So the funding at the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Buildings. Is the voting polling place
 3 accessible? Is the location convenient and can be 4 reached? You know, they love to use us as the 5 reason for condensing the polls. Well, all the 6 polls weren't accessible and it's true. And the 7 polls legally have to be accessible.
 8 But, you know, the biggest problem we 9 have is getting to the polls. Not everybody has an 10 accessible vehicle. So this becomes a real 11 problem.
 12 Another problem is I spent 27 minutes at 13 a poll one time waiting for them to unlock the 14 accessible entrance. It took me five minutes just 15 to get their attention. I was yelling from outside 16 in the parking lot to them on the inside.
 17 Hello, I want to vote.
 18 Communication. This includes written 19 communication in the form of the ballot itself.
 20 Some people need special technologies to either 21 hear or see the ballots. Ballots in Braille a lot 22 of time are not available. And that's a shame.
 23 Because it's not that big of a deal to make them.
 24 There's supposed to be signage indicating 25 where the main entrance is if the main entrance is

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Georgia Advocacy, like I said, has been reduced.
 3 We do a lot of train-the-trainer voting.
 4 Because I'm one person, I wished I could be all 5 over the state at one time, but I can't.
 6 So we do a lot of train-the-trainers with 7 self-advocacy organizations so that they can get 8 the information out and the tools to teach their 9 memberships about their voting -- their rights to 10 vote and their community.
 11 We love to tell everybody, whether you 12 got a disability or not that it's important to 13 vote.
 14 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.
 15 CHERI MITCHELL: The National Self
 16 Advocates -- am I out of time?
 17 Okay, well, I'm going to shut up now.
 18 But I just want to say to you education 19 is the key. Poll workers need to be educated.
 20 (APPLAUSE.)
 21 CHERI MITCHELL: Seriously, they need to 22 be educated. And until we commit to funding real 23 voting education, it's always going to be a
 24 problem.
 25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 (APPLAUSE.)
 3 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Sharon Blackwood.
 4 SHARON BLACKWOOD: Thank you.
 5 I hope I can have a couple of extra
 6 minutes since I'm also testifying for someone else
 7 who is not here and I have several issues.
 8 I'm Sharon Blackwood. I'm on the State
 9 Board of League of Women Voters of Georgia.
 10 You ladies out there, you've only been 11 able to vote for 93 years. So we came out of the 12 suffrage movement and the League of Women Voters 13 works for assess to voting, voter education, and 14 will advocate for full voter participation.
 15 The first thing I want to talk about is 16 something good. We are also working with GALEO, 17 Pro Georgia, to register naturalized citizens at 18 their naturalization ceremonies. We've got 19 permission from the federal government to copy 20 their naturalization papers with their permission, 21 put them in the sleeve, and we hand deliver them to 22 the Secretary of State's office. We are getting 23 over 50 percent registered voters from these 24 naturalization ceremonies.
 25 We have not yet had the time to process

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 all of the results from this last election so we 3 will get that to you when we have it as far as how 4 many of them were allowed to vote.
 5 Okay. Couple of anecdotes that I've 6 witnessed myself.
 7 A young, lovely Asian woman came in to 8 vote where I was poll watching. She was flagged 9 with a purple check mark, was not allowed to vote, 10 said she was not a citizen. We immediately got to 11 work. After an hour and a half -- and her husband 12 had to bring her naturalization papers to the poll
 13 -- she voted on a machine. Because if you vote a 14 provisional ballot, you have to go back to the 15 election board and certify that ballot. So you 16 have to vote twice.
 17 Another young lady from the Caribbean
 18 Islands originally came in, was flagged as a 19 noncitizen, had her valid U.S. passport, was not -- 20 was made to vote a challenge ballot.
 21 The spokesperson for the Secretary of 22 State's office mother went to vote three weeks ago, 23 was listed in the rolls as a felon and was not 24 allowed to vote. This woman was horrified. She's 25 been voting all of her life since she's been

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 eligible to vote. They worked all day to get her 3 the right to vote, she finally got cleared to vote, 4 but she refused to vote.
 5 These are just anecdotes that I have 6 witnessed.
 7 I now am going to talk about 8 consolidation of polling places in Carrollton,
 9 Georgia.
 10 There's been an effort to consolidate at 11 least two polling places. Students at the 12 University of West Georgia have found a location at 13 the campus that allows students to vote officially.
 14 The proposal includes moving -- they are 15 proposing to move this polling place to the 16 Tabernacle Baptist Church. And it's 2.6 miles away 17 from the campus. This place is a burden on 18 students who live on campus and may not have the 19 time or efficient transportation to able to vote.
 20 There are also studies that show polling
 21 places in churches have an influence on who shows 22 up to vote at that polling place.
 23 Two other polling places were recommended 24 to be combined that would greatly impact lower 25 income and minority voters in the city of

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Carrollton. These voters have been able to walk to 3 their polling place and now they will have to walk 4 two miles across a major thoroughfare in order to 5 vote.
 6 An e-mail was sent out to council
 7 members, county commissioners, and four of the five 8 members of their state delegation. One member did 9 not receive this e-mail and we wonder if it's 10 because he had objected to a closing of a polling 11 place at Fairfield Plantation.
 12 In Athens, Georgia, there are concerns
 13 and I will discuss two of them. Local police 14 stations -- this has been alluded -- spoken about 15 before. Local police station and substations are 16 being recommended as early voting sites.
 17 We feel that having to go to a police
 18 station to vote will be intimidating to voters, 19 especially voters who vote early, thus 20 disenfranchising many voters.
 21 I think it's totally inappropriate to 22 have a voting place at a police station.
 23 Other polling places are proposed to be 24 moved including the closing of the polling place on 25 the campus of the University of Georgia.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 We're seeing this throughout the state of 3 Georgia where polling places for students to vote 4 are being closed.

5 The polling place near the arch downtown
6 is what they're saying that the students can use.
7 But it is above the north perimeter of the campus 8 that houses mostly administration and I think the 9 law school, and part of the business school. This 10 leaves the majority of the huge campus underserved.

11 Also, in Athens, polling places are being 12 moved that greatly impact low income and minority 13 voters, including the Cat Wood community in Athens.

14 Public transportation for these voters
15 will necessitate bus rides of one and a half hours 16 each way and changing of buses. If this change is 17 made, it will serve to suppress the vote in these 18 communities.

19 Now, in Carrollton and in Athens, these 20 have not been adopted yet, but became known by the 21 polling. There were objections. They will be 22 voted on, on Carrollton in January, Athens, I 23 believe, in January also.

24 I'm also -- I've got a proposed voting
25 map of Greene County, Georgia. It just so happens

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 districted out of his district.

3 So I will give you this.

4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.

5 SHARON BLACKWOOD: Thank you very much.

6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.

7 Mr. Rick Barron who is the Fulton County
8 Director of Elections. Thank you for attending.

9 RICHARD BARRON: I'm very happy to be 10 here listening to everyone. It has given me a 11 whole bunch of ideas for other topics.

12 But I am going to talk about ElectioNet 13 which is the state's voter registration system and 14 our experience with it.

15 I mean, imagine if you have a document -- 16 you've worked out a document, you've printed -- 17 written one, you print it out, and when you look at 18 the printout it's different than what you see on 19 your monitor. There are some errors here and there 20 on it and every time you go to fix one of those 21 errors, another one pops up.

22 That is the way -- I guess, the 23 experience that we had with ElectioNet for this 24 November election.

25 It's so important to have an accurate and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 that's where I'm from and I was there this week.

3 Greene County is a county that is split
4 in two. You have Lake Oconee, which is very 5 wealthy, very white. You have the rest of the 6 county which is not very wealthy and white, and 7 African-American primarily.

8 I'm just going to give you this proposal 9 because this is outrageous. The City of 10 Greensboro, which is the county seat, has been 11 divided up into three, four, voting districts.

12 I will show you this. Here is one voting
13 district. It goes almost to Washington, Georgia, 14 which is on the Wilkes County line, goes all 15 around, it's on the west side of Greensboro, goes 16 all around the east side of Greensboro, all the way
17 up to the furthest point north to Oconee County, 18 and comes all the way down to the furthest point to 19 Putnam County.

20 So it will include the lake community.
21 The lake community is included in all of the three 22 out of the four districts for county commission.

23 They have -- there's a very popular, very 24 good commissioner who has been districted, a black 25 -- an African-American commissioner -- who has been

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 well-designed voter registration system. We need 3 to have every voter in our county and actually 4 across the state to be able to vote and be 5 accurately represented in the system. They need to 6 be in the correct precincts.

7 And there was a lady here earlier that 8 was talking about a husband and wife that -- that 9 were -- one was in the correct precinct, one was in 10 the -- was told to vote in another precinct. That 11 is -- those were problems that we ran into as data 12 migrated from the old voter registration system to 13 this new one.

14 The state purchased ElectioNet to replace
15 Legacy which was the old one.

16 You know, given Fulton County's history
17 with elections we need to make sure that we have a 18 good system. And I want to advocate for the 19 counties in Georgia to be able to have their own 20 voter registration system do what other states do 21 where the state has an overall system but the 22 counties that want to can go offline, keep their 23 own data, keep their own servers and they aren't at 24 the mercy of the state servers, they aren't at the 25 mercy of being micro managed by the state.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 We were the last county to join
3 ElectionNet.

4 We had a backlog of 14,000 DDS
5 applications, which were those -- are the voters
6 that register to vote when they get their driver's 7 license.

8 We also had to deal with a long list of 9 exceptions. When the data migrated from Legacy, 10 the old system, to the new one it created all sorts 11 of problems in addresses, people's names, it would 12 put spaces in, dashes. So we had a lot of work to 13 do just from the data migration.

14 And once -- we had to then go ahead and 15 redistrict Atlanta, Milton, East Point and Sandy 16 Springs. And in all of those areas when we were 17 doing the redistricting, we would move a street
18 from one precinct to another, but the voters 19 wouldn't move. The street would move, the voters 20 would stay where they were.

21 So then we would have to go back in and 22 then move each voter individually. And sometimes 23 you're talking about hundreds of voters on a 24 street.

25 Some of these voters that were exception

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 voters that had mistakes in their address or in 3 their -- you know, in their name maybe, an extra 4 space where the new system couldn't read it. We 5 would fix the street. And logically, you would 6 think once you fix the street the voter would move 7 with it. It didn't happen.

8 And I think one of the most concerning 9 aspects of this whole thing is that when you were 10 dealing at the street level, there's no audit 11 trail. So I have no way to go in and find out who 12 on my staff moved a street, when they moved a 13 street, because there isn't an audit trail at that 14 point. And that's just basic software design in my 15 mind.

16 We would have inaccurate reports. When 17 we would -- our Absentee Download Report File, the 18 apartment numbers would be listed with the voter.
19 But when you would go to send an absentee ballot by 20 mail, the apartment number would drop off or the 21 entire address would print on one line and run off 22 the envelope. So then we were having to copy and 23 paste all of the addresses to fix that.

24 Reports were untrustworthy. We were 25 unsure sometimes whether the reports that we would

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 get out of ElectionNet were accurate.

3 Some of the positives -- there are some 4 positives with ElectionNet. It's easier to train 5 our staff in that system. Esthetically it looks 6 better.

7 Once a voter is assigned into a precinct 8 and we have it right, we can't override it, which 9 you could do in Legacy. And that is good. It's an 10 extra layer of security.

11 We can receive reports in PDF and Excel 12 instead of just a text file that we used to have to 13 manipulate.

14 And finally, we can update a voter record 15 to include a previous address, which is helpful for 16 searching.

17 But the negatives which I spoke about 18 earlier, the audit trail, we can't update a street 19 in that voter registration system in one day on the 20 same day. It's a three-day process. We have to 21 order reports overnight, so we can't look at the 22 work we've done on the same day.

23 The Poll Worker Module and the Petition 24 Module either have issues or they're 25 nonfunctioning.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013

2 And I just think that in closing that 3 what we need to do in Georgia is follow some of the 4 models of many of the other states and allow the 5 counties to purchase their own voter registration 6 systems to protect the data and let us be the 7 stewards instead of being micro managed by the 8 state.

9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.

10 Before we go to our questions of this 11 panel, we have one person for the next panel that 12 needs to leave and we definitely want to get her 13 testimony before she leaves.

14 So I'm going to ask Fulton County
15 Commissioner Emma Darnell if she would come forward 16 and give her testimony and then we will come back 17 to questions for the rest of the panel, okay?

18 Up here.

19 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Thank you very 20 much. I certainly don't want to hold up questions, 21 not for one minute.

22 And let me just say that we are extremely 23 pleased and honored and privileged to have the 24 National Commission on Voting Rights here.

25 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: It's always, of 3 course, a pleasure to be in the King Center.

4 We were blessed to be able to work on 5 this board for 25 years with Ms. Loretta Scott 6 King, who was extremely serious about freedom for 7 all people.

8 I have a written statement which I'm 9 going to leave with you. But I want to do a very 10 brief -- I think you said not longer than five 11 minutes. And a lot of folks don't believe me, but 12 I'm going to do it. It's going to be five minutes.

13 I'm deeply appreciative for the 14 opportunity to present facts that relate to a 15 historic and persistent record of discrimination 16 against minority voters in Fulton County because of 17 race.

18 The North Fulton Redistricting Plan, also 19 called the Fulton County Redistricting Plan, was 20 developed by a local delegation composed of 21 senators and representatives who reside outside
22 Fulton County in majority white districts.

23 That plan not only draws a line at 24 10th Street dividing Fulton County residents into 25 three majority white districts to the north, and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 unincorporated majority black North Fulton -- South
3 Fulton area voiced strong opposition but could not 4 vote because the legislation provided that only 5 residents of Sandy Springs, not the voters of the 6 entire county, were allowed to vote.

7 Another example. So-called Milton County
8 Movement proposed by several legislators from North 9 Fulton involves legislation to recreate a bankrupt 10 county, which would be majority white, and 11 encompass all of Fulton County north of the City of 12 Atlanta.

13 During the 2013 general session, which 14 created this redistricting plan, this group of 15 North Fulton legislators not only introduced and 16 adopted this redistricting plan without any input 17 from the Fulton County Board of Commissioners, more 18 than 15 local bills that adversely impacted the 19 operation of Fulton County were introduced and 20 adopted.

21 The state of minority voting rights in 22 Fulton County can be expressed best in the words of 23 William Faulkner, and I quote, The past is not 24 dead, it's not even past.

25 (APPLAUSE.)

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 three majority black districts in the south, it 3 also creates a super black district in the south
4 that is 20 miles long and runs from Palmetto,
5 Georgia, to southwest Atlanta. Three minority 6 incumbents reside in the super black district.

7 A redistricting plan adopted by the Board 8 of Commissioners and submitted to the delegation in 9 2011 before the state redistricting plan changed
10 the delegation from majority black to majority 11 white was never considered by the General Assembly.

12 However, it must be emphasized that the 13 North Fulton plan, otherwise known as Fulton County 14 Redistricting Plan, cannot be understood without 15 placing it in the larger context of the concerted 16 efforts to take away the voting strength of 17 minorities in Fulton County for over 50 years.

18 Minority representation on the board of 19 commissioners in Fulton County was won by 20 litigation. Except for the intervention of the 21 federal courts, we would have never been on the 22 Board of Commissioners.

23 When Sandy Springs, the first of a series
24 of unincorporated areas in the majority white north 25 was incorporated in 2005, residents of the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Thank you very
3 much.

4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.

5 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: I do have a longer 6 statement to fill in --

7 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.

8 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: -- some of these 9 examples.

10 Thank you so much.

11 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I'm going to ask
12 the panel if they have a question of Commissioner 13 Darnell before she leaves and then we'll go back to 14 the questioning of the rest of the panel.

15 Anyone have a question of Commissioner 16 Darnell?

17 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, is there
18 any plan to challenge the plan, the Fulton County 19 plan in federal court?

20 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: How many times do 21 we have to challenge? We did send the plan to the 22 Justice Department immediately after the governor 23 signed it in May.

24 While the plan was at the Justice
25 Department, of course, the Shelby County decision

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 was signed by our chief justice, instructed us that 3 conditions had changed here in the south.
 4 But in any case, as we know, once that 5 Shelby County decision was made by the U.S. Supreme 6 Court, the U.S. Justice Department could not move
 7 at all in terms of Section 5 preclearance.
 8 The Supreme Court stated in that decision 9 that it would be necessary for the Congress of the 10 United States to redefine the coverage formula.
 11 To my knowledge and based on information
 12 I have received from our county attorney, nothing 13 has been done in Washington, nothing. Not one 14 piece of legislation has been introduced by 15 anybody, including our own representatives, to deal 16 with redefining the coverage formula.
 17 Unless the coverage formula is redefined, 18 of course, then voter preclearance formula was 19 held, was not attacked, the Justice Department 20 can't move.
 21 What we're looking at now in Section 2 of 22 the act which allows either the attorney general or 23 the voters to bring an action in federal court
 24 under Section 2.
 25 But it's extremely hard for hard working

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 people to develop the kinds of funds that are 3 needed in order to go into federal court and prove 4 discriminatory intent. I feel the courts --
 5 (APPLAUSE.)
 6 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: I feel the courts,
 7 you almost have to -- well, I won't say that.
 8 But discriminatory intent, our lawyers
 9 tell us, is extremely hard and expensive. You 10 know, that's why we lack Section 5.
 11 But I will say this, that I am extremely 12 frustrated that the Shelby County decision was made 13 in June and not one piece of legislation has been 14 introduced into Congress.
 15 And people kept saying, Well, what about 16 the government shutdown? Congress people were 17 taking care of their business during the shutdown.
 18 And when you have the largest county in the state 19 where minority voters have been disenfranchised, we 20 expect something to happen during the shutdown.
 21 (APPLAUSE.)
 22 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: I won't let my 23 next answer be that long, I promise you.
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: You said none of 25 the citizens had input into the redistricting plan?

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: The Board of 3 Commissioners of Fulton County was notified by our 4 local delegation at the General Assembly early in 5 2011. Senator Horace Tate was the chair. This is 6 2011 now, before the redistricting of the state 7 house.
 8 We were notified that the delegation 9 would review our recommendations with respect to 10 redistricting. We worked very, very hard, brought 11 in outside counsel, developed a redistricting plan, 12 which met the requirements of the equal protection 13 law as well as Section 5 of the -- of the Voting
 14 Rights Act.
 15 We submitted that plan to our delegation,
 16 the General Assembly did nothing. It just sat
 17 there.
 18 They were waiting obviously for the 19 redistricting of the legislation. Because by 2012, 20 the composition of the delegation had changed from 21 majority black to majority white.
 22 And the way it changed was they drew the 23 lines so that persons could be members of the 24 Fulton County delegation who didn't even live in 25 Fulton County. And so by that time, of course,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 they were ready to deal with redistricting.
 3 And what they did was certain North
 4 Fulton legislators, without notifying Democratic 5 legislators, members of the delegation, black -- 6 majority black -- this is not a party issue. I 7 realize a lot of redistricting has to do with 8 party, but not this.
 9 You know, majority black members of the 10 Senate delegation, majority black members of the 11 House delegation to the Georgia General Assembly
 12 didn't even know when they were meeting.
 13 And certainly the Board of Commissioners 14 did not have an opportunity to have input which 15 happens in other states. You have an opportunity 16 to have input. We did not.
 17 So this redistricting plan was conceived
 18 by certain North Fulton legislators, who have a 19 history, this is nothing new, who have a history of 20 attacking the minority voting strip of residents of 21 Fulton County.
 22 So that's what happened.
 23 We did not have an opportunity to input 24 and our lawyers indicated that that was somewhat 25 serious. We knew they had the final decision, but

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 we thought they would at least look at our plan and 3 let's talk about it. But they did not.
 4 We consider -- these 15 bills, including 5 redistricting that they adopted in the 2013
 6 legislature, which includes, by the way, a bill 7 that tells us who can be classified and who can be 8 unclassified among the employees. It tells us who 9 can be chairman of the elections board. It takes 10 away from us the authority to appoint members to 11 the board. That one got stalled a little bit, but 12 it's coming up again.
 13 It's unbelievable the kind of legislation
 14 that was adopted by the 2013 Georgia General
 15 Assembly, signed by the governor, and the impact it 16 has on a Board of Commissioners that is majority 17 black.
 18 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: What you describe
 19 is nothing less than the hollowing out of Fulton 20 County. I know you're sounding the alarm through 21 your testimony, but for the record, you have been a 22 star worker on these issues.
 23 Can you forecast what this will mean in 24 the everyday lives of citizens of Fulton County, 25 particularly on the southern end?

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Thank you for the
 3 question.
 4 What it means is that the steps that have 5 been taken by this Commission to open up the 6 government to establish a policy of inclusion 7 rather than exclusion to -- in the allocation of 8 resources, you know, in the allocation of 9 resources, consider the assistance to senior 10 adults, to low income families, to folks with 11 developmental disabilities, human health,
 12 environmental health that have high priorities.
 13 The way we spend the money, I believe,
 14 incidentally, are motivations.
 15 We have heard over and over again you 16 don't have but one responsibility and that's the 17 courts and corrections and libraries, anything else
 18 that you do is extra.
 19 We've had North Fulton legislators to 20 publicly state that providing services to senior 21 citizens was not a mandated service, it was 22 discretionary.
 23 So I think, you know, the impact upon 24 people, frankly, is where I'm a little passionate.
 25 It's the impact upon people.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 I believe, however, that it is 3 appropriate where legislators disagree with our 4 priorities, meet us at the polls. Don't go to the 5 back room for goodness sake.
 6 (APPLAUSE.)
 7 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Put somebody out
 8 there at the polls that expresses your view and let 9 the people decide.
 10 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 11 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: But, of course,
 12 you know, as you all know, being familiar with this 13 whole area, that's not what happens with folks who 14 decide the best way to get my policy enacted is to 15 change the voting rules.
 16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay.
 17 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: We don't have poll
 18 taxes and we don't have literacy tests out here, 19 but I want you to know voter ID and redistricting, 20 they're doing just as good a job. Just as good a 21 job.
 22 AUDIENCE MEMBERS: That's right.
 23 (APPLAUSE.)
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 25 Anymore questions?

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: I just had a
 3 member of my staff to check the numbers on the 4 recent Mayor race here in Atlanta. We didn't have 5 20 percent of the registered votes. We didn't have 6 20 percent.
 7 Now, we can't look at the voting
 8 registration rules and explain that. I think 9 you're beginning to see cynicism, disappointment, 10 frustration, desperation.
 11 AUDIENCE MEMBERS: That's right.
 12 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Withdrawal from 13 the process.
 14 AUDIENCE MEMBERS: Yes. Yes.
 15 EMMA DARNELL: And all of us know, of 16 course, that we withdraw from this process at our 17 peril.
 18 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Amen.
 19 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right. Thank 20 you very much.
 21 We'll go back to the rest of the panel.
 22 COMMISSIONER DARNELL: Thank you all very 23 much.
 24 (APPLAUSE.)
 25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We're going to go

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 back -- if you'll leave your written testimony, 3 that would be fine.
 4 Panel, do you have questions of the 5 previous panel with Helen Ho from the Asian 6 community, and Cheri Mitchell from the disabilities
 7 community, Sharon Blackwood from League of Women
 8 Voters, and Mr. Barron.
 9 I do have some questions myself for 10 Mr. Barron.
 11 Any of you have questions to any of them?
 12 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, I had one
 13 question for Mr. Barron.
 14 Are you confident that the problems with 15 ElectionNet will be corrected?
 16 RICHARD BARRON: I'm not sure when. I
 17 mean, it will happen.
 18 I can use an example of the state of 19 Texas, where I worked prior to coming here, spent 20 $13.9 million on their voter registration system.
 21 They ended up putting another $5 million into it 22 because things weren't working. And now they've 23 gone out to bid again, because their voter 24 registration state-wide system still doesn't work 25 the way they want it.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 are experiencing this problem, do you know?
 3 RICHARD BARRON: As far as I'm aware, all
 4 of the counties. I mean, I spoke with somebody 5 from Banks County, which I guess is the smallest 6 county, and she said she was having issues and she 7 only had 9,000 registered voters, so she couldn't 8 imagine what we were going through.
 9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. You said you 10 had a backlog of 14,000 DDS applications. What is 11 the process for handling DDS applications?
 12 RICHARD BARRON: Those come in on a daily
 13 basis. That was a -- something that my department 14 -- that was completely on us.
 15 I mean, when I came into my job in June,
 16 those were all there. They had not -- the staff 17 hadn't been entering them for months.
 18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And you said your 19 staff was trained. Who is training? How many of 20 you got trained and who did the training on this 21 new system?
 22 RICHARD BARRON: The state has done the 23 training and the voter registration staff has been 24 trained on the system.
 25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And how many people

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And Georgia only spent $2.6 million on 3 theirs.
 4 There are a lot of -- I think the basic 5 architecture has a lot of problems and we can't get 6 a good explanation as to, you know, why things 7 happen the way they happen. I think they -- when 8 they fix a problem, they do it and they aren't sure 9 whether it's systemic.
 10 So I think eventually -- I mean, it's 11 getting better, you know, by the day and they're 12 working to make it better.
 13 But I saw a lot of improvement when they 14 brought somebody in from Kennesaw State about six 15 weeks before the election, but now he's -- that 16 gentleman is back in Kennesaw. So we'll see how it 17 goes.
 18 We have to go back into redistricting to 19 do the Commissioner precincts. So, you know, I'm 20 hoping that we don't end up -- we don't have a lot 21 of time to get that done before qualifying in March 22 the primaries.
 23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I have a question.
 24 Mr. Barron, there were 159 counties in 25 Georgia that are on the system. How many counties

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 is there?
 3 RICHARD BARRON: Well, we have, I think,
 4 like six full-time people over there. But I think 5 about eight or nine have been trained. There's 6 been a few on the election side that have gone over 7 for some training.
 8 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Do you not see any 9 value in having a uniform state-wide voter 10 registration system?
 11 RICHARD BARRON: Yes. And I know that 12 the state-wide system is a good idea, but I think 13 what these other states do is they allow the 14 counties to go what is called off line, they have 15 their own system, and then they upload them to the 16 state on a daily basis.
 17 And the vendor -- the counties have 18 direct contact with their own vendor. And then the 19 vendor deals with the state and the technology 20 because right now we can't contact the vendor. The 21 state is the middleman and the counties aren't 22 allowed to talk to the vendor.
 23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And who is this 24 vendor?
 25 RICHARD BARRON: PCC.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And what does PCC
 3 stand for?
 4 RICHARD BARRON: I'm not sure.
 5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Anyone else have 6 any questions?
 7 COMMISSIONER MOORE: For Ms. Ho. I
 8 really appreciate your testimony.
 9 I just had a question about, are you 10 solely or primarily doing outreach to newly 11 naturalized citizens or do you have a broader 12 constituency?
 13 HELEN KIM HO: Yeah, we'll register
 14 anyone everywhere. Last year it just happened that 15 as part of our voter engagement strategies we 16 thought why not go to the naturalization
 17 ceremonies.
 18 And when we look back at the end of the 19 year, I'd say about 40 percent of those we 20 registered were Asian American or Pacific
 21 Islanders. 60 percent were not Asian. Of course, 22 we were registering everyone.
 23 But for significant -- I'd say for a -- 24 it's hard to say, quite frankly. Clearly, the 25 naturalized citizens were first-time voters. But

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 And I think because we kept track of 3 everyone, it was awfully hard to say it was kind of 4 this one off exception. So, you know, I hope so.
 5 You know, when I echo some of the things
 6 that other people said, I know that there's kind 7 of, like, is it a racial discrimination issue or is 8 it a processing issue? I think it's both. I 9 really do think it's both.
 10 So there's kind of an intersection with 11 the way the system is working or not working. And 12 like I say, and a deprioritization of new voters 13 which are often voters of color.
 14 COMMISSIONER MOORE: Thank you.
 15 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Just a few
 16 follow-up questions for the Director of Elections,
 17 Fulton County.
 18 You stated that there was a backlog of 19 14,000 DDS applications. How many remain today, do 20 you know?
 21 RICHARD BARRON: Zero. Yeah, we took 22 care of that in August. That was just one of the 23 -- when we went online in July, that was one of the 24 challenges that we had. We had to clear all of 25 those. So we were able to get that done in

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 even those in Gwinnett County, that was our focus,
 3 where we registered voters, many of them,
 4 especially the Asian Americans were also first-time
 5 voters.
 6 COMMISSIONER MOORE: So some of the 7 problems that you identified were fairly stunning.
 8 Do you have any confidence that any of your 9 strategies have succeeded in changing that 10 situation for the next group of people that are 11 newly voting?
 12 HELEN KIM HO: Well, I mean, it started a 13 more about -- you know, more groups that we work 14 with to also want to do voter registration
 15 naturalization ceremonies. It sparked a renewed 16 conversation about what we can do at the state 17 policy level.
 18 I think what our work did, at least my 19 knowledge of the past, was our groups would get, 20 you know, one individual story and we'd lift it up 21 to the press and look at this.
 22 But it's really easy when you just -- 23 when you don't quantify and keep all the data for, 24 you know, elections people to say, well, that was 25 just one situation.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 probably less than two weeks.
 3 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Is that typical or 4 do you have to isolate the causation of the 5 backlog?
 6 RICHARD BARRON: The backlog was caused 7 -- I probably shouldn't -- the backlog was caused 8 by some things going on in the office at the time,
 9 so...
 10 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Like what?
 11 RICHARD BARRON: Probably some things
 12 that I shouldn't talk about publicly.
 13 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Well, they weren't 14 systemic?
 15 RICHARD BARRON: No, no, no. This was 16 just those applications were coming in and they 17 were being held to be processed at a later time and 18 they should have been processed in a matter of 19 days.
 20 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: How many folks do
 21 you have working in your office?
 22 RICHARD BARRON: My regular staff
 23 including me, 19.
 24 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Do you know how 25 many people work in the tag office of Fulton

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 County?
 3 RICHARD BARRON: The tag.
 4 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Processing tags,
 5 automobile tags for Fulton County?
 6 RICHARD BARRON: No.
 7 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Thank you.
 8 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Any other
 9 questions?
 10 COMMISSIONER MOORE: I just have one
 11 more.
 12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I do, too.
 13 COMMISSIONER MOORE: Cheri, you made a
 14 very strong case for voter education and outreach.
 15 And I wondered if -- you were specifically talking 16 about people with disabilities.
 17 Do you have any other recommendations
 18 that you think -- one or two recommendations that 19 would really make a difference with people with 20 disabilities across Georgia?
 21 CHERI MITCHELL: Well, I think, again,
 22 it's about knowing your rights, knowing who to go 23 to when they're violate -- when you feel like 24 they've been violated or you think there's a 25 possibility.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 doing this same type of consolidation that you are 3 talking about in Greene County that specifically 4 gerrymanders, consolidates precincts, and make it
 5 inconvenient for voters to get to their polling 6 locations?
 7 SHARON BLACKWOOD: This was a fairly new 8 topic for me so these were the only two counties
 9 that I looked at. Greene County, I took that over 10 from another person who was going to be here to 11 speak and he wasn't here specifically to Greene
 12 County.
 13 And since I'm from Greene County and I
 14 was there this week, I just decided I would do some 15 research on that and report on that. So I am not 16 familiar with any other.
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. I believe 18 there are some other consolidations going on 19 throughout the state.
 20 Mr. Barron, a lot of the problems that 21 were enumerated earlier from some of the testimony 22 had to do with poll workers not knowing what to do 23 and how to handle, especially with regards to 24 provisional ballots, absentee voting, that kind of 25 thing.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Which, you know, I want everybody to know
 3 that's our job at the Georgia Advocacy Office. You 4 have a problem, call us. You know, that's what we 5 do for people with disabilities. We are the HAVA 6 recipient.
 7 And I think education is the key here.
 8 And I'm very concerned, and I didn't get 9 the chance to talk about people in institutional
 10 settings like nursing homes. Like this gentleman 11 talked about his grandfather not having an ID and 12 he's in a nursing facility. He's 98 years old, 13 yes, but he still has the right to vote, and he 14 should be able to.
 15 And, you know, anything that impedes
 16 that --
 17 (APPLAUSE.)
 18 CHERI MITCHELL: -- needs to be dealt
 19 with. And if he has a problem with that, call us.
 20 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I have one last 21 question for -- and I know Sharon talked about 22 consolidation, which is going on throughout the 23 state in the precincts. Then I have a final 24 question for Rick, I have to ask you this.
 25 Do you know of other counties that are

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 What kind of training standards do you
 3 have for your personnel and when do you do that 4 work, when do you start your training process, and 5 is it sufficient enough time to get them adequately 6 trained?
 7 RICHARD BARRON: One thing that we need
 8 to do with regard to training, we have so many 9 people that we have to train, we're going to have 10 to, for these larger elections, rent a big facility 11 and do it all in a few days closer to the election.
 12 Because we have so many that right now 13 the way it is set up, we start training poll 14 workers six weeks out, and we also have an online 15 training component that is supplemental to that 16 training.
 17 But when you're training somebody that 18 many weeks out and then you have to rely on them to 19 do the online training component and read through 20 their manual over that time, you know -- and you 21 have poll workers that will work, you know, once or 22 maybe three times a year, they, you know, will 23 sometimes forget all the procedures.
 24 Being a poll worker is really a difficult
 25 thing to do. There are so many -- so many things

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 that they have to know for that one day. And when 3 they have voters all of a sudden coming in and 4 they're facing the voters and voters are demanding 5 things, I think, you know, it's easy for them to 6 get overwhelmed and stressed out.

7 So what we have to do -- I mean, the one 8 thing that I changed when I came in was that the 9 online training component was the primary training.
 10 And so, like, we made the face-to-face training, 11 more hands-on training, the priority at the time.
 12 And as we go forward, I want to compress the 13 training and, you know, look at various aspects of 14 it.

15 We did a lot of emphasis on provisional 16 ballots this time. But, you know, we're always 17 going to -- one thing that I learned in -- 18 Georgia's provisional ballot process is a little 19 different than I'm used to as well.

20 And so it almost encourages people that 21 are out of their precinct to vote the provisional 22 ballot rather than going to their precinct, because 23 races that are in common with another precinct 24 still get counted.

25 Where in other states on the provisional,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Because you -- we have to get poll
 3 workers -- we have to get people in, you know, that 4 are willing to take -- either take some time off of 5 work to go to training and work that day. Or, you 6 know, we need people that aren't working to step 7 up.

8 So basically, you know, we meet the 9 standards, they just have to be a registered voter 10 and they have to pass a test at the end of the 11 class.

12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Do you actively 13 recruit? Since a lot of this is using technology, 14 do you actively recruit in college campuses and 15 other locations?

16 RICHARD BARRON: We have tried the 17 college campuses. And in my experience in Texas, 18 we actually had better luck with the high school
 19 students because we could recruit from 16 years old 20 and up, and the high school kids were much more 21 enthusiastic and actually showed up, whereas -- so 22 we had a really hard time getting college students 23 to work the polls all day compared to the high 24 school students.

25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. For the sake

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 you know, if you aren't in your precinct on 3 election day, your ballot doesn't count.

4 So the provisional ballot -- if you're 5 provisional ballot especially in -- you know, we 6 tell our poll workers not to turn anyone away.

7 You know, once they're out in the field, 8 you know, when you have 300 polling locations, it's 9 a little hard to monitor what everyone's doing on 10 that day. But we try to emphasize provisional 11 ballots and we definitely can improve in that area.

12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Well, it's more
 13 than just the provisional ballot being processed.
 14 I was just trying to get at your standards for 15 training.

16 How do you recruit the people that are 17 working in your polling locations and where do you 18 recruit them from?

19 RICHARD BARRON: They apply right on the 20 -- they fill out applications. We get the general 21 public in.

22 So, basically -- you know, what I've 23 always said is that our -- the elections sometimes 24 can only be as good as the public that's willing to 25 step forward and volunteer.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 of time, I'm not going to ask any more questions.
 3 We're not taking questions from the floor. We have 4 to go to the next panel.

5 Thank you all very much for your time.
 6 You all were great. Let's give them a big round of 7 applause.

8 (APPLAUSE.)

9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We have another
 10 panel that we're going to call after -- I'm going 11 to have an open mic session, another open mic 12 session now, and then we'll have our final panel.

13 I don't have any cards for the open mic,
 14 so if you'll bring those up.

15 While we're getting ready for the open 16 mic, I'm going to call up the next panel to sit 17 here so we'll be ready for them.

18 Melinda Sheldon, who is Deputy Director
 19 of Georgia Equality will be talking about voter ID 20 challenges for transgendered and gender variant
 21 voters.

22 Sarita McCoy Gregory from Kennesaw State
 23 University with voter ID as Section 5 trigger and 24 student voting.

25 Ronnie Mosley, Morehouse -- a former

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 Morehouse student, is now with a transit program,
 3 talking about the 2012 election problems for AUC
 4 students.
 5 Reverend Albert E. Love, President and 6 CEO of the Voter Empowerment Collaborative.
 7 So we're going to ask them to come up to 8 the stage and get ready.
 9 We said we would have open mic -- okay,
 10 we're going to go ahead with the panel before we go 11 to the open mic.
 12 So at this time we're going to hear from 13 Melinda.
 14 MELINDA SHELDON: Thank you for having 15 me.
 16 I work for --
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Excuse me, just a 18 minute. And the timekeeper is here. Please be 19 mindful.
 20 MELINDA SHELDON: I've worked for Georgia 21 Equality for the past nine years. We advocate on 22 behalf of gay transgendered Georgians.
 23 First, I'd like to recognize that today
 24 is transgender day and in an effort to observe 25 transgendered people around the globe who have been

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 provisional ballot until that eligibility is 3 confirmed.
 4 And that could be the best case scenario
 5 for them.
 6 But just being challenged can have an 7 emotional impact on any voter. When presenting ID, 8 41 percent of transgender voters reported being 9 harassed. 15 percent report being asked to leave 10 the polling place. And 3 percent of transgender 11 voters report actually being assaulted at a polling
 12 place. And this is a report by the Williams 13 Institute.
 14 So imagine the embarrassment that a 15 transgender person may feel when their ID and 16 gender is challenged in front of their neighbors 17 and their friends at a polling place. It probably 18 makes them hesitant to go back and vote on the next
 19 election day.
 20 So all of these barriers ultimately lead 21 to voter suppression and disenfranchisement of 22 transgender citizens.
 23 Some potential solutions to these issues.
 24 Of course, less strict photo ID laws.
 25 One of the things that we're working on

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 murdered or committed suicide.
 3 So I'm here to present this information 4 today on behalf of transgendered Georgians and 5 nonconforming Georgians.
 6 Voting ID laws in Georgia present a
 7 unique obstacles for transgendered people.
 8 To be transgender, if you're not clear on 9 that, is it means that the sex that someone was 10 assigned at birth and their own internal gender 11 identity do not match.
 12 So on election day the person who is 13 presenting the required photo ID to the poll worker 14 may present as a different gender than what is 15 reflected on their picture ID. This creates, 16 obviously, certain barriers at the polls.
 17 For many transgendered people, acquiring 18 a photo ID that reflects their preferred name and 19 gender identity can be difficult or even 20 impossible.
 21 In Georgia, 39 percent of transgender
 22 voting eligible population have no photo ID that 23 accurately reflects their gender identity.
 24 A transgender voter may be challenged by 25 a poll worker and required to fill out a

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 at Georgia Equality is having more transgender -- 3 or identifying more transgender folks who will work 4 at polling places in key locations around the 5 state.
 6 Most importantly, I think is there needs 7 to be training of poll workers regarding 8 transgender voters and how to handle that. There 9 are models that exist around this issue in other 10 states. But there needs to be -- this training 11 needs to be part of the required training that all 12 poll workers in the state of Georgia receive.
 13 When we get a report of discrimination
 14 based on a person's ID and their gender at a 15 polling place, it's difficult to identify recourse 16 for that person because there is a lack of clear 17 guidelines on how to handle this issue at the 18 polling place.
 19 And there's more information on this 20 issue at the National Center for Transgender Rights
 21 website.
 22 That's all I have tonight, but I
 23 appreciate you very much taking the time to allow 24 me to bring this to your attention. I think it's 25 very important for our community.

Page 170

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 3 Sarita McCoy Gregory, Kennesaw State
 4 University.
 5 SARITA McCOY GREGORY: Yes. Hi. Thank 6 you so much for the invitation to come and give 7 testimony.
 8 I would like to inform the discussion by 9 providing a brief summary of what is known from the 10 academic research on the impact of voter ID laws on 11 college students and young voters.
 12 I am an assistant professor of political 13 science at Kennesaw State University, a large state 14 university in Georgia.
 15 I have founded and administered two 16 college poll worker programs. One in Dutchess
 17 County, New York, and the other in Cobb County,
 18 Georgia, which brought over 500 college students 19 into the election administration process by serving 20 as poll workers on election day.
 21 The Dutchess County poll worker project
 22 that I founded was funded by two grants received 23 from the U.S. Election Assistance Commission.
 24 I hope to share testimony that will 25 contribute to a productive and sustained

Page 172

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 training.
 3 My personal experience with residency
 4 actually occurred in 2010. I lived on a college
 5 campus as a faculty fellow at Vassar College, a 6 highly selected liberal arts college in New York.
 7 I personally witnessed about 20 Vassar students who 8 experienced intimidation and harassment by one poll
 9 watcher who was inside the polling location.
 10 This poll watcher who we learned was not 11 from Dutchess County, waited for a student to enter 12 and then demanded to ask -- or to know their 13 address. When the student responded 123 Raymond 14 Avenue, the mailing address for Vassar, the poll 15 watcher would then challenge their residency and 16 force them to vote by provisional ballot.
 17 The only reason that I was actually 18 allowed to vote by machine was because I did not 19 respond to the poll watcher. I knew the law 20 regarding residency, I knew my rights. I simply 21 made eye contact with the poll worker and pointed 22 to my name and my signature that were located in 23 the poll book. I was allowed to vote.
 24 But across Dutchess County more than 80
 25 students from Bard and Vassar College were actually

Page 171

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 conversation about how best to move forward after 3 Shelby County.
 4 My testimony is divided into three brief 5 sections which, one, identified college students as 6 a vulnerable population; two, identified which 7 states have the most exacting and restrictive 8 requirements for college students; and three,
 9 anticipate the impact that current voting ID laws 10 have on student voter participation in 2014 and 11 2016.
 12 Academic scholars have found that those 13 populations most affected by voter ID requirements, 14 either strict or non-strict, are racial and ethnic 15 groups, senior citizens, the disabled, women, 16 people living with low incomes, and high school and 17 college students.
 18 According to the Fair Elections Legal 19 Network, the main barriers to student registration
 20 and voting are residency laws, voter ID 21 requirements, public versus private, registering by 22 mail, myths and misinformation which come from 23 schools, election officials and sometimes parents, 24 inconvenient polling places, a lack of resources 25 with too few voting machines and poll worker

Page 173

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 collectively prevented from voting because their 3 challenge -- because of the challenge to their 4 residency and because of being uninformed about 5 their legal rights.
 6 Several states which have had more
 7 relaxed requirements in terms of allowing college
 8 ID to count as ID have now proposed stricter 9 standards that only allow students to -- only allow 10 students attending state or public schools to use 11 their IDs. Those attending private schools are now 12 not allowed to show their ID as valid
 13 identification.
 14 Among the states who have already -- who 15 already have strict requirements, and those who are 16 moving to pass more restrictive laws, North 17 Carolina has one of the most restrictive statutes
 18 that would disallow all college IDs as valid
 19 identification.
 20 Texas allows concealed handgun license to 21 serve as a valid ID but does not allow college IDs 22 to count.
 23 Ohio requires students to declare their 24 intent to permanently reside in the state and only 25 allows state-issued IDs with names, addresses, and

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 signatures printed on the ID card. No student IDs
3 are allowed in Ohio.

4 Maine has a similar requirement. If a
5 student decides to register to vote, they have 30 6 days to obtain a Maine driver's license and to 7 register their vehicle in the state.

8 Washington, D.C. does not allow student 9 IDs, but students can show non-photo IDs, such as 10 housing assignments or tuition bills along with a 11 federally-issued ID.

12 Alaska and South Carolina allow students 13 to show non-photo voter registration cards, but 14 student IDs are not accepted.

15 In Georgia, Indiana, Tennessee and 16 Wyoming, only those students attending public state 17 institutions, like Kennesaw State, can use their 18 ID. Those attending private schools in the state 19 must use another form.

20 I will skip over.

21 There are several recommendations that I 22 would offer to encourage greater participation by 23 college students in the Democratic process of 24 voting.

25 One, we should know that young people do

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 vote. According to a report from Tufts University, 3 persons aged 18 to 29 voted at a rate of 40 percent 4 in 2000, 49 percent in 2004, 51 percent in 2008 and 5 45 percent in 2012.

6 The number of young voters in general and 7 in college -- the college-age voters in particular 8 is rising. And the impact of voter ID laws in 9 several states will certainly diminish those voting 10 rates in 2014 and 2016.

11 We should replace bad information with 12 good information. Colleges and universities must 13 provide clear instructions to students about their 14 voting rights. And I argue that this should be 15 begin in freshman orientation.

16 Most students would like to vote where 17 they live, they should be informed about 18 registration requirements and how to advocate for 19 themselves should they be challenged in their 20 election location.

21 Secondly, I think it should be made
22 easier for students to vote. Election officials 23 can locate polling stations on college and 24 university campuses. Not only will this increase 25 access and opportunity for students to vote where

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 they live, but it can also foster better town-gown
3 relations and encourage community members to fall
4 on college and university campuses.

5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay.

6 SARITA McCOY GREGORY: And then, finally,
7 I would like to say that I have seen college
8 students get involved, and I would say that 9 bringing students into the process early and 10 frequently is the best way to ensure that they stay 11 engaged for a lifetime.

12 Not only should poll workers receive 13 training that broadens their sensitivity to younger 14 voters and people living with disabilities or 15 people of color, but I also argue that the idea of 16 training college students to become poll workers 17 can help to facilitate smoother relations, they are 18 fluent in technology and the newer demands of 19 electronic voting machines, and they also can help 20 to break down stereotypes about college students 21 being apathetic or detached from politics.

22 Thank you.

23 (APPLAUSE.)

24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And now to one of 25 those students that actually participated in the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 election process, Ronnie Mosley.

3 RONNIE MOSLEY: Thank you all.

4 I'm here today and I just want to share
5 with you a bit about my experience.

6 In 2008, I could not vote in the 7 Presidential election because I was not of age.
8 Never did I expect to have any complications in 9 2012.

10 I arrived at the polling precinct on 11 Morehouse College Campus at 9 a.m., November 6th, 12 2012. And after waiting in a long line, I 13 presented my identification credentials and 14 completed forms only to be told I was not in the 15 system on the elector's list.

16 I knew this was not true because I had 17 checked my registration status day after day using 18 the Georgia Secretary of State's My Voter Page.

19 The poll manager, Ms. Robinson, advised
20 me to give a call to the Fulton County Government, 21 and after calling in three times, I finally got to 22 speak to a representative who told me to vote by a 23 provisional ballot.

24 Georgia's Secretary of State's website
25 states this about provisional ballots. If the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 elector is a first-time registrant by mail who did 3 not provide one of the acceptable forms of ID at 4 the time of registration, this voter must show 5 proper identification. If the elector is unable to 6 show identification at the time of voting, they may 7 vote by a provisional ballot, which will be counted 8 only if the voter presents identification within 9 the 2-day period following the election.
 10 I presented acceptable proof -- 11 acceptable identification and my information was in 12 the Secretary of State's system, yet, my polling 13 place still would not allow me to cast a vote.
 14 This seemed to be a recurring issue. At 15 approximately 1 p.m., the polling precinct at 16 Morehouse College had ran out of provisional 17 ballots because so many students had been forced to 18 cast provisional ballots. This lasted until 3 p.m.
 19 We were being denied our right to vote.
 20 I spoke with Erica Davis, the 21 Communication Director of Fulton County Government, 22 and she said herself she didn't know why I wasn't 23 in the system and could not promise me that I would 24 be in before polls close. Again, advising me to 25 vote by a provisional ballot.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 As a first-time presidential voter, I
 3 refused to accept anything less than a full vote 4 when all should have been in order. I wanted my 5 vote to count now, not later, for it was my voice.
 6 Unfortunately, I was not able to vote by 7 regular method and at approximately 4:30 p.m. I 8 voted by provisional ballot.
 9 By the end of that day, over 11,000
 10 Fulton County residents voted by provisional 11 ballot. 669 ballots were casted at the Morehouse
 12 precinct. The total number of students that casted 13 provisional ballots was 174, making up 25 percent 14 of the Morehouse polling precinct, therefore, we 15 requested that the county send officials to the 16 campus in an effort to assure that students' votes 17 would not be thrown out.
 18 It was not an easy effort and when we 19 created a solution to help, Fulton County
 20 representatives showed up late.
 21 The news reported that all provisional
 22 ballots had to be counted by that Friday. Fulton 23 County would wait until Friday to start counting.
 24 To date, I still don't know if my vote was counted 25 or thrown out.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 It wasn't until the following semester
 3 that I received a card from Fulton County informing 4 me that my voting precinct was indeed in Morehouse
 5 College.
 6 Fulton County Commissioner, William
 7 Edwards, said that there were no expectations 8 amongst the constituents that everything would be 9 perfect. I ask Why not?
 10 Interim Elections Director, Sharon 11 Mitchell, said that she believed things went rather 12 smoothly and that they kept their promise.
 13 Ms. Robinson, the poll manager, never 14 informed students that they -- what they needed to 15 comply or about the volunteers that offered to take 16 voters to their respective polling places.
 17 My question is, What type of message do 18 we send when you have done everything right and are 19 still denied the opportunity to be a part of 20 democracy?
 21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Amen. Thank you,
 22 Ronnie. Give him a hand.
 23 (APPLAUSE.)
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: He was there from 25 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. That was awesome, Ronnie,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 to stand there and have your voice heard.
 3 RONNIE MOSLEY: I think the most 4 disappointing part of the citizens that came out 5 that didn't stay till four or five, that just 6 simply walked away. Whatever we can do to prevent 7 that.
 8 MINISTER KAREN REAGLE: And took 9 provisional ballots without being told what they 10 could do?
 11 RONNIE MOSLEY: I agree. Yes, they did.
 12 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And our next 13 speaker is someone who really has been on the 14 streets getting people educated and registered to 15 vote, Reverend Albert E. Love, President and CEO of 16 the Voter Empowerment Collaborative.
 17 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: Thank you very 18 kindly.
 19 First of all, thank you all for convening 20 this. Let me just give you some idea of the 21 climate, and that's what I want to talk more about, 22 we've got a lot of anecdotal information, but the 23 climate of the state that you are holding this in.
 24 We have an elections commission that's a 25 little white and a little Negro. We have a state

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 where all of the constitutional offices is a little 3 white and little Negro. So I'm just giving you a 4 context of all of what everybody else is saying.
 5 This is a context of where you are and what we are 6 up against.
 7 And so with that being said, the second 8 point I want to make is this. We have heard from 9 the county, we've heard from the state.
 10 Now, my -- this is Albert E. Love
 11 speaking. I don't know whether there's collusion 12 between the two.
 13 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Good question.
 14 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: But the net effect 15 of it is that all is not right. And that some of 16 us went to the Secretary of State and talked with 17 Brother Kemp. Some of us went to the county. Each 18 tends to blame the other.
 19 But the net effect of it is that it's 20 disenfranchisement of voters.
 21 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 22 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: And so what I'm 23 here to say is that, and I hope to communicate some 24 of my testimony in my attire, and that is that we 25 need to put a game face on this thing. This is

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 the end of the -- we're getting the short end of 3 the stick on this thing.
 4 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Yep.
 5 (APPLAUSE.)
 6 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: And as one person, 7 I am not pleased. And so, I guess, my testimony is 8 that we don't have to count the beans anymore, you 9 know, the jelly beans, and we don't have to count 10 the numbers of bubbles in a soap bar anymore, but 11 there's some stuff going on with these computers.
 12 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 13 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Thank you.
 14 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: And it seems like 15 there are some forces that's orchestrating this 16 thing.
 17 And so, I don't know if I'm the only 18 person to get caught up into, you know, whether the 19 county's doing this or whether the state is doing 20 this, but somebody might be having some meetings on 21 the golf course and looking at this whole thing.
 22 So my testimony is that there's a lot 23 that's not going on that's right that seem to be in 24 high places, and that while we may not be able to 25 put out frequently, but I think that most of us

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 serious.
 3 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.
 4 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: And that we 5 citizens need to be more proactive in a more 6 aggressive way --
 7 (APPLAUSE.)
 8 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: -- to deal with 9 this thing.
 10 And so I hope that the information that 11 we get, I personally as one person, you know, that 12 leads with our current Justice Department and the 13 way that it has handled some of the issues that is 14 coming forth.
 15 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 16 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: So I'm sure 17 there's enough blame to go around, even including 18 me, because I'm sure there's more that I can do.
 19 But the bottom line is that I embrace
 20 technology and my learned sister here at Kennesaw
 21 State and all of that, but at this point I have a 22 high degree of paranoia about all of these systems.
 23 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 24 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: Because at the end
 25 of the day, especially we black folk, we getting

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 believe it's not right.
 3 The redistricting in Fulton County, that 4 play, I mean, that's sinister.
 5 AUDIENCE MEMBER: It is.
 6 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: That's evil.
 7 And so that's it. And as one person, I'm 8 not pleased and that I've got my game face on in 9 terms of, as they say, handling some things.
 10 And I hope that you can communicate that 11 to whomever you need to get to that in Georgia all 12 is not well.
 13 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 14 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: And we are not 15 pleased.
 16 (APPLAUSE.)
 17 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you,
 18 Reverend. And thank the panel.
 19 Any questions about solutions?
 20 Questions?
 21 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, you did
 22 speak Reverend Love about, you know, what the 23 problems are and so on. But are there specific 24 solutions that you would recommend to, you know, 25 state officials or, you know, congressional

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 officials about what they specifically should do?
 3 REVEREND ALBERT LOVE: Well, in terms of 4 working with Kennesaw State or whoever it is 5 specifically to try to work out this technology 6 thing, you know, whatever that is that's causing 7 these cards not to be printed correctly.
 8 If that's systemic, if it's the software 9 or all of those technological terms, that needs to 10 be worked out fast, quick, and in a hurry.
 11 RONNIE MOSLEY: I have a few solutions,
 12 if I may. I would offer online voter registration, 13 and then also same day voter registration.
 14 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Exactly.
 15 (APPLAUSE.)
 16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Any other
 17 questions?
 18 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: What were some of 19 the civic engagement educational initiatives that 20 were started by Morehouse in response to this?
 21 RONNIE MOSLEY: You know, I really can't 22 say in response to it, but I can give you a picture 23 of what we did leading up to election.
 24 At the Morehouse campus alone, we 25 registered over a thousand new voters and we held

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 educational summits that day.
 3 The reason why I went at 9 a.m. is 4 because we still had classes that day officially, 5 but the students took it amongst themselves to skip 6 class and go vote and go out to the community to 7 bring others to their respective polling places to 8 help as many folks that wanted to get out and vote 9 to get out and vote.
 10 That's what I was talking about a bit
 11 when I made note of Ms. Robinson not letting other 12 students know what they needed to do to make sure 13 their vote counted.
 14 But also that there were folks on the 15 college campus that were willing to take you 16 wherever. We had one guy drive all the way to 17 Decatur to ensure someone voted.
 18 So we took a lot of measures leading up 19 to election day.
 20 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I have a question
 21 for Ms. McCoy. I do appreciate the information on 22 student voting. You talked about recommending 23 freshman orientation to include the right to vote.
 24 Are the colleges actually implementing 25 the law in Georgia that requires them to be a

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 deputy registrar where they are required to 3 register -- offer registration to eligible voters, 4 is that happening?
 5 SARITA McCOY GREGORY: I moved to Georgia
 6 two years ago, so I can only speak to my experience
 7 at Kennesaw State.
 8 I know that after I initiated the college 9 Poll Worker Project on that campus, it was very 10 close to the election when I was approached by 11 someone from the Dean of Students' Success Office, 12 and he informed me that he was the deputy registrar
 13 for our campus.
 14 But it was the first time I had heard 15 from him and it was, again, maybe a week before the 16 election and he wanted to know how college poll 17 worker recruitment was going.
 18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: But that's the poll
 19 worker. But the registration process.
 20 SARITA McCOY GREGORY: Right. My 21 experience at Kennesaw State was that there were 22 several voter registration drives held on campus, 23 and so I can attest that that was happening. At 24 other campuses, I don't know.
 25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: That were

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 sanctioned by the president -- by this deputy 3 registrar guy?
 4 SARITA McCOY GREGORY: Yes. Correct.
 5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay.
 6 Any other questions?
 7 We thank you all so much for your 8 valuable testimony. And keep up the good work.
 9 (APPLAUSE.)
 10 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: At this time we're 11 going to have open mic and I'm going to call you in 12 the order that you're to speak.
 13 And we're going to limit it to three 14 minutes. Timekeeper is here. And when -- I don't 15 know when the stop is, so when it stops, just wave 16 it up and down so I'll know that means stop so that 17 we can do that.
 18 All right. I'm going to call you so make 19 your way down as I call your name. Phyllis Bailey, 20 who's talking about the voting rights as it affects 21 Fulton County.
 22 Jimmy Cameron, voting rights.
 23 John Benson, expanding voting rights.
 24 Kevin Dow, electronic voting machines.
 25 Margo Waters, impediments to vote for the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 handicap.
 3 Martha Alexander, voter rights and voter
 4 ID.
 5 Ron Shakir, the vote count.
 6 Steen Miles, the Voting Rights Act.
 7 And Yolanda Chancellor, voter ID
 8 requirements.
 9 And John E. Jones, the voting rights
 10 case.
 11 So in that order.
 12 Three minutes, please. And timekeeper is 13 here and she's going to wave it up and down so I 14 know that means to stop.
 15 PHYLLIS BAILEY: Good evening.
 16 My name is Phyllis Bailey and I'm a 17 resident of Fulton County. I've been here for nine 18 years, and believe me, what I seen today and what 19 I've observed of my nine years here proves that 20 Georgia has an institutional racist kind of 21 mentality. And I find it most disturbing.
 22 It has affected our seniors in that the 23 redistricting plan has caused our senior centers, 24 senior services to be placed in jeopardy.
 25 The person who speaks most forcefully for

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 us, our Commissioner Darnell, is being moved from 3 our community, our area, and our center is being 4 placed in an area that will not receive the support 5 that she's given us.
 6 Now, not only are seniors being affected, 7 but children are being affected. Our schools are 8 being put in a position of being -- the south side 9 schools, which has, one, the learning center, and 10 you have the north side schools. And they have 11 decided what kinds of offerings they're giving 12 them.
 13 You're emphasizing training and so forth 14 in the south. And what the -- seemingly -- with 15 the seemingly preclusion that only in the north 16 will you find the bright students.
 17 Now, I realize my time's up, but the 18 thing is we've been here since 3:35.
 19 And the voting rights of our people will 20 be so ineffective under this new plan that even in 21 a generation from now, these surly effects will 22 still be felt. And of course, this seems to have 23 been the plan all along.
 24 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 25 PHYLLIS BAILEY: I'm very disturbed about

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 it and I hope that you will get this message to the 3 people who need to hear it.
 4 Thank you.
 5 (APPLAUSE.)
 6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Jimmy Cameron.
 7 Jimmy Cameron is not here.
 8 Kevin Dow, electronic voting machine.
 9 Kevin Dow?
 10 Okay. Margo Waters, impediments to vote
 11 for the handicap.
 12 MARGO WATERS: No, that is not what I
 13 said. I used People First language and I said 14 disabled. I did not say handicap.
 15 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay, thank you.
 16 MARGO WATERS: So, yes, impediments,
 17 people with disabilities and primarily access to 18 vote.
 19 One of the things that I want to say 20 first is lots of times the impediment is being able 21 to have access to the polling place.
 22 I live here in this district and I vote 23 at Liberty Baptist Church. The sidewalk is 24 horrible. Even coming to this meeting from the 25 Decatur train station was horrible. I almost fell

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 out of my chair having to cross back and forth to 3 find a decent sidewalk with a curb cut.
 4 So as that may stop -- not stop me, it 5 will stop other people with disabilities from being 6 active in the community.
 7 So if the people we vote for, Mayor Kasim 8 Reed and his infrastructure, I haven't seen any 9 repairs to the sidewalks since he's been the Mayor.
 10 And in fact, I went to a housing meeting 11 the other day and complained about no curb cut at 12 the King Memorial Station at the sidewalk that's 13 been there like that forever, and there was a 14 pothole that I mentioned. How about the next day, 15 that pothole got fixed. That doesn't benefit me.
 16 That work that I did benefited all of you drivers 17 who drive that street and have no respect for me
 18 when I'm in the crosswalk trying to cross it.
 19 So I think these impediments that bar us
 20 from being active in the community it also stops 21 people from going to the polls.
 22 So wherever these polling places, I wish 23 they would consider looking into them, into the 24 accessibility, making sure there's curb cuts and 25 the senior disabled population can get out and vote

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 freely without using other choices.
 3 So that's all I have to say.
 4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 5 (APPLAUSE.)
 6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Martha Alexander,
 7 voter rights and voter ID.
 8 GARRETT SCOTT: So, Madam Facilitator,
 9 I'm going to go on an assumption that your charge 10 is to my head and not my heart.
 11 I actually did sign up prior to that 12 lady, and I'm just going to go on the assumption 13 that we spoke about tonight, and this is just one 14 of those incidents where I was accidentally removed 15 from the voting list just as some people spoke to.
 16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: What's your name?
 17 GARRETT SCOTT: Garrett Scott.
 18 I don't expect --
 19 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I don't have it, 20 no.
 21 GARRETT SCOTT: Pardon me?
 22 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I don't have that
 23 up here.
 24 MARGO WATERS: He signed in before I did.
 25 GARRETT SCOTT: I did.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 attention that Georgia was the first state to 3 actually have accessible voting booths in this 4 country. That's something that we should be 5 extremely proud of.
 6 But it really loses its luster when there
 7 aren't individuals who are actually trained to show 8 someone here is the accessible voting booth, this 9 is what you need.
 10 It should not be a process where someone 11 says, I don't know, stick him over there in the 12 corner, maybe someone will show up. You didn't 13 bring someone with you to vote? Statements like 14 that should never be made.
 15 And I have nothing more and nothing less 16 than anyone else. I am an individual. I am a 17 person who has rights in this state.
 18 (APPLAUSE.)
 19 GARRETT SCOTT: And when you take those 20 opportunities to discount someone's rights as a 21 human being, then we're doing much more than just 22 not allowing them to vote, we're taking someone who 23 has first class rights and making them a second 24 class citizen.
 25 I am thoroughly offering myself and my

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: We want to hear
 3 what you have to say.
 4 GARRETT SCOTT: Yes, sir. Thank you very 5 much.
 6 So what I wanted to talk about very 7 quickly is, with opportunity and to know that my 8 grandparents told me never offer a problem if 9 you're not going to work to be a part of the 10 solution.
 11 With some of the effort that was spoken 12 about and the way people felt that they were being 13 treated at the polling booth, I think there needs 14 to be much more of an effort of the individual that 15 is volunteering, and, of course, they're 16 volunteering, and there's some of those that work 17 in the polls who are being paid, there needs to be 18 much more of a diversity of training involved in 19 the poll training process.
 20 Individuals who are blind are becoming 21 disheartened about voting as most Americans do, 22 going to the poll, waiting in line, because when 23 they get there most of times there's no one who 24 understands how the accessible voting booth works.
 25 I'm sure I don't have to bring it to your

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 organization. I actually have the pleasure of 3 serving as President of the National Federation of 4 the Blind in Georgia, the largest group of 5 organized blind individuals in the state.
 6 And I will do exactly what I say. If you
 7 all call me, we will come and do training. We're 8 not just for the blind community, but the 9 disability community as a whole.
 10 Because terms like "handicap" should not 11 be used. The word "handicap" was derived from the 12 1930s when individuals were ashamed for having a 13 child with a disability. They were putting them 14 out of the house at age 16 and they would only give 15 them a hat to wear. And they would stand on a 16 corner with that hat in their hand hoping people 17 will put money in it so that they can buy food.
 18 That's where the term "handicap" came from.
 19 (APPLAUSE.)
 20 GARRETT SCOTT: So we want to work not to 21 allow terms like that to be used again.
 22 And I think some sort of diversity
 23 training is definitely needed.
 24 Thank you very much.
 25 (APPLAUSE.)

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you.
 3 Ron Shakir, vote count.
 4 Oh, Ms. Alexander is here.
 5 MARTHA ALEXANDER: Yes, I am.
 6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.
 7 MARTHA ALEXANDER: I'm a lady and I'm 8 afraid I couldn't butt in front of him.
 9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: That's okay.
 10 MARTHA ALEXANDER: I would like to speak 11 on voters' rights. And the first thing I would 12 like to do is piggyback on what Ms. Darnell said.
 13 I'm out of that district and it is 14 ridiculous what they're trying to do to the people
 15 in District 5, but we want you to know we are not 16 going back.
 17 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.
 18 MARTHA ALEXANDER: The first thing is I 19 want to know why can't you put voting booths in the 20 senior high-rises and in the senior centers.
 21 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 22 MARTHA ALEXANDER: Because that's where 23 most of the seniors are and they can get there and 24 there will be people there that will help them to 25 vote.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 do it again if you give us the opportunity.
 3 All we are asking for is the same rights
 4 of everybody else. And when you get ready to cut, 5 don't always want to cut the seniors. We would 6 like to have our rights, too.
 7 And then most of the time what you're 8 doing is you're saying you got to have a driver's 9 license. After you get a certain age, they say you 10 can't have a driver's license anymore.
 11 So, therefore, we should be able to vote
 12 if we can give you a letter that say I live at 2140 13 Fern Valley Drive. That ought to identify me. Or 14 if I have a checkbook that says I'm Martha 15 Alexander and I live at 2140. Nobody else should 16 be able to give you that type of information.
 17 Why is it so important that you have 18 certain types of pain to be able to vote? And why 19 is it that you got to set up certain guidelines to 20 try to put us back to where we was in the '60s.
 21 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 22 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 23 (APPLAUSE.)
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Ron Shakir.
 25 RON SHAKIR: Yes, Ron Shakir. I want to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 (APPLAUSE.)
 3 MARTHA ALEXANDER: Voting should be made
 4 more accessible to the seniors. This country was 5 built on the back of the seniors.
 6 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 7 MARTHA ALEXANDER: And then once we get 8 up in the age, you want to cut us, you want to put 9 us back and you want to discriminate against us and 10 that is wrong.
 11 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 12 MARTHA ALEXANDER: I have been in this 13 county since 1955, I am 80 years old and I demand 14 my rights. I feel that I have gone through some of 15 everything. I was here when they -- when we used 16 to have them sit in the back, but I have left the 17 back, I'm to the front and going to speak for my 18 rights and going to stand up for them as long as I 19 can.
 20 And you're talking about peoples' that 21 can work the polls. Most of the seniors are 22 educated peoples'. If you would hire them, they 23 would work. They wouldn't be like high school 24 students or like the college student. We know the 25 ropes, we've been there, we've done it, and we can

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 try to get to the point real fast.
 3 We're looking at the press, money, and 4 elections, the lack of courage to the campaign and 5 the candidates. The uncertainty in election
 6 results on election night. A lot of media
 7 advertise for weeks to tune in, we'll give you 8 dependable coverage on election night.
 9 Education. Where you have the lack of 10 forums, the lack of League of Women Voters, and 11 other noncommercial parties that allow forums to be 12 discussed where you have citizens to show up and 13 reporters and the press reporting it. This is 14 education.
 15 I was a candidate in the 11th district.
 16 The 11th district, I sat in. After the polls
 17 closed at 8:00 I went to a local restaurant and sat
 18 with some other candidates. And when the results
 19 started coming in, 3 out of 4, 4 out of 4, 4 of 13 20 precincts had reported. And this is about the 21 second report came forth in the city council
 22 election in the 11th district, Ron Shakir had 1309
 23 votes.
 24 At the end of the night when we left, and 25 some of my friends the next morning woke up to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 find, what I found at the end of the night, that I
 3 had 700 votes.
 4 We have had -- we have had what some 5 people call 13 percent, 17 percent, less than 20
 6 percent. I heard a statistic saying that only 2
 7 out of 13 people voted in this election. Why?
 8 Because they are losing faith in the system.
 9 I heard the conversation about computer
 10 votes. The idea is that people in this country now 11 is calling more and more for a paper trail.
 12 The idea that we could have votes that we 13 not certain whether or not a person is getting or 14 that is being counted is what is causing us to lose 15 our faith.
 16 Should we wait for a Pearl Harbor moment
 17 that we stand up and fight for justice and freedom?
 18 Do we have to wait? How many Rosa Park
 19 descriptions, have to get on the back of the bus, 20 and we had to find the right Rosa Park moment to 21 stand up and fight. Every vote is precious and 22 every vote ought to be counted.
 23 I just want to do what Sheriff Lankford 24 has done four years ago, and that is to point and 25 shed light on the irregularities that's taking

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 place on the secrecy of voting.
 3 The idea that we would have an election
 4 and we had statistics that show that early voting
 5 showed problems with the website. We need to call 6 in right now, real fast, and real soon before 7 people start going to the ballot to vote and just 8 give up totally or takes on another type of 9 reaction to not being denied their freedom and 10 justice.
 11 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you,
 12 Ron. I do want to ask you a question, though.
 13 In terms of those statistical 14 differences, were those actually -- you posted -- 15 election results are posted inside the precinct, 16 the county precinct, so those precinct totals
 17 inside that precinct were, you said --
 18 RON SHAKIR: No, no, it was 4 out of 13
 19 precincts had been -- had closed.
 20 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: But this was posted
 21 in the precinct itself, these results?
 22 RON SHAKIR: These results was done like 23 they have been done ever since I've been observing 24 the elections since John F. Kennedy -- Lyndon 25 Baines Johnson. They got it wrong. The city got

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 it from the government. It came from Fulton
 3 County.
 4 Now --
 5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: But who got it from 6 Fulton County?
 7 RON SHAKIR: This was -- the read that I
 8 have here came from Atlanta Journal Constitution.
 9 Now, this was --
 10 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. So it was 11 not an election official that actually had 12 official --
 13 RON SHAKIR: Exactly.
 14 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We're trying to get 15 to the actual administration of the election 16 requires that it's done in -- you didn't get the 17 data from Fulton County, you got this from someone 18 else?
 19 RON SHAKIR: I got it from four major
 20 networks, and people had reported to me, but this 21 came from -- which I took a photo from Atlanta 22 Journal Constitution.
 23 And observing elections, I have never 24 seen votes taken off the board what the media has 25 reported. I mean, was it, did the dog eat the

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 homework? It could have been true. But we don't 3 know.
 4 But the press is very important. Freedom 5 of the press is very important and they ought to 6 drill down and ask the questions where and how did 7 the Atlanta Journal Constitution come up with these 8 figures.
 9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Did the media tell
 10 you that they got that directly from the Fulton 11 County and did they show you the actual piece of 12 paper that -- which they posted the information?
 13 I'm trying to get to that.
 14 RON SHAKIR: Thanks for asking that 15 question, and the answer is no. I was in the 16 certification room and one person was on the Board
 17 of Elections, Commissioner of the board, whatever, 18 who made that -- you know, the ones who certified 19 the election, he stated that he saw the same 20 results where Ron Shakir had a substantial lead 21 late in the night.
 22 But what he stated is that that station
 23 he was looking at made a retraction. The station I
 24 was looking at, which is the Atlanta Journal
 25 Constitution, did not have a retraction and nobody

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 told me that they heard a retraction. But this is 3 the job of the press to educate the people what 4 actually took place that night.
 5 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right. Thank
 6 you.
 7 Steen Miles.
 8 JOHN BENSON: What about John Benson?
 9 AUDIENCE MEMBER: She stepped -- she's 10 gone. Steen Miles left.
 11 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: She left. Okay.
 12 Hold on. I still got them here.
 13 I think I called you earlier. Did I call 14 you earlier?
 15 JOHN BENSON: You called me earlier.
 16 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay, go ahead.
 17 JOHN BENSON: Okay. My name is John 18 Benson. I was the Socialist Worker's Party 19 candidate for Mayor of Atlanta. I was a write-in 20 candidate.
 21 Because there's another set of 22 restrictions that we need to be aware of. The very 23 high signature requirements and financial require 24 -- filing fees to get on the ballot. Especially if 25 you're someone -- especially a worker who does not

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 living for social security, affirmative action with 3 quotas on the job.
 4 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Amen.
 5 JOHN BENSON: They're all under attack.
 6 Not just voting rights. Every single gain we have 7 ever made is under attack, as this economic crisis, 8 it's deeper and deeper and deeper.
 9 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 10 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Yes.
 11 JOHN BENSON: And the only way to defend 12 voting rights is to build a new movement in the 13 streets. They were won not in Congress, they were 14 won on the streets, they'll be won at rallies, at 15 picket lines and protest rallies, strikes.
 16 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.
 17 JOHN BENSON: And we have to build a 18 movement like that.
 19 It's only when the resistance grows so 20 strong they cannot deny it that they will give in.
 21 And this is a bipartisan attack on us.
 22 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 23 JOHN BENSON: Make no mistake about that.
 24 I also believe we should be talking about 25 expanding voting rights. Especially I thought it

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 believe that the Republican or Democratic party 3 represents them it's very hard for another party or 4 independent to get on the ballot. And this denies 5 voters' rights.
 6 Now, the attack on voters' rights just 7 totally described here is very real and very deep 8 and very important. But what we have to remember 9 is the 13th, 14th and 15th Amendments and the 10 Voting Rights Act itself were won as a result of 11 massive struggles of millions and tens of millions 12 of people, of working people.
 13 The Voting Rights Act didn't start in 14 Congress, it started at Woolworths, it started at 15 the Montgomery bus boycott, and it's under attack 16 because that isn't happening anymore.
 17 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Amen.
 18 JOHN BENSON: That's what we have to do.
 19 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Exactly.
 20 JOHN BENSON: It took a war to abolish 21 slavery.
 22 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 23 JOHN BENSON: It wasn't done easily.
 24 There were a lot of other gains from the 25 movement of the '50s and '60s, Medicare, cost of

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 was important to discuss the question of prisoners, 3 former prisoners, especially since the majority of 4 prisoners in this country have never ever been 5 convicted of anything.
 6 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right.
 7 JOHN BENSON: It's plea bargaining.
 8 And I also believe that everyone who 9 lives and works here should have the right to vote.
 10 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Yes.
 11 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 12 (APPLAUSE.)
 13 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Yolanda Chancellor, 14 voting ID requirements. And ask Mr. John Jones to 15 get ready.
 16 YOLANDA CHANCELLOR: Hi, my mom was also 17 on the list, so I was going to let her go first, if 18 it's okay with you, and then I'll go.
 19 MAMIE CHANCELLOR: Okay. I wanted to 20 talk about the required --
 21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Speak into the mic
 22 so she can hear you, please, and state your name.
 23 MAMIE CHANCELLOR: My name is Mamie
 24 Chancellor. And I have concerns about the required 25 identification pieces that we need.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 And I really just wanted to say to this 3 lady with the hat, she spoke about so much that is 4 so meaningful to me.

5 But what I want to really -- when I went 6 to get my driver's license, I had them for years, 7 the papers that I took weren't enough, so I got to 8 go get another birth certificate.

9 My birth certificate, I was born when 10 they were putting them in the Bible. And it was in 11 my granddaddy's Bible when I went to get my social 12 security.

13 So I feel they accepted that at the 14 social security office. You know, you really find 15 out who you are when you go there. They accepted 16 that little piece of paper out of the Bible, but it 17 wasn't acceptable for my driver's license for this 18 time for identification. So that's something that 19 I really had some concerns about.

20 And I feel that if you have social 21 security, you reach that stage, whatever 22 identification pieces you have, and if that's 23 accepted there, why not for the voting.

24 And the other part -- thing that I had 25 here was the -- I need to go get a birth

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 certificate. Even though I had my license for 3 years, I've been all around different places, but 4 go downtown -- first, they give you a list of 5 things that you need. That takes forever. They 6 gave me a temporary driving permission.

7 But to get all of those -- it's only 3
8 out of about 8 or 10, but it costs more money. You 9 got to pay for that. It costs time and it's 10 inconvenient.

11 And because I'm in the, I'll say the 12 condition that I'm in, I can do my own calls. I 13 can do all of that. But I think for the other 14 people that aren't able to do that, they want to 15 vote, they want to participate, but it's awful.

16 So something, I don't know what can be 17 done, but something should be done about that.

18 And I also agree with part of the 19 machines going to the site of the homes and places.
20 That is a great idea.

21 And for me I think the whole -- I'm going 22 to call it this -- the whole voting system is being 23 reversed because -- I'm not 120, but I did go 24 through some of this stuff in terms of not being 25 able to vote, my momma did, being difficult or not

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 finding your name and all of that kind of stuff, 3 that is just a ploy. That's what I call it.

4 So I think whatever we need to do, we 5 need to do. But especially for seniors.

6 Oh, yeah, I see stop.

7 We need -- we really need to make it more 8 convenient for us, period.

9 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. Thank you so
10 much.

11 (APPLAUSE.)

12 YOLANDA CHANCELLOR: Hi. Thanks for 13 letting my mom speak.

14 I'm Yolanda Chancellor, and as my mom
15 says, it's a challenge trying to get the IDs.

16 And my mother is a retired registered
17 nurse, psychiatric, substance abuse, obstetrics, 18 surgical nurse.

19 She has a nursing license. So that 20 should be admissible for people to vote. If you 21 have some type of license or professional license, 22 you should be able to utilize that to vote.

23 As for me, we've gone through this rodeo
24 before trying to get her a birth certificate.

25 We've been down -- well, when she moved here from

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
2 Illinois, we had to go to the archives. I mean, I
3 had to make a tour of Georgia trying to obtain a 4 birth certificate for my mom, and she still doesn't 5 have one.

6 And she takes the Bible with -- you know, 7 you think Bible. No, it's a big -- you know, the 8 big Bibles that she's taken to validate herself.
9 Which I agree social security or, you know, a 10 nursing license should substantiate that she is a 11 citizen and she's receiving social security. So 12 that should validate that she's a citizen.

13 As for me, I had to pay for my birth 14 certificate when I was in Illinois. They had 15 trouble finding me. So when I went to Illinois, I 16 had to take time out of my trip to go to the birth 17 certificate office in Evanston, Illinois, to get my 18 birth certificate.

19 So I consider it a poll tax for me to 20 have to pay for my birth certificate, to get a 21 copy, in order to get a driver's license.

22 And lastly, I would like to say -- I got 23 three minutes, okay. I would like to say I would 24 like to get a receipt --

25 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: You don't have to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 use them all, you know.
 3 YOLANDA CHANCELLOR: Okay.
 4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I can say that to 5 you, Yolanda.
 6 YOLANDA CHANCELLOR: Yes, absolutely.
 7 I would like to get a receipt when I
 8 vote. Some type of paper trail of my vote. I 9 think they should be cross-referenced with a paper 10 vote and a computer to make sure it's accurate.
 11 I think that also they need to eliminate 12 these malfunctioning machines. Some of my friends
 13 that I've spoken to when they're trying to punch
 14 one person, somebody else is coming up. I think 15 those machines are -- any machine can be 16 compromised, so we shouldn't allow that to 17 determine who is elected and who isn't.
 18 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.
 19 YOLANDA CHANCELLOR: So that's what I
 20 would like to say.
 21 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Thank you.
 22 (APPLAUSE.)
 23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: John Jones, voter's
 24 rights case.
 25 JOHN E. JONES: My name is John E. Jones,

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 and I'm the President of the Fayette County Branch
 3 of the NAACP where we had a voter rights case that 4 was -- decision came down earlier this year 5 striking down at-large voting, yet, the judge has 6 not finalized the order to make that happen.
 7 And I heard Frederick Douglass, heard
 8 that he said that power concedes nothing without a 9 demand. And so in listening to references to get 10 -- taking it to the streets, I think that's real.
 11 That needs to happen. Because power will not 12 concede anything until we get into the streets
 13 again.
 14 I was asked also to ask about voting
 15 dates changing for the upcoming election, because I 16 had heard something about the primaries were 17 changing and they were moving them up or something, 18 so if you could address that.
 19 The other thing I wanted to say was that 20 because this judge has delayed his decision more 21 than a reasonable amount of time, is it possible
 22 that this judge could be charged with obstruction 23 of justice or a violation of civil rights?
 24 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Okay. In terms of 25 -- I can't answer about the judge, but I can tell

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 you in terms of the date, that the primary date has 3 been moved up, that was due to a court decision and 4 that's why that was made. So that -- 5 JOHN E. JONES: I'm doing some 6 research --
 7 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: -- they're 8 complying with the federal election rules. So that 9 date of the primary has been changed and it should 10 be on the Secretary of State's website in terms of 11 what those dates will be.
 12 Thank you.
 13 JOHN E. JONES: Okay. And with the 14 obstruction of justice, I've been doing some 15 research about it and I just would like to know, 16 are the judges -- can they be charged with 17 obstruction of justice for delaying -- 18 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: I'm going to let 19 Laughlin answer that one. He's the lawyer, I'm 20 not.
 21 COMMISSIONER McDONALD: Well, what you
 22 can do is you can file what's called a petition for 23 a writ of mandamus with the Court of Appeals and 24 ask the Court of Appeals to require the district 25 court judge to enter an order.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 JOHN E. JONES: All right. Thank you,
 3 sir.
 4 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: And our final
 5 speaker, open mic speaker, will be Dr. Gretchen C.
 6 Lockett, who established Universal Criteria for 7 Federal Elections.
 8 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: Good evening.
 9 (APPLAUSE.)
 10 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: I haven't 11 established anything here. But I certainly would 12 like to see some things established.
 13 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: Oh, okay. All
 14 right.
 15 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: I'd like to thank 16 the panel for coming here and holding these 17 hearings, and I'm hoping that what is being 18 recorded by a court reporter here that it gets to 19 the Congress because they need to do some things.
 20 AUDIENCE MEMBER: Right.
 21 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: In addition to our 22 going into the street, but before we go into the 23 street, we need to have done this kind of homework.
 24 AUDIENCE MEMBER: That's right.
 25 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: In dealing with

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 elections for federal office, we could establish -- 3 we could get the Congress to pass a law to 4 establish universal regulations, okay?
 5 And those regulations would cover such 6 things as registration forms, hours, early voting 7 hours and days. They could establish what kind of 8 ID would be utilized. And they can have same day 9 registration for federal elections, okay?
 10 So that's not -- I mean, that's not 11 something that's impossible to do. That's 12 something that could be done pretty soon and in 13 preparation for 2014.
 14 I am a faculty member, an adjunct faculty 15 member at Chattahoochee Technical College, and 16 every semester I teach a course called Principles
 17 of American Government. And I give my students 18 five points if they can prove to me that they are 19 registered voter. I have been told by one of my 20 colleagues that Georgia has passed a law that says 21 that that is illegal.
 22 So I need to know if that's true or not 23 because I'm told that the Georgia legislature in 24 passing that law said that you were buying votes 25 from students. So I want to know if I continue to

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 give those five points am illegal?
 3 And I want to caution or at least -- I
 4 mean, I'm sure you already know this, but I think 5 it's a serious thing.
 6 We have the Georgia legislature and a lot
 7 of these other Republican legislatures coming 8 together to try and change -- to install the 9 legislative districts as the electoral college 10 districts. And if that is done, then it's going to 11 really disenfranchise those people who look like me 12 or are some kind of kin to me or something.
 13 So I think we need to do something 14 serious about that. It can be done, but -- and 15 maybe what we need to do is to be about the 16 business of wiping out the electoral college.
 17 That's a -- I mean, that's a long-term thing, but 18 that would be a constitutional amendment that we 19 might be able to get passed. Because I even think 20 some of the Tea Party people might be in support of 21 that.
 22 So that's my input. Thank you.
 23 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: All right. Thank
 24 you.
 25 There is a Georgia law that says if you

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 give anything of value to register to vote that is 3 against Georgia's law. So giving five points I 4 think would be -- to their grades -- is something 5 of value to that person.
 6 Am I not right, Laughlin, in that 7 interpretation, or Francys?
 8 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Depends on how 9 valuable that course is.
 10 COMMISSIONER MOORE: How close to the 11 edge they are.
 12 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: Yeah, I think it's 13 -- I think the value of that would be highly 14 speculative at best.
 15 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: So you're saying I
 16 should stop or I should continue?
 17 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: I'm saying that 18 you have a wide range of academic freedom in how 19 you compose your classes.
 20 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: Thank you.
 21 (APPLAUSE.)
 22 COMMISSIONER JOHNSON: But you shouldn't 23 construe anything that I say as legal advice from 24 this panel.
 25 DR. GRETCHEN LOCKETT: Okay.

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 COMMISSIONER BUTLER: We want to say
 3 thank you to everyone who participated and stayed 4 and so we're going to turn it back over to 5 Meredith.
 6 MEREDITH HORTON: Yes, thank you.
 7 And thank you to our Commissioners.
 8 Thanks for all of you who are here who stayed with 9 us for the four hours.
 10 I will say that we -- you know, we have a 11 lot of work to do as the folks on the stage and the 12 audience testified to today.
 13 And we tried to get a lot done in a short 14 period of time and hope that at the very least 15 we've covered a bit of the diversity of issues we 16 are facing in the realm of voting both in Georgia.
 17 And I promise you in our future hearings, we'll be 18 hearing similar tales and similar stories, which is 19 really cause for concern.
 20 So thank you for being here for the start 21 of this conversation.
 22 For those of you here who didn't get to 23 testify, who want to submit materials afterwards, 24 who had friends and family members and others who 25 weren't able to make it, this is just the beginning

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 of the conversation. The record is not closed.
 3 So the website for the hearing was 4 gahearing.lawyerscommittee.org. It was on your 5 materials in the flyer. You can check back to that 6 page to, one, find my e-mail address. You can 7 e-mail follow-up materials to me. You can also 8 check back to that page for updates.
 9 As I said, this is just Stop 1 on what 10 will be a series of at least 15 to 20 hearings 11 across the country between now and the spring.
 12 So we'll have information about other 13 states and also additional ways for you again to 14 feed information into the process.
 15 In addition, there is a flyer in the back 16 which tells you the types of voting changes that we 17 need to look out for in our communities now, 18 especially with the weakening in the Voting Rights
 19 Act.
 20 But really, everyday, we need to be 21 looking out for these things, Voting Rights Act or 22 not.
 23 So attend local election board meetings, 24 follow up with -- you know, bring folks to the 25 polls. If someone you talked to had a problem

1 NCVR HEARING - ATLANTA, GA - 11/20/2013
 2 getting an ID, finding them on the list, work with 3 them, stay vigilant.
 4 You all are based here in Georgia and 5 know both between our panel of commissioners, 6 between our witnesses, and the tons of other 7 fantastic groups doing work, we are on voter 8 protection on the ground here of how to plug folks 9 in.
 10 In addition, the Lawyers Committee always 11 has the 866-OUR-VOTE hot line where we want to hear 12 from voters relating to any problems relating to 13 voting, so give us a call.
 14 I'm going to stop talking now.
 15 I do appreciate everyone's time. Thank 16 you again. And gahearing.lawyerscommittee.org is 17 where you can go to stay updated throughout the 18 process.
 19 Thank you all.
 20 (APPLAUSE.)

1 MR. GREENBAUM: We're going to get started in 2 the thirty seconds. Let's start. Good afternoon,
3 everybody. Thanks for coming out in this terrible
4 weather to talk about things of Illinois. My name is Jon
5 Greenbaum. I'm the Chief Counsel for Lawyers' Committee 6 For Civil Rights Under Law in Washington D.C. I want to 7 start out by thanking everybody here for taking the 8 time to come out today. And a special thanks to DePaul
9 College of Law for hosting this event. And of course 10 the National Lawyers Committee is doing this in 11 conjunction with the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for 12 Civil Rights, our affiliate, who we partnered with over 13 the years to run a extremely successful Election
14 Protection Program here in Illinois.

15 Also we would like to thank Kirkland &
16 Ellis and the Miner Barnhill and Galland for generously 17 sponsoring the hearing, including the videotaping and 18 the transcription and the food for today. Election
19 Protection which the National Lawyers' Committee is a 20 lead of is the country's largest non-partisan Voter 21 Protection Coalition. 2012, the Coalition enlisted the 22 pro-bono assistance of 8,000 attorney volunteers, 23 including here in Chicago. The national law firms of 24 Kirkland & Ellis, DePaul College of Law and a lot of 1 people we're going to be hearing from today in this 2 room.

3 We also partnered with over 100 national 4 state and local grassroots partners. The centerpiece of 5 Election Protection is a 1-866-Our-Vote hotline and the 6 Spanish language hotline 888-Ve-Y-Vota, which we do
7 along with NALEO. Any voter in the country can call 8 this hotline to receive voter assistance. Since its 9 inception, Election Protection has collected stories 10 from hundreds of thousands of voters who have called 11 the hotline. And this information has allowed us to 12 document recurrent problems from registration through 13 Election Day. Consistent themes continue to emerge 14 every election that plague voters such as voter 15 registration errors, long lines, polling place
16 confusion, machine breakdown, provisional ballot
17 problems and problems with receiving and casting 18 absentee ballots. I suspect we'll be hearing about 19 some of those types of issues today and probably issues 20 that fall outside of this category as well.

21 This is the first in a series of hearings that 22 we hope to have across the country and we thank you for 23 being trailblazers in terms of these hearings. We want 24 to hear from people. We want to hear from groups that

1 are involved and voter protection efforts and voter
2 registration efforts. We want to hear from election 3 officials and voters about their experiences. And 4 we're going to start by hearing from these experiences 5 in Illinois and we chose to start in Illinois because 6 there is such a strong program here as well as the fact 7 of having the Chicago Lawyers' Committee engaged in 8 this effort.

9 What we plan on doing is using this 10 information, continue to document issues related to 11 those that voters have. You may have heard of the 12 Presidential Commission that looked at election issues
13 and they are very interested in receiving information 14 from us. We have talked to them. We are going to be 15 sending a report to them. We are also going to be 16 sending them the transcript that comes out of this 17 hearing so they can hear about the sort of issues that 18 voters faced in Illinois in the 2012 elections.

19 So our panel of questioners are among 20 the leaders of the Illinois Election Protection Program 21 and they will be giving remarks as well. And then we 22 are going to be hearing from witnesses. A lot of you 23 are also leaders in Election Protection in Illinois as 24 well as advocates that are engaged with voters. You

1 are all experts in the field of voting rights and the 2 participation and we are interested in hearing from 3 your experience.

4 We're going to have two panels today. The 5 first is going to run until about 5:30. And the second 6 will run from about 5:30 to 7. And also after the 7 first panel and after the second panel we want to give 8 voters the opportunity to discuss their experiences as 9 well. And with that I would like to introduce the 10 other members of our panel questioners and allow them
11 to make opening remarks. Mary Schaafsma --

12 MS. SCHAAFSMA: Schaafsma.

13 MR. GREENBAUM: Schaafsma, sorry about that,
14 is the Executive Director of the Illinois League of 15 Women Voters. And Marissa Liebling is the staff 16 attorney at the Chicago Lawyers' Committee. so.

17 MS. LIEBLING: Good afternoon, everyone. My 18 name is Marissa Liebling. I help run the Voting Rights 19 project of the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil 20 Rights Under Law. And with this project that we 21 recently revitalized, we have been focused on providing 22 community education and interaction with the Committee 23 to learn about problems. We have been engaged in 24 policy advocacy and pushing for reforms that will help

1 voters and pushing for modernization. And as Jon
2 mentioned, we have been helping to run the Election
3 Protection Program in conjunction with the National 4 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Election Protection
5 Program here in Illinois to help Illinois voters.

6 In 2012 alone, we handled over 3,000
7 calls to the hotline and had around 100 attorneys out 8 in the field answering voters' questions and documented 9 common issues. And as Jon mentioned, it has been 10 helpful for us to begin to be able to see some of these 11 recurring issues, as well as things that were going 12 well as to what we like to see expanded throughout the 13 state.

14 We plan to use that information, as well 15 as the information that we are able to get here from 16 you guys today as community leaders and voters to go 17 ahead and inform us that we can do better on advocacy
18 and continuing to fight this fight. Thank you.

19 MS. SCHAAFSMA: I'm Mary Schaafsma. I'm the 20 Executive Director of the League of Women Voters of 21 Illinois and I thank you for the invitation to 22 participate this afternoon.

23 The League of Women Voters is by 24 definition an organization that supports an election

1 system that increases voter participation, protects the 2 rights of voters, ensures that all votes cast are 3 counted, free of fraud and political manipulation and 4 protect the integrity of the system. Our support 5 begins with encouraging and registering future voters, 6 offering educational programming so that voters are 7 aware of the issues and the candidates, recruiting 8 election judges and poll watchers, pushing back any 9 attempts to limit or lose the right of voters and 10 support legislation and maximize access for all voters.

11 We are looking for exploring ways in 12 which the League can gain experience, efforts to assist 13 some of the shortcomings of Election 2012. Thanks.

14 MS. LIEBLING: We will be getting testimony 15 from our panelists who are here today from various 16 community organizations. We will start with Brian 17 Gladstein.

18 MR. GLADSTEIN: Thank you. Common Cause Illinois 19 has been working for the last 18 months in Illinois to 20 build up an on the ground Election Protection Program
21 here in Illinois using the resources from the Lawyers' 22 Committee and the legal hotline. Through that work we 23 have been able to get a real sense of what's happening
24 at the ballot box and think about short and long-term

1 reforms. There are lot of things that we learned that 2 really demonstrate the need to improve on Election Day
3 administration and modernization. I know my colleagues 4 are going to mention and talk about that specifically.
5 I want to spend my time talking about the threats to 6 protecting their freedoms to vote that is increased by 7 organized efforts led by such groups as the Tea Party 8 affiliated to the vote and others.

9 Across the country and in Illinois we 10 have seen these groups challenge voter's eligibility at 11 the polls and through pre-election challenges.

12 In 2012, the goal True the Vote was to 13 train one million poll watchers to challenge and 14 confront other Americans as they go to the polls across 15 the nation. And in fact here in Illinois the 16 Eighth Congressional District, intercepted an e-mail
17 from the Walsh Campaign acting through to the vote a 18 coordinator True the Vote sent out an e-mail to a huge 19 amount of its members trying to get poll watchers for 20 the Walsh Campaign.

21 Although we did not experience any 22 problems firsthand, we do know that there has been 23 attempts across the country to suppress people 24 opportunities to vote such as calling people up on

1 Wednesdays -- I'm sorry. Calling telling people that 2 the election is on Wednesdays and also to tell people 3 that they don't need to go out to vote because the 4 election has already been decided.

5 On Election Day itself there is serious 6 problems that result in voter confusion suppression and 7 intimidation. And sometimes it's really hard to know 8 the difference between administration problems and 9 specific organized strategic attempts at intimidation 10 and voter suppression. So I want to give out some 11 examples of that that we have experienced.

12 Last November in Joliet during the first 13 few hours that we were out there, there was one poll
14 that -- one precinct that did not exist anymore. There 15 was no notification. There was no staff. There was no 16 real way for voters to know that that site no longer 17 was a site where people could cast a vote. We had to 18 send our poll watchers out there to tell people where 19 to go and put up our own signs. It just happened to be 20 also the same Election Day of where the Clerk was also 21 up for an election. So we don't know if that is just a 22 problem with administration or if that was a problem 23 with strategically trying to suppress voters and 24 confuse people.

1 We also saw other examples of 2 intimidation in Joliet, last November. Our partisan 3 poll watcher spent much of the morning challenging both 4 voters and our poll watchers as well as election judges 5 with their own poll book. And standing over and 6 telling people and shouting at people saying that you 7 are not registered here. You are not in a place where 8 you can vote. And I don't think that the judges were 9 well-equipped to handle that situation.

10 Another precinct was all Spanish
11 speaking, but there was no signage. There was no 12 translation. There was no materials. We had to send 13 our own poll watchers out there to translate the whole
14 day. So obviously there were no bilingual requirements 15 legally, but there still needs to be reform for those 16 kind of cases.

17 Later that same day, we were -- saw some 18 of the poll watchers being intimidated by a man from 19 the Clerk's office claiming he was an IT worker for the 20 Clerk. He went and harassed specifically our poll 21 workers. Said we couldn't use the app that the 22 Lawyers' Committee provided, that we could not talk to 23 voters even though all of the judges were working with 24 us throughout the day, and then he started to threaten

1 that he would call the Sheriff's office and then a lot 2 of poll workers just stopped working the way they were 3 all day because of this intimidation. Again it is some 4 random case of some man taking the liberty and thinking 5 he can control the outcome at a few precincts or was 6 this strategic by the administration dealing with this 7 election?

8 And then there is Cicero, Illinois. Oh,
9 Cicero, a whole different world. Let me put that out 10 there first. But we did see some things that were 11 really outlandish. The best example was that we saw a 12 poll worker who had a gun under his shirt. If that's 13 not intimidation, then I don't know what is.

14 I'm also concerned about -- and I talked 15 to the Cook County Clerk about this and he did not 16 think it was much of an issue. But I felt like 17 personally that it was an issue that there was a pizza 18 joint that was a poll location that was clearly in 19 Dominick, who is the town's President's turf. People 20 were walking into that precinct and voting while 21 knowing that everyone around them the previous months 22 was one candidate and not the other.

23 But not everything was not bad. We also 24 spent some time in Waukegan and actually saw some good

1 examples of what could happen on Election Day. The 2 poll workers seemed to be very well trained and 3 resourceful. We actually saw two workers at the 4 precinct that I was at that had laptops connected to 5 straight to the database of voters and they could look 6 up. Most of our poll watchers were spending much of 7 their time helping voters to know are they registered, 8 where they are supposed to go, what information is not 9 being given to them. And here the employees of the 10 Clerk's office were actually doing that work 11 themselves. And so it shows that if you have got the 12 right resources and the know how that that will help 13 voters on Election Day.

14 The solutions to these problems ranged 15 from the simple ones to the more complicated. Having 16 better trained judges and poll workers is essential.
17 Having poll workers with computers or apps to help
18 voters is important as was the case in Waukegan.

19 In addition, all modernization would 20 help such as having electronic poll books. Language 21 resources are still a concern as with the case in 22 Joliet.

23 As for intimidation tactics, I think
24 that is a whole other level that we need to address.

1 We need to find ways to investigate these cases and 2 prosecute them as criminal acts as they are. Until 3 this happens, people will be racially profiled and 4 their right to vote suppressed.

5 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you. And next we will 6 hear from Jorge Sanchez from the Mexican-American Legal 7 Defense and Educational Fund.

8 MR. SANCHEZ: Hi, my name is Jorge Sanchez.
9 I am affiliated with the Chicago Office of MALDEF. And 10 I will try not to repeat the things that Brian said.
11 We worked in the Coalition in doing voter protection 12 work and observed different things. I think just to 13 pick up on the thread that Brian said about voter 14 intimidation, I think that this was something that we 15 saw both in Cicero and also Waukegan.

16 In Cicero there were lots of rumors
17 prior to the election that there was city workers going 18 around -- and it wasn't clear what was being asked of 19 people, but it was election related. It may have been 20 related to casting absentee ballots as well. One of 21 the biggest barriers that we face as we sought to 22 identify people who were affected by these things, 23 people were very, very reluctant to talk to us, very 24 reluctant to go on the record about what had actually

1 happened. And obviously as a legal services
2 organization, it is impossible to do anything in the 3 legal sphere without a potential Complainant. And so 4 the type of intimidation that appears was so thorough 5 that even when people are, I think, blatantly breaking 6 the law, there is a very real reluctance of -- to come 7 out and complain about it for fear of retaliation of 8 some sort.

9 Along those lines, one of the things
10 that was observed in Cicero fairly repeatedly was 11 people showing up to vote and being told that they had 12 either cast an absentee ballot or requested an 13 absentee ballot. And because of this, they weren't 14 going to be allowed to vote. Normally, though, they 15 would have to vote provisionally. In several of the 16 circumstances, one of our attorneys, Alonzo Revas, was 17 actually able to speak to some of these individuals as 18 they were leaving. And many of them confirmed to him 19 that not only did they not request absentee ballots, 20 but that they had remembered someone coming to their 21 house to offer them -- one of them refusing it. And 22 explicitly saying they didn't want an absentee ballot.
23 They got to the polls and found out that this request 24 had been made on their behalf.

1 Another problem sort of related to that 2 was the way that the election judges treated our 3 presence in some of these locations. In that 4 particular location I know that they were making -- 5 actually following people outside of the polling places
6 to talk to them. And clearly we weren't 7 electioneering. We showed our poll watching
8 credentials and gave them the forms, election judges, 9 as we entered different precincts. We were handing out 10 Election Protection flyers. So there was some measure 11 also of obstruction of trying to keep us from really 12 being able to communicate.

13 I experienced this myself. One of the 14 polling places that we saw -- there appeared to be 15 attempts to make people vote provisionally when they 16 were not -- when they didn't need to be, when they were 17 on the rolls and fully registered. And initially when 18 we go up and talk to people, you know, we were somewhat 19 met with hostility by election judges.

20 At one point we finally communicated
21 with one of the Cicero election judges and we said 22 okay, fine. When we have some issues, we'll direct our 23 comments to you, the judges, not the voters and we 24 understand that. But part of the issue of this is a

1 little bit cultural. When there is a mono-lingual
2 Spanish speaker who is going to vote and you are asking 3 the person are you registered, it is a little awkward 4 and maybe perhaps impolite to not talk to the person 5 directly. It is also not so clear that people would 6 feel quite comfortable answering or responding to us.
7 We told people quite clearly we just want to make sure 8 that people are eligible to vote. That if they are 9 eligible to vote, they are voting an actual ballot and 10 not a provisional ballot because the chances of 11 provisional ballots is quite small. It was a struggle 12 at times to communicate with people.

13 We saw someone getting the provisional
14 ballot material and we approached the table. Suddenly 15 they found their registration. There was a mother and 16 daughter voting. The daughter clearly for the first 17 time. The mother, clearly a dominant Spanish speaker, 18 it just made sense. And the places that we were that 19 day, might that seemed to be repeated.

20 I agree with Brian about Waukegan. I
21 was quite impressed that every polling place had a 22 laptop, had a working connection to the registrar to 23 the database of voters. So those issues -- when issues 24 like that came up in Cicero, they were very different

1 to deal with. We had to use the apps.

2 In one instance it was interesting
3 because I saw one of the election judges moving heaven 4 and earth to make this -- one voter came in and he 5 would get to vote. He was calling downtown and getting 6 loud. What he didn't do for every person. So it is 7 also you get the sense of election judges picking and 8 choosing among who they want to offer assistance to.

9 In Waukegan there was issues of judges
10 not being available. They did have -- I think they had 11 been communicating people by phone. And I can't think 12 of anything else.

13 I guess also in Waukegan there was some 14 pretty big community forums where the Latino community, 15 and who were working on the Latino candidates' campaign
16 were threatened and intimidated. In fact, there is a 17 woman who, as a result of her efforts, got arrested not 18 so long ago and sort of trumped of charges. And the 19 woman didn't like what she said and she was assaulted 20 and battered by this woman and her husband. And the 21 woman runs the (inaudible) Chapter in Waukegan. That 22 she would threaten and be violent was ridiculous.

23 But this person believed, and I have to 24 agree, that there is a sense of targeting the activists

1 in Waukegan, the outspoken people. It sort of sends a 2 message to the rest of the population. This is what 3 happens when you participate. Unfortunately, Waukegan 4 has a bit of history of using its police force in an 5 unofficial mechanism to suppress people.

6 MS. LIEBLING: Next we'll hear from Ami
7 Gandhi from the South Asian American Policy and 8 Research Institute.

9 MS. GANDHI: Thanks for an opportunity to 10 speak today. My name is Ami Gandhi. I'm an attorney
11 and I'm the Executive Director of SAAPRI which stands
12 for South Asian American Policy and Research
13 Institute. We were established in 2001 as a 14 non-profit, nonpartisan organization with the mission 15 to serve South Asian Americans in the Chicago area by 16 using research, policy, advocacy and the other tools to 17 raise the visibility of the issues especially of 18 vulnerable members of our community, who include people 19 of Indian, Pakistanian (inaudible) decent, one of the 20 most rapidly growing racial groups in the midwest and 21 in Illinois. And for many years problems of limited 22 English proficiency in our community. And about one in 23 four South Asian Americans are not comfortable in 24 English, but the rate of course being much higher in

1 certain neighborhoods and towns.

2 Section 203 of the Federal Voting Rights Act
3 provides specific sources to voters with community
4 limited proficiencies. We heard many other speakers
5 refer to that today. And certain jurisdictions are 6 required under that law to provide oral and written 7 language assistance at the poll. I wanted to point out 8 that Section 208 of the Voting Rights Act is very 9 important for our community to, allowing people to 10 bring a person of their choice to assist in persons 11 with voting.

12 And the bottom line is that the reason 13 that I mentioned those laws is that when voters with 14 limited English proficiencies have access to language 15 assistance, they are much more likely to vote. Because 16 of the high number of limited English proficient 17 Indian-Americans who are eligible to vote in the 18 Chicago area, the Department of Justice announced in 19 the fall of 2011 that Section 203 now legally requires 20 the City of Chicago and Cook County election boards to 21 provide language assistance to Indian-Americans in 22 addition to the resources that are available for 23 Spanish and Chinese and it's essential to those 24 communities.

1 There are over 12,000 Indian-Americans
2 in Cook County who are eligible to vote and who have 3 limited English proficiency. And since that new 4 Section 203 coverage, expanded coverage that was 5 announced back in the fall of 2011 local organizations
6 such as SAAPRI, such as Advancing Justice Chicago, 7 which you will hear from shortly, worked together with 8 others to advise the Chicago Board of Election 9 Commissioners and the Cook County Clerk's office as 10 they implemented this first ever language assistance to 11 Indian-American voters with limited English 12 proficiencies.

13 So what this historic assistance
14 happening is in 2012 in the Illinois election, voters
15 received written assistance in Hindi and oral 16 assistance in the languages of Hindi, Gujarati and 17 Urdu. It was an important start, but there are many 18 actions that we can collectively take so language 19 assistance is even more effective in the future.

20 One of the things that SAAPRI does is 21 conduct extensive research about our community. And on 22 our website, which is saapri.org, we recently released
23 reports, one being demographic profiles of South Asian 24 Americans. The second being community-based research

1 based on talking to hundreds of South Asian voters as 2 they came out of the polls in 2012. And what we 3 learned is that the vast majority of South Asian 4 American Respondents, these are all voters, the vast 5 majority of them are foreign born and stated that 6 English was not their first language. And over 20
7 percent reported that they understand English less than 8 very well. However, only about 7% reported using a 9 translated ballot or bilingual poll worker. So this 10 data definitely reflects the need for more assistance 11 and awareness about these available resources.

12 I wanted to share with you a few stories 13 demonstrating the community input and involvement that 14 is essential if we want to improve language access to 15 the polls. After hearing about the new legal 16 requirement for assistance to Indian-American voters, 17 one of our community members, Attorney (inaudible)
18 volunteered by helping with Gujarati translation in the 19 City of Chicago. She also worked at the polls as an 20 election judge in suburban Cook County. This was in 21 the 2012 election. One of the things she stated is 22 "Seeing the impact of Spanish language assistance, it 23 showed me how our community could also benefit from 24 language assistance in voting, from better

1 understanding the local referendum on the ballot to 2 help to using voting machines."

3 Another we heard from an active SAAPRI
4 volunteer and active community member, (inaudible), she 5 is an entrepreneur to help implement language
6 assistance. She explained that voter turnout is high 7 in many parts of India. And many Indian-Americans are 8 interested in voicing their opinions here in the United 9 States. Language assistance empowers these individuals 10 and is a great indication of progress for our 11 community. There is a lot of talent in the community
12 that could be leveraged and many multilingual community 13 members can help with interpretations and translations.
14 And she and other community members were really 15 instrumental in improving the quality of the 16 translations so that the materials said what they were 17 supposed to say was definitely a challenging process at 18 times that my colleague from Advancing Justice Chicago 19 will talk about more shortly.

20 I just wanted to wrap up by sharing with 21 you the story of a first time voter who immigrated from 22 the United States -- from India to the United States 23 22 years ago and she speaks the languages of Urdu and 24 Gujarati. She became a U.S. citizen about three years

1 ago and she started voting as soon as she became a 2 citizen despite her inability to communicate in English
3 and her difficulty standing in line at the polls 4 because of her age and her health condition. When we 5 asked her why did you take all that trouble to vote in 6 the 2012 election, she said, "I'm a citizen. I have a 7 duty to vote. I have the right to vote." And she 8 really strongly believes that community members should 9 participate in elections because voting could lead to 10 important resources such as bus passes and healthcare, 11 things that affect the daily lives of people in our 12 community and I'm sure in many other communities, too.

13 So we look forward to continue to work
14 together with the Election Board as fellow advocates.
15 We want to be part of the solution, but expanded access 16 at the polls is necessary. Thank you.

17 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you, Ami. Next we will 18 hear from Andy Kang, Asian Americans Advancing Justice.

19 MR. KANG: Hi, my name is Andy Kang. I'm the 20 Legal Director at Asian Americans Advancing Justice 21 Chicago, former Asian American Institute, which has 22 been in existence for over 20 years. We are a Pan 23 Asian advocacy organization. Our goal is to empower 24 the Asian American communities through, not only legal

1 advocacy, but also community organizing.

2 We work with over a dozen community
3 organizations that represent and serve the Asian 4 community. During the election year our community 5 organizer helped to get out the vote campaigns to 6 really energize and encourage people to vote.

7 My role as to voting rights is to ensure 8 that the voting rights of our communities are 9 protected, that our voters are informed of their 10 rights. I work in conjunction with our affiliates. We 11 have a national organization with those in Los Angeles, 12 San Francisco and D.C. in training volunteers to poll 13 monitor, poll watch, however you want to call it at the 14 precincts.

15 In the March primary of 2012 we poll
16 monitored over half of all precincts that were targeted 17 by both the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners and 18 the Cook County Clerk's office for language assistance 19 that I refer to for Asian Indian voters.

20 We found a number of very useful first 21 time mistakes and we brought that to the attention of 22 the election officials and they were more than willing 23 to resolve.

24 Namely, the largest one that was

1 identified was in suburban Cook. Translating materials
2 unfortunately did not make it to the designated 3 precincts. Our poll monitors was able to identify this 4 issue and notify the Clerk's office and they were able 5 to get those translated materials, including the 6 translated ballots to those precincts by the 5 o'clock 7 evening rush.

8 This November election we likewise poll
9 monitored over 70 precincts. We added in addition to 10 those targeted for language assistance was Asian Indian 11 a select group of precincts in the Chinatown community.
12 As some of you may be aware, the Chinese have roughly 13 over a decade been a Section 203 language in Cook
14 County.

15 We added a few other select sites based 16 largely on the concerns that have been shared already 17 by some of the panelists about certain groups looking 18 to insert poll monitors at precincts that they thought 19 immigrants or English voters might be so they could 20 discourage those folks from voting.

21 What we found, and I'll start with the 22 good news real quickly, is that the overwhelming number 23 of election judges were very cordial to voters as much 24 as they could be willing to help. We found that the 1 translated materials were present in most of the 2 precincts. There was a sliver of precincts that were 3 missing an item here and there.

4 And we also found that the 5 responsiveness on Election Day by the election 6 officials, both David Orr's office as well as the 7 Chicago Board of Election Commissioners was very good.
8 When we did see an issue, we were able to get someone 9 on the phone and get some kind of resolution or agreed 10 next step that would happen in that day.

11 Moving really quickly to the not so good 12 news. While a lot of the translated materials did 13 reach their designated precincts, election judges 14 seemed poorly equipped or not aware that these 15 translated materials should be made available and 16 should be displayed so that voters were aware of them.
17 From a personal antidote, when I came to a number of 18 precincts, I would ask them to show me the translated 19 materials for Asian American Language Assistance. They 20 would say "We have all the Hindi materials right here," 21 and point to the back table. And I would say, "Could 22 we put those in the front table so that voters could 23 see them?" They said, "Well, if the voter asks for 24 them, we'll give them to them." So I think one of the 1 things we saw that was at issue is that election judges 2 did not seem trained to proactively make voters aware 3 of their language options. I understand that we don't 4 want to racially profile, but we do want to make voters 5 aware that even if they are able to register maybe with 6 their limited English and get past that phase of the 7 voting process, as has been mentioned, there may be a 8 valid referendum or very complicated issue on the 9 ballot that they would feel more comfortable voting in 10 their native tongue. So that is something that we are 11 going to be following up with election officials making 12 them aware that at each stage we should be making sure 13 that voters are aware of their language options.

14 The other major issue that we found was with 15 respect to training as well. With the bilingual 16 election judges that were available for Asian and 17 Indian, a lot of them didn't seem equipped to know how 18 best to provide language assistance. So many of them 19 were very passive. They did not believe they could 20 leave their designated role at the poll worker table.
21 And so we do think that the conversation we had that 22 election judges are made to feel empowered, to be very 23 proactive and assist the voters wherever they -- and 24 voting process they came out of.

1 We do have a national report coming out
2 at the end of this month with our affiliates. It will 3 have a lot more actual data and numbers and 4 percentages. But I think I wanted to highlight those 5 two issues. So thank you for having me.

6 MS. LIEBLING: We will hear from Melissa
7 Picciola from Equip for Equality.

8 MS. PICCIOLA: Good afternoon. My name is 9 Melissa Picciola. I'm a staff attorney at Equip for 10 Equality which is the Illinois statewide protection and 11 advocacy organization for People with Disabilities. We 12 have been working on voting issues since our founding 13 in 1985, and we do a variety of activities related to 14 voters and conducting polling place surveys where we 15 actually go into the polling places and determine if 16 they are accessible.

17 We run our own hotline for Voters With 18 Disabilities to call us if they have issues as well as 19 working with election authorities on issues in advance
20 of the election as well as Election Day.

21 The opportunity for a person with a 22 disability to exercise their right to vote like we have 23 heard about for language assistance is often more 24 difficult than for the average person. And these

1 particular issues come from a variety of areas. We 2 have submitted written testimony that expound upon 3 these ideas, but I do want to touch briefly on the main 4 problems that people experienced and that we continue 5 to hear about election after election.

6 One of the most important things that we 7 hear about are issues of what is known as the 8 electronic or the accessible machine. When the Help 9 America Vote Act was passed in 2002, many felt that the 10 requirements of having an electronic machine in every 11 precinct and every polling place, you could say, would 12 solve a lot of the problems that People with 13 Disabilities were facing when they went to vote.
14 Unfortunately this hasn't really been the case.

15 When we first started doing polling 16 place surveys following the passage of HAVA, what we 17 often saw was that the electronic machine was present 18 in the polling place but it was not set up. It was 19 often not plugged in. It was often put in a place 20 where one could not get to it that was behind boxes or 21 in a corner. That has been decreasing. Now election 22 judges are trained to set up the polling places and set 23 up the electronic machines at the beginning of the day.
24 Now we hear more and more issues about the electronic

1 machines not working properly or not being -- and the 2 judges not knowing how to properly work it or address
3 an issue.

4 When asking to troubleshoot a machine,
5 the most common response is to call the election 6 authority. This poses a number of problems, especially 7 if the election authority wasn't anticipating those 8 calls as often as the case of the City of Chicago is 9 dealing with many, many other calls.

10 So we sort of understand these problems
11 related to the next topic I would like to address which 12 is training of the election judges and basically 13 knowingly how to operate the machine. One of the most 14 common problems that we hear about is from voters with 15 the visual disabilities who need the electronic 16 machines to be operated in what's known as "audio 17 mode". This is not -- not understandable considering 18 that if you are operating the machine in audio mode and 19 you can no longer see the screen, it is difficult to 20 troubleshoot what's happening or if something is wrong.
21 However, an additional amount of training could 22 probably address some of these issues.

23 One of -- some of the other issues we 24 hear about with regard to election judges is just not

1 being willing to help a voter with disabilities or 2 outright rude or not knowledgeable about how to assist 3 them as my colleague was alluding to earlier. I just 4 heard a report this morning about a blind voter who 5 approached a polling place with a driver and there was 6 a greeter outside standing outside greeting voters and 7 directing them to the polling place. The driver 8 reported to the voter that when the greeter saw the 9 individual with the white cane, she straight up ran 10 away.

11 So the idea of not knowing proper
12 disability etiquette, how to guide someone who has a 13 visual disability, is an issue that we hear about 14 often. But just knowing how to deal with someone and 15 what kind of assistance is appropriate to offer, what 16 kind is assistance are they required to offer, are 17 issues that could be addressed with additional 18 training.

19 The other thing that I want to touch on 20 briefly was actual accessibility of polling places.
21 One of the most common misconceptions is that all 22 polling places are accessible. They are far from being 23 all accessible. Estimates run about a third of all 24 polling places being inaccessible.

1 Even if a polling place is accessible,
2 they are using a building that is accessible, one of 3 the issues that we hear about is the path of travel 4 from when one exits the vehicle or the entrance to the 5 actual polling place is not being accessible.

6 What is unfortunate about this report is that 7 we often hear because of a removable barrier. Someone 8 puts a table in the way on the way to how you get to a 9 polling place. There is also issues of inadequate 10 signage. A sign may be put up directing someone to an 11 accessible entrance or to the polling place, but they 12 don't have any words on them or they don't clearly mark 13 where to go. We've heard reports of people having to 14 circle a building repeatedly not being able to find the 15 accessible entrance or the polling place due to lack of 16 signage.

17 So in conclusion, I think that 18 additional election judge training regarding disability
19 etiquette and how to treat people with disabilities 20 would go far in eliminating some of the issues that we 21 hear about election after election. Thank you.

22 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you. And last we will 23 hear from Maryam Judar from the Citizen Advocacy 24 Center.

1 MS. JUDAR: Hi, I'm Maryam Judar and I'm a 2 community lawyer, Citizens Advocacy Center. And for 3 the record the center is a nonprofit, nonpartisan legal 4 organization of the mission to build democracy in the 5 21st Century and we do that through helping citizens to 6 navigate their civics problem with local government 7 bodies, monitoring local government advocating for 8 policies such as support, public participation in 9 policy making with the government. And we have a large 10 educational program and of course lawyers we have 11 litigation available if it is needed to go that far.

12 So I would like to present today a 13 couple of our -- the results of two of our projects
14 within the realm of election. One is within the realm 15 of election administration and the other one with 16 respect to ballot access.

17 So I'll start with election
18 administration. We conducted a verbal and written 19 questionnaire with six election authorities, the collar 20 counties and also the City of Chicago to basically get 21 a snapshot idea of how they administer elections in 22 four different arenas.

23 One, how did they go about drawing
24 precinct boundaries to -- are there polling place site

1 selection practices. Three, how did they go about 2 election judge training and then finally how they 3 handled provisional ballots.

4 With respect to drawing precinct
5 boundaries similar to redistricting requirements, 6 precincts have to be contiguous and compact. They have 7 a nesting principle that's desired. Each precinct is 8 only supposed to accommodate 500 voters if it is a 9 county. And if more than 800 votes are cast within a 10 precinct during the November election in any year, then 11 that County Board must redivide the precinct closer to 12 500 voters per precinct.

13 What we found was the results from the 14 verbal and written questionnaires, we found there was 15 great disparity in the number of voters at each 16 precinct. It ran the gambit from 305 voters to almost 17 3,000 voters in the counties. The City of Chicago was 18 much better. They reported that their precincts or 19 their polling places only had an average of 600 to 800 20 voters. And the standard for the city is that if they 21 have 600 voters at any place, they have to redistrict 22 down to accommodate closer to 400 voters.

23 In any event, it is still greater than 24 the standard, but closer than the counties. We --

1 placed by selection practices. Again this is just 2 their answers to how they collect, how they decide
3 where to situate polling places. I mean you just heard 4 about the practice of it and how that plays out and are 5 they indeed accessible for people with disabilities.
6 Are they ADA compliant.

7 All the different election authorities
8 had different answers, although they may have had 9 similarities in answers, it was very telling that the 10 practices for election administration aren't unified 11 throughout our election authority throughout the state.
12 We have 110 of them. So the question, what is 13 happening in the other 102 election authorities.

14 With respect to election judge training 15 there were varying practices. Some counties, while 16 they all trained election judges every two years and 17 had optional refresher courses, some were passive, you 18 know, power point presentations. Others included that 19 passive training with hands on simulation. And Lake 20 County actually seemed to have the most robust
21 training. They had different types of election judges.
22 They have a training for the table judges and they have 23 training for the ballot judges and training for the 24 laptop judges and they even have site manager training

1 who have to know about everything.

2 So the table judges, they're taught and 3 lectured in reading assignments. The ballot judges 4 have to be able to lift 35 pounds and they have to 5 complete a voting machine setup and closing procedures 6 without prompts. And the laptop judges use the 7 technology to ensure that they pose the proper 8 questions to provisional ballot voters and that they 9 receive the appropriate answer and response and that 10 they properly provide the required affidavit with the 11 correct instructions on how to educate it and I guess 12 they simulate this process too.

13 So Will County reported that they had field
14 tests where the field test visited like maybe ten sites 15 each multiple times per day and that they arrange for 16 the State's Attorney's office to also make visits to 17 polling places.

18 Generally speaking, you know, the 19 hands-on training it seemed to us to be the best 20 practices, and certainly where there is laptops it 21 facilitates the provisional ballot procedures, which 22 leads me to the discharge of a provisional ballot, the 23 number one reason, the greater reason why people's 24 provisional ballots weren't counted was because they

1 were not registered in the county in which they cast 2 their vote.

3 Interestingly enough, the only county
4 where we were able to get records as far back as 2004
5 because we were asking for records from 2004 and 2006 6 and 2008 and 2010 is they were the only one that had 7 records that went back that far.

8 McHenry said they had no records
9 available. And the only counties that gave us the 10 reasons for invalid ballots was Lake and Will. So in 11 any event, that is our election administration 12 snapshot.

13 Our ballot access survey that we did, we 14 looked at 20 years worth of challenges to nominations 15 for candidacy and for petitions for referendum in all 16 the municipalities in suburban Cook County from all the 17 electoral boards in those suburban Cook municipalities 18 and all the municipals in DuPage County as well as the 19 electoral board decisions out of the DuPage County 20 Election Commission. And what we found is number one, 21 retention issues are a huge problem. I think we 22 submitted 141 FOIA requests, and one third of those 23 municipalities had zero document responses to the FOIA
24 request. So they are just destroying their records.

1 Seven of them positively indicated that the records had 2 been destroyed.

3 What we're mostly concerned about is 4 that the decisions that are rendered at these electoral 5 boards, quasi judicial hearings, that they are not 6 being kept by these entities. There is no record kept 7 by these entities. There is no record. I know that 8 some entities put them online like the Chicago Board of 9 Commissioners, I believe they put their electoral board 10 decisions on line, but that is not a consistent 11 practice by any stretch of the imagination. We know 12 that most Electoral Board decisions don't get appealed.
13 So they have some kind of precedential value, you know, 14 especially with respect to the particular electoral 15 board, but they are not being paid any attention to it 16 seems.

17 And what else? Another thing, and again
18 kind of these are interrelated things, another thing 19 was to see that there were inconsistent decision 20 making. So that inconsistent decision making was not 21 only between electoral boards, but also within the same 22 electoral boards you would see two different outcomes
23 of the same fact pattern without any kind of gross 24 deviation from that fact pattern to justify that

1 difference.

2 You know, that is exacerbated by the 3 fact that there is no retention of records. And 4 another item that is related to inconsistent decision 5 making is that the composition of a electoral boards
6 only aggravates the problem of a decentralized system 7 because of the inherent bias that's created by 8 electoral boards being comprised of like the head of 9 the public body, the clerk of the public body and the 10 longest sitting member of that public body. You know, 11 the municipal arena. We were talking the Mayor, the 12 Clerk and then a Trustee or other board members. And 13 the only recusal rules in the election code is for when 14 someone is before the Board for a position that a 15 member of the Board is also running for. That is the 16 only mandatory recusal, but there should be other 17 situations of recusal. Not only did we do -- look at 18 the issue, but also the Chicago Tribune -- and others I 19 think looked into the issue of electoral boards. They 20 did a snapshot view at the 2012 election. They didn't 21 look 20 years back. So they didn't get the retention 22 issue, but they were also able to document the fact 23 that there is inherent bias in these electoral boards 24 in that inconsistent decisions arise because of that

1 bias.

2 And finally technical errors. This is 3 related to inconsistent decision making and technical 4 errors are common reasons why nominations for candidacy 5 and for referendum are struck down. And again, if they 6 are not challenged, then that decision lies and those 7 technical errors might be a three-page petition, had a 8 paper clip and it wasn't stapled or that the pages were 9 numbered, but one page they skipped a number by 10 accident when they were counting. And our 11 recommendation for that would be that those technical 12 errors should be able to be remedied to prevent people 13 from being on the ballot. Basically that is it.

14 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you. And now we'll have 15 a fifteen minutes for questions to conclude this 16 conversation and then we will take a break to have an 17 opportunity to hear from voters.

18 MR. GREENBAUM: The first question I have is 19 a general one which Andy, I think answered with respect
20 to his testimony. And we always ask, how responsive 21 when you were raising these issues with election 22 officials, how responsive were they? Anybody can 23 start.

24 MR. GLADSTEIN: I think it is a great

1 question. I think it is case by case. It seems to 2 depend on the county, and then depends on the 3 precincts. I think it depends on the type of training 4 some of the judges have and some of the workers have.

5 MR. GREENBAUM: I'm mostly concerned about 6 the people at the main election headquarters as opposed 7 to what is going on at the polls. I think we 8 actually -- in term of what was happening at the 9 polling places.

10 MR. GLADSTEIN: Got it. Some of the folks 11 may have more experience. What I can say quickly is 12 the folks at Cook County were great. David Orr's 13 office, we met with them prior with some of our leaders 14 in Cicero for example. We were in contact days up to 15 Election Day. On that day there were a couple of 16 instances. They talked about the individual with the 17 firearm. We were back and forth with people from their 18 office. And the Chief of Staff, their policy and 19 communication staff, the Senior Staff throughout the 20 day was responsive and calling us back and taking on 21 legal questions as well as our hotline, because they 22 have their own legal hotline as well.

23 The Cook County response was really 24 good. They really cared about what was happening in

1 Cicero. Joliet I'm not really sure. We need to do
2 some follow up about Joliet. I have some strong 3 concerns about what happened in Joliet, as I outlined 4 it and how much of that came from the Clerk's office
5 either lack of administration or purposeful voter 6 suppression. I'm not saying that that is what 7 happened, the latter, but it does bring up those kind 8 of questions.

9 And then Waukegan, I don't know if you
10 guys talked directly to the folks in Waukegan from the 11 main office. But the fact that these people we so 12 well-trained it was night and day in terms of what I 13 experienced in Cook County, which is not what I 14 expected in Waukegan and Joliet. Especially in -- we 15 mentioned the precincts that I have been talking about, 16 we were always targeting low income communities of 17 color in most cases. And so it seems like the worst 18 case scenarios were happening in those areas. And so 19 how much were the clerks and the administration really 20 concentrating on training judges in those areas is a 21 question that needs to be brought up.

22 MS. GANDHI: Our experience is kind of what 23 the language act says for members of the South Asian 24 Indian communities was that the election boards both in

1 Chicago and suburban Cook County were very responsive
2 and kind of improved the language access, but when it 3 comes down to it, if you don't have someone of that 4 culture or language ability on staff, there is a 5 limited amount that can be done. So this is a 6 suggestion made not only by SAAPRI, but also my 7 colleague said anything less than Chicago that a staff 8 member is really needed and the two examples of 9 concrete ways that kind of staff presence would help to 10 improve.

11 MR. GREENBAUM: Do we know how large the 12 staff -- take Cook County, how large the election board 13 staff is there?

14 MS. GANDHI: That's something I wouldn't be 15 able to answer. We were interacting with a handful of 16 employees. So I realize it would be small, but there 17 have been measures in place before for language groups 18 to have an part-time outreach coordinator or other 19 kinds of staff to help, even if it is on a contract 20 basis. And two of the ways that that would help would 21 be the quality of the language, the translation. We 22 had saw lots of grave errors in the initial set of 23 pamphlet materials. If I told you the details, you 24 would be horrified. And luckily a community member

1 stepped up and helped to fix the errors. But again, if 2 you someone on the staff even on a part-time or 3 contract basis to catch it, you wouldn't know if the 4 material says what it is suppose to say.

5 And another crucial function of a staff 6 member would be the outreach to let people in the 7 community know that those materials are there. Even 8 the very well-intentioned, extremely hard working 9 staff, when they go to our religious institutions, when 10 they go to our community centers, they are going to get 11 a different receptiveness compared from someone from 12 our own community who is out there and speaks the 13 language and familiar with the culture.

14 MR. GREENBAUM: What has the response been to 15 request to have someone on the staff who speaks the 16 languages?

17 MS. GANDHI: I'll let my colleague speak to 18 that. I know that part of the issue like for all of 19 our communities and all of the resource limitations, 20 but I'll turn it over to Andy to answer further.

21 MR. KANG: I'm going to make three really 22 quick points. Number one, this is the first time that 23 Asian and Indian languages has been added outside of 24 Queens County, New York, which I believe they didn't

1 get their translated ballots in time for the November
2 election. Nationwide Chicago and Cook County is not 3 the worse of rolling out Asian and Indian languages.

4 MR. GREENBAUM: I think I mentioned before 5 that in oral systems in all three languages -- because 6 two of the three languages there is no written language 7 or it's --

8 MR. KANG: No, the DOJ regulations require 9 only one written translation. And because there are 10 three that are very much commonly spoken, the election
11 officials chose Hindi because there is a common 12 denominator. A lot of Urdu and Gujarati speakers are 13 also familiar with Hindi. That being said, we would 14 love to have all three translated, but it is a resource 15 issue, same as the outreach coordinator.

16 I will say Chinese has been in place and 17 the Chicago Board of Election Commission do have a 18 Chinese speaking Outreach Program, who has been working 19 with us on the Asian Indian.

20 Just as a quick story of the benefit of 21 having a person like that with that cultural background
22 in place. On Election Day in the Chinatown community, 23 one of the newer precincts with language assistance in 24 the Bridgeport community was missing an election judge

1 and they did not have a reserve pool, which is an issue
2 regardless of what language you are talking about. We 3 were able to notify this outreach coordinator and she 4 was able to help by working -- just out of the blue get 5 them, you know, staffed up and get that volunteer to 6 that precinct within I believe by midday. And so that 7 is something that you won't be able to do unless you 8 had someone with a background from that culture and 9 familiarity with folks in the community.

10 MR. GREENBAUM: One of the problems was an 11 issue of the people were bilingual be integrated into 12 all the operations going on in the polling place. Have 13 you sort of shared that observation with the election
14 officials of what is the response. That is a problem 15 that we see in other places is that we have someone who 16 is designated as a translator. They are kind of stuck 17 off to the side and meanwhile people are having 18 problems in checking in the polling place because of 19 the language, difficulties and problems in terms of 20 trying to figure out how to vote.

21 MR. KANG: I mean we're hearing across the 22 board that there is a training issue in general with 23 the election judges, but for language assistance 24 because a lot of these judges are first time judges,

1 there is just relative inexperience of being a judge in 2 general.

3 We also do believe that the resource
4 issue with the outreach program, that particular person 5 would be able to walk these bilingual judges through 6 what is entailed to providing language assistance 7 rather than them all attending the -- election that's 8 training.

9 MS. PICCIOLA: I wanted to speak a little bit 10 about -- because we are statewide. So we deal with 11 election authorities throughout Illinois. And I think 12 that you were speaking about the size of the Cook 13 County staff. That would be four to 500 times the 14 amount of people who work in a rural community in 15 Illinois where you are talking about one or two people 16 who are responsible really, but running an election.
17 And their responsiveness of the election authority 18 actually depends on whether or not the County Clerk or 19 the election authority feel that there is a need to be 20 responsive to disability communities in particular.

21 A lot of times when you approach someone 22 about disability access or accessibility in general, 23 you will often get the response, "Well, we're done. We 24 have electronic machines. We're good." And once you

1 dig in you find the problems. But outside of Election
2 Day, I have found election authorities throughout this 3 day very responsive when we raise problems. There was 4 an issue in Central Illinois this past April where the 5 County Clerk had decided not to use the electronic 6 machines because it wasn't a federal election. So they 7 weren't required to use the machines. We made a call 8 and we said, "You know, it would be really helpful if 9 you would use the machine." And she said, "You're 10 right, okay, we'll use them."

11 As long as it is not on Election Day
12 when 4,000 other things are happening, election 13 authorities are responsive and want to work with the 14 community in order to solve problems. The issue is 15 often that there is so many other things going on, 16 especially in the City of Chicago when a machine breaks 17 down, it is very difficult to address it at that 18 moment.

19 MR. GREENBAUM: Melissa, one of the things 20 that you mentioned was just in terms of a polling place 21 siting. As long as terms of access and siting and 22 those sort of issues, one of the things I have seen in 23 other jurisdictions is a checklist that they're 24 supposed to go down to this polling place. To 1 essentially certify the polling place is effectively

2 accessible to others. Are you seeing that in Illinois?

3 MS. PICCIOLA: So every election authority 4 surveys all of the polling places that are going to be 5 used on Election Day to determine accessibility or 6 inaccessibility. Those that are designated must be 7 posted as such. The issue is that those accessibility 8 surveys are done by the election authorities
9 themselves, their own staff is going out and doing 10 them. The other issue is they are all done in July.
11 And one of the things I often say is a polling place 12 that is accessible in July is often not accessible in 13 November. Just for weather reasons or even when we 14 were doing a primary in February, it would be 15 completely inaccessible.

16 The other issue is they do it not on an 17 Election Day. Those issues of polling place setup 18 don't come into play when you are doing a survey of a 19 church that is completely accessible, has the 20 accessible entrance, but you didn't account for the 21 fact that a person, an election judge is going to be 22 setting up the polling place on Election Day and that 23 those things such as removable barriers or path of 24 travel or inadequate signage will practically make a

1 place inaccessible.

2 MR. GREENBAUM: And really quickly, how would 3 you propose to sort of -- how would you propose that 4 election officials kind of deal with that. Do surveys
5 on elections that may have less turn out, do you do 6 anything privately to --

7 MS. PICCIOLA: I completely think that a 8 survey that is not done on Election Day is relatively 9 useless in terms of accessibility. So we have worked 10 with election authorities both in Cook County and 11 Chicago to do polling place surveys on Election Day.
12 What we have done in the past is actually provided 13 technical assistance at that time. Hey, you have a 14 table here. Let's move this table. Or hey, your 15 electronic machine is in the wrong place. You should 16 move this.

17 So we do do that and I do strongly 18 advocate for doing election polling place surveys on 19 Election Day just to get things practically set up.

20 The other thing that would be 21 tremendously helpful that Lake County, Illinois does, 22 is to provide polling place judges a schematic of what 23 a polling place should look like in order to be 24 accessible. This is where the electronic machine

1 should be set up. This is where your signage should be 2 set up. So sort of a diagram for election judges to 3 follow so that some of that human error is taken out of 4 the equation.

5 MS. LIEBLING: I have some questions about 6 bilingual assistance. One of the things that we have 7 seen in some jurisdictions is the use of curbside
8 voting if the polling place is not accessible. Can you 9 talk a little bit in Illinois about if you think the 10 best action is an effective remedy or it is not being 11 implemented?

12 MS. PICCIOLA: Sure. So there are a couple 13 of issues with curbside voting. It does work, 14 especially if a person's designated polling place is 15 inaccessible. So in the City of Chicago if their 16 polling place is inaccessible, you can use that on 17 Election Day. The law says that you have to request 18 curbside voting in two days in advance of an election.
19 And this is both a burden that some people with 20 disabilities feel they should not have to bear, nor is 21 it one that they are familiar with. So a lot of times 22 when you think about the process, oh, yeah, it is 23 Election Day, I have to go to vote. You are not 24 thinking about it two days ahead of time. But if you

1 show up to a polling place to request curbside voting 2 or need curbside voting, most of the time you can be 3 accommodated.

4 The issue that we see most often is that 5 there is no way to notify the election judges inside
6 that you are at the curb wishing to utilize curbside
7 voting, unless you happen to have someone with you.
8 And so we see this issue a lot.

9 So one of the solutions is to call the 10 election authority at that time while you are outside 11 and say I'm outside and I would like to exercise curbside
12 voting. And then there is the issue that we often 13 see of getting through.

14 The other issue that we see is that 15 election judges are unfamiliar with the process. They 16 have never done it before. They don't know and they 17 are uncomfortable with the fact that two judges have to 18 take a ballot out to a person and deliver the ballot 19 while it's being voted.

20 The other thing that we have heard a 21 little bit from my other colleagues is election judges 22 say, "Well, I can't leave my post. I have to be inside 23 and there is only two of us here, so how do we both 24 leave the polling place and go help this person." I

1 think these are training issues about walking through 2 the process of curbside voting and telling a judge 3 what to do if there is only two of you. You have to 4 either use a third person who is the site administrator 5 or find a way to make it work to do curbside voting.

6 MR. GREENBAUM: Real quick. Is there someone 7 in the main election office who typically has the 8 responsibility of --

9 MS. PICCIOLA: So in the City of Chicago I
10 actually work the Chicago Board of Election Disability 11 hotline on Election Days.

12 MR. GREENBAUM: There is actually a specific 13 number for people.

14 MS. PICCIOLA: Yes, but often what the issue 15 is they don't know that they are supposed to call the 16 number. The other issue is that some of them are not 17 self-identified. They don't call and say I'm a person 18 with a disability. I have a problem. They say, "I 19 have a problem." That is perfectly normal. So 20 sometimes those calls are a little more, you know, it 21 is hard to get through as simple as it should be.

22 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you. And then I want to 23 go back a little bit to language assistance. We have 24 spent a little bit of time talking about the

1 jurisdictions covered by Section 203 and what has gone 2 well with implementation and why there is still 3 problems. My first question, though, is I noticed in a 4 lot of jurisdictions that there is a lack of bilingual 5 judges available. And sometimes the officials will 6 blame the availability of community members and the 7 people who can speak those languages to be able to 8 serve as election judges. Do you have any suggestions 9 for what the election officials should be doing to 10 better recruit election judges, and what you guys as 11 community members could do for it?

12 And my follow-up question is in those 13 jurisdictions that are not covered with language 14 requirement, is there anything that you are doing or 15 you think should be done to make sure that election 16 officials and voters in those jurisdictions are aware 17 of their other rights under Section 208 as you 18 mentioned, and are there any efforts to push for other 19 translations and resources in jurisdictions even if 20 there is not a legal requirement?

21 MS. GANDHI: I will try to speak to that 22 briefly and then pass it to my colleagues. We have 23 seen that there have been challenges in recruiting 24 people, especially for these newer covered language

1 groups and people who didn't know that those skills 2 were an asset. It is just a matter of matching the 3 eligible people who could help with this opportunity.
4 It takes some time. It takes resources even 5 considering staff time or other resource on the behalf 6 of community-based organizations like ours. Once we 7 make the pitch to people who are looking for jobs, 8 frankly, and who are happy to help, then it could be 9 successful. But it does take some time for something 10 that people who are new to the process can seem 11 political, can seem scary. They are not sure if that 12 is the way that they as multilingual legal community
13 members or immigrants really want to be identified. I 14 think it takes investment on the part of the election 15 boards as well as community-based organizations to have 16 resources to reach out to the community members.

17 As far as providing assistance in 18 various languages, there have been community
19 organizations who have done a great job like Advancing 20 Justice Chicago, the South Asian organization, others
21 who have tried to spread the word that even if you 22 don't -- just in Hindi or Spanish or Chinese or other 23 ways that you are allowed to get help, whether it is in 24 the form of translated materials or bringing a friend

1 or family member to the polls with you, but there is a
2 lot of work that needs to be done and a lot of people 3 don't know that that is an option for them and they are 4 not necessarily comfortable exercising that right.

5 MR. SANCHEZ: One of the issues in the past, 6 anyway, some years ago in the Kane County where they 7 first came under the jurisdiction of Section 203, we 8 went out and said here is a ballot, and you walked into 9 the office and there is absolutely no signage 10 whatsoever in Spanish. And so volunteers who might 11 want to volunteer wouldn't know that there is an 12 opportunity. That is another thing that sometimes we 13 focus a lot on Election Day ballots and those kinds of 14 materials. But the other materials that are used to 15 recruit, needs to translated.

16 There also has to be -- it is 17 interesting in Cicero I noticed this time around there 18 was a lot of younger people who were serving as 19 election judges. And a lot of them were bilingual 20 judges. And in a place like Cicero, it really felt 21 like an "Old Boys Club".

22 You go in there and one of the precincts 23 it seemed like there was one guy who was running the 24 polling place, although that certainly wasn't his

1 official role. And so when someone bilingual would go 2 to help somebody, he would want to go and see what was 3 going on. Well, you know, they want Spanish. They 4 don't want me. It was like, yes, they don't. You 5 don't need to be part of this process.

6 You have to wonder a little bit how much 7 younger people are coming into the process for the 8 first time are actually empowered enough to help people 9 and be able to say to someone else who looks like they 10 know what they are doing, this is the way it happens to 11 happen.

12 MS. GANDHI: In our community it has been 13 confusing for a variety of audience the fact that there
14 is written assistance in Hindi and oral assistance 15 in -- legally required in Gujarati and Urdu. And that 16 is confusing at times for some of the staff who we work 17 with and are very well-intentioned election board. A 18 form may show "Do you speak Hindi? Check a box." And 19 community members start seeing this and they don't know 20 about Section 203 that they should list also that they 21 can speak Urdu or Gujarati or even another language.
22 Many in our community are very linguistically diverse.
23 Many people speak more than one language and sometimes 24 some of the things that we have talked about like

1 having an outreach coordinator, changing the whole
2 resource system, these are difficult things to achieve.
3 Some are very simple. Have more boxes on the form.
4 List more languages. These are legal requirements.
5 And it's amazing that our community can get help in a 6 variety of languages, but it is important to let people 7 know that it is relevant for them to list out all the 8 languages that they know how to speak or read.

9 MR. KANG: And just really quickly about 10 Section 208. Along with our affiliates we did print a 11 variety of Asian languages, a double-sided flyer. One 12 side in English, hopefully for the children and friends 13 explaining 208 and what their rights are and they are 14 entitled to. And on the other side in their native 15 language so that they could take that in with them.
16 And even if the election judges aren't aware of Section 17 208, they could use that. A lot of the partners that 18 are not covered by 203 in Cook County opted for getting 19 out the vote by going to early voting. That way 20 volunteers interpreters could be available.

21 One group, Korean group, targeted one
22 site in Glenview with the goal of bringing 1,000 people 23 to vote on one particular Saturday. I do believe they 24 brought 1,000 people. Unfortunately it overran the

1 site and only about 600 or 700 voters actually got a
2 chance to vote. They had to start diverting people 3 just by virtue of people not willing to wait several 4 hours to vote.

5 On the resource issue, just quickly, I
6 know one of the issues of 203 covers the entire 7 jurisdiction of Cook County. But our voting is with, 8 as you know, between the City and suburban Cook, and so 9 with respect to hiring an Outreach Coordinator, finding 10 and funding for an Outreach Coordinator. One of the 11 things we look for is having conversation with the 12 Mayor and the Cook County President talked about 13 synergy and finding places where it makes sense to 14 co-fund a particular thing. I think this might be an 15 appropriate place to have that discussion, because it
16 just simply wouldn't make sense to have an Outreach 17 Coordinator that only really focuses on a really 18 smaller segment of that population that needs the help.

19 MS. SCHAAFSMA: I'm conscious of the time.
20 One of the things that I know we have all observed and 21 really tried to figure out is how to find resolutions
22 of election judge training. It is interesting to me 23 listening to you because we talked activities in 24 essentially three counties. We had Cicero, which is in

1 Cook County. We had Waukegan which is in Lake County
2 and we had Joliet which is in Will County. And I'm 3 wondering if Lake County comes out far better. I'm 4 sure there is a demographic issue there. There is less
5 tradition in Will County -- in Lake County than there 6 is in Cook County. And I think Will County, because of 7 its population gaining over the last census, may have 8 some challenges that way.

9 It does occur to me and if anybody wants 10 to comment on that to look at those three jurisdictions 11 and ask two questions, what is the substance of the 12 judges training there, how does -- how are election
13 judges chosen. So I think that in Cook County 14 particularly I'm wondering if the way in which the 15 election authority accepts how judges are chosen 16 impacts how they respond to training. And if there is 17 something about the training that is different across 18 jurisdictions.

19 I happen to think that we need to 20 look -- I know this is like going to be a very, very 21 difficult road to hoe, which is re-centralizing
22 election authority in Illinois. It used to be a 23 centralized authority under the aegis of the Secretary 24 of State. And I'm not in our lifetime probably going

1 to see that. I think the more we talk about what a 2 decentralized election authority means to the 3 administration of elections in Illinois, the further we 4 are going to be able to make some of these 5 recommendations for reform with individual election
6 jurisdictions. The threat of having centralized 7 authority means something to any of these.

8 And, Andy, I think you referenced the 9 early voting. I am wondering to what extent 10 encouraging early voting, particularly since when we 11 talk about precincts in places like Chicago and Cook
12 County, precincts are doubling and quadrupling up in a 13 single location, so I would imagine was that for some 14 of your folks that is a greater barrier to their 15 ability to vote is that they have to navigate really 16 tight spaces and what that means in terms of where 17 people vote and the provisional issues in all those 18 things.

19 Those are sort of observations that if 20 you have time to comment or at least think about in the 21 future, I have some bearing on how we take this reform.

22 MS. JUDAR: One thing I forgot to mention 23 about Chicago and Lake County anyway, in fact, those 24 two reported that they do some pretty intensive

1 tracking and maintaining data on the issues that arise 2 by voting equipment, questions by voters. So they 3 collect data based on their post election review. And 4 then they communicate with the judges to determine what 5 went well and what needs improvement. They actually 6 learn from their mistakes. We didn't hear that from 7 the other election authorities.

8 MR. GREENBAUM: We want to thank everybody
9 very much for testimony you have given today. And I
10 know that Melissa, she also gave us a written 11 submission. If anyone else has anything in writing, 12 please feel free to do that. And this was very 13 illuminating for all of us and it will be used for 14 information going forward. Thank you very much.

1 MR. GREENBAUM: We're going to start Part 2
2 of this hearing. And because some people weren't here
3 at the beginning, we're going to do a short 4 introduction and then we are going to hear from -- 5 about his experiences. And I believe he was also 6 Election Protection volunteer and then we're going to 7 hear from our second set of panels.

8 Again for those who weren't here
9 earlier, my name is Jon Greenbaum, the Chief Counsel 10 for Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. We 11 are the national leaders of Election Protection which 12 is a national largest national nonpartisan effort 13 designed to protect the rights of voters, and also seek 14 methods for electoral reform along this line based on our 15 experiences. We have been working in Illinois for a 16 number of years and working closely with the Chicago 17 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. And we 18 have worked together to come up with this hearing today
19 to just talk about some of the issues that have come up 20 in recent elections. And with the idea that we may be 21 doing this in other places as well. We chose Illinois, 22 because of the experience, positive experience that we 23 had in terms of Election Protection and us working 24 together.

1 We want to give special thanks again to 2 DePaul School of Law for providing this wonderful space
3 for us as well as to the firms of Kirkland & Ellis and 4 Miner Barnhill and Galland for providing the 5 transcription services and the refreshments that we 6 have all been enjoying this afternoon.

7 I'm going to have my fellow panelists
8 introduce themselves and then we'll start our panel.

9 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you all for being here 10 again. And so far this has proved to be a very 11 informative event and I look forward to hearing from 12 more of you. My name is Marissa Liebling and I am a 13 staff Attorney at the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for 14 Civil Rights where I head up our voting rights project.
15 It is a project that we've recently revitalized and 16 have been doing a lot of work with the Election 17 Protection. This has started to give us a lot of 18 information on areas that have been very successive in 19 Illinois in terms of making sure that every eligible 20 citizen can vote, as well as things we would like to 21 see further improvement. And we are using this 22 information, as well as the information we're gathering 23 from events like today, to go ahead and advocate for 24 further reforms and make sure that every eligible

1 citizen is able to exercise their right to vote.

2 MR. BLUSTEIN: Good afternoon. My name is 3 Ben Blustein. I'm an attorney with the Miner Barnhill
4 and Galland here in Chicago. I want to thank both the 5 national and the local Lawyers' Committees for hosting
6 this event and I want to thank the witnesses for coming 7 to the talk to us today.

8 Very briefly, I have worked with Jon at 9 the Lawyers' Committee for several years during voting 10 rights work before coming to Chicago. And since being 11 in Chicago, I have helped out with the Election 12 Protection efforts here, along with Marissa and with 13 others. So why don't we get started with the 14 witnesses.

15 MS. LIEBLING: First, we are going ahead and 16 hear from a voter who is also an Election Protection 17 volunteer. Nana Ofori Atta is going to speak for a few 18 minutes and then we will go ahead and begin speaking 19 with representatives from the Cook County and Chicago 20 election offices.

21 MR. ATTA: Thank you so much. You did an 22 excellent job. Again, I'm Nana Ofori Atta. I am the 23 Managing Director of Realtime Solutions. But more 24 importantly, I am proud as a volunteer with the

1 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under the Law and the 2 Chicago Lawyers' Committee during this it, you know, 3 2012 elections. I had the pleasure of really engaging 4 in the process. For me, I'm very much dedicated to 5 democracy in government. I feel that its a 6 responsibility that we, as citizens, have and should 7 not take lightly.

8 I thought that the past elections were 9 very important because they demanded that citizens and 10 voters stand up and, you know, stand up and really 11 speak for themselves, organize their neighbors and vote
12 their conscience. And I think that the excellent work 13 that the Lawyers' Committee does help that process
14 along.

15 I worked -- my background is law
16 education and policy. I work a lot with just voter 17 education and voter mobilization. One of the things 18 that I think is very important is that citizens don't 19 take for granted the rights that we have. There are a 20 lot of demographic shifts right now. Other people 21 focus on the increased power of the Latino community.
22 But there are also increased presence in terms of the 23 the Asian community that we heard from, the African and 24 immigrant and Caribbean communities as well as Middle

1 Eastern communities, and partnership with, you know, 2 with other mainstream communities, I think is very 3 important. What I saw out there in the field, I saw 4 people who were awake at five o'clock in the morning
5 lining up, you know, to vote. Because it, you know, 6 they had seen through the news and experienced,
7 experienced information they saw that perhaps there
8 would be some challenges to their ability to vote. So 9 you had people who were lined up. Who had their 10 brothers, who had their sisters, who had their 11 neighbors there.

12 You had election officials who also were 13 very much ready for, you know, ready for that process 14 and serving the process. Of course, there were some 15 problems in terms that there were some places where in 16 terms of election hearings needed to be -- there needed 17 to be signs of prohibiting electioneering within 18 100 feet.

19 There also needed to be -- there needed 20 to be kind of a more pairing and matching of some of 21 the poll workers. The more experienced election judges 22 matching them with newer ones.

23 Also I think it is very important that 24 we ensure that the voter roll data remains current by

1 hiring more data entry people, by, you know, taking 2 care of that, because in each precinct that I worked 3 from 32, 17, 18, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, there were 4 instances where voters, you know, the voter rolls were 5 not updated. That definitely needed to be taken care 6 of.

7 We need to continue the strength and the 8 training of poll workers. But I think also something 9 that I think is very important is that I think that a 10 lot of these community-based organizations here, there 11 needs to be more investment in these community-based 12 organizations that focus on voter education, especially 13 in the case of the appellate judges. People need to 14 really understand the appellate judges, their 15 background, their histories. There needs to be more 16 focus on that, because people know the major 17 candidates. They are being told what they are going to 18 do and who they should vote for. But I think that in 19 terms of the appellate judges is one of the most 20 important positions that you can vote for in your 21 community. So I think that that is kind of like what I 22 would like to see more. Just more investment and more 23 mobilization, more voter education. And so I thank you 24 very much for your time and thank you.

1 MS. LIEBLING: Thank you very much. Thank 2 you for coming.

3 MR. GREENBAUM: So with this panel we'll 4 begin with the two local election officials here, City
5 of Chicago, Cook County. We very much appreciate you 6 taking the time to come out and listen to people and 7 provide some thoughts as well. We have been trying to 8 limit people to five minutes. We're not going to put 9 those limitations on you and we're going to have the 10 two of you go --

11 MR. MADDEN: Do you know how dangerous that 12 is?

13 MR. GREENBAUM: -- one after the other and if 14 someone has questions, we'll ask them and allow you to 15 go on with your -- thank you very much.

16 MR. MADDEN: Thank you. I'm Dan Madden I
17 serve as the Legal Advisor to David Orr, the County
18 Clerk of Cook County, more importantly, the election 19 authority for suburban Cook County. Let me say the 20 obvious thing, and I'm sure you all know, is that Cook 21 County is divided into two election jurisdictions. The 22 board of Election Commissioners, City of Chicago, and 23 the County Clerk for the remainder of the county.

24 I have been working with David since he

1 became County Clerk in 1990. And it would embarrass 2 him to hear me say this, but he has striven for all 3 those years to make voting easier for people to 4 accomplish, to provide more choices for voters, to 5 expand the pool of voters and to ease the burden of 6 getting registered to vote. These have motivated his 7 activity as the election authority since he first took 8 office.

9 I want to talk a little bit about the 10 recent changes in the election landscape, some of which 11 we are now pretty used to, but which will continue to 12 shape the way elections are held. The most important 13 one, and the dramatic one is the rise of early voting.
14 Early voting began in Illinois in 2006. March of 2006
15 was the first time we had it.

16 At the beginning it was a bit of a 17 novelty. It was fewer than five percent of the votes
18 passed by early voting in 2006. In the November 2012
19 Presidential election it was over 23 percent.
20 Quintupling the number of people who cast votes.

21 One of the secrets we think for having 22 an effective early voting program, one of the ways you 23 avoid long lines that you saw in many places in the 24 country, is to have a sufficient number of 1 well-positioned sites. When this law was passed, we 2 obtained election data services to in effect apportion 3 the county, to divide the county in to equal areas

4 that would have an early voting site. We have 43 sites 5 in the suburbs. There are 120 Chicago suburbs. And 6 what that works out to is that 70% of the suburban 7 population can cast an early vote without leaving the 8 town in which they live.

9 There is one more site which responds to 10 the curious fact that the Cook County Clerk does not 11 have jurisdiction over -- does not have jurisdiction
12 over its site where its office is located. We are down 13 here in the loop and we maintain an early voting site 14 down here for the many people who live in the suburbs, 15 but come down everyday to work so they can take the 16 opportunity to vote before they go to work and after 17 they finish work or at lunch.

18 The early voting -- the rise in early 19 voting has meshed with the coming of electronic poll
20 books. And we have a live voter registration system.
21 The previous speaker mentioned keeping the rolls up to 22 date. When you go into early vote in our jurisdiction, 23 we look you up electronically in a computer in your 24 early voting site that's linked to the central records

1 downtown. So even if you registered yesterday, which 2 would be hard to do, if you registered just two weeks 3 before, because there is a two-week gap between your 4 registration and voting, your registration can be 5 found, determined and you can vote. That sort of thing 6 would be expanded to all the precincts in the future
7 like at the moment it is early voting.

8 There was a shift, as you may know, in 9 the early voting period in Illinois last year, 2012.
10 And I think it was often misinterpreted. The old 11 system stopped on the Thursday before the election.
12 That was the last day of early vote. Under the new 13 regime, you can vote early up to the Saturday before 14 the election. As you might imagine, the interest of 15 the voting population tends to peak toward the election 16 in addition to the first day of the weekend, first day 17 of the week, Saturday, has made a big difference in 18 turn out.

19 The first -- the original scheme which 20 had a week -- two weeks ahead of the election, the 21 first day was always full, but the days after that were 22 fairly nondescript days. So what we have done is taken 23 four, five nondescript days and turned them into two 24 high turn out days at the end of the process. You can

1 easily foresee that the time will come when early 2 voting will extend up until the day before the election.

3 There are administrative challenges to 4 that, of course, but it is obvious that it is coming 5 around the bend. We support that. We think that the 6 more opportunities to vote that voters have the more 7 things are. As we look to the future and continuing 8 the increase of the number of early voters, we are 9 pondering the prospect of supersites.

10 What we do now is having relatively 11 small sites in many suburbs, village halls, village
12 community centers, things like that. The possibility 13 exists for leasing for a month, empty big box stores 14 and putting them close to expressway exits, which allow 15 people to drive in easily, have lots of parking, get 16 out and vote in a site that would have two dozen or 17 three dozen machines, and then drive on their way. One 18 of the -- even in its densely populated suburban areas
19 in Cook County, the vast majority of people drive.
20 They drive to work. They drive to the store. And they 21 drive on a daily basis. We can't quite have drive-thru 22 voting. But that's something that we're definitely 23 contemplating in the future just to make it that much 24 easier or more accessible.

1 Besides early voting, Illinois now has 2 mail voting on a universal basis. That came in 2009
3 for use in elections starting in 2010. Lots of 4 communities like mail voting. It allows for leisurely 5 voting and reflective voting. The previous speaker
6 mentioned voting for appellate court judges. When you 7 ask for a mail ballot, you have it in your home, go on 8 line and look up the qualifications of the candidates 9 while you are casting your ballot. The biggest 10 challenge with mail voting, universal mail voting is 11 getting the word out to the population that it is now 12 okay to do this. That you don't need an excuse to vote
13 by mail.

14 When this started in 2010 and again in 15 2012, we engaged in an extensive publicity campaign, 16 public service announcements on the radio, bus ads,
17 posters, that sort of thing. And then on the back end, 18 the increased in mail voting predates a need to process 19 the suddenly increased amount of paper. What we have 20 found is that thanks a lot to modern technology we are 21 able to purchase a high-tech mail sorter that would 22 allow us to process the ballot envelopes when they come 23 in without actually human sorting the ballots. That 24 image is used to vet the vote and determine whether it

1 is improperly cast and cast by the person who it
2 was assigned. That the certification has been properly 3 filled out. And then that eliminates 40 or 50% of the 4 paperwork involved in casting ballots.

5 In northeast Illinois, unlike New York
6 City, we are not afraid of high speed vote counters.
7 As, you know, New York City has proposed to using -- 8 because they can't count paper ballots fast enough. We 9 can, thanks to the technology.

10 MR. GREENBAUM: Can I ask you quickly, is 11 part of that technology that compares signatures?

12 MR. MADDEN: Yeah, signature comparison. The 13 signature comparison, there is an electronic scan of 14 the signature on a return certification envelope. And 15 the -- the office worker has that, and then brings up 16 the registration records and makes sure, and brings up 17 the application signature and can make a reasonable 18 judgment whether those signatures match. If they 19 don't, you really show a minutia. The first line 20 worker doesn't have the right to reject a ballot, just 21 bring to the attention of a supervisor who then gathers 22 the original materials and examines them, senior 23 clerks, in correlation with if the vote isn't counted.

24 If the vote isn't counted then it comes

1 up to a higher person, sometimes resembles me, and make 2 a determination of that. And then even if the ballot
3 appears to be irregular, a letter goes out to the voter 4 saying there's a problem with your mail vote. Here is 5 the issue. Can you contact us and see if we could 6 resolve it.

7 Usually this issue is the voter simply 8 has forgotten to sign certification. We get blank 9 certification. You send out a letter and depending on 10 their choice, we can send them a new ballot, this one 11 of the new ballots, or they can come down and sign it.
12 It depends. If they are a distant mail voter, they 13 obviously want a chance to cast a ballot. They are not 14 going to be able to come up and sign it.

15 MR. GREENBAUM: Somewhat related question.
16 You mentioned before that 23 percent of people voted 17 early in 2012. What percent voted by mail?

18 MR. MADDEN: Eight. That is roughly between 19 2008 and 2012 it went up 33%.

20 MR. GREENBAUM: So it is almost a third of 21 people are not voting at the polling place. And what 22 effect did that have in terms of polling place 23 operations?

24 MR. MADDEN: Well, in our case it allowed us

1 to reduce the number of precincts from 2400 to 1600.
2 What that means is, we have fewer election officials,
3 fewer poll workers. And we can have better poll 4 workers because we have that many fewer slots for that 5 facility. That allows for better training of poll
6 workers.

7 There was an earlier conversation about 8 multi precinct polling sites, that there are two or 9 three or four precincts at a single site, which works 10 out well if you have something like a high school 11 gymnasium. It also has the advantage that judges can 12 share technical expertise. If you have three or four 13 precincts, you'll often have one very well-informed 14 person.

15 MR. GREENBAUM: Do you tend to have a leader 16 if you have three or four precincts together to make 17 sure --

18 MR. MADDEN: Some form of direction. You 19 don't -- when the only distinction between precincts is 20 one is 27, one is 42 and one is 56 and one is 58, you 21 need some way of being directed.

22 That sort of segues into electronic poll
23 books. One of the advantages of an electronic poll 24 book, other than simply the recentness of the record,

1 but ultimately the situation of the voter record, is 2 that the voter comes into the wrong precinct with an 3 electronic poll book, the election worker can enter 4 that voter's address and immediately be told what the 5 right precinct for that voter is so the voter can be 6 directed to the proper precinct.

7 There is a pending change in Illinois
8 law that will allow provisional voters who cast ballots
9 in the wrong precincts to have their votes counted. It 10 is better to be in the proper precinct. One reason is, 11 they will go to that proper place the next time and the 12 next time and the next time. They won't be coming to 13 the wrong voting place. It is very important.

14 In terms of online matters, there was 15 discussion earlier about learning from your mistakes.
16 And one of the features that we used is what we call 17 the Automated Call Forum. Whenever a voter, or an 18 election judge or a poll watcher or a candidate calls 19 in on Election Day to the Clerk with a complaint or 20 issue, an electronic record is created and numbered and 21 time and date stamped, so that that issue can be 22 tracked by anyone with access to the system. So if 23 someone calls the Legal Hotline, which I always see, 24 with an issue that it is really a machine issue, we

1 don't have to say to them, "call this other person", we 2 can make a record of that. And then it could be dealt 3 with by a central transferring authority. We'll send 4 it to the right person to dispatch relief. And it also 5 allows you to see the resolution of problems. Quite 6 frankly at noon or one in the afternoon you could sit 7 down at an ACF machine and go through all of the issues 8 that have been recorded in the particular area for 9 which you are responsible and see how many have been 10 resolved, how many are still open, what the resolution 11 was.

12 More and more -- the metaphor used to be 13 that elections were like amphibious landings. You set 14 the election workers up there and you gave them all the 15 equipment you could, and gave them all the resources 16 you could, but they went out there and they executed on 17 their own without a lot of communication back to you.
18 More and more it is not that anymore. More and more 19 you have a -- it's a cliché, but it is a good cliché.
20 It's a wired polling place. The results get wired back 21 to the election authority, judges, the electronic poll 22 books are connected by computer connection to the 23 central authority. And if you early vote now, that 24 process of applying for your early ballot is vetted

1 electronically.

2 More and more we're seeing this where 3 even though we both have very large jurisdictions, over 4 one million registered voters, less and less will you 5 have a problem of inconsistent election administration.

6 MR. GREENBAUM: How do you communicate
7 with -- and this will be a question both of you maybe 8 can address separately. How do you communicate with 9 your poll workers?

10 MR. MADDEN: Now, we use people. We use 11 roving attorneys and the people we call "rovers" who 12 simply are trained election folks that go from place to 13 place. We communicate by cell phone. Every election 14 judge has a team with two or three people on it with 15 cell phones.

16 MR. GREENBAUM: Are you able to text? Let's 17 say something needs to go out to all 1600 poll workers.

18 MR. MADDEN: You couldn't blast text people.
19 I don't think we are quite ready for that because that 20 requires more coordination than you have gotten 21 together. It's certainly doable. But rarely, oddly 22 enough, rarely, at least in the past decade, that we 23 had an issue with so large. The vast majority of 24 Election Day problems tend to be precinct specific.

1 Machine isn't working, the machine doesn't seem to be 2 working, the voters are in the wrong place, is that 3 voter registered or not. There is electioneering going 4 on. Would you send out a team to discipline the 5 rowdies? That is the sort of thing -- usually by 6 Election Day, the larger issues have been resolved. It 7 is the small issues of execution that make up the bulk 8 of what you are doing on Election Day.

9 MR. BLUSTEIN: Talk about what you see
10 projecting into the future. The percentages that you 11 gave us a few minutes ago as far as voting by mail and 12 early voting, do you have a projection of what those 13 percentages would be in five years or ten years?

14 MR. MADDEN: We anticipate half at least. I
15 mean it may take all ten years. If the present trend 16 continues, especially early voting, it doesn't seem to 17 be any reason -- any less than half the ballots would 18 be cast. I call it the smearing of Election Day.
19 Election day is sort of pushed backwards. And the 20 very locution itself "Election Day" is going to be an 21 anachronism. It will be "an election" and process that 22 occurs over a number of days. It is so ingrained in 23 the mythology of American political life, is the notion 24 of Election Day. It would take a while for the notion to be diluted.

1 I don't think that is a going to happen.

2 We have seen the sophisticated national 3 campaign putting emphasis on early voting because it
4 avoids the possibility of Election Day -- it avoids 5 surprises, there is Election Day difficulties that 6 may not have been accounted for.

7 Early voting is an ongoing dress
8 rehearsal. It used to be in the '90s I would receive 9 phone calls from people saying the ballot is wrong.
10 And there is not an office on ballot that should be on 11 there. There is an office on the ballot that shouldn't 12 be on it. Very rarely that was true. We don't hear 13 that anymore because the ballots are all in use for two 14 weeks before the election is started. So it is never a 15 ballot issue anymore. It is just allows us -- it is a 16 sort of ramping up for Election Day. So that instead 17 of doing this one day sprint, you do this rather longer 18 process, but you have to gear up to it. You know it is 19 coming, so you're geared up for it obviously. You get into it 20 and you see how it's going.

21 You know, an unexpectedly high early voting 22 turnout in a particular race. A lot of what you are 23 doing I know concentrates on senatorial races, federal 24 representatives and President races. But in local

1 races, we are able to get a distant early warning, as 2 it were, of a hot race because of the early voting turnout.
3 It is, you know, disproportionately high in a community 4 compared to its neighbors. That is a place we want to put 5 resources on Election Day because you can anticipate an 6 equivalently high turnout on Election Day. So you 7 allocate resources for that. Be ready to move on that 8 one.

9 MR. GREENBAUM: A question again for both of 10 you. How does it work from a cost perspective to have 11 additional costs related to voting by mail, an 12 additional cost related to early voting,
13 counterbalanced by less cost on Election Day? Have you 14 worked it out in terms of how that balances?

15 MR. MADDEN: We make it balance. You have a 16 limited number of resources and a limited number of 17 dollars quite frankly. And nowadays, even local governments have 18 this issue. Even if we don't have gridlock in 19 Washington we still have financial issues. And on the 20 whole it has been -- it has worked out very well.
21 There has been almost a fortunate interlocking of the 22 increases and decreases.

23 It is -- our ability to reduce the 24 number of precincts made a great deal of difference.

1 There are fewer Election Day deliveries so that 2 contract isn't what it used to be. There are fewer 3 election officials to pay quite frankly, so there is 4 less money there. You print fewer ballots because 5 early voting takes place on touchscreen and there is no
6 ballot printing. You rent fewer places. We pay a rent
7 for the polling places. Everything about it becomes 8 cheaper when you can reduce the Election Day part. And 9 in fact I believe studies show it is cheaper to cast
10 and count a mail vote than to cast and count a precinct vote. There 11 are expenses associated. We provide postage paid 12 return envelopes for our mail voters so there is never going to 13 be a vote that doesn't count without a stamp, or a big 14 ballot, two stamps. That is not going to be an issue.
15 Even doing that, it still works out to our financial 16 advantage.

17 I have gone beyond probably ten 18 minutes. I just want to talk about the changes we are 19 going to see. The new legislation is passing in 20 Springfield to allow 17-year-olds to vote in primaries
21 by which they will be 18. We are looking for enrolling 22 a bunch of people for that. And online absentee ballot 23 application has been authorized. It assumes the 24 Governor signs the bill to officially apply online for

1 a ballot. It may not seem much as a convenience, but 2 towards the end the deadline for mail voting is five 3 days before an election. If you wake up on that 4 Thursday and you want to vote by mail, under the 5 previous regime it wouldn't be possible. Now, you
6 would wake up, request a ballot and have it by Saturday
7 evening, have it by Monday, because the rule says it 8 has to be postmarked by midnight the day before the 9 election. So it is entirely possible on the very last 10 day and lodge an online application -- so that may push 11 mail ballot voting up higher.

12 We've had great success with mail
13 voting. We wish it was larger. It works so well. A 14 lot of the changes -- one of the issues of election 15 officials is they -- election judges is that they only 16 practice their craft two days a year. And for voters 17 too. They are only voters a couple of times a year at 18 the most. And the habitual behavior is difficult to 19 break. You don't have many opportunities to change.
20 People who aren't used to the idea that they could vote 21 by mail, just because they want to, have a difficult 22 time absorbing it. The new voters coming in they will 23 expect that. They expect to be able to apply, get a 24 ballot online. They expect to be registered on line,

1 which would be coming. They expect that we're going to 2 fit in the world that they have grown up with. And the 3 more we're able to do that, I think we could break the 4 tradition that younger people vote in a lower level
5 than older people. If the voting process looks to them 6 more like the world that they are accustomed to seeing, 7 the more they will fit into the voting parameters. And 8 it is a lifelong habit. People who vote when they are 9 young, tend to vote all their lives. They don't fall 10 out of the habit. So there is optimism on that scale.

11 I have to do a commercial, forgive me.
12 We are going to have workshops dealing with the changes 13 in the new law. If anyone is interested, they should 14 contact our office, voting for 17-year-olds, or online
15 applications for registration or mail ballot. Contact 16 Gail Siegal our Director of Communications at 17 312-603-0993 or her able assistant, Mark, at 18 312-603-0988. We're looking for input and feedback on 19 these. I thank you for your attention.

20 MR. GOUGH: Thank you, Dan Madden. I don't 21 have -- both jurisdictions have been working together
22 on a lot of these problems and we meet weekly. My name 23 is Lance Gough. I am the Executive Director of the 24 Chicago Board of Election. The City of Chicago has

1 1,400,000 registered voters, one of the largest voting
2 jurisdictions in the United States. I have been -- I 3 have been the day-to-day Operations Manager of the 4 Chicago Board of Election, their Executive Director.
5 And this year marks my 25th year of being Executive 6 Director at the Chicago Board of Election.

7 As Dan Madden said, there is a lot of 8 similarities in the City of Chicago and the County of 9 Cook. The issue is that in the City of Chicago, we are 10 divided up into 50 wards. And we have an early voting 11 site in all 50 wards. I have 51 early voting sites and 12 I have one at our office at 69 West Washington.

13 We had approximately, 38 of our 14 registered voters early vote. It has turned out to be 15 a big success. This last election since the turnout 16 was a lot larger, the problem is that money seems to be 17 an issue with elections nowadays. There are a lot of 18 sites that are public buildings that we use for free.
19 But in some like the Park District, we could not use a 20 gym because it was rented out for a function and money 21 talks and we don't pay for any of those in any public 22 buildings. So we would get the smallest area. We did 23 make do with what we got.

24 We have approximately 14,000 poll

1 workers that we have to train. Every poll worker gets 2 a three-hour training class. Just consider we have to 3 train 13,000 people in less than 30 days, and we do it 4 in class sizes of 75. What we would like to do is get 5 75 individuals so we can train and they get hands on 6 training. And this is something that we have been 7 working on very diligently for the last several years.

8 In 2006 we went from punch card voting
9 to optical scan and the touchscreen voting. What we 10 found out that some of our older poll workers were not 11 used to the new technology. So what we did is we put 12 together a program and with the County, we worked 13 together, and called them polling places administrators 14 where they would have a two-day training on the 15 equipment. So they would know the ins and outs of the 16 equipment. And we had one in every polling place.

17 Due to funding constraints, we had to 18 have them roving. So we would have them go, each 19 administrator would go to three or four different 20 polling places to cut back the amount of money that we 21 spent on that project.

22 Another item that I would like to report
23 on is our High School Student Judge Program. I think 24 we have one of the largest programs in the United

1 States. We have over 2,000. When we first started we 2 only had 100 students back in 2000 that took advantage
3 of the High School Student Judge Program. Now we had 4 over 2,000 in 2008. We went up to 2800 in 2012, which 5 turned out to be a big success. And what was really 6 good for these students is that they felt that they 7 were getting their education and hands-on training and 8 learning about democracy. I mean what's better than 9 doing it on Election Day.

10 So they went through the training like 11 the rest of the judges. They had the same rights and 12 the same responsibility, but we found out in the 13 beginning our older judges were a little upset about 14 it, but now they are always asking, do we have any 15 young kids coming, somebody to help set up the 16 equipment. So it's worked out very well.

17 A couple of other items that we have 18 looking ahead is online voter registration. This will 19 change the face of elections in Illinois. There are 20 several of our close states that have online voter 21 registration. I spoke to the folks in Phoenix, 22 Arizona. Processing registration went from about 50
23 cents a registration to receive paper and do the data 24 entry to now it is less than eight cents. And young

1 people are used to doing everything online. So we 2 think that this will be a big boost to getting young 3 people to vote. They can sit back in their dorm room 4 on their iPad and register to vote and get that 5 information to them. So this is something that we're 6 really looking forward to in the future.

7 Also with online absentee voting,
8 everybody does everything on line. Young people don't 9 like to wait in line. They don't like -- they are 10 saying why do I have to sign a registration form. I 11 don't sign anything else. So something that we are 12 going to start promoting. Something that we are going 13 to look into that is going to happen sooner or later is 14 same day registration. It's coming.

15 In the City of Chicago we had -- we have 16 grace period registration, that Saturday prior to the 17 election was the cut off for registration. I came into 18 the office at about 8 o'clock and pulled up in the car 19 and walked down from the garage and saw a line of 20 people outside 69 West Washington. I said, "Did the 21 elevators or something break?" They were all there to 22 register to vote in the last election.

23 MR. GREENBAUM: Can I ask a question? If you 24 register to vote, let's say you register to vote on

1 that Saturday, and I can't remember early voting, early 2 voting was --

3 MR. GOUGH: This is different. This is 4 "grace period registration". Once you register to 5 vote, you must register to vote right then and there.

6 MR. GREENBAUM: Okay.

7 MR. GOUGH: We had 1500 people lined up down
8 Madison Street waiting to stand in line. Your last 9 minute people we were doing five or 600 a day. That 10 last day we had 1500. If we had online registrations, 11 we wouldn't have that anymore. So these are the items 12 that we're hoping that will bring some change.

13 Just to let you know, and as I said, Dan 14 Madden, I have known him forever. I have been 15 Executive Director for 25 years. Elections aren't 16 getting any cheaper. They are getting very costly.
17 Cost of technology. We have eliminated polling places.
18 The problem is when you eliminate polling places, your 19 older voters want to know "why are you doing this to 20 me". And for this 2012 election, the census had just 21 passed, and the City Council took their time passing 22 new ward lines, and then in the middle of 2012, I had 23 the task of redistricting the whole City of Chicago and 24 had to do it within 48 days. This is something

1 redirecting by ward lines takes anywhere from a year to 2 a year and a half. We did it in 48 days.

3 We did do a mailing to every registered
4 voter letting them know where their early voting site
5 was, where their polling place was. We found out it 6 was amazing how many people didn't read their mailing, 7 but then we found out how many people did. We saw 8 people carrying that postcard into the polling place 9 with them. We saw them carrying it into the early 10 voting site with them.

11 So, you know, the voter has a 12 responsibility also. We do. And I take my job very 13 seriously. Like I said I have been there 25 years. I 14 live and breathe elections.

15 MR. BLUSTEIN: Working with Election
16 Protection I have had the pleasure of working with your 17 offices and cooperating and coordinating, you know.
18 For the past several election, Election Protection has 19 hosted a hotline where we have volunteers come in and 20 receive telephone calls from voters who are having 21 problems throughout the area of Illinois. And, you 22 know, the last election cycle there was a lot of calls 23 that we received about confusion about polling places.
24 And so I'm interested in the idea that your office

1 developed about addressing that problem, making sure 2 that voters are in the right polling places.

3 MR. GOUGH: Well, we did, we talked about,
4 Dan Madden spoke about the poll books. We are going to 5 put poll books in place. Also we are going to have 6 where we just are testing it out, but we found out so 7 many people are texting now, you could text your 8 address and find out where your polling place is.

9 We have redone the websites, so it has 10 made it a lot easier. These are the things that you 11 could do with technology that we had learned from some 12 issues that we are going to take care of it.

13 MR. GREENBAUM: I want to hear that again.
14 You said that a person can text their address and 15 find out where their polling place is?

16 MR. GOUGH: Yes.

17 MR. GREENBAUM: Is this statewide or is this 18 the City of Chicago?

19 MR. GOUGH: City of Chicago.

20 MR. MADDEN: And we both have, in addition to 21 that, a system where if you are online, you could enter 22 your address online and get your registration 23 confirmed, get your ballot and get your polling place.

24 MR. GREENBAUM: The powerful thing about

1 texting, somebody could do that while, if they go down 2 to the polling place and all of a sudden it has 3 changed.

4 MR. GOUGH: Same thing where you could go on 5 the website. Smartphones now almost everybody has 6 them. We are taking advantage of them. So we're 7 trying to make this easier for the folk.

8 MR. MADDEN: We mailed before every election
9 to each household, voter household, just a mailer 10 telling them when and where their polling site is, when 11 it will be open, which never changes and where they're 12 close to an early voting site in multiple languages.

13 MR. GOUGH: In several languages.

14 MR. MADDEN: As Mr. Gough says, some read it
15 and cling to it. Some people don't.

16 MR. GOUGH: And because we had redistricting 17 going on, we did a mailing to every person, every 18 registered voter. It is not a cheap thing to mail out 19 to every registered voter. So it is something that we 20 took very seriously with this redistricting.

21 MR. MADDEN: The City is at a big 22 disadvantage. No one can move our voters around. If 23 you live in Palatine township, that is where you live.
24 It isn't going to change. But people's wards are

1 changed and I think it is completely outside of the 2 election authority except to tell them.

3 MS. LIEBLING: Two quick follow up questions.
4 You both mentioned the use of electronic poll books --
5 a lot of the issues that we saw on the Election Day
6 with people being confused about where to go. Can you 7 talk a little bit about what you think your timeline is 8 to implement those on Election Day throughout the 9 jurisdiction.

10 And my other question is, I have seen as 11 an Election Protection worker, the use of being able to 12 text and receive location information being a very 13 valuable tool. And does that include the actual 14 precinct number. Because I know being able to tell the 15 election judges what precinct you are in, in addition 16 to address, sometimes we could get people to the right 17 place and then as you said the precinct consolidation 18 we want to make sure that they are getting to the right 19 table?

20 MR. GOUGH: When you text it, it gives you 21 your precinct, your ward, the address of the place, 22 what location and where is the pooling place located.
23 If it is in a gym or down the hallway. So that has 24 been very useful.

1 MR. MADDEN: As for electronic poll books, we 2 ran a pilot program in parts of two townships the last 3 time around. And will be expanding that in the general
4 primary to full townships we trust to see what works 5 and doesn't work. I would say the timeline would be, 6 if not 2014, certainly 2016.

7 MR. GOUGH: We are looking for the same
8 thing.

9 MR. MADDEN: You can talk.

10 MR. GREENBAUM: Do you mind saying your name?

11 MS. SIEGEL: My name is Gail Siegel. I'm the 12 Communications Director for the Cook County Clerk's office.
13 The mobile tool that we have that you can use with the 14 Smartphone will actually operate with the QR code.
15 That is on any of the public information materials and 16 you can go to the voter information tool and you can 17 look up not only the polling place, but it also links 18 to a map to your polling place and comes up with your 19 ballot, all the offices listed on the ballot. So it 20 not just simply telling you that you are going to a 21 particular church or school. It is exactly your 22 precinct number.

23 MR. GOUGH: And when you are online, you 24 could actually pull up your ballot and see which

1 candidate you are voting for.

2 MR. MADDEN: Like a rock concert. Anything
3 else from the panel?

4 MS. LIEBLING: Another thing that we have 5 heard frequently from today is to make sure that 6 provisional ballots are properly issued or language
7 assisted, disability and making sure there is properly 8 trained judges is really at the heart of many of these 9 matters, but limiting -- realizing that you obviously 10 have a lot of resource limitations, as you said with 11 having to train some many election judges in a short 12 period of time and making sure everyone is trained, if 13 you were able to send more resources that would go to 14 polling place management or election judge training, 15 what is an area that you think you could apply it to 16 that would make the difference. Is it as you said 17 before, having a polling place administrator who has 18 more training roving around, or are there other things 19 either within your jurisdiction or other jurisdictions 20 in Illinois that if you had these resources you would 21 make a big difference in polling place management?

22 MR. GOUGH: I'm glad you said that. I just a 23 couple of months ago I was invited to speak in South
24 Africa in their elections. And it is funny in South

1 Africa on Election Day the Election Department has 2 control of the whole country. They have control of the 3 police, the fire. The same with a lot of other 4 countries like India, Brazil. They have one judge who 5 is in charge of all the elections. So he can get 6 whatever polling place he wants. He can get the 7 largest room. They are not paying for it. So these 8 are the things that would be nice if we had actual 9 control of what we need to get for the election like 10 larger rooms to do early voting.

11 Where we right now in the City of 12 Chicago and the State of Illinois, our judges appointed 13 by the party system from a list that we receive from 14 both Democrat and Republican Party. We would like to 15 get one independent person out there that we could 16 train to make sure they have like your polling place 17 administrator that have all the tools to operate with 18 that have gone through two or three days of training.
19 That person right there if we had them in every 20 precinct would stop a lot of problems, especially when 21 coming up with poll books. Can you imagine I have an 22 82 -- year-old judge of election looking at laptops 23 saying "What do I do?" And when we have seen in other 24 jurisdictions that even though we give our poll workers

1 training and we have them go through a test, they can't 2 spell the names sometimes. So they are sitting there 3 trying to type out a name on a poll book that is 4 incorrect. And the State of Illinois, you do not need 5 to have any ID with you to go vote. Your name is in 6 the book or we have a record of it.

7 A lot of other jurisdictions around the 8 United States have their driver's license where they 9 could swipe it in. Once they swipe it in, it brings up 10 the voter registration. So that's the kind of thing 11 that we're looking at with our poll books where we can 12 actually have the voter control, here is my driver's 13 license, swipe it and bring my name up, or tell the 14 poll worker who they are.

15 MR. MADDEN: This raises the spectrum too
16 much voter ID to vote.

17 MR. GOUGH: We are very conscious on that.
18 We do not believe that you need an ID to vote. But 19 when you go to early vote, you must show a photo ID.
20 So these are things that you need to really look at.
21 If you have same day registration, that is going to be 22 an issue.

23 MR. MADDEN: I think Lance mentioned the 24 electronic poll books. There may be some difficulty

1 with some judges adapting to it. What our experience 2 was, the pilot program was judges managed rather 3 handily. We have a system where the data is entered. Because a 4 signature is required, a label is spit out of a laser printer 5 and put on a piece of paper and the voter signs it and they do the 6 signature comparison from that. So you have a record of the 7 signature in case of recount or election contest, and if any 8 additional affidavits are required. If you seek 9 assistance for the language or inabilities -- 10 disabilities, there is a record made of that. And who 11 assisted -- if somebody assists too many people, it 12 leaves a paper trail. But the issue of lines is 13 primarily an issue of checking. And one of the things 14 you have to say about optical scan ballots is they fill 15 out rapidly. They are easy to fill out.

16 MR. GOUGH: The largest ballot in the United 17 States.

18 MR. MADDEN: Primarily because of that,
19 because this long list of retention judges, I don't 20 think anyone thinks that it is an unique feature.

21 MR. GOUGH: We have the largest unit of 22 government voted for in the United States.

23 MR. MADDEN: Lance mentioned high school 24 judges. There is also a parallel college and

1 university judge program as well. We've been getting 2 very good judges out of -- we have a great judge 3 coordinator for that. Obviously, they are -- if we 4 could put one in each precinct, we would have someone 5 that could work the computers for sure.

6 Election judge training, we, like the 7 City, have training in the suburbs in various places
8 during the period before election. The law requires 9 the judges to take training to be certified. Election 10 judges are a hybrid. They are nominated by the 11 governing authority and it is confirmed by the Court.
12 So technically election judges they are officers of the 13 court.

14 And training is an issue. Sometimes it 15 cost more to rent training facilities than it does to 16 rent polling places. So you do want to have Lance make 17 the 75 -- get a bigger -- just to get everyone trained.

18 One of the hidden factors in 19 administering elections, you never hear about it, is 20 election judge retention. Trying to make sure that 21 your election judges return. It requires experience.
22 Just so they become used to dealing with the voters on 23 Election Day. So much easier for a judge who has been 24 through three or four elections to deal with an

1 challenges of elections than someone who is new in 2 office. They have a sense of -- it is like a surgeon.
3 Ideally you want to be opened up by a surgeon who when 4 he or she sees something odd, never seen that before.
5 I remember that. I was back in med school. I remember
6 that one. That is a real advantage. You don't hear
7 election judge retention. In most places, poll worker 8 retention, skilled as it is important in election 9 machinery.

10 MR. GOUGH: One more comment before we stop.
11 I would like to introduce Mr. Jim Scanlon. He is my 12 attorney at the Chicago Board of Elections. On 13 Election Day he oversees a phone bank of 78 attorneys 14 that answer phones and we have a program that's called 15 Ask -- where we enter this information in the system so 16 we know if there is a problem.

17 We also have 300 off duty law officers
18 that we send out in roving vehicles, that we send out 19 to stop electioneering or any kind of problems that are 20 out there.

21 Somebody made a comment about voting
22 machines breaking down. The thing is in every precinct 23 we have a paper ballot. So if the machine breaks down, 24 you don't stop the voter from voting. The voter still

1 marks its ballot. We will get somebody out there to 2 fix that machine. We have an auxiliary ballot box.
3 They take that ballot off and then feed it back in.
4 Nobody stops voting. This is something that we would 5 like to let everybody know, that you do not stop
6 voting.

7 One last item because I'm hearing
8 another conversation, it is provisional ballots. In 9 this last election we had less provisional ballots than 10 we ever had. We had less than 20,000. Out of that 11 20,000 after reviewing them, we only counted 890. So 12 provisional ballots are way down.

13 MR. GREENBAUM: Why is that?

14 MR. GOUGH: Well, of the mailing that we are 15 doing. I think people have gotten the information that 16 either they are registered or not. And we look at a 17 lot of those people that they voted provisional because 18 A, they didn't register. And they figured, hey, what 19 is the -- I still want to vote. And instead of a judge 20 arguing with a voter, they give them a provisional 21 ballot.

22 In fact in Los Angeles County, they had 23 anywhere from 80 to 100 and something thousand 24 provisionals. And out of that it was about a third.

1 MR. MADDEN: I can't speak to LA County. The 2 act of a non-registered individual given a provisional 3 ballot application is not just to charade. If you are 4 not entitled to -- that application becomes -- you are 5 registered the next time. So data that is gathered is 6 used in registration.

7 MR. GREENBAUM: Thank you very much. And 8 actually as you may not have been here at the beginning 9 when I mentioned we would be sharing this information
10 with the Presidential Commission on Election
11 Administration. And I actually think they will find a 12 lot of what you say to be helpful.

13 MR. MADDEN: We did prepare written testimony 14 to redistribute to the members. We'll leave it. Thank 15 you again. Are you going to have further proceedings?

16 MR. GREENBAUM: Yes.

17 MR. MADDEN: We'll get out of the way.

18 MS. LIEBLING: We are going to start with 19 Jeff Cummings from Miner Barnhill and Galland.

20 MR. CUMMINGS: Good evening, everyone. The 21 top of my remarks will be a little bit change of pace 22 from what we have heard so far in this panel.

23 I would like to share a historical 24 perspective on the impact of the Voting Rights Act and

1 the impact that the Act has had on the electoral 2 opportunities of African-Americans and Latinos in 3 Illinois, as well as the current role that Section 2 of 4 the Voting Rights Act plays at the present in providing 5 equal opportunities for African-Americans and Latinos.

6 Here in the Illinois we have been 7 fortunate not to have some of the more extreme 8 impediments and abuses in voting systems that you have 9 seen elsewhere such as poll taxes or literacy tests.
10 And we've also seen in the history of Illinois some, I 11 guess I would say spectacular electoral success by 12 African-Americans and Latinos. We've had two elected 13 African-American senators. We had our first Latino 14 congressman in the midwest elected and other statewide 15 officials.

16 At the same time and it is equally true 17 that throughout the history of Illinois in various 18 places there has been racially polarized voting which 19 has worked to suppress and dilute the voting
20 opportunities for African-Americans and Latinos.

21 It may seem paradoxical in a way that 22 you could have, for example, in Cook County -- 23 African-American County Board President, which you have 24 polarized voting that exist, as existed in the '80s

1 and '90s and perhaps even through the day, depending on 2 the election, that has worked to reduce electoral 3 opportunities.

4 In my testimony today, I would like to 5 briefly discuss a few of the more important cases where 6 the Voting Rights Act has come into play and it's 7 provided enhanced opportunities. Before I get to that,
8 just as a little bit of a background about the Voting 9 Rights Act itself.

10 Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act is 11 the section that applies all across the country and is 12 intended to make sure that electoral opportunities and 13 the electoral process provide the equal opportunity for 14 voters in that they are not held back because of race, 15 color or any discriminatory reasons.

16 Prior to 1982, Section 2 of the Voting
17 Rights Act required proof of intentional
18 discrimination. And that has, in voting matters, 19 usually very difficult to prove intent in designing a 20 voting system. But in 1982 Congress amended Section 2 21 of the Voting Rights Act to provide that you could 22 prove a violation based on the result that a particular 23 electoral system provided. So that you no longer had 24 to prove intent. And consequently Voting Rights Act

1 Plaintiffs are now required to show only that the 2 challenged system or practice in the context of all the 3 circumstances in the jurisdiction in question results 4 in minorities being denied equal access to the 5 political process.

6 So with that change the Voting Rights Act
7 really, Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act in some 8 sense came alive in the early 1980s and the effect of 9 that was seen in Illinois. One of the landmark cases 10 that we have here, a case that was captioned "Ketchum 11 vs. Byrne", Jane Byrne was our Mayor back at some point 12 during the 1980s in the City of Chicago, was a lawsuit 13 filed by African-American and Latino Plaintiffs against 14 the City of Chicago challenging the 1981 plan for the 15 redistricting of Chicago's 50 wards. The challenges 16 were brought under the Voting Rights Act as well as the 17 14th and 15th Amendments, which by the way still 18 requires proof of intentional discrimination.

19 In essence the Plaintiffs challenged two 20 main aspects of this City's ward map. One is referred 21 to as "packing". And packing takes place where you 22 have a geographically concentrated group of minority 23 voters who are placed into a district in numbers that 24 are in excess of what is needed to provide them with

1 equal opportunity to elect a candidate of their choice.
2 And here in Chicago we had some wards that have been 3 drawn where they have been 95, 98% African-Americans, 4 for example. Part of that is a function of the 5 residential segregation that we have here. We had here
6 in the '80s and '90s and still continues to the present 7 day in the City of Chicago so that in certain parts of 8 town we were creating a ward map and you are going to 9 naturally have majority of one group or the other 10 drawing lines. So packing is one of the elements of 11 it.

12 Another challenged tactic or challenged 13 mechanism is called "fracturing". What fracturing is 14 is again you have a geographically, concentrated 15 minority group and the boundary lines of the district
16 will slice off a number of voters and place them into a 17 majority white district in numbers where they do not 18 constitute an effective political voting group.

19 Now, proof of a Voting Rights Act 20 violation is always premised on the presence of 21 polarized voting. You must prove that. And that 22 typically has two components. One is a showing on 23 behalf of the Plaintiffs that the minority group voters 24 are cohesive. They tend to vote together. They tend

1 to have common candidates of choice inside the group 2 itself.

3 The second component of proving 4 polarized voting is that the votes of the majority 5 regularly defeat the candidates of choice of the 6 minority voters. Since you have a cohesive minority 7 vote taking place and then you have a majority vote 8 which works to feed the minorities' preference, and in 9 that situation you have a polarized vote.

10 Getting back to the Ketchum vs. Byrne
11 case, the Plaintiffs, African-Americans and Latinos 12 allege both this packing phenomenon of packing the 13 wards full of the minority groups and also the 14 fracturing, a splitting off groups into majority white 15 wards, the Plaintiffs prevailed in that case. And the 16 result of that case actually had a tremendous impact on 17 the political dynamics in the City of Chicago in the 18 1980s.

19 In 1983, the first African-American
20 Mayor was elected in the City of Chicago, the late 21 Harold Washington. And when he came into office and 22 his election itself was a polarized vote, racially 23 polarized vote where he was overwhelmingly favored by 24 African-American/Latino population, he had some white

1 support, and he had his opposition vote consisted 2 entirely of white voters in the city. It was a very 3 racially polarized vote.

4 Once he got into office, the aldermen 5 divided themselves into a group of 29 and a group of 6 21. The 21 aldermen who supported the Mayor were all 7 the African-American aldermen and some of the 8 progressive white aldermen. And the 29 aldermen were 9 28 white aldermen and one Latino who robotically 10 blocked whatever Harold Washington intended to put in 11 place.

12 When the Ketchum case is decided in a 13 special election ordered by the Court, additional 14 African-Americans and Latino aldermen were elected and 15 it shifted the balance in the City Council from 29-21, 16 to 25-25. The Mayor was able to cast the deciding 17 vote. So he was able to move his agenda forward. And 18 the city itself, the political process loosened up a 19 bit in the city itself, so initiatives and policies 20 were actually being enacted at that point in time. So 21 that decision really made a difference in the '80s in 22 Chicago.

23 The polarized voting that I discussed
24 was not limited to the City of Chicago itself, which is

1 another thing to keep in mind. Sometimes when people 2 think of Illinois, they just see Chicago, but there are 3 many other municipalities in other areas of the state.

4 In the mid 1980s, for example, there was 5 a case in Springfield, Illinois captioned McNeil vs.
6 City of Springfield. And in that case the City of 7 Springfield had an "at large system" of electing its 8 City Council members, which simply meant rather than 9 being divided into wards and districts, everyone in the 10 city could vote for the number of representatives that 11 they had.

12 When that system was put in place, 13 between 1911 when that system was put in place to the 14 mid 1980s when that system is challenged in court, they 15 never had an African-American City Council member 16 elected under that system. And so the Plaintiffs 17 challenged that "at large system" and said there is 18 racially polarized voting. African-Americans, who were 19 about 10 or 12% of Springfield's population at that 20 time, votes were being submerged and basically 21 neutralized. Because of the polarized voting, they 22 could not elect candidates of their choice.

23 The court ordered the City of 24 Springfield to be redistricted into single member

1 districts. And now at the present time two of the 2 district council members are African-Americans. So 3 that was actually a change of the system from "at 4 large" to single member district. And that's something 5 that took place in many areas across the country. You 6 saw at large districting schemes replace the single 7 member districts.

8 Section 2 has also played a major role
9 in the shaping of Illinois' Congressional Districts.
10 And in 1991 following the 1990 census and actually 11 following every census, the Congressional Districts
12 throughout the country had to be redistricted in order 13 to account for population shifts.

14 In the 1990s, as a consequence of the 15 1990 census, Illinois lost two of its congressional 16 seats. So it went from 22 down to 20. And the 17 Illinois legislature was given the task of redrawing 18 the congressional districts in part because they had to 19 choose to eliminate two congressmen. They couldn't get 20 the job done and they left the task to the federal 21 court. So you had the Democratic Party, the Republican 22 Party and also a group of African-American and Latino 23 Plaintiffs who joined together and argued that the 24 three majority African-American congressional districts

1 in and around the Chicago area should be retained, but 2 also that a new majority Latino district should be 3 created in the Cook County area. And the rationale for 4 that, the Plaintiffs argued that the Voting Rights Act 5 actually required maintenance of the three 6 African-Americans districts and the creation of the 7 Latino district because of if you did not create those 8 four districts you would have a violation.

9 And Plaintiffs presented evidence of the 10 polarized voting, the ability to create the new Latino 11 district and retain the African-American districts, and 12 they were able to prove that such a plan should be put 13 in place. And the federal, the three-judge panel of 14 the federal court agreed and created the first majority 15 Latino congressional district in the midwest.

16 One interesting element about that case
17 which was very important for the Plaintiffs to work
18 together is that you have in the City of Chicago Latino 19 population concentrated on the northwest side and on 20 the southwest side. So in order to connect those two 21 population groups in the one district, the simplest 22 thing to do has been to just run a little connection 23 just straight down the middle of the city. The trouble 24 with that is, that would have cut through the middle of

1 the 7th Congressional District, which is a majority 2 African-American district. So the compromise to 3 preserve the African-American districts and create the 4 Latino district are in connection and run around the 5 western edge of the African-American district to 6 connect it to the Latino population. So it kind of 7 looks like an earmuff placed on its side. And it 8 worked out. Everyone -- the Plaintiffs agreed to that 9 configuration. It was upheld in court and put in 10 place. But that was not the end of the story for that 11 congressional new Latino Congressional District.

12 In 1995, a voter challenged the creation 13 of the Latino majority district claiming that it was 14 drawn based on race and that that was a violation of 15 the Constitution's Equal Protection Clause. And so the 16 folks who had been the Plaintiffs to create the 17 district went on the defensive and now had to defend 18 that district against this constitutional challenge.

19 The case went to the Supreme Court two 20 times, went to a three-judge panel that ruled that the 21 district was constitutional because although it was 22 drawn based upon -- predominantly based upon race, it 23 was done to remedy what would have been a violation of 24 the Voting Rights Act, and that was a compelling state

1 interest to use race as a factor in creating the 2 district.

3 And ultimately on the second time the 4 Supreme Court affirmed that. And this was actually one 5 of the very few Congressional Districts across the 6 country, majority minority districts to survive that 7 kind of strict scrutiny that the Supreme Court held as 8 necessary to authorize one of those districts to be 9 drawn in that fashion. And so the Congressman, Luis 10 Gutierrez, still sits in that seat today and now it has 11 survived that constitutional attack and it is well 12 entrenched in Illinois.

13 The final case I would like to briefly 14 discuss is the challenge that took place in the city's 15 ward map again in the 1990s. So you have a violation 16 in the 1980s. The 1990s come around. This time the 17 City's map was put in place by a referendum so that you 18 didn't actually see a map on the ballot, but you saw a 19 list of aldermen who is supporting one map versus 20 another and it was put to the voters. The map was 21 adopted in a racially polarized vote, meaning that the 22 African-American voters overwhelmingly supported one 23 version and the white voters overwhelmingly supported 24 the version that was enacted.

1 Following enactment of that map,
2 African-American and Latino Plaintiffs again sued the 3 City of Chicago again alleging that the way that the 4 ward boundaries were drawn had the effect of diluting
5 the voting strength of the African-American/Latino
6 community.

7 This case was very hotly contested, to 8 say the least. The trial itself spanned 48 days in 9 court, 48 trial days, and I believe it is the longest 10 Voting Rights Act filed in the history of the Voting 11 Rights Act. We tried that case and then we had an 12 additional three days after an appeal. There actually 13 are were two appeals on the merits of the case and an 14 additional couple of appeals concerning mandamus
15 petition and attorneys fees.

16 At the end of the process in 1998, the 17 federal judge ruled that the map in fact violated the 18 voting rights of the City's African-American population 19 and ordered a new map to be put in place on the 20 southwest side of the city where it took place.

21 Perhaps the most notable thing about the 22 Barnett case is its ongoing -- it kind of set the 23 parameters for when you would find a Section 2
24 violation at least in the Seventh Circuit.

1 The Court of Appeals held that citizen
2 voting age was the appropriate measure to look at when 3 you are determining whether it is possible to create 4 additional majority/minority districts. And also 5 citizen voting age is to be considered when you look at 6 whether or not a particular minority group is 7 proportionally represented. Meaning does the 8 representation in the City Council mirror its share of 9 the population.

10 Now the Voting Rights Act does not 11 require proportional representation and proportional 12 representation is not an absolute bar to bringing a 13 successful Voting Rights case. But a map that provides 14 that by the citizen voting age measure will in most 15 circumstances provide a city or another jurisdiction 16 with a pretty strong defense to a Section 2 challenge.

17 So what you see in the 2000s, after the 18 2000s census and after the last census in 2010 there 19 has not been any serious Section 2 challenges to the 20 City of Chicago's ward maps, because the maps were 21 drawn in a way that seemed as complied with, roughly 22 compliance with what the rules were as it related in 23 the Barnett case.

24 Now, in the future, just very briefly,

1 one thing that occurs whenever there is a legislature 2 remap, redistricting, whether it's state legislative 3 districts or the congressional districts, the Voting 4 Rights Act, in compliance with the Voting Rights Act is 5 always a factor in determining whether whatever 6 districting map has been put in place is in compliance 7 with the law.

8 Sometimes the various parties will argue 9 well, our map complies with the Voting Rights Act and 10 the other does not, and each side will make these 11 arguments and the Courts who consider these maps, 12 always consider the Voting Rights Act and determine if 13 a map that they approve is in compliance.

14 And so at this point just in closing I 15 think that Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act provides 16 a protection that offers African-Americans and Latinos 17 in Illinois an equal opportunity to participate in 18 anything in a broader sense in the electoral process.

19 MR. GREENBAUM: First of all, let me say that 20 having litigated Section 2 cases and having tried to 21 explain them to people, you did an excellent job in 22 terms of trying to explain what are extremely -- 23 Section 2 cases on their own are extremely difficult.
24 And certainly Section 2 cases in Illinois particularly,

1 the congressional cases and the one involving the City
2 of Chicago has been unusually complicated among the 3 Section 2 cases. First of all I want to say great job 4 in explaining the cases.

5 So essentially what you said in the 6 '80s and the '90s there was a lot of Section 2 7 litigation that resulted in African-Americans and 8 Latinos being able to have a choice and not so much 9 during the times since. If you didn't have Section 2, 10 what difference do you think it would make in terms of 11 the redistricting process?

12 MR. CUMMINGS: Well, I think there would be a 13 huge impact because my involvement since really the 14 early 2000s has actually been probably more in the 15 process of consulting with folks who are drawing the 16 maps. And they know, the office voters know that 17 Section 2 compliance is a must. In fact in the latest 18 county, redistricting in the County Board districts, 19 that was a first starting point that we had to comply 20 with the Voting Rights Act and every other 21 consideration that might come into redistricting had to 22 be shaped around that.

23 If you took Section 2 away or Section 2
24 weren't in the picture, then these other considerations

1 which control the drawing of district boundaries which 2 range in things that seem to make a lot of sense to 3 some things that don't make much sense except to the 4 office voters themselves, would rise to the top and I 5 believe there would be more dilution taking place here
6 within that Section.

7 MR. BLUSTEIN: You talked a little bit about 8 collaboration among different minority groups in terms
9 of congressional redistricting in the past. Looking 10 ahead in the future, do you see what kind of 11 collaboration do you see occurring, cooperation or 12 collaboration.

13 MR. CUMMINGS: I think its essential on a 14 couple of levels. Number one, just on a very practical 15 level in terms of resources, if you have more than one 16 minority group who are suing and challenging a map or 17 redistricting plan, you could work together and pool 18 your resources which we have done pretty much in every 19 Voting Rights case that I have been involved with. We 20 have always worked often with the Mexican-American 21 Legal Defense Fund and attorneys for other groups who 22 have also been suing. But it is also very important on 23 a strategic level, if you have areas of whatever 24 jurisdiction you are talking about where maps could be

1 drawn one way or the other, when you want to propose 2 alternative maps, it is very helpful to be working with 3 the other folks who are suing or the other groups that 4 may be impacted by a change in boundaries.

5 The other thing that is important is not 6 to have be divided in terms of various legal arguments 7 that could be made against -- by a jurisdiction that's 8 defending a map. For example, with the citizen voting 9 age population issue. In the City redistricting in the 10 Barnett case it was our position that total 11 population -- we represented African-Americans. We 12 worked with the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund.
13 We argued the total population really should be the 14 measure, the relevant measure that you should use in 15 measuring proportionality. The City of course wanted 16 the citizen voting age population, ultimately adopted 17 by the Court, but it enhances the prospects I think for 18 all Plaintiffs to succeed if they work together and 19 coordinate their efforts whenever possible. It is 20 facilitated here in Illinois because of the residential 21 segregation patterns, often the areas where the Latino
22 vote voting stream is being diluted. In most instances 23 in a different area than the African-American voting
24 stream is being diluted. So that there is not a

1 conflict or a dispute over the same, redrawing the same 2 part of town for both Plaintiffs often, not always.

3 MR. GREENBAUM: Thanks, Jeff. Maybe we 4 should do a time check, because I want to make sure -- 5 we may have some voters here. We have two more 6 panelists to testify, but I also want to see if we have 7 voters who want to have a chance to testify as well.
8 Thank you, ma'am. We're going to make sure we get you 9 in.

10 Anybody else? Okay. So we're going to 11 hear the two panelists and then the lady who just 12 walked in.

13 MS. TRAWINSKI: Thank you.

14 MS. LIEBLING: We will now hear from Eve
15 Rips who served as an Election Protection
16 volunteer here in Illinois in the 2012 election.

17 MS. RIPS: I'm Eve Rips. I'm here to talk 18 informally about my experiences as a volunteer of 19 Election Protection. I work for the Chicago Lawyers' 20 Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, but I do mostly 21 educational work. And have barely next to no 22 experience with election law before November of last 23 year. I think maybe as a result of that inexperience, 24 I thought that a lot of the stories I had been hearing

1 from people like Melissa about these voting 2 complications were really anomalies and that they were 3 certainly happening on occasional, but things were 4 pretty smooth sailing. That certainly was not my 5 experience last November at all.

6 I was assigned to five precincts. And I
7 should say that at three of them things were basically 8 reasonable. Lines were short and the voters had a 9 reasonable experience. At the other two, though, there 10 were some very serious problems.

11 One of those precincts was a library.
12 But for 20 some odd years before that, voters had been 13 voting at a fire house. And what was happening, a lot 14 of long time voters from the neighborhood were 15 instinctively going to the fire house. And there was 16 some well-meaning firemen who had put up a sign 17 directing voters to what they thought was the correct
18 location, but it actually sent them to quite a 19 substantial distance away. So voters were really 20 getting very aggravated and showing up and a second 21 location with no idea what to do next.

22 We heard from a couple of voters that 23 some of their acquaintances had given up. And the 24 election judges were not sure what to do about it at

1 the original precinct.

2 Fortunately that was the situation with 3 common sense. We went to the fire house and put up a 4 correct sign and directions back to the library and 5 included some information as well about our vote phone 6 number. So that was basically taking care of. But it 7 does show that even with some sort of notice sent out, 8 there is still really complicated situations for a lot 9 of voters.

10 The second precinct where we had 11 problems was really a mess. All of the election judges 12 were quite new to the experience. None of them seemed 13 to be aware of exactly what they should be doing.

14 One problem that we saw was there was a 15 Spanish language voter who requested a Spanish ballot 16 and it turned out they had actually run out a couple of 17 hours back before we got there and had been turning 18 away Spanish language voters. They didn't seem overly 19 concerned about rushing to get new ballots. We did put 20 in a request. The City had been backlogged by 21 requests, so wasn't able to get those things out very 22 quickly.

23 The election judges tried to use the 24 electronic voting machines with this voter, but they

1 hadn't been using it for Spanish voters at all during 2 the day, and weren't sure how to operate it. So they 3 absolutely weren't sure as to whom to submit it and 4 they asked to submit it again and at that point one of 5 the judges said well, that was like 100 zeros times
6 twice. So that clearly was not a great situation.

7 MR. GREENBAUM: Was the machine designed so 8 that it would give all the instructions on how to vote 9 in Spanish?

10 MS. RIPS: Yeah. It looked as if there were 11 instructions, and I don't speak any Spanish, but it 12 looked as if there were instructions to specified what 13 to do. And then there were poll workers sort of 14 hovering over him making sure things were going to 15 plan.

16 MR. GREENBAUM: Was this in an area of the 17 city where there was a large Latino population and 18 there should have been Spanish speaking poll workers?

19 MS. RIPS: It was. Even in Rogers Park, which is 20 one of the most diverse neighborhoods there is in the 21 city, there is a large Spanish-speaking population and 22 there is a large population of speaking a whole range 23 of languages in the neighborhood.

24 Another serious problem we ran into was

1 we had a voter who came in who asked a basic question 2 about one of the referendums on the ballot. The 3 election judge explained how she had voted and why she 4 voted that way, which seems like a serious problem. We 5 didn't see her do that again. It was definitely 6 something that really even basic training should have 7 been enough to make it clear that she couldn't do that.

8 You know the judges also sort of didn't 9 get along. There were these small factions that were 10 bickering quite loudly. And there were several 11 different voters who came up to the judges and 12 requested that they quiet down so they could focus on 13 voting. Something we talked about with them. And I 14 noticed they were incredibly furious. It was like 15 being trapped in a car with a couple that are arguing 16 with each other.

17 Eventually one of the judges got so 18 frustrated with the situation that she finally quit and 19 left early and they had to find another election judge 20 at the very last minute, which took a while. And they 21 were eventually were able to find someone and swear 22 them in at the last minute. But it certainly wasn't an 23 ideal situation.

24 And then finally, at the end of the day,

1 they weren't really sure how to pack things up. They 2 weren't sure how to get the memory card out of the 3 electronic voting machine. And it sort of like 4 watching my grandma with her laptop. They were not 5 sure what to do with the system. And it didn't feel 6 like something where there had been more comprehensive 7 training for these judges. A lot of these problems
8 could have been avoided. Obviously, this is all 9 anecdotal personal experience, but it certainly was 10 informative for me when I think back on what I think 11 democracy looks like on the ground in Chicago.

12 MS. LIEBLING: Now we'll hear from Ruth 13 Greenwood for the Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil 14 Rights Under Law.

15 MS. GREENWOOD: I'm Ruth Greenwood with the 16 Chicago Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law.
17 And I'm going to give testimony today about the recent 18 bill that passed that the House and Senate is still 19 awaiting Governor approval HB 2418. The pretense of passing a 20 bill was not ideal in that it was originally introduced 21 as a very short bill to introduce online voter
22 registration which was excellent. It then had 170 23 page amendments thrown on on May 28th. On May 29th it passed the 24 Senate. On May 30th it passed the House. There was very 1 little time for an advocate, such as myself, to get involved

2 with the process.

3 Most of the bill is very good. There 4 are a few little things that don't seem as good and 5 I'll go through them. In terms of the things that are 6 good, though, we're going to stay vigilant with the 7 rule making and the implementation of things like 8 online voter registration. I'll go through the bill 9 and initially go through my concerns about the rule 10 making process.

11 So the bill included, as Mr. Madden
12 pointed out earlier today, online voter registration 13 and the ability to request an absentee ballot online.
14 It also included a change to grace period voting 15 whereby at the moment there is a practice that many 16 places will offer a ballot at the same time as we heard 17 earlier when somebody registers during the grace 18 period, and that's an excellent practice. It means 19 their vote is counted.

20 In certain locations - we had a report on 21 our hotline that in Champaign voters were allowed to register up 22 the three days before the election, but given a form by which they 23 could request an absentee ballot. Obviously that was 24 never going to go through in time. Something like that 1 is effectively disenfranchising. Even though it might 2 not be intentional, it may be that they just didn't 3 have ballots.

4 The change to grace period voting is 5 that if they have ballots, they have to offer them. As 6 you could imagine, this is a small loophole that they 7 would have to address along the rule making process.

8 The other changes from HB 2418 include 9 the fact that the State Board of Election, as well as 10 the County and City boards, can authorize poll 11 watchers which we think is a good innovation, it makes easier for 12 groups like ours to be able to get poll watchers authorized.

13 It also made an important change to the 14 counting of provisional ballots. We did previously 15 have the, as Ohio calls it, at the right church, wrong
16 pew problem here in Illinois whereby people would cast 17 a ballot at the correct polling place but an incorrect 18 precinct because there were too many tables and they 19 didn't know which one to go to.

20 As the panel has outlined earlier today, a fix to this 21 could also be things like electronic poll books. In this 22 case the provisional ballots will be counted for all of the 23 races for which that voter could have voted. That is 24 an excellent change.

1 It also introduces automatic tabulating
2 equipment, although there is not a huge amount of specification 3 in that. So that would be interesting to see how that 4 plays out.

5 It also continued a practice that was 6 introduced in 2012 as a one year only practice, which 7 was to require public university campuses to offer 8 early voting. And so I think it is excellent that that 9 is going to continue. And it changed early voting on 10 Sundays which was previously 9 to 12 a.m. to be 12 to 3 11 p.m., which means people could go to church and then go 12 to vote, which is a good change.

13 I have a little bit of a laundry list of 14 other things that have changed that I would be happy to 15 go through at another time, but given the comment that we 16 heard from the voter today, it also prohibited 17 electioneering at early voting sites, which previously 18 was not in there. It was just a general statement 19 about electioneering.

20 The particular thing that I found that 21 was frustrating about the bill was an increase in 22 signature requirements for aldermen in the City of 23 Chicago from two to four percent, which in an average 24 large turnout district would be from about 250 to 500

1 signatures. And it seems -- and I chatted with an 2 alderman about this. It is generally just a 3 anti-incumbent measure, which is not something that 4 we -- I'm sorry. It is a pro-incumbent. It is an 5 anti-challengers measure, which is not something that we 6 support. We think democracy should be more open.

7 Now in terms of the rule making process, 8 our potential concerns with the online system is 9 firstly that obviously it be offered in a number of 10 languages. And the good thing about that is that once 11 one jurisdiction is able to offer the online voter 12 registration in multiple languages, then everybody has 13 access to that. So hopefully it will not be such a big resource 14 lift.

15 Another potential complication is that 16 the online system will require a match of a driver's 17 license, the date of the issue of the driver's license 18 or state ID card and the last four digits of the Social 19 Security Number. We have seen from the Help American 20 Vote Act implementation through the Social Security
21 Administration that I just found this out recently in the week 22 of the close of registration in 2012 in Illinois 18% of 23 Social Security numbers were not matched, which means 24 those people in the case of HAVA would need to turn

1 up to the polls showing a piece of identification, not 2 necessarily a photo ID. And the types of 3 identification that HAVA offers are reasonably broad.
4 And so I can imagine that that it would be fair 5 to implement it in that way, but in this case if they tried 6 to register on line, they won't get registered at all.
7 I think that there will be some processes with the way
8 online registration is implemented to make sure it is not 9 that a fifth of people registering actually don't get registered.
10 Or if they don't, they at least get told that they didn't 11 get registered.

12 Also the bill includes updating
13 registration online. We want to make sure it is clear, 14 that it's updating as well as registering online. And 15 again that that's in multiple languages. But also that 16 the voter record is very secure online. That when somebody 17 goes in, I can't just go in find somebody else's 18 registration and change their address, for example.

19 The final issue -- I have two more issues for 20 other things. That is with the grace period voting, it 21 is clear that under the Move Act, all the counties and 22 City Board of Elections have to have ballots ready by 23 45 days before the election. So my thinking is, why 24 not make it that they have all of their ballots for

1 military overseas, and anybody who is likely to 2 register during the grace period. That will prevent 3 this problem of particular jurisdictions saying we 4 don't have any ballots so you can't have one. Hopefully 5 that will be a better way to ensure uniformity in the 6 application of the new language.

7 The final statement would be that there 8 is a lot of confusion when new laws come in. So in 9 terms of the new rule about provisional ballot, we know
10 that in plenty of other places outside of Cook County
11 and Chicago there are higher rates of provisional 12 balloting. It is important that people become aware of 13 what provisional ballots can be counted to make sure 14 that people will have the right to vote that they have 15 exercised actually count.

16 So overall actually I think it is a very 17 good sign with this new rule. It is just a matter of 18 being vigilant with respect to the implementation.

19 MR. GREENBAUM: I have a couple of questions.
20 And they are going to reflect my ignorance of Illinois
21 law, not being somebody from Illinois. So the two 22 questions are first, could you explain how the rule 23 making process actually works? And secondly, when you 24 were talking about implementation of the online, it

1 sounds like you were saying every election jurisdiction 2 is going to do it separately as opposed to there being 3 a kind of statewide process?

4 MS. GREENWOOD: So to deal with the second question
5 first, I don't think that is the case. I think that the State 6 Board of Election will manage the process. They don't have the legal 7 requirements to offer the online registration in different 8 languages under Section 203. But Cook County and some of the 9 other collar counties do have that requirement. So 10 even if it is that only Cook County prepares the Spanish language 11 version or the Hindi or the Gujarati language version, then the 12 rest of the state benefits. That was my point on that.

13 In terms of the rule making process, I'm 14 still a little unsure myself. I know that it is 15 through the State Board of Election and I am working 16 with some of other groups, such as the Illinois Center for 17 Political Reform to go through the rule making process.
18 But the State Board of Elections has limited power in 19 this respect. It is not able to issue advisory 20 opinions, for example. So it is definitely an issue 21 where centralization would make it a little easier for 22 us, but we're going to have to work with all the counties 23 probably.

24 MR. GREENBAUM: Thank you. We have a voter

1 who has come to testify. And I'm wondering if we could 2 get her some help to get her seated near the 3 microphone?

4 MS. TRAWINSKI: I love making a grand 5 entrance. I'm sorry I'm dashing in. This is not my 6 professional attire. I had a group of 30 middle-aged 7 impaired adults. We just came back through the 8 thunderstorms, but I'm here. My name is Martha 9 Trawinski. I got information about this event through 10 Equip For Equality. I assume you all know.
11 Somebody is here from Equip, right?

12 MS. LIEBLING: Earlier today.

13 MS. TRAWINSKI: As you can see, I'm visually
14 impaired and my issues have to do with accessibility 15 voting. I have voted in my lobby because I'm not 16 paying paratransit to take me somewhere else to vote.
17 This past November I came down to vote, they 18 realized -- first they thought I needed the machine 19 that would work with the picture. And I went, "No, I'm 20 visually impaired and need the headset." The judges 21 scratched their heads. And I am not exaggerating at 22 least 20 minutes trying to figure out how to get the 23 machine to work. They would say, "Is it talking now?"
24 And I would say, "No, I'll tell you when it is talking."

1 Is it talking now? No." And the card kept going in 2 and coming out and going in and coming out and all this 3 cartoon effects were going on.

4 They finally called around to the Cook
5 County, to the troubleshooters, couldn't get any 6 information. Did what they said, but it didn't work.
7 It is 25 minutes. It's 27 minutes now. And they 8 decided this isn't going to work. Lets do a regular 9 paper ballot, a regular print ballot. And they said, 10 "We are going to have somebody read it to you, but they 11 are going to have to sit next to the judges' table 12 because we don't have any extra judges". And I said, 13 so... now, you know I'm a real shy person. I said, "So 14 in other words, how is the secrecy of my ballot 15 protected?" And they went, "Oh!" And they said they 16 went back and rustled through the ledger and I don't 17 know maybe had an apparition, I'm not sure. And then 18 decided well, you could go into a booth and vote with 19 two judges. I said "Fine. Let's do it." He said, 20 "No, there is nothing available now. Go upstairs to 21 your apartment and come back down in 15 minutes."

22 I come back down and there is still no
23 one available. Finally they got a booth available.
24 They took me into the booth. They started a paper

1 ballot. Remember we've already done the -- in the 2 other machine. And they start doing it, and they are 3 not quite sure how to do this. I said well, the best 4 thing to do is have one of you read it and have the 5 other one mark it, so you're watching each other. And 6 they thought that was a good idea. So we started doing 7 that, except neither of them could pronounce the names.
8 And so I had to keep saying spell the name, because I 9 didn't know who they were talking about. And we got 10 about one-fifth of the way through the ballot and they 11 came and got me and said "Oh, no, we got the machine 12 working now. We brought someone else in and they got 13 the machine working." I said, "Well, what about this 14 ballot?" And the two judges, they weren't quite sure 15 what to do.

16 And then they got me to the next -- to 17 the appropriate machine and they did it the right way
18 and I could vote probably an hour from the time I 19 arrived at the polling place.

20 My concern is, we have election judges 21 who do not know how to work the equipment. They are 22 not even aware of basic election etiquette and law.
23 They did not know how to accommodate me. They did not 24 know how to take care of this issue. They were not

1 even aware of how to work the machine. And when I came 2 in and they tried to work the machine, they didn't know
3 how. They weren't sure who to call. It was -- if it 4 could have been a combo between The Three Stooges and 5 The Marx Brothers, that would not be under-estimating 6 it. It was incredibly frustrating. It was annoying, 7 and being a person with a disability, I rely on the 8 paratransit ride service which meant that I was going 9 to lose my trip because of their ineptitude and I
10 couldn't get out on time for my next appointment. I 11 guess I would rather let you ask me questions than me 12 go on and on.

13 MR. GREENBAUM: So what does it mean to you 14 to be able to vote?

15 MS. TRAWINSKI: It means everything to me.
16 We just celebrated the 100th anniversary of Illinois 17 passing the Women's Right to Vote. Yesterday I was at 18 a reception. This is important. People died to get us 19 to vote. I have every right to vote in a secret ballot 20 with the same rights as ever other citizen of this 21 country. And because I am in a situation, I have a 22 visual impairment and I need an adaptive piece of 23 equipment, should not surely jeopardize that right.

24 MR. GREENBAUM: And what is -- prior to this

1 election, what have your experiences been?

2 MS. TRAWINSKI: They have gone both ways.
3 The very first time we had the adaptive equipment
4 after -- was in place, we had several nightmares. I 5 filed all my stuff with Equip For Equality, with the 6 Board of Election. They didn't know how to work the 7 machine. They didn't know how to do it. They weren't 8 clear. We played these games and went round and round.
9 It was the same old mess.

10 Then in either '08 or '10, on the off 11 year election, we finally had a judge who knew what to 12 do and they plugged it on me. They were ready. I came 13 in. I went and I voted smoothly and I was all done in 14 the same amount of time. However, I will say, we have 15 an issue with the placement of a piece of voting 16 equipment that we use, because it is put immediately 17 adjacent to the judges' table and a place where the 18 votes are lodged in the box. And the problem is, I'm 19 trying to listen and then I have to hit a button and it 20 responds to me verbally confirming my vote. And I have 21 to crank it up so loud, because there is all these 22 conversations going on behind me, and that also 23 jeopardizes my privacy.

24 We have been asking through Equip For

1 Equality to please have that particular equipment moved 2 in a place that is more private so that we could hear 3 clearly and we can respond simply, and that has not yet 4 happened.

5 MR. GREENBAUM: What -- and after the 2012
6 experience, it sounds like you did raise it with the 7 election officials at Cook County, and what is their 8 response?

9 MS. TRAWINSKI: I haven't heard anything.

10 MR. GREENBAUM: Too bad the timing was a 11 little bit off, because we did have some of the -- we 12 had the attorney for Cook Country Board of Election.
13 And to a Clerk a little bit earlier. We will, though, 14 be sharing the transcript of this hearing with them and 15 I'm sure there is going to be some follow-up.

16 MS. TRAWINSKI: Our rule here in the city is 17 when we have an issue that is ADA related, there are 18 mandated agencies for ADA problems. So I immediately 19 called their election hotline. They were wonderful.
20 They took down the information. They told me their 21 best guesstimate of how to proceed. I agreed with them.
22 I went and followed all that and gave them a follow-up.
23 I spoke with them. They were very aware with it and 24 they were also aware that things were being lodged and

1 I did my lodging of my concerns and nothing has 2 happened. I have had concerns prior to this, prior to 3 HAVA and it went to the Board of Election and we filed 4 all kinds of paperwork and still never heard anything.

5 MR. GREENBAUM: When is the next election?

6 MS. TRAWINSKI: We have a primary in March or 7 February of '14. That will be our off year for 8 Congress and the Governor or maybe Senator maybe. I 9 can't think. February rather March, maybe.

10 MS. LIEBLING: I want to thank you for being 11 here. And we had Melissa from Equip for Equality 12 earlier today who outlined some of these common 13 problems as well as other advocates who were able to 14 tell us about the problems that face voters in their 15 community. It really is helpful for us and I think 16 it's extremely compelling to hear firsthand from the 17 voters that are impacted by some of these problems and 18 we're going to continue to work to address them.

19 MS. TRAWINSKI: You know I'm watching my 20 neighbors go in and cast their ballot and leave, go in 21 and cast their ballot and leave, and I'm being held up, 22 and held up, and held up, and held up, because the 23 judges literally do not know how to work the equipment.
24 I don't have any other explanation, but they don't know

1 how to work the equipment. I don't consider that 2 excusable. We were told there would be one judge in 3 each precinct or within two precincts or within one 4 polling place who would have the knowledge to work the 5 adaptive equipment. I don't know. Didn't happen.

6 This is nuts. We have been doing this 7 for how many years now with the equipment. You still 8 don't know how to use it? I have had friends who have 9 had the same kinds of problems. It is a real problem.
10 It not a fluke. It really happens. And just as an 11 aside, Judge Timothy Evans, who is the head of the 12 Appellate Court lives in my building and loves to hear 13 my stories. This is what's going on. I think it's 14 ironic. I'm standing in that lobby going "Oh, God.
15 This is insane and it goes on. And judges who are 16 totally inept have no idea who to call, no idea how to 17 resolve it. Resolving it in inappropriate ways. And 18 are totally flummoxed by the whole situation. As far 19 as I'm concerned, that is a travesty to my rights to 20 vote. I have the right to vote in a proper prompt 21 fashion and I have not gotten that. Anything else?
22 Amen.

23 MR. BLUSTEIN: Thank you for coming. Get 24 home before the next wave of storms.

1 MR. GREENBAUM: That is an appropriate way
2 for us to end. We want to thank all the panelists 3 today as well as DePaul School of Law, Kirkland and 4 Ellis and Miner Barnhill and Galland and this 5 informational was very helpful going forward in 6 Illinois as well as to national efforts to make voting 7 work better for all voters. Okay.

8 MS. LIEBLING: I think that actually sums it
9 up really well. We look forward to seeing this 10 information and working with all the groups that were 11 here to continue to improve the issues. Thank you.

1 (The hearing commenced at 1:03 p.m.)

2 MS. ZAMORA: Good afternoon. How are you
3 all doing today? My name is Erandi Zamora. I'm 4 with the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under 5 Law, and it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 6 National Commission on Voting Rights, Kansas City
7 regional hearing. As you know, at the event today, 8 we will be discussing voting right issues, not only 9 in Kansas and Missouri, but also from Iowa and 10 Nebraska.

11 Before we get started, I want to thank the 12 UMKC School of Law for providing this beautiful 13 venue for us to have this important discussion, and 14 I also want to thank our steering committee and our 15 supporting organizations. The full list is on the 16 back page of the program, and I invite you all to 17 please take a look. These organizations have been 18 absolutely instrumental in the planning of this 19 event, and they all have demonstrated a commitment 20 to protecting equal accesses to the ballot on equal 21 terms for all, so please join me in thanking these 22 organizations. And I also want to thank our guest 23 commissioners here. I will be doing introductions
24 in a brief moment, but just to give you a little bit 25 of background, this event is part of a series of 1 public hearings that the National Commission on 2 Voting Rights is hosting throughout the United 3 States. The National Commission on Voting Rights is 4 a nonpartisan, independent panel, and it is tasked 5 with documenting the state of voting rights

6 throughout the United States. In recent years, 7 there have been a number of restricted voting laws
8 that have limited access to the ballot for eligible 9 voters, and so the commission is here to learn about 10 these barriers that have come up throughout the 11 country, learn what can be done to improve access to 12 the ballot for eligibility citizens, and also to 13 learn what challenges election administrators are 14 facing in implementing these laws, and ensuring that 15 the voting process works properly. So at the 16 conclusion of these hearings throughout the country, 17 the commission will be putting together two 18 comprehensive reports, and these reports will be 19 made available to the voting public, to the 20 legislatures, and to anybody who wants to improve 21 our voting process and protect voting rights. So 22 your participation here today is really crucial and 23 instrumental in this process, so thank you so much 24 for being here.

25 And before we get started, I also want to

1 go over a few housekeeping items. There will be 2 three formal panels of experts testifying today, and 3 there will also be three sessions for public
4 testimony. These will be taking place at 2:25, 5 4:10, and 6:10 p.m.; so if you're interested in 6 sharing your experiences, we really want to hear 7 from you, and we encourage you do that. Please sign 8 up at the registration table right outside.

9 Also, just so that you know, the hearing
10 will be transcribed -- so thank you to our court 11 reporter for being here -- so keeping that in mind, 12 please speak clearly, and state your name when 13 you're about to speak. Also, if you're testifying, 14 keep an eye on the timekeeper right over there. He 15 will be raising signs, and if you do not listen, the 16 floor below you might open up, and we are not 17 responsible for what might happen to you then.

18 Also, we're going to be here for a long 19 time, until 7:00 p.m., approximately, so there will 20 be some light sandwiches and snacks available for 21 you outside at 4:40, during that break, and we just 22 ask that you please do not bring that food in here.
23 And, lastly, if you're on Twitter, we ask you to 24 join the conversation, so Tweet away, and you can 25 use the hashtag "NCVR," and also "voting rights."

1 And now it's my honor to introduce our 2 distinguished panel of commissioners who will be 3 presiding over the hearing today. They will be 4 taking down the testimony, they will be asking 5 follow-up questions, where necessary, and each of 6 them has a remarkable commitment to quality and 7 civil, and we're really honored to have them here.

8 Our first commissioner is Wendy Noren, who 9 is a county clerk from Boone County, Missouri. She 10 was first elected in 1982, and has been re-elected 11 seven times. Ms. Noren has served also on the 12 advisory board for the U.S. Election Assistance 13 Commission, the EAC, and she has long been a pioneer 14 of using technology to improve access for voters.
15 She was the first election official to accept online 16 voter address changes in 2010, and just last year,
17 she also implemented the first local online voter 18 registration application system in the country. In 19 2012 -- these are her own words -- she survived the 20 ninth presidential election of her career.

21 We also have Dr. Marty Ramirez. Dr
22 Ramirez is a retired counseling psychologist from 23 the University of Nebraska, where he was for 38 24 years, and in addition to his work in mental health 25 throughout the country, he is also known for his

1 involvement in the community. Dr. Ramirez has 2 received many awards, including Nebraskaland Days
3 Hispanic Man of the Year, and National Hispanic Man
4 of the Year. Dr. Ramirez is also a Vietnam veteran, 5 and a recipient of the Purple Heart.

6 Our third commissioner is Mary Ratliff.
7 Mary Ratliff is the president of the Missouri State 8 Conference, and Columbia local of the National 9 Association for the Advancement of Colored People,
10 the NAACP. She has lead successful efforts that 11 resulted in record numbers of African American 12 turnout. Ms. Ratliff was elected to the NAACP
13 National Board of Directors, and served for 12 years 14 until the end of her tenure. She received numerous 15 awards, including the Chairman NAACP State 16 Conference Presidential Award, and you might 17 recognize her, because she's also the TV host of 18 Mary Raliff's round-table, which airs four times a 19 week on Mediacom. And if you haven't seen her 20 already, we encourage you to look her up. I don't 21 know what time her show comes on, but I'm sure we 22 can share that with you.

23 We also have Professor Bill Rich.
24 Professor Rich is at Washburn University School of 25 Law where he teaches Constitutional Law and Civil

1 Liberties, among other topics, and he was a 2 Rockefeller Fellow at the Yale Divinity School.
3 Prior to joining the Washburn faculty, he was a law 4 clerk for Chief Justice Donald Wright of the 5 California Supreme Court, and he also served as a 6 staff attorney of the Legal Aid Society of Wichita.

7 And last, but not least, we have Marcia 8 Ternus. Ms. Ternus is the former Chief Justice of 9 the Iowa Supreme Court. In May 2012, Ms. Ternus and 10 two of her colleagues in the court were honored with 11 the John F. Kennedy Profile and Courage Award for 12 their political courage and judicial independence.
13 Ms. Ternus has now returned to the private practice 14 of law, and she was recently appointed to serve as 15 the first director of the Harkin Institute for 16 Public Policy and Citizenship Engagement at Drake
17 University.

18 So as you can see, we're in really 19 distinguished company, so please join me in 20 welcoming our panel.

21 MS. TERNUS: I'm going to take the lead in 22 this part of our program, but before we start the 23 testimony, the Commission has given us the 24 opportunity for each the commissioners to make a 25 brief opening statement, so we will begin with that.

1 And, Mary, would you like to start, if you want to 2 say anything, and, of course, you don't have to.

3 MS. RATLIFF: Just that it's -- I think 4 it's wonderful that we are here giving this 5 hearing -- this testimony this evening. It 6 certainly is needed, and I'm just happy to be able 7 to be a part of hearing firsthand some of the 8 problems that exist in the many other states, so 9 that it can kind of help us in our particular areas
10 know which areas that we -- if there are some areas
11 that we can work on. So it is pleasure to be here 12 with you this evening. I look forward to hearing 13 your testimonies.

14 MS. TERNUS: Thank you, Mary.

15 Bill?

16 MR. RICH: Thank you, Marsha. I'm also 17 very pleased to be here this afternoon. This is now 18 my 37th year teaching at Washburn Law School, and in 19 that time, I've concentrated primarily on 20 constitutional law. I've seen lots of changes 21 affecting voting rights, affecting the process of 22 voting, affecting the way in which elections are 23 handled, and so forth, and what I'm particularly 24 interested in hearing from people this afternoon is 25 how all of those changes -- changes in the way in

1 which districts are portioned, changes in the way in 2 which elections are financed, and, particularly, 3 changes brought about because of burdens that are 4 placed on people who are exercising the right to 5 vote. How those things have actually affected not 6 just the individual registration, but, also, the 7 motivation to vote. I think it's one of those 8 underlying things that all of us need to pay a lot 9 of attention to, because we don't want to turn into 10 a society where people think it's not worth their 11 time and not worth their effort, and so to the 12 extent we can link our interests and our discussions 13 to the expertise of the panelists will bring to that 14 underlying motivation, I appreciate hearing about 15 that.

16 MS. TERNUS: Thank you, Bill. Wendy?

17 MS. NOREN: First of all, I want to thank 18 the Lawyers Committee on doing this Commission. I 19 have several interests. I started my career being 20 an 18 year old wanting to register to vote. Not 21 many people in my business, found barriers, and so I 22 started quite young doing registration and believing
23 that was a key to success in any political ideal. I 24 am the election official for the main campus for the 25 University of Missouri, and I take that very 1 seriously. I feel like it's my job. Most people

2 who come through my panel, their first interaction
3 with voting is how well I conduct an election, and I
4 believe that people's first interaction with voting
5 tends to color them for the rest of their life. So 6 if they have a bad interaction, they will probably 7 have a difficult time ever going back into the 8 political process, so that's why I'm always 9 interested to find out where the problems are. No 10 problems are unique. Problems that happened in 11 Florida, happened in my county 20 years before, you 12 know? In Ohio -- you know, it can happen in many 13 place, so the more we know about what problems
14 exist, the better prepared we can be as election
15 officials. And I also am spending most of my life 16 wanting to expand the rights of people to vote, and 17 extremely concerned about efforts to restrict access 18 to registration of elections that are going in many 19 states, including my own; so -- and I'll be 20 interested to see the impact in some of the 21 surrounding states with some of the restrictions 22 that are being implemented.

23 MS. TERNUS: Thank you, Wendy. Marty?

24 MS. RAMIREZ: Yes. I would like to take 25 time to thank the Commission on Voting Rights, which

1 was -- in my world, was unheard of. I'm still 2 trying to figure out what a guest commissioner is,
3 but, nevertheless, I'm from a set of immigrants born 4 and raised in Nebraska -- in the western part of 5 Nebraska. Been very involved since -- upon 6 returning from Vietnam, because at some point, I 7 realized that you get sent off to war to fight for 8 many things, and one is for the freedoms, and, in 9 particular, the vote for many. Over the last ten 10 years in my continued involvement, I began to 11 realize that this concept of voting is not only a 12 right, and often a privileged, but so complex with 13 the good, the bad, and the ugly. And,
14 unfortunately, I think we're going through a time in 15 America where the ugly is beginning to surface.
16 It's very complex, presenting many barriers, and 17 unfortunately, we have to deal with the empathy of 18 voting, especially with the minority, the Latino and 19 immigrant population. So somewhere and somehow, we 20 antithetics need to step up and step in and bridge 21 the gap so that this freedom called voting is not 22 being suppressed, and I think meetings like this are 23 truly significant, and it's going to be a learning 24 experience for all of us, and especially for me.
25 So, again, welcome, and be patient throughout the

1 day. Thank you.

2 MS. TERNUS: Thank you, Marty.

3 Again, my name is Marsha Ternus. I'm from 4 Des Moines, Iowa. I'm a native Iowan, growing up on 5 a farm in eastern Iowa. I practiced law in 6 Des Moines for 16 years before I was appointed to 7 the Iowa Supreme Court in 1993. I served on that 8 court for 17 years. I am pleased to see you here.
9 I am sure that you're all busy people, but this is 10 important. Public policy is only as good as the 11 information upon which is it based, and so if we 12 expect our government leaders to make good policy 13 choices, we must give them information that will 14 allow them to make those honest decisions. So, 15 today, we're here to focus on the facts, to learn 16 how -- what your experiences have been in voting, 17 what impact various rules and laws have had in your 18 efforts to register or to vote, and while I'm sure 19 we all have opinions about these issues, please 20 remember that we are here to find facts, so if you 21 spend your time on other matters, rather than giving 22 us the factual details of your experience, we'll 23 miss an opportunity to inform our congressional 24 leaders. So if you can, just keep that in mind as 25 you speak, and use your time wisely, that would be

1 very helpful. And, again, thank you for being here.
2 I think we're ready to start with our first panel, 3 if there's nothing from the commissioners at this 4 point?

5 We have three witnesses for the first 6 panel. One gentleman, unfortunately, at the last 7 minute was not able to be here, so if the three 8 panelists, Betty Andrews, Adolphus Pruitt, and 9 Delores Furtado -- I hope I haven't butchered any of 10 these -- if you'd come forward and take a seat. We 11 have some name tags here.

12 And somebody is running late, and I guess
13 that person isn't here yet either.

14 Our topic for the first panel is systemic 15 procedural barriers. Delores Furtado from Kansas, 16 the leader for the Voters of Kansas will be our 17 first witness, and she will discuss proof of 18 citizenship, and its impact on women and other 19 communities, such as the elderly and minorities.

20 MS. FURTADO: Thank you. Guest
21 commissioners, I am Delores Furtado, president of 22 the League of Women Voters of Kansas. I appreciate 23 this opportunity to testify on a 2013 requirement 24 that first-time applicants seeking to register to 25 vote in Kansas must provide documentary proof of 1 U.S. citizenship. I will describe the negligent

2 impact the law has had on the numbers of voters 3 registered by the League members. That confusion is 4 discouraging Kansans from registering, and there is 5 inconsistent treatment of people on the suspense 6 list.

7 Voter registration takes longer.

8 Registering voters at public events means that proof
9 documents actually are not in hand; however, League 10 members advise individuals to start the process by 11 filling out the application form that we, the League
12 members, will turn in. We advise about secure 13 copying of personal documents. We tell about the 14 suspense list, which I sometimes refer to as the 15 incomplete list -- the list of incomplete
16 applicants, and about not being a registered voter 17 in Kansas until proof is provided. The letter from 18 the election's official will reiterate what is 19 required. The number of people successfully 20 registering are down because of the requirement, and 21 because of the time it takes. Kansans are confused.
22 The Kansas form says to provide a copy, or show the 23 proof document to an official registrar. League
24 members are not official registrars. There is no 25 spot on the form to indicate "see," as opposed to 1 received -- attached copy.

2 Newly naturalized citizens are also 3 confused about registering to vote. Barriers
4 include the availability of copying equipment, and a 5 statement at the bottom of the certificate, which 6 says "Not to be copied, except for official 7 business." Our election commissioner offered an 8 office iPad to photograph the certificates, which is 9 to be returned with the application forms at the end 10 of the day. Leagues and other counties now use 11 government-issued devices to make copies of 12 naturalization certificates. This solution
13 registers voters. However, at a recent ceremony
14 held on a college campus, employees of the U.S.
15 Citizenship and Immigration Service prevented League
16 members from using the iPad. We turned in 85 forms 17 without copies of proof, adding 85 names to the 18 suspense list. For over a year, the return rate -- 19 excuse me.

20 The third area will be management of the 21 suspense list, and the inconsistent processing. For 22 over a year, the return rate to the letter from the 23 election official has been very low. The suspense 24 list outraged to them has been variable. For 25 example, one county has stopped sending the letter

1 because of the cost of postage. Another county has 2 elected officeholders to write letters and pay for 3 the postage, and another uses volunteers, including 4 League members who go door-to-door canvassing for the 5 folks that should be applying proof. By 6 January 2014, the numbers on the suspense list
7 exceeded 22,500. At the state level, matching names 8 on the suspense list with the birth certificates in 9 the office of vital statistics removed over 7,700
10 names from the suspense list. These individuals, 11 mostly male, became registered voters without any 12 personal involvement. For whom a name change has 13 happened since birth, and they are mostly women, 14 they have to provide a birth certificate and 15 document the reason for the change. They do accept 16 an affidavit, but it is not easy to find that on the 17 Web site.

18 That leaves us with the out-of-state birth 19 certificate holders, for whom acquisition may be 20 costly. The suspense list and election day: voting 21 will depend on the form used to register. Users of 22 the Federal form, and it is estimated about a 23 hundred will be in that category, don't need to 24 provide the proof to become registered voters, the 25 Federal form does not require it. They will be

1 eligible to vote only in a Federal election. Users
2 of the Kansas forms on the suspense list are not 3 registered voters. Now, consideration of the 4 provisional ballot reveal existing statutes
5 conflict. That is, provisional ballot law gives the 6 voter days after the election day to rectify the 7 deficiency; however, the proof statute says proof 8 must be provided before election day. Using 9 provisional ballots with the intention of the 10 discarding them was declared disingenuous by the 11 rules and the oversight committee. Another 12 alternative that has been discussed it to say no to 13 the folks on the suspense list who show up to vote.
14 That would rely on consistent action by poll
15 workers.

16 In conclusion, the requirement to provide 17 proof of citizenship has curbed the League's ability 18 to register voters. Two, it has caused confusion 19 and resistance among those wanting to register to 20 vote. It has resulted in over 20,000 applicants 21 being placed on the suspense list. It is treating 22 people on that list inconsistently. It has raised 23 questions about discrimination, poll taxes, 24 resistance, and distrust all about exercising the 25 right to vote. Married women, minority citizens,

1 and the elderly are adversely affected. And,
2 finally, the retrieval of out-of-state records takes 3 time and money.

4 Thank you very much for this opportunity 5 to testify.

6 MS. TERNUS: Thank you. I'll sure we'll 7 have some questions for you, but I believe we'll do 8 the entire panel before we ask questions. Is that 9 correct?

10 Okay. Mr. Pruitt, would you like to give 11 us your testimony at this time.

12 MR. PRUITT: Sure. That's easy. Delores 13 has given you most of mine, so that makes it a 14 little bit easier for me.

15 MS. TERNUS: Let me first tell the 16 audience that you're from the NAACP of Missouri?

17 MR. PRUITT: Yes.

18 MS. TERNUS: That your issue is voter ID?

19 MR. PRUITT: Yes.

20 MS. TERNUS: Which, apparently, could be 21 on the 2014 ballot here?

22 MR. PRUITT: Absolutely.

23 My name is Adolphus Pruitt. I'm the first 24 vice-president and political action chair for the 25 NAACP Missouri State Conference of Rightists. As

1 chairman of the Political Action Committee, it is my 2 job to assist granters in working to ensure voter 3 empower and to provide training and programs
4 support, ensure registration education,
5 administration, and election protection.

6 You know, without question, elections
7 cannot be fair if fraud exists, and it is not 8 caught. On the other hand, nor can elections be 9 fair if eligible voters are not allowed to vote. In 10 Missouri, we seem to have a problem with our 11 legislature, who is in the process of trying to 12 elect voter-restricted voter registration
13 requirements, what we call voter IDs. As a matter
14 of fact, I think we can agree that a strict photo ID 15 requirement would not solve problems related to 16 inaccurate voting registration lists, or voter 17 malfeasance, like double voting, felony voting, or 18 vote buying. As a matter of fact, the only type of 19 voter malfeasance that photo ID can address is voter 20 impersonation. This is not to say that we have not 21 had election-related problems. Of course we've 22 have. Isolated problems, mainly related to 23 registration, and absentee ballots. According to 24 our research, as Missouri has had roughly 17 cases 25 of alleged election fraud since 2000. By category,

1 third-party organizations had a higher percentage 2 accused at 88 percent, or 15 cases, followed by 3 voter at 12 percent, or two cases. As a matter of 4 fact, those two cases stemmed out of a 2010 state
5 representative race here in the Kansas City area.
6 It was further unique that it was a group of 7 Somalian voters who showed up at the polling place 8 to vote, they spoke very little, or no English. The 9 voting personnel did their best to work overly 10 abundantly to ensure that they understood the ballot 11 and was able to vote. In some cases, they may have 12 went a little bit out of line in showing them where 13 to mark on the ballots, and things of that nature 14 resulted in a lawsuit. At the end of the day, the 15 lawsuit was thrown out. It was proven that no voter 16 regularities took place. There were some changes 17 done in the local election office to address that 18 matter. And then the most prevalent fraud was 19 registration fraud. Again, at 88 percent, 15 cases.

20 Here in Missouri, you know, there's a 21 saying that is a popular metaphor; a speech shouting 22 fire in a crowded theater. That is exactly what is 23 going on here in Missouri, at this point in time, 24 with respect to voter ID. A voter ID wants to pass
25 as many as 240 Missouri registered voters a

1 government-issued photo ID. That proposed 2 legislation would require to be presented at the 3 polls, and for many, it would be costly and time
4 consuming to secure the underlying documentation
5 needed to get a free ID from the state. This 6 problem has been well documented, and the law
7 currently is proposed in our legislative structure 8 is the same as the one before our Supreme Court in 9 2006, which found that it was unconstitutional. As 10 a matter of fact, one of the gestures of the Supreme 11 Court was at a point where he no longer could drive, 12 and let his driver's license expire. Had he showed 13 up at the polls, and they asked him for ID, being a 14 member of the highest court, he still would not have 15 been able to vote, because his ID would have been 16 expired -- his photo ID. But the thing that 17 troubles us the most about proposed voter ID
18 legislation -- and I would like to pull from a 19 September 2012 United States Government
20 Accountability Office study titled "Driver's License 21 Security" since driver's license are proposed to be 22 the No. 1 form of ID for voting, and what it found 23 is that obtaining a driver's license of another 24 identity can enable criminals to commit various 25 crimes. As a matter of fact, the 9/11 terrorists,

1 for example, possessed fraudulent license, because 2 driver's licenses have been become a widely accepted 3 form of identification. Identity thieves may try to 4 obtain a license of some other name with forged or 5 stolen Social Security cards, or other documents.
6 By one estimate in 2010, over 8 million people had 7 their identity stolen, many of them utilizing a fake 8 driver's license. According to the GAO report, 9 states reported successful events of driver license
10 fraud, but cross-state fraud and counterfeit birth
11 certificates remain a challenge. License fraud
12 across the state lines, and the use of counterfeit 13 birth certificates remain challenged. States remain 14 involved with cross-state license fraud, and states 15 have problems identifying 400 fraudulent birth 16 certificates.

17 I will read one thing in closing, which 18 speaks to this thing about driver's license being 19 the No. 1 form for voting. The GAO report said, 20 "Our investigator staff explored the vulnerabilities 21 discussed above to fraudulently obtain driver's 22 license in three states where we made such attempts.
23 In each state, investigative staff obtained genuine 24 licenses under fictitious identities, combinations
25 of names, date of birth, and SSN, Social Security

1 numbers, that do not correspond with any real 2 individuals. In two states, a staff member obtained
3 two licenses under two different names. In each 4 attempt, staff who visited local licenses issuing 5 and granting and submitting various counterfeit 6 documents to establish their identities, depending 7 on state requirements. In all cases, they submitted 8 a counterfeit driver's license and a counterfeit 9 birth certificate, both purportedly from other 10 states. In some cases, staff also submitted other 11 documents, including fake Social Security cards and 12 fake pay stubs. In most of these five attempts 13 across three states, we were issued permanent or 14 temporary licenses in about one hour or less. In 15 only one case, did a front counter clerk question 16 the validity of one of the counterfeit documents, 17 but this clerk did not stop the issuance process.
18 All three states check validity of applicants, SSN,
19 due to Social Security and online verification 20 system, and they also announced sufficiently the 21 detection of fraud. Now the ironic thing about it 22 is that behind the 9/11 government passed the -- 23 with real IDs, and in the state of Missouri, there's 24 one thing that the Federal government put in place 25 to try to address this issue that has come up short,

1 but the very thing that they put in place, our 2 legislation passed a bill that prevents the state of 3 Missouri from signing up and using the real ID, and 4 right now, with all of this stuff occurring, they 5 had real ID, and these things still occurred, so you 6 can imagine if we pass a photo ID bill, and we're 7 not using real IDs, we suspect that Missouri will be 8 worse than three instances that I cited here.

9 So, again, I appreciate your time to hear 10 our testimony. We are extremely concerned about 11 this push to restrict voter privileges through 12 strict ID requirements in the state of Missouri, and 13 we would be happy -- I'll be happy to answer any 14 questions you may have.

15 MS. TERNUS: Thank you, Mr. Pruitt.

16 Erandi, do we have our third witness here?

17 MS. ZAMORA: She will be late, so we can 18 go ahead.

19 MS. TERNUS: Okay. All right.

20 Are there any questions for these two 21 witnesses from the panel, or from the commissioners?

22 MS. RATLIFF: I would like for Mr. Pruitt
23 to clarify something.

24 You talk about ID -- voter ID. Talk to us 25 about the difference -- and when we say "ID," what

1 voter ID -- what we are talking about, versus photo 2 ID. We're not saying that there need not be any 3 identifications. Explain that.

4 MR. PRUITT: Yeah. Well, right now,
5 there's -- in the state of Missouri, there's any 6 number of forms of identification you can use to 7 register to vote. Of course, a Social Security 8 card, a utility bill with your name and your address 9 on it, and any various other forms, including your 10 driver's license. Under the proposed photo ID bill, 11 it would simply be either a driver's license, 12 passport, government-issued ID, such as somebody in 13 the service -- military service with a photo on it, 14 and passport, but if any of those are expired, then 15 they would not be counted. The biggest problem -- 16 another example would be is, if you live in Missouri 17 right now, and you drove -- worked for across the 18 state line in Illinois for a trucking company, per 19 se, in order to get a CDL license to drive for that 20 company, because they are based in Illinois, you 21 would have to get an Illinois CDL. Of course we 22 don't --

23 MS. TERNUS: A CDL being a commercial
24 driver's license?

25 MR. PRUITT: A commercial driver's

1 license.

2 And you can't have two licenses. You can 3 only have one license. So you would get the 4 commercial driver's license in the state of 5 Illinois, but if you live and reside in Missouri,
6 and you voted in Missouri, well, under that bill, 7 that Illinois -- that driver's license that is 8 valid, issued in Missouri, you could not use it to 9 vote at the place you reside, because it would be an 10 out-of-state driver's license.

11 MS. TERNUS: You also followed up on this 12 question. You referred a couple times, I thought, 13 to using real ID. What did you mean by that?

14 MR. PRUITT: After the 9/11 attack, the 15 government passed -- and I can't think of the name 16 of the bill, but a part of the bill is what they 17 call a real ID, where in order to -- before you
18 issue somebody an ID, you have to go online and use 19 the online Social Security number verification, and 20 there's some other things, because what they're 21 trying to do is have a common identification system
22 across all states, that no matter which state you 23 were in, they can track who that identity belongs 24 to, even if it's a driver's license. So that's what 25 we mean by real ID. I think there's only about 13

1 states in the union that have not signed on and 2 fully implemented real ID, Missouri being one of the 3 ones who has not, and currently under an extension 4 up until -- I think it's October of this year. But 5 those circumstances in which people got fake 6 driver's licenses, those states had real ID; so real 7 ID didn't even prevent fraud in those three 8 instances, but in a state that has not been using a 9 real ID, is where we suspect that the fraud would be 10 even more, and is that fraud that voter photo ID
11 restrictions are trying to eliminate, and that's why 12 we use the term shouting fire in a crowded theater, 13 because that's exactly what they doing.

14 MS. TERNUS: And if I can ask one more 15 question. You mentioned -- I believe you were 16 referring to this as a barrier to voter 17 registration, that it would be costly and time
18 consuming to get a free ID from the state.

19 MR. PRUITT: Yes. Because --

20 MS. TERNUS: And can you be more specific 21 on why it would be costly and time consuming?

22 MR. PRUITT: There's a couple of reasons.
23 Let's talk about the general bias. You're happily
24 married, and you got a divorce. You happen to want 25 back your main name, or you wish to. Your driver's

1 license says Mrs. Pruitt. Now you want to go back,
2 and you go to change your name, now you have to go
3 get all of the underlying documents, you have to go 4 through the courts, you have to do all of that just 5 to straighten your name out where it is consistent 6 on the identification and what you use now. That's 7 one of the barriers when we talk about underlying 8 documents, and heaven forbid, is that you were born
9 in another state. You got married, and you live 10 here, and you get divorced here, now you have to get 11 that birth certificate from another state to prove 12 that it is you, because up until this time, you have 13 been using Mrs. Pruitt versus whatever your maiden 14 name was before. That's one of the instances. In 15 some cases when we talk about immigrants and other 16 folks having a Social Security card. It is no 17 more -- it would be -- as hard as it is, if you're 18 in this country, and you're here illegally, you get 19 a green card, you've got your permanent residency 20 now, and now all of a sudden, you have to come up 21 with all sort of documentation, just in order to 22 register to vote, and then follow up on the ID in 23 order to actually vote.

24 So those are some of the instances that I 25 think -- there's one other that was unique, because

1 we had a young man that attends school in St. Louis.
2 His home is in Wisconsin, and he gave testimony 3 about how if that law passed, he couldn't use his 4 Wisconsin ID to vote in Missouri, and his state 5 representative accused him of fraud, and all sort of 6 things, because Missouri statute says that once 7 you're here for 30 days or longer, you have to get a 8 Missouri driver's license. Well, he'd been here for 9 three years going to school, and what the law
10 basically says is that -- in reality, that right now 11 he does have the right to vote in Missouri with a 12 Wisconsin driver's license, he just can't vote back 13 home too. He has to decide one place or another 14 where he wants to cast his vote, and especially in a 15 presidential election. So now, again, we have -- 16 trying to have documentation and stuff in order to 17 vote in Missouri, when he only has a Wisconsin 18 driver's license. That's another instance.

19 MS. TERNUS: Okay. Any other questions?

20 MS. RATLIFF: Also, how expensive is it
21 for -- when we talk about getting a photo ID -- a 22 free photo ID for individuals who do not have it, 23 for people that come from states like Mississippi, 24 for instance? Is there a lot that goes into being 25 able to get the documentation in order to get the

1 photo ID in Missouri.

2 MR. PRUITT: Yeah. Not only that, but,
3 you know, since this issue came up a couple of years 4 ago, I carry my wallet, a photo -- a copy of my 5 grandfather's so-called birth certificate. He was 6 born in Arkansas, and it's actually a sheet of paper 7 where the doctor signed and said he was born this 8 day, and it was notarized, and that is his -- he's 9 no longer here now, but that is his birth 10 certificate. That would not be allowed as 11 documentation, and how would he now go back to 12 Arkansas, and go through the rigmarole of having 13 them issue him an official state birth certificate 14 with a seal on it would be somewhat of a task, 15 especially for somebody who does not have resources
16 or access to legal counsel.

17 MS. TERNUS: Just to confirm what I 18 learned from this exchange is that even though the 19 photo ID is issued by this state for free, there 20 would be a cost to obtain underlying documentation 21 from the original state?

22 MR. PRUITT: That's exactly -- you have to 23 have that birth certificate and other things in 24 order to take -- to get that free photo ID, and the 25 cost and the time of hunting down that documentation

1 to prove you are who you say you are, just to get 2 the photo ID, just to vote would be -- could be a 3 significant burden to some.

4 MS. TERNUS: Okay. Marty.

5 MS. RAMIREZ: As you both engage in your 6 issues, can you share what has worked?

7 A. I tell you what has worked better than 8 anything else -- and I was wondering how it would 9 work under the photo ID of the past, and that is, is 10 the elderly, who were put on the permanent absentee 11 lists -- see, right now, when election comes around, 12 they get a ballot in the mail, they vote, get it 13 notarized, and they send it back, and that has 14 worked. I mean, I have never heard of any instances 15 where a bunch of elderly people voter identification 16 has been used to vote at a poll. It works well, but 17 I wonder how that would work under photo ID, where 18 they now all of a sudden have to come out to nursing 19 homes and the senior buildings, and go somewhere and 20 get a photo ID to get back up on this permanent 21 list, and if they don't, and they're grandfathered 22 in, and the question is, going forward; that has 23 worked?

24 The other thing that has worked extremely 25 well is right now, Missouri, if you have no ID, and

1 you show up at the polls, and the poll worker knows
2 you, this poll worker has been working this poll
3 forever, and they identify the face, and they know 4 you by name, they know -- they're your neighbors, 5 and this is that, they can allow you to vote, and 6 that has worked.

7 MS. NOREN: It has to be two poll workers.

8 A. Yes. One for each side, yeah. But,
9 still, again, it's the poll worker who could be your 10 neighbor from down the street, around the corner, 11 that person has been coming there and voting and 12 identifying themselves voting year in and year out, 13 election in, election out, there should be no reason 14 why that person should be disallowed to vote, simply 15 because they showed up without their identification, 16 and everybody knows who they are. And one other 17 quick thing about that is this, the law they propose 18 says this: it say if I show up without ID, that I 19 can vote, and it can be counted as a provisional 20 ballot, and then that ballot goes to the election 21 board, and the election board, as long as they can 22 identify where I signed at the polling place, with 23 my signature on file, then that vote counts. Well, 24 in Missouri, when you go to vote, they have the book 25 over here, which has your signature in it, and they

1 cover it, because when you sign to get your ballot,
2 when you're there to vote, then that election worker 3 pulls back this paper to compare both of those 4 signatures. Even if you show ID, that poll worker 5 compares those signature, and then you're allowed to 6 vote, at least in St. Louis, that's how it works.
7 So I already have the election board verifying my ID 8 on the spot, but if they did that under the new law, 9 I would still be voting provisionally, versus my 10 vote counting.

11 MS. TERNUS: Ms. Furtado, could you define 12 two terms so that we are sure that the testimony you 13 gave is clear to somebody who might not be familiar 14 with the terminology you've used? Could you define 15 for the record what a "suspense list" is; and, also, 16 what is a suspense list outreach?

17 Sure. I'll try. The list of names -- 18 people who have filled out the application form, and 19 in Kansas, it's predominantly the Kansas form -- 20 state form for applying to register to vote. They 21 complete that form, but it is not accompanied by a 22 copy of your document that proves you're a U.S.
23 citizen. The outcome is that upon receipt at the 24 election office, your name, or the name of the 25 applicant, is placed on a list that was initially

1 designated by the secretary as a suspense list.
2 There has been some on objection to that, because it
3 can be interpreted -- has been interpreted recently 4 to mean -- that's the same terminology when we 5 suspense a criminal felony, and then allow to 6 reenter into the -- being able to vote, that 7 individual is in suspense for a time. And so it is 8 now, at least quietly, being referred to as a 9 "pending list." It really is a list of incomplete 10 applications missing the proof.

11 By in suspense outreach, what I mean is 12 that everybody -- every county official, all 105, 13 have been instructed to write a letter, and send it 14 by regular mail to individuals who are added to the 15 suspense list, and that has resulted in a very low 16 response. In fact --

17 MS. NOREN: And it's a letter just 18 notifying the individual that they are on this list, 19 and they still need to do something to be registered
20 to vote?

21 MS. FURTADO: Yes. And they list that you
22 must provide documentation -- there are 14 different 23 ways that can be used, the most common a birth 24 certificate; passport; naturalization certificates, 25 but there are all kinds of ways -- adoption paper,

1 so forth. And so what has happened is that the 2 response rating was so low that in our county, which 3 is the Johnson County, the most populated in the 4 state, I went to speak with the election
5 commissioner to ask who was responding, if anybody;
6 and it turns out that it is your newly naturalized 7 citizens who are responding, coming with their 8 certificate. In the past, prior to this law, we 9 were able to take the number on the certificate, and 10 enter that into the application form, and that 11 satisfied. That is no longer the case until the 12 national database is complete or verified or 13 however. And so with the very low response, budgets 14 being what they are, the course of action was, we're 15 not going to continue to mail in letters because 16 we're getting -- that's a burden on the budget, and 17 we're getting very low response. In Johnson County, 18 they do robot calls, but not everyone supplies a 19 telephone number, one that lasts, in the form, and 20 so that was a follow up in our county, and it was 21 out of that conversation that the idea of the 22 government-issued device to copy -- photographed, in 23 our case, the certificates were able to prevent 24 those names from going on. Other forms of outreach 25 have been to interact with elected officials in one

1 county who agreed to absorb the cost of the postage, 2 and they would send a letter to their constituent 3 saying it's important -- or potential constituent, 4 if they become registered voters, that you need to 5 do such and such to get it corrected.

6 MS. TERNUS: Since I'm not from Kansas,
7 let me ask a question to be sure I understand the 8 issue that you're addressing. They have to have 9 documentation, and it has to be physically attached 10 to the application to register; correct?

11 MS. FURTADO: Well, I will answer that in 12 the following way: In my conversations throughout 13 the state, I have learned that there is not a 14 consistent handling of the copy. They are -- 15 there's one county where seeing by official 16 registrars -- and official registrars are presumed 17 to be the individuals who work in the driver's 18 license, because I was told that everyone in the 19 elections office is an elections official; and so 20 they don't want to be called official registrars, 21 and that is the group that is thought to be playing 22 that role. And we -- your question, again, I'm 23 sorry.

24 MS. TERNUS: Whether the law requires that 25 a physical copy be attached, the underlying

1 document.

2 MS. FURTADO: So we have one county that 3 is working on seeing only, just checking off, or 4 creating a checkmark. We have others who are 5 confused. They shred it immediately. They do not 6 want this personal document in the office for 7 personal identity theft and all of that, and so 8 that's one way that they have handled that.

9 MS. TERNUS: So they get the copy, they 10 register the person to vote, and then they destroy
11 it?

12 MS. FURTADO: They destroy it, right.
13 They shred it. Others hold on to it but they don't 14 know exactly for how long. They're saying once the 15 election has to occurred, they'll destroy them, 16 because they want to archive the applications 17 because of the signature and other information, 18 birth date, et cetera.

19 MS. TERNUS: So then the iPad testimony, 20 are situations where the person brings their 21 documentation, but it's the original, so you have to 22 have a way to make a copy of it to attach. Is that 23 what was happening in those circumstance where you 24 said you weren't allowed to make -- you were 25 prevented from using the iPad to copy documents?

1 MS. FURTADO: It is -- the photo ID --
2 excuse me -- the photo -- photography is being used 3 to for the newly naturalized citizens. They have 4 that certificate. It has been handed to them in the 5 ceremony. They come to the reception, and there at 6 the reception, the League has a table where we help 7 register to vote. And so that day, in addition to 8 forms, they were given the iPad, and then take it to 9 the courthouse, use it, and return it with a 10 photograph of the original document, and,
11 presumably, print it out.

12 Now, another one of the commissioners in a 13 district that holds naturalization ceremonies, he 14 purchased a digital camera, and the League resumed
15 its activity, but some of the people had difficulty 16 with the settings, and it was out of focus; so my 17 understand is he's going to purchase an iPad and use 18 that.

19 The third county in which we have 20 naturalization ceremonies, the election office has 21 sent people with a scanner -- an optical scanner, so 22 the election office is actually making the copies, 23 and, in my opinion, that's a good approach because 24 in Sedgwick County, which I'm speaking, they service 25 people from all over the western half of the state,

1 and so that they have to transmit two of the 2 election official in that in which the person 3 resides, and I presume, then, the up scan, they've 4 done that before, and they're comfortable with that.
5 And so we feel, as the League, that this has been 6 our way of, at least, curbing the birth of the 7 suspense list, pending applications.

8 MR. RICH: I have a number of questions
9 for Delores. I have found, over a period of time, 10 that the League of Women Voters of Kansas is really 11 the source of information about what's really 12 happening in that state. And let me just start by 13 noting, or asking, whether you have more 14 information, presumably, if this proof of 15 citizenship requirement is brought about by concerns 16 that there were noncitizens voting. Do you have any 17 knowledge of whether -- to what extent there are 18 actual records of noncitizens, either registering to 19 vote, or actually voting?

20 MS. FURTADO: We don't -- as the League,
21 itself, has not had those records. The only records 22 I've read in the reports, by way of the state, is 23 that there have been as many as eight elections, it 24 was described as, involving five people.
25 Apparently, one person who had a green card,

1 permanent resident, voted in several elections -- or 2 more than one, let's put it that way and really 3 thinking that this would enhance your chances to 4 become a citizen. So it was not malicious or 5 impersonation or any of that.

6 And so to answer that, the number of 7 noncitizen registered voters is extremely low. It 8 is far lower than the number of people on the 9 suspense list.

10 MR. RICH: And what's your best estimate 11 of the number of the people currently on the 12 suspense list?

13 MS. FURTADO: The number of -- the 14 suspense list, on a monthly basis now, is matched 15 with the office of vital statistics; so if we start 16 it at with 22, 500, eliminated 7,700, which brought 17 it back down to 14,000 and some-odd. It is now over 18 17,000. It has not been reported this month, what 19 the growth is, but I believe it's probably going to 20 be over a thousand, because the closer we get to 21 elections, the more likely it is that people are 22 going to attempt to register. And so it is, 23 overall, at this time, minus the matches made by the 24 Office of Vital Statistics, it's in the neighbor of 25 17 to 18,000 people. And the issue with the married

1 women, or name change, they do have a designation 2 that it is just unsatisfactory certification, and 3 you need it by way of marriage or gender change.
4 There's a document on the Web site, and the 5 explanation -- I counted the lines -- it's 11 lines,
6 and I -- that you could possibly fill out, and I
7 mean, it gives you no instruction. It doesn't say 8 if they want to know the date that you changed your 9 name or why or what happened. It isn't spelled out, 10 and, presumably, the affidavit that could be 11 supplied in that way is used in one of our counties, 12 but I went through mine, again, looking through the 13 information on it, and that form is not on our Web 14 site.

15 MR. RICH: You noted in your testimony 16 that the number of people actually registered is 17 down.

18 MS. FURTADO: Yes.

19 MR. RICH: Do we have any -- or do you
20 have access to any information about how the total 21 numbers registered, since this law went into effect, 22 compares to a comparable prior registration period?

23 MS. FURTADO: No. I have not looked that 24 up, but on the basis of the -- the group we're 25 talking about, 18,000, comprises about 25 percent of

1 the people who have applied this -- since
2 January 2013; so it's a little bit -- year and a 3 quarter, about. So -- and from the data locally
4 from nine leagues, solely nine counties, it is way
5 down, the numbers that are coming forth to register.
6 Events that did 300 have been zero this year, so 7 significant.

8 MR. RICH: Wow. You also indicated that 9 because of the method that is being used in Kansas 10 to compare voter registration with vital statistics, 11 that it is, disproportionately, a group of males who 12 are being in turn not successfully added to the 13 registration role. Do you know at all what the 14 portions are of male to female with -- that go into 15 that category, 7,700, who have been confirmed?

16 MS. FURTADO: I don't know. The 17 proportion wasn't revealed, and we do know, of 18 course, it has to include women born in Kansas who 19 did not have a name change.

20 MR. RICH: Yes.

21 MS. FURTADO: So not having a name
22 changed, born here, that's the match. But the data 23 has not been revealed with regard to specific 24 ratios.

25 MR. RICH: You've also indicated that

1 there is a group of about 100 people who use the 2 Federal form. Are those the only people who would 3 be protected by the National Voter Registration Act, 4 and for whom, as a result, there might be a dual 5 voting possibility?

6 MS. FURTADO: Yes. That is the current 7 billing, that those who have filled out the Federal 8 application form will be having a special ballot 9 with just the offices that are open for election in 10 the Federal level.

11 MR. RICH: So, in other words, the other 12 15,000 or some who use the state forms, but whose 13 registration was never completed will not be allowed 14 to vote in either the state or the Federal election?

15 MS. FURTADO: That is correct.

16 MR. RICH: And you -- I understand that 17 the League of Woman Voters has been involved in 18 going door to door registering and so forth, and I 19 know others in Kansas have also been engaged in 20 door-to-door registration. Have you seen any effect 21 on the number of people -- the number of groups, 22 even candidates who are going door to door 23 attempting to register voting; and whether or not 24 you have as many people engaged in door-to-door 25 registration activities, other kinds of voter

1 registration activities that have been previously 2 taken place, but are not now taking place, just 3 because the group is not really able to complete the 4 registration process.

5 MS. FURTADO: The door-to-door canvassing
6 has not be gratified. With League members that I've 7 talked to, they've dedicated a whole day of doing 8 this to come out not knowing what effect it had, so 9 that -- other than to advise, encourage, and urge 10 them to complete the process, including electronic 11 transmission, if they have a smart phone or 12 whatever, or texting. In our county, in Johnson 13 County, it is allowed to use electronic means.
14 There are others in other counties where -- we have 15 a combination of commissioners, and then we have 16 elected county clerks who either directly function 17 as the election official, or appoint someone under 18 them to be the election official, and I have been 19 told that in one county, the electronic transmission 20 is thought to be a slow process, and so they're 21 setting the deadline for -- in advance of the voting 22 registration deadline for doing electronic 23 transmission. I don't understand it; I only have 24 heard it, and it is why I refer to this process as 25 being very confusing. The ordinary citizen who is

1 coming to register to vote confuses the requirement
2 of the birth certificate for proof of U.S.
3 citizenship with having an ID -- a photo ID, which 4 we implemented the year before in Kansas in 2012,
5 and so then there -- they look at, and you say you 6 have to have proof of U.S. citizenship. Well, I've 7 got my driver's license, I have my photo ID, do you 8 want to see it? And I say, No, you have to keep 9 that to vote. You will use it then, but for this, 10 we need a copy -- some document, most commonly, the 11 birth certificate, which will prove who you are, 12 your name, birth date, and all of that. And that is 13 very questioned, and saying, Why? And so that's why 14 we have to get into a little bit about -- we are 15 concerned about fraud, so you've got to be careful 16 when you're duplicating a personal document and so 17 froth, because it's not so much that they're 18 fraudulent, but that there's belief that somebody 19 out there might be.

20 MR. RICH: Okay. I have one other 21 question. I know that there's been quite a lot of 22 talk about the difficulty surrounding driver's 23 licenses where the Natural Voter Registration Act 24 requires that voting registration be available, but 25 I haven't heard similar discussion about what might

1 be happening in welfare offices, or in offices
2 providing services to people with disabilities, both 3 of which are also required by national law to 4 provide for voter registration. Do you have any 5 knowledge about whether people in these other 6 offices are being trained, or how they are handling 7 voter registration efforts that are taking place 8 within those other offices? For example, is the 9 current government in Kansas training people in 10 their welfare offices to provide the necessary steps 11 to complete the registration to complete the 12 registration process?

13 MS. FURTADO: I do not know if they're 14 training any others. It is my understanding that 15 the issue where the driver's license bureau was that 16 new software, proprietary restrictions, were 17 interpreted by some who staff the office to mean 18 that you couldn't transmit a copy, so that they 19 satisfy the NDRA by asking if they want to register
20 to vote. They have seen it, but there's not 21 communicated, and that not necessarily acceptable in 22 each of the counties, and so they are not making 23 copies, and I was told that it was, in part, due to 24 the proprietary restrictions.

25 MR. RICH: Thank you.

1 MS. FURTADO: You're welcome.

2 MS. NOREN: Okay. You mentioned that 3 Kansas implemented ID requirements in 2012.

4 MS. FURTADO: Yes.

5 MS. NOREN: And so we have one that had 6 been in effect for the presidential election, and 7 another that's looking -- that's coming up. The 8 Kansas ID requirements that they put in, what 9 exactly did they put in? For example, could someone 10 vote with a Missouri driver's license, or was it 11 only Kansas?

12 MS. FURTADO: Could they vote with a
13 driver's license?

14 MS. NOREN: No. I mean, if they were 15 registered to vote, and showed up with their 16 Missouri -- I'm thinking of a student, or something 17 like that, yeah. Would they be able to vote under 18 Kansas law?

19 MS. FURTADO: Under Kansas law, it is a 20 government-issued driver's license from within the 21 state, as far as I understand it. I don't --

22 MS. NOREN: Okay. And I'd rather you not 23 say, if you don't know.

24 MS. FURTADO: I don't know. I don't know.

25 MS. NOREN: Okay. All right. And so you

1 aren't sure what those requirements were, so we -- 2 but what issues did you-all see come from that? I
3 mean, were they election day problems? Were people 4 prevented from voting, or do you see that as -- 5 there's a lot talk, so -- you have been through it, 6 and as he says, the League is often the first to 7 know about a lot of things, so I kind of want to 8 figure out what the experience was in Kansas.

9 MS. FURTADO: Kansans did not resist the 10 photo ID requirement, for reasons as numerous as 11 there are people. They just didn't resist.
12 Whereas, this particular implementation is being 13 more resisted. And, in part, I think it was the 14 availability of a photo ID free of charge, and so 15 people were able to get their -- go to the driver's 16 license, and just get a picture ID -- photo ID for 17 the purposes of voting.

18 MS. NOREN: Okay. They didn't have to get 19 their birth certificate from Michigan before they 20 got that, or their divorce decree and all that 21 before they got their driver's -- you know ...

22 MS. FURTADO: I don't know.

23 MS. NOREN: All right. I think that's 24 what makes a big difference in accepting. You know,
25 I'm not sure people accept, you know, ID

1 requirements. If you've got it in your pocket, they 2 accept it. You know, if your pures has been stolen, 3 and it's the day before the election, you're 4 probably not going to accept it. You know, if you
5 go in with the underlying document to get a 6 replacement license for it, but -- so you didn't see 7 problems with it?

8 MS. FURTADO: There was nothing that I
9 read or heard in conversation about problems in the 10 2012 election over failure to produce an ID.

11 MS. NOREN: Okay.

12 MS. FURTADO: If they didn't have it with 13 them, now, it was described -- instances in which an 14 individual appears without the photo ID, and is 15 given a provisional ballot, has the number of days 16 to -- following the election day until vote of 17 Kansas meets to produce that. And in those 18 instances in which they did not, the 19 interpretation -- and this is just an interpretation 20 by local folks -- is that the races that they were 21 voting on were so well decided before, that they 22 just didn't bother.

23 So it is not that they didn't have photo 24 ID, it is that they didn't carry it with them to the 25 polls, but that's that the only thing that I've

1 heard as a problem the photo ID.

2 MS. NOREN: Okay. Student IDs, were those 3 accepted as an acceptable form of ID.

4 MS. FURTADO: Yes.

5 MS. TERNUS: Okay. Mary.

6 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. I had a question --
7 Kansas had a photo ID requirement; is that correct?

8 MS. FURTADO: That is correct.

9 MS. RATLIFF: How long has that been in 10 effect?

11 MS. FURTADO: It was put in effect
12 January 1st, 2012.

13 MS. RATLIFF: And I noticed that you said 14 that the voting had fallen off, decreased the 15 number -- did I hear you to say that regulatory --

16 MS. FURTADO: Voter registration, as a
17 result of the proof the citizenship has decreased, 18 yes.

19 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. So we know that it's 20 the decrease in citizenship, and has nothing to do 21 with photo ID? Is that --

22 MS. FURTADO: I don't know what impact
23 photo ID ...

24 MS. RATLIFF: That's what I was wondering, 25 if we had any way to know if photo ID had any 1 impact.

2 MS. FURTADO: No. The photo ID is for 3 voting -- for actual voting in elections, or in the 4 advance balloting. It's not -- photo ID is not 5 required for registering the first applicants right 6 now for voting, no.

7 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. But it is 8 requirement for voting without -- I'm just wondering 9 if there was any impact -- there could possibly have 10 been some impact from, you know, not being able to 11 vote, even if registered, without an ID. I mean, 12 that you would not be able to vote.

13 MS. FURTADO: I haven't followed that. I
14 don't know.

15 MS. TERNUS: Was there a suspense list 16 prior to the requirement that there be proof of 17 citizenship to register to vote, or was that 18 something that just came to be with this new 19 requirement that citizenship be proved before you 20 erase it?

21 MS. FURTADO: I'm sorry, I going to ask 22 you to repeat the question.

23 MS. TERNUS: Sure. The suspense list that 24 we've been talking about.

25 MS. FURTADO: Right.

1 MS. TERNUS: The pending list.

2 MS. FURTADO: Yeah.

3 MS. TERNUS: Did that exist before the new 4 law came into effect that required proof of 5 citizenship?

6 MS. FURTADO: No; although, there are 7 always forms that people are incomplete in filling 8 out, and those did require a follow-up, but it was 9 not designated as any particular category, and it's 10 one of the reasons the League is encouraged to 11 register voters, is because the officials recognize 12 that we checked the form for completeness, not for 13 what they say, but the completeness to verify, just 14 to ascertain that this is a complete application
15 form, and it should be processed. So that is why, 16 with confidence now -- some of the people on that 17 list may be individuals who did not -- also did not 18 properly fill it out.

19 MS. TERNUS: Do you have any information 20 of how many applications were incomplete, prior to 21 the new law going into effect?

22 MS. FURTADO: No, I do not.

23 MR. PRUITT: One quick question for the 24 panel, and maybe -- you may be able to help me out.
25 We've been trying to track down -- if you go to do a

1 change of address online, through the postal 2 service, it will allow you to register, or change 3 your voter registration to your new address, but 4 when you do that, it asks you what party do you
5 claim, and for the life of us, we couldn't figure 6 out why we have to declare a party to change my 7 voter address.

8 MS. NOREN: Well, some states require
9 privy registration in order to vote. Missouri 10 doesn't, so ...

11 You're used to Missouri where you're never 12 asked that question; whereas, if you're in another 13 state, if you're going from one county to another, 14 you have to know that in order to vote in the 15 primary.

16 MS. TERNUS: In Iowa, we have to be 17 registered for a party to vote in that party's 18 primary, but, obviously -- well, I think it's a 19 third Democrat, a third Republican, a third 20 registered candidate, so you don't have to register 21 for a party.

22 MS. NOREN: Well, I have a question about 23 when you say you changed your address online with 24 the post office, you can do that for voter 25 registration. Why am I not seeing those?

1 MR. PRUITT: I don't know.

2 MS. TERNUS: I don't get them from the 3 post office.

4 MR. PRUITT: If you do a change of address
5 online using the U.S. Postal Service Web site, it 6 will give you the option to also do the change of 7 address for your voter registration.

8 MS. TERNUS: I, interestingly enough, have 9 never seen a change of address come from the post
10 office, except when I proactively submitted my file
11 to NCOA of Denver, National Change of Address
12 Denver; so I don't know. I'll have to find out 13 where they're going, because they certainly aren't 14 getting back to the election officials.

15 MS. NOREN: I think we're just about out 16 of time, but I do want to ask if our witness from 17 Iowa is here?

18 MS. ZAMORA: She's not here yet, so we can 19 go ahead with public testimony.

20 MS. TERNUS: Okay. I think we're going to 21 handle this over to Mary, who is going to handle the 22 public testimony part of this panel.

23 MS. RATLIFF: Thank you.

24 We have -- for our public testimony, we 25 want to thank you all for coming here today.

1 Janet McMillan.

2 MS. TERNUS: Let me interrupt first. We 3 will let the witnesses go back to the audience.
4 Thank you very, very much for helping us today.

5 MS. RATLIFF: I'm going to ask these three 6 individuals that will be giving public testimony if 7 they would come to the tables here.

8 Menorah Rowe and Linda Smith. Thank 9 you-all so much. Because you're going to give 10 public testimony, and we don't have written 11 testimony here to look over, we're going to ask you 12 to be as specific as you can, because, of course, 13 this is going to be all a part of it, and so if you 14 can give us your name, and we will start with Linda 15 Smith.

16 So, Linda, if you would start telling us
17 what you --

18 MS. SMITH: I'm Linda Smith. I'm the 19 president of the League of Women Voters of Kansas 20 City, Jackson, Clay, and Platte Counties. I do want 21 to say, because of an apparent miscommunication, the 22 Missouri League did not learn of this event until 23 last Friday, so I'm going to just take the 24 opportunity to speak on one aspect of this picture 25 of democracy, or voting system, being broken, and

1 that's the exceedingly low turnout, and -- for 2 example, in the Kansas City Board of Election
3 Commissioners in a report that it issued about two 4 weeks ago, reported we have over 200,000 registered 5 voters, but, guess what? We only have 10 to 6 14 percent of them turn out for an election. So as 7 I have been -- lived my life in this area, I talk to 8 people to find out if they vote; and if they don't 9 vote, why they don't vote, because it is stunning 10 that so few people show up at the polls, and part of 11 it is, it's a lot of trouble for some of them 12 because of hours and juggling children and work and 13 getting the groceries to -- soccer practice, and,
14 you know, getting the time to do it. And some of it 15 has to do with the chilling effect of what's been 16 going on, and -- because in Missouri we are having 17 an onslaught against voter's rights, and there are a 18 lot of issues, and voters -- people who are eligible 19 to vote are saying that they don't believe their 20 vote counts for anything, and that doesn't mean 21 that. They don't think it counts because they 22 believe that the big money people are the ones who 23 are making the decisions, and who are controlling 24 the flow of information upon which they can make a 25 judgment about what they will do, how they will vote

1 when they get to the polls. These aren't 2 obstructions to getting there, per se. I mean, 3 they're obstructions to people exercising their 4 voting right. If they do not feel they have 5 information, or that the information is skewed by 6 one interest versus another.

7 I think I'll stop there.

8 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. All right. Thank you
9 so very much. Are we going to wait until afterwards 10 for questions?

11 MS. ZAMORA: That's okay. You can go 12 ahead.

13 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. So we have the low
14 turnout vote that we had in -- are there any -- do 15 you have any suggestions of how we can turn that 16 around? What is it -- do we have any idea of what 17 the controlling factors are that are causing folks 18 not to?

19 MS. SMTH: Yeah. In looking at the 20 election commission's report, one of the -- it costs 21 to operate the election anywhere from 10 to $13 per 22 vote cast. That's a lot of money for each vote
23 cast. And some people have I spoken to have said
24 they really didn't realize that this was the day
25 they were supposed to go vote. A lot of people

1 don't read the newspaper. In fact, frankly, our 2 newspaper is wonderful at having a lot of 3 information, but if you don't read the newspaper, 4 you may not know; and so maybe some of that -- there
5 should be recommendations to election commissions
6 that control the money that's available, some of it 7 be spent for advising people, whether it's 8 billboards or robot calls, or whatever, that it is 9 election day, and that their vote counts, and,
10 perhaps, they're doing that already, but it is a 11 serious issue when -- for example, in the most 12 recent election for Kansas City, Missouri, 5,000
13 votes decided the scoreboard, yet, education is a 14 really major issue in this city, but 5,000 votes out 15 of 200,000-some registered voters decided that 16 election.

17 So I believe that -- I would hope that the 18 report that comes out of your efforts would include 19 some that could be directed toward election boards, 20 in terms of encouraging the vote on actually -- 21 because, I mean -- you know, there are -- and, 22 frankly, because we didn't have time to do -- get 23 together a report for Missouri, and I do want to 24 commend Delores Furtado. She did a superb report, 25 and I think we ought to be doing the same kind of 1 thing for our own use, but ...

2 So getting people registered is one thing;
3 getting them to the polls is quite another.

4 MS. NOREN: I have a question on this real 5 quick. You're throwing out some numbers 10 to 6 15 percent of the votes. Now, you're talking about 7 local election; right?

8 MS. SMTH: Yes.

9 MS. NOREN: Because the presidential 10 election, I know this metro area -- actually,
11 75 percent --

12 MS. SMTH: Yeah, I don't have the numbers, 13 and, frankly, you know, when I learned about this 14 meeting on Friday afternoon, I didn't have time to 15 get -- you know, I went to my most recent report, 16 but you're right. Of course, for our presidential 17 election, you're going to have a lot bigger turn 18 out, but we've had -- you know, we're talking about 19 very important local issues we do have, you know, 20 state legislatures coming up for.

21 MS. NOREN: I totally agree. You know,
22 when I talk with young kids, I tell them, you know,
23 who cares? When your sewer backs up, you aren't 24 calling the White House, you know? Your school 25 bus -- everything they do in life, is going to --

1 these April elections, these smaller elections. And 2 I didn't want to think -- I don't want to have 3 people going away from here thinking, you know, a 4 presidential election or a big general election the 5 Kansas City metro has 10 to 15 percent turnout, 6 because they don't. Across the county, local 7 elections have very low turnout. There's no 8 question about that.

9 MS. RATLIFF: And I know that that 10 election may be very disappointing in Kansas City 11 with all of the issues that are going on with the 12 schools. Certainly, you would hope for a much 13 better turn out for our -- because our kids are 14 worth it.

15 MS. SMTH: Absolutely.

16 MS. RATLIFF: And I do know that there
17 are -- we have significant problems with the school 18 systems in Kansas City.

19 But thank you so very, very much.

20 MR. RICH: Is this a downward trend that 21 you have seen over time? Is it significantly 22 different now, for example, in a comparable election 23 than it was five years ago or ten years ago?

24 MS. SMTH: I'm sorry, I can't answer that 25 question, and my colleague, Peg Pendergrass can.

1 I've just been affiliated with this League for the 2 last five years, and having been a Federal 3 government employee before that, I was hatched.

4 MS. RATLIFF: Yes.

5 MS. SMTH: My sense is that it may be kind 6 of par for the course, to be honest, and there may 7 be some areas of, say, Jackson County, like 8 Independence, where you may get a bigger turnout.
9 And, frankly, what this says to me is there are some 10 studies that we need to do as the League of Women 11 Voters to get a better understanding and a public 12 conversation going on this.

13 MS. TERNUS: In your conversations where 14 individuals have indicated that they don't believe 15 that their votes count for anything, I am gathering 16 from that that they feel maybe cynical, and maybe 17 manipulated by what you've termed "big money 18 interests."

19 MS. SMTH: Yes.

20 MS. TERNUS: That control the information
21 they're getting. Do these U.S. Supreme Court's 22 decision -- or does the U.S. Supreme Court decision 23 in Citizens United ever come up in those 24 conversation that a lot of the corporate ...

25 MS. SMTH: Actually, yes. I was surprised

1 that my manicurist knew all about this, and he had 2 been taking some courses, and -- yeah -- studying, 3 as it may be, you know, and an awareness, and the 4 feeling that, you know, that certain interests from 5 central Kansas were in effect buying the election.
6 That makes a difference to people in terms of, do 7 they feel that their vote counts.

8 MS. TERNUS: So why spend the time if the 9 outcome is kind of destined by the people who 10 decided ahead of time how they're going to spend the 11 money.

12 MS. SMTH: Yeah. I think that this is -- 13 and that's part of what I alluded to, is the 14 chilling effect that it does, indeed, have that.

15 Thank you.

16 MS. RATLIFF: Thank you so much.

17 And, Ms. Rowe.

18 MS. ROWE: I'm Lenora Rowe, and I'm a
19 member of the League of Women Voters of Kansas. I 20 live in Johnson County. I have participated in many 21 voter registrations over the last 50 years that I've 22 been a member of the League, and I most recently, in 23 some of the naturalization ceremonies, where when 24 people came to register to vote, we would say to -- 25 we would have them sign, and we would have them fill

1 out the form, but -- and we would say to them, make 2 sure that you get -- you're not registered until you 3 get your card from the election office, and that is 4 what we always emphasize to people, that they were 5 not registered, but it was easy at that point. It
6 really was. This has been much more difficult, 7 especially in Kansas, but I think across the nation,
8 this is happening.

9 I am 80 years old, and I am somebody who 10 actually paid a poll tax for the 1956 election. I 11 was a graduate student at the University of 12 Michigan. My parents had moved from Virginia to 13 Jersey City, so that was not my home address at any 14 point. My husband's parents had moved to England in 15 the -- being in the navy. We had no home address to 16 vote from, so we went to Virginia. We paid a poll 17 tax, we went -- paid it at one building, we then had 18 to walk to another building to actually register to 19 vote, and ask for absentee ballots when -- the 20 absentee ballots came to Michigan, we had to have 21 them notarized. My husband remembers somebody -- 22 the banker who was the notary watching him vote.
23 You know, these things can be very difficult. And,
24 actually, I'm fairly affluent. I have a passport.
25 I can vote -- if I had moved to Kansas right now, I

1 would be able to vote, but I was married, I was born 2 in the District of Columbia, where I would -- where 3 my birth certificate would be. If -- I was married 4 in Virginia, where my marriage certificate would 5 have been. You know, it really is difficult. And I
6 really I do think that what we are instituting now 7 is new poll taxes, and making it very difficult for 8 people to vote, and especially women.

9 MS. RATLIFF: Absolutely.

10 Thank you all so very much. Do we have 11 any questions for these witnesses here?

12 MS. NOREN: We want to thank, League of 13 Women Voters, as always on the job. They always 14 have good information for us, so thank you all so 15 very, very much.

16 At this time are, we are ready for a 17 break.

18 (A recess was taken.)

19 MS. NOREN: At this time, we have Betty 20 Andrews, who was part of the first panel, but was 21 delayed in arriving, and we will take her testimony, 22 which is five minutes, and we'll spend about five 23 minutes on questions, and then we'll get started 24 with the second panel.

25 So, Betty, if you would be so kind as to 1 give us your testimony, we're ready for you.

2 I guess I didn't do a full introduction.
3 Betty Andrews is with the NAACP. She is from Iowa, 4 and she will address the disenfranchisement of 5 people with criminal convictions, and the 6 disproportionate impact of that on voters.

7 Ms. Andrews.

8 MS. ANDREWS: Greetings distinguished 9 commissioners. I'm Betty Andrews, the president of 10 the Iowa/Nebraska NAACP, and state area conference
11 of branches. Today, I sit before you to address 12 Iowa's felony disenfranchisement, the practice of 13 stripping citizens of their right to vote. My 14 testimony will include a number of excerpts from a 15 document called, "Silence: Citizens Without a Vote," 16 which was produced by the National office of the 17 NAACP's Voter's Rights Initiative.

18 In Iowa, in 2005, then sitting governor,
19 Tom Vilsack, issued Executive Order 42; an order 20 that automatically granted citizens with felony 21 convictions the right to vote upon completion of 22 their sentences. This action was lotted amongst a 23 voter rights advocate, and it was in line with 24 national trends that work towards making it easier 25 for people with felony convictions to regain the

1 right to vote. Despite the advances made under 2 Executive Order 42, which allowed 80,000 citizens to 3 vote, Iowa has now fallen back to a permanent -- to 4 permanent felony disenfranchisement once again.

5 In 2011 the current sitting governor
6 revoked Executive Order 42 on the very day he took 7 office. This affects the lives of thousands of 8 individuals and families, denying citizens of their 9 fundamental rights to exercise their voice and their 10 vote, and to exercise that opportunity at the local, 11 state, and national levels. Iowa is now one of only 12 three or four states that strips United States 13 citizens of their voting rights for a lifetime upon 14 a conviction of a felony. Iowa is noted as having 15 one of the toughest application processes for those 16 who wish to seek restoration. A process instituted 17 by the current governor on the very day, as I said
18 before, he took office in 2011. The application 19 includes 31 questions, and obligates the applicant
20 to include a copy of his or her credit history
21 report, as well as the current address of the judge 22 that convicted them however many years ago. Cases 23 have also been reported documenting people seeking 24 restoration, and spending hundreds of dollars on 25 attorneys, and taking well over a year to apply for

1 this fundamental right, yet those applications were 2 denied.

3 I'd like to make a few quick points to 4 help you understand how this affects African 5 Americans in Iowa, keeping in mind that the 6 disparate numbers are also prevalent in other 7 minority communities.

8 Point 1: According to the data the 9 Iowa/Nebraska state NAACP received in 2012, Iowa
10 disenfranchises more than 1 in 14 African-Americans, 11 amounting to more than 7 percent of the 12 African-American voting age population being denied 13 the right to vote.

14 Point 2: Other 2012 data shows that 8,000
15 former offenders have returned to the community 16 since Executive Order 42 was rescinded. Less than 17 12 of these individuals as of 2012 had their rights
18 restored. So they went through that application 19 process, but since 2012, that number has now risen 20 to, get this, 20. Twenty people who were 21 re-enfranchised. I ask you to measure these 22 findings with the fact that the state of Iowa is 23 number one in the nation for incarcerating 24 African-Americans, and does so at a rate of 13 to 25 one. That means that a black person in my home

1 state is 13 times more likely to be caught up in the 2 criminal justice system than their white 3 counterparts. That is more than double the national 4 average of six to one. African-Americans are 5 3 percent of the population, and over 25 percent of 6 the prison population and over 30 percent of the 7 state's felony convictions. Given this information, 8 you can see how taking the right to vote away in 9 Iowa disproportionately, and profoundly affects 10 African-Americans, and rises to the level of a red 11 alert.

12 Iowa's rapid return to permanent
13 disenfranchisement, and the inevitable growing body 14 of the disenfranchised minorities that will follow, 15 as a result of the role of race and incarceration 16 rates, is congruent with the nation's -- it is 17 incongruence, actually, with the nation's belief
18 that voting is the essence of a Democratic society.
19 The NAACP has been meeting regularly with Governor
20 Branstad and his staff, working directly with him
21 to -- and we work directly with them, and help 22 streamline the voting process application in 2013, 23 which dropped the requirement for a credit report, 24 and, also, researching the location of judges, many 25 of whom have passed on, or retired from the bench.

1 We are also working on a -- looking at a 2 constitutional amendment. We're addressing these in 3 a number of platforms across the state, one of which 4 is the Iowa Summit on Justice and Disparities, and 5 we continue to work with our governor on a solution 6 for this.

7 One thing -- I would like to end with just 8 a brief description of a situation that is happening
9 in Black Hawk County, that's the branch in Waterloo, 10 Iowa, and this has also been submitted in 11 Dr. Blackwell's written testimony, but just so that 12 the audience kind of has an understanding of what is 13 going on, a number of people with conviction 14 histories were unaware whether or not they could 15 vote in the 2012 elections. Some believed that they 16 could vote; others did not even know that they could 17 not vote. Still, others consciously sought to find 18 out whether they could vote by asking elected 19 officials. Civil rights leaders, door knockers, 20 solicitors -- and these door knockers were, like, 21 soliciting their campaign and soliciting votes, as 22 well as retrieving absentee ballots, and they also 23 checked with employees of the county auditor's 24 office, and in addition, the persons who were 25 working at the polls. Invariably, these persons

1 were told and encouraged to go ahead and vote.
2 Rather than providing a provisional ballot that they 3 could check later, they were told that it was okay 4 for them to vote.

5 And I also want to mention that,
6 disproportionately, these citizens were 7 African-Americans. Those who voted because they 8 were told they could vote were -- are now being 9 charged with voter fraud, despite the fact that none 10 of them ever intended to defraud the state
11 government, or to taint the election process.
12 Nevertheless, Iowa's Secretary of State pursued 13 them, and placed them in the hands of county 14 attorneys to file charges against these citizens.
15 Some have now pled out in fear of additional jail 16 time, and some are fighting the charges, because 17 pleading, or conviction can result in, of all 18 things, an additional felony conviction, and the 19 cycle continues.

20 Thank you.

21 MS. NOREN: Thank you.

22 Could you time us for five minutes of 23 questions as well?

24 You mentioned that you were working with 25 Governor Branstad. Was Governor Terry Branstad the 1 governor who rescinded the executive order of 2 governor Vilsack that reinstated the governor's 3 control over what felons would be allowed to vote?

4 MS. ANDREWS: It was the first thing he 5 did upon being in office.

6 MS. TERNUS: The record just wasn't clear 7 who the governor was, but ...

8 MS. ANDREWS: Governor Branstad.

9 MS. TERNUS: Let me ask you this. Is one 10 of the requirements for a felon to be restored 11 voting rights that the sentence -- that his or her 12 sentence be completed?

13 MS. ANDREWS: Yes. And our communication
14 in working on this issue, we are addressing people 15 with felony convictions who have completed their 16 sentences.

17 MS. TERNUS: And is Governor Branstad
18 interpreting that law to require that the 19 restitution order as part of that sentence be paid, 20 and all fines or fees be paid as well?

21 MS. ANDREWS: I believe so.

22 MS. TERNUS: So does have a 23 disproportionate impact on --

24 MS. ANDREWS: It absolutely --

25 MS. TERNUS: -- individuals without

1 economic means?

2 MS. ANDREWS: It absolutely does, and,
3 quite frankly, the African-American community 4 definitely is impacted by poverty; and so this,
5 again, affects us, even at greater levels.

6 MS. TERNUS: So it would be true that some 7 individuals are being denied the right to vote, not 8 simply by their status as felons, but by the fact 9 that they don't have money to pay a fine or a fee?

10 MS. RAMIREZ: Well, actually, all people
11 with felony convictions are being denied the right 12 to vote, unless they seek restoration. They may be 13 denied on a number of reasons. As I mentioned, 14 there was a gentleman who was denied, even after 15 enlisting the services of an attorney, and it could 16 be anything as simple as -- well, it could be things 17 like -- say if you don't have that judge's -- or if 18 you didn't have that judge's address, or something 19 like that, so there could be very minor things.

20 MS. TERNUS: Okay.

21 MS. RATLIFF: So there would be many 22 prisons and people -- minority -- a large majority 23 of those who would be adversely affected, because of 24 the reimbursement that they have -- the lack of 25 funding which they now find themselves in, and that

1 would be true for minority and for prisoners also,
2 right, reentering into ...

3 MS. ANDREWS: The issue that we're working 4 on with the governor is to clarify that into making 5 sure that if there are any fines, or anything like 6 that, that they that are up to date, as opposed 7 to -- just because there is a fine, because,
8 obviously, if you think about Return to Citizens,
9 who have had a background in the criminal justice 10 system, it is quite difficult to get started and 11 begin paying those fines, fees, or what have you.

12 MS. TERNUS: Anything else?

13 Thank you so much for coming to testify.
14 We appreciate your assistance.

15 THE WITNESS: Glad to be here. Thank you.

16 MR. RAMIREZ: Okay. We'll go ahead and 17 continue with Panel No. 2. Equal Access to the 18 ballot, and problems observed on the election day.

19 Again, welcome to everybody, and to our 20 panels Kip Elliott, with the Disability Rights
21 Center of Kansas; Louis Goseland, Sunflower
22 Community Action. Lazaro Spindola from the Nebraska
23 Latino American Commission. Keely Bassett
24 Winnebago Nation, and Christie Gerken, Disability
25 Rights, Iowa.

1 We'll start with Kip, who is going to 2 address the issue of accessibility for voters with 3 disabilities, curbside voting, and difficulty
4 getting proper voter ID for individuals in nursing 5 facilities. Kip.

6 MR. ELLIOTT: Thank you.

7 Good afternoon, commissioners. On behalf 8 of myself and the Disability Rights Center of 9 Kansas, we appreciate all who are here.

10 Looking through the agenda, I'm kind of at 11 a point that people are able to get registered to 12 vote, and actually going to a polling place, I'm 13 here to talk about accessibility, and those issues.
14 As part of our grant system and what we do, is we do 15 attempt to monitor polling places on election day.
16 Although we serve the entire state of Kansas, 17 generally, on election days, we try to spread out 18 from Topeka, and to as many close counties as we can 19 get. So we focus quite a bit on rural counties. As 20 you all know, Kansas has a lot of rural counties, 21 and if any have you been to a rural county,
22 oftentimes where they vote are one-room schoolhouses 23 that still exist. The counties and townships, as 24 they call them, are very proud of that, and -- but 25 those do have their limits and their issues, so we

1 try to work through that. We've tried really hard 2 over the last several years. We -- one county --
3 and I can speak to it better than any county, 4 because I live there, is Jefferson County, which is 5 just north of Lawrence, and the county clerk there 6 has been very receptive to asking us to come in 7 during election training, and help with some of 8 these issues; however, we are still seeing problems 9 in Jefferson County; as well as even in the rural 10 areas of Shawnee County, which is where Topeka is, 11 the capital. Shawnee County is very large, and 12 there are a lot of rural areas within Shawnee 13 County, so we try to focus on from the time somebody 14 arrives, we've seen issues with accessible parking, 15 as far as a lot of the parking lots are gravel, and 16 can be very difficult to maneuver. Some counties 17 have put down plywood to help folks. We've 18 encouraged them to make sure that they are marking 19 accessible spots for people to park, and if it is 20 gravel, to come up with a way that somebody can 21 actually -- who might be in a wheelchair, even 22 somebody that's not in a wheelchair, but has 23 difficulty walking, gravel can be very dangerous; so 24 we would try to address those issues. Entrance into 25 the building is often an issue not only with some

1 type of a ramp system, but in some small towns, what 2 we've noticed is they have their voting at kind of a 3 rural community center, and a lot of times it's 4 downtown, and there's absolutely no accessibility 5 into the building so we're trying to address those 6 issues. The maneuvering inside of the buildings can 7 be -- because they're small. I was at one facility
8 this last year that was a little, tiny community 9 center for folks, and they also did lunch for senior 10 citizens at noon, and I asked them, you know, are 11 you guys having lunch somewhere else today, and they 12 were like, No, and they had all of these tables set 13 up for lunch, and absolutely no room to maneuver.

14 And so that's a big issue that we're 15 seeing in small counties, and we've tried to address 16 those with the rural counties issues that we see.
17 Most of the people, we get no response; so we go 18 back, and we see if we can help educate. Curbside 19 voting has been another big issue. I think we all 20 know as well, is that our rural community is aging, 21 and so we not only have people with disabilities 22 that may have trouble going into a facility, but 23 also an aging population. I have a neighbor who is 24 80-some, and he was at the point where he really did 25 need to curbside vote, and at his particular

1 facility, and one other facility that I asked the 2 poll workers, So what do you do, if somebody wants
3 to curbside vote, and twice I was told, Well, 4 they'll come in and tell us, and, you know, there's 5 usually three or four poll workers, and even one 6 said -- fortunately, the other two were just kind of 7 like, Oh, wait, stop, don't say that, but,
8 literally, they'll say things like that. They say,
9 Well, we'll keep an eye out the window, or we know 10 who's coming that might need curbside voting, but 11 they'll come in and tell us. Twice last year I was 12 told that. And so we did address that two years
13 ago, actually, in Jefferson County, and they now 14 have -- not only do they have their areas marked for 15 curbside voting, but they have buzzers, and we're 16 trying to address that with other counties, and see 17 if they will go along with that. There has to be a 18 way to have accessibility to your voting place, if 19 you ever get registered, is important.

20 Kansas does not have restrictions on 21 qualifications to vote for person's with 22 disabilities; however, as the P&A, we do get calls 23 for people in nursing homes and people in our 24 facilities that are nursing homes for people with 25 mental illness, and I think somebody else is going

1 to address this, and I think this is probably -- a 2 lot of these issues cover different states, by all 3 means, and I'm not going to step on toes, but with 4 guardians not being willing to help that person get 5 registered to vote, and we ran into that in the 6 rural nursing facilities, several residents who 7 wanted to vote, having a lot of difficulty getting 8 the documents that they needed to get to vote -- to 9 be able to register, and I know others are talking 10 about that. So -- but accessibility is important, 11 and we're going to continue to monitor during every 12 election day, and offer our assistance to the county
13 clerks and the training poll workers, which, I 14 think, is something I think we can do. Thank you 15 for hearing me out.

16 MR. RAMIREZ: Thank you, Kip.

17 Louis will address access and others
18 issues observed on the election day in Wichita, 19 Kansas. Louis.

20 MR. GOSELAND: Good afternoon, and thank 21 you for inviting me to speak on behalf of Sunflower 22 Community Action, and the work that we've done in 23 trying to guarantee voter rights in Kansas through 24 our Can Vote Campaign. Our campaign was started in 25 response to new voter restrictions that threaten the

1 ability to up grass roots voter registration
2 agencies to register people in the community. New 3 proof of citizenship requirements makes registration 4 very difficult, and virtually impossible to complete
5 for grass roots organizations, such as Sunflower, so 6 we started our voter effort that we call "Can Vote" 7 in response to our Secretary of State's attempts to 8 expedite implementation of this restriction into the 9 2012 election cycle, and in doing that, we started 10 monitoring every step of this new process around 11 these voting restrictions, from the week that it
12 went into effect, the first week of January 2012, 13 with new photo ID requirements, up until today where 14 we're monitoring the mass suspension of voting 15 rights for people across the state of Kansas, and so 16 that's taken us everywhere from the election 17 offices, where in the first week of 2012, we sent 18 volunteers to attempt to apply for a new state voter 19 ID -- a free ID, only to find out at that time that 20 the affidavit necessary to obtain one of those IDs 21 had not yet been published by the secretary of 22 State's office, and wasn't published until later
23 that week. The following week, we went to the DMV 24 with people who needed a free and people who had 25 questions as to whether or not their current ID was

1 valid because of address changes and expirations,
2 and so on. We stepped in line to conduct business 3 like every other person who was in the building that 4 day. Each of us had our own individual needs to be 5 addresses, and so we thought it would be most 6 efficient to address the clerks one at a time, just 7 like any other customer would. We were isolated 8 from the rest of the line, and told that the only 9 person who, at that time, could answer our questions
10 regarding accessing of a free ID was the supervisor
11 at the DMV, and only to find out that she didn't 12 have the information that she needed. The only 13 thing she could tell us is that you would need a 14 birth certificate. And so from that point, we 15 contacted the Secretary of State's office. This was 16 in mid-January of 2012, and we were told that free 17 birth certificates wouldn't be made available until 18 the beginning of 2013, when the proof of citizenship 19 requirement for voter registration went into effect, 20 and so we exposed what seemed to be a de facto poll
21 tax, where you would have to buy a birth 22 certificate, if you didn't have one, in order to get 23 a free ID.

24 So from the early onset of the 25 implementation of the Kansas Safe Act, we found that

1 the provisions that are in place within that act to 2 make the requirements manageable to voters were the 3 things that went neglected, but when it came time 4 for election day to come around, they were 5 overzealous in upholding the provisions that keep 6 someone from voting, and so in 2012, we saw 700
7 Kansans turned away from the polls. Their votes
8 were not counted as a result of lack of photo ID.
9 But what we found throughout that experience, and 10 myself included, I showed up to vote early. I 11 brought my ID, and the election worker wanted to 12 scrutinize the way that my signature appeared on the 13 ID, as it compared to this electronic stylists that 14 I was using for the polling booth. She attempted to 15 give me a provisional ballot until I asked to speak 16 with the election judge, and reminded her that the 17 only thing she should be looking for is my name and 18 my face, that's -- and whether or not I was on the 19 polling book. And so additional things that we saw 20 throughout the primaries -- there are a lot of 21 administrative blunders that happen, but in terms of 22 what was specifically related to the voter ID
23 requirement, for instance, was, you know, voter's 24 being turned away, instead of being given a 25 provisional ballot, and in some instances, we had

1 voters who were requesting a paper ballot, and we 2 observed election workers putting them in 3 provisional ballot envelopes, and so there's, 4 seemingly, throughout this entire process, a lack of 5 training and knowledge with election workers, as 6 well as state agencies, as to what they should be 7 doing in order to make sure that voters can actually 8 vote.

9 Another issue that came up that's been 10 consistent throughout this, and actually has landed 11 in court, both in Arizona and in Kansas, is NPRA 12 compliance. One of the things that we raised, that 13 has yet to be answered, as far as we're concerned, 14 is what our state welfare agency is doing to comply 15 with both the state requirements under the state 16 fact, and the voter registration requirements under 17 NPRA. The reason we have a question around that is 18 because the state welfare office often only requires 19 a Social Security number in order to obtain 20 services, whereas the department of motor vehicles,
21 under the Real ID Act requires proof of citizenship 22 in order to get a state ID. And so for those who 23 are registering to vote at DCF, the state welfare 24 agency -- well, whether or not they're actually 25 being successfully processed, or if they're all

1 ending up on the suspended list is anyone's guess.
2 And so the DMV, which does require these proof of 3 citizenship documents failed in implementing a 4 portal that would transfer the proof of citizenship
5 verification, along with their registration 6 information to the election office in what has been 7 the result of that has been tens of thousands of 8 Kansans -- right now, the number a little over 9 20,000 Kansas who have had their right to vote 10 suspended, and unless our state legislature in the 11 last hour decides to do something before the 2014 12 elections, these people will likely be cut out from 13 being able to vote. Now, we contacted a list of 700
14 who we have phone numbers for in the Sedgwick County
15 area, I talked to 300 of them, and around 80 percent 16 of which didn't realize that they were in suspended 17 status, so some people may show up to vote in 2014, 18 and not even be aware that they're not eligible.

19 But in terms of accessibility and 20 language, because I know that's one thing that I 21 needed to address, we went out in 2014 to four 22 low-income communities, predominantly communities of 23 color within the Wichita, Kansas area, and found 24 that at the Evergreen polling station, which is 25 in -- north Wichita, a majority of the Latino

1 population, there were no Spanish speaking election 2 workers, and in addition to that, we called some of 3 our members to come and support people and assist 4 them in translating, which is allowed, but the 5 election judge was turning our volunteers away. It 6 wasn't until we called the election commissioner and 7 started to push back that we were actually able to 8 get our volunteers through.

9 And so the -- I guess just to wrap things 10 up, because making more details, and much of what we 11 observed throughout this entire process is included 12 in the written testimony that was provided. What it 13 seems is that in Kansas, where these new 14 restrictions have been implemented, the provisions 15 that actually keep people from voting have been very 16 enthusiastically enforced, whereas free IDs or 17 access to birth certificates, or informing voters 18 that they had been suspended, or educating the 19 general population about what these new 20 requirements. These are the things that have gone 21 neglected, and that's why in 2014, as of today, 22 there is 20,000 Kansans who may not be able to vote, 23 and that number grows every day.

24 MR. RAMIREZ: Thank you.

25 Lazaro will address the general language

1 access issues, and focus on rural Nebraska.

2 MR. SPINDOLA: Well, good afternoon,
3 commissioners. Thank you for receiving me today -- 4 this afternoon, and I would like to thank the 5 National Commission on Voting Rights for inviting me 6 to this hearing today.

7 For the record, my name is Lazaro
8 Spindola, that's L-a-z-a-r-o S-p-i-n-d-o-l-a. I am 9 the executor of the Nebraska Commission on 10 Latino-American Affairs, also known as the Nebraska 11 Latino-American Commission. This commission was 12 create by legislation in 1972. It is the oldest 13 commission that exists in the country, and we are 14 the only one that exists by statute, so we do not 15 report to the governor or the executives, we report 16 to the legislation directive.

17 I would like to begin with some factual 18 information. This year on May 13th, Nebraska will 19 hold primary elections to determine the parties and 20 candidates that will accomplish the election. The 21 elections will decide one Nebraska US Senate; three 22 Congress representative, the government, the 23 Secretary of State, the state commissioner, attorney 24 general, 24 state senators -- I don't know if you're 25 aware that we only have senators -- and many other

1 authorities both within the state and local 2 governments. This is a big election year.

3 Now, on October of 2011, the Bureau of the 4 Central Directors determined that there are three 5 political subdivisions in Nebraska that are subject 6 to American Language Assistance Provision of the 7 Voting Rights Act. The three subdivisions are 8 Colfax County, Dakota County, and Dawson Butte
9 County. All contain significant Hispanic 10 minorities. Now, the question is in Section 203, is 11 we ask for assistance in being Spanish in the 12 aforementioned counties. What is being done and 13 how? In your handouts, you have a page full that 14 says Dawson County, and right after that is a page 5
15 that will take you to a capture of the Dawson County
16 clerks' Web site. The web page from the Dawson
17 County's election commission is not educative page.
18 It is a general county clerk page, and if you scroll 19 down to election office, you can see a release of 20 election forms. The only bilingual form right there 21 is the voter application form, page 6 of your 22 handout. This form lacks a very important piece of 23 information, which refers to the ability of known 24 products on borders, and request a partisan ballot 25 for either Democratic or Republican parties to be

1 able to vote for senate or house of representative 2 parties and candidates. All other links link to 3 forms in English only. No other voter registration 4 election notice, other than Latino, is available at 5 the Web site, speaking Spanish to Dawson County 6 residents.

7 The Dakota County election Web site, which 8 is page 7 of your handout offers a better choice.
9 The notes of primary election, which is page 9 of 10 the handout is printed in both languages. Kind of 11 difficult to understand, but I think English 12 speakers would have a hard time understanding it 13 too. The candidate filing for both the parties and 14 candidates are in both languages. The statement of 15 financial interest -- which I don't quite 16 understand, because if you're going to be a 17 candidate for office, you should be able to speak 18 English to fill out the form in Spanish, but, any 19 ways ...

20 Unfortunately, the early voter
21 registration, which is page 8 of your handout.
22 Fails to provide the information regarding the 23 nonpartisan voter needed to register as parties to 24 be able to vote senator. It does have a very long 25 list of bilingual notice of candidates for the 1 primary election.

2 The Colfax County Election Commissioner's
3 Web site, which is page 10 of your handout, on page 4 11 provides a link to the Nebraska Secretary of 5 State Web site, and that's all it provides. And 6 there you will find election information, which 7 leads to several pages, all done in English, 8 detailing the election results, and election forms 9 and voter registration forms, both available in 10 Spanish. It is unfortunate that none of the 11 different elections commission site links provides 12 accesses to the Secretary of State's 2014 election 13 information site where there is important notice to 14 voters regarding ballot changes, sample ballots for 15 the 2014 primary election, both in English and 16 Spanish. Many of these folks are being translated 17 by us, by me. Now, there are five initial 18 petitions, including a border ID initiative petition 19 that is not in Spanish.

20 So, as you can see, these three counties 21 do not have a standard compliance procedure, some 22 rely heavily on the Secretary of State's Web site, 23 but they do not provides links to the sites that 24 have the forms in Spanish. The registration forms 25 regarding the individuals to request partisan notes.

1 A limited English-speaking voter with limited 2 education would need Internet access, the ability to 3 navigate the Internet, and full command in English, 4 and navigate through the Nebraska Secretary of 5 State's Web site in order to fully access election 6 information. In that sense, we do rely heavily on 7 technology as you seem to be an advocate of 8 technology. The problem is the need for someone to 9 guide this individual through this process. So we 10 happy to have a bilingual person working on this 11 different election commission. But then there is 12 somebody that works in the morning, another -- 13 somebody that works one to three, and in the other 14 one, there is a person that works after three in the 15 afternoon; so if you have a work schedule that does 16 not satisfy the requirements of the work schedule of 17 the bilingual person at the election offices, then 18 you're lost, there's no way that you can do it.
19 Now, I understand what the counties might have 20 limited funding. I understand that it is 21 unreasonable to expect individuals for some 22 divisions to follow the same practice, but there is 23 a cheaper alternative, which is being able to access 24 the links for secretary of the states's information 25 site, and there is one, which is not so cheap, which

1 is to have full-time bilingual staff, at least 2 during the election year. It would be good for city 3 participation in the election process for 4 individuals with limited command over the English 5 language. I do see a number of barriers that have 6 to do with voter ID, with language access, with 7 accessibility for individuals for disabilities that 8 all add up to a multitude of diminished and 9 multinational that a voter might have to go answer 10 basic rights. I don't know. As I said, I have some 11 conspiracy theories, but something needs to change.

12 MR. RAMIREZ: Thank you, Lazaro.

13 Keely Bassett on voting issues on tribal 14 life. Keely.

15 MS. BASSETT: Good afternoon. My name a 16 is Keely Basset, and I'm an enrolled member of the 17 Winnebago tribe of Nebraska, and I live on the 18 Winnebago reservation in eastern Nebraska. I'm here 19 to speak to you about using tribal enrollment cards 20 for voting identification. In 1934, under the 21 Indian Reorganization Act, tribes across the nation
22 formally established guidelines for enrollment in a 23 tribe. Those rules for enrollment are specific to 24 each tribe. For example, my tribe requires a 25 specific elect one. The Cherokee nation requires

1 Cherokee descendance, and the Meskwaki Nation of 2 Iowa enrolls only through paternal ancestry. So as 3 you can see, each set of guidelines is unique to 4 that tribe. Now multiply that by the 560
5 Federally-recognized tribes in the United States.
6 The one thing that is standard for enrollment in a 7 tribe is a family tree. Each potential enrollee 8 must fill out a family tree that can date back three 9 generations or further to prove that we meet the 10 criteria for enrollment in a tribe. It is very hard 11 to receive a tribal enrollment card. It's much 12 harder, actually, than getting a state
13 identification. Along with the required paperwork, 14 you and your family must be vetted, first by a 15 clerk, then by a committee, then by the full tribal 16 counsel, and for some tribes, this can take well 17 over six months. We all know that after 9/11, the 18 rules for identification became for more stringent 19 to meet the requirements of Homeland Security for 20 the safety of the nation. At least two Nebraska 21 tribes rose up and met that challenge, and have 22 changed the way that our enrollment cards look, and 23 have included an expiration date for the card, per 24 the suggestion of the Federal officials.

25 American Indians across the nation can

1 vote in local, state, and national elections, and 2 the use of tribal enrollment cards for 3 identification should be an acceptable form of Id.
4 While counties near reservations in Nebraska do
5 accept tribal IDs, this is not the case for American 6 Indians residing in urban areas. Recently, I spoke 7 with the former chairman of the Ponca Tribe, Larry 8 Wright, who resides in Lincoln, Nebraska. Chairman
9 Wright told me that he will always use his tribal 10 enrollment card first for identification, and that 11 it's actually hit or miss whether it's accepted or 12 not.

13 Another problem for some state or local 14 municipalities is some choose or not choose to 15 accept the tribal ID if you're enrolled in the tribe 16 from a different state, which is what happened to me
17 when I lived in South Dakota. My Nebraska Winnebago 18 tribe ID was not accepted. What needs to happen is 19 poll workers need to be educated on the acceptance 20 of the j enrollment card for voter identification.
21 In addition, tribal enrollment cards from any tribe 22 across the United States must be accepted in every 23 state, regardless of where that tribe is located.

24 Thank you.

25 MR. RAMIREZ: Thank you. Christie will

1 address guardianship issues, guardian deciding for 2 an individual that they don't want to vote, when the 3 law gives the individual in guardianship the choice.

4 MS. GERKEN: On behalf of Disability
5 Rights Iowa, or DRI, I want to thank the National 6 Commission on Voting Rights, the Lawyers Committee
7 for Civil Rights Under Law, and the guest 8 commissioners present today for holding this 9 important hearing.

10 In light of challenges and restrictions on 11 voting, it is important to see the election 12 commission's efforts to increase public awareness of 13 discrimination. I apologize, I don't have time to 14 read this entire statement, and will give you the 15 highlights.

16 My name is Christie Gerken, and I am the 17 protection and advocacy for voting access, or PAVA
18 coordinator with DRI. Disability Rights Iowa is a 19 nonpartisan, private, nonprofit legal advocacy 20 organization, whose mission is to defend and promote 21 the human and legal rights of Iowans with
22 disabilities.

23 Prior to joining DRI, I worked for 26
24 years in the acute mental health field. The PAVA
25 program was created through the Help America Voting

1 Act, PAVA, and Section 291 of PAVA provides that 2 funds be made available to the P&A system of each 3 state. PAVA plays an active role in full 4 participation in the electoral process for voters 5 with disabilities, which includes development of 6 materials, education and training of election 7 officials, poll workers, and volunteers regarding 8 the right to voters with disabilities, and best 9 practices in working with people with disabilities.
10 This testimony is intended to identify the Iowa 11 lives that individuals whose rights to vote have not 12 be removed by a court, are still restricted from 13 voting by their guardians. It is implied that 14 individuals under guardianships in Iowa keep rights
15 not otherwise taken by the court. If an Iowa court 16 appoints a guardian, it must make a separate 17 determination as to the competency to vote. We are 18 unable to provide you with statistics on the total 19 number of guardianships in Iowa, but we know in 20 2013, only 62 had separate determinations for 21 incompetency to vote. As a P&A system, DRI conducts 22 monitoring of public and private facilities in the 23 state of Iowa with respect to rights and safety.
24 Our monitoring and outreach has found that service 25 providers are restricted access to voting because

1 they are uninformed about where it's right under 2 guardianship law. It is our experience that 3 guardians interpret their responsibilities as giving 4 them the right to make all decisions for the ward, 5 including whether they can vote. Guardians justify 6 this decision insisting that due to a disability, 7 their wards do not understand the issues, and the 8 condition the wards access to voting on their own 9 assessment of the ward's voting capacity.

10 Generally, providers are hesitant to go against a 11 guardian's decision despite training, due to 12 misconceptions of liability. The possibility of 13 poll workers restricting access to voting for 14 persons under guardianship may also result from lack 15 of available training and understanding of the 16 guardianship laws. Based on outreach with county 17 auditors, there's a need for current training for 18 mental competency under guardianship and poll
19 accessibility laws.

20 Lastly, the failure of enforcement of the 21 National Voting Rights Act contributes to lack of 22 information regarding the right to vote for 23 individuals with disabilities. Specifically, 24 Section 7 of the MDRA is designed to increase the 25 number of registered voters on the rolls by

1 providing voter registration opportunities for 2 individuals who access services at public assistant 3 agencies. This is due to lack of awareness of the 4 responsibility by public agencies to adhere to 5 Section 7, and the public agency registration
6 requirements.

7 A final concern DRI wishes to address is,
8 unfortunately, individuals with disabilities are 9 disenfranchised more than other populations, due to 10 lack of understanding that they can question whether 11 a guardian's decisions are in their best interest, 12 and these individuals may not know their rights to 13 have a court review terms of their guardianship, 14 including the need for continued restriction on 15 voting. DRI has several recommendations on how to 16 address these barriers of individuals under 17 guardianship and their right to vote. State 18 statutes should explicitly preserve the right to 19 vote, unless certain criteria are met in a court 20 order, specifically addresses the individual's right 21 to vote. Appropriate due process protections are 22 needed, if an individual's right to vote is 23 restricted. State statute should have a definitive 24 test for competency, which would eliminate each 25 district court having different criteria based upon

1 their training and experience of persons with 2 disabilities. State election officials need to 3 understand the law, educate, and assist individuals 4 with disabilities with voter registration and 5 voting. The P&A PAVA coordinators can address
6 accessibility and voter rights at every state 7 auditor meeting for training on the current rights 8 for disabled voters. And, lastly, states should 9 have mandatory training as part of the prerequisites 10 for guardianship; including understanding which 11 rights a ward keeps, such as voting.

12 In conclusion, voting is a fundamental 13 right. Rather than focusing on disenfranchising 14 individuals with disabilities under guardianship, 15 Federal and state laws should focus on expanding and 16 protecting access to, and assistance voting for all 17 individuals capable of voting.

18 Thank you for allowing me to speak to you 19 on this issue.

20 MR. RAMIREZ: Thank you. We'll now open 21 it up for questioning.

22 MS. RATLIFF: You mentioned that you, or 23 someone observed regular ballots being placed in 24 provisional ballot envelopes. Can you explain that 25 a little bit?

1 A. Yeah. So there were mix-ups between the 2 paper ballot and provisional ballots of people who 3 should have been receiving -- well, people who were 4 submitting paper ballots were having them put into 5 the same receptacles as the provisional ballots, and 6 so how exactly that affects the way that they're 7 counted, I'm not sure, because, to my knowledge, 8 each of the provisional ballots have until a set 9 deadline, as it relates to the canvas state, to come 10 in and make up for whatever it was, and so how they 11 mitigated that, I don't know. There were all kinds 12 of mishaps when it came to giving out their right 13 ballots. For instance, there was a polling place 14 that received ballots for the wrong district. There 15 were mail-in ballots that were sent out to the wrong 16 district, and then they had to take those, and send 17 out the appropriate ballots, and so throughout 18 the -- one thing worth mentioning is that in 2012, 19 we had an election commissioner that was appointed 20 after a longstanding commissioner in Sedgwick had 21 stepped down, and so whether or not these things 22 will reoccur again in 2014 is anyone's guess. That 23 being said, there were recurring mishaps between a 24 special election around a tax issue, the primary 25 elections, and then the general elections, and so --

1 yeah. One of the things that we tried to look into 2 in that is what was our Secretary of State doing 3 during that time to intervene between the mishaps 4 that are in the written material provided to you in 5 the primary elections and the general election, 6 since it seemed that there are consistent mistakes
7 made. What we found in doing open record requests 8 in this calendar was that there was at no time any 9 entry of him having met with anyone from the 10 Sedgwick County office, and so it's our hope that 11 you know, we can continue to surface these issues, 12 and try to get someone to hold our Secretary of 13 State accountable to make sure that elections run 14 smoothly, and not just block voters.

15 MS. RATLIFF: Right. And I know our Boone
16 County clerk is here, and I guess I had questions 17 with the ballots going into the provisional 18 envelopes, and so you-all made inquiry into that, 19 and you didn't get any definitive answers back, 20 because I know when I get my ballot, I take it over 21 and put it in the machine myself, and I guess I'm 22 just wondering -- the ballots are handed back to the 23 clerks, and then -- I mean, I understand the 24 provisional ballots, but -- they're handed back to 25 the clerks, and then the clerks put them in an

1 envelope?

2 MR. GOSELAND: Yeah. So like I said, we 3 had four locations where our servers were present, 4 and at that particular location, they had recorded 5 that that mix-up had happened, that, basically, the 6 paper ballot was being confused with the provisional 7 ballot, and that was the issue at that particular 8 site. And at each of these sites, we contact -- any 9 time we saw any kind of discrepancy, we contacted 10 the county commissioner's office, and, you know, the 11 issues were corrected, but it just seems like 2012, 12 what we observed were, you know, ill-equipped 13 election workers, whether it was confusion around 14 the new requirements that they are having to impose 15 or what, I'm not sure, but each of them had received 16 training. We talked to each of the election judges, 17 and everything was very open, so it was easy to 18 observe some of these issues. The county 19 commission -- or the election commissioner in 20 Sedgwick County was very open to our back and forth 21 issues, and these issues were corrected from within 22 that office, but they still occurred.

23 MS. RATLIFF: They occurred.

24 MR. RICH: Let me start with Kip. Do you 25 know of any steps that have been taken by the

1 Secretary of State's office to address the problem
2 of access to voting places, and to what effect?

3 MR. ELLIOTT: I think that -- I do know
4 that we worked with the Secretary of State's office, 5 and helped put a brochure out to discuss 6 accessibility and voting issues with people with 7 disabilities, but I'm not sure -- unless somebody 8 picks those up -- that anything is being done.

9 MR. RICH: So you don't know about either 10 the distribution of the brochure, or training that's 11 going on?

12 MR. ELLIOTT: Right. And the training, I 13 think, is the key point that -- there needs be 14 training on accessibility issues.

15 MR. RICH: And for either Kip or Louis, we 16 heard some -- and I asked this question at the last 17 panel. We heard some about problems in the context 18 of the driver's licenses, with simply handling voter 19 registration and forwarding the necessary
20 information and so forth, and that the Voter 21 Registration Act, obviously, requires that people 22 being able to register either at public assistance
23 agencies, or at agencies that are serving people 24 with disabilities. Do you know anything about what 25 the Secretary of State's office has done both to be

1 sure that the law is being followed at those 2 agencies, and the training so that they end up 3 complying effectively with the new proof of 4 citizenship requirements?

5 MR. GOSELAND: Yeah. So there are a 6 couple of things that came up in the past couple of 7 years that we've observed since the Safe Act went 8 into compliance -- or went into effect. So the 9 initial hang-up, as you mentioned, was the portal
10 between DMVs and election offices. And, you know, 11 there was a back and forth in trying to fix that so 12 that they could be in compliance, and they could be 13 a streamline process. To my knowledge, the last 14 that I've heard was that the DMV is basically 15 notifying people who wish to register to vote that 16 they'll have to follow up with their election 17 officer to get their proof of citizenship document.
18 Whether or not that meets compliance under NDRA, I 19 don't know, but, basically, saying that we've 20 submitted your application, but the rest is on you.

21 MR. RICH: My real question, though, is 22 while that's what's happening in the DMV -- and that 23 has received a fair amount of attention in the press
24 and so forth. I'm concerned about the portal 25 between public citizens agencies and agencies that

1 are serving people with disabilities.

2 MR. GOSELAND: Yeah. So within DCF, in -- 3 a couple of years back, we were calling to find out,
4 okay, so as all of this news about the DMV's tech
5 upgrade compliance is surfacing, what's happening 6 within this agency. At that time, there was 7 nothing. As of October of 2013, there was nothing, 8 and in addition to them not -- well, first of all, 9 any of their services, they don't require proof of 10 citizenship information, it's a Social Security 11 number, but in addition to that, one NDRA complaint
12 that we submitted to the U.S. Attorney's Office, 13 Barry Grissom's office, was a DCF worker out of the 14 Sedgwick County office had come to us in 2012 with a 15 stack of voter registration applications that were 16 dated six months, eight months back, when there's a 17 requirement that they be turned within five days of 18 being submitted to that agency, and so there are a 19 number of concerns, not only with the implications
20 of the Safe Act, but also just in standard 21 compliance around turning in the paper documents 22 that are submitted in the various drop boxes around 23 of the agency.

24 MR. RICH: Thank you.

25 MR. RAMIREZ: Lazaro in these three

1 counties, could you give us some insight on the 2 compliance of the law.

3 MR. SPINDOLA: Yeah. They will have the 4 early voter registration form in both languages.
5 Hopefully, they will request the senator of the 6 state to send printed voter registration forms in 7 both languages. There should be sample ballots by 8 the time the election time comes. I don't know if 9 there will be anybody available explaining to them
10 what that means, or what that is for -- well, yeah 11 there will be on a certain scale, yeah.

12 MR. RAMIREZ: Keely, could you give us
13 your sense of citing the issue that you experienced 14 and describe -- the attitude of Native-Americans in 15 Winnebago to voting?

16 MS. BASSETT: Actually, the Winnebago
17 Tribe is very, very active in voting. In Thurston 18 County, native people comprise the majority of the 19 people, and so we're really close to holding the 20 majority votes for the county commission, and that 21 kind of thing, and we did really well. I was 22 involved in the Native Get Out to Vote and different 23 things like that, and because it's a small 24 community, and like I said, everybody's family, and 25 we know everybody, we will knock on your door, and

1 say, Hey, I know your grandma, can you come over 2 here, you need to register? And so we're really 3 good about getting people registered to vote, but 4 you can't force people to get to the polls. We do
5 really well, actually. On our reservation. I
6 cannot speak for the other ones.

7 MR. RAMIREZ: Okay. Again, thank you,
8 panel members.

9 MS. TERNUS: Ms. Gerken, the issues that 10 you've identified with the guardianships in Iowa, is 11 that something that has changed recently, or are 12 those problems longstanding?

13 MS. GERKEN: You know, I can't answer
14 that, because I'm a transplanted resident. I've 15 only lived there a year, but I'm going to assume 16 that it has been going on for some time. Disability 17 rights, when I was hired at this position, it was 18 discussed with me that there has been a lot of 19 issues during our monitoring. I would like to 20 address the issue about NDRA certificates. It is 21 something that I've been researching now for almost 22 a year, and I have gone to Project Vote concerning 23 this, because I found, during all of my outreaches 24 to agencies, as well as doing outreach to homes, et 25 cetera, that every facility that I've asked about

1 the registering date, do not know about it. Some 2 have been -- maybe to prove to them that there is 3 such an NDRA, and that they didn't know about it.
4 And I discovered last week, in fact, that from -- an 5 auditor, they started counting back how many years 6 it's been since they sort of stopping the 7 registrations, and they figured it was between 2007, 8 2008, and that was when health and human services 9 department was changed. And the records that I have 10 received for two years, 2010 to 2012, there was a 11 total of maybe 500 people registered for the whole 12 state in public agencies.

13 So it is an issue that DRI is going to 14 look at very soon, we just have to get statistics, 15 and find out where the problems are and what needs 16 to be done. We need to find a solution of how to 17 help everybody get this -- the NDRA to have more 18 spine.

19 MR. RICH: Thank you.

20 MS. NOREN: Okay. Kip, first of all, do 21 you know if Kansas has any laws that allow some 22 flexibility, and where a voter may go to vote, or do 23 they have to be assigned a polling place.

24 MR. ELLIOTT: That's a really good
25 question, and I'm not sure. I don't think that -- I

1 think they do have to go to their assigned voting 2 place, but that's a great question to ask.

3 MS. NOREN: It's very -- I think it's one 4 of the best things for my disabled votes, is -- 5 because you can't find a perfect polling place for 6 everyone, and you might fit the little diagrams of 7 how wide the doors might be, but it -- you can't 8 find a perfect polling place for every single 9 disability, and so being able to move them -- they 10 can pick which poll they want to be assigned to, 11 what meets their needs, and things like that is very 12 helpful.

13 All right. Louis, you mentioned -- I
14 asked earlier, the prior panel, about any problems
15 with Kansas implementation of their version of photo
16 ID, and I think you mentioned in your testimony 17 there were 700 people who did not get to vote.

18 MR. GOSELAND: Yeah a little over 730.

19 MS. NOREN: Okay. Because they didn't 20 have appropriate identification? Is that --

21 MR. GOSELAND: Right. Those were just 22 cited, as you know, provisional ballots that were -- 23 they were not followed up with voter ID.

24 MS. NOREN: Okay.

25 MR. GOSELAND: That doesn't account for

1 people who just turned away when they saw the sign, 2 or didn't show up at all, so ...

3 MS. NOREN: Okay. So there were probably 4 more than that, because the person here earlier said
5 there weren't any problems with it, and I found 6 that -- and I -- are you familiar be what IDs are 7 required in Kansas? It seems like it's not one of 8 the stricter ones, because she said a student ID was 9 acceptable.

10 MR. GOSELAND: Well, from a 11 state-accredited university. Basically, any 12 state-issued ID -- photo ID.

13 MS. NOREN: All right. Because some of 14 the other laws we're seeing developed would not take 15 a student ID, would not take, you know, anything but 16 a in-state Department of Revenue ID.

17 Okay thank you.

18 MR. RAMIREZ: Again if there's no
19 questions, thank you very much, panelists for 20 sharing your information.

21 (A recess was taken.)

22 MS. NOREN: I think we're going to go
23 ahead and get started. We are on panel three on 24 election administration and we're altering the 25 agenda a little bit on this one. Eva Schulte is 1 going to go first, because she's going to need to 2 leave right after that, and, normally, we have the 3 panel ask questions after everybody gets done, but 4 I'll give a couple of minutes to quick ask you some 5 questions, so I'm going to turn over to Eva Schulte 6 President and CCO on early voting initiative in 7 Missouri.

8 MS. SCHULTE: Wonderful. Thank you so
9 much. Actually, I have until 5:20, but I appreciate 10 your flexibility.

11 Yeah, so I come to the work of faith-based 12 community organizing with a deep conviction that we 13 need to make our democracy work for everyone, and, 14 of course, that's not just my only conviction, but a 15 conviction of the thousands of people we're engaging 16 on a regular basis; communities creating 17 opportunity, and our faith-based organizations in 18 Missouri and the state of Kansas, Faith Voices for 19 Missouri; Faith Voices for Kansas, are committed to 20 engage people along the long haul of citizen 21 engagement and electoral engagement that brings a 22 value into public life. Our vision is to move 23 dignity into the center of public life. And just a 24 few things about our experience. So we have engaged 25 around voting very intentionally over the last four

1 years. We've registered 2,500 people to vote.
2 We've directly engaged 80,000 voters in 2012. Just 3 this last month we -- or the last few months, we've 4 been engaging around the early voting initiative 5 petition.

6 So today I really do want to thank you for 7 the opportunity to give testimony. There's three 8 key areas that I want to focus, and it's great to 9 see familiar faces on this commission, and 10 appreciate your service. So voting is a fundamental 11 matter, as you know, where we are able to exercise 12 our democracy, and the election administration is 13 critical in how community members participate. So I 14 have direct experience from 2012 in being a voting 15 witness to disenfranchisement, because, simply, the 16 election day was overwhelmed. I was standing with 17 two to three -- three people who were turned away 18 several times after being in the polls at St. James 19 United Methodist, and you'll see in the writing
20 that -- the written statement that I've provided, 21 that I stood with Chauncie and Letrise and Reverend 22 Cleaver, as Chauncie had been waiting for five hours 23 total. Three different times he had attempted to 24 vote, but was turned away, even though he had voted 25 in the previous primary. He didn't give up, and

1 ended up casting his vote at 9:23 p.m. I was there
2 with him, and saw that last part of the process as a 3 witness. And then Ms. Lewis left feeling disgusted, 4 like her vote didn't even count after she and others
5 were turned away, and she saw other turned away
6 without even being able to vote. So she said to me 7 in tearful words that she felt like her little 8 sticker didn't even matter anymore, "I Voted." And,
9 finally, Reverend Cleaver, who was actually is a 10 pastor at St. James United Methodist had a co-worker 11 ask him, after seeing his photo ID, even, if he was 12 really who he said he was. So these instances -- 13 I -- didn't happen to me at my polling location. So 14 I want to really lift up a disparity of how we're 15 seeing election administration happen at different 16 polling locations, and a need to examine those 17 further. And in the written testimony, you'll see 18 that you have a video link where you can see 19 Chauncie and Letrise and Reverend Cleaver's
20 testimony firsthand. We captured that because it 21 seemed so significant after their experience that 22 day.

23 The second focus that is related to 24 election administration, and the reality that, 25 despite great poll workers and volunteers, it's just

1 taxing to be there that long, is that we believe we 2 need to create -- to move election day from one day
3 to six weeks, and that's why just Communities
4 Creating Opportunity alone, we've gathered 20,000
5 signatures, and are participating a volunteer effort
6 to gather 60,000 signatures to advance early voting 7 with great partners across the state, including 8 NAACP, and we recognize that increased polling hours 9 on weekends, increased polling hours in election 10 locations in rural areas are critical to people who 11 are low income, to families that may have the right 12 to take off an hour to vote, or three hours, as 13 we've heard, but won't get paid for that hour, and 14 that's just too big on a family budget where we get 15 to minimum wages. So those are some of the reasons 16 we think electoral reform needs to have an expanding 17 voting from one day to six weeks. And we really 18 want to caution against legislation that we're 19 seeing in the state of Missouri right now that's 20 actually a sham legislative bill attaching early 21 voting, which sounds great, to photo ID, and it 22 requires that early voting would actually have an 23 appropriation before advancing. So it really is a 24 disguise to move forward photo ID and voter 25 suppression.

1 Happy to tell you more about what that 2 legislation looks like leads me to my third point, 3 which is about voting discrimination and 4 suppression. So you heard a few of the examples.
5 What Communities Creating Opportunity and our faith
6 voice is mostly attuned to a systematic suppression 7 of voters in ways that are targeting through voting 8 rights, through incarceration, through felony 9 penalties, whole populations of people from having 10 the right to vote. I know how important that is for 11 me, because, as a woman, whose grandmother was both 12 the year after women won the right to vote, it 13 matters to be born into a community where your voice 14 counts. So we're going door to door to let people 15 know their voice matters, and to encourage them to 16 step forward in their communities, and are highly 17 concerned that in Kansas -- you know, nearly 20,000 18 people, as you've heard throughout the day, are in 19 the legal limbo, totally disenfranchised from the 20 rights of Democracy. We've created a two-tier 21 voting system that requires proof of citizenship and 22 photo ID, and, really, we see that as a hatchet 23 strike at the ankles of democracy. In Missouri, if 24 we see photo ID go forward, we would likely 25 disenfranchise as many as 220,000 Missouri voters

1 who lack specific forms of identification required
2 by this law.

3 So I invite you to consider those racial 4 barriers, consider those economic barriers, consider 5 those physical barriers, and geographic barriers to 6 voting that can help advance our administration, to 7 consider the policies that promote better voting, 8 and engagement within the Democratic process through 9 electoral reform, and then, finally, we as a 10 community need to stand up, and confront the lie 11 that everyone has access to vote, when, really, 12 there are policies in place, and practices that are 13 intentionally, or unintentionally suppressing their 14 right to vote.

15 Thank you very much. Happy to take any 16 questions.

17 MS. TERNUS: What's the practice or policy
18 that results in your polling place having no wait 19 time, and the church polling place having a 20 five-hour wait time.

21 MS. SCHULTE: Yeah, I think that's a
22 really great question for us all to examine, so I 23 don't name that I have the definitive answer to 24 that, but what I have seen is racialized barriers to 25 voting. So at my polling place, it just happens to 1 be that it's majority white, and at the polling

2 place where St. James was, it was majority
3 African-American. Now, I don't recognize -- that's 4 just visual, it's present, and I think we all need 5 to study why that's taking place. It's related to 6 the frequency of voting, it's related to who's on 7 the voting polls, but it's also related to the 8 suppression that we're seeing at an intentional
9 level.

10 MS. TERNUS: Are there any guidelines for 11 how many poll places are required per registered 12 voter, or is it something that's discretionary, so 13 we can say, Well, it's --

14 MS. NOREN: Discretionary. Totally.

15 MS. SCHULTE: And then if it's based off 16 of previous election, unfortunately --

17 MS. NOREN: No. No polling place
18 assignment.

19 MS. SCHULTE: It's not?

20 MS. NOREN: No. That's number of ballots 21 ordered. The polling place assignment is totally 22 discretionary.

23 MS. SCHULTE: So that might be the 24 contradiction. I wasn't even planning on stopping.
25 You know, we were doing some -- just transporting

1 people that didn't have the ability to get to the 2 polls, and that's what I was participating, is 3 helping the individuals from the congregations and 4 the communities get to the polls that day, and then 5 I was told that there were some real challenges at a 6 number of the congregations at the polling places,
7 and asked to drive by, and in driving by several, I 8 saw just lines outside of the doors, and, again, 9 when I stopped, people were leaving infuriated 10 because that was the second or third time that they 11 had gone back, and at -- you know, this was about 12 6:00 p.m. At 6:00 p.m., I can say, Well, you can 13 call this number and figure out -- but, again, one 14 day isn't enough, and -- we also need to examine why 15 is it that our recordkeeping or how we're equipping 16 overtaxed volunteers nonsufficient.

17 MS. TERNUS: Was there any questioning
18 done with the individual responsible for assigning 19 polling places as to why? I mean, it would be an 20 administrative issue, again, if the fact that it 21 apparently had a discriminatory impact. Was that 22 person, if not held accountable, at least 23 questioned; and if so, what was the response as to 24 why that happened?

25 MS. SCHULTE: We brought the stories to

1 the forefront, and we actually did work really 2 closely with the election boards, but it was around 3 the ballot initiative petition process, so not 4 around these particular instances.

5 MS. RATLIFF: And I was going to ask,
6 because I think that that's a county clerk sitting 7 over there -- our county clerk, but they decide on 8 the number of polling places, is that not correct?
9 So is there a possibility that the fact that the 10 lines are so long and the waiting times are so long 11 and different -- depends upon how your county clerk, 12 or -- I call it county clerk because that's what 13 we -- how they make the assignment for the polling 14 places.

15 MS. SCHULTE: Right. And then I would 16 say, let's look at the bigger issue. The bigger 17 issue is, one day isn't enough, so let's extend 18 voting to six weeks, that then allows, just like 20 19 other states have -- in fact, the state of Kansas 20 does have early voting, and the state of Missouri 21 doesn't; so then that helps to remediate those 22 challenges of very long lines, overtaxed
23 individuals, people sending them to the wrong voting 24 location, or people making mistakes, and going to 25 the wrong polling location, and not having time to 1 readdress, because they waited in line for two 2 hours.

3 MS. NOREN: Okay. I have a question --
4 kind of a follow up to that. You talked about, you
5 know, six weeks is better than one day, but I notice 6 you mentioned that you didn't think they should 7 appropriate money for this. I mean -- so you take 8 the one day, which costs 15 million, and then you 9 multiply it times 42, but you have no more money to 10 pay for it? I'm not sure I understand. I mean, it 11 costs a lot of money to be an early voting site, and 12 so I just want to make sure you're on record saying 13 this needs to be paid for.

14 MS. SCHULTE: Yes. In fact, that is what 15 I said, that the reality of early voting is, it 16 would require extended hours, especially weekend 17 hours in locations that are harder to reach, and 18 then in our urban communities as well, and that does 19 require extra staffing and money. And there's an 20 initiative petition, which is a citizen petition 21 process that's gathered the hundreds of thousands of 22 signatures to qualify for the ballot in November, 23 and what the state legislature in Missouri is doing 24 right now is moving forward a counter-legislative 25 proposal that says it's early voting, but really is 1 just a shell of what the initiative petition is.

2 They're calling it early voting, and if they refer 3 it to the ballot, they're connecting it to photo ID;
4 so it's a shell to basically drive forward photo ID,
5 because early voting would not happen pending 6 appropriation. So that is where I was just 7 clarifying that it would likely -- early voting 8 would likely not happen Without appropriation in 9 this legislative run -- a ballot process right now, 10 whereas in the initiative petition, citizen-led,
11 voter-led process. We recommend that there is a 12 fiscal note. It would require extended hours, and 13 we think it's part of making our democracy work for 14 everyone.

15 MS. NOREN: Okay. Any other questions?

16 MR. RICH: Just a couple of quick 17 questions. First, are these problems that you've 18 noticed in Missouri, but not in Kansas, the problems 19 of long lines, and so forth?

20 MS. SCHULTE: We are newer to Kansas, so I 21 don't have that direct testimony in Kansas. What we 22 hear over and over and over again is less about the 23 lines, because early voting exists, and more about 24 the suppression of vote. I can't even vote at all 25 because I'm caught in limbo, and -- 20,000 people,

1 that's a lot of people, and we have many of them
2 that are a part of our efforts that gave their 3 testimony.

4 MR. RICH: But you do know that on the 5 other side of the 20,000, there are probably five 6 people who voted improperly in the last eight years?

7 MS. SCHULTE: What are you suggesting?

8 MR. RICH: There are probably five people 9 who voted --

10 MS. SCHULTE: That's right. .003
11 percent -- it's nothing -- it's just nothing. It's 12 a false argument that there is any kind of voter 13 improper engagement. There's -- yeah, exactly what 14 you said. .003 percent.

15 MR. RICH: For the two voting districts 16 that you just described, one with the long line, and 17 one without, do you know whether they were both 18 subject to the same elections board?

19 MS. SCHULTE: Correct.

20 MR. RICH: So they were both within -- 21 being supervised by the same --

22 MS. SCHULTE: That's right.

23 MR. RICH: -- person?

24 Thank you.

25 MS. NOREN: Was that in 2012?

1 MS. SCHULTE: Correct.

2 MS. NOREN: Okay. Any other questions?

3 All right. So let's move on to Gary Brunk
4 from the ACLU of Kansas, and he's going to discuss 5 the voter registration system that would separate 6 Federal and state voter files.

7 MR. BRUNK: Thank you.

8 MS. NOREN: Thank you.

9 MR. BRUNK: And thank you for THIS 10 opportunity to testify on behalf our 3,000-plus 11 members in the state of Kansas.

12 I want to stay that I'm really not the 13 ideal person for the ACLU to be here. Originally, 14 we planned for our legal director to be here. We 15 happen to be litigating this in state court, and he 16 and the powers to be in the ACLU nationally decided 17 that it was probably inappropriate for the lawyer
18 representing this case to be here and testifying. I 19 say that as an excuse for not being able to answer 20 your questions very well when this over, and, also, 21 because I know that I'm treading ground that's been 22 treaded earlier today, including by Delores Furtado, 23 whom is very knowledgeable, and so I'm guessing that 24 the hard questions have been already been answered 25 by Delores. Nevertheless, I submitted written

1 testimony, as you know, that focused on the 2 two-tiered election system in Kansas, and I will try 3 to summarize it briefly. This is a system that we 4 believe divides voters into separate and unequal 5 classes with different rights and privileges, and 6 for that reason, it's un-American, it's 7 un-Democratic.

8 As you know, the National Voter
9 Registration Act, the NVRA, require that states
10 adopt procedures that allow people to register 11 basically three ways: whether applying for or 12 renewing your driver's license, by mail using 13 mailing forms developed by the election assistance
14 commission; and, third, by application at a state 15 office that provides public assistance. Soon after 16 Kansas passed the NVRA, the Kansas legislature
17 enacted bills that implemented it, and the Secretary 18 of State promulgated rules and regulations to that 19 effect, and until 2012, those rules actually worked 20 quiet well, and it was a pretty simple process to 21 register to vote in Kansas. It was a very 22 straightforward application. You used the Federal 23 form, and it's accepted if you use the state form 24 developed by the Secretary of State, and it was 25 accepted.

1 In 2011, the Kansas legislature passed an 2 act that they called the Secure and Fairer Elections 3 Act, the S.A.F.E. Act. One of the provisions of the 4 S.A.F.E. Act -- one of the provisions, and I think 5 Delores probably addressed this as the required
6 photo ID, but the other provision is a requirement 7 that people have to provide documentary proof of 8 citizenship to be able to register to vote, and that 9 would include a birth certificate or passport. I
10 think the legislation -- not the legislation, but I 11 think the regulations detail something like 13 12 acceptable forms of documentation that would be 13 accepted by the Secretary of State. That 14 requirement -- the citizenship documentation
15 requirement went into effect at the beginning -- 16 January 1st of 2013. While the Secretary of State 17 premised his support for requiring documentary proof 18 of citizenship as a way of protecting against 19 fraudulent registration by noncitizens, actually, 20 there's been no single piece of evidence pointing to 21 one voter who used the Federal form in Kansas where 22 there was a fraudulent attempt in voting for -- in 23 registering to vote in this, and as just has been 24 alluded to here -- I mean, if you look more 25 generally at fraudulent votes in Kansas, it's

1 virtually nonexistent. Because of S.A.F.E., and the 2 way the Secretary of State has implemented Safe, we 3 now have an entirely new rule system of 4 registration, where voters are separate -- are 5 divided into separate and unequal classes.

6 Electors are classified according to the 7 method and/or the date of their registration, so on 8 one hand, those who registered to vote prior to 9 January 1, 2013 using any of the options available
10 to them to register at the time, are able to change 11 their address and update other voter registration 12 information without providing documentation of 13 citizenship. Likewise, despite the fact that one 14 does not need to be a U.S. citizen in order to serve 15 in the U.S. Armed Forces, person's in the Federal 16 service also do not need to provide documentary 17 evidence of citizenship in order to be able to 18 register in Kansas. On the other hand, persons who 19 are new registrants who use the Federal form will be 20 able to vote in national elections, and not in state 21 and local elections, and those who use the state
22 form developed by the Secretary of State, but do not 23 provide one of the approved forms of citizenship 24 documentation, would not be able to vote in any 25 elections. The result of this system is that there

1 are currently something like 16,000, and I gather 2 that you've been talking about 20,000 people on a 3 suspense list representing approximately one-third 4 of all the people that we know who have tried to 5 register, or who have registered since January 1 of 6 2013.

7 So what can fix that problem, and I think 8 that at the state level, there's two potential 9 remedies. One is really the preferred one, it's the 10 one that we would prefer, and that is that the 11 Kansas legislature repeal the requirement of 12 documentary evidence of citizenship, given the 13 complete lack of evidence of fraudulent voting by 14 noncitizens, the fact that 16,000 people or more are 15 currently not able to vote, even though they've 16 tried to register, and the cost of a dual 17 registration system. And I should note, if it 18 hasn't been noted before, that the secretary does 19 have county clerks maintain two separate lists of 20 voters; one for the voters using the Federal form, 21 of which there are very few, and the other for the 22 voters who are using the standard form. So despite 23 all the evidence that this is not a needed program, 24 repealing seems to us the Democratic and the 25 fiscally prudent thing to do. Unfortunately, the

1 Kansas legislature is not likely to take that 2 action, at least in the near future.

3 So the issue Kansas is pursuing in the 4 second avenue, is that, which is that we're 5 challenging the actions of the Secretary of State in 6 state court. Our lawsuits seeks to enjoy 7 enforcement of the dual registration system on 8 grounds that one, it's a violation of the Kansas 9 constitution's guarantee of equal protection; two, 10 it is beyond the scope of the secretary's authority;
11 and, three, it is a violation of the Kansas rules 12 and regulations following the acts requirement that 13 prior to implementation of new administrative rules 14 or regulations, there must be public process that 15 includes notice, publication, and opportunity for 16 comment, which did not happen.

17 MS. NOREN: Okay. We're going to need to 18 break here and move on to the next one, our 19 timekeeper is telling me, so ...

20 MR. BRUNK: I can finish it in 30 seconds.
21 We can't predict the pace in which the lawsuit will 22 proceed, and we do not know the outcome. What we do 23 know is that state and national elections are 24 looming in the very close future, and that 16,000 25 people or more want to register in Kansas, and will

1 not have the opportunity to engage in the most 2 fundamental Democratic act, that of voting.

3 Thank you for your attention.

4 MS. NOREN: Okay. Thank you.

5 Now we have Bonnie Pitz with the League of 6 Women Voters of Iowa, who will be discussing the use 7 of HAVA money to fund a criminal investigation on 8 voter fraud.

9 MS. PITZ: Thank you. I want to thank the 10 National Commission on Voting Rights, and Erandi and 11 Miles for their hard work.

12 The League of Women Voter of Iowa
13 appreciates the opportunity to submit testimony for 14 this voting rights hearing in regard to using HAVA 15 money to fund a criminal investigation of voter 16 fraud. I am Bonnie Pitz, president of the League of 17 Women Voters of Iowa. I've served as president the 18 last two years, and attended hearings where this 19 information came to light. I testified for nearly 20 four hearings in Iowa in 2012 through 2013. The 21 League of Women Voters U.S. is 130,000-strong 22 organization that does all it can to make sure every 23 eligible voter is able to vote. The League believes 24 that every citizen should be protected in the right
25 to vote, and that no person or group should suffer

1 legal, economic, or administrative discrimination.
2 When the 2000 election exposed the many problems
3 facing the election system, the League began to work 4 relentlessly on election reform, and bringing its 5 importance to national attention. The League of 6 Women Voters U.S. helped draft and pass the Help
7 America Vote Act of 2002, HAVA. Working closely 8 with civil rights coalition in developing a balance 9 for key provisions.

10 This testimony will focus on our 11 experience in Iowa with the League, and the hearings
12 we attended and participated in. On August 27th, 13 2012, the League of Women Voters of Iowa was asked 14 to sign on with the ACLU League of Latin American 15 Citizens, Interfaith Alliance, American Friends 16 Services Committee, and the Iowa chapter of the 17 National Association of Social Workers, and 18 requested a hearing with the Iowa legislative rules
19 review committee concerning the actions of Secretary 20 of State Matt Schultz, and his activities to remove 21 registered voters from the rolls. The League of 22 Women Voters of Iowa joined the request for a 23 hearing that was September 11th, 2012 at the 24 cabinet. Rita Bettis of the ACLU wrote the request 25 that included affidavits from Latino citizens that

1 would be affected by Secretary of State Schultz's 2 actions. The hearing was held on a Tuesday with 3 myself present, Don Suiter, Rebecca Rider, League
4 members, and we learned that Secretary of State
5 Schultz attended a national convention of Secretary
6 of States where he gained some ideas on funding
7 voter fraud -- on finding voter fraud. Schultz 8 examined the Department of Transportation list for 9 names that were identified as aliens. He 10 crossed-check this list with voter votes, and came 11 out with a list of 3,584 names. He did not find out 12 how many of these individuals subsequently became 13 citizens. Checking those names against registered 14 voters, Schultz claims 3,582 people marked as 15 noncitizens are registered to vote in Iowa, but a 16 driver's license is good for five years. What 17 Schultz didn't say, and maybe did not know, is that 18 in the five years ending September 30th, 2011, over 19 11,000 people -- Iowans became U.S. citizens. We 20 had 11,000 newly naturalized citizens joining the 21 U.S. citizenry. Schultz pursued efforts to getting 22 safe, systematically verification form entitlement 23 list, a Federal list documenting new citizens by 24 state. This list at intended for Federal agencies 25 to determine if immigrants are eligible to benefits,

1 such as food stamps. Instead of waiting for the 2 list, Schultz turned the list over to the Iowa
3 Department of Criminal Investigation using HAVA 4 funds, Help America Vote Act funds, to pay for the 5 expense. Up to 280,000 for two years of work. HAVA
6 funds were designed to decrease access to voting 7 after people were wrongly disqualified in 2000. In 8 September 2012, this hearing was the first time we 9 had heard of these efforts by Schultz. We were all 10 quite surprised by this effort. He was using 11 multiple efforts to find voter fraud in Iowa. It 12 turns out Schultz had struck a deal with the DCI in 13 July of 2012, and an agent immediately went to work 14 looking for voter fraud. Using the list from 15 Schultz, the DCI began to interview possible
16 suspects. On September 21, 2010, the Des Moines
17 Register reported three were charged with election
18 misconduct. Two Canadian citizens not being allowed 19 to vote in all, but presidential elections, but they 20 were legal, permanent residents. The third was also 21 mistaken in her belief she was eligible to vote.

22 Another complication to voters was the 23 action of Governor Terry Branstad. We heard about 24 this a little bit earlier this afternoon. When 25 Branstad took office, his first day in office,

1 January 20th, 2011, he immediately rescinded the 2 efforts of former Governor Tom Vilsack to give 3 felons, who had served their time, to have their 4 voting rights restored. From January 2005 through 5 2010, felons who had been released had their voting 6 rights restored, and were able to participate in the 7 Democratic process. For many prisoners who were 8 released after January 2011, they did not get that 9 information about a change in the governor's order.
10 After the DCI went to court, nine felons were 11 charged with voter fraud because they believed they 12 were eligible to register and to vote. The 13 necessary education on changes for this policy was 14 not widely known in the state of Iowa. One of the 15 first acts of the League was to contact Senator 16 Harkin and apprise him about all the money being 17 used for voter fraud. We sent a letter September 25
18 to Senators Harkin and Grassley. It was Dan 19 Goldberg, a lawyer who specialized in election law, 20 who followed up. He reported that they were 21 following up with the senate rules committee and the 22 election assistance commission. He said inspector
23 Curtis Pryer was aware of this use of HAVA funds.
24 What we did not realize at this time is that the 25 election assistance commission was not operational,

1 because the commissioner quit in December of 2011.
2 The commission typically has four members nominated
3 by the president, and approved by congress.
4 Congress has not approved any nominees, and without 5 three voting members, the agency cannot advise 6 states on the use of voting act funds. On 7 January 3rd, 2013, a hearing was held to get public 8 input on the Secretary of State Schultz's actions.
9 There were 40 speakers who expressed frustrations
10 with these actions. Iowa Senator Thomas Courtney
11 asked the state auditor in October 2013 to review 12 Schultz's use of money. The report released on 13 December 19th, 2013 by chief deputy included that 14 the Federal programs do not specifically address 15 whether the investigation of complaints and 16 potential criminal activity is an allowable 17 expenditure; however, that Schultz should be 18 prepared to repay the money, if the election 19 assistance commission determines the funds weren't 20 properly used. Iowa Senator Tom Courtney asked a US 21 Senator to confirm the appointees to a Federal 22 election commission, so a decision could be made
23 about whether Secretary of State Schultz is properly 24 using money for voter fraud investigations.
25 Courtney questioned whether the use of the money by

1 Schultz was legal. The funds are intended for 2 education, and about voting procedures, voter
3 rights, and technology. Courtney reportedly sent a
4 letter to U.S. Senators Charles Sumner and Pat
5 Roberts, the chairman and ranking member,
6 respectfully, of the Senate Rules and Administration
7 Committee. The Committee oversees nominations for a 8 variety of Federal votes, and held a hearing on 9 December 2013 on nominees for the Election
10 Assistance Commission. One of President Barack
11 Obama's nominees had been waiting two years to act 12 on her appointment. The other appointee has been 13 waiting three years. The GOP leadership has not put 14 forth any names to serve on a bipartisan panel.

15 The DCI entered on February 13, 2014,
16 about 20 months after the investigation started.
17 They found 25 cases of possible voter problems. Of 18 these, nine involved felons. And as you heard 19 earlier, it was many times because they didn't 20 realize that they were accidentally registering to 21 vote, or -- there were five individuals whose 22 charges were dismissed, two are waiting trial, one 23 was found not guilty in a jury trial, a mistake is 24 not a crime. Two Canadians who believed they were 25 eligible to vote returned to Canada, one who double

1 voted for her daughter plead guilty. Four of the 2 felons pled guilty because they did not want to risk 3 a jury trial and possible ten-years prison sentence.
4 In Iowa there are 2.1 million registered voters.
5 Voter misconduct is statistically insignificant, and 6 is generally the result of misunderstanding, rather 7 than fraud. In three of the cases involving felons, 8 they thought their rights had been restored. They 9 pled guilty because the deals offered by the 10 prosecutors were safer bets than going to trial, and 11 risking prison time. The instances of real, 12 intentional voter fraud are exceedingly rare, 13 experts say, because of penalties that are so high,
14 and the payoff is so low.

15 MS. NOREN: Are you ready to rap up?

16 MS. PITZ: Yeah.

17 MS. NOREN: Okay.

18 MS. PITZ: And the only thing I do want to 19 say is, is that we need to make the Federal 20 Elections Administration Commission operational, and 21 there just needs to be a ton of voter education.
22 That's what needs to happen.

23 MS. NOREN: Thank you.

24 And our final panelist for the day, and 25 I -- first of all, I want to thank everybody on my

1 panel for doing such a great job, and also having 2 very simple names so I can get through them.

3 So our final one is Joe Henry, and he will 4 be talking about the Iowa Secretary of State voter 5 purge using the saved database and the suppression 6 impact upon the Latinos, new U.S. citizens, and 7 other minorities.

8 Thank you.

9 MR. HENRY: Thank you executive 10 commissioners and the National Commission on Voting
11 Rights.

12 Hello. My name is Joe Henry, and I'm the 13 state director of League of United Latin American 14 Citizens of Iowa. The League of United Latin 15 American Citizens is the nation's largest and oldest 16 civil rights volunteer-based organization what 17 empowers Hispanic Americans, and builds strong 18 Latino communities. Headquartered in Washington DC 19 with 10 million members and counsel around the 20 states and Puerto Rico.

21 One of LULAC's initiatives is to promote 22 active participation of all eligible Latinos in the 23 Democratic process by registering to vote, having 24 access to voting locations, and voting in elections.
25 We encourage all legislative, judicial, and

1 education efforts to promote voter participation in 2 an advocacy. In 2012, we let Iowa join with the 3 state ACLU to stop the implementation of voter rolls
4 that were proposed by Iowa Secretary of State Matt
5 Schultz. The unilateral move made by the Iowa
6 Secretary of State in 2012 did not promote voter
7 participation. The voter rolls proposed by the Iowa
8 Secretary of State would have dramatically altered 9 the way in which elections were run, how voters are 10 challenged, and the legislative authority needed 11 before the secretary of the state can promote. In 12 addition, we felt that the Secretary of State should 13 have conferred with county auditors and voter 14 registration commission before attempting to enact 15 such rules. We also believe the Secretary of State 16 acted outside of his legislative authority when 17 changing how voters could be stripped of their 18 voting rights. Iowa law provides six reasons for 19 allowing cancellation of voter registration. One, a 20 voter dies; two, registers in another jurisdiction; 21 three, requests a cancelation in writing; four, is 22 convicted of a felony; five, is declared 23 incompetent; six, or has been inactive for two 24 successive general elections. Schultz argued that 25 his roles changes would have identified and removed

1 noncitizens from the voter rolls by scanning
2 registered voters against state and national lists
3 of noncitizens, and then running suspected foreign 4 nationals through a Federal database called the 5 Systematic Alien Verification for Entitlements
6 Program, as you had noted, but it has been noted 7 that the database is known to have faulty
8 information. We strongly believe that the Iowa 9 Secretary of State was targeting one section of the 10 population, specifically Latinos, and that this 11 action amounted to intimidation. The secretary of 12 the state used agents from the Iowa Department of 13 Criminal Investigation, an agency whose main role is 14 to investigate serious crimes to investigate 15 allegation cases of voter fraud, and to question 16 individuals suspected of not proven guilty of such 17 actions. Imagine the confusion and fear you would 18 feel if an agent from the Iowa Department of 19 Criminal Investigation contacted you, or if you 20 received a letter from the State of Iowa stating 21 that you were not legally eligible to vote. Sending 22 out what deemed to threatening letters to those he 23 believed were noncitizens was part of the new voter 24 rolls the secretary state attempted to implement.

25 Many immigrants come from countries where

1 they were previously repressed by their government.
2 Such actions by Iowa Secretary of State would have 3 further intimidated them from making the chilling
4 effect, and could have scared them into giving up 5 their constitutional right to vote for those who 6 were, in fact, eligible voters.

7 We were also concerned about the window of 8 time in which an individual had to respond to the 9 threatening letters that were supposedly sent out by 10 the Secretary of State. This could have been very 11 problematic for Latinos and other immigrants, 12 because, sometimes, it could take months or up to a 13 year to receive proper documentation from the 14 Federal government to verify citizenship. We did 15 not agree with the use with Help America Vote Act, 16 HAVA, money to pursue Schultz voter rolls. That 17 money should have been used to improve the voting
18 process in Iowa. As noted by several media reports 19 on election night in 2012, the Secretary of State's 20 office had difficulty reporting voting results in a 21 timely manner, had other issues with the voting 22 process. Federal funds should have gone towards 23 those improvement, not to pay for DCI intentional 24 investigator fraud that did not exist. The 25 Secretary of State claimed in 2012 that he

1 identified thousands of people who were registered 2 to vote, despite being noncitizens. The likelihood 3 that this data was correct was extremely low. The 4 analysis of 2,068 reported fraud cases by the News
5 21, a Kearney United Investigative Reporting
6 Project, found ten cases of alleged in-person voter
7 impersonation since 2000. With 146,000,000
8 registered voters in the United States, those 9 represent about one for over 15 million perspective
10 voters. The low numbers of voter fraud makes sense.
11 There are already laws in Iowa that provide criminal 12 penalties for voter impersonation fraud. We believe 13 that it is very unlikely that an individual, 14 regardless of how much they wanted to vote for their 15 favorite politician, would risk going to prison to 16 give that candidate one vote. This was all the more 17 reason why Schultz rolls were necessary. We also 18 believe that there were too many ways a voter's 19 identity could mistaken, or information used to 20 verify a voters eligibility could be inaccurate or 21 outdated. Schultz used Iowa Department of 22 Transportation data, which meant people could have 23 been swept up in the process that had gotten their 24 driver's license when they were legal immigrants, 25 but not yet citizens, and then later became a legal

1 citizen. Iowa driver's licenses are only renewed 2 every five years, so the DOT's data is not up to 3 date, nor was it ever intended to be used in this 4 manner. The Iowa Secretary of State voter rolls
5 also were too vague, and did afford enough 6 opportunity to ensure a accurate and fair result.
7 The rolls were also major changes to Iowa voting 8 law, and the Secretary of State that had an 9 administrative agency as part of the executive 10 branch did not have the power to change or undermine 11 existing eyes of the law. Protecting access to 12 voting for qualified, eligible Iowans, including new 13 U.S. citizens is important; however, these rules are 14 a threat to that rule, and should have never been 15 allowed to be enacted.

16 This year marked a huge success in our 17 almost two-year court battle. In March, Judge Scott 18 Rosenberg, the District Court Judge for the Fifth 19 Judicial District of Iowa ruled that Schultz 20 exceeded his authority in adopting new voter rolls 21 that created a process for identifying and removing 22 voters by screening them against a Federal database.
23 Rosenberg's decision invalidated the rule, which 24 identified and removed noncitizens from the voter 25 roll that screened the registered voters against

1 state and national list of noncitizens. And, of 2 course, as I said before, the database was known to 3 have faulty information.

4 And that sums up my testimony.

5 MS. NOREN: Thank you very much.

6 I have couple of quick questions. You're 7 both from Iowa, bringing up this use of HAVA funds.
8 Are you familiar with the state plan requirement 9 under the Help America Vote Act that states how to 10 spend money according to a plan developed by a group
11 of people appointed by the Secretary of State?

12 MR. HENRY: No.

13 MS. NOREN: I don't -- you know, that was 14 part of the thing that the states had put together a 15 state plan committee to develop how this money was 16 to be spent, and they were the ones who determined 17 that this was to hopefully deter situations that you 18 are bringing up, so ...

19 MR. HENRY: And I think that we did bring 20 that up in 2012 at the hearings.

21 MS. NOREN: Yeah.

22 MR. HENRY: And Mr. Schultz didn't state
23 anything to me.

24 MS. NOREN: Okay. Any questions?

25 MR. RICH: I have one quick question to

1 Gary, and this is just whether you happen to know if 2 in Kansas, through the litigation process so far, 3 particularly from the order from the judge, whether 4 they have addressed the issue of that small group of 5 voters who used the Federal voter registration form 6 at a time when that form did not require proof of 7 citizenship, whether those voters will have a right 8 to vote in the fall election.

9 MR. BRUNK: So, no, we're not involved in 10 the court case with the League, and some other 11 groups that are involved, and the Federal court 12 system certainly has not come up, obviously, in a 13 state system yet, so -- I'm not aware of it, though.

14 MR. RICH: So they have not yet.

15 MR. BRUNK: Not that I know of.

16 MR. RICH: As far as the rights of that 17 group.

18 MR. BRUNK: Right.

19 MR. RICH: Okay. Thanks.

20 MS. TERNUS: Has Judge Rosenberg decision
21 been appealed?

22 MR. HENRY: Yes. Yes, it has.

23 MS. NOREN: Okay.

24 Any other questions from the panel?

25 All right. So I am going to throw this

1 back to Mary Ratliff, and see if we have any public
2 testimony.

3 MS. RATLIFF: Yes, we do. We're going to 4 ask -- and I'll probably step on this last name.
5 Brad Murenz and Marvin S. Robinson II, if you would 6 come up.

7 And just give us your -- of course, your 8 name, and what organization, if any, are you 9 representing yourself, or an organization.

10 MR. MURENZ: Good evening, commissioners.
11 For the record, my name is Brad Murenz, and I am the 12 public policy specialist for Disability Right of 13 Nebraska, the designated protection and advocacy
14 organization for Nebraskans with disabilities.

15 I am pleased to be here today -- this 16 evening with you to give you a brief highlight of 17 some of the activities regarding voting rights for 18 Nebraskans with disabilities that we've been 19 involved with. Disability Rights of Nebraska has 20 focused our voting activities primarily on 21 legislative work, education and awareness raising, 22 polling place accessibility, surveying those 23 accessibility, and voting demonstrations and voter 24 registration. We maintain a generalized intake
25 process whereby people with disabilities can call

1 our office to report an incident, a problem, an 2 issue, and we can -- in a position that we can 3 handle. Additionally, we've opened a special
4 call-in line on election day to receive any calls 5 from voters with disabilities on election day to 6 report any issues that might arise at the moment.
7 We receive a minimal number of calls to our office 8 regarding voting problems for persons with 9 disabilities, either daily, on the generalize intake
10 line, or on election clay. We work collaboratively 11 with other voter rights organizations to communicate 12 issues that cross-apply, and to expand the reach of 13 our advocacy. We continue to have a very positive 14 working relationship with the Secretary of State,
15 and our elected officials. The Secretary of State 16 and state election officials have been and continue 17 to be very supportive of our education efforts.
18 They have asked us to be involved in making sure 19 that barriers in voting for Nebraskans with 20 disabilities are minimized, and have responded 21 quickly and effectively to issues that we have 22 raised in this regard. Even the polling place 23 workers have been very helpful in assisting us to 24 address issues that occur at a specific polling 25 place. We feel we have significant support from the 1 top, all the way down.

2 Education. One barrier for Nebraska
3 voters with disabilities is misconceptions about 4 their voting rights. We have conducted many 5 presentations on the voting rights of persons with 6 disabilities in Nebraska. We also conduct voter 7 registration drives and voting machine
8 demonstrations, making individuals aware, not only 9 of their rights, but also that they can use the auto 10 mark voting machines, and how to use those voting 11 machines. Through these presentations, we have 12 learned that a majority of the audiences believe 13 that a person with disabilities was barred from 14 voting for the following reasons. One, that person, 15 or a person, has been through a mental health board 16 committee; two, that person, or persons, have been 17 convicted of a felony; and, three, that individual, 18 or individuals, have a guardian. All of which do 19 not deny a person with disabilities their right to 20 vote.

21 Accessibly surveys. Through our 22 Protection Advocacy for Voting Access program, or 23 PAVA, as we like to call it, we have conducted at 24 least 50 polling place accessibility surveys, to 25 make sure that the polling place is accessible for

1 persons who need an accessible polling place. Even 2 though those surveys show most of polling places 3 were accessible, there were some sites that had 4 problems. Considering that Nebraska has around 5 1,180 polling sites, these 50 surveys that we have 6 conducted, is, by all means, a small sample. We 7 continue to conduct polling place accessibility
8 surveys to assess accessibility. The largest 9 problems that we found in our accessibility surveys
10 were the auto mark machine was not positioned so a 11 voter could vote privately. Voters with 12 disabilities lack knowledge of the auto mark 13 machine, how to use it. We have found that people 14 are not aware that there is a voting machine
15 available at the polling place, or they have no idea 16 how to use the machine. And the ramp to the 17 entrance of a polling place did not fit properly, 18 and/or did not have a ramp at all.

19 Legislative efforts. Disability Rights of 20 Nebraska also focuses its work on legislative bills
21 that will affect Nebraskan voters. We are pleased 22 that our unicameral legislature has taken a somewhat 23 cautiously balanced approach to reform voting rights
24 and processes in Nebraska. We have a very positive 25 working relationship with the legislature as well,

1 and have worked to influence the legislature to 2 enact positive legislation for Nebraskans with 3 disabilities regarding voting. For example, LB661
4 Legislative Bill 661 created an online voter 5 registration system so that the information from the 6 Department of Motor Vehicles and the Secretary of 7 State's office can be transmitted and submitted 8 electronically, decreased the lag time in getting 9 results and information between those two offices.
10 We have been involved in opposing the voter ID bill 11 that has been brought up in the Nebraska legislature
12 for several years now. We have been very successful 13 in staving off that legislation requiring voter ID, 14 and I would like to also lastly add the Legislative 15 Bill 271. That bill suggested reducing the number 16 of early voting -- any person's early voting days, 17 which, at that time, stood at 35 days. The proposal 18 was decreased back to 25 days, for a reduction of 19 ten days. In response to our opposition and working 20 with legislatures, we were successful in getting 21 that 35 days to 25 days reduction changed to a 22 35-day to a 30-day reduction. Not optimal in our 23 eyes, but certainly better than the alternative.

24 So the kind of gives you a snapshot of 25 where we stand with voters with disabilities in

1 Nebraska. Now, it's not ideal, everything is not 2 perfect, but I think with continued vigilance and 3 advocacy and education, we can certainly achieve 4 something close to the ideal.

5 And that would all that I have for you.
6 If you have any questions, I'd be happy to answer
7 them as we as I could.

8 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. anybody have any 9 questions?

10 Thank you.

11 THE WITNESS: You're welcome.

12 MS. RATLIFF: We will now hear from 13 Marvin.

14 MR. ROBINSON: Good afternoon -- or good
15 evening. My name is Marvin Robinson. First, I 16 would like to say how much this is appreciated, and 17 with a deep gratitude for the National Commission on 18 Voting Rights, and the Lawyers' Committee for Civil 19 Rights under the law, and the UMKC Law School for 20 hosting such an incredible and important listening 21 session on voting rights here in Kansas City.

22 HUD, Housing and Urban Development, in 23 approximately October 2013, reported there are more 24 homeless African-Americans than other demographics 25 nationwide currently -- occurring currently. As an

1 advocate for, and with the environmental and energy
2 justice issues, as well as the historic heritage
3 preservation of the Underground Railroad exercise 4 2014 -- in a couple of weeks, it'll be 27 years of 5 independent volunteer research with that, as well as 6 an advocate for veterans who endure severe barriers
7 through the VA. Myself, a Navy veteran, and a 8 committee man for quite some time now.

9 Today's National Commission on Voting
10 Rights is important, because 50 percent of 11 African-American veterans are homeless. In 2014 a 12 national news media report from Washington DC,
13 Oregon, up to Detroit continued to disseminate 14 articles about rejuvenation of urban centers. In 15 Kansas City -- correction in Kansas, Wyandotte
16 County, of which I'm a resident there, many of us 17 are silently mortified, because we are being thrown 18 out of what we had; our neighborhoods, our homes, 19 our communities from overexaggerated personal 20 property real estate taxes, and every time this 21 place -- Kansas City, Missouri does something
22 phenomenal and fabulous like the Kansas City Power &
23 Light District, and rebuilds their downtown area, 24 and God forbid the new trolley system that's getting 25 ready to start operations, because our community

1 promotes Kansas City, Wyandotte County being 2 miles
2 from the Power & Light District, which means we're 3 basically sort of like a hotbed patio, back door to 4 a plethora metro of a city like Kansas City,
5 Missouri. So they keep going up on our taxes, 6 because Kansas City, Missouri keeps doing such 7 fabulous things, if that makes any sense.

8 There is not enough time to discuss the 9 atrocities that we endure with being residents in 10 Kansas when it comes to elections, the right to 11 vote. Maybe there exists a format for the homeless 12 to vote -- or the near homeless that I, or some of 13 the others, we're unaware of. In reality, a 14 significant portion of African-American residents 15 are displaced. At a conference that the EPA just 16 had last month, there was a discussion about root
17 shock where Professor Dr. Mindy Love discussed
18 Hurricane Katrina, Super Storm Sandy, and other 19 struggling areas. When you go in to do upgrades in 20 your urban centers, and you displace -- the 21 secondary impact has a root shock, and so my focus 22 of trying to be here today, was by trying to 23 encourage whatever this group is supposed to be, the 24 National Commission on Voting Rights to reconsider a 25 higher priority for the homeless, the unemployed,

1 the transit population; such as 50 percent of blacks
2 who are currently reportedly homeless right now
3 because more will be coming home from Afghanistan -- 4 this is both men and women in our area. We have so 5 much toxic waste in the air, the ground, and water, 6 we could -- we are identified as an environmental 7 justice community for our simple sacrifice, take 8 your pick. Combined the aforementioned with the 9 highest rates of -- the highest rates of 10 underemployment or unemployment among extreme
11 poverty of African-American residents. Right now 12 it's at Wyandotte County, Kansas City, Kansas, the 13 Center for Disease Control, since probably 2009, 14 2010, we have the highest rate of death and 15 mortality rate in the entire country, structured 16 violence, and I'm just about through. Structured 17 violence is -- with the Internet search engine cause 18 these problems.

19 So I'm just basically here to encourage 20 you to consider doing more with the people that are 21 being displaced in the -- sustaining their right to 22 vote. In summary, those massive jobs are being 23 created with livable wages, more and more veterans 24 and homeless populations will expand and increase, 25 and this wouldn't just be for black people, but

1 Americans, and there's some other little things I
2 wanted to say, but we are as American as anybody
3 else. I felt like it's important to continue to try 4 to complain, because that is what our whole fiber of 5 this great nation is, and I'm a nervous wreck, and I
6 just want to say thank you so much, and I appreciate 7 you out there.

8 MS. RATLIFF: Thank you so much, and let 9 me ask you a couple questions.

10 You said that 50 percent of the homeless
11 are veteran.

12 MR. ROBINSON: Black veterans are 13 homeless.

14 MS. RATLIFF: So what address that's 15 impacting.

16 MR. ROBINSON: Just the right to be able 17 to participate.

18 MS. RATLIFF: To participate in the 19 election process?

20 MR. ROBINSON: Yes.

21 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. Do you know if any of 22 those -- what's happening when they're being turned 23 away? Are they trying to vote, or ...

24 MR. ROBINSON: It varies. And this isn't 25 50 percent Wyandotte County, this is a VA statistic,

1 even though they have the new HUD, it is just a
2 really awful thing. And even when I went to the EP
3 national conference, I had to throw out there -- 4 they were talking about the new EPA guidelines. I 5 had to throw out what is in our immediate corridor,
6 and --

7 MS. RATLIFF: Okay. And I have to keep it
8 short, because we got about --

9 MR. ROBINSON: I could not thank you all 10 enough.

11 MS. RATLIFF: We have -- I was just 12 wondering if some of the other may have some 13 questions, but I was just wondering with that you 14 know, 50 percent of the homeless, if you have any 15 complaints that -- about the voting process, the 16 fact that they were not able to vote?

17 MR. ROBINSON: Oh, my God, yeah. I've 18 been in Wyandotte County -- I served as an observer
19 for the Obama reelection in 2012, and the people 20 that were -- I'm a precinct committee man, and they 21 kept moving our precinct around, and the only reason 22 why I knew that they had this moved it around is 23 because I'm a precinct committeeman, so I was having 24 to steer people to the new location, and one of the 25 ladies that volunteers at our church's food pantry,

1 she offered me some fried chicken around
2 eleven o'clock, and I said, No, I didn't want any,
3 and then she offered some again around one o'clock,
4 and the guy was getting ready to call the police 5 because I was getting a piece of fried chicken, and 6 I was just like, Oh, my God, I'm told old -- you 7 know, I'm too old to get in trouble. I said, What 8 is the issue? Well, you can't offer anybody that's 9 observing -- you can't even exchange food, because 10 they offered me a piece of chicken, I didn't know it 11 was a crime, but if I had presented the chicken, 12 then it would have been a crime. And I was like -- 13 well, he said he was going to call the main office.
14 I said, you call the main office, and I'm call 15 Washington, so who's going to dial first? So -- 16 yeah. And then are other veterans who did not even 17 bother to go vote, because they used to live in that 18 area, they have no address, and they don't want to 19 get in trouble later on, to answer your questions,
20 so ...

21 I had to throw out the fried chicken
22 story, because I think it's just unbelievable, the 23 degradation of the way people treat veterans and act 24 like a piece of chicken would be something you could 25 get a ticket for, and I'm one of the foolish people

1 that would take the time to go and volunteer and 2 campaign. Just think about how many other people 3 that might just trigger a whole another reaction.

4 So thank you so much.

5 MR. RICH: One quick question. Do you
6 have a sense of how many people who are homeless in 7 Kansas who carry around proof of citizenship?

8 MR. ROBINSON: When you say -- like a 9 birth certificate and --

10 MR. RICH: Birth certificate or passport.

11 MR. ROBINSON: You ask an interesting
12 question. They've told us that you have to have you 13 ID; otherwise, they could -- and that was one of the 14 reasons I started growing my beard, is because every 15 time I went somewhere, the police were saying I fit 16 a description. I was like, My God.

17 So I don't know -- I don't know the answer 18 to that.

19 Thank you.

20 MR. RICH: Thank you.

21 MS. RATLIFF: Thank you both.

22 MR. RICH: I have been asked to now bring 23 this hearing to a close. Let me begin by thanking 24 all of the people who have been here today, people 25 who have not testified, particularly those who have.

1 It has been a terrific, educational experience for 2 me, and I'm sure this stands true for other members 3 of other guest commissioners who are here. I'm also 4 sure that we've heard evidence that's going to be 5 helpful to advise our Commission on Voting Rights as 6 they study this problem. It would be very tempting 7 to try to summarize in some way all that we have 8 heard over the course of the day, but I'm not going 9 to try to summarize it all. There are just a few 10 highlights that I want to identify.

11 We have heard, for example, that there are 12 restrictions on voting that simply cannot be 13 rationally defended as anything other than efforts 14 to suppress voting. We have heard evidence from a 15 number of people that there are racial, economic, 16 physical, and geographic barriers to voting that, 17 again, demonstrate systematic voter suppression.
18 We've heard -- and, again, this seems to be a 19 comment that applied in very broad terms
20 enthusiastic effort to enforce voter restrictions, 21 and complete neglect of provisions to protect voting 22 rights, and it seems to me, in many ways, that that 23 sort of summarized that testimony that we heard 24 throughout the afternoon.

25 I came here knowing something about the

1 problems that we have in Kansas, because that's 2 where I have been located, and I certainly heard
3 that the problems in Kansas are serious. When you 4 have 15,000 people who are -- whose right to vote is 5 held in suspension, or whose voting registration is 6 incomplete, and who probably will not be able to 7 vote the next time that opportunity arises, and when 8 you're suspending those 15,000 because of evidence 9 that five people over the last eight years may have 10 voted who weren't supposed to vote. It turns, 11 however, that Kansas is not the only place that has 12 problems, and that was part of what was eye opening 13 for me. To discover, for example, that in Missouri, 14 you may have to wait for five hours to vote, while 15 in the same district, another group of voters who 16 happen to be majority white wait five minutes 17 instead.

18 We heard from people in Iowa evidence of a 19 kind of race discrimination, both in the context of 20 people who felony records, and also in the context 21 of what appeared to be systematic efforts to deprive 22 people of Latino background from being able to vote, 23 that is appalling. We've heard from people in 24 Nebraska about problems -- what appear to be a 25 systematic neglect of national voting laws, failure

1 to provide the kind of bilingual or language --
2 bilingual information about voting that is required 3 by national law, not able to identify 4 Native-American in that type of entity in the same 5 way that you do other persons, and so forth. What 6 all this adds up to for me is a sense that if these 7 four states all have such serious problem, what we 8 really are talking about is a national problem, not 9 one that is merely local, not one that is merely 10 regional. We know, and the United States Supreme 11 Court has said that it is the National Government 12 that has some responsibility for establishment of 13 procedures that will establish, in turn, fair voting 14 throughout the United States, and what we have to 15 report to the National Commission now, I think, is 16 more evidence that national action is necessary in 17 order to properly restore the democracy that we hope 18 this nation stands for.

19 With that, let me turn it over to Erandi 20 and to the national committee.

21 Miles.

22 MR. FERNANDEZ: So just on behalf of the 23 National Commission on Voting Rights, we wanted to 24 thank a few people. First and foremost, we want to 25 thank our panel committee. This hearing would not

1 have been possible without the hard work of the 2 coalition that we were able to bring from the four 3 states. You know, it is a very important and 4 difficult task to bring four states together to do 5 one hearing. I've had experience doing one, and 6 that was hard enough, but four definitely was a 7 difficult task, but, you know, we had wonderful 8 supporters, and we want to thank them personally, 9 everyone that is especially pointed out in the back 10 of our program.

11 I also -- we also wanted to thank the 12 witnesses for their personal and powerful testimony 13 to really draw the personal and factual information 14 that we are looking for to hopefully, you know, make 15 a real change in voting rights in this nation, as 16 well as just, you know, everyone that's been here 17 throughout the day. It has been a long hearing, but 18 we do appreciate everyone's participation, whether 19 you were just hear to listen, or be more involved, 20 and really bringing the importance of the state of 21 voting in this country, especially for this specific 22 region.

23 And, lastly we want to thank our esteemed 24 panel of commissioners who really engaged our 25 witness, and really delve deeper into their

1 testimony, and we are very grateful for their 2 participation as well. Thank you.

1 MEREDITH HORTON:

2 All right. We're going to get started.
3 Welcome to the Louisiana Hearing for the National 4 Commission on Voting Rights. My name is 5 Meredith Horton. I'm an attorney with the 6 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law in 7 Washington, D.C. The Lawyers' Committee is a non-8 profit, non-partisan civil rights organization 9 that was founded fifty years ago at the request of 10 President Kennedy to engage the private bar -- 11 private law firms in the fight for racial justice 12 and equality. Today, we continue that work in the 13 areas of fair housing, community development, 14 employment discrimination, education, and voting 15 rights, the reason that we're all here today.

16 So, today's hearing is the fifteenth in a 17 series of nationwide fact-finding events that are 18 convened by your National Commission on Voting 19 Rights. The charge of the commission is to gather 20 information about the current landscape of voting 21 rights and election administration across the 22 country. And so, today we will focus on 23 Louisiana. So, as many of you know, last summer 24 the U.S. Supreme Court effectively gutted a key 25 protection of the Voting Rights Act. And this

1 protection is crucial to states like Louisiana to 2 protect Louisiana voters from discriminatory
3 changes in voting. The court released states like 4 Louisiana with a real troubling history of voting 5 discrimination from a critical responsibility to 6 demonstrate up front that changes in voting, 7 whether it's moving a polling place or 8 redistricting, don't impact minority voters. So 9 the court said that this requirement was outdated
10 and no longer needed, and we think they got it 11 wrong. So, today, we want to hear from you 12 about -- to identify the needs for strong 13 protections against race discrimination in voting.

14 In addition, today, we also want to hear 15 about election administration challenges as well.
16 Across the country over the past few years, we've 17 seen a wave of restricted voting laws. Some 18 taking the form of strict photo ID laws or proof 19 of citizenship, registration requirements. And,
20 further, we've also seen cycle after cycle of 21 election administration problems, so problems with 22 poll worker training or voter registration
23 procedures. Your input on these issues in this 24 state is really critical to our National 25 Commissions work, and so I thank every one for

1 joining us today. So, with the testimony you 2 receive today and after the hearing, the 3 commission will prepare two reports; one on voting 4 rights and voting discrimination and another on 5 election administration. And those reports will 6 be widely available for anyone seeking to reform 7 the system, so, advocates, policy makers, the 8 voting public.

9 So, now I'd like to introduce you to our 10 commissioner panel for today's hearing. Presiding
11 over our event are our commissioners. Each have a 12 deep commitment to civil rights and protecting 13 access to the ballot on equal terms for everyone.
14 To start, Marcia Johnson-Blanco, Co-Director of 15 the Voting Rights Project at the Lawyers' 16 Committee for Civil Rights. Marcia oversees the 17 project's programmatic and advocacy portfolios
18 which include the National Commission on Voting 19 Rights as well as election protection, which is 20 the nation's largest non-partisan voter protection 21 program. Marcia is also the deputy director for 22 the National Commission on the Voting Rights Act 23 in 2005. And the findings of that commission were 24 a significant part of the record considered by 25 Congress when it re-authorized the Voting Rights

1 Act in 2006. Lastly, Marcia also receives the 2 Lawyers' Committee work monitoring U.S. compliance
3 of various human right treaties.

4 Next, we have Dr. Raphael Cassimere.

5 Dr. Cassimere is a native of New Orleans and a 6 product of its public schools. He received his 7 bachelor's and master's degrees in --

8 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

9 Go Bulldogs (ph).

10 MEREDITH HORTON:

11 He received his bachelor's and master's in 12 history from the University of New Orleans and a 13 Ph.D. from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, 14 Pennsylvania. Dr. Cassimere was a member of the 15 History Department at University of New Orleans 16 from 1971 to 2007, and retired with the rank of 17 Seraphia D. Leyda University teaching professor.
18 He has been actively involved with the NAACP since 19 1960 and has held numerous offices in the 20 organization. And he's also served on a number of 21 governmental boards and commissions, including as 22 chairman of the Vieux Carre Commission for three 23 terms as well as a founding member of the 24 Louisiana Black Culture Commission.

25 Next, we have Erika McConduit. Ms.

1 McConduit's an attorney and was selected as the 2 President and CEO of The Urban League of Greater 3 New Orleans in November 2013. And she's only the 4 second female to serve in a position of President
5 and CEO in the organization's seventy-five year 6 history. Erika is a native of New Orleans and 7 began her professional career with The Urban 8 League nearly five years ago as VP of Programs and 9 later as executive vice president. And, in these 10 roles, she's known for her work to expand the 11 education focus of the organization.

12 Next, we have Elder Edward Chipps Taylor.
13 Elder Edward Taylor serves as elder at The Morning 14 Star Full Gospel Baptist Church under the 15 leadership of Regional Bishop Gregory Cooper, Sr.
16 Edward is also state director of evangelism and 17 director of reaching on the international level of 18 the FGBCFI. He also serves as a regional affairs 19 director for the Louisiana State Conference of the 20 NAACP in Region VI, NAACP. He's delivered 21 numerous messages throughout NAACP conferences on 22 the local, regional, and national level. And 23 Elder Taylor has been a driving force in all 24 elections since 2000 in the State of Louisiana to 25 really get all people out to vote.

1 And, lastly, we have Tracie Washington.
2 Tracie is a native New Orleanian and an attorney
3 and holds her master's in public administration.
4 For twenty-five years, she's maintained a general
5 civil practice, concentrating on education laws,
6 civil rights, and labor and employment law. Post 7 hurricanes Katrina and Rita, Tracie's practice has 8 focused on protecting civil rights of individuals 9 affected by these national -- national 10 catastrophes. And she's President and CEO of The 11 Louisiana Justice Institute, a non-profit human 12 rights organization and law firm devoted to 13 fostering social change campaigns across 14 Louisiana. She is also the principle consultant
15 of Higher Ground Consultants, LLC, which works 16 with education non-profits, community-based 17 organizations, foundations, intermediaries, 18 government agencies, and private corporations to 19 make possible community change and growth, to 20 facilitate in communications, strategic planning 21 organizational development, research, and 22 evaluation.

23 And now I feel like I'm slacking. So we have 24 a very illustrious panel today. So our 25 commissioners will preside over today's events and

1 receive testimony from several panels of witnesses 2 and ask follow-up questions as they desire to 3 ensure we create a robust record -- as robust a 4 record as possible, excuse me, about the state of 5 voting in Louisiana today.

6 So, a few housekeeping items before we start
7 the program. If you've been confirmed on a panel 8 in advance, please make sure you sign in at the -- 9 the registration table out front. And, if you're 10 here today but haven't signed up in advance, we 11 would still like to hear from you as well. Also, 12 sign up at the registration table, fill out an 13 index card. And we have an open testimony session 14 starting -- scheduled to start at 6:10, so we'd 15 like to hear from you then.

16 A few other items. Our hearing is being 17 transcribed by a court reporter. Please speak 18 clearly, especially your name. And we're also 19 being videotaped, in case you missed it. And 20 there might be individuals taking photos as well, 21 so please sign a media release which is at our 22 registration table. If you have questions about 23 the release, I'm happy to answer them. If you are 24 a tweeter we have a hashtag for our commission 25 hearings, and that's hashtag is n-c-v-r. And our

1 organization is @lawyerscomm, two m's.

2 And, finally, if you know folks who could not 3 attend today or you would like to supplement
4 testimony that you provide today, we definitely 5 want to hear from you. And you can submit 6 materials to ncvr@lawyerscommittee.org. That 7 email address is on a number of the documents as 8 well. And so, before I wrap and stop talking, as 9 we really do want to hear from you all, I just 10 wanted to extend a round of thank you's, first to 11 Delgado Community College and Laura Lindstrom (ph)
12 for being such wonderful hosts and so easy to work 13 with. I am highly recommending Delgado for folks' 14 events in the future.

15 I'd also like to thank two of our board 16 members, Judge Gene Thibodeaux, Chief Judge of the 17 Third Circuit Court of Appeal Louisiana and Kim 18 Boyle is a partner of Phelps Dunbar in -- in New 19 Orleans. Both have provided valuable guidance and 20 support for this event today. And I want to thank 21 the numerous organizations that have helped with 22 the planning and promoting of this event over the 23 past few months, as I've done it largely from 24 Washington, D.C. So, I'm going to run through 25 these names. It's going to be quick. I'm sorry,

1 court reporter. But, The Advocacy Center, Gulf
2 Coast Center for Law and Policy, Louisiana Justice
3 Institute and Tracie Washington, Puentes New 4 Orleans, Urban League of Greater New Orleans, the 5 ACLU of Louisiana, and Southern Property Loss
6 Center, NAACP of Louisiana, Jacques Morial, Bill
7 Quigley, John Pierre from Southern University Law
8 Center, Buford Brumfield from One Voice Louisiana 9 and Flozell Daniels from The Foundation for 10 Louisiana. And anyone else that I might have 11 missed, I truly apologize. But it's been a great 12 experience working with you all. And we're here 13 today and ready to hear about the state of voting 14 rights in Louisiana. So, with that, I'm going to 15 turn it over to our commissioners for brief 16 opening remarks, starting with Marcia.

17 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

18 Good afternoon everyone. Thank you,
19 Meredith. As Meredith mentioned, I am the Co-20 Director of the Voting Rights Project at The 21 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, and 22 I'm really honored to be here today for this 23 hearing. I'll be doing hearings across the 24 country, and I really wanted to attend one of 25 them, and I chose the Louisiana hearing because

1 you have a rich history of having to fight against 2 voting discrimination continuously and being an 3 example for the country in doing so. We are here 4 today to talk about the right to vote, which in 5 its essence, means having a voice in our democracy 6 and how that voice is -- having that voice is 7 continuously being challenged, most recently, of 8 course, by the Supreme Court last June in the 9 "Shelby versus Holder" decision. And what that 10 court did was ignore the vast record that Congress
11 had amassed showing that a provision of Section 5 12 was still vital. The court that, yes, it's not 13 speaking to Section 5, but struck down the means 14 to enforce it. And we -- what Congress did in 15 2006 was said that Louisiana should still be 16 subject to federal review, having looked at the 17 record of the state then. And so, we're here 18 today because we want to, again, raise up that 19 record -- excuse me -- not only -- one moment.
20 (Clearing throat) sorry about that. We want to 21 raise up that record not only of the 22 discrimination and election administration 23 hardships that minorities and others have faced in 24 the state, but also of the fight against that. We 25 want to show how we can nationally -- I'm using

1 specific examples from Louisiana -- fight against 2 voting discrimination moving forward.

3 When the Supreme Court struck down the 4 formula that governed Section 5 of the Voting 5 Rights Act in which states and jurisdictions are 6 subject to federal review, it invoked a new 7 doctrine called equality of the states. And that 8 is what we are going to be confronting moving 9 forward as we lift up not just the record of 10 discrimination in Louisiana, but across the 11 country. The national commission is a 12 reconstitution of the National Commission under 13 the Voting Rights Act from 2005, which amassed a 14 significant portion of the record that Congress
15 used to support reorganization in 2006. And I 16 mention that because I just wanted to uphold how 17 important having this record is and to express my 18 appreciation of all of you who have worked to make 19 this hearing a reality and to provide the record 20 that one day will -- we hope Supreme Court will 21 look at and recognize that there is indeed a need 22 to have a robust Voting Rights Act. And with that 23 I will pass it on to Dr. Cassimere.

24 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

25 Thank you. Can you hear me? When I first

1 joined the NAACP Youth Council in 1960, I was 2 attracted by the scene that was sweeping across 3 the country at that time. But, ironically, the 4 first involvement I had with the youth council was 5 a voter registration drive in advance of the 6 presidential election in 1960 between John Kennedy
7 and Richard Nixon. I didn't realize then as much 8 as I now realize how elusive the right to vote is.
9 We taught voter registration to older people.
10 Some of them were those who had very little formal 11 education because of discrimination that had 12 prevented them from going very far. And the one 13 thing that I was so pleased about the passage of 14 the Voting Rights Act of 1965 was something that 15 people don't talk much -- much about today, the 16 so-called morals questions that were on the voter 17 registration forms. There were four morals
18 questions: "Have you lived with another in common 19 law marriage within the last five years?", "Have 20 you fathered or given birth to an illegitimate 21 child within the last five years?", "Have you been 22 convicted of a felony within the last five years?"
23 Of course, we had to ask those questions of people 24 when we taught. I told them I don't know what 25 common law marriage is, so you can answer that any

1 way you want to. And, as far as I was concerned, 2 there are no illegitimate children. But, of 3 course, there were people who'd say, "Well, I
4 just had a child and I wasn't married, and I won't 5 be able to register." That right to vote 6 continues to be elusive even today, with all the 7 gains that we thought we had made. I served five 8 years on the Louisiana Elections Revisions
9 Commission during the 1970s, served as secretary.
10 And I thought that we had gotten over those 11 hurdles, only to discover that those persons who 12 want to limit the number of votes to certain 13 people will go to any length to prevent people 14 from voting. I know what it's like in New 15 Orleans. I do not know what it's like in 16 different parts of Louisiana. And so, we are 17 anxious to hear from you what problems that you 18 all are encountering in not only in getting 19 registered to vote, but in trying to vote.

20 In 1960, the voting hours were from 6:00 to 21 9:00. They've shaved two hours off. Voting now 22 is from 7:00 to 8:00. There was a proposal to 23 increase the early voting, I understand, to 24 include Sundays. That was voted down. So, while 25 the constitution guarantees the right to vote, we

1 know that it is not a perfect right. It is one 2 that we have to be ever vigilant in trying to 3 maintain. And we would like to hear from you not 4 only some of the problems that you have, but maybe 5 some of the remedies that you can propose to 6 eliminate all of the obstacles that are being 7 placed on the right to vote.

8 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

9 Thank you. Can you guys hear me? Good 10 afternoon. My name is Erika McConduit. As was 11 stated, I am the President and CEO of The Urban 12 League of Greater New Orleans. At The Urban 13 League, our mission is to empower communities and 14 change lives. In New Orleans, we have been here 15 in this community working to meet that mission for 16 over seventy-five years. Currently, we operate in 17 the space of education and youth development from 18 early childhood, all the way through college and 19 career. We do workforce development, 20 entrepreneurship, and economic development, and 21 policy and social justice. And, quite frankly, 22 the Urban League has always been committed to 23 making sure that policies are in place that 24 support the progress of our people. We know that 25 success could not be obtained without the proper

1 policies in place. And policies only get put in 2 place by people who we elect, which is why voting
3 is so critical. And we recognize that the right 4 to vote is the most important fundamental civil 5 right, that you cannot have a conversation about 6 anything else without first rooting it in the 7 right to vote.

8 I just was in D.C., and I had the privilege
9 of hearing from the Honorable Representative 10 Elijah Cummings. And he spoke to us about the 11 right to vote. And -- and I just want to make 12 sure that I quote him properly. He said, "The 13 only way to affirm our values is to vote," that 14 you cannot discuss affordable healthcare, you 15 cannot discuss education, you cannot discuss 16 raising the minimum wage without discussing the 17 right to vote. In a democracy, we send people to 18 be our voice with their vote. It is our vote that 19 gives voice to our values. And so, certainly, 20 when the "Shelby versus Holder" decision came out 21 that was a huge blow to the country. And then,
22 just last week we had another Supreme Court 23 decision that was decided, "McCutcheon versus 24 Federal Election Commission" that further 25 eviscerated our -- our people's right to vote.

1 Essentially, that court case struck down
2 contribution limits on campaign -- federal 3 campaign finance. And what that inherently does 4 is allow the votes to be purchased, and that can 5 only hurt the people. Campaign finance laws were 6 established to protect the integrity of our votes.
7 Economics should not determine the value of our 8 vote. The constitution, as was stated, made clear 9 that everyone's vote should be equally weighted.
10 And so, seeing decisions like that come down 11 further challenges that protected right. So it is 12 important that organizations like The Urban League
13 and NAACP and many others, Louisiana Justice
14 Institute and -- and others that are on the ground 15 and national organizations continue to work every 16 day to ensure that we protect our people's right 17 to vote. Thank you.

18 ELDER CHIPPS TAYLOR, III:

19 Thank you. I'm Elder Chipps Taylor, III. I 20 am a member of the NAACP for over thirty years 21 now. And the mission of the NAACP, National 22 Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 23 is to ensure political, educational, social, and 24 economic equality of rights of all persons, to 25 eliminate racial hatred and racial discrimination.

1 And as you heard in my bio, I speak a lot of my 2 clergy experience. And I have found that as a 3 clergy, the whole man is what's the most important 4 thing in life. We can talk about spirituality.
5 We can talk about what we got to do to get to 6 heaven. However, if you catching hell down here, 7 it's kind of hard to focus on what's going on up 8 there. So we have to be real about this. And, 9 yes, I am a preacher and very proud of it.
10 However, I believe that civil rights is what it's 11 all about. We must fight for our civil rights.
12 The NAACP is kind of -- has been put like -- we're 13 like a washing machine. If you have a washing 14 machine and you put clothes in there, if it's not 15 agitating those clothes, those clothes will not be 16 clean. Well, that's what we do; we agitate. We 17 agitate and we agitate, because it's very 18 important that people realize what's going on with 19 life. The voting -- you know, we talk about the 20 right to vote. They said at the NAACP conference, 21 what the Supreme Court did was they left us the 22 car, but they took out the engine, basically.
23 Okay, we got a beautiful car. People will tell 24 you, "Oh, man, you can vote. You can register to 25 vote." Yeah, you can if you live in a certain

1 place, if you look a certain -- if you look a 2 certain way, if you, you know, have certain 3 things, yeah, you can register to vote.

4 However, if you happen to be handicapped, if 5 you happen to not have the proper identification, 6 if you happen not to live in the right area, then 7 this seems to be a little bit harder for you to 8 vote. You know, and to vote is the most important 9 right that we have as citizens in this great 10 country. If you don't vote, you cannot change 11 anything; you do not have a voice. When we talk 12 about affordable healthcare, how can you talk 13 about it if you can't vote about it? When we talk 14 about the health -- not only our healthcare, we 15 talk about the money, how much money we're going 16 to make, what the dollar should be. You know, if 17 you don't have the right to vote, then how can you 18 discuss your wages, you know. And people who will 19 tell you that, oh, it's -- it's not really about 20 racism, it's not really about economic, that's 21 hogwash, okay. Racism is alive and well in the 22 United States. Now, we must accept this and we 23 must deal with it. You have discrimination that 24 is alive and well, whether it's economic 25 discrimination or whether it's because of your

1 color of your skin or where you live. Now, how we 2 deal with this discrimination is the most 3 important thing. A lot of times, people want to 4 sweep it under the rug. They want -- yeah, you
5 can sweep it under the rug, and all you get is a 6 big pile of dirt, period.

7 So we must be real and deal with it. You 8 mu -- and I have no problem dealing with these 9 problems from the pulpit, from beyond the pulpit.
10 You must get in the streets. You must be involved 11 with people. And, you know, we were -- I was 12 blessed to be the director of the Gulf Coast 13 Advocacy Center after I followed Ms. Tracie. And 14 she set the bar so high, that I had no choice but 15 to get a stepladder and -- and keep -- continue 16 the climb. Because it -- and we have to be aware 17 of the fact that you have so many problems, 18 whether it's health, whether it's voting, whether 19 it's jobs. And all of it stemmed from the fact of 20 the disparities that we -- that exists. So, 21 again, like Dr. Cassimere has said I am honored to 22 be here, and I really want to hear what you have 23 to say because, you know, it's not about so much 24 what we have to say. It's about what you have to 25 say because we experience it on a daily basis.

1 Thank you very much. And being a preacher, all I
2 can say is God bless each and every one of you.

3 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

4 Why I am following a preacher? Can you all 5 hear me without the mic? I'm going to try without 6 it, so.

7 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

8 We always hear you, Tracie.

9 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

10 Normally, I don't -- you need it? You got to 11 have it? Now it's going to be really loud. All 12 right. I always start my talks on voting rights 13 with this quote. And it's mine, so I'm quoting 14 myself. The fight. "Never in the history of man 15 has a group relinquished their property under 16 force and not schemed, fought, or connived at some 17 point later to regain what they perceive is 18 rightfully theirs." And, black folks, for most of 19 your history you've been property. Now, the only 20 way, the only way we stop the tide of the evil 21 ones trying to put us back under is by voting. My 22 biggest problem today, 2014, is not so much this 23 right to vote, not so much the right to vote, but 24 the desire of folks to continue to vote. See, I 25 teach college students. I teach millennials. I'm

1 not going to give a lecture on millennials. But,
2 what I hear a lot from our young folk is "Why?"
3 "Why should I vote? They're just going to screw 4 us over like BESE." I'm looking at Linda Johnson.
5 "They're just going to mess us over in the 6 criminal justice system." I'm looking at Norris 7 Henderson. "What the heck are we supposed to do 8 in the Lower Nine? They don't care about us." 9 I'm looking at Vanessa Gueringer. "So, why should 10 I vote?" And what I want to hear from you all, 11 aside from your phenomenal testimony that I know
12 is coming, I need to hear how we get people 13 understanding not only the importance, but 14 understanding there's a beauty, there should be a 15 love, there's got to be a continued desire to 16 exercise this suffrage because what is at risk is 17 not simply whether we're going to have Common Core 18 next year or whether we're going to raise the 19 minimum raise, but indeed whether we can remain 20 free.

21 I laughed two years ago when the women in 22 Virginia were up in arms about the fact that they 23 might get this vaginal probe. Good, God, this man 24 is going to make us have a vaginal probe if we 25 want to have an abortion. I'm like, "Ladies, you

1 were once their property. They want you back."
2 Vote. So, I look forward to the testimony today.
3 And I look forward to being able like Meredith, to 4 take what I hear, to take it back out in the 5 streets and infuse this desire again -- this 6 desire that was imbued in me by Dr. Louis 7 Washington and Geraldine Washington that you will 8 vote. You want to live here, you vote. You want 9 us to continue paying your tuition, you vote. You 10 want that car, you vote. You want the shoes and 11 the matching bag, you vote. You want to eat, you 12 vote. So let's see if we can get that done. I'm 13 not a preacher, but I play one on TV.

14 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

15 With that, we would like to invite the first 16 panel up to hear -- to receive their testimony.
17 This would be Dr. Silas Lee, Pollster & Professor 18 of Sociology, Xavier University; Vanessa Gueringer 19 from A Community Voice, and Stephanie Patrick from 20 The Advocacy Center. Each of you will have five 21 minutes of testimony. I am also being the 22 timekeeper over here. And after you've all given 23 your testimony, the commissioners will have 24 questions for you. Thank you. Dr. Lee, whenever 25 you're ready, please begin.

1 DR. SILAS LEE:

2 First, good afternoon. Thank you for 3 inviting me. All right, that works. First, of 4 all, good afternoon and thank you for inviting me.
5 I would like to start off with a brief overview in 6 reference to the psychology of voting and some 7 reflections on my years of polling. First, for 8 the past twenty years that I've been conducting 9 polls and focus groups domestically,
10 internationally for institutions and elected 11 officials, I've noticed a significant decline in 12 terms of voter participation that started in the 13 mid 1990s. We used to have about fifty percent 14 voter registration and voting participation in 15 terms of people coming to the polls and voting.
16 However, there's been significant drop in -- for 17 the past several years, especially post Katrina.

18 However, we noticed some deterioration prior 19 to Katrina. 2010, thirty percent voted in 20 municipal elections. And 2014, about thirty-six 21 percent. We've had some episodic spikes in terms 22 of voter participation with the Edwin Edwards and 23 David Duke election in '91 and The McCain/Obama
24 election in 2012. However, for our purposes, I 25 think it's important to concentrate on what's

1 happening in New Orleans. So, in order to 2 deconstruct something, we must first know the 3 circumstances contributing to the obstacles of the 4 problem. And there's a convenient tendency to 5 view voting as a singular independent act,
6 isolated from a social nexus in which people live.
7 And I think we ought to have a comprehensive 8 discussion about voting behavior in New Orleans.
9 I think it's fairly essential to explore the 10 intersection of all parts of life that construct 11 experiences and the perceptions of residents.
12 Although, we have observed an improvement for some 13 in the quality of the life indicators in New 14 Orleans, the dominant theme for the census data is 15 that New Orleans remains a city divided by race, 16 economics, education, and opportunity.

17 So, what does this have to do with voting?
18 Let's not forget New Orleans, like most cities, is 19 a mosaic of interdependent neighborhoods. And 20 neighborhoods serve as a buffer to helping people 21 cope with the societal institutions. It gives 22 them a social capital network for resources and 23 assistance in times of peril and, more than 24 likely, in meeting the challenges of daily living.
25 However, these social networks offer a familiar

1 and trusted resources that residents rely on. One 2 of the most significant observations made since 3 Hurricane Katrina in the rebuilding process is the 4 role that neighborhood organizations play in -- in 5 invigorating and conceptualizing the rebuilding of 6 the city. As citizens and government strive to 7 rebuild the city they cannot ignore the role that 8 space and culture played in helping the 9 psychological and composition of this community 10 revive. The neighborhoods have emerged not just 11 as a place where people live, but a conservatory 12 of social and political networks. And that's very 13 important in a city like New Orleans that relies 14 on relationships. Neighborhood organizations have 15 emerged as supplemental governing groups informing 16 residents, influencing policy, and most 17 importantly, mobilizing voters.

18 So, when people speak of barriers to voting, 19 they often overlook the stress of living factors 20 impacting the lives of residents in this city.
21 Whenever citizens begin to underperform in their 22 civic engagement, quite often it's a reflection of 23 the fact that it doesn't have a lot to do with the 24 present, but, in reality, it has a lot of to do 25 with the persistent barriers of exclusion from the 1 past.

2 For example, it's not by accident that, in 3 2005, we observed thousands of people trapped at 4 the Superdome as Hurricane Katrina approached.
5 This was due to the fact that thirty-five percent
6 of the African American population lacked private 7 transportation compared to fifteen percent of the 8 whites. In 2010, it's down to ten percent of the 9 population lacking private transportation and an 10 estimated twenty percent for African Americans.
11 In reference to voting behavior, this impacts how 12 people perceive their role as a voter.

13 What citizens do is view things in a cost 14 benefit analysis when it pertains to voter
15 participation. They factor in registration 16 requirements, accessibility, convenience, and 17 distance, as well as the waiting time in 18 calculating their decision to vote. Add to this 19 the confusion caused by hearing about the 20 restrictive voting laws being implemented in 21 Florida, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and other states,
22 many residents of New Orleans in the 2012
23 presidential election were not inclined to vote.
24 They cited this as the main reason why they were 25 not encouraged to vote in that election and 1 others.

2 Therefore, for people overwhelmed by the 3 anxiety of survival, restrictive voting laws
4 become another psychological and physical hurdle
5 for them to cross. In today's multimedia 6 optional-run society, voters are accustomed to 7 having choices. We have options for cell phone
8 providers, airlines, and places to shop. Why
9 place restrictions on our ability to vote? At a 10 time when democracy is threatened by a decline in 11 voter participation and manipulation of a 12 controlling elitist oligarchy trying to buy 13 elections and candidates, we need to ensure that 14 expansion, not constriction of opportunities to 15 vote for all citizens. Thank you.

16 VANESSA GUERINGER:

17 Good afternoon. My name is Vanessa
18 Gueringer. I'm the Vice President of A Community
19 Voice. I'm with A Community Voice's President, 20 Emeritus Beulah Labostrie. A Community Voice is a 21 community organization of low to moderate income 22 people that has for the last four years organized 23 neighborhood chapters in Baton Rouge, Lake Charles 24 and New Orleans, Louisiana. For over thirty years
25 prior to them, we were ACORN. The mission of A

1 Community Voice is to provide a vehicle for 2 working and poor people to be able to make changes
3 in the issues that affect our everyday lives. I 4 asked Mrs. Labostrie, whose family extends back in 5 New Orleans history for nearly three hundred 6 years, to attend this hearing because even at the 7 age of ninety-three, she is a fighter for voting, 8 civil rights, and for justice. Mrs. Beulah
9 Labostrie is also a victim of the photo I.D. laws
10 that were passed in Louisiana. Mrs. Labostrie 11 went to vote on a regular election day, and she 12 had a ride to the polls because she has never 13 driven a car. After they arrived at the polls, 14 she was denied her right to vote, even though the 15 commissioners all knew her, knew that she had 16 voted there for decades and knew that she was a 17 registered voter. They misinterpreted the law.
18 And this is common because it is so difficult to 19 interpret. Voters all over our state are denied 20 the right to vote when they are wrongly demanded 21 to have a photo I.D. to vote. And 22 disproportionately, they are African American and 23 senior citizens.

24 The same thing happened to Louisiana's former 25 attorney general's father. We asked Louisiana

1 Attorney General Charles Foti to put the 2 information in a press release because his own 3 father was so livid that he was denied the right 4 to vote, that he refused to get an I.D. and try to 5 vote again. Our elderly are distastefully 6 disenfranchised because they are most likely to 7 not use a photo I.D. or carry one. Being 8 forced -- being forced to have and carry 9 identification was a factor of discrimination in 10 South Africa during apartheid, and it's one now in 11 Louisiana. People also are likely to forget their 12 I.D.s or to misplace them, as are working, 13 stressed out parents and others who are part of 14 everyday modern life. No one should be denied the 15 right to vote due to the lack of a photo I.D., and 16 these laws need to be thrown out.

17 There never was voter fraud in Louisiana that 18 made photo I.D. a great idea for yet another law, 19 but there was an increasing minority population in 20 a conservative-led white majority state. Limiting 21 the voting strength of the elderly and the working 22 people also more greatly affects the minority
23 people. Mrs. Labostrie and ACORN sued the State 24 of Louisiana, but to no avail. The Louisiana 25 voter I.D. law is frequently misunderstood by

1 almost everyone because it is written in such a
2 way to form of a legal factor that you can vote 3 without a photo I.D. and you must sign an 4 affidavit. The election commissioners are trained 5 that they must ask for a photo I.D., but they 6 don't really learn that after they ask or actually 7 demand an I.D., that they should allow the voter 8 to use an affidavit to vote if they are without a 9 voter I.D. Consequently, election commissioners 10 throughout the state demand photo I.D.s and forbid 11 registered voters their rights to vote if they 12 don't show a photo I.D. Voters are turned away
13 all over the state. This has a terminal impact 14 and discourages people from ever returning to the 15 polls again. The chain effect of this is 16 especially hurtful in a state that has such a bad 17 history and current practices regarding voting 18 rights. The abuses of the past are alive today in 19 the way that this law is carried out. To even 20 more extraordinarily complicate the Louisiana 21 Voter I.D. laws, if you vote early you are 22 actually required to show an I.D., and you aren't 23 allowed to sign an affidavit. The person who is 24 over early voting is the registrar of voters, who 25 works under different rules, but is whom the

1 election commissioners must call with questions on 2 election day. So, the election commissioners who 3 work under rules that state that voters are 4 allowed to use an affidavit must call the 5 registrar, who works under rules that state they 6 must require photo I.D. for early voting.

7 Consequently, the registrar will then tell the 8 election commissioners that a voter photo I.D. is 9 actually required to vote because those are the 10 rules that the registrar use for early voting.

11 Very confusing, and this is where the errors are 12 compounded. The majority white Louisiana
13 legislature continues to reduce our voting rights,
14 and that adversely affects the African Americans
15 and other minorities in the state.

16 In 2013, the Louisiana legislature reduced 17 the hours of voting in the state by one hour for 18 state and local elections, opening at 7:00 a.m.
19 rather than 6:00 a.m. They admitted that they 20 were going to shut out the right to vote for those 21 who usually voted during that time period by at 22 least several hundred voters. They knew that 23 these workers would be African Americans going to 24 work in blue collar jobs that required them to be 25 on the job at 6:30 or 7:00 a.m. It is a leap of 1 faith for us to believe how much concern the 2 legislature had instead for part-time election 3 workers. The same legislature who voted against 4 raising the minimum wage or even allowing the 5 voters to raise the minimum wage would confer that 6 the election commissioners who work a few days 7 each year actually needed one hour less each day.

8 So, therefore, to disenfranchise voters was 9 okay with them because they were more sympathetic 10 to these three to five days of work each year, 11 very part-time workers. If they were so concerned 12 with these long work hours, the legislature could 13 have instead suggested that the commissioners have 14 a lunch hour, something that they had had and 15 taken away from them. Instead, it took a very 16 important voting hour away from the hard working 17 and overburdened Louisiana voters.

18 New Orleans' number one industry is tour -- 19 number one industry is tourism. During the 20 election held in February 2 -- held on February 2, 21 2002, New Orleans hosted the Super Bowl that same 22 weekend and Mardi Gras Saturday. The day before 23 the Bowl game was also election day. Service 24 industry employees worked through two and three 25 shifts before they could get off work. The

1 service economy is a job for thousands of African 2 Americans and other minorities who were adversely
3 impacted by working long hours and who have a 4 narrow window of time, if that, in which they can 5 exercise their rights to vote as citizens. Small 6 businesses and vendors work long hours, too. It 7 is very hard for them to vote on many elections.
8 We have a growing number of festivals and 9 conventions, and almost all of them are over the 10 weekends, so we need a longer voting day for the 11 working people.

12 Statistics show that workers across America
13 are working longer hours each week. That includes 14 Louisiana. We need a longer work voting day.
15 Please help restore the voting rights of those in 16 the service economy and others who simply can't 17 make it to the polls on these busy workdays.

18 Thank you.

19 STEPHANIE PATRICK:

20 Good afternoon. My name is Stephanie 21 Patrick, and I work at The Advocacy Center. We 22 provide legal advocacy to people with disabilities
23 across the state. Over five hundred and fifty 24 thousand Louisianians with disabilities are 25 eligible to vote. Unfortunately, The Advocacy

1 Center regularly meets people with disabilities 2 who are not registered to vote, are not aware of 3 the importance of this civic duty, or face 4 barriers which serve to discourage them from 5 exercising this important right. Despite these 6 barriers, many persevere and comprise a key 7 constituency that deserves the ability to exercise 8 their voting rights like Louisianians without 9 disabilities. Voters with disabilities in 10 Louisiana face many of the same barriers as voters
11 with disabilities across the United States.

12 Physical accessibility of polling places, access 13 to information about voting rights, and a lack of 14 understanding by election officials and poll 15 workers. Details of these problems are provided 16 in my written testimony.

17 Today, I will focus on two election issues 18 that are unique to Louisiana voters with 19 disabilities and are related, voter registration 20 barriers and access to employment as poll workers.
21 Louisiana's laws regarding assistance in voting
22 are onerous. People with physical disabilities 23 who require an individual to accompany them into 24 the polling booth are required to provide proof of 25 disability. While the list of documents accepted

1 as proof was expanded several years ago, it is 2 still difficult for people with disabilities to 3 obtain the required documents, for example, a note 4 from a doctor, eligibility letters, or other 5 official documents. People with the most 6 significant disabilities are those most likely to 7 encounter problems in obtaining these documents.
8 They face barriers in transportation. Some of 9 them deal with communication barriers, others have 10 mobility barriers. Still others find it difficult 11 to understand long and complicated instructions.
12 Louisiana's voting regulations appear to be in 13 conflict with the Americans With Disabilities Act 14 which does not require proof of disability in many 15 situations. In addition, this is a huge barrier 16 for people with temporary disabilities. The 17 Advocacy Center assisted a voter who was 18 temporarily blinded after surgery less than a week 19 before a major election. He asked to vote with 20 assistance from a friend when he went to the polls
21 and encountered significant resistance from poll
22 workers, as he did not have the required 23 documentation. He actually didn't even know if he 24 needed anything like that. With strong self 25 advocacy, he was eventually allowed to vote with

1 assistance. But, it is easy to imagine a voter 2 missing an opportunity with less perseverance.
3 This requirement seems unnecessary. People who 4 are illiterate in Louisiana can request assistance 5 without providing documentation. We would ask for 6 the same consideration for people with
7 disabilities.

8 In addition, there is a third category of 9 individuals with disabilities not covered at all 10 by the laws of assistance in voting. Those who 11 can read, but have neurological or cognitive 12 disabilities, for example, short-term memory loss 13 that make assistance necessary. A final problem 14 our constituents have encountered is an at-the-15 poll restriction on who can provide assistance, 16 even though these restrictions are not permitted
17 by law. For example, early voters in North 18 Louisiana are not permitted to use their direct 19 care worker with whom they daily interact and whom 20 they trusted for assistance. Instead, the 21 registrar's employee insisted that he would 22 provide the assistance required. We believe that 23 the genesis of these restrictions relates to 24 concerns about voter fraud. But, to our knowledge 25 there have been few, if any, cases of voter fraud

1 in the state related to these issues.

2 The second problem involves people with 3 disabilities serving as poll workers. People with 4 disabilities are a valuable part of the Louisiana 5 workforce, and they want to serve as poll workers.
6 In many parishes, elective officials struggle to 7 recruit and train sufficient poll workers for each 8 election, and people with disabilities could help 9 meet this need. In Louisiana, voters with 10 disabilities who receive assistance in voting are 11 prohibited from serving as poll workers 12 unilaterally without any assessment as to whether 13 they can perform the duties of the job. The 14 Americans With Disabilities Act provides clear 15 guidance to employers as to assessments and 16 accommodations for employees. It is disturbing 17 that people with disabilities in Louisiana are not 18 afforded these considerations. This is a loss of 19 a valuable resource and a violation of their 20 rights. As I noted at the start of my testimony, 21 these are two particularly unique examples of 22 barriers for voters with disabilities in 23 Louisiana, not an exhaustive list. More details 24 about the other problems are in my written 25 testimony. I believe the commissioners have a

1 copy. And I also have extra if people here in the 2 audience are interested. On behalf of the over 3 five hundred and fifty thousand adults with 4 disabilities in Louisiana, thank you for your 5 attention to this matter. The Advocacy Center is 6 committed to protecting the rights of people with 7 disabilities and ensuring these individuals with 8 disabilities can exercise their voting rights. We 9 look forward to continued collaboration as 10 Louisiana civil rights organizations and elected 11 officials work together to address these barriers.
12 Thank you.

13 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

14 Would any of the commissioners like to start 15 the questioning?

16 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

17 Yeah. I'd like to start with Dr. Lee. The 18 percentage of voters that you mentioned who voted 19 in the last election, was that percentage of 20 registered voters, or did it include the 21 percentage of eligible voters?

22 DR. SILAS LEE:

23 Registered.

24 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

25 Okay.

1 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

2 I have a question. I'm sorry.

3 STEPHANIE PATRICK:

4 That's fine.

5 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

6 A couple of questions. I'll just read them
7 out, and then however you all want to answer them 8 in order. One for Dr. Lee has to do with your 9 perception of who's benefitted from this breakdown
10 in the networks, social and political networks
11 when it comes to our voting and this cost benefit 12 calculus in elections. Then, for Ms. Gueringer, 13 Vanessa, what advocacy is going on by your 14 organization? And, are you resourced to perform 15 this advocacy on behalf of our elderly citizens
16 for having such difficulty with the voter I.D.?
17 And then, finally, Ms. Patrick, is there a way for 18 us to join advocacy efforts? When I first came 19 back after Hurricane Katrina, we had problems with 20 students being able to get in school,
21 notwithstanding McKinney-Vento. So, what we did 22 because there is a constitutional right of our 23 disabled and special needs students to receive 24 education unlike regular education, we filed a 25 lawsuit using them as the main plaintiff so that

1 we could get all schools opened. And I'm 2 wondering if we are cross-pollinizing in our 3 advocacy efforts so that, you know, we use each 4 other in litigation. So, I -- I leave this to you 5 guys.

6 DR. SILAS LEE:

7 All right, in reference to the question of 8 who's benefitting, those who want to maintain the 9 status quo. And, essentially, this is a new form 10 of making sure or ensuring the status quo. They 11 know that a psychological obstacle will always 12 exist when people feel that it is too cumbersome 13 and they recognize the fact that when people are 14 burdened with the challenges and the anxieties of 15 daily life, voting is not a priority for them. So 16 the more obstacles, psychological as well as real, 17 it is easier to create new walls of 18 disenfranchisement as well as eliminate the old
19 structure. So we have eliminated the old 20 structures and replaced them with new legal 21 structures to disenfranchise people not only 22 psychologically, but legislatively. And that's -- 23 that's what benefits those who want to maintain 24 the existence of the status quo.

25 Now, people may ask, "What's a status quo?"

1 Well, inequality -- any form of inequality. It 2 could be ensuring that new forms of access to 3 opportunities, businesses, housing, education, 4 progressive policies are not implemented because 5 people who oppose such policies will get -- will 6 get elected. And I would like to include with, 7 we've been through several revolutions in this 8 country, the gender revolution, the civil rights 9 revolution, the ecology revolution, now we are in 10 the revolution to take it back. And that's who is 11 benefitting, those who want to take back any type 12 of progress we've achieved in the past fifty 13 years.

14 VANESSA GUERINGER:

15 Okay. I will speak to our regaining a 16 resource to the elderly in the various chapters we 17 have across the city. Since Hurricane Katrina, 18 our organization has been about fighting to come 19 back to those neighborhoods that have been 20 disenfranchised and pretty much red-lined for 21 decades. So, prior to Katrina, we had a huge 22 elderly population in the community where I still 23 reside, the Lower Ninth Ward. So it is very 24 important to us to make sure that our elderly, you 25 know, have the necessary information to make sure

1 that they -- if it's a situation of I.D.s or, you 2 know, polling places or whatever, that they have 3 the information that they need to move forward and 4 to vote. We have been sharing with them that they 5 can vote by mail as well, you know, because 6 there's a lot of elderly folks that are not 7 mobile. They don't have, you know, someone to 8 actually get them out to the polls. And it's very 9 important that, you know, these people -- these 10 folks, especially, this population is always 11 voted, that they continue to vote and they 12 continue to be present at these polling places, 13 involved in the community, and sending the message
14 to our younger voters how important it is to vote.
15 You know that without voting you have no voice.
16 We know that without policy change nothing in the 17 way of anything that effects our quality of life 18 to make it better will happen. So, we have -- 19 you're a great resource to many communities across 20 the city. We have been collaborating with other 21 groups across the city as well around registering 22 folks to vote. We have monthly meetings and we 23 have voter registration cards on hand at those 24 meetings. And we make it known that we normally 25 can, we're able to register you to vote.

1 STEPHANIE PATRICK:

2 Thank you. In terms of your question about 3 collaboration, I want to first say that The 4 Advocacy Center would welcome opportunities to 5 collaborate on disability-related voting issues 6 whenever we can. We often struggle because, as 7 you can probably imagine, voting isn't often a 8 priority for people who are dealing with 9 healthcare and transportation and employment and 10 other barriers to get, you know, just their basic 11 needs met. So, we do -- we struggle to put the 12 word out right before the elections to make sure 13 that people know. We also often struggle to find 14 the individuals who are impacted. We have staff 15 who are -- spend a lot of time, you know, 16 accessing and then analyzing the policies and 17 projecting how they'll impact people with 18 disabilities and trying to convince elected 19 officials, you know, sometimes successfully,
20 sometimes not, that this is a barrier for people 21 with disabilities, this potential change in the 22 law. But, if they don't listen, then you often 23 have to have that individual with the disability
24 who's actually impacted to be able to push them
25 further, and we do struggle to find those people

1 who are -- who are good to be able to be that 2 push. But, we would welcome opportunities to 3 collaborate.

4 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

5 I have some questions for the panel. And I,
6 like Tracie, I have one probably for each. Dr.
7 Lee, this question is perhaps two-fold,
8 retrospective and prospective. You gave some data 9 regarding some of the stress of social factors 10 like transportation and access to cars and, you 11 know, these "persistent barriers of exclusion."
12 And I wrote that down because I thought it was a 13 very interesting quote. When you overlay that 14 from the past, right, from the '90s to now, and we 15 know that we have generational poverty here like 16 what's -- what's the change, right, that there's 17 been such a -- a stark decline all the way, you 18 know, you're talking upwards of twenty percent 19 decline in voter participation. So, I just wonder 20 is it just, you know, the legal -- the additional 21 legal challenges that are kind of overlaid on top 22 of these social factors? But, if you can speak to 23 that from a prospective standpoint, I would say 24 you gave the option -- you gave the statement that 25 if we had additional voting options. And I just

1 wonder if there's any kind of brainstorm about 2 what some of those additional voting options would 3 be, because I think that's a very interesting
4 point.

5 For Ms. Gueringer, I would say you just 6 raised a very good point I think about an 7 intergenerational aspect of voting. And Tracie, 8 Ms. Washington mentioned earlier about the apathy 9 particularly among younger -- the younger 10 generation, the millennials. And I know from my 11 polling place, it's primarily seniors that were at 12 the polling place. And so, I just wonder if your 13 organization has done anything to really marry a 14 little bit more of the intergenerational approach.

15 The last one I would say for Ms. Patrick,
16 your question I guess it was similar to the last 17 one in that when I hear you speak specifically to 18 prohibitions of -- of adults with disabilities 19 working at poll places, to me, that sounds like 20 class action. Right, and so I just -- I don't 21 know. I'm asking you if that's something that has 22 been explored.

23 DR. SILAS LEE:

24 Okay. In reference to the options we've been 25 fairly -- I would say we've been very inconsistent

1 in our ideals and practices. We've talked about 2 modernizing and the use of technology, but we 3 haven't put any resources behind it. And the 4 hypocrisy is the fact that elected officials and 5 institutions talk a lot about improving the voting 6 process, making it more convenient and more 7 accessible, but they never put any resources to 8 make it a reality. And that's the biggest 9 challenge; they haven't put the resources. You 10 know, this is 2014 and we're still using 11 technology. Yes, it's more advanced, but it could 12 be even more advanced than what it is if they put 13 the resources behind it. The use of technology.
14 There's dedicated resources. Tying that to the 15 potential of democracy. You know voting is the 16 only opportunity where people are equal at that 17 point in time. One vote for one person. And it 18 doesn't become a reality if people don't have 19 access to it. And by denying them access, think 20 about what you're doing. You're psychologically 21 reinforcing that some people are not equal. So 22 it's -- it's a way of manipulating the process.
23 But, the greater harm is done by the psychological 24 disenfranchisement of people. Then the question
25 about the -- what was I saying?

1 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

2 It was just the retrospective. You said the 3 persistent barriers of exclusion, and it was 4 really just, you know, from the '90s till now that 5 twenty percent that have, you know, have less 6 excess to vehicles. I think you mentioned that as 7 one key statistic that you pointed out. But, just 8 wondering, that's a very steep decline in a very 9 short time span.

10 DR. SILAS LEE:

11 When we look at voting behavior, we have to 12 take into context the social and economic 13 demographics of this community. And several years 14 ago, one of the first studies I did or the second 15 one was called a haunted city, where this city did 16 a very good job in terms of masking inequality, 17 masking the disparities.

18 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

19 Like Mardi Gras.

20 DR. SILAS LEE:

21 Well, yes, among other things now. And we 22 have several festivals and we have a lot of things 23 that portray the image of inclusion, but we have 24 institutionalized practices of exclusion and 25 oppression. So, what's happened is the fact that

1 voting and politics happens to be one leg of the 2 stool. The other two legs relate to economics and 3 opportunity. And that is where you continue to 4 have I'm would say a lot of inequality, a lot of 5 lack of access. And now with intergenerational 6 poverty, intergenerational inequality as it
7 relates to disparities in income, education,
8 health status, and other quality of life factors, 9 all that is contributing to people losing 10 confidence in the process. So, voting happens to 11 be one aspect of it.

12 The other aspect is when people look around 13 and they say, "Well, what's changed? How will my 14 vote make a difference?" And the other reality is 15 that elected officials, the government and 16 governmental institutions, people involved in the 17 process, not just elected officials and 18 bureaucrats. So, we have to do a better job that 19 is consistent at keeping people informed about 20 policy and civic engagement. Really, right now, 21 we sort of treat pol -- I would say civic 22 engagement somewhat like a mistress. Every four 23 years we call upon. And voters feel disrespected 24 by that, so they tend not to look at this as a 25 cyclical activity. It's something where we have

1 to keep citizens engaged in a very creative way.
2 And we have to customize our messaging because not 3 everyone will have the same interest, not everyone 4 will be motivated by the same types of 5 information. So, we have to look at different 6 ways of engaging them. So, we do need policy 7 entrepreneurs that are creative and entrepreneurial 8 and can reconnect the people to the democratic 9 process.

10 VANESSA GUERINGER:

11 Wow. Dr. Lee's a hard act to follow. He's 12 absolutely right. My take away from this forum 13 will be actually to go back to my community and 14 try to integrate that, you know, that movement in 15 younger people to vote. Maybe we need to do some 16 role play. Maybe we need to bring civics back to 17 the education process, because it's not there
18 anymore. And maybe we need to do some role 19 playing, you know, in our schools and where we 20 meet in our communities because, unfortunately, 21 our young people are not getting it. And he's 22 absolutely right; every four years you have a 23 cycle of voting, you know, and everybody is worked 24 up and actually votes and actually stays engaged.
25 But, those young folk that are just living their

1 lives and, you know, day to day don't think that 2 politics actually plays a part of every aspect of 3 your life is -- is a real sad, sad thing, you
4 know.

5 And, as we as a city move forward, if we 6 don't start taking hold of trying to, you know, 7 integrate our young people into making sure that 8 they know people died for your right to vote. It 9 is so important that voting affects everything in 10 your life. If you go to buy a home, you have to 11 pay taxes, you know. And you pay all these taxes
12 and then you're not represented. You know, it's a 13 constant uphill battle to get those things that 14 are rightfully -- that should just be rightfully 15 happening to your community or happening for you.
16 So, it is important that we go back and engage our 17 community and use our elderly folk who really know 18 the story of how our ancestors and our descendants
19 fought for the right to vote. It's just so 20 important.

21 STEPHANIE PATRICK:

22 Thank you. In terms of your question about 23 people with disabilities as poll workers, I think 24 there's a lot of opportunity for advocacy there 25 and people with disabilities are actually

1 empowered to know that they can serve as poll 2 workers to realize that they can perform these 3 jobs. It could be class action. It could be 4 just, you know, more education of election
5 officials. You know, there's a lot -- there's a 6 lot of opportunities. I think that, you know, in 7 terms of the other two speakers who made some 8 wonderful points, I think there's a lot of 9 similarities for people with disabilities in these 10 situations. You know, historically, people have 11 had very low expectations of people with 12 disabilities, both physical disabilities and 13 cognitive disabilities. So, the idea that a 14 person with a disability could have an opinion and 15 express that opinion through voting is a new 16 thing. I mean, that, you know, forty years ago
17 nobody would even think a person with a disability
18 would want to vote. So, we've kind of gradually 19 been trying to educate people and empower them and 20 empower their parents and the direct support staff 21 who often work with them in low wage jobs who 22 perhaps themselves are not even empowered about 23 voting to feel empowered and to serve as an 24 example for people with disabilities. So, I do 25 think it's a cycle, and there's a whole lot of 1 similarities between the different groups.

2 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

3 Oh, okay. Thank you. I like the trend that 4 was set up where you ask three questions and get 5 it over with. Dr. Lee, you mentioned that 6 technology and no resources was one of the reasons 7 of why things were not getting any better, to make 8 it plain. I'm curious as to -- because, again, 9 you explained very well the major decline. What 10 can be done besides above and beyond the 11 technology aspect of it to reverse this decline?
12 That's my question to you.

13 Madame -- Ms. Vanessa; is it correct? Okay.
14 You made the statement that, you know, you talked 15 about the elderly. Do you have any numbers that 16 could kind of back up what you stated? Because, 17 again, I believe exactly what you're saying, but 18 what type of numbers are we looking at when it 19 comes to the disenfranchisement of the elderly?
20 And my third question is, you know, you stated 21 very -- very -- the fact that to get people out to 22 testify was a problem that -- and again, I've 23 worked -- I've been involved in a lawsuit recently 24 where there was a major complaint about voting, 25 you know, not registering voters in certain areas.

1 And then, when the attorneys went out to get 2 people's statements to testify, it seemed that 3 they ran into a lot of the same problems you have.
4 So, do you have any ideas on what can be done to 5 get more people to come forward who have the 6 problems to testify?

7 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

8 And, Dr. Lee, before our panelists answer can 9 you please keep your answers to about a minute?
10 We are over for this panel, and I just want to be 11 considerate of the others who are waiting.

12 DR. SILAS LEE:

13 Okay.

14 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

15 Thank you.

16 DR. SILAS LEE:

17 Sure. To answer your question in terms of 18 what else can be done, you know, technology is a 19 process. It facilitates the participatory part of 20 it. However, to get people enthused and 21 motivated, it requires the presence, the direct 22 and consistent presence of elected officials and 23 people involved in the institutions. Regardless 24 of how much technology we have, the bottom line is 25 that the people want to see, touch, interact, and

1 talk with individuals in positions of authority 2 who they have elected to represent their 3 interests, protect their interests. They want to 4 see, touch, and hear from those people. Nothing, 5 technology cannot replace dialogue and face-to-6 face interaction, and that's the bottom line.

7 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

8 I agree.

9 DR. SILAS LEE:

10 So, one part is a process. The other part 11 relates to the -- the humanity of the process; 12 reaching out and talking to people, communicating 13 with them. And with that, that instills
14 confidence. That nourishes the process of voting.
15 And we can't have one without the other. So, one 16 part is, like I said handling the mechanical part.
17 The other one relates to the aspect of humanity.
18 Thank you.

19 VANESSA GUERINGER:

20 Okay. I can only speak to the percentages
21 probably in my own community. We were about 22 fifteen thousand families pre-Katrina. We're 23 about six thousand families post-Katrina. Of 24 those six thousand families, probably maybe ten 25 percent might be elderly folk that returned to the

1 neighborhood. But, we have a pretty robust
2 elderly senior citizen center in the Lower Nine.
3 And we are doing our best to make sure that the 4 elderly know that they can vote by mail, know that 5 they can call on organizations such as ours and 6 others for rides to the polls, know that, you
7 know, where they can go to get a photo I.D., know 8 that all of the current laws around voting, voting 9 times, times of voting.

10 We had issue with one of our polling places
11 being in the Upper Nine. Before, I think maybe 12 two elections ago, it was at Nicholls School. And 13 we always had a problem with getting the coast 14 guard to make sure that the St. Claude Bridge -- 15 the bridges were in the down position. Because a 16 lot of folks waited until like 7:00 to go and 17 vote, because that was an issue. The issue maybe 18 about a year or the last election was that the 19 election place that was outside of Lower Nine was 20 not handicap accessible. So, our organization
21 actually challenged the Registrar of Voters' 22 Office to move that voting place back down to the 23 Lower Nine, so we all vote in the community now.
24 So, again, we're doing our best to make sure that 25 the elderly are always abreast of any changes in

1 any laws. And, like I said, my takeaway is to go
2 back and make sure that we integrate the elderly 3 with the young folk around, making sure that they 4 get out to vote and how important it is.

5 STEPHANIE PATRICK:

6 Thank you. I would just say that in terms of 7 getting people out to testify, I think one of the 8 most important things is to continue the dialogues 9 that we're starting today. I think that the more 10 we stay in contact with each other, even if it's 11 just an email every, you know, before every 12 election and say, "Don't forget that The Advocacy 13 Center wants to know and what's to help with 14 disability issues." Who's on the ground if 15 there's issues that they don't -- that we don't 16 cover that have to do with poll worker
17 intimidation or, you know, any -- any kind of, you 18 know, bridge is closed, things like that, who can 19 help us with those so that we all know that we 20 have resources for each other.

21 And then, in terms of individual -- getting 22 individuals empowered, I think that what Dr. Lee 23 mentioned in terms of humanity and those 24 individual conversations are really the way that 25 we've had the most success. We've had a number of 1 successes educating individuals with disabilities 2 who are in institutions like group homes and 3 psychiatric hospitals, and that's really because 4 we've had the boots on the ground. We've had the 5 people to go there and talk about voting for a 6 long time before the election comes to make sure 7 that the people have the information they need, 8 that they're empowered, and that they're ready and 9 registered to go vote on election day.

10 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

11 Thank you very much. We'd like to thank this 12 panel for getting the hearing off to a fantastic 13 start. Okay. We're going to get right onto the 14 second panel. Reverend Jay Augustine, Attorney 15 Ron Wilson, Demographer Cedric Floyd, and 16 Ms. Linda Johnson. As our panelists are coming 17 up, just to help with the timekeeping I am going 18 to also employ a bit of technology. I have found 19 an app here which I'll have with the time 20 countdown so you can keep an eye on where you are 21 with the time so we don't fall too far behind.
22 Thank you.

23 So, we'll start with Reverend Augustine and 24 then just move along to Attorney Wilson, Mr.
25 Floyd, and then Ms. Johnson.

1 REV. JAY AUGUSTINE:

2 Thank you so much. Please allow me to begin 3 my remarks by saying thank you. Thank you to the 4 Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law for 5 obviously convening fact-finding sessions around 6 the country. And thank you to you all in 7 particular here in the Southern Region, here in 8 Louisiana, as members of the National Commission
9 on Voting Rights for hearing testimony as offered.

10 By way of background, I want to share with 11 you a little bit about myself and about my 12 experience in working in the area of voting
13 rights. I am what I consider to be a bivocational 14 minister and advocate for social justice. I have 15 the proud pleasure of serving as the senior pastor 16 of St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal Church in 17 Uptown New Orleans and I also serve as an adjunct
18 professor of law at the Southern University Law 19 Center in Baton Rouge. Some of my research-based 20 publications have appeared in journals including 21 "The University of Louisville Law Review," "The 22 University of San Francisco Law Review," "The 23 Southern California Interdisciplinary Law 24 Journal," "Louisiana Law Review," and the 25 "Southern California Review of Law and Social

1 Justice" among others. I am also the author of a 2 forthcoming book, "The Keys Are Being Passed, 3 Race, Law, Religion and the Legacy of the Civil 4 Rights Movement." Having grown up here in New 5 Orleans, I was fortunate to earn a B.A. in 6 Economics from Howard University, along with an 7 active duty commission as an infantry officer in 8 the United States Army. I returned here to my 9 native New Orleans to earn a J.D. from Tulane
10 University and served as law clerk to now Chief 11 Justice, then Associate Justice Bernette Joshua 12 Johnson in Louisiana Supreme Court. I also had 13 the good fortune of serving as election law
14 counsel to U.S. Senator Mary Landrieu and later 15 earned my Master of Divinity Degree from United 16 Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio.

17 The remarks I want to focus on today with the 18 balance of my time deal specifically with election
19 administration following Hurricane Katrina. You
20 all are obviously aware that Hurricane Katrina 21 ravished the Gulf Coast on August 29th, 2005. In 22 the wake of the hurricane's destruction, hundreds 23 of thousands of New Orleanians were displaced to 24 cities, particularly, Baton Rouge, Louisiana,
25 Houston, Texas, Atlanta, Georgia, and Jackson,

1 Mississippi. As a result of their displacement 2 and total economic loss, in most cases, most 3 individuals applied from assistance from the 4 Federal Emergency Management Agency, more commonly 5 known as FEMA. I was personally aware that public 6 tax -- that the public tax funded entity FEMA kept 7 records of the temporary addresses of the 8 individuals who applied for and, in most cases, 9 received assistance. This registry was shared as 10 a matter of public record with the Louisiana 11 Secretary of State after an official request to 12 assist with the administration of New Orleans'
13 then scheduled municipal elections. At the time 14 the hurricane hit, the elections were scheduled
15 for February 4th, 2006. Because of mass 16 destruction, however, and in many cases the 17 destruction of polling places, the elections were 18 rescheduled -- and this was amid litigation -- the 19 elections were rescheduled for April the 22nd, 20 2006. I was active at that time in litigation,
21 representing the public interest of U.S.
22 Congressman Cedric Richmond, then serving as a
23 member of the Louisiana House of Representatives,
24 and his then colleague House Representative -- 25 Louisiana Representative Charmaine Marchand. The

1 two public office holders sought public
2 information. They sought the addresses of 3 individuals who were displaced in the registry as 4 tendered to Louisiana state officials only to 5 communicate with those individuals regarding the 6 upcoming election. I want to underscore that the 7 information as requested had nothing to do with 8 financial benefits, had nothing to do with what 9 benefits were received by individual applicants, 10 but only with their location so that they could 11 communicate with potential voters.

12 FEMA, again, provided an original registry of 13 displaced New Orleanians to the Secretary of State 14 as the official administrator of elections. We 15 requested -- in doing an official public records
16 request, we requested that information
17 unsuccessfully. Litigation ensued. We sought a 18 writ of mandamus by filing suit against the 19 Louisiana Secretary of State and the Attorney
20 General to get the information, again from a 21 public entity which we considered to be a public 22 record. After a vigorous defense, the lawsuit was 23 ultimately unsuccessful with a single district
24 court judge in Baton Rouge in the nineteenth 25 judicial district court indicating that there was

1 no cause of action to be found and that the 2 information should not be shared with public 3 office holders.

4 As you all are aware Louisiana is a covered 5 jurisdiction under the Voting Rights Act. Because 6 it is a covered jurisdiction under Section 5, it 7 was then required at least to receive certain pre-8 clearance procedures whenever there would be a 9 change in election administration. I can't think 10 of anything more egregious or any change more 11 evident, I should say, than the way the election
12 was administered in the wake of Hurricane Katrina.
13 At the time, any -- any pre-clearance that was 14 issued -- and I was aware that administrative pre-15 clearance was issued by the U.S. Department of 16 Justice -- it is my personal opinion that that 17 pre-clearance was issued as a perfunctory measure 18 at best. In addition to ensuring equal access at 19 the ballot place, you all are aware that the 20 Voting Rights Act has key aims, including the 21 elimination of vote dilution. In other words, the 22 act is supposed to prevent voters who are 23 registered to vote from experiencing electoral 24 devices and/or difficulties that would dilute 25 their votes and prevent them from electing

1 candidates of their choice.

2 It is my opinion that the lack of information
3 shared and the lack of information made available 4 to individuals to vote, particularly considering 5 the demographic of Orleans Parish and the 6 overwhelming displacement of those individuals
7 were African American, it is my professional 8 opinion that that was vote dilution. I believe 9 that, although this lack of information shared by 10 public entities is not necessarily discrimination
11 on its face, I believe it is in fact 12 discrimination as applied. In other words, with 13 respect to vote dilution, I believe it has the 14 same effect as what we would consider to be 15 neutral test -- neutral tests, rather, that 16 adversely affect minorities, including literacy
17 tests of the past, polling taxes, and grandfather 18 clauses. This concludes my prepared remarks.

19 RON WILSON:

20 I also would like to thank the committee for 21 inviting me to participate in this important 22 meeting. I guess, a little bit about myself.

23 (Dr. Cassimere makes an inaudible comment.)

24 I'm a -- I've known Dr. Cassimere for --

25 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

1 Ever.

2 RON WILSON:

3 Forever. I won't say how many years. But,
4 I'm a graduate of the University of New Orleans;
5 attended law school at the University of Iowa and 6 Tulane University. My practice has been foremost 7 in the area of civil rights and public interest 8 litigation. I've done a lot of work with the 9 Legal Defense Fund out of New York. As a matter 10 of fact, with the legal defense fund and the 11 person to my left, Cedric Floyd, that brought the 12 famous Chisom case, which was a case that for the 13 first time said that judgeships are subject to the 14 Voting Rights Act. In the process, I've been 15 involved in approximately thirteen voting rights 16 cases across the state of Louisiana. I was 17 recently involved in a voting rights case with 18 Reverend Taylor in which he was one of the 19 plaintiffs, a Motor Vehicle Registration Act case, 20 which we were successful. With the Legal Defense
21 Fund, we recently filed a lawsuit in Terrebonne 22 Parish. The judiciary in Terrebonne Parish had 23 never had a black person on the judiciary in its 24 history. It had another sordid history because 25 the judge who's about to retire, Judge Ellender --

1 Judge Ellender thought it was funny to appear at a
2 Halloween party dressed up in convict uniform
3 black face. And his wife was along with him as a 4 police officer sheriff deputy. He found it
5 amusing. And apparently, the people in that town 6 also found it amusing because they re-elected him.
7 And this is what we talk about -- I think about,
8 in terms of this, I think about reconstruction.
9 And I think like Yogi Bear had the saying, "Deja 10 vu all over again." And I think Yogi was right 11 because we see the same disenfranchisement that 12 happened in post reconstruction as happening here, 13 but the methods -- methods were different. In 14 one, they used the bullet, the lynchings. In this 15 way, they are using the legislatures. But, the 16 result -- results are the same. We are 17 disenfranchising minority people, Blacks, 18 Hispanics, Native Americans. And the devices that 19 they're using -- on the surface, nobody can be 20 opposed to preventing voter fraud. You know, it's 21 one of these very neutral-sounding, very noble 22 goals. But, as the courts have determined in some 23 of these cases, there's no such thing as voter 24 fraud.

25 The head of the Republican party in

1 Pennsylvania said, "Hey, look, if we prevail in 2 this case, it will -- it will mean that we will 3 disenfranchise enough people such that Republicans
4 will get the State of Pennsylvania." So it wasn't 5 about clearing or doing away with voting fraud.
6 It's about stealing elections. And this is what 7 we have to be cognizant of. Section 2 of Section 8 5, the important thing about -- both are effective 9 remedies for preventing the disenfranchisement of 10 the voters. But, the second part is extremely 11 crucial due to the fact that you go and get 12 instant relief. If the justice department said 13 that a change did not pass muster, it could be 14 enjoined at that point in time; you could stop it.
15 The only problem with Section 2, and I think 16 Cedric will echo this, is some of the cases that 17 were litigated, Section 2 cases, have lasted five, 18 six, seven years. And then judges will somewhat 19 want to -- you may go in and ask for an injunction 20 to enjoin an election from happening, but judges 21 say, "Well, I can give you relief at the end of 22 the day, so, therefore, I'm not going to enjoin 23 the election." So what you may end up with is 24 some candidate sitting illegally for five, six, 25 seven years before you finally get the relief that

1 you need. That's why Section -- Section 4 or 2 Section 5 were very important remedies to address
3 this voter disenfranchisement. And I think what 4 we have to look at is the purpose of the ballot.

5 If you pick up a newspaper today, they talk 6 about this landmark occasion in Afghanistan where 7 people are going out to vote. This is the only 8 democracy that they thrive on discouraging people 9 from voting. And if you look at the methods they 10 use, for instance, in Florida, if they're 11 concerned about voter fraud, in Florida you have 12 something called balloteros. And these are people 13 who can go around and cast absentee ballots for 14 you. Now, what they've done with that is they 15 made a misdemeanor if you cast more than one 16 absentee ballot or you fraud somebody's name on an 17 absentee ballot. That's only a misdemeanor and 18 nobody goes to jail for that because they found 19 that in Florida, and primarily in the Cuban 20 American community -- in the Cuban-American 21 community, more often than not, prior to the most 22 recent election, they voted Republican. They 23 tended to insulate themselves. And if you're 24 concerned about voter fraud, that would be a good 25 case right there where we could stamp down or

1 clamp down on it.

2 Look at in Alaska, for instance. They've 3 made it so impossible for people to vote in some 4 cases. The only way you can register to vote or 5 to get to a voting poll itself is either by boat 6 or airplane. And this is designed to prevent the 7 native community from going out to vote. Now, 8 there are many devices and artifices that are 9 being used to disenfranchise people, and this is 10 why we have to be vigilant in this regard. I'm 11 primarily involved in Section 2 litigation. And I 12 do a lot of Section 2 litigation for the legal 13 defense fund. But, again, the downside of that -- 14 you may get the relief that you want, but it may 15 be five, six, seven, eight years down the line.
16 And those individuals will have sat illegally and,
17 in the process, will continue to pass illegal
18 legislation.

19 But, I think another we have to be careful 20 about is that they're very shrewd and they're very 21 smart. And what they have done, they've pitted
22 African Americans against Democrats, white 23 Democrats. And making changes to legislative 24 districts, councilmanic districts, it will give us 25 African-Americans one or two more additional

1 seats. But, in the process, they will restrict 2 the number the seats that were formerly held by 3 Democrats.

4 REV. JAY AUGUSTINE:

5 Right.

6 RON WILSON:

7 And, in some cases, we've fallen for that.
8 You know, we have to think in terms of more than 9 just having one extra seat. We may get one extra 10 African-American seat, but we'll lose three or 11 four or five seats that were historically normally 12 Democratic seats. So, we have to be very vigilant 13 about that. And, again, I want to thank the 14 committee for inviting me to speak. At this 15 point, I impress upon, you know, everyone here the 16 importance of the ballot. You know, when you 17 think of the ballot, you think of us wanting to a 18 change we can live with. You know, whenever I'm 19 driving through Mississippi, I'm always thinking 20 of those individuals who gave their lives, you
21 know, for people to vote. And there's no reason 22 only having a twelve percent turnout in the 23 elections. The vote is important. And we as 24 ministers, litigators, community leaders, we have 25 to impress upon the people, particularly young

1 people, the significance of voting. Thank you.

2 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

3 Would you give your name to those who do not 4 know you?

5 RON WILSON:

6 Oh, I'm Ron Wilson.

7 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

8 Thank you.

9 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

10 Before we move on to Mr. Floyd, I just wanted 11 to mention that the hearings, we want to keep a 12 non-partisan approach to our discussion. And 13 while what Attorney Wilson talked about, he didn't 14 do that, and I just want to make sure that we keep 15 it in a non-partisan discussion. Thank you.

16 CEDRIC FLOYD:

17 I'm Cedric Floyd, President of Data Center.
18 I've been blessed with work in the Section 2 and 19 Section 5 areas for over thirty years. I started 20 off with Mr. Wilson in 1983 when it came down to 21 Section 2 cases, and I've been a part of thirteen.
22 I'm the only person, when it comes down to 23 creating districting plans, that's certified as an 24 expert witness in the Western, Middle, and Eastern 25 Districts of Federal Court here in Louisiana.

1 After the landmark decision, Jingles, in 2 1986, I went to my drawing board once that 3 blueprint was done and started the Chisom case.
4 It was a multimember district in St. Bernard,
5 Plaquemines, Jefferson, Orleans. I was able to do
6 that and thus -- the judges come under Section 2.
7 And during that time, I worked on the Carr case 8 that was lead by the Lawyers' Committee. And 9 today, Louisiana has more black judges than any 10 state, seventy-seven black judges.

11 The reason why or one of the reasons why I
12 got into voting rights is because back in 1980
13 when I got back from college, I lived in Jefferson 14 Parish. There was only two black elective
15 officials; one appointed and one black majority 16 district. And over the last thirty years,
17 Jefferson Parish has been more part of Section 2 18 voting rights cases than any other county or 19 parish in the country. It's been part of eight 20 Section 2 voting rights cases. And after these 21 elections in 2014, we'll have twenty-one black 22 elected officials in Jefferson Parish. It started 23 off with two in 1981, and that's significant.

24 My Section 5 activity over the last thirty 25 years, I've worked for thirty-five different

1 governmental entities, parish school boards,
2 police juries. And I've had at least forty-five 3 Section 5 submissions, all pre-cleared. And also,
4 I've worked on four Section 5 objections, two 5 plans that were retrogressive. The votes section 6 of the Voting Rights Act serves as a
7 clearinghouse, keeping a status quo, keeping it, 8 when it comes down to the benchmark plan, the 9 number of black majority districts. And also, the 10 strength of the plan, the percent of black, you 11 have the ability of redistricting plans. So, if 12 one section, if the Section 5 pre-clearance is 13 knocked out, then it's going to be a free fall in 14 terms of the reduction in the number of black 15 majority districts and the potency of the district 16 will be reduced also.

17 Presently, right now, most redistricting
18 plans based on the 2010 census has been pre-19 cleared by the time Shelby happened last June 20 2013. So, I'm hoping between now and 2020, a 21 formula for coverage will be back in place so it 22 could be as the yardstick used after the 2020
23 census. Thank you very much.

24 LINDA JOHNSON:

25 Thank you very much. Thank you for inviting

1 me. My name is Linda Johnson, and I'm from 2 Iberville Parish. I'm going to give you a little 3 history of Iberville Parish first, and then tell 4 you what we are trying to do in terms of the 5 voter -- the dilution of black votes in that 6 particular parish. Iberville Parish is a -- is in 7 the chemical corridor, so it is one of the richest 8 parishes in the State of Louisiana. It is also 9 the twenty -- the seventh highest in poverty. It
10 has forty-nine percent minority black people. It 11 has forty-eight percent whites, and we have no 12 parish-wide elected officials. We have three 13 mayors in the smaller towns, White Castle, St.
14 Gabriel and Maringouin. But, in the parish seat, 15 which is Plaquemines, we have no real -- no mayor, 16 no police chief, none of those elected seats.
17 What I have seen -- and I have been around 18 redistricting since we redistricted the parish 19 council back about twenty-five years ago. And 20 when we did that, it was to create the potential 21 of having blacks elected to the council, and it 22 did. However, when we went to court, we went to 23 that particular battle because we were trying to 24 go to the eleven-member council, and they insisted 25 we go to a -- the majority white population

1 insisted that we go to a thirteen-member. Well, 2 we ended up with thirteen, a thirteen-member.
3 Very recently, Rob Marionneaux, who was the 4 senator in Iberville -- from Iberville Parish, 5 passed Senate Bill 420, which created the nine-
6 member school board district, one at large. And I 7 don't like at-large districts, because I think at 8 large -- I personally don't like them because I 9 think at large tends to further dilute the black 10 vote and eight single-member districts. We have a 11 fifteen-member school board, and he passed a law 12 to get it down to nine.

13 Originally, the Iberville Parish School
14 Board, which is the group we are suing, decided 15 that they would reduce themselves to thirteen.
16 And they got it in prior to the Supreme Court 17 making its ruling, so it was pre-cleared, the 18 thirteen. But then, because Marionneaux had a 19 bill that had become law, the thirteen was 20 ineffective and they had to really go back to 21 nine. In December of 2013, they presented their 22 nine-member plan. Now, they actually presented in 23 November seven different plans. But, in December, 24 they decided that they would look at really three 25 different plans, and they were -- all three of 1 them were nine-member plans. The one that they 2 selected has four white districts and supposedly 3 four black districts. But, when you look at the 4 numbers there's no reality to that. What we 5 really have are four white districts, two 6 additional white districts, and one at-large white 7 district. So, we are truly being diluted. This 8 is my -- you can look at the numbers. You know, 9 and I always say, because it is extremely true,

10 figures don't lie, but liars do figure. That is a 11 very true statement. So, you can look at the 12 numbers and you will say, "Oh, well, it's four 13 black districts." But, then if you live in the 14 parish and if you understand the demographics, you 15 will know that is not true. And if you look at 16 how they have -- and I considered (inaudible) -- 17 by the way, I served on the redistricting when we 18 did the BESE Board. It was a true fight from hell
19 to maintain two minority districts in BESE. I 20 have never seen a fight like I was in just trying 21 to maintain something that we was supposed to 22 have, and I was the only one who was there the 23 entire time. So, I understand something about 24 redistricting. I also understand something about 25 protecting incumbency which, is what I think the

1 Iberville Parish School District is trying to do, 2 is to protect those who they would like to have 3 protected. And, in doing so, you're leaving us 4 out. The unique thing about this to -- in my 5 opinion is that the district is eighty-three 6 percent -- the school district's eighty-three 7 percent minority. So, we are going to end up with 8 a school board, and most of the people have more 9 white hair on their heads than I have, which means 10 they don't have children in the system. So, we're 11 going to end up with a white school board that is 12 dictating the policies for the eighty-three 13 percent minority district. And I just think that 14 is a very unfair situation. I would like not to 15 be engaged in a lawsuit. And I especially would 16 like not to be engaged in one that lasts three or 17 four or five years, but I am willing to take that 18 fight, no matter how long it takes because of what 19 they have done to us.

20 And also, this does something else. Someone 21 asked earlier why I think -- Ms. Washington why 22 young people don't do this. There's nothing in it
23 for them.

24 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

25 That's right.

1 LINDA JOHNSON:

2 They don't see any -- they don't see any 3 value in it. What do they get out of it? We get 4 seven white people serving on the school board.
5 They didn't get anything out of that. So, they 6 don't see any value in it, in going to the poll.
7 And Plaquemines, for those of you who may know
8 your history -- James Farmer came to Plaquemines 9 in 1963. And in 1963, was also the year of the 10 March on Washington. And we had a tremendous 11 fight. I belong to the church where the horses 12 went in. So, we're used to fighting, and we don't 13 mind taking up this particular fight at this time.
14 And, again, thank you all for inviting me.

15 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

16 Well, it is in fact a fight, isn't it?

17 LINDA JOHNSON:

18 Huh?

19 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

20 It is in fact a fight?

21 LINDA JOHNSON:

22 Oh, it's a major fight.

23 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

24 Well, thank you for the panel. I'd like to 25 open it up for questions from the commission.

1 But, before I do, Attorney Wilson, I just wanted
2 to check and see whether you have submitted to the 3 commission the list of Section 2 cases that you've 4 done because we would definitely love to have that 5 for our records.

6 RON WILSON:

7 We have, ma'am. Yes.

8 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

9 Thank you.

10 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

11 I have a very quick question, and maybe it's 12 more comment than it is question. And I go back 13 to Ms. Johnson, this whole issue about the fight.
14 And I look around this room as you all were 15 testifying, and I know everybody on this panel.
16 And as a point of reference, in 2006 when we were 17 engaged in that fight about whether black folk, 18 principally, I think black folk, were really going 19 to be completely disenfranchised in the mayoral 20 election, not only was that lawsuit going on, but 21 the NAACP held their advancement project, filed 22 suit in February 2006. I was privileged to be 23 involved with that with the (inaudible)
24 advancement project and Bill Quigley. Ultimately, 25 we succeeded in having Judge Lemelle sign an order

1 forcing Kimberly Williamson Butler to hand over 2 the FEMA list in-camera. And then, ultimately, 3 after some of the sunshine went away, we got 4 copies so that we could get satellite voting.
5 But, it was still a fight. And here's what 6 concerns me, Linda, -- Ms. Johnson I call "Linda"
7 because she's Linda to me -- is that when I look 8 around this room, with the exception of -- of the 9 women here who are engaging in a Little Miss 10 Clairol, most of the people involved in this fight 11 got a lot of gray hair --

12 CEDRIC FLOYD:

13 Or no hair.

14 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

15 I wasn't looking at you, Cedric, but that's 16 all right. A lot of gray hair and are doing this 17 out of their own pocket. It's now the resource -- 18 resource fight and it's getting to be a really old 19 people fight. And so, twenty years from now, -- 20 shoot, ten years from now, how we going to 21 continue this? Eventually, Ron's going to want to 22 retire. Cedric's been doing this for thirty 23 years -- you don't have any gray. I'm making some 24 jokes, but it's a serious comment in question.
25 And if any of you all want to take it on very

1 quickly, because I know everybody's got real
2 questions, I am concerned that we're not growing 3 fighters.

4 LINDA JOHNSON:

5 I'll take that on for you because -- because 6 you know, having gone to BESE, a lot of the people
7 who came in the red jackets, whoever those women 8 are -- have no children, okay. So they're the 9 people driving the educational issues.

10 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

11 Right.

12 LINDA JOHNSON:

13 And I think that's a disgrace.

14 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

15 I have no questions.

16 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

17 I have a question. I don't know if I'm on or 18 not. Maybe not. I don't know. It's not coming 19 on. Well, I'll talk really loud. It's fine. I 20 have two quick questions. The first is for Jay.
21 Just, I'm curious about whether or not there was a 22 appeal on the case that you specifically mentioned 23 regarding the request for addresses and the like.

24 But, just the second question I have is -- it 25 is really for Mr. Wilson and Mr. Floyd. Just, you

1 both mention injunctive relief and then a formula
2 for pre-clearance. I'm actually just wondering
3 your thoughts on the new voting rights amendment 4 act, just what's being proposed in terms of the 5 act of 2014.

6 RON WILSON:

7 So, very briefly, in response to Ms.
8 McConduit. There was not an appeal. I made 9 reference that there was a one-judge decision.

10 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

11 Yeah.

12 RON WILSON:

13 And Ms. Washington referenced that there is a 14 certain amount of resources that go into things.
15 Those that were providing the resources decided to 16 pull the plug, so the decision stood as it was and 17 we were obviously tied up with some litigation 18 going on in the Eastern District. So, no, it was 19 not appealed to the First Circuit Court of Appeal.

20 CEDRIC FLOYD:

21 Yeah, it's not -- it's not what we want, but 22 it's the best that we can get because it will 23 still incorporate some of the pre-clearance
24 provision --

25 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

1 Right.

2 CEDRIC FLOYD:

3 That's if you've had a Section 5 violation --

4 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

5 Right.

6 CEDRIC FLOYD:

7 -- within a certain period of time. And the only 8 way we're able to get this, of course, is because 9 of compromise with the --

10 You see the southern legislators are very 11 happy -- congressmen are very happy because 12 they're saying "Ah-ha, now we're bringing the 13 entire nation under this umbrella and you can no 14 longer single us out." So, if they're happy for 15 it, it's an indication that it's not everything 16 that we want.

17 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

18 Right. Right.

19 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

20 Alabama is left out, isn't it?

21 CEDRIC FLOYD:

22 Alabama is, right.

23 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

24 Alabama's left out.

25 CEDRIC FLOYD:

1 Yes, uh-huh.

2 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

3 Question, Reverend.

4 REV. JAY AUGUSTINE:

5 Yes.

6 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

7 How do -- you said you did not appeal because 8 of course, the financial burden that went with it.
9 How do you fix a situation like this? What do 10 you -- you know, going back to Ms. Washington's, 11 you know, comment dealing with our youth and our 12 young people, you know, the lack of involvement 13 because they're not interested? Then when you see 14 something like this that happens, how do we fix
15 it?

16 REV. JAY AUGUSTINE:

17 I, again, consider myself bivocational. That 18 means I've been called twice. Certainly, I -- I 19 appreciate the calling I've had as a lawyer in 20 trying to fight for social rights, but I take very 21 seriously the calling I have toward the ministry 22 and to the pulpit. In that regard, I try to bring 23 the two together in what I call the social 24 gospels. If I can preach a gospel that focuses 25 not just on -- I'm using the image of the cross --

1 not just on the salvific relationship with God and 2 salvation in the kingdom to come, but if I can 3 also preach a gospel of social equality, doing 4 unto others as you would have them do unto you and 5 one that focuses on inequality in the kingdom at 6 hand. And to go back to Ms. Johnson's comments, 7 young people need to realize that there is 8 something in it for them. So --

9 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

10 A lot

11 REV. JAY AUGUSTINE:

12 -- if I can -- if I can preach a social gospel
13 again that deals with providing jobs, it deals 14 with job skills training, re-entry and so forth 15 and all those things can come through the church, 16 if the church is seen as a one-stop shop for 17 social engagement, hopefully, we can get people 18 interested in civic participation and obviously in 19 voting.

20 TRACIE WASHINGTON:

21 Can I get just Mr. Wilson and Mr. Floyd to 22 give the audience and -- and for this commission, 23 for the record, some idea about how much it costs
24 and also, you, Reverend Augustine, how much it 25 costs to bring this type of litigation, be it

1 Section 5, Section 2, whatever. I think folks 2 really need to hear that.

3 RON WILSON:

4 Well, The costs -- The costs are exorbitant.
5 You can't -- that's why we end up partnering with 6 the Legal Defense Fund, the Lawyers' Committee, a 7 network of organizations that do have the funds 8 and wherewithal to help finance this litigation.

9 For instance, I'm saying, if I had a Section 10 2 case, it would be as a motor vehicle -- voting 11 rights act case, MRVA case. And it costs -- we 12 submitted an attorney's fee bill after the case
13 just for the attorneys themselves of over a 14 million dollars. Just for attorney work in this 15 case. That's not including expert witnesses and 16 all the other costs involved. So, these cases are 17 very, very, very expensive. And the local 18 communities, unfortunately, don't have the 19 wherewithal, you know, to -- to take on these 20 cases. And, oftentimes, we'd have to go and, when 21 Reverend Alexander was alive, in one of our 22 Jefferson Parish cases, we had to go to the church 23 one night and pass a hat, you know, the eve of an 24 election because we didn't have enough money. So, 25 Reverend Alexander did a great job, and we

1 collected the money and we won the case. But,
2 litigation has gotten much more expensive since 3 then.

4 CEDRIC FLOYD:

5 Let me say this, that every time there's been 6 a Section 2 case, the governmental entity always 7 appeals. And even the City of Westwego with ten 8 thousand people, we went up to U.S. Fifth Circuit 9 three times. And it was no big deal because they 10 were in-office there the whole time and then went 11 up to the United States Supreme Court. Everybody
12 does that. When you win on a district court, you 13 go to the Court of Appeals, then you go to Supreme 14 Court because they're staying in the office and 15 it's out of their pocket -- out of the 16 governmental entity's pocket. So it takes a long 17 time and it costs a whole lot.

18 A VOICE:

19 But, we won.

20 CEDRIC FLOYD:

21 We have won all cases, all cases.

22 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

23 I did have one final quick question.
24 Reverend Augustine mentioned that there is 25 neutral-seeming laws or administrative procedures

1 that have a disproportionate impact on minority
2 voters that are being passed now. What do we need
3 to show, how do we best address that when we know 4 that these laws that seem neutral on their face 5 have a disproportionate impact on minority voters?

6 CEDRIC FLOYD:

7 Anecdotally, I think panels like this and 8 fact-finding commissions like this that could 9 induce evidence to be submitted to congress and 10 the decision-makers I think are very, very 11 critical in that process. I regret that my 12 research was not able to show -- it was only able 13 to speak from an anecdotal perspective and not 14 from an empirical perspective to show how fewer 15 people voted in the elections then opposed to how 16 many people may have voted in some other higher 17 profile elections and the like. But, I think 18 really fact-finding commissions like this. And 19 this is my way of complimenting you all for taking 20 the time in doing this and the Lawyers' Committee 21 for Civil Rights Under Law for convening these 22 forums around the country. These are critically 23 important because this is how you build a record
24 to put before Congress or put before state 25 legislators or decision-makers to say it is

1 absolutely imperative that these -- these 2 procedures which have a discriminatory impact are 3 done away with.

4 RON WILSON:

5 But, in fact, if we look, these changes don't 6 operate in a vacuum. They just aren't -- they 7 just don't happen. They're well thought out. And 8 a good example would be the changes in Texas, 9 where in Texas they can use a state I.D. to vote,
10 except you can't use your student I.D., but you 11 can use your hunting permit, you know. Because 12 they --

13 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

14 And they know who hunts in Texas.

15 RON WILSON:

16 Exactly. That's it. They know -- they know
17 who the hunters are. So, you know, these measures 18 just don't operate, just don't happen on their 19 own. They are well thought out. So, a commission 20 like this looking to this -- looking into these 21 practices can see this impact or effect it has on 22 minority voters. And these procedures are well 23 thought out.

24 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

25 Thank you very much for your testimony. We 1 greatly appreciate it.

2 (Applause.)

3 We are going to take a five-minute break 4 before moving to the next panel. Thank you.

5 (A break was taken from 5:05 p.m. to 5:14 p.m.)

6 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

7 We'll call up the next panel. Let's get back
8 to work. Ms. Carolina Hernandez, Mr. Nguyen, Mr.
9 Henderson, and Mr. Reilly. While we're waiting 10 for all of the commissioners to join us, for the 11 panelists, we have the timer here so you can see 12 how much time you have. We are going to go ahead 13 and get started with Panel #3. And we'll have you 14 present in the order you appear on the agenda. So 15 first is Ms. Hernandez, then Mr. Nguyen, Mr.
16 Norris, and Mr. Reilly.

17 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

18 Hello? Should we wait for Tracie to come 19 back?

20 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

21 Oh, no. She isn't coming back.

22 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

23 Oh, she had to leave, okay. Well, thank you
24 for having me here today. My name is Carolina
25 Hernandez. I'm the Executive Director of Puentes

1 New Orleans. Puentes New Orleans is an 2 organization -- organization that was established
3 in 2007 as a non-profit Latino community
4 development organization in the Greater New 5 Orleans Area. Puentes was created to address the 6 needs of Latinos in the aftermath of 7 Hurricane Katrina and has since been working to 8 promote social change. Puentes is the only Latino 9 advocacy organization in New Orleans that aims to 10 address the barriers posed to the Latino community
11 as a whole. The New Orleans Latino community 12 describes themselves as invisible. With an 13 increase of twenty-two percent in the Latino 14 population of Orleans Parish since 2000, it would 15 serve our city and neighbors to make services and 16 outreach efforts more inclusive. While the 17 Greater New Orleans area since the 1950s maintains 18 a sizeable established bilingual Latino --
19 bilingual Latino community, the post-Katrina 20 influx of new arrivals means to better serve all 21 community residents, city government services, 22 healthcare services, neighborhood groups must 23 account for the needs of limited English 24 proficient populations.

25 The primary challenge faced by Puentes from

1 an advocacy prospective is a lack of power. The 2 state legislature includes only one Latina 3 representative who does not act as a champion for 4 her community. Accordingly, legislative activity
5 in Baton Rouge is largely dependent upon the black 6 and Democratic caucuses to carry a Latino agenda.
7 Both groups, however, are outweighed by a white
8 Republican majority on every house and senate 9 committee. In short, the politics of race are 10 very salient in Louisiana and we have not yet been 11 able to turn them to our advantage. At the local 12 level, the primary challenge is a very strong 13 mayor and a relatively weak city council. While 14 Puentes has consistently developed allies on the 15 council side, we have grown increasingly distant 16 from the administration, but we're hoping to 17 improve that relationship locally. Our primary 18 response to this marginalization has been 19 participating in diverse coalitions.

20 Puentes has many members of our organization, 21 and I loosely call them members. They are people 22 that use part of our services, come through our 23 organization. And the same issue is faced by a 24 majority of these members, and that is that they 25 don't have a strong knowledge of the English

1 language. So, it really limits their ability to 2 participate at any civic level and because the 3 government and civic organizations do not 4 accommodate for their needs as limited English
5 proficient community members. So, I want this 6 panel just to take away that when you can't even 7 pay for a parking ticket because you don't know 8 the language, you can't -- certainly, you cannot 9 go and register to vote in any easy fashion and 10 you can't vote. I have been -- I was born and 11 raised in Louisiana, and I have been voting in 12 this state ever since. I am blessed and fortunate 13 to speak perfect English, and I see the challenges 14 if I was to not be able to speak English as well 15 as I do. And I can only imagine what those people 16 face every day.

17 As an organization, we started off in 2008
18 registering folks to vote. That was our intent.
19 And we gave ourselves a challenge of registering a 20 hundred Latinos, which is a small challenge, but 21 we were a new organization. At that time, I was 22 just a volunteer, and we were barely able to 23 register fifty people. And a lot of it was 24 because they just don't see their place within the 25 civic organization in this state. And they don't

1 see it because they can't navigate it. They don't 2 think it's for them. And so, I hope that this -- 3 I'm assuming this problem is not just in New 4 Orleans. And I'm assuming it's not just in the 5 state of Louisiana. It is more profound here 6 maybe because our representation is so small,
7 which is why I opened up with those comments.

8 As much as Puentes pushes for issues, it's 9 very difficult to get those issues addressed, and 10 that's because our power is so limited. We can't 11 demonstrate power by votes. And you certainly 12 can't demonstrate power by votes if the system 13 makes it very hard for non-English speakers to 14 participate in that system of voting. So, to even 15 get them to register, they didn't even think if 16 they were U.S. citizens or they became U.S.
17 citizens, they just didn't think that was for 18 them. And, if we can demonstrate as an 19 organization that the system does address their 20 needs as simple as having documentations in 21 another language other than English, I think we 22 could increase the number of registered Latino 23 U.S. citizens just in the Orleans area and 24 potentially in the state. And so, that's where I 25 will leave my last comment.

1 MINH NGUYEN:

2 Hello. My name is Minh Nguyen. I am the 3 Executive Director of VAYLA New Orleans. VAYLA is 4 a progressive multiracial community-based 5 organization in New Orleans that empowers youth 6 and families through support services and 7 organizing for cultural enrichment and positive 8 social change. To give you a little background of 9 VAYLA, we started off after Hurricane Katrina in 10 2006 due to a landfill that was placed in our 11 community called the Chef Menteur Landfill. The 12 reason why we were formed is because, you know, 13 they were saying that because -- "The reason why 14 they could put it in your neighborhood is because 15 you guys don't have any power, you have a lack of 16 voice." So, obviously, for us, because we were 17 one of the firsts communities to come back after 18 Hurricane Katrina, we knew that we -- we had to do 19 something about it. So, our organization we went 20 ahead and registered folks to vote, because that 21 was the main thing. They were talking about you 22 guys have no power, we have no voice. So, what we 23 did was we began to register folks to vote, not 24 only individuals in the community, but just 25 everybody in Village D'Lest community in New

1 Orleans East.

2 Since then, we have a really good
3 relationship with the registrar of voters' office.
4 We registered -- we could claim fifteen hundred 5 people that we have registered to vote. We have a 6 voter base we have updated. We also went through 7 the advanced system to learn how to navigate
8 the -- the voters and just focus in New Orleans 9 East. And so, today, you know, we continue to 10 fight for New Orleans East because of the lack of 11 infrastructure, lack of hospitals, lack of just 12 basic needs. Yes, it's been what, almost nine 13 years. We're coming up on our tenth year, and we 14 have made progress. Folks have been voting, all 15 right. But, I do want to say that there is a lack 16 of trust within our government. And, because we 17 are a multiracial organization, we do serve not 18 only the Vietnamese community, but we also serve 19 the Latino and African-American community. So, we 20 hear all of the issues that we face within our 21 community.

22 Just to piggyback on what Carolina was saying 23 earlier, is that yes, you know, there's a lot of 24 barriers that we face for folks to vote. I mean, 25 there's folks who -- who came over as refugees in

1 1975. And there's -- there's a lot of them who 2 became nationalized and now are citizens, right?
3 But the ballots, again, are only in English. Some 4 folks who, I mean, perfect -- you know, we went to 5 school can't even understand what's on the ballot 6 even though it's in English. So, just imagine how 7 hard it is for -- for a person who -- who are 8 limited English proficient. So, I know that's one 9 of the things that we have been training for, is 10 to have -- to get the ballot to be translated, all 11 right. Not only on Vietnamese, but also in 12 Spanish as well. Just so we can actually get the 13 community to be more -- more engaged. That's the 14 highest. We also conduct (coughing) polling, and 15 that's been one of the things that have been 16 preventing folks to come, all right. We need more 17 voter education out there. I think that that's 18 not being done enough. A lot of folks we 19 registered, the fifteen hundred I'm talking about, 20 only -- I believe only thirty percent actually 21 vote. And the reason they say that they don't 22 vote is because they don't know how to, all right.
23 And I believe that's one of the things that we 24 need to do a better job doing, all right. The 25 young folks, they get -- we could go into the 1 classroom and register them to vote, but they 2 never have voted, so the machine is not there for 3 them to actually know how to vote. So that's one

4 of the other things that I do want to address.
5 The second thing, the other thing that I wanted to 6 talk about is candidates, the information that is 7 going to the citizens, the people, the residents.
8 They -- a lot of it is going out in English as 9 well. It's not going out in their specific 10 language that they understand. I believe that we 11 do need to do more of these education forums. We 12 try to -- we're hosting these forums in our 13 community, and we try to have -- we do have 14 interpretation sets for us to get our community to 15 understand what's happening, but I think we need 16 to continue to do more of that. A lot of this we 17 have to raise our own funds to do as well. I 18 believe that if we could get more support on -- on 19 the state level, local level, federal level, that 20 would definitely help us as well.

21 I know earlier we were talking about young 22 people voting. That's -- that's been something 23 that we've been pushing to do. We really want 24 that to happen. One of the things that I do want 25 to address -- I'm pretty sure we may have talked

1 about this, is that a lot of them have been in the 2 criminal justice system. A lot of our young -- 3 young men of color. That is what prevents them 4 from voting. Although, a lot of it -- a lot of 5 the policies, the issues that they are affected by 6 are made -- are decided without their vote. So,
7 what do we do about that moving forward? And I
8 know that a lot of young people do want to vote.
9 We just need to give the opportunity to.

10 NORRIS HENDERSON:

11 Good afternoon. My name is Norris Henderson.
12 I'm the Executive Director of VOTE, which is an 13 acronym for Voice of the Ex-Offender. I've been 14 engaged in one way or another in fighting for the 15 full restoration of voting rights for folks for 16 over forty years, inside and out. And I'm honored 17 to have an opportunity to comment and present, and 18 I'd like to start with Minh left off at. One of 19 the things our organization do is organize and 20 register formerly incarcerated people around their 21 right to vote. Here in Louisiana, who are not on 22 probation and parole have the right to vote. But, 23 this concern of ours has become huge in the sense 24 that we are questioning whether or not -- is this 25 just a state right, or we as citizens of this

1 country. Because we have in our membership, 2 matter of the fact, one of the presenters we'll 3 speak on in a minute, who traveled from another 4 state to go to school here and he lost his right
5 to vote when he crossed the state line. And so, 6 we are kindly questioning the fact about how does 7 a felony disenfranchise when attached to people, 8 what rights do we actually have as formerly 9 incarcerated people in this country.

10 This country was founded on that no taxation
11 without representation. So, if we can't vote, why 12 do we pay taxes? And so, I think some of the 13 concerns that I hear the panel reiterate over and 14 again, people trying to bring in what they 15 consider the crowning voting population. Well, 16 we have a standing of over seven million people in 17 this country who want to vote and just don't have 18 an opportunity. And so, the biggest concern --
19 one of my concerns is that, here in New Orleans 20 especially, that a lot of the things that appears 21 upon the ballot as ballot initiatives, not in the 22 primary elections, but always in the run-off
23 elections. It's almost like this is being done 24 systemically when people don't turn out for run-25 off elections, a new ballot initiative is put on

1 there because they figure it's going to be a very,
2 very low turnout and their success of getting this 3 particular initiative passed is even more great.
4 It's almost like, you know, bait and switch. I
5 want you to come vote for something, but I ain't 6 going to tell you about it until the eleventh 7 hour. And so, this is something that we are 8 really, really concerned about because, in the 9 last two elections, two crucial things were on the 10 ballot about taxes. And, you know, when we hear 11 about how our people have this apathy about 12 turning out to vote, even more so when they have 13 to go and revisit it to go to a run-off election 14 when their candidate may have already won.
15 "There's no reason for me to turn out." And then 16 people quietly put these initiatives on the 17 ballot. And then we wake up the next day, 18 something is passed that may cost us for the next 19 fifty years. And so, that's something of grave 20 concern.

21 The jail-based registration. We have a lot 22 of issues with jail-based voter registration.
23 Matter of fact, one of our -- he was then in the 24 state legislative now is a senate congressman, 25 Steve Scalise, thought it was illegal to do pre-

1 trial voter registration with detainees. I know 2 it's not, but the thing is that this was the 3 mindset of people who are making decisions every 4 day about our life and don't even understand what 5 our constitution says. And so, you know, how do 6 we -- what runs against that -- for the last three 7 years we've had and have a bill pending now in our 8 state legislature to give the right to vote to 9 over seventy-thousand people that's on probation 10 and parole. And, if they don't want to give the 11 right to vote to people on probation and parole, 12 why should formerly incarcerated people have to 13 pay taxes? Because they're written out a system 14 to the extent that the only thing that citizenship 15 really gives us is this right to vote, and it's 16 being restrictive or taken away. Why should I pay 17 taxes in a country that was founded on no taxation 18 without representation?

19 BRUCE REILLY:

20 Thank you. My name is Bruce Reilly. I'm a 21 board member of the Voice the Ex-Offender. I'm 22 also a founding member of the National Formerly 23 Incarcerated and Convicted People's Movement. And 24 I am someone who worked for the group of people in 25 Rhode Island in 2006 to restore voting rights to

1 the people on probation and parole through the 2 ballot. And we did a popular ballot initiative, 3 and we got fifty-one percent of the vote and did a 4 lot of work on it. Some years later, I came down
5 here to go to school and I lost my right to vote.
6 So, I actually wrote my own right to vote in Rhode 7 Island and then lost it to go to law school, of 8 all ironies, of all things. So then, I started 9 doing a little research because that's the kind of 10 thing I do, and I wanted to look into well what is 11 the law in Louisiana and where does it come from.

12 Many of you in this room I'm sure are 13 familiar with the Farrakhan case in the ninth 14 circuit, who felt that, you know, the criminal 15 justice system has a disparate impact. And they 16 agreed with that. And then they ended up 17 reversing themselves and said, "Well, even though 18 as a disparate impact, it wasn't with a 19 discriminatory intent." And so, then I would say 20 to some voting rights attorneys, you know, "Well, 21 what do you think if that case? Was it in a 22 covered jurisdiction?" You know, how would that 23 under Section 5, how -- you know, how would that 24 go down a little differently, perhaps. And, you 25 know, of course, a few eyebrows get raised.

1 So people in this room might also be familiar
2 with "Hunter v. Underwood," a 1985 Supreme Court 3 case, which found that in Alabama, that people who 4 are convicted of crimes of moral turpitude who 5 lost their voting rights should lose their voting 6 rights because that crime was created to target
7 black people. And they had the historical record
8 to back that up. And so, that proved that felon 9 disenfranchisement is not without oversight. And 10 it proved that if you take what seems to be a 11 neutral policy, criminal conviction, but then you 12 look at the criminal conviction and was that 13 neutrally created, and then you're going to find 14 some relief. So, I started looking at the 15 Louisiana historical record, and there's eleven 16 constitutions since 1812, and I read them all.
17 And it was quite an adventure. So, in 1812, you 18 know, there was felon disenfranchisement, but it 19 was "the privilege of free suffrage shall be 20 supported by laws regulating elections and 21 inhibiting all undue influence thereupon from 22 power of bribery to multiple other improper
23 practices." So they wanted to have clean 24 elections. And so they said that if you have a 25 perjury, bribery, forgery, or other high crimes

1 and misdemeanors conviction, which as we know 2 applies to public officials, not to just regular 3 folks. I can't have a high crimes misdemeanor
4 conviction. So those people couldn't vote.
5 That's a rational relationship. That makes no
6 sense. Okay, there's a substantial government 7 interest in folks that have perhaps a voter fraud
8 conviction from voting again, but it doesn't apply 9 to just regular folks. Now, keep in mind, of 10 course, only white people could vote back then.

11 A VOICE:

12 (Inaudible response.)

13 BRUCE REILLY:

14 Yes. So, you know, there are other -- other 15 ways to restrict to, you know, the proper voters 16 as, you know, the powers saw fit. So then, in 17 1845, they added "under conviction of any crime 18 punishable with hard labor." So there's a few 19 things in it. "Under," which is a temporary 20 status which can end in hard labor. So then, in 21 1868, as we know, in the meantime, they repealed
22 all the constitutions, succeeded from the union.
23 So 1868 was kind of the first new state
24 constitution, the carpetbagger constitution. So,
25 in that one they have, you know, those convicted

1 of treason, perjury, bribery, forgery, or other
2 crime punishable in the penitentiary. So, we kind 3 of know what that means, right? You're in the 4 penitentiary.

5 Now, then things started to get a little 6 funny. So, in 1870, the legislature decides that 7 people who participated in the rebellion can 8 regain their voting rights back. And, at the same 9 time, they slipped in "punished by imprisonment."
10 This was a slight little prepositional change.
11 And it kind of opens up a few different 12 interpretations, not necessarily to people who are 13 in prison. And I'm sorry if I'm getting really 14 nerdy and boring here, but this is just the way
15 these things have to go down.

16 So, the key is, you know, -- then they got -- 17 people know about the convict police program. And 18 so, they're using penitentiary as a way to get 19 folks to work. And we know what kind of folks are 20 being rounded up to work. We know the crimes that 21 were created. So, very similar to the moral 22 turpitude situation you've got in Alabama.

23 Now the master stroke came in 1896 when they 24 decided that, in two years, we're going to have a 25 constitutional convention. And that

1 constitutional convention is going to have full 2 power to do anything without going to the voters.
3 So, the problem they had at the time in 1897,
4 there are two hundred ninety-four thousand
5 registered voters; a hundred sixty-four thousand 6 were white, a hundred thirty thousand were 7 "colored." Now, that was like, you know, a little 8 bit of an advantage but nothing, you know, big 9 time. But, among those who write their names, it 10 was a hundred thirty three thousand to thirty-11 three thousand. So, all they had to do was come 12 up with a literacy test and they could change it 13 big time.

14 So, one year later, they cut the voting, 15 registered voters by two-thirds down to eighty-16 seven thousand, but also increased the -- the 17 impact of whites, who now controlled eighty-seven 18 percent of the vote. So, now they dictated who 19 those members of the delegation were going to be, 20 and we know who they were. And they went in there 21 and they said things, opening statements. But for 22 the existence of that one question, the assemblage 23 would not be sitting here today. We know that 24 this convention has been called together by the 25 state to eliminate from the electorate the mass of 1 corrupt and illiterate voters who have during the 2 last quarter of a century degraded our politics.

3 This is in 1898. So, they wanted created the 4 everlasting foundation of right and justice. And 5 the convention's work may be left to the verdict
6 of history. We're here now.

7 Now, keep in mind every time that in that 8 convention, in those remarks, they mentioned 9 disenfranchisement of "negros," there was a
10 standing ovation. Now, if you read the stuff I 11 read, the notes of the constitution convention it 12 says right in there "applause" every time they 13 talk about taking away the black vote, applause.
14 And they talk about collateral damage. I'm one of 15 those collateral damage people. They're like, 16 okay, if we disenfranchise all these people under 17 different ways, we can't use the words race, we're 18 going to knock out some white folks, but, overall, 19 we're going to control the percentages.

20 So, going back to what Norris said, there 21 were six million people, over six -- about seven 22 million people who were disenfranchised. A 23 hundred and ten thousand in Louisiana. Seventy 24 thousand of those are black folks, okay. And 25 among the voting age population, about seven

1 percent are disenfranchised. These are getting 2 into real numbers, right? This isn't just like .5
3 percent. Now, across Louisiana, three percent.
4 Some in the three percent. Other folks that I 5 know are in the seven percent. And so, these are 6 real numbers. And I think that people need to 7 really take a close look at the rules and the laws
8 and where they come from. Even the law now says 9 you may -- you may be disenfranchise. Or the 10 legislature came up with some -- some 11 interpretation of the details that makes it 12 mandatory. I'm not in a "may" position. I can't 13 just possibly go and vote. No. It's guaranteed.

14 So, I'll just I guess cut my remarks short by 15 letting you know that in the "U.S. v. Blewett" 16 case, which was the crack cocaine disparity case 17 recently in the past year, what the judge there 18 said was basically, if you know something has a 19 disparate impact and you continue to do it, you
20 have discriminatory intent. And I think, on felon 21 disenfranchisement, we've known for a good -- at 22 least a good thirty years or forty years, about 23 the disparate impact. And it just so happens that 24 the law has really changed perfectly with the -- 25 the drug war, which was launched in 1971. And 1 we've seen these numbers grow and grow and grow.

2 And if we think about the drug war and if we think 3 about other things and just ask yourself, if those 4 teenaged to young twenties folks that live in 5 predominantly communities of color, if they're 6 being policed at the same rate as those kids who 7 are smoking pot and doing other things on college 8 campuses, if we think those policing rates are the 9 same, then maybe we can say the conviction rates 10 might be a little bit similar. If we think those 11 conviction rates are a little bit similar, then 12 maybe the disenfranchisement's similar. But, we 13 know dang well that the policing is a choice and 14 it's done in certain communities at a very high 15 rate and thus, we end up with disenfranchisement 16 at a very high rate.

17 So, we know that the criminal justice system 18 has a disparate impact. We can debate the 19 discriminatory intent, but we also know that we've 20 known that, and then we can refute the 21 discriminatory intent. You know that in Maine or 22 Vermont, they allow universal suffrage, prisoners
23 vote. I've never heard of a problem. Many states 24 have a much more permissive voting structure than 25 Louisiana. We don't hear problems about formerly

1 incarcerated people voting and people on probation
2 voting. I'll pay taxes for another twenty-five 3 years if I stay in Louisiana and never get the 4 right to vote. I lost my citizenship. I can have 5 a law degree in this country and I'm going to lose 6 my citizenship. People say it's my own fault and 7 I say, "Well, look at your democracy and decide if 8 this is in fact democracy that you might have."
9 Thank you.

10 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

11 I have a question for Ms. Hernandez. You -- 12 you mention about the invisibility of the Latino 13 community. Is part of that by choice?

14 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

15 Yes, I believe part of that is by choice.
16 And I think that the system makes it really easy 17 for them to make that choice.

18 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

19 So how do you define "Latino"?

20 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

21 How do I define Latino?

22 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

23 Yeah. Who's included and who's not?

24 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

25 So, in our organization we use the word

1 "Latino" with intent. And the reason we use
2 "Latino" and not "Hispanic" is because the word 3 Hispanic actually does not include Brazilians and 4 other not Spanish-speaking --

5 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

6 So it could the Hait -- you include Haitians
7 and Brazilians?

8 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

9 Yes. Yeah.

10 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

11 Okay. Thank you.

12 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

13 Do you mind if I use that? This thing is 14 broken. Bruce, I would say thank you for your 15 offer of history. I think that's always a very 16 sobering activity, if you will. Towards the end
17 of your comments you mentioned something that I 18 was going to state, which is that across the 19 United States we have such varying degrees in 20 terms of the way we treat ex-offenders respective 21 to their right to vote, from the most liberal to 22 allowing them to vote while incarcerated to the 23 most extreme, which says if you were ever 24 convicted of a crime you can never vote. And so, 25 I -- I overlay that with Norris's comment that

1 there is a pending bill out in this legislative 2 session that would you said increase the -- the by 3 seventy thousand people?

4 NORRIS HENDERSON:

5 Easy. And that was guesstimation, is seventy 6 thousand. But, that's based upon the fact that 7 fifteen thousand people are released from 8 corrections every year since 1975. And our 9 constitution -- our latest constitution came out 10 that would give us those numbers. The thing about 11 the probationary population, it's transient
12 because probation lasts for just five years.
13 Parole -- you can be on parole for twenty, thirty
14 years.

15 I mean, we have one involving members, a 16 Vietnam vet, who testified at the last hearing 17 that he stayed in prison twenty years, but he has 18 been home for twenty-one. So, for the last -- he 19 come straight out of Vietnam and went to prison.
20 So, for the last forty years he's been 21 disenfranchised. And, you know, the legislature 22 took the comments from one victim advocate group 23 and just shut it down. It was almost like we 24 didn't even exist. It disenfranchised -- it was 25 something that was a consequence of this

1 particular action, the actions of those not 2 looking at the legislative history about how 3 disenfranchise statutes actually impact.

4 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

5 So I wonder just -- and this is just opinion, 6 and I want you to hypothesize for me just about or 7 explain to us some of the -- what you've heard 8 regarding that particular bill that's currently 9 being proposed.

10 NORRIS HENDERSON:

11 One of the things was, the guy gave asked me 12 to give him a visual. The only visual I could 13 kind of like come up with I said well it could 14 fill the Superdome. And the visual was you just 15 had to see the expression on their faces. And 16 this was a panel, a governmental affairs panel 17 that was predominantly white. They had two 18 African-Americans on the panel. And when they 19 took a vote, the only two votes we got were from 20 the two African-Americans that were on the panel.

21 And so, I'm always reminded of the fact that 22 Steve Scalise at the time in 2003 when we was 23 doing the voter registration drive in the local 24 jail, that he was complaining that this has to be 25 illegal. And so, just the mindset behind somebody

1 who is sitting in legislative office who had not 2 read the state constitution and allow people, pre-3 trial detainees, to register and vote was almost 4 like accusing the sheriff of coercion and says
5 that -- collusion, and it says that she was doing 6 something illegal also.

7 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

8 All people who have been convicted of 9 misdemeanors don't lose the right to vote.

10 NORRIS HENDERSON:

11 Exactly. Exactly. But, the fact of it is is 12 that this is the mindset of people, particularly 13 in this state, because we've been pushing every 14 year for the last three years consistently.
15 We're trying to get this piece of legislation 16 done. And early on, -- the bill was supposed to 17 have come up two weeks ago. But because of the 18 attitude of the committee, the, you know, the 19 legislative just, you know, put it off, "Let's go 20 back and revisit it another day" as we kind of 21 like make our way through the committee. So, 22 hopefully, this time next week it'll come back up 23 maybe with a different result, hopefully.

24 But, the thing about this is that -- what's 25 so striking about this is that we're for fighting

1 for the rights of folks in other countries to vote 2 and the right of folks that were in Iraq voting in 3 jail. Our congress, you know, when those people 4 held up their purple thumbs showing that they had 5 voted in solidarity -- this was under George 6 Bush's administration, you know, the people in 7 congress held up their purple thumbs showing that 8 it's solidarity. Why we don't have that same 9 solidarity for all the Vietnam, all our Iraqi, 10 all the World War II veterans who have fought in 11 wars to protect the right to vote for people in 12 this country and they don't even have the right to 13 vote themselves.

14 And so, we have to ask our -- ourselves
15 what's, you know, what citizenship is worth. I 16 mean, when we stand up and our pledge allegiance 17 to the flag, which flag, that flag or that flag?
18 You know, which one's the most important in the 19 sense that Bruce left from Rhode Island where he 20 had the franchise, moved to Louisiana and he lose 21 it. You know, what part of America are we from?
22 I mean, we could live in Maine or Vermont where 23 the population don't looks like me, but more 24 favors Bruce, they have the right to vote inside 25 of a prison cell.

1 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

2 Right.

3 NORRIS HENDERSON:

4 So, something is wrong with this question
5 that -- someone needs to raise the question about 6 I can't find the disenfranchiser, but give me
7 something that every time I go to purchase 8 something I'm like a non-profit, a walking non-9 profit; I don't have to pay taxes.

10 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

11 So, I have another question. Oh, I'm sorry.
12 You gave me the mic, now I'm going to --

13 So this is really for Carolina and Minh. You 14 both mention the limited access to language 15 materials in both languages, Vietnamese and 16 Spanish. Have you guys worked in terms with the 17 registrar's office or have you seen any movement 18 in terms of being able to have that come on board 19 for future election cycles?

20 MINH NGUYEN:

21 For us, we had to -- in order to get the 22 folks to register to vote, back in 2008, we -- we 23 translated the ballot -- the registration form to 24 Vietnamese. But, only -- but we had to do like 25 almost exactly like it so they could actually use

1 it. But, the barrier that happened afterwards 2 when we registered almost a thousand people during 3 2008, I guess something happened. And I'm glad 4 you brought this up, because what happened was 5 that I guess they were cracking down or whatever 6 they did. And they -- they -- we used to register 7 from an office or like in neighborhoods at 8 churches, at temples, and at businesses. Then 9 what happened was they -- they were actually 10 accepting these registration forms. They were 11 cool with it. And then, in 2012, they said that 12 actually, now you actually have to bring your 13 naturalization paper to city hall, all right, or 14 their passport to city hall. But, before we made 15 copies and we sent them in, and that was fine. In 16 2012, they didn't allow us anymore. So they -- 17 they told (inaudible) -- they said this is a law;
18 we have to follow this. This is not me saying 19 that. That's people from above. Now that created 20 another huge barrier for us, for them to actually 21 register to vote, right? So, what's the point of 22 us putting our resources to register to vote -- 23 for folks to vote, but now they have to actually 24 end up having to go to city hall to show proof 25 that they're a citizen anyway. So, that's like

1 defeating the purpose of doing that.

2 So, now we just -- we just -- we don't do
3 register -- we don't registration drive anymore 4 because it's not worth it anymore because they 5 have to actually go up to city hall to show their 6 proof that they're a citizen. So that's a big 7 issue that, you know -- that's a big issue that we 8 are trying -- we've been trying to fight for a 9 while now. And that alone, like the Latino 10 community, that's the exact same thing. If you're 11 a naturalized, you have to bring it to city hall
12 to show -- show them proof. You can't give a copy 13 or fax it in or something. We've been saying 14 like, this a government. You can tell if 15 you're -- while you're talking to each other, tell 16 each other that, "Hey, I am a citizen. Why don't 17 you check your records?" Right?

18 So, that's something that I believe that is 19 not being done on the -- on the government level 20 that we definitely need to address. And 21 transportation is a huge issue. To get people 22 to -- that's the reason why they register in their 23 own community, right? They don't have 24 transportation to get to city hall, right? Let 25 alone going -- getting transportation to get to

1 the voting booth. I mean, a lot of them have to 2 walk or whatever or we just have to drive them.
3 So that's something that, you know, I definitely 4 want to address.

5 You know, I went to the Bahamas not too long 6 ago to understand the voting system over there.
7 They have a ninety-nine percent voting rate in the 8 Bahamas because they provide all the necessary 9 translation, transportation. They made it -- they 10 made it readily available for every citizen to 11 actually vote. Why can't we do that here in the 12 United States?

13 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

14 Can I just clarify? Is there a state law 15 that has proof of citizenship, or is this just the 16 administrative procedure?

17 MINH NGUYEN:

18 This is the administrative procedure.

19 CAROLINA HERNANDEZ:

20 When we were registering we also stopped 21 register to vote for the same reason. It just got 22 complicated. And only once, maybe twice, if I can 23 remember, the registrar's office actually, because 24 we complained that this was such a complication, 25 they actually agreed to come out to a registration

1 event with a copier. And that way, they knew they 2 were copying an official document. So, there was 3 obviously this administrative concern that we were 4 presenting false documentations. And we, the 5 organization, the non-profit. And I remember they 6 came out once, maybe twice. But they don't make 7 it very easy, and so we just stopped doing it.

8 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

9 And so, no progress with translation?

10 MINH NGUYEN:

11 I mean, we -- we -- I mean, we sent our legal 12 advisors to talk to, you know, Ann Duplecin (ph)
13 and folks at -- in the registrar of voters' 14 office, and they said, "This is something that we 15 just can't do. It has to happen on the state 16 level to change that." And, again, like, you 17 know, on the registering form it tells you are you 18 a citizen, yes or no. It means that you already 19 asked them the question. And if they lie, I mean, 20 that's --

21 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

22 Under penalty of perjury.

23 NORRIS HENDERSON:

24 Right.

25 MINH NGUYEN:

1 Yeah, exactly. So -- so, if they're 2 providing the legal documents to the registrar of 3 voters' office, then you can cross check that if 4 you really need to, right? So, why -- why make 5 it -- why create another barrier by having to go 6 to city hall to provide the -- the original copy, 7 so.

8 NORRIS HENDERSON:

9 One of the things, in keeping with that -- 10 one of the same challenges for formerly 11 incarcerated people is discharge. You know, they 12 show up in the voter registrar's office, and the 13 first thing asked, "Can I have proof of your 14 discharge?" So, one of the things that we're 15 saying that -- well, we have a bill pending to 16 change that, too -- that the Department of 17 Corrections notifies the Secretary of State that 18 this person is discharged so it'll already be in 19 the database. Because what happens, when the guy 20 goes there who is kind of like gung-ho to go and 21 register to vote, when you tell him now you've got 22 to go and find another document and bring it back 23 to me, well, you've discouraged him from 24 participating. Dr. Wilson's office has been 25 really -- has really worked with us on this so we

1 can be in that office, call probation and parole
2 on the phone, they'll fax it right over. But, 3 just like when you get convicted of a crime, they 4 automatically notifying the clerk's office, the 5 clerk notifies the Secretary of State, bingo, 6 you're off the system. Well, what's good for the 7 goose is good for the gander. Just like you took 8 me out, you should be able to kind of like tickle 9 me right back in. And so, this is one of the 10 things that, again, we have a bill pending that 11 mandates that the Department of Corrections
12 notifies the Secretary of State where it would be 13 already in the system that if John Doe shows up 14 and he's flagged, well, you can see the form that 15 corresponds with, okay, he was released six months 16 ago, a year ago, whatever.

17 And so, I think that one of the things that 18 you're hearing from these three people of color is 19 that this is something that's systemic across all 20 populations however it shows up. It shows up the 21 very same in the language access here,
22 documentation there, and the same thing about, you 23 know, the proof is -- the burden is always back on 24 us in the sense of trying to do a government 25 document. Because these are government documents,

1 and the basic is the responsibility. If I put my 2 John Hancock on this document, I -- the ownness is 3 on me that I told the truth. If I didn't, okay, 4 well, I violated the law.

5 BRUCE REILLY:

6 I just want to say one more thing.
7 Meanwhile, you know, when you're plea bargaining 8 for a contract for, you know, when you get 9 probation or prison or whatever, nowhere in there 10 does it say you're going to lose your voting 11 rights. Nobody tells you that that's part of the 12 bargain. And then, when you get convicted, you 13 know, whether you went to trial or not, ninety-14 eight percent of crimes all get plea bargained, 15 but you know, no one says you're going to lose 16 your voting rights. You go to jail, no one says 17 you're going to lose your voting rights. You get 18 out, no one says you've lost your voting rights.
19 You find out you've lost your voting rights maybe 20 through the network and, you know, through people.
21 But, if you didn't, you're going to go to try and 22 vote and, like Norris said, you're going to get 23 discouraged and you're going to find out no. And 24 then for a lot of people, that's the end of it for 25 the rest of their life. We've had a campaign to 1 make people aware that if you're off probation, 2 you get your voting rights back. And we know that 3 voting is a community thing. We know it's a 4 intergenerational thing. We know that we raise 5 children to vote like we voted or at least to 6 vote. And so, when you knock out generations of 7 people -- in the drug war, that's three 8 generations into it. And so, when you take out 9 people like that and then don't even, you know, 10 let them know that's some kind of automated thing, 11 "By the way, your voting rights are restored or et 12 cetera," then people will never know and we're 13 taking on entire communities who don't have 14 structured voting rights.

15 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

16 Well, one thing I'd like to say. And again I 17 hear exactly what you're saying. One thing we 18 have found with the NAACP, that, with voting, it's 19 three-pronged. You have to register them, you 20 have to educate them, then you have to motivate 21 them to get them to the polls. What I'm hearing 22 is that they are throwing up all kind of 23 roadblocks to you to prevent you. My daddy'd 24 always tell me when you give up, they win.
25 Regardless of what the situation is, when you give

1 up, they win. So, what I've always been 2 hardheaded enough to figure out is a way around 3 what they are doing. Look, I refuse to give up.
4 In your situation, you brought up a good point 5 about you got to register to come out and take 6 copies of the registration at that point, that 7 information. So, therefore, those people were 8 able to be registered. Okay, so my suggestion 9 would be is, again, until we can figure out a way
10 to get the law changed, okay, because you know
11 what you're fighting up against, then figure out a 12 way to beat them at their own game. If that means 13 you've got to make twenty-five calls to the 14 registrar's office to make sure you get twenty-15 five registrars out to your different locations or 16 whatever you have to do, then you need to do it.

17 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

18 Don't give up.

19 REVEREND CHIPPS TAYLOR:

20 But, when you give up, when you throw up that 21 white flag and say, "Okay y'all win," they sit 22 back and say, "Yep we ain't got to worry about 23 them. Now let's move on to something else." So, 24 that's just -- that's the preacher in me. Don't 25 ever give up. I don't care if you -- if you've

1 got a thousand voters, okay, you give up, that 2 means you didn't get none last time. If you go at 3 it again and you don't get but a hundred, that's a 4 hundred more than you had before by giving up.
5 Because, when you give up on them they -- 6 you're -- you're their lifeline. You know, if 7 they can't depend on you to do whatever it takes, 8 then yeah they're going to give up. They're going 9 to say just like he says, it's a generational 10 thing.

11 So, my suggestion is figure out a way, follow 12 a blueprint, figure out a way to get them to come 13 out to you. And make sure, just like the 14 gentleman was saying with the, you know, with your 15 convicted felons and what have you, they have a 16 pipeline directly to it where to they can call and 17 get this information. Build a pipeline.

18 That's -- that's -- that's my suggestion.

19 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

20 Okay. Thank you. I'd like to thank this 21 panel for your testimony. Okay, we are going to 22 move into the last panel of the day, Ms. Bonner, 23 Attorney Gaulden, Attorney Coco. And we'd also 24 like to call up Michelle Delima with this panel.
25 Thank you. Okay. Thank you. And thank you so

1 much for hanging in there. This will be the last 2 panel of the day. I look forward to your 3 testimony. We're going to start with Ms. Bonner, 4 then Mr. Gaulden, Ms. Coco, and Ms. Delima.

5 TRUPANIA BONNER:

6 Mr. Bonner.

7 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

8 Mr. Bonner. I'm so sorry. Mr. Bonner.

9 TRUPANIA BONNER:

10 Yes. Trupania Bonner, native of New Orleans, 11 former Executive Director of Moving Forward Gulf
12 Coast and founder of The Crescent City Media 13 Group. And, what I want to discuss or share is 14 sort of a testimonial analysis around voter 15 suppression and the rise of the Republican super 16 majority. And I may not get to the last --

17 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

18 Let's just keep it non-partisan.

19 TRUPANIA BONNER:

20 I'm sorry?

21 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

22 If you'd keep it non-partisan.

23 TRUPANIA BONNER:

24 Oh, I'll take the word out.

25 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

1 Thank you.

2 TRUPANIA BONNER:

3 Can I ask a question about that comment?

4 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

5 Sure.

6 TRUPANIA BONNER:

7 Bi-partisan? Should I eliminate "Republican" 8 from my statement or --

9 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

10 Well, I don't know if anybody -- they don't 11 have any in Louisiana, so.

12 TRUPANIA BONNER:

13 Okay. What I may not get to is -- in depth 14 is the difficulty that voter suppression and the 15 effects that the super majority have on community-16 based organizations for concerned citizens and 17 litigators trying to protect the right to vote for 18 all citizens. So, I'll begin my statement.

19 Tonight, I'll share with you testimonial about my 20 work in Louisiana, including voter suppression by 21 purge, super majorities at work, and some 22 encouraging news, the rise of the minority vote.
23 I do recognize I have only five minutes to speak, 24 so let me simplify things by focusing on two 25 moments in time, opportune times to disenfranchise

1 during post Katrina and the post Scotus decision
2 fallout in Louisiana.

3 Now, you know the extreme loss of population
4 in the metro area post Katrina presented 5 significant opportunity for some politicians to 6 engage in discriminatory actions and behaviors
7 after the nation's worst disaster -- natural 8 disaster where we lost a hundred and forty 9 thousand people over the metro area of New 10 Orleans. And having a hundred and eighteen 11 thousand of those folks African-American, we saw 12 our Secretary of State initiate a voter purge 13 before mayoral elections in '06, presidential 14 election in '08, and again, before the mayoral
15 election in 2010. We lost over one hundred voters
16 statewide, with New Orleans taking the hardest 17 hit, erasing forty-five thousand residents from 18 the polls.

19 Now, ideally, we do purge every two years in 20 Louisiana. Now, this is not in regards to the 21 Voting Rights Act or pre-clearance because of the 22 way we situated the voter purge law in Louisiana.
23 Ideally, after a major disaster such as Katrina,
24 we would have or we could have postponed the voter 25 purge until 2010, all right, giving us five years

1 to retain or recover most of our hundred eighty 2 thousand citizens -- a hundred eighteen thousand 3 citizens. It's my belief that this practice of 4 voter purging resulted in a racial political 5 paradigm shift within local government in New 6 Orleans. In short, NOLA went from majority
7 minority leadership to a majority white
8 leadership. This is an example of the seismic 9 political shifts that occur as a result of voter 10 suppression and coupled with retrogression -- 11 retrogressing from five majority minority
12 districts in New Orleans to three majority 13 minority districts. And I believe this process is 14 coined unavoidable retrogression.

15 But, you know, so losing a forty thousand 16 people, a hundred eighteen thousand of those 17 people are African American and retrogressing from 18 five majority minority districts to three makes 19 way for the creation of Republican super 20 majorities -- majority legislatures across the Old 21 Confederate South. And so, we see the example of 22 voter suppression -- voter suppression fallout in 23 New Orleans post Katrina. If you couple that with 24 the discriminatory redistricting process, and you 25 get seismic racial political paradigm shift that

1 we saw in New Orleans and that we saw across the 2 south, the Old Confederate South. Since the 3 Scotus decision occurred, Louisiana would no 4 longer need pre-clearance to redraw political 5 lines a/k/a redistricting, nor would they need 6 pre-clearance on voter purge actions. We are 7 already bearing witness to the effect -- to the 8 after-effect of the Shelby case in Louisiana while 9 legislatures with unwillingness to acknowledge or 10 honor legitimate census and redistricting changes, 11 a/k/a "Who cares about PL 94-171."

12 Three examples of voting rights apathy in 13 Louisiana occurred in Baton Rouge, in Terrebonne
14 Parish, and also recently in the legislature
15 when -- I'm calling this a type of antivoter
16 suppression bill presented by Representative Jared 17 Brossett for early voting. This is sort of the 18 effects of the fallout of the Scotus decision in 19 terms of fair representation among city court 20 judges in Baton Rouge. And I'll read verbatim.
21 "Last October Baton Rouge residents, Kenneth Hall 22 and Brian Sharp, sued the state for failing to 23 produce new district lines for Baton Rouge City 24 Court elections after the 2000 census showed that 25 Baton Rouge had become a predominantly African-

1 American city or parish. Three of the current 2 judges are white and two are black, but that court 3 composition is a reflection of a time when the 4 city had a white majority. Blacks now make up 5 fifty-five percent. Louisiana legislature has 6 failed to act on census numbers that increasingly 7 show election -- election boundaries for city
8 judges may need to be redrawn because black 9 residents now make up the majority of the city's 10 population. Chief U.S. District Judge Brian 11 Jackson said he repeatedly asked in hearings since 12 October 2012 -- 2013 why nothing has been done on 13 redistricting when approximately fifty-five 14 percent of Baton Rouge's population is black. The 15 court has given the legislature every opportunity 16 to correct the situation and has failed to do so."
17 The attorney general on this case stated that 18 there were no obvious voter -- there was no 19 obvious reflection of voter discrimination via 20 representation here.

21 Now, all of these examples really lead to one 22 thing. They do not have to play ball with us. We 23 do not represent the majority of the legislature 24 to make decisions about our community, right?
25 We're seeing this in this Baton Rouge case where

1 they just -- the census number did dictate that we 2 should have additional districts drawn for 3 African-Americans -- excuse me. But, time and 4 time again, we see the courts not reflect that 5 decision, right?

6 For nearly two centuries, Terrebonne Parish
7 has used an at-large voting to maintain racial 8 segregated -- a racially segregated thirty-second 9 judicial district. That system for electing 10 judges has guaranteed black voters -- that black 11 voters, despite having tried in election after 12 election, cannot elect their judge -- elect a 13 judge of their choice. This lawsuit seeks to 14 bring greater inclusion and democratic legitimacy
15 to Terrebonne Parish's political process through 16 district-based voting.

17 And, on another note a local judge in 18 Terrebonne as an act of foolishness dressed up as 19 a pimp with a wigged afro. Later, he added
20 blackface. And this is a judge in Terrebonne
21 Parish behaving this way in front of black 22 residents, voters and people that he is supposed 23 to serve, right? So, not only are we dealing with 24 a super majority that would not listen to our -- 25 our issues or honor the law. We're watching them

1 blatantly make fun of us, characterize us in 2 minstrel type of behavior.

3 Another note, another example is what I'm 4 calling "Kill Bill Super Majority."
5 Jared Brossett -- House Representative Jared 6 Brossett's early voting bill HB 203 is a type of 7 antivoter suppression offense that we need to see 8 more of in our statement and across the country.
9 The bill was recently defeated by a five/two vote, 10 four Republicans along with one Democrat. And 11 that one Democrat represents the district where 12 whites are seventy-one percent and blacks make up 13 some twenty-five percent. So, it doesn't matter 14 that he's a Democrat; he's still pretty much votes
15 with the white majority in his district. A 16 five/two vote is another example of what we're 17 going to have to deal with moving forward over the 18 next two years, right? Coupled with opportunity 19 or the potential opportunity to have a republican 20 president in the White House makes for a recipe
21 for disaster and may be the end of civil liberties 22 in this country as we know it, based on the 23 examples we've seen.

24 But, I am encouraged to say that in 2012 we 25 did see the rise in minority vote in spite of 1 voter suppression efforts across thirty-nine 2 states in America. We saw community-based 3 organizations, individuals, and litigators respond

4 to the propaganda, voter suppression and outright 5 racial acts, attacks on African-Americans and 6 minorities across this country. And that couldn't 7 be more representative in the smoking gun video 8 that basically put on display Mitt Romney's attack 9 on the forty-seven percent, which really helped 10 initiate or add fuel to this rising majority of 11 the minority vote.

12 Also, in New Orleans, we've also seen a shift
13 as a result of organizers, citizens, and elected 14 officials responding to depleted minority seats 15 across the state. In one case, recently, in our 16 elections we had in New Orleans, we've seen our 17 city council shift back to a majority black city 18 council, right? And so, I'm encouraged by these 19 types of examples, although I'm discouraged by 20 what's happening in Baton Rouge as well as 21 Terrebonne Parish. We have a long way to go in 22 order to protect the voting rights of citizens in 23 New Orleans and across the state, but I'm 24 encouraged by what folks are doing across the 25 country, litigators as well as elected officials

1 in trying to turn back this effort by the rising 2 Confederacy and turn back the hands of time and 3 send us back to pre-reconstruction. And so, I
4 yield with that statement. Thank you.

5 CHARMEL GAULDEN:

6 Hi, my name is Charmel Gauden. I'm an 7 attorney who, for the last decade, has worked to 8 increase equity for African-Americans, women, and 9 the poor, through analysis of barriers restricting 10 equity, including housing choice and evolving 11 strategies with targeted litigation and increasing 12 voter participation. A core part of my purpose is 13 to increase equities involving the people most 14 impacted by discriminatory policies and the public 15 participation part of making law, which means it 16 includes policy analysis, voter registration, and 17 voter education. I'd like to thank you for 18 providing me with the opportunity to present both 19 oral and written testimony for the National 20 Commission on Voting Rights Hearing to address the 21 Voting Rights Act following the Supreme Court's 22 decision in Shelby County. I want to especially 23 thank the Lawyers' Committee for its leadership 24 and consistent engagement with local leaders to 25 shape a national strategy to both document the 1 ongoing problem -- problems facing voters in the 2 South, but also to create solutions.

3 So I want to talk to you a little bit -- Trap
4 kind of and the other panelists he levied right
5 into some of the things I wanted to talk about, 6 especially what's going on in Baton Rouge and 7 Terrebonne Parish. In my capacity as a strategist
8 and a consultant to philanthropy, I've been really 9 fortunate to engage in public education campaigns.
10 In my current work, includes educating the public 11 about their role in electing the judiciary. So,
12 I'm a part of the relaunch of Project Justice 13 NOLA, a website that will serve as a source of 14 information for voters in the 2014 election cycle.
15 This website intends to help improve the criminal 16 justice system by assuring access to justice 17 through information, promoting the use of 18 evidence-based best practices, and aiding the 19 public in holding elected and appointed justice 20 officials accountable for the system's performance 21 and outcomes.

22 In addition to the launch of the website, 23 we're also working to develop print materials for 24 distribution to voters during the year. A key 25 part of that work is our support of Law Day

1 activities. As you may know, May 1 is the ADA -- 2 the ADA hosts Law Day celebrations across the 3 country. And this year's theme is especially 4 appropriate, and it's American Democracy and the 5 Rule of Law, Why Every Vote Matters.

6 In light of the Supreme Court's decision in 7 Shelby and the most recent decision, the 8 importance of the individual vote is ever more 9 important. With that framework in mind, I'd like 10 to discuss two assets of critical parts of voting 11 which will require increased vigilance from 12 Congress; access to electoral process and access 13 to information. So, as many of the other 14 panelists have delved into much greater detail 15 than I will about the Voting Rights Act and its 16 instrumental role as a piece of civil rights 17 legislation, I just want to point out that the 18 Voting Rights Act along with the Civil Rights Act 19 of '64, which is now fifty years old, and the 20 Civil Rights Act of '68, which is commonly known 21 as the Fair Housing Act, all work together to 22 create greater economic and political power for 23 minority groups including, but not limited to 24 African-Americans. And Section 5 is an incredibly 25 powerful piece of legislation that we lost, but it

1 creates an opportunity.

2 And one of the things that Trap was talking 3 about what was happening in Baton Rouge, we -- we 4 get to test two things out here in Louisiana. So,
5 kind of an examination of "Hall versus the State 6 of Louisiana" versus the Terrebonne Parish NAACP
7 case. And, specifically because Hall started off
8 both litigating Section 2 and Section 5 of Voting 9 Rights Act which was later struck down, we are 10 able to see it go from pleading stage to what 11 happens in the middle of litigation. And 12 particularly because Hall had retroactive effect, 13 that is a huge question that congress then can 14 answer when formulating how to protect the voting 15 rights, right? So, the Supreme Court may have 16 intended to draw the line right there. No more 17 moving forward with, you know, protections under 18 Section 5. But, the recent application looked 19 back all the way to offenses that happened in 1982 20 in the Hall case that can never seek redress under 21 Section 5. So there's an opportunity there when 22 thinking through reauthorization and reformulation
23 to strike down the retroactive aspect.

24 What also is really interesting from the 25 Terrebonne Parish litigation is we get to watch

1 present day litigation of Section 2 in Louisiana.
2 And I take to heart the earlier comments about how 3 we're getting younger people in the work, right?
4 And thinking through what that looks like because 5 I also echo Tracie's concern about who we're 6 training up in the work, right? So, I am what 7 they would call a baby lawyer, right? It is 8 important for me to be involved in this litigation
9 to understand. And I'm excited to see this moving 10 forward and to have the opportunity to interact 11 with folks who are really doing this work.

12 Key to both of these cases are the 13 unsuccessful attempts to have state legislatures
14 to reform discriminatory policies with no effect.
15 So, this wasn't a litigation that just popped out,
16 right? So they -- especially the Terrebonne
17 Parish NAACP really worked hard with legislature 18 to bring forth, time and time again, a change in 19 the law that would allow them to be able to have 20 representative voting to no avail we saw it in 21 both instances.

22 Judicial elections are incredibly important 23 in Louisiana. As a state with the highest rate of 24 incarceration, one of the most troubling 25 consequences of incarceration and the subsequent

1 collateral consequences that happen later is that 2 loss of the right to vote. So, when we think of 3 the judiciary as an archer of fairness, it becomes 4 incredibly important that we have the component of 5 electoral equity. You know, the judge determines 6 if bond is set. And, if so, in what amount. And 7 this often determines how long someone stays in 8 jail and if they will decide to take a plea
9 bargain just to escape. As you may know, 10 completion, including terms of probation and 11 parole are required in order for voting rights for 12 formerly incarcerated person to be restored. And 13 so, it's incredibly important that we have access 14 to electing judges who understand our experiences, 15 our historical legacy, and just comply with the 16 law.

17 So, my work is providing the community with 18 access to information about voting in judicial 19 elections. And it's created from the 20 understanding that many of the roles judges have 21 in affecting outcomes for our community are 22 impacted with a larger criminal justice system.
23 And since the 1950s, there's been a kind of 24 internal social science debate about who votes and 25 why. And many of those theories develop outside

1 the debates involving discrimination, how there 2 were strands of stereotypes about African-3 Americans' core of women voters that are reflected 4 in some of the original theories.

5 When asked a question of why someone votes 6 and who votes, the typical answer is people who 7 generally care about politics, they have the 8 resources to participate and are asked to be 9 involved. And I am hoping to also test out some 10 theories around voter motivation with this 11 campaign. So, we saw people found a way to vote 12 in incredible ways after Katrina. They voted.
13 They drove in. They had buses. They were 14 fighting for their place through voting. And that 15 underlies voter mobilization as opposed to issue 16 area voting, all right? And so, a real study in 17 understanding that may address some of the issues 18 earlier folks raised about why young people are or 19 are not voting, what's in it for them, and how we 20 move people into action.

21 And I know I'm over time, but just a few 22 quick points about some recommendations moving 23 forward. So, as I stated, eliminating that 24 retroactive effect is incredibly important if 25 we're moving forward, even if Section 5's gutted.

1 But, we also should think through developing some 2 non-geographic standards for pre-clearance. So,
3 using existing data of racial discrimination
4 collected from HUD, EOC, the EPA, and the Consumer
5 Finance Protection Bureau to develop a framework
6 of inequality not tied to geography, but instead 7 tied to lack of opportunity that the VRA sought to 8 address would be my recommendation in thinking 9 through a new standard of pre-clearance.

10 And also the money question of how you fund 11 this type of litigation. I think it calls for an 12 increased public and private partnership and 13 enforcement between codified and law. So,
14 instrumental and the success of the implementation 15 of the VRA has been centralized oversight from the 16 government. And there are scholars hypothesizing 17 that the void created by Shelby will be filled by 18 NGOs and similar community groups. But, as we've 19 heard from the testimony of the panelists, the 20 funding isn't there, the time isn't there, and 21 sometimes the capacity. So, simply the folks on 22 the ground who know the law well enough to be able 23 to navigate it isn't there.

24 This moving it towards NGOs ignores the 25 challenge of funding this type of litigation from

1 either the private markets of philanthropy or just 2 from the community itself. So, if Congress
3 doesn't act to combat the court's ruling in Shelby 4 by creating pre-clearance jurisdiction, then 5 developing a funding stream in the federal budget 6 to ensure private litigants have resources to 7 litigate these cases becomes instrumental. And,
8 as a fair housing advocate, I would recommend 9 looking at the Fair Housing Act and the programs
10 that fund fair housing centers. And perhaps there 11 is an idea there for the Department of Justice to 12 set aside funds for groups like the Lawyers'
13 Committee, NAACP Legal Defense Fund, and other 14 community groups to really tackle this. Instead 15 of a piecemeal approach, a larger systemic and 16 national approach.

17 JENNIFER COCO:

18 Good evening. My name is Jennifer Coco. I 19 am an attorney here in Louisiana, and I work with 20 the Southern Poverty Law Center. But, I'm here
21 today in my capacity as the volunteer statewide 22 coordinator for the Election Protection Program in 23 Louisiana for the November 2012 election. And,
24 for those not familiar with Election Protection, 25 it is a national, non-partisan coalition of 1 volunteer attorneys and legal professionals

2 working to ensure that all voters have an equal 3 opportunity to participate in the electoral 4 process. And the touch tone of Election
5 Protection is the operation of a national hotline 6 that any voter may use to lodge a complaint or ask 7 questions about their voting rights or local 8 election law. And so, my testimony today will 9 summarize the issues and concerns raised by 10 Louisiana voters in the November 2012 election as 11 were recorded in our Election Protection database
12 that I was able to review and get some summary.
13 So, just to give you a sense of the total call 14 volume, before I get to issues that I was able to 15 identify from reviewing records, in advance of the 16 November 2012 election, the Louisiana hotline
17 received calls from eight hundred and ten voters.
18 Of those eight hundred and ten, five hundred and 19 twenty-eight calls came in on election day. And 20 some of the major issues, two hundred and seventy-21 nine callers had questions or confusion or the 22 need for information about their polling place.
23 And I think it's really quite interesting that 24 despite the thing of we have Geaux Vote in 25 Louisiana, that voters are still using Election

1 Protection and not whatever resources are 2 available to them. And an additional three 3 hundred and nine calls came in with people 4 reporting questions, confusion, and the need for 5 information about voter registration. And we've 6 already heard testimony about people calling with 7 confusion about their rights as former ex-
8 offenders. And so, a lot of those calls included 9 issues like that as well as absentee voters.

10 So, the first major issue that I would like 11 to raise -- as someone who is not native to 12 Louisiana I found this issue completely baffling 13 and confusing -- is that Louisiana does have on 14 the law a law that says that voters only have 15 three minutes once they enter the voting booth to 16 finish. And this is a law that is vigorously 17 enforced, as I learned from calls on election day.
18 It's codified at Louisiana Revised Statute 18,
19 Section 563, and then for early voting at 18, 20 Section 309. And so, the calls that I received 21 didn't just come from Orleans Parish; they came 22 from Baton Rouge, they came from St. Tammany. And 23 one particular complaint that resonated with me is 24 that, in Orleans Parish, a poll worker was 25 allegedly timing voters on her iPhone and was

1 banging on the voting machine to tell people they 2 needed to leave. And so, we were getting calls 3 from people who either were personally affected by 4 it or were reporting that they saw people having 5 to leave without finishing their ballots. And I
6 also want to point out that for the November 2012 7 election, there weren't just federal races or 8 local races. There were also three extremely 9 complicated lengthy proposed state constitutional 10 amendments that as an attorney, I barely finished 11 in three minutes because I didn't have a chance to 12 review the ballot before I went in and I was 13 overwhelmed by them. So, I would like to, you 14 know, record that the state law is very 15 problematic for many voters, particularly voters 16 who may have low literacy skills for any number of 17 reasons, poverty, disability. And that, you know, 18 the ability to quickly read and vote on all 19 measures, it compromises their ability to 20 meaningfully engage. And I think it also 21 compromises many people's ability to even finish 22 their ballots. Particularly, when it got to the 23 end of the ballot was three very complicated 24 constitutional amendments that had -- were really 25 important key issues for all Louisianians.

1 So, the second major issue I want to 2 summarize is what appeared to me to be the 3 inconsistent administration of elections and 4 polling places throughout the state. And so, I'll 5 go into some of specific issues that I was able to 6 see from all the calls that came in. But, what it 7 appears is that there are inconsistencies with the 8 way that elections in polling places are being 9 administered. And I was personally quite 10 frustrated in my ability to either contact parish 11 boards of elections or even a state board of 12 election to address my complaints coming in that 13 for me, sitting in New Orleans were happening
14 across the state, that, as the statewide 15 coordinator, I was powerless to get in my car and 16 go fix and was unable to contact the state board 17 of elections to fix it.

18 So, for instance we received seventy-eight 19 calls from people reporting that their voter 20 registration efforts had been futile. So, for 21 example, there were calls from St. Landry and 22 Iberia Parishes where callers had said that they 23 went to the DMV and did the motor voter 24 registration and their registrations were never 25 processed and as of election day, they found out

1 they weren't registered to vote. Several other 2 callers complained that they had tried to register
3 at their local Medicaid offices and that whatever 4 paperwork they filled out was never processed and 5 somehow got lost. And lastly, one caller 6 complained on behalf of allegedly hundreds of 7 students at the Southern Louisiana Community
8 College which serves Southwestern Louisiana that 9 there had been a massive voting registration drive 10 and, yet, for those hundreds of students, their 11 voter registration materials were never processed.

12 There were also calls reporting problems with 13 voting equipment. Fifteen such calls covering 14 Orleans, Jefferson, St. Tammany, St. James, 15 St. Landry, and Calcasieu Parishes. And various 16 individuals, volunteers with the program who tried 17 to call the state board of elections and local 18 board of elections, they weren't able to get 19 through and get it resolved. We've already heard 20 about issues with language access. Particularly, 21 that in New Orleans East, there were no Vietnamese 22 poll workers to assist Vietnamese speakers. And 23 what I want to follow up on my colleagues' 24 testimony is that calls to the local board of 25 elections to get assistance on that issue were

1 unsuccessful. At the time that I received the 2 complaint, we weren't able to get through to 3 anybody.

4 And then I want to end with what I've lumped 5 together as inappropriate conduct of various 6 statewide polling places that I think really 7 illustrates that different parishes are taking it 8 upon themselves to administer their elections in 9 whatever local way they choose. So, specifically,
10 in Calcasieu and Terrebonne Parishes, we received 11 several complaints that local election officials 12 have just chosen to shorten the hours of their 13 polling places. In Terrebonne Parish, there was a 14 complaint that one polling place chose not to open 15 till 11 a.m. and then decided to close at 7:00.
16 And, again, I personally tried to reach the state 17 board of elections to lodge a complaint and seek 18 assistance, only to discover that the phone lines 19 were down and I had no way to get in touch with 20 somebody.

21 In another Terrebonne Parish polling place,
22 election officials were asking voters to line up 23 by political party. In St. Bernard Parish, we 24 received a number of complaints that a polling 25 place location that had served the community for

1 years had been changed with no notice and 2 people -- there was one particular family, a 3 mother, a father, and a son somehow were all sent 4 to three different polling places despite living 5 at the same address and had no transportation to 6 get there and were just generally baffled at what 7 had happened to their community polling center.
8 In Iberia Parish, a poll worker was overheard
9 making derogatory comments about President Obama
10 to voters, and I guess efforts to lodge a 11 complaint about that were unsuccessful. In Caddo 12 Parish, there was an electioneering. There were 13 signs for Romney displayed within twenty-five feet
14 of the polling place, and calls to Caddo Parish 15 board of elections was unsuccessful, as their line
16 was busy. And lastly, in East Baton Rouge Parish,
17 local police in Baker, Louisiana -- I received a 18 call from a voter who said that local police had 19 set up a police blockade one block from a polling 20 place that served predominantly African-American 21 residents in Baker, Louisiana. And all voters had 22 to cross the police blockade to enter the polling 23 place. And so many people were either turning 24 around or felt uncomfortable doing that. And this 25 caller specifically received a citation for

1 smoking a cigarette in his car in front of a minor 2 inside of the vehicle, which I later learned is 3 actually illegal in Louisiana. But, that the 4 caller did not know that at the time and felt very 5 uncomfortable, and efforts to kind of resolve that 6 were unsuccessful.

7 So, you know, based on the totality of this 8 it was -- it was alarming. And, frankly, I felt a 9 little powerless that day because, again, I was 10 one person in New Orleans with a bunch of really 11 fantastic eager law students working as 12 volunteers. But, you know, together we were 13 unable to go out and fix these things throughout 14 the state and really left me a little discouraged 15 and concerned about the way and the manner in 16 which the state board of elections was, you know, 17 ensuring that we have a fair administration of 18 elections throughout the state. Thank you.

19 DR. MICHELLE DELIMA:

20 Good evening. My name is Dr. Michelle 21 DeLima. I am an assistant professor here at 22 Delgado Community College.

23 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

24 How do you spell your last name?

25 MICHELLE DELIMA:

1 D-e-L-I--a. And I didn't intend to speak
2 today, but I was offered to speak because I have 3 worked as poll commissioner in Jefferson Parish.
4 I was newly commissioned for the November 2012
5 election because I felt that election was pivotal.
6 It needed to be -- it needed witnesses. It 7 needed -- it was an important election. So, my 8 concerns are about the logistics of the voting
9 process, mainly. Some observations I met as poll 10 commissioner -- we were told as commissioners to 11 not vote on election day. We were instructed to 12 come in in advance and participate in early 13 voting. Well, I think the early voting process is 14 only one week in duration, and it's the week 15 before the election is held, which I believe is 16 too short because the day I went, the lines were 17 extraordinarily long. There was a large police 18 presence, and I voted at the Eastbank Jefferson 19 Parish. And we had to snake around the building 20 and up several floors. They escorted us up like 21 five at a time, and there were police presence all 22 over at different points along the way. I think 23 that's unacceptable. It's extremely intimidating.
24 It took me three hours to vote. I also witnessed, 25 once I got up to the commission place where the

1 clerk of court's office is, when I walked in, I 2 saw people being rushed through. And most of 3 these people I witnessed were minorities. They 4 were being told "Oh, just vote for president and 5 leave." They weren't given the adequate time to 6 vote for all of the -- the constitutional
7 amendments and the other elections on there. I 8 felt that that was an injustice, you know, that 9 it -- poll workers at the -- at that place were 10 very impatient with people, and I thought that was 11 unacceptable.

12 On election day, at that time the polls still 13 opened at 6:00 a.m. At 6:00 a.m. -- we got there 14 at 5:30 to set up and the lines were massive 15 between 6:00 and 7:00. There's so many people in 16 line to come vote before they go to work. I think 17 that's a travesty for it to be -- that hour to be 18 eliminated. They really should go back to that 19 6:00 a.m.

20 Yes, Louisiana requires a voter I.D. But, if 21 you do not bring the voter I.D. -- and I apologize
22 I don't know the law and statute -- you can sign 23 an affidavit. Well, the affidavit process is very 24 cumbersome. And if someone comes without an I.D., 25 it takes us at least ten minutes to sit there and

1 go through, fill out the form and everything.
2 It's very cumbersome for this affidavit process.
3 Perhaps, this is how the State of Louisiana gets 4 by -- gets through with the voter rights in which 5 the incidents that have been going on in Texas and 6 what not that you have to have an I.D. But, 7 still, the process is unacceptable.

8 Another problem in Jefferson Parish is they 9 change polling places very often and people are 10 not being notified. We had several incidences of 11 very -- people who are very frustrated not having 12 their proper place to vote. Another thing about 13 the polling place itself. Previously, I had a 14 neighborhood polling place. Well, that was 15 combined with four to six precincts in one place.
16 And the way that we -- we had no guidance as to 17 how to set up the flow of traffic coming in. It 18 was very confusing to the people who were voting.
19 There was nothing, no guidance. It's like we kind 20 of had to fend for ourselves and figure out the 21 best way to help people vote in the process.

22 I really think there needs to be a better
23 process for vetting poll workers. The poll 24 workers that I encountered, I think there was 25 probably maybe thirty to thirty-five at that

1 combined precinct, extremely slow, not well-2 versed, really kind of goofing off. That, and to 3 only have a meet up with a poll worker once every 4 two years is insufficient. They need to be 5 encountered more frequently than that.

6 And I would like to finish with, as an 7 educator, I think education is crucial in 8 motivating and evolving people, especially young 9 people in the voting process. It starts with the 10 schools. It starts in the high school. It starts 11 in the colleges. Why not with Common Core make a 12 voting sensitivity or a voting module to help 13 people? And then it would be nationwide. Is 14 there -- is there a place, is there a discussion
15 to maybe make the voting rights a nationwide, 16 instead of relegating it to the states making all 17 these decisions? That would be helpful.

18 And another thing, lastly, young people use 19 this (holding up phone). Why can't we go to 20 electronic voting? Young people are going to be 21 engaged in online and Smartphones and iPads. Why 22 can't we go to being able to register them to vote 23 electronically? They can vote via email. That 24 could free up a lot of the people who are present 25 at the polling stations and make that a more

1 streamline process. Thank you for your time.

2 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

3 Thank you. We're going to start with 4 Commissioner Taylor this time. Do you have any --

5 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

6 Oh, well, thank you so much. I have a couple 7 of questions. First of all, is it Charmel?

8 CHARMEL GAULDEN:

9 Yes.

10 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

11 You spoke about, you know, the fact -- you 12 made a very good point about why every vote 13 counts. What's going on in Terrebonne? We're 14 familiar, the NAACP, with the situation with the 15 judges. Where are you at right now with that 16 case? What is --

17 CHARMEL GAULDEN:

18 So, it's not my case, but --

19 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

20 Right. I understand.

21 CHARMEL GAULDEN:

22 -- so the complaint has been filed. All of y'all
23 did a great job of bringing a lot of publicity -- 24 oh, I'm sorry -- a lot of publicity about what's 25 happening there. And so, I think there has

1 been -- the answered, but there haven't been any 2 motions for summary judgement, so it's still 3 progressive.

4 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

5 Okay. So it's still in progress? Okay.

6 Thank you. Ms. Jennifer?

7 JENNIFER COCO:

8 Uh-huh.

9 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

10 Before the election, you know, you spoke 11 about -- and I'm not a lawyer, so I guess this is, 12 you know, my -- my dumbness here. When there is a 13 rule on the books that says you have three minutes 14 to vote, what can be done to change some of the 15 laws that exists that we know should be changed?

16 JENNIFER COCO:

17 Well, I mean, brainstorming with my lawyer 18 that on, the first thing you could try is to go to 19 the legislature and tell them that is not a good 20 idea, given the, you know, the extremely high 21 rates of poverty throughout the state -- that is, 22 you know, not a black or white issue. That's 23 affecting everybody -- that maybe that's just not 24 a good idea. But, you know, I think there is 25 certainly a compelling case for thinking through

1 litigation that, you know, it's a modern day
2 literacy test in a way that is certainly impacting 3 people. But, one thing that I -- that I did see, 4 and again, that wasn't part of our training when 5 we were training volunteers and it was something I 6 only sort of came across on election day, which we 7 really confused me about what was going on, and 8 one thing I did see jurisdictions doing is that I 9 could tell they were trying to urge people -- at 10 least I that election, I chose to early vote and 11 at city hall in New Orleans because I knew I 12 wasn't going to have time to go on election day.
13 And I did see that they had giant posters up, so 14 they were trying to encourage people to read 15 through everything and make their decisions before 16 they entered the polling place.

17 So, I see their arguments that, you know, it 18 helps with efficiency and that people don't stay 19 in there for too long. But, you know, I just -- 20 there's something about being in there by yourself 21 with the curtain around you and it's quiet and 22 you're getting a chance to really think through 23 it, especially if maybe it's on a -- you know an 24 ancillary issue you haven't thought too much 25 about. I just -- I think the -- the ability to 1 let somebody take their time in there outweighs

2 concerns about efficiency. But, I think, you 3 know, there are certainly different things that we 4 could try to do to, you know, to convince 5 lawmakers it's not a good idea.

6 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

7 Those of us involved in elections know about 8 election protection. We know the importance of 9 it. There's a whole lot of folks who vote that 10 don't. So, what ideas do you have to make this 11 something that more people -- I always say you can 12 have the best ice cream in the world, but if no 13 one knows about it all, it's going to do is melt.
14 So, what can you do -- what can you do to get that 15 word out I guess better or --

16 JENNIFER COCO:

17 Absolutely. I -- I think that, certainly for 18 me, at the point in time at which I became a 19 volunteer statewide coordinator, I was actually 20 fairly new to New Orleans. And I look forward to 21 getting to do that job again so I can do it much 22 better and ensure that more people are aware of 23 it. You know, I know Marcia and the National 24 Lawyers' Committee does a great job making sure 25 people are aware. But, I think, particularly in

1 Louisiana, what did concern me is we still got 2 eight hundred and ten calls with very little 3 personal outreach by myself to advertise it. So, 4 what really scares me is the stuff that's going on 5 that the people without the information aren't 6 reporting. So, I think it would be great 7 something I personally would like to do next time, 8 is to make, you know, better effort of contacting 9 folks in the major cities in Shreveport and 10 Bossier Parish and Lafayette and Baton Rouge to 11 make sure that I have a coordinated effort that's 12 not just in New Orleans. And I think probably 13 better outreach with radio stations, local radio 14 stations that we know people that are maybe at a 15 higher likelihood of getting disenfranchised might 16 also be listening to to make sure that they know 17 what the phone number is. And again, I think 18 better recruitment and more aggressive recruitment 19 of volunteers and really working -- starting to 20 work in the summertime to get ready instead of, 21 you know -- I joined the game very late. I had a 22 few weeks to put something together. And so,
23 working for months to make sure that more people
24 are engaged and that we do a better -- a better 25 job making sure people across the state are aware

1 of it.

2 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

3 Thank you. I just have one last question
4 because it might not come down this way again.
5 Doc, you made the statement that the ten-minute 6 process of filling out the affidavit --

7 MICHELLE DELIMA:

8 Yes, sir.

9 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

10 -- if they don't have the proper information --

11 MICHELLE DELIMA:

12 Yes.

13 REVEREND CHIPPS TAYLOR:

14 -- is somewhat tedious or shouldn't be done that 15 way. What suggestion do you have of a better way 16 to do it?

17 MICHELLE DELIMA:

18 I think that they would still need to sign a 19 form, but I think it would need to be streamlined.
20 It would just need to be one or two statements and 21 "I attest that this is my name, this is my 22 address, I live here," thank you, goodbye, sign, 23 vote. It just seemed like it was -- and it 24 happened more so than I thought it would during 25 the day. And I live, unfortunately, in a very

1 Republican precinct. Sorry, I apologize. And so,
2 I thought that I wouldn't see it as much as I did
3 in say a more impoverished area, but I think it 4 needs to be streamlined, especially for people who 5 are disenfranchised for -- who don't have the I.D.
6 that they need to vote. So, I just think it needs 7 to be streamlined.

8 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

9 Thank you.

10 MICHELLE DELIMA:

11 Yes.

12 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

13 Sounds like something as simple as getting a 14 form notarized. But, anyway, I want to thank you 15 guys. Particularly, you, Charmel. I think you 16 gave some interesting suggestions in terms of 17 funding set-asides from the DOJ and looking at 18 some kind of non-traditional items for how we set 19 pre-clearance standards and things like that. So, 20 I think that gives us a lot to take home.

21 But, Trap, it's good to see you again it's 22 been a while. But, I want to go to something that 23 you mentioned and this may be just open for the 24 panel, but you mentioned the voter purging post 25 Katrina that led to a racial paradigm shift. And

1 I just -- and we all know that certainly those in 2 New Orleans, in particular, as you gave certain 3 statistics around our city council and other 4 positions, we know that to be the case. How 5 important is it then that, not to just at a local 6 level, but even statewide we have more minority
7 representation? Because I heard all you guys talk 8 to different bills -- not the last one -- but 9 getting killed in the legislature, right? We 10 can't get voting -- early voting on Sunday with 11 representative Brossett's bill. We can't, you 12 know -- so many efforts that seem to fail. We 13 heard Norris on a previous panel talk about his 14 continual attempts around, you know, expanding it 15 for ex-offenders and things like that. How do we 16 start to get to change the tide, if you will?

17 TRUPANIA BONNER:

18 You know, one thing is this, you know. In 19 times past, African-Americans in this past 20 cultivated political power by participating in the 21 census and redistricting process. If you 22 remember, after slavery ended, before that,
23 understanding that political power in America is a 24 numbers game, right, a population numbers game, 25 with slaves heavily concentrated in the South with

1 us having the right to be counted in the census,
2 be counted as citizens, be counted in the census
3 and having the ability to vote literally created 4 political power overnight in the South for 5 African-Americans, at least for African-American 6 males we had the right to vote.

7 And so -- so part of it is, one, us making 8 political civic engagement a part of our 9 lifestyle, right, as opposed to engaging in or -- 10 civic engagement versus civic participation is 11 where I'm at, right? We participate on voting 12 day. Engagement is about participating in the 13 advocacy process, going on the offensive in terms
14 of drafting bills such as Representative Brossett 15 did, because his voting bill is a type of 16 antivoter suppression bill, right? And we need 17 more of that in our state and across the South.
18 But, in order to replenish political seats that 19 we've lost in the South over the past twenty years
20 -- and there's some research on this. Dr. David 21 Bosisis (ph) at the Joint Center for Political and 22 Economic Studies did extensive research on this,
23 how we've literally -- how we've basically 24 resegregated the south politically, right? And 25 so, in order to replenish those political seats

1 we've lost, we actually have to get out there,
2 educate our voters about the importance of voting
3 to them, right? 2008 was a moment where everyone 4 was galvanized to support one candidate, right, 5 because they felt that candidate was connected to 6 them in some way. And, on a regular basis, 7 concerned citizens don't feel that way. They 8 don't feel that connection to their 9 representatives, right, because we don't elect 10 candidates of our choice based on our 11 relationships. We show up and we vote for the 12 black person or the white person. And that's the 13 truth, right?

14 So one, making political civic engagement as 15 a part of our lifestyle, but engaging in the 16 census and redistricting process. We organize 17 community campaigns from New Orleans to Dothan, 18 Alabama, across the coast to get folks out to be 19 counted in an area where we felt like we just got 20 duped by the federal government post Katrina, 21 right? Now we're asking them to engage in a 22 federally mandated process, right? Which is a 23 paradox there. But, through heavy voter -- heavy 24 engagement with residents post Katrina, educating 25 them about the census process, passing out the 1 forms letting them know that it's ten questions,

2 not thirty anymore and sort of easing the pain
3 about that process, once we get our folks counted 4 now federal dollars flow within our districts as 5 opposed to outside of our districts and our 6 districts don't shrink. So, we don't lose the 7 ability to elect the candidate of our choice when 8 we participate in that process.

9 Another thing we did was we went out and 10 bought the redistricting software that legislators 11 use. We learned how to draw by hand by Hollis in 12 Mississippi, and then we bought the software and 13 we began to educate residents on how to use it.
14 When I mention that we lost about four -- five -- 15 five majority -- majority minority districts and 16 retrogressed to three, we actually drew a map that 17 had us only lose one district as opposed to three, 18 right? And so, that map was not pre-cleared by 19 the Department of Justice. Here's why. Just like 20 the one democrat that voted against Brossett's 21 bill, we had the Democrat that actually drew a bad
22 map. And so, with the Democrat drawing the bad 23 map, Democratic white house in the presidential 24 election year, we're not going to win. And we 25 need to money to litigate because of that, right?

1 And so, when budget cuts happened -- I'm 2 digressing now. But, yes, making it a part of our 3 lifestyle is sort of the movement.

4 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

5 I could appreciate that. I think that we 6 don't talk enough about the census and 7 redistricting as part of this process.

8 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

9 My question is more of a rhetorical question.
10 I was young one time, if anybody's seen me. But, 11 my question is why have we -- what has happened to 12 young people over the last fifty years that they 13 don't understand the importance of voting? I knew 14 if white people didn't want me to vote, I should 15 vote. I mean, we make excuses. We didn't have 16 Internet. We didn't have the kinds of 17 communication that we have which makes it very 18 easy for us to communicate. What has happened to 19 young people that they don't value these things 20 anymore?

21 TRUPANIA BONNER:

22 A part of it is your fault. You know, here's 23 the thing. There's an intergenerational divide, 24 right, in terms of participants and beneficiaries 25 of the civil rights movement, right? There's been

1 a disconnect in the transfer of information and 2 education in terms of the struggle to obtain 3 citizenship and rights in this country. We have 4 lost touch with that, all right? So, I think in 5 terms of engaging young folks, other than actually 6 meeting them where they, we have to begin a 7 process of transferring our history to those young 8 folks.

9 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

10 But we said that thirty years ago, forty 11 years ago, you know, the young people are going to 12 take over and they're going to be leaders of 13 tomorrow and we've got to prepare them, but I hear 14 the same old excuses.

15 TRUPANIA BONNER:

16 Yeah. In 2008, young folks turned out.

17 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

18 But they didn't turn out. Sixty-nine percent 19 voted.

20 TRUPANIA BONNER:

21 2012, even more.

22 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

23 No. Fewer than sixty-nine percent voted in 24 2012.

25 TRUPANIA BONNER:

1 Well, I'll say this. What's been encouraging
2 in New Orleans and other parts of this state is 3 the young folks on a collegiate level, of 4 students, college students, getting more involved
5 and organizing on college campuses to get folks 6 out to vote. And, you know, it really begins with 7 making the connection with traditional civil 8 rights organizations, current community-based 9 organizations, and attorneys, advocates to 10 actually form a collective to actually ramp up 11 education across our state and across our 12 districts. But, I'll let Charmel speak to that.

13 CHARMEL GAULDEN:

14 So, I think that that is a valid point and 15 something that I heard kind of consistently from 16 the panel and the panelists. But a couple of 17 things, right? I was having this discussion with 18 my mother, who in her own right, is a professor 19 and, you know, she's one of those people who ran 20 for school superintendent in rural Georgia and 21 dead people voted. So, she experienced voter 22 fraud, right? And we were trying to think through 23 why some people are activated and some people 24 weren't. And a lot of it was, as she explained, 25 the conversation that continued later in our

1 homes. So, she made a conscious point to have 2 certain conversations with us about the importance
3 of voting and why it mattered. Other people, 4 based on what their struggle was, couldn't relive
5 those memories, right? So, when Travis talked 6 about Hollis is, yeah, a legendary Mississippi
7 civil rights leader, so I knew that Hollis has a 8 constant conversation. But, other people who may 9 have had a similar struggle can't relive that 10 pain, right? So that's one thing.

11 The other thing is we don't have the same
12 name on the enemy, right? So, it is much easier 13 for people of a past generation to say, well, 14 this -- this was something racist that happened
15 because racism was so much more oppressively out.
16 There were hoses, there were dogs, you couldn't 17 drink here. Versus now we have systemic racism, 18 right? So, unless you have a certain level of 19 knowledge, you may not understand that these 20 systems are put in place and are oppressing you
21 and, yes, they are based on race. And people 22 haven't taken the time to really explain that.
23 That's also why I am excited about thinking 24 through some of this voter motivation piece, 25 because you have the opportunity to explain what

1 those systems are. And it is especially 2 troubling -- in this Supreme Court, it is 3 especially troubling when we think through tearing 4 down systemic things, right? So, like they keep 5 revisiting disparate impact in the Fair Housing 6 Act. We see the striking down of Section 5. We 7 are constantly under the attack for people to 8 understand what those larger systems are.

9 And then the third thing I would point to is 10 we have an opportunity with what you said with the 11 web, right? So, I was thinking about Erika's 12 point about how do we get more people involved, 13 how do we get people in to kind of participate in 14 voting for the legislators who are making the laws 15 that are impacting us. And Trap made a great 16 point about not just having people show up on one 17 day to make it a part of the everyday life. And I
18 was a at a second line on, Sunday and that's a 19 part of my everyday life here, right? So, I know 20 where to look. I know where to go. I know, you 21 know, I know how to, you know, work the route and 22 come back home, right? But, that's a part of what 23 I expect to happen during festival season and to 24 lead up into the fall. I'm not sure if we engage 25 the public in that large debate around "This is

1 your role and this is what is expected." And then 2 we don't have people getting back a benefit.
3 Like, they're not seeing themselves reflected, and 4 then there's that question of benefit.

5 So, what do we do about it, right? So I
6 think one of the things that's really exciting
7 about Project Justice NOLA is we get to test out a 8 sneaky way of involving web and voting and 9 thinking about justice in people's everyday lives.
10 So, not just in the website, but the things that I 11 know people of my generation, how we get news, 12 Twitter, our social circle, Facebook. And people 13 may resist it, but we're learning news much more 14 from the people we are around versus what's 15 supposed to be an objective standard. And I say 16 "supposed to be" thinking through our two 17 newspapers. So, there are a lot of things that 18 are different barriers for us, but we also haven't 19 been equipped with some of the same tools that you 20 all received.

21 So, in a separate hat I am working with a 22 foundation to develop kind of a tool kit for 23 emerging leaders, which I will be classified as, 24 to try and engage people more in the process. And 25 what is exciting to me about that is it's being

1 involving people like Hollis who are being our 2 elders to show us how to move through, right? So, 3 we need to understand what the stories are in 4 order for us to be engaged in a different way.

5 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

6 I have one final comment. The elephant in 7 the room that everybody wants ignored is the 8 fearful white majority, that either we're going to 9 have to lay their fears that there's nothing to 10 fear because they're not going to be the majority 11 any longer, but we're still going to have the 12 power. But, wait until 2035 when they are no 13 longer the majority and then the minority will be 14 majority. That is the problem that we have. We 15 didn't have that fear in 1960 when whites were 16 eighty-seven percent of the population. Until we 17 get that message over to those who somehow or 18 another fear that we are losing power because 19 we're not having as many children for whatever 20 reason, that there's nothing to fear. So, that is 21 the elephant in the room. I'm sorry.

22 CHARMELE GAULDEN:

23 So -- and I want to toss this over to Trap
24 because that's why I think the census piece is so 25 important, right? So thinking through the 1 changing definitions of whiteness and what has 2 happened to expand what that means, and the 3 contrast around whether -- whether you can relay 4 the fear without a real conversation about race,

5 right? And to really think through why
6 protections have to be in place, what they mean, 7 and for everyone to own what their role is, both 8 black and white. And that's a difficult 9 conversation most people are not interested in 10 having. And until we start to force some of those 11 conversations, we're going to see an increasing 12 definition of whiteness to hold on to that power.

13 DR. RAPHAEL CASSIMERE, JR:

14 That's right. That's right.

15 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

16 Before you pass it to Trap, I want to make 17 one comment, though, for him since he's going to 18 handle it. I had the pleasure of working for the 19 census department for 2010. I started work 20 December of 2008. It was supposed to be a three-21 month job. I did not end up my tenure until April 22 of 2010. So, I worked many different facets of 23 it. One of the most interesting points I saw was, 24 again, like we showed, it wasn't a thirty 25 question. The questionnaire had ten questions.

1 You got out the house, brother, ten cars parked in 2 the parking lot -- in the driveway, you knock on 3 the door, "I'm with the census. I come to find 4 out how many people live here, you know, get the 5 names," whatever. "We've got two people."

6 "Excuse me?" "We got two people." And we found 7 out that the reason, again, the logic is is that 8 they felt that if they gave us the correct 9 information that either their food stamps was 10 going to be affected, their income, unemployment 11 or something was going to be affected. But,
12 again, they didn't understand and we let them know 13 we could not share any of the information that we 14 got from the Census Bureau with any other agency, 15 period. But, to convince them of that, you know, 16 is like the mindset, so I think education is -- is 17 key.

18 And going back to what, you know, you said to 19 Doc, it's a two way street, my brother. We have 20 the knowledge and we share the knowledge. But, as 21 young people -- my wife is NAACP College and Youth
22 Chapter, the advisor. We had sixteen college 23 chapters in the state, two of them were in 24 compliance. My wife now has probably close to ten 25 in compliance by trying to educate. But, you know

1 how many young folks felt, "Why should we be 2 involved?" So, we have to give them a reason to 3 be involved. And we can't just share on, you
4 know, the fact that yeah we died -- many people 5 died to vote. Because young people look at me and 6 say, "Hey, that's your problem. Okay, what's in 7 it for me?" So it has to be a two-way dialogue 8 to -- to get people involved.

9 TRUPANIA BONNER:

10 And in terms of that message around the 11 census, it has to be a culturally competent 12 message, right? You know, one thing we did and we 13 worked with Urban League other folks in this 14 partnership in producing media, you know, around 15 the importance of the census. We got a New 16 Orleans Saints player to come in and speak the 17 rhetoric. But, the point was, you know, one of 18 the videos had depicted a census agent knocking on 19 a door, and the people on the inside thought they 20 were the feds, right? And, you know, the guy at 21 the door had to explain, "I'm not the feds." We 22 didn't get "X" amount of people counted last time 23 we had the census and this is how much federal 24 money we lost, right? We go straight to the 25 money. It's not going to put money in your

1 pocket, but it's going to put money in your 2 community for infrastructure, right?

3 But, again, it's that message, it's how you 4 convey it to the young folks, and we use media in 5 that way. And it looks like for 2020, we're going 6 to have to create Vine videos in six seconds.

7 That was a thirty-second spot. I think we're down 8 to six seconds on this one.

9 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

10 Sound bytes.

11 TRUPANIA BONNER:

12 You know, the other piece in leading in, I 13 wanted to say, and this is how I was going to 14 open. What I wanted to do when I walked in this 15 room was set myself on fire, but I'm not sure if 16 folks would have got the gesture, all right. In 17 regard to the super Republican -- the super 18 majorities across the South and the potential with 19 having a Republican president in 2016 is -- is 20 civil rights leaders, our elders, they should be 21 shaking in their bones when we saw the civil 22 right -- the Voting Rights Act get struck down.
23 It should have been a beacon, it should have been 24 a bell, it should have been a horn to get moving, 25 right? And, you know, I'll offend some folks when

1 I said I know you're thinking you're working, but 2 we've got to work a little harder, we've got to 3 ramp it up across the board, right? And, in 2021 4 if we don't have any money to sue for 5 redistricting, forget about it. We needed a 6 mill -- over a million dollars just to get into 7 the game. And then the timeline to actually file
8 suit, present matters, we have no idea. So, there 9 needs to be some levels of reform not only in 10 census, but for redistricting and voter
11 suppression. You know, actually we need -- 12 someone, I think it was (inaudible) or someone 13 else said we actually need to make voter 14 suppression somehow a way -- some kind of a way 15 connected to the constitution as opposed to a 16 federal mandated process, right, or whatever.
17 But, yeah, it is the elephant in the room the one 18 no one wants to talk about it. You saw the 19 Confederate flag get added to the Georgia license 20 plate; you saw these young kids get shot in 21 Florida and not get any justice because people are 22 not in the right positions to make decisions, 23 culturally competent decisions about what's going 24 on in our communities, right? And so, I know 25 having a majority black -- majority minority -- a

1 majority majority minority right here in New 2 Orleans doesn't mean that we're going to always 3 have access to everything, right? But, what does 4 it look like in New Orleans currently where 5 African-Americans are majority population but the 6 establishment is majority white? What do we call 7 that in Africa, right? And so, let's get ready.
8 And meaning getting ready means we have to go to 9 the offensive. We have to write bills. We have 10 to draft bills. We have to support bills, right?
11 And so, I'll yield with that.

12 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

13 And you also have to join the civil rights 14 organizations such as The Urban League and the 15 NAACP and become part of it to make a difference.

16 TRUPANIA BONNER:

17 I'll tell you what. If the NAACP will make 18 available to community-based advocates tools we 19 needed -- tools we need to better engage, I don't 20 care if it's the mobile thing or just having all 21 the data on precincts, et cetera, I think we could 22 ramp up education, right? It's just that the 23 folks on the ground, we don't have the tools.

24 ERIKA MCCONDUIT:

25 I take that as a -- I take that as a

1 personal challenge, but I'll make sure that I 2 actually go and look into that because it's always 3 great to have take-a-ways across the board. The 4 only thing I'll say as to your last comment, Trap.
5 I think that more than just civil rights leaders 6 from the past should be shaking in their boots.
7 You know, I think this goes to the Doctor's point
8 that we are not teaching. People -- we didn't 9 know what happened to us with the Shelby decision.
10 That's the reality. Our kids, the younger 11 generation, the millennials even, you know, I'm 12 caught in between, right, but people didn't 13 realize what actually happened in the Shelby case 14 because we don't educate them about certain things 15 like The Voting Rights Act. And so, we do need to 16 do a better job. And maybe it is a rightful
17 suggestion around Common Core to develop a 18 standard that speaks to that. But, we need to do 19 a better job across the board in engaging all of 20 the sectors of the community. Certainly, we 21 cannot only lay it on young people. We cannot 22 only lay it on the elderly. We can't only lay it 23 on certain, you know, certain other minority
24 groups to hold their own in terms of Hispanic
25 rights and Vietnamese rights and even the rights

1 of the ex-offender. So, we have to be, I think, 2 much more intentional about collaborating and 3 sharing resources because we know that our 4 resources are scarce. And so, I just wanted to 5 close out. I know that our time is -- has come to 6 an end, and I actually have to run. I have the 7 kids that must be picked up. But, I want to thank 8 you all for your -- your testimony and for 9 allowing us to be here. The Urban League is 10 strongly committed to this issue. We have been 11 and we are taking it on as an organizational 12 challenge to be much more engaged moving forward.

13 And so, please call on me. As much as I can 14 extend my networks, we have ninety-five affiliates
15 across the United States. We have a vast network
16 of active people on the ground. And so, I want us 17 to figure out how to have more of a national 18 agenda and be better partners to all of the 19 advocacy groups doing work around the country.
20 So, certainly, call on me and I can help touch my 21 colleagues across the country. Thanks.

22 REV. CHIPPS TAYLOR:

23 And, in my closing statements, again, I want to 24 echo what was said at the NAACP at the national 25 level has many of the techniques that you speak

1 of. We just had a major in the fifth district
2 election, we had a major role in that and we used 3 all the modern technology from the tweeting. We 4 tweeted out the message to the individuals. We 5 have a van system that's in place that gives 6 exactly who, what, and where as far as the 7 voting's concerned. So, the information is there.
8 However, we need young individuals to join us so 9 that we can all make it happen. Just like the 10 lady said, we need to work with The Urban League, 11 which we do, but we also need to work with all the 12 different organizations, bring them all together.
13 I'm a firm believer in the church that we work 14 together and we can all be successful. No one is 15 at fault. We all are, okay. But, the only way 16 we're going to make a difference is for all of us 17 to get together and work at it and change what the 18 inevitable is.

19 Just like you said, we as seniors should have 20 been appalled about what happened with the Voting 21 Rights Act, and many of us were and we -- we did 22 what we could do, but we, again, going back to the 23 education piece, a lot of young folks didn't 24 understand what the voting rights meant, you know, 25 what -- what do you mean Section 5? You've still

1 got the voting rights what's the difference? But, 2 it's up the lawyers, it's up to the educators to 3 educate to let folks know what they lost. I 4 started off my statement by saying that we at the 5 NAACP feel that with the voting rights like it is, 6 they left us the car, they just took out the 7 engine.

8 MARCIA JOHNSON-BLANCO:

9 Well, I want to thank you for hanging in 10 there and providing this very important testimony.
11 You certainly embodied that the last is not least.
12 I learned a lot here today, not just about the 13 problems in Louisiana, but you've also shared with 14 us very great creative suggestions that we take to 15 heart. We started today with Dr. Lee talking 16 about approaching voting as a singular act. And, 17 Mr. Bonner, you brought it full circle with 18 talking about civic engagement and how we do that 19 and how -- what a great role education could play 20 in that.

21 And when we started, when we constituted the 22 National Commission on Voting Rights, one of our 23 key goals was to provide that education to start 24 talking about what the Shelby decision meant, to 25 develop that record of discrimination in voting

1 and what's really happening with voting. And 2 then, also, we are going to issue reports of what 3 we hear and make sure that we spread that widely 4 out to all of our networks and so that you can use 5 that information as well in what the work you do.

6 And to that end, I just want to mention
7 before Meredith comes up to officially close 8 things out, that we see this as the beginning of 9 our conversation engagement with you. This is not 10 the end. And we definitely are committed to using 11 the resources that we have on a national level to 12 continue working with you and sharing what we have 13 in building that community. And not just the 14 Lawyers' Committee, I know the NAACP, LDF and 15 Advancement Project and other national civil 16 rights litigation groups who are involved in this 17 fight. The fight is huge, more than all of us.
18 And we definitely need to come together and to 19 work together to push back and fight back. And 20 so, that's -- I wanted to end with that commitment 21 from us, that we plan to continue our engagement.
22 And to that end, we are developing a tool kit to 23 provide information about the Shelby decision and 24 also how national civil rights groups can work 25 with you to train the community and, more

1 importantly, to become the eyes and ears for all
2 the voting changes that we know are coming down 3 the pike, that we can catch them as soon as 4 possible and to do something about it. So, I
5 thank you once again for your time and coming here 6 and sharing your information.

7 MEREDITH HORTON:

8 Thanks, Marcia. So, actually, Marcia
9 captured much of what I wanted to say in closing.
10 Of course, thank you and thank everyone who is 11 here and who participated today. This has been 12 just a fantastic hearing. This is my third, but 13 our fifteenth out of twenty-four, I believe. So, 14 we're somewhere south of the middle. But, in 15 every state, you know, we've heard just a wide 16 variety of challenges and problems. There are 17 definitely, you know, themes that emerge.

18 I was in Massachusetts last week and, you
19 know, there are some things that were discussed 20 there that also made it here today. So, there's 21 clearly a lot of work for all of us to do. But, 22 as Marcia mentioned it's also really encouraging 23 to hear that there is a great community in 24 Louisiana that is committed and has been committed 25 to fighting and really putting the energy behind

1 making sure that you can secure the right to vote.

2 And lastly, I'll just say on Marcia's point 3 about us as a resource. There's been a lot of 4 talk today which I always love as a former 5 organizer now, a lawyer about, you know, making 6 these connections, building these relationships, 7 figuring out how to work together. And, as Marcia 8 mentioned The Lawyers' Committee is definitely 9 committed to doing that as well in Louisiana. So, 10 to the extent that you have questions or there's 11 way that we can be a resource, please feel free to 12 reach out to me, and I can help kind of plug you 13 in or brainstorm ways that we can possibly work 14 together, as we're very interested in that as 15 well.

16 I, again, just want to thank Delgado
17 University and this wonderful video crew who has 18 stuck it out the whole time. I appreciate that.
19 You all have been wonderful hosts, and I really 20 appreciate just all of your support for the event.
21 And, finally, if you have testimony that you want 22 to leave with us today, I'm happy to take it. If 23 you want to submit remarks to support what you've 24 said today, you can email either me if we've been 25 in touch or ncvr@lawyerscommittee.org. And the 1 hearing record for Louisiana will stay open until 2 April 21st. So thank you all, and thank you to 3 our commissioners, Marcia Johnson-Blanco and Elder 4 Taylor. I really appreciate your time and 5 contributions.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Detroit, Michigan

3 Thursday, January 9, 2014

4 4:07 p.m.

5

6 MR. MARTINSON: Good afternoon. Welcome to 7 the Michigan Hearing of the National Commission on 8 Voting Rights. I am Alan Martinson. I am an attorney 9 with the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights in 10 Washington, D.C.

11 On behalf of Lawyers, good evening. Thank 12 you for your participation and support this afternoon.

13 Right at the outset, I want to thank Wayne 14 State Law School and Dean Benson for hosting us for 15 discussion about one of the most fundamental aspects 16 of our society, the right to vote.

17 The Lawyers Committee is a nonprofit, 18 nonpartisan civil rights organization founded at the 19 request of President Kennedy in 1963 to engage the 20 private Bar in fighting for racial justice and 21 equality. We continue our work today in a range of 22 areas, including as one of the foremost Act Lawyers 23 organizations on voting rights.

24 Today's hearing in Michigan is the third in 25 a series of Nationwide fact-finding hearings convened

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 by our National Commission on Voting Rights.

3 As many of you know, this summer, the U.S.
4 Supreme Court struck down a key protection of the 5 Voting Rights Act. We expect that Congress will soon 6 be considering legislation to strengthen voting 7 protection to help repair some of what was lost.

8 So, one of our main purposes through these 9 national hearings is to identify the need for strong 10 protections against discrimination in voting by 11 looking at current records -- the current record in 12 states across the country.

13 In addition, we want -- we also want to 14 hear from you about election, administration and 15 election reform. Your input on these issues in 16 Michigan is critical for ongoing advocacy and reform
17 efforts at the local, State and national level.

18 With the testimony we receive today, after 19 the hearing, the National Commission will prepare two 20 reports: One on limiting discrimination and one on 21 election administration and electoral reform.

22 The reports and the records from the 23 hearings will be available in a few months to anyone 24 seeking to reform or approve existing voting laws.

25 Commissioners -- I wanted to introduce the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 commissioners to you presiding over our event today, 3 and going to be running the proceedings, are four 4 Michigan commissioners each with a deep commitment to 5 protecting our civil rights and the ACCESS to the 6 ballot on equal terms.

7 First of all, Dean Benson, I want to think 8 her, again, for arranging this event to take place at 9 the law school and for her participation.

10 Dean Benson has not been on the scene in 11 Michigan elections all that long, but she's already a 12 giant, and it's really an honor to have her here.

13 Judge Harold Hood is a retired Michigan
14 Court of Appeals judge who's been an extremely active 15 and well-respected participant in civil and legal 16 activities in Michigan, and we're really lucky to have 17 his wisdom and experience here on the Panel.

18 Justice Marilyn Kelly recently retired from 19 the Michigan Supreme Court, and Justice Kelly is an 20 extremely well-respected judge and recently joined the 21 faculty here, where I'm confident she has been a 22 fantastic addition.

23 Finally, at some point in this evening, 24 Professor Ellen Katz of the Michigan Law School will 25 be joining, as well, as a guest Commissioner, and it's

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 a particular pleasure for me to have her here as I was 3 a student of hers at University of Michigan, and she 4 also helped me get my current job. And Professor Katz 5 is one of the most respected voting rights scholars in 6 the United States and her work has been extremely 7 influential in that area. We're fortunate to have 8 her.

9 Our commissioners will preside over today's 10 event and receive testimony from several panels of 11 witnesses and ask all questions as they desire to 12 ensure that we create as robust a record as possible
13 about voting rights in Michigan.

14 A few housekeeping items. If you've been 15 confirmed at a panel event, please check in at the 16 sign-in table.

17 For individuals today who would like to 18 share their voting experience and who have not been 19 assigned to a panel, we would like to hear from you, 20 too. If you look at your program, there are several 21 time periods when we are accepting public testimony.
22 Please make sure that you sign up in the foyer area as 23 a witness, and you can work with our volunteer, Carly, 24 who is helping to -- who will help you organize your 25 testimony. A Commissioner will call your name during

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 the open mic. session as we get that testimony.

3 A few other items, our hearing is being 4 transcribed. Please speak clearly, especially your 5 name. Whether I'm doing that, I'm not sure. Please 6 be mindful of the timekeeper and her signs, and if 7 you're -- if you're on Twitter, we've set up a hash 8 tag for the hearings. It's hash tag NCVR, and my 9 organization is Act Lawyers Comm.

10 And, finally, as a thank you -- I've 11 already thanked Wayne State and Dean Benson. I also 12 want to thank our law firm sponsor, Jaffe, Raitt, 13 Heuer & Weiss, and, particularly, Harold Pope, for 14 helping to pay for the transcription services. I also 15 want to thank the planning committee of Mary Ellen 16 Gurewitz, Harold Pope, Melanie McElroy, and Reggie 17 Turner, and thanks to Brianna Fritz of Wayne State for 18 assistance with logistics and set-up.

19 Finally, I want to thank our commissioners
20 and witnesses and the various Michigan organizations 21 that have helped with planning and promoting this 22 event, including our great co-sponsoring organizations 23 listed in our program and our great volunteers for the 24 National Action Network, and a particular shot out to 25 Reverend Williams in the National Action Network for

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 providing those volunteers.

3 For more information about the hearings, go 4 to NCVR.lawyerscommittee.org. And if you want to 5 submit additional testimony after the hearing, you can 6 email me at Amartinson@Lawyerscommittee.org.

7 I know that Dean Benson has some brief
8 opening remarks, so I'll turn it over to her first, 9 before we turn it over to commissioners to call the 10 first panel of witnesses. Thanks.

11 DEAN BENSON: Thank you, Alan, and the 12 Lawyers Committee and the organizing committee for -- 13 including Wayne State Law School as a part of this 14 important hearing.

15 My name is Jocelyn Benson, and I'm the dean
16 here at Wayne State Law School, but, also, throughout 17 the course of my career, have developed an expertise
18 and focus on what I think is a most important issue 19 facing our democracy, which is protecting access to 20 the right to vote and ensuring everyone's voices are 21 heard.

22 So, I'm thrilled that we can host such an 23 important dialogue here today. And, in particular, 24 our Damon J. Keith Center for Civil Rights has been 25 working, in addition to this particular event, to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 advance learning and enhance programming on voting 3 rights and civil rights more broadly throughout our 4 region.

5 But we're all here today because we have a 6 stake in elections in Michigan. And in recognizing 7 the work that we all need to do together as a state 8 and as a citizenry to bring our democracy here in 9 Michigan a little bit closer to the vision of those 10 who founded our democracy centuries ago.

11 Of course, we're very far from those ideals 12 of a perfect democracy where less than half of our 13 citizens, our eligible citizens, vote regularly. And, 14 in fact, for the November 2012 election, more than 15 62 million Americans did not vote. That's 29 percent 16 or a third of our population who's eligible to vote, 17 did not participate. And that includes more than 18 1.6 million Michiganders, or 22 percent. These 19 citizens were not even registered to vote, according 20 to the U.S. Census Bureau. And then we have many 21 other citizens who are registered to vote and didn't 22 participate.

23 All of that is a concern, but when we look 24 at the demographics, of course, the concern 25 exacerbates. It shows that we have a democracy in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 which certain voices are heard, but not all voices are 3 heard.

4 Data shows that younger Americans and those 5 with lower family incomes are the least likely to be 6 registered. And I believe, as I know many of you 7 believe, as well, Michigan residents of all ages and 8 background should have equal access to the vote. And, 9 indeed, that's the only way that we can ensure that 10 our Government is making policies that are in line 11 with what's best for everyone, not just a select few.

12 And voting is, of course, important, not 13 only for this current election year, but can impact 14 the direction of our cities and states for years to 15 come. And when we have things like corporate spending 16 on elections at an all-time high and an increasing 17 flow of money to influence our politicians and our 18 elections, now, more than ever, we need to ensure that 19 we're doing everything we can to protect and amplify 20 citizen voices in our democratic process.

21 So, we have many important issues to 22 discuss today. I am very much looking forward to all 23 of the experts who have gathered here, and thank them 24 all for coming out in this wintry weather to speak on 25 behalf of the organizations you represent and the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 people you work for and talk about your experiences 3 here today.

4 And, certainly, we want to make time for 5 anyone who's not on a panel that has a story to tell, 6 be it good or bad, about your experience with 7 elections in Michigan, please come forward and speak
8 and share them with us today so that we can build a 9 strong record for the National Commission on Voting 10 Rights demonstrating what is necessary here in 11 Michigan and nationally to improve our democracy.

12 So, with that, I thank you again for being 13 here, and I'll turn it back over to Alan to introduce 14 our first panel. Or I'll introduce our first panel.

15 And our first panel, actually, is two great 16 individuals who have worked on these issues for a 17 number of years: Rachid Elabed, who works with ACCESS 18 Michigan, and Dan Korobkin of ACLU of Michigan.

19 And I also want just want to, again, thank 20 and recognize my fellow commissioners: Professor 21 Ellen Katz from the University of Michigan; Supreme 22 Court Justice Marilyn Kelly, also a distinguished 23 member of our -- a distinguished jurist member of our 24 faculty; and, of course, Judge Harold Hood, all of 25 whom have -- have work that is ground breaking and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 significant to improve and focus on these issues. So, 3 we look forward together to hearing the remarks and 4 talking with you all today.

5 And, again, we have Rachid Elabed of ACCESS 6 Michigan, Dan Korobkin of ACLU of Michigan, who will 7 speak on this first panel on voting rights in 8 Michigan.

9 Who would like to go first? Rachid.

10 MR. ELABED: Thank you, Jocelyn.

11 I would like to thank the National 12 Commission on Voting Rights for giving us this 13 opportunity to testify.

14 My name is Rachid Elabed, and I am here to 15 provide testimony on behalf of the Arab Community 16 Center For Economic and Social Services, known as 17 ACCESS, the largest Arab-American -- it is the largest 18 Arab-American human service organization in the U.S., 19 located in Dearborn, Michigan.

20 I serve as advocacy and civic engagement
21 specialist within ACCESS, and I am their Latin staff 22 person, a nonpartisan voter, engaged in campaign and 23 voting rights issues.

24 ACCESS is a rooted -- is rooted in the 25 grass roots, is dedicated in empowering our community.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 For the past several years, voting rights has been a 3 key priority for ACCESS, as we want to ensure that our 4 community is empowered to cast their vote without fear 5 and easy access to the polls. In particular, there 6 are several issues which we are most concerned about.

7 To begin, many polling locations do not 8 provide bilingual poll workers. With the majority of 9 Arab-Americans at many Dearborn precincts, and a 10 number of those citizens for whom English is their 11 second language, there is a strong need to have poll
12 workers who speak Arabic. Having bilingual poll 13 workers increases access to the polls as people feel 14 more comfortable and confident when casting their 15 ballot.

16 Many people who may have been intimidated
17 to vote because they do not have a strong commanding 18 of English language, are more likely to vote if they 19 know someone who speaks their native language is there 20 to assist them.

21 ACCESS recognized this problem and met with 22 the Dearborn City clerk to discuss this matter. As a 23 result, the clerk agreed to hire more bilingual poll 24 workers and asked that we help to recruit them.

25 ACCESS recruited over 30 bilingual poll

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 workers to work at the different polling locations
3 in -- around the Dearborn area for the first time in 4 2012. We have received a lot of positive feedback 5 from the city clerk's office, as well as the 6 community -- as well as the community members.

7 The voting process has become more
8 efficient, effective with the greater Arab-American 9 turnout. While this is an important step in the right 10 direction, there continues to be a need of increased 11 bilingual poll workers.

12 Also, as well, bilingual materials at the 13 polling locations, including instructions -- 14 instruction signs in Arabic. Often -- often, they 15 say, you know, there's a lack of funds for the reason 16 for not having these things in place.

17 Another important issue facing our 18 community is the issue of people being turned away 19 from the polls because of -- their names cannot be 20 found on the poll -- on the voting rolls. In many 21 cases, poll workers cannot locate their names because 22 of misspellings or various English spellings of Arabic 23 names. For example, a person may use a hyphen in 24 their name, but on the voting roll there's no hyphen, 25 and, therefore, their name cannot be found.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 In past years, when someone has discovered 3 a misspelling of their name and corrected it with the 4 poll worker, they find that this is a permanent -- 5 they find that this is not a permanent solution, as 6 the next time they go to vote, they encounter the same 7 misspelling problem. This causes a lot of people to 8 be -- to be unable to cast their ballot.

9 Finally, another large issue in our 10 community in southwest Detroit is the polling 11 locations themselves. Polling locations are often 12 being repositioned without notice, therefore, when a 13 person goes to their assigned polling location, they 14 find that the location has been shut down or moved 15 with no proper signage or instructions on where they 16 should go cast their ballot.

17 As a temporary solution, ACCESS has sent 18 staff members to previous polling locations and given 19 out information on where the new location is to voters 20 who arrive expecting to cast their ballot and 21 created -- and created and hung up our own signs with 22 information on the new location. But this isn't 23 (inaudible). The community needs proper notice and 24 instructions on where to find the new polling 25 locations to ensure that they actually vote on

2 election day.

3 So, I want to really thank -- thank you for 4 your time and attention. It's important that we work 5 together to ensure full participation in our 6 democratic process. Thank you.

7 MR. KOROBKIN: Good afternoon, and thank 8 you for your attention to one of the most important 9 civil rights and civil liberties issues of our time,
10 the right to vote.

11 My name is Daniel Korobkin, and I am the 12 deputy legal director of the American Civil Liberties 13 Union of Michigan.

14 The ACLU is the nation's largest and oldest 15 civil rights organization dedicated to protecting and 16 preserving our most important constitutional rights, 17 including the right to vote.

18 The ACLU works in Michigan and around the 19 country to protect and expand the freedom to vote 20 through litigation, legislative advocacy and voter 21 education. The overarching goals of the ACLU's work 22 on voting rights are to ensure that all eligible 23 voters have an opportunity to cast a ballot that will 24 be counted, to make voting as easy and as accessible 25 as possible, and to make sure that all votes are

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 counted equally.

3 So, three principles guide our work. One:
4 All Americans should be able to vote. Two: Voting
5 should be free and easy. And, three: All votes 6 should count equally.

7 I'd like to begin by speaking about some of 8 what the ACLU has been doing in recent years to defend 9 voting rights in Michigan, and then I would like to 10 offer some suggestions about what steps we, as a 11 community, should take to protect the right to vote 12 over the next few years.

13 The ACLU has worked with coalition partners
14 for many years, such as the NAACP, the Lawyer's 15 Committee for Civil Rights, Dean Jocelyn Benson in her 16 capacity as a voting rights attorney and advocate, and 17 other civil rights groups and leaders to identify 18 imminent threats to voting rights and take action 19 where needed.

20 In light of the recent U.S. Supreme Court
21 decision that struck down part of the Voting Rights 22 Act, I want to draw your attention to one example of 23 action we took, which, unfortunately, we would not be 24 able to take now.

25 In 2007, the Secretary of State announced

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 that her branch office in Buena Vista Township would 3 be closing. Now, the Secretary of State branch 4 offices throughout Michigan are locations where 5 citizens register to vote, update their voter
6 registration, and obtain the photo ID that is now 7 required at the polling locations.

8 A majority of Buena Vista Township's
9 residents are African-Americans, and the next closest 10 Secretary of State branch office is more than 90 miles 11 away, and that's assuming no major traffic delays with 12 public transportation and so forth.

13 Well, because Buena Vista Township was a 14 covered jurisdiction under Section 5 of the Voting 15 Rights Act, the ACLU and its coalition partners took 16 action to notify the Department of Justice that the 17 closure of a voter registration office could have a 18 retrogressive effect on minority voter participation, 19 and, after receiving our letter, the Department of 20 Justice denied pre-clearance for the branch office
21 closure under Section 5 of the Voting Rights Act, 22 which maintained a vital location for voter
23 registration in a majority minority community.

24 Unfortunately, due to the U.S. Supreme 25 Court's recent decision, this would not be possible

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 today.

3 The ACLU also helps spearhead a major 4 voting rights case in 2008, joining with the 5 Advancement Project to challenge the Secretary of 6 State's practice of prematurely purging registered 7 voters from the list of eligible voters in violation 8 of the National Voter Registration Act.

9 Voters were being illegally purged from the 10 list in two circumstances: One, when the voter 11 registered -- voter identification cards that are sent 12 to everyone's address before the election were 13 returned by the post office as undeliverable, and, 14 two, when a Michigan voter obtained a driver's license 15 in another state.

16 U.S. District Judge Stephen Murphy agreed
17 with the ACLU that there were many legitimate reasons 18 why a voter ID card might be returned as 19 undeliverable, and that person may be a resident of 20 Michigan for voting purposes, yet have an out-of-state 21 driver's license. Judge Murphy ordered the State to 22 restore the purged voters to the rolls, and the 23 6th Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed his decision 24 just before election day.

25 And then, finally, prior to the 2012

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 election, the ACLU joined another coalition consisting 3 of labor unions and civil rights organizations to 4 challenge the citizen checkbox requirement. You'll 5 probably hear more about this case from others, but,
6 in essence, the Secretary of State defied
7 Governor Snyder's veto of the law and ordered all 8 election officials to place a citizen checkbox on the 9 forms that voters are required to fill out at the 10 polls.

11 We had serious concerns that the checkbox 12 could be used as a vehicle for racial profiling, and, 13 of course, the citizen checkbox is completely 14 redundant because everyone knows you have to be a 15 citizen to register to vote in the first place.

16 Well, U.S. District Judge Paul Borman
17 agreed that the citizen checkbox could violate equal 18 protection by causing certain voters to be singled out 19 and stigmatized, so he issued a preliminary injunction 20 prohibiting the use of the checkbox for the 2012
21 election.

22 Now I'd like to return -- now I'd like to 23 turn to a few of the significant problems currently 24 impairing the right to vote and what should be done to 25 alleviate them.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Over the past several election cycles, the 3 ACLU has monitored a disturbing trend of incredibly 4 long lines at the polls. In some cases, creating 5 waiting times of four hours or more. Most troubling 6 is that these lines are overwhelmingly more likely to 7 plague low-income areas and communities of color.
8 Long lines mean that people don't vote. Ordinary, 9 hardworking Americans have jobs to get to, kids at 10 home, many other day-to-day obligations that prevent 11 them from spending an entire morning or afternoon 12 waiting in line.

13 But there are relatively simple things we 14 could do to fix this serious problem in our democracy.
15 First, election laws should allow absentee voting by 16 registered voters for any reason at all or no reason 17 at all.

18 And, in fact, some of you may have seen
19 that Detroit Free Press has an editorial in today's 20 newspaper calling for just that change in policy.
21 Many other states allow mail-in or absentee voting for 22 all voters as a matter of course, and ours should, 23 too.

24 Another issue is that many -- in many 25 cases, the long lines are caused by there not being

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 enough voting booths at the polling location. Well,
3 in our state, it's very easy. A voting booth can be a 4 cardboard box that is folded to create a writing
5 surface and privacy panels. They're incredibly cheap 6 and there's no excuse for not having them.

7 And, finally, centralized training needs to 8 be provided to poll workers so that each precinct 9 captain can learn tried and true methods of keeping a 10 polling location running smoothly and the line moving 11 fast.

12 The second and final serious voting rights 13 problem I'd like to talk to you about in Michigan is 14 the nature of confusion that students face when they 15 wish to vote.

16 TIMEKEEPER: One minute.

17 MR. KOROBKIN: Thank you.

18 Students are often first-time voters. They 19 go to college in a town that is not reflected on their 20 driver's license. There are many needlessly 21 complicated voting rules that might prevent them from 22 being able to cast their ballot on election day.

23 We created a Web by -- a Web-based tool at 24 the ACLU called Student Voting Made Easy, the purpose
25 of which was to guide students through the process so

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 they could decide where to vote, how, and what special 3 measures they would need to take in advance.

4 But I've got to tell you, despite the name
5 of our Web page, student voting is not easy, and we 6 need to work in Michigan to fix it. Removing 7 impediments should be a priority for legislative and 8 administrative reform.

9 I'd like to conclude by thanking you for 10 holding this hearing and documenting threats to our 11 most important and cherished freedom, the right to 12 vote. I encourage everyone here to contact the ACLU 13 about voting problems so that we can continue to 14 protect voting rights wherever and whenever possible.
15 Remember, all Americans should be able to vote.
16 Voting should be free and easy, and all votes should 17 count equally. Thank you.

18 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much, Dan and 19 Rachid. Before we proceed to the next panel, I'd like 20 to ask my fellow Commissioners if they have any 21 questions for our current panelists.

22 Professor Katz?

23 PROFESSOR KATZ: Yes, just a quick
24 question. Rachid, you mentioned cost as -- when you 25 were talked about the poll workers in Dearborn -- as

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 an obstacle to getting more valuable poll workers.

3 And, Daniel, you also made several 4 references to things that could be fixed by cost. Do 5 you -- to what extent would it be useful to the 6 meeting here to the extent to which you could probably 7 describe, are problems of funding that can be solved 8 through better funding or whether they're distinct 9 obstacles to the policy changes you see.

10 MR. ELABED: Well, the -- poll workers 11 wasn't the issue, it's the volume of material. They 12 say they don't have printing -- money for printing and 13 everything. ACCESS has offered to translate 14 everything, you know, for free, and everything, but 15 the printing costs and everything has been an issue.

16 So, you're asking if it -- if funding was 17 there, would it -- yes, definitely. It would be a lot 18 easier, you know -- they would be making it more 19 easier for the communities to get out to vote if there 20 was more funding for volume of materials. Especially, 21 communities like Dearborn, where the Arab-American 22 community is growing by the minute. So, I think it 23 calls -- more funds would be beneficial, more 24 efficient.

25 MR. KOROBKIN: Yeah. I mean, I agree, but

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 our experience has also been that fixes can be cheap, 3 and they just need to be -- they just need to be 4 implemented. A perfect example is -- is where the 5 long lines are created not by there not being enough 6 poll workers, but by there not being enough spaces in 7 the polling locations for people to stand and mark 8 their ballot.

9 Well, you don't need a computer, in 10 Michigan, to do that, you just need a surface with 11 privacy panels, and that can be made out of a 12 cardboard box. So, it's a matter of having a 13 cardboard box at the polling locations. As things go, 14 relatively speaking, that's an easy fix, and it 15 would -- it would prevent a lot of people from being 16 frustrated and giving up and going home because they 17 couldn't wait in line four hours to cast their vote.

18 MR. ELABED: So, I want to bring something 19 up that Dan mentioned. So, in 2012, there was long 20 lines. ACCESS brought tables to the polling locations 21 and made -- like he said, made boxes and helped them 22 out. We brought three tables to one precinct and 23 brought chairs, and everything, and the process was a 24 lot faster.

25 So, it's, like, a little easy fix that

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 we -- you know, if the city clerks come to, you know, 3 organizations and ask, you know, we need help with 4 this, you know, we can -- if we share our resources
5 and work together, I think it will make a difference.

6 DEAN BENSON: Okay. Thank you.

7 I'd like to thank Rachid and Dan for 8 joining us today and for this very informative
9 testimony. Thank you.

10 Our next panel focuses -- or continues this 11 conversation on voting rights with the specific focus 12 on election and administration, including the 13 challenges, successes and what we can do to move 14 forward. We have a number of experts and -- from 15 various different corners of the state here to share 16 their perspectives on challenges and opportunities in 17 the administration of elections themselves.

18 And as we're getting set up, I'll just 19 begin describing our panelists. Todd Schmitz, who is 20 a very well-known election administrator in 21 Michigan -- one of the most innovative election 22 administrators in the state of Michigan. He currently 23 serves as the Macomb County deputy clerk with Macomb 24 County clerk Carmella Sabaugh and is going to be 25 talking a little bit about his experiences from the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 perspective of a clerk and election administrator.

3 We then have Gloria Mills of the National 4 Action Network. Gloria has also done a great deal of 5 work on election administration, and is going to be 6 talking about some of the challenges and problems that 7 she and her organization have observed and documented 8 in recent election cycles.

9 We then have Rich Robinson, who is the 10 Michigan Campaign Finance Network chair or executive 11 director. Rich is the voice for transparency in 12 politics in Michigan, single-handedly providing 13 everyone else who follows this, and all of our 14 citizens, with information about the influence of 15 money and special interests in Michigan politics
16 today.

17 And, then, finally, we have Jan BenDor, who 18 is the founder and chair of the Michigan Election
19 Reform Alliance, an organization that's focused a 20 great deal on the integrity -- particularly, of the 21 integrity of counting ballots, and will be talking 22 about, I'm sure, a lot of the data-driven analysis and 23 research that her organization has done on that 24 subject.

25 So, I'll ask each Commissioner to keep

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 their remarks to --

3 Ten?

4 TIMEKEEPER: Eight.

5 DEAN BENSON: Eight?

6 Eight minutes, and then we'll follow up
7 with questions. We'll start with Macomb County Deputy 8 Clerk Todd Schmitz.

9 MR. SCHMITZ: Thank you, Dean Benson.

10 It's an honor to be here. I graduated from 11 Wayne State University, so it's an honor to be back, 12 and, also, to be joining the distinguished panel and 13 all of you here, as well, on this very important 14 topic.

15 I also want to thank Macomb County Clerk, 16 Register of Deeds Carmella Sabaugh, for allowing me to 17 be here testifying today. She has been a champion of 18 voting rights throughout her career as County clerk in 19 Macomb County, and it's an honor to be here.

20 A little bit about Macomb County, and then 21 what I'll also talk about is some of the things that 22 Macomb County Clerk Register of Deeds Carmella Sabaugh
23 has done that might be helpful if other election 24 officials would like to do these things, as well, and 25 we're more than happy to help and show how we've done

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 it and how it might be done in other areas.

3 And then, finally, I'll close with an 4 innovation that we're really excited about and we are 5 hoping that there can be some action on, which is 6 online voter registration.

7 Macomb County is a county of 840,000
8 people. Of that population, 95 percent of our voting 9 age population is registered to vote. So, we have 10 just over 600,000 registered voters. We have 11 337,000 -- 337 precincts in our county, and in the 12 last presidential election, our voter turnout was 13 66 percent. The last governor election, that turnout 14 fell to 45 percent. So, the difference between the 15 last presidential election and the last governor
16 election in Macomb County was 136,000 votes. 136,000
17 people sat home on that election.

18 The County Clerk doesn't directly
19 administer elections. In Michigan, that's done
20 through the Township and local clerks. But the County 21 Clerk does administer some school elections. But, 22 generally, it's municipal and local clerks that 23 administer the election (inaudible).

24 Some of the things that we have done in our 25 office is, Macomb County Clerk Carmella Sabaugh posts

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 online the names of the candidate committees that 3 violate campaign finance rules. And once she started 4 posting their names and the amounts they owe online
5 and making it searchable by name for the violations, 6 we were pleasantly surprised that some of the 7 violations went down and decreased, and some of the 8 people came forward to pay the fines that they owed 9 for failing to properly disclose their campaign
10 contributions. That's something that takes a 11 relatively small amount of technology but can shed 12 some light and sunlight on campaign finance.

13 We also post all County and local campaign
14 finance reports online, and Ms. Sabaugh has taken it a 15 step further. We make it so that it's searchable by 16 donor name and by dollar amount. So, if you want to 17 know if a particular vendor to the County has made 18 campaign contributions to particular officials in 19 Macomb County, you can find that out.

20 And we're very proud that -- Rich Robinson 21 took a look at that system a few years ago and called 22 it a model for the state, and that's high praise given 23 the work that Rich has done in this area.

24 We also staffed our polling places with 25 student election inspectors, so the few elections that

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 we do oversee directly are, mainly, school elections.
3 Election law allows you to place students in a polling
4 place as long as they're supervised by an adult
5 election worker. And, so, in our situation, we're 6 able to put two students in the polling places, a half 7 a day each. We're training a whole new generation of 8 poll workers.

9 We're also putting a generation of poll
10 workers who have some technology smarts in the polling 11 places. And, so, that's a win-win all the way around.
12 That's something that could be duplicated in a serious 13 role throughout the state, as well.

14 And, finally, when it comes to some of the 15 innovations in our elections department, our chief 16 elections clerk is Roger Cardamone, and we are very 17 proud of the way we post our results online. We are 18 very transparent about the way we post results online.
19 We make it very easy for voters to tell who on their 20 ballot has one or is winning, throughout election
21 night.

22 Most people don't know their County
23 commission number. Most people don't know what their 24 State representative number -- district number is.
25 All those people want to know when they log in is, of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 the people I can vote for, how did it turn out? We 3 make that very easy.

4 We will also text election results to you 5 throughout the night, and we'll even text you as the 6 lead changes as results come in, if you want to do 7 that. So, those are just some of the areas for 8 technology.

9 Some nontechnical areas, we're very proud
10 that we publicly bid all of our election supplies.
11 That was not a common practice before Macomb County
12 clerk Carmella Sabaugh came into office. The printing 13 of the ballots, the programming of these cards. That 14 is important to have transparent how those contracts 15 are awarded and who's doing it, and the public bid 16 process can be very helpful on that.

17 One final point, and one of the most 18 important, because this is a room where we can have 19 some change, and this topic is online voter 20 registration. Online voter registration will reduce 21 the risk of fraud, save money, and reduce barriers to 22 voting.

23 In Michigan, you can register for the 24 selective service draft online. You can register for 25 the selective service system or the draft online. In

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Michigan, you can pay your taxes online. But as a new 3 voter, you cannot register to vote online. And, so,
4 Carmella Sabaugh believes it's time to end online 5 taxation without online representation. If the 6 Government will take your taxes online, they should be 7 able to take your voter registrations online.

8 And there are several problems that online 9 voter registration would solve. The main one is 10 illegible forms. One of the biggest problems we have 11 in getting voter registrations is, you can't read them 12 because they're not filled out completely, the 13 printing is illegible. With online voter 14 registration, by definition, it would be legible and 15 it would be corrected for certain areas of common 16 misspellings.

17 With paper voter registrations, if somebody 18 submits duplicate registrations, there's no way to 19 tell where that's coming from. With paper voter 20 registrations, if somebody is committing fraud or 21 going through the phone book and sending in 22 registrations, it's very difficult to detect because 23 it's after the fact when that paper comes into the 24 clerk's office.

25 With the paper voter registration, the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 forms can be signed before the registration deadline, 3 but not dropped off to the Clerk's office until after 4 the registration deadline, and that means those people 5 who thought they registered to vote on time, are 6 disqualified for the upcoming election.

7 Also, when a person registers on paper and 8 mails that in, the person doesn't have a receipt 9 unless they happen to have a photocopier in their 10 house, and most people don't have that.

11 And with paper voter registration forms,
12 there's very little accountability for third parties
13 who conduct voter registration fraud. Online voter 14 registration would reduce the risk for all of those.

15 Forms can be transmitted immediately to 16 election officials with an audit trail making it very 17 clear when an application was submitted and whether it 18 was done on time. IP addresses can be tracked so you 19 can tell, are multiple submissions coming from the 20 same place.

21 We can make sure the forms are legible, are 22 complete, and we even have contact information to 23 follow up with the voters.

24 The Uniform Electronic Transactions Act
25 coupled with the existing Michigan law, we believe,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 provides all the authority one would need in order to 3 launch online voter registration today until the 4 legislature or the Secretary can act.

5 Thank you very much for your time. It's an 6 honor to be here. And thank you, Dean Benson, as 7 well.

8 MS. MILLS: I'd like to thank the 9 Commission for, first of all, having this hearing, 10 and, secondly, for asking us to participate.

11 I'm Gloria Mills, and I am a member of 12 National Action Network and several other community 13 groups that have dedicated time and energy to voter 14 registration. So, I'm strictly going to talk about 15 the voter registration process in terms of the city of 16 Detroit, state of Michigan, and the Federal 17 Government.

18 The first thing we were asked to talk about 19 are things that worked and the things that didn't 20 work. In the city of Detroit, in terms of voter 21 registration, we -- those of us in the community, we 22 had a lot of support coming from the City Clerk's 23 office. She personally eased the process for voter 24 registration drives for community-based organizations.

25 And I highlight this because I was involved

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 with other groups from around the state and their 3 process was much more difficult. So, the City Clerk 4 made the paperwork readily available, there were 5 applications -- registration applications, absentee 6 ballot registrations -- forms -- absentee ballot 7 forms, newsletters, and lots of materials. So, we 8 didn't feel -- we weren't stressed over that, and we 9 got a lot of support that way.

10 We even got assigned staff out of the 11 Clerk's office to help us with the process so that we 12 can continue to work, and that was -- that was very 13 good because, in a city like Detroit, there are people 14 without access. They don't necessarily -- don't 15 necessarily have a way to get to the City Clerk's 16 office or to a Secretary of State's office, so we were 17 able to cover the city quite readily because of the 18 City Clerk facilitating the process.

19 And she also spent time thanking the 20 volunteers and making it an easy situation. So, that 21 was very good. And she also -- the City Clerk's 22 office, we felt, was very good in terms of encouraging 23 the registration of what we call nontraditional
24 voters. We have people at homeless shelters doing 25 registration, transient people. We spent a lot of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 time with people who are returning from the prison 3 system.

4 And that's a particular problem. There are 5 enough states in the union who are ex-offenders, 6 ex-felons, whatever they're called, people who just 7 got out of jail, don't think they have a right to 8 vote. So, we spent lots of time with this particular 9 population because they had heard -- and we do so much 10 talking without a basis in fact. These people thought 11 they were not eligible to vote. So, we spent lots of 12 time and got lots of support with this particular 13 group. That's a large group of people who think they 14 don't have the right to vote. So, that was very good.

15 The absentee voting was -- was encouraged 16 because volunteers were allowed to take some of the 17 application forms to people who needed them, so we 18 felt that was very good. The only problem we really 19 had was that there were times when we weren't able to 20 tell people when their voter registration card would 21 be coming. But we were also able to assure them that 22 they would still be able to vote without a card as 23 long as they had the ID. And the ID takes me into 24 another issue, but those were the City Clerk issues.

25 I didn't appreciate some of our voting laws

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 in Michigan until I spent time looking at applications 3 from other states. Like I said, there are several 4 states that don't allow people who have served their 5 time in -- in jail or prison to vote. There are lots 6 of those.

7 I actually saw an application, I think it
8 was from the state of Alabama -- I have a whole stack
9 of them, I started collecting them -- where they ask 10 people questions like, have you ever been judged to be 11 mentally incompetent? Okay? They ask questions
12 like -- about race and ethnicity. All of those things 13 has nothing to do with the citizen's right to vote.
14 So, we don't have those kinds of questions. So -- on 15 our ballot, our application, it's much better in that 16 sense. Okay?

17 And we also allow people with no permanent 18 address to register. And if you look at the form, it 19 will actually ask you to describe where you live if 20 you don't have an address. Of course, we discourage 21 that, we told people to put an address down because 22 the mailman would have a hard time looking under the 23 bridge of a freeway to give someone their card, but 24 there was lots of -- lots of leeway there.

25 And we found, also, that homeless shelters,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 soup kitchens, and so forth, those people would take 3 the mail and would allow those people to have an 4 address. And it's a very heartening thing to actually 5 register someone who is homeless, because it makes 6 them feel a part of -- of the city, the state, 7 whatever. It is very, very -- those are some of the 8 most heartening things that we were able to do because 9 of the leniency on that particular point on the 10 state -- the State law and the ballot.

11 Now, of course, we've ran into all kinds of 12 problems with the voter ID. The minute that started, 13 people would say, oh, I can't register, I don't have 14 ID. So, we have to explain to them, we, as the people 15 taking the registration, did not need the ID. They 16 would need the ID when they went to vote.

17 So, then, that caused us to have to -- we 18 have to find places where people with no money -- and 19 there are some people who don't have any money -- we 20 had to find places where they could do -- get free ID.
21 Secretary of State's office had a -- you know, 22 checking the laws, there's a small part that says, the 23 Secretary of State, for people on Social Services, and 24 so forth, to get a free ID. But every time we sent 25 someone, we did not get good results there. So,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 that -- that's a sticking point, of course, that -- 3 that free ID -- the voter ID situation.

4 Now, on the Federal level, it's very, very 5 interesting. The first thing that we would ask is 6 some uniformity in rules and laws because the minute 7 you talk to someone from out of state, they would tell 8 you about the rules where they came from, so we have 9 to spend time convincing them that the laws were 10 different in Michigan.

11 I actually had some of the volunteers that 12 I worked with, carry a copy of the law that stated 13 that ex-felons or offenders could vote. They did not 14 believe us. So, we literally made a copy and handed 15 it to them saying, right here, it shows that you are 16 eligible. Because they wouldn't register because they 17 just knew in their heads that they were not eligible 18 to vote.

19 So, it would be nice to have some national 20 laws so that people who travel from state to state -- 21 and, in this economy, they're going to continue to be 22 transient. It would be very nice to have people know 23 that there's some standardization for the laws.

24 And as I say all of that, one of the 25 solutions to this problem -- and since we're

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 testifying, I can say this -- why does a citizen have 3 to register to vote in the first place? Okay? I just 4 want to say that. Why do we have to vote? I never 5 registered for IRS and lots of other places that know 6 me very, very well.

7 If you're a citizen of this country and 8 you're guaranteed the right to vote, why do we have to 9 spend hours and days having people fill out a form if 10 they're already citizens of this country? And people 11 who are naturalized, as soon as their process is -- 12 has taken place, they should be eligible to vote. So, 13 that's the kind of thing that would override all of 14 these kinds of problems that we're having.

15 And you mentioned the electronic. We track
16 everybody. We know where everyone is, so there 17 wouldn't be a problem. Okay? And that's one of the 18 things I would like to see, the fact that a citizen is 19 eligible to vote without us running around getting 20 them to fill out all of these papers, whether it's 21 electronic or whether it's paper.

22 If you're a citizen, you have a right to 23 vote, then that should be it. There are plenty of 24 ways to track someone. Okay? There are states that 25 have same day registration. There are all kinds of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 different things that you can track a person when they 3 come in to vote.

4 You can -- you know whether they were 5 eligible, and you also have the electronic way of 6 making sure they're not voting more than once. And we 7 have very little problems about people doing multiple 8 voting. We spend enough energy making sure people are 9 eligible to vote the first time.

10 So, basically, I'd like to thank the 11 commission, and those are the things we encountered, 12 and some of us were in the streets about three years,
13 all over the place, doing voter registration.

14 MR. ROBINSON: My name is Rich Robinson. I
15 am the executive director of the Michigan Campaign
16 Finance Network. I am grateful to the Lawyers 17 Committee for bringing this hearing to Wayne State and 18 grateful to the distinguished Commissioners for being 19 here.

20 I have left a copy of my testimony on the 21 table outside and a couple reports, publications, from 22 my organization, so I'll try to be brief and summarize 23 my comments.

24 Michigan is unique and, in my mind, the 25 dark money capital of American politics for the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 extensive degree of undisclosed, untraceable spending 3 in our elections.

4 Since 2000, I have been able to 5 document $88,000,000 of television advertisements in 6 Michigan campaigns and elections that have not been 7 disclosed to the State of Michigan through the 8 Campaign Finance Reporting System. To the State of 9 Michigan, those advertisements are issue advocacy.

10 Nondisclosure reached its worst in the 2012
11 Michigan Supreme Court campaign when $5 million of 12 spending was disclosed, and I was able to 13 document $14 million of undisclosed television 14 advertising about the candidates, 13 million of which 15 was paid for by the political parties.

16 In response to this situation, the State 17 Bar of Michigan requested the Department of State to 18 review an interpretation of the Michigan Campaign
19 Finance Act as to what was or was not a reportable
20 campaign expenditure. The Secretary of State 21 responded that she would not make a special rule for 22 judicial campaigns, but she agreed with the point 23 that, in view of contemporary United States Supreme 24 Court campaign finance opinions, that a new 25 administrative rulemaking process was in order to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 break this vast amount of spending under the 3 disclosure system.

4 The morning she published her intentions,
5 there was a committee meeting of the Michigan Senate
6 Elections Committee considering a bill to double 7 limits on contributions to state and local candidates.

8 My testimony to that committee was,
9 99.99 percent of Michiganders don't bump their heads 10 on the current limits. That was a provision for one 11 in 10,000 Michiganders who would like to give more 12 than what the current limits allowed.

13 After my testimony, an hour long recess was 14 called, an amendment was made to the Michigan Campaign
15 Finance Act changing the definition of what a campaign 16 expenditure would be to assure that all this 17 undisclosed, quote, unquote, issue advocacy would be 18 excluded from any mandatory disclosure. That 19 revision/amendment to the Campaign Finance Act passed 20 both chambers of the Michigan legislature with only 21 Republican votes, and it will be two weeks tomorrow 22 afternoon that the bill was signed into law by 23 Governor Snyder.

24 Now, mind you, this -- we're talking about 25 the Friday afternoon between Christmas and New Year

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 when thousands of Michiganders were without power in 3 this state, including me. This was the most cynical 4 and, I believe, sinister sequence of events in the 5 political realm that I have seen in 15 years of 6 watching Michigan politics as a close observer. This 7 is confounding the public's right to know who is 8 spending the money in our campaigns and elections.

9 Now, the Citizens United decision has 10 gotten a lot of attention for the fact that it opened 11 campaign spending to corporations to say explicitly to 12 vote for or against a candidate, but part 4 of the 13 Citizens United decision was a question about 14 disclosure, and the opinion of the Court said the 15 First Amendment protects political speech. Disclosure 16 allows citizens and voters to interpret the messages 17 they're hearing in a proper way to know whose speech 18 they are hearing.

19 There's another aspect of this. People who 20 write large checks in political campaigns are 21 investors. They're seeking a policy return for their 22 political investment, and transparency is our 23 inoculation against corruption.

24 We've taken a major step back in the last 25 two weeks as far as what can be known about whose

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 money is paying for campaigns and elections in 3 Michigan. It's an extremely bad development. We were 4 already way worse than federal campaigns and elections
5 and most states. So, I'm not sure exactly what course 6 of action I'm recommending, at this point. I would 7 love to see a citizens referendum to repeal this 8 repugnant act, but I'm not sure if the people of power 9 can be mobilized to do that.

10 So, those are my comments. I thank the 11 Commission for this hearing and for allowing me to 12 participate.

13 MS. BENDOR: Thank you, Rich, and my fellow
14 panelists and Commissioners. I really value the work 15 that all of you do. If it weren't for our team work, 16 we wouldn't be as far as we are.

17 And I especially want to thank Alan 18 Martinson, who has not only really worked hard to put 19 this event together, but Alan has been a tremendous 20 help to us in Michigan from his office in Washington 21 as we have struggled mightily.

22 I'm Jan BenDor. I am the state coordinator 23 for the Michigan Election Reform Alliance.org, and 24 that is our name and, also, our Web site, and I
25 welcome you to go on that Web site where you'll see

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 quite a bit of our work, our testimony in front of the 3 legislature, our report on the 2006 Michigan voter 4 purge in which the Secretary of State, in advance of 5 the 2008 election, attempted to purge about 800,000
6 voters not following the MVRA regulations.

7 Our nonprofit and nonpartisan organization 8 formed in 2005, and we had a very broad agenda for 9 voting rights and election integrity. And election 10 integrity, for us, includes a lot of things. Such as, 11 if you're going to register voters, you better keep 12 those data really, really carefully.

13 I have served as an election inspector, a 14 State-accredited election administrator and a 15 certified election worker/trainer for 15 years, and I 16 currently work as an appointed deputy clerk in 17 Washtenaw County.

18 Our most immediate concern focuses on a 19 very, very serious threat to your right to vote, and 20 it's a crisis, our failing vote tabulators in the 21 state of Michigan.

22 The November 2012 general election saw 23 widespread machine breakdowns in Michigan, and I am 24 quoting the director of the Bureau of Elections Chris 25 Thomas, who testified to this problem in front of the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 U.S. Election Assistance Commission in early 2013.

3 "To date, there's been no public discussion of the 4 need to address this coming election cliff, which is 5 the certain breakdown of about 8,000 aging vote 6 tabulators."

7 This is like, we have an 11-year-old car,
8 folks, and we can't keep it going much longer. It's 9 gonna break. We have written an extensive report
10 about this problem, and you'll find it on our Web 11 site. We have detailed the costs and consequences of 12 failing to plan for replacing the current machines and 13 to consider what a new and much more reliable and 14 transparent system might entail. Right now, we're 15 paying very high costs, monetary, human and political 16 by relying on these deteriorating vote tabulators.

17 Vendors, on November 6th, 2012, received at 18 least 200 tabulator service calls. In the run-up to 19 the election, there were at least 783 documented 20 service requests. In Ingham County, the home of our 21 state capital, fully one-third of local jurisdictions 22 reported tabulator malfunctions.

23 According to our friends at the Lawyers
24 Committee for Civil Rights, who run the hotline on 25 election day, they saw -- they were describing in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 their -- in their general election report on Michigan, 3 quote, "Voting machine failures around the state and 4 poll workers inadequate responses to those failures
5 contributed to long lines."

6 Now, for many years, voters in some 7 Michigan precincts have waited hours to vote. We know
8 that our average wait time in Michigan is in the top
9 five longest in the country. We are among 12 states 10 that have a wait time of over 20 minutes. That's not 11 good.

12 The Pew 2012 election snapshot for Michigan 13 put our average at 22 minutes, but this can be 14 misleading. There are a lot of factors that can 15 affect the statistic, but the failure of a single 16 tabulator can shut down a precinct for hours. And the 17 research by the folks out of Ohio state showed that 18 when a voter has to wait over an hour -- usually, the 19 wait's a lot longer, it's two or three. So, we're 20 getting up to the point where people are going to walk 21 away and not vote. And that happened in the 2008, as 22 well, and the NAACP reported many instances of that.

23 So, we've concluded that our tabulators
24 that we're using, which were bought in 2003 and 2004 25 with Federal Help America Vote Act money, they're

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 inaccurate. And we've done some very sensitive 3 studies to show that they can be as much as 2 percent 4 off. The first congressional district in 2012 was 5 decided by .46 percent. So, it -- you can't trust 6 them with a close election.

7 These are prone to malfunction, they jam, 8 they're not secure, they're easily compromised, and 9 we've been able to demonstrate how easy it is to hack
10 them. And they're already beyond their recommended 11 service life. We need to retire them as soon as 12 possible. Let's -- let's get out of this old car.

13 Now, replacing them with more of the same
14 would be foolhardy. There are two remaining vendors 15 in Michigan, Dominion and ES&S. They've combined into 16 one foreign-based company. So, they're, effectively, 17 a monopoly, and this monopoly operates proprietary 18 election software, it's counting our votes in secret, 19 and the software, by Michigan election laws, is exempt
20 from disclosure, so you can't know what it's doing.
21 You can't read the code. Is two plus two four? We 22 don't know.

23 Much of Europe, India, Canada, and some 24 U.S. states like New Hampshire, have been hand 25 counting votes, and they've been showing that that's

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 reliable, very -- very transparent because everybody
3 can watch it, and the United Nations considered hand 4 counting the gold standard for counting votes. That's 5 a world standard. So, while we're phasing out the old 6 tabulators, we can also, maybe, hand count audits, 7 which would be an important tool to ensure that the 8 results produced by the tabulators are correct, and 9 these would be random audits designed to assure that 10 we have a confidence level in the outcome.

11 MERA is recommending that the Michigan 12 legislature establish a blue ribbon commission to hold 13 public hearings, receive testimony, develop a 14 comprehensive plan for a transition to a more 15 transparent, accurate, verifiable vote counting 16 system, and we want them to prepare legislation for 17 implementation. We already have been looking for 18 sponsors, and we think we have some, and that's 19 wonderful. We need more.

20 By the way, the state of Colorado is doing 21 this right now, and California has already gone
22 through it. So, we're not the first ones.

23 The costs of doing nothing are very high.
24 The costs of addressing the problem are very small, in 25 comparison. It would be an investment that would pay

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 us very soon. Instead of spending all that money on 3 new questionable equipment, we -- we could actually be 4 employing 20,000 Michigan voters in every election to 5 hand count votes the votes, specially trained 6 counters. Why not keep the money here?

7 So, I would encourage you to read our 8 report. It's at 9 www.michiganelectionreformalliance.org. You can get 10 our previous report on the voter purge, as well.

11 This is our new report showing, vote here, 12 and a trash can, which is what a lot of voters feel 13 like these days.

14 And I want to thank the Commission for your 15 attention to our remarks.

16 DEAN BENSON: Thank you to our panel, Todd,
17 Gloria, Rich, and Jan, for your very informative
18 testimony.

19 Before we move on to the public testimony
20 period of our hearing, I will ask my fellow 21 Commissioners if they have any questions for our 22 current panel.

23 Justice Kelly?

24 JUSTICE KELLY: Yes. Ms. BenDor, I found 25 your testimony very interesting. The idea that we

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 would go back to hand counting seems like a step
3 backwards, in truth. Wouldn't it take a terribly long 4 time to calculate election returns going back like 5 that?

6 MS. BENDOR: I'm really glad you asked
7 that. That has been the PR for the voting machine 8 companies, and the media are partly to blame for this, 9 also, because they're always pressing, we've got to 10 have results. But what happens in a precinct when the 11 machines jam and the numbers can't be balanced, is 12 these people often end up staying until 2 or 3 in the 13 morning have to rerun all the ballots, anyway. So, we 14 might as well just do it once and get it right.

15 And we've done a lot of experimentation 16 with hand counting, and trained counters are 17 incredibly fast. We have seen trained counters go 18 through 1200 ballots, which is what you might have in 19 a precinct, in two and a half to three hours. But you 20 have to be trained. You can't just sit down and 21 figure it out on the spot.

22 And, you know, when you think about it, 23 what is the need for speed? Is -- is that going to be 24 for the integrity of the vote? Is that what the 25 voters really want? Can't we get the results at

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 midnight? Do we have to have them at 9? Let's get it 3 right, and then we can have confidence in our 4 democracy and know that the right people won or the 5 right ballot question won.

6 JUSTICE KELLY: I have one more question.

7 Mr. Robinson, you talked a lot about the 8 use of dark money and the effect that this new 9 legislation will have on Michigan elections. Is that 10 true in elections that are both partisan and 11 nonpartisan?

12 MR. ROBINSON: It is. In fact, the 13 greatest percentage of undisclosed money in election 14 campaigns that we've observed so far have been in 15 nonpartisan judicial campaigns, although undisclosed 16 money is endemic to our gubernatorial campaigns and it 17 has recently become a feature of Attorney General and 18 Secretary of State campaigns, as well. So, it's 19 everywhere.

20 JUSTICE KELLY: Do you think that, in the 21 next election, the public will be interested in 22 discussing this issue and the votes taken on this 23 legislation?

24 MR. ROBINSON: Well, I hope so, because 25 there is a trend. Migrating away from the candidates

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 to third-party independent groups or the political 3 parties as the vehicles for running a campaign. In 4 effect, turning the candidates into bystanders at 5 their own election, in some cases, as far as the money 6 goes, at least.

7 When you don't know whose money it is, when 8 you have some innocuous committee name like Committee
9 For God and Country or The Common Sense Advocates, it 10 leaves the voter with no knowledge of who is really 11 advocating and supporting and propelling the 12 candidates.

13 JUSTICE KELLY: So, you don't find 14 convincing the argument that this is a matter of 15 freedom of speech, and that those who wish to conceal 16 their identity when they buy large -- large amounts of 17 time on public media to influence an election, to be 18 protected from retaliation?

19 MR. ROBINSON: Well, I would concede that 20 my opinion is a small one, and I would defer to the 21 United States Supreme Court on that, who has addressed 22 those questions directly, that the First Amendment is 23 well served by disclosure in campaign finance, and 24 part 4 of Citizens United has questioned about whether 25 disclosure was appropriate.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 In that particular case, justice Thomas 3 took the position that, yes, we open ourselves to 4 danger of intimidation. Well, he lost that vote eight
5 to one, and I, frankly, don't find much reason to fear 6 that the most powerful persons and interest groups in 7 this state will be intimidated.

8 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

9 Any other questions?

10 Judge Hood.

11 JUDGE HOOD: Excuse me. I just had a 12 couple of Ms. Mills. When you said every -- every -- 13 I'm sorry.

14 Let me go back to, the first one I wanted
15 to ask is: What were the obstacles to getting an ID 16 that you -- that you have seen people encounter?

17 MS. MILLS: Okay. The first obstacle is 18 that -- the cost of State ID. Working with all of the 19 populations that we were trying to get registered, 20 people -- unemployed people, homeless people, and so 21 forth, they don't have money to get to the Secretary 22 of State's office and they don't have the fee to 23 actually pay for the State ID. That was the first 24 obstacle.

25 Second obstacle, they -- they told me that

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 when they did go and they did have the money, they 3 needed two and three pieces of identification to 4 verify that that was -- that they truly were that 5 person. So, everything would snowball from there.
6 Once they got there, they would still be turned down
7 because they didn't have any government IDs or utility 8 bills or the kinds of things that those of us 9 homeowners have automatically. They didn't have 10 those. So, that began to be another set of obstacles.

11 JUDGE HOOD: I assume this is your opinion
12 that that's a deliberate attempt to make it harder?

13 MS. MILLS: I didn't say that. I said
14 that's why --

15 JUDGE HOOD: I said, your opinion.

16 MS. MILLS: Oh, in my opinion?

17 JUDGE HOOD: Yes.

18 MS. MILLS: Yes, it was an attempt. The 19 requiring of an ID is an attempt, in the first place.
20 I have voted in several election cycles over a long 21 period of years -- without going too much into how 22 many years -- and we didn't need ID. The election 23 workers would match signatures and tell you to go 24 ahead. So, why, suddenly, do we need to identify 25 ourselves when that was sufficient before? So, yes, I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 would call it a deliberate attempt to disenfranchise 3 certain elements of the population.

4 JUDGE HOOD: You've answered my question.

5 MS. MILLS: Oh, okay.

6 JUSTICE KELLY: I had one more. I was 7 intrigued, Mr. Schmitz, when you talked about online 8 voter registration, because it occurred to me that 9 this comparing of signatures is -- is a very big part 10 of identifying voters when they come to the polls.
11 How is that handled in online registration?

12 MR. SCHMITZ: With online voter 13 registration, you can capture a signature online, as 14 well. So, just like anybody who has made a purchase
15 at Target or signed for a Federal Express or UPS 16 package, you sign your signature, that can be done 17 with comparison.

18 In addition, for things like challenged 19 ballots, for example, or where other information is 20 needed, we not only have the signature with online 21 voter registration, we have the date and time that it 22 occurred, where it went, we have email address and 23 complete address information of the applicant. And 24 people who apply to vote online or who apply to vote 25 by mail still must show a photo ID when they go to the

2 polls.

3 And the last point I would make is, the 4 State-qualified voter file and the elections process
5 already have a mechanism in place when a signature
6 doesn't exist at all. What happens when a voter goes 7 into the poll is, the clerk or the poll worker -- it 8 will come up on the screen and it flags, verify 9 signature.

10 So, it's not unusual to get an application 11 in without a signature, and in the paper world, what 12 happens is, that's flagged, the person is asked to 13 sign right at the polling place, show ID, and then 14 they can vote. So, it should be no different with 15 online voter registration.

16 DEAN BENSON: Thank you, Commissioners.

17 Thank you, Panel, for a very informative
18 collection of testimony and remarks. Thank you.

19 We are now entering the first segment of 20 our hearing that is open for public testimony. We 21 will call those individuals who have signed up 22 throughout the course of the hearing to give public 23 testimony. If you have not signed up, but you would 24 like to, and if you have testimony to give and stories
25 to share, please see Carly at the registration booth

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 right outside and Carly will add you to our list so 3 that you will be called to testify. And, again, 4 anyone present is able to give testimony simply by 5 signing up.

6 We have two public testimony periods, so if 7 you do not get a chance during this period -- this 8 period will run until about 5:45. If you don't have 9 an opportunity, over the next 30 minutes, to speak, 10 you will have a second opportunity to give public 11 testimony beginning around 7:30. So, please speak 12 into the mic. over to the left when your name is 13 called, and I am going to begin by calling on Tijuana 14 Morris.

15 Ms. Morris?

16 MS. MORRIS: Hello.

17 DEAN BENSON: Hi. You can speak right
18 there at the microphone on the left.

19 MS. MORRIS: Oh, okay. Thank you.

20 DEAN BENSON: And if you could limit your 21 remarks to five --

22 TIMEKEEPER: Four.

23 DEAN BENSON: -- four minutes.

24 MS. MORRIS: Hello, Everyone. My name is 25 Tijuana Morris. I'm an investigating (inaudible) and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 retired police officer. I'm also a candidate -- I was 3 a candidate in this past election for the Detroit 4 Police Commissioner Board. And my question -- I had 5 two. One -- well, not questions, comments.

6 One was, when I went in to put my ballot
7 in, there was supposed to have been a ticket -- a 8 piece of ticket, or something, that was supposed to be 9 torn off the ballot before I entered it into the 10 computer, into the machine box, and there was no
11 ticket torn off. And we were having a round table 12 discussion and some said, oh, my ticket was torn off, 13 and I said, well, didn't nobody tear anything off of 14 my ticket. So, did my vote count? Is what I'd like 15 to know.

16 And the -- the number of the ticket that 17 you have and the number that's on the voting box, 18 should they match? What would -- my question: What 19 would constitute a stolen ballot? I don't know if my 20 ballot counted or not.

21 And the second and last issue was 22 concerning the same signatures. I did witness, 23 through videotape, same signatures. And I -- of 24 course, my campaigning, I found out that, some 25 institutions, one person can sign -- this is what was

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 explained to me, that, in some institutions the -- one 3 person can sign for the residents in the institution.

4 Is that legal?

5 The last of this is, we need to have a 6 system that's safe and once you put your ticket in 7 that box, you know that your vote counted. That's -- 8 that's -- that's it, basically. Did my vote count?
9 And what can we do to perfect it? To make sure that 10 once your ticket is -- the green light, you go out and 11 say, yeah, your ticket counted. Thank you.

12 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

13 Do our Commissioners have any comments or 14 responses?

15 Thank you very much for your -- your
16 testimony.

17 MS. MORRIS: Okay. Thank you.

18 DEAN BENSON: I'll next call Ms. D. Etta 19 Wilcoxon.

20 MS. WILCOXON: The City of Detroit has a 21 reputation of having corrupt elections, and in the 22 process of going through our last election cycle in 23 2013, I decided to take a look at some research and 24 look backwards. I did.

25 I found an article that was written by Curt

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Diaz (ph), and, in that article, he said, "No count
3 recount." He was referring to the election of 2005.
4 In that article, he said that you could not determine,
5 in the city of Detroit, the validity of ballots
6 because ballot stub numbers did not match the numbers 7 on the cannisters. And as a result of that, they were 8 not counted under State law.

9 Fast forward eight years, 2013, we had the 10 same thing occurring. We have been asking in this 11 city for clean elections for decades now, and we have 12 had no one even listen to us, let alone fix the 13 problem. Not at the county level and not at the state 14 level.

15 We paid for two recounts in 2013, a primary 16 and a general. The primary was sent, at our pleading 17 with the Wayne County Board of Canvassers, to the 18 Attorney General's office. The Attorney General wrote 19 a two-page assessment and said that the residents of 20 the city of Detroit did not get a full and complete 21 investigation, which is required by statute. No one 22 has addressed the fact that we did not get a recount.
23 No one has addressed the fact that we paid for one.
24 No one has addressed the fact that we are entitled to 25 one.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 For the general election, we also paid for 3 a recount, and we braved subzero temperatures, and we 4 went day after day after day for a recount. The Wayne
5 County Board of Canvassers, one of their members
6 declared before the recount was completed -- and I'm 7 going to paraphrase, but it's pretty close to a quote.
8 He said, there is no fraud in elections in the state 9 of Michigan, period. No fraud in elections in the 10 state of Michigan.

11 He said, I have been doing this for a very 12 long time, and the only fraud that I've ever come 13 across was poor people getting too many welfare
14 checks. He said, Ms. Wilcoxon, it is people like you 15 who waste the taxpayer's money and time asking for a 16 recount. There is no fraud. They're not going to 17 find any fraud. This is the mindset that we had going 18 into the recount process. This was not at the 19 conclusion of the process. This was before the 20 process was concluded.

21 When the Wayne County Board of Canvassers
22 did take testimony, they told us that we had already 23 given them testimony prior to the completion of the 24 recount process. We asked them how that was possible.
25 And they said, we took your testimony days ago,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 despite the fact that the process had not completed
3 itself. They, also, went further to say, "We are not 4 going to take testimony. Bring us your best witness."
5 And that's a quote.

6 How you get to the bottom of finding 7 evidence that substantiates fraud or impropriety is a 8 mystery to me. Now, I had received my law degree in 9 1986, and when I was in law school, I was taught that 10 the facts take you wherever they take you. That 11 evidence is supposed to be assessed and weighted. We 12 did not get that in the city of Detroit.

13 The City of Detroit has approximately 14 50,000 test ballots. And the word "test" is not 15 stamped anywhere on those ballots. In the city of 16 Romulus, we had testimony which indicated that the 17 word "test" is stamped on the face of the ballot in 18 red. It cannot be used for any other purpose.

19 When we asked the director of elections for 20 the City of Detroit on the record, under oath, where 21 the word "test" or any other designation which would 22 distinguish those ballots from any other ballot, was 23 on the ballot, and he said that they were on the stub, 24 the entire stub in the city of Detroit is torn off the 25 ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 He was asked on the record where are the 3 stubs? He said, we threw them in a blue tub. We 4 said, where are those blue tubs with the stubs in 5 them? They're in the blue tubs, he said. And that 6 was satisfactory to the Wayne County Board of 7 Canvassers.

8 The City of Detroit did not account for a 9 single open blank ballot that was used in the process.
10 Not one was accounted for. We recounted 125 AV
11 counting boards. There was not a single black ballot 12 leftover from any packet of ballots in any of those 13 precincts. Ballots in the city of Detroit are 14 purchased in denominations of 100 in cellophane
15 packets that are sealed. If a person votes in a 16 precinct and they are person number 405, that means a 17 minimum of 95 ballots should be somewhere.

18 We asked, in the recount process, to see 19 those ballots, to see a tally of those ballots. We 20 asked how many ballots were purchased in the city of 21 Detroit. None of that information was forthcoming.
22 The Wayne County Board of Canvassers refused to do --
23 or, I should say, perform their statutory duty.

24 So, the question for this Commission
25 becomes: As it relates to the city of Detroit, when

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 will the residents of the city of Detroit be able to 3 attach the word "integrity" to the process? When?

4 I think the residents of the city of 5 Detroit deserve fair, honest, and open elections like 6 every other place in the state of Michigan does. And 7 until we have someone who comes in here and who will 8 legitimize the process by conducting an investigation, 9 then you're going to continue having the residents of 10 the city of Detroit say, almost down to a person, that 11 I did not elect the people downtown supposedly 12 representing me. They were selected, not elected.
13 There is no faith in this process in the city of 14 Detroit.

15 And I want this Board to note, on the 16 record, that I am not coming to you as a resident of 17 the city of Detroit complaining over an election that 18 I, quote, unquote, lost, I am complaining about a 19 process that we have been saying for decades now is 20 not fair, is not transparent, and is not above board.
21 That's why I'm here. We collected the empirical 22 evidence to substantiate the claims that we are 23 making, and no one would even look at them.

24 So, as a resident of the city of Detroit, I 25 have to tell you that I was reluctant to come here. I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 was persuaded by brighter minds than mine, to come. I 3 came because they said that this organization is an 4 organization that has integrity and is underpinning.

5 I would trust -- I would trust that someone 6 would take it upon themselves to recognize the fact 7 that democracy has been highjacked in the city of 8 Detroit. And when it comes to our elections, there is 9 no difference. Democracy does not prevail in this 10 city and -- and in the words -- to paraphrase a quote 11 of Dr. Martin Luther King, injustice is a threat to 12 justice anywhere. Anti-democratic policies are a 13 threat to democratic policies anywhere in this 14 country.

15 And until we Americans rally around the 16 fact that we are all Americans to be treated in 17 similar fashion, then we are not going to get to the 18 root of the problem here. We had unrecountable (sic) 19 precincts totaling over 10,000 votes in the city of 20 Detroit. In our 2009 mayoral election, there were 21 60,000 that could not be recounted.

22 Thank you.

23 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much for your
24 testimony.

25 Do you have any comments, Commissioners?

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 MS. WILCOXON: I'm sorry. If I could share
3 with this Board a documented portion of evidence that 4 we have substantiated.

5 DEAN BENSON: Yes.

6 MS. WILCOXON: Thank you.

7 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

8 Next in our public testimony, Ms. Anita 9 Belle.

10 And I'll remind our speakers, you have -- 11 please limit your testimony to four minutes.

12 Thank you.

13 MS. BELLE: Hello. My name is Anita Bell, 14 and I was a Michigan Democratic party challenger for 15 the 2012 -- I'm sorry, the 2013 mayoral general 16 election in Detroit. I was also an absentee voter for 17 that election, and I had submitted a -- an affidavit
18 that was to Mr. Martinson, and maybe the Board got a 19 copy of it. In that affidavit, I described what 20 happened to several challengers. We were thrown out 21 of the absentee ballot counting that took place in 22 Cobo Hall in the Macomb room.

23 So, to briefly describe what's in that 24 affidavit, what happened was, I was going around to 25 various voting machines, and I had written down the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 actual number that was displayed on the voting
3 machines. And I think it was Ms. BenDor who described 4 that the voting machines are not very secure, they 5 break down frequently. That is exactly what I 6 noticed.

7 So, I wrote down the number that was 8 displayed on the voting machines and, at one 9 particular voting machine, 800, the election workers
10 kept opening it and had to put the ballots in again
11 because, supposedly, the machine had jammed. And I
12 wrote down the time that they did this. And, so, it 13 was somewhere around 3 p.m. on November 5th that this 14 was happening at AV counting board 80. But I wrote 15 down as many counting boards as I could.

16 At about, oh, I'd say, 5:30, I was writing 17 down some counting boards, starting with counting 18 board 1 and going up to number 12, and I was told, 19 also check the number of ballot stubs and the number 20 of signatures in the book. Make sure that there 21 aren't more or less. So, I get to voting board 22 number 8. The time was around 5:30. There's 23 supposedly -- 366 is the display on the voting
24 machine. And, so, there were only 352 ballot stubs.
25 My question was: How could there be more ballots in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 the machine than there were stubs for that ballot?

3 So, I go to voting board number 9. It
4 says, on the machine, 348 ballots. However, it says
5 the number of voters -- according to the poll booth, 6 it says, voters, 375; ballots, 375; spoiled, 3; 7 returned 330. First thing I noticed is, they mailed 8 out 375 and 330 were returned, that is a voter return 9 rate of close to 80 percent. More than 80 percent.
10 And, yet, we were told that the voter turnout for the 11 election in November was 25 percent.

12 We were told, also, that -- Janice Winfrey
13 had testified to a judge -- Judge Patricia Fresard, 14 that she sent out 30,000 absentee ballots. However, 15 over 44,000 absentee ballots were counted on election
16 day. So, my concern is, that's a voter turnout -- oh, 17 one minute. That's a voter turnout of about 18 141 percent.

19 So, that means every one that was mailed 20 out was returned, plus a few thousand people walked in 21 and voted absentee at a few centers. And that, to me, 22 is a problem that alerted me to ballot stuffing. And 23 because there is that potential for ballot stuffing, 24 I'm just wondering if there's some vacant lots that 25 have home -- I don't say those are homeless people

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 because nobody lives on these vacant lots, and if 3 somebody is using those addresses to vote in the city
4 of Detroit.

5 Thank you very much.

6 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

7 Any questions from Our commissioners?

8 Up next, we have Jean Vortkamp.

9 MS. VORTKAMP: Hi. My name is Jean
10 Vortkamp. I ran for mayor in the 2013 fraudulent 11 election. This was my first time running for public 12 office. Once I had realized what was wrong, I had 13 called, among other groups, the League of Women Voters 14 National Group, the ACLU of Detroit, and the National 15 Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, and 16 received no help.

17 The participants in the recount contacted
18 every authority multiple times, only to hear crickets
19 chirping back. Nothing. Passing the buck. Detroit 20 is the graveyard of democracy. We have an emergency 21 manager leading us to a pre-planned bankruptcy, a 22 fraudulent election system.

23 When I look at the impoverished children of 24 Detroit that I work with day by day, I used to wonder, 25 what else can you take from them? You can take their

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 voting rights, can't you? That's all they have left.

3 At the recount, I observed many ballots 4 across precincts and at absentee counting boards in 5 similar handwriting. The investigation -- and I use
6 that word very loosely -- done by the Wayne County 7 Board of Canvassers was ridiculously unjust. They had 8 Tom Barrell (ph), Mr. Cole, and I choose ballots at 9 random to be sent to the handwriting expert.

10 Those 19 that you heard of in the 11 newspaper, were chosen by them opening a box, putting 12 them on a table about this long (indicating), however 13 many would fit, and told us to go pick the ones that 14 we thought were fraudulent. Now, this is something 15 that the FBI would probably take months to figure out, 16 and they just think we are going to pick the 17 fraudulent ballots off of the table for them. This is 18 why, whenever fraud is something that people think 19 happened, it should be done by law enforcement
20 officers, not by a volunteer Board that doesn't know 21 what they're doing.

22 They looked at 19 out of 40,000 ballots.
23 That's not even 1 percent. That is not any kind of 24 sample. The methodology that they used 25 circumnavigated the truth. It did not try to find the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 truth. The most telling ballot is the one with two 3 different styles of writing on the same ballot. And 4 then the writing on that ballot with the two different 5 writing styles matches ballots in other precincts.
6 Children can match these ballots, and I'm unsure why 7 this election -- why the general election continued on 8 and why we have -- okay.

9 Other recount commissioners took it to 10 court, only to get a judge who was openly a donor to 11 the write-in. They lost. There is details in my 12 testimony that explain much more in detail what I 13 experienced.

14 I am here because I want my voting rights
15 back. I want the last year of my life back when I ran 16 for mayor in what was just a farce. I don't 17 appreciate that, and I don't think that anybody in 18 Detroit appreciates being used in a farce.

19 And what this opened up to me is that,
20 through my whole life living in Detroit and people 21 always putting down Detroit and asking me why do we 22 elect who we elected? We didn't. And whoever is 23 putting these people in, however they are doing it, 24 they need to be punished. Everything they've taken 25 from us needs to be returned.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 So, I'm just hoping that you will take my 3 comments to heart; that you will read my full 4 testimony, which explains, in detail, everything that 5 I saw go on at that recount, which includes a lawyer 6 from Wayne County running -- whenever they -- whenever 7 the -- this is the word -- okay. When they -- when 8 the candidates told them that they were taking them to 9 court, a lawyer from the County ran out of the room 10 with a lawyer from the write-in candidate. What's 11 that? And that's just a piece.

12 So, I hope you all think about it, and I 13 hope that you all take to heart what's going on in 14 Detroit, because we know. We know now.

15 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

16 Any questions from the commissioners?

17 We have, next, Matt Robb.

18 MR. ROBB: Hi. Good evening, everybody.
19 My name is Matt Robb. I'd just like to thank you guys 20 for all being here this morning and advocating for 21 this very important, if under discussed, issue, and 22 thank you to Wayne State and Dean Jocelyn Benson for 23 providing this forum.

24 I'd like to speak to you today as a 25 lifelong Michigander, a proud Detroiter, and about my

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 experiences with voting as a college student, and 3 later as my experience as an Obama campaign organizer
4 and a college campus activist trying to get people 5 registered to vote. So, specifically, I want to 6 discuss the voter registration policies in the state 7 of Michigan.

8 The current policy is that, if you are 9 going to register to vote, you need to do so 30 days 10 prior to the election in order to be able to cast that 11 vote. If it is your first time casting a ballot, then 12 you may not absentee vote.

13 So, I have tried to vote in the 2004
14 election. I wanted to vote in the Democratic primary.
15 I arrived at the Secretary of State's office three 16 weeks prior to the primary date. And I fill out my 17 form, proudly take it up, you know, 18 years old, 18 excited to vote for the first time, and they say,
19 well, I'm sorry, but you're going to have to wait 20 until the general election because there's a 30-day 21 waiting period, and we're 21 days out right now. So, 22 I was unable to have my voice heard in the 2004
23 election.

24 Later on -- here, if I may slip this out of 25 here. I'm a little taller than the last speaker. I'm

2 sorry.

3 And later on, in the general election,
4 someone who lived down the hall from me -- her name 5 was Jenny -- she didn't get the urge to vote until 6 Monday night before the election. Right? We were, 7 you know, sitting around in the dorm talking about it, 8 and she goes, you know, this is important. I want to 9 do this. Right?

10 We go to Ferris State University in Grand 11 Rapids, Michigan. She lives and grew up in Berkley.
12 This absentee voter policy made it so that she had to 13 drive all the way to Berkley, Michigan, which is a 14 three, three-and-a-half-hour drive, depending on 15 conditions, and cast her vote.

16 Now, I'm real proud of her that she did it,
17 but I'll just pose the question to the audience here, 18 how many 18- to 22-year-olds do you think are going to 19 leave their college dorm room on a Monday and drive 20 all the way three, four hours back home in order to 21 cast a single vote? That -- that number is not large; 22 right? And that's not happening.

23 And this policy is creating an active voter 24 suppression of youth, low-income and transient 25 populations throughout the state of Michigan. And if

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 we don't change this policy, that's going to continue.
3 And if we do, I guarantee that you will see an 4 immediate result in young voter turnout, in low-income 5 turnout, in transient population turnout, people who 6 have to move very often. All right?

7 And, then, in the 2008 election, I was a 8 paid organizer for the campaign up in northern 9 Michigan, did some work in Detroit, and through voter 10 registration, we had to either mail or personally 11 deliver any voter registrations that we had to collect 12 by hand. So, we're sending in, you know, hundreds of 13 voter registrations, and the method of getting it 14 there was so long and arduous, and we couldn't 15 guarantee that the people then received them at the 16 correct address.

17 And there were multiple occasions where we 18 just ran across voters up in northern Michigan -- I 19 ran across four, five people. I said, did you get 20 your voter registration materials back? And they 21 said, no, no. I'm just waiting for it. I don't know 22 where to vote, I don't know if I can vote, I don't 23 know if I'm registered. And all this trying to beat 24 the 30-day waiting period. You know, we're talking, 25 you know, hundreds of thousands of people that are

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 getting disenfranchised by this policy.

3 So, I just would like you to look at that,
4 and thank you so much for your time.

5 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much, Matt.

6 Do our commissioners have any questions?

7 Okay. We'll take two more individuals in 8 this public testimony period. And as far as anyone 9 else who hasn't signed up, just sign up for our next 10 public testimony period beginning at 7:00.

11 We next have Richard Hairston.

12 MR. HAIRSTON: Thank you very much.

13 Ms. BenDor -- and I do want to thank Ms. BenDor for 14 the great work that you've done. I had an opportunity 15 to sit in on your class, even, which was very 16 informative, and I do appreciate the work that you've 17 done.

18 Ms. BenDor mentioned -- you want me to pick 19 it up? Ms. BenDor mentioned that there were only two 20 computer companies in the state of Michigan -- folks
21 that know me, know I'm inclined to eat these things, 22 microphones. I have one in front of me every day.

23 Thank you.

24 Ms. BenDor testified that there were only 25 two computer companies in the state of Michigan, one

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 of which is ES&S, and that's serving our election of 3 the Detroit City Clerk. Our Clerk -- and it was upon 4 Daniel Baxter leaving in the midst of -- of moving 5 from a primary to a general election, and she hires 6 someone from one of the computer companies to take 7 Daniel Baxter's place, and that appeared to be a 8 direct and flagrant conflict of interest.

9 I guess the other thing that sort of 10 circulates quietly, I remember, approaching the 11 election of Mike Duggan -- who was going to be a great 12 mayor, I might add -- they said he was going to need 13 about 20,000 votes in order to get on the ballot.
14 After watching and being a part of the group that 15 we're monitoring and auditing the recount and saw so 16 many curious signatures and extraordinary penmanship, 17 and it really didn't look like there was a Midwestern 18 way of writing, and witnessed these Roman Gs that were 19 so similar, I thought that since they had said that 20 Mike Duggan needed at least 20,000 votes, that someone 21 put 20,000 votes in their hip pocket, and Detroiters 22 voted 20,000 votes, and we came up with this 23 extraordinary number of 40,000 write-in votes for Mike 24 Duggan.

25 Thank you.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

3 Do our Commissioners have any questions for 4 Mr. Hairston?

5 Thank you, Richard.

6 And, finally, Ms. Valerie Glenn.

7 MS. GLENN: Thank you. I want to ditto
8 everything that everyone has said so far. This has 9 been extremely stressful for Detroiters. And I -- I 10 have not missed voting since 1968, and I can tell you, 11 a lot of people have become dissatisfied because of 12 it.

13 I am a member of the Michigan Democratic 14 party, 13th Congressional District, a precinct 15 delegate, precinct 166, and a part of state central.

16 I'm extremely disturbed that our state of 17 Michigan Democratic party leader has been silent, the 18 Michigan Democratic party has been silent. The 19 national Democratic party has been silent, and I am 20 kind of pissed off at the president because I think, 21 by now, since he's elected and can't run for another 22 term, he should start speaking up.

23 However, I want to talk about this election
24 process. My -- one of the organizations -- I'm a 25 member of NAN, but I'm also one of the founding

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 members of the Free Detroit Voting Center, and we went 3 in to challenge both Bernard Parker and Andre Spivey's 4 selection in the process of running in the 4th
5 District for City Council.

6 Based upon our findings, neither of them
7 had the necessary signatures. However, I was 8 responsible for Bernard Parker, and I did a thorough 9 job of investigating him. And Mr. Baxter, the one 10 that mysteriously left right after the primary, who 11 was the director of elections, changed all of the 12 rules.

13 For instance, he said that the signatures
14 on a single sheet did not have to be in sequential
15 order. I went back, I showed him the law. He said, 16 no, they didn't follow that. There aren't -- the 17 voting records have not been purged in Detroit. The 18 signatures -- many of the people don't have 19 signatures. People that had signatures on file and 20 just signed a zero, he said that was cool. It didn't 21 matter. It was okay.

22 So, I am -- I am convinced that this 23 select -- that people are selected to run. Neither of 24 them should have been running in the 4th District.
25 And when I saw the Clerk send someone in from the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 League of Women Voters to challenge the (inaudible).
3 That is when we decided, enough is enough, that we 4 would just step back. But the City Clerk's office
5 sent for someone to come in to look at her ballot. I 6 think it was Ms. Robinson. I can't think of her name 7 now. Thank you.

8 DEAN BENSON: Thank you, Valerie.

9 Any questions from our Commissioners?

10 Okay.

11 So, that concludes our public testimony
12 period, or first public testimony period. And, now, 13 moving in to our next panel on election administration 14 challenges and successes, we have three very notable 15 experts in the state of Michigan coming up to share 16 their -- their experiences.

17 First, we have Jesse Buchsbaum from Voice
18 your Vote from the University of Michigan; Melanie 19 McElroy of Common Cause Michigan; and representing 20 Mary Ellen Gurewitz of Sachs Waltman, we have Sharon 21 Dolente.

22 Come on up, all three of you.

23 And we'll begin with Jesse.

24 I'll remind all of our panelists that they 25 have eight minutes to present their testimony, and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 then we'll move on to Q and A with our commissioners.

3 So, we'll start with you Jesse.

4 MR. BUCHSBAUM: Hi, everybody. I'm Jesse 5 Buchsbaum. I'm the chair of the University of 6 Michigan's Voice Your Vote commission. Voice Your 7 Vote is a nonpartisan student group whose mission is 8 to get students involved in the political process.
9 Specifically, through voter registration and 10 education. We have no political affiliation. Our 11 only goal is to get more students to be active and 12 participate in the voting process.

13 As the main chair of Voice Your Vote, I,
14 obviously, have a unique perspective to view student 15 voting and the challenges that student voters face 16 each year. Before discussing specific challenges that 17 student voters face, I want to stress the importance 18 of easing the voting process for students.

19 The 18- to 24-year-old age group 20 consistently are the worst voter turnout in the 21 election process. Eighteen- to twenty-four-year-olds 22 are, typically, between 20 and 30 percent less likely 23 to vote than anyone 25 and older. The majority of 24 college students are within this age range, and the 25 University of Michigan student body is no exception to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 low turnout for young voters.

3 In order to increase turnout among college
4 students, we must ease the voting process for them.
5 There are three main challenges that I, along with 6 other members of Voice Your Vote, have identified that 7 students face in voting.

8 The first challenge is related to absentee 9 voting for students who aren't voting in their 10 hometowns. Matt, actually, touched on it during the 11 public testimony. For many first-time voters in 12 Michigan, and many other states, it's not possible to 13 both register to vote and -- I'm sorry, to register to 14 vote through the mail and vote via absentee ballot.
15 First-time voters have to either vote in person or 16 register to vote in person.

17 This policy provides a challenge for many 18 college students who don't think about voting until 19 they reach college, but don't have the chance to visit 20 home between the beginning of school and voter 21 registration deadline, which is in early October.
22 These students often lose the opportunity to vote at 23 their permanent addresses, which are their parents' 24 house, or are often discouraged from voting in 25 general.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 It's also important to note that some 3 students further view that registering to vote in 4 their new place, will change their dependency status
5 or somehow change the legal and financial relationship 6 between them and their parents. While our student 7 group has tried to alleviate these worries, many 8 students are still very nervous about registering to 9 vote in a new city or state.

10 The second challenge I want to talk about 11 is that, in Michigan, and any other states, any 12 citizen must re-register to vote any time he or she 13 changes addresses. For most, it makes perfect sense 14 as moving is fairly rare, but when they do occur, they 15 send people to different precincts and wards to vote 16 on different issues.

17 For students, however, many students'
18 addresses change each and every year. In order to 19 vote, they have to reregister each new election. This 20 might not be an issue for most politically interested 21 students, but, for your average student, it 22 discourages them to vote very much so if they are not 23 as motivated as registering each year requires much 24 more of them.

25 So, there is a cost to voting that, in some

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 ways, is unique to college students. Most graduates 3 and working adults don't move every year or two and 4 don't need to register each election, other students
5 do.

6 The policy that the moving -- the necessity
7 to re-register to vote for students moving within a 8 single precinct or ward, would remove this barrier 9 from registering many students and would increase 10 turnout for 18- to 24-year-olds.

11 The third challenge I want to touch on 12 actually occurs on election day for students.
13 Students who are registered to vote at the campus 14 address instead of their permanent residence may be 15 required to fill out a change of address form when 16 they attempt to vote.

17 For example, if a student is from New York
18 and has a driver's license from New York but attends 19 the University of Michigan, this student may register 20 to vote at his campus address in Michigan, as you are 21 allowed to do so, as either New York or Michigan 22 qualifies as a legal residence. When he goes to his 23 polling place in Ann Arbor on election day, he'll need 24 to fill out a change of address form, which takes 25 approximately five minutes.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Now, five minutes may seem inconsequential
3 for most. However, it can increase the amount of time 4 it takes for students to vote by a large magnitude.
5 Especially in popular campus voting places, where 6 voters already face longer lines than other citizens.

7 As I have seen personally, students who 8 need to fill out additional forms or wait in longer 9 lines, they are discouraged from voting in future 10 elections. Further, the consequence of completing the 11 change of address form are not explained -- the 12 consequences are not explained to students. They're 13 simply told that they need to complete it in order to 14 vote. This can lead to more confusion for students on 15 the nature of legal and financial relationship with 16 their parents.

17 Students fear that switching their address, 18 they may no longer be able to list themselves as 19 dependents of their parents. Others are afraid that 20 they are forfeiting their citizenship in other states.
21 These imaginary consequences can prevent students from 22 voting, such as they mistakenly think that they must 23 choose between voting and being dependents.

24 The change of address form that many 25 students most complete on election day, therefore,

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 presents a challenge because it lengthens voting times 3 and because its effects are not fully explained to 4 students.

5 So, there are a number of challenges that 6 students face throughout the voting process.
7 Hopefully, with raised awareness regarding this 8 important issue, we will be able to ease the voting 9 process for students.

10 I want to thank this Commission for 11 providing a forum to hear our challenges faced by 12 college students. Voice Your Vote will be happy to 13 provide assistance to the Commission in identifying 14 other challenges and working toward potential 15 conclusions. If you have any questions, feel free to 16 ask me.

17 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

18 Melanie McElroy of Common Cause Michigan.

19 MS. McELROY: I apologize for my cough. I 20 am no longer contagious, but I'm still catching my 21 breath after a few weeks.

22 My name is Melanie McElroy, and I am the 23 executive director of Common Cause Michigan.

24 Thank you to the Lawyers Committee and to 25 our Commissioners for the opportunity to submit

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 testimony for today's National Commission on Voting
3 Rights Hearing here in Detroit.

4 Common Cause is a nonpartisan, nonprofit
5 organization that is dedicated to restoring the core 6 values of American democracy. We envision an open, 7 honest and accountable Government that serves the 8 public interest by empowering ordinary people to make 9 their voices heard in the political process.

10 Protecting the right to vote has been a long-time 11 priority for Common Cause nationally and here in 12 Michigan.

13 In my capacity as chair of the Michigan
14 Election Coalition, a project of the Michigan Voice 15 Table, I have had the opportunity to participate in 16 election protection efforts with many of the 17 organizations and community leaders submitting 18 testimony today.

19 In 2012, Michigan was one of many states 20 targeted by a restricted voting bill straight from the 21 playbook of ALEC, the American Legislative Exchange 22 Counsel. This practice of unfair policies, which 23 passed in our legislature, called for photo ID
24 requirements, restrictions on third-party voter 25 registration, and redundant, unnecessary reaffirmation

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 of citizenship.

3 Governor Snyder vetoed most of these bills, 4 but not before they caused widespread confusion among 5 voters and election administrators across our state.
6 Voter education is a crucial element of our 7 coordinated election protection efforts. New ballots
8 in public foreign forums served as platforms to teach 9 voters about their rights and the changes that were 10 made and not made to Michigan's election laws.

11 In close collaboration with the Lawyers
12 Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, we promoted the 13 866-OUR-VOTE hotline, also available in Spanish, 14 888-VE-Y-VOTA. Their call center was open leading up 15 to election day to help voters verify their 16 registration status and answer questions about 17 required documents at polling locations.

18 In collaboration with organizations like 19 the League of Women Voters, the Michigan Co-Organized 20 Collaborative -- Collective, the (inaudible) Lynhoff 21 (ph) Institute and other Michigan voting partners, we 22 recruited and trained poll monitors in target cities 23 across the state. These locations were targeted based 24 on past incidents on election day, lack of funding, 25 emergency manager status, university campuses, and

2 more.

3 Election officials in some cities expressed
4 the need for more bilingual poll workers, as we heard 5 today, so we encouraged qualified people to apply for 6 those paid positions. We trained graduate volunteers 7 to look for evidence of voter suppression on election
8 day. In many cases, we anticipated that our greatest 9 problem would be battling misinformation by poll 10 workers and long lines at the polls.

11 These volunteers served as our eyes and 12 ears on the ground, monitoring activity at the polls 13 on election day across our state. Volunteers and 14 voters were instructed to call the 866-OUR-VOTE
15 hotline to report incidents. The call center then 16 answered questions over the phone, and also routed
17 calls to our local effort where volunteer attorneys 18 were deployed when necessary. Poll challenger 19 credentials were issued for purposes of intervening at 20 the polls where needed.

21 Election day 2012, most of our incident
22 reports cited long lines at the polls, machine
23 failures and confusion about voter identification
24 requirements. Some poll workers misinterpreted 25 requirements and unintentionally sent voters home.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Traditional ballots were mistaken for affidavits, 3 which, as you know, can serve as a voter
4 identification requirement if a person does not have a 5 driver's license. I wanted to state that. I know
6 some other people had talked about voter ID
7 requirements earlier today.

8 All of the calls in to the hotline of our 9 nonpartisan command center, were addressed and solved
10 by someone in our network. A few cities of Michigan 11 implemented in-person absentee voting during the days 12 leading up to election day.

13 In the city of Detroit, for example,
14 because the ballot was several pages long, as you 15 remember, it was especially helpful for voters to come 16 in and, at their leisure, carefully read through the 17 ballot and vote before election day. Increasing 18 awareness about this opportunity and ensuring that 19 more voters have the opportunity to take advantage of 20 early in-person absentee voting would only continue to 21 decrease long lines on election day.

22 In 2013, we held a smaller scale election 23 protection effort for the municipal elections in the 24 city of Detroit, Michigan, as we prepare for 2014.
25 While election protection efforts like ours have

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 helped out -- helped to put out fires, there are many 3 reforms needed in Michigan. Modernization of our 4 voter registration process by allowing voters to 5 register online and register closer to election day
6 would cause less confusion about registration status 7 near election day, which is causing long lines and 8 disenfranchisement.

9 Long lines can be addressed by explaining 10 access to the ballot. This means not only early 11 voting objections, but, also, no reason for absentee 12 voting in Michigan. Instead of supporting bills that 13 make voting more complicated and burden our 14 hardworking election officials, our lawmakers should 15 make it a priority to make it easier to vote and 16 harder to cheat in our state.

17 Voting in the state of Michigan should not 18 be an endurance sport. Common Cause and our partners 19 continue to defend the bedrock freedom of our 20 democracy, casting a ballot and having it counted 21 fairly.

22 Thank you very much.

23 MS. DOLENTE: My name is Sharon Dolente, 24 and I am the director of the Michigan Election
25 Coalition.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Thank you, Lawyers Committee, and members
3 of the Commission for having me here today. I'm 4 really honored to be here. I'm actually standing in 5 for Mary Ellen Gurewitz of Sachs Waldman, who was 6 required to be in New York City on the Detroit 7 bankruptcy case today, so she's dealing with another 8 very important piece of what's going on here for us in 9 Detroit.

10 Mary Ellen and I have been working closely 11 together for almost ten years on voter protection 12 activities, most recently, on the 2012 Obama campaign.
13 Mary Ellen has decades of experience on voting and 14 election law here in Michigan. She was asked to 15 discuss the citizen checkbox issue from 2012, and, 16 also, the threat in 2008, as voters were getting to be 17 challenged based on foreclosure lists.

18 So, I'm going to go through those two 19 issues so we can make sure to have it in the record, 20 these examples of efforts to disenfranchise voters in 21 Michigan.

22 So, as many of you may remember -- there 23 was a couple of references to it earlier today -- in 24 October of 2011, Secretary of State Ruth Johnson 25 announced a package of bills proposing amendments to

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Michigan election laws. Melanie just mentioned those, 3 as well.

4 Senate Bill 803 proposed amending the 5 application to vote to require an affirmative 6 statement by the elector indicating that he or she is 7 a citizen of the United States. It further provided 8 that if the elector does not affirmatively state on 9 that application that he or she is a citizen, that 10 elector should be challenged by a poll worker. If the 11 elector fails to state, under oath, that he or she is 12 a citizen of the United States, that elector shall not 13 be issued a ballot.

14 Senate Bill 803 also proposed amending the 15 absent voter ballot application to include the 16 question: "Are you a United States citizen?" With 17 check boxes for a yes or no response. The proposed 18 amendment would also require the following warning:
19 "If you answer that you are not a citizen of the 20 United States, you will not be issued an absent voter 21 ballot. If you do not answer the citizenship 22 question, an absent voter ballot will be issued to 23 you, but the ballot will not be counted unless you 24 answer the citizenship question in writing to the 25 clerk before the polls close on election day."

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Shortly after the introduction of the bill,
3 Secretary Johnson issued a notice to all county and 4 local clerks directing them to add this question:
5 "Are you a United States citizen?" To all
6 applications to vote and applications for absent voter 7 ballots, with check boxes for the voter to answer yes 8 or no. The notice that she sent out required that 9 this question be added to the forms for the 10 February 2012 presidential primary.

11 Secretary Johnson issued a subsequent 12 notice in which she provided, quote, guidance in the 13 form of answers to questions posed by County and local 14 election officials because they had been instructed to 15 ask this question, but there had been very little 16 other guidance or direction.

17 This, quote, guidance stated that if a 18 voter did not respond to the citizenship question on 19 the application for an absent voter ballot, that he or 20 she should be given the ballot. However, if a person 21 did not respond to the question on the application to 22 vote, the one you fill out when you come in person to 23 vote, he or she should be asked to respond. And if 24 the request was refused, the voter should be sworn in, 25 as with the challenge procedure, asked whether he or

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 she is a citizen, and if he or she refused to apply, a 3 ballot should not be given.

4 In June 2012, Senate Bill 803 was passed by 5 both houses of the Michigan legislature. It was then 6 vetoed by Governor Rick Snyder on July 3rd, 2012, 7 because, in his statement, he was concerned that the 8 bill could not -- I'm sorry. He was concerned that 9 the bill could create voter confusion among absentee
10 voters.

11 So, despite the Governor's veto,
12 Defendant Johnson continued to require the citizenship 13 checkbox on both applications to vote. The 14 citizenship checkbox created serious controversy and 15 delay during the August 2012 primary election when a 16 number of voters refused to answer the question 17 because they were aware of the Governor's veto and/or 18 because they found it redundant, duplicating what 19 someone had mentioned earlier, the fact that you 20 affirm you are a citizen when you register to vote.

21 Poll workers and local clerks were also 22 confused and were inconsistent in their responses to 23 voters who refused to answer the question. A number 24 of voters were not given ballots because they reused 25 to check either yes or no on the citizenship checkbox.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 Delays were common as a result of all of this 3 confusion.

4 In response to many calls and complaints to 5 local clerks, County clerks and the Bureau of 6 Elections, Defendant Johnson -- I'm sorry, defendant
7 because she was subsequently a defendant in the case.
8 Secretary Johnson issued a, quote, clarification, in 9 the middle of primary day.

10 The clarification changed the procedures
11 and directed that any voters that refused to fill out 12 the citizen checkbox, they were to be read a statement 13 reminding them that you must be a citizen to vote, and 14 then voters were to be given a ballot. Despite this, 15 quote, clarification, the confusion and chaos
16 continued throughout the day.

17 On September 4th, 2012, the Michigan
18 Election Coalition, a group of nonprofit organizations 19 supporting access to the ballot, wrote to 20 Secretary Johnson pointing out the lack of legal 21 authority for her actions instituting the citizenship 22 checkboxes and pointing out the confusion the checkbox 23 had created at the August primary.

24 The letter asked her to immediately remove 25 the citizenship checkbox question from the application

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 to be used in the upcoming presidential election, the 3 general election in November of 2012.

4 Secretary Johnson responded to the media by 5 declaring her intention to continue directing clerks 6 to include the citizenship checkbox pursuant to her,
7 quote, general authority to prescribe the use of forms

8 Many of Michigan's County clerks order
9 supplies from local, City, Township and Village clerks 10 in their counties, and because the citizenship 11 affirmation requirement had been vetoed by the 12 Governor, and because it's unauthorized imposition, in 13 the primary had created confusion and delay, a number 14 of County clerks decided they would not include the 15 question on their forms that they were ordering for 16 the November 2012 election. Some clerks who ordered 17 their own supplies, similarly decided that they would 18 not include the question on their forms.

19 A number of individuals and organizations
20 joined together to file suit against Secretary Johnson
21 to challenge this citizenship checkbox. The case,
22 which was entitled Bryanton, et al, v. Ruth Johnson, 23 was filed in September of 2012, in United States
24 District Court and assigned to Honorable Judge Paul 25 Borman.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 The lawsuit alleged that the citizenship
3 checkbox threatened to deprive Michigan citizens of 4 equal protection in violation of the 14th Amendment to 5 the United States Constitution and other violations of 6 State law.

7 A hearing on the plaintiff's motion for 8 preliminary injunction was held on October 5th, and 9 the court issued an injunction that day, following up 10 with a written decision on October 20 of 2012.

11 The Court concluded that the changes
12 directed by the Secretary of State in the Application
13 to Vote Form did not comply with the Michigan statute 14 or with the State Administrative Procedures Act, but, 15 most importantly, the court concluded that the 16 citizenship checkbox requirement, as implemented and 17 inconsistently administered by the Secretary of State, 18 unjustifiably burdened the fundamental right to vote
19 of Michigan citizens.

20 The Court summed its conclusion up as 21 follows: "The Defendant Secretary of State's 22 guidelines unjustifiably burdens the right to vote by 23 creating election day time and consuming public 24 confrontations between voters who refuse to fill in 25 the citizenship checkbox and the elections officials

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 who, after confronting the voter in public, was still 3 issued the ballot without the voter's compliance.

4 The Court finds that the Defendant
5 Secretary of State ordered the rules for carrying it 6 out classified voters disparately in many ways, 7 absentee and poll voters, and even within poll voters.

8 Those who check the box and those who 9 don't, it has burdened the right to vote and further 10 has not been sufficiently justified. Likely confusion 11 at the polls interferes with the right of all voters."

12 The Court considered and rejected the 13 Secretary's claim that it was important to educate 14 non-citizens that they could not vote and to prevent 15 the vote of citizens from being diluted by noncitizen
16 voters.

17 The Court rejected these arguments because 18 the Secretary established only two incidences of 19 noncitizen voting.

20 In sum, as widely observed at the time, the 21 citizenship checkbox was a solution in search of a 22 problem. The citizenship checkbox threatened to 23 create substantial chaos and delays during the 2012
24 general primary. Such delays are the greatest, if not 25 the greatest threat to voting in Michigan.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 A survey by the Michigan Election Coalition
3 of more than 10,000 voters in Michigan urban areas
4 found that more than 2 percent of those 10,000 5 surveyed left the polls without voting in the 6 November 2012 election. So, 2 percent of the 10,000
7 voters did not cast their vote, were disenfranchised 8 due to long lines.

9 Thank you.

10 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much to our 11 panelists.

12 Commissioners, any questions for our panel?
13 Professor Katz?

14 PROFESSOR KATZ: I just want to thank all 15 three of you for your testimony and your comments.
16 There was -- there was a theme from this panel. It 17 struck me that it would be confusion and that voters 18 are suffering from confusion.

19 And, Melanie, you spoke of all the work
20 your organization has done in helping voters, and it 21 struck me that you could help Jesse on campus with a 22 hotline for students, and Karen, as well, with the 23 (inaudible) check boxes is large amounts of turnout, 24 but yet you can imagine it.

25 I was wondering whether any of you might

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 want to speak to the question of whether private 3 organizations can fill this roll effectively or 4 whether you really seek legislative or judicial help 5 in navigating confusion as an obstacle to our vote.
6 Can we just invest more in Melanie and get her out 7 there? Would that be a complete solution? And to the 8 extent it's not, what do you see happening?

9 MS. McELROY: That's a really good point, 10 and I think that that is where the work of my 11 organization and our coalition has been born from the 12 fact that our legislature did not pledge on these 13 issues at this time.

14 And, so, nonprofit organizations have taken 15 it upon themselves, and, in many cases, we have 16 actually partnered with election officials and offered 17 to help them. I know Rachid mentioned, earlier, the 18 fact that they donated privacy screens to allow their 19 precinct to have more voting booths. Things like 20 that.

21 In many cases where we're able, which we're 22 all very strapped for cash ourselves, where we're able 23 to, we're more than willing to put ourselves out there 24 and fill that gap, which, in any many cases, 25 unfortunately, is not being filled by the Government.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 One other thing I'll say, to the effect of 3 the early voting options, our City clerk here in 4 Detroit did a great job of providing that 5 infrastructure, but, unfortunately, I don't think that 6 she has the resources to promote it enough for it to 7 be useful to its greatest potential.

8 And if they don't get a great turnout,
9 they're not going to do it again in the next year, 10 even though we saw a great impact, and, so, it's 11 lessening of one line from her effort. So, I guess 12 there's really no answer to your question, but we'll 13 continue to be there to try to fill in that gap and, 14 hopefully, we can partner with as many law structures 15 as possible.

16 I don't know if you have anything to add,
17 Sharon.

18 MS. DOLENTE: So, I guess I would say, I
19 think that there's a role for both; right? I mean, 20 I'm a big fan of civic organizations, private 21 organizations being able to (inaudible) and provide 22 important input and support where possible, but my 23 take-away from 2012 is that it is fundamentally a 24 responsibility of Government. As Melanie said, voting 25 should not be an endurance test.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 It should -- information should be 3 plentifully available, easily accessible through 4 multiple means that meet the variety and diversity of 5 citizens where they're at, and I believe that that's 6 an obligation of election officials who are 7 administering and writing elections all up and down.
8 You have -- from the highest election officials in our 9 state, to the local election officials.

10 And, so, you know, I think that I now 11 represent a lot of organizations, and it's great for 12 them to have a role, but it can't be as a replacement 13 for -- for government serving that role. And to the 14 degree that, you know, more funding and more support 15 needs to happen to make those election officials be 16 able to do it, then some of our organizations can 17 help, you know, encourage that and then bring that 18 voice to be heard so that, hopefully, happens.

19 MR. BUCHSBAUM: I would tend to agree with 20 both of you. I think that, coming from the University 21 of Michigan, where a student group is trying to 22 educate voters and deal with that confusion and -- we 23 are successful in many cases, but it's not as widely 24 spread as it needs to be. And, so, I think it does 25 need to come from somewhere greater. And we would

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 love for the University to do that, but it's unlikely
3 that's going to happen without a push from State
4 government. And, so, I do think that it's something 5 that the Government should address.

6 DEAN BENSON: Any other questions from our
7 Commissioners?

8 I, actually, have a question about -- a 9 follow-up on the citizen checkbox issue. My 10 understanding is that there was a law passed in 11 December of 2012 -- after the 2012 election, signed 12 into law, reinstating the citizenship checkbox in some 13 form. I was wondering if you could address that.

14 And, also, in addressing that, given the 15 case law, assess whether or not you feel that law
16 could similarly be challenged, and, if so, why or why 17 not?

18 MS. DOLENTE: Jocelyn, you know more about 19 this than I do. Unfortunately, I was not -- after the 20 election, I was not paying attention to that, so I
21 don't know. And I think there is still a capacity -- 22 sorry. I believe there still is the capacity to 23 challenge it because, if it is anything like its prior 24 version, it had a lot of confusion and chaos and 25 inconsistencies that created the opportunity for

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 voters to be treated differently.

3 It's my understanding that the court made 4 its conclusion and struck the provision down based on 5 that, based on the fact that there were so many 6 inconsistencies and confusion that voters were going 7 to be treated differently, and, therefore, it's 8 unequal.

9 DEAN BENSON: If there are no other 10 questions, I would like to thank our panelists for 11 your on the ground, very detailed analysis of past 12 problems in the 2012 elections, and what can be done
13 moving forward.

14 We're now moving on to our last panel on 15 voting rights in Michigan, and we have four panelists 16 joining us for this -- for this last conversation, and 17 I'll invite them up now. We have Chris Rodriguez from 18 the Michigan Protection and Advocacy Service; we have 19 Eva Packard from the League of Women Voters of 20 Michigan; Khalilah Spencer, who I believe will be 21 joining us shortly, from the Michigan State Conference
22 NAACP; and Theresa Tran of APIAVote-Michigan.

23 So, as we gather all of our panelists -- I 24 think we'll start with Chris Rodriguez from the 25 Michigan Protection and Advocacy Service.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 And I'll remind our panelists that you each 3 have eight minutes for your testimony. And, also, 4 remind the public out here that we do, following this 5 panel, have another opening for public testimony. So, 6 those of you who weren't able to provide public 7 testimony earlier, if you still have testimony to 8 provide, you'll have that opportunity after this 9 panel, before the hearing adjourns.

10 And, so, as our panel is speaking, if you
11 would like to sign up to deliver public testimony 12 during our next session beginning around -- about 13 quarter after, 20 after 7, I invite you to sign up 14 with Carly at the registration table, and we will take 15 your testimony after this panel.

16 So, with that, we'll turn to Mr. Rodriguez
17 from the Michigan Protection and Advocacy Service.

18 MR. RODRIGUEZ: Great. Well, let me begin 19 by expressing our very sincere appreciate to the 20 National Commission on Voting Rights and to all the 21 supporting organizations for taking up this nationwide 22 examination in surrounding the ever so important issue 23 of voting.

24 At this time, I would also like to say, on 25 behalf of Michigan Protection and Advocacy, thank you

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 very much for inviting us to be a part of the 3 discussion today. I hope that my testimony will be 4 helpful and will be worth some merit.

5 My name is Chris Rodriguez. I'm the 6 director of governmental affairs and media relations 7 at Michigan Protection and Advocacy. We are a 8 private, nonprofit Federally mandated to protect the 9 rights of folks with disabilities. So, this is going 10 to include protecting the rights of folks who have 11 intellectual and developmental disabilities, such as 12 Down Syndrome or autism, cerebral palsy, things of 13 that nature. We also represent the rights of folks 14 with mental illness, and we also protect the rights of 15 folks with physical disabilities.

16 While we perform a wide array of different 17 services in order to fulfill our responsibility in 18 protecting the rights of folks with disabilities and 19 to help place -- equipment place progressive policies 20 for independence among this population, one of my 21 specific responsibilities is to oversee our protection 22 and advocacy of protection access program or PAPA 23 program.

24 This program has worked through the 25 establishment of the Help America Vote Act, HAVA. I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 believe it was passed in two thousand and, I want to 3 say, two or three, which recognized, among other 4 things, the unique challenges that, all too often, 5 prohibit or hinder individuals with disabilities from 6 participating in electoral process in a fair and just 7 manner.

8 This unfortunate circumstance is readily
9 observed when taking into account the extremely low 10 voter turnout at this population, a population that 11 makes up this country's largest minority group.

12 The angle of the remainder of this 13 testimony is to briefly take you through our PAPA 14 program and its activities and projects under this 15 program, and to describe what we have observed over 16 the last few years as we go through these different 17 programs and kind of try to mix and things up and see 18 what we're finding.

19 Through our PAPA program, we have 20 established a few different projects aimed at 21 increasing the participation of individuals with 22 disabilities in the electoral process. We have spent 23 a significant amount of time and resources ensuring 24 that polling locations across the state of Michigan 25 are meeting their obligations under the law to be --

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 to ensure accessible voting locations for people with
3 disabilities.

4 We have conducted a number of candidate
5 forums so that people with disabilities can interact 6 with the candidates running for offices within their 7 district, and we have also performed numerous 8 trainings in an effort to help people with 9 disabilities understand the voting process and better 10 understand their rights with respect to voting.

11 As a quick aside, I think it's important to 12 mention that, at no time, are any of these projects or 13 activities done from a place of partisanship. These 14 are nonpartisan activities for the strict purpose of 15 improving voter education and participation among 16 people with disabilities.

17 Going into further detail concerning our 18 polling accessibility project, this project is a 19 statewide effort to ensure that all polling places in 20 the state of Michigan are in compliance with State and 21 Federal laws concerning accessibility, most notably, 22 the Americans with Disabilities Act, or the ADA, and 23 Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act.

24 When we go through the process of assessing 25 the polling locations, there's over 3600 polling

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 locations across the state, and we survey -- we try 3 and get around to each of those every few years, at 4 least, and survey them for compliance issues.

5 Among the circumstances that we find at 6 polling locations to be in noncompliance with State or 7 Federal law, a letter is issued to both the City Clerk 8 and the Secretary of State's office, notifying them of 9 the infringement, along with information on how they 10 may procure grant funds to remedy the issue.

11 In 2010, we were able to survey,
12 approximately, 95 percent of all polling locations, 13 and found that, of those locations that we're able to 14 survey, 25 of them had compliance issues that were 15 non-compliant with Federal or State law.

16 Since then, we believe that the 17 non-compliant locations have gone down to somewhere 18 around 10 percent. Hopefully, due to some of our 19 efforts. Having made what we feel is a significant 20 difference statewide, we have changed our focus now to 21 a more targeted approach, concentrating on areas in 22 the state in which we feel have the most numerous and 23 egregious violations, and those are going to be in the 24 city of Detroit and the city of Flint.

25 Changing gears to our efforts with respect

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 to candidate forms, these are nonpartisan events in 3 which we invite candidates running for a wide array of 4 different offices to come and listen to the needs of 5 people with disabilities. The candidates are offered 6 the opportunity to introduce themselves and the 7 particular office in which they are running for, and 8 then they are invited to take questions from the 9 audience.

10 These events have proved to be extremely 11 informative, not only for the people in attendance
12 with disabilities, but for the candidates themselves 13 and their understanding of issues facing people with 14 disabilities. In addition, these events help our 15 population feel more engaged, and, therefore, more 16 likely to participate on the day of the election.

17 Lastly, we hold a number of voting
18 trainings -- voter trainings. These trainings are 19 attended by people with disabilities and are held in 20 several different venues across the state. These 21 trainings give us the opportunity to make people with 22 disabilities aware of their rights with respect to 23 voting and help educate them on the voting process.
24 Things such as, how to register to vote, finding 25 information on candidates and finding polling

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 locations, et cetera.

3 In conclusion, I understand the purpose of 4 this hearing is to better understand what new policies 5 might be put into place in order to improve 6 participation in the electoral process. But with 7 respect to people with disabilities -- and, again, 8 this is the largest, most under represented minority 9 in terms of voter participation, it isn't so much the 10 establishment of new laws in policies, as much as it 11 is guaranteeing that the ones that currently exist are 12 actually being followed.

13 Too often, our clerks are ignoring their 14 responsibilities under the law to make their polling 15 locations accessible. Too often are voters with 16 disabilities being turned away because they can't 17 physically enter the building in a wheelchair. Too 18 often is this historically disenfranchised population 19 not adequately educated as to their rights surrounding 20 this ever important civic duty.

21 In conclusion, if I had to make some 22 recommendations, I would recommend stricter oversight 23 on accessibility compliance, continued dedicated 24 appropriations for grants to assist clerks in 25 retrofitting their polling locations so that they are

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 in compliance with Federal and State laws, their 3 continued dedicated funds geared at educating people 4 with disabilities about the electoral process, and 5 that they, too, have the right for their voices to be 6 heard.

7 Again, thank you so much for allowing me to 8 speak today, and if anybody has any questions, I would 9 be more than happy to elaborate on any of the items 10 that the organization participates in or any of the 11 things that I've spoken with. Thank you.

12 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

13 We'll move on to Ms. Packard.

14 MS. PACKARD: My name is Eva Packard, and I
15 am the voter service chairman for the League of Women 16 Voters in Michigan, and I'm sitting in today for our 17 president, Sue Smith, who had to unexpectedly go out 18 of town. And thank you for inviting the League.

19 The League of Women Voters has been in the 20 forefront of advocating for voter rights for all 21 citizens since it was formed in 1920. 1920 is the 22 year that women had finally received the right to vote
23 by passage of the 19th amendment to the U.S.
24 Constitution.

25 Recent examples of positive legislation for

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 voter rights in which the League played a major role,
3 helping to get past, including the 1993 National Voter 4 Registration Act, or also called Voter Motor, and the 5 2002 Help America Vote or HAVA Act.

6 Motor Voter broadened the locations where 7 citizens could register to vote to include driver's 8 license bureaus and locations such as the Department 9 of Human Services, Department of Community Health, and 10 the workforce development agency, as well as military 11 recruitment centers, and also provided for mail-in 12 registration.

13 The league is constantly fighting the 14 addition of laws that do the opposite and suppress 15 voting. Michigan has several laws which implemented
16 voting. One example, registration must be done 30 17 days before an election. That's not true of all the 18 states in the United States. In fact, other states 19 have same day registrations. Other states have fewer 20 than 30 days, like 15 days or something like that.

21 Another example of more recent vintage, is 22 requiring that your address for voter registration is 23 the same as your driver's license. This can 24 particularly impact students who are away at college.

25 And another one would be having to show a

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 photo ID when you go to the polling places to vote.
3 That's a more recent example of voter suppression.

4 While a person without photo ID who has 5 registered to vote and is in the polling booth can 6 sign an affidavit and be allowed to vote, sometimes 7 poll workers don't suggest that or don't remember the 8 option of the affidavit depriving the voter of the 9 right to vote. This requirement has been declared 10 constitutional by the Michigan Supreme Court.

11 Now, let's talk about three pieces of voter 12 suppression legislation that the legislature passed in 13 2012. The League testified before the legislature and 14 urged voters to advocate against the bill. First is a 15 new photo ID requirement. House Bill 5061, in 2012, 16 expanded coverage of the photo ID requirement to those 17 voting absentee at the Clerk's office.

18 The League of Women Voters opposed the bill 19 on the basis that it would disproportionately affect 20 minorities, seniors, low-income groups and young 21 adults. The League representatives met with the 22 governor's staff to ask the Governor to veto the bill.
23 On July 4th, 2012, Governor Snyder vetoed the bill, 24 which would have expanded photo ID to absentee voting.

25 In December of 2012, the legislature

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 adopted another bill with the new -- with the photo ID
3 requirement for absentee voters and the Governor did 4 sign that bill, and I'll talk more about that in a
5 moment.

6 A second item was restrictions on third 7 parties of voter registration. Senate Bill 754, in 8 2012, required third-party organizations, such as the 9 League of Women Voters, to register with the Secretary 10 of State's office and to participate in training in 11 order to be certified. There were onerous penalties 12 on the head of any organization if a member of the 13 organization did not strictly observe the new rules 14 for registered voters. The League opposed the bill on 15 the basis that restricting third-party registration 16 would limit opportunities for people to register.

17 Again, League representatives met the 18 governor's staff asking the Governor to veto the bill, 19 and, on July 4th of 2012, Governor Snyder vetoed that 20 bill. That veto held.

21 And then I'm going to talk about one I 22 heard about earlier, the citizens declaration 23 requirement to vote. That was Senate Bill 803, which 24 required voters to check off a separate box stating 25 that they were citizens in order to receive a ballot.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 The League was one of the organizations which opposed 3 it on the basis it was not necessary and it would 4 restrict voter participation by citizens.

5 The League met with the Governor's staff 6 asking them to veto the bill, and, on July 4th, the 7 governor vetoed the bill, but he did one more thing.
8 He suggested how the bill could be revised: Eliminate 9 the separate box and add words about citizenship to 10 the statement that the voter is already signing, to 11 attest to other items.

12 During the end of the year, a flurry of 13 legislation in 2012 where bills did not receive 14 hearings, but were pushed through and passed, text was 15 added to another bill to add the citizenship
16 requirement. That bill was Senate Bill 810, a Village 17 Election Bill to change the date of village elections.
18 A totally different topic.

19 The new text added a citizenship statement
20 in the format that the Governor had recommended, so 21 that no additional mark is required on the form by the 22 voter to receive a ballot. And it used to say 23 statements -- it used to say, "I certify that the 24 statements in this Absent Voter Ballot Application are 25 true." Now it says, "I certify that I am a United

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 States citizen, and that the statements in the 3 absentee ballot application are true," but you only 4 have to sign once. The Governor signed the bill and 5 it took effect on March 28th, 2013.

6 Now, let know go back to the photo ID
7 requirement to vote absentee at the Clerk's office.
8 The text from House Bill 5061, which the Governor 9 vetoed in July, was also added to Senate Bill 810, the 10 Village Election Bill, but without any changes. When 11 the Governor signed Senate Bill 810, the photo ID
12 requirement also took effect on March 28th of 2013.

13 It meant that an absentee voter who went to 14 the Clerk's office to get an absentee ballot, had to 15 show photo ID, although those who mailed in their 16 absentee ballot applications did not. If no photo ID, 17 the voter could sign an affidavit and get a ballot and 18 vote on it, but the ballot would be put in an envelope 19 and marked as challenged, and the voter would have to 20 bring in photo ID within six days to have the 21 provisional ballot voted. Hard to do if you didn't 22 have ID, and inconvenient if you do but did not bring 23 it with you when you voted.

24 The absentee voter without voter ID would 25 be treated harsher than the person at the polls who

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 had no photo ID. And while that person had to sign an 3 affidavit, that person's ballot was not considered 4 provisional and was processed normally, like 5 ballots -- ballots of other voters.

6 And, in summary, the League of Women Voters 7 would like to see easier access to registration and 8 less stringent requirements for voter identification.
9 Recent State legislation on elections has been going 10 in the wrong direction. And I would like to add one 11 more thing. The League has, also, submitted written 12 testimony dealing with improved -- election 13 administration ways to allow voters -- more voters to 14 vote on things such as early voting and no -- no 15 reason absentee ballots.

16 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

17 MS. TRAN: Good evening, members of the 18 Commission. Thank you for the opportunity to give 19 testimony -- or the opportunity for me to testify. My 20 name is Theresa Tran, and I am the Board president of 21 Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote Michigan.

22 Asian and Pacific Islander American Vote
23 Michigan is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization that 24 serves the Asian and Pacific Islander American, or 25 APIA community, through civic participation, advocacy

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 and education.

3 At 2.97 percent of Michigan's total
4 population, our state's 293,766 APIAs are the fastest 5 growing population, while other populations are 6 declining. Between 2000 and 2010, our community grew 7 at 34.9 percent. In our organization's relatively 8 short history, we have registered, approximately, 9 1,500 individuals to vote, the vast majority of the 10 APIA community.

11 The APIA community faces many challenges to 12 participating in our country's democracy, including 13 language barriers, lack of familiarity with the 14 political process and, sometimes, distrust of 15 government due to the history of the home country's 16 political corruption.

17 For that reason, national APIA community
18 voter registration rates tend to hover around 50 to 60 19 percent, which is significantly lower than that of any 20 other community. However, once registered, APIA
21 voters do turn out to vote at high rates. Nationally, 22 we see Asian-American eligible voters voting at 23 79 percent in 2012.

24 So, it's clear that the assistance that 25 APIAVote-Michigan and other nonprofit organizations

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 provide to the to potential voters in taking the first 3 steps to completing the voter registration form, and,
4 also, providing information about the election process
5 and voting rights is critical.

6 As such, APIAVote-Michigan has consistently 7 opposed the addition of burdensome requirements for 8 third-party voter registration groups that limit our 9 functionality and (inaudible).

10 So, in a similar manner, stricter voter ID
11 laws are particularly harmful to the APIA voters since 12 older female and low-income APIAs are less likely to 13 have photo ID due to cultural norms. In the 14 current -- or in the 2004 current population survey, 15 nationally registered Asian American voters were 16 8.5 percent less likely to say that they voted in 17 states that required a form of identification to vote 18 compared to those states where only a name was 19 required. APIAVote-Michigan opposes stricter voter ID
20 laws that disproportionately burden vulnerable
21 segments of the APIA community.

22 Another barrier that was alluded to for 23 APIAs are particularly sensitive to, is the proof of 24 citizenship box on ballots. According to the 25 Asian-American Legal Defense and Education Fund's

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 nonpartisan multilingual exit polls of 693 Asians and 3 the Arab-American voters of Michigan. This passage 4 permits conscious and unconscious profiling of the 5 APIA community, a form of voter intimidation.

6 For this reason, APIAVote-Michigan has 7 advocated for prohibiting any proof of citizenship
8 question.

9 APIAs continued to face barriers to voting 10 even at the polling station, including the lack of 11 language assistance. Racist and poorly trained poll 12 workers, incomplete voter lists and denial of 13 provisional ballots, improper identification checks 14 and poll site confusion, are all problems that are 15 faced by our community.

16 The Federal response to this 17 disenfranchisement has been the instrumental language 18 assistance provision, or Section 203 of the Federal 19 Voting Rights Act.

20 In October of 2011, Hamtramck, Michigan,
21 became the first city in the United States to apply 22 Section 203 to Bengali voters.

23 In 2012, APIAVote-Michigan worked with 24 members of the Hamtramck community, including the City
25 clerk, to check compliance with Section 203, and noted

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 some of the following issues: Many poll sites failed
3 to provide Bengali ballots, make translated materials
4 available, or provide interpreters, as is required
5 under Section 203.

6 In one case, in particular, the workers --
7 the translated sign displayed next to the Voter Bill
8 of Rights had nothing to do with voter -- voter rights
9 at all. Poll workers also complained that voting
10 machine scanners would not read the translated Bengali 11 ballots because duplicated ballot numbers on the 12 English and the Bengali ballots made it seem as though 13 Bengali voters had already cast votes, causing 14 confusion at the polls.

15 I bring this to your attention, not to say
16 that Section 203 is a failure, but, rather, to say 17 that Section 203 is integral to providing the 18 framework for organizations like ours to apply
19 pressure on City officials to meet the voting rights
20 of all citizens. Therefore, APIAVote-Michigan 21 recommends directly more resources to assist the 22 compliance, not weaken or eliminate this critical 23 safeguard.

24 It's time that we address these issues and 25 create an environment that reflects the nature of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 democracy in our country for all of our communities.
3 APIAVote-Michigan stands strongly in its opposition of 4 restrictive laws that limit the practice of democracy
5 and will continue to work to create engaged 6 transparent communities.

7 Thank you, again, for the opportunity to 8 testify, and I hope this committee will take our 9 concerns into consideration. Thank you.

10 DEAN BENSON: And, finally, Ms. Spencer.

11 MS. SPENCER: Good evening. My name is 12 Khalilah Spencer. I'm appearing on behalf of the 13 Michigan State Conference NAACP. I currently serve as 14 the chair of the legal redress committee, and today I 15 wanted to speak, in particular, about some of the 16 challenges that we've been seeing in the 17 African-American community with regard to voting
18 rights access, and also some litigation that Michigan 19 State has been involved in in the past four or five 20 years.

21 First, let me start by saying, the NAACP,
22 founded February 12th, 1909, is the nation's oldest, 23 largest, and most widely recognized rights -- civil 24 rights organization. The mission of the NAACP is to 25 ensure the political, educational, social, and

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 economic equality of rights of all persons, and to 3 eliminate racial hatred and racial discrimination.

4 In pursuit of this mission, the NAACP is 5 dedicated to, one, and most importantly, protecting 6 the rights of all of the citizens, and most precious 7 of these rights is the right to vote.

8 Since 2011, the NAACP has seen an 9 unprecedented and coordinated attack on access to the 10 ballot box and an attack on attempting to dampen the 11 voter participation among, particularly,
12 African-Americans, among other minorities, younger 13 voters and the elderly. This has been the greatest 14 coordinated legislative attack on voting rights since 15 the dawn of Jim Crowe, more than 100 years ago, 16 clearly in response to the record turnout among 17 minority voters in the 2008 elections.

18 More specifically, we have seen over 30
19 state legislatures -- legislatures introduce voter 20 suppression legislation, laws passing in 14 of those 21 states, and laws pending in another 8.

22 New state laws have been attacking voting
23 rights on forefronts, requiring voters to present 24 unnecessary Government-issued photo identification in 25 order to vote, cutting early voting opportunities in

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 half and ending Sunday voting, ending same-day voter 3 registration and voting, constricting ex-criminal 4 offenders of their right to vote.

5 The NAACP stands against these efforts to 6 suppress the voting rights, and we stand, with our 7 coalition members, and we certainly oppose those. In 8 particular, 2012, we saw an attack in the Michigan
9 State legislature, and we submitted written testimony 10 and in-person testimony to those bills, and we were 11 glad to see that Governor Snyder vetoed those, and I
12 believe Ms. Smith spoke to those, specifically.

13 In the recent four years, NAACP,
14 particularly in Michigan, has been involved in 15 significant litigation and other legal efforts to 16 attack those who are attacking our right to vote.

17 In 2008, Dean Benson was involved in an 18 effort to submit to the DOJ -- there was an issue with 19 Buena Vista Township regarding the closure of 20 Secretary of State offices. We advocated to the DOJ, 21 and they made it clear they were violating what is now 22 no longer Section 5 and pre-clearance. And, so, our 23 new efforts in 2013 are strictly geared toward making 24 sure that Congress does, in fact, bring up a 25 substitute to the section for the Voting Rights Act.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 And we urge everyone, during this time
3 period where the legislatures are at home, and not in 4 Washington, to advocate for those changes. At this 5 point in time, it's our understanding that there is 6 no -- there is nothing on the agenda, in terms of 7 Congress, in addressing Shelby versus Holder.

8 In particular, in addition to that effort 9 in 2008, there was an effort in 2010 by the then 10 Secretary of State to purge voter rolls in violation 11 of the MVRA. We were involved in litigation with the 12 ACLU of Michigan and the Advancement Project in 13 submitting a lawsuit. The judge was Judge Murphy, and 14 we entered into a settlement with the Secretary of 15 State to make sure that she complies with MVRA, and 16 that she did not purge people off QVF without due 17 cause and without following proper procedures.

18 In the latest election in 2012, we have 19 some instances where we perceive complaints with those 20 people who thought they were, in fact, registered to 21 vote, got to the polls, and, you know, they were not 22 on the QVF. We've been in cooperation with the new 23 Secretary of State to sort of discuss those issues and 24 make sure that she is still in compliance with the 25 still pending consent order, and we have been involved

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 in those efforts.

3 Those of you also have been aware that we 4 are also involved in other litigation involving the 5 emergency manager where we feel that that is, also, a 6 violation of voting rights. And, so, there are 7 certain efforts that we have taken, litigation-wise, 8 with respect to making sure that voting rights are 9 preserved in Michigan for African-American voters.

10 In addition to that, we have made a 11 concerted effort in Michigan -- and, particularly, in 12 Detroit -- to increase our GOTV efforts to sort of 13 curb against those people who would suppress the vote.
14 I think the biggest thing that we can do is educate 15 our constituency on what their rights are. It's a lot 16 easier for someone to enforce their own right at the 17 polls than to come back after the fact and ask for 18 litigation.

19 So, what we've been involved in is, we've 20 been involved in significant voter education, making 21 sure that we have forums in cooperation with our City 22 and County clerks to make sure that people are aware 23 of their rights with respect to voting. We've also 24 made sure that we have people in the polls -- poll
25 monitors. Before, we used to concentrate on people

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 just being present in the polls to see what's going 3 on. Lately, we've been involved in more aggressive 4 challenger training.

5 In particular, at the Detroit branch, we 6 have volunteers that are trained and credentialed as 7 challengers. Well, not to be confused, we certainly 8 don't challenge anyone's right to vote, but we do 9 think it's important to know what the challenger's 10 responsibilities and duties are, and then we want to 11 make sure that we have every right that a challenger 12 does when we are calling in complaints and what have 13 you.

14 So, we've made a concerted effort to make 15 sure that we have our volunteers informed, and that, 16 in conjunction with our voter protection effort, to 17 have hotlines available nationally and locally where 18 people can call in. We will look up where they are 19 registered to vote. We will address any concerns that 20 are at the voting poll. If there is back-ups, 21 machines down, we have made an effort to work with our 22 City and County clerks to make sure that we have their 23 numbers to their bureau elections, and that they're 24 aware of issues that are going on in the various 25 precincts.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 So, I think it's an important fact that we 3 need to look on all fronts, litigation, legislative 4 advocacy, and, also, voter protection and voter
5 education.

6 Thank you for letting me testify on behalf
7 of Michigan State Conference NAACP.

8 DEAN BENSON: Thank you to all of our 9 panelists for your very rich testimony, and I am 10 personally grateful for all of the information that 11 you have brought to bear based on your unique 12 experiences and the unique experiences of the 13 organizations you represent.

14 Commissioners, questions for our panelists?

15 MS. KATZ: So, I'll ask one. Thank you
16 all. It's really very interesting.

17 I've heard all four of you say something to 18 the effect of identifying policies -- voting policies
19 that we could change for the voting -- lesser voter ID 20 requirements and a host of things that we have been 21 hearing all evening about, and I think there's some 22 sense of whether there's a political -- the political 23 process can yield those outcomes at this time.

24 But both Chris and Theresa mentioned, to 25 some extent, that existing law was actually sufficient

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 to get a long way -- a long way to some of the ends 3 you were seeking, and that the question is one of 4 better enforcement rather than new provisions. So,
5 I'm wondering if any of you have some thoughts about-- 6 going forward, about the appropriate balance between 7 fighting legislatively or judicially for certain 8 policies, or whether we might achieve more consensus 9 in seeking better enforcement of the provisions we 10 have.

11 And I just -- just to compound the question 12 further, the extent to which the existing law might 13 serve (inaudible) some better than others and how you 14 understand that moving forward.

15 MR. RODRIGUEZ: I think, based on -- from 16 our experience, we had, probably, a two- or three-year
17 kind of campaign on educating the Clerk's office here 18 in the city of Detroit trying to make sure that their 19 polling places were in compliance with State and 20 Federal laws. We came and did a specific survey just 21 of Detroit. We found that there was noncompliance 22 situations in around 92 percent of those.

23 It's worth noting that, when I say
24 noncompliance, that can be something as simple as, you 25 know, the handicapped sign was at 3'3" feet and it

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 should be at 4 feet. And those did exist, but there
3 are also some more grievous violations, such as, I
4 mean, places where, literally, if you are in a 5 wheelchair, you will not enter the building. And we 6 went back and forth, back and forth, back and forth, 7 saying, you know, you've got to get your stuff
8 together.

9 There are certain funds that are specific 10 for clerks to take advantage of so that they can 11 remedy those situations that weren't being taken 12 advantage of. So, basically, it came down to us, 13 basically, threatening the Secretary of State's office 14 in the city of Detroit with litigation. At that 15 point, we -- I think that speaks a little louder, 16 unfortunately. I don't think litigation is ever a 17 resourceful avenue towards systemic change, but, at 18 times, I think it is necessary.

19 Luckily, we didn't have to go down that 20 path, but using those types of pressures and tools 21 yielded some significant changes, and now we have a 22 specific person dedicated at the Secretary of State's 23 office who only deals with the city of Detroit 24 remedying those particular non-compliant locations.

25 So, I think, you know -- I think -- and I

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 think it was mentioned, previously, having a robust 3 and comprehensive arsenal of different tools and 4 approaches to some of these issues is certainly 5 beneficial. Making sure -- as far as making sure 6 things are in compliance with current laws.

7 One of the unique things that we're 8 finding -- and we, certainly, stand by a lot of the 9 things that were mentioned previously about voter 10 registration hurdles and identification and things of 11 that nature. Some of the stuff, you know, when we 12 pose, you know, you should be in compliance with 13 accessibility. And they say, well, let's do this, you 14 know -- it's called -- I forgot what it's called.
15 Basically, you can pull up, somebody will come out and 16 take you, blah, blah, blah, and that's all fine and 17 good. We're not saying that that might not be our 18 remedy, but it's certainly not a substitute to pull 19 participation in the electoral process.

20 So, those are some of the -- the remedies
21 that are being proposed, that we still aren't 22 comfortable with, but I think people are trying to 23 move in the right direction, at least in that 24 particular instance.

25 MS. TRAN: So, in regard to our experiences

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 with monitoring Section 203 compliance, absolutely 3 it's a good policy for our community. However, it's 4 also a Federally mandated policy that has no funding 5 behind it. So, City clerks who have told us, time and 6 time again, that they are, you know, really strained 7 on their budget and trying to comply and do everything 8 that they can, are trying to work with communities, 9 but, oftentimes, in the case of the City of Hamtramck,
10 in the period of just two years, we saw four different 11 City clerks. And as a community based organization 12 that's completely volunteer run, if you're not able to 13 be on the backs of the City clerk all the time, it 14 makes it very difficult.

15 So, yes, I think that there is more that we 16 could do collectively in terms of implementation of 17 some of these policies, but, at the same time, we also 18 have to -- you know, we need to hold our City clerks 19 more accountable to -- and those who are also -- at 20 the Federal level, as well, that are responsible to 21 support them in making those things possible.

22 MS. PACKARD: I'd like to comment on that.
23 The League, in 2012, five of our local leagues did a 24 project, an observer project, working with the County 25 clerks to identify and solve -- help in solving

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 problems. Those were the Ann Arbor, Benton Harbor,
3 Flint, Holland, and Saginaw -- at least as to cover 4 those cities -- and there were a lot of problems that 5 they identified and solutions, but one particular 6 problem that they would address in the community that 7 Chris is talking about, for example, and some of the 8 problems identified.

9 AutoMARK machines are intended for use by 10 those with disabilities, doesn't get much use, is 11 perceived to be unreliable and is bulky. And in one 12 particular county, the training of election workers
13 was inadequate and inconsistent in use of AutoMARK 14 voting equipment for those with disabilities was 15 discouraged due to lack of training and unreliability.
16 Those are facility problems.

17 DEAN BENSON: And I, actually, have a
18 question for Theresa on Section 203. Notably, only 19 one part of Michigan is currently covered by 20 Section 203, Hamtramck, which you've talked about.
21 I'm wondering, given your experience, would you -- 22 and, other states, there are State laws that expand
23 Section 203 requirements to other areas with a 24 lesser -- or with lower coverage requirement.

25 Would you -- do you think there's any need

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 or relevance for any type of additional State
3 requirements here in Michigan for English learning
4 communities who are not -- you know, all the problems 5 with 203, notwithstanding, who are not covered by the 6 basic requirements of 203?

7 MS. TRAIN: Yeah, absolutely. Especially 8 as we're seeing the -- the changes in population that 9 are happening. As I mentioned, our community, in 10 particular, is growing quite quickly, and other 11 communities of color, as well, where English isn't the 12 first language spoken in the home.

13 We see that, with certain City clerks there 14 are provisions of ballots because the City clerks are 15 understanding that there are population changes. So, 16 in places like Dearborn, where there's a high 17 Arab-American population, those City clerks have made 18 the adjustments to provide translated materials, 19 et cetera, on election day.

20 And, so, I think that, yes, because we do
21 need some sort of State law that helps support better 22 access to democracy -- because what we know in the 23 Asian-American community, even though two-thirds of 24 our community is born here in Michigan, or they become 25 citizens, they are excited about voting. Some of them

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 just don't understand the process of how to register
3 to vote and, oftentimes, it takes people who look like 4 them to help get them registered and people who can 5 speak their language to get them registered.

6 So, absolutely, more provision of access,
7 language access, in the different polling locations 8 would make it easier and more exciting for our 9 community to be involved in the democratic process.

10 DEAN BENSON: If there are no further 11 questions for our panelists --

12 Thank you very much for your rich
13 testimony, and we appreciate you being here tonight.
14 Thank you.

15 That concludes our final panel of experts
16 for the evening, and now we have -- we'll have a 17 period of public comment and testimony, as well, 18 before we adjourn for the evening. So, I'll ask those 19 of you who, again, are interested in signing up to 20 give public testimony, if you have not already signed 21 up, but would like to do so, please see Carly at the 22 registration table, and we -- we encourage those who 23 are going to be delivering public testimony, to speak 24 into the microphone to the left, and please limit your 25 remarks to four minutes.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 I will first call Monique Baker-McCormick
3 to deliver your testimony to the Commissioners. And,
4 again, I'll remind you to keep your testimony to four 5 minutes.

6 MS. BAKER-McCORMICK: Good evening. I am
7 Monique Baker-McCormick. I am a citizen of Detroit.
8 I, as a homeowner, business owner and a registered 9 voter in the city of Detroit, have received three 10 absentee ballots at my home address with three 11 different names of people that no longer live at my 12 address. And I think that that's a major problem, 13 because I could have simply sent in -- mailed in the 14 absentee ballots, and I think that that is happening a 15 lot in the city of Detroit.

16 Secondly, because of all of the 17 irregularities in the past elections, especially in 18 the -- the last mayoral election where we have had 19 three different recounts with three different results, 20 we know that something is majorly wrong with that.
21 There needs to be legislation changed and passed to 22 address the issue of a recount.

23 If you have a recount, you should be able 24 to recount the ballots no matter what the issue is.
25 Because if you can't recount them, what's the use of

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 having a recount? So, we have to change that 3 legislation, and we also have to empower the board of 4 commissioners to actually use their powers. In a lot 5 of the cases, they won't address the issues that we 6 have with problems in the recount or in an election.

7 The Secretary of State, I think they lack 8 the power to enforce the powers that they have. I 9 think that's a major issue, as well. And we know that 10 there is fraud in the election process. And, you 11 know, as a citizen, as a voter, as an American, as a 12 veteran, I want my vote to count. I expect for my 13 vote to count. And that's why we need reform.

14 Thank you.

15 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

16 Any questions from our Commissioners?

17 Thank you very much.

18 Next, Michael-David BenDor.

19 MR. BENDOR: Hi. I have four minutes. I 20 wanted to start with the issue of law enforcement.
21 It's a very straightforward thing. If we're going to 22 have rights and we're going to have a law, they have 23 to be enforced. In 1980, I was involved in an 24 election in which we were told by a co-worker that 25 five ballots were thrown in the trash, and one of the

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 parties lost the election because of five votes.

3 We discovered, at that time, that there
4 were only three people in Michigan who did any kind of 5 law enforcement. They were the State police. Now, 6 there's only one. State police have been cut 7 considerably.

8 We discovered that -- when we went to 9 court, they wanted us to prove fraud. We couldn't get 10 to the ballots because we had a lawsuit. The ballots 11 were locked up tight. We couldn't get the evidence 12 because we had a lawsuit. If we didn't have a 13 lawsuit, maybe we could have gotten the ballots. I 14 don't know. But that was 1980. This is a long time 15 since.

16 We have the Detroit election going on. I 17 was involved in training some people to be 18 challengers. The law is very clear. It's a felony in 19 Michigan to interfere with the performance of a 20 challenger. The legal performance. They're not 21 allowed to obstruct the election, and so on, but there 22 is a law on the books that says that.

23 The Detroit police, I'm told, escorted 13
24 challengers out of the building. The Detroit police.
25 They are supposed to be the law enforcement. They

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 broke the law. And if any reasonable person reads
3 it -- now, I'm told by my son, who's a law student,
4 that you don't know what the law is until a judge 5 tells you, and even then, it might be appealed. But 6 I'm a reasonable person, and I can read the law, and 7 that's what it says. There is no way that there is 8 law enforcement.

9 Now, I know I only have a couple more 10 minutes, so I want to go on to the issue about why is 11 this important? Well, I want to live in a civilized 12 society. I don't want to have to carry a gun to 13 defend myself. I want to live in a civilized society.
14 When the game is played that violates our rights -- 15 and that's what's happening, our rights are being 16 violated.

17 There's a TV show called "Hard Ball," and 18 they treat politics as a game. That's what -- that's 19 what it's become. And the money that goes into it -- 20 if you look at the Detroit election, how is it that 21 something more than two and a half million dollars was 22 spent on the mayoral primary? Two and a half million 23 dollars. This is reported by the Detroit Free Press.

24 Now, I worked very hard on the election
25 Cliff report for MERA, and I really, really hope

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 you'll take the time to read it. I spent a lot of 3 time making sure all of the footnotes were right. And 4 one of the things that happened while I was doing that 5 was, I was looking at Dominion. That's an interesting 6 name, Dominion.

7 Dominion is the name of the company that 8 now owns Diebold, or what was Diebold and became 9 Premier, and now it's Dominion, and it owns ES&S, and 10 it's a foreign corporation, and I could find nothing 11 about who owns it. They are not sworn election 12 officials when they count the vote, and they count all 13 the votes in the state of Michigan, and that's wrong.
14 It makes the system very easy to be gamed. We don't 15 know who is elected. And as that continues to happen, 16 we are going to lose our civilization.

17 We have very little respect for the law
18 now, generally, and I'm very sorry if that continues.
19 We really need to be able to respect the outcome of 20 elections. We need to know, for certain, that 21 they're -- who you voted for. And just as the person 22 ahead of me said, you know, I have a -- I should have 23 a right to vote. I'd like to live in a democratic 24 society.

25 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much for your

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 testimony.

3 Questions from the Commissioners?

4 Next, Catherine Montgomery.

5 MS. MONTGOMERY: My name is Catherine
6 Montgomery. I'm a resident of the city of Detroit, 7 I'm a voter in Detroit, and I am sadly disappointed 8 with the way our election was handled this year -- or 9 in 2012.

10 I was a challenger on the general election 11 night, and although I was working at a location in 12 northwest Detroit, I was informed by the challengers 13 that were working in Cobo Hall that the persons that 14 wanted to go in the room where they were opening up 15 the absentee ballots so that the signatures on the 16 ballots could be compared with the signatures that are 17 on file, the challengers were not allowed into that 18 room. This opens the door wide open for fraud.

19 I also am concerned that there is no 20 purging going on of our voter rolls; that people who 21 have died, people who are over 100 years old, are 22 still on the rolls and being counted as voters, and 23 their names are being used to stuff the ballot, and I
24 believe that's what happened in our election this 25 year.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 I'm sure I have other things to say.

3 I'm -- my mind isn't -- it's not coming to me right 4 now, but I'm just -- I'm very concerned. I was 5 involved in the recount both in the primary and in the 6 general election. I saw, personally, myself, 7 handwriting that was identical on the write-in 8 ballots. There was more than one person, but there 9 was several handwriting that was identical.

10 The Wayne County Board of Canvassers should 11 have done a thorough investigation of this, they did 12 not. They dropped the ball. They picked 17 or 19 13 ballots out of all the handwritten signatures to 14 compare -- have a handwriting expert investigate. We 15 picked out thousands -- thousands of ballots that had 16 similar handwriting. And this -- nothing was done by 17 the Board of Canvassers to investigate that.

18 Thank you, Council.

19 DEAN BENSON: Thank you very much.

20 From the Commissioners, any questions?

21 All right. Our final member of the public 22 to testify tonight, Melissa Brown.

23 MS. BROWN: Good evening, Commissioners,
24 Dean Benson. Thank you for allowing me to testify 25 tonight.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 My testimony is more of a personal story.
3 In 2012, on election night, I watched the polls in the 4 morning, and then I went to class -- I'm a student
5 here -- and then I went and watched the polls again
6 later that night, because, apparently, I don't know 7 how to relax on election day, ever.

8 But, in the morning, I saw some interesting
9 things in polls in Detroit -- and I know, Dean Benson, 10 I was in contact with you -- there weren't enough 11 polling booths, so people were holding their ballots 12 up on the wall and writing in their votes on the -- in 13 the bubbles on the wall because there weren't enough 14 privacy booths.

15 Lines were long, but they were moving 16 smoothly, but they were just -- there was such an 17 overwhelming response in the morning that there wasn't 18 enough to have that line move smoothly without 19 compromising privacy.

20 But the most concerning thing I saw that 21 night was, later, I went to Dearborn and I watched a 22 poll there, and I discovered that the poll workers 23 weren't adequately educated in how to administer the 24 affidavit and the oath when someone doesn't have their 25 voter ID -- when they don't have their driver's

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 license or some form of ID. I was told that they were 3 sending people home to go get things like water bills 4 and other utility bills to prove that they were who 5 they said that they were, in order to match that with 6 what was on the registration rolls.

7 And that was definitely a little bit
8 concerning that I was there at 7:00 -- 6:30, 7:00 at 9 night. How many people had they turned away because 10 they hadn't been adequately educated as to what to do 11 when somebody forgets their driver's license? And if 12 you multiply that by every precinct across this entire 13 state, how many people didn't get to vote at all 14 because people weren't adequately trained?

15 Now, I know this is a national commission 16 and this is a very Michigan specific issue, but when 17 you go back and you talk with other people that may 18 have influence on the subject, I think that, maybe, we 19 should have a definite focus on what we can do to make 20 training uniform and to give the correct information 21 to the people who hold the -- who, basically, open the 22 gate to whether or not you can get a ballot. Because 23 without that, I hate to think how many people aren't 24 being able to vote simply because people don't know
25 what they're doing.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 So, thank you.

3 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

4 Commissioners, any questions for Melissa?

5 All right.

6 Thank you very much.

7 And I thank all of you -- in particular, 8 our expert panelists -- for providing such detailed 9 information to us tonight. I think I speak on behalf 10 of all of the Commissioners in communicating our 11 thanks for those of you who shared such detailed 12 research, knowledge and stories of voting in Michigan.

13 So, with that, I'll turn it over to Lawyers
14 Committee.

15 MR. MARTINSON: Thanks, Dean Benson. Just 16 briefly, before we conclude, I want to thank Wayne 17 State, again, our Commissioners, our panelists, and 18 the members of the public who came here to provide 19 testimony. I think we covered a lot of issues today.
20 I'm sure there are issues that we didn't cover, and 21 I'm happy to accept additional testimony from anyone 22 here or anyone that you talk to after this event in 23 the form of written testimony regarding voting issues
24 that are occurring and have occurred in Michigan.

25 This is just the beginning of the process.

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 This is only the third hearing held by the National 3 Commission on Voting Rights. We're going to have 24 4 more, so we're just getting started in the process of 5 creating a record for Congress for a Shelby County 6 Supreme Court fix, and to put together information and 7 facts for activists and legislatures to use to help 8 reform elections in Michigan and throughout the United 9 States, and I expect that a lot of these issues will 10 be covered in other forums around the country, and, 11 obviously, we want to hear from all of you if you have 12 additional things to say.

13 Ms. Spencer mentioned the lack of 14 legislation in Congress regarding the Shelby County
15 Supreme Court decision, and we expect that to change 16 soon, and, so, you should expect, in the next, you 17 know, probably month, to see some legislation coming 18 out of Congress. At least, that's what we're 19 expecting, at this point.

20 As I mentioned, if you want to submit 21 written testimony, please email me,
22 Amartinson@lawyerscommittee.org, or you can go online
23 to MIhearing.lawyerscommittee.org.

24 So, good night, everyone. I'll give any of 25 the commissioners a chance to say any closing remarks

1 NATIONAL COMMISSION ON VOTING RIGHTS

2 that they would like. Otherwise, we can -- can get 3 going.

4 PROFESSOR KATZ: I'll just say quickly that 5 Alan did a superb job organizing all of this, and I 6 really wanted to thank him.

7 Alan was my student longer ago than either
8 of us will admit. I'm just wasting time for a few 9 more minutes -- or a few more seconds. I will add 10 that, not only was he spectacular as a student, it's 11 one of the pleasures of teaching to see your students 12 go on and do good work in the world and learn from 13 them. So, it's a particular treat for me to be here.

14 Again, thank you, Alan.

15 DEAN BENSON: Thank you.

16 MR. MARTINSON: All right. Thank you,
17 everyone.

P R O C E E D I N G S :

MR. MARTINSON: Good afternoon. Welcome to the Minneapolis hearing of the National Commission on Voting Rights. I'm Alan Martinson, an attorney with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights in Washington, D.C. On behalf of the Lawyers' Committee, we thank you for your participation and support this afternoon. And at the outset, I'd like to thank the University of Minnesota Law School for hosting us for a discussion about one of the most fundamental aspects of our society, the right to vote.

The Lawyers' Committee is a nonprofit, nonpartisan civil rights organization founded at the request of President John Kennedy 50 years ago to engage the private bar in the fight for racial justice and equality. We continue our work today in a range of areas, including as one of the foremost national organizations on voting rights.

Today's hearing in Minneapolis in the eighth in a series of nationwide

1 fact-finding hearings convened by our National 2 Commission on Voting Rights.

3 As many of you know, this summer --
4 this past summer the U.S. Supreme Court struck
5 down a key protection of the Voting Rights
6 Act, and legislation was recently introduced
7 in Congress to strengthen voting protections
8 to repair some of what was lost.

9 So one of our main purposes through 10 these national hearings is to identify the 11 need for strong protections against 12 discrimination in voting by looking at the 13 current record in states throughout the 14 country.

15 In addition, today we also want to 16 hear from you about election administration
17 and election reform. Across the country over 18 the past few years we have seen a wave of 19 restrictive voting laws, those making it
20 harder for many eligible voters to cast a 21 ballot. I've seen some of these next door in 22 Wisconsin. Further we've also continued to 23 see election administration challenges cycle
24 after cycle related to poll worker training, 25 voter registration, provisional ballots,

1 voting machine problems. Here in Minnesota
2 you've seen some very positive reforms, some 3 of which may serve as models for the rest of 4 the country. And your input on these issues
5 is critical for ongoing efforts at a state,
6 local and national level.

7 With the testimony we receive today
8 and after the hearing, the National Commission 9 will prepare two reports; one on voting
10 discrimination and another on election 11 administration and electoral reform. The 12 reports and records from the hearings will be 13 available this year to anyone seeking to 14 reform or improve existing voting laws. We 15 expect the reports to inform Congress and 16 educate the public regarding recent record of 17 voting discrimination and what to look out for 18 moving forward.

19 Presiding over the event today are 20 five commissioners, each with a strong 21 commitment to protecting the access to ballot.

22 Biko Baker is the Executive 23 Director of the League of Young Voters and is 24 a nationally recognized leader. He's based in 25 Milwaukee. He's a pioneer in writing

1 city-level, data-driven voter turnout
2 campaigns that dramatically increase voter 3 participation of young urban citizens, in 4 particular, African-Americans. Biko has 5 appeared on numerous national news programs as 6 well as at many conferences and other events
7 to discuss these issues. We're also pleased 8 that he's a national commissioner for the
9 National Commission on Voting Rights.

10 Professor Lawrence Jacobs, who is 11 not here yet today, is the Walter and Joan 12 Mondale Chair for Political Studies at the 13 Herbert Humphrey School here at the University 14 of Minnesota. He's published 14 books and 15 edited volumes on dozens of articles on 16 elections, legislation and presidential 17 politics.

18 Wenda Weekes Moore served as a 19 trustee of the W. K. Kellogg Foundation in 20 Battle Creek, Michigan for 26 years and is 21 currently a member of the Kellogg Trust.
22 She's the Regent Emeritus at the University of 23 Minnesota having served for 16 years, six of 24 these years as the chair of the board. And 25 she's the first one and person of color to 1 serve in that capacity.

2 Mark Ritchie, who will be here
3 shortly, is Minnesota Secretary of State.
4 He's a long-time leader in the realm of voting
5 rights beginning well before his current stint
6 in state government. He was a participant 7 in -- at the Minneapolis hearing of the 8 previous incarnation of the National 9 Commission on Voting Rights back in 2005.
10 We're thrilled to have him join us for a 11 couple of hours today.

12 And finally, Warren Spannaus who 13 was the Attorney General of the State of 14 Minnesota from 1971 to 1983 winning the 15 reelection two times. He's a partner in the 16 law firm of Dorsey and Whitney LLP from 1983
17 to 2000, and we're honored to have him here
18 today.

19 Our commissioners will preside over 20 today's event and receive testimony from 21 several panels of witnesses and ask follow-up 22 questions as they desire to ensure that we 23 create as robust a record as possible about 24 the state of voting in Minnesota and Wisconsin
25 today.

1 Now just a few housekeeping items 2 before we start. If you've been confirmed on 3 a panel in advance, please check in at the 4 sign-in table. There's also been two changes
5 in the program. First, Maribeth Witzel-Behl, 6 the Madison City Clerk is sick, so she's 7 unable to make it here today. If you're 8 interested in her testimony, I can provide her 9 written testimony to you by email.

10 Second, Richard Saks from the 11 Milwaukee NAACP was held up in a Wisconsin 12 Supreme Court hearing in Madison related to 13 voter photo ID, and so he won't be able to 14 make it today. So please let me know if 15 you're interested in his written testimony,
16 and I can provide that by email.

17 For any individuals here today who 18 would like to share their voting experiences 19 and who have not been assigned to a panel, we 20 would like to hear from you as well. Please 21 make sure that you sign up at the witness list 22 out in front of the door to the room and speak 23 to our designated volunteers for instructions.
24 The commissioner will call your name during 25 the open mic period. We have several

1 volunteer attorneys who will help craft your 2 testimony to make sure you convey your key 3 points in the limited time period that we have 4 for each person, which is three minutes.

5 A few other items, our hearing is 6 being transcribed, so please speak clearly,
7 especially your name. It's also being 8 videotaped. Please be mindful of the 9 time-keepers and their signs. And if you are 10 on Twitter, we have it set up with hash tags
11 for hearing. They're on the screen there, 12 #NCVR, #votingrights and you can see
13 @lawyerscommittee.

14 Finally, thank you. I want to 15 thank our law firm sponsors of Dorsey and 16 Whitney LLP and Perkins Coie LLP for their 17 financial support and planning assistance. I 18 also want to thank the planning committee of 19 Katherine Arnold, Kelly Beedle, Alicia Boehme, 20 Analiese Eicher, Shannon Heim Ann Jacobs,
21 Chandra Kilgriff, Rhett Martin, Mike Pignato, 22 Eric Rauch and John Skilton.

23 Finally, I want to thank all of our 24 commissioners and witnesses and the numerous 25 Minnesota and Wisconsin organizations that

1 have helped with the planning and promoting of 2 the event, including our great co-sponsoring 3 organizations listed in the program and our 4 great volunteers. If you want more 5 information, you can go to 6 NCVR.lawyerscommittee.org and you can submit 7 additional information or testimony at 8 Minneapolishearing.lawyerscommittee.org or by 9 emailing me at 10 amartinson@lawyerscommittee.org.

11 I'll now turn it over to our 12 commissioners to call our first panel of 13 witnesses. Thank you.

14 MR. SPANNAUS: Thank you very much,
15 Alan. Just want to say that the three 16 commissioners here -- that are here so far, 17 I'm sure the four are delighted to have you in 18 Minnesota. You're a pleasure, and we are all 19 looking forward to your testimony. I would 20 like to add one thing. The original 21 commissioner was scheduled to be 22 Walter Mondale, but as you know, he's been -- 23 he just had some serious heart surgery and 24 triple bypass and presently rehabbing down in 25 Rochester, Minnesota. And I talked to him

1 this morning, and he said he regrets he can't 2 be here, but he would like to send his regards
3 to all of you and best wishes for a successful
4 hearing.

5 And so we'll call the first 6 witness, and that's Mr. Jeff Martin of the 7 St. Paul branch of the NAACP.

8 MR. MARTIN: Thank you. I won't 9 have to worry about speaking loud. The 10 testimony I would like to offer today is to 11 have Minnesota consider expanding the right to 12 vote. Restoring the right to vote for those 13 living in the community will make the law more 14 clear and equitable, save government resources 15 and encourage positive participation. This is 16 the problem. Minnesotans lose the right to 17 vote until they have been released from 18 supervision for any felon, including while 19 they are living in the community, even if they 20 have spent any time in prison or only served a 21 shorter jail sentence. In 2011, of the 63,000
22 Minnesotans who were unable to vote due to a 23 past criminal conviction, only about 16,000
24 were behind bars, in prison or jail. In other 25 words, 75 percent of those who have been

1 denied the right to vote under Minnesota law
2 are living in the community, working to earn a 3 wage and support their families and paying 4 taxes. The number of people disenfranchised 5 has greatly increased in recent years because 6 felony convictions and sentencing, especially 7 for drug offenses, has exploded.

8 Since 1974, the percentage of 9 voting-age Minnesota disenfranchised as a 10 result of criminal convictions has increased 11 over 400 percent. Felony disenfranchisement
12 prevents Minnesotans with criminal convictions
13 from having a stake in their communities and a 14 voice in decisions that affect all aspects of 15 their lives. Although felony 16 disenfranchisement impacts a growing number of 17 all Minnesotans, as a result of 18 disproportionate contact with criminal justice
19 system, African-Americans and American Indians
20 are disproportionately affected.

21 In 2011, nearly 16,000
22 African-Americans or roughly 8 percent of 23 African-Americans who were old enough to vote 24 were disenfranchised. Although 25 African-Americans make up roughly 5 percent of

1 the Minnesota population, they represent over 2 a quarter of the total number of those 3 disenfranchised. American Indians make up 4 less than 2 percent of the population;
5 however, in 2011 American Indians comprised 6 more than 6 percent of those disenfranchised.

7 This has long-lasting repercussions
8 for the community. Research has shown that 9 children are more likely to vote as adults if 10 they are raised by parents who are engaged in 11 the voting process. By disenfranchising 12 people who are not behind bars, we lose not 13 only the voice of those directly impacted by 14 disenfranchisement, we also discourage the 15 participation of future generations.

16 The solution, Minnesota should pass
17 legislation to allow people who have served 18 their time and are living in their community
19 the right to vote. By moving to this model, 20 Minnesota will join 13 states that 21 disenfranchise only those persons who are 22 incarcerated for felony convictions. Those 23 states are Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana,
24 Massachusetts, Michigan, Montana, New 25 Hampshire, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon,

1 Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Utah. This 2 reform will promote successful reintegration
3 into the community as voting can be a 4 powerful, concrete and symbolic way to 5 contribute to one's community and to feel 6 invested and empowered to play a positive 7 role. Research has shown that persons with 8 criminal convictions in their past are less 9 likely to be arrested again in states that 10 restore voting rights after release from 11 incarceration than in the states where they 12 face permanent disenfranchisement.

13 Law enforcement and corrections
14 professionals therefore agree that encouraging 15 individuals to take on this important 16 responsibility makes sense. Additionally, the 17 policy that permits all individuals who have 18 served their time in jail or prison to vote
19 reduces confusion among voters and election
20 officials about who can vote, thereby easing 21 election administration and reducing 22 government costs.

23 Restoring the right to vote to 24 those living in the community will positively 25 engage more people in a democratic process,

1 make the law clear and saving resources and 2 ultimately make all Minnesota communities
3 safer and more gest. Thank you.

4 MR. SPANNAUS: Thank you. Any 5 questions for Mr. Martin?

6 (No response.)

7 MR. SPANNAUS: Next, Mr. Blong Yang
8 of the Minneapolis City Council.

9 MR. YANG: Thank you. Thank you
10 for this opportunity to testify here today.
11 My name is Blong Yang. I am Hmong-American.
12 I want to thank the Asian American Organizing 13 Project for encouraging me to testify here
14 today.

15 In 2012, I ran unsuccessfully for 16 the Hennepin County Commissioner in District 2 17 race. In 2013, I was elected to the 18 Minneapolis City Council. I represent Ward 5.
19 I offer a candidate's perspective on voting as 20 a first Hmong-American to run for office in 21 Hennepin County/Minneapolis.

22 The first question that I am going 23 to address is the challenges facing 24 Asian-American voters in Minnesota such as 25 language issues or other systemic problems.

1 And you know, one of the first issues is a 2 lack of interpretation/translation services at 3 the polls. You can imagine for 4 Asian-Americans there are a lot of language
5 minorities within that group such as Hmong, 6 Lao, Vietnamese, Karen, Burmese. That just 7 presents a huge challenge at the polls for any 8 number of the election judges that are there 9 on that day.

10 The second piece is the lack of 11 outreach or voter education. And even if 12 there is outreach or voter education, 13 sometimes it misses the mark. I'll use an 14 example. City of Minneapolis had a video 15 campaign on Ranked-Choice Voting in a few 16 different languages. And the videos were on 17 YouTube. Unfortunately, these videos didn't 18 necessarily meet the people where they were 19 at. Additionally, at least for the Hmong one, 20 there was a glaring misinterpretation and the 21 video was altogether confusing.

22 Three, lack of voter contact/
23 outreach from candidates, political parties 24 and other campaigns. The example here is the 25 focus of campaigns, generally speaking, is to 1 focus on traditional voters who tend to be 2 older and whiter. It takes extra time and 3 effort to reach out to nontraditional voters 4 and it tends to cost more to reach out to 5 nontraditional voters, and the return

6 sometimes may not be measurable which means 7 that outreach to nontraditional voters tends 8 to be an afterthought.

9 Four is that our voting processes, 10 including the caucuses, conventions and 11 elections favor those who speak English and 12 those who have engaged in the process for a 13 long time. And the example here is caucuses 14 and conventions require an understanding of 15 parliamentary procedures which favor
16 traditional voters over new voters.

17 The second issue that I wanted to 18 address is this question of are there any 19 voting laws or circumstances in Minnesota
20 that, although they have general
21 applicability, tend to affect Asian-American 22 voters more substantially or in different ways 23 than other voters. And let me give some 24 backdrop to this. The ward that I represent, 25 Ward 5, is a majority minority ward. Roughly

1 70 percent of the population are people of 2 color with about 15 percent being 3 Asian-American, primarily Hmong. In the past, 4 the black-and-white paradigm tended to exclude 5 other groups such as the Hmong from fully 6 participating in the electoral process. Or 7 said in another way, the Hmong in North 8 Minneapolis have been treated although they 9 are invisible.

10 Many Hmong voters are limited
11 English proficient or LEP. They need an 12 interpreter to help them to vote. Many times 13 at the polling places there are no
14 interpreters. Thus, if an LEP Hmong voter 15 wanted to vote, he or she would have to bring 16 his or her own interpreter.

17 There are times sometimes, and this 18 is somewhat rare, but I mean it does happen
19 when there is an election judge who is Hmong.
20 However, the Hmong election judge can only 21 help when the polling place isn't busy. When 22 the polling place is busy, the Hmong election 23 judge has to help all voters meaning that the 24 wait for a Hmong voter to be helped could be 25 much longer before the election judge is

1 available.

2 Minnesota Statute Section 204C.15,
3 Subdivision 1 spells out how an LEP voter can 4 receive assistance. The relevant parts read 5 as such, quote: A voter in need of 6 assistance, and this is -- in this case, the 7 inability to speak English or read English, a 8 voter in need of assistance may obtain the 9 assistance of an individual the voter chooses.
10 Only the following persons may not provide 11 assistance to a voter; the voter's employer, 12 and agent of the voter's employer, an officer 13 or agent of the voter's union or a candidate 14 for election. No person who assists another 15 voter shall mark the ballots of more than 16 three voters at one election, end quote.

17 In my view, this law is arbitrary
18 in limiting an interpreter to only helping no 19 more than three voters at one election. In an 20 area where there is a high concentration of 21 LEP persons and few interpreters, there may be 22 a time when no interpreter can help, meaning 23 the voter just does not get to vote or has to 24 just do so on their own.

25 Additionally, this law isn't

1 applied consistently. In Ward 5, there are 2 eight precincts or polling places. For each 3 one, the law was applied differently with 4 respect to the limits placed on the number of 5 voters an interpreter could help. Some 6 polling places strictly followed the law, and 7 the election judges made no exceptions even in 8 times when no interpreters were present to 9 help an LEP voter. Other polling places did 10 not follow the law in that the election judges 11 decided that the need for interpreters to 12 avoid disenfranchisement outweighed violating 13 the law.

14 With the law such as this that 15 prescribes how an LEP person can exercise his 16 or her right to vote, it limits the right to 17 vote by placing barriers in front of a voter.
18 The voter has a responsibility to provide an 19 interpreter for him or herself which may 20 violate the law as being national origin
21 discrimination. The LEP voter would not 22 understand any instructions, usually only in 23 English, on how to obtain an interpreter, even 24 if a free interpreter could be provided, nor 25 would the LEP voter be able to request an

1 interpreter, because requesting an interpreter
2 requires speaking and writing in English.
