

Erica Swanson is Head of Community Engagement for Grow with Google, the tech company's economic initiative that provides Americans with tools and resources to prepare for work, find jobs, and grow their business. Her team partners with +6,000 local organizations to deliver digital skills trainings across all 50 states. Erica's previous work at Google focused on helping low-income communities cross the digital divide. Before joining Google, Erica worked for The Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights. She earned her B.A. from Central College in Iowa and her M.A. from George Washington University.