John Breyault

Vice President, Public Policy,
Telecommunications, and Fraud

National Consumers League

John Breyault is a nationally-recognized consumer advocate with more than 15 years of experience championing the rights of consumers and the underserved. At the National Consumers League, he advocates for stronger consumer protections before Congress and federal agencies on issues related to telecommunications, fraud, data security, privacy, aviation, live event ticketing, video gaming and other consumer concerns. In addition, John manages NCL's Fraud.org and #DataInsecurity Project campaigns. John has testified multiple times before Congress and federal agencies and is a regular contributor to national press outlets including the Washington Post, New York Times, and Wall Street Journal.

Prior to NCL, John was the director of research at Amplify Public Affairs, where he supported clients in the telecommunications, energy, labor, and environmental sectors. Earlier in his career, John worked at Sprint and at the American Center for Polish Culture in Washington, DC.

A lifelong Virginian, John is a graduate of George Mason University, where he received a bachelor's degree in International Studies with a minor in French.
