

Ricardo Gomez is an Employment and Education Policy Associate for The American Legion's Veterans Employment and Education Division in Washington, D.C. He is a U.S. Marine Corps veteran who served eight years across a diverse number of units. He was abroad for half of his military career and carried out various diplomatic security missions. After his service, Ricardo used the Post-9/11 GI Bill to pursue his Juris Doctor from The Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law. Ricardo also earned his bachelor's degree in international relations and security from Hawaii Pacific University.

In his role at The American Legion's National Headquarters in Washington, D.C., he advocates for economic opportunity policy on behalf of servicemembers, veterans, and their families. In addition, he works with federal, state, and local stakeholders to end veteran homelessness. Moreover, he prepares congressional testimony before Congress and works with the Department of Veterans Affairs, Department of Defense, Department of Labor, and the Small Business Administration to improve transition benefits for our nation's servicemembers.