

Barry L. Schlouch
President and Co-Founder
Schlouch Incorporated

Barry L. Schlouch is founder and President of Schlouch Incorporated (SI), a 285-person site design and heavy civil construction firm headquartered in Blandon, Pennsylvania. The firm provides total site preparation services throughout Eastern Pennsylvania and surrounding states. It was ranked number one among large companies by the Best Places to Work in Pennsylvania in 2000. Their web site is www.schlouch.com

Barry is author of the book “Excellence In Construction” and is a popular speaker at corporation meetings, trade shows and conferences.

Before founding SI in 1983, Barry was vice-president of Rubright Construction, Inc. in Shoemakersville, Pennsylvania. Earlier he held survey and crew positions with Robert Ludgate & Associates of Reading, J.E. Breneman Contracting Engineers of Philadelphia and grew up working on his family’s farm.

A member of the Young Presidents Organization, Barry has participated for thirteen years in the Executive Education Program designed for that group by Harvard University and has achieved alumni status. He also attended Penn State Berks and Lehigh County Community College and completed a two-year Executive Leadership Program at the Wharton Business School.

Barry achieved Certified Equipment Manager (CEM) status with the Association of Equipment Management Professionals (AEMP) in 2006 and Safety Trained Supervisor of Construction (STSC) status through the Board of Safety Professionals in 2016.

Barry is an avid outdoors person and enjoys fitness, running, hiking, swimming, riding his Harley motorcycle and wilderness exploration on horseback. He and his spouse, Debi, have two children, Barry A., 44, and Stayce E., 39. Deb is an artist and their daughter is involved in the family business. The Schlouch’s live in Mohnton, Pennsylvania.
