

Lawrence Montreuil is a proven leader with over a decade of combined experience in the Department of Defense and congressional relations.

Lawrence is currently the Legislative Director for The American Legion, where he spearheads its federal lobbying efforts, representing the voice of 2 million veterans and servicemembers. Prior to joining The American Legion, he worked on capitol hill in the U.S. House of Representatives for a member of the House Armed Services Committee as a Legislative Fellow working on defense and veteran policy issues.

Lawrence was an active-duty Marine Infantry Officer for eight years and has deployed multiple times to include serving as an Afghan National Army Military Advisor. He continued to serve in the Marine Corps Reserves after leaving active-duty and was promoted to the rank of Major before completing his service.
